CRMWD meets Friday to consider its budget

The Colorado River Municipal Water District will meet Friday at 10 a.m. to discuss the 1993 budget. Also on the agenda is selection of an independent auditor and consideration of purchasing "Major River," a water conservation study series. Budget and personnel committees will meet an hour prior to the director's meeting.

Homemakers program

A Homemakers School Program will be Oct. 13 at the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium from 7:30-9:30 p.m. Seating for the event is limited, so participants need to pick up tickets from participating merchants early. The program will feature food preparation and home management techniques. There will also be a cooking demonstration by a national home economist, fashion show featuring local clothiers and prize giveaways. The program was developed by Homemakers Schools with cooperation of local merchants and national sponsors. The event is also sponsored by the Big Spring Herald.

Moore board to meet

Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. is scheduled to meet for an annual meeting Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. A draft of the annual report will be discussed. Discussions will also include pending proposals by Wright Fibers Inc. and American Limestone Co. to open separate operations here. The meeting will be the Moore Development room at 215 W. 3rd.

Shade trees given away

The National Arbor Day Foundation will be giving away 10 free shade trees to each person who joins the foundation during October. The trees are part of the non-profit foundation's efforts to encourage tree planting throughout America. To become a member and receive the free trees send a $10 membership fee to Shade Trees, National Arbor Day Foundation, 10 Arbor Ave., Nebraska City, Neb. 68410 by Oct. 31.

D-FY-IT lands place to gather

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Drug-free students can stop feeling the peer pressure of using alcohol and drugs with a new drug- and alcohol-free "Teen Center" converted from the old Pindeck Lounge for use by students in D-FY-IT (Drug-Free Youths in Texas.)

Officials from Bluebonnet Savings and the Highland Mall signed over a rent-free lease today to D-FY-IT students who will also meet today after school in the high school cafeteria to hammer out the details of starting the club.

"We wanted a place for the student body to go without having the peer pressure to use drugs and alcohol," said Jimmy Cox, D-FY-IT president.

He added the new club will provide an alternative to "cruising" Gregg Street or attending house parties where pressure is the strongest.

D-FY-IT students drafted a proposal Sept. 17 for bank and mall representatives outlining their responsibilities should the officials agree to provide the space rent free.

Students have free reign in renovating the inside, handling daily operations, paying utilities and maintaining liability insurance. "The kids have been working on it for years now. Nobody was wanting to help them," said Bettye Gossett, manager of the Highland Mall. "To get in (the club) you must be a card-carrying member of D-FY-IT."

Stan Parker, a D-FY-IT sponsor and a sergeant for Big Spring Police Department, said the club will fill a void for local teens.

"There's nothing for (teens) to do in this town after dark," he said. "This will keep them off the street."

The local organization, started in 1990, was modeled after a D-FY-IT group in Tyler, began seven years ago.

The Big Spring Police Department started the ball rolling with a group of local high school students for D-FY-IT Big Spring.

Admittance in D-FY-IT requires voluntary, random drug testing with the hope of ridding schools, and eventually the city, of drug and alcohol abuse.

Moreover, local businesses reward members of the group with discounts on services and merchandise.

According to D-FY-IT officers, the group boasts about 1,000 members in Big Spring High School and Rannels Junior High.

Bulldozers work on the demolition of the old Cowper Clinic building Monday. The building, about 50 years old, is owned by St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Cowper Clinic being demolished

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Due to the deteriorating condition of the structure, members of the vestry of St. Mary's Episcopal Church are demolishing the old Cowper Clinic building.

The building has stood for about 50 years in the 1600 block of Gregg Street. When Dr. Roscoe Cowper died, the building and land was donated to St. Mary's, said Roe Fulgham, who serves in the vestry and is currently the elected junior warden of the church.

The church has had possession of the building since about 1984, he said. "We've had the building on the market for a long time now," Fulgham said. Members of the vestry decided the lot might be more attractive to buyers if the aging structure were removed.

Crews began the demolition Monday. No plans, however, have been made for the lot. It will remain for sale, listed with area realtors, Fulgham said.

St. Mary's operates the St. Mary's Episcopal School at 118 Cedar and the Canterbury retirement homes at Lancaster and 17th Street.

Nov. 3 election early voting starts Wednesday

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Early voting at the Howard County Courthouse begins Tuesday and runs through Oct. 30 for the Nov. 3 presidential, area and local races. No excuse is needed to vote early.

A large local voter turnout for the election is predicted by officials.

The turnout could be as high as 14,000, said Howard County Clerk Margaret Ray. "We're expecting a heavy turnout because we're getting a lot of calls (from people) wanting to know when it starts."

The 15,562 county residents registered to vote by registration deadline two weeks ago, about half the population, is average, said Kathy Sayles, Howard County tax assessor/collector. "That's about what we carry, between that and 16,000."

Howard County Republican Chairman Everett Bender said past high turnouts in presidential elections, 70 percent of eligible voters, indicates that about 11,000 could vote locally.

But it may be slow during the first weeks of early voting, he said. "With Ross Perot in the race, people may have a wait-and-see attitude."

"I really feel like we're going to have a good turnout," said Howard County Democratic Party Chairman Frank Hardesty. "There has been more exposure of the candidates to the public than ever before," he said referring to cable channel coverage. "It's still very hard for me to understand why anybody is still not sure (who to vote for)."

Early voting takes place at the Howard County clerk's office in the courthouse Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

In addition, the courthouse will be open for early voting on one Saturday, Oct. 24, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Temporary early polling places will be set up at seven different locations, a day each for one to four hours, at the four local nursing homes and the city halls of Coahoma and Forsan.

On Nov. 3, polling places will be set up around the county from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Contested local races include those for sheriff and Precinct 3 county commissioner. Contested area races include the Texas District 28 Senate seat and the U.S. District 17 Congressional seat. Mitchell County voters will help decide a contested senate race and Martin and Glasscock county voters will help decide a contested seat on the Eighth Court of Appeals.

Statewide, a railroad commission seat and several seats on the Texas Supreme Court and the court of Criminal Appeals are contested.

HC board approves Fina tax abatement

By MARTHA E. FLORES

The Howard College Board of Trustees approved the Fina Oil and Chemical Company tax abatement during their meeting Monday.

The tax abatement is 17 percent of the total abatement requested by the company earlier this year from the Howard County Commissioners' Court. Fina requested $38.1 million with 100 percent abatement for five years and 50 percent abatement for the next three years. They were granted $27.5 million with 30 percent abatement for the next five years for a sulfur diesel unit.

Howard College's approval was the last of the three taxing entities needed. Big Spring Independent School District approved the abatement during their August meeting.

After Fina Plant General Manager Jeff Morris' presentation Board Member Harold Davis said, "The most important thing we have in this community is Fina. We need to keep it here. I don't understand why we can't give it all ($38.1 million tax abatement requested) to them."

Donald McKinnery, a retired Fina employee, abstained from the vote.

The board also approved a resolution supporting the expansion of the community college mission. Currently, the mission does not include areas of work force development, adult education, literacy and other basic skills courses.

Howard President Cheri Sparks said the resolution was going to be presented to the Texas Legislature in hopes of encouraging them to amend the community college mission statewide.

A new Dorothy Garrett Coliseum rate schedule was approved by the board. A fee of $400 will be added to the rental costs of the coliseum due to the new wood floor.

The rates are virtually identical to the rates when the coliseum was erected in 1978, said Terry Hansen, vice president of fiscal affairs.

The board also approved the lowest bid on computer purchases from P.C. Services of Abilene, sale of delinquent tax property located in Coahoma, contract instruction indirect costs rate at $2.85, involvement in the Texas Cooperative Purchasing program and approval of the Legislative appropriation request.

The request includes additional SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf funding for a fire alarm system, dormitory and physical education facility.

Herbs have cured for generations

Throughout generations, herbal remedies have been passed down in Mexican-American families to alleviate aches, pains, congestion and ailments.

Because of the absence of health care in some rural areas, families were dependent on what was available in nature. Community members known as yerberos, or herbalists, were available to assist in suggesting a herbal remedy to ailments.

"A lot of Mexican-American people continue to believe in the medicinal importance of herbal teas," said Martha Menchaca, University of Texas at Austin anthropology professor. "The remedies may be used with medicine. There is not a contradiction in the two."

Couple battles to keep daughter's killer in jail

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

KRESS — Instead of celebrating the birthdays of their daughter and her twin children, it was just another day for a Kress couple in their drive to keep their daughter's killer in prison.

Debra Dorrrough would have been 40 today and her twin children, Ryan and Jim Phillips, turned 19.

