Help Salvation Army reach goal

The Salvation Army recently kicked off its 1992 Christmas Campaign in Big Spring with a goal of $42,000 to be collected by the end of the year.

Special letters will be sent through the mail and Salvation Army kettles are at neighborhood shopping centers.

Funds raised through the kettle campaign and other donations will be used to provide food baskets and toys to disadvantaged families and support ongoing programs.

Donations can be sent to Salvation Army, P.O. Box 1248, Big Spring, Texas, 79721. Jerry Worthing is the chairman for this year's appeal.

Free seminar hosted Dec. 8

The Small Business Council is hosting a free seminar Dec. 8 from 8-9 a.m. at Santa Fe Sandwiches in Big Spring Mall.

Everett Bender will be the speaker on how to take care of customers and get into the Christmas selling spirit.

Breakfast is available to those who want to eat. Make reservations at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, 263-2641.

Last Community Luncheon Dec. 3

Dec. 3 will be the last 1992 Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Community Luncheon beginning at 11:45 a.m. at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The luncheon will honor municipal and county employees.

Tickets can be purchased at the chamber office, 215 W. 3rd St., for $6.75. Season ticket holders need to call in their reservations at 2637641.

Decorate for Christmas contest

Enter your home or business in the Christmas Decorating Contest sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Clean Big Spring Committee and the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs.

Judging will be Dec. 16. Entries are residential, religious, lights only or original or homemade; business, show window or inside display.

Return entries by Dec. 11 to the chamber, P.O. Box 1391, 79721. Call the chamber at 263-7641 for more information.

Retired nurse wins Texas Lotto jackpot

Only one winning ticket sold in this drawing

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — Computer records show one winning lotto ticket was sold in Central Texas for the estimated $19 million jackpot, state comptroller John Sharp says.

He said Sunday that for the Nov. 28 jackpot, "Our computers have verified... that there was a winning ticket sold, one winning ticket and only one."

To ensure that the ticket sold was valid, lottery security officials were going to the Central Texas retail location Sunday. The person who bought the ticket isn't necessarily from the area.

But KVUE-TV in Austin reported that the winning ticket was bought by Janie Kallus, a retired nurse, at Leo's Stop 'N' Shop in Schulenberg.

Ms. Kallus had recently retired and moved from Houston to Schulenberg, the Houston Chronicle reported today. Neighbors told the newspaper that the woman was overwhelmed and went into seclusion pending a news conference in Austin today.

But Schulenberg Mayor Leo Kopecky, who owns the store where the winning ticket was sold was understandably excited about the prospects of getting $190,000 for selling the winning ticket.

"Yee haw," Kopecky shouted Sunday night.

"I hope it's true — it may be true. But there's been no official announcement, so I'm still waiting. Am I babbling?" he told the Houston newspaper.

Jackpot prizes must be claimed at lottery headquarters in Austin and the winner will not be official until validated by the lottery commission.

The lottery's computerized system shows when and where sales are made.

Sharp, who oversees the lottery, said that officials hoped to announce the retailer and winner at a news conference today.

It would be the first winning jackpot ticket since drawings began Nov. 14 in Texas. Drawings are Wednesdays and Saturdays. The Nov. 28 drawing was the fifth.

Lotto sales on Nov. 28 alone totaled a record $7.1 million, including one hour in which nearly $1 million worth of sales were made, Sharp

Services adequate to population

Health care in CRISIS

Editor's Note: This is the second in a six-part series "Health Care Crisis," looking at various aspects of health care in Howard County.

Today: What types of services are available and where to go for services not available locally.

Tuesday: Doctor's opinion of health care and why it is so expensive.

By MARTHA E. FLORES

Health care available in Howard County is considered above average by most local health care officials.

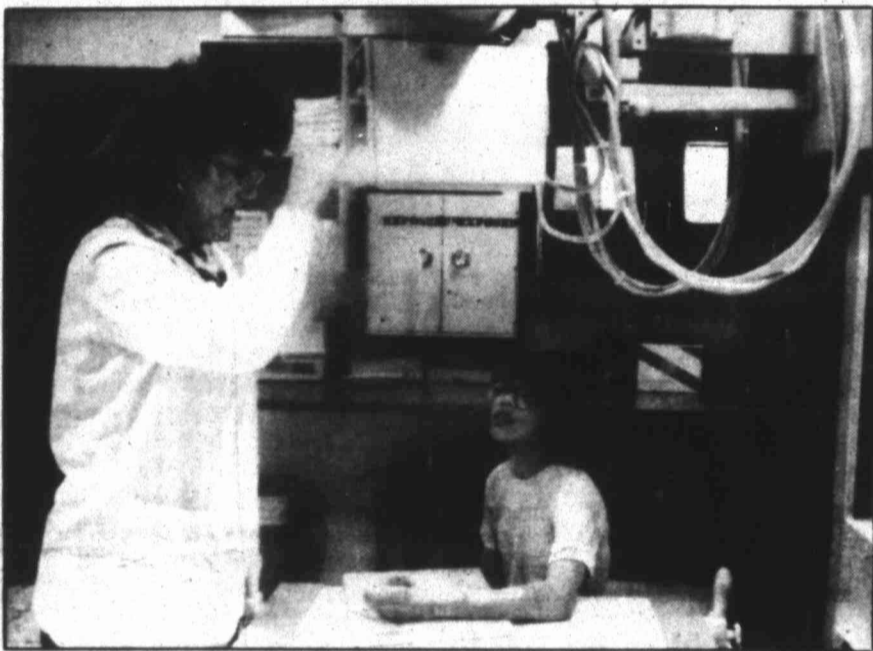

Due to the area's population, health care officials believe the more than 30 local physicians provide adequate care for citizens.

Scenic Mountain Medical Center staffs 30 physicians at their 11th Place location. The physicians range from general surgeons, urologists, orthopedic surgeons, ophthalmologists, podiatrists, internal medicine physicians, nephrologists, family practitioners, psychiatrists, radiologists, obstetricians, gynecologist, gastroenterologists as well as dentists.

SMMC physicians are affiliated with Malone Hogan Clinic, Hall-Bennett Clinic or are have a private practice. Hall-Bennett physicians have had privileges at the hospital since its hospital closed in the mid-1980s.

"We have the facilities and staff to treat most of the problems," said Debra Wallace, SMMC quality control coordinator. "We have patients who come from out-of-town

Only handful of medical services not available

With the number of general practitioners and specialists staffed at the local clinics and hospitals, administrators say there are only a handful of specialties and services not available locally.

Administrators at Scenic Mountain Medical Center, Hall-Bennett Clinic and the Big Spring Speciality Clinic say the specialties not available include dermatology, evasive cardiology and neonatology. But all say it is not feasible for specialists in those fields to practice locally.

"It is simply a matter of economics," said Joe Bowman, Hall-Bennett administrator.

"Specialists could not justify the number of years in school and training with the number of patients treated."

Bowman says a specialist in any of those areas would see about eight or nine people a day in Big Spring compared to the full caseload of 25 or more a day in a more metropolitan area.

"We just don't have the people here," he said.

Bowman and Scenic Mountain Medical Center Administrator David Wiley both say Big Spring residents do not have to seek medical care elsewhere often. But when they do, they are sent to Lubbock, Odessa, Midland or San

CARJACKING

How to avoid it and stay safe

- 1 Be aware. When you are out in public, look around and try to keep a big picture of your surroundings.
- 2 Choose well-lighted, well-traveled facilities. If you are stopping to use a public facility such as a pay phone or gas station, try to park in a well-lighted place where the station attendant or another motorist can see you.
- 3 When returning home, be aware of all vehicles and pedestrians. Keep your house and driveway well lit.
- 4 Be careful after a minor rear-end accident. If you are bumped from behind and you do not feel comfortable exiting your vehicle, motion to the other driver and drive to the nearest police station, fire house or hospital.
- 5 If you are approached by a person with a weapon, and demands are made to turn over your wallet, your purse and/or the keys to your car, comply. The loss of these items is not worth your health, safety, and possibly your life.
- 6 Keep your vehicle locked and the windows rolled up. Not every car has air conditioning, but keep windows up enough so it will be more difficult for someone to reach in and take your purse, wallet or keys.

Remember, the primary rule: If a gunman wants your car, give it up.

Carjacking leaves two dead, one hurt

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

KISSIMMEE, Fla. — A group of gun-wielding carjackers forced a black woman to watch as they shot three of her white friends, killing two, authorities said.

The gunmen, all black, commandeered the vehicle the four were riding in early Sunday and drove them to a remote pasture. They ordered the three men and a woman to strip, then made the woman watch while her friends were executed.

Two men were killed. The third, Michael Rentas, played dead and escaped with a gunshot wound to the hand, police said.

Investigators were following leads early today but had no suspects, said Regina Vanover of the Osceola County sheriff's office.

But the fact the killers left Tammy George, 25, as a witness "gives the appearance (the killers) were making a statement. They weren't joking around," said sheriff's commander Jack Pate. "Is it drug-related? Is it race-related? Is it hate-related? That, we have not been able to pin down."

