Proceeds from the sale go to the rehabilitation of those veterans, welfare of their families and for the rehabilitation of hospitalized servicemen returning home and awaiting discharge who require treatment in service hospitals.

The poppy is the Memorial Flower of the American Legion, having been adopted through action at the organizing convention of the association in Kansas City in 1921.

New school funding proposal to be considered during special session

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — School groups say a public education funding proposal would cause huge local property tax increases.

But Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock says it's "the only defense against the (state) income tax" being implemented.

RELATED STORY — 8A

The School Finance Working Group, comprised of a dozen different organizations, said the plan could result in local increases of up to $3 billion over the next two years because of insufficient state funding.

Bullock, who released the proposal Wednesday with Gov. Ann Richards and lame-duck House Speaker Gib Lewis, said, "Local property taxes will go up."

But he added that the plan leaves property tax decisions in local districts' hands.

The three state leaders want lawmakers to approve the "Fair Share Plan" in a special session that begins next Tuesday. The 1993 Legislature convenes in regular session in January.

Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, left, Texas House Speaker Gib Lewis and Gov. Ann Richards unveil the latest proposal to fund Texas public school. The proposal will be taken up in special session.

Their proposal includes shifting about $400 million a year from school districts with the most property wealth to poorer ones, to meet a Texas Supreme Court order for equalized school funding.

It also would put an equity standard for school funding into the state constitution to avoid further court entanglement. The standard would require that 95 percent of state and local revenue in the public education system be equalized.

The proposed constitutional amendment requires approval of two-thirds of the Legislature and voters.

AUSTIN — Here are highlights of the new school finance reform plan outlined by state leaders, which would require a constitutional amendment. It would:

- Abolish county education districts, using a different method to redistribute local property tax money from school districts with the most property wealth to poorer ones. The money from the wealthier districts would go to the Teacher Retirement System. State contributions to the system would be reduced, and the state money routed to poor school districts. About $400 million would be transferred the first year.

Reward offered for burglary information

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Howard County Sheriff's Office and CrimeStoppers are seeking help in solving a burglary in the east part of the county.

"We're determined to solve this," said Sheriff's Deputy Woodie Howell. "This is a major loss of property — about $6,000."

The burglary occurred at a home just west of the intersection of Midway and Moss Lake roads, he said. Entering the home by kicking in the front door, the burglar or burglars reportedly stole six firearms, a watch, a camera and jewelry. The jewelry alone was worth over $2,600, according to crime reports.

Missing firearms include two double-barrel shotguns, three rifles and one single-action revolver. A pellet gun also was discovered missing.

The sheriff's office is following up on a few leads in the case. Witnesses reported seeing a blue car in the area at the time of the crime. A VCR the burglar apparently moved is being examined for fingerprints, Howell said.

A $1,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the criminals. Anyone with information about this crime is asked to contact CrimeStoppers at 263-TIPS or the Howard County Sheriff's Office at 264-2242.

All callers remain anonymous.

Tuesday's voter turnout was highest since 1968

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Voters wanting to send politicians a message about the state of the U.S. economy went to the polls in record numbers Tuesday, the highest percentage turnout in the state since 1968, preliminary records show.

On Tuesday, 71.9 percent of registered voters — 6,069,986 of 8,440,143 registered voters — cast ballots, according to preliminary figures from the secretary of state's office in Austin.

In 1968, some 75.6 percent of Texas registered voters cast ballots in the battle between Republican Richard Nixon, Democrat Hubert Humphrey and third-party candidate George Wallace.

That compares with 66.2 percent of registered Texans casting ballots in 1988 and 68.3 percent in 1984.

"Texas has been hurt by this triple-dip recession, and a lot of jobs, particularly in the defense industry, have been threatened or lost," said University of North Texas political scientist Frank Feigert, who specializes in voting behavior.

"There were a number of salient issues, specifically the economy. (Voters) wanted to send a message."

Political analysts aren't rejoicing yet over the new numbers.

"We have to put those numbers in perspective. The percentage of unregistered voters is still appallingly high," Feigert said.

Texas billionaire Ross Perot has been credited with drawing into the political process large numbers of people who had either "dropped out" of politics or had never registered to vote at all.

"He definitely made an impact here in Tarrant County," said county election administrator Robert Parton. "A lot of people got excited who would have otherwise ignored the entire election."

Harris County Clerk Anita Rodeheaver offered a different explanation.

"Two of the presidential candidates were from Texas, and the other was a neighbor," she said. "People like to vote for one of their own."

Texas' early voting process also allowed more than 2 million Texans to avoid long lines on election day.

Preliminary reports from the secretary of state's office show four of Texas' five largest counties topped the 70 percent margin, while only two, Travis and Tarrant had accomplished that in 1984 and 1988.

Economically hard-hit Tarrant led the pack with a turnout of 78.94 percent, followed by Travis, home of the University of Texas, at 78.25 percent, Dallas at 75.02 and Bexar at 71.01.

Harris County trailed the large counties with a turnout of about 68.56 percent, early figures show.

It's still too early to determine minority voter turnout. However, the Southwest Voter Research Institute in San Antonio, which tracks Hispanic voting, is projecting 60 percent turnout among registered Hispanic voters in Texas.

That compares with 53 percent participation in 1988, said Andrew Hernandez of the institute.

About 56 percent of registered black voters in Dallas County cast ballots Tuesday, according to projections by the staff of newly elected U.S. Rep. Eddie Bernice Johnson.

That compares with 50-52 percent participation in 1988, the staff said.

Students concerned about Clinton

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Educators in the Big Spring Independent School District encouraged students to voice their opinions about the 1992 elections and the opinions were as varied as the issues.

Although the students could not vote, some educators at schools such as Marcy Elementary and Big Spring High School conducted mock elections to provide an avenue for students to vent their feelings.

Big Spring High School freshman April Escobedo said she has mixed feelings about President-elect Bill Clinton.

"The only thing I didn't like about Clinton is that he is for abortion," she said. Sophomore Toby Bryant was unhappy about the election results. "I lived in Arkansas for four years, and I know I don't like Clinton," Bryant said. "He raised taxes there, and he'll raise taxes."

Junior Kevin Baucham said, "I was for Clinton because he supported abortion. Bush's ideas about family values is not right. I watched the debates and Bush was just scrambling because he didn't really know what to do."

How the candidates ran their much-publicized campaigns was also among the topics of discussion for students and educators.

"I think Bush and Clinton were kind of childish," said Greg Gresset, a BSHS sophomore. "I was really more for Perot because he had some pretty good ideas." BSHS Principal Kent Bowerman said, "Clinton ran an intelligent campaign. I don't think Bush had his heart into it from the word 'go.' He wasn't up to his potential."

High school teacher Sharon Richardson said most of her students expressed worry about the president-elect.

"The majority of my students had felt they were afraid it's going to cost us in the long-run if Clinton is elected."

On Oct. 29 the Texas Association of Student Councils collected mock election results for Big Spring High School seniors.

The results showed Bush to be the winner with 96 votes; Perot took second with 73 votes and Clinton was last with 50 votes.

Front tightens grip on Texas; freeze expected

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — An arctic front was tightening its grip on Texas, with snow in western sections and freeze and frost warnings elsewhere in the state.

The National Weather Service issued an advisory for the lower Rio Grande Valley, saying frost was a possible danger through the week's end.

A freeze warning was also posted early today for most of West Texas south of Lubbock and in all but the extreme southeast part of North Texas.

But the weather service said freezing weather was not unusual for this time of year, with Nov. 17 the average date for the Dallas-Fort Worth area's first freeze.

Temperatures dipped into the 30s Wednesday across the northern half of the state.

Eight inches of snow fell early Wednesday in far West Texas, with significant accumulations in the higher elevations, and freezing rain was reported in southern regions.

"We had about six inches on the ground earlier Wednesday," said Shayne Eggleston, a police dispatcher. "Most of it's melted, but we are due for more later Wednesday night and early Thursday."

More snow fell in the Chisos Mountains and Big Bend, she said. Up to 8 inches of snow were reported in higher elevations of the Guadalupe and Davis mountains, but no major road closings or other problems were reported.

The weather in Sierra Blanca had cleared by Wednesday afternoon, said Hudspeth County sheriff's dispatcher Abel Ramirez. "This morning it was covered with snow," said Ramirez. "It's pretty cold out there now but it's beautiful. Just a few clouds."

The weather service reported freezing rain and sleet in some parts of East and Southeast Texas.

