Experiencing the true Christmas spirit

By JOHN H. WALKER Managing Editor

OJINAGA, Chih., Mexico - As children, we learn Christmas is a time for giving, sharing and love. As we age, we hope we can keep the true spirit of Christmas in our

And sometimes the spirit of Christmas itself takes over and directs us in such a way that we can do nothing but experience the true meaning of the season. This special Christmas story is one shared by eight Big Spring men and it happened not on Christmas Day, but during the Christmas season, 1992.

Ojinaga, or 'OJ' as the locals call it, is a typical Mexican border town. It offers shopping, liquor stores, cut-rate dental clinics and other things associated with border

And like most border towns, it has its share of poverty.

In an economy where pennies are important, it is not easy for parents to raise a family - especially when there are a number of children. As a result, the children sometimes fall by the wayside as the parents fend for their own survival.

Last Wednesday, a group of eight Big Spring Rotarians — seven from the Tuesday club and one from Friday - made the trip to Ojinaga to share Christmas with 27 youngsters that had been left at the side of the road. Actually, some of them would have been luckier to have been left on the side of the road. One little 3-year-old boy had been left with his grandmother. When the grandmother tired of his crying, she threw him against the wall.

"His head was broken," explained Miguel Torres.

Miguel founded a children's home in Ojinaga, offering a shelter for at least some of the children of the street.

Last Wednesday, there were 27 youngsters. They ranged in age from 2 to 16. They had been battered and abused and neglected. The lucky ones had simply been

Lull in donations hurting programs

Salvation Army fundraisers are feeling the pinch

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

A lull in donations this holiday season will have an overall effect on the Salvation Army services provided locally next year.

Commanding Officer Lt. Albert Villafuerte said the Salvation Army's annual fundraising efforts are not bringing in the money needed to sustain next year's programs. The goal is $42,000, but Villafuerte is pessimistic about meeting it. The Mail Appeal Program and bell ringers accepting kettle donations are the thrust of the fundraising. A week before Thanksgiving, individuals and members of organizations man kettles at local retail stores ringing bells and asking for donations. At the same time, more than 1,100 letters are mailed also asking for donations.

Villafuerte says the kettle donations are coming in steadily, but the Mail Appeal Program is significantly down. "We have received more than $5,000 in kettle donations at this time," he said. "But out of the 1,100 letters we received about 300."

He added that of the 300 donations he has received they have been considerably lower in amount also. "Donors who have given in the past between $200 to $300 are giving this year $50 to $75.'

So far the agency has received between $18,000 to $20,000 from the mail appeal.

Villafuerte attributes the individual amount decreases to the state of the economy and the large number of non-profit organizations needing funding assistance.

With Christmas five days away, time is an important factor to reaching the goal. "Christmas is all ready upon us," Villafuerte said. "Once Christmas is gone, people stop giving.

Accidents on Gregg Street as compiled by

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Vehicle accidents on Gregg Street so far this year have not increased over 1991, and with the year almost over, any increase would apparently be insignificant, indicate Big Spring Police Department figures.

Information compiled by police at the request of city officials last week shows 95 accidents for last year and 93 so far this year. Information obtained by the Big Spring Herald Friday on those figures do not indicate dates for this year.

"As a result of this analysis we see no trend regarding an increase in accidents on Gregg Street," said City Manager Lanny Lambert in a memo to the Big Spring City Coun-cil Friday. "Please look and see if you see any trend that should warrant a traffic flow change on Gregg intersections but excluding those solely in parking lots. Police spokeswoman Lt. Pam Jordan said Friday she would check on details and criteria of the police study but did not call back. Police looked at wrecks going back five years following a Dec. 13 Herald story on accidents the past two years. That study showed accidents on Gregg from Jan. 29 through November increased from 102 last year to 118, 15.7 percent. Accidents citywide decreased from 596 to 521 in the same period. A 40 mph speed limit, up from 30 and 35 mph, took effect Jan. 27.

But looking at the last five years, 1991 had the largest increase of accidents on Gregg from the year before, up from 71 in 1990, the year with the lowest number of accidents. The year with the highest number was 1989 with 97. There were 82 in 1988. Figures on citywide accidents were not included.

United Way not meeting their fundraising goal is also a concern to Villafuerte. The Salvation Army received about $32,551 from United Way for the 1991-92 fiscal year, according to a previous Big Spring Herald article. This year United Way has pledged $33,000 to the Salvation Army, but the figure may be decreased if the United Way does not meet its goal.

United Way Executive Director Sherrie Bordofske said if they do not meet their goal a cut straight across the board will be made at a board meeting Jan. 21.

Rollover claims six lives

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

FORNEY — Six people were killed early today in a one-vehicle rollover about 20 miles east of Dallas, the Department of Public Safety said.

DPS spokesman Mike Cox said two children survived. The six fatalities, from Terrell and Lone Oak, were adults.

Only one of the eight people in the Chevy Suburban was wearing a seat belt, and he was among the fatalities. Cox said.

The accident happened at 12:08 a.m. on eastbound Highway 80, just east of Forney. The vehicle hit a guardrail, then a concrete retaining wall, before it overturned, said Cox.

Weather was not a factor in the accident, although fog rolled into North Texas a few hours later, according to Cox.

Michael Hickman, 11, of Terrell was in good condition at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas, spokeswoman Raji Puthanpurayel said. His 12-year-old brother, Jeff Hickman, was in guarded condition.

Since there were more than five fatalities, the National Transportation Safety Board will investigate the crash.

The fatalities were Tammy Diane Whitfield, 22, of Terrell, whose birthday was Friday; the driver, Kenneth Ray Hickman Jr, 37, of Terrell; Chadwick Shane Hayes, 20, of Terrell; Karen Metz Hickman, 42, from Terrell; Stanley Dale Miller, 39, from Lone Oak, who was wearing a seat belt; and Kathy Jo Miller, 36, from Lone

The cause of the accident was still unknown by mid-morning, but Cox said alcohol was not believed to have been a factor.

"We have a witness who was traveling a short distance behind the Suburban. That witness says the Suburban slowly drifted off the roadway. They saw no brake lights, said Cox.

He had no immediate information on where the victims had been or where they were bound. Cox also could not immediately detail if the victims were related.

Houston officer indicted for rape

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — A Houston police officer has been indicted on a charge of sexually assaulting a woman he stopped on a traffic violation.

Calvin Potter, 37, was indicted by a grand jury Friday, Harris County Assistant District Attorney Alice Brown said.

Potter, a Houston police officer since 1984, is accused in the Nov. 8 rape of a 23-year-old woman. The officer allegedly stopped the woman as she was driving and claimed she committed a traffic violation.

Prosecutors said he then took the woman's driver's license and insurance card and told her to follow him. They drove to a parking garage on the edge of downtown, where he allegedly raped and sodomized her before letting her

"We are alleging the assault took place inside the police car," Ms. Brown said.

Metal found in Ivory; bars pulled

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS - About 400 bars of Ivory soap have been pulled from one store's shelves after a man claimed he was cut by metal contained in a bar purchased there.

A Pace Membership Warehouse pulled the soap from the shelves Friday after Scott Houser was treated at a hospital for about 15 superficial cuts.

Store manager Brian Collins said Friday he had not received any other complaints about foreign objects in soap.

Houser said he was showering Thursday with the soap when he noticed he was covered with blood from the cuts.

After a call to 911 and a trip to the hospital, Houser discovered a sharp piece of metal from protruding from his cake of soap.

"I guess that with the hot water running, I didn't fell them at first," said the 27-year-old hotel waiter, who said he bought the bar of soap

Some people believe that part of the reason for the onslaught may be a perception by attorneys that cases not filed in 1992 cannot participate in the combined pretrial proceedings already under way.

Although the cases are assigned to various Harris County state district courts, state District Judge Ann Tyrrell Cochran is heading the pretrial proceedings for all those filed in 1992. By last month, more than 100 attorneys were involved in the proceedings.

Fed law makes recorded sales pitches illegal

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Next time you receive a sales pitch by telephone from a recorded voice, grab a pen-cil and paper. It could be worth $500 to $1,500 in damages.

Recorded telemarketing calls will be against federal law starting Sunday, unless the recipient has previously given the company permission to call.

Solicitations from non-profit groups or political pollsters will still be allowed under the law, as will computerized telephone alert systems notifying people about community emergencies.

And real people can continue to sell by phone, but they must obey if you tell them not to call again.

The rules the Federal Communications Commission devised to enforce the law are not as strict as its prime sponsor Sen. Larry Pressler, R-S.D., wanted.

"A national database with the names of consumers choosing not to receive telemarketing calls would be the most effective method of privacy protection," he said.

But Michael Jacobson of the Center for the Study of Commer-customed to complaining, so they can prevent future calls and so they can possibly be compensated for them.

He advises consumers who receive recorded sales pitches to write down the name of the caller, its phone number and the date and time of the call.

File a complaint with the Federal Communications Commission by calling 202-632-7553 or writing Enforcement Division, Room 6202, Washington, D.C. 20554. Include as much information as you can about the call.

-Call in or write a complaint to your state attorney general if the caller is from your state.

-File a lawsuit in state court against the company that made the call. You can seek up to $500 in damages for each call; triple the damages might be available for willful or knowing violations of the

Also write down the company, date, time and names of the "live" sales callers so you can keep track of whether they're calling back against your orders.

Cisneros pick a good choice

The selection of former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros to be secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development is an excellent move by President-elect Bill Clinton.

Mr. Cisneros, as a former multi-term mayor of a metropolitan city, has a level of insight into the task at hand at HUD.

The problems at Housing and Urban Development are well-known and, based on published reports, apparently

We believe Mr. Cisneros has the ability to effectively manage the agency in a fair and cost-effective manner. The fact that Mr. Cisneros is Hispanic, we feel, further enhances his appointment. Because of the problems facing members of minority communities, it is important that President-elect Clinton sought a member of a minority to fill the post.

Personal knowledge of Mr. Cisneros leads us to believe that his background, both as a mayor and as a minority, will allow him to administer the agency in a fair and impartial manner to members of all races.

Mr. Cisneros' appointment, just like that of Lloyd Bentsen, is good for Texas and Texans alike.

Again, we applaud Mr. Clinton for his selection of Mr. Cisneros.