John Allen Phillips, Debra Dorrrough's husband, was convicted of the Sept. 30, 1982, shooting death of his wife and given a life sentence. Buster and Doris Dorrrough are determined to keep John Phillips in prison.

Doris Dorrrough said she learned when she checked with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice's pardons and paroles division that Phillips' case will go before the division in Austin later this year for a parole hearing.

Ms. Dorrrough said she and her husband have been collecting signatures on a petition calling for the parole division to keep Phillips in prison.

She said her son-in-law should finish serving his life sentence in prison.

"I just think when they put them in for life, it ought to be for life," she said. "He got a life sentence, and it's only been 10 years. I don't think we should even be going through this."

"We just don't ever want him out," she told the Amarillo Globe-News.

Mrs. Dorrrough said 64th District Attorney Terry McEachern told her they needed 3,000 signatures on the petition.

"They've gotten over 4,000 signatures, including some from friends and family as far away as Dallas, San Antonio and Houston, she said.

"People have been so good everywhere to help us out," she said. "I wouldn't even know 3,000 people."

She said petitions were placed in several local businesses, where people eagerly signed to keep Phillips locked up.

Dalton Freeman, owner of Andy's Grocery and Market in Kress, said people were eager to sign the petition in his store.

"I think they ought to give him the needle," Freeman said. "She (Debra) was great. She was well thought of."

No remorse shown by former policeman convicted of rape

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ODESSA — A former Odessa police officer convicted of sexual assault who told a judge he is not sorry for his actions has been sentenced to 10 years probation, fined $5,000 and ordered to stay away from two victims.

State District Judge Tryon Lewis told John Pelham, who continued to profess his innocence, that a prison term would have given him more freedom than probation, which will require the former officer to abide by several rules for 10 years.

The judge also set the fine and asked him to write letters of apology to both women.

"I would feel confident that you would stay absolutely on the straight and narrow," Lewis said.

Defense lawyer Bill Bowden called several Odessa officers to the witness stand who said they believed the man could abide by the rules of probation.

Assistant District Attorney Mike Griffin suggested a sentence of up to five years in prison or 10 years probation with a fine.

The judge said that although he was disturbed by Pelham's lack of remorse toward his victim, Lewis said he believed the former officer's testimony more so than the woman's.

"Your actions for which you should be punished are all in your (written and tape recorded) statement to the detectives," Lewis told Pelham.

Pelham testified Monday that he was wrongly convicted of the crime and he felt no sorrow for the victim.

"Do you feel sorry for what happened?" Griffin asked.

"I have no feelings that I'm sorry for them, no sir," Pelham answered.

The former officer was convicted earlier this month of the sexual assault last February of a woman with whom he had been friends for several years.

The woman testified that Pelham forced her to perform oral sex after the couple had been out drinking and dancing.

Although the woman said "no" several times, Pelham said he thought she did not really mean for him to stop. He said he was totally surprised the next morning when police called and eventually questioned him about the incident.

Another woman testified during the trial that Pelham raped her about two years ago. Lewis also ordered Pelham to stay away from that woman.

Griffin told the judge that Pelham had betrayed society's trust by sexually assaulting the woman.

"Society gives to certain persons certain amounts of authority," Griffin said. "And society has been harmed."

Bowden asked for probation because of possible danger his client could face in prison.

"The punishment may very well not fit the crime," Bowden said. "Because Mr. Pelham is a former narcotics officer and a former police officer, he risks substantial injury or death (if sent to prison)."

Judge presses for castration law

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Texans should press the Legislature to pass laws that would allow castration of sex offenders, a state district judge who was at the center of a castration controversy says.

State District Judge Michael T. McSpadden made the remarks Monday at a statewide conference in Huntsville for professionals who counsel sex offenders.

McSpadden, of Houston, drew worldwide attention earlier this year when he agreed to allow a rapist to be castrated as punishment for assaulting a 12-year-old Houston girl.

It was never carried out because no doctor could be found to perform the procedure.

"I strongly urge you to accept (castration) before every woman and child is touched by this horrible, horrible crime," McSpadden said.

The judge said the laws should make surgical removal of a man's testicles a voluntary alternative for sex offenders.

He said the state eventually might follow the path of some European countries that have made castration mandatory treatment for rapists who repeat their crimes.

But a medical authority speaking at the same conference urged restraint in such cases.

"We can go out there and castrate all 9,000 (sex offenders in Texas prisons), but don't sleep better at night, because it's not going to put a dent in the problem," said Dr. Michael Cox, head of the sex-offender program at Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

"We're not going to do anything about the problem until we do something about parenting," Cox said.

If all 9,000 sex offenders currently housed in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice were castrated, there would be only 450 repeat offenders, McSpadden said.

The conference, which drew 400 participants, was co-sponsored by the Sam Houston State University Criminal Justice Center and the Texas Inter-Agency Council on Sex Offender Treatment.

There were numerous protests voiced when McSpadden agreed to order castration for Steve Allen Butler, 28, who has a history of molesting girls.

Butler volunteered to be castrated in exchange for a lenient prison sentence. He said he had read that McSpadden favored castration as an alternative punishment for some sex offenders.

Authorities' decision was underlined by a Frankfurt over the tainers of radio from a train-station from the trunk of an airport hotel.

Understudies get their debate turn

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — The understudies — Dan Quayle, Al Gore and James Stockdale — get their only turn on stage together tonight to sell the American public on the merits of their running mates.

But this vice presidential debate also has some unusual subplots: ● Will Quayle be able to convince voters he is not the laughing stock who launched a thousand late-night television jokes?

● Will Gore's book, "Earth in the Balance," be a source of pride or an embarrassment for the Democrat?

● How will Stockdale, the former POW-turned-philosopher and political novice, match up with the two career politicians?

This evening's 90-minute debate on the campus of Georgia Tech University will be held under the format the Presidential Commission on Debates wanted for all of this year's debates: a single moderator asking each question, with each candidate getting 75 seconds to respond, followed by five minutes of open debate.

Democrats are nervous that expectations are so high for Gore, the cerebral senator from Tennessee, and so low for Quayle, one of the least popular vice presidents in modern times, that the vice president could very well wind up the winner.

"If Gore does anything short of reducing Quayle to a quivering heap at the end, reporters will say, 'Quayle held his own, that wasn't so bad,'" said Democratic analyst Ann Lewis.

Quayle, 45, has been eager to take on his former House and Senate colleague, his ideological opposite. "I desperately want a debate," he said last month.

Four years ago, during a shaky campaign that the vice president would rather forget, Quayle made one of the most memorable gaffes in debate history: trying to compare himself to John F. Kennedy. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen knocked that one out of the park, by reminding Quayle and the audience that he knew and had served with the late president. "Jack Kennedy was a friend of mine. Senator, you're no Jack Kennedy."

Gore, 44, who ran for president himself in 1988, has campaigned extensively at Bill Clinton's side and raised questions about President Bush's pro-Iraqi policies before the Persian Gulf War.

Woman who received a pig's liver has died

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — A young woman died 1½ days after becoming the first person ever to receive a transplant of a pig liver.

Susan Fowler, 26, of Burbank, died late Monday, just before she was to undergo surgery to receive a human liver that had been flown in from Utah earlier in the day, said Ron Wise, spokesman at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

The cause of death was not immediately known. "We are all very distressed by this turn of events. It was a heroic effort," Wise said. "We hoped that we could preserve her life. It was not to be."

Fowler had suffered liver disease since childhood. She'd been in critical condition since Sunday, when the pig liver was implanted next to her own in an eight-hour operation.

The pig liver was considered a means of keeping her alive until a human organ could be found, not a permanent replacement for her own liver. Wise said that for a while after the implant, her condition became increasingly stable.

She survived about 32 hours with the animal organ. "She would not have made it through (Sunday) night if this surgery had not taken place," Wise said.

The surgery was the second animal-to-human liver transplant this year. An unidentified 35-year-old man received a baboon liver in June at the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center, in what was intended as a permanent transplant. He died 10 weeks later after suffering bleeding inside his skull.

Before that, the last known animal-to-human transplant was in 1984, when a baby received a baboon heart at Loma Linda University Medical Center. The girl, known as Baby Faye, died 20 days later.

Using animal organs in humans is seen as one way to meet shortages of donor organs. On average, one patient a day dies in the United States while waiting for a liver transplant, according to the University of Pittsburgh.

Pig livers are suitable as temporary replacements for human livers because they are anatomically similar, said Dr. Ronald W. Busuttill, director of the liver transplant program at the University of California at Los Angeles.

"Its size is comparable, unlike the baboon's, which is very small," he said.

Radioactive materials smuggling alarms German officials

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN — German officials are alarmed by attempts of black marketeers from the former East bloc to smuggle highly radioactive materials to the West, especially since the smugglers are seemingly ignorant of the danger.