Multiple personality woman claims there was no consent to sexual encounter in Houston

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A Houston woman says neither she, nor any of her other 10 personalities, consented to a sexual encounter with a Roman Catholic charity official.

Instead, Melanie Kramer insists she was attacked after asking Morris Robichaux, former president of the St. Vincent DePaul Society at Corpus Christi Catholic Church in Houston, for financial help in 1988. Kramer, who suffers from a multiple personality disorder, is suing Robichaux.

Robichaux has acknowledged initiating the episode, but insists the woman consented.

In trial testimony Wednesday before state District Judge Ann Tyrrell Cochran, Kramer said she cried and tried to resist Robichaux.

She said she pleaded with Robichaux to stop, but he continued to caress her and undress her during a visit to her home in 1988.

Kramer is seeking more than $1 million in damages from Robichaux.

She denied Robichaux's claims that she, or one of her 10 personalities, consented to the sexual encounter, which occurred when he visited her home to deliver a check to help her pay rent.

"I think what he did was wrong," Kramer testified.

The mother of three told jurors she was helped by Robichaux in 1986.

In July 1988, shortly before her discharge from Spring Shadows Glen Psychiatric Hospital, Kramer said, she called him again the charity's help.

'Live Oaks' city council considers chopping trees

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

PLEASANTON — This South Texas town may describe itself as the "City of Live Oaks and Friendly Folks," but city council members have been asked to put the chain saws to two huge oak trees.

Gusavto Salinas, 58, has gathered 34 signatures on a petition urging the city to cut down two trees that crowd the intersection of Texas 97 and Bowen Street on the town's east side.

"They are in the view when you get out in the intersection," said Salinas, who is asking that they be cut down or a traffic signal be installed at the intersection.

Salinas' wife, Ida, said she is tired of waiting for action by the city.

"I don't know why they are making such a big stink about cutting these trees. Do they want to wait until someone is killed?" she asked.

The council is expected to consider Salinas' request as well as the views of people who want to save the trees when the council meets tonight.

"There are petitions all over town to save the trees. It's going to be a large issue," Councilman Bob Hurley said.

Hurley agreed with Salinas that the intersection is hazardous but said a better solution must be found than the chainsaw option.

"If cutting the trees were the solution, I wouldn't object, but it won't solve the problem," he said.

Hurley said he has proposed making Bowen Street one-way off of Texas 97 to reduce the danger while the situation can be studied, but area residents have not been agreeable.

"They've got it stuck in their heads that the trees have to come down. I don't think that's the right attitude," he said.

Pleasanton City Manager Larry Phippen, who was asked by the council to review the situation, said he hadn't come up with a workable proposal.

"I've looked at various options but at this stage I have nothing to recommend to the council," he said.

There have been 15 accidents at the intersection since 1987, but pippin said this didn't appear excessive because the intersection has a heavy traffic load.

Clinton assembles transition team

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

President-elect Clinton promised to "focus like a laser beam on this economy" as he assembles his White House team but also planned calls to several world leaders today to discuss foreign policy and the global economy.

"There is just an immense amount of work to be done," Clinton said Wednesday night after his first formal meeting with his transition team. The Arkansas governor called the session "mind boggling" because of the number and range of the decisions he faces as president-elect.

"I haven't made a decision about what Cabinet members to name in which order," he said. Other aides said some key roles likely would be filled by week's end, with a permanent transition director expected first.

As Clinton prepared for the beginning of a new Democratic administration, President Bush returned to the White House for the final two months of his stay in office.

Clinton, in an interview broadcast Wednesday night on ABC-TV, said the enormity of becoming president was "beginning to sink in."

"I have more responsibility now. I have a higher sense of obligation," he said of his personal transformation, overnight, from small-state governor to president-elect of the world's sole remaining superpower.

As he picks a transition director, a White House chief of staff and then the rest of his team, Clinton said he would be guided just as he was during the campaign.

"I am going to focus like a laser beam on this economy, and foreign policy will come into play in part as it affects the economy," he said.

As he slept after a grueling final campaign day capped by his electoral landslide Tuesday, Clinton said he received congratulatory telephone calls from several world leaders.

Clinton's style — no easy label

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — The Reagans were West Coast and imperial, the Bushes East Coast and preppy. The Carters were Southern and, well, Southern. The Clintons won't be so easy to label.

Yuppies, maybe. They earn more than $100,000 a year, live in a nice house, drive nice cars and are certainly upwardly mobile.

They like chicken enchiladas and B-movies. The symphony and theatre. Clinton's chauffeur-driven Lincoln and his 1966 Mustang. Jazz bands. Books. Cattle barns and ballrooms.

"It's a 40-something style," said family friend and former legislator David Matthews of Lowell, Ark. "It's an average, middle-class style — a man, his wife and their daughter. ... On the weekends, it's blue jeans and a polo shirt. On business days, it's a business suit, maybe a tux at night."

Much of the Clintons' spare time revolves around their 12-year-old daughter, Chelsea, a bright student in a local public school. Her father may be a workaholic, but he's left meetings to attend Chelsea's softball games and ballet recitals.

In keeping with the tradition, Mrs. Clinton took time off the campaign trail and her profitable law practice to throw out the first ball in Chelsea's softball league this year.

Before he ran for president, the Arkansas governor and his family could be spotted in restaurants around town. He loves the enchiladas at Doe's Eat Place, a political hangout near the state Capitol.

Clinton met recently with some high school friends at the Dixie Cafe, a country-style family restaurant. Down the street is one of his family's favorite barbecue joints, Shug's. Chelsea likes her ribs dry.

The Clintons also often join Jim Blair, chief counsel for poultry giant Tyson Foods Inc., and his wife, Diane, at the swanky Cafe Saint Moritz in downtown Little Rock.

Clinton's inaugurals were black-tie events, although Mrs. Clinton wore a favorite dress instead of a gown in 1990. Chelsea wore a new, floor-length purple gown described by her mother as "every little girl's dream of a dress."

On the other hand, Clinton can get down-to-earth as well as any politician. Some of his best speeches were made in cowboy boots from the floor of cattle barns in rural Arkansas.

Clinton and his wife often jog or take strolls together. He loves sports — plays golf and critiques the University of Arkansas football team.

Clinton is a Southern Baptist, his wife is Methodist and Chelsea takes turns attending their churches.

The governor is a movie fanatic and often finds time to watch a first-run movie or rent a videotape. Skip Rutherford, whose daughter plays in Chelsea's softball league, said Clinton "will watch just about anything." His favorite movies are "High Noon" and "Casablanca."

Clinton often totes a book to the state Capitol and is quick to give a brief review. One of his recent books was "The Culture of Contentment" by John Kenneth Galbraith.

But old friend Blair said he and Clinton often exchange cheap spy thrillers. "Bubble gum for the mind, I call them," Blair said. State police drive Clinton to work in a state-owned Lincoln.

Russian troops intervene in ethnic warfare

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOSCOW — Russian troops entered several villages in an embattled southern region early today, intervening in the first serious outbreak of ethnic warfare on Russian territory, ITAR-Tass reported.

The troops were sent to disarm the warring factions and monitor prisoner exchanges.

Dozens of people have been killed in the Caucasus mountain region, North Ossetia, since fighting erupted between ethnic Ossetian and Ingush militants last weekend.

President Boris Yeltsin declared a monthlong state of emergency in the region and dispatched Interior Ministry troops and paratroopers to stop the fighting.

The Ingush, who are Sunni Muslims, claim the Prigorodny region of North Ossetia as their historic homeland. They inhabited the region until Josef Stalin accused them of Nazi collaboration and deported them to Kazakhstan and Siberia during World War II.

The Ingush were allowed to return home in the 1950s and about 100,000 now live in North Ossetia and what used to be called Chechen-Ingushetia, which last year was broken into two separate regions — Chechenia and Ingushetia.

About 400,000 Ossetians, mostly Orthodox Christians, also live in the Caucasus, primarily in North and South Ossetia, their traditional homeland which Stalin divided between Russia and Georgia.

ITAR-Tass said Russian troops began entering North Ossetian villages at 8 a.m. on the orders of Russian Vice Premier Georgy Khiza, the temporary chief administrator for North Ossetia and Ingushetia.

Khiza's order followed a cease-fire agreement reached Wednesday with Isa Kastoyev, Yeltsin's representative in Ingushetia, ITAR-Tass said. The cease-fire was to take effect Wednesday evening but fighting was reported throughout the night, it said.

The Russian troops were instructed to seize weapons from illegally armed units.

