Hearing scheduled on smoking ordinance

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Smokers and non-smokers on a city committee have unanimously agreed on a proposed smoking ordinance and a town hall meeting to get public input is scheduled for Thursday.

"It protects the right of the nonsmoker and it really doesn't hurt the rights of the smoker," said Big Spring City Councilman Corky Harris, who spearheaded the ordinance effort and is a member of the committee.

The town hall meeting will be at 7 p.m. at the Municipal Auditorium: A second public meeting may be scheduled later, depending on the type and amount of input Thursday, Harris said. He is hoping the ordinance will be approved by the council in January. The four-page first draft of the ordinance, needed to be typed as of press time this morning, would allow smoking in designated areas of restaurants, stores and other areas, Harris said. "That's up to the business owner to places, such as check-out lines, he

And it is those areas, such as grocery stores and child care facilities, the committee particularly wants input on, he said The proposed ordinance is "very,

Lambert to propose road crew creation for paving city streets

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

An idea to save $93,000 in city money by creating a city construction crew to do water pipe replacement may also be applicable to street paving, said City Manager Lanny Lambert.

Lambert said he is studying whether it is feasible for the city to do street paving rather than contract it out. A plan may be presented to the Big Spring City Council within the next month, he said. Paving would begin in spring.

"I think we can do a lot more, Lambert said. "A (contractor's) got to make a profit. All we have to do is break even.

A $1.1 million bond package passed by voters earlier this month would be enough to get four to eight miles of streets paved by a contractor, estimated Public Works Director Tom Decell. That would be 2 to 4 percent of all city streets.

But Lambert said up to half the bonds, which would be used to pay for labor, can probably be saved by having a city crew do the work. Two to three part-time workers would be hired to join a core crew

Some of the saved money would be used to rent or buy — probably used - equipment such as an overlay machine, a sealcoater and one or two dumptrucks. Lambert said. "The advantage of that is that when the project's over we still have the equipment.

Any extra money could be used to buy more paving materials. "We'll just do more work." Lambert said.

Rusk Hospital in compliance

Could be released from 18-year-old lawsuit

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN - One of the state's eight psychiatric hospitals has been found to be in total compliance with all requirements of an 18-year-old class action lawsuit against the Texas mental health

Officials said Thursday that the unprecedented performance of Rusk State Hospital means the facility could be dismissed from the long-running lawsuit if it remains in compliance with federal court orders for the next 18 months.

The approximately 400 patients at the East Texas hospital "get constitutionally adequate care," said Austin social worker David Pharis, who monitors state hospitals for U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders of Dallas. "It's the level of care that is mandated by the lawsuit.

'I was very pleased and I was surprised, but I felt what I was seeing was real," Pharis said. "It was different than what I had seen in that hospital (in the past). Last ago, and there was a big Retardation.

Earlier in the day, Mexican officials said the men had been charged in the slayings, but officials said late Thursday night the men had not been charged, according to the Houston Chronicle.

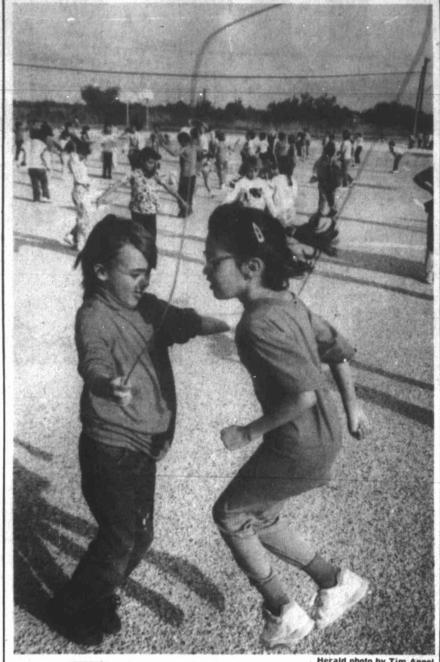

At an evening news conference, Mexican authorities said murder charges had not been filed. Two Austin police sergeants present said they had been instructed by their superiors to withhold comnewspaper reported.

If found guilty, the men could be sentenced to a maximum of 30 years in prison. There is no death penalty in Mexico.