Authorities' concerns were underlined by the seizure in Frankfurt over the weekend of containers of radioactive material from a train-station locker and from the trunk of a car parked at an airport hotel.

In connection with the seizure, investigators said there were indications that more than 40 pounds of weapons-grade uranium has headed into the black market. Although some of the smuggled material can't be used to make weapons, it still poses severe health dangers, as demonstrated by the August arrest in Switzerland of four smugglers.

The smugglers thought they were transporting osmium-187, which is not dangerously radioactive. But the substance proved to be highly radioactive cesium-137, and two of the smugglers now are suffering from radiation sickness because the material was in what was described as a highly unsuitable container.

The international community has undertaken measures to try to keep nuclear scientists in the former Soviet bloc from selling their expertise and products.

Yet incidents continue to occur, and they are often less smuggling than fraud, with black marketeers falsely claiming to have bomb-grade uranium.

"From the information we have followed up in the last 10 months, all materials which were announced as uranium-235 showed up as natural uranium or lightly enriched uranium or even as lead," said Hans Friedrich Meyer, spokesman for the International Atomic Energy Agency in Vienna, Austria.

To make a bomb, highly enriched uranium-235 is needed. That comes only from a "very complicated enrichment process which (Iraqi leader) Saddam Hussein tried to invest years and billions of dollars to acquire," Meyer said.

Five Polish citizens were arrested in the weekend Frankfurt seizures, which involved cesium-137 and strontium-90.

Afterward, German Environment Minister Klaus Toepfer warned of increased attempts to smuggle such materials from the former East bloc, noting that improper handling could bring health and environmental dangers.

Cesium-137 is especially dangerous to kidneys, and exposure to strontium-90 can lead to bone cancer.

The materials confiscated over the weekend appeared to have come from the former Soviet Union, said Frankfurt prosecutor Hubert Harth.

Harth's office said the same investigation led to suspicion that 44 pounds of weapons-grade uranium-235 was unaccounted for. There was no elaboration, but the statement encouraged an editorial in the Frankfurter Rundschau newspaper stating that "the witch doctors of the atomic age have finally lost control of the weapons they created."

The IAEA, a United Nations agency, has the job of monitoring fissionable material to see that terrorists or non-nuclear countries do not get materials to make nuclear weapons.

IAEA spokesman Meyer said the agency does not track non-weapons materials such as cesium-137 and strontium-90, but "we have our eyes open" to reports of smuggling.

"We have the experience that these smugglers themselves have not much knowledge of what they have," he said in a telephone interview Monday.

Cesium-137 and strontium-90 are byproducts of fission in nuclear power plants. Meyer said they have commercial and industrial applications but only if produced to highly exacting specifications.

The smuggling from the former Soviet Union comes even though the West has funded research institutes there to try to prevent a mass flight of nuclear scientists to the highest bidder.

The United States, Japan and the European Community are providing $25 million for an institute in Moscow, and an institute in Ukraine is backed by $10 million provided by the United States, Canada and Sweden.

But security at institutions where nuclear materials are stored is said to be lax and poorly paid workers are tempted to steal.

When we say a woman's health is important, we mean it.

You know the statistics. One in 9 women in the United States will develop breast cancer this year, and over 44,000 will die. Early detection is the key to beating this disease.

At Scenic Mountain Medical Center, we take this issue very seriously, and since October has been designated as Breast Cancer Awareness Month, we're going one step further to make certain more women take charge of their breast health needs.

Throughout the month of October, the breast screening and education clinic at SMMC will be offering screening mammograms at the dramatically reduced cash price of $25.

This is our way of showing you just how far our commitment extends, and that we truly mean it when we say a woman's health is important.

Call 263-1211 today to schedule an appointment for your $25 screening mammogram

Local activity a positive sign

The increase in local activity in our community is a positive sign.

Throughout the community there seems to be the air of increased activity — and that means an increase in business.

Sales tax rebates sent to the community through the summer are up overall, despite a slump of a couple of months toward the end of the school year and in the early summer.

Increased activity at our automobile dealers — including a new dealership that will draw prospective buyers of those product lines into the community — is also good news. Good news that reverses a sales decline trend.

With the opening of at least three new businesses along Gregg Street — Subway Sandwich Shop, Al's & Son Bar-B-Q and H-E-B, and the recent remodeling and rearranging at Don's, all adds to the increased traffic in that area.

The expansion of Coahoma State Bank into the community with the opening of its Big Spring Branch also creates a measure of activity, excitement and growth.

On top of that, construction on Canterbury-West is progressing as well.

We believe the activity is good. As efforts continue to finalize the Wright Fibers textile mill and open the quarry's limestone finishing facility at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark, we all walk toward an improved local economy with a little more bounce in our step and a smile on our faces.

Letter policy

The Big Spring Herald recognizes the importance of the "Letters to the Editor" column and letters on issues of general interest are welcomed.

To be considered for publication, letters must adhere to the following guidelines:

- Letters must be signed and must include a street address and daytime phone number for verification, although the address will not be published.

- Letters should be no more than 300 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations.

- Letters should be typewritten and double-spaced if possible. If handwritten, letters must be legible.
- Form letters will not be published.
- Representative letters will be published when numerous letters are received on the same topic.

- Letters of political endorsement will be published on local and regional campaigns. No letter regarding an election will be published within seven days of said election.

- Candidates are allowed one letter to present their position. Candidate letters are subject to the same guidelines as other letters.
- The Herald reserves the right to limit publication of letters to one per month per writer.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79721.

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Oct. 13, the 287th day of 1992. There are 79 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History: Two hundred years ago, on Oct. 13, 1792, the cornerstone of the executive mansion, later known as the White House, was laid during a ceremony in the District of Columbia.

On this date: In A.D. 54, Roman emperor Claudius I died, after being poisoned by his wife, Agrippina.

In 1775, the U.S. Navy had its origins as the Continental Congress ordered the construction of a naval fleet.

In 1945, the Jewish organization B'nai B'rith was founded in New York City.

In 1945, Texas ratified a state constitution. In 1943, during World War II, Italy declared war on Germany, its one-time Axis partner.

In 1960, Richard M. Nixon and John F. Kennedy participated in the third televised debate of their presidential campaign. (This time, unlike the two previous debates, the candidates did not actually face each other; Nixon was in Hollywood, Kennedy in New York.)

In 1962, 30 years ago, Edward Albee's searing four-character drama "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" opened on Broadway, with Uta Hagen as Martha and Arthur Hill as George.

In 1981, voters in Egypt participated in a referendum to elect Vice President Hosni Mubarak the new president, one week after the assassination of Anwar Sadat.

Motivating talker with friendly face called "Everything Sells," presented by a man identified as Dave Yoho. There was something called "Juran on Quality Leadership." There was "The Persuasive Art of Selling." There was "Swim with the Sharks."

And there was one called "H. Ross Perot — A Vision for Success."

That's the one I had to go with. Could any sharp-witted novelist come up with anything as biting as this: A man tries to sell himself as president on the TV newscasts, while at the same time you can take business sales lessons from him on your hotel-room pay-per-view?

I placed my order. Soon enough Perot was on the screen. "All I did was work all day," his video image announced, recalling the years before he became wealthy.

"I lived in an environment where if I ever lost a sale I was fired."

One of the most overused clichés is that you had better beware of what you dream, because your dreams just might come true. If Perot's dream was to play on a world stage, to be listened to by millions of people he never would reach as a mere businessman, to become a name spoken in every home in the land, then he has achieved that dream. But suddenly he is being poked fun at, torn apart in the press, being made an object of both jokes and stern criticism. Had he never decided to dangle his yearning for the presidency in front of the citizenry, he would be merely the billionaire on the hotel-room TV set, dispensing capitalist inspiration.

"We got the job, did it on budget and on schedule, did a great job," he said on the TV screen, explaining a business victory. And: "There's nothing I'd rather do than do business." And: "I urge all of you not to have as a personal goal to make a lot of money. Money is the most overrated thing in the world, based on my experience."

As Perot talked I called the front desk to request a wakeup call for the morning, trying all the while to jot down his motivational quotes accurately. On the desk across the room was a newspaper with his picture on the front page. On the TV screen, in a dark suit and white shirt and dark tie, his eyes so bright they almost burned, he was saying: "If you are a one-man band, you are in trouble." He was talking about the world of business. He was saying: "I started with nothing, I started with an idea that everybody thought was weird." He was talking about the world of business.

He seemed to be very sure of himself, talking about that world. But the inspirational videotape on the screen had been in circulation for a while; it was not as current as today's news.

"I don't have any whiners, I don't have any thumbsuckers," he said, speaking of the people who worked for his business.