Rentas, 20, and Anthony Faiella, 17, of Kissimmee, drove to a nightclub outside St. Cloud to pick up Anthony Clifton, 20, of St. Cloud and Miss George, from Kissimmee, police and the survivors said.

After Faiella turned off a highway toward Clifton's house, a red pickup bumped the rear of his vehicle and he pulled over to check for damage, the survivors said.

The pickup pulled alongside. Rentas remembers that one of five or six men in the truck, probably between the ages of 18 and 23, asked: "Is everything all right?"

Then, Rentas said, someone in the pickup called out, "Not now!" and all of the passengers drew pistols.

Miss George said two men with pistols forced her group into the back of their own vehicle and drove away, followed by the pickup.

YMCA stands for Young Men's Christian Association but the Big Spring Family YMCA is for the development of the body, spirit and mind of everyone.

"I think it kind of helps in every way, mentally, physically," said Thelma Schaffer, 76, just one of more than 3,000 people served by the local YMCA.

Schaffer is one of 27 senior citizens in Prime Time, a class started last year to help senior citizens with physical mobility and to provide social opportunities. That program is just one of dozens of activities available for young and old at the YMCA, including weight lifting, basketball, swimming, gymnastics and children day camp.

Gramm: No special favors

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Sen. Phil Gramm insists he did no special favors for a Texas savings and loan owner who absorbed more than $50,000 in construction expenses on Gramm's vacation home.

Gramm, R-Texas, said Sunday he sought out Dallas homebuilder Jerry Stiles and a crew of Texas workmen to finish the interior of a two-story waterfront dwelling Gramm and his wife bought on Maryland's Eastern Shore. At the time, Gramm, as a Senate Banking Committee member, was dealing with the emerging S&L crisis.

The work in 1987 cost $117,000. Gramm paid Stiles $63,433 — based on a verbal agreement between the two men. There was no written contract or estimate for the work, and Stiles didn't bill Gramm until three months after the job was finished, said The New York Times.

Gramm said that in 1989, after he learned that questions were being raised about the matter, he asked a Maryland builder to look at the blueprint for the interior work. "The bid I received was $57,000, which was $6,000 less than I paid Mr. Stiles," the senator said.

"I did not believe then and I do not believe now that I received more value than I paid for in this contract," Gramm said in a statement.

Gramm told the Times he contacted Stiles because the senator wanted to provide work for Texas laborers and help boost the state's sluggish economy. He said Maryland's Eastern Shore contractors and laborers had reputations for being unreliable. And he said that he assumed the Texas workers would pay their own way to Maryland.

Stiles ran three struggling savings and loan companies — and in early 1989 went to Gramm for help. The institutions — including the Hallmark Savings and Loan Association of Plano, Texas — were shut by the government in July 1989 after suffering huge losses expected to cost taxpayers $200 million.

"I did nothing to assist Mr. Stiles nor any other S&L operator in Texas other than to assure that their requests were communicated" to federal regulators, Gramm said in the statement.

The senator elaborated Sunday while touring the port in Corpus Christi, Texas.

"The only thing I did for him is the same thing I did for everybody else who contacted me: I forwarded correspondence to the Federal Home Loan Bank Board," Gramm said.

"Obviously, anytime there's a dispute about what you owe when you contract with somebody, it can be embarrassing, whether you're a private citizen or a United States senator," Gramm said. "But the point is, when I discovered there was a dispute about the cost, I turned it over to the authorities."

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, tours the Port of Corpus Christi Sunday with the port's executive director Harry Plomarity, center. Gramm said he provided only routine help to Jerry Stiles, a savings and loan operator who was paid $63,000 for doing $117,000 worth of work on the senator's vacation home.

"I asked the committee to rule. They ruled that I didn't owe it. When people rule I don't owe something, I don't go out and pay it."

According to the Times, Stiles told investigators from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. that Gramm advised him on complex federal rules that would determine which thrifts would be allowed to remain open.

Gramm insists he didn't find out about the additional cost on his vacation home until late 1989 — when the FBI was looking into the transaction as part of a probe of Stiles' failed S&Ls.

The senator immediately sent Stiles a check for the difference, but in January 1990 obtained an opinion from the Senate Ethics Committee allowing Stiles to give the extra money back to Gramm, according to previously undisclosed Senate Ethics Committee document: which Gramm released.

The ethics committee review — which lasted less than two weeks — consisted of getting statements from Gramm and Stiles saying that the businessman had no intention of giving the senator a gift.

Senate rules barred members from accepting anything of value from people with direct interest in legislation.

Stiles told the ethics committee he considered the extra expense as a cost overrun for which he took blame.

Couple convicted of sexual assault on toddler at day care

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN — A Travis County couple found guilty of molesting a toddler at their day care center face possible life prison sentences on the conviction.

A jury was expected to reconvene today to determine the sentence for Frances and Daniel Keller. The jury deliberated for more than 14 hours last week to find the couple guilty of aggravated sexual assault of the 3½-year-old boy at Fran's Day Care.

"We're certainly looking forward to a long, long, long jail sentence," said one father whose two children attended Fran's. "We hope that it's life, and that will really be the only thing that satisfies us to any degree at all."

The Kellers are also charged with abusing the man's 6-year-old son and another boy. The 6-year-old boy testified via closed-circuit television during the six-day trial.

His mother said she planned to tell her son "that all of his pain and suffering has taken the power away from Fran and Danny and given it back to the children. It took a huge amount of courage for our son to testify at this trial."

"I can't remember a more difficult case," said district attorney Ronnie Earle. "I think what the jury, on behalf of the community, said to our children is: 'We will rock you in our arms and protect you.'"

The Kellers have been under scrutiny since Aug. 15, 1991, when the girl told her mother and a therapist that the couple had sexually abused her. The day care center was closed two weeks later, after the state Department of Human Services confirmed the abuse.

The Kellers fled to Las Vegas after their indictment on Nov. 24, 1991, but they were arrested there in January and have been in jail since.

In July, police arrested three other adults and charged them with molesting children at Fran's. Doug Perry and former Travis County deputy constables Janise White and Raul Quintero are awaiting trial.

The three were arrested after Perry confessed that the three adults, along with the Kellers, had engaged in a beer-and-sex party during which several children were sexually assaulted by the adults while photographs were taken.

Perry later recanted his story, but he was granted immunity and prosecutors instructed him to read his confession during the Kellers' trial.

Perry's testimony provided jurors with graphic details about the abuse and reinforced the children's claim that they were warned not to tell anyone about the abuse.

Some children told their parents and therapists about being subjected to such trauma as watching animals killed while candles burned and watching Daniel Keller dismember a body with a chainsaw.

Lewis Jones, who represented Frances Keller, said, "Obviously we're disappointed in the verdict, but the jury has spoken and we respect the jury's opinion."

Man arrested after cooperating with police

He was in possession of guns stolen during sporting goods store slayings

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — The attorney for a Sulphur Springs teacher arrested for possessing guns stolen from a Richardson sporting goods store where two teens were killed during a robbery last week says police are trying to turn his client into "a goat."

"Here's a guy who, when he realized what happened, contacted the police and said something was wrong," said attorney William McDowell of Sulphur Springs, who posted $1,500 bond Sunday for the release of Russell "Chris" Gibbins.

"He came forward and fully cooperated and now is trying to be made into a goat," McDowell said. Gibbins, 26, a biology teacher and coach at Sulphur Springs High, was arrested in Hopkins County on Saturday on one charge of third degree felony theft, two days after coming forward with information about the weapons.

"He voluntarily contacted Hopkins County officials and cooperated with them and the Richardson police department," McDowell said by telephone from Poteau, Okla., where he was working on another case.

"He answered all their questions. He had nothing to hide. He was repeatedly informed that he was not a suspect and had no need for an attorney. Only after he had fully cooperated did they suddenly, without warning him, issue a warrant for his arrest."

Two 18-year-old store employees, Justin S. Marquart and Frederick J. Banzhaf, were killed when their throats were slashed during the incident at Herman's World of Sporting Goods last Wednesday night.

Assistant manager Angie King, 22, survived the attack by playing dead, police said. She was listed Sunday in fair condition at Dallas' Parkland Memorial hospital.

King's information led to warrants for James Curtis Langston III, Timothy Bates and Joseph Roland Lave.

Langston was killed by Richardson police after the suspect reportedly tried to run over the officer, according to Dallas police investigators. Bates was arrested Friday and charged with capital murder. He also faces a charge of possessing property that was stolen from the sporting goods store.

Lave remained at-large as of late Sunday.

McDowell said that Langston called Gibbins late Wednesday and offered to bring him the guns.

Retrial set in Cook case

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — An East Texas man who spent 14 years on Death Row for the 1977 slaying of a Tyler woman was scheduled to go on trial for the second time at Georgetown today.

Kerry Max Cook, now 36, was convicted in the June 10, 1977 slaying of Linda Jo Edwards at Tyler. The only evidence that linked him to the death was his fingerprint found outside the sliding door of the 21-year-old victim's apartment.