They will also be tried on rape charges, based on a Travis County indictment for a sexual assault that took place three weeks before the yogurt store killings, officials said.

The two have been charged with drug trafficking and smuggling arms into Mexico.

San Antonio readies for curfew fight

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANTONIO - The San Antonio City Council has told the American Civil Liberties Union it will not drop its youth curfew ordinance and is prepared for a court fight to test the law.

Mayor Nelson Wolff Thursday told local ACLU President Michael Bernard that if the group prevails in getting the curfew declared unconstitutional, it will have done a 'great wrong" against society.

"If you prevail, you may have done the right thing with respect to individual rights, but a very sorry thing with respect to duty to society," Wolff said.

"I don't think you can harm society if a law is held to be unconstitutional," Bernard told reporters after meeting with the City Council.

Board members of the local ACLU voted to contest the ordinance, which was passed in August 1991. The ordinance makes it illegal for people under 17 to be out in public between midnight and 6 a.m., but lists a series of exceptions, including traveling from an activity or in the company of a parent.

Bernard Thursday asked the city to repeal the ordinance or i suspend enforcement pending an appeals court decision on a case in Dallas involving a similar curfew. A federal judge in Dallas ruled in August that the Dallas curfew violated the U.S. and Texas constitutions.

WASHINGTON — Researchers have found a third chromosome with a defective gene linked to Alzheimer's disease, and specialists say the discovery suggests there may be a variety of ways for the ailment to develop.

A study published today in the journal Science reported that researchers studying a form of Alzheimer's that develops at an early age in rare families linked the disease to defective genes on an arm of chromosome 14.

In earlier studies, other forms of inherited Alzheimer's was linked to chromosomes 21 and 19.

Experts said the new finding firms up the idea that there could be a different biological processes, working in subtly different ways, that result in Alzheimer's, a disease that causes mental deterioration and eventually death.

"The finding both complicates and potentially clarifies research into the cause of Alzheimer's,' said Dr. Gene D. Cohen, acting director of the government's National Institute of Aging.

He said it complicates efforts to follow the biological events that lead to the disease, but it also could help researchers find a key point in the Alzheimer's disease process where the effects of the flawed genes intersect.

Dr. Gerard Schellenberg, leader of the University of Washington research team, said the group screened more than 200 families with two or more members who developed Alzheimer's disease at b an early age. This group was fur-families that had a very high incidence of Alzheimer's. Blood tests linked the early form of the disease to chromosome 14 in eight of the nine families, he said.

"We took these families where the inheritance was clear and we made the assumption that there was a defective gene and our task was to find where it was," said Schellenberg. "We started looking for a needle in a really big haystack containing all of the human chromosomes. We found one small site on chromosome 14 where there can be a defective gene that causes Alzheimer's disease.

Researchers now are trying to isolate the specific gene that causes Alzheimer's, he said.

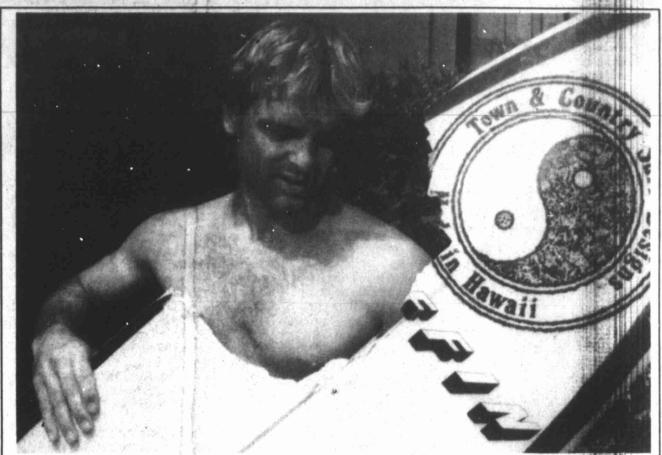

Humans have between 50,000 and 100,000 genes distributed among 23 pairs of chromosomes. Schellenberg said his team has narrowed the search down to between 50 and 100 genes in one arm of chromosome 14.

'The haystack is a lot smaller now," he said.

Schellenberg said that once the gene is located, scientists could learn the biological effects that are controlled or influenced by the gene. This, in turn, could help them discover the cascade of cellular events that leads to Alzheimer's.

