Officials checking drug test policy violation

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

City fire department officials — after learning two weeks ago drug testing policies were not being followed correctly — are again accused of not following policy in an incident Tuesday.

Big Spring Fire Department firefighter Dalton Mitchell Gill, 29, was directed to take a urine test Tuesday following a minor fire truck accident at 6:50 a.m., but incident reports were not completed first as required by city policy, said Paul Brown, president of the Big Spring Professional Firefighters Association.

"Here's another case where a decision was made on the scene," Brown said.

Fire Chief Frank Anderson said it's his understanding reports were completed before the test was ordered but said he will look into allegations.

"We'll certainly investigate it and see if there were any irregularities," he said.

Testimony in a Jan. 7 arbitration hearing on the September firing of firefighter Jimmy Bertran showed that reports were not completed and Anderson and Personnel Director Emma Bogard not consulted, which is also required, before Bertran took a urine test that lab officials say contained cocaine. Federally recommended procedures were also not followed when taking the urine sample.

Bertran was tested after backing a fire truck into a pole, causing about $300 damage.

Correct procedure was not followed with "some half dozen other city employees since the policy took effect in March, Bogard said. It was "naive on my part," she testified. "We're very well aware of it now."

Brown said Anderson and Bogard were contacted Tuesday before Gill was ordered to be tested. However, Brown said when he arrived at the accident scene at 7:35 a.m. police and fire officials were still filling out reports. Gill had already been taken to Scenic Mountain Medical Center for testing.

Gill failed to lower a light pole that hit a doorway and broke as he backed a truck into the fire station at 18th and Main. He actually took the test about 9:15 a.m. but got a call about 45 minutes later from Deputy Chief Ken Davidson requesting a statement of events surrounding the accident.

"He was working on statements for the report somewhere around 10 o'clock," Gill said. "He just wanted me to write a statement, why the light was up and that type of thing."

The taking of the urine sample at the hospital appeared correct, said Gill, who witnessed the sealing of the sample and signed it. But another form he was required to sign was changed by a hospital official after he signed it.

The form, which he said is an apparent liability release form, said that the hospital and its personnel would test the sample, he said. After signing it, he asked if the sample would be tested by Allied Clinical Laboratory of Midland.

"She said give me your pen, she scratched out Scenic Mountain and wrote in Allied Clinical."

Hospital spokeswoman Julie Wolfe this morning said she would look into it.

Brown and Gill say they have no problem with drug testing, but say

President-elect Bill Clinton and Vice President-elect Al Gore listen to comments made by newly announced appointees as they prepared for today's inauguration ceremonies in Washington.

Clinton presidency approaches with nation holding high hopes

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — William Jefferson Clinton stepped toward the presidency today, ready to lead a new generation to power and promising an expectant nation a government that cares first about the needs of the people at home.

Hours before mounting the inaugural stand, Clinton declared himself prepared for the responsibilities ahead. Asked whether he felt ready, the 46-year-old president-to-be said simply, "I do."

A short while later the turnover of the office was under way as President Bush graciously greeted the Clintons, Vice President-elect Al Gore and his family at the White House. "Good luck to you," said Bush, reaching out to shake the hands of his guests.

Less than an hour later, the two presidents rode together to the Capitol in a limousine bearing the presidential seal.

Clinton's emotions were close to the surface. A tear rolled down his cheek as he sat in a front-row pew at an early morning church service and listened to a soulful rendition of "Holy Ground."

Earlier, it was all business, as the outgoing president dispatched national security adviser Brent Scowcroft to Clinton's pre-inaugural quarters across from the White House for a briefing on the world's trouble spots.

A mile or so away at the Capitol, a crowd that would swell to tens of thousands began assembling in the wintry sunshine in anticipation of the first Democratic administration in a dozen years.

Today's simple rite at noon on the Capitol's front porch — two prayers, two oaths, a speech, two songs and a poem — were the peaceful transfer of power that is the mark and glory of the American republic.

Bush, judged by the voters to be indifferent to their economic worries, was a bystander after his years of power.

The Marine Band signalled the transition, set to play "Hail to the Chief" one final time to the outgoing president shortly before noon, and again to the new president a few minutes after.

Bush the fifth living former-president, arranged to be in Houston before the sun set on Bill Clinton's Washington.

By then, Clinton and his wife, Hillary, will be donning formal clothes to join the celebrating Democrats at 11 inaugural balls, cheering their return to power after a 12-year drought.

First was the parade, traditional, fun-filled, noisy and quirky — witnessed by the Clintons and daughter, Chelsea, from an enclosed reviewing stand in front of their new home on Pennsylvania Avenue. The marching will go on for hours, with participants from every state, including the high school band from a place called Hope, Ark. Clinton was born there 46 years ago.

He was William Jefferson Blythe IV then, but his father died in an auto crash before his birth. As a teen-ager, he took his stepfather's last name, and used it in today's oath taking.

He selected a King James Bible given to him by his grandmother for his inaugural ceremony, opening it to a passage promising "he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Aides said Clinton selected the passage from the Epistle of Paul The Apostle to the Galatians, Chapter 6, Verse 8. It reads: "For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting."

Copies of smoking ordinance now available

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A summary of a city smoking ordinance, effective March 1, was to be mailed to businesses but city officials nixed the idea after roughly calculating costs.

Instead, copies of the complete ordinance are available for $3.50 each at City Hall, located at Fourth and Nolan. Checks will be accepted and can be mailed to P.O. Box 3190.

"To mail this out would be at least 50 cents, plus printing, cost of envelopes and manpower to get it out," said City Manager Lanny Lambert. "We're probably looking at $3,000 or $4,000."

According to the ordinance: • Business owners or those in charge of enclosed public places "shall make a reasonable effort to prevent smoking" in public places, including stores, restaurants, movie theaters.

• Smoking areas may be created but can only be large enough to handle normal usage. Smoking areas must be separated from non-smoking areas, be situated so ventilation minimizes effects on non-smoking areas and have ashtrays or other extinguishing containers.

• Smoking areas cannot include service lines or cashier areas.

• Exemptions include places where smokers constitute such a large portion of users that structural or "significant expenditures" are needed. Other exemptions are businesses where 50 percent of gross sales are from alcoholic beverages sold for on-premise consumption, separate bar areas of restaurants, tobacco shops and private functions in public facilities.

• Smoking areas in places of employment must be agreeable to all non-smokers. It does not include employees with duties that include routine interaction with the general public. No expense or structural changes would be required by employers.

• Employers must have a written smoking policy announced and posted to all employees by March 31. Minimum requirements need to include provisions allowing smokers an avenue to complain of smoke in "normally frequented areas" and non-smoker preference on areas when agreements cannot be reached.

• Smoking and non-smoking areas must be marked by clearly visible signs in and at entrances of establishments.

• Those smoking in non-smoking areas and businesses owners or those in charge of public places not taking "reasonable measures" to prevent offenses are subject to being charged with a Class C misdemeanor, punishable by up to $500 a day.

Mobile units offer women cancer exam

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

A mobile breast cancer detection unit will offer potentially life-saving mammograms to area women, Feb. 6 at the Big Spring Specialty Clinic, 616 Gregg Street.

The mobile unit has been making monthly stops in Big Spring for several years, said Laurie Burks, a registered nurse with Big Spring Specialty Clinic. The clinic makes appointments for mammograms and is a satellite of Odessa Women's and Children's Hospital.

The upcoming appearance of the mobile unit is on a Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Burks said. For appointments, call 267-8226.

Transamerican Diagnostic Services, which offers the service, recently contracted with the Texas Department of Health to be an official provider for low-income women, said Janet Eckland of Transamerican.

Although breast cancer cannot be prevented, early detection can save many lives. Breast cancer will strike one in nine women, and the American Cancer Society predicts that about 44,000 women will die of breast cancer this year, Eckland said.

Nearly a third of all women who die of breast cancer would survive if they had received regular mammograms, according to ACS information.

