Honoring those who died

Residents remember veterans' sacrifice

Ceremonial signs were unveiled as the street in front of the Veterans Administration Medical Center is renamed. Present are Mayor Tim Blackshear, left, VAMC Director Conrad Alexander, center standing, and World War I veteran John Collins, seated.

Record numbers of area residents turned out to honor those who served in the U.S. Armed Forces during Veterans Day ceremonies at the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

About 400 people from around the Permian Basin were in attendance as an Honor Guard from Goodfellow Air Force Base fired the ceremonial 21-gun salute.

Keynote speaker was Lt. Gen. (Ret) Murphy A. Chesney Jr. MD., former surgeon general of the U.S. Air Force and current chief of staff of the Kerrville VAMC.

Chesney chronicled the history of U.S. wars, from the war of independence to Desert Storm. Most of the lives lost in the war of independence were due to malnutrition and disease, whereas deaths in Desert Storm resulted from offensive action and accidents.

Present at the ceremony was a contingent of 100 boys from Goliad Middle School. The Cavaliers, as they are called, are a group of scholastic achievers, active in civic activities, said Roland Atkins, assistant principal at Goliad Middle School.

Many of these students participated in an essay contest, "What the Flag Means to Me." Out of 50 essays, first place went to Drew McKimney, second place to Monica Villarreal and third place to David Gunn.

McKimney read his essay to the crowd attending the VAMC ceremonies.

Mayor Tim Blackshear made a proclamation regarding the service of veterans and presented ceremonial signs, renaming the street in front of VAMC as Veterans Boulevard.

Chesney placed a wreath honoring those who gave their lives in the service of the country. Assisting him was Lora Bell Tom, president of the Big Spring chapter of American Gold Star Mothers, an organization of women who have lost sons or daughters to war.

In a place of honor was World War I veteran John Collins, from the VAMC. Colins was present as a ceremonial representative of all veterans, said Fred Cox, VAMC president of volunteer services.

From the VAMC, most participants including Blackshear and Chesney moved to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial for a second ceremony.

The honor guard from Goodfellow performed a 21-gun salute and taps at both ceremonies.

Wanted: Volunteers to fill city boards, commissions

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Big Spring city government needs you!

Too few, proud, hard working citizens can be found to serve on city boards and commissions, said City Manager Lanny Lambert. Every month Big Spring City Council grapples with trying to fill expired positions.

"We think there's a lot of people that want to serve but just haven't been asked," Lambert said.

Council members apparently ran dry on friends and contacts to serve on the city's 18 citizen advisory boards and commissions, Lambert joked. At least five people are needed now to fill soon to be vacant positions on three of the most important: Planning and Zoning Commission, Big Spring Traffic Commission and Zoning Board of Adjustment.

"We're desperately needing people," Lambert said. "This is one way for you to get involved in the city of Big Spring without having to run for office."

Dedication typically involves several hours a month to provide recommendations to the council. "The city council generally takes their recommendations," Lambert said.

"This is truly democratic government. This is citizenry involved in the day to day decisions of the city government," he said. "The (planning and zoning) generally makes a lot of important decisions."

Why reluctance to serve by some?

"Because these are probably unpaid, thankless jobs," Lambert said.

Those wanting to serve should contact Lambert or his secretary at 263-8311 or mail in their name, address and board or commission they're interested in to Lambert at P.O. Box 3190, 79721-3190.

Other boards and commissions that citizens serve on:

Parks and Recreation Board, Board of Adjustment and Appeals, Electrical Board, Plumbing Board of Adjustments and Appeals, Colorado River Municipal Water District Board of Directors;

Crime Stoppers Inc., Police Academy Advisory Board, Airport Zoning Board of Adjustments, Airport Zoning Commission, Auditorium Committee, Big Spring Citizen's Advisory Board;

Howard County 911 Emergency District Board, Moore Development for Big Spring Inc. Board, Jail Alternatives Committee.

Regular reappointed terms are one to four year terms.

First ADA lawsuits filed

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — A wheelchair-bound man has filed lawsuits against five Austin businesses in what officials believe are the first local lawsuits based on accessibility guarantees in the Americans with Disabilities Act.

The lawsuits were filed against Blockbuster Video, Luby's Cafeteria, an Eckerd drugstore, a Coco's restaurant and Miller Blueprint Co. by Chuck Weir of San Antonio.

The lawsuits say people with physical disabilities are being denied access to doorways, restrooms, pay telephones or parking spaces at the businesses.

Weir, who was paralyzed in a diving accident in 1982, filed the lawsuits last week in Travis County state district court in an effort to force the businesses to renovate.

"Because most of the companies in this country never felt a moral obligation to make their businesses accessible to the disabled, the U.S. Congress provided them with a legal obligation," by passing the disability law in 1990, Weir said. "Many of these same companies have chosen to ignore that legal obligation."

"We feel it is necessary to demonstrate to them there are consequences for their refusal to follow the law, and that is the purpose in filing these lawsuits," said Weir, who is an assistant city attorney in San Antonio.

The federal disability law required businesses with more than 25 employees to make their services accessible to people with disabilities by Jan. 26, 1992. Businesses with 10 or fewer employees must become accessible by Jan. 26, 1993.

All private companies, including places of lodging, eating or drinking, arts and entertainment places, sales and rental services, places of public gathering and recreational and educational facilities, must comply.

"The ADA is a major civil rights act intended to open the doors that have been closed to disabled persons in the past," said Ginny Agnew of Austin, Weir's lawyer. "The doors need to be opened literally and figuratively to persons with disabilities, and that's the goal of these lawsuits."

Officials at Luby's, Blockbuster Videos and Coco's restaurants said they had not seen the lawsuits and declined to comment, the Austin American-Statesman reported today.

Bob Miller Jr., manager of Miller Blueprint office supply and graphics store, said his store has just finished renovation plans.

He said the store missed the January deadline because "we've been trying to gather information on how to do it properly and get it done kind of all at once."

Gene Ormond, public relations director for the Jack Eckerd Corp. in Clearwater, Fla., said the company has "done a complete study of our 1,700 locations in 13 states to see which locations comply with the ADA guidelines."

If changes are required at the Eckerd's in Austin, they will be made during the next scheduled renovation there, Ormond said.

Agnew and Weir said they have no plans to pursue discovery or engage in other legal steps if the five companies agree to make necessary modifications and present a reasonable work schedule.

"We want to see the buildings changed," Agnew said.

Weir said he and Agnew are preparing "a stack of lawsuits" against other Austin and San Antonio businesses that are inaccessible.

"We're going after not just Mom and Pop (companies)," Weir said. "We are directing our energy toward the larger commercial operations at this time because we feel these companies have the financial resources to come into compliance with the ADA and they cater to more customers."

Mayor's support of integration leads to KKK petition to oust her

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

VIDOR — A Ku Klux Klan leader says he has launched a petition drive to oust Vidor Mayor Ruth Woods because of her support for the integration of a local housing complex.

Grand Dragon Charles Lee of the White Camelia Knights of the KKK said Wednesday his group has recruited 50 registered voters from Vidor to conduct the petition drive.

The workers must get at least 300 signatures on the recall petitions by Dec. 14 in order to force a recall election.

Woods, who won election as the city's first woman mayor in May 1991, declined comment on the recall effort Wednesday, the Beaumont Enterprise Journal reported today.

"We are charging in the recall petition that the mayor of the city is not representing the interest of the majority of the white residents," Lee said. "Vidor is an all-white city and the residents in Vidor who want her out think she's representing non-white interests."

Woods has vowed the federally mandated desegregation of an all-white local housing complex will happen despite opposition from several sects of the KKK, which are competing for new members in Vidor.

Lee, whose group is based in Cleveland, said Vidor voters asked him to help organize the petition drive.

The Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, a Waco-based group, plans to conduct a rally at 2 p.m. Saturday near Vidor.

Son kills his father to obtain drug money

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A Houston man needed a fix so badly that he killed his father in order to get money to buy drugs, police say.

Ted Earl Tompkins, 42, was charged Wednesday with capital murder in the death of his father, Jack Tompkins, 79.

The elder Tompkins was found seated in his easy chair on Saturday, apparently two days after he was slain.

Homicide Sgt. Glen Matthews said that the younger Tompkins is a heroin and crack cocaine addict with a four-page history of drug and theft arrests.

"He (Ted Tompkins) needed a fix," Matthews said. "It's cold-blooded, whether he just lost it or it was intentional."

"Drugs do funny things to people. I don't know how they think when they get that way."