The researcher said the linkage is only to very rare families where Alzheimer's occurs commonly at a very early age.

'We were looking at families where people get the disease in their late 30s to their late 50s," he said. "You look from generation to generation and you can see clearly ther narrowed down to nine that a defective gene is involved."

Former French health director sentenced in AIDS blood scandal

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS - The former director of France's blood transfusion network was sentenced to four years in prison today for his part in allowing AIDS-tainted blood to be given to hundreds of hemophiliacs.

More than 250 of the hemophiliacs have died. Dr. Michel Garretta also was fin-among four former health officials tried last summer in a criminal case that scandalized France. Two received lighter sentences Friday, and one was acquitted.

Relatives of hemophiliacs who got AIDS from the tainted blood were gathered at the courthouse today, and reacted angrily to the judgment, shouting "Killer state" to convey their view that govern-

health officials, bore responsibility

The radical AIDS activist group Act-Up staged a protest outside the court during the sentencing.

"There has been a vast coverup," Act-Up said in a statement. "The politicians who clearly were shown to be responsible have yet to be charged.

Chinese premier snubs Hong Kong's governor

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BEIJING (AP) - Foreign Minister Qian Qichen lectured Hong Kong's governor on Thursday and refused to shake his hand in front of journalists to protest proposals for greater democracy in the British territory before it reverts to Chinese rule.

Premier Li Peng snubbed Gov. Chris Patten, refusing to meet with

Qian accused Patten of trying to provoke the Beijing government and repeated China's claim that the governor's proposals violate an agreement to transfer Hong Kong from British to Chinese rule in 1997

Patten maintains his proposed reforms do not violate the agreement.

It appeared Patten would end his first visit to Beijing on Friday without managing to shore up investor confidence in Hong Kong. Continued sniping between the two sides eventually could threaten the territory's standing as a thriving Asian financial hub

Patten, hoarse after 1112 hours of talks with Chinese officials, insisted that the political reforms he proposed two weeks ago are in the best interests of Hong Kong.

The reforms would give residents a larger role in electing legislators and reduce the power of special interest groups dominated by China. The voting age would be lowered from 21 to 18.

Patten could implement the plan without Chinese approval, but China has indicated it would reverse the changes after 1997

Britain, which has controlled Hong Kong for 150 years, agreed in 1984 to return the territory to Chinese sovereignty. China promised to preserve Hong Kong's capitalist system for at least 50 years, but many residents and foreign businessmen are skeptical.

Those proposals are in the interests of the stability, prosperity and way of life of Hong Kong," Patten told a news conference after his meeting with Qian. "If I didn't think that. I wouldn't have put

Italian bank warned of problem before raid

WASHINGTON - Did the Fed tip off an Italian bank that its Atlanta branch was about to be raided by the FBI?

the Federal Reserve System, who nonetheless concedes that his boss called Italian authorities a day before the 1989 raid to warn them of an impending banking problem. In his call, New York Federal Reserve president Gerald Corrigan did not mention the nature of the problem — illegal loans to Iraq nor the bank involved, said his spokesman Peter Bakstansky. All Corrigan told the No. 2 official at Italy's Central Bank was that a Fed emissary was on his way to Rome to explain, Bakstansky said.

The idea was to give the Italian government enough time to make contingency plans in case the raid on the branch of the governmentowned Banca Nazionale del Lavoro resulted in depositor panic and created liquidity problems, he said. In effect, it was a sound banking practice, the spokesman said.

But critics of the Bush administration's handling of the BNL case argue that Corrigan's call was part of an effort to shield a friendly ally - Italy - from any blame or adverse effect of the scandal.

Questions about Sunday comments

To the editor: I would find your Sunday editorial amusing were it not so serious

You seem to ridicule Gov. Clinton's proposed economic reforms while the choice is more of the same policies that have bankrupted our country over the past 12 years. Someone is going to get soaked to pay for one of the biggest heists in the history of man. The middle class has been soaked already. Their security is gone. Their jobs are gone or worthless, their homes, savings, healthcare, pensions are worthless. The future of their families are in doubt.

