Cutbacks loom at BSSH State plans changes for hospital

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Change is in the wind and Big Spring State Hospital will, in the future, likely be a smaller, less funded institution, said Hospital Superintendent Robert von Rosenberg.

"There will be a negative impact on this community... I don't know when," von Rosenberg said. "There's no need to cause panic... I just think it's time people were informed about this."

On Sept. 1, 1992, control of the hospital's 15 community outreach centers, serving a 23-county area in West Texas, will be stripped from the control of BSSH to central administration in Austin. Von Rosenberg received this information in a Friday meeting of state hospital superintendents in Austin.

In addition, a cap will be determined, regarding the number of patients a hospital can house at any given point in time.

Sections of the hospital's catchment area will then be allotted a specific number of beds at BSSH. If area officials decide to send another, above their maximum allotment, one patient will have to be removed to make room, von Rosenberg said.

In addition to losing personnel at the satellite centers, cuts may be forthcoming in Big Spring, depending on the census cap set on the hospital, von Rosenberg said.

There is a likelihood of decreased overall funding for the state hospital division of the Texas Department of Mental Health and ### Mental Retardation.

Von Rosenberg explains: "I was informed that there is a good possibility that the (TMHMR) will receive less funds for the year beginning in September 1993. We were also informed that if cuts do come, the hospitals have been targeted to absorb most of the cutbacks slated for the Mental Health Division.

"We, the hospitals, have been identified as one of the lowest priorities in the delivery system. Given this information, I think it would be a smart move for us to begin planning for an eventual downsizing of this facility.

"(On Sept. 1) we are to be funded fully for the beds that we are allocated, but we should expect some reduction in the number of beds that we operate."

Since its inception, the backbone of the TMHMR has been the hospitals, but a new philosophy in mental health care is turning away from institutions, giving more of the available funding to community-based mental health centers.

This trend is not only in Texas, but across the nation as well, von Rosenberg said. "Some states are further along than we are."

Changes have been ongoing for the last decade at BSSH, he said. At one time the hospital housed over 1,000 patients. This number, however, has been cut to a total of 330 patients last year.

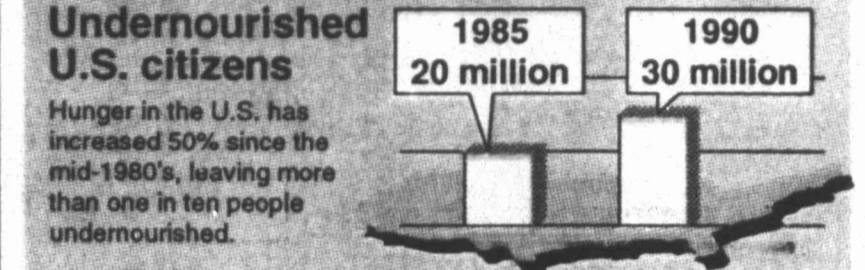

This has not been felt within the community as the state began funding more mental health workers per patient, keeping the number of employees fairly stable, he said.

Future changes will transfer administrative duties, as well as funding, to various community mental health authorities, von Rosenberg said. Along with control, however, these communities will be forced to pay liability insurance and many other costs previously paid by the state.

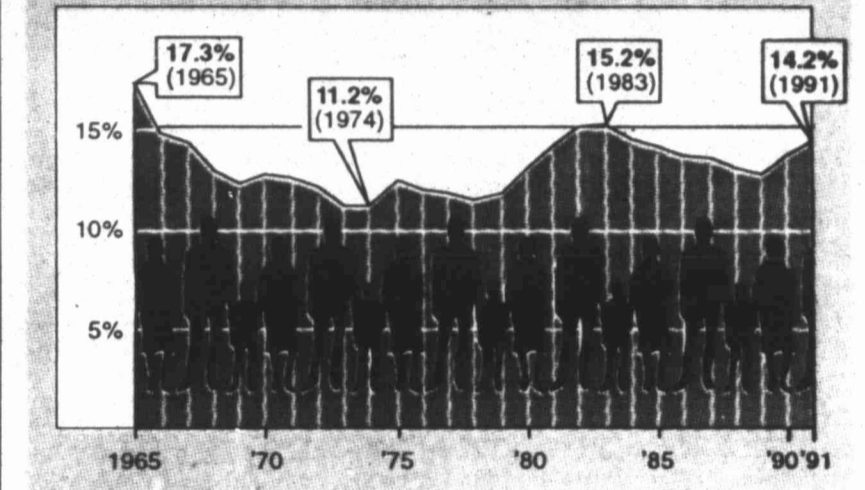

All the particulars of this transfer are not worked out as yet, TMHMR has simply said it will be done, von Rosenberg said. "I will meet with my staff and say, 'let's look at different scenarios — what are the absolute, essential services we have to provide.' That will drive whatever cuts we have to make."

BSSH employs over 900 people in Big Spring, the second largest employer behind the school district.

World hunger relief agency turns to U.S.

30 million Americans go hungry

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BOSTON — Michael Stevens, a laid-off laborer, says he'd have to steal food if it were not for the free lunches at a homeless shelter. "There are plenty of people that I know who have to do that," he said.

Stevens, 29, is among the estimated 30 million Americans who go hungry today, a figure so alarming that an international famine-relief group is turning its attention to the United States.

Oxfam, known for its work in Africa, Asia and Latin America, scheduled fasts and other activities today to kick off its U.S. initiative. Celebrity-studded "hunger banquets" were planned in Boston, Hollywood, Minneapolis-St. Paul, New York, San Francisco, Seattle and Washington, D.C.

"You don't have to go overseas to find the Third World," said John Hammock, executive director of Boston-based Oxfam America. "The Third World exists in the United States, and in urban as well as rural areas."

"This is a dramatic way of depicting one of the causes of hunger: the unequal distribution of food," said Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger.

"If people look around them, they'll see people who are hurting, in Dayton, Ohio, which is my home town, or on an Indian reservation," Hall said. "It's a hidden problem that occurs in the back alleys and behind closed doors, even in the classroom, but it does occur."

Hammock said the group will provide various forms of development aid rather than direct relief in the United States, starting in rural parts of the South.

Oxfam, with international headquarters in London, will focus its American campaign on helping farmers get loans, providing money, technical and research aid for advocacy groups and organizing mortgage guarantees and labor for housing.

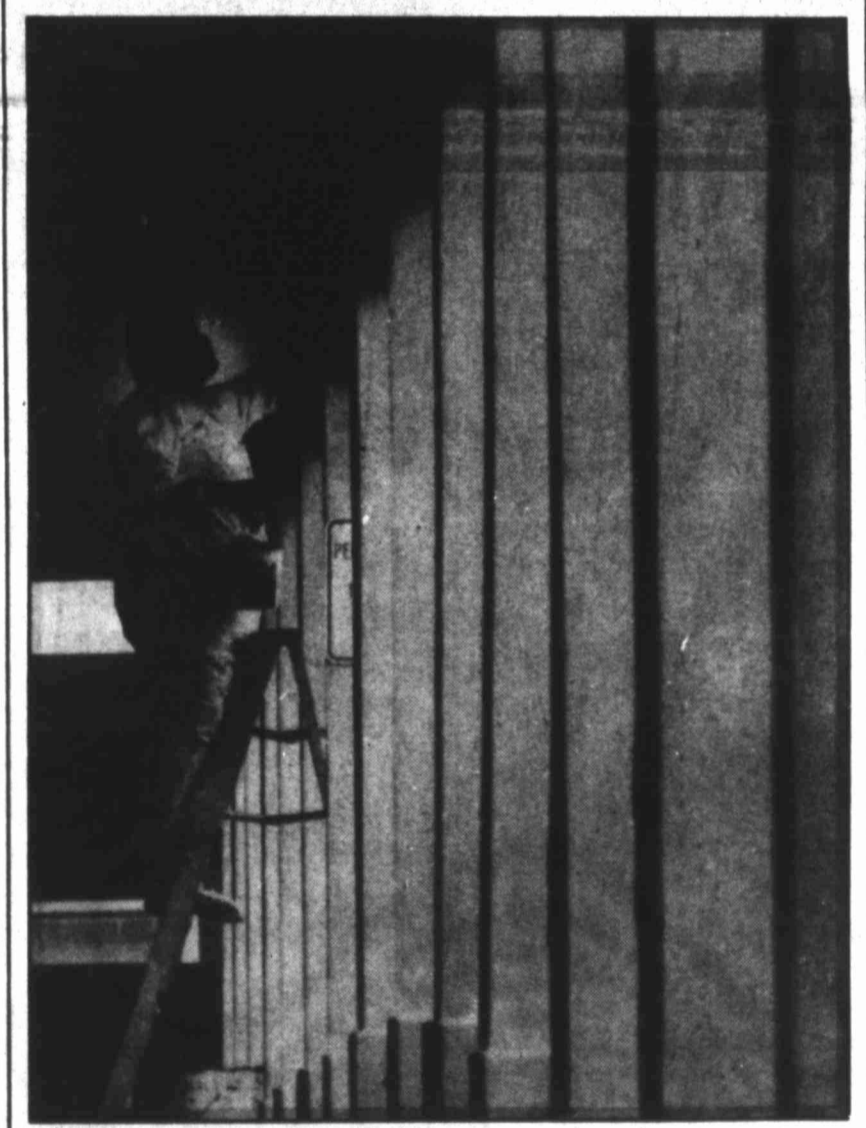

More than 30 million Americans go hungry, the Tufts University Center on Hunger, Poverty and Nutrition estimated in a September study. The Census Bureau reported that poverty reached a 27-year high in 1991 while household incomes fell.

Requests for emergency food aid increased 26 percent in major American cities last year, according to the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"We are at the brink of a disaster and it's moving very, very quickly," said Boona Cheena, executive director of the non-profit group Support Services, based in Berkeley, Calif.

"We're talking about people who run out of all of their money to buy food after about the first three weeks of the month," she said. "They are living on water and bread."

Transport supervisor resigns

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

The Supervisor of American Medical Transport, Brenda Whatley, resigned Wednesday for unidentified reasons.

She could not be reached for comment this morning.

She resigned for "personal reasons," said Jimmy Futrelle, who this morning identified himself as the acting supervisor.

Officials from the service's national office will assist with operations until a new supervisor is implemented, Futrelle said. "That's not going to interfere with our operating procedures at all."

Futrelle, field supervisor for the service, said the company will release an official statement on the resignation sometime this weekend after city and county officials have been notified. The service receives monthly subsidies of $10,700 from the city and county.

"Since this happened at closing time it's going to take some time for us to get it together," Futrelle said of a release.

Whatley has been with the service since it began operations in 1988 under the name Rural/Metro Corp. The name was changed in January 1989. Last month, the service moved offices from 600 E. Marcy to 309 S. Benton.

Council considers air compressor purchase

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Should the Big Spring City Council spend about $14,000 to purchase a compressor so city fire fighters can fill up their own breathing-air tanks?

The issue, which includes considerations of life-safety, financial payout and liability, will be discussed by the council Friday in a "quick" lunch meeting beginning at 12:30 p.m. at College Heights School, 1801 S. Goliad. The meeting is to replace the regular Tuesday council meeting next week.

Right now city air tanks are filled by a Dallas company at a cost of between $800 and $1,500 a year. One in 20 of those tanks are checked for air impurities that can be dangerous, the council was told last week.

Fire Chief Frank Anderson said firefighters here can be trained to fill tanks using an up-to-date air station that includes monitoring gauges, safety switches and an alert buzzer. Air purity would be assured in each tank.

"If there's any problems with air impurities then the system automatically shuts down," he said.

The $27,650 station would be worth it if a 50-50 matching grant from the Texas Commission of Fire Protection is obtained, Anderson said. A commission official said the grant may be forthcoming but council approval here is needed, Anderson said.

But the council may be split on that support.

"Right now I feel like the majority of the council is leaning towards not funding the breathing air station," Mayor Tim Blackshear said this morning.

Concerns include added liability if local firefighters fill tanks and the 10 to 12 year financial break-even period, Blackshear said. "By then, in 10 or 12 years, you might say that machine will be wore out or outdated."