Matthews said that after the killing, Ted Tompkins was seen trying to sell a color television, a microwave oven and a .22-caliber rifle taken from his father's house. The elder Tompkins died of a single wound to the back of his head from a blunt object, police said. His wallet had been emptied and was placed on his face.

Matthews said he didn't know how much money had been taken from the man's wallet. Neither the stolen weapon nor the rest of the molder items have been found, he said.

The homicide officer said Ted Tompkins had been released from prison a few months ago, and since then had stayed "under bridges or with relatives when they would let him."

Neighbors said they had seen a decline in his life.

"He kind of got crossed up in his life and went to jail a bunch of times," neighbor Leslie Vaughan said. "Every so often, he'd be getting out or going back in."

The elder Tompkins had lived in the same house for more than 50 years, Vaughan said.

"He was a nice old man," Vaughan said.

Park closed to protect art

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL PASO — In an effort to protect its ancient rock art from vandalism by modern graffiti artists, officials say they have closed Hueco Tanks State Park for about two weeks.

Park Superintendent Darrel Rhyme said Wednesday that the park will be closed until at least Nov. 25 to give officials time to figure out how to stop the spray-painting that's plaguing the park's ancient pictographs.

"The vandalism is out of hand. We had to do something drastic," Rhyme said. "We'd love to keep the park open to the public, but when the public doesn't take care of it, our foremost duty is to protect and preserve the park."

Park employees discovered some serious vandalism incidents about a month ago.

At one site, Cave Kiva, vandals spray-painted a marijuana leaf over part of a well-known primitive drawing.

Beating death underlines problems facing Detroit Police Department

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — At the intersection of Warren and 23rd, where empty lots and boarded buildings still bear witness to the riots of the 1960s, there's a new focal point: the police violence of the 1990s.

On a wall adorned by flowers is a plastic-covered picture of Malice Green, a 35-year-old man beaten to death by police last week.

It has become a gathering point for neighborhood residents who come to see the spot where Green died, to see where gravel has been spread to hide the blood stains.

"I can't believe this is happening in my city," Carrie Washington, a mother of three grown children, said in frustration. "The police used to be our friends."

The death of the black motorist at the hands of a racially mixed group of police has roiled this city, noted for its integrated, neighborhood-based policing.

The case resounds with disquieting echoes of the Rodney King case. But those familiar with Detroit's police say Malice Green's death points to something else: an undermanned force lacking the money or leadership to weed out "thumpers," the violent cops of both races.

Green, an unemployed father of five, died from head injuries in a fracas Thursday with police.

While no official details have been released, witnesses say the confrontation began as Green dropped off a friend near a boarded-up hair salon suspected to be a crack house.

Two plainclothes officers in a "power unit," an unmarked car assigned to high crime areas, confronted Green. Witnesses said police began beating him when he refused to drop something in his hand, identified variously as a wallet, a piece of paper or drugs.

Other officers arrived. Lee Hardy, an emergency medical technician flagged down by police, told The Detroit News he saw four white officers kick Green in the chest and beat his head, arms and hands with a flashlight.

Six white officers and a black supervisor were suspended. Mayor Coleman Young and Police Chief Stanley Knox, both black, decried Green's death — Young going as far as to call it murder.

Residents of Green's neighborhood huddled under umbrellas and sheltered flickering candles in their hands Tuesday night during a vigil at the death scene.

"I'm surprised they went that far," Washington said of the police. "They used to come to the house and tell us about our kids. They used to run track with them."

But others talked of mounting police harassment by black and white officers — in particular white plainclothes officers Larry Nevers and Walter Budzyn.

Nevers, 52, was a neighborhood fixture for the past two decades. Local residents called him "Star-sky," after the ultra-violent television cop.

Budzyn, 42, was named an Officer of the Year by his union in 1990, for making 31 arrests and recovering six stolen cars.

But the two officers had other records: 25 citizen complaints and five lawsuits.

On Saturday, Nevers told the Detroit Free Press, "I must have done something wrong. A guy died," but added, "nobody knows what it's like out there."

Budzyn has declined to comment.

While Detroit has historically paid out large amounts of settlements in police brutality suits, the department also has been praised for cleaning a bad image of the early 1970s. It was then a special unit, known as STRESS — Stop The Robberies, Enjoy Safe Streets — was involved in the deaths of 20 people. Nevers was a member of the unit.

Young abolished STRESS and pushed minority hiring. In 1974, 18 percent of the police were black; today 58 percent are in a city that's three-quarters black.

Trial of former East German leader for manslaughter begins

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BERLIN — Facing relatives of East Germans killed while trying to flee his repressive regime, former Communist leader Erich Honecker and five of his top lieutenants went on trial for manslaughter today.

The proceedings in a dark, cramped Berlin courtroom are considered Germany's most important criminal case since the Nuremberg war crimes trials.

Honecker is 80 and suffers from liver cancer. But for many Germans, his trial is a long-awaited chance to bring to justice a regime that ruled by terror until collapsing in 1989 in peaceful revolution.

The proceedings lasted just 45 minutes today before being recessed until Monday. The recess apparently was meant to give court-appointed doctors time to examine former East German Premier Willi Stoph, who did not show up.

The 78-year-old Stoph had suffered heart problems the night before, his lawyer said. Prosecutors were also to consider a request by another co-defendant, former secret police chief Erich Mielke.

Mielke, 84, is seeking to have his trial separated from the others.

Honecker is accused in the killings of 13 people who tried to escape to West Germany. Nine of the victims were killed by mines and booby traps at the border. Four were shot at the Berlin Wall.

The prosecution says the Communist leadership gave the shoot-to-kill orders and ordered the installation of deadly border devices.

The defense intends to attack the validity of the proceedings, arguing that the Soviets forced Honecker to use the guns and land mines. The team may call former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev as a witness.

The prosecution denies the trial is politically motivated. It says the killings were crimes even under East German law.

Dressed in a natty blue suit and maroon tie, Honecker chatted calmly with his lawyer before the start of the trial. Mielke looked glum.

Shortly before the trial, about two dozen opponents of the trial stood outside the 86-year-old courthouse in Berlin's Moabit district.

"Freedom for Erich Honecker and Erich Mielke," one woman in a small group of demonstrators shouted into a megaphone. A few people who supported the trial were also on hand, but the demonstrators were far outnumbered by journalists.

Also on trial are former Defense Minister Heinz Kessler, 72; Hans Albrecht, 72, once a party chief in Suhl; and Deputy Defense Minister Fritz Streletz, 66. All are charged with manslaughter.

Only Honecker, Mielke and Stoph are charged in all 13 cases. It was not immediately clear what would happen to the case against Stoph.

Guarding against possible outbursts from spectators, authorities barred any objects that could be hurled at Honecker.

Among those named as victims is Chris Gueffroy, fatally shot at the wall at age 20 in February 1989 — the wall's final victim.

Claims for jobless benefits drop in October

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans filing new claims for jobless benefits fell by 5,000 in late October to the lowest level in more than two years, the government reported today.

The Labor Department said first-time applications for unemployment insurance totaled 355,000 during the week ended Oct. 31, down from 360,000 during the previous week.

It was the lowest since claims totaled 354,000 during the week ended Aug. 4, 1990, at the beginning of the recession. Claims had reached a recession high of 530,000 during the week ended March 23, 1991.

The number of weekly applications has remained below 400,000 since it fell from 424,000 to 399,000 during the week ended Sept. 26.

Many analysts believe the unemployment rate should improve if claims remain below 400,000. The rate fell for the fourth consecutive month in October, hitting a six-month low of 7.4 percent.

Others analysts, however, contend the economy is too weak to sustain any substantial improvement in the near future. They contend the economy would have to grow faster than the 2.7 percent annual rate in the third quarter to generate new jobs.

Analysts also note that the numbers are being held down artificially by claimants using a special emergency unemployment program that is not included in the overall total.

The report said 51 states and territories had reported 20,869 new claims during the week ended Oct. 31, down from 23,497 the previous week and the lowest since 20,754 applications were filed during the week ended Sept. 25.

The emergency program numbers, unlike the national figures, are not seasonally adjusted.

The four-week moving average was 364,500 during the period ended Oct. 31, down from 371,500 a week earlier. It was the lowest since the average reached 356,000 during the four weeks ended July 14, 1990.

Twenty-nine states and territories reported decreases in weekly claims, while 24 registered increases.