Other voices:

For the second election in a row, the American people have voted for an "environmental president" Next to the economy, the environment is of prime concern to the electorate. Ironically, the very popularity of environmentalism has led to abuses. In the last four years the Environmental Protection Agency Superfund has been successfully prosecuted for fraud . . . and environmentalists are quarreling among themselves. Environmentalists cannot afford to erode the idealism of their cause, either through the greed of those who play the Green Revolution for profit or the stubbornness of those who contend too self-righteously for power

If President-elect Clinton is to live up to his ambition . . . he must provide far more than jawbone leadership. He must get EPA's cleanup job up to speed . . . (and) make defining environmental goals a task worthy of cabinet status.

It looks as though this year's banking profits will set a record, and that will ease a major concern for the incoming Clinton administration as it sets to work to get the economy growing faster. While there isn't going to be a return to the free-and-easy lending habits of the mid-1980s, the atmosphere of panic among borrowers is abating. The great cycle of bank failures . . . (isn't) yet over four banks failed on Friday. That brings the year's total to 118, a substantial toll. But it's far short of the peak of 206 failures in 1989

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, reporting their latest profit figures, concluded (banks) will be ready to lend as the business recovery picks up next year (without lowering the required capital margins that would again) make them less safe.

We asked:

Do you plan to spend more, less or the same on gifts this Christmas?

"I'll spend the same because I'm in the same financial situation as I was last year. I wish I could spend some more, but the economy is soft."

Jesse Bravo

"I'm spending a lot less. Car insurance is more this year, everything is going up. They want you to buy at home, but it's too expensive here. It's a lot cheaper in Midland.

Nan Ivie

"Well, I spend about the same every year. I just buy for my grandbabies. I've got 18 grandchildren and 12 greatgrandchildren. I normally spend a lot anyway."

Jessie Little

"I'll be spending about the same. I've got the same circumstances, the same number of kids and grandkids. For us, the economy is about the same."

Presidential succession and the UN

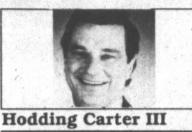

Events are in the saddle from Africa to Europe to the Indian subcontinent. Measured against them, the careful pace of the Clinton transition appears almost inconsequential, the indulgence of a system designed for a simpler era. They are reminders that even new presidents cannot order the world to stand still.

To some degree, this is simply inevitable. History makes mock of prophecy, and the best laid plans are no match for the unexpected. Crises do not arrive according to a predictable timetable.

Thus President Bush could not postpone a decision about what to do to forestall even more calamitous starvation in Somalia. Until Jan. 20, 1993, he is president of the United States, and the title carries obligations and responsibilities - which Mr. Bush met forthrightly in committing 28,000 American troops to keep the peace in Somalia. In making that admirable decision, however, he saddled the incoming administration with headaches it could not have anticipated and cannot welcome.

Two structural conclusions arise. One speaks to the familiar tension between the transition hiatus and quick-moving events. The other arises from the proliferating disorders of the post-Cold War world, disorders that are local or regional in immediate impact but global in their cumulative effect.

First, the United States should revise its procedures for presidential succession so that the space between election and accession to power is dramatically narrowed if not eliminated. Second, the United Nations should be given the funds, authority and troops to deal quickly and effectively with crises that the Security Council determines are a danger to world peace or involve a serious violation of the U.N. Charter.

Neither idea is new. Neither would be easy to implement. Neither is likely without strong. sustained presidential leadership. Both are overdue, as events illustrate daily.

As to the former, the most severe impediment is not constitutional but inertial. As recently as 60 years ago inaugurations were held in March. Thus the "traditional" date of Jan. 20 is, like so many American traditions, a relatively recent innovation. To move it back even further, or to move the election date up to late December or early January, would be a surmountable legislative and constitutional hurdle — if the president threw his muscle behind it.

What that would require in turn would be more difficult, but would substantially improve the presidential selection process. The parties would have to end the current divorce between campaigns and governance. Presidential nominees would have to decide the composition of their cabinets almost as quickly as they decided the tactics of their fall campaigns. Both are eminently possible.

Changing the inaugural date would be child's play compared to creating a U.N. force. Even now, at a moment when everyone pays lip service to the need for collective action, member states are $1.2 billion in arrears on their regular dues and peacekeeping assessments. The United States and Russia account for two-thirds of the total, at $410 million each. The immediate prospect is bankruptcy rather than invigoration.

No less importantly, each response to localized conflagration must be constructed from scratch, a time-consuming process that often results in too little and too late. And because there is no centralized U.N. force, the quick response burden must fall on the United States, the one remaining world power. But there is a limit to the number of times the United States can be called upon to spearhead an international expeditionary force before there is a negative reaction at home and abroad.

Today, the United Nations is playing a military role in seemingly insoluble conflicts in the former Yugoslavia (15,000 troops) and Cambodia (19,000). American forces in Somalia are spearheading a U.N. response. Within the past week, U.N. Secretary General Boutros-Ghali recommended a U.N. force of up to 10,000 soldiers and officials to oversee elections and provide humanitarian relief in Mozambi-

14-year-old civil war. But it is not hard to envision even more desperate situations in South Africa, India and the former Soviet Union Liberia's factions continue to consume each other. Zaire is a wasteland of civil strife. "Ethnic purging" is a new phrase for an old practice that is cropping up like smallpox around the globe. A world laboriously extracted from East-West polarization could be on the verge of coming apart at countries' historic seams.

Stating the obvious does not automatically invoke a solution. But ignoring the obvious virtually guarantees the worst possible outcome. The reality is that a world feverishly intent on settling old sectarian, tribal and ethnic scores is a world more dangerous to many of its members than the one that uneasily coexisted beneath the Cold War's imperial umbrellas. Joint action through the U.N. offers the best, most enduring way to cool the fever and contain its reach. Otherwise, the likely alternatives are unilateralism or apathy.

Structural change alone is no panacea, but structural change both at the United Nations and in the presidential succession would be of significant benefit. In a world of multiple crises and the need for overnight decisions, languid presidential transitions and ad hoc U.N. reactions are neither tolerable nor safe, a lesson Bill Clinton has undoubtedly absorbed and his transition teams could usefully address.

The realization of a dream that generation that was going to change the world . . . but rather a realistic dream borne of simply wanting to leave this place better than I found it.

I suppose that in everyday life, each of us makes a difference in the world

My math is rusty from high school and college, but I remember something along the lines of any action creates a reaction . . . or some such.

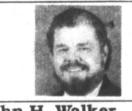

And that is true. In its simplest form of reasoning, take a smile. A smile from a co-worker can produce a smile in you. In turn, your mood improves and your actions the rest of your day are based on your improved attitude.

At age 42, I've felt there have been times that I've helped make a positive difference in my world . reporting and research efforts on a dirty public official who is now in a federal prison . . . efforts that resulted in the saving of rail service to a region . . . coverage of tornadoes that resulted in vast amounts of aid to the victims . . .

There was a trailer load of food and toys that we delivered to Ojinaga to help make life just a little bit better for the 27 children who live at Casa Hogar.

The kids range in age from 2-year-old Luis Ojeda to 16-yearold Monzerrat Gutierrez. There are 14 boys and 13 girls. Two of the boys, Armando Galindo and David Hernandez, have the highest grades in math and science in the Ojinaga school system. Armando and David are just two of the reasons that children's home founder Miguel Torres is proud of "his" children.

He is proud of them because, as he put it, "they are becoming little ladies and gentlemen."

Pride in such a fact may be hard for some to understand, but one needs to keep in mind that these are children of the street ... children who lived in the city dump of a border town. children who were wanted by no one . . . until Miguel Torres came along.

A former bullfighter, Miguel owns a cotton gin in Ojinaga but admits that he will probably have to find other work since this will be the second year in a row that his gin will have not run a single bale of cotton.

But his real work is in caring for the children. He rounds up clothing, food,

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. - America thought it knew Arkansas: A puny, poor state down South full of iliterate Bubbas, their gun racks and pickup trucks. Orval Faubus. Central High. Hee Haw.

Then Bill Clinton came along and messed with the myth.

The president-elect is a Rhodes scholar who quotes Martin Luther King. He has a Yale-educated lawyer-wife. And his favorite twang comes from Paul McCartney's guitar.

Worse yet, Yankees call him something that they never never, never — used to call Southerners: Slick.

"Can you imagine?" Clinton friend Skip Rutherford said. "An Arkansan too slick for the rest of America.'

So what should America make of Arkansas now? Here's a look at the state that Clinton proudly calls home. THE BASICS

Arkansas is an Indian word meaning "downstream people." It became a state in 1836 and seceded from the Union in 1861. Arkansas has 53,000 square miles and a population about the size of Brooklyn, 2.4 million.

The state is diverse as it is misunderstood.

The eastern Arkansas Delta is among the poorest regions in the nation, with high infant mortality and teen-age pregnancy rates. Shotgun shacks and antebellum mansions dot the flat landscape. Farming is the region's lifeblood.

Still, the state (especially the northwest) is home to some of the Northern Arkansas, with the Ozark foothills, is a retirement haven, home to some of the best fishing and prettiest views in the country.

POLITICS Arkansas is mostly a one-party state. The feeble state GOP is still trying to shake its carpetbagger reputation from Reconstruction. Clinton, governor for 12 of the last 14 years, has a database full of political contacts and has filled nearly every post a governor can fill. He has friends in big business who do big business with the state. but he rarely faced conflict-ofinterest charges at home.

"In a state this small, anybody who's anybody either has a friendly relationship, or is related," a longtime aide said recently.

But his political machine is nothing like the operations that died out in the 1960s. Former county sheriff Marlin Hawkins, who wrote a book called, "How I Stole Elections," says he used to be able to predict within 500 votes how many people in his county would cast ballots for a particular candidate.

"Part of the art of stealing elections is helping your neighbors," he wrote. That included bending sometimes breaking - the rules governing welfare eligibility, speeding tickets and the like.

Faubus, who was governor from 1955-67, primed his machine to raise taxes for education and other services, drag the mental health system out of the dark ages and build hundreds of miles of badly needed roads.

But he tarnished an otherwise progressive record by refusing to allow nine black students to integrate Little Rock's Central High in 1957. Federal troops had to enforce the U.S. Supreme Court

Faubus can still be spotted at the state Capitol, a bright, cheerful and articulate statesman on one hand; a pathetic reminder of the state's darkest days on the other.