On Sept. 18, 1991, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals reversed Cook's conviction and death sentence. The state's highest criminal appeals court cited testimony from a psychiatrist who examined Cook without warning him that the results might be used in court.

Only three months after Cook was convicted, Edward Scott "Shyster" Jackson recanted damaging testimony he gave at Cook's first trial when he told about a jailhouse confession Cook allegedly made.

Anti-gay law draws firestorm of protest

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DENVER — Colorado's anti-gay rights law, approved only three weeks ago, already has become the target of an economic boycott, a lawsuit and an informal celebrity-led effort to repeal it.

The city of Aspen plans to defy the law after it goes into effect in January by continuing to protect the civil rights of homosexuals.

"It took a while for the shock to sink in about what this really means. The meaning goes beyond a gay-and-lesbian issue to a civil rights issue," said Aspen City Manager Amy Margerum. "What's next? Political affiliation? Ancestry? Age?"

Amendment 2 was approved Nov. 3 with 53 percent of the state's voters in favor and 47 percent opposed. It will prohibit state and local governments from enacting laws that grant civil rights to homosexuals. It also will repeal such laws in Denver, Boulder and Aspen.

"The city feels very strongly that it is a terrible thing to allow this kind of discrimination," Margerum said. "We are a home-rule city... and we should be allowed to enact our laws and ordinances."

The day after the election, the backlash began to build. Tourism and government offices took more than 2,200 calls from outraged people in several states who said they were canceling trips to Colorado.

More followed. Several groups canceled conventions and meetings, including the American

Foundation for AIDS Research, the American Association of Law Libraries, the National Organization for Women and the National Council for Social Studies. The lost business could cost the state more than $10 million in economic benefits, officials said.

As gay rights supporters bash the referendum and threats of economic sanctions continue, the Colorado Springs-based Colorado for Family Values, which sponsored Amendment 2, has kept a low profile.

But on Wednesday, spokesman Kevin Tebedo vowed to keep the group's doors open until the lawsuit challenging Amendment 2 is settled or the boycott movement loses momentum.

Tebedo said homosexual groups, not his own, are "fanning the flames of hatred" with calls for a boycott and attacks on the religious right.

"If this thing (boycott) was allowed to take its natural course, I believe it would die," Tebedo said.

The Atlanta City Council banned official travel and spending in Colorado, and other cities, including San Francisco, are taking steps to follow suit.

A coalition called Boycott Colorado was formed to encourage tourists, corporations and associations to stay away until the law is rescinded.

More than 50 government and business leaders have formed a coalition to try to counter the amendment's ill-effects with an aggressive public relations campaign from Hollywood to New York.

Bodies of slain nuns recovered

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast — The bodies of three of five Illinois nuns slain in the guerrilla siege of the Liberian capital of Monrovia have been recovered, diplomats and international relief workers said today.

The sources, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the three Roman Catholic sisters from the Illinois-based Adorers of the Precious Blood order were recovered from the area of their Monrovia convent on Sunday evening.

Few details were available. The U.S. Embassy was said to be preparing a statement.

It is believed the bodies found are those of Shirley Kolmer, Agnes Mueller and Kathleen McGuire.

Also found at the scene was the body of their Lebanese security guard, two sources said.

The three nuns were gunned down outside their convent on Oct. 23 in the Gardnersville suburb of Monrovia after fighters of guerrilla leader Charles Taylor overran the area.

Three days earlier, Kolmer's cousin, Mary Joel Kolmer and another nun, Barbara Ann Muttra, had left the convent on a mercy mission to rescue a wounded child, and never returned.

Reports from several sources said they were shot and killed by guerrillas who hijacked their vehicle.

Heavy fighting that has continued until this week prevented people from recovering the bodies, and Monrovia Archbishop Michael Francis had said he did not want to risk more lives in such an attempt.

Before reports of that the nuns had been killed filtered through, Francis said three Senegalese soldiers in a seven-nation West African army defending Monrovia had tried to rescue the nuns, and had been killed in an ambush.

Taylor has denied his men were the killers, blaming the West Africans who have repulsed the attack he launched on the Liberian city on Oct. 15.

The U.S. government and the Roman Catholic Church have said they hold Taylor's rebel National Patriotic Front for the Liberation of Liberia responsible for the slayings.

The nuns' motherhouse in Ruma, Ill., had appealed to Taylor to help them recover the bodies so they could receive a Christian burial, but Taylor had told them he knew nothing of the fate of the sisters.

Between them, the nuns had given more than 50 years of service in education and health fields in Liberia, a nation founded by freed American slaves in 1847.

Supreme Court considers other penalties for defendants judged to have lied in court

By MARY DEIBEL

Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — Truth in court goes on trial Wednesday in the Supreme Court when the justices decide if a defendant who takes the stand to deny a crime can be further punished for lying if the jury says she's guilty.

The case asks if the Constitution prohibits federal judges from tacking on an additional prison sentence for perjury to such a defendant.

A federal appeals court vacated Sharon Dunnigan's stepped-up sentence for cocaine trafficking for violating her Fifth Amendment right to testify in her own defense. Dunnigan's fate is being watched 'The real question here is whether a defendant's right to testify will be chilled if they're convicted and further punished for being judged to have lied on the stand.'

Richard Willard
Washington lawyer

close by the U.S. legal community. Torn between studies that show juries are more likely to acquit defendants who testify and the knowledge that punishment can be piled on for perjury, lawyers are worried about what to advise clients.

"The real question here is whether a defendant's right to testify will be chilled if they're convicted and further punished for being judged to have lied on the stand," said Washington lawyer Richard Willard.

Willard, who headed the Justice Department civil division during the Reagan administration, said the Dunnigan case "gives the Supreme Court the chance to make a broader statement about truth in court. I think lying is rampant in our justice system — in civil as well as criminal cases."

Dunnigan's lawyer, Brent Beveridge of Fairmont, W.Va., agrees that lying is a problem, but he sees it from the perspective of a defense attorney.

"Courts have gone a long way toward diminishing punishment on police who lie, but have stiffened the sanctions for defendants who exercise their constitutional rights," he said.

He backs up his claim by citing a recent federal court ruling that upheld a police search even though the officers lied to obtain the warrant on grounds the evidence would have been "inevitably discovered," not because the police acted in "good faith."

The Bush Justice Department nevertheless insists enhanced sentencing is needed if a judge or jury disbelieves a defendant.

It also argues that stepped-up punishment for perjury was well within the discretion of a federal judge long before the federal sentencing guidelines took effect in 1987 in hopes of reducing disparity in punishment for defendants who commit similar crimes.

"There is nothing improper about discouraging untruthful testimony. The 'chilling effect' of a penalty is a matter of concern only if it chills truthful testimony," Solicitor General Kenneth Starr, Bush's chief courtroom lawyer, argues in papers filed with the Supreme Court in urging it to uphold Dunnigan's enhanced 51-month sentence.

Texas voices

The American system of choosing presidents has its share of flaws, but the smooth transfer of power between President Bush and President-elect Clinton is a tribute to both men.

With such a nasty campaign leading up to Election Day, many observers feared that the all-important presidential transition wouldn't be handled so well.

But for a change, both Bush and Clinton seem to realize they're dealing with something bigger and more important than either individual and are acting accordingly.

For a relatively young country, the heritage of trouble-free transition between leaders is one of our best traditions.

Port Arthur News

The Texas education system is in enough trouble already, trying to fund schools fairly, without having to deal with more anxieties.

Now the state Board of Education is being asked to change special education from separate-but-equal to a program of mainstreaming children with disabilities.

The goal is to prepare children with learning disabilities for the real world by having them study with their peers. But not all parents and teachers agree inclusion is the solution. Before the board approves, it should think carefully about the effects on the learning potential of every child.

But even more important, what is the real purpose of the proposal? If it's to cut costs by eliminating some special education programs, the move may be counterproductive. Nearly every teacher will have to be retrained and every classroom will have to be adapted to the disabled student.

Every child has a right to a good education, but learning differences are real, and we must accept them.

El Paso Times

The Texas public school crisis — decreasing funds, increasing dropout rates, flat-line performances on standardized testing — has taxpayers demanding that school administrators and elected officials put aside traditional methods of doing business to find more creative, cost-effective ways of providing quality education.

Year-round schooling is one method... of better utilizing school facilities while enhancing students' attendance and academic performance.

Advocates of a year-round school calendar credit the program with keeping elementary school children more attentive and interested in their studies. The program also provides for a more effective use of facilities, with less down time during long holiday breaks.

Traditional schedules of long summer vacations and extended winter breaks are relics of the past, much like the old red brick, one-room school house.

While our memories of such things will forever be fond ones, the realities of changing times require a new way of looking at old institutions.

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Monday, Nov. 30, the 335th day of 1992. There are 31 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Nov. 30, 1782, the United States and Britain signed preliminary peace articles in Paris, ending the Revolutionary War.

On this date:

In 1803, Spain completed the process of ceding Louisiana to France.