School choice wants rematch

The National Education Association, which enjoys the words "school choice" about like Count Dracula enjoys the peal of church bells, lavished at least $135,800 on the Bill Clinton campaign and even furloughed 100 Washington staffers to help the Clinton-Gore ticket. Through 1996, then, it's probably up to the states to push school choice. May they fare better than Colorado.

Choice advocates there hoped that the Centennial State would become the nation's first to give vouchers to parents for use in either public or private schools. But on Election Day the ballot initiative went down by a 2-1 margin. In part, the proposal suffered from association with George Bush, who collected just 36 percent of the state vote. But the heavier blow was a shameless fear campaign.

Coloradans who wanted to "destroy" public education should vote for the choice measure, a ubiquitous TV ad archly advised, because it would "rob $85 million from hard-working middle-class families in Colorado and give it to the rich and wealthy to send their children to expensive private schools which discriminate against other children."

"Rich and wealthy"? "Discriminate"? A September Gallup poll found that 85 percent of blacks and Hispanics favor full school choice — no shock, since their children often attend the most wretched of America's public schools.

No On Vouchers, the outfit behind the ad, had as much to do with the grass roots as Astroturf. Among its top contributors, notes John Andrews of Colorado's Independence Institute, were the national NEA and its Colorado affiliate. No On Vouchers' honcho, Bill Comer, normally heads the NEA's regional office in Denver. Simply put, the teachers' union pulled no punches to defend its monopoly in public education.

Give it round one. But in 1994 school-choice proponents will fight on in California and again in Colorado. "The idea takes some getting used to," admits Andrews. "The electorate has been conditioned to believe that K-12 services should be provided by government." Yet Coloradans this year approved a strict tax-capping initiative that they had twice rejected. The NEA must be horrified to know that people can be educated.

Jay's guest tonight won't be hopeful

Because this was the first full-blown talk-show political campaign, many traditional journalists fear that they have become irrelevant.

For much of the campaign, they were stuck in the cheap seats, scribbling notes while the candidates chatted with Larry King, Arsenio Hall, Phil Donahue, Jay Leno, Rush Limbaugh and other TV and radio stars.

Even the network heavies — Dan, Sam, David and Professor Will — frequently found themselves being bypassed. Last Sunday night, for example, when was President Bush? With Ted or somebody from the McGuffey Group?

No, he was hooked up to the "George Michael Sports Machine," a high-tech, slam-bam, score-a-second sports show hosted by a hyper sports freak. There was the President of the United States, leader of the free world, squeezed between the day's pigskin highlights and auto race crashes.

So now, many newspaper and network drudges are asking themselves and each other: "Is this the end of us? Are we an endangered species? Will politicians snub us in favor of Larry, Phil, Arsenio and all the local disc jockeys and talk show babblers?"

Well, I for one deeply and sincerely hope so. Let the talk shows have them all: presidents, governors, congressmen, mayors, all the way down to sewer commissioners and weed inspectors. Let Larry, Phil, Arsenio and the rest of them overdose on visions of the future, legislative agenda, economic agenda, foreign policy, domestic policy, and babble about the infrastructure, the outfrustration and the inbetweenfrustration.

Does anyone really believe that listening to politicians is fun stuff? In earlier times, maybe; before they became processed, packaged and squirted full of additives by their media consultants, polling advisers, position shapers and spin specialists.

There used to be politicians who were lovable rogues, unafraid to express an opinion that was actually their own. Big-city cigar chompers, sly Southern stump jumpers. Cut a deal, cut the cards, but don't cut off the bar service until the last laugh.

But now? Turn on C-SPAN. Go ahead, do it right now. See? I challenge you to stay awake for more than 15 minutes.

I will gladly make a deal with Larry King right now. You interview Sen. Carol Moseley Braun about how she made political history. Let me interview Michelle Pfeiffer about how she makes anything: tea, hot chocolate, whoopee.

Go on, Larry, Phil, Arsenio, sit there and have a lively chat with Al Gore about the plight of the spotted owl, ozone holes, or the snail darter. I will swap you five Al Gore interviews for one wild and crazy conversation with Robin Williams. Or even a bit of smutty talk with Zsa Zsa.

Yes, there was a certain novelty value to all the talk-show campaigning. Never before have we seen a presidential candidate tout a sax for an Arsenio. And it did bring the candidates closer to the voters than they would be if they just sat there being gnawed up by Sam Donaldson and nipped by Professor Will.

But the campaign is over. Arsenio isn't likely to sit there and say: "Well, dude, why don't you tell us all about the progress your transitional team is making? Is everything transitionalizing OK?"

And a few months from now, Larry King's phone will ring and his producer will say: "Sen. Dole is on the phone."

"What does he want?" "Says he wants to come on and talk about the increase in inheritance taxes."

"Tell him I left for the day. Then call Donald Trump and ask him if he wants to come on to talk about whether this is finally it for him and Marla. Or is it Melba? And see if Melba or Marla wants to come on, too, and scratch eyes."

"Dan Quayle called. Wants to talk about the revitalization of the Republican Party."

"Tell him to try Limbaugh. Then get me the author of that best-selling book: 'Be Good to Your Prostate and Your Prostate Will Be Good To You.'"

As for Bill Clinton, once he's in the White House, we'll see how often he goes on shows that take phone calls from a live audience. It's one thing to say what you plan on doing, it is something else to come up with an answer when a caller says:

"Hey, the company I work for just gave me two weeks' severance and headed for Mexico. Now that you're president, what the hell are you going to do about it?"

"Ah feel yo pain" isn't going to cut it.

No, now that the campaign is over, show biz will return to show biz, and we'll be stuck with Gov. Drone, Sen. Biah and Secretary Snore.

As Henry Youngman might put it: "Take my candidate — please!"

Maturity differs for all

When are you mature? Is it when you learn to pay all your bills on time? Or, is it when you put away childish things? I suppose it really is more of a personal decision, somewhat based on how people perceive you.

But, I heard the funniest explanation of how someone knew they were maturing recently — he had put away rock-n-roll for country and western music.

I thought I was going to die laughing!!! Then I thought my brain was going to twist into knots trying to figure the logic behind that statement.

On the face of it, older people like country and western music and young ones enjoy loud, raucous rock-in-roll.

My Dad is a die-hard country fan, hates rock to death. In fact, he will not even admit there is one good rock song ever written.

But, my brother enjoyed country when he was a teen and he was anything but mature at that time, trust me on this. Dad was so happy and proud of his son listening to country music.

On the other hand, country music makes my Mother cry and me nauseous for the most part.

But, today, more young people are listening to country than before, so even the face of country music has changed.

So is listening to country music a sign a maturity? I still am not convinced. I think it only means your eardrums are tired of the louder types of rock-n-roll.

Especially when it comes to this guy. Sometimes I wonder if he fully grasps the meaning of the word mature.

Now I admit, neither do I but I consider myself a fairly mature person. Note I used the word fairly.

I have learned to take responsibility for my own mistakes, pay my bills on time, do my job and make sure that my cat has a roof over his head and plenty to eat.

I like rock-n-roll and I don't think that makes me any less mature than someone who listens to country and western music.

So, what is mature? I believe it is a state of mind. I am mature enough to make sure I keep my job and have a place to live but still take time out to do something off-the-wall.