The ACS suggests the following guidelines for early breast-cancer detection:

- Begin mammography by age 40.
- From 40-49 years, have a mammogram every 1-2 years.
- Over age 50, have annual mammograms.
- Monthly breast self-examination.
- Regular breast exams by a physician.

Transamerican Diagnostic Services received its accreditation from the American College of Radiology in 1989. The voluntary accreditation is designed to ensure patients receive exams of optimum quality, Eckland said.

The accreditation process involves the facility's staff qualifications, equipment, quality control procedures, image quality and X-ray dosage.

Transamerican also is approved by the Texas Department of Health to accept patients without a doctor's referral, and is approved by Medicare as a provider in the Medicare Mammography Program, she said.

One dead, two wounded in Dallas courthouse shooting

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — A 26-year-old woman died from gunshot wounds she received from her estranged husband while seeking legal protection from her abusive spouse in a court building without a single metal detector.

Ly Dang, died at about 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, said Liz Winter, Parkland Memorial Hospital's on-call spokeswoman.

Dang and a teen-age bystander were shot in a sixth-floor corridor of the George Allen Sr. Courts Building at about 9:30 a.m. Dang was waiting with her husband Hai Van Huynh, 30, outside a courtroom when witnesses said the man pulled a .38-caliber revolver from his coat, put it to his wife's head and shot her several times.

The couple had a hearing scheduled Tuesday concerning a restraining order Dang had placed on Huynh.

Parkland Memorial Hospital mistakenly reported earlier that Huynh died. But Winter said that Huynh, remained in critical condition Tuesday night and it was his wife who was dead.

Rogelio Gutierrez, 16, was upgraded to good condition late Tuesday with a gunshot wound to

The shooting was the second in six months in a Dallas-Fort Worth area courthouse, renewing concerns over security measures in public buildings.

Officials and witnesses said Huynh approached Dang in the hallway outside the 304th state District Court about 9:30 a.m.

"I was sitting outside the courtroom at the juvenile court," said

Robin Presley. "I heard a shot and I looked to my right. I heard another one so I didn't know whether this person was shooting at someone or if he was just running through shooting."

Added Presley's husband, Don, "He just came out of nowhere. There were attorneys sitting around talking with people about their cases.

"All the sudden you just heard a gunshot. I kind of turned and looked to see what it was. Then you heard two more gunshots, and everybody was running," he said.

Ly Dang's family members say that she had been seeking protection and that Huynh had a history of violence.

Sheriff's Lt. Larry Forsyth added that about 25 people were in the hallway outside District Judge Hal Gaither's courtroom.

Colonel Maxwell pleads not guilty to accusations

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN ANGELO — Attorneys for a decorated Air Force officer pleaded not guilty Tuesday to four accusations of sending and receiving child pornography via computer mail.

But Goodfellow Air Force Col. James Maxwell Jr. may have been dealt a setback when Air Force judge Col. Donald Weir denied a request to have court members view pictures and designs that appeared on a computer — the same way Maxwell saw them.

Maxwell will try to get the charges dropped in a hearing Wednesday, when his attorneys present a motion on unlawful command influence, said Capt. Mike Murk, a base spokesperson.

Defense attorneys charge that, former Air Training Command commander Lt. Gen. Joseph Ashy exercised "unlawful command influence" in legal decisions affecting Maxwell's criminal case.

Should Maxwell's motion be denied, the court martial would begin, Murk said.

Earlier Tuesday, Weir, of Randolph Air Force Base, explained his reason for upholding an Air Force search warrant for Maxwell's home and home computer, saying it met the "totality of the circumstances" test for probable cause.

Maxwell, 48, was removed from command at the Goodfellow Air Force Base training center last summer when military authorities charged him with distributing pornography and homosexual materials through his home computer. He also is accused of writing obscene messages to a male lieutenant.

Maxwell has denied the charges. Lead defense counsel Lt. Col. Frank J. Spinner will try to get the charges dropped based on an affidavit that says Ashy was attempting to influence court members, all of whom are in Air Training Command.

Culture clash at collider project

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS — Cultures are colliding at the site of a giant atom smasher, with Russians learning about quirks of Texas culture as well as quarks and other subatomic particles.

A team of about 30 Russian scientists and engineers are working at the $8.25 billion super collider. Seven Russian laboratories have signed agreements to construct or design parts of the project south of Dallas.

The United States government recently signed a formal agreement with the Russians, designed to make cooperation easier and save $200 million in collider costs.

But it's still hard for Russians to adjust to living in the Lone Star State. The scientists and their families welcome the abundant food in this country — but aren't sure what to make of guacamole and other dishes.

"It's an acquired taste," quipped Tonya Mitselmaier, whose husband is a physicist at the superconducting super collider.

But physicists from both countries have already learned how to share information — even during the tense Cold War-era 1960s.

"Even when relations on the politics (were) not good, cooperation in physics was steady," Victor Yarba, deputy director at the Institute for High Energy Physics in Protvino, told The Dallas Morning News.

Yarba is spending a sabbatical year at the SSC project, helping to design the second-largest ring of underground magnets. Since English is the international language for scientists, communication has not been a problem.

Ticketless Texans find alternative entertainment during inauguration week

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — There's so much to see at President-elect Clinton's inauguration.

If you have the appropriate ticket.

There's a ticket for today's swearing-in, another for the inaugural parade. Passes are needed to gain entree to one of the 11 official inaugural balls tonight, or even the unofficial ones. There's the MTV bash, the gala for the homeless, a third for gays and lesbians.

What's a ticketless Texan to do? Hundreds of them showed up in the nation's capital without that prized pass, that piece of paper that would grant them entree to events surrounding the 52nd inauguration of a U.S. president.

So, many turned to their members of Congress.

"It's been just sheer bedlam," said Phil Duncan, Amarillo Democratic Rep. Bill Sarpalius' chief of staff. "Everybody's calling everybody else looking for tickets."

Even Republicans are being pulled into the act.

"It's pretty busy," said Ray Sullivan, spokesman for Rep. Sam Johnson, R-Dallas. "There's lots of horse trading going on with swearing-in tickets and ball tickets and so on."

Filthy conditions recounted during nursing home trial

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABILENE — A 97-year-old woman was lying in her feces and had insect bites all over her body while in a nursing home, a former state health inspector has testified.

Marcie Moody, formerly a long-term care surveyor with the Texas Department of Health, described the conditions of Mary Marshall to an Abilene jury Tuesday.

Marshall's family called Moody as their first witness in a multi-million dollar damage suit against Anson Place No. 1 nursing home and its parent company, Texas Health Enterprises Inc. of Denton.

San Angelo attorney Tom Webb said the family is seeking $4 million in exemplary damages "for the gross neglect shown by the nursing home."

The family also wants "substantial claims" for damages suffered by Marshall and for the mental anguish of survivors over the way she died, Webb said.

Moody said she and a co-worker made an unannounced visit to the nursing home in August 1991, in response to an anonymous complaint.

"We found Mrs. Marshall in bed. She was unresponsive.... She was wet of urine and she had soiled herself. She was covered all over her body with ant bites," Moody said, her voice cracking with emotion.

U.S. Supreme Court refuses to hear appeal of death row inmate

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HUNTSVILLE — The U.S. Supreme Court on Tuesday refused to hear the appeal of Texas death row inmate Kenneth Gentry, who was convicted in the 1983 slaying near Denton.

Gentry, 31, of Bartow County, Ga., was sentenced to lethal injection for the shooting death of Jimmy Don Ham, 23, a traveling companion, at Lake Lewisville on September 10, 1983.

Authorities said Gentry, who escaped from a Georgia prison in 1982, shot Ham in the chest and head in an attempt to assume his identity. Ham's body was found in a park on the lake shore three days later.