"Just on paper it doesn't look like a good investment but I'm not qualified to judge life-safety issues," said City Manager Lanny Lambert, who opted to let Anderson make his bid to the council. "If it's to save someone's life then it doesn't matter what the cost is."

An option, Blackshear said, is to purchase equipment just to test air quality. Tanks would still be filled in Dallas and firefighters here would check each one. City officials are checking costs of that option, he said. "I just feel like testing it would have to be cheaper than the whole compressor."

Also on the agenda is consideration of a plan for refunding city debt, awarding an engineering bid for improvements to the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark under a government grant for nearly $1 million and second and final readings for four ordinances and an amendment to an ordinance.

Ordinances include changing fire captain titles to deputy chief titles to allow the fire chief to appoint those positions. An amendment to the water-use ordinance would allow adjustments of water bills — based on average consumption or half the bill — in the event of leaks even on the customers side of plumbing.

Mailbox vandals are being sought

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Sheriff's deputies are actively seeking those responsible for a rash of vandalism in the county, Sheriff A.N. Standard said.

Over the weekend, 14 mailboxes were smashed with a pipe or baseball bat to the north and northeast of Big Spring. A tractor was shot in the same general area.

Deputies are working with CrimeStoppers to secure a reward for information on these crimes.

"There is obviously a vehicle involved," Standard said. "This is not just a childish, playful thing."

Anyone with information regarding these crimes should call 264-2244.

TWC allows spreading of sludge

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL PASO — The Texas Water Commission has told Attorney General Dan Morales that it does not consider the sludge toxic or hazardous waste and that it is very similar to sludge spread on land or sold as fertilizer in other Texas cities.

The commission issued a news release Wednesday summarizing the letter but was unwilling to release the actual letter.

The sludge is safe because it has been used in Colorado for wheat, in Arizona for cotton and in Pennsylvania for growing grasses.

"Farmers wouldn't be lined up for wheat grown in sludge if it wasn't safe," said spokesman Ed Clark.

The Environmental Protection Agency also has said it considers the project safe.

MERCO Joint Venture has been importing and spreading tons of New York City sludge, or treated sewage, on the Sierra Blanca Ranch in Hudspeth County since July. New York City had been dumping the sludge in the Atlantic Ocean, was ordered to halt the dumping by a federal judge.

Opponents had hoped the TWC would stop the project.

Sandra Griffin, a sludge ranch opponent, said spreading the sludge in Sierra Blanca was not the same as offering it to farmers for their land in Colorado.

"The people of Hudspeth County were never given the chance to say yes we want to host this project or no we don't," she said.

Morales had not had a chance to review the TWC letter Wednesday, said spokesman Ron Dusek.

Execution the 11th this year

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HUNTSVILLE — A jovial Jeffrey Lee Griffin was executed early today for a robbery at a Houston convenience store that left two people dead nearly 14 years ago.

Griffin, 37, a former male model, had been on the Texas death row since 1979 for killing David Sobotik, 19, who died of numerous stab wounds made in a pattern surrounding his heart.

Griffin was laughing with a prison chaplain as witnesses filed into the death chamber.

"There's a smiling face," he told one witness.

Asked if he had a final statement, he cheerfully replied: "I want to say bye to my mom. I love her, my aunt, my fiance Regina in England. I'm going to be free."

Then he nodded to an assistant warden and told him, "You're a good warden. I'll see you. I'm ready."

He was pronounced dead at 12:17 a.m. CST, six minutes after the lethal drugs began entering his arms.

Griffin's execution was the 53rd in Texas since the state resumed capital punishment in 1982 and the 11th this year. Both figures are the highest in the nation.

It also made 1992 the most active for executions in Texas since 1951 when the state used the electric chair for capital punishment and sent 13 convicted killers and rapists to their death.

The sentence was carried out after the U.S. Supreme Court and several lower courts Wednesday rejected petitions for a reprieve.

And, all she wanted was a ballot $200,000 in missing checks are returned

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

BRYAN — A missing box of payroll checks worth more than $200,000 has been returned to Brazos County after sitting in a Dallas post office for three weeks.

The checks, meant to pay vendors, were mailed to a woman in Dallas who had requested an application for a Brazos County absentee voting ballot.

The box of about 260 county checks found its way back to Brazos County Treasurer Sandie Walker's office Monday.

"Somehow or another the box got a County Clerk's envelope (addressed to the Dallas woman) stapled to the top of it," Ms. Walker said. "All of the checks were mailed to the address on that one piece of mail."

The box originally didn't have a top, Ms. Walker said. No one knows who put a top on the box or stapled the envelope to the box.

The box went unclaimed for two weeks by the woman, 25-year-old Jennifer Urbani, so postal workers in Dallas marked it to be returned to sender Nov. 1.

For some unknown reason, postal workers delayed returning the box until late last week, about a week after Walker and two of her staff spent an entire Saturday re-tying the checks.

Ms. Urbani, a second-grade teacher in Rowlett, was registered to vote in Brazos County while she was a Texas A&M student. She moved to Dallas after receiving a master's degree in 1991 but didn't register to vote in Dallas County, she said. Urbani said she received notices from the post office about the box and recognized the zip code as Brazos County, but she didn't think an absentee application would be sent in a box.

"I didn't get home in time to get to the post office by 5 p.m.," she said. "I wouldn't normally leave something unclaimed, but things were busy at school."

None of the checks in the original batch were missing or opened, Ms. Walker said.

Transfer of power going well

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — President Bush's transition chief views the transfer of power to Democrat Bill Clinton as "a hostile takeover but with no hostility." Democrats agree there's no sign of any attempt to sabotage the complicated process.

The two sides met face to face for the first time Wednesday across the table in the Roosevelt Room as Bush and Clinton conferred privately in the Oval Office. Later, Bush and Clinton stopped by the Roosevelt Room so the president could personally leave instructions with aides for a smooth transition.

"Things will go well," predicted Transportation Secretary Andrew Card, Bush's chief representative in the transition. "This is a happy time for them. We respect that. Card said he was determined the transition will show the world "we can change governments peacefully in a climate of cooperation."

Mark Gearan, Clinton's deputy transition director, said Card "has approached this with a degree of professionalism that is very impressive."

The transition is a huge undertaking.

More than 3,000 jobs will switch hands, including 400 positions at the White House.

Policies adopted during the past 12 years of Republican rule will be reviewed for possible change. Office setups will be studied for possible changes in the lines of authority.

The last presidential transition — from Ronald Reagan to George Bush — was dubbed "a friendly takeover" since power passed from one Republican to another. In this case, "It's a hostile takeover but with no hostility," Card said.

Over the next nine weeks, Clinton's team will form "clusters" that go into each government department and agency, conducting an audit of personnel, rules and structures. With tensions still simmering from the acrimonious campaign, there is the potential for flareups.

Bush has grumbled that the transition takes too long. White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said this week, "There is a feeling on everybody's part that once you've lost and once the change is made, it's best to get on with it."

Card acknowledged in an interview that "this has been a painful time" for Republican loyalists. Yet, he said, "I don't know anyone working in President Bush's administration or those left over from President Reagan's administration who aren't interested in making sure that President Clinton starts off on the right foot."

Card said he told Clinton transition chiefs Warren Christopher and Vernon Jordan that "If there are any problems or rumors of problems that I would like to know about it and we'd like to get it addressed."

Gearan said there's no evidence of anyone trying to derail the transition. "In every instance where we have dealt we have felt very well served to this point," Gearan said.

French farmers are encircled by riot police Wednesday as hundreds of angry farmers tried to make their way to the Place de la Concorde near the U.S. Embassy in Paris. Farmers' groups from some 15 French regions demonstrated near the embassy in opposition to the European Community reaching a quick agreement in its dispute with the U.S. over farm subsidies.

Trade war threatens U.S., EC

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — The United States and its biggest trading partner, the European Community, are searching for ways to step back from the brink of an all-out trade war that neither side says it wants.

While there were hints that a breakthrough may be imminent, negotiators said little following three hours of discussions Wednesday night.

The talks, being held at Blair House, the government's official guest residence, were to resume today. At issue is a U.S. demand that the 12-nation EC cut back on subsidies that the Bush administration charges are robbing American farmers of $1 billion annually in sales of soybeans and other oilseed crops.

If the talks fail, the administration has said it will slap punitive tariffs of 200 percent on $300 million worth of European products. The tariffs, due to take effect Dec. 5, would essentially triple the price of European white wine to American consumers.

The EC has threatened to retaliate with its own higher tariffs on American goods.

In addition to the fight over soybeans, the negotiators are trying to resolve longstanding disputes involving a whole range of European farm subsidies that have blocked successful conclusion of a six-year effort to rewrite the rules governing world trade.

U.S. Trade Representative Carla Hills and Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan looked grim and said little when they emerged from Wednesday night's discussion, but their European counterparts sounded a more optimistic note.

Ray MacSharry, the EC's farm commissioner, said he believed progress was being made and that both sides were examining various options.

Frans Andriessen, the EC's top trade negotiator, told reporters that the negotiations were at a delicate stage but he was encouraged with the initial discussions.

"We had a good conversation tonight. I don't say we have solved the problem, but I say we had a good conversation and that is what you could best expect at the moment," Andriessen said.

"We have been negotiating for many, many years," he said. "We shouldn't be overly ambitious in trying to invent new things. It is a matter of the composition of the elements that we know."

Since 1986, the United States has been pushing the European Community to reduce production subsidies for soybeans and other oilseed products that are primarily used for cattle feed in Europe.

While the EC has offered to limit the amount of acreage planted in oilseed crops, it has refused U.S. demands for a specific cap on production. The American side contends that the acreage limitation would be hard to police and could be circumvented just by boosting yields.

The administration has tied the soybean dispute to a larger issue of scaling back all European farm subsidies as part of a new global agreement to remove trade barriers.

These free-trade talks, known as the Uruguay Round for the country where they were launched in 1986,

Peruvian rebels crippling capital

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LIMA, Peru — Capital residents defied the Shining Path's "armed strike" but had to scramble for ways to get to work because many private bus operators stayed off the roads.

The rebels came nowhere near crippling the capital on Wednesday despite exploding bombs, trading gunfire with police and briefly blacking out eastern Lima.

Officials said at least 43 people have been wounded and two killed since Sunday, the latest victims of the 12-year Shining Path insurgency.

The violence and rhetoric is less fierce than in July, when attacks killed 40 people and nearly paralyzed the capital.

That suggests the insurgency has been weakened by the capture of Abimael Guzman, its founder and principal strategist.

Guzman was captured in September and sentenced to life without parole.

The attempt to paralyze the capital is designed to frustrate Sunday's elections of an assembly to replace congress, which President Alberto Fujimori dissolved in April.

The Shining Path threatened to kill anyone who tried to go to work on Wednesday. But most employees showed up for work anyway, turning up despite a shortage of transportation. The Shining Path has killed bus and taxi drivers who have disobeyed its strike orders.

Some 90 percent of factory employees reported to work on Wednesday, the National Industrial Society said. Business in most districts appeared to be operating normally by midday.

"We're not afraid," said Juan Jose Cardenas, a vegetable vendor at a heavily guarded market in the impoverished Santa Anita neighborhood, which was shut down by an armed strike in July. "The directors asked for security this time. But there are no shoppers due to the lack of transportation."

Soldiers and police patrolled many of the capital's main avenues on Wednesday. The military's presence was heaviest in industrial districts and upper-class neighborhoods.

Camera reveals racism

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SYDNEY, Australia — The hidden cameras of a television network have recorded daily occurrences of racism in several towns and cities — all directed at Australia's native aborigines.

Channel Nine secretly videotaped aborigines being refused service by real estate agents, sales staff, hairdressers and motel receptionists. White people received far superior treatment.

In one scene broadcast Wednesday, an aboriginal man wanting a haircut was told by a female salon worker: "We don't do men, sorry." Later, several white males are shown getting haircuts.

In another scene, a real estate agent tells an aboriginal man that no homes are available for rent, then offers some to a white customer.

When questioned by a television reporter, the agent says the houses available require more rent than

"these people are able to pay."