In the end, Americans can get used to just about anything, once it's a done deal. "Now, if you live long enough, the world's a funny place," the Perot on the hotel-room TV screen said.

James J. Kilpatrick

A petition is at hand, here at the Court of Peevess, Irks & Crotchets, from a gentleman who asks an advisory opinion on, "They had sex on the beach."

Because this is a semantic matter of some delicacy, the court will note only that the gentleman lives in Eugene, Ore., and that he has raised a question of universal interest if not of universal concern.

The petitioner asks, How can anyone "have" sex? Idiomatically, we may have a drink or have a party. In the sense of possession, we may have a horse, a dog or a leasehold. We may have doubts, have compassion, and have spaghetti for dinner. All very well.

But "sex" is defined as, "the property or quality by which organisms are classified as female or male on the basis of their reproductive organs and functions," and how is one to have that on a beach? It is not until we get to definition No. 5 that sex is defined as "sexual intercourse," and to say that a twosome had sexual intercourse on the beach sounds both legalistic and, ah, anatomical.

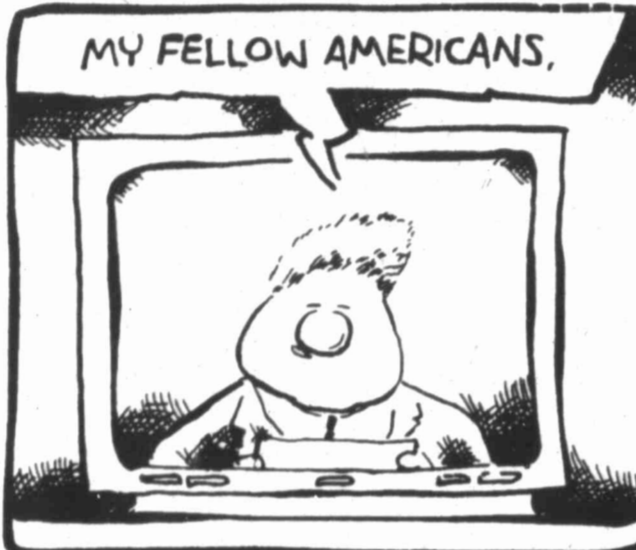

Nothing works. It is unsatisfactory to say that the couple had intimate relations on the beach, for the intimate relations may be an aunt and uncle. The court likes, "They made love on the beach," but the court is old enough to know that the sexual act often is performed without much in the way of "love."

The court declines to render an advisory opinion on a usage suitable for publication in a family newspaper. The Lewins' Thesaurus of Slang lists 136 possible alternatives to "sexual intercourse," but the only one fit for children's eyes is "to sleep with," and that ain't necessarily so.

Robert W. Ausband of Fairview, N.C., asks an injunction against "make a statement," as in, "Your son's green spiked hair makes a statement, doesn't it?" Injunction denied. We may not understand what statement the green-spiked son is making, but a son's green-spiked hair is bound to be saying something. The hair, and the kid, will grow out of it.

Ann Studeman Krahn of Castroville, Texas, and Ray Wolf of Eugene, Ore., complain that "that" is edging out "who" as a relative pronoun. They object to such constructions as, "People that drink shouldn't drive." The court will enter an order requiring that all writers use "who" for human beings and "that" for everything else. Thus, "people who drink" and "horses that prance."

The court is aware that the permissive editors of the new American Heritage Dictionary, and other such polluters of the pure waters of English, believe the court has lost its marbles in so ruling. The editors say the court's decision "has no basis in logic or in the usage of the best writers." These knuckleheads say that "it is entirely acceptable to write either, 'the man that wanted to talk to you' or 'the man who wanted to talk to you.'" Pay no attention to this heresy. The court's ruling is not subject to appeal.

Eyes opened by Ray's book

Betty Johansen

"Trashing the Planet" by scientist and politician Dixy Lee Ray is one of the most eye-opening, politically incorrect books I've ever read. It is a treasury of facts and information about the environment that your favorite anchorman forgot to mention on the evening news.

For example, Ray quotes some of the activist environmentalists, revealing their methods and motives in their own words:

Stewart Brand in the "Whole Earth Catalogue," "We have wished, we ecofreaks, for a disaster or for a social change to come and bomb us into the Stone Age..."

Richard Benedick, a State Dept. employee working for the Conservation Foundation, "A global climate treaty must be implemented even if there is no scientific evidence to back the greenhouse effect."

Stephen Schneider, concerning depletion of the ozone layer, "(We) have to offer up scary scenarios, make simplified, dramatic statements, and make little mention of any doubts we may have. Each of us has to decide what the right balance is between being effective and being honest."

Ray offers some fascinating information about familiar environmental "threats." One of the most surprising concerned the banning of DDT.

Before DDT was banned, according to Ray, it was widely and safely used in controlling typhus and malaria. Because it was so effective, it was overused and became detectable in the environment, in animals and in man. "This energized the opposition to its use that had first been sparked by the lyrical hysteria of Rachel Carson's book, SILENT SPRING."

DDT was banned, explained Ray, on the basis of three charges: danger to birds, its stability in the environment and the possibility that it might cause cancer in man. "None of these charges have ever been substantiated."

In fact, many bird populations were increasing during the time of heaviest DDT use. In experiments done to determine its toxic effect, birds fed DDT showed no shell-thinning, and the DDT-fed birds hatched 80 percent of chicks, compared to 84 percent hatched by the control group.

Concerning the second charge, Ray wrote, "Under normal environmental conditions, DDT loses its toxicity to insects in a few days, usually no more than two weeks."

And third, volunteer groups of people were fed up to 35 mg of DDT per day for 21 to 27 months with no ill effects. Although a small amount of DDT remained in the body, stored in fat, no harm has been reported after 30 years.

This scientific data was available when William Ruckelshaus, administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, decided to ban DDT. Years later he admitted the decision was made for political, not scientific reasons, according to Ray.

Today, millions die from malaria and other diseases every year because DDT is unavailable. Yet no one has ever been harmed by DDT.

Ray also explodes myths and presents scientific data concerning global warming, ozone thinning, acid rain, alar, asbestos, dioxin, radiation and the nuclear industry.

Another eye-opening book is "The Energy Non Crisis" by Lindsey Williams. Williams was chaplain to the Trans-Alaska Oil Pipeline. He charges in his book that state and federal governments drove the cost of pipeline construction from $2 billion to over $12 billion with expensive (often ridiculous) regulations, permits, fines and fees. I could hardly believe that these and other dramatic charges could be true since it was the first I had heard of them.

Williams' conclusion was that the purpose of the harassment was to bankrupt the oil companies or drive oil prices so high that the citizens of the U.S. would demand that the government nationalize the oil industry.

Whether Williams' charges can be proved true or not, his book is instructive. It demonstrates how government can cripple or destroy a business — even a whole industry — through unjust regulations and harassment.

It's one more reason we shouldn't arm power-hungry government officials with unnecessary rules and regulations. The next industry under fire could be mine. Or yours.

Betty Johansen is a free-lance writer whose column appears each Tuesday. Readers wishing to respond may do so by writing in care of this newspaper.

Sports

Long punt crucial in Stanton's loss

Here is what area coaches had to say about last week's games and this week's opponents: Bill Grissom, Stanton, on the 22-21 loss to Ozona, and this week's game with Coahoma — "One of the main factors was when they punted a 56-yard kick and it rolled dead on our one-foot line midway through the fourth quarter. We were in poor field position and never got out. It's a real disappointing loss for the kids and the coaching staff."

COACHES' CORNER

Mark Howeth, Colorado City, on the 37-6 loss to Sonora and this week's homecoming game against Crane — "We really played pretty well. The score doesn't indicate how the game went. It didn't get out of hand until the last part of the fourth quarter. Offensively we moved the ball well, the problem is we couldn't stop them up front defensively. They were big and physical and they wore us down. Crane is much improved with the Jeffrey kid (running back Chris Jeffery) in the backfield. The first game he played this season was against Greenwood and it's Crane's only win this year, so that tells you something. I think they play great defense and offensively they're pretty good with Jeffery in there."

Roger Smith, Grady, on the 26-24 loss to Klondike and this week's game with Wellman — "The two touchdowns we gave them at the first of the game hurt us, especially the fumbled punt at the four (Grady four-yard line). Then there was the questionable roughing the punter penalty in the second quarter. They ended up scoring after that. I would put Wellman in the top 10 and maybe the top six (in the state). They're not a fancy team, but they are a very sound team. They don't do any tricks, they're just well disciplined."