Ravaged West begins cleanup following storm

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
LOS ANGELES — The deluge finally over, crews across the Southwest searched for bodies in receding floodwaters, tried to shore up unstable hillsides, fixed damaged homes and picked through those that were destroyed. The 13 days of rain, wind and tornadoes that broke on Tuesday killed at least 41 people and caused more than $164 million in damage in Southern California, Arizona and northwestern Mexico. Generally sunny skies were forecast across the West through Thursday. "It's stopped raining!" Phillip Robertson shouted over and over Tuesday at the Arroyo Seco Golf Course in South Pasadena. "We can play golf!" President Bush declared Arizona a disaster area, making federal aid available. California Gov. Pete

Wilson proclaimed emergencies in three more counties, bringing the total to seven eligible for state help. A foot of rain had fallen over most coastal areas and nearly 2 feet fell in some mountain regions of California, Arizona and Mexico. An estimated 10,000 people remained homeless in Tijuana, where 30 people were killed. The Mexican army was flying in 50 tons of supplies daily, while more than 1,200 army troops patrolled Tijuana streets. Mudslides in Tijuana claimed two lives Tuesday. Hundreds were homeless in Arizona, where 850 homes have been damaged. The state's death toll rose to two Tuesday when the body of a 39-year-old woman was pulled from a pickup stuck in the overflowing Gila River near Sacaton. In California, at least nine people were killed in the most recent series of storms that came ashore starting last weekend. The body of Christopher Flowers, 14, was pulled Tuesday from a receding creek in Escondido. He was swept away Monday while riding his bicycle across a flooded road, said San Diego County sheriff's spokesman Ed Lynch. Searchers Tuesday recovered the body of a man they believe was swept into a flooded wash in Palm Springs almost two weeks ago. Los Angeles County sheriff's deputies searched for two men who disappeared beneath raging floodwaters in separate parts of the county. A Bureau of Indian Affairs policeman was missing in Arizona after he disappeared while checking floods on the Gila River Indian Reservation.

Virginia executes disabled murderer

The ASSOCIATED PRESS
JARRATT, Va. — A man who had used a wheelchair since his spinal cord was injured in a prison brawl shuffled to the electric chair with help from guards and was put to death for murdering three people in a holdup. Charles Stamper, 39, was pronounced dead at 11:15 p.m. Tuesday at Greensville Correctional Center. In a final statement read by the prison chaplain, Stamper said his execution "bruised and demeaned humanity" and he hoped his death would yield "abundant fruit" for others like himself. Death penalty foes contended the execution was unnecessary because Stamper was no longer a danger, as a result of his handicap. Some advocates for the disabled argued that he was entitled to no special consideration. His lawyers also claimed that Stamper wasn't a danger and said there was insufficient proof that he committed the murders. The U.S. Supreme Court, without comment, rejected a last-ditch attempt to halt the execution. Stamper, convicted of killing three co-workers in 1978 at a suburban Richmond restaurant where he was a cook, had asked for permission to walk to the electric chair in leg braces and with a walker. "He maintains a sense of dignity even under these circumstances," Dennis W. Dohnal, one of his attorneys, said Monday. "He is a very proud person." The request was denied, but Wayne Brown, prison operations officer, refused to say why. Brown said prison guards held Stamper by the shoulders and helped him walk 15 feet to the electric chair. Stamper's feet were dragging on the floor as he was brought to the chair, and one leg shook as he was strapped in. Stamper had used a wheelchair since he was injured in a 1988 fight with other inmates. His execution originally was set for October, but Gov. L. Douglas Wilder postponed it while doctors evaluated Stamper's condition. "The minute we begin to execute people like Stamper, I wonder if we're not crossing the line into something other than the society we'd like to be," Dohnal said. Some advocates for the disabled disagreed. "If he killed, he killed," said Peggy Bendrick, a wheelchair user who lobbies the General Assembly on disability issues. "You do it, you pay the price."

'Hail to the Chief as Clinton takes office

At noon today, Bill Clinton went from president-elect to president, ushering in a new era at the White House.

The many Americans who voted for Clinton are looking for a new way of doing things. That's why there are more than 120 new legislators on Capitol Hill, to join the new president.

Americans were tired of business as usual when the Nov. 4 election rolled around.

Now, as the reality of the election begins, the hope is Clinton can work with Congress and effect the changes sought by the electorate.

The hope is Clinton will always keep in the foreground the promises made to the voters when decisions are made. And, if promises have to be broken or changed, that Clinton will have the courage to tell us why.

Many things have changed since Clinton was elected. He now faces the possibility of calling for the use of force against Iraq and finishing the mission in Somalia.

Some of the election issues are still with us — health care, quality education and the never-dwindling deficit. Those issues Clinton will be expected to tackle head on and, with a Congress willing to work with him, maybe he can accomplish what he promised.

Here's to the hope for a brighter future in America and to the hope that Clinton will prove his detractors wrong to the benefit of all Americans.

City's goals for 1993 are outlined

Hello Citizens of Big Spring!!

I hope this newsletter finds you healthy, happy, and in the embrace of a loving family after the Christmas/New Year holidays. I hope 1992 was a good year for you and I pray 1993 will be a better one!

As part of my campaign for Mayor, I promised to keep you, the Big Spring Citizen, informed of City activities. One way I propose to do that is with monthly newsletters printed in the Big Spring Herald and available to the local news media. This is the first of many.

I want to use this first newsletter to list the goals I have established as Mayor for 1993.

1. STOP FIGHTING! My first and primary goal as Mayor is to heal rifts and wounds of the past and make City Government a logical, smooth running organization with a "team work" concerned City Council. We certainly don't always agree with each other, but we can "agree to disagree" without contentiousness and turmoil that has distinguished our City for many years. It takes four (4) votes to accomplish anything on our City Council. To paraphrase Abraham Lincoln, "We must stand together or we will certainly fall separately." I hope to work with this City Council to develop a consensus producing procedure where we work together and solve problems as a team.

2. LOWER COST OF CITY GOVERNMENT! As a local businessman, I know how hard it is to pay taxes, especially when my business revenues are down because of the economy. I intend to see that the City is run like a business, with economy and efficiency as the hallmarks of City employee performance, not politics. I hope to consolidate, reorganize, and cut back City operations to retain or lower the tax rate this year.

3. STREET PAVING! With the proceeds of the bond issue approved by voters on October 10, 1992, we hope to sealcoat or repair approximately 40 miles of City streets. This is to be done with City crews and equipment so that all the money can be spent on materials.

4. WASTEWATER TREATMENT PLANT! We will bring the City's Wastewater Treatment Plant into compliance with new EPA environmental standards. This should make us one of the first cities in West Texas to meet the new U.S. Clean Water Act.

5. BEALS CREEK DRAINAGE!

Mayor's newsletter

Work will begin on the design and preparation of plans and specifications of a drainage system for Beals Creek. This should lessen the drainage problems for the downtown business areas and other low lying areas of the City.

6. WATER LINE REPLACEMENT! Work should be completed in April on the Capehart water line replacement program. We hope to take the remaining funds and buy more pipe and continue to replace old steel and cast iron water lines with plastic.

7. MORE RESPONSIVE CITY GOVERNMENT! The only reason for our existence is to serve the citizens of Big Spring. I want City government and City employees to be sensitive to the needs of the public. (Let me take this opportunity to commend the Police Department and the Chief of Police for their plans to make more police officers available to the public. "Keep up the good work!")

8. JOBS! Our community needs jobs and tax base! As Mayor I intend to use all the authority of my office to attract and/or expand industry to Big Spring. Big Spring is a great town in which to live and raise children. We need to get that word out to the rest of the world!

9. PLANNING! We have done very little planning for the future. I hope to develop short range and long range plans through the City Council retreats, public hearings, and other community projects. These plans can be used to guide our City into the 21st century and prepare us for the future.

CALL ME! If you have any ideas for Big Spring and its betterment, call me at City Hall, 263-8311. If I'm not in, I will call you as soon as possible.

YOU ARE INVITED to City Council meetings! We meet every month on the second and fourth Tuesdays at 5:30 p.m. at the City Council Chamber at the McMahon/Wrinkle Air Park, Building 1106. Come and see your City government in action!