Mr. Clinton did some protesting. Well, good for him! Had the public gone on and on with the government at that time, (it is my opinion) the Vietnam Memorial Wall would be the largest manmade structure in the U.S. by Could Clayton Williams have ever presented an image like Gov. Richards, you asked. Never. Not in a million years.

I can see very little degrading about our governor sitting on a (made in the USA) Harley. Could it be you find it so because "she" is sitting on it?

Big Spring's future is still in doubt. Like them or not, Gov. Richards and Lena Guerrero might route Interstate 27 down U.S. 87 or — they might not. Right now other local concerns are trying for state contracts. Give them a break, please.

Some VA hospitals will probably be closed. Will it be ours? I suspect Gov. Clinton's team will make that decision.

BOOSIE WEAVER

EDITOR'S NOTE: While the reader referenced our Sunday editorial, they referred to both the editorial and John H. Walker's column. The editorial is the official position of the newspaper Each columnist reflects his or her

• In the editorial, there was no ridicule of Mr. Clinton's proposed economic reforms . . . just direct data detailing what Mr. Clinton proposes and direct questions ask ing how — and who — would pay for all of his promises.

 There was also substantiated data from Harvard University that refutes Democratic statements that the current economic situation and administrtation is the worst in 50 vears. Mr. Bush's administration ranks fifth of the past 11 - while Jimmy Carter's ranks as the worst out of the same 11.

· Mr. Walker's column included data taken directly from the Arkansas Democrat Gazette. which is published in the state capital and is the only newspaper of general circulation in the state.

 No mention of gender was made in reference to the governor of the state of Texas, as the reader inferred.

 Despite protesting otherwise, the reader made reference the photograph of the governor of state sitting astraddle a motorcycle as "degrading" and apparently viewed it as such. Mr. Walker feels that the office of governor of any state - in order to command the respect of the people — should maintain a level of dignity.

 While not being certain where the mention of Lena Guerrero came from, Mr. Walker said he would refer all questions pertaining to Guerrero to former congresswoman Barbara Jordan.

Disgusted with would-be presidents once and for all.

I want to vent my disgust with the candidates who are running for the presidency. None are worthy to hold that sacred office. (If it is still a sacred place). It has been dragged enough through the mud for so many times now we wonder if it is still a place of honor. We know that any man who is president can only do so much. Congress and Senate hold the keys to our welfare, and I would like to see the people of the United States play fruit basket turn over and dump out the lot of them and start over. The men who are running for office have spent so much time belittling, name calling, backbiting, dragging out the dirty linen, and being little tattle tale boys, that they do not even have a platform to stand on, much less give the people of the United States a clue as to what they really do stand for.

I have voted for different things in Howard County for. 50 years now, but I am not so sure I want To vote at all this year. Popular vote does not elect the president In the first place. And the men who are running need to be put behind a plow and learn how to be good honest dirt farmers, garbage collectors, plumbers, school bus drivers, teachers, or any other occupation that calls for a good hard day's work and hard sweat to let them know that they have their noses so high, the common people don't even like them, much less respect them. So why would we break our necks to run to the polls and elect them to an office that is supposed to protect us, treat us equal, give us an incentive to be better citizens of the United States. I can remember when I could go to bed at night with peace of mind, and a warm feeling that our president cared for his country. These men seem to care only if they can cut each other to ribbons.

I can remember it was a sin and a disgrace to do the things the Senate and Congress seem to be proud of. Little people would serve prison sentences for hot checking. And the wastefulness of food, money, and clothing in this country is appalling. Society is bent on destroying itself and everything in its path with selfishness Thank goodness the election will soon be over, and whoever gets the office, may God have mercy on us all

Looking for the good side of winter

The longest hour of the year is almost back, the one we tack onto our clocks by national agreement, though nobody remembers

And with the coming of that hour goes the summer zinnia, the late afternoon walk, the hummingbird and enough lingering and dappled daylight in which to unwind.

The garden hose is curled in a fetal position until next year. The tomato stakes are stacked in the attic. The plastic is tacked to the screen door. The cocoon is spun.

Now darkness comes on the heels of lunch, and we are testy animals caged in an office zoo, performing our uninspired tricks as the daylight looks in, mocking

The walk to the car is purple and lonely.

But there is compensation for our hour. There are meat stews that simmer on an electric eye until the house smells like a mother lives there.