One motel owner told an aborigine there was no accommodation available, but less than 15 minutes later told the reporter there was one room left.

After the broadcast, Aboriginal Affairs Minister Robert Tickner described the scenes as the "tip of the iceberg."

Tickner said he is organizing a conference of federal and state human rights and anti-discrimination agencies to plan how to combat prejudice.

But Charles Perkins, an aborigine and former head of the government's Aboriginal Affairs Department, said: "Telling people to understand each other is not good enough."

"You've got to be more fundamental than that. You've got to go down to basic economics, and give people jobs and change their lifestyle so people can have a chance to be equal with others in the community," he said.

It's Big Spring for Christmas

A week from today, the Thanksgiving holiday starts the traditional shopping season. We suggest that you give a gift in 1992 that keeps on giving by shopping in Big Spring. When you look first for your gifts in Big Spring, you help ensure the economic viability of our community and county. The physical gift that you give to a friend or loved one warms the heart while the unseen gift you give helps keep businesses open and neighbors employed. Yes, there are things you cannot find here at home... but before you support another community's economic well-being, ask local merchants if they can order that hard-to-find item. We said it before and we'll say it again... when you drive out of town to shop, you are taking jobs with you and you are increasing the costs on all of us — yourself included. So this year holiday season, take the time to shop in Big Spring. That way, you'll be giving two gifts with every one you buy.

Letters

Society needs to look in mirror

(This is in response to Mrs. Chappell's letter which appeared in Monday's Herald, 11-16-92.) I am in agreement with your statement that society's message is one of no absolutes — that anything goes according to one's desires. However, I strongly object to your laying the blame at the feet of the school system. I have been involved in the education profession for over ten years. Never in all those years have I taught, or for that matter, seen taught, any of those corrupt "values" brought out in your letter. Frankly, I am growing weary of having to shoulder the blame for all of society's ills and apologizing for my profession. The teaching and learning of morals and values begins at home, and then should be reinforced at church and school. The lessons won't be learned unless there is a connection between these three institutions. Society's (some parents) refusal to accept their part of that responsibility has resulted in a weakening of that connection. I believe that the fact that schools now offer classes in parenting speaks quite forcefully about today's society. Not only must we educate the children, now are educating the parents, as well!

In conclusion, Mrs. Chappell, if society wants to fault anyone for its current failings in regards to morals and values, I suggest a long, hard look in a mirror.

WTO's wheelchair lift helpful

Yesterday I was told that West Texas Opportunities had a van with a lift for wheelchairs. My mother needed to go to the doctor and it would have been oh so hard for her to have gotten into a car. The driver picked her up at the nursing home, took her to the clinic and later picked her up and returned her to the home. The driver could not have been nicer in anyway. No way can I express my gratitude for the service. I'm glad Big Spring has a taxi and I surely hope we will continue to have — but no taxi has a lift for wheelchairs.

The blondes: More than role models

Smiling from the magazine rack next to the Certs and the grocery store cashier are the two hottest Baby Boomer females since Hope and Nancy: Hillary and Tipper. There they are on the obligatory cover of People magazine, dressed in blazing blue power suits, their teeth and pearl earrings gleaming. You are nothing in America until you cover People, that paper pyramid to pop culture.

Once Hillary and Tipper would have been described as two "blondes," but that was before newspaper stylists decided "blond" was a hair color and adjective, not Jane Mansfield and a noun. Now Hillary and Tipper are just two women with "blond bobs."

Two blond women, yes, having more fun than your normal yuppie wives who must balance children and ambitious spouses and pet projects. (Well, did you go on an extended bus tour this summer?)

Tipper, the Vice-Blonde, has said the new and rewarding friendship with the Clintons reminds her of college.

"It's a major double date." People takes it a step further as People is prone to do, declaring that Tipper and Hillary seem like twins — separated at birth, or at least after college.

"Their hair is virtually the same length, cut in nearly identical blond bobs; their suits — similarly tailored, long over the hips and short above the knees — are in intense Crayola shades. They laugh at the same jokes; they know just when to mug for the cameras..."

Maybe. But there's something else about the successful new female corporation, H&T: the differences.

Hillary was chief breadwinner for the Clintons. Tipper was not for the Gores. Hillary pursued a career. Tipper did not. Tipper stayed home with the children. Hillary did not. Tipper married into a prominent family. Hillary did not.

And yet if you believe People or any other account of the friendship — which seems to have stuck faster and harder than SuperGlue — those major differences don't hinder the relationship. In almost every article we read of "bonding," "connecting" and "forging." Either this is a big and convenient hoax, or it's true. I choose to believe the sorority rush hype.

Here are two women who respect one another, defend one another. Their separate paths converged and for a while they are walking together, trading shopping hints. And smiling.

There seems to be a lesson here for the rest of us females, who all belong to a sex prone to feeling threatened by differences. The lesson? We can get along. Our differences may be interesting, hotter and more topical copy, but our similarities are stronger.

Anyway, most of us are not so different as a Barbara Bush and a Hillary Clinton. That's North and South Pole. It's also generational. Almost an unfair comparison.

Most of us have differences more similar to those of Hillary and Tipper. Most of us share common goals and similar choices, that is if we have any choices. Not all women do, of course.

Women are hard on one another, and that's because we are so used to everyone else being hard on us, too. While People stopped with favorable comparisons, others already have pitted Tipper and Hillary against one another in the looks department, as if the winners' dais in Little Rock were the runway in Atlantic City.

Concentrating on skirt length and hairstyle, People's greatest sin was missing many of the similarities that do count. Both women have given birth. Both women have had long marriages. Both have held jobs. (The writers did note both women have held the spotlight and been criticized.) And the only reason either one of them is on the cover of the magazine is because of her man.

I hope Tipper and Hillary make it. As friends. As political wives. As role models. There is a healthy example in a world where female in-fighting does women more harm than a thousand Pat Robertsons or Rush Limbaughs.

It's time to realize we are all sisters, if not exactly twins. We can defend one another if we're not too busy defending ourselves from one another.

When it comes to designing women, there is no one mold.

DD Turner

When I think of how far women have come, it really upsets me to see Hillary Clinton labeled as anti-family.

Personally, I don't see Hillary as anti-family. She is married, has raised a daughter who appears to be a fine young girl and has kept her marriage going through thick and thin.

It wasn't so very long ago that women began to come out of the house.

It has been a long struggle, fraught with many battles and misunderstandings on both sides. And, the struggle continues.

But what has come out of the struggle so far has been choices — more choices of what to do with their lives.

Prior to that struggle, tradition, called for women to get married, raise kids, keep the house and take care of social obligations. Women were not expected to step outside the house as workers. Exceptions were mainly only if there was no husband around.

Women who dared to buck the norm were few. Women wrote novels using men's names as nom de plumes. They just were not allowed to enter any aspect of the "man's" world without a fight.

"You talk to the children and you wonder, 'What is this child like?'" said Clydie Martin, 85. "You wonder, 'What is going on in this child's life and in this child's mind?'"

"Some of the children are very remote and withdrawn, and you have to pull them out. Some are outgoing. But they're all calling because there is no one there when they get home, and they don't like being alone. The human voice makes a difference. To have human contact when there's no one around makes a world of difference. You hang up, and before you know it, it's ringing again. Another child."

Delphine Wolsko, 79, said, "I will tell them a riddle or a joke to draw them out. I think it's awful that these children have to come home to no one, I really do. Sometimes I feel angry at the parents, even though the parents have no choice but to work. The way the children talk, they feel very downcast walking into an empty house. Our service stops at 6 p.m. each night. I think about the children often after 6 o'clock. I feel so bad that I can't do more."

Estelle Brownstein, 69, has been a Grandma, Please volunteer for six years. "I have heard happiness, sadness, fear, anxiety," she said. "The children will say, 'Oh, Grandma, it's so nice talking to you.'"

"We are supposed to limit the calls to about 10 minutes. So when it's time to hang up, a child will say, 'I love you, Grandma. What is your name?'"

Estelle Brownstein, 69, has been a Grandma, Please volunteer for six years. "I have heard happiness, sadness, fear, anxiety," she said. "The children will say, 'Oh, Grandma, it's so nice talking to you.'"

Hillary is not anti-family. She simply took advantage of the choices available to her as a result of the battle for women's rights.

It should be heartening to all of women who are fighting that battle each day that she has been successful — as an example and hope that we all can be successful in our chosen fields.

Home alone's not a comedy

Every school day, around 3 p.m., the calls will start.

"The voices?" said Monica Glaser, who is quite familiar with the sound of those voices. "It depends on how the children are feeling that day. Sometimes the voices will sound lonely. Sometimes the voices will sound scared. Sometimes the voices will sound like they just want someone to talk to. The calls are like check-in calls. It's as if the children are saying, 'I just want you to know I'm OK.' Even though the children don't know the people they are talking to."

The program goes by the name of Grandma, Please. It is sponsored and administered by the Uptown Center Hull House Association of Chicago. Children — most of them children who come home from school to empty houses, so-called "latchkey children" — call a telephone number. They know the number because it is distributed on flyers to elementary schools.

The phones are answered by senior citizens who volunteer for this. The calls are forwarded from a central receiving station to the homes of the individual volunteers. "Our volunteers receive an average of 800 calls each month," said Glaser, who is the director of the seniors program. "They volunteers don't tell their last names to the children, and don't ask the children's last names."

The purpose of this? "There are so many children who come home to an empty house every day after school because Mom or Dad are at work," Glaser said. "They have a key, they let themselves in, and they're alone. The routine is usually that they call their parent at work, to say they got home safely. And typically the mother or father will instruct the child not to leave the house until they get home from work."

So the children sit there. "They call us because they want to hear another human voice," Glaser said. "Usually a boy or girl will be 9 years old when he or she first calls the Grandma, Please line. They may have heard a noise outside that scares them. Or they may just want to share some news with an interested voice."

"A child may say, 'Grandma, I got a 100 on my spelling test.' Or a child may say, 'My basketball team lost today.' Or, 'I got a bad grade in school.' They just want to share what happened to them during the day with someone who sounds interested."

Glaser is proud of the professionalism of the program: The senior volunteers are screened, trained and supervised. There is a resident social worker. But as pleased as she is with the way the program is administered, she wishes it didn't have to exist.

"We certainly wish it weren't necessary," she said. "We wish every child had a place to go after school where there was a parent waiting to welcome them."

One girl, Glaser said, calls three or four times a day, using a different name every time: "She just wants to keep talking to someone until her mother comes home." Others don't pretend to be different people — "They just call constantly, saying, 'I heard a noise, I heard a noise.'"

The thing that affects Glaser

the most? "The ordinariness of it," she said. "The ordinariness of children coming home to no one."

The volunteers who take the calls are moved and haunted by them.

"You talk to the children and you wonder, 'What is this child like?'" said Clydie Martin, 85. "You wonder, 'What is going on in this child's life and in this child's mind?'"

"Some of the children are very remote and withdrawn, and you have to pull them out. Some are outgoing. But they're all calling because there is no one there when they get home, and they don't like being alone. The human voice makes a difference. ## Cowboy pass rush misses Haley

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

IRVING — For the second straight week, the Dallas Cowboys will go into an NFL game with defensive end Charles Haley at less than full strength.

In fact, coach Jimmy Johnson said the quarterback-trapping specialist may not play in Sunday's game in Phoenix against the Cardinals. Haley is battling a groin injury.

"He's worse off than what we thought he was. There's no question he adds a lot to our defense when he is healthy," Johnson said Wednesday.

Without a robust Haley, the Dallas Cowboys defense became vulnerable in a 27-23 loss to the Los Angeles Rams.

Although Haley has recorded only two sacks since he joined the Cowboys from the San Francisco 49ers, he's had 32 quarterback pressures, recovered two fumbles and cleared the way for teammates to record five sacks.

'He (Charles Haley) is worse off than what we thought he was. There's no question he adds a lot to our defense when he is healthy.'

Jimmy Johnson
Dallas Cowboys coach

The Cowboys were able to sack Jim Everett only one time last Sunday as the Rams passed and ran through the NFL's previously top ranked defense. A limping Haley tried to play with the sore left groin but couldn't get near Everett.