Bob Pursler, Greenwood, on the 10-7 loss to Crane and this week's game against No. 7 ranked Reagan County — "It's just like the last two or three times, we can't hold on to the ball. It's like being a farmer when it doesn't rain or having a bad rash and you get the wrong medicine and you can't do anything about it. If we tried to run a quarterback sneak, we'd probably find a way to fumble. They scored after we turned the ball over and then we had the ball at their 23 with four minutes left and we fumble. Reagan County looks pretty good on film. We've got a lot to lose because if we lose, we just might be out of it (district race). They've got two big play kids in their quarterback Jackie Hill and fullback Nuno Romero. If we stop them we've got a great chance."

Bobby Avery, Borden County, on the 56-6 win over Hermligh and this week's big game with pre-season District Six favorite Ira — "Everything went pretty smooth. We had some busted plays and mental offensive mistakes, but the kids were heads up enough to turn them into scoring plays. When we played Wellman we preached all week long to them about it being a big game. We wanted them to be as high as they could be. As a result we went into the ballgame and did nothing right. We're approaching this game as just go in there and take care of business, just like we've been doing the last three weeks. Mike Hughes and Bryan Luna are definitely the two top dogs for Ira. Hughes likes to run the ball and when he passes he dumps it off the Luna."

Karry Owens, Sands, on the 28-22 win over Dawson, and this week's game against Klondike — "Basically we executed better in the second half. We were more aggressive in the second half, the kids got after it better. It's the first time they had gotten after it in a long time. We had no turnovers in the second half, we had four in the first half. They intercepted a pass and blocked a punt in the second half. They created that with their aggressive play."

"This is a very big game, especially for Klondike. They've already beaten a team (Grady) that is supposed to challenge for a playoff spot, we still have to play Grady. They've got that big running back Mike Lee, they like to utilize him a lot. (Klondike QB Tanner Etheredge) is awful good for a freshman."

Ricky Long, Big Spring Steers assistant coach, on the 17-7 loss to Andrews and this week's game against Sweetwater. (Head coach Dwight Butler was ill Monday.) — "The turnovers hurt us big time. We couldn't get anything going. We just have to keep a positive attitude and don't think about the negative things. Sweetwater has James Moore and Chris Hines and they're both game breakers, especially Moore. Their quarterback Terry Clemmer probably throws the ball better than the (David) Ritchey kid last year. They should get the Stephens kid back this week (linebacker Toby Stephens). They've got a good strong safety (David Terrell). He runs to the football well."

Jan East, Forsan, on the 32-13 loss to Roscoe and this week's game with Robert Lee — "We're pretty much happy with the way we played with them. They had us 19-13 going into the fourth quarter, we had a chance to win the ballgame. I think depth was the key, they finally wore us down."

Lee has got some speed and they're some big old kids. They get in the I and run some isolation and power sweeps. They like to throw the ball deep. Stewart helps A's stay alive

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

OAKLAND, Calif. — Dave Stewart stared down the Toronto Blue Jays, then sat them down. And he did it well enough to put the playoffs back in the SkyDome.

The Oakland A's big-game ace kept his team alive in the playoffs, pitching a 6-2 complete-game victory over Toronto Monday. Stewart used his customary "death stare" to its best advantage, and the Coliseum crowd enhanced the air of intimidation, not by cheering, but with a low-pitched "Oooooohhh" each time Stewart took the mound. When it wasn't Stewart keeping the Blue Jays off balance, it was Rickey Henderson, who flustered starter David Cone and irritated coach Gene Tenace.

If ever the A's needed Stewart to go the distance, this was the time, with the bullpen reeling from injuries and ineptitude. Dennis Eckersley had pitched 1 2-3 disastrous innings in Sunday's 7-6 loss and was spent, and the only fresh reliever, Rick Honeycutt, was bothered by back spasms. "I was going to do whatever was needed to get the win," said Stewart, who allowed seven hits, walked three and struck out five.

"When I was coming to the park today, I was just thinking I didn't want it to be the last day." Stewart was the AL playoffs' first complete-game winner since Oakland's Rickey Henderson celebrates with teammate Lance Blankenship after Henderson scored on a hit by ex-Texas Ranger Jerry Browne during the fifth inning of Monday's American League Championship game against Toronto in Oakland.

Boston's Bruce Hurst in 1986. With a playoff record of 6-0, there's nobody fiercer in the postseason. Juan Guzman, Game 3's winner, will try to end the series Wednesday and put Toronto in the World Series for the first time in four

"You can be disturbed all you want," Toronto manager Cito Gaston said. "Let's just hope it doesn't happen again. This is a good fielding club."

Oakland's top three hitters in the lineup — Henderson, Jerry Browne and Ruben Sierra — provided all eight hits to help the A's bounce back from their demoralizing defeat a day earlier.

Henderson had two hits and scored twice. Sierra hit a two-run homer in the first inning off Cone and chased him with an RBI single in the fifth.

Browne, playing third base to give the slumping Carney Lansford some rest, went 4 for 4, drove in two runs and scored twice.

The trio gave the A's a 6-1 lead after six innings. That was exactly the score by which they led Game 4 before Roberto Alomar stunned Eckersley with a game-tying homer and Toronto shocked Oakland for a 7-6 victory in 11 innings.

Cone, starting on three days' rest for the first time this season, looked nothing like the pitcher who shut out Oakland for eight innings in Game 2.

"I didn't establish my fastball as well as I did in the first game. When I had two strikes on a batter, I didn't make the killer pitch to bury him," Cone said.

Tech looks to turn season around vs. SMU

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech turned its season around last year with a victory against Southern Methodist.

Tech coach Spike Dykes is hoping his team can do it again in 1992. Reeling from back-to-back losses to No. 5 Texas A&M and No. 21 North Carolina State, the Red Raiders (2-4) are idle this week before facing the Mustangs Oct. 24.

While acknowledging a lull has hit his team, Dykes sounds somewhat confident the Raiders will bounce back. Last year, his team started 2-4 before defeating SMU on its way to finishing 6-5.

"I think it's possible to finish like we did last year," Dykes said Monday.

The open date this week will give players time to rest aching bones and prepare for scrappy SMU, Dykes said.

The Mustangs opened 3-1 before dropping games to Baylor and Rice while playing without several starters due to disciplinary suspensions.

"SMU is like a calm rat-lesnake," Dykes said. "We better be ready to play in two weeks because I am sure they will be shooting for the moon."

Dykes, like many in the preseason, had high hopes for the Red Raiders with a senior-laden defense and loads of talent at the offensive skill positions.

But the strong season hasn't materialized. While showing brilliance moving the ball in victories against Wyoming and Baylor, Tech has looked disjointed in losses to Oklahoma and Oregon, which was the owner of the nation's longest losing streak (eight) before it beat the Raiders 16-13 on Sept. 19.

Tech nearly upset Texas A&M, losing 19-17 on a last-second field goal, but then fell apart against North Carolina State Saturday in a 48-13 loss.

"It seems like every time we get to the point where we are getting it all together, there is a chink in the armor," Dykes said.

"We have been up and down and it always seems like we are on an island emotionally," he added.

"But I have never been around guys who care as much as these players do."

Dykes offers no excuses, instead comparing his team to one of baseball's greats.

"Nolan Ryan doesn't go out and throw a no-hitter every game," he said. "Sometimes he gets hit and has to come out in the second inning."

Dykes does concede, however, that increased playing time for a handful of freshman and sophomore defenders due to injuries has been difficult.

"It's not in the best interest to subject them (young players) to this. We, at times, have not had a lot of maturity on the field," Dykes said.

An injury to All-Southwest Conference safety Tracy Saul is among the top concerns for Dykes. Saul damaged cartilage in his right knee Saturday, requiring arthroscopic surgery on Sunday. He is expected to be out at least two weeks.

"He is the pied piper," Dykes said. "Tracy is the guy the younger players look to on defense for that settling effect. You don't realize how much you miss him until he is gone."

Wright traded, Bates out

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys have ended their experiment with Alexander Wright, trading the wide receiver to Los Angeles in a deal for a conditional draft pick.

Wright, the first wide receiver drafted despite limited football experience at Auburn, will go to the Raiders in exchange for an undisclosed 1993 pick, the Cowboys said.

In other news from Dallas, Cowboys defensive back Bill Bates is expected to miss the rest of the season with torn knee ligaments.

Bates, a 10-year veteran, injured his left knee when his foot caught in the Texas Stadium artificial turf during Sunday's 27-0 victory over Seattle.