In 1804, the first U.S. Supreme Court justice to be impeached, Samuel Chase, went on trial. (He was acquitted.)

In 1835, Samuel Langhorne Clemens — better known as author Mark Twain — was born in Florida, Mo.

In 1874, British statesman Sir Winston Churchill was born at Blenheim Palace.

In 1900, Irish author Oscar Wilde died in Paris.

In 1936, London's famed Crystal Palace, constructed for the International Exhibition of 1851, was destroyed in a fire.

I hereby join with the Atlanta City Council in its objection to Augusta National Golf Club as a site for the 1996 Atlanta Olympics golf competition.

The council has said, "The addition of Augusta National as an Olympic venue is profoundly inappropriate, given the historic lack of any black, Jewish or other minority members."

With the exception of one black male, white men make up the rest of the membership of the club.

So how do you think that makes me feel? I'm a white male, and I can't even get in Augusta National.

It's not like I haven't tried. I figured if the club membership was 99 percent-plus white males, I wouldn't have any trouble joining.

Last time I checked I was a white male. And, furthermore, I can't jump, a dead give away of my white maleness. Not only am I a white male, but so are all the other men in my family.

But do you think Augusta Na-

Lewis Grizzard

tional would admit me as a member? No way, Jose, which is what the club says to Hispanic males trying to get memberships, too.

With all intentions of becoming a member, I drove to Augusta and turned into the guard gate at the top of Magnolia Drive, which leads to the Augusta National clubhouse. My first clue this wasn't going to be all that simple was when I told the guard I was there to join the club and he said, "Get off this property right now, you redneck."

I wouldn't budge.

"I want to see the membership chairman," I went on. Then, he drew his gun.

"Aren't we testy," I said. The guard fired a warning shot into the air, and I backed up the truck and sped away. Give a guy a gun and a badge and suddenly he's an elitist.

I wouldn't be denied, however. I phoned the club. A women's voice answered.

"I want to know how to apply for membership in Augusta National," I said to her. "I meet all the requirements. I'm a white male."

"Sir," she replied, "I just answer the phones, but this is a private club. You just don't walk off the street and join."

"But," I went on, "I'm a Protestant, too."

"Doesn't matter," she replied. "Membership here is by invitation only."

"No problem," I said, "Once the members see my qualifications and I promise not to wear tennis shoes when I play, I'm sure they will invite me to join. I didn't have any trouble getting into Sam's Club. How much should I make out the check for?"

The woman hung up on me. I followed up with a couple of letters to the club, mentioning my problems with the guard and the receptionist, but indicating I would forget all about that bit of unpleasantness once I was in the club and had my own locker.

The letters were returned to me, however, marked "Quit writing here, you redneck."

So, it's not difficult to see why I am in accord with the Atlanta City Council in rejecting Augusta National as an Olympic venue.

The club has offended me by not allowing me to join, and privacy has no place in America.

There must be plenty of public courses around that would love to host an Olympic event and even throw in pull carts for half price.

Take that, you Augusta National snobs.

Brenda Brooks

The holiday season is here and I'm brain dead already.

There are too many things to do. Cooking, shopping, sending out Christmas cards and decorating the house. Still, I am aware of how blessed I am to be able to do all of these things.

There are thousands who will be homeless and hungry this holiday season. Many others will spend it in nursing homes and hospitals. It is at times like this, I can't help but to reflect on how many people in my past have contributed to all I have now.

There is my family. I was fortunate to have been born to parents who felt children were to be brought up with love, discipline and respect. I took it for granted because they made it seem so effortless.

My extended family was my support group when I was growing up. They called to congratulate me when I did something worthwhile, and they called to express disappointment in my when I did wrong.

There are my neighbors. The all-white neighborhood we moved to in 1960 was African-American by 1964. I was well into adulthood before I learned I had been a "lat-chky child." I had never even thought about it, but there was Mrs. Beal, Mrs. Ada Mae and Mrs. Betsy — all ready to look out for us.

They reported anything and everything that went on at my house while my folks were at work. They also fed me cookies and bandaged my scraped knees.

Then there were my teachers. Mrs. Jean Gray at the nursery school I attended. She gave me a head start back in 1958 when she taught me how to read at the age of 4. She didn't care how economically disadvantaged any of us were, we all left the nursery school ready for first grade.

There were the teachers at Will Rogers who never treated me differently than any of the white students. In fact, I remember being taunted on the playground in the 4th grade with that familiar chant, "teacher's pet."

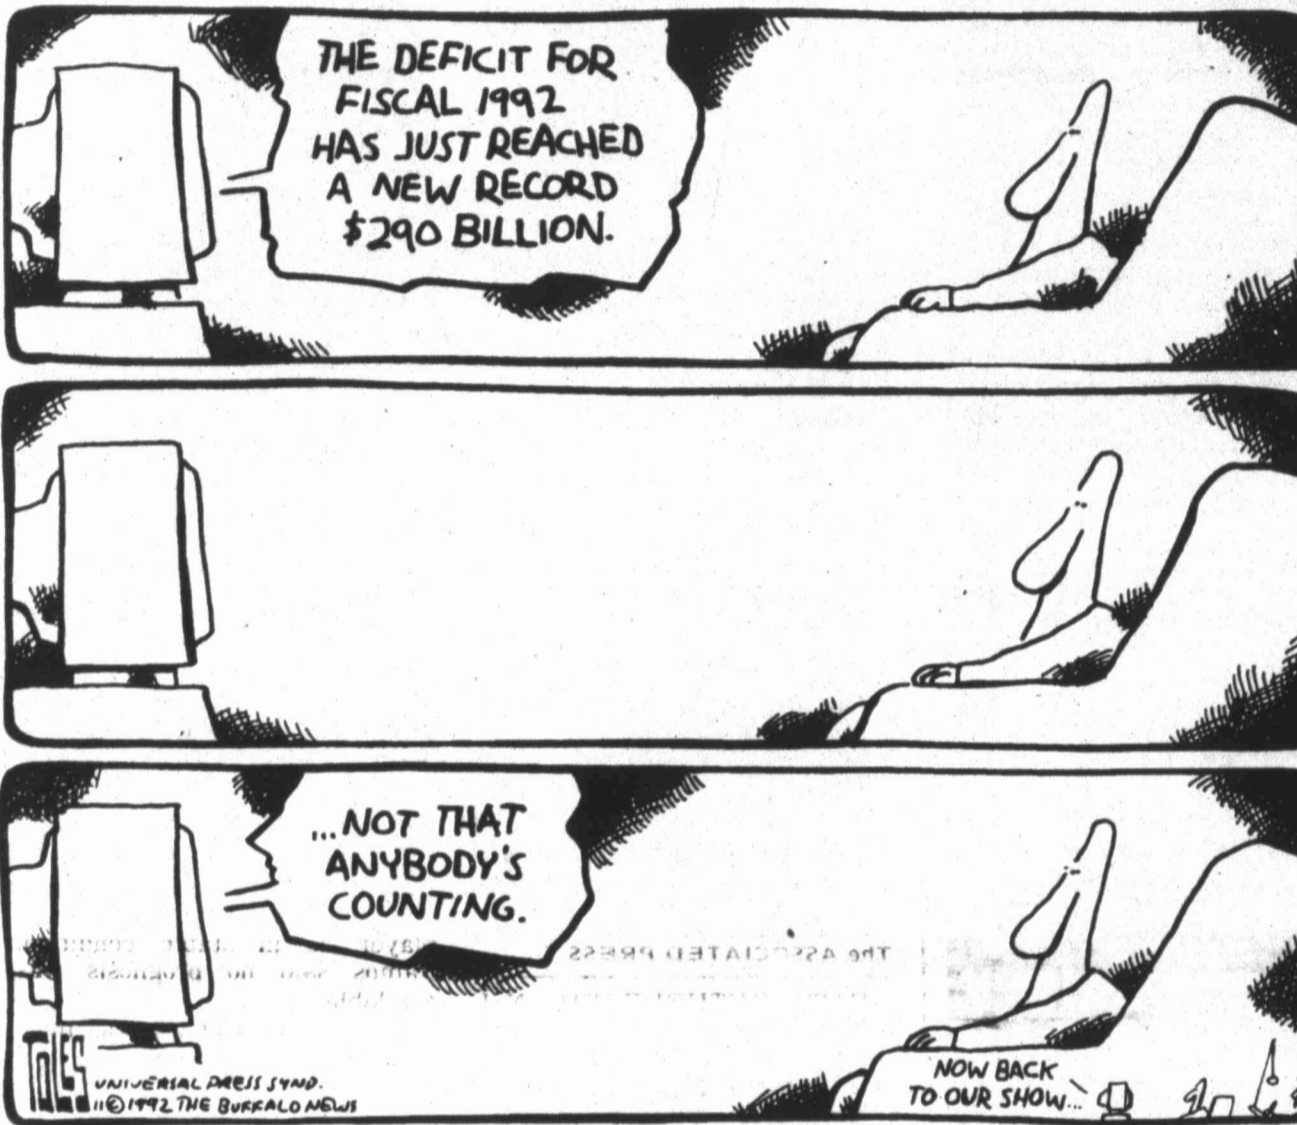

Finally, there was my church. Bible stories were read aloud in Sunday School. Most of the Sunday School teachers also taught in the public schools. They corrected my reading mistakes, grammar mistakes and behavioral mistakes. They supported me with hugs and pats on the back after church on Sunday, and I am sure with prayers during the week.