"Haley is valuable because he adds a lot to the pass rush," said Johnson.

"It was obvious Charles was not at full speed on Sunday. It was the first time we had dealt with a Charles Haley injury. He felt he was able to go. We thought once he warmed up he could give us a pass rush. This has got to be a concern," he added.

Haley said the injury has taken away his primary weapons. "I do a lot of quick moves, and I couldn't do it every time I tried to. Playing with pain is something you have to learn as a pro player," Haley said.

The Cowboys will start Jim Jeffcoat against the Cardinals if Haley can't go, and Leon Lett also will see action from the end position.

The Cowboys also will be starting rookie Kevin Smith at left cornerback for veteran Issiac Holt, who said he understands the move to put the team's No. 1 1992 draft pick into the starting lineup.

"You can't sit somebody down who is making $2 million. It's nothing to be upset about. I'll still be playing," Holt said.

Smith said he's glad to be getting his chance.

"It's something I've worked hard for. I think I'm prepared," the former Texas A&M star said.

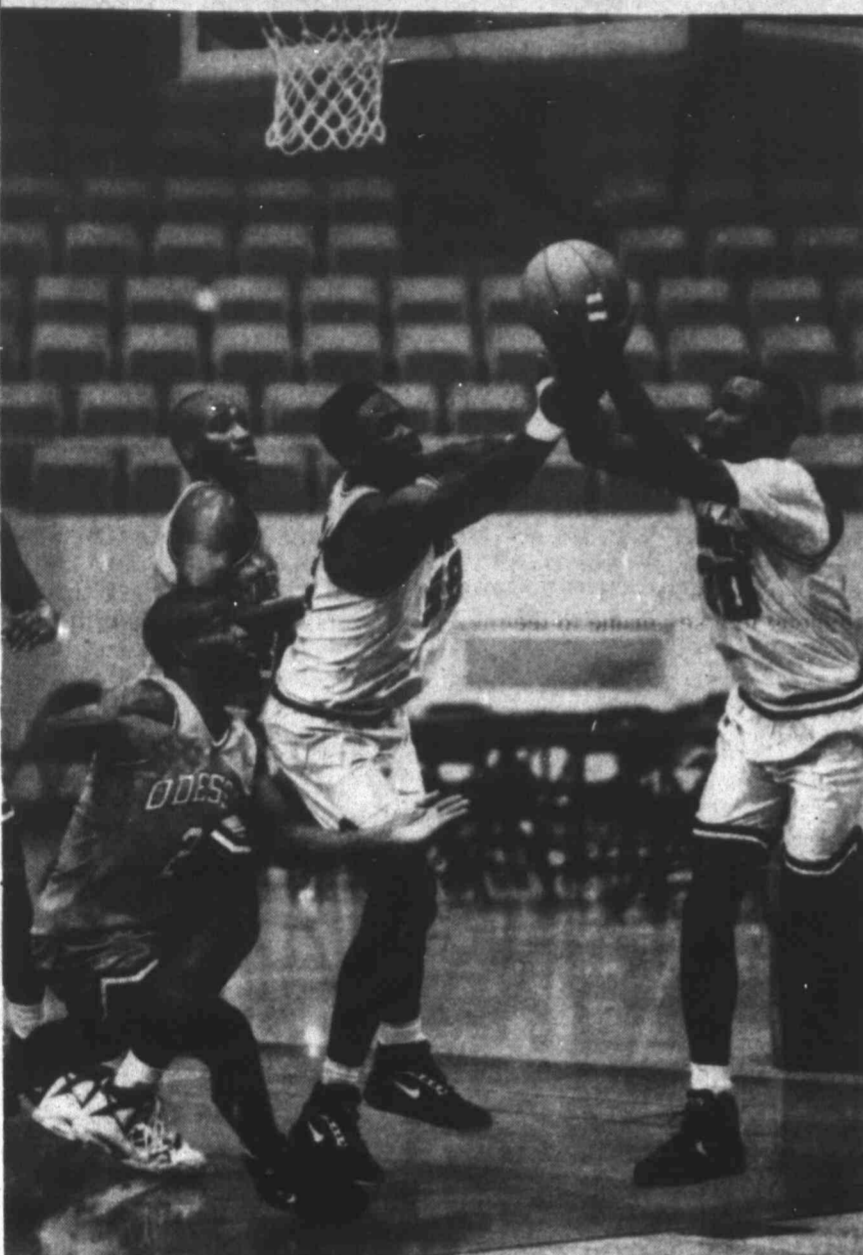

But to tighten their defense, the Cowboys need Haley. Safety Thomas Everett said not having a hale and hearty Haley hurts.

"He can be a tremendous defensive force, a big weapon," Everett said.

Haley said his injury comes at a bad time in the Cowboys' playoff stretch run.

"Things might not have fallen our way against the Rams, but I can see where this team has grown a lot this season," Haley said.

"Somehow I wasn't surprised the Rams upset us. I played the Rams twice a year with the 49ers and I know what Everett is capable of. I hope to play Sunday but I'm concerned," Haley said.

Howard College 6-9 center Bernard Lloyd (center) will play basketball for the Texas Tech Red Raiders next year.

Hawks' Lloyd signs with Red Raiders

By LINDA CONAWAY
Special to the Herald

Howard College Hawk center Bernard Lloyd signed a scholarship agreement this week to play basketball for Texas Tech University next school year.

Lloyd, a 6-foot-9 sophomore from Wilmington, Del., is one of six returning players on the Howard team this year. He averaged five points and four rebounds per game last season.

"I decided to sign with Texas Tech University because I have a lot of respect for (Tech coach James) Dickey and I like his style of coaching," said Lloyd. "Plus, Tech is located in a smaller city than the other schools trying to recruit me, and I think I would be happier in a smaller city."

"Better days are ahead for Bernard," said Howard coach Jeff Kidder. "Last year was Bernard's first year ever to play organized basketball."

Lloyd was in the Job Corp while in high school, working at the Pittsburgh Zoo. He said this job did not leave time for interscholastic sports.

"Bernard came on strong last year and earned most improved player honors," said Kidder. This year Lloyd is averaging 15 points and eight rebounds per game for the 6-0 Hawks. He ranks fifth in rebounding in the Western Junior College Athletic Association.

"We expect Bernard to continue to improve as the season continues," said Kidder. "Texas Tech has signed a proven winner, he is a tremendous basketball player and a tremendous person."

Lloyd gives credit for some of his success at Howard College to the Adopt-A-Hawk Program. His adopted "parents" are Mr. and Mrs. John Sparks. "Howard College has been a great experience for me," said Lloyd. "I have met many nice people who have supported me and helped me grow."

This weekend the Hawks travel to Dallas for a contest against Eastfield Community College Thursday and the Richland Classic Friday and Saturday. Next Monday the Hawks are at home against Lamar College of Colorado at 7:30 p.m.

OU players give coaches earful

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NORMAN, Okla. — It has been a long season for the Oklahoma Sooners. They lost to Texas for the fourth straight year, fell to Kansas for just the second time in 27 years and have two ties.

Now, the frustrations are coming to a head.

A group of players, puzzled about why backup quarterback Steve Collins didn't get a chance to play in a 15-15 tie with Oklahoma State last weekend, met among themselves before practice. Then the coaches got involved, and the result was a full team meeting that lasted long enough for practice to be called off.

"I think it was very productive," coach Gary Gibbs said late Wednesday. "I think when you have a group of players who have a question such as the quarterback situation, you need to address it. They wanted to address it and that's what we did."

Collins is a popular fifth-year senior who came to Oklahoma as an option quarterback and was replaced by Gundy in the middle of the 1990 season. Collins is 12-2 as the starter, with the most recent victories coming in the two games prior to Oklahoma State.

Gundy, one of the team captains, missed those games due to a shoulder injury. Collins was especially impressive in a 51-17 victory over Missouri, when he rushed for 102 yards and the Sooners compiled a season-high 435 yards on the ground.

But Gundy played every snap against Oklahoma State, a game in which the Sooners (5-3-2) only scored one touchdown and weren't able to score after having first and goal at the 7-yard line.

"It bothers me that we weren't willing to do whatever it took in any circumstance to win the game," said defensive lineman Joe Correia, who missed the game with an injury.

"We need to win at all costs. They (the coaches) were saying 'We want our best players on the field at all times and that's our job to do that.' It's a contradiction to me. If you go back and look at the Oklahoma State film ... Cale will tell you himself, he wasn't the best player for that situation."

Correia said Gundy requested that Collins be put in the game at one point because Gundy had injured his leg.

Gibbs said he didn't know about any injury, but in the case of the drive that ended without points, he felt Gundy was the best person to have in the game.

"You've got a quarterback who's led you down the field, he's handled all the snaps, he's handled all the exchanges well," he said. "I just don't think it's prudent at that point in time, knowing we've got a chance to go buy a touchdown, to make a change and risk any kind of exchange problem."

Correia made his remarks after Gundy had already discussed the meeting with reporters. Gundy stressed that Collins is as good a friend as he has on the team, and that they support each other no matter who is in the lineup.

Midland Lee may forfeit three games

MIDLAND — Midland Lee finished the 1992 football season with a 7-3 record, but it may have to forfeit three of those wins. The District 4-5A Executive Committee recommended Monday Lee give up three non-district wins for using an ineligible player in its first three games, Midland Independent School District Superintendent Joseph Barressi said.

The University Interscholastic League usually follows the rulings of district committees, and Lee should get official notification of the forfeitures by next week, Barressi said.

The mother of Lee running back Sherman Dedrick told the Midland Reporter Telegram that the MISD school board advised her Nov. 9 Lee may have to forfeit the three games her son played in before he was injured. Dedrick, Lee's leading rusher in '91, apparently transferred to the Midland school last year.

Lee head football coach Earl Miller told the Reporter Telegram that he didn't understand all the rules but that Dedrick's brother Mantrey played for Lee.

If the UIL accepts the district committee's recommendation, it would give Lee its first losing season (4-6) since 1973.

Patriot QB gets AFC honor

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — New England quarterback Scott Zolak, who led the Patriots to their first victory of the season in his first career start, was named AFC offensive player of the week. Zolak completed 20 of 29 passes for 260 yards and two touchdowns in the Patriots' 37-34 overtime victory over Indianapolis.

San Diego safety Darren Carrington was named AFC defensive player of the week and San Francisco quarterback Steve Young and Atlanta safety Scott Case were honored in the NFC.

Carrington had four tackles and an interception in the Chargers' 14-13 victory over Cleveland. Young threw two touchdown passes in the final 11 minutes in the 49ers' 21-20 victory over New Orleans and Case had 10 tackles and an interception in the Falcons' 20-17 victory over Phoenix.

Pittsburgh's Barry Bonds

Atlanta's Terry Pendleton, receiving 18 of a possible 24 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Bonds finished with 304 points, followed by Pendleton with 232 points, including four first-place votes. San Diego's Gary Sheffield was third with two first-place votes and 204 points.

Bonds, the son of former major leaguer Bobby Bonds, led Pittsburgh to its third straight NL East title by hitting .311 with 34 homers and 103 RBIs. The left fielder also won the MVP award in 1990 and finished second to Pendleton last year.

Girls softball now a UIL sport

The addition of girls fast-pitch softball as a championship sport became a reality in action taken at the 52nd annual University Interscholastic League's (UIL) Legislative meeting in Austin last month. The league also OK'd girls playing high school football.

Approved by a unanimous vote, the amendment to the girls softball plan adds a state playoff system to be implemented this spring. The plans calls for eight regions, with each regional champion advancing to the state tournament in Austin in May.

Big Spring Athletic Director Dwight Butler said he thinks mostly schools in metropolitan areas will field teams. "I think it's a deal done for the metroplex schools. They've got enough kids," said Butler. "We run into a deal here where finally, we just don't have enough kids to go around."

Butler also sees money and travel as drawbacks. "There would be problems in trying to fund it. We have problems in keeping up what we have. Financially, the situation as it is right now, it's like soccer, you'd be travelling all the way to the metroplex to play."

Butler said the only local response has been one phone call from a father wanting to know if softball would be implemented at Big Spring High School.