WE NEED YOU to serve on a City board or commission. Call City Hall if you are interested.

See you next month!

Iraqi strike: Like old times - almost

Lewis Grizzard

It was just like old times. There I sat in front of my television tuned in to CNN, the War Channel.

Well, this time it wasn't "War in the Gulf" I was watching. This time it was, "Strike in the Gulf."

The difference between a war and a strike I suppose is that, in a war, CNN sends anchorman Bernie ("I'm Under the Table") Shaw to the front.

In a strike, it only sends John Holliman, who sure enough, is back in Baghdad.

Wolf Blitzer, meanwhile, is with the next Great Satan, the president-elect.

I'm not sure where Peter Arnett is—maybe he's with Ross Perot covering the 1996 presidential campaign. A CNN poll, by the way, has Perot's lead over David Letterman, as the nation's favorite television comedian, falling 6 percentage points.

But full scale war or strike, there were a lot of similarities.

Once again Saddam Hussein was the man of the moment. Two years ago, the Iraqi leader thumbed his nose at the West, and the West blew up his country and his people.

Now he's done it again. And, again, the West has blown up his country and his people.

When the West leveled Iraq in the Gulf War, Saddam Hussein said he had won a great victory. Last week, after coalition planes dropped coalition bombs on coalition targets in Iraq and wiped them off the face of the earth, Saddam Hussein said he'd won another great victory.

A couple of more great victories for Saddam, and Iraq will be the mother of all piles of rubble.

Once again CNN showed us videotapes of our bombs hitting their targets. I found myself wishing those things were in color as I did during the Gulf War. I like a little orange fire, blue smoke and red blood when I see something explode on TV—like what you get when Chuck Norris blows up a North Vietnamese prison camp on sister station TBS.

Who was missing besides Peter Arnett was Gen. Schwarzkopf. He was somewhere signing copies of his book.

I wanted Gen. Schwarzkopf to do an interview and say, "I know it sounds like 'I told you so,' but if George Bush had listened to me the first time and we'd taken out Saddam and finished the job, this strike wouldn't have been necessary and Bill Clinton might be stuck in Little Rock for good."

I also listened to the experts CNN had asked about Saddam's motives for not complying with those resolutions.

One said Saddam just wanted to upset George Bush one more time before he left office. Another said he was merely protecting the sovereignty of his country. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said it was because Saddam is unstable.

Unstable? Saddam Hussein is downright crazy.

A sane individual would have figured it out by now: "Hey these people are serious. Not only that, but praise Allah, do they have some kind of firepower too. Duck, Akbar, this holy war business is getting out of hand."

But not Saddam Hussein. He gets his country and his people bombed and he clicks his heels and says hurrah for our side.

I can see only three ways to deal with Saddam:

1. Get his own people to kill him.
2. Kill him ourselves.
3. Figure out how to get him in a straitjacket and into a home.

He will be Bill Clinton's problem now and I'm staying with CNN.

How Clinton deals with Saddam Hussein may give us a clue as to how he will deal with the fruit-cakes in Congress as well.

The Pokes

It has been a long, long time since Texans have truly had anything really worth bragging about.

One of the most dirty gubernatorial races — especially the Democratic primary — is not something worth bragging about to other states. Even if it was the dirtiest in history — but I believe there have been some there were a smidgen dirtier.

The fact that Texans can't decide how to finance their public schools isn't something that lends credence to the title "Great State."

Nor is our prison system, with early parole releasing the bad too early, something to write home to mother about.

But, with the Dallas Cowboys back in the "Super saddle" — to borrow our sports writer's headline — Texans might have something to brag about again.

Now, I must admit, I haven't watched this Cowboy team much. I am a Cowboy fan, have been for a while. But, it has taken me a while to get over all the changes in the team.

As my publisher is fond of saying, change is the only constant in life. And, that is true. It just takes some longer to adapt than others.

My Cowboys were the Cowboys of the 1970s and 1980s. When names like Roger Staubach, Preston Pearson, Drew Pearson, Charlie Waters and Cliff Harris roamed the field.

When the Doomsday Defense was truly a doomsday for the other team.

I love to watch a good defense and, most of the time the Cowboys provided it. Interceptions are prettier than pass receptions, especially when it is an Everson Walls doing the intercepting.

But, like many Cowboy fans, I was angered at the treatment of Tom Landry. That put a crimp on my like of the new Cowboy owners and coach. It was time for Landry to step down, but to me, that's no way to treat a legend.

But, I'll give Jimmy Johnson this — he turned the Cowboys around in no time at all. That's a credit to his coaching and his ability to select a staff and players.

So, anyway. The Cowboys are back. It's good to see them return to the form most Texans were accustomed to — in the playoffs and in the Super Bowl.

Texans love to brag. Living in the state is a state of mind. And now the Cowboys have given us something good to brag about again.

DD Turner is managing editor for the Herald. Her column appears Sunday and Wednesday.

Now, the music's important

Rheta Grimsley Johnson

Marilyn and Barbara surrounded by people wearing mother-daughter Laura Ashley, all waving from the wrist while the band played "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

Somebody should have fired (or shot) the Republican music coordinator. "I've Been Working on the Railroad"? Give us a break. Little Richard would look stiff trying to clap time to that one. That hopelessly dated song has more of a Democratic theme, anyway: manual labor. Republicans would have done better to groove to "I've Been Working at the S&L."

Every potential voter who ever rode in a Mustang with the radio blaring "Wouldn't It Be Nice?" or "Who'll Stop the Rain?" or "Stuck Inside Of Mobile With The Memphis Blues Again?" couldn't help but feel alienated when that band struck up "I've Been Working on the Railroad" as the campaign's highest-profile song.

But it's too late to mend those fences. The cows are out and eating poison weeds.

What's important now is that the Clinton-Gore team not lose the beat. Presidents from both parties tend to go into office humming their generational equivalent of "Don't Stop" and leave wailing "Please Release Me."

The Democrats are off to a splendid musical start. Aretha should sing "Respect" and let Hillary join in on the "Re-re-re" part.

Buffett can croon "A Pirate Looks At Forty" for Bill. "I go for younger women. Lived with several a while..."

A notable omission from the inaugural's rock and roll roster is John Fogerty; at least I've not heard him mentioned. Maybe it's because he once spoke out against the Tipper Gore album labeling plan: "This whole thing sounds kind of dangerous to me," Fogerty told Time magazine.

Fighting words. Music — its quality, its message — is important enough to fret over, fight over. In Clinton's generation you didn't have to agree WHICH music was good, but it was imperative to believe THAT music was good.

For the first time in my life I'm looking forward to watching some of the televised inaugural activities. I wager Tipper won't wear hot pants, and Hillary won't scorn a suit for bell bottoms. Their clothes may look amazingly like Nancy Reagan's or Barbara Bush's.

But there'll be a difference. They'll be playing my song.

Lady Hawks No. 1 team in the land

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Howard College Lady Hawks have finally reached the top of the mountain. The next step is staying on top.

The latest National Junior College Athletic Association basketball poll came out Tuesday and the Lady Hawks are the No. 1 ranked team in the nation. It's the first time a Howard College women's team has been ranked No. 1. Last year the Lady Hawks were ranked as high as No. 3 and in a preseason poll last year they were ranked No. 2.

The No. 1 ranking comes on the heels of Howard's 80-67 Western Junior College Athletic Conference win over No. 9 ranked Odessa Saturday in Odessa, Howard is 20-0, one of five unbeaten junior college women's teams left in the nation. The Lady Hawks were ranked third going into the Odessa game.

Rounding out the top five is Louisburgh, N.C. (12-1); Northeast Oklahoma (16-1); Sullivan, Ky. (18-0) and Connors, Okla. (16-2).