Howard cowboys finish third

VERNON — The Howard College cowboys scored 165 points and finished third at the Vernon Regional Junior College Rodeo over the weekend. Western Texas won the rodeo with 255 points and the Vernon men were second with 170 points. Scoring for Howard were saddle bronc rider T.J. Kenney, who won the average and finished first in both go-rounds. Luke Brown finished fourth in the average team roping, he was first in the first go and split second in the short-go. Dane Driver picked up points by finishing second in the steer wrestling short-go and third in the short-go of team roping. Ross Lowery finished first in the first-go team roping; Ty Maben and John Folmer split first and second in the team roping short-go and second in the average.

Brad Stewart finished second in the team roping short-go and fourth in the average. Clay Ivie was third in short-go team roping and Boyce Knox was second in the short-go and average of bull riding. For the HC women, Allison McFadden was third in the first-go of breakaway roping. The Vernon women won the meet, followed by Western Texas and Texas. Howard's next rodeo will be Nov. 5-8 at the Texas Tech rodeo in Lubbock.

Seattle's McGwire out for season

KIRKLAND, Wash. — Seattle Seahawks quarterback Dan McGwire will be out for the remainder of the season with a fractured left hip. McGwire was injured in the third quarter of Seattle's 27-0 loss to Dallas on Sunday when he was sacked by linebacker Robert Jones. He also bruised his left shoulder on the play.

Washington Redskins running back Ricky Ervins (32) tries to make yardage despite the efforts of Denver Broncos safety Steve Atwater (27) during the third quarter of their game at RFK Stadium in Washington Monday night.

'Skins rip Denver, 34-3

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Wilber Marshall and his playmates on the Washington defense feasted so heartily on Denver that coach Joe Gibbs decided to add a little dessert — a career receiving record for Art Monk. Marshall returned a deflected pass for a touchdown, forced a fumble and had one of five sacks on John Elway as the Redskins routed the Broncos 34-3 Monday night. So thoroughly did they dominate that Gibbs had time to call three straight fourth-quarter passes to Monk that gave the 35-year-old receiver the NFL's career pass catching record with 820 catches, one more than Steve Largent. "I wanted to take the pressure off," said Gibbs, whose team plays Philadelphia next week in an important NFC East game. "I didn't want to let it go until next week. The pressure on him has been tremendous and I didn't want it to keep mounting for another week." There certainly wasn't any pressure Monday night as the defending Super Bowl champions played by far their best game of the season after a dismal loss a week ago in which they blew a 24-6 fourth-quarter lead in Phoenix. The Redskins, now 3-2 and a game behind Dallas and Philadelphia, jumped to a 17-3 first-quarter lead, made it 24-3 at the half and 31-3 after three quarters. Mark Rypien, booed by fans for the team's relatively slow start, passed for 245 yards and a 44-yard touchdown to Gary Clark and snuck in twice from a yard out. Enter Monk, who had just three catches entering the final period. He caught one more with 12 minutes left, then became the object of everyone's attention when Washington got the ball back with 4:21 left. Bing, A 6-yard completion from Rypien to Monk. Bang. An 18-yarder to tie Largent at 819. Boom. A 10-yarder to the right sideline with 3:12 left that gave him the all-time mark. He had caught three in a row. The key element was the defense, which had five sacks and four turnovers to score or set up 17 points. Marshall returned his interception 20 yards for a TD to make it 17-3 in the second quarter and Kurt Gouveia set up the second of Rypien's TDs with a third-quarter puffer that he returned 15 yards to the 1-yard line. Overall, the Redskins limited Denver to 128 yards.

The scramble is on to find treatment centers for drug, alcohol addiction

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

After 15 years of sending drug and alcohol addicted people to the Big Spring State Hospital for medical detoxification, Permian Basin drug treatment centers are scrambling for alternative facilities.

BSSH officials made a decision to close the institution's drug and alcohol unit as funds were not available for its operation. Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation provides funds for the hospital, but BSSH receives no state money for the treatment of drug and alcohol abuse, said Ed Moughon, assistant superintendent for BSSH.

"Big Spring has been the primary referral source for the courts and the only medical 'detox' unit in the Permian Basin," said Kyle Peters, a Midland alcohol and drug abuse counselor who serves on the Permian Basin Substance Abuse Prevention Alliance.

A special commission of this alliance has been established to "search for medical detoxification in this area — actually in this region," Peters said.

Counseling facilities like the Palmer drug abuse center in Midland, where Peters works, have no detoxification facilities at all, especially medical detoxification, he said. "Basically, when they can't go (to BSSH), they just get turned out on the street."

"Glenwood is the closest thing, and they're a for-profit hospital," Peters said. Many facilities like Turning Point in Odessa are non-profit, supported by funds from the Texas Commission on Alcohol and Drug Abuse (TCADA).

BSSH, however, gets no money from TCADA, and must use TMHMR funds only for the treatment of mental illness and mental retardation, Moughon said.

The special commission is looking into alternatives, including establishing a medical detoxification facility in Midland or Odessa to serve the area, Peters said.

BSSH only will accept court-ordered drug and alcohol commitments, Moughon said.

Herbs

Mexican-American Herbal Remedies give an extensive list of herbs and their usage. Some of the common herbs listed are eucalyptus, nopal (prickly pear), manzanilla (chamomile), verbena (vervain) and gordolobo (mullein).

Eucalyptus tea is believed to promote digestion. It is also used as a steam to relieve congestion and cough. It is commonly found in many over the counter decongestants and cough drops.

Nopal was used by the Aztecs, as stated in Green Medicine, Traditional Mexican-American Herbal Remedies. The prickly pear was used in paste from combining egg yolks and honey to treat burns by the Aztecs.

It is also believed to also cure hepatitis and bronchial ailments.

Manzanilla is used to calm nerves and to aid digestion. It is a common remedy for empacho, or constipation. The herb steamed is used to clear nasal passages. It may also be used to cleanse pores.

Verbena tea is commonly used to reduce fever. The same tea if applied to the scalp is believed to promote hair growth.

Gordolobo is believed to relieve kidney problems. It may also be used as a bath to disinfect wounds or sores.

The books and a variety of herbs are available at Fela's Handy Corner, 511 NW 11th St.

Briefs

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — The controversial French abortion pill RU-486 will be tested on 200 patients as a possible treatment for benign brain tumors that can cause seizures, blindness and paralysis.

A smaller five-year study found that eight of 28 patients showed a small shrinkage of the tumor or an improvement in their symptoms when given RU-486, said Dr. Steven Grunberg of the University of Southern California.

The patients suffered from meningiomas, tumors that grow on the brain and spinal cord tissue. Meningiomas account for 18 percent of all brain tumors, he said.

Patients are currently being chosen for the larger two-year study, he said Monday.

The pill's manufacturer, Rousell-Uclaf, has not asked permission to market the drug in the United States. The company has said it will not sell RU-486 in any country with widespread hostility to abortion.

Several experts have said that RU-486 might help them treat a variety of diseases, including depression, glaucoma, adrenal cancer and AIDS. A new study found it also is an effective morning-after contraceptive.

GOSHEN, Ind. — Former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop says President Bush is putting enough money into AIDS research, but the disease is so baffling, he doubts a cure can be found.

Koop told an audience at Goshen College on Monday that the number of AIDS cases in the United States doubles each year, and the number of heterosexuals getting the virus is increasing at an alarming rate.

But, he said, more has been done to learn about the disease in the last six years than was done about polio in 40 years.

He was surgeon general under Presidents Reagan and Bush from 1981 until 1989.

NEW YORK — Attorney General Robert Abrams says characterizing his Republican opponent for the U.S. Senate, Alfonse D'Amato, as a fascist was unfortunate. But he's not apologizing.

Abrams yelled, "He's a fascist," to an audience of about 100 students at a rally Sunday.

Breast cancer warning: Could you be at risk?

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

In 1992, the risk for women developing breast cancer is one in nine and local health professionals see a considerable amount of incidence in this area.

"It's lower than the rest of the nation but still considerable," said Carlos Garza, a general surgeon at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

With breast cancer being the leading killer of women ages 35-54, health professionals stress regular self-exams and periodic mammograms for early detection.

"The majority of cases turn out to be benign," Garza said. "In the past, women would find a lump, receive a biopsy, then a mastectomy. Now, there are more options."

No known cure exists for advanced breast cancer, and Garza added he sees more advanced stages in Hispanic and African-American women.

The mortality rate for African-American women is 10 percent higher than for Anglo women, despite the fact the breast cancer incidence rate for African Americans is 23 percent lower than Anglos.

Detection at an early stage strongly influences the success of treatment - surgery, drugs, hormones and radiation can cure many patients.

Some women avoid periodic mammograms for fear of X-ray radiation exposure or dread of an uncomfortable procedure.

"Modern machines don't present any problems anymore," Garza said. "With the old-fashioned machines, there used to be a danger (of radiation exposure.)"

Self-exam help

Do women know the normal shape and feel of their breasts? Would a woman be able to tell if a lump or other change occurred in one of her breasts?