The Westbrook Wildcat's first football season in 49 years was quite successful, as the Wildcats went 3-3. The Wildcats played a junior varsity schedule this season with all their games on the road because the Wildcats don't have a stadium yet.

The Wildcats concluded their season with a 36-26 loss to Union. Chris Higgins scored three touchdowns for the Wildcats and Greg Conaway scored one.

Westbrook coach Jim Hill said the search is underway for the Wildcats to play eight opponents next year — four junior varsities and four varsities. Westbrook's new football field will be ready for the 1993 season.

No doubt, the scoreboard operator will get plenty of work Saturday when the Texas Tech Red Raiders conclude their season against the Houston Cougars in Lubbock at 2 p.m.

The Red Raiders, 4-6 overall and 3-3 in conference play, and the Cougars, 3-6 and 1-4, have a history of scoring lots of points against each other. The two schools have a combined average over the last four meetings of 77 points and 939 yards per game.

Texas Tech offensive guard Stance Labaj had the quote of the week after Tech's wild 31-28 win over TCU last week. Tech won the game when former Odessa Permian Panther Lloyd Hill caught a 43-yard scoring pass from Jason Clemmons with four seconds left.

Said Labaj — "In the huddle just before the last one (TD), Charlie (Biggers, Tech offensive tackle) and I looked at each other. Then we looked at Lloyd and told him to pull off some of that Mojo stuff. And he does it. It was incredible."

Hill has been pretty incredible this year. He has caught 74 passes for 1,193 yards. His average of 119 yards receiving per game is tops in the nation.

I forsee All-American honors for Mr. Hill.

Beaujolais wine hit hard by economy

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

PARIS — The party's dying down for Beaujolais Nouveau, the fruity red wine that makes its annual bow today, as prices plummet and markets shrink worldwide.

Although this year's vintage may be among the best in recent years, producers have been forced to slash prices by about 25 percent to keep the world drinking the festive stuff.

As the clock struck midnight around the world, the wine went on sale in local markets with the traditional slogan, "le Beaujolais nouveau est arrive." French for "the new Beaujolais is here."

But this year, interest has soured as global recession bites into party-going and fashion-chasers turn to new products, Beaujolais producers and trade groups say.

Hardest hit this year was Japan, where bottles were uncorked first. Orders are down by 40 percent since 1991. Prices have fallen 20 percent, but still remain at an astronomical $20 a bottle.

Exports to the United States have risen slightly, to 2.9 million bottles, after falling in 1991, said Michel Rougier, director of the Interprofessional Union of Beaujolais Wines.

But retaining the market has been accomplished only by slashing U.S. prices to $4.7 a bottle from highs near $10 a few years ago, according to Rougier.

"The Japanese have no wine culture," said Rougier. "The U.S. does have wine production and a culture of drinking it."

So, how does it taste this year? Previous vintages have been redolent of banana or raspberry, Rougier says that's not the case this time.

"This year, I think we'll find the traditional nouveau," Rougier said. "Very fruity, gay, very impetuous. An easy wine, a party wine, without pretension."

A worker piles up barrels of Beaujolais Nouveau wine Wednesday in suburban Paris as the cases are prepared for export. The party's dying down Beaujolais Nouveau. The fruity red wine makes its annual bow Thursday amid a climate of falling prices and shrinking world markets.

The light, fruity red from the southern part of the Burgundy wine-growing region is pressed, bottled and consumed about two months after harvest, usually in the third week of November.

In the 1970s and 80s, the market-savvy Interprofessional Union turned the local product into a global hit, sending cases around the world by plane, train and ship to be served on the same day.

About 60 million bottles are produced each year, with half exported and half consumed in France, where it sells for $4.5 per bottle. Germany is the biggest importer, taking about 9 million bottles. Belgium, Britain, the Netherlands and Switzerland are also important markets.

Demand peaked in 1989 and 1990. But last year, much of the wine went unsold. It may have been boredom. It may have been fewer dollars to spend.

"The whole thing has now collapsed," said London-based wine expert Steven Spurrier. "The growers got greedy and lost perspective on what they were supposed to be doing."

Serious winemakers in the Beaujolais region are pleased with their lightweight cousin's misfortunes. They say the fad for Beaujolais Nouveau cheapened the region's image and those of the premium wines produced there.

Guy Chastel, owner of a small winery, scoffed at the predictable hype surrounding each year's vintage.

"Every year became the vintage of the century," he said. "Most journalists writing about Beaujolais Nouveau don't know anything about wine."

That doesn't stop the industry from assiduously courting journalists, sending regular bulletins on the health of the grapes and invitations to tasting parties. This year, the focus is on a parade to wine bars around Paris.

"The idea is to remind the public of the Beaujolais," said Rougier. "It's only product in the world that is the cause of a worldwide moment of gaiety."

PUBLIC NOTICE

GTE Southwest Incorporated (GTE-SW) and Contel of Texas Inc. (Contel) have filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to seek approval to provide two new private line services and to change rates for existing services. GTE's intraxchange DS1 Service will be offered pursuant to the rates proposed with this filing and will no longer be available through concurrence with GTE's InterLATA access tariff rates which are lower. Contel's intraxchange DS1/DDS Service will be offered pursuant to the rates proposed with this filing and will no longer be available through Contel's current private line tariff rates. Existing customers with DS1/DDS Services will not be affected by these rate changes. DS1 1.544 Megabits per second (Mbps) Service and Digital Data Service (DDS) will normally be used for the transmission of data communications or large volumes of voice communications between two locations. These services are optional and will not affect the existing rates of customers who do not order these services. The estimated annual effect on GTE-SW's revenues in the first year is $1,080,567. The estimated annual effect on Contel's revenues in the first year are $42,383.

DS1 Service

DS1 Service is an intraLATA Private Line Service which provides a dedicated, high capacity channel which may be used for simultaneous two-way transmission of voice data or other digitally encoded customer information signals. DS1 Service provides a transmission speed of 1.544 Mbps and is designed to provide an average performance of at least 95 percent error-free seconds of transmission over a continuous 24-hour period.

DS1 Service is available in and between all exchanges of GTE-SW and Contel where digital facilities exist. DS1 Service is available on a point-to-point intraLATA basis between two Customer Designated Locations (CDL) between a Serving Wire Center (SWC) and a CDL, between a CDL and a point of connection with another service provider or between two SWCs.

IntraLATA DS1 Private Line Service is comprised of three rate elements: DS1 Local Loop, DS1 Transport and DS1 Transport Termination. Each element is described below.

DS1 Local Loop

This rate element is for the cable facilities from the CDL to the SWC. The customer has two payment options for the purchase of DS1 Local Loops. There is a month-to-month plan or term contract Optional Payment Plan (OPP).

The month-to-month payment basis allows the customer to establish and disconnect DS1 Services, without penalty, other than to meet the minimum service interval of one month's service, as needed. Under the month-to-month service, the additional DS1 Local Loop rate applies only when the additional DS1 Local Loop (s) is (are) ordered at the same time and between the same two CDLs as the first DS1 Local Loop.

The OPP plan allows the customer to select a term of service (1 YR, 3 YR and 5 YR) with lower monthly rates associated with longer term contracts. If the customer selects an OPP, additional DS1 Local Loops may be ordered and installed at the Additional DS1 Local Loop rate between any SWC and CDL covered by the OPP, at any time during the term of that OPP.

DS1 Transport

This rate element is for the mileage sensitive charges for transporting a DS1 signal between Serving Wire Centers. Transport occurs only when the two CDLs being connected are served by two different SWCs.

DS1 Transport Termination

This rate element is for the equipment to terminate DS1 Transport at the SWCs. This charge applies only when DS1 Transport is required for the service configuration of the customer. One transport termination charge applies at each end of the DS1 Transport.

Proposed Rates and Charges for DS1 Service are as follows:

	Nonrecurring Charge	Monthly Rates
DS1 Local Loop
Month-to-Month
First System	$ 1,000.00	$ 298.00
12-month term
First System	-0-	$ 283.00

DS1 Transport
Per airline mile	-0-	$ 16.00
DS1 Transport Termination

Digital Data Service

Digital Data Service (DDS) is an intraLATA Private Line service which supports synchronous, full-duplex transmission between the CDL and the SWC or the point of connection with another telephone company at transmission speeds of 2.4, 4.8, 9.6, 19.2 and 56 kilobits per second (Kbps). DDS provides a transmission path for digital data signals within the same LATA.

DDS Service is available in and between all exchanges of GTE-SW and Contel where digital facilities exist. DDS Service is available on a point-to-point intraLATA basis between two CDLs or between a CDL and a point of connection with another service provider.

IntraLATA DDS Private Line Service is comprised of three rate elements: DDS Local Loop, DDS Transport and DDS Transport Termination. Each element is described below.

DDS Local Loop

This rate element is for the cable facilities from the CDL to the SWC. The customer may establish and disconnect DDS Local Loops without penalty other than the minimum service interval of one month's service, as his/her needs demand.

DDS Transport

This rate element is for the mileage sensitive charges for transporting a DDS signal between SWCs. Transport occurs only when the two CDLs being connected are served by two different SWCs.

DDS Transport Termination

This rate element is for the equipment to terminate DDS Transport at the SWCs. This charge applies only when DDS Transport is required for the service configuration of the customer. One transport termination charge applies at each end of the service.

Proposed rates and charges for DDS are as follows:

New first lady is praised for her work for children

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — There are two more months to go before her husband is inaugurated as president, but Hillary Clinton has been a first lady all along by promoting the welfare of America's children, says a longtime mentor.

"She already is and will continue to be the first lady of and for children and families in America," Marian Wright Edelman declared Wednesday night at a benefit for the Children's Defense Fund.

Edelman, founder and president of the organization, warmly embraced Mrs. Clinton, the fund's former chairwoman, as the first lady-to-be made her first Washington address since the election.

"She really listens to people, and she cares about what they say to her," Edelman said. "When the rest of the country gets to know Hillary Clinton as we know her and love her, all of you will love her too."

At the benefit, President-elect Clinton took a back seat to his wife, who is a veteran of some 20 years association with the Children's Defense Fund.

They appeared together at a pair of fund-raising receptions for big donors to the organization and posed for photographers with Edelman and actress Glenn Close, a patron of the fund.

But Clinton departed for a dinner with transition chief Vernon Jordan before his wife spoke for about 10 minutes at the fund dinner. She then left to join her husband.

"All of us have to recognize that we owe our children more than we have been giving them," Clinton said. "There is a role for each of us, as there is for every adult in this country, to do better for our children and our youth."

Clinton, mother of 12-year-old Chelsea, said Americans should work to provide children with love, attention, discipline, good schools,

"She already is and will continue to be the first lady of and for children and families in America."

safe neighborhoods and available health care.

"We all tonight are voices for children," she said. "I hope and I trust that together all of us will do all we can to make sure no child is left behind."

Some 1,200 people paid $300 apiece, or more, to attend the dinner, which is the annual money-raising event for the fund.

The dinner honored five Washington-area young people who received awards for overcoming adversity to register achievements in school.

Although the fund is a non-partisan advocacy organization, the crowd was largely Democratic. And after winning the White House back after 12 years as outsiders, the Democrats had a celebratory air.

"It's nice to win," grinned Lynn Cutler, a vice chairwoman of the Democratic National Committee.

Clinton's ties to the Children's Defense Fund go back nearly all her professional career. She was a young staff lawyer for the organization in 1973 and 1974, and rejoined as a member of its board of directors in 1978. She served as chairwoman from 1986 until 1992, when the pressures of the campaign compelled her to step aside.

While the president-elect visited with President Bush at the White House and toured a Washington neighborhood during the afternoon, Clinton stopped in at the fund's offices on Capitol Hill for a reunion with former colleagues.

Hungry

There are an estimated 50,000 food banks and soup kitchens operating in the United States, according to the group Bread for the World. They serve 20 million people every month.

Public assistance programs have failed to keep pace, advocates say. About 25 million Americans receive food stamps, but the average allotment per meal is 70 cents per person, the House Select Committee on Hunger says.