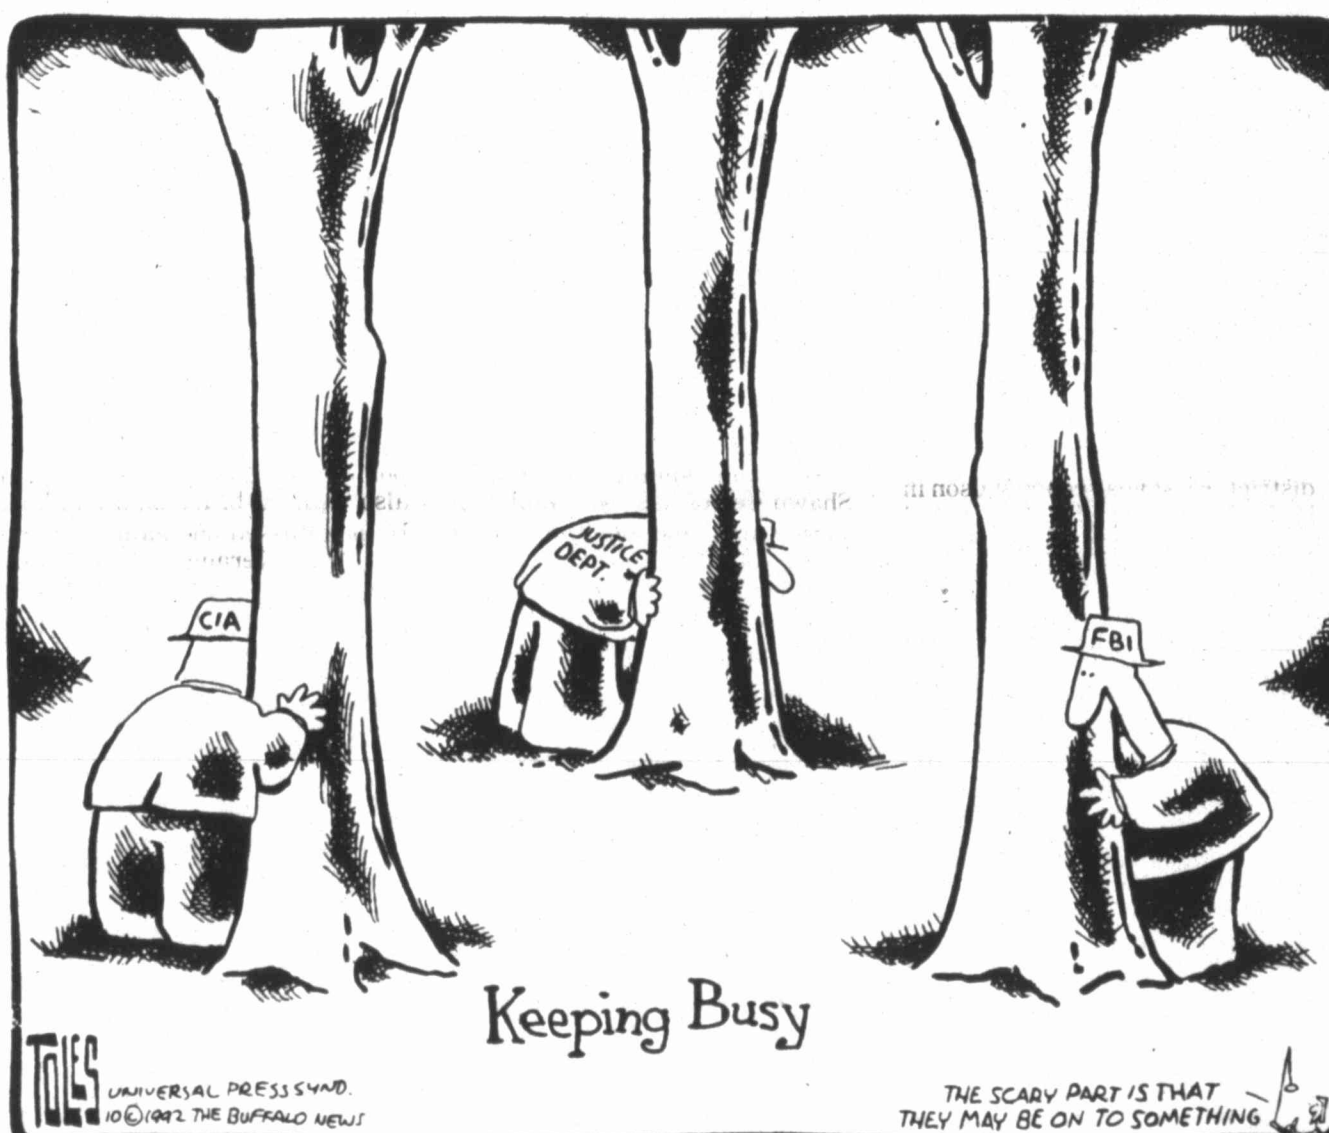

It is just knowing where and when to be off-the-wall that I really believe shows maturity.

The Writer's Art

Lessons from the trash pile

Writers, if they would learn to be better writers, must constantly read what other writers have written. They should read classic works, of course, but they should read some trash also. It cultivates the mind.

Toward that end, on a vacation last month, I fell to reading "Love & Desire & Hate" by Joan Collins. It was an instructive experience. The sex scenes were a bore, the characters were paper dolls, and the author's "research," if so it may be described, kept showing like an errant slip.

It occurred to me, after a while, that to identify the literary offenses of Collins, it was not necessary to read the whole work. It would suffice to read every 10th page only.

On Page 20, we learn that one gentleman learned the pinging trade "at his father's knee." On Page 30, Nazi dogs "strain at their leashes." On Page 50, the male lead starts down a "primrose path." On Page 60, palms are greased. On Page 70, the heroine hopes against hope. On Page 80, a maitre d'hotel greets a British peer "like a long-lost brother." On Page 90, unexpected news throws the peer "into a tizzy." The author's originality overwhelms the reader.

I digress long enough to note that while in London, Ines, the head whore-lady, makes friends with another whore-lady, name of Stella. We perceive that Stella is a cockney. This is because she sometimes says "an" instead of "and." She says "and" on pages 70 and 73, and "an" on pages 77 and 78. No reason is advanced for this orthography, but Stella has a heart of gold.

Onward! Nikolas scans a dog-eared letter. Umberto's house is silent as a tomb. Nicky reads with a heavy heart. Phoebe loses no sleep about her failure to conceive. Phoebe's days as Mrs. Julian Brooks could really be numbered. We are up to Page 170. Dominique stops dead in her tracks. Food in postwar Paris is in short supply. Phoebe could not care less about her husband's career. Her own ambitions were coming into full flower.

On Page 200, shops in Rome were a treasure trove. By not making films in America, Julian had missed the boat. Phoebe turned a blind eye. Shirley had her audience in the palm of her hand. The scene shifts to Hollywood. Errol Flynn had his audience in stitches.

As the plot thickens, the curious reader is caught in a maelstrom. Never mind the random research! On Page 238, one finds a fly in the ointment. On Page 239, Agatha feels like a fish out of water. It is a striking simile. They cannot pull the wool over Agatha's eyes. She is beside herself with anticipation. At other times, she is in a fever of anticipation. She licks her lips in anticipation.

Area six-man teams rematched in playoff

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Klondike Cougars coach Ed Wilson is hoping his team's second time around against the Borden County Coyotes will be better than the first.

The Cougars, runnerup in District 5 six-man, will battle District 6 six-man champion Borden County in a bi-district football playoff Friday night at 7:30 in Lamesa.

The two teams are no strangers to each other, in more ways than one. They played each other the fifth week of the season at Borden County, and the Coyotes waltzed away with a 64-18 victory. The game was called in the third quarter because of the 45-point rule.

Another factor that makes the teams familiar with each other is the closeness of the communities, which are about 40 miles apart. Many of the families in the two school systems live even closer together than that. Borden County coach Bobby Avery calls it a good, healthy rivalry.

Both coaches call the first meeting of the two teams a blowout. "I remember they ran all over us," said Wilson. "They had no problems with their passing attack or running attack. We were very down that night. We were on our heels all night."

Avery said the game stands as one of the turning points for the Coyotes' season. "We jumped on them quick and never let up," he said of his 9-1 team. "That kind of helped turn our ballclub into a playoff contending team. It was two weeks after the Wellman game (Borden County's only loss), then we played Loop and then we played Klondike, which was a little better than Loop. At the time, we didn't know if we could beat them."

The Cougars surprised everyone with their runnerup berth in the district. First year coach Wilson inherited a 1-8, youthful team with only three seniors. He has molded the Cougars into a 6-4 squad.

He says a big factor in the team's success came in the second district game against defending league champion Sands. "That was the turning point. We were ahead but weren't in total control," said Wilson. "The kids found out they could play with people. All it is believing. Once they started believing, they started doing things as a team. Since we played them (Borden County) we have improved quite a bit. The kids have matured quite a bit."

But there's still the question of shutting down the Clint Wills-led Borden County offense that has 45-point ruled five opponents this year. Wills has gained 2,105 yards in 179 carries while scoring 37 touchdowns. He's also completed 22 of 40 passes for 432 yards and seven touchdowns. Then there's Kurt Jones and John Paul Harris, who've combined for 651 yards rushing, 439 yards receiving and 18 touchdowns.

"We'll have to play 'stop Clint Wills' and our defense will have to play way over its heads," said Wilson. "That (Wills) is what got them there and it's not a bad idea to go with what got you there."

Avery said he is really impressed with the play of Klondike freshman quarterback Tanner Etheredge, who's completed 47 percent of his Fort Stockton is one of those football teams that piles up a lot of yardage but not a lot of points or wins. The Panthers run and shoot offense leads District 3-4A in passing, their quarterback has more completions and yardage than any other district thrower, and they have 3-4A's second leading ground-gainer. But Fort Stockton is 3-6 (0-5 in district) and hasn't won a game since Sept. 25.