Israeli government ordered to pay damages in killing

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — The government has been ordered to pay more than $80,000 in damages to the family of an unarmed Palestinian killed by army undercover agents and another Palestinian wounded in the same incident.

The district court ruling could set a precedent because the judge rejected the government's argument that it had no liability because the incident involved an "act of state," Palestinian and Israeli legal experts said today.

It also came despite testimony from the government's main witness, an agent from the Shin Bet secret service. Testimony by the secretive agency generally is accepted without question by Israeli courts. There was no immediate word on whether the government would appeal the Oct. 30 ruling, which came in a case filed more than three years ago.

The case involved an incident Aug. 18, 1988, in which soldiers in civilian clothes pursued and fired on Palestinians in the village of Tamun in the occupied West Bank.

The squad, which was searching for Palestinian activists, fatally shot Saoud Beni Odeh, 24, and wounded his cousin, Jamal Beni Odeh, 31.

Neither was armed. Arab-Israeli lawyer Hussein Abu Hussein, who represented the Beni Odehs, described the ruling as "a big victory."

What would Madison say?

While many Americans are fighting just to hang onto their current take-home pay, Congress has blanketed itself from the chill winds of economic downturn with a 1989 law that provides members (and other high federal employees) automatic annual cost-of-living raises. Now comes a cantankerous coalition to snatch the down from Congress' quilt.

Twenty House and Senate incumbents and 106 challengers in Tuesday's general election are asking a federal court to block a $345-per-month congressional pay increase set for Jan. 1 on the ground that it violates the 27th Amendment. That amendment, written by President James Madison but ratified only this year, bars Congress from voting itself any raise that would take effect before the next election for House seats. This allows citizens to dump self-enriching Congress members before they profit from their cupidity.

House leaders assert that Congress' COLA respects the 27th Amendment because the November election occurs almost two months before the raise kicks in. But the plaintiffs contend that the raise is legislatively malleable all the way until Dec. 31 — 58 days past the election — so that it can't legally be bestowed until after Election Day 1994. That's one curve too many for us, although perhaps fine legal minds can trash it out.

However the court rules, it's clear why a Congress member might seek at least one more term-cum-pay hike: enhanced pensions.

Congressional pensions derive from a member's three highest earning years and from his total years of service. A Jan. 1 raise would boost lawmakers' annual pay from $129,500 to $133,644. Consequently, says the National Taxpayers Union, re-election in 1992 would be worth an extra $1,000 per month for life to the average incumbent; 186 members first elected before 1984 would qualify for total pensions exceeding $1 million.

Egalitarian nostrils may flare at the thought of ex-congressmen yachting about tropical isles at taxpayer expense, but what irks us is the disconnect between performance and pay-and-perks. Better governance might result if COLAs were scrapped and congressional raises tied, say, to reductions in the deficit.

The world house that America built

Q: The defining moment of the 1992 presidential campaign?

A: When a rattled George Bush rose on the balls of his silk stockings to lash out at hecklers, calling them "draft dodgers."

He was wielding once again the broad brush of Cold War politics, the one that divided with fear and hate, that painted all those who would question war as peaceniks and dirty, long-haired hippies. The one that colored an entire race as lazy welfare cheats to curry the votes of another. The one that rewrote the Constitution as an instrument of convenience.

He was, at that moment, the spokesman of a weary mindset that insisted our freedoms were luxuries that could not be afforded in the battle with the perceived enemies of freedom. He was championing the peculiar philosophy that no government is noble, that no government is effective except a small, unaccountable patriarchy that functions essentially in secret.

He was direct heir of the ill-gotten fortune of the Dixiecrats of 1948, a cadre of well-heeled white men who longed to return to the Good Old Days before the nation knew it had a race problem. With his two angry words,

Rheta Grimsley Johnson

George Bush revealed himself more clearly than ever before. He was Richard Nixon, staring out the Oval Office window, unable even to understand the protests going on outside. He was Strom Thurmond, fighting for the status quo.

He made a calculated pitch to the worst in us.

Americans, at their best, care about each other. They care about the environment, peace and, of course, prosperity. But our system of government is based upon lofty ideals and bedrock freedoms, of which enterprise is but one.

The last 12 years in particular have been a paean to the buck. There is more to life; there is more to America.

No political party caused the collapse of the Soviet Union. The Communists did not fold their tents because we wagged the biggest guns or the biggest bankroll.

Communism evaporated in the light of a more humane concept of government, reflected off television satellites, which meant the ideas of Jefferson and Paine could not be kept a secret from the world's rank and file.

The ideals we aspire to as a nation are the ones inspiring the welcomed outbreak of freedom around the globe. They want the four basic freedoms, not just the four basic food groups. Sure, others want the fruits of a democratic society — jeans, rock music, a house with a picket fence — but they sometimes seem to understand better than we which is the tail and which is the dog.

We are at our worst when we listen to those appealing to our baser nature, those who claim that a faceless, lazy rabble from within want what we have and will take it from us, that an evil empire from without is so omnipotent that democracy's niceties cannot be afforded.

Only at our worst do we succumb to our fears, prejudices and greed. Only at our worst do we see all dissenters as "draft dodgers."

Americans can be bigger than themselves in a crisis. Boys from Topeka and Tupelo hit the beaches running in Normandy; their wives and girlfriends worked in airplane factories and joked about rationing.

Freedom Riders from Maine and Iowa sweated through dangerous nights in Tougaloo and Selma. In the wake of natural disasters, towns have sent truckloads of relief to San Francisco, Charleston, Managua, the Soviet Union, even Iran.

Americans sense a crisis now. They may not be able to put an elective finger on it, but they are restive. This year they have been asking less "What's in it for me?" and more "What's in it for us?" Good.

There was much talk in this election about Big Government, as if government were an alien fungus and not the people. There have been threats to close it down, let private concerns take over the roads, the waterways, the parks, the schools. All those things that America has built as a people would be no greater than a hamburger franchise.

The House America Built is bigger than that. It's not a business, but a home.

It's a long walk for George

It happened almost four years ago. Or so the legend goes.

A tall, lanky man walked a lonely beach near Kennebunkport in Maine.

He was deep in thought, head down, hunched into the winter wind.

Then he stopped. Something caught his eye. He bent over and picked up an oddly shaped bottle that had washed ashore.

He looked at it, shook it, then twisted out the cork stopper. Smoke puffed from the bottle. Startled, the man dropped it and jumped back.

The smoke poured out, became thicker, then whirled and materialized as a human form that yawned and stretched.

"Who in the Dickens are you?" the lanky man said.

"I am a genie," the creature said. "I have been trapped in the bottle for ages. You have released me so you are my master."

"Golly, Barbara will never believe this," the man said. "Wish I had my camera."

"Your wish is my command," the genie said, and a camera appeared in the man's hand.

"Jimmy cricket," the man said, "how'd you do that?"

"I am a genie," the genie said. "That is what I do. I can grant you 10 wishes for freeing me. But since you wished for that camera object, you have but nine remaining."

"Wait a minute," the man said, "are you saying you can actually grant wishes and make things come true?"

The genie shrugged and said: "Hey, it's a living."

The lanky man began talking excitedly. "Look, I just was elected to my first term as president. Do you know what that means?"

The genie pursed his lips. "I would guess that it means you are the punjab, the top maharajah, the big fez."

"Well, since Nixon's days we usually call it the big enchilada," the lanky man said, with a piercing laugh. "But I think you have the picture."

"So what do you wish, master?"

"Well, I've been walking this lonely beach, as presidents have done since JFK made it de-rigueur, trying to figure out what I'd do the next four years. You see, that's when I have to run again. And I'm already concerned. I might not get lucky and draw a prissy little Greek from Massachusetts."

"I do not understand such matters, master. I merely grant wishes."

"Anything?" the lanky man said.

"Within reason. Nothing kinky. Against the genie rules. Nor can we interfere with the movement of the sun or planets. But routine miracles, you need only ask."

"OK. So tell me this, can you make Soviet communism collapse? Greatest threat to world peace, you know. Kids'll get a good night's sleep with it gone."

"Granted. What else?"

"Golly. There's this wall in Berlin. Symbol. Ugly. Repression. Can you bring it tumbling down?"

"As good as done. Next."

"Wowie. OK, inflation. Don't like it. Give me the lowest inflation rate in umpteen years. And low interest rates, too."

"Your wish is my command. Next?"