"I've always said that I regret it ever happened," Faubus said recently. "But I would not change a thing because I was trying to stop property damage, injury or death. And in that, we succeeded."

Despite its reputation, Arkansas is a politically progressive state. For example, Hattie W. Caraway in 1933 became the first woman elected to the U.S. Senate.

It also is an independent state. In 1968, millionaire Republican Winthrop Rockefeller was elected governor, liberal Democratic J. William Fulbright was re-elected to the Senate and ultraconservative presidential candidate George Wallace carried the state. PEOPLE

Arkansans tend to be thinskinned when it comes to criticism from outsiders. "We don't care how you did it in Cleveland," said a sign in a county courthouse a few years ago.

In a way, the myths about Arkansas breed pessimism in its people.

"I've always had a passion about trying to get rid of this 'poor me' attitude a lot of people have about Arkansas, or this sense of limitation, or 'What do you expect - this is just Arkansas, we can't do this, that or the other," Clinton once

Some say Clinton's biggest achievement was convincing Arkansans they are better than their critics think. "He didn't always deliver, but he got people to believe they could make a difference," political science professor Bob Savage of Fayetteville, Ark., said. The major characteristic of Arkansas people, like many Southerners, is their pleasant, easygoing nature. Reporters and political operatives living in Little Rock during the campaign were frustrated and enamored by the slower pace. Finding a place to eat after 10 p.m. was a challenge.

The average Arkansas resident makes about $10,520, but $300 a month can rent you a nice apartment in most parts of the state.

"A lot of people don't understand that living in downtown Manhattan on $30,000 a year is a lot worse than living in Scott County, Ark., on $15,000," said Jim Blair, legal counsel for Tyson Foods Inc.

The social scene is not as dull as some might think. There is an arts center, a theater, festivals and a zoo in Little Rock. Some of the best fishing and hunting in the nation is in Arkansas. The University of Arkansas football team nicknamed the Razorbacks, or Hogs — are the focus of Saturday afternoons. BUSINESS Arkansas is a right-to-work state with little union influence, a low wage base, relatively low business taxes and hard-working people. Clinton and others have sought to woo higher-paying technical jobs to the state while training its work force for the new type of work.

Tyson Foods is the state's largest employer, with 22,000 jobs. There were 1.82 million people employed in September, with 965,400 in nonfarming jobs. Of those, 240,600 were in manufacturing.

The state's unemployment rate was 6.9 percent in September, and the national rate was 7.5 percent. The state normally has a higher unemployment rate than the rest of the nation RACE RELATIONS

A gap still exists. For example, the per-capita income for whites is $11,472 and for blacks it is $5,729, according to the 1990 Census.

The state is still coming to grips with its history.

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - A U.N. mediator launched yet another round of talks Saturday among Bosnia's warring ethnic groups, a day before elections in Serbia that are considered crucial for this conflict and others in former Yugoslavia.

Heavy shelling and small-arms fire once again held up relief deliveries to the besieged Bosnian capital, Sarajevo. Widespread fighting was reported elsewhere in the republic.

The mediator, Lord Owen, pressed military chiefs to remove heavy arms and open up siege lines around the city, but participants afterward reported little progress. Owen also hopes to get the rival factions to honor promises of a

The participants included Bosnia's Muslim-led government, Croats and rebel Serbs, along with U.N. peacekeeping commanders.

"We are still facing a lack of agreement or understanding on the steps needed for the cessation of hostilities," U.N. spokesman Adnan Abdulrazek said before the talks began, and little had changed

The Bosnian government demanded the removal of all heavy weapons within 18 miles of Sarajevo's airport.

Serb Gen. Milan Gvero said his side would not remove its weapons until it could be assured that the estimated 30,000 Serbs in Sarajevo would be allowed to leave.

The United Nations presented a plan on how both demands could be met and asked that the parties respond Sunday

Bosnian Serb fighters have seized about 70 percent of the former Yugoslav republic and have besieged Sarajevo for eight

They are believed to be backed by the nationalist president of Serbia. Slobodan Milosevic, who is running for re-election Sunday against Yugoslav federal Premier Milan Panic. Panic has pledged an end to the fighting.

But many independent observers fear that even if Milosevic loses, it would mean more war in the Balkans. They say he is unlikely to give up power and might trigger even more violence, perhaps in Kosovo, a Serbian province that is predominantly ethnic Albanian.

Troops kill protesting Palestinians

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

JERUSALEM — At least six Palestinians were shot and killed by Israeli troops in the occupied Gaza Strip on Saturday in riots protesting the deportations of more than 400 suspected Muslim fundamentalists.

Hospital officials said more than 30 Palestinians were injured, five of them critically. The army confirmed six dead; it said it had reports of 15 wounded, and that two soldiers also were slightly injured.

The death toll was the highest since Oct. 8, 1990, when 17 Palestinians died after police opened fire to quell rioting on the Temple Mount in Jerusalem

Israel carried out the deportations, the first mass expulsion in more than two decades, on Thursday after Islamic fundamentalists killed six Israeli troopers in a 10-day period. The government says the expelled men were suspected of membership in the Hamas movement and in Islamic Jihad, which have been blamed for the attacks.

The deportees were confined Saturday to a makeshift refugee camp on a snow-covered hill in a no man's land in Lebanon because the Lebanese government refuses to Arab reports and U.N. relief workers said the worst clashes between Palestinians and Israeli soldiers broke out when the army lifted a 10-day curfew in the Gaza town of Khan Yunis for several hours so residents could buy food and other necessities.

Tire burning and stone throwing also were reported in Gaza City and the nearby Shati refugee camp. In one Gaza City neighborhood, more than 400 Palestinians marched with PLO flags and shouted for Israel to allow the return of the deportees, many of them from the Gaza Strip.

HAVANA, Cuba - Cuba on Sunday holds its first direct elections, but officials say there is no chance the balloting for local offices will bring major changes to the Communist system on the economically struggling island.

Relief effort turning to violence-torn Kismayu

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) -A flotilla of U.S. and Belgian forces steamed toward the violence-torn southern port of Kismayu on Sunday in preparation for the second major amphibious assault of the humanitarian mission.

The landing is expected to occur at dawn Sunday, opening the way for food shipments to the starving in southern Somalia, officials said

Navy Capt. John W. Peterson told reporters that a joint force of 224 Marines and 100 Belgian paratroopers would first seek to secure the port and airport to allow relief flights later Sunday

Wholesale looting and fighting between clan factions have virtually halted relief efforts recently in Kismayu, an important gateway city 240 miles southwest of Mogadishu.

"We're convinced the way to go is by daylight," Peterson said aboard the amphibious assault ship JSS Juneau as it headed toward Kismayu. "We want to go ashore with smiles on our faces and shake who is leading the landing party, said he planned to meet with the local warlord, Orma Jees, a colonel in the defunct Somali army.

In other developments, the Marines said they would escort the first food convoy to Baidoa in more than a month on Sunday.

Mogadishu was relatively peaceful, and U.S. envoy Robert Oakley visited the city and talked with authorities. He visited Baidoa on Tuesday, a day before that city was secured by foreign troops.

One American officer, who spoke on condition of anonymity, estimated the number of armed clansmen in the city at 1,600.

The World Food Program planned to move 300 tons of food on 20 trucks to Baidoa, in Somalia's hard-hit interior, spokesman Paul Mitchell said.

Marine spokesman Col. Fred Peck said the trucks would be accompanied by 15 military vehicles and a reinforced rifle platoon of about 60 troops

After the 51/2-hour trip to Baidoa, 160 miles by road northwest of Mogadishu, the Marines will escort the food to 20 nearby villages. Mitchell said the food would be enough to feed 750,000 people for one day.

A force of Marines and French Foreign Legionnaires secured Baidoa unchallenged on Wednesday.

The last convoy to the city of 80,000 people was on Nov. 11, when 32 trucks organized by the relief agency CARE were intercepted by bandits. The food from five of the trucks was sold, and all but two were looted. Only four of the 27 ever returned to Mogadishu.

An ongoing airlift to Baidoa from Kenya has been hugely expensive. "If we have a great day, we can move only half as much (by air) as we'll move tomorrow," Peck said

Saturday. In other parts of Somalia secured by the Marines, gunmen generally have avoided the troops while continuing to wreak havoc beyond their view. The gangs that had been active at Mogadishu's port in the past returned there Friday, said Patrice Franceschi, the head of French Humanitarian Action.

"They were going aboard the boats and causing problems yesterday and the day before yesterday," Franceschi said.

He said gang members would claim the vaccination papers of the by armed looters and clan fighting. A U.N. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said an agreement reported late Friday between rival warlords Ali Mahdi Mohamed and Gen. Mohamed Farrah Aidid to remove their forces from Mogadishu doesn't amount to much.

Spirit of giving is taught at schools

By CONNIE SWINNEY Staff Writer

From prayer in the classroom to Christian teachings during end of the year holidays, public schools have grappled with separation of church and state outlined in the U.S. Constitution.

According to the drafters of the constitution, teaching the origin of Christmas to public school children would defy the intent of freedom of

The Big Spring Independent School District manages to sidestep Christian doctrine in teaching children the spirit of the winter holidays.

"(Local schools) are not necessarily honed in on the Christian religion," said Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy. "Jesus is not the emphasis. It's approached more as a time for helping those in need. The school's focus on collections for needy families."

One local principal said teachers at his school realize the variety of faith in their student population.

"There are some aspects that we can talk about as far as from a historical perspective," said Principal Rey Villarreal of Marcy Elementary School. "We are sensitive to the fact that there are some children in our school that aren't Christian.

"We have 25 teachers that will approach it from slightly different angles, but our teachers are sensitive to it," he added.

Although holiday decorations, parties and gift exchanges continue to be a part of local classrooms, emphasis is shifting away from religion-related symbols for one local teacher.

"I emphasize that Christmas is the spirit of giving," said Jane Ramsey, a special education teacher at Moss Elementary. "I explain that when you give to others, you get a good feeling," she said.

Regarding Santa Claus and Jesus, Ramsey said, "I leave that up to the parents to take care of OMAHA, Neb. — The eight toys guns lying in a cardboard box at Mad Dads' headquarters on Saturday represented only a fraction of the money a coalition of civic groups put together for a gun amnesty program.