Self-exam is the key to early detection. Follow these guidelines:

• Stand or sit in front of a mirror, arms at your sides.

• Look for dimpling or puckering of the breast skin, retraction (or pulling in) of the nipples, and changes in breast size or shape. Look for the same signs with your hands pressed on your hips and with your arms raised.

• Lie flat on your back. Place a pillow under your left shoulder and place your left hand under your head. With your right hand, gently feel your left breast without too much pressure using small, circular motions around the entire breast.

• In the same position, repeat the circular motion but in a large spiral moving closer to your nipple.

• Examine the area below the armpit in the same manner. A person should repeat the process on the right side, and the best time of the month for the self-exam is a few days after the last day of the menstrual period when breasts are not tender or swollen.

"It may be well worth a little discomfort to pick up a cancer early."

During a mammography, an X-ray is taken of the breast sandwich-

Singer James Buzbee entertains stylists and clients at Big Spring's Regis Hairstylists Saturday during the company's national benefit for breast cancer research. They offered $10 haircuts, entertainment and a Little Miss Clip for the Cure contest. The local store earned nearly $600 that will go to benefit the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation. More than $100 came from donations to the contest, which was won by Tausha Thayer in the 0-2 category and Kristen Buzbee in the 3-5 age group.

ed between two large plates to scan the maximum amount of area detecting any growths.

A person can ask if the equipment is certified by the American College of Radiology to ensure safety.

Health professionals find it difficult to categorize women more likely to develop breast cancer because 60 percent of the women who get it have no known risk factors.

This year 180,000 women will be diagnosed with breast cancer. The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, National Cancer Institute and 11 other medical organizations recommend all women ages 40 to 49 have mammograms every one to two years and women over 50 have them annually.

The cost for a screening mam-mogram is generally from $50 to $125.

One group is offering free screenings this month for low-income women over 40.

In recognition of Breast Cancer Awareness Month, from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. Oct. 29, women can have free breast cancer screenings at Big Spring Specialty Clinic, 618 Gregg St. Call 267-8226 for an appointment.

Air pollution

Problem moves indoors

By MIKE WOODS
The Toledo Blade

The air you breathe indoors - at home, work or school - may be more polluted and pose a greater health risk than the most polluted air ordinarily found outdoors.

That realization is at the heart of growing national awareness about indoor air pollution.

People once assumed that if the outdoor air is polluted, they can find refuge indoors.

But studies conducted since the 1980s by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency and dozens of other scientists challenge that notion.

You should be concerned about the health effects of indoor air pollutants for several reasons.

First, you spend more time indoors than out. The average person is indoors 75 to 80 percent of each day.

Second, scientists have hints that indoor pollutants do affect human health.

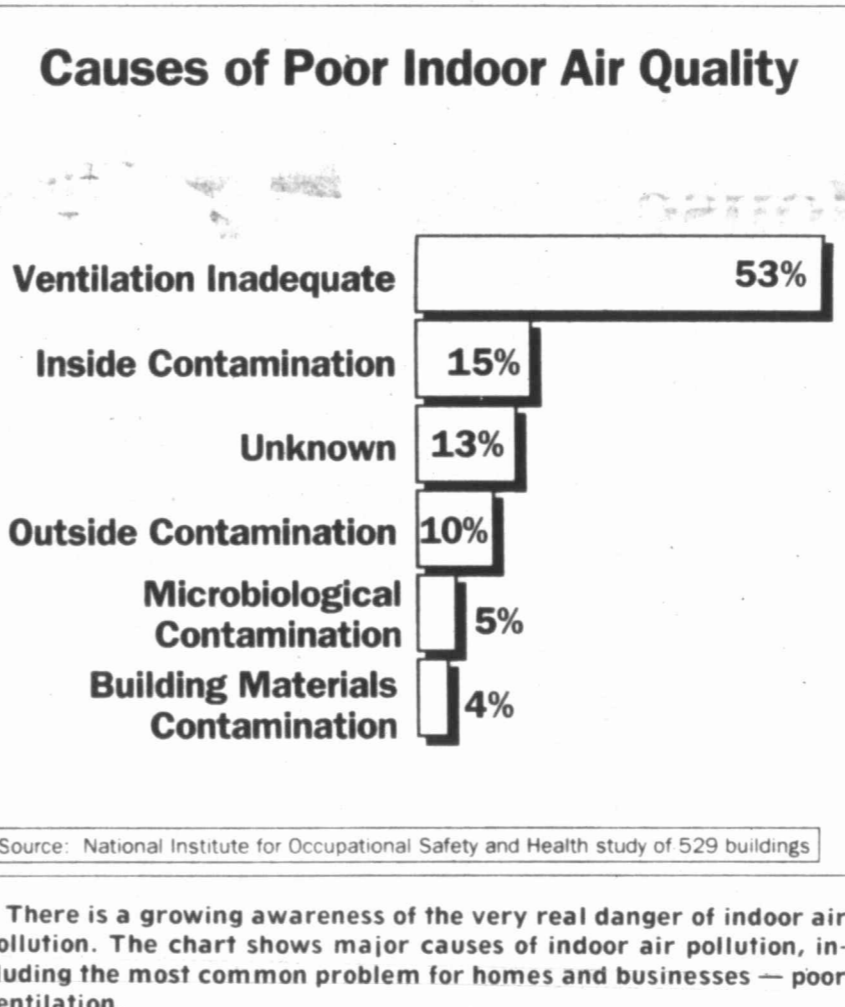

Perhaps the "most familiar" problem is "sick building syndrome," a mysterious group of symptoms reported by office workers and others who labor in sealed buildings. The symptoms include headaches, chronic colds, fatigue, skin rashes, irritability and memory lapses. The symptoms sometimes tend to ease over weekends or other periods when workers are in a different environment.

You can do a lot to reduce indoor air pollution at home.

Enforcing a "no smoking" rule leads the list. Cigarette smoke contains hundreds of carcinogens and other toxic chemicals harmful for the smoker and nonsmoking family members who breathe the smoke.

More information on indoor air pollution is available in libraries and elsewhere, including the EPA's Public Information Center, 401 M Street, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20460.

Physical therapy month: Use these tips to avoid pain

October is National Physical Therapy Month.

VA Physical Therapists make a difference.

They are proud members of the VA team, dedicated to improving the quality of life for America's veterans.

A few choice words describe their environment - respect, authority, challenge, and opportunity.

Physical therapy is a form of health care that prevents, identifies, corrects, and alleviates acute or prolonged movement dysfunction of anatomic or physiologic origin. The primary objective of physical therapy is to promote optimum human health and function.

Physical therapists test and measure the function of the musculoskeletal, neurological, pulmonary, and cardiovascular systems and treat physical problems caused by illness, injury, or birth defect.

Each year hundreds of thousands of Americans strain, sprain, or permanently injure their bodies trying to slow the hands of time. To avoid the pain, physical therapists recommend the following tips - for aging athletes and "weekend warriors" alike.

• Be realistic. If you haven't exercised regularly since you were a kid, don't attempt to pick up where you left off.

• Warm up and cool down. Start exercising slowly. You should be perspiring lightly before you begin strenuous exercise. End your workout with a slower activity.

• Listen to your body. If you feel pain, stop exercising and seek help.

• Mix it up. Practice several activities instead of one. You'll decrease the chances of injury caused by repetition, increase the number of muscles you condition, and help stave off boredom.

• Consult a health care professional to help you design the program that fits your body.

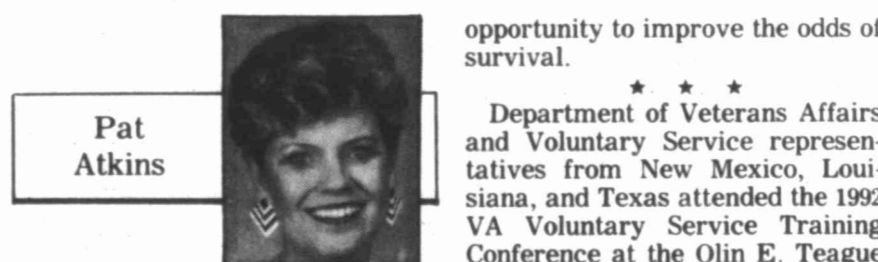

The autumn months should stimulate all of us to make certain that older adults receive influenza vaccinations.

Influenza ("flu") and pneumonia are major health concerns during the winter months. Elderly persons and persons with underlying health problems are at increased risk for complications of influenza infection.

Vaccination of high-risk persons is the most cost-effective method for reducing the frequency of complications of flu.