"Lemme think. I got it. How about war. Not a big one, but something splashy. Bad guy starts it. Invades helpless neighbor. I move fast. Decisive. Warn 'em. Won't take it. Won't let it stand. Rally the world community. Hit 'em hard, hit 'em fast. Win it. Brilliant strategy. Great victory. Yellow ribbons. Parades. TV ratings way up. Critics way down. How about it?"

"Granted, master. You still have five wishes."

"Right. OK, let's talk polls. Yeah. After I win the war, can I have the highest approval ratings in history?"

"Easier than a rabbit out of a hat, master."

"OK, what's next? Yes, my opponents. Liberal, but talks good. Can you make him drop out?"

"He will be out, master. What next?"

"All of 'em, the big Democrats. They thought I'd be a sitting ducky-wucky. Give 'em a scare. Make 'em go run and hide. Get rid of them. No real opposition."

"Your wish is my command. They are vanquished."

"But I must have an opponent. Wouldn't look good otherwise. OK, let's find a real patsy. How about a governor nobody heard of. From a tiny state. Arkansas. Nobody's ever been to Arkansas, even the people who live there. That's it. And give him an Elvis haircut, just for laughs. And make him a draft dodger. Can you do that?"

"You have it, master."

"And a scary liberal wife."

"You have it, master. Shall I make her a lawyer, too?"

"Good touch. Look, I hate to impose. But is there any way that almost from the day this fellow runs, there's some tall blond bombshell who goes on TV and says they were, you know, significant others? In an illicit kind of way? The scandal thing. The Gary Hart thing."

"It will be done."

"Gee willikers, I love it. Then for my last wish, I want to win in a historic landslide."

"I'm sorry, master, but you have used up your 10 wishes. I cannot give you a historic landslide."

"Y'can't? Well, it won't matter. Communism, collapsed. Berlin Wall, down. War with bully, won. Inflation, scrunched. Top Democrats, hiding. Pathetic opponent, unknown governor of a teeny state. Draft dodger, sex scandal. Golly, with all that going for me, I can't possibly lose, can I, genie?"

"I am only a genie, master, not a pollster. Now I must return to my bottle. Please replace the cork after I'm in and throw me back in the sea."

As the lanky man tossed the bottle into the surf, he shouted:

"Thanks to you, genie, my next election will really cinch my place in the history books."

And a faint voice came from the floating bottle: "I think you can count on it."

Facing faces at door

Yes, there is something in this world that is difficult for me to turn down. And, it's a problem I run into often.

Is it chocolate? No. Is it new clothes? No. Is it jewels? No. A free meal? No.

The hardest thing to turn down is a child's face when they are asking you to buy something.

When it's a school project, I have a very hard time saying no to a child. Actually, I can't say no.

It doesn't matter what they are selling — candy, subscriptions to get points for a scholarship, trinkets I don't need or what ever. I have to buy it. The guilt pains are just as intense when turning down a child.

Recently, two young boys stopped by my house to sell some candy for a school project. Did they know there was a sucker in that house?

When I looked out the door and see these young, expectant faces, well what else could I say?

So, when I said yes to buying some candy, one of the boys let loose a war whoop of relief the stuff had been sold.

Sorta made me feel good. I think I empathize with the young ones. I remember how hard it was going up and knocking on doors of people you don't know and asking them to buy something. The rejection gets hard to take after a while.

So, any time a kid comes by with something to sell, I usually buy.

Now, when it's the parents, I can say no. For some reason it is easier to say no to an adult than it is to a little face looking to get ahead.

But, even when it's the parents I usually buy. Simply because it helps the kid to obtain something they want.

But I have to admit, there was one time that I practiced saying no.

It was when this little girl came to the door selling candy or something. I actually told her no because I didn't have the money.

Let me tell you, the guilt set in as soon as the door closed on that angelic face. At least I remember the face as angelic.

Oh the pain of having said no to that little girl. I felt extremely bad.

So bad, I ran out of the house to look for her and tell that I would buy something. Unfortunately, I didn't get to assuage the guilt pains because she moved fast and disappeared. I swear it only took a few seconds for me to change my mind.

That was the last time, and possibly only time, I have said no to a child selling something at my door.

Thing is I probably will not do it again.

I just can't stand the guilt.

Steers take road to resume football season

Big Spring junior fullback David Akin (26) throws a block for wingback Tim Pearson last month against Lake View. Pearson broke his arm in the game and will miss the team's last two games, but the rest of the Steers play at Pecos Friday for a District 6-2A game.

By MIKE BUTTS
Staff Writer

Friday the Big Spring Steers football team puts an open week behind them and an open road in front of them.

The Steers travel 133 miles to Pecos tomorrow to resume their 1992 football season after an off week. The long bus trip and the two weeks without a game are causing concern for Steer head coach Dwight Butler as his team heads into its final two games of the year.

Butler has mixed feelings about how the open date will affect the Steers. He says the timing of the week off worries him.

Big Spring, 3-4-1 and 1-2-1 in District 6-2A, has been eliminated from any chance of a playoff spot. Its last two games come against schools expected to finish among the bottom three in the district.

Those factors alone provide plenty of opportunity for a letdown. Add an off week to that combination and it probably wouldn't surprise anyone if the Steers came out a little flat versus the 5-4 Pecos Eagles.

But Butler says he has been pleasantly surprised by his squad's attitude this week.

"I was kind of worried about that after the off week, (but) the last two workouts we had were real crisp and sharp," Butler says. "Some of the players are working harder than they ever have."

The team bus takes two hours and 45 minutes to get to Pecos. That, Butler says, is one reason playing in Pecos can be so tough.

"It's always hard for anybody to go to Pecos to play (because) it's a long road trip," Butler says.

This year the Eagles have a chance to finish with their first winning record since going 7-3 in 1986.

They've struggled offensively, scoring only 70 points, but their defense has been fairly solid.

Pecos has had a streaky year. After falling to Lamesa 12-0 to open the season it reeled off four straight wins, lost three straight and then beat Lake View last Friday in San Angelo 6-0.

Fourteen-year Eagle head coach Daylon Whitehurst says beating Big Spring and finishing 6-4 would be a treat for his seniors and something to build on for his underclassmen.

"I think they already accomplished a lot winning five games, but it would be like putting frosting on the cake (to beat the Steers)," Whitehurst says. "We haven't beat Big Spring since coming into the district (in 1986)."

Forsan hoping for upset

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Forsan Buffaloes and Bronte Longhorns are two football teams that have done better than was expected of them.

Forsan was picked to finish last in District 9-A and Bronte was projected a notch above Forsan. Bronte heads into the season finale in Forsan Friday with a 5-4 overall mark and 2-2 district record. The Buffaloes are 1-8 and 0-4.

Both team's drawbacks this year have been inexperience. Forsan starts 12 sophomores and Bronte starts six juniors and five sophomores. Bronte has been very competitive, losing district games to Roscoe and Robert Lee, both playoff bound teams.

Forsan's record is deceiving. They have been in a position to win at least two district games. In a 16-0 loss to Roby, Forsan outgained Roby in yardage but gave up two big plays. Last week in a 14-7 loss to Sterling City, the Buffaloes gave up a 27-yard winning touchdown pass in the last 49 seconds.

Coach Jan East said his team's going for the elusive upset. "We're approaching it like the last three weeks. We've got a chance to upset these people," said East. "The kids have really been getting after it. We were trailing Roscoe 19-13 going into the last quarter, we played Robert Lee close for a half."

"Probably our biggest disappointment was the Roby game. We felt like we had the people that could line up and beat them. We should've won, we ran 72 plays. Then we came back and got after Sterling City. We should've been smart enough to be in the right place (on the winning touchdown pass). We knew what they were going to do."

East said the lack of numbers has shown this year for his team. "The big plays have killed us. The problem we have is we have 13 kids that play on both sides of the ball, they don't get any rest. It kind of catches up with them in the fourth quarter."

Pardee miffed

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
HOUSTON — Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee has rarely shown his players his bark. But now they're seeing his bite.

"I don't care what the players say," Pardee said Wednesday. "They're the players and they're going to play the way we want it done. Their job is not coaching, it's playing."

Pardee's snap-to followed team comments about what's wrong with the underachieving Oilers, who dipped to 5-3 and second place in the AFC Central Division following Sunday's loss to Pittsburgh.

Defensive end Ray Childress started it by saying on his radio show that the Oilers lacked discipline and were in serious trouble.

center.

Bronte coach Keith McCutchen said he is somewhat surprised at the success of his young team. "We're just telling the kids to try to end on a good note, leave a good taste in our mouth, some pride," he said.