Howard coach Royce Chadwick seemed to take it all in stride. "It's the first time I've ever coached a No. 1 ranked team, it feels good," said Chadwick. "We kind of put myself in a position where we didn't give them (JUCO pollsters) much choice. We've beaten some quality people this season."

Chadwick has molded a team with a good balance of freshmen and sophomores into a squad that plays a fast-paced game and pressure defense. Howard is averaging 92 and allowing 58 points per game.

Chadwick starts sophomore guards Yumecca White and LeKisha Wiley and freshman wing player Becky Barnes. Inside he goes with sophomore forward Regina Huff and freshman post player Annette Robinson. From the bench he frequently uses sophomores Anita Wright and Kim Stanley, along with freshmen Angel Spinks and Jennifer Jeffress.

White leads Howard in scoring with an 18-point average. Huff and Spinks each average nine rebounds per game. Wiley is averaging seven assists and five steals per game.

Chadwick called the win over Odessa one of the Lady Hawks' better performances. "They were tired physically, they had played five games in the last 11 days, but mentally they were real sharp," he said. "I think the key to the win was we had some experienced sophomores on the floor when the game was on the line and they had some freshmen who weren't as experienced."

Chadwick said the new rankings puts a bigger target on his team's back. "I told them it's like being a very beautiful girl and looking in the mirror and telling yourself you're beautiful. But you're not quite as pretty to other people. Now for sure everybody will be jacked up to play us. Not just because we're 20-0, but it's a chance to knock off the No. 1 team in the nation."

The Lady Hawks will get a major test Thursday when they go on the road to play South Plains in Levelland at 6 p.m. The 13-4 Lady Texans are ranked No. 18 in the nation and in fourth place in the WJAC at 1-2.

Lady Steers trap Lake View, 73-42

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Big Spring Lady Steers coach Ron Taylor is grateful his team played in the Slaton tournament over the Christmas holidays. The dividends are still paying off — just ask the San Angelo Lake View Maidens.

Tuesday night the Lady Steers ran their district record to 6-0 with an impressive 73-42 victory. The win, Big Spring's 16th consecutive district victory, gives the Lady Steers a 17-5 overall mark. Big Spring now has a two-game district lead over Monahans, which lost to Pecos in overtime Tuesday, 43-41. Lake View falls to 1-5 and 5-15.

The Lady Steers unleashed an offense Taylor said he picked up at the Slaton tournament, combined with a relentless press, and it was curtains for the Maidens.

Big Spring dominated from the start, jumping out to an 8-1 lead on two baskets by Bernie Valles, a basket by Cassie Underwood and two free throws by Casey Cook. From then on it was the Amy Earnst Show as the Big Spring junior post player pierced the Lake View defense with a volley of short jumpers.

Earnst scored eight points and had five rebounds while pacing Big Spring to a 16-8 first-quarter lead. She finished the contest with a nine-of-12 shooting performance, good for 21 points and a team-leading seven rebounds.

Taylor didn't have to play his starters that much. By halftime it was 33-17 and in the second half Taylor subbed freely. All but one of the Lady Steers scored in the game and everyone got their share of shots.

"We learned a little something at the Slaton tournament," said Taylor. "We put in what we call a Valles followed Earnst in scoring with 19 points on an eight-for-11 night from the floor. Underwood added 10 points and reserve post player Kerry Gregg scored eight points. Lake View was paced by guard LaTonya Allen with 14 points. Carol Harper and Rhonda Wallace scored nine points each.

Taylor was proud of his team's defensive play. "We're really stressing defense the further we go in district," he said. "At this level, if you're fortunate to make the playoffs, you've got to be able to play defense. I have to give them credit, they've really stepped it up. It's fun when you're playing good and right now we're playing good."

The Lady Steers will be on the road Friday against Fort Stockton at 6 p.m.

Big Spring's junior varsity girls lost to Lake View 45-36. The Lady Steer JV is now 4-2 in district and 12-5 overall. Kristi Birrell and Sarah Bristow led the JV with 11 and eight points.

Steers hold off Chiefs, 63-62

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Jody Leggett is quickly becoming the go-to player for the Big Spring Steers. And the opposition is feeling the effect.

Friday night Leggett came off the bench and missed only one shot while scoring 12 points in a win over Andrews. Tuesday night the 6-foot-4 senior post player did even more damage to the San Angelo Lake View Chiefs.

When this physical game was over Leggett paced the Steers to a 63-62 win by scoring a season-high 23 points. He was just as deadly from the floor, making 11 of 13 attempts to go along with six rebounds. He helped the Steers make a surge in the first half when it appeared Lake View might make it a runaway. He sent the Chiefs to their happy hunting ground in the second half by making his last eight shots.

The win gives Big Spring a 3-1 district record and 12-9 overall mark. It leaves the Steers tied with Sweetwater (idle Tuesday) for second place in district behind 4-0 Fort Stockton. Lake View falls to 2-2 in district play and 6-14 overall.

After the emotional victory, Steers coach Gary Tipton said it wasn't designed to depend on Leggett. "We really don't per se try to get the ball to anybody, just whoever is open," said Tipton. "Jody got a lot of his points by posting up. A lot he got by bodying up and sticking it back in. You love

Chadwick gets win No. 100 in a big way

A few thoughts while trying to shake the cobwebs from my head after a week's vacation...

I was glad to get back into town and find out the local basketball teams had done well since I've been gone. The only blemish was the Howard College Hawks' 69-67 loss to Odessa College Saturday night. Anyone who knows about Western Junior College Athletic Conference basketball knows how hard it is to win at the Odessa College Sports Center.

Unlike a lot of the coliseums around, OC's home court is not too large that a decent attendance is overshadowed by its capacity. It is adequate in size and it creates a surrounding that gives the home team a definite home court advantage.

The return Odessa-Howard match in Big Spring Feb. 15 should be a good one. If the Hawks get past South Plains in Levelland Thursday, they will be sitting in good shape, finishing the first half of league play with a 5-1 mark. But like the OC Sports Center, it's no easy task to win at the Texan Dome in Levelland.

The Lady Hawks came away with a big 80-67 win over Odessa College Saturday. It's not that often in West Texas that you get a chance to see the No. 3 and No. 9 ranked teams in the nation play.

Lady Hawks coach Royce Chadwick is probably resting easier with his new offensive philosophy now. In the past the Lady Hawks have been predominately a halfcourt team, one that gets the ball into the paint for the high percentage shots. This year it's Showtime. The Lady Hawks run-and-gun and have fun.

Lady Hawks point guard LeKisha Wiley best describes the Hawks style — "It's street ball, only organized street ball."

In the past Chadwick cringed over getting into a running game with Odessa College. The Lady Wranglers have always enjoyed playing a fast-paced game. In previous encounters Chadwick's teams have always tried to slow the tempo down against Odessa. So you can see his skepticism in trying to beat OC at its own game.

A job well done, coach in gaining your 100th win at Howard in four seasons.

The Steers and Lady Steers both came away with wins in their games despite facing quite a bit of adversity.

When I left both teams were battling injury problems at key positions — point guard. Lady Steers' point Casey Cook was out, undergoing arthroscopic knee surgery, and Steers' point Brady Cox had a stress fracture of the foot.

Cook returned in the Lady Steers' 50-34 win over Andrews Friday but Cox sat out in the Steers' 66-53 win over Andrews. Cook's return was a big emotional lift for the league-leading Lady Steers. If there's any doubt the Lady Steers are becoming the dominant team in District 3-4A, 16 consecutive district wins speak for itself. Cox will miss several more games, but the Steers, 3-1 in district play, appear to be pulling together to form a well-balanced attack.

A good example is the win over Andrews Friday. Post players Mike Smith and Jody Leggett came off the bench, combining to make 12 of 14 field goals. It's things like that that help teams get into the playoffs.

Cowboys coach accepts Bears job

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Dave Wannstedt, the defensive coordinator of the Super Bowl-bound

Dallas Cowboys, was named the 10th head coach of the Chicago Bears, succeeding the immensely popular but sometimes raging Mike Ditka.