Those who are at high risk for influenza related complications are:

- Persons 65 years and older.
- Residents of nursing homes and other chronic-care facilities.
- Any person with chronic disorders of the lung, heart, or blood vessels.
- Any person with diabetes mellitus, renal failure, depressed immunity or hemoglobin diseases (e.g., sickle cell anemia) that required regular medical follow-up or hospitalization during the preceding year.

The Private Pain of Prostate Cancer - If there is a single leading reason why middle-age men dread going to the doctor, it is the prostate examination, routinely recommended for those 50 and over.

"However uncomfortable and embarrassing the exam may be, it could be a lifesaver," said Dr. Saeed Akhter, Staff Physician (Urology). The rate of prostate cancer in the U.S. has been steadily rising over the past several years. It strikes 1 in 11 American males and kills more than 30,000 annually.

According to Akhter, "in addition to the rectal exam, a new blood test is available that measures the levels of a protein called prostate-specific antigen (PSA). If present in large quantities, PSA may signal malignancy." The PSA test is an opportunity to improve the odds of survival.

Department of Veterans Affairs and Voluntary Service representatives from New Mexico, Louisiana, and Texas attended the 1992 VA Voluntary Service Training Conference at the Olin E. Teague VA Medical Center, Temple, TX, Oct. 9.

Fred Cox, Chief, Voluntary Service, Big Spring, was coordinator for the conference and presented a program about the importance of communication in the workplace. The annual conference provides exceptional training to better prepare VA Voluntary Service representatives in carrying out their responsibilities to the veterans they serve.

A special welcome to the following new medical center employees: Ulysses G. Velez, M.D., Staff Physician; Linda Nakanishi, M.D., Ophthalmology Resident; Louis Mateka, Chief, Canteen Service; Brenda Kemper, Registered Nurse; Carolyn Johnson, Graduate Vocational Nurse; Eva Watkins and Debra Weid, Licensed Vocational Nurses; and Julie Sheppard, Medical Clerk.

Congratulations to Roxanne Wilson, Secretary, Surgical Service! Roxanne was selected Medical Center Employee of the Month for October.

Haven House Volunteers are needed to assist with light housekeeping, small repairs, and yard work. If you have some free time and would like to help, please call Fred Cox, Chief, Voluntary Service, at (915) 263-7361, Ext. 7136.

President George Bush proclaimed October 25-31, 1992, National Consumers Week. The theme of this year's observance, "Operation 'Wise Buy,'" reinforces the fact that educated, informed, and responsible consumers have an important role to play in the success of our free enterprise system.

The Department of Veterans Affairs celebrates National Consumers Week with the slogan, "Working Together - Serving America's Heroes."

On October 26, the Veterans Benefits Administration (VBA) will introduce a single, nationwide, toll-free telephone number that will automatically link callers with their nearest VA regional offices. The number 1-800-827-1000, goes in to effect Monday, October 26, throughout the United States, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

Russia hit hard by drugs

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Drug gangs based in the politically volatile Caucasus Mountains region and the newly independent nations of Central Asia are spreading their tentacles across the former Soviet Union and into Scandinavia, according to Russian and United Nations narcotics officials.

Spurred by last year's breakup of the Soviet empire, these gangs are blamed for a surge in heroin addiction and marijuana use in Russia and for a dramatic change in the way drugs move into Western Europe from traditional growing areas in Pakistan and Afghanistan.

Russia is hardest hit by the surge in drugs, according to a recent report by an investigation team from the Vienna, Austria-based United Nations International Drug Control Program.

More than 1 million Russians are now drug abusers, and there may be as many as 100,000 opium-poppo fields and more than 2.5 million acres of marijuana in Russia alone, the report estimates.

Russian officials believe there are now between 5.5 million and 7.5 million drug addicts in all the former Soviet Union — an astonishing increase from the 1.5 million reported in early 1991.

"Drug abuse is dramatically on the rise in Russia," says Arkady Kuznetsov, chief of the Russian Federation Drug Enforcement Department. "The disintegration of the police as a force only broadens the sweep of the epidemic."

Russia's drug-related crime climbed 15 percent last year, and 23 tons of drugs were confiscated inside the country, says Kuznetsov. "Russia has no effective protection against the pending disaster, with merely 800 poorly equipped police officers directly involved in countering this crime," he says.

Rival gangs of Azerbaijanis make up at least 80 percent of the drug dealers arrested in Moscow, Russian officials say.

Other mobs are controlled by Chechens, natives of a tiny, rebellious Moslem enclave in the Caucasus. A recent shootout in Moscow between rival gangs left more than 10 dead.

Proceeds from illicit drug trafficking in Russia amounted to about $25 million last year, according to the U.N. report.

This figure is tiny compared with the $500 billion-a-year narcotics industry in the United States. But U.N. officials point out that Russian and Central Asian drugs are sold well below world market prices and are considered cheap in Western Europe and Scandinavia.

A kilogram of hashish in Russia costs between $15 and $20, compared with $200 in France or Germany, according to the U.N. report.

Over the past year, police in Moscow and St. Petersburg, Russia, have raided several huge underground drug laboratories, arresting skilled chemists and confiscating sophisticated chemical-manufacturing equipment.

Finnish law-enforcement officials say ethnic gangs are responsible for a rise in cheap heroin moving across the well-traveled border between St. Petersburg and Helsinki, Finland.

"Drug users and suppliers were not a big problem in Finland before the breakup of the Soviet Union," Yrjo Lansipuro, a Finnish Embassy spokesman in Washington, tells National Geographic. "Now, Russian-produced drugs are cheaper and things are on a bigger scale."

While drug abuse in Russia and the other 14 states of the former Soviet Union is still within "reasonable" limits, it is expected to worsen as a result of social and economic pressures, according to the U.N.

NASA listening for aliens

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

GOLDSTONE, Calif. — Five hundred years after Christopher Columbus completed his voyage to a new world, NASA is beginning a search for intelligent life on other worlds.

The space agency Monday planned to turn on giant dish-shaped antennas in California's Mojave Desert and at Arecibo, Puerto Rico, to begin listening for alien radio signals.

The antennas, later joined by others in West Virginia and Australia, will scan the entire sky for signals on millions of radio frequencies.

Michael Klein, project manager at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, said the search — originally budgeted at $100 million but facing cuts — seeks to answer a fundamental question: "Are we as human beings alone in the universe ... or are we forever to be isolated?"

Astronomer Carl Sagan, a scheduled speaker at Monday's kickoff ceremony, said: "It's an essential part of understanding who we are. ... You have to be made out of wood not to be at least a little interested in the answer."

A 112-foot-wide antenna at the Deep Space Network tracking station at Goldstone, in California's vast Mojave Desert, will scan the entire sky for alien signals. Other 112-foot and 230-foot antennas near Canberra, Australia, will join that part of the search in 1997.

Arecibo and other installations will conduct a highly sensitive search for radio signals from any inhabited planets orbiting about 1,000 of the sun-like stars closest to our own solar system.

NASA said the program is "the most comprehensive search ever conducted for evidence of intelligent life elsewhere in the universe."

More than 50 small-scale and limited searches for extraterrestrial civilizations have been conducted by scientists, including one group that was backed by Steven Spielberg, director of "E.T., the Extra-Terrestrial."

Dozens of unusual radio signals were detected, but none proved to be evidence of a technological society on a distant world.

Rep. John Duncan, R-Tenn., said the new search for space aliens cannot be justified in a time of recession and huge federal deficits. "This is just another reason there are so many people who are so angry and disgusted and fed up with the federal government," he said.

But NASA pointed to a 1972 National Academy of Sciences report that said, "Detection of intelligent life elsewhere may, in the long run, be one of science's most important and most profound contributions to mankind and to our civilization."

"I think it is likely life exists elsewhere in the universe, but I think intelligent life must be very rare, otherwise we would probably have been visited," said cosmologist Stephen Hawking, author of "A Brief History of Time."

Scientists said last month they want the United Nations to help decide when — and how — Earth should respond if alien radio signals are discovered.

Simple things add up to save the Earth

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Making one fewer five-mile trip in your car each month for a year can save you six gallons of gas and keep 116 pounds of pollutants out of the atmosphere. And if all 120 million cars in America did the same, we would avoid generating 14 billion pounds of pollutants annually.

About $800 million and some 720 million gallons of gas would be saved according to an article by Martin Wolf in the current issue of Good Housekeeping. That would be enough for a car to drive from Earth to the moon 30,000 times.

You can save water without replacing an older toilet by putting one or two bricks or a plastic milk jug filled with water in the tank. This will trim up to one gallon per flush or some 10,000 to 20,000 gallons a year.

Other ways to cut back include reducing the amount of material you use, reusing the things you already have and recycling those things you can't use.