McCutchen said he was displeased with his team's recent defensive performances, until last week when the Longhorns held Roby to 145 yards total offense in a 43-8 win. "We played pretty good defense. In fact, it was probably our best defensive game."

"We've got to play good defense against Forsan. They are a scrappy team, they play good defense and they don't make very many mistakes offensively," he said.

East said the key factor for his team is stopping Bronte junior running back Gary Bilbery from adding to his 1,000-yard-plus season. Last week he carried 27 times for 210 yards against Roby.

"Bronte is young like us," said East. "Bilbery weighs 190 pounds and he's a good running back. They get in the 1 (formation), give him the football and let him hit the hole wherever he wants to. We've got to stop him."

Kickoff is set for 7:30 p.m.

Cowboys' tackle Williams honored

NEW YORK — Dallas offensive tackle Erik Williams was named NFC offensive player of the week for his performance in the Cowboy's 20-10 victory over Philadelphia. It's the fourth time in eight years that an offensive lineman has received the award.

Minnesota's Jack Del Rio was named NFC defensive player and New York Jets quarterback Ken O'Brien and Cincinnati defensive lineman Alfred Williams were honored in the AFC.

Magic cites retirement reasons

NEW YORK — Fear and ignorance forced Magic Johnson to retire a second time, the former Los Angeles Lakers star said in an interview that will be air tonight on ABC's "PrimeTime Live."

Johnson originally retired last Nov. 7 when he was diagnosed with the virus that causes AIDS. He came out of retirement in September, then retired again Monday, three days after he was cut in an exhibition game against Charlotte.

Thursday Notes

Former HC coach head man at UTA

Former Howard College assistant men's basketball coach Eddie McCarter was recently selected as interim head coach for the University of Texas at Arlington.

The turn of events came when UTA head coach Mark Nixon resigned to pursue a job in private business. Nixon will go into the insurance business in Odessa. He steps down with one-and-one half years remaining on his three-year contract. His career record at UTA was 56-59.

McCarter was an assistant at Howard under Steve Green from 1987-89. During those years Howard went 60-6.

McCarter's last head coaching job was in 1987 at Charles Henderson High School in Troy, Ala. "The reason I'm at this level is because I want to prove I can recruit," McCarter said. "I knew I could coach, but people always told me they needed someone who could recruit."

"I'm excited about this chance. I don't care if I'm the coach for four months or four years, I'm going to do the best I can."

Steve Belvin

Former Howard College All-American forward Johnny McDowell, now a senior at UTA, said he's happy McCarter got his chance. "It came as a big surprise, but I don't think it's going to affect us. I understand his (Nixon) decision. He had to look out for himself and his family. The mood of the team is still a little shocked, but we're happy the job stayed within the family."

Big Spring professional bowler Phillip Ringener finished in the money at the $140,000 Rochester Open in Rochester, N.Y. last week on the Professional Bowlers Association tour.

Ringener finished 13th in the competition, winning 14 games and losing 10. He averaged 215 per game. He was also one of four bowlers to roll 300 games in the tournament. His effort netted him $2,300.

For the first time in 11 years, Coahoma bull rider Wacey Cathey won't be competing in the National Finals Rodeo.

Cathey, who's been to more NFRs (14) than any bull rider in the history of the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association, was plagued by injuries all this year. The top 15 individuals in each event qualify for the NFR Dec. 4-13 at the Thomas and Mack Center in Las Vegas, Nev.

"It will be a little different (not going to the NFR)," said Cathey. But he plans on continuing his PRCA career. "I probably won't get to go anywhere until after Christmas. I'm still trying to get some ribs healed."

The top bull riding money winner was Cody Custer of Wickenburg, Ariz. with $74,737 in prize money.

The Midland Chicano Golf Association will be hosting a golf tournament Nov. 8 at Comanche Trail Golf Course.

Entry fee is $35 per person and players must be registered by 10 a.m. on Nov. 8. For more information call Cecil Adams at 683-4183 between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Steers

The Eagles out 62-0 Oct. 16. But videos of Pecos against Monahans and Sweetwater have impressed Butler. The Eagles led Monahans and trailed Sweetwater by only a touchdown at halftime of those games. They eventually lost both.

"They have the ability to play good defense," Butler says. "Against Andrews (coach) Whitehurst said they just didn't get off the bus, (but) when they decide to play they're fine."

Pecos runs out of multiple I formations using a lot of sweeps and sprint out passes. The team has been hurt by the opening-game loss of standout halfback-linebacker Dominique Tellez. Tellez went down for the year with a knee injury. The game kickoff at 8 p.m.

Notes: Senior wingback Tim Pearson suffered a broken arm against Lake View and will miss the rest of the year. Pearson is second on the team in rushing and has 626 total yards and five TDs. Junior Mike Oliva will replace him. Outside linebacker Luis Bustamante replaces middle linebacker Clint Kemper against Pecos. Kemper has a shoulder injury. Oscar Cervantes will take Bustamante's place. Cervantes continues to lead the district in receiving yards with 408 on 20 catches. This despite making only five catches in the last five games. Pecos and Big Spring have combined for 68 fumbles and 36 fumbles lost this year. The Steers are 9-0 against Pecos all-time.

How To Turn Six Numbers Into Six Figures.

Nowhere in the history of the world has there ever been any real significance to the number six. There were never SIX Musketeers. There was never any movie entitled the Magnificent SIX. Nobody ever says, "Hey, homeboy, slap me SIX." There are no mentions of the big SIX automakers, and so on and so forth.

So, for the first time in the history of the world, lowly SIX is about to be elevated to a much higher level. Elevated, in fact, to millions, in a new type of game. Read on, it gets easier.

LOTTO Texas is a new game from the Texas Lottery. It's fun, it's exciting and it's easy to play. You pick six numbers from one to fifty, and should you happen to pick the same six numbers that come up during the drawings, then you could win millions of dollars.

Now, the long version on how to play LOTTO Texas:

Step number one. Go to your LOTTO Texas retailer. You can only play where you see the red and yellow sign that says LOTTO Texas. It shouldn't be a big problem. There are thousands of LOTTO Texas retailers all over the state. Look at the lower right-hand part of this page. That is our new logo. (We're quite proud.) Wherever you see that sign, you know you can play LOTTO Texas. Still with us? Great.

Step number two. While you are at the retailer, pick up a playslip. There's a picture of it on this page. You may find the playslip in a stand called a play station. If not, just ask for one. Step number three. (My, we are moving right along now, aren't we?) Choose SIX of the numbers on the playslip from one to fifty. You can also play up to five times on each playslip. You must completely fill in the numbers you choose on the playslip with a BLACK OR BLUE BALLPOINT PEN OR A PENCIL ONLY. The pencil below is free, and it will work quite nicely.

Also, do not erase any of the mistakes you make. Just fill in the VOID box on that play and you will not be charged for it. Step number four. (Past the halfway mark.) Take a dollar (that's how much it costs to play LOTTO Texas) and give it and the playslip to the retailer. In just a few seconds, you will be handed a ticket that verifies which numbers you picked. Please remember: sign the back of your ticket so no one else can cash it in.

Step number five. You can tune in to the televised drawings on Wednesday and Saturday nights at 9:58 p.m. CST to see how well you did. If you picked all six of the numbers that are randomly chosen on the ball machine, then you could be a millionaire. If you miss the drawing, those numbers will be posted the next day at all LOTTO Texas retailers and in your local newspaper.

The jackpots are paid out to the winners in 20 annual installments. You can also win second and third prizes by matching five out of six numbers or four out of six numbers. Match three out of six and you'll win $3 automatically. If you win up to $599, you can collect your prize at any LOTTO Texas retailer. All winnings of $600 or more can be claimed at any of the Texas Lottery claim centers in any of the cities listed on the back of a How To Play brochure for LOTTO Texas. (That list is a little long for this ad.) You will also find the odds printed in that brochure. You can claim prizes through the mail, as well, by using a claim form that you pick up from any Texas Lottery retailer. Please make copies of the front and the back of your ticket before you send it in. The Texas Lottery is not responsible for tickets lost in the mail. All prizes must be claimed within 180 days of the drawing.

Finally, LOTTO Texas can be played up to 10 drawings (five weeks) in advance. If you want to play the same numbers for several drawings in a row, fill in the multi-draw box on your playslip with however many drawings you would like to play. You must be 18 years or older to play. And when you are watching the televised drawings, your heart may pound a little. Your palms may sweat. Please do remember to have fun.