And there are thick books. which in the summer refused to end, stacked by the couch and its patchwork afghan. Winter is a good time for rereading the books

There probably is no scientific data, but I'd guess that the same amount of energy is consumed by poking the fire at appropriate, staggered intervals as is used by pushing a porch swing to and fro, to and fro, with a foot. Calories worth counting.

I don't give a fig for fireplaces with fancy glass doors, behind which you see a distant glow you can only assume to be a real fire. I'd as soon stare at the blue pilot light through the grill of a heater, or look at a butterfly with pins stuck through its wings.

Fires are meant to be open and free, to pop and sputter, to send an occasional dangerous spark to the braided rug in front of the hearth, where some conscientious attendant - I volunteer! stomps it out with a brown boot. Fires get the house a little dirty and spew gray dust. So what?

Fires not watched and tended are a wasted treasure, like Barbara Jordan and music ignored.

Speaking of music. Autumn and winter give us the time to study it, to stretch out in the prone position and really listen. To decide if the Percy Sledge period truly com-pares with the Mozart era, or if Roberta Flack is a polished rock and Aretha a craggy mountain. Or why John Denver gets no respect.

Bring out the show tunes in winter. There is no time like a cold February morning to sing "It's May!" from "Camelot," trying to fa-la right along with Julie Andrews, the only movie star in the world who never, ever changes her hair style.

There is time, too, during the dark season, to rent movies, which do not come cheaper by the dozen. It's the perfect time to see the ones that got away, the ones that sounded good but not good enough to drive across town for.

Each winter I try to watch the movies that helped shape my life:
"Old Yeller," "Gone With the Wind," "Gentleman's Agreement," "Arthur."

You may say I am rationalizing, looking for a sterling lining when there's only silver plate. If so, begin your sulking season. Harp and hate and hibernate until the long hour goes away again.

Reasons why bills disappear

WASHINGTON - Around this time of year, lawmakers like to boast about all the great things

"And I introduced legislation that would create thousands of jobs right here in Mudville, bring down your taxes and protect our rivers and lakes," the lawmakers typically proclaim to their constituents.

Also, ask your congressman when he introduced the bill. His answer may give you some insight into his

Braves slam Blue Jays, 7-2

TORONTO - With one big swing, Lonnie Smith salvaged his reputation and saved the Atlanta Braves from going home again as World Series losers

Smith's grand slam off Jack Morris eased the hurt of last October's base-running blunder and helped John Smoltz and the Braves beat Toronto 7-2 Thursday night, trimming the Blue Jays' edge to

No matter what he does this week, even if he becomes the first player ever to be with four different teams to win the World Series, Smith knows he'll never make up for what happened in the eighth inning of Game 7 last year. In that one, he got lost on the bases and cost the Braves a chance to win, and they lost to Morris and the Minnesota Twins 1-0 in 10 innings.

Morris wound up with the MVP trophy for winning the Series. Smith, nicknamed "Skates" for his many mishaps on the bases and in the field, wound up as being known as the man who lost it.

"I don't think I will ever get any retribution from that game, Smith said. "People all year brought it up, and some people considered it one of the major blunders in World Series history

"No, I didn't get retribution tonight," he said. "I've been criticized my whole career. For one thing, I'm a black man, so I'm going to be criticized. For another thing, I've been considered a mediocre player, and I've been criticized for that.