But Mayor P.J. Morgan and others said their symbolic value was immeasurable.

"The fact is, we brought about more discussion about it and there's a tremendous amount of discussion going on now so I'm not at all disappointed," Morgan said.

The program, which paid $50 per real gun turned in - no questions asked - paid $1 for each toy gun.

First year Klondike coach tabbed area's top mentor

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

This year's Big Spring Herald Crossroads Country Football Honor Roll has some familiar faces. Four players on the first team also made the first team last Returners include Big Spring tight end Oscar Cervantes, Coahoma running back Steven New, Borden County safety John Paul Harris and Coahoma punter Bryan Sledge.

A first-year coach who took a sixman team picked to finish in the middle of its district to the playoffs heads the team. The Offensive Most Valuable Player was a workhorse for his squad, carrying the ball 28 times a game, handling the kicking duties and averaging 10 tackles a game as a linebacker.

The Defensive Player of the Year made last year's first team defense. He was a key ingredient in his team's qualifying for the sixman state playoffs.

Coach of the Year Honors go to Klondike's ED WILSON. In his first year Wilson took a youthful team that went 1-8 last year and rejuvenated it into a second-place finisher in six-man District 5. Klondike finished with a 6-5 record, losing to Borden County in the bidistrict playoffs.

"I'm happy," said Wilson about his team's season. "We were picked third in the district and here we are playing in a bi-district football game. The main thing was getting them to the game to see what it's all about. The kids found out they could play with people. All that is is believing. This season Harris picked off nine passes, returning three of them for touchdowns. He made 164 tackles and recovered three fumbles.

"John Paul was always in the right place at the right time," said Borden County coach Bobby Avery. "At our defensive corner the main key is to read the offside back. When the back steps that way, he (Harris) steps to meet him. It was very hard to get outside of John Paul.

"I really think he can go somewhere and play receiver in college with his speed and his hands. He's had 15 interceptions in the last two years. That's a credit to him being able to read the defense. The Offensive Most Valuable Player is Garden City senior tailback JODY BRADFORD, a four-year starter for the Bearkats. This year Bradford had to carry a heavy load and responded well. He finished the season with 288 carries for 2,010 yards and 7.2 yards per carry. He scored 19 TDs and caught four passes for 112 yards.

Bradford had 100 yards in all 10 of his team's games. He went on a incredible tear during the season when he had successive games of 396, 294 and 323 yards rushing. Garden City coach Dennis Bryant said he knew Bradford would be a good tailback after he gained 707 yards last year in a reserve role.

"He's durable, plus he had to turn around and play linebacker for us, you know he had to be tired," said Bryant. "Towards the end of the year he got worn down. But what paid off for him were the workouts he went through during the summer. I know he can go somewhere and play. I'm sure they'll be schools looking at him

sive Player of the Year. Harris made 164 tackles and picked off nine passes this season.

Garden City Bearkats senior running back Jody Bradford (25) is the Crossroads Country Honor

ATLANTA (AP) - Jimmy Johnson isn't particularly fond of Monday night games, especially those on the road.

"I really believe it's one of the biggest advantages a home team can have," the Dallas Cowboys coach said. "It disrupts the routine for both clubs, but at least the home team doesn't have to travel." The Cowboys, one victory away from wrapping up the NFC East championship, meet the Atlanta Falcons in the Georgia Dome on Monday night.

Dallas could have won the division last week, but lost to the Red-

Fryar and Lady Steers burn Snyder

By MIKE BUTTS Staff Writer

Big Spring's Lady Steers may have crushed the Lady Tigers of Snyder Friday night 65-34. But at least they gave the overmatched visitors a little present to start them on their holiday break: one free lesson on how to shoot the basketball.

And the shooting clinic at Steer Gym was conducted by Big Spring's Professor Leslie Fryar, who surely holds a doctorate in threepoint field goals.

The 5-foot-4 Big Spring wing tried seven of the long-range shots before halftime and swished in five of them. She finished the first half with five points more (21) then the entire Snyder team.

She looked like the old number 12 of last year," Big Spring coach Ron Taylor said of his senior shootist, who made All-District 3-4A last season on the Lady Steers district champioship team. "She needed a game like that to get her confidence back."

It was the Lady Steers (10-3) sixth win in a row. Snyder (3-10) played a 1-2-1 zone to slow Big Spring leading scorer and post Amy Earnst. But collapsing in the middle left Fryar open outside. She hit most of her threes from the left corner and finished as the game's high scorer with her haltime total of 21.

"They were trying to press us and we were able to make one or two passes real quick and get (Fryar) the ball before they could get to her," Taylor said.

Fryar and most of Big Spring's other starters sat out the majority attempts. About ten of those misses of the second half after the Lady Steers had a 44-16 halftime lead.

The Lady Tigers had problems from the start, turning the ball over against Big Spring's press on their first three possessions and not getting a shot off until almost two minutes into the game. They hit only one of 14 shots in the first quarter to fall behind 16-4. Snyder finished the game with 14 field goals on 66

Big Spring pulled even further away from the Lady Tigers with a 28-point second period. And not coincidently that's when Fryar started heating up. She had 15 points in the frame including 10 in snyder

Lady Steer guard Casey Cook had 11 points on a seven-for-eight night from the free throw line. Laura Elrod and Kerry Gregg had good games off the bench for the home team, tallying nine points each. Subs Hope Martinez, Shree Taylor and Elisabeth Lopez also had lots of playing time.

The Lady Steers now go on their Christmas break and resume play Dec. 28 at the Slaton Tournament.

"We're playing with confidence now and that's the whole key," Taylor said. "I just hope during the holidays we don't lose what we've built up to."

But Taylor also thinks his players could use the break. They will have a workout the day before the Slaton Tournament.

"We're just going to try and go there (Slaton) and play ourselves back into shape. Then we have the big (district) game Jan. 2 with

Monahans." LADY STEERS JV WINS

The Lady Steers junior varsity defeated Snyder's JV Friday in Steer Gym 44-26. The Big Spring girls JV is now 8-3.

Leading scorers for the Lady Steers were Kari Blauser and Robbi Hall with eight points. The JV's next game is Jan. 2 at home in a district game against Monahans.

For sports media workers everywhere: coaches like Howard Lady Hawks' Royce Chadwick. This guy is so cooperative and upbeat, he makes you think about putting down your pad and pen and taking a charge under the basket for his team.

Coahoma Bulldogs get past stubborn Mustangs

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Editor

COAHOMA - You would've thought the Sands Mustangs had won their basketball game against the Coahoma Bulldogs talking to Sands coach Jerry Gooch after the game.

The true fact is the Bulldogs beat the Mustangs 59-48 Friday night. The Mustangs took Coahoma almost to the wire, before the Bulldogs pulled off the win. The victory gives Coahoma an 8-5 record. The Mustangs fall to 2-9.

In a sense it was a moral victory for Gooch. Gooch has a team that has no players with prior varsity experience. His team is composed of six sophomores, three freshmen and two juniors. The tallest player is Gooch's son

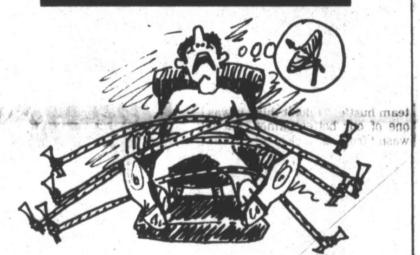

Grant, who's six foot. But both Gooch and Coahoma coach Kim Nichols said the Mustangs are improving. 'They've improved, we're just unfamiliar with them becasue all of them are new," said Nichols. "I thought we shot free throws better than we usually do (19-29) and we got after it on the boards.'

"It was tough to matchup with Coahoma," said Gooch. "They're so big. But we say that every game. I tell them this team is going to be bigger, stronger and faster. We just have to outbasketball them. Some times we did that tonight. At times I thought we played as good basketball as we have all season." The game was tied going into the fourth quarter, 40-40. But the Bulldogs pulled away with some sharp free throw shooting by Bryan Sledge, a three-point play by Murphy Henry and a couple of Please see Bulldogs Page 3-B

Giants crush Chiefs

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. - If the New York Giants' final home game of the 1992 season has anything to do with it, Ray Handley might come back to coach the team

As it is, Handley's prospects of returning as next year are dim. But he can always can remember Dec.

The Giants (6-9) may have played their best game under Handley Saturday as Rodney Hampton ran for three touchdowns and Jeff Hostetler threw for two scores on five consecutive possessions, leading New York to a 35-21 victory over the Kansas City Chiefs.

The victory snapped the Giants' five-game losing streak — their longest since 1980 — and prevented the Chiefs (9-6) from clinching a playoff berth. It also cost them the Chiefs a share of first place in the AFC West.

San Diego (9-5) can win the division by winning its final two games, against the Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle. Kansas City, which beat the Chargers twice during the regular season, can clinch a all three of San Francisco's playoff berth by beating Denver next weekend.

New York, which scored 13 points in its previous three games with rookies Kent Graham and Dave Brown at quarterback, got touchdowns on their final three first-half possessions to take a 21-7 lead, then added two more TDs at the start of the third quarter, making it 35-7. The 35 points were the most the Giants scored in a game in Handley's two seasons. Hostetler got the onslaught going by capping a seven-play, 70-yard drive with a 21-yard scoring pass to Mark Ingram on a play in which Chiefs safety Charles Mincy was picked off on a crossing pattern.

Just two plays later, linebacker Pepper Johnson picked off the first of two passes that Dave Krieg had intercepted and returned it 38 yards to the Chiefs 4. Hampton scored over left guard from a yard out two plays later.

49ers 21, Buccaneers 14

In San Francisco, the blowout never materialized, and neither did newly activated Joe Montana.

Steve Young, Montana's stand-in for the past two seasons, threw for touchdowns. He had two scoring passes to Jerry Rice and one to John Taylor.

With Tampa trailing by seven, the Bucs were in position to tie it up again after a 12-yard run by Reggie Cobb gave them a first-and-goal at the San Francisco 3 with five minutes remaining. But Cobb then lost four yards on a sweep and Testaverde threw three incompletions, giving the 49ers the ball on Tampa Bay (4-11) got the ball back at its 37 with just under a minute left and moved to the San Francisco 35 on three completions. But Testaverde's desperation pass on the final play was batted down in the end zone by Dana Hall.