Home schools: Parent as teacher, role model

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

When parents school their children at home, the youths benefit more because of individual attention, lack of peer pressure and an unlimited learning pace, said Donna Harris, president of local Christian Homeschoolers.

"Most parents in Christian home schooling are dissatisfied with public or private schools," she said. "Home schooling is a big responsibility because the parents are role models, and they must have good moral standards."

Parents providing a home education for their children are determined to change the atmosphere and attitude of school.

"When they get into public schools, they get breathed in. Parents don't get to spend much time with them because of football or whatever," she said. Harris home schools her four children, ages 14, 12, 8 and 6.

"Our oldest daughter was in public school for the first two years. She seemed to have lost her good attitude," she said. "She was very strong-willed with an attitude that most of the other school children had. They were disrespectful and wanted to be with their friends."

Being with friends at early ages usually means children must grapple with peer pressure, Harris said. "There is so much pressure with drugs, parties and deceiving your parents."

Fourteen-year-old Rebekah, Harris' daughter, agreed.

"I'd be under a lot of pressure with boys, clothes and all the perverted things going on in schools today," Rebekah said. "I go to church three times a week,

Students from Christian Homeschoolers meet recently for a course in sign language. It is one of many regular activities that brings together families for whom the home is also the school.

and a lot of teens think that's foolish."

In a home school, parents and students set the learning pace.

"You can go in the summer or if you go out of town you can set your vacation time and double up on your school work later," she said.

"I'm with my brother and sisters all day now, and if I was in a public school I don't feel I'd have a good relationship with them."

One stipulation of admittance to the local Christian Homeschoolers group is belief in Jesus Christ and regular church attendance.

Harris, who has home schooled for about nine years, said it is up to parents to take the initiative in schooling their children.

"It takes up a mother's time. She can't watch her soap opera or run around town," she said. "She can't have a career because her career is giving her child a godly education."

"We've had parents who can't do it. It takes a lot of dedication," Harris added. "Some parents just drop off their kids at public schools and leave them there to be raised. Kids are not getting the support that they need."

Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary said home schooled students are at a disadvantage.

"Children do not learn to react, learn and live in an environment with different cultures, races and value systems," he said. "They don't have the access to science labs, foreign language labs or the expertise of a trigonometry teachers."

"The courts have upheld the rights of parents to home school, and we comply with that," McQueary said. "I'm sure there are some situations where mothers and fathers are certified teachers, but a great majority are not."

Harris said local home schooled children interact with different age groups on a regular basis with field trips and special across-the-ages courses, she said.

"We've got parents that are teaching their teens, but they're teaching younger children, too," she said. "People say we're taking them out of the real world, but the public school isn't the real world, because public schools are not interested in getting kids to interact with other age groups."

Rebekah said she can think of only one disadvantage of being home schooled.

"At first I wasn't excited about it. Now, I can relate to my parents and it's a one-on-one basis," she said. "The only disadvantage is there is no band. I would have liked to play in the band."

Events slated for this month for Christian Homeschoolers include sign language lessons; CPR classes and field trips. For more information, contact Harris at 267-8851 or Ken and Lane Froman at 267-1857.

Kids may be getting less exercise than adults think

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Parents, how much exercise does your kid get? Chances are it's less than you think.

Eighty-five percent of parents say their child is physically fit, according to a Harris poll done for Prevention magazine.

But fitness results from hard work, and students in a separate, government survey reported working out far fewer times than the parents in the Harris survey estimated. What's more, scores in one national school-based test of strength and fitness have been sliding for years.

"Parents are very out of touch," said Thomas Dybdahl, director of research for Prevention, a health magazine based in Emmaus, Pa. "We wanted to see if parents understand the reality of the situation, and the reality is that they don't."

The Harris poll asked 290 parents how often their children exercised hard enough to breathe heavily and raise heart rates for at least 20 minutes. Parents reported 31 percent of children ages 5 to 12, and 33 percent of those ages 13 to 17, exercised that hard six or seven times a week, Dybdahl said.

He suspects the younger kids didn't exercise for 20 minutes at a stretch, but that parents interpreted the question as asking whether the children played hard for at least 20 minutes at a time.

"I think parents perceive that, if your kids are outside or away from you, they must be getting some kind of exercise," Dybdahl said.

In contrast, a 1990 survey of 11,630 students in grades nine through 12 found only 37 percent of students reported working out that hard for three or more days a week, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control.

'Parents are very out of touch.'

Thomas Dybdahl, health researcher

The national Youth Risk Behavior Survey did not cover the younger ages in the Harris Poll.

Parents who exercised strenuously at least three times a week were less likely than parents in general to consider their child physically fit, the Prevention data said.

Overall, 85 percent of parents considered their child fit, while only 77 percent of exercising parents did, the tables showed.

"Where parents are active, they are more likely to be aware of the kids' failings," Dybdahl said. But he suspects that even the exercising parents overestimate the shape their kids are in.

Determining the endurance and strength of America's children is tricky, because the various national tests don't agree on standards or goals.

However, it appears from one national test that kids have been going downhill. Studies conducted by the Amateur Athletic Union for the Chrysler Fund found a drop from 43 percent to 32 percent in overall satisfactory performance. The Chrysler Fund-AAU survey measured endurance, strength and flexibility in students ages 6 to 17 from 1980 to 1989.

The '80s showed drops in almost all age groups for cardiovascular endurance, while weight went up, said Wynn Updyke, the survey's director.

"I'd ideally like to have the parents do things with the children," he said. "I'm realistic enough to know that's very difficult to schedule."

Science and math can be great influence on young lives

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Jonathan Santos says he was never a great student but has always been fascinated by flight. He was 13 when he designed the boomerang-type device that he now markets as "the ultimate flying toy."

Mae Jemison was in kindergarten when she told her teacher, "I want to grow up to be a scientist." Today, a medical doctor, chemical engineer and America's first black woman astronaut, she is awaiting her next mission aboard the space shuttle. The message from these two, and several other "role models" who appear in a National Science Foundation educational film, is that science and mathematics have dramatically influenced their lives.

"Scientific principles are everywhere," musician Jamey Turner says in the film as he explains how he uses glasses filled with different levels of water to produce his music.

Jemison explains a bit about gravity in the film, as astronauts are seen floating about in a space shuttle, but she also points out that science and math are fundamental to many other jobs, such as carpentry.

Being a hairdresser requires mixing chemicals, she notes, and even shopping at a "40 percent off" sale requires knowledge of math.

The 24-minute film, "A Brain, Books and a Curiosity," is designed to help young students understand how important math and science are to their everyday lives and how important they could be to their future careers.

Featuring two hosts — one black and one Hispanic — who use dance and rap music to make their point, the film is targeted to young people in general, and to minority students in particular.

Jemison, 35, said she's always been interested in science as well as in dance and art, which she says are related.

"They're different expressions of creativity," she said in an interview Wednesday. "Dance has physics, biology, energy."

Jemison grew up in Chicago, went to Stanford University at age 16 and after receiving a chemical engineering degree, went to Cornell Medical School. She returned last month from her first space flight — eight days aboard the shuttle Endeavour.

Santos, of Greenbelt, Md., said he taught himself the principles of aerodynamics because he was fascinated with flight, although "I was average at best as a student." During his days growing up in Bowie, Md., he was handicapped by a reading and learning disability, he said.

But his fascination with flight prompted him to experiment with aerodynamic principles, and at 13 he began developing what later became known as the "J-Boom," and marketed as "the ultimate flying toy."

The film will be made available to schools nationwide. It is a project of the National Science Foundation.

Presidential Fact-a-Roonies

It's hard to realize that presidents are folks much like you and me. Interesting facts make them seem more human. (The number by each president shows the order in which he served.)

George Washington (1) was the only president to have a state named after him.

• He gave the shortest inauguration speech ever, 133 words at his second inauguration in 1793.

• Washington did not have wooden teeth. His teeth were made of the best materials available at the time.

Records show that Washington spent a lot of money on taking care of his teeth. However, like many people in his day, he had many dental problems. His set above was made of ivory.

This life-size model of Madison shows his size when compared with a chair! He spoke in such a soft voice that people often had to ask him to speak up.

James Madison (4) was the shortest president. He was only 5 feet 4 inches tall. He weighed 100 pounds.

Theodore Roosevelt (26) was our youngest president. He took office at the age of 42. He became president after McKinley was assassinated.

• Roosevelt had six kids, and they had many pets, including a bear, a lizard, guinea pigs, a pig, a one-legged rooster, a barn owl and a rabbit.