Many people don't seek help. "They're using up their unemployment, then they're using up their savings," Cheena said. "Then they hide. There is a great deal of shame."

Loud and clear Dare's message gets through to students

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Capturing the attention of more than 800 youth with music and audience participation, entertainer George Dare on Tuesday told students that drugs and alcohol dash dreams.

"I liked the message," said 13-year-old Shelly Schroder.

Eighth-grader Leigh Ann Garza said, "The music sounded really good."

Dare performed his "Natural High Concert" hoping to inspire students from Goliad Middle School, Runnels Junior High School and Big Spring High School to stay off drugs and alcohol.

American Business Clubs (AM-BUCS) and Drug-Free Youth in Texas (D-FY-IT) sponsored Dare's program.

"We all want confirmation that it's all right to be good," Dare said of the program appeal. "The music allows me to get their attention long enough to get across the message."

Dare, a Las Vegas entertainer, performed songs like "You've Lost That Loving Feeling," "Don't Do Drugs" and "You Are." He also performed some of his own commercial work.

Dare told students a story about the decline of rock 'n' roll band members because of drugs.

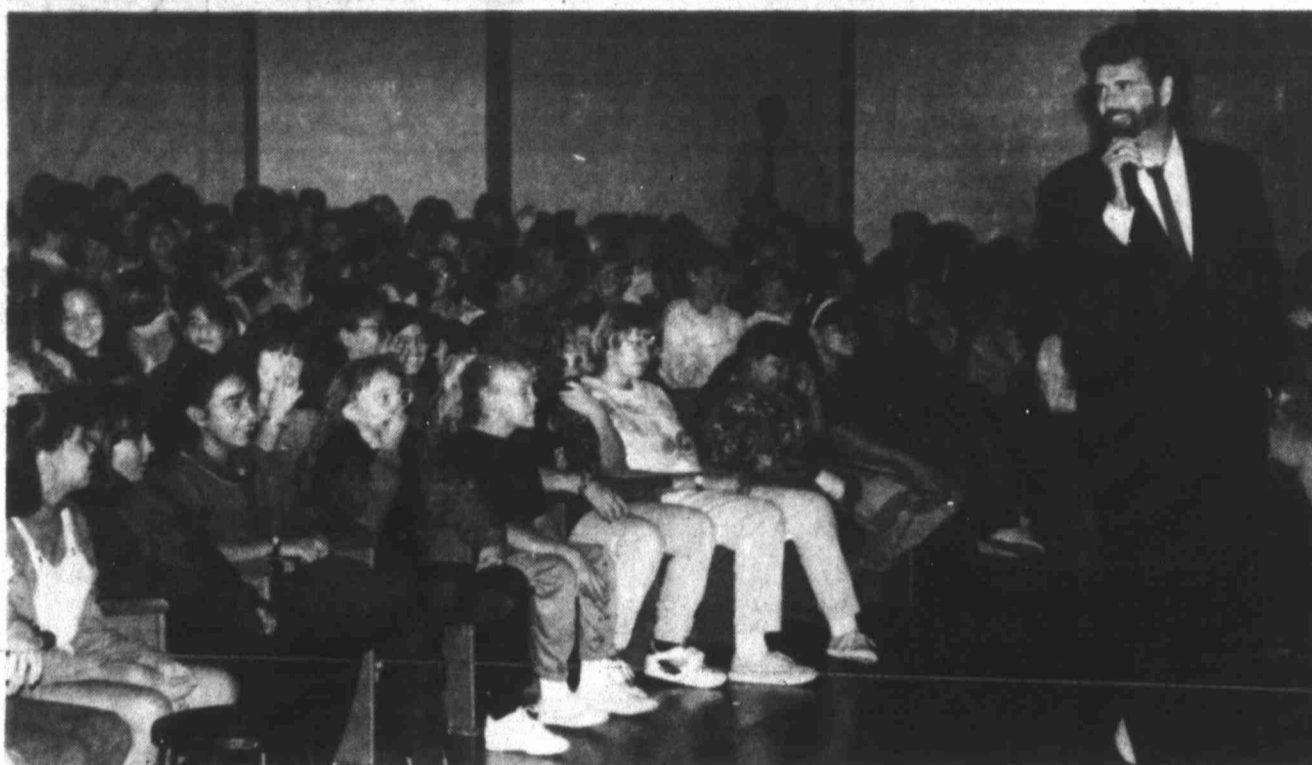

"They bought the lie that once you get on top, it's cool to do drugs. When you get in trouble is when you're trying to be too cool," he said. "Someone tells you alcohol and drugs don't take away your dreams, they're lying."

He added, "I'm still living my dreams because I stayed away from drugs and alcohol."

Dare coaxed students to sing, wave, shimmy and screech while going into the audience to croon squealing teens.

Teachers as well as students participated.

Runnels Coach Wes Overton got

Las Vegas entertainer George Dare crooned to junior high school and middle school students on Tuesday, hoping to drive home the message that there are many alternatives to getting involved in drugs and alcohol.

into the act during "Stop, Drop and Roll."

"He got everyone involved. I thought it was good, education related, and contemporary," Overton said.

Sixth-grader Veronica Viera said, "It was fun — the songs and everything." The message was "that you shouldn't use drugs."

Dare also performed for Forsan Independent School District students earlier in the day.

"After the first song, he got them started. He really got them going," said Sherrie Bordofsky, AMBUCS president.

Stan Parker, the D-FY-IT Big Spring sponsor, said, "This guy inspired me. You could be doing what he's doing now — living out your dreams."

Students create metal Christmas decorations

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Big Spring High School metal trades students are selling elaborate frames for Christmas decorations to raise money for regional and perhaps state competitions.

The frames are made of 3/8-inch steel bar, often used for concrete reinforcement, in a variety of shapes and in all different sizes, said Jim Cantu, a senior at BSHS. Using Christmas lights, the frames can be used to spell out "Merry Christmas" or other holiday greetings across backgrounds such as the state of Texas, a boot, snowman, cactus and other shapes.

"We can customize them — whatever you want," said fellow metal tradesman Chanson Allen.

The metal trades class needed some kind of fund raising project to secure travel to the contests, Cantu said. The instructor, Dee Highley, came up with the idea for the Christmas decorations and the class went to work on the prototypes.

'We can customize them — whatever you want.' Chanson Allen metal trades student

Family names or other slogans can easily be put on the frames.

The district contest is in Abilene in February, Cantu said. "We're trying to sell as many of these as we can."

If successful in Abilene, the class will go on to state competition in Corpus Christi, Allen said.

The large, durable frames are sold for about $75 each.

Trashed out: Almost anything can be found in student lockers

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AMARILLO — What do half-empty soft-drink cans, smashed rotten eggs, moldy sandwiches, crumpled papers and fake spider webs have in common?

Students have discovered all of the above in their lockers at one time or another, according to local students and school administrators.

Lockers represent an ideal location for practical jokes and a seemingly endless black hole filled with missing books, hats, gloves and shoes.

While the majority of lockers in most schools stay relatively clean, trashed out lockers plague school officials from elementary through high school.

Some students interviewed said their lockers always stay clean.

Others said they are lucky if the door closes without papers slipping through the vents.

Clean habits in school lockers are an extension of habits practiced at home, said V.J. Duncan, Canyon High School assistant principal.

"I would imagine the way they leave their room in the morning is the way they leave their locker," Duncan said.

Several students at Crockett Middle School disagreed.

Natali Schenck claims her room at home is messy, but her locker stays neat.

needed in the community and nominate individuals.

Sponsors provide 50 percent of the student's cost for tuition, educational and living expenses, and the state provides the rest.

The life! department is attempting to arrange an interview with Clark.

Horton chosen

The 1992 Newbery Medal Winner

Phyllis Reynolds Naylor

Ms. Naylor with one of her two cats. She has a book, "The Grand Escape," coming out in the spring dedicated to them.

The Newbery Medal is given each year to the author of the most outstanding children's book.

This year's winner was Phyllis Reynolds Naylor for her book "Shiloh," the story of 11-year-old Marty Preston and a young beagle. It is set in West Virginia.

Work habits

When she is working on a book, Ms. Naylor writes for about six hours a day. She also spends a lot of time answering mail and just thinking.

"I go for a three-mile walk every morning. I usually give myself a problem before I start." She does several drafts in longhand and then uses the word processor. She revises and revises.

Two other books

"Beetles, Lightly Toasted" is about a contest fifth-grader Andy Moller enters. The recipes he makes and tests on his friends make for interesting reading.

"Beetles, Lightly Toasted" by Phyllis Reynolds Naylor.

"The Agony of Alice" is one of a very popular six-book series about the adventures of Alice McKinley.

The idea for "Shiloh"

"I was visiting friends in West Virginia and came across this dog that followed me back to a friend's house.

"It sat out in the rain all day long with its head on its paws. It was very hungry and looked like it was mistreated.

"I was in tears wondering what was going to happen to that dog.

"I couldn't get it out of my mind, so I decided to write about it."

Happy ending: Ms. Naylor's friends have adopted the dog!

Meet the Caldecott Winner David Wiesner

The medal
The Caldecott Medal is for the most outstanding illustrated children's book published in the United States.

The illustrator

This year's winner was David Wiesner for his book "Tuesday."

The book

"Tuesday" is a funny story of one Tuesday evening. Frogs lift off the water on their lily pads.

Mr. Wiesner got the frog idea for the book from a cover that he did for "Cricket" magazine.

He is known for his lively imagination and humor.

It takes him about one year to write and illustrate a book.

Look in the want ad section of your paper under "pets." Do you see one you would like? Use the section as a guide to making up a want ad for a pet you would like to own.

Background

David Wiesner was born and raised in Bridgewater, N.J.

"I was drawing as far back as I can remember," David told The Mini Page. By the third grade, he had decided to become an artist.

He studied art at the Rhode Island School of Design. He has been a successful free-lance artist ever since he finished college.

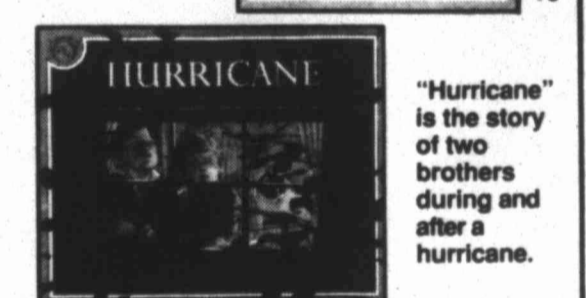

David has done illustrations for textbooks, jacket covers and books by other authors. He has illustrated four books that he wrote himself.

He likes hamburgers, basketball and bike riding. He grew up with cats but does not have a pet now.

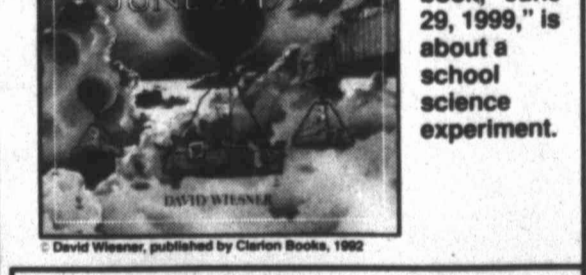

David lives in Brooklyn, N.Y., with his son, Kevin, who was born in April, and his wife, Kim. He works in his apartment, which is in a converted factory!

"The Loathsome Dragon" is a story he retold with his wife, Kim Kahng.

"Hurricane" is the story of two brothers during and after a hurricane.

His latest book, "June 29, 1999," is about a school science experiment.

- The steps David Wiesner goes through to create a book:
1. Makes small page-by-page drawings in his sketchbook.
  2. Makes a full-size, page-by-page dummy, or rough plan, for the book.
  3. Does rough drawings for each page. Sometimes he makes models of subjects or takes photos.
  4. Makes finished drawings on tracing paper.
  5. Transfers the drawings to watercolor paper.
  6. Paints very lightly, then begins to build up the colors.

Board approves text book committee

By MARTHA E. FLORES
Staff Writer

Only action taken by Stanton Independent School District Board of Trustees Monday was the approval of the text book committee and payment of monthly action.

The committee is comprised of 15 people, who are district teachers, principals or administrators. It is responsible for making text book recommendations for the 1992-93 school year.