The Bucs used a 15-play, 80-yard drive ending in Cobb's 1-yard touchdown run on fourth down with 14:07 remaining to tie the game at 14-14.

But the 49ers quickly went back in front as Young threw his third TD pass of the day and second to Rice, who again beat single coverage by Ricky Reynolds for a 30-yard score with 11:24 left that stood up for the game-winner.

Bulldogs

The Mustangs hung close behind the outside bombs of sophomore guard Steven Cantu. Cantu scored 15 points in the first half as Sands led 26-25 at the half. He finished the contest with 22 points. Fellow sophomore guard Cory Maxwell finished with 11 points. He and Cantu combined for five three-pointers.

Post player Jeremy Jensen paced Coahoma with 13 points and nine rebounds. Sledge, who came off the bench, scored 14 points. He made six straight foul shots in the fourth quarter.

Nichols said he's happy with his team hustle. "I don't think it was one of our better games, but it wasn't from the lack of effort," he said. "We've got 13 and they all can play. I thought we got a couple of easy baskets against their press in the fourth quarter. It didn't break it open but it got us a

Gooch said his team lost its offensive intensity in the fourth quarter. "We got lax in our offense, instead of screwing down. Coahoma upped theirs a notch," Sands' next game is Dec. 30 on the road against Sterling City. The Bulldogs host Colorado City Monday at 8 p.m.

In Austin, Gerald Watson scored three touchdowns as Temple's running backs saved their best for last to help secure a 38-20 victory over Houston Yates Saturday in the Class 5A Division II championship

Temple (15-1) overcame three turnovers and slowed Houston Yates' sledgehammer running back Jerald Moore just enough to ensure its first state championship since 1979, when Temple knocked off Houston Memorial 28-6 in the Class 4A finals.

Houston Yates (12-2-1), winners of the Class 5A state championship in 1985, struggled all day with field position, starting nine of its 12 possessions at its own 20 or worse, including two drives that started at the 1.

Watson finished with 14 carries for 145 yards and touchdowns of 2, 2, and 10 yards. Wilson, who weighs just 150 pounds, rushed 14 times for 106 yards and 1-yard score.

Watson scored his third touchdown of the game on a 10-yard run with 4:59 left in the third quarter, giving Temple a 31-14 lead. Quarterback Adrian Woodson rounded out the Wildcats' scoring on a 30-yard keeper, which featured two great cuts to get into the end zone.

Moore, who finished with 27 carries for 190 yards, carried most of the load for Houston Yates' offense and gave the Lions a brief 14-10 lead on a zigzagging 25-yard touchdown run early in the second quarter.

Houston Yates' two other touchdowns came on a 40-yard strike from Sean Porter to Grady Bobb with 1:18 left in the first quarter and on a 23-yard pass from Porter to Vaughn Dickerson with 2:16 left in the third quarter. A twopoint conversion pass failed after Dickerson's score.

Class A Championship

Bartlett 33, Sudan 26 In San Angelo, CClaude Mathis ran for 233 yards and three touchdowns and had two interceptions Saturday, leading Bartlett to its second Class A championship in three years with a 33-26 victory over Sudan.

Although Mathis was impressive on offense, his defensive plays late in the game preserved the Bulldogs' victory.

The Bulldogs (14-0-1) led 27-26 in the fourth quarter when Sudan threatened to take the lead. Quarterback Andy Roberts found Jerald Weaver at the Bartlett 46-yard line, but a big hit by Mathis popped the ball into the air and into waiting arms of Bartlett's

On the ensuing drive, Mathis secured the victory by racing 54 yards for his third touchdown.

Sudan (13-3) had two more chances to tie or take the lead, but points in the final eight minutes of Mathis ended both with interceptions.

Both teams settled down after a wild first half that saw the Bulldogs and Hornets score a combined 33 the second quarter.

3AA GAME DELAYED

The Class 3A Championship football game between Southlake Carroll and Coldspring has been start at 7:30 p.m. but instead kicked off at 9 p.m. Final score wasn't in by press time.

Class 2A Championship

Schulenburg 35, Goldthwaite 20 In Houston, sophomore Jason Houston bowled through and bounced off Goldthwaite defenders for 201 yards and two touchdowns Saturday, bringing Schulenburg its second straight Class 2A title with a 35-20 victory. Casey Taber, named the offensive player of the year by The Associated Press earlier this week, also ran for two scores as the Shorthorns (15-1) gained 457 yards and their third-ever title.

Goldthwaite (13-2-1), making its first championship appearance since a Class A victory in 1985, was held to 206 yards, most of which came on three, long scoring passes.

But the Eagles never found a way to slow Houston, who had 10 carries of 10 or more yards and was in the open field when he scored from the 17 and the 8.

before halftime and put the Shorthorns ahead 21-7. He added another on Schulenburg's first possession of the second half.

But Goldthwaite fought back, capitalizing on a fumble recovery delayed by an electric failure in the and a first down through a penalty lights at Floyd Casey Stadium in to continue a scoring drive capped Waco. The game was expected to by three straight passes which included a 31-yarder from Craig Auldridge to Jon Robello.

Class 4A Championship Waxahachie 28, A&M Consolidated

In Houston, Quarterback Lamont Moore ran for 100 yards and three touchowns Saturday as Waxahachie overcame five second-half lead changes for a 28-24 victory over A&M Consolidated in the Class 4A state championship.

It was the first state title for the Indians (16-0). Defending champion A&M Consolidated, appearing in its third title game in four years, ended the year at 14-2.

The Tigers were hampered by the loss of star running back Rudi Majette, who ran for more than 1.500 vards this season. Majette twisted his ankle while returning the opening kickoff and carried only twice for 3 yards.

Without Majette, A&M Consolidated was outmanned by the Indians' powerful trio of Moore, Sammie Overton and Lejohn Jefferson, who combined to rush for 379 of His first touchdown came just Waxahachie's 404 total yards.

First time hunters treated to deer hunt

By JOE PICKLE For the Herald

Of the eight young people from Sky High Ranch north of Midland who were treated to a deer hunt

Dec. 5-6 at Lake O.H. Ivie, only one had ever fired a rifle. He was almost blase about it when he held up his hand acknowledging he had fired a rifle. Turned out this amounted to

"three-or-four" times — maybe. Yet he harvested a couple of does on Saturday and a spike buck Sunday. In all, the youths, ranging from 12 to 16 years, bagged nine deer in the two days of hunting on one of the wildlife preserves provided by the Colorado River

Municipal Water District. Huddled with the young hunters in blinds on 400 acres remaining inundated on the Giesecke tract were area men and women who furnished rifles and observed hunting. Misty near-freezing weather made conditions ideal, but it kept away a few volunteers who feared freezing rain. When the youths pulled in to CRMWD quarters near Foreman Dale Reber's home, they were instructed by Game Wardens Robert Goodrich, Eden; Terry Joy, Baird and Scott Black, Menard; in hun- whispered Mrs. Lovell, "ducks."

Biologists B.D. and Danny Davis were on hand to analyze data on the anterless deer harvest.

Biologist Olka Thornton and Lake Supt. Richard Halfmann supervised the hunt. Richard and Debbie Halfmann, along with Nancy Thornton, Dale and Debra Reber served Saturday lunch and cookies and brownies as they did at subsequent feeds.

That evening the Ballinger Breakfast Club hosted a meal, and the parting Sunday dinner was given by Ballinger Noon Lions

Area ladies gathered a supply of rifles and sat in blinds with six girls. Included were Paula Rudolff, Eden; Phyllis Lovell, Paint Rock; Bernice Fuchs and Pat Lange, Rowena; also Sky High personnel. Furnishing guns and observing in blinds with boy guests were Dwayn Halmann and David Lange,

Even with experienced hunters, Okla Thornton had anticipated no more than three deer - but nine? How inexperienced were the young guest hunters is evidenced by a 15-year-old, start led when a flock of ducks flew over. Wild-eyed, she asked: "What was that?" It was, ting and safety sportsmanship. Amazed: "You mean they fly."

A few helpful tips to insure gun safety

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON (AP) - Each year hunters are injured while taking part in outdoor sports - many of them shot by accident.

A few basic safety precautions will minimize the chance of an accident, according to the National Rifle Association.

Here are seven tips from the NRA that will not only make your hunt safer, but make it more

Follow the fundamental rules of safe firearms handling; keep your gun pointed in a safe direc-tion, keep your finger off the trigger until you are ready to shoot, and keep the gun unloaded until you are ready to hunt.

Plan the hunt. When you are hunting in a group, assign positions with zones of fire that do not cover other hunters.

Hunting seasons typically start with doves in September. Since doves tend to fly low over agricultural fields, be sure your shot does not endanger nearby hunters.

- Beware of heat. Heat exhaustion can be a real danger in the late summer or early fall. Drinking plenty of water helps lessen the

In those days, when they managed to meet at the zoo or on the banks of the Nile, Kawather always asked the same question: "Will you ever have enough money to be able to marry me?

Mahmoud, a civil servant, had to take a second job to save enough to marry her.

The rising cost of living and the almost unaffordable price of apartments in Cairo and Alexandria make marriage a hard-to-attain goal for many young urban Egyptians.

Middle-class fathers allow their daughters to marry only if the groom can provide a comfortable apartment, a good dowry, furniture and all the electrical appliances a modern home needs. While in poorer families everyone contributes what they can to a young couple's first household, the country's bourgeoisie expects the groom's family to foot the bill for the wedding.

Mahmoud and Kawther waited five years before opting for an unconventional solution: They decid-

Memories from readers

DEAR READERS: I recently asked my readers to send me postcards telling me where they were when they heard the news that President Kennedy had been shot. The response was overwhelming! I received an estimated 300,000 responses --mostly letters saying, "A postcard can't possibly contain all I have to say.

I heard from Thailand, Korea, Libya, Ireland, Guam, Japan, Mexico, Switzerland, Germany, Great Britain, Brazil, India, the Philippines, Canada, Hawaii, South Africa, and some places I had difficulty finding on the map. There were so many poignant recollections. For example

DEAR ABBY: We were living in Karlsruhe, Germany, when JFK was assassinated. My husband was a career Army man. The news came over Armed Forces Radio at 7:30 p.m. We turned on the TV and watched it in German.