• He had a toy named after him.

Quentin Roosevelt on the pony Algonquin. One day, when his brother was sick, Quentin took Algonquin upstairs in the White House for a visit.

Roosevelt loved to hunt. One day he refused to shoot a bear cub. A newspaper cartoonist drew a picture showing this incident. The cub became famous. A toy maker started making bears, calling them "Teddy." One of the first Teddys is shown above.

Abraham Lincoln (16) was the tallest president. He was 6 feet 4 inches tall. He weighed 180 pounds.

William Henry Taft (27) was the biggest president. He weighed more than 300 pounds.

Getting Down To Business

Araceli Hernandez
5th Grade
Stanton Elementary School

If I were elected President of the United States, my first order would be for every child to have an education. The way I would go by that is by putting more taxes on the big businesses and then lowering the taxes for the poor businesses. I would want for the taxes to be higher, for the rich and with those taxes I would make a business where people could adopt babies or children that their parents could not take care of.

Presidential Fact-a-Roonies

John Adams (2) was the first president to live in the White House. He moved in before it was completely finished in 1800.

William Henry Harrison (9) was in office for the shortest time, only 30 days. He died of pneumonia caught while delivering the longest inaugural speech ever — 8,443 words. He also was the first president to die in office.

Rutherford B. Hayes (19) and his wife, Lucy, began the tradition of the Easter Egg Roll on the White House lawn on Easter Monday. The year was 1878.

Franklin D. Roosevelt (32) was the only president elected for four terms. He was a cousin of Teddy Roosevelt (26). He was the first president to fly in an airplane while in office. He also loved the hobby of stamp collecting.

John Tyler (10) had more children than any other president. He was the father of 15! He had two wives. He had eight children by his first wife, Letitia, and seven by his second wife, Julia.

Calvin Coolidge (30) was the only president to be sworn in by his father. He was visiting his father in Vermont when President Warren Harding died. His father, a notary public, administered the oath of office in his living room.

John Quincy Adams (6) was the only son of a president to become a president. His father was John Adams (2).

Ronald Reagan (40) was the only Hollywood star, and the oldest man ever elected to the office of president. He was 69 when he was elected to his first term.

Benjamin Harrison (23) was the only grandson of a president. His grandfather was William Henry Harrison (9).

Harry S. Truman (33) had a middle initial that did not stand for anything. It was just the letter S.

James Buchanan (15) was the only president who never married.

Welling new sheriff; Welch new commissioner

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Martin County voters had to decide to contested local races in Tuesday's election.

Republican candidate Mike Welling claimed victory in the sheriff race against his opponent John Castro. Welling received 1,050 votes. Castro received 980. Welling replaces Dan Saunders who retired after 40 years in office.

Both candidates were Martin County Sheriff Department deputies. Castro has served eight years as deputy and this was his first bid for office.

In the Martin County Commissioners' Court Pct. 3 race, Eldon A. Welch beat write-in candidate Charlie Pinkerton by 113 votes. Welch received 308 votes. Pinkerton received 195 votes.

In state and national decisions, Martin County voters followed suit as other Texans. President George Bush carried the county with 986 votes. Democratic candidate Bill Clinton received 641. Independent candidate Ross Perot received 356 votes.

In the United States Representa-tative District 17, Charles Stenholm received 1,081 votes. His Republican opponent, Jeannie Sadowski received 616 votes.

The Railroad Commissioner seat's Republican candidate Barry Williamson received 998 votes, while Democratic candidate Lena Guerrero received 737.

In the Supreme Court Place 1 race, Republican candidate Craig Enoch received 995 votes. Democratic candidate Oscar Mauzy received 618.

In the Supreme Court Place 2 race, Democratic candidate Rose Spector received 818 votes. Republican candidate Eugene Cook received 801 votes.

In the Supreme Court Place 3 race, Democratic candidate Jack Hightower received 922 votes. Republican candidate John Montgomery received 706 votes.

In the State Senator District 28, Democratic candidate John Montford received 1,111. Republican candidate George Gray received 502.

The Martin County Clerk said voter turn out was heavy with 2,057 voters casting their ballots out of 2,744 eligible voters.

Election officials Lorece Avery, center and JoAnn Edwards watch as Gene Clements signs in on election day Tuesday morning. A new sheriff and commissioner were elected into office.

Precinct 1 on the south side of Stanton was one of many locations around the country that was being used by a consortium of the major networks as an exit polling spot.

Emergency farm loans now accepted

Applications for emergency farm loans for losses caused by rain, hail and wind are being accepted at the Farmers Home Administration office in Stanton, FmHA County Supervisor Ronnal E. Bruton said recently.

Howard and Martin counties are two of 15 in Texas recently named by Secretary of Agriculture Edward Madigan as eligible for loans to cover part of actual production losses resulting from rain, hail and wind.

Bruton said farmers may be eligible for loans of up to 80 percent of their actual losses or the operating loan needed to continue in business of $500,000, whichever is less. For farmers unable to obtain credit from private commercial lenders, the interest is 4.5 percent.

"As a general rule, a farmer must have suffered at least a 30 percent loss of production to be eligible for an FmHA emergency loan, Bruton said. Farmers participating in the PIK or Federal Crop Insurance program will have to figure in proceeds from those programs in determining their loss.

"Applications for loans under this emergency designation will be accepted until May 24, 1993 but farmers should apply as soon as possible. Delays in applying could create backlogs in processing and possible over into the new farming season," Bruton said.

FmHA is a credit agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It is authorized to provide disaster emergency loans to recognized farmers who work at and rely on farming for a substantial part of their living. Eligibility is extended to individual farmers who are U.S. citizens and to farming partnerships, corporations or cooperatives in which U.S. citizens hold a majority interest.

The FmHA office in Stanton is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. After a county is eligible, who can get a loan?

An established farm operator who is a citizen of the United States; is of good character; can show evidence of having suffered a qualifying physical or production loss; has adequate security and repayment ability.

What is a qualifying production loss?

Loss of at least 30 percent below a normal year's production.

How much can an eligible farmer borrow?

Up to 80 percent of actual production loss of $500,000 or enough for next year's operation whichever is less but not more than is actually needed.

What is the interest rate?

For borrower's unable to obtain credit from a private lending institution, the rate is 4.5 percent.

What can the money be used for?

To restore property, pay production costs, pay delinquent debts, pay living expenses, repair buildings, buy equipment and refinance debts.

How long can the loan run?

The term is based on the type of loss, use of loan funds, type of collateral and borrower's repayment ability. Production losses are normally up to seven years; real estate normally is required as security for longer terms.

How is PIK counted?

Any acreage unplanted because of PIK (Payment-In-Kind) or conservation reserve is counted as having produced a year's normal production in determining actual loss.

How are prices determined for production losses?

"The average monthly price in effect for the previous year" is the guideline — as required by the congressionally-mandated Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1981. Prices are obtained from the Statistical Reporting Service. USDA.

Homemaker Achievement Day Nov. 12

Special to the Herald

Martin County Extension Homemakers are having their annual Extension Homemaker Achievement Day activities at the Community Center Thursday, Nov. 12.

A luncheon, fashion show and bazaar are all on tap for the day's activities.

The fashion show will be very special this year. A new fiber called Texaloma will be introduced to the public. The fiber is a blend of cotton and wool and will be made up in today's latest fashions.

A group of homemakers working with the Glasscock County Extension Service will model the fashions made of the all new natural blend.

In addition, Martin County Extension Homemakers have been focusing on recycling with denim. Aprons, jackets, children's bibs and much more will be on parade along with our traditional home sewn fashions. You will not want to miss this event.

Lunch promises to be great. Tickets are $3.50 in advance and $4 at the door. Mexican stack-ups and homemade desserts are on tap.

The Bazaar will feature local artisans like the Pepper Shack, John Webb's wood designs and crafts by Winnett Brown. If you are interested in having a booth, call Doris Oldaker at 756-2359. Only $10 for an 8-foot space.

Proceeds from this event go to sponsor local community educational events. The sponsor is the Martin County Extension Homemakers.

Buffalos turn a big corner

By MIKE BUTTS
Staff Writer

From a distance Stanton's football team doesn't look like it made a lot of progress this year. The Buffalos improved their won-loss record by only two wins, from 1-9 to 3-6.

But take a closer look and you'll find a program that turned a big corner in 1992. The Buffs lost two games by a point each. And scores like last years 35-0, 42-0 and 39-0 outcomes can't be found among this year's results.