All of these people gave me the positive reinforcement a child needs in order to grow up with a sense of self-esteem. They gave me love and compassion. I can only repay them by living my life in a manner consistent with the principles they tried so hard to instill in me.

I'd like to take this opportunity to say thank you to them. I would hope after reading this column, you will take a few minutes mentally to send a thank you and a prayer to those who have helped you.

I am also going to tape this column to my refrigerator door, so when in a couple of weeks the kids have gotten on my last nerve and I'm not speaking to my husband because the Christmas lights aren't up, I can remind myself of the real message of this holiday season.

Remember love and compassion.

South not solid in election

Passing over the chocolate Coosa River at Childersburg, Ala., I wondered to myself just how many times I have crossed this old steel truss bridge.

Our fourth grade history textbook was "Know Alabama," and I feel I really do.

I have stood staring at the stars from its highest point at Cheaha and slid through Mobile's Bankhead Tunnel and climbed the Vulcan in Birmingham. I have typed endless newspaper country correspondence from Burnt Corn, Mexia, Repton and Frisco City, Alabama.

I have heard the arguments of the Montgomery City Council and stood on the bronze star at the state capitol where Jefferson Davis was sworn in as president of the Confederacy.

I touched the Tuscumbia pump where Helen Keller first felt the cold splash of knowledge, watched the cars go round and round in Talladega, bet on the dogs in Tuskegee and paid homage to the boll weevil in Enterprise.

This state is like an old Hank Williams song to me — familiar and dear. I know all the words.

So I thought I knew into which column Alabama would fall in the recent presidential election. I was right.

Even with its Southern neighbors running for office as Democrats, Alabama went for President Bush.

You don't have to "Know Alabama" intimately to figure it out. Alabama has been listing right in national elections since Barry Goldwater and court-ordered integration.

Jimmy Carter's Southern suc-

Rheta Grimsley Johnson

cess in 1976 was an exception made possible by the novelty (then) of a candidate with Deep South roots, and high voter turnout in the black community.

But a funny thing happened this go-round. There was no Solid South, that mythical animal that a president, any president, was said to need to win a national election. The South split and the sky didn't fall.

What's more, if Bush had won a Solid South, it wouldn't have changed the final outcome. He had Mississippi, the Carolinas, Florida, Virginia and, of course, Alabama.

You could have added to the Bush column wins in Georgia, Louisiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Missouri and Maryland — all Clinton states — and Bush still would have fallen short of the 270 electoral votes needed to win.

Bill Clinton didn't need the Solid South to win, and George Bush wouldn't have won with it.

Which makes me happy, for a couple of reasons. Winning a Solid South always meant pandering to the worst of my region, and that was true for both Democrats and Republicans.

It meant playing on fear and prejudice. It meant dusting off the old George Wallace rhetoric as did Patrick Buchanan and Ronald Reagan, using the slick, loaded buzz words of the 1980s that had race at their roots: Big Government, quotas, welfare queens, family values.

Now an old hidebound mossback can be regarded as such, not as a pivotal vote to be courted and appeased with racial rhetoric. He can sit on his courthouse bench till the cows come home, and nobody need stop by and kiss his ring and slyly promise to keep the blacks at bay.

Let's face it. My South never has worn the mantle of kingmaker with much grace. Maybe now it can stop seeing itself as a political prize for the most divisive presidential candidate and go back to being the pleasant, unique, bucolic place that it can be when not preoccupied with racial politics.

Alabama's George Wallace has made peace with race and his conscience, now maybe the rest of us can. We don't need a Buchanan holding forth in a Confederate cemetery to remind us of our roots.

What we need is to continue trying to get along, something we do as well or better than any other region these days, at least between presidential elections.

Maybe after this election the Solid South can mean something else. Maybe it can mean a distinctive region with cultural clarity and two races that judge one another only by the content of character.

Maybe the outside agitators will go home.

Saints march against Dolphins

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The NFL's marquee matchup in Week 13 pitted the league's best passing team against the league's best passing defense.

As happens so often in football, the team with the better defense won.

The game was New Orleans vs. Miami at the Superdome. The super defense belonged to the Saints and the super arm belonged to Dan Marino. The outcome of the game — New Orleans 24, Miami 13 — turned on two Marino mistakes.

Robert Goff returned a fumble 28 yards for a touchdown, breaking a 10-10 tie, after Pat Swilling ran into Marino as he was cocking his arm to pass. Vince Buck's 34-yard interception return for another score in the fourth wrapped up the victory.

"We've got some big-play guys on our defense and they all showed up to play in this one," Swilling said. "With this defense, you can count on us getting to anybody." "We don't have just one or two guys that give us a pass rush; we've got a lot of them," linebacker Sam Mills said. "We've got great pass rushers sitting on the bench on this team."

Marino had some measure of success, completing 24 of 42 attempts for 259 yards against a defense that had allowed only one other quarterback to pass for over 200 yards all season. But the turnovers made all the difference.

New Orleans (9-3) stayed a game behind San Francisco; Miami (8-4) stayed a game behind Buffalo. Denver plays at Seattle tonight.

was strapped to a backboard and carted off the field. All-Pro receiver Al Toon retired earlier this week, saying the nine concussions he sustained were enough to convince him to quit. Kansas City (8-4) took a half-game lead in the AFC West over Denver, which plays tonight. Dave Krieg threw for 222 yards and two touchdowns and Nick Lowery made all three of his field goal attempts against the Jets (3-9).

Colts 16
Bills 13 OT

At Indianapolis, Dean Biasucci made a 40-yard field goal to cap the opening drive of overtime to give the Colts (5-7) an upset victory over Buffalo (9-3). Biasucci had tied the game in the final minute of regulation with a 23-yarder, and the Colts then drove 56 yards with the overtime kickoff to set up the game-winner. Colts quarterback Jack Trudeau passed for a season-high 337 yards.

Vikings 31
Rams 17

At Anaheim, Calif., Sean Salisbury finally got his first NFL start after seven years of pro football. He made the most of it, completing 23 of 34 for 238 yards in relief of the benched Rich Gannon. The Vikings (9-3) will win the NFC Central title with their next win or Green Bay's next loss. The defeat was the fourth in the last five games for the Rams (4-8).

Steelers 21
Bengals 9

At Cincinnati, the Bengals' switch from Boomer Esiason to David Klingler didn't do much good. The Steelers (9-3) began to blitz the rookie quarterback after he completed his first five passes, and the defensive unit ended up with a team-record 10 sacks. Barry

Foster, the NFL's leading rusher with 1,319 yards, scored two touchdowns and broke Franco Harris' team rushing record. The Bengals (4-8) are last in the AFC Central.

Browns 27
Bears 14

At Cleveland, Browns quarterback Bernie Kosar returned from a 10-week absence and didn't look too good (8 of 17, 59 yards). Bears quarterback Peter Tom Willis replaced the benched Jim Harbaugh and played pretty well (19 of 26 for 285 yards). Despite that, the Browns (6-6) got big plays from their special teams and defense — a 92-yard interception return and a 75-yard punt return — and sent the Bears (4-8) to their fifth straight loss.

Redskins 41
Cardinals 3

At Washington, the defending Super Bowl champions (7-5) kept their playoff hopes alive. Mark Rypien threw two touchdown passes, Washington's defense was strong as usual and the Cardinals (3-9) committed three turnovers inside the Washington 20 that ended any chance they had to keep the game close. The Redskins' offense, which had scored just two touchdowns in 23 quarters coming in, scored five.

Packers 19
Buccaneers 14

At Milwaukee, Brett Favre found Jackie Harris for the go-ahead touchdown pass in the fourth quarter, and Chris Jacke kicked four field goals as the Packers won their third straight and got into playoff contention. Favre completed 26 of 41 passes for 223 yards and Sterling Sharpe, the NFL's leading receiver, had nine catches, giving him 363 for his career — the most ever in a player's first five years. Tampa Bay (4-8) lost for the seventh time in eight games.

Falcons 34
Patriots 0

At Atlanta, the Falcons put an abrupt end to New England's two-game winning streak. The defense set the tone for Atlanta, getting two fumble recoveries, two interceptions by Deion Sanders and five sacks, with Darion Conner in on three of them. Atlanta (5-7) held the Patriots (2-10) to 105 yards, 90 on the ground.

Chargers 27
Raiders 3

San Diego (7-5) scooped up two fumbles — one in the end zone — and picked off a pass in a victory over Los Angeles (5-7) that extended their win streak to three. The Raiders' Eric Dickerson had only three yards in the second half after gaining 100 in the first.