The following were appointed: Johnny McGregor, Jim White, Bill Young, Lance Morton, Morris Williamson, H. Baker, Ted Gates, Jill Hart, Dana Kohl, Debby Averitt, Mary Balderaz, Sherry Nichols, Patty Rodgers, Lynn Smith and Stacy Waldrop.

Other board meeting matters included a report of the 1991-92 audit by Stallings & Herm PC. The board also approved using the firm for next year's audit, said Johnny McGregor, district superintendent.

McGregor said additional business was his report on campus upgrades. Pine trees were planted at the north end of the football field and a fence was erected north end of the Stanton High School north parking lot, he said.

A brief update on the Texas Legislature's action regarding district funding was also given by McGregor. "It was an updating and sharing of information," he said. "Because it is changing daily, I can only give the board updates."

Parenting seminar was success

By KATHYRN BURCH
Extension Service

The Parenting Seminar held last Thursday was successful in numbers attending, 79, and audience appeal. The speaker was Dr. Terry Urnosky, founder and director of LifeChangers, a multifaceted organization with a focus on the family and a mission to mend broken relationships and to provide the necessary tools for individuals to enjoy healthy family living.

He talked to parents about affection, acceptance and approval. He called this giving your child "Triple A Treatment." Children seek these things first from their parents. If parents do not give children this "Triple A Treatment" frequently and unconditionally, children will seek it elsewhere.

Another responsibility parents have is to provide guidelines within which a child can grow into a productive citizen. The guidelines and the tools used to enforce the guidelines is called discipline. It is crucial to raise a child with no discipline in his or her life. Discipline should not be administered when the parent is angry and out of control. Discipline should only be administered when the child breaks the rules of the household or when he/she does not do what he/she knows is right in his/her heart. Accidentally breaking something is not grounds for discipline.

Dr. Urnosky brought out the importance of teaching a child how to do things. You should not do for a child what he is capable of doing for himself. However, it is the parents' responsibility to be sure the child has the skills and knowledge to do for himself. A parents' favorite theme is "Clean up your room!" Dr. Urnosky told a story about his twin daughters who were on their bed playing. Dr. Urnosky said, "Girls, do you know what I mean by 'Clean up your room?'" The girls looked at each other and then back at their dad. Then, together they put the stuffed animals on the shelf, hung up the Barbie doll clothes and pulled up the covers on the bed. "Girls, this is what I mean when I say 'Clean up your room! Do you understand?'" When Dr. Urnosky said this, the girls nodded their heads "yes." He then turned and dumped the Barbie cases, knocked the stuffed animals off the shelf and unmade the bed. "Now girls, clean your room," They fully knew what was expected and how to perform the task.

As Bob Deavenport works with young people in the summer youth work programs, I have seen him show the kids how to use a hoe or mop before he put them to work. This is an important step.

Dr. Urnosky's presentation was videotaped and is available to be checked out of the Extension office (located in the County courthouse). You can check it out just like you would a library book.

Parenting is a very controversial issue. Most of us have very little formal training. So, most of us parent as our parents parented. If reading or watching a video can help you see things from a different perspective or give you an idea that would help you and your child, then it has succeeded. Focus in on those points that are positive. And remember to give your child a hug today and tell him that you love him.

Holidays: Good time to indulge

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

One of the many good things about holidays is that people have an excuse to make up recipes they may not use at other times of year. One of the few times of year that the Amish indulge in cookies is at Christmastime, writes Phyllis Pellman Good in "The Best of Amish Cooking." Sand tarts were the most common. The recipe from her book:

- Sand Tarts
 1 cup butter
 2 cups granulated sugar
 3 eggs
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 1 teaspoon salt
 2 teaspoons baking powder
 3/4 to 4 cups flour

Cream butter and sugar together. Add eggs and vanilla, and beat until fluffy. Mix dry ingredients together and beat into batter until a soft dough forms. Refrigerate several hours or overnight.

Roll dough very thin and cut in decorative shapes with cookie cutters. Brush tops with egg whites and sprinkle with colored sugar and crushed peanuts, walnuts, or pecans.

Bake at 350 degrees for 8-10 minutes on greased cookie sheets. Makes 4 or 5 dozen cookies.

Cranberry fig bars are a holiday treat from California, using local figs:

- Cranberry Fig Bars
 12-ounce package of cranberries
 1 cup snipped dried California figs
 6 tablespoons honey
 1 teaspoon vanilla
 2 cups all-purpose flour
 2 cups oatmeal
 1 1/2 cups light brown sugar, packed
 1/2 teaspoon soda
 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1 cup butter, melted
 lemon glaze

In large saucepan, combine cranberries, figs and honey. Cook, covered, over low heat for 15 minutes, until cranberries pop, and stir often. Stir in vanilla.

In large mixing bowl, stir together flour, oatmeal, brown sugar, soda, cinnamon and salt. Blend in butter. Put half of oat mixture on bottom of an 8-13-2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 minutes. Then spread fruit filling over baked layer. Sprinkle remaining oat mixture evenly on top and pat gently. Return to oven, and bake 20 minutes longer, until golden. Cool on wire rack.

To make lemon glaze: In medium bowl, combine 1 1/2 cups sifted powdered sugar with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, gradually adding juice until mixture has spreading consistency. Drizzle over top, then cut into 28 bars.

• Over a lifetime, the average American throws away 600 times his or her body weight in garbage — more than 90,000 pounds of trash! Recycling just 10 percent of your garbage can reduce that amount by four-and-a-half tons.

Preparing for the holidays

Raul Aguilar, an employee at Don's IGA supermarket, examines coconuts while rotating the produce. He is arranging newly delivered produce on the racks. With the holiday season around the corner, local supermarkets are bustling with people preparing for guests arriving and special dinners.

Food is the one-size-fits-all gift

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Food and drink must have been the original one-size-fits-all gifts. Have a bite:

- Cheddar cheese fills the new Cabot Moo Box from the Cabot Farmers' Cooperative in Vermont. It's a boxy version of a holstein cow's head, and when opened, emits a mooing sound. Depending on contents ordered, it ranges from about $6. For more information, call (802) 563-2231.
- How about breakfast from Cafe Beaujolais in Mendocino, Calif.? A Breakfast Sampler Basket includes waffle mix, raspberry jam, hot chocolate mix, coffee beans, two heatproof glasses, and an autographed copy of "Morning Food" by the cafe's chef and owner, Margaret Fox. Cost is $89.75, including delivery. Order or ask for a catalog by calling (707) 937-0443.
- Steaks, poultry and seafood are offered by mail order by Pfaelzer Gourmet Foods. Beef Wellington, wrapped in puff pastry and finished with wine sauce and mushrooms is one example, costing $69.95. Or snapper and other seafood for $42.95. For more information and a catalog, call 1 (800) 621-0226.
- Exotic fruits, herbs, salad makings, dried mushrooms and tomatoes, chilies and other less-fattening goodies are offered in Frieda's catalog. You can order a garlic braid for $20 or a cheery red chile wreath for $35. For a catalog, call 1 (800) 241-1771.

• Vine-ripened tomatoes from Leo & Paul's can be delivered any time of year, including the holidays. A pack of eight tomatoes is $17.95, for example, and there's also a Vidalia onion-tomato combination. For more information, call 1 (800) 443-7635.

• Waffle, pancake and muffin mixes, gourmet popcorn, cheese, preserves and other specialties of Pennsylvania Dutch country are available by mail from The Great Valley Mills. A pancake sampler ($14.95) includes buttermilk, pecan and oatmeal pancake mixes and a jar of blueberry syrup. For a catalog or orders, call 1 (800) 688-6455.

• If you fancy real syrup or molasses, Honey Barrel from Good Food, Inc. can supply you with several different kinds. The company also markets a Shoo-Fly Pie Mix. For prices and information, call 1 (800) 327-4406.

• Preserves and candies touched with liqueurs fill the Liqueur Octagonal Tin from Crabtree & Evelyn, $55. Other traditional treats included Noel mulled cider spices, gingerbread men, Scottish shortcake petitcote tails, herbal teas, and fancy mustards.

• An simple but elegant chocolate presentation from Godiva is a box of truffles, accompanied by a miniature book of Christmas carols for $16.50, or a crystal jar filled with cherry cordials, $38.

• If someone you know is a computer nut or checkers buff, check out Hershey's catalog, which has chocolate versions. Call 1 (800) 544-1347.

• Can't decide between flowers and sweets? Cookie Bloomers will send a cookies in a long-stem box, a flower pot, basket or tote arrangement. For information, call 1 (800) 437-SEND.

• A rich fruitcake laced with brandy and sherry is made by Cistercian monks at Holy Cross Abbey in Berryville, Va., in the Shenandoah Valley. The monks started baking holiday cakes for family and friends, but now make them for the public. The handmade cakes are packaged in tins and cost $19.95 each. For information or orders, call (703) 955-9494.

• Fruitcake fanciers might order up a batch from the Collin Street Bakery in Corsicana, Texas — claimed to be the oldest fruitcake company in the world. Based on a recipe brought by founder Gus Weidmann from Weisbaden, Germany, the cake is the company's only product. It's heavily slanted toward the Texas pecan, and the makers will ship it around the world. For prices and orders, call (703) 872-8111.

• A gift-wrapped bag of beans might be the choice for a coffee addict. Gloria Jean's Gourmet Coffees are packaged for the holidays

This season revive an old tradition

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Instead of packing the Christmas celebration into one day, revive the old tradition of observing the 12-day celebration from Dec. 25 to Jan. 6, advises a specialist in childhood education.

"Christmas is a season. It doesn't have to be over in a day," says Brigid Cortright, director of the Children's Education Center at The Catholic University of America in Washington, D.C. Doing everything at once puts too much pressure on parents, and the children can't appreciate a huge pile of gifts at once, she says.

Cortright says she celebrated the 12 days of Christmas when her own children were small. "Every day, my husband and I made sure every child got something — nothing extravagant, but something — and we had a party on the Epiphany."

Don't give extravagant gifts like those described in "The Twelve Days of Christmas," but do pick favorite foods, mobiles, posters, postcards, stationery, prints, stickers, stamps, paints, small animal figures, colorful shoelaces or hair ribbons, she recommends.

She also points out that since Christmas is about giving, gifts from the children should be a part of the tradition. "Choosing a gift for a parent or sibling makes a child think about what other members do and enjoy. For children, focusing on other people can be a learning experience."

with gadgets like coffee grinders, coffee and espresso makers, mugs, and other novelties. Samplers are available with Hawaiian kona, mocha java, Jamaican blue mountain and house blends. Items range from about $10 to $500. For information, call 1 (800) 235-0555.

The Coffee Connection in Boston offers roasted beans from South America, Africa, Indonesia and the Pacific, and presents holiday gift packs in baskets and containers. A regular coffee subscription can be set up with the company, too. For a catalog and prices (which start at about $3.50 a pound), call 1 (800) 284-JAVA.

You'll have to break down the price per swig based on personal preference, but a barrel of Booker's True Barrel Bourbon costs $20,000. Included in the tab is airfare to Clermont, Kentucky, where the recipient and Booker Noe (Jim Beam's grandson and master distiller emeritus) will select a prime barrel from the distillery's rack house. For information, call (708) 948-8935.

Beer by mail every month can be arranged by Beer Across America, which markets distinctive beers from neighborhood "microbreweries" around the country. Cost is about $14 per month, plus shipping and handling. Call 1 (800) 854-BEER, or in Illinois, (708) 842-BEER.

Homemade gifts most cherished of all

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Handmade toys that may not have cost much can turn out to be the best of all to a child.

"Adults who received homemade gifts as a child from their mother or grandmother remember those presents distinctly as the most cherished of all," says Pamela Hastings, consumer education director for Singer Sewing Company.

Remember the card table clubhouse? Bean bags? And wouldn't it be clever to have a custom-made caddy for crayons, markers, papers and coloring books?

If you've forgotten how to make these, or never knew, here's how to put them together with a little bit of time and modest outlay:

Card Table Clubhouse

Materials needed to fit a standard 34-square-inch card table: Five yards of quilted fabric, six yards of double-fold bias tape, assorted fabric scraps or fabric paints.