The next day I walked to the grocery store, and on the way I passed our Army chapel. There was a large picture of President Kennedy on the church bulletin board -- draped in black -- and the entire lawn surrounding it was covered with floral arrangements, all from German families. I met many Germans on the street who stopped me to express their sorrow with tears in their eyes. I shall never forget it. - M.E. GRAY, EL PASO, TEXAS

. I was in the third grade with other 8- and 9-year-olds waiting for the 3 p.m. bell to ring so we could go home for the weekend. Suddenly, over the public address system we heard Walter Cronkite say, "I regret to tell you that President Kennedy died this afternoon at 1:05 p.m.

I had planned to go home with a classmate for a sleepover, but we were both so heartsick we decided it would be better if we both went to our own homes. -- TAMMY IN DULUTH

My wife and I and our two teen-aged sons were in Izmir Turkey. I was co-director of the Turkish Air Force Academy where 16 American men and women taught English to Turkish pilots and air controllers. When the awful news came, our Turkish friends offered condolences with tears in their eyes. -- ELDON SHUPE, MELBOURNE, FLA.

... I was "on the air" doing music and news at a major Annapolis radio station when the sports director came into the control room, laid down a piece of paper without uttering a word, and left. A few minutes later I looked at it. It read. "FLASH! PRESIDENT KEN-NEDY SHOT!" I slapped on a tape and recorded the rest of the day's broadcast. I spent much of the time weeping in the men's room. -- BILL TURKINGTON, NORTHRIDGE, CALIF.

Another look at the Brownings

Grow along with me. The best is yet to be. God's in his heaven, all's right with the world.

Would you have your songs endure — build on the human heart. Robert Browning is called the love poet. He met Elizabeth Barrett, a poet, when he was a young man. She was bedridden with emphysema (they called it consumption back then) when they first became acquainted.

Robert was smitten with her immediately. After several attempts at proposing marriage, Elizabeth finally consented. Robert picked her up from her bed, left cold and wet London and moved to sunny Italy where she regained her health.

Baylor University has the largest collection of Browning memorabilia in the world. It is housed in the Armstrong-Browning library, which has been called the most beautiful building in Texas.

I attended Baylor University from 1953 until 1957 and graduated with a degree in English. I took several courses in that building. But it was not until this year, when I returned to the campus for homecoming that I really got a close look at it and realized the structure's significance.

My college roommate and I toured the building with our wives. We were escorted by librarian Betty Coley, who is quite familiar with Browning and his family. She helped author a book listing all of Browning's books, furniture, paintings and personal belongings. The book is more than two inches thick.

She is taking a sabbatical soon to write a book on the Browning's son, Pen, who was an artist and

Just about every English major at Baylor took a course in Browning. Had I taken Betty's tour before taking the course, I would have spent more time in the library learning about Browning, not just reading his work

I saw Browning's last written words. He had scribbled a short verse and his signature on a sketch of the famous poet: "Here I'm gazing, wide awake, Robert Browning, no mistake." I saw letters addressed to him. I saw Elizabeth Barrett Browning's writing table and other furniture items from their home in Florence.

The library's 56 stained glass windows depict images from the Brownings' poetry. Marble columns imported from Italy encircle a spacious two story area called the meditation room. Shelves and cases contain the writings of both Elizabeth and Robert. Bronwing's clock ticks away.

The library is on the Baylor campus due to the efforts of Dr. A. J. Armstrong, who was head of Baylor's English department from 1912 to 1952. In 1913, Sotheby's auction house scattered the Brownings' possessions to the four winds. Dr. Armstrong recorded each buyer's name and address and created a literary treasure map that would guide his 40-year effort to bring the Browning materials to Waco.

He started with a small collection of first editions and letters. By 1920, it had become the envy of both England and Italy. To raise money for Browning items, the professor took groups to the poets' homes in London and Florence.

Sometimes, while creating the cultural shrine, he wore Robert's

The search for Browning items continues. Recently, Elizabeth's pen was acquired in Argentina, where her brother immigrated.

The Armstrong-Browning library resembles a place of worship. It is filled with the spirit of love, patience and understanding. Bob Lewis of Big Spring, also known as Tumbleweed Smith, is an experienced turkey cook, plan ahead and follow these steps to make the process of preparing and serving the holiday turkey safe and worry-free:

Make a safe turkey

 Decide how much turkey you will need before you shop. You'll need about one pound per person, or one and one-half pounds per person if you want plenty of leftovers.

 If you have a frozen bird, plan for enough days to refrigeratordefrost it. A rule of thumb is about 24 hours of defrost time for each 5 pounds of turkey

 When handling the bird, wash hands, sink, counter, utensils and platter thoroughly with soap and water before and after handling. This will help prevent contamination and potential food safety problems.

 If you plan to serve stuffing, the safest alternative is to cook the stuffing in a separate pan. Stuffing inside a bird can remain at temperatures that encourage bacterial growth. If you choose to stuff the bird, do it right before roasting, not ahead of time.

 Preheat the oven to 325 degrees to 350 degrees F. Place the turkey breast-side up in a shallow roasting pan. Insert a meat thermometer in an inner thigh of the

• Allow 15 to 18 minutes per pound cooking time for an unstuffed bird and 18 to 24 minutes for a stuffed bird. A whole turkey is done when the internal temperature reaches 180 degrees F in the inner thigh (dark meat). A turkey breast should reach 170 degrees F internal temperature. Stuffing should reach at least 165 degrees F.

· Allow the cooked turkey to sit for 20 minutes before carving.

· It's very important, to after the meal. Carve leftovers from the bone and refrigerate immediately. Cooked turkey and stuffing should not remain at room temperature for more than two

• If you choose to roast the turkey ahead of time, it needs to be deboned after cooking and refrigerated in shallow containers. The meat can be reheated in the oven or microwave before serving. Follow these tips to keep the holiday fun, not frantic.

Buying and Serving Pre-Prepared Holiday Dinners

It happens. Last minute changes in holiday plans leave you with no alternative but to purchase an already prepared turkey meal with all the trimmings. Or perhaps you choose to go this route to reduce the time stress.

For those who decide to buy a prepared meal, follow these tips.

 If you're buying a cooked, ready-to-eat turkey or other prepared meat, pick it up within two hours of serving time, or plan to refrigerate it immediately after purchase and reheat later.

• Try one of the convenient packaged stuffing mixes.

· Salad bars in delis offer a convenient way to create a tossed salad or vegetable tray. Plan space in the refrigerator to store these until serving time.

• The deli or cafeteria also may have choices for desserts, as will the frozen food section of the grocery.

Partially Cook The

Turkey? — Not Safe!
It's not safe to partially cook foods such as the holiday turkey. Any bacteria present may just warm up to temperatures that promote their growth. Partial cooking will not kill them. And completing cooking the next day might not eliminate bacteria or their toxins that might be present. Plan ahead to allow time for safely cooking foods on the day of the event, or cook ahead of time and reheat to

CORPUS CHRISTI - More than 1,300 Texas retailers have stopped selling lottery tickets for a variety of reasons, the state comptroller's

The comptroller's office said Tuesday that 1,307 retailers have dropped the lottery ticket sales including two in Big Spring - since the lottery began on May 29. However, total number of lottery retailers increased statewide from 14,700 to 17,000 and in Howard County from 34 to 37.

Most lottery dropouts have been in Houston with 250 retailers calling it quits. Officials also said lottery dropouts in other Texas cities included nearly 90 in Dallas, 56 at San Antonio, 51 at Austin and 24 in the Corpus Christi area.

Poor ticket sales, failed businesses and ownership changes are among the most common reasons retailers give for canceling their lottery contracts.

At Ingleside, near Corpus Christi, Bob and Maxene Long said that when they first started selling lottery tickets, it increased traffic into their convenience store and boosted the sales of snacks and other items.

But the Longs Tuesday told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times that a month later they scratched lottery sales from their future plans.

"I'm not against gambling to the extent that you can afford it," said Maxene Long, co-owner of Long's Drive In. "But it's affecting so many families."

Mrs. Long said she saw a woman spend her grocery money on lottery tickets and saw an unemployed man buy 150 lottery are going to stay in it.'

"His wife came in and was so upset," Long said. "You can't tell them that you aren't going to sell the tickets to them because they are poor. We knew that a lot of these people could not afford them.

In Houston, Pilgrim Cleaners quit selling lottery tickets in 12 of its stores.

"For the amount of money involved, it was a bookkeeping headache," said Doug Mulvaney, vice president of Pilgrim Enterprises. He also said that he believed store clerks were spending too much time on lottery business.

Retailers receive 5 percent for every $1 lottery ticket they sell. "It's not real profitable for us," said Sam L. Susser, chairman and chief executive of Southguard, which has 29 7-Eleven stores that sell lottery tickets in the Corpus Christi area. "But it's a convenience our customers want. We are committed to the business and we Redeeming coupons and shopping sales bring shoppers extra savings during the busiest shopping season of the year.

Local retailers' sales promotions may bring up to 40 percent in savings to shoppers before Christmas. After Christmas 50 percent savings will be available at at least one store.

SAVING TIPS — 2D

"Dunlaps marks things down as Christmas nears," said Camille Nixon, store manager. "Shoppers may receive savings of 20 to 30 percent. After Christmas we mark down some merchandise to 50 percent off."

In the last three months, Dunlaps has expanded various departments and broadened their selections at the request of their customers, she said.

Garvin Sutton, C.R. Anthony's store manger, says sometimes waiting to do shopping brings savings. Anthony's has a storewide sale the week before Christmas with some merchandise marked down from 30 to 50 "Waiting until the last minute sometimes pays off with savings," Sutton said.

Mutual funds typically have provided results

Dan Wilkins

Over the years, mutual funds have grown from an insignificant segment of the financial-services market to one of the most popular forms of investing.

That's the message of Matthew Fink, president of the Investment Company Institute, the trade group that represents more than 3,500 mutual funds. In 1991, mutual-fund assets reached an all-time high of more than $1.4 trillion.

Mutual funds today tend to be more conservative than in the late 1960s, when the market declined and many highly aggressive stock funds plummeted in value. Today some large fund groups are going to far as to caution investors against overly optimistic expectations of future results.

After more than a decade of outstanding investment results, the stock market could eventually take a downturn at some point that would affect fund performances. Investors should be aware of this and realize that it is a normal part of long-term investing plans.