49ers 20
Eagles 14

At San Francisco, the 49ers (10-2) clinched a playoff spot and Jerry Rice tied Steve Largent's record of 100 career touchdown catches when he caught a 22-yarder in the first period. The 49ers seemed preoccupied with finding Rice again in the end zone for the record-breaker, and it almost cost them the game. A drive by the Eagles (7-5) in the closing seconds ended at the 49ers' 10 when Philadelphia was less than an inch short of a first down.

Teaff to get one more chance

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Newly named Baylor coach Chuck Reedy is going to defer taking over the Bears' sidelines for one game, relinquishing the role to predecessor Grant Teaff for a surprise bowl berth.

The Bears earned a spot in the John Hancock Bowl in El Paso on Dec. 31 when Houston defeated Rice on Saturday, two days after Texas lost to Texas A&M.

Because neither Texas nor Rice had six wins against Division I-A competition, the Bears joined the Aggies as the only Southwest Conference schools eligible for a bowl berth.

The Bowl Coalition II guarantees a second SWC team a place among the Gator, Blockbuster or Hancock bowls.

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — The Howard College Hawks won three games at the Hutchinson Classic, concluding it with a 87-65 win over Rose State College, Okla. Saturday.

The Hawks previously beat No. 4 ranked Champlin, Vt. 77-61 and Hutchinson 78-65 in the Classic. Howard is 12-1 for the season.

Mark David led Howard with 18 points. Juan Gay and reco Burt scored 13 points each.

"It was a lot tougher than the scored indicated," said Howard assistant Ronnie Dean of the three wins. "Our kids went on effort and heart and coach Kidder (HC head coach Jeff Kidder) did a heck-of-a job coaching."

Howard will be at home Tuesday when they play the Abilene Christian University junior varsity at 7:30 p.m.

Stewart wins Skins Game

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Payne Stewart made a 2½-foot birdie putt Sunday on the first playoff hole — the par-3, 166-yard 17th — for a $120,000 skin to win in the Skins Game for the second year in a row.

Stewart won $190,000 Sunday, giving him $220,000 for two days' work at the Bighorn Golf Club.

Jets defensive end breaks neck

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — New York Jets defensive end Dennis Byrd suffered paralysis in his lower body Sunday after colliding with teammate Scott Mersereau and breaking a vertebrae.

Jets spokesman Frank Ramos said Byrd had fractured his C-5 vertebrae, which Ramos said "in layman's terms is a broken neck."

"Nothing is changed in his paralysis," Ramos said Sunday night. "He still has no use of his legs and partial use of his arms."

Byrd was undergoing tests from the spinal surgeons Sunday night at Lenox Hill Hospital in New York. Ramos said a decision on whether to operate would be made either later Sunday night or Monday.

Ramos said that it normally takes 48 to 72 hours for doctors to assess damage, and described the player as in stable condition. Ramos said no prognosis was available.

On the second play of the third quarter, Mersereau and Byrd charged Kansas City Chiefs quarterback Dave Krieg, who fumbled. The two Jets ran directly into each other, and Byrd's helmet appeared to smack directly into Mersereau's chest and shoulder.

"I was coming from the outside on a stunt and I went to grab Krieg," Mersereau said. "As I stepped up, the next thing I know, I was hit in the sternum. At first I didn't even know who hit me."

"The hit was hard enough to bend me over backward. When I found out it was Dennis — well, my thoughts, my heart and my prayers went out to him."

"It's really hard to see something like that. You think about it and you think about it, then your competitive nature takes over." Mersereau walked off the field, but Byrd stayed on the turf. He was lifted on a stretcher and placed on a golf cart, surrounded by trainers and doctors.

"It makes you reflect on how fragile things are and what is important and what's not," said Jets coach Bruce Coslet. "Our hopes and prayers are to wish Dennis the best. Our prayers are with him. He's fighting it right now."

"Don't jump to conclusions. He's one tough son of a gun."

Byrd, 26 and in his fourth NFL season, missed the first month of the season with a shoulder injury.

"If I know Dennis," said rookie Mario Johnson, who replaced Byrd after the injury, "he'll be walking into this locker room before long."

"Now, I'm going to live every day to the fullest. Nothing ever going to make me feel sad again."

Flutie leads Calgary to Grey Cup title

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doug Flutie completed 33 of 49 passes for 480 yards and two touchdowns as the Calgary Stampeders beat the Winnipeg Blue Bombers 24-10 Sunday night to win the Grey Cup, the championship of the Canadian Football League.

Flutie became the first player since Russ Jackson in 1969 to be named most valuable player of the regular season and the playoffs. The title was the third for Calgary following championships in 1948 and 1971.

"Offensively, we just executed well," Flutie said. "The offensive line did the job, they gave me time to pass. This is a great, great feeling."

Just 45,863 attended the game in SkyDome, the lowest attendance for the Grey Cup since 1975, when a capacity crowd of 32,454 watched in Calgary's McMahon Stadium.

Winnipeg quarterback Matt Dunigan completed just 6 of 19 passes for 47 yards. Michael Richardson of Winnipeg, the league's rushing champion, gained just 27 yards.

Calgary, which lost 36-21 to the Toronto Argonauts in last year's Grey Cup, scored on its first three possessions and took an 11-0 lead.

Flutie threw 39 yards to Derrick Crawford on the opening play from scrimmage and Mark McLoughlin kicked a 37-yard field goal four plays later. A 41-yard pass to Crawford led to a single point when McLoughlin missed a field-goal attempt from the 50.

Exercises are performed to music participants grew up with and in water because the buoyancy makes movement easier and reduces impact on the body. Once a month the class has a social that includes anything from a luncheon to a shopping trip. "It's also a lift mentally," Loushine said. "We try to do a lot of things with them to keep them from sitting at home."

Lotto

Continued from Page 1A. Besides the jackpot winner, lotto players win money for matching from three to five numbers. For Saturday's drawing, 152 tickets matched five of the six numbers. They are worth $1,575 each. Lottery officials said 11,052 tickets matched four numbers and will pay $78 each. Another 204,080 tickets displayed three winning numbers and are worth $3 each. The next lotto drawing is Wednesday, when the estimated jackpot is a guaranteed minimum of $2 million. In the Nov. 25 lotto drawing, lottery Director Nora Linares said there was an attempt at fraud. She said several people claimed they had purchased tickets with those winning numbers before the drawing, but computer records showed the tickets were sold after the drawing time. She said officials have not decided whether to prosecute.

Deaths

Grace McCasland
 Grace McCasland, 87, Big Spring, died Saturday, Nov. 29, 1992 in a local hospital.

Graveside services were 2 p.m. today at Lawnhaven Memorial Gardens, San Angelo with the Rev. Billy Smith, Baptist minister, Lubbock, and the Rev. Gary Smith, First Church of the Nazarene, Big Spring, officiating. Arrangements by Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

She was born Dec. 18, 1904 in Bristow County. She married M.G. McCasland in Dec. 1935 in Stonewall County. He preceded her in death in 1964. She and her late husband came to Big Spring in 1961 from San Angelo. She had worked civil service at Goodfellow AFB in San Angelo and at Webb AFB for a number of years. She later worked for Woolworth's until the store closed and she retired.

Survivors include one sister, Jocia Singleton, Big Spring; three nephews: Charles Holder and

Care

Continued from Page 1A. Wallace and SMMC Administrator David Wiley say having patients come from the surrounding areas allows the hospital and staff to provide more for local residents. "The physicians staffed receive about 40 percent of their patients from Midland, Odessa, Sterling City, Snyder, San Angelo and other nearby cities," Wiley said. "Big Spring is extremely lucky to have the size of medical staff it has." Wiley attributes the medical staff available locally to the facilities. SMMC has an Intensive Care/Cardiac Care Unit, surgery facilities with five operating rooms, cystoscopy room, orthopedic room and eight-bed recovery room. The obstetrics department offers the "Special Moments" program for a family-centered birthing experience. The unit has two labor rooms, two delivery rooms, two birthing rooms and a 16-bed nursery. Amenities include a hot tub in the room, candle-lit dinners and car seat. Other departments and units include radiology; gastroenterology laboratory; Reflections, geriatric psycho-social program; physical therapy unit; Home Health Services and a 24-hour emergency room. SMMC recently hired 50 direct care givers, Wiley said. The hospital completed renovated the third floor west wing and plan to renovate the other wings. Four of the physicians with privileges at SMMC are office at Hall-Bennett Clinic. Three of the doctors are general practitioners and the fourth is a pediatrician. The clinic has an X-ray department, laboratory and physical therapy department. Joe Bowman, clinic administrator, agrees with Wiley about Big Spring residents health care being met by local physicians. "The wide array of services available through the clinic and the hospital are meeting the need," he said. Aside the facilities and staff at Hall-Bennett and SMMC, Big Spring residents also have available the Big Spring Specialty Clinic with three visiting physicians specializing in obstetrics/gynecology, neurosurgery and ear, nose and throat. For veterans in the area, health care needs are met by the Big Spring V.A. Medical Center with its 249-bed facility and more than 20 physicians. Of the 249 beds, 209 are acute medical rooms and the other 40 rooms are in the center's nursing home unit. Medical Arts Clinic; Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center; and Howard County Mental Health Clinic provide other medical services in the area.