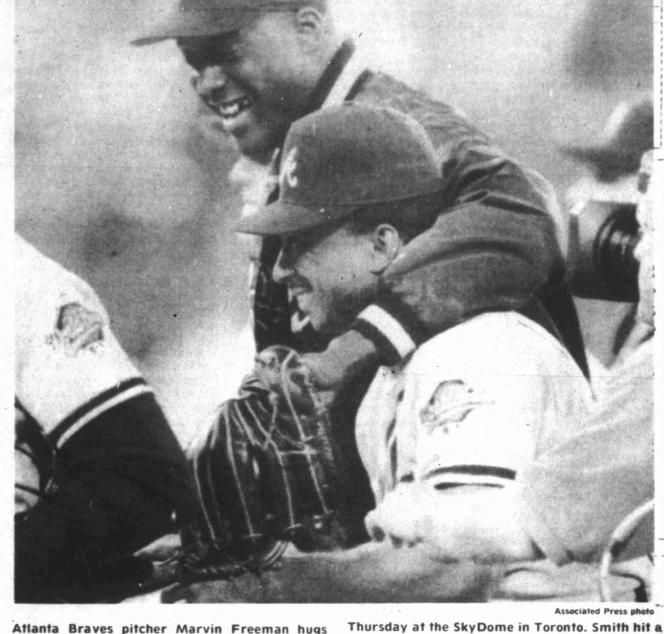

Now, after beating Morris for the second time in six days, Smith and the Braves get another chance to capture what got away from them last year. Steve Avery will start Saturday night against Toronto's David Cone when the Series resumes in Atlanta.

Smith's slam capped a five-run fifth inning that began after the first two batters made outs. It came after an intentional walk to David Justice and resulted in an emotional trip around the bases.

LAKE VIEW - The Steers extended their win streak to four games with two fourth-quarter touchdowns Thursday. Big Spring ran its record to 4-0 in district and 6-2 overall.

With the game tied at 12-12 in the fourth, quarterback Dustin Waters tallied on a 30-yard run and free safety Brien Burchett scored on a 35-yard interception return.

Big Spring trailed 6-0 at halftime. But a one-yard run by Waters and a 30-yard run by Tony Rodriquez put the Steers ahead 12-6 in the third.

Skaters do well in Katy competition

KATY - The Spring City Jammerz SK8, Big Spring's indoor speedskating team, brought back five first place trophies in a regional meet last weekend.

Leading the way was sevenyear-old Megan Morrison, who won both the Junior Olympic and Standard Olympic titles. Kelly Gressett won the Junior Olympic title and the relay team of Kelly and Katrina Gressett placed first in the 2,000 meter relay.

Coach David Mills said opposing coaches are wondering when the skaters will have their own meet in Big Spring. "We had coaches coming up to us all over the place asking where we had been, what meets we were participating in," said Mills. "I personally believe that we have the finest quad team in the state of Texas and many of the other coaches agree.

The Jammerz next meet is in Spring, Texas in November.

Frenzel, 86, sued the league to stop local blackouts she says are unfair to elderly, disabled or poor fans and the taxpayers of Harris County, who paid for the construction of the Astrodome. Her lawyer, Wes Hocker, said he would seek a jury trial for the

"Today is a day of significance for all Americans," Bush said after being briefed privately by Vessey and other members of a U.S. delegation that returned Tuesday from a weekend visit to Vietnam.

Bush announced that his administration was prepared to provide humanitarian aid to Vietnam including "modest disaster assistance" for flood relief, helping Vietnam account for its missing soldiers and medical aid to convalescing Vietnamese veterans.

"We appreciate what has been done. Now we are determined to go forward," Bush said. "We are beginning to review what additional steps we can take with Hanoi

Bush had indicated earlier that there would be no decision on normalizing relations with Vietnam before his term ends in January, meaning a decision could fall to Democrat Bill Clinton if Bush loses his bid for re-election.

If the breakthrough was not timed to help Bush politically, why did it happen to come at this politically sensitive time?

"I believe the Vietnamese are desperate for economic assistance," said Sen. John Mc-Cain, R-Ariz., a former prisoner of war who was a leader of the delegation. "They realize that the best way for them to have the embargo lifted and for them to move forward was to cooperate.

McCain said the Vietnamese were sensitive to the election but, if anything, were reluctant to cooperate for fear of being accused of political motivations.

Sen. John Kerry, D-Mass., chairman of the Senate Select Committee on POW-MIA Affairs, who also attended the White House ceremony, said: "I want to emphasize from the Democratic perspective that this is not an October surprise. And, to the extent it is a surprise, it is a pleasant one accepted with equal gratitude by Democrats and Republicans

Difficult choices Christian Church tackles issues

Features Editor

Congregations of the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ)

debated some touchy subjects at a recent regional assembly - including ordination of homosexuals and biblical inerrancy. Alan Abraham, interim pastor of First Christian Church in Big Spring, attended the meeting last weekend in Port Arthur.

ABRAHAM said he didn't agree with some of the resolutions considered, but was pleased with the way they were handled.