Big Spring coach Dwight Butler hopes that trend of futility continues for one more week when his Steers end their 1992 season at home Friday against the Panthers.

"We'd hate to be the one's that they have over 300 yards against and start scoring too," says Butler, whose Steers come into the contest at 4-4-1 overall and 2-2-1 in district. "They're the best offense we've face since (district-leading) Sweetwater, without a doubt."

Fort Stockton first-year coach Dave Drummond is well aware of his team's tendency to move the ball without changing numbers on the scoreboard.

"If you don't get it in the end zone statistics don't make any difference," Drummond said. "The biggest problem we've had to overcome (offensively) is inconsistency."

But last week against San Angelo Lake View the Panthers turned in more than just an inconsistent performance. In what has to be the biggest upset of the year in district play, Fort Stockton gave Lake View its first district win since 1989 with a 24-12 loss. Lake View had managed only three total first downs in two games previous to the Fort Stockton win. They amassed 18 first downs versus the Panthers and 366 total yards.

"In 20 years of coaching last Friday night was the most disappointing loss I've ever been associated with," Drummond said. "I don't have any answer for why we played with no intensity. (We were) flat as a flitter."

The Steers can't expect the same flat play from the Panthers Friday. Stockton senior quarterback Shawn Beeles has 106 completions, 1,486 yards and eight touchdown passes this year. The two-year starter and '92 second-team all-district player has also run for four TDs and can scramble.

Last year Beeles ran the wishbone at Fort Stockton. He has taken a quantum leap in football technique and philosophy this season with the run and shoot. "I brought in a system of throwing the ball he was not used to," Drummond says. "He had an awful lot to learn and I think he's done a good job."

The Panthers can also gain yardage on the ground. Stockton tailback Robert Arias trails only Sweetwater's Chris Hines in District 3-4A rushing yards with 789.

But Stockton has five of the top nine receivers in yardage in the district and passes about 65 percent of the time.

As could be expected, the Steers have spent more time than usual on pass coverage in this week's workouts. They will try to confuse the Panthers' with different coverage schemes and get pressure on the quarterback with only four or five players, Butler says.

"You got to make sure you understand the concept of what they're trying to do," warns the Big Spring head coach.

Butler is confident his offense will move the ball against the Panthers. Fort Stockton's defense has to be particularly suspect after the loss to Lake View.

"One of the keys for us is we need to find a way to establish long drives to try to keep the ball away from their offense," Butler says.

The Steers entered the season with playoff hopes, so the year has been a disappointing one. Friday's game will determine whether Big Spring finishes with a winning record, and Butler is counting heavily on the won-loss record for team incentive.

"I try to explain to these guys that six to eight months from now nobody will remember what all happened (this season), they'll just look at the record," Butler says.

NOTES: Senior defensive linemen Richard Hain and Monty Lindsey are this year's ironmen for the Steers. Lindsey has a sprained ankle, a sprained left knee and wears a brace on his sore right knee but has missed only one game. Last week he broke his hand in practice before playing against Pecos. Hain has suffered a hip pointer, a dislocated shoulder and also wears a brace on a bad knee. He has missed one game. "If they were just average kids they would have been out a long time ago," Butler says. Opponents have scored three touchdowns against the Steers defense in the last three games. Junior linebacker Torbin Lancaster leads the team in quarterback sacks with five.

Maddux wins NL Cy Young

NEW YORK — Greg Maddux, already an attractive free agent, increased his value when he outdueled Atlanta's Tom Glavine for the NL Cy Young Award.

Maddux, 20-11 with a 2.18 ERA for Chicago, received 20 of the 24 first-place votes from a panel of the Baseball Writers' Association of America made up of two writers in each league city. He was second on the remaining four ballots and finished with 112 points.

Glavine, trying to become the NL's first repeat winner since Sandy Koufax in 1966, was 20-8 with a 2.76 ERA. He got the remaining four first-place votes and finished second with 78 points.

Staubach airs views on Ditka, Aikman

TULSA — Think Mike Ditka is a sideline powder keg now? You should have seen the Chicago Bears coach in his playing days, former teammate Roger Staubach says.

"You think Mike is emotional now — he's mellow compared to when he played with us," Staubach said Wednesday in Tulsa. "When he got mad, his cheeks would be flaring."

Staubach, a keynote speaker at the Oklahoma Hospital Association's annual convention, recounted a Dallas Cowboys players' meeting in 1971 after a disappointing 4-3 start. Ditka was a tight end. Ditka personally threatened any player he didn't think was playing passionately enough. Staubach said the play worked.

"You could feel the whole room begin to bond. We won the next game and went on to win the Super Bowl," Staubach said.

"My philosophy was to have a tough mind but a soft heart. Mike is just more emotional than me off the field. We were the same on the field."

Staubach heaped praise on Troy Aikman, saying he likes Aikman's "quiet leadership. He can make big plays, and he's going to get better."

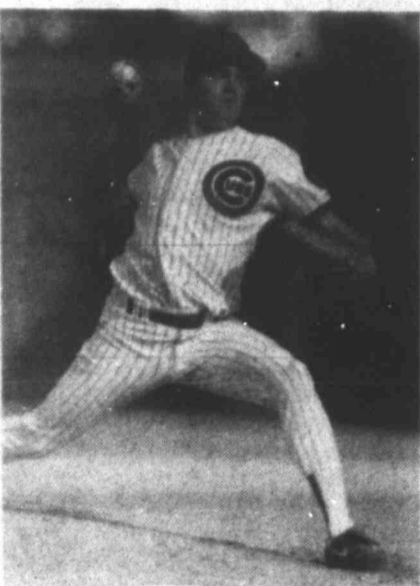

"It's such an exciting time for the Cowboys, I would like to experience what they are experiencing. I would kind of like to be Troy Aikman. The '70s were such a fun time for us. I think Troy and the Cowboys are going to experience the same thing."

Mavericks fall to 0-3

DALLAS — Blue Edwards led a third-quarter surge with 14 of his career-high 31 points Wednesday night, lifting the Milwaukee Bucks to a 124-116 victory over the winless Dallas Mavericks.

Edwards converted five of six third-quarter shots as the Bucks won for the third time in four games. He finished 12 for 19 from the field. Derek Harper scored 21 points for the Mavericks, who have yet to win in three starts.

Edwards, acquired from Utah during the summer, matched his previous career high with 30 points on Saturday.

Brian Howard finished with a career-high 18 points for Dallas and Eric Murdock scored 16 points for Milwaukee.

Hornets, Mourning reach agreement

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Charlotte reached a contract agreement with No. 2 draft pick Alonzo Mourning, but will apparently have to make a trade to get him signed, team owner George Shinn said.

Shinn would not reveal financial details of the former Georgetown center's multiyear contract. The Charlotte Observer reported that a source close to the negotiations said Mourning would receive "less than $2.5" million in first-year salary.

Aggies on defensive vs. Houston

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum wants his No. 4 ranked Aggies to have a clear picture of their Houston Cougar foes.

"The team that we're playing Thursday night is not the team that played Southern Methodist in O'Ney Stadium," Slocum said. "That's a big time team that will be highly motivated to play us."

The Cougars (3-5) were humbled

"I think some of the novelty has worn off," Slocum said. "In the early days of the wishbone, they ripped people pretty good because no one had seen it. It was the same with the run-and-shoot. People tried some things that weren't very good."

Now the balance is returning as defenses have thrown out what doesn't work.

"At some point it comes back to who has the best talent," Slocum said.

The Aggies defeated Louisville 40-18 on Saturday for their 18th consecutive regular season victory.

They are trying to repeat as SWC champions to earn another trip to the Cotton Bowl. The Aggies beat Louisville 40-18 at Kyle Field Saturday, stretching their home record to 18-0-1 since a loss to Arkansas in 1989.

The Cougars usually see opposing defenses flood the field with defensive backs, trying to cover all the passing lanes of the offenses' four wide receivers.

The Aggies have found success by leaving their linebackers intact to rush the passer.

"When we play Houston, its like a contest to see who can get to the quarterback first," linebacker Marcus Buckley said. "First one to the quarterback wins."

"There was a point in the Louisville game where I said to myself that we would win the game unless something drastic happens," Slocum said. "You never reach that point against Houston."

The Cougars have a history of starting slow and finishing fast. Houston has been outscored 168-111 in the first half of their eight games this season. The problem has been keeping them down.

They trailed Texas Christian 21-7 in the first half and eventually won the game 49-46. Houston's 41-18 loss to Southern Methodist last week doesn't console Slocum.