Briefs

KING WILLIAM'S TOWN, South Africa — The armed wing of the black militant group claimed responsibility today for a gun and grenade attack that killed four whites at a country club Christmas party, police said. A caller claiming to be from the Azanian People's Liberation Army telephoned police this morning and said it carried out Saturday night's massacre, said police Lt. Col. Christo Louw. The APLA is the military wing of the Pan Africanist Congress, a relatively small black militant group whose youthful supporters often shout "One settler, one bullet" at rallies, a reference to whites. The congress has boycotted black-white talks on ending apartheid, calling them a ploy by the white government to cling to power.

OAKLAND, Calif. — It's the end today for the Pulitzer Prize-winning Oakland Tribune — and the beginning, too. The 118-year-old, financially strapped newspaper puts out its last edition published by Robert C. Maynard, and ends its life as the nation's only black-owned major daily. But it's to return Tuesday, under the aegis of the Alameda Newspaper Group. "Pound for pound, it's the best paper in the Bay area — the best people," city editor Paul Raess told staffers at a post-deadline party Sunday night. "No place I go will ever measure up to this place."

MOSCOW — Russia's Constitutional Court today upheld Boris Yeltsin's ban on the Communist Party, but it also opened the door for former Communists to reclaim some of the party's property.

Continued from Page 1A. Angelo. "About 15 percent of our patients will need medical attention not provided by our physicians," Bowman said. SMMC brings in specialists from Lubbock and other cities with large medical facilities to provide additional training for their staff physicians. "We bring in specialists as consultants to hold clinics on evasive cardiology and neurology to give advise to the doctors," Wiley said. Wiley and Bowman said most patients are referred back to local physician after a procedure or treatment is completed by a specialist. "Our physicians do the diagnoses and we also do the follow-up," Wiley said. Because SMMC is a secondary health care facility, it can not provide specialized services like that of a tertiary facility. An example of a tertiary facility is the Texas Tech Medical School, M.D. Anderson in Houston or University of Texas Medical Center in Galveston.

Trying to make a difference

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Everyone needs a little encouragement from time to time, and Linda Baker fosters such good feelings both at home and at work. Baker, a Big Spring resident since she was 11, is the mother of three.

She works at Malone and Hogan Clinic as an administrative assistant in areas such as personnel, grievances and employee insurance.

"I'm a people person and I like to feel I'm making a difference. Whatever type of person you are reflects on people," she said. "I try to be supportive of my hometown."

She is married to Don, an independent contractor. Their children are: 14-year-old Marc, a Big Spring High School freshman; 20-year-old Craig and 18-year-old Meredith, a BSHS senior.

"I try to be involved with them — their activities, to encourage them, to give them a religious foundation and to give them a feeling of self worth in the family," she said.

She taught fourth-grade Sunday school for 11 years. Baker said she tries to support others in all areas of her life.

"You have to be positive," she said. "I remember something I heard from a seminar that really stayed with me — 'Let's Have a Gratitude Attitude.'"

She is soon to begin a personal sales business, an exciting prospect for Baker.

"It's something else I know I can build if I work at it," she said. "It's how much time you spend on it."

One area Baker takes pride in spending much time is her marriage. In June she and her husband will have been married 25 years.

"He was my high school sweetheart," Baker recalled. Her feelings about lasting marriages spill over into her work philosophy.

"Better communication is important," she said. "It's true with anything anywhere. You've got to work together."

Because she handles matters dealing with personnel, she said her role is more than just doing paperwork.

"You always have to realize how you're coming across to people. I want them to know how important they are because they spend so much time on their jobs, that whatever happens here, they take home with them," she said. "So, I try to keep them 'up' here, so they go home 'up.'"

Her encouragement does not end when she goes home.

"I think the mother controls the feeling in the home with her attitude," she said. "I feel like I should be the encourager."

She enjoys reading fiction novels and loves to peruse through the Dallas Morning News. She also enjoys playing "42" with friends.

She had been secretary of American Little League Baseball for three years, and now works in the Howard College Hawk Club.

She said she plans to become more active in the community.

"I would like to be more supportive of groups in Big Spring such as the symphony, the art center and the Heritage Museum," she said. "We have a lot of people who work hard who need our support."

Baker said she doesn't try to tackle worldly issues, but to enhance the lives around her.

"I have never been motivated to set the world on fire, but rather am content to take care of my own little part of it," she said. "It's important to bloom where you're planted."

Linda Baker takes time to make a difference in the lives of others — at home, at work and in other activities.

New library books: Trends, true crime, science fiction

New books at the Howard County Library this month include the following:

After the War was Over by Neil Sheehan.

Sheehan returns to Vietnam in 1989, one year after he published his masterpiece A Bright Shining Lie. This is the story of that trip; his first visit to Hanoi where he talks with soldiers and politicians who won the war. A book filled with insight, and emotion, it paints a memorable portrait of a country still reeling from the effects of American intervention.

The Popcorn Report by Faith Popcorn.

This trend forecaster has successfully predicted the demand for fresh foods, home delivery, four-wheel drives and the failure of "new Coke". In her latest book she offers ideas for new products to create, new businesses to start and new markets to capture. She also describes what impact these changes will have on your habits at home, at work and at play.

The Blood of the Lamb by Thomas F. Monteleone.

This novel centers on Peter Carezza, a charismatic priest working on Brooklyn when he discovers that he has miraculous powers — to heal the sick, raise the dead and to walk unscathed through fire. Following the discovery in Rome that his powers are not a simple act of God but are instead a scientific experiment, inspired by vision and prophecy, he flees to America with the intention of vanishing into its' heartland. He soon finds himself at the forefront of a growing mobile congregation whose odyssey of healing, preaching and other miracles is televised to a waiting world.

Mobius Unbound by John Brunner.

human stock by the greatest feat of technology ever achieved, the Ship. With the passage of time, the Ship endures but has changed in ways that even its' computer mind cannot fathom — it had become as conscious and lonely as any human being! The colonies all shared a truth about the Ship's own nature — a truth that might be an echo across time that could turn tragedy into the greatest human triumph.

A Woman's Eye introduced and edited by Sara Paretzky.

Paretzky says this book "gathers together a sample of what women have to say about women in the final decade of the century." Authors such as Liza Cody, Dorothy B. Hughes, Nancy Pickard and Kinsey Millhone are included in this collection of twenty-one different stories which present contemporary crime through women's eyes.

Retreat from the Finland Station by Kenneth Murphy.

Murphy traces the decline of Marxism from the beginning of the revolution in 1917 through the current times. The breakdown arose from the conviction that liberty and state control would be natural partners in the new utopian order. He discusses the lives of several Soviet leaders and details how their idealistic vision spawned a world of want, anger, terror and death.

Black Water by Joyce Carol Oates.

Oates has taken a shocking story that has become an American myth and turned it into novel full of illumination and electrical power. A rented Toyota, the fourth of July party on the island, the fast ride, the skidding brakes, the handsome Senator and finally — the black water. The young woman, fatally attracted to the Senator, relates her story that echoes with the dimension of classic tragedy as she seems to speak for women drawn to the power that certain men command.

A Posse of Outlaws by Howard Pelham.

Les Remick, a former law enforcement officer, is now the most dangerous kind of bounty hunter. Since the tragic loss of his wife seven years ago, he has roamed the country without joy and meaning to his life and he would secretly welcome an assassin's bullet. Plagued by conscience and against his better judgment, he attempts to protect the widow of his latest victim — Rose Brown. Now that the hunter has become the hunted, anything can happen.

AUSTIN — Daniel Hart wasn't intimidated when the newest member of the Texas House walked into his office to get a picture made for the official special session portrait.

Rep. Tom Ramsey, D-Mount Vernon, wanted to talk about his election, but Hart was ready to work.

He sat Ramsey down, handed him a small metallic cylinder in a brown leather case and told him to put it against his upper lip while he adjusted the camera.

Seconds later Ramsey looked like he was on stage doing a bad Groucho Marx imitation with Hart directing the show. It was vintage Daniel Hart: a simultaneous mix of mischief, good-natured humor and hard work.

Too bad he couldn't see it for himself.

For almost 12 years, Hart has been one of the first contacts new lawmakers, journalists and legislative staff make at the Texas Capitol. From a crowded office in the main basement, he uses a system he created to make identification cards that people need for access to the House and Senate chambers.

Hart developed his own system for centering and focusing the camera by using a light probe. During a normal legislative year, Hart makes 1,800 to 2,000 cards.

"If you get the right person in here," it can be a lot of fun, Hart said. "They're going to say, 'Well, a blind person wouldn't tell me the wrong thing to do; he's not capable of that.' If it's someone sort of dingy, they will put it (the light meter) anywhere."