How have mutual funds continued to prosper at a time when banks and savings and loans have experienced major problems? Norman Fosback, editor of Market Logic, a mutual fund newsletter, attributes part of their success to very tight accounting and a wide variety of investor services.

Regardless, investors want results, and mutual funds have typically provided them. For example, for the period beginning January 1982 through March 1992, Johnson's Charts, an independent mutual-fund research organiza-tion, reports that growth-andincome funds averaged a compound annual growth rate of 14.7 percent. Keep in mind, however, hat this was during a period of generally rising stock prices.

Industry leaders are quick to give much of the credit for this success to the Investment Company Act of 1940, which governs the mutual-fund industry. The act of 1940 requires registration and regulation of investment companies by the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). The act also sets the standards by which mutual funds operate in such areas as promotion, reporting requirements, pricing of securities for sale to the public and allocation of investments within a portfolio.

The Investment Company Act of 1940 has been an outstanding success from the viewpoint of government, industry and the public. Part of the reason is that it was the result of an unprecedented cooperative effort between the SEC and industry representatives. Fink is clear that "the Institute stands ready to cooperate with the SEC and its staff in modernizing the act and the regulations thereunder."

Local lottery retailer: Sales not economical

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

A former local lottery retailer said that tied-up cash and bookeeping headaches weren't worth the 5-cent profit for every $1 ticket

Discontinuing sales at the Sparenburg Building, 309 S. Main, four months after sales began May 29 was "strictly economics as far as we're concerned," said Pat Porter, owner of the building.

The business began sales a couple days after the lottery began and sold some 85 to 100 tickets a week, Porter said, "which is nothing." Selling tickets would probably make more sense for largervolume sellers, she said.

One other retailer in Big Spring, Fela's Handy Corner, 511 N.W. 11th, has also discontinued ticket sales, according to the state comptroller's office. No one at that business answered telephone calls Friday.

However, despite retailers dropping sales, total number of lottery retailers in Howard County increased from 34 in May to 37 now.

Statewide more than 1,307 have stopped sales, reported the comptroller's office, while total lottery retailers increased from 14,700 to

Poor ticket sales, failed businesses and ownership changes are among the most common reasons retailers across the state give for canceling lottery contracts, according to wire reports. Some said they didn't like seeing grocery money or unemployment benefits being spent on tickets.

Moral arguments against selling tickets was not a consideration, Porter said. "We didn't feel like we had the right to tell people how to spend their own money.

The decision to stop ticket sales, she said, was prompted by system changes that required more retailer money to be tied up. For example, the state was settling accounts when 80 percent of winners were paid out of a package, she said. But that was backed up to 50

That's the message from financial advisers at the start of what economists hope will be a period of glad tidings from the nation's retail stores. Encouraged by recent evidence of an improving economy, business forecasters predict a distinct improvement in Christmas commerce for 1992 over the recession-plagued holidays of the past couple of last year.

The closely followed Johnson Redbook service, published at the Wall Street firm of Lynch, Jones & Ryan, predicts an 8 percent to 9 percent increase in holiday retail sales nationwide $400 on gifts.

Average household to spend $400

Taxable retail sales for October are up over last year for most of area and state. Year-to-date sales are also up over last year.

The Conference Board, an independent business research organization, projects a 6.5 percent rise, with the average household planning to spend say experts on money matters, if they plan carefully enough to avoid a financial hangover of unpaid bills and finance charges in early 1993.

"Set a budget for holiday gifts that puts a limit on what you can afford, and stick to it." urges Frances Smith of the American Financial Services Association, a trade group of lenders.

One significant plus for consumers this year is the low level of interest rates - even on credit cards. "If you must go the plastic route, set a schedule for paying off the balance as fast as possible," counsels the newsletter 100 Highest Yields in North Palm Beach, Fla

COLLEGE STATION - The government can make a mess of agriculture. Ask a farmer. Most farmers believe that agriculture is not a major cause of environmental problems," said Dr. Jim Mjelde of a recent study of Texas farmers' perceptions about environmental concerns by a team of Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researchers. "But 70 percent said government involvement is a cause of many problems in agriculture." can be written off on Schedule A.

Don't try to avoid it by sneaking such expenses onto Schedule C.

The findings are important because people who do not see themselves as part of a problem will be less likely to join in solu-tions, said Mjelde, a resource

"If you don't feel that you are harming the environment, why would you enroll in a conservation program," Mjelde pointed out. More than 1,000 Texas farmers from the Panhandle to the Gulf Coast were interviewed about their participation in government commodity and specific conservation programs and their perceptions of environmental policies that affect agriculture. More than 80 percent of the farmers surveyed participate in at not participate in any of the least one government commodity specific government conservation program, but almost 70 percent do programs, the researchers found.

Although farmers were required in the 1985 farm bill to implement a conservation plan on their land by 1990 to remain eligible for government commodity program benefits, the plans do not mandate that government conservation programs be used to achieve the goals.

Farmers agree that numerous environmental problems exist in the state. Wildlife damage to erops was listed as the biggest problem. That was followed by farmland erosion, not enough groundwater, disposal of farm pesticides, damage by trespassers, urban land development and irrigation water quality as the most serious environmental problems

But Texas farmers in the survey pointed the finger elsewhere. Illegal waste dumping, litter and garbage, industrial discharge and sewer systems, for example, are perceived by farmers as the main sources of water pollution, Mjelde said. Only 2 percent of the farmers said they are involved in the water quality incentives program.

Soil erosion, pesticide or fertilizer runoff and livestock waste were listed by 4 percent or fewer farmers as being a major source of water pollution in Texas, although as many as 40 percent believe those sources are at least a minor cause of the problem.

Try these tips to save money this Christmas

To improve holiday spending g techniques, try the following sugor gestions from the National Center for Financial Education:

 Create a written plan for spenbe ding and gift giving. Include possible gifts, dollar amounts and alternative choices. Establish spending limits for each person on your list. • Start looking for bargains ear-ye ly, watch advertising and sale flyers and wait for sales. Sometimes clearance sales appear early if sales are sluggish.

 Ask retailers when items are coming on sale. Most will reveal sale dates because they don't want you to shop their competition.

 If considering a part-time job over the holidays, perhaps working for a department store or other major retailer, you could economize with an employee discount in addition to getting early information about up-coming sales.

 Liquidators, buying clubs and factory outlet stores usually offer lower prices. Bulk buying with other family members or friends can also yield savings Giving gifts to adults on New Year's Day is very special. You can really take advantage of all those after Christmas sales. • Talk with those you exchange gifts with and suggest not exchanging gifts or mutually observing much lower dollar limits. At office parties and other holiday functions where you might be asked to provide a gift, suggest that instead of gifts, bring canned food for the homeless or disadvantaged. Consider gifts that don't cost a lot of out-of-pocket money. Giving a card to a young family which entitles them to emergency babysitting time, for example, will result in savings for both families. Laundry or shirt-ironing for a bachelor, a bimonthly sight-seeing outing for senior citizens or gardening, housecleaning and car washes for grandparents are useful and often much needed gifts.

 Instead of giving money, especially to younger children. give U.S. Savings Bonds. They cost one half of the face value, will not be immediately spent, they encourage savings, and because they are interest bearing and tax free until redemption, the gift keeps on

 Make more of your gifts at home. A freshly baked loaf of 77.5 percent of an amount deteralways appreciated. Also art, the Wool Act. This means the 1992 crafts, needlework or a collage of shorn wool target price is $1.97 per photographs.

 Gift wrapping and incidentals can become costly. It is easy to Mohair be supported at a level not economize: give a card with a photo of the gift and the unwrapped gift, use newspapers, magazines, grocery and shopping bags as gift wrap or reusable gift boxes etc.

CAUTION: A NEW TAX TRAP

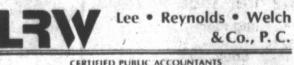

When you receive a distribution from your employer's retirement plan, it's tough enough to comply with all the rules about rollovers and special averaging. Unfortunately, the IRS is going to make your life even more complicated. Beginning January 1, 1993, the plan trustee will be required to withhold income taxes on certain distributions from retirement plans.

Example: Say it's February, 1993, and you are about to retire (or leave your job). You have $50,000 in your retirement plan, and you have asked your employer to distribute the entire balance before you leave. As you are walking out the door, your employer hands you a check, but for only $40,000.

What happened to the other $10,000? According to the new rules, you have received a distribution of $50,000, but the IRS requires the plan administrator to withhold 20% for income taxes - in this example, $10,000.

If you roll the entire $50,000 distribution to an IRA, or into a new employer's retirement plan, the IRS will refund the $10,000 when you file your 1993 tax return (or apply the withholding to other taxes due). But how are you going to roll over the entire $50,000 when you received only $40,000? That's the catch: the IRS expects you to come up with $10,000 of your own money. Any part of the $10,000 that you don't roll over is subject to income tax. And if you're under age 591/2, any amount that isn't rolled over is also subject to a 10% early withdrawal penalty.

If you don't want anything withheld, ask your employer to transfer your entire balance directly to your new retirement plan or rollover IRA (this is called a "trustee-to-trustee transfer"). To ensure zero withholding on your distribution, you must start planning well before your last day on the job.

How about a 'green' Christmas on gift selections

With the arrival of the holiday season, the minds and thoughts of even the most avid gardener turns away from the yard and garden toward Christmas and the season. Gardening chores are temporarily laid aside as the sights and sounds of Christmas fill the air.

If you have gardening friends on your gift lists this year, consider surprising them with a "green thumb." type of gift which can be used and enjoyed year-round as they pursue their favorite hobby.

Garden items make unusual, welcome and unique gifts, and the selections are vast. There is something for nearly everyone in any price range.

The following gift suggestions may just fit into your gardener's stocking this Christmas:

 Garden accessories: Many unique and interesting objects fall into the garden accessory group. Sculpture for the patio or garden may last forever, or you may

Texas Tech is among six to get agriculture grants totalling $111,000

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

AUSTIN - Six agriculture diversification projects recently received $111,000 in grants, announced Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry

The grants were awarded by Perry to agricultural diversification endeavors in Austin, El Paso, Lubbock, Medina, Stephenville and Waco with the consent of the Texas Agricultrural Diversification Program Advisory Board.