The Aggies offense still centers around its running attack, fueled by Greg Hill, who had a season high 142 yards against Louisville.

He's scored 11 touchdowns in the last seven games and has six 100-yard games this season.

True freshman Corey Pullig made his first collegiate start a successful one against Louisville and will start against the Cougars instead of sophomore Jeff Granger, who suffered a concussion two weeks ago against SMU.

The Cougars are trying to regroup after losing to the Mustangs, who were embarrassed by Houston 95-21 in 1989.

Jimmy Klingler, brother of former Houston quarterback David Klingler, will start at quarterback.

7 p.m., ESPN (cable channel 30)

by SMU 41-16 in Dallas Saturday but Slocum is wary of the Cougars, who would like to dash the Aggies (8-0) chances at a national championship.

"Houston had chances to make big plays and didn't, and SMU had some chances and they made them. The way Houston throws the ball around three or four of those misses could have been touchdowns," he said.

The Aggies are the only SWC team that's never been blown out by the Houston run-and-shoot and now other teams are getting a chance to adjust, Slocum said.

The Aggies have a 4-1 record against Houston since former coach Jack Pardee introduced the run-and-shoot to the SWC in 1987.

Win would keep Holyfield's career alive

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAS VEGAS — At any news conference involving heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield, the subject of retirement almost always comes up.

It was so this week.

"This is my last fight," Holyfield said, pausing for effect. "This year."

Should he beat Riddick Bowe Friday night, the 30-year-old Holyfield almost certainly would continue fighting.

"I want to fight some young contenders," he said. "That's what's keeping me here. It's something to beat a guy just as good as you."

In Bowe, Holyfield will be meeting an unbeaten 25-year-old opponent who stands 6-foot-5 and who weighed in officially Wednesday at 235 pounds.

Holyfield, 6-2½, weighed 205.

"This fight is good because people realize this guy has a chance to win," the champion said. "This fight gives me credibility."

Holyfield was a 3-2 favorite against Bowe. He was a much bigger favorite in his first three defenses, fights for which he received at least as much criticism as praise.

Two of the wins were decisions against George Foreman and Larry Holmes, two former champions who are in their early 40s. The other was a tough match in which he was knocked down in the third round by unheralded Bert Cooper. Holyfield stopped Cooper in the seventh round.

"They (Klondike) are improved," said Avery. "We have to assume they have improved because they didn't play like a playoff team the first time we played them. We're taking the approach with the philosophy that they made the playoffs, they're a different team."

College is in Terrell, Texas.

Howard defeated Ranger Junior College Tuesday night in Big Spring by 30 points, 127-97. Hawk coach Jeff Kidder said he didn't expect the win over Ranger to be so lopsided.

"Anytime you win by 30 points you're surprised, I don't care who you play," Kidder said.

The Howard College cowboys finished the fall rodeo season in good shape, sitting in second in the 17-team Southwest Region.

The Western Texas cowboys lead the region with 1,090 points. Howard is next with 792 points and Tarleton State University is a close third with 730 points. Howard concluded the fall session with a second place finish at the Texas Tech University rodeo last weekend. West Texas State University won the rodeo. The Howard women finished ninth.

The HC women are seventh in the region. West Texas State University is leading with 630 points, followed by Vernon Region Junior College with 405 and Tarleton State with 255.

The spring season begins in March at the Odessa College rodeo.

The Odessa College Tennis Center is sponsoring a Turkey Tennis Tournament Nov. 20-21 at the center. Events include singles, doubles and mixed for all age groups beginning with elementary school students.

15 blocks of Fifth Avenue in New York City for the American Legion parade.

The National Park Police estimated that 30,000 people jammed the Veterans Memorial and spilled over onto the surrounding Mall here to see wreaths laid, hear the names of Vietnam dead and missing read aloud and listen to speeches by Vice President-elect Al Gore and others.

Gore expressed appreciation to President Bush, who had made a surprise midnight visit to the Memorial some hours earlier with his wife, Barbara, and took part in the reading of names.

The ceremonies, held in a persistent and occasionally heavy rain, marked the 10th anniversary of the memorial.

But in Wausau, Wis., only a small crowd gathered at the courthouse for a ceremony honoring veterans.

"There aren't that many that congregate anymore," said Mildred Schulta of Rothschild, Wis., a World War II Army nurse. "We don't know what it's like."

John Courtion, county veterans' service officer, said the Gulf War gave America "a resurgence of patriotism" but "unfortunately, that wanes rather rapidly."

In New York, too, only handfuls watched in mild, cloudy weather as Mayor David Dinkins walked along Fifth Avenue behind a Marine Corps color guard to take part in a wreath-laying ceremony. Farther back in the procession, Martin Merjave, president of the New York POW-MIA Awareness Coalition, wore symbolic wrist shackles and chains to dramatize the issue of Americans still unaccounted for in Indochina.

At the Vietnam Memorial here, Vice President-elect Gore said that as he entered the grounds, some veterans told him "Welcome home" and others said, "Bring 'em home," referring to uncertainty about the fate of some of the missing.

"We are determined to get the truth," said Gore.

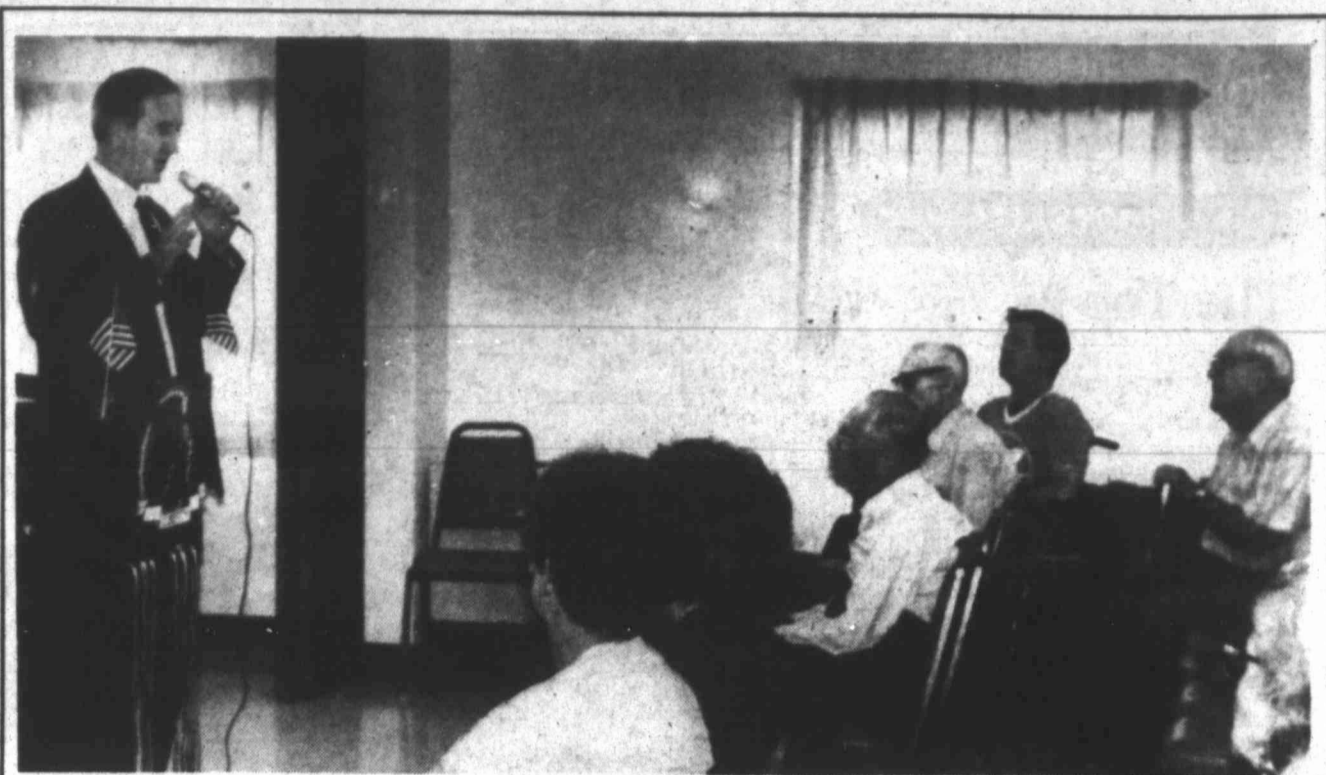

Outside the grounds, veteran Joe Fugo of Akron, Ohio, told a reporter that the government was beginning to deal with the issue "but they should have done it a long time ago, and maybe they wouldn't still be over there."