Wannstedt, 40, was sought by several clubs, including the New York Giants, who reportedly offered him $3 million over five years. Terms of the contract were not revealed.

IOWA CITY, Iowa — Chris

Street, a 6-foot-8 junior forward who led 14th-ranked Iowa in rebounding, was killed in a traffic accident.

Sports information director George Wine said the 20-year-old Street, a native of Indianola, Iowa, was returning to the campus for a night class after a team meal at the Highlander Supper Club when his car collided with a dump truck mounted with a snow plow about 7 p.m. Street's girlfriend, Kimberly Vinton, was injured in the collision.

to see a kid like Jody have success. Nobody has busted their tail more than Jody Leggett to become a baller.

While Leggett was scoring from the inside, junior guard Wes Hughes was bombing away from the outside. Hughes was the only other Steer in double figures, totalling 17, including five three-pointers. Torbin Lancaster chipped in eight points and seven rebounds and reserve guard Casey Fleming came in late in the third quarter and hit two big outside shots.

Fleming came in for Hughes, who got his fourth foul with 2:20 left in the third quarter. Fleming promptly nailed a three-pointer and followed it with another basket just inside the three-point line, giving Big Spring a 52-51 lead going into the fourth quarter.

"You've got to say something about Casey Fleming," said Tipton. "Here's a guy that rides a lot of pine but he came in tonight and hit two big baskets for us."

The Chiefs, led by senior forward Felix Rodriguez, jumped out early on the Steers. Midway through the first quarter they led 14-5. Behind the offensive play of Leggett the Steers trimmed the lead to 18-13 at the end of the period.

Rodriguez, who finished the contest with 15 points, scored the first five points of the second quarter and Lake View was on a run. The Chiefs built the lead to 25-15 before the Steers started a rally of their own. Big Spring finished the half with two Smith free throws and two baskets by Leggett, one via a steal and assist from Josh Jones. Lake View led 35-34 at the half.

The second half was played almost on even terms with the lead changing hands several times. Big Spring went up for good when Lancaster fed Leggett giving the Steers a 59-58 lead with 2:51 left in the game. Next Jones got a steal which resulted in another Leggett basket with 2:24 left.

Lake View's Keith Wiley sunk two free throws to cut the lead to 61-60. That was answered with a baseline jumper by Leggett, giving Big Spring a 63-60 lead with 1:45 left. The only points scored after that came when Lake View's Alfred Hogeda stole Big Spring's inbound pass and scored with 1:17 left.

Lake View had chances to win. But Wiley missed the front end of a one-and-one, and Rodriguez's three-point attempt at the buzzer was no good.

Tipton said the physical nature of the game might have been to Big Spring's advantage. "We go lift weights two times a week. We don't mind getting physical," he said. "We're getting close to what we want. We're getting cold-blooded. By that I mean we're blocking the crowd out (and) all the negative things and just going out there and playing."

LAKE VIEW GAINS SPLIT

In junior varsity action Lake View broke a 34-34 halftime tie and went on to edge the Steers 70-66. Trey Terrazas and Dustin Waters both scored 19 points for the Steers. The Steers travel to Fort Stockton Friday for more district action.

Sao Paulo police labeled world's most violent

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAO PAULO, Brazil — The massacre of more than 100 inmates in a Sao Paulo prison has turned the spotlight on what human rights groups say is one of the world's most violent police forces.

Horror tales leaked out soon after riot troopers raided Carandiru prison, Latin America's largest, to put down a rebellion in October. Autopsies later showed that many prisoners were executed after they surrendered. Others were indiscriminately shot or torn apart by dogs.

Officially, 111 inmates were killed. But human rights groups and inmates said the true number topped 200. The prison held about 7,500 inmates, double its intended capacity.

Lawyers, churchmen, politicians and human rights groups say such brutality is a trademark of police in this city of 10 million people, South America's largest.

They accuse the Sao Paulo State Police force of following a "shoot first, ask questions later" policy that aims to eliminate criminal suspects, prisoners and anyone else seen as a menace to society.

Col. Eduardo Assumpcao, commander of the Sao Paulo State Police, denies the charges.

"It is society that is violent. All we do is respond to this violence," he said in an interview.

Americas Watch, a New York-based human rights group, said it was odd that "every year, police kill hundreds of criminal suspects on the streets of Sao Paulo in purported shootouts."

"The casualties on the side of the police have been consistently low, casting doubt on the claim that these are predominantly shootouts," the group said in a report issued after the prison massacre.

Official figures said that in the first 10 months of 1992, Sao Paulo State Police killed 1,264 people in shootouts — about one every six hours — while 52 policemen lost their lives.

In New York, a city of 7 million people, police killed 27 criminal suspects in shootouts in 1991. The same year, Sao Paulo police killed 1,074 people, according to the University of Sao Paulo's Center for the Study of Violence.

"The Sao Paulo police force is one of the world's most violent, if not the most violent," said Paulo Sergio Pinheiro, a political scientist and sociologist who is director of the center.

The victims usually are poor, nonwhite and between the ages of 18 and 25, Pinheiro said. Many live in the sprawling slums on the city's outskirts and are killed "merely for being suspected petty criminals."

The Rev. William Sheehan, a Roman Catholic chaplain at Carandiru prison, said the killings could be partly attributed to "the fact that for Brazilian society as a whole and for the police in particular prisoners and the poor are nonpersons."

Sheehan, a native of Brockton, Mass., who has worked in Brazil 47 years, said the officers sent to quell the riot "are specially trained to exterminate people and when they do they are promoted."

Teresa Caldeira, an anthropologist at the University of Campinas, also said law enforcement officials "measure police efficiency by the number of suspects killed."

After analyzing the official records of more than 3,500 such killings from April 1970 to June 1992, journalist Caco Barcellos found that almost 60 percent of the victims had no criminal record.

"Suspicion is the only criterion police follow when choosing most of their victims," he said.

Barcellos recently published his findings in a book, "Rota 66 — A History of the Killer Police Force." Rota is an acronym for one of Sao Paulo's most violent police units.

A recent report by the Sao Paulo Bar Association said shop owners pay "police and extermination groups" to summarily execute children and adolescents suspected of theft.

"At least two minors are executed each day in Sao Paulo," the report said.

These young victims are usually street children who steal, beg or sell odds and ends to survive.

Police accused of violence are rarely punished. They are tried by special police courts that most of the time are lenient.

In his book, Barcellos said one officer involved in the Carandiru massacre, Lt. Wanderley Mascarenhas de Souza, has been involved in 34 killings, most of them in quelling prison riots. Another officer, Capt. Conte Lopes, has been involved in at least 42 killings while on duty, Barcellos said. Neither has ever been charged, he said.

Capt. Edmar Aquotti, director of the Romao Gomes prison, which houses only police officers convicted of crimes, said there are 120 officers currently jailed there, 30 of them for unjustified killings while on duty. Of those, 15 got the maximum penalty of 30 years and the others received sentences ranging from 2 to 20 years, he said.

No officers have been charged in the Carandiru riot, although police say an investigation is continuing.

"Impunity is a major cause for so much police violence," said Rep. Helio Bicudo, a former state prosecutor who gained renown in the 1970s for combating the notorious death squads that killed political opponents of Brazil's former military regime.

Assumpcao, the Sao Paulo police commander, said that "the problem is that everyone wants a First World police force, forgetting that we live in a Third World country."

"Our police are recruited from, and must deal with, a violent Third World society," he said.

Assumpcao challenged the claim that most victims of "police shootings were not criminals."

"Many of them may have been committing their first crime when they were killed," he said.

A poll by the newspaper Folha de Sao Paulo shortly after the Carandiru incident said 53 percent of those surveyed condemned the police action, while 29 percent said the killings were justified. The poll's margin of error was three percentage points.

But many Brazilians, fed up with rising crime and a glacially slow legal system, endorse harsh treatment for criminals.