Instructions: From quilted fabric, cut one 35-inch square for the roof, two 29-by-35-inch rectangles for the sides, and two 29-by-40-inch rectangles for the front and back. Cut out a 15-by-21-inch door opening in the center front panel of the house, saving the piece to be the door. Finish the raw edges of the door and opening with a serger or cover with double-fold bias tape. Center the door over the opening and stitch into place along the top.

Cut a 10-inch square window in the center back panel of the house. Finish edges of the window and lower edges of all pieces with serger or tape as you did for the door. The side pieces will be about 5 inches wider than the other sections; lap the edge of each side panel over the edges of the front and back sections by about 2 inches. Stitch together, starting at the top and going down only 3 or 4 inches, leaving the panels unattached to hang freely over the card table.

With right sides together, stitch the roof to the sides, front and back. Decorate as you like with fabric scraps and craft paint.

Bean Bag Toss

Materials: Sturdy fabric scraps from which you can cut one 6-by-12-inch rectangle for each bean bag, plus beans to fill them.

Make half of the bags in one color, half in another color. (Make as many as you like.)

Instructions: Cut the 6-by-12-inch rectangle and fold in half, right sides together, to form a 6-inch square. Stitch a 1/2-inch seam around the open edges, leaving a 3-inch opening. Turn the bag right side out, fill loosely with beans and topstitch the opening by machine or sew by hand.

The game: Use cardboard boxes, coffee cans or mixing bowls as targets, awarding points for landing the bean bags into the containers. Or let the youngsters invent their own game-point system.

Coloring Book Caddy

Materials: A scrap of reversible quilted fabric at least 18 inches square, about a half-yard of ribbon.

Instructions: Cut the 18-inch square from the quilted fabric and divide the ribbon into two 9-inch lengths. Finish one edge of the fabric with a serger or extra-wide double-fold bias tape. Fold over 6 inches from the finished edge and stitch down the center of the panel to form the binding. Baste sides into place to form pockets. Finish edges with serger or bias tape. Stitch one end of a ribbon strip to each side of the bag, just above the pockets, to form a tie. Insert coloring books and crayons and close the bag with the ties.

Hastings also suggests making building blocks from fabric scraps and foam fillings — safe to toss around and washable as well. Or construct a "busy book" filled with tactile activities like snaps, Velcro, lace ties, buttons and buttonholes, etc.

Singer will provide directions for the building blocks and busy book by mail. Send $2 to Singer Sewing Company, Dept. G, 200 Metroplex Drive, Edison, N.J. 08818.

Cloth Toy Patterns

Those bunnies have multiplied like, well, rabbits. The stuffed bunnies designed by Faye Wine for McCall's (3760) have come to life in unknown quantities from over a million patterns sold. Make an individual version for a child (perhaps making its clothes from scraps or castoffs of the child's wardrobe). Or sew up some snowmen or gingerbread men (McCall's 6157), also designed by Wine.

An elf can be created in 14- or 21-inch sizes, and the pattern (McCall's 6100) also has patterns for a wall-hanging, tree ornaments and a card holder.

Catalog shopping keeps you out of snow

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ho, ho, ho. Catalog shopping keeps you out of the snow, snow, snow.

These catalog marketers will send you a free catalog when you call, unless otherwise noted:

- Neiman Marcus, 1-(800)-825-8000. Fantasy gifts this year include authentic American Indian tipis, His or Hers restored vintage motorcycles, or a tiny electric train made in 18-karat gold and studded with a cargo of emeralds, sapphires, rubies and diamonds. These make the catalog fun to thumb through, but your selections can be less daunting, like a cowboy or cowgirl sleeping bag for $120 or a chip-dip set featuring blue tortillas, blackjack salsa and chile con queso for $28. The store says it will send Federal Express orders at normal shipping rates.

- J.C. Penney Catalog, 1-(800)-222-6161, $4 (redeemable at $5 off your first order). Anything in the store is bound to be in the catalog. How about a new suit for Santa? A fancy designer Santa outfit costs $300 and includes a wig and beard; less expensive versions cost about $60. There's even a belly-booster you can order for $20.

- Spiegel, 1-(800)-345-4500, $8. Clothes and toys for the season. Or order an 18-speed mountain bike for about $250.

- Hemmeter, 1-(800)-955-4142. Bibelots and decorative items with animal themes, many with an eastern accent, can ordered from this specialty marketer. A small cloisonne hippo from China is $35, a carved wooden snail from Thailand is $55, and a woven prayer rug in a flayed tiger design from Tibet is $975.

- Hammacher Schlemmer, 1-(800)-543-3366. Nostalgia items include a replica of the 1953 Western Flyer bicycle, coaster brake and all, for about $600, or a wall clock made from a real discarded hubcap from a 1940s, 1950s-era car (price varies, but a Chevrolet "bow-tie" hubcap clock costs about $100).

- Lilian Vernon, (804)-430-5555. Offbeat but useful items include a Queen Anne-style TV-VCR table, about $130, or brightly colored storage boxes for holiday ornaments, about $9.

- L.L. Bean, 1-(800)-221-4221. Besides any of the Bean standbys, there's an L.L. Bear, a plush animal dressed in a fleece pullover and wearing a fanny pack ($39), or a Maine floral wreath with dried flowers and herbs ($48).

- French Creek Sheep & Wool Company, (215)-286-5700. A favorite from this catalog is the shearing baby bunting, $200. A selection of naturally water resistant greasewool sweaters includes a cardigan ($180) and a crewneck with suede elbow patches ($145).

- Holy Cow, 1-(800)-543-2697. How many ways can you make a cow joke? A lot of them are found in the catalog of this Vermont firm founded by artist Woody Jackson. There are cow motifs on soft goods, clocks, dishes, and other novelties. A plush Santa Cow costs $16, and the Mootana Windsock is $62. Be warned: The artist has branched out dog and baseball items, also in black and white spots.

- J. Peterman Company Owner's Manual, 1-(800)-231-7341. An Irish pub shirt for $38, a Mackintosh raincoat from England for $387, or an Afghan rolled rebel hat from Kabul for $21 are among the finds in this catalog of items from around the world.

- UNICEF, 1 (800)-553-1200. The United Nations children's fund has its familiar collections of cards as well as other items. An accordion folio in a Chinese peony print is $15.

- CARE, 1-(800)-428-1257. International gift choices include a Beehive-shaped basket-type birdhouse from Haiti for $25, a hand-knit sweater with a turtle design from Nepal for $185, or an African turquoise necklace for $80.

- Oxfam America, 1-(800)-639-2141. A double "Y" Ma-nyanga, a rattle-type instrument from Kenya ($34.50), is one of the international items offered. The catalog has a number of exotic textile items as well, including a Guatemalan chalina shawl ($28), or a marbled silk print scarf from India ($25).

- The Company of Women, 1-(800)-937-1193. Women who work in the garden or the shop are usually frustrated in finding heavy-duty work gloves that fit. All-suede pigskin gloves with extra palm and thumb patches made especially for women are here, for about $20. Also featured are security items for the woman on the road — a remote-controlled car security light for about $33, or a car emergency kit for $35. There are lots of fun items, too, like soft sculptures of Gertrude Stein, Virginia Woolf ($48) and Emily Dickinson ($45).

Don't shelve reading during Christmas; give books as gifts

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

"And what is the use of a book without pictures or conversations?" asked Alice, just before taking her dream trip to Wonderland. The prescient Lewis Carroll heroine must have been considering the children's book market, where talk and illustrations continue to lure youngsters into the world of reading.

Here's a sampling of what you can find on the shelves for children for the holidays:

Year Round

- The joy of friends and the art of making them is celebrated in "Pals" (Andrews and McMeel) written and illustrated by Mary Engelbreit.

- The lyrics to Joni Mitchell's "Both Sides Now" have been adapted for a book by the same name (Scholastic) and illustrated by Alan Baker. "Moons and Junes and Ferris wheels...The dizzy dancing way you feel" and other lines are surrounded by butterflies, insects, plants, clouds and skies.

- A book of poems called "Monster Soup" (Scholastic) gives folkloric explanations of thunder, waves, and likens a dinosaur to a power shovel. Compiled by Dilys Evans and illustrated by Jacqueline Rogers, the monsters are ugly, funny, and fantastic. Ghostly ghouls frolicking in an attic are shown with the old Cornish verse: "From Ghouls and Ghosties, And long-legged beasties, And all things, That go Bump in the night, Good Lord, deliver us."

- Monsters of a more temporal sort appear in "Ma'ii and Cousin Horned Toad," (Scholastic), a Navajo tale rendered by Shonto Begay. Ma'ii is a hungry coyote who visits his friend, the toad, and eats everything in sight, including the toad, which is his indigestible undoing. This cautionary tale about greed includes a glossary of Navajo words used in the story.

- "The Magic School Bus" (Scholastic) by Joanna Cole with illustrations by Bruce Degen turns a class trip into an underseas fantasy tour.

- Children have been learning to read and enjoy books through the Little Golden Books for 50 years, and the publisher, Western Publishing, has issued a slipcased anniversary collection of a dozen favorites, including "A Child's Year" by Joan Walsh Anglund, "Pocketful of Nonsense" by James Marshall, and "Doctor Dan the Bandage Man" by Helen Gaspard.
- For the nursery, six little books encased in a rocking horse, "Rocking Horse Rhymes," has been issued by Barron's. The set includes Mother Goose, lullabies, and others.

- Three goodies from Reader's Digest: Amusing traditional and nonsense rhymes in the "Children's Book of Poetry," selected by Beverly Mathias with drawings by Alan Snow; an introduction to fauna in "Children's Book of Animals" by Sally Grindley, with drawings by Stuart Trotter; and a basic look at the world and who lives in it in "Children's World Atlas."

Holiday Titles

- "Another Christmas" (Morrow) by Susan Roth considers the possibility of the holidays someplace — in this case, Puerto Rico — where there is no snow. The moral is, of course, that Christmas is still Christmas, wherever it's celebrated.

- Two Jewish boys make their escape from czarist Russia and, with an old lamp and a night's worth of oil, relive the story of Hanukkah in "All the Lights in the Night" (Tambourine), by Arthur A. Levine. The author approximates the true story of how his own grandfather and great uncle escaped from the shtetl of Drahtichen in 1914.

- The biblical story of the shepherds and the nativity is retold from the view of Matthias, a fictional shepherd child, in "While Shepherds Watched" (Lothrop, Lee & Shepard), by Jenni Fleetwood, with illustrations by Peter Melnyczuk.

- Two titles from Mulberry, "Happy Christmas Gemma," by Sarah Hayes and "Angel Mae," by Shirley Hughes both revolve around the arrival of a new child at Christmastime.

- "The Carolers," an illustrated carol book by Georgia Guback, and "Christmas Counting," a tale to teach counting along with a Christmas story by Lynn Reiser, are from Greenwillow Books.

- It's like Waldo, but in photographs. "I Spy Christmas" (Scholastic) by Jean Marzollo, with pictures by Walter Wick, is a collection of find-the-object riddles with a holiday theme.

- And of course, there has to be a bear book: "A Bear's Christmas Carol" (Current) is a bearish adaptation of the Dickens classic by Vicki J. Kuyper, with illustrations by Laura Ferraro.

- The classic wintertime tale by Hans Christian Andersen, "The Snow Queen," has been translated into an animated video (Lightyear Entertainment), with closed captioning. This version is narrated by Sigourney Weaver and was animated at the Klassica Studio in Moscow, making it the first Russian-made children's film to reach the U.S. market.

Consider safety when selecting toys

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Despite efforts to design safe toys, children still are injured by them — most often by falling on, tripping over, or being hit by toys, according to the Toy Manufacturers Association, an industry group.

The TMA urges parents to supervise the use of toys and be involved in their selection to make sure they are appropriate to the ages of their children.

The organization offers a free booklet, "The TMA Guide to Toys and Play," in both English and Spanish. Send a postcard with name, address and language preference to Toy Booklet, P.O. Box 866, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10159-0866, or call 1 (800) 851-9955.