These awards are contingent upon each project meeting certain qualifications. They were matched by almost $179,000 from the private sector and other sources.

In Lubbock $22,500 to Texas Tech University to establish a lowinvestment outdoor pig production unit and to test new production methods that completely use manure nutrients, prevent groundwater and air contamination, and lower overall costs. It was matched with $33,000.

The Texas Agricultural Diversification Matching Grants Program provides funds to projects aimed at transferring newly developed agricultural crops and technologies to the marketplace, Perry said.

"This exciting program identifies and nurtures innovative programs around the state each year," Perry said. "These six projects will help enhance agriculture and rural development in Texas."

The autobiography's been done, but the blunt-talking, cigarchomping master of automotive marketing just may have a few more chapters to write after he retires from Chrysler Corp. on

His 32 years at Ford Motor Co., the so-called father of the Mustang, his sudden dismissal by Henry Ford II, his persistence in leading the rescue of Chrysler from the brink of bankruptcy, the introduction of the minivan - that's all in the 1984 best seller, "Iacocca." He elaborated on his views in a business philosophy tome called "Talking Straight" in 1989.

Still, his last few roller coaster years at Chrysler have been arguably as interesting as lacocca's days as vanquished executive and corporate savior.

"He stayed on too long," said

Even more interesting stories may loom if he accepts an offer by Trans World Airlines union leaders to take the helm of the carrier, which is trying to emerge from bankruptcy reorganization. Iacocca hasn't responded to the offer, disclosed this past week.

"I don't know that I have much else to say to the world out there," lacocca said in an interview in his fifth-floor office of Chrysler headquarters. "But when you sell a lot of books ... you do have a little bit of a following. I have people who write me and say, 'I'm ready to buy a third book. Where is it?'"

His response: "I haven't thought about what to write about yet, so don't hold your breath." He also said such a book, "waxing on five or six subjects," is possible - but no deadlines.

From the looks of his desk, cluttered with face down open books, reports and memos, the 68-year-old Iacocca isn't ready to turn things over to successor Robert Eaton

His north-facing window overlooks Interstate 75, a main thoroughfare that carries travelers to what will be the company's new home in Auburn Hills 30 miles

The fabric-paneled east wall is festooned with some of Iacocca's favorite memorabilia. They include a bronzed cover of Time magazine from 1983, proclaiming him "Detroit's Comeback Kid, the framed inside pages of another Time article, the canceled checks repaying Chrysler's federal loans, and a satirical takeoff on his famous line, "If you can find a better car, buy it," from his early days as Chrysler's TV pitchman.

A LeRoy Nieman print of the Statue of Liberty, one of Iacocca's pet fund raising causes, dominates the opposite wall. He chaired the 1986 centennial restoration of the monument and neighboring Ellis Island until he was fired in a spat with then-Interior Secretary Donald Hodel.

That was an unpaid, unfinished job. At Chrysler, on the contrary, ture. He denied suggestions that Chrysler directors finally forced him to set a date. "The board never said a word,"

Iacocca said. "The contract was open-ended. I could have stayed until I was 90. But I'd have died. I watched a lot of guys stay a year too long and they carry them out." The retirement subject was never comfortable for Iacocca, nor apparently for Gerald Greenwald, the former Chrysler vice chairman Iacocca lured to Chrysler from Ford and made his heir apparent. Greenwald's sudden resignation in 1990 shocked and angered him, he said. It also contributed to his decision to stay past retirement. Petersen said he wondered if the opposite were true.

'If Gerry had believed Lee was leaving at age 65, would Gerry had left? Not in my book," Petersen

Regardless, Iacocca said his goal of leaving Chrysler in better shape mained three years past retirethan he found it has been acment age to finish the job as he saw complished. He listed the completed final priorities: The prolonged tenure has evoked

Colleagues describe Iacocca as a leader, not always tactful or kind, but never indecisive. Hard-nosed, tough and demanding are among

The Trotman-backed car wasn't chosen.

TO COUNT OF THE PROPERTY OF TH

Barney is booming with pre-schoolers Iacocca

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ALLEN, Texas - Barney the Dinosaur is no giant purple peopleeater but he's gobbling up dollars for his creators and for retailers this Christmas season. The singing host of toddler videos, a Public Broadcasting Service star since the spring, has also become a topselling toy.

"Barney & Friends" TV shows and videos are filled with skits like those on "Sesame Street." But Barney is aimed at younger children, down to 18 months, and relies more on music to teach simple lessons and social skills than Big Bird and his friends.

Barney is an incredibly lovable, warm and welcoming character,' said Kathy Quattrone, vice president of programming for PBS. "The information that's presented in the program includes very simple but poignant lessons ... brushing your teeth, picking up, how to get along with children who are not like you. The show draws 1.7 million viewers a day compared to 2.1 million for "Sesame Street," Quattrone said, citing Nielsen ratings.

Many adults find the happy-golucky musings of Barney, his pal Baby Bop and their sing-along friends a little goofy or sappy. But preschoolers say Barney's appeal is simple.

"He's my friend. He's fun," said Kimbell Burkhart, 4, at her Dallas preschool.

"He won't grow up," said Wyatt Lewis, 3. Barney's popularity has created a bonanza for J.C. Penney Co. Inc., which decided before his April debut on PBS to develop a holiday "Barney Spot" promotion. The company expects to sell 1 million Barney dolls this year, mostly during the holiday season.

"I've been in the retail business 36 years," said Henry Scott, president of Penney's childrens' division, "and once in your lifetime you hope something like this would come along.

Associated Press photo Barney the Dinosaur poses for photographers in Allen, Texas, recently. The huggable purple giant, a favorite among the toddler set, is a money-maker for its creators and retailers this holiday as shoppers gobble up Barney videos and dolls.

preschooler was telling me that I cess of the other products. should say Barney was going to be the hottest toy this Christmas, which he is one of them," said Paul Valentine, a toy industry analyst for Standard & Poor's in New York.

Barney's creators — a pair of teachers and a video producer who formed the Lyons Group in suburban Dallas — say they were confident that Barney videos would sell,

"We really didn't think about the merchandise in the beginning," said Sheryl Leach, who thought up the character in 1988 because she felt most childrens' videos were aimed at kids older than her 2-year-old.

"If we had, we might have started differently. If that was the goal, we might have really gone for "Everybody I knew who has a but they're surprised by the suctelevision first. We just saw the home video market opening up," said Leach, now president of Lyons Group, a unit of privately-run educational publisher DLM Inc.

In 1990, parents of Barney fans started asking for books, dolls, anything that would pull the happy guy off the screen for their children. Before long, the Lyons Group had set up promotions with Blockbuster Video and Neiman

A public television executive in Connecticut rented a Barney tape for his young daughter early last year and then brought the character to the attention of PBS executives, who were looking for new childrens' programs.

Besides "Sesame Street," Barney follows other PBS children's series, including "Shining Time Station" and "Lamb Chop's Playalong," that have spawned successful toys.

Penney's Scott feels lucky to have spotted Barney when he did. He and other Penney executives initially shrugged when they saw a Barney video. But then Scott spent a weekend with his 2-year-old grandson, who played the tape over and over.

"I came back to the group Monday morning and I said, 'Look, there's something here that we're missing. We better take another look at it because I think this thing is bigtime," Scott said.

"That's almost a trademark reaction from adults, 'Wait a se-cond. I don't get this,'" said Dennis DeShazer, the video producer who helped Leach and friend Kathy Parker create Barney. "But they always follow that up by saying 'My child loves Barney.' And that's who we're programming to."

The Lyons Group is creating a new character to spin off from the next set of "Barney & Friends" episodes. And they're working on deals for shows in England, prime time specials and maybe even a movie, all aimed at preschoolers.

As Iacocca relinquishes command to Eaton, the former General Motors-Europe president whom Iacocca recruited in late 1991, miseries of recent years are becoming memories. Turning the company from the edge of bankruptcy, that's what we'll be remembered for for too long," Iacocca said. "What we've got to remember is a decade has passed and the tough turnaround was not the first one.

Iacocca inherited the first mess at Chrysler. He helped create the second one. He has admitted culpability, but points to the Japanese invasion of the U.S. auto market, the pressure on profits created by consumer rebates, the shrinking market and finally the 1990 recession as bigger contributors.

Known as much for candor as profane wit, Iacocca admitted to allowing the company to drift during the industry's last sales surge in the mid-1980s.

In 1983, Chrysler had paid off its $1.5 billion debt to the federal government — the 1980 loan guarantees that saved the company - seven years early. Iacocca introduced the minivan later the same year, the genesis of a market that now exceeds 1 million vehicle sales annually. Profits were rolling Iacocca wanted to restore Chrysler's tradition as a defense company — it made tanks for the Army before selling to General Dynamics during the late 1970s so he bought Gulfstream Aviation for $637 million in 1985. It sold in 1990 for $825 million. Despite the tidy profit, Iacocca now admits Chrysler probably could have put the original purchase money to bet-

"Being realistic and frank, it does get a lot of your management into doing something you don't know a hell of a lot about. Eye off the ball syndrome, I call it."

Iacocca focused on trucks -Corp. in 1987. The timing was awful anything."

- a month before the October market crash. Chrysler stock went from above $30 a share to around

The two events provided lacocca's wakeup call that Chrysler, for the second time in less than a decade, was headed for

"We almost went down the tubes again," Iacocca said. "So we had to start from scratch, which we did four years ago, and say 'We can't survive unless we ... reinvent the company.' "

That led to Draconian cuts in salaried workers, the restructuring of practically all organizations and the adoption of efficient Japanese manufacturing techniques.

Those methods have allowed Chrysler to reduce from five years to less than four the time it takes to move a new vehicle from drawing board to production.

Iacocca admitted what some colleagues have said about him: He's better at managing bad times than

"I'm built that way," he said. Some guys fight better with real ammunition. ... On maneuvers, they goof off. My adrenalin flows when you're really in the trenches and things are tough.'

Not surprisingly, Iacocca has numerous job offers: teaching, writing, managing. Corporate turnaround projects, such as the offer to rescue TWA, also beckon. Even a position in the Clinton administration is a possibility.

If he knows what's next, he isn't

"I intend to enjoy life," he said. "I could have stayed on forever here, but it's hard work. I don't specifically Jeeps - when want to be operating anything, I Chrysler bought American Motors don't want to be involved in