Police violence "enjoys the support and complicity of large segments of the population," Leoncio Martins Rodrigues, a political scientist at the University of Sao Paulo, wrote in a recent newspaper column.

"In a country where authorities steal, where corruption is common practice and where there is violence everywhere, it would be very difficult for police to behave in a civilized manner," he said.

Twenty minutes were allotted for Clinton's inaugural address, spelling out his presidential vision — his concept that citizens must give to society as well as draw benefits from government.

But Clinton is notoriously incapable of staying within such limits. And this is the culmination of a lifetime's quest that began with a teen-ager's handshake with President John F. Kennedy.

Clinton gave a foretaste in a spirited address Tuesday to 150 former, present and incoming governors, many of them colleagues from his 12 years as governor of Arkansas. He asked them to "please, please" let him know when he goes astray.

He said the government must find a way to experiment, to adopt what works and reject what does not.

BSHS students put new twist on Medea

By CONNIE SWINNEY Staff Writer

Adultery, jealousy, deception, hate and murder — The makings of the latest intriguing movie? Actually, the theme in a 2,000-year-old play being performed at Big Spring High School.

BSHS choir and theater students are staging a "rock musical" version of Euripides' Greek tragedy Medea at 7:30 p.m. Thursday-Saturday in the school's auditorium.

Not only do students sing over a wailing saxophone and grate to a screaming guitar, but dance a waltz, bob to a rap mix, do the go-go and perform ballet lifts and modern dramatic dance steps.

The tragedy is performed with an 18-foot spray-painted backdrop on stage and behind the audience, with a multi-leveled stage and surround-sound speakers guaranteed to grab the attention of those in attendance.

"It's such an old story. It's so difficult to get kids to want to read and enjoy such an old story," said theater instructor and play director Tim Haynes. "With the updated music, the kids really get into it. I stressed the old and new and how a comparison can be made between modern real-life themes and those thousands of years ago."

Medea, incensed by jealousy and rage, goes on a murderous rampage to avenge her husband's adulterous affair.

The play will rely on song as well as acting to tell the story.

"We were shocked at the drama and violence of the play. The audience will learn how sometimes jealousy can get the best of you," said junior Lara Stevenson, who plays the mistress Tanya.

More than 60 students will fill the stage, as the chorus sings and gestures (common of Greek tragedies) for most of the play to set the moods for the audience.

"It's a very complicated play. Your head has to be into it," said junior Jeremy Smith, who plays Creon. "It will have the audience overwhelmed."

Students have prepared since Jan. 4, as the director transformed them into their characters, actors said.

"It's probably one of the Greek tragedies done most often because of the power (Medea) possesses," Haynes said. "We really don't get enough time to give the script a fair shot."

Sophomore Stephanie Moss, who plays Medea, said the cast has worked well together and tapped into emotions they ordinarily would not conceive.

"There is real hostility between some of the actors, so they're really able to make the actors come alive," she said. "I build up a lot of anger to play this part."

Members of Big Spring High School choir and theater departments take part in dress rehearsals in preparation for this weekend's presentation of the classic Greek tragedy Medea. Performances are set for 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

About 40 students from theater classes worked the stage designed to give a futuristic punk rock atmosphere. Students will wear post-apocalyptic costumes, according to the actors.

"We prepared fast and furiously," said senior and male vocal Brian Brown. "We've got a good group of young people talented enough to put it off."

Haynes added although distractions like the holidays and bad weather interrupted preparation for the play, he is pleased with the results.

"We've spent as much time as possible on it. Students volunteered to rehearse in areas like choreography," he said. "It's really educational for them. The more we push classical pieces, the more the students can appreciate that what was written 2,500 years ago — the drama, the tragedy — is still alive today."

Other students in the play are: Jesse Haro as Jason; Sarah Crawford and Kim Alexander as nurses; John Kennedy as Aegues; Torny Haynes as Jonathan; Kaci Schaffner as Ingrid; T.L. Rogers, Brian Brown, Karyl Davis and Stephanie Cox as lead male and female chorus; Brandon Johnson, Amy Osmulski and Peggy DeAnda as journalists.

Local Girl Scouts selling cookbook

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

Area Girl Scouts, with a little help from their parents and leaders, are raising money for projects with a new cookbook.

"Green Angel Gourmet" is available for $10 from Girl Scout leaders and parents of Scouts, or by calling 264-6509.

"It's got 500 recipes," said Lorinda Herrod, local Girl Scout leader. "It even has a section on campfire cooking."

The book, bound with laminated covers and tab dividers, also has sections on appetizers, breads, soups and salads, side dishes, cakes and main dishes. It contains information about Girl Scouts, cooking tips and coupons.

"We're selling these to raise some money so we can have some functions at no charge to the girls," Herrod said. "We want to have a free lock-in, a mother-daughter tea, a track meet and possibly some other things."

"But we don't want to nickel and dime our parents to death."

From each sale, proceeds will go to the local troop as well as the service unit — the group of adult leaders. Adults will also collect $1 from each sale for a fund to start new troops.

Herrod said adult leaders and co-leaders worked for months to gather enough recipes for the book. It involved leaders from Forsan, Coahoma, Stanton and Big Spring.

The book contains a wide variety of recipes, from cucumber relish and cream gravy to penuche (candy) and tiger butter.

At the beginning of a few sections, the book offers some semi-serious recipes, such as "Recipe for a Girl Scout Leader" and "Happiness Cake" — which uses good deeds, sacrifice and forgiveness, among other difficult-to-find ingredients.

Following are a few examples of the recipes from "Green Angel Gourmet." The soup is a warming treat for cold days. "Cake in an Orange" is from the campfire cooking section.

Taste of the Clintons

Scripps Howard News Service

President-elect Clinton's food favorites defy classification, according to a friend of 20 years.

Chef and writer Crescent Dragonwagon, author of many children's books, has known the Clintons for two decades and has occasionally cooked for them when they visited her popular Arkansas country inn, the "Dairy Hollow House."

"Forget those stereotypes and clichés about Southerners and Southern food," Dragonwagon says.

"Lemon chess pie and cornbread may be served, but so will Mediterranean and Mexican dishes (both cuisines appreciated by the Clintons; his favorite entree is chicken enchiladas).

"Expect stir-fries (Hillary loves them) and more chicken and fish than red meat (though Chelsea, like most kids, loves a good burger)."

A salute to chicken: Low-fat, many ways to prepare

One of modern day's most popular and important foods is the ubiquitous domestic chicken.

This domesticated version of the wild jungle bird originated in southeastern Asia in dense bamboo forests. It was a bird not unlike our Bantam rooster.

The wild jungle bird got an early start, possibly as early as 1400 B.C., when hungry hunters found it to be a tasty morsel. When these hunters became explorers, they carried the bird with them eastward from island to island across the Pacific and westward across Asia and Europe.

As a newcomer to Europe, the small fowl was a rare bird and was considered sacred. Publius Claudius, Roman fleet commander during the Punic War in the 3rd century B.C., desired good fortune and offered food to his sacred birds. When they would not eat he Wee Tiu Kiat, left, and Goh Kay Lee, both 30, smile recently in front of a wedding cake baked for them by the Social Development Section, one of three matchmaking bodies in Singapore. Their December wedding was the 20,000th arranged by the government program.

20,000 matches Singapore successful at playing Cupid

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SINGAPORE — The government's matchmaking program has gone from wilted wallflower to belle of the ball.

Those who once called matrimonial planning by the Social Development Unit a refuge for the "single, desperate and ugly" now say it holds hope for the "single, desirable and unattached."

Proof that official matchmaking had been accepted was provided last year, when participants in the program presented a display of ballroom dancing in a sports stadium as part of the annual National Day celebrations.

"We had no problems getting people to take part in the National Day parade," said Susan Chan, deputy director of the agency. "Five years ago, it would have been impossible."

Robert Ong and Sabrina Sim, who were married three years after meeting at a dance sponsored by the Social Development Unit, were among the performers.