Artist Maya Lin, who designed the black, V-shaped wall of names, told the crowd, "I may be the author, but I would like to remain fairly silent. This wall is designed for you."

In Pittsburgh, thousands lined the streets to watch a parade that included 35 marching bands, a man dressed as Uncle Sam and an artillery unit used in the Gulf War.

In Northampton, Mass., the parade had a less traditional feature. Two women carrying a sign reading, "Gay and Lesbian Veterans" joined other veterans in marching through downtown as hundreds watched.

"I would like to see this country no longer deprived of the skills and loyalty of gay people who wish to serve," said Kay Marian Raymond.

Down to a science

Educators say courses vital for future

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Local educators are preparing students to improve their proficiency in science.

Questions about science will be added to assessment tests, and educators say basic science knowledge will be more important than ever to many careers of the future.

School officials, especially in Texas, in coming years are placing science, along with math, at the forefront, said Murray Murphy, Big Spring Independent School District assistant superintendent.

"We've read for years, how far back we've fallen in math and science, he said. "Math has been considered a major testing component and now science will as well."

Starting the 1993-94 school year, grades four and eight will add science to their assessment testing along with math, reading and writing.

"A lot more industry are using the science concepts. To get out of high school, students need to have more of the science concepts down if you're going to be educated, read the newspaper and vote," said Betsy Feemster, science department chairperson at Big Spring High School.

"I do see the girls feel like they can't do as much. It tends to be a shyness," she said. "They're just as capable. The boys tend to be encouraged more. The girls are more hesitant."

Feemster, who teaches physical science, chemistry and physics, has 14 boys and four girls in her physics course. She teaches 15 girls and seven boys in her chemistry class.

Murphy said, "(Math and science proficiency) crosses any gender gap."

Bringing more parents and community members into the education circle will ensure student success in science, Feemster said.

"Parents can help because they really know more than they think. It's a matter of knowing the basic skills," she said. "And, more community involvement. Kids get excited when a speaker from the community comes in. They can see the practical side."

Feemster said she is seeing more math proficiency among students coming into her classes. But students must overcome a few hurdles about science, she said.

"Students are coming into my classes more mathematics-ready which is making my job a lot easier," she said. "In her physical science classes, they don't realize they're using science concepts, like the scientific method, everyday — in approaching anything like baking a cake or working on a car."

Paul Ausmus, math and science department chairperson at Howard College said, "The opportunities in science have grown in the last 10 years. We're beginning to see (teachers) making students more aware of science.

"In the last few years, careers have opened up in applied health and environmental science like we've never seen."

NAACP helping kids get to college

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Big Spring High School seniors Duane Edmonds and Daniell Patton are college bound.

Both students will graduate at the top of their class with grade point averages of 3.64 for Patton and a 4.0 for Edmonds — on a scale of one to four.

With their GPAs, both have a great chance of attending the college of their choice, but like many other students financing a college education is a concern.

Because of the concern shared by students, family and local membership of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, a mentor program was established by the membership. Program Director Clarence Hartfield is assisting Edmonds and Patton locate scholarships through the NAACP, as well as other resources.

Hartfield says the program also assists students with application procedures and financial assistance for college entrance test fees and application fees.

In preparation to begin the program, Hartfield researched the application process for colleges, scholarships and grants available. He has visited several college campuses in Texas, and bought several books listing what colleges have to offer in degree plans and the cost of tuition.

Edmonds and Patton both say the program is helpful and needed because many students do not know how to obtain the information needed to receive scholarships or apply to college.

"I think there quite a few students who can benefit from the program," Patton said.

Patton's father, Archie Patton, said, "As far as Mr. Hartfield explaining what is offered and helping with the forms, he has done an excellent job."

Patton plans to major in computer science at a university in Texas. Edmonds plans to major in mechanical engineering, but has not made a decision where he will go.

The second phase of the mentor program is working with at-risk students (students who are at risk of dropping out of school) by offering tutoring services and a support system.

"If one student drops out, it is more than we want," Hartfield said.

Hartfield is working with

counselors and vice principals to contact students who would benefit from the program. With names obtained from Assistant Vice Principal Craig Fisher, NAACP members have mailed letters to the students informing them of the program. Of 28 letters sent in early October, no one has responded as of Nov. 9.

"I don't think the students are telling their parents," he said. "We are taking a different approach by each member taking a few names and personally contacting the student and his family."

"It think it is great that we have this here," Fisher said. "I think it will make a difference if carried through."

In the future, Hartfield plans to also work with the Job Training Partnership Act to increase the number of the students involved with the program.

A Kid's Writing Guide

Many young writers are using computers.

What did you see, hear or do today that might be interesting to write about?

Writers usually do their best writing when they base their stories on something that really happened in their lives.

Some kids are improving their writing skills by keeping journals.

Others also have special folders they call "portfolios." Inside they keep samples of their work so they can keep up with how well they are doing.

The writing process

Many kids are learning to write using special steps as a guide.

We have given you the steps, and also put them inside a wheel.

Cut them out. Keep the list near your computer and the wheel in your journal.

Cut out and paste the wheel on cardboard.

Add a brad and pointer as a guide to which step you are on.

The Carnival

The other night I went to the school carnival. It was very fun! We got tickets. Then we went to the spook house, the airplane toss, and the one my Mom was working in. After the carnival I went to canaberry. They were having a spook-house too. They were having some lady's from canaberry that were witches. It was very-scary! Then it was over. Finally I went home and to bed.

Meet Writer Ann M. Martin

Ann Martin is one of the most successful children's writers in the country.

A best-selling children's book might sell 100,000 copies. One of Ann Martin's books might sell as many as 1 million copies!

She does have some help now with the 30 books she writes each year. But she still does three-fourths of the writing.

At the suggestion of an editor, Ann started writing books about baby sitters. In all, she has written a total of 110 of these books in six years!

The books are about a group of 7th- and 8th-grade baby sitters and their families.

The Mini Page talked with her to get some writing tips:

"Keep a journal. Write in it every day. It's good writing practice. You can also go back and see what to write about.

"Read a lot. Read all different kinds of things." Ann Martin . . .

- is age 37. She says that she is very much like one of her characters, shy Mary Ann.

- went to Smith College.

- used to be a children's book editor.
- has two cats.
- lives in New York, but has just bought a home in the country.
- has set up a foundation to help needy children.
- likes to do needlework and sew clothes for her friends' children.

How Ann Martin writes

1. She starts with an idea. Her books are based on reality. She gets her ideas from her memories (she used to do a lot of baby-sitting), from stories she reads in newspapers, from the kids with whom she talks, and from reading some of the 14,000 letters she gets each year.

2. She does a very sketchy outline. She writes in long-hand using a fountain pen. This way somehow keeps her elbow from getting sore from so much writing.

3. She makes a much more detailed outline. An assistant puts it into the computer.

4. Ann writes the books. (Sometimes she gets help at this stage, but she has done all of the planning.)

5. The book goes to the editor.

6. Ann makes the final revisions.

7. The book is published.

The series includes The Baby-Sitters Club books for readers from 8 to 12.

Baby-Sitters Little Sisters books are for readers 7 to 10.

Organizing thoughts saves time

Organizing your thoughts first will make your writing easier.

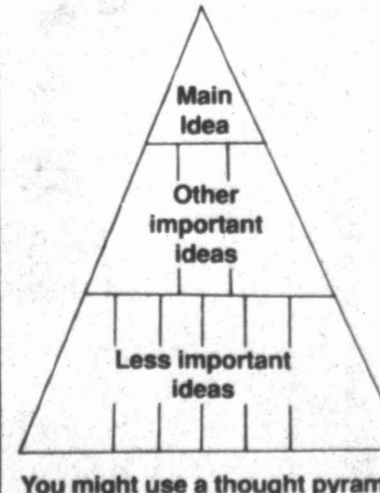

There are many ways, but you will have to find the one that works best for you.

You might use a web.