"Knowing that church bodies typically divide when they meet for assemblies, and ours was no exception - we considered some divisive issues - I was pleased we did not choose to fight it out 'to' the death,' " Abraham said. Instead, the church tabled several items for more discussion, including the issue of ordination of homosexuals.

Opinions on all sides were expressed at the assembly, attended by more than 900 church members from Texas, New Mexico, the Oklahoma panhandle and a corner of Kansas. It was a meeting of the church's Southwest Region.

board meeting.

A resolution proclaiming the Bible "the sole and highest authority by which all other standards of Christian faith are measured" was defeated. "The question was, 'Are the words of the Bible literal, dictated by God?' " explained Abraham. "Some people believe the Bible is God speaking, but not everything in the Bible is clear in its application, so questions arise. "What inerrancy ignores is that the people who wrote these books were products of their time and culture," he said. "And it brings up another question. Did God speak only at that time, and has he been silent since?

Another resolution, declaring Jesus Christ the "only means for salvation," was committed to a group for more study

Abraham said that resolution could call into question tolerance for other beliefs and religions.

He said the Christian Church was founded on the ideas of tolerance

First Christian Church and diversity. Although discussion of issues such as these is not harmful, Abraham said, it requires that members remember to be tolerant of other opinions and feelings.

The church is also "congregational," meaning decisions about policy and belief are left up to individual churches. There is no creed or book of discipline, Abraham said.

'There are strengths and weaknesses to that position," he said. "It means a minister has to decide himself when a question arises, but it allows people freedom.

Decisions made by the assembly have no binding authority over individual congregations.

'We are maturing and growing as a church, and I'm impressed by that," Abraham said. "I think one of the methods of handling conflict is to agree not to vote yet. By doing that, we preserve the body of Christ rather than make winners and losers.

Graham will conduct a mass service this weekend, expected to draw tens of thousands of Russians.

One ethics professor cautioned 2,000-year history of disagreement that those who fight political battles in the name of Christianity walk a fine line between piety and self-righteousness.

"Christians must select wisely the strategies they use to see that God's will is done on earth as it is in heaven," said Ray Higgins, an assistant professor of Christian ethics at Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Fort Worth. "If they are not careful, they could become like the very evil they are fighting against."

It is a danger of which many Christians are aware.

"I think Christians ought to obey the laws of the land, unless they run contrary to the laws of God, said Rick Milby, pastor of Arlington Heights Church of the Nazarene. "But as a Christian, our first priority is to God, not to the government.

"Your Support Appreciated"

(Early Voting Oct. 14 thru Oct. 30th) General Election November 3rd, 1992

I don't believe as a Sheriff you should permit yourself to become SHACKLED to a special interest group or any certain person. It is not my nature to knowingly DEMEAN anyone and certainly not my practice as a candidate to cause SLANTED MISLEADING statements for any reason and certainly not for political gain!! The Republican candidate for Howard County Sheriff and Republican Chairman cannot make that statement. Looking and finding the truth in their statements, in my opinion, may be difficult at best. I ask you to vote and support a man that has a proven record, that is interested in the county and not a certain special interest group.

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. - A huge new indoor shopping mall here may boost commerce, but a religious coalition also sees it as an opportunity to offer spiritual guidance.

The Mall Area Religious Council, made up of 20 churches and religious agencies, hopes to inject religious values into the complex by being "right in the middle of it," says the group's president, the Rev. Delton Krueger.

Developers say the 4.2 million-square-foot mall, which includes an amusement park and 40 restaurants and nightclubs, is the largest enclosed retail and entertainment complex in the United states.

Krueger, director of United Methodist Church's Minnesota conference, advocates "spiritual conversation at the mall of America," saying "materialism is not enough."

WASHINGTON - Warning against the "temptation of isolationism," a U.S. Roman Catholic bishops' committee urges citizens and political leaders in this election year to recognize their obligations to the world community.

It calls the present time a "turning point in world history.

"This is a moment that requires boldness and vision on the part of political leaders and of citizens. Our country still has a vital role to play in building a more just and peaceful world community,' said the statement by the bishops' committee on international policy.

The committee, headed by Archbishop John R. Roach of St. Paul and Minneapolis, noted a new spread of freedom followed by ethnic conflict.