"We were tremendously improved over last year as far as effort goes," Stanton head coach Bill Grissom says. "We had a lot of goals set to get the program headed in the right direction and I think we accomplished a lot of those goals."

Grissom says he's not happy with 3-6, but that enough good things happened over the course of the season to make him excited about next fall.

The Buffs began the year with a surprising 26-18 win over O'Donnell and then lost to Colorado City, 14-13, despite doubling the Wolves in total yardage. Shutout wins over Post (28-0) and McCamey (41-0) with a loss to Iraan in between put the Buffs at 3-2.

Those were some of the good things that happened to Stanton. Then came the fateful District 6-2A game against Ozona.

The Buffs led 21-7 going into the fourth quarter but lost 22-21 on the Lions two-point conversion. Grissom says the Ozona loss turned his team's season around.

"That probably did a lot more to our morale than any other ballgame," Grissom says. "Up to that point we were playing real well, and then we came out (against Coahoma the next week) and had a horrible first half — I think stemming from the week before."

Stanton's biggest off-season tasks will be rebuilding what were senior-laden offensive and defensive lines. But Grissom isn't fretting over that prospect. He's got plenty of good skill players coming back and he says developing good linemen comes easier than developing good quarterbacks and running backs.

"You can take a lesser athlete, and make a good lineman out of him," Grissom says.

Quarterback J.J. Ortiz, leading rusher Ricky Lucas, fullback Brad Barnhill, receiver Eric Martel and back Jerele Lee will all wear the red and grey again next season for the Buffs.

Grissom was happy with the work of his skill athletes this season. But he feels Lee, a sophomore who dislocated both shoulders this year and missed most of the season, could have helped the Buffs.

"There's a lot of times where I felt like he could have made a big play that would have had a bearing on the game," the Buff coach says.

Lee will work on strengthening his shoulders in the off season in an attempt to prevent the injuries that kept him out this year.

Next year District 6-2A should again be one of the most balanced districts in the area, Grissom says. But that has no effect on the coach's enthusiasm for '93.

"I think we'll see even more improvement (next year) because the kids realize the effort they have to have to do well," Grissom says.

So next year the Buffs' season could look just as good from a distance as it does from close-up.

Parenting seminar is tonight

By KATHRYN BURCH
Extension Agent

A parenting seminar is scheduled for Thursday, Nov. 5 from 7 p.m. to 9 at the Stanton Community Center.

Come hear Dr. Terry M. Urnosky from Lubbock as he speaks to us about raising children with approval, affection and acceptance. He also will talk about discipline and how children need boundaries in which to make decisions. The discipline segment will encourage parents to take the responsibility of shaping their child's will, while providing them with the "how to's" to do so.

Dr. Urnosky is an exciting speaker with a style similar to James Dobson. There is a lot of interaction with the audience. He is entertaining and fun to listen to.

Parents can't help but leave the seminar with a positive attitude towards parenting and some practical plans for implementing those ideas.

Dr. Terry Urnosky is currently founder and director of Life Changers, a multi-faceted ministry with a focus on the family and a mission to mend broken relationships and to provide the necessary tools for individuals to enjoy healthy family living.

Dr. Urnosky has received his masters of theology at Pacific College and doctor of ministry at Rocky Mount Baptist College in Colorado.

Can you imagine the impact on our community and our school if we had every parent committed at the same time to positive parenting? So, whether you have teens or toddlers, there will be something you can use.

This program is being coordinated by the Martin County Extension Home Economics Committee. Our thanks to the Stanton Booster Club for financial support. This is a part of Martin County's observance of National Family Month.

Council to consider light agenda

A light agenda is expected for Monday's meeting of the Stanton City Council, said Mayor Lester Baker.

Issues that may be on it, which is to be issued by today, include airport facilities for loading and cleaning of chemicals of crop dusters, job descriptions for city workers and park improvements.

"I think it should be pretty light," Baker said. "I can't think of that much that'll be on there."

German markets may prove profitable

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — U.S. farmers may find profitable new markets in eastern Germany because of a tremendous restructuring of that country's food-retailing practices, according to American trade experts.

"There is not only a greater selection of food products, but Western-style shopping centers and supermarkets may lead to a greater demand for convenience foods, frozen foods and fresh fruits from the United States," says a report in this month's issue of USDA's AgExporter magazine.

Plants and dairies that folded after reunification of East and West Germany in 1990 are being rebuilt, so eastern Germany should have one of the most modern food-processing industries in Europe in a few years, said Kenneth L. Murray, U.S. agricultural attache in Berlin.

"The change in eastern Germany's food retailing market has been dramatic since unification in late 1990," the report said. "Under the former communist government, virtually no Western high-value food products were allowed for import. Luxury goods, either imported or domestic, were in tight supply and therefore allocated to state-owned stores."

A strong shift toward large stores and shopping centers should bring opportunities for U.S. high-value food products, the report said.

In other changes, consumers are turning to fresh produce and away from high consumption of meat and fat as they become more aware of health considerations. Per capita consumption of fruit has become higher in the eastern than in the western part of the country, the report said.

"To U.S. exporters who realize what an opportunity they are being offered of getting into the expanding German market, the U.S. Agricultural Affairs Office in Berlin recommends that they come to the east and not just depend on contacts in the western part of Germany," it added.

Even raunchy speech worthy of protection

DEAR ABBY: I have no opinion about foul language on television because I no longer watch television. Withdrawal was painful, but after a year or two, it became a liberating experience.

As for foul language in movies and other media outlets: Art imitates life. There are rude and crude people among us, and a writer or director must have the freedom to depict them.

Moreover, the only alternative to foul language is censorship. Movies are rated; if foul language is a problem for someone, that person should see only G-rated movies. The ratings do provide a clue to the content; and reviews often go beyond this, with such a line as, "...rated R for violence and nudity."

Unrestricted freedom of speech is important. In George Orwell's "1984," he depicts a society where a new language was implemented specifically for the purpose of restricting the range of ideas that could be expressed, along with active programs to restrict thought by other means.

Movies, other media outlets, and especially rock and rap lyricists are testing the limits of freedom of speech daily.

While we may occasionally feel that freedom of speech is carried to extremes in the United States, we must realize also that there are some people trying to curtail our liberties, and we must stand up to them. — DOUGLAS CAMPBELL, CLINTONVILLE, OHIO

DEAR DOUGLAS: You make some excellent points. If you don't like what you hear on TV and radio, you can always turn them off — or walk out of a movie. However, freedom of speech is still protected under the Bill of Rights.

Last May, a reader complained in my column about foul language in some of our "best" movies and TV shows. I told her that I agreed, and asked my readers to let me know how they felt about it.

At last count, 67,783 readers felt many movies and TV shows today insult our values.

Perhaps the key word here should be "responsibility." Let's hear it from Phil Boatwright, who reviews films for a living:

DEAR ABBY: I'm afraid I'm a perfect example of why Americans put up with obscenity in films and on TV. I've had your address, but I have continued to put off writing. We all just get too busy!

I would encourage others of like mind to respond to Hollywood's disregard for morality. Profane language, exploitative sex and extreme violence seem to be in almost every film released these days. Surely it is the right of filmmakers to show such material, but Hollywood should exercise more responsibility.

Parents also need to show responsibility and concern. I review films for a living, and I can't tell you how often I see kids in PG-13 and R-rated films. Their heads are not only filled with crudity, but with cynicism, racism and a disregard for life.

If we are concerned about saving Mother Earth, shouldn't we also be concerned with nourishing the spirit of man? — PHIL BOATWRIGHT, THOUSAND OAKS.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Recognize your energy levels and where you need to pull back. Fatigue might be affecting your work more than you think. Don't let a flighty personality make you nervous. Take a positive stand and make an important call. Tonight: Do something just for you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Flirtation and creativity can take you a long way today, but do be flexible with a change in plans. Acknowledge another's views and understanding. A surprise follows you go with your gut instincts. Tonight: Let it all hang out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Better understanding and a willingness to take risks open you up to positive changes. Listen to your inner voice about a family matter. Tonight: Entertain, if you must, at home.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You initiate conversations that are way overdue. Don't kid yourself about what you want. Listen to your instincts regarding a boss or career decision. Don't lose sight of your goals. Tonight: Celebrate with friends.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use caution with spending. You know what is necessary for your well-being. A friend surprises you. Be more willing to take a risk and move in a new direction. Be open to someone different from the norm. Tonight: Treat a friend to a movie.