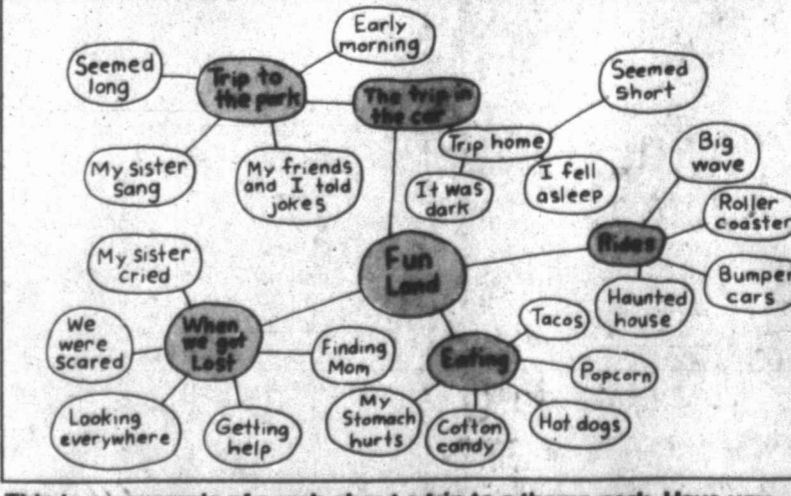

The main topic or idea goes in a circle in the middle.

Parts of the idea branch off from the main circle.

The details branch off next.

You might use a thought pyramid.

This is an example of a web about a trip to a theme park. Have you ever been to a theme park? Make your own web and then write your story.

Most stories that tell a tale are written in this form.

Who, What, Where, Why and How

Less important details

Rather than build up suspense, newspaper stories put important facts first. Pick out a news story. Make an outline of how it is organized.

Next week read all about the Caldecott and Newbery winners.

County roads report reviewed

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

The regular meeting of the Martin County Commissioners Court convened Monday.

The first item on the agenda was the canvassing of the Nov. 3 general elections returns. Minor changes were made because of the transposition of figures, said Martin County Judge Bob Deavenport.

The two contested races in the county were for the office of sheriff and a seat on the Martin County Commissioner's Court Pct. 3. Mike Welling claimed victory in the sheriff's race with 1,050 votes to his opponent's, John Castro, 980 votes. Welling replaces Dan Saunders, who retired this year after 40 years in office. In the commissioner's race, Eldon A. Welch won the election by 113 votes. Welch received 308 votes and write-in candidate Charlie Pinkerton received 195.

The votes cast in uncontested races are as follows: District Attorney Rick Hamby received 1,240; County Attorney James McGilvray received 1,280 votes; County Tax Assessor/Collector Kathy Hull received 1,659; County Commissioner Pct. 1 James Biggs received 398; Constable #2 Richard Lewis received 579.

After the canvassing of the votes, the commissioners reviewed a

Agreement reached on precautions

HERALD STAFF REPORT

An agreement has been reached on precautions for loading and cleaning of crop-dusting planes at Stanton Airport.

Three services will add $100,000 general liability in the city's name to cover any chemical spills, it was agreed at a Stanton City Council meeting Monday, said City Administrator Danny Fryar.

Also, Rod Stringer of Rod Stringer Flying Service of Lamesa will lease an 170-foot by 80-foot lot from the city to build a concrete slab for loading and cleaning of planes. The cost will be $816 a year.

An agreement between the flying services for use of the slab has not yet been worked out, Fryar said. That was postponed because Stringer was unable to attend the council meeting.

In other business the council:

- Adopted Councilman James Johnson proposal for city job descriptions.
- Discussed taking legal action on about 600 delinquent accounts owing about $8,000.
- Heard reports on the landfill and a park improvement project. In-house plans on the park are expected to be ready by next month.

Bufs want to repeat playoff performance

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Stanton Buffalos basketball coach Doug Gordon says his team will be hard-pressed to match last year's feats, but that doesn't faze Gordon.

Last year the Buffalos had their best season in a quarter-century by posting a 26-7 record and winning District 6-2A. Stanton beat Van Horn in bi-district, 71-44, and Hamlin in area play, 63-60. The Buffs were eliminated by defending state champion Abernathy 61-49 in the opening round of the regional tournament.

Gordon remembers the game well. "It was a two-point ballgame with two-and-half minutes to go," said Gordon. "Then I lost three starters on consecutive trips down the court. They hit the free throws and we missed the three. That kind of opened the game up."

Gordon will definitely miss the services of all-state guard Kenny McCalister along with forwards Jim Bob Kelly and John Eric Wycoff and post player Grant Woodfin.

The foundation of the team will be 5-foot-11 senior post guard Jeremy Stallings, better known for being a two-time state champion in the 800 meters. Gordon says the three-year starter is a very good basketball player too. "he's a tremendous basketball player. He's tremendously quick and can shoot off the pass or dribble. He averaged eight or nine assists and 16 points last year, and I'm sure that'll increase. I think he's the best player in the district or maybe the region," said Gordon.

Two other returning players saw limited duty last year — 6-foot, senior forward Robin Barnes and 6-foot-2 senior post player Shane Louder. Gordon said they will be big factors in the success of the team.

Gordon is also expecting to get help from last year's junior varsity players, namely Jerele Lee, a 5-foot-11 sophomore post player, Eric Martell, a 6-foot-1 sophomore forward and 5-foot-8 sophomore guards J.J. Ortiz and Michael Paul Martinez. Ramon Ramos, a 5-foot-8 junior will spell Stallings at the point guard spot.

Two 5-foot-11 junior transfers will also render help. Johnny Titsworth comes from Abernathy and Thomas Pena is from Spur.

Gordon is optimistic about his team's chances. "We lost four tremendous athletes, but this is a new year and a new team," he said.

Stanton's first game will be Tuesday, Nov. 17 in Crane. The Buffs' home-opener will be Friday, Nov. 20 against Grandfalls.

Make it go round again!

Perched atop the merry-go-round, Jonathan Lucero looks to mother Belinda Lucero for a little more spin. The two were enjoying time together at the Howard Jenkins Memorial Space Park Wednesday afternoon.

The commissioners approved a pipeline and utility crossing on county road B2100, southeast of Stanton, for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

A partial payment of $27,000 to MD Young Construction was made for the construction of the Martin County Livestock Show Arena. MD Young built the additional facility to the arena. Completion date is December, Deavenport said.

the food business also requires long hours and hard work. "About the time you think you made a little money to put back for old age, something breaks. Or you're constantly having to replace something, new bills such as health insurance and state, county and federal taxes nears its head to snatch all that small profit," they commented.

In spite of it all, Guy and Bernie say they enjoy meeting new people and would not trade anything for their friends and customers they had over the years.

But, without the dedicated help and experience of their employees they couldn't have continued, they said.

They added, that future plans are to continue making changes that would benefit our customers and improve services when needed.

Here's help for women seeking sobriety

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, you published a letter from a woman who signed herself "Sober and Happy." She wanted to publicize the organization Women for Sobriety.

That letter prompted thousands of women to write to us about their alcohol addiction. Many joined our non-profit group, and are now leading sober, happy lives.

Abby, there is still a stigma attached to women alcoholics. Will you please run that letter again? -- ANTOINETTE PABIS-MOCK, DIRECTOR, WOMEN FOR SOBRIETY INC.

DEAR ANTOINETTE: Yes. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Whenever a woman writes about her drinking problem, you recommend that she seek help from Alcoholics

Dear Abby

Anonymous, which is a wonderful organization. But AA doesn't work for everyone. I speak from experience. I attended a few meetings and left feeling depressed and alone. Then I heard about a group for women called Women for Sobriety. They have weekly meetings, so I attended one. I felt so at home and was able to open up with them far more easily than in the AA group with both men and women.

I have had a happy sobriety for six years now. Women for Sobriety concentrates on mind power, making the best of the present instead of dwelling on the past. Interested women can write for information to: W.F.S. Inc., P.O. Box 618, Quakertown, Pa. 18951. Please enclose a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope, as this is a non-profit organization. -- SOBER AND HAPPY

DEAR ABBY: I respect your advice, and have a question for you. I feel strongly that with all the beautiful, warm, synthetic fabrics available today, there is no reason to wear the fur of an animal. To me, it symbolizes cruelty and selfishness. However, I generally keep this opinion to myself, and I doubt that even my closest friends are aware of my feelings.

My husband and I are planning a cocktail party before a formal event, and I am sure that some of our guests will show up wearing fur. What my guests choose to wear is their own business, but I will not allow anyone who is wearing fur to be a guest in my home. How should I make my guests aware of this? -- KATE BARRY, NEWPORT NEWS, VA.

DEAR KATE: I suggest that you telephone your guests in advance and tell them.

It is highly unusual for a woman who is passionately opposed to wearing fur to keep this fact from her closest friends. An activist for any cause is totally ineffective unless he or she speaks out at every opportunity. (A "closet activist" is an oxymoron.)

Please, warn your guests in advance that fur-wearing folks are not welcome -- or fur will fly!