Construction workers fill the deserted halls outside Hart's office these days as the $150 million Capitol restoration project nears the halfway point.

A four-story underground annex that will house key committee rooms, a cafeteria, press facilities and offices for 10 senators and 99 representatives is almost finished, and longtime employees already are complaining about the maze of corridors, stairwells and passages they have to learn to navigate.

Not Hart.

He doesn't know where his new office will be, but when the time comes he plans to make the move in stride. In fact, questions about he will adjust to the new surroundings seem to irritate him.

"If I can go to New York City by myself or Germany by myself, why should a hole in the ground be a problem," Hart said. "I bet I pay more attention to where I am going than you do. I better, if I'm going to get my butt out of here."

Hart shares many of the same concerns state employees frequently voice. He says he thinks he's underpaid and wishes he had better equipment. He also says that being visually impaired has stifled his career.

"I feel I haven't been given the same opportunities as a sighted person might have been," he said. "A lot of people are almost afraid of a person with an impairment and are threatened by that."

Ironically, he says, the word "invisible" describes how he's often treated by sighted people.

In 1981, the Texas House hired Hart as a copy machine operator at a monthly salary of about $523. He was an honors student at Athens High School and attended a few semesters of junior college before taking the job.

A few months later, the two people who made identification cards retired, and he took over the job on his own initiative.

"I just started doing it," he said. "No one ever acknowledged it until I went up and told the boss one day that it wasn't just happening. (I said) people weren't coming down there, and the cards weren't jumping out of the desk and the typewriter wasn't doing it by itself."

Hart said he asked for a raise, because the people who had the job before him was making about $1,500 a month each, but all he got was an extra $50.

"I still don't make that ($1,500 a month)," he said. In taking over the job, Hart came up with a light probe system for centering and focusing the camera. Ask him how he knew about the equipment, and his reply is to the point.

"Common sense," he said. "You know what equipment is available to do what," he said. "You just figure out a way to use it to do what you want it to do. It may not have been designed for what you are using it for, but if it will work for that, you use it for that."

Some of the changes he's made have streamlined the system, such as using a new camera that takes the four picture he needs with one shot.

"One reason I bought it was most of the press is very vain, and they want to stand there and look over their pictures for 10 minutes before they pick the one for their card."

Hart said. "That put an end to that and sped up the process a whole lot."

To supplement his income, Hart began taking classes several years ago to learn massage therapy.

After more than 400 hours of training, he was licensed by the state. He specializes in helping severely injured people, especially those with head trauma.

"If someone is not there to do some heavy-duty work at the time of the injury, they can lose a joint — not because it was injured in a wreck or something fell on it, but the calcification process starts and can take place anywhere in the body."

He says he hopes to further that career and one day move completely into some phase of the medical profession.

Student tutors his principal in Spanish

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

EL PASO — Jesus Chavez's rapid-fire drill often stumps his school principal at Roosevelt Elementary.

"Que es esto?" he asks, reeling off a Spanish vocabulary list: la maleta, el saco, la cartera, el pantalón, las medias.

His student, Sandra Stone, momentarily halts the lesson in the school library, "Wait a minute Jesus, what are those things?"

Jesus hesitates a little before translating las medias, then replies, "Ladies things." He means panty hose.

Jesus is an 11-year-old fifth grader at Roosevelt School in South El Paso. He tutors Stone — the school's principal — once a week, teaching her basic Spanish.

Stone doesn't mind switching roles. "It's crucial that I learn. I want to get to a point where I don't need a translator," she said.

Jesus works with the Jesuit Language School, a network of volunteers organized by the Rev. Austin Park of South El Paso's Sacred Heart Church.

Stone is trying to become proficient so that she'll communicate better with parents and students whose dominant home language is Spanish.

Jesus sticks around after school every Thursday and drills the principal for about an hour. He also tutors once a week at Loretto Academy in Central El Paso.

"She's learning quickly," Jesus said of Stone's progress. Stone has tried formal Spanish lessons before. She said this time she's learning more because the lessons are more individualized. Stone is not immune from homework. For every hour that she's tutored, she has to spend another hour writing in Spanish.

Jesus is generous with compliments, offering a "muy bien" when Stone figures out a word or phrase she didn't understand. "He's taught me a lot about patience and understanding," Stone said.

Jesus teaches the lessons mostly in Spanish, switching to English only when Stone gets stuck. He knows first hand the difficulties of learning a second language. He struggled with English when he first enrolled at Aoy School down the street.

Jesus's idealism doesn't end at school. He often volunteers after school and weekends, helping collect food for poor families.

"When I don't help somebody, I get bored," he said.

Paula Poundstone

Politics best source of humor

By JOE MEYERS
 Thomson News Service

The end of the Reagan-Bush era has left some comics fearing that they've lost one of their best sources of humor, but Paula Poundstone says she hopes what occurs in Washington starting January is no laughing matter.

"My hope is that he (Bill Clinton) is the least humorous guy to come down the pike. I'd like for things to go well," Poundstone said in a recent phone interview from her home in Santa Monica, Calif.

"I'd like for there to be nothing to make fun of (in Washington). I'll talk about my cats, or reminisce about Bush," she added.

Although Poundstone often builds her performances around more personal topics (like her six cats and her love of Pop Tarts) that are not overtly political, she says it would be impossible for her not to deal with what happens in Washington.

"I don't bill myself as a political comic, in particular, but I'm a 32-year-old woman, so I think it would unacceptable to have no interest (in politics) at all," she said.

Unlike other stand-up comics, Poundstone deals more in anecdote and commentary than jokes. One San Francisco critic recently noted, "An evening with (Poundstone) is not so much an evening of stand-up as it is a startling look at the workings of an extraordinary mind."

A Cosmopolitan writer praised the fact that Poundstone eschews much of the subject matter that audiences expect from funny women:

"(She) may be a comedy watershed: she's a female who isn't obsessed with sex, dieting, housework, dating, or relationships."

The comedian is also especially prized for the absence of the nastiness and off-color shock tactics that often pass for wit in today's comedy clubs.

Poundstone said she's never quite understood the performers, like Andrew Dice Clay, who claim they're "just playing a character" when they fill the air with obscenities and attacks on various minority groups.

She said she once followed a comic who used nastiness to whip his audience into a cheering frenzy and then came backstage to tell her how awful he felt about what he did.

"I have to admit that I would love to get a response like that from an audience, but I told him, 'Look you have to take some responsibility. If you're gonna do that, do it, but don't talk to me about it,'" she recalled.

Even a short phone conversation with Poundstone makes it clear that her humorous, affectionate stage patter about her cats is no act.

"Did you hear that?" Poundstone asked after one of her pets made a particularly noisy bid for attention.

"Would you believe I'm taking (one of the cats) to a vet for acne? It's something that happens with white cats. Now she has a black chin so I'm buying Clearasil for cats."

Wife with herpes: Expose husband to truth

Jacqueline Bigar

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "Sinned and Sorry," I had to write. I can identify with her, particularly with regard to the possible C-section due to her genital herpes.

When I met my husband 10 years ago, I knew he would be the father of my children. We now have three - all born naturally - even though I, too, was faced with the possibility of a C-section because I have genital herpes.

"Sinned and Sorry" should educate herself on her condition. She should know that even though herpes is incurable, it is manageable.

She should tell her husband she has genital herpes. I realized early in our relationship that we would have a special life together and I didn't want anything to ruin it, so I told him the truth regarding my condition. It was a tremendous relief. He appreciated my courage and honesty and wasn't vindictive, although I know he was disappointed. Since then, our marriage has been normal and healthy, and with meticulous hygiene on my part, my husband is virus-free.

What "Sinned and Sorry" does not need right now is the added stress of keeping her secret. It won't help her pregnancy or the herpes.

Finally, she needs to forgive herself for her previous promiscuity. She's paid her dues. Soul-searching with a counselor will no doubt reveal a sensitive and loving woman who needs to give love and be loved in a strong family environment, complete with children. No name or city, please. Just sign me ... DEAN THERE

DEAR BEEN THERE: My mail has been running 50-50 concerning whether or not to tell her spouse. I, too, feel that she should not hide the truth from him. You raise an excellent point: She should educate herself about the disease.

For reliable information on sexually transmitted diseases, write to: The American Social Health Association (ASHA), P.O. Box 13827, Research Triangle Park, N.C. 29940.

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice on a very delicate situation at my house.

Whenever I call one of my local relatives on the phone, her husband shamelessly listens in on the extension. At times, he has even corrected something his wife has said, or added something to it. I find this very irritating. Apparently, his wife doesn't mind because she has never asked him to please get off the phone.

Abby, I do not call this relative to have a three-way conversation with her husband. Furthermore, I think this is a blatant invasion of my privacy. Sometimes I may want to tell her something in confidence.

Any suggestions you can offer will be greatly appreciated. -- MABLE IN MOBILE

DEAR MABLE: Tell your relative that you are uncomfortable and sometimes inhibited about telephone conversations with her - and tell her why. Be up-front; tell her that while she may have no objections, you have.