"We're proud of the SDU, the country, and wanted to give something back," Ong said.

Eight years after the agency first played Cupid for bright, unmarried civil servants, officials say they are cheered by the matrimonial statistics.

Only 704 pairs of college graduates tied the knot in 1984, compared to 1,643 in 1991, Mrs. Chan said.

"When I joined SDU five years back, some of my friends teased me about it," said Dennis Teo, 30. "But then they realized that I got to meet lots of people and do interesting things."

"I remember, when it started, people used to make jokes about SDU being for the single, desperate and ugly. But now people say it is for the single, desirable and unattached."

Lee Kwan Yew, then prime minister, said in 1983 that this tiny nation might be doomed by a shrinking talent pool because too many educated women remained single and childless. "Levels of competence will decline" because of it, Lee said. "Our economy will falter, the administration will suffer and society will decline."

After the speech, Singapore switched from one of the world's most effective birth-control programs, which encouraged families to have no more than two children each, to appeals for "three, more if you can afford it."

Part of the problem was that young men preferred women less educated than they and women wanted to marry upward.

"Despite the gloomy scenario painted by population census reports on the increasing numbers of singles, we are cheered by the fact that the numbers of graduate couples are increasing," Mrs. Chan said.

More than half of the men with college degrees now marry fellow graduates, compared to 38 percent in 1983.

The agency arranges dances, barbecues, group travel, computer courses and other events for its 13,000 members.

however it is lower in iron. The Rock Cornish Hen is a small hybrid bird and a product of American ingenuity.

I hope you will enjoy the following recipe which makes a good company entree when served with buttered baby carrots, a tossed green salad and hot rolls.

APRICOT-GLAZED CORNISH GAME HENS WITH WILD RICE STUFFING

12 Rock Cornish Game Hens, thawed

- Herb butter (recipe follows)
 - 6 Tbsp. lemon juice
 - 1 cup warm, apricot jam or preserves (melted)
 - 2 pkgs. long grain and wild rice with seasoning included
 - 1 cup sliced fresh mushrooms
 - 1 cup chopped toasted almonds
- Cook the rice according to package directions (you may use chicken stock for part of the cooking liquid for a richer taste) and set aside. Sauté the mushrooms and then add the rice mixture. Add the toasted almonds.

Wash the Cornish hens; pat dry inside and out. Place about 1 tablespoon of the herb butter in cavity of each and fill loosely with rice mixture. Melt remaining herb butter with lemon juice and use this to baste occasionally while roasting.

Bake the stuffed birds uncovered in shallow roasting pan for about 1 hour at 350 degrees. Brush the hens with the warm apricot glaze and bake for about 20 minutes longer until they are nicely glazed and fork tender.

HERB BUTTER: Blend together 1 1/4 cups soft butter with 4 tablespoons chopped chives and 1 teaspoon crushed rosemary.

Serves 12 — Recipe can be scaled down by 1/2 for 6 servings.

SOUPER SIMPLE CHICKEN

- 1 broiler-fryer, mixed parts or all breasts
- 3 tbs. dry onion soup mix
- 1 (10 3/4 oz.) can condensed cream of mushroom soup

Arrange chicken parts in bottom of slow cooker; sprinkle dry onion soup mix over chicken. Spread soup (do not dilute) over all. Cover; cook on low for 6 hours. Makes 4 servings. It makes its own gravy while cooking.

Show draws dogs from across the U.S.

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Kennel Club and the Concho Kennel Club will join for a weekend of American Kennel Club sanctioned dog shows, Jan. 23-24 at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

More than 1,000 dogs and 100 breeds will be competing in those events.

The Big Spring club will show on Saturday, and the San Angelo club will show on Sunday. In the "Cotton Cluster of Shows," the two kennel clubs team up twice annually, with the San Angelo club showing in Big Spring in January and the Big Spring club showing in San Angelo in July, according to Carole Owen, a member of the Big Spring Kennel Club show committee.

"Historically, our winter shows in Big Spring and our summer shows in San Angelo draw dogs from 20 to 30 states," Owen said. "Many nationally-campaigned champions will be here, including dogs you may see when the Westminster Kennel Club show is televised from New York."

The Westminster show will be held Feb. 8-9.

"We love having the champions here, but the backbone of our shows are the dogs still working to earn their titles," Owen said. She describes the competition for points in these and other shows as

This Pomeranian was one of the many breeds on hand for Big Spring Kennel Club shows in the past.

"merce." A dog must earn 15 points in such competitions and only one male and one female from each breed can receive points at any show.

Admission to the events is free, and the shows provide a good place for people to see breeds of dogs they may not even have heard of.

Entries at the shows include 110 of the breeds and breed varieties from the 135 recognized by the AKC, Owen said.

Attendance at the shows regularly numbers in the thousands as judging takes place in nine arenas within the coliseum. Some of the more unusual breeds entered this year include the Shiba-Inu harrier, the Ibizan hound, affenpinscher, Chinese crested, clumber spaniel, Sealyham terrier, French bulldog, Tibetan terrier, pharoh hound, pulik and the bouviere de Flandres, Owens said.

The shows also feature a number of dog-product vendors. Dog-care items can be found at the shows that are unavailable elsewhere, Owen said. "Visitors will recognize Courtney's and Le Beau Chien, two popular full-line dog supply concessions that have worked our shows for years."

Information on dogs is readily available at the shows as well, she said. "We want to encourage families to come learn more about dogs and responsible dog ownership. "Our public education table will have many free publications, and interesting dog videos will be running all day."

Handlers hope their dog is the one male or female from each breed to win points at the Big Spring and Concho Kennel Clubs' dog shows.

'Time Trax' — silly, insult to genre

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Science fiction fans will get that old sinking feeling early on when "Time Trax" opens tonight in syndication.

This newest time-travel series shows almost immediately how its producers blew the entire budget on special effects, stunted on the cast and never bothered to hire any writers.

It is badly acted, poorly written, silly, stupid and sad. Oh, what a tremendous disappointment! How bad is it? Try this:

In the opening scenes, a red sandstone building in Washington, D.C., is identified as the "Smithsonian Institute" — a galling illiteracy. You wonder how the Smithsonian Institution let any part of its name be used.

"Trax" is no kin to the "Trek" franchise, either, even though co-creator Harve Bennett, who wrote tonight's two-hour premiere, is a longtime producer of "Star Trek" movies. Shame on him for "Time Trax."

"Time Trax" also has the most shameless commercial plugs on TV. See our hero in the pretty jetliner? See its Continental Airlines logo? Hear the pilot say "Thank you for flying Continental"? Who paid for you to see that, eh?

Back to our story: TRAX stands for Trans Time Research and Experimentation, surely the current titleholder as Unlikeliest Back-formed Acronym in Series TV. TRAX is the invention of Dr. Mordecai Sahmbi (Peter Donat), an Evil Scientist from the tips of his tufted eyebrows to the top of his high-rise forehead.

TRAX and Sahmbi are why Capt. Darien Lambert (Dale Midkiff), a top policeman of the Fugitive Retrieval Section in the year 2193, can never seem to track down any of his era's high-profile criminals.

It turns out Dr. Sahmbi and his TRAX device have been sending them 200 years into the past!

There, the fugitives from the future have proved remarkably adept at getting themselves into positions of power. They somehow failed to buy Microsoft at $10.15 a share in 1989 and sell it for $95 in 1992, but hey, nobody's perfect!

Will the superman Capt. Lambert foil the evil Sahmbi's designs? Will Sahmbi escape into the past? Will Lambert trail him there? Will Lambert "communicate" with the future through Washington Post classified ads?

Has yet another idiotic show about time travel made it to the little screen? Believe it, bunkie.

You'd think that all these clever, well-motivated criminals cropping up in our backward society might have some effect on it. Why, they might even change the rules of that society, let alone the price of Microsoft shares!

Yet there's no sign of the crooks' activities back up the line in 2193. Well, that must mean the good guys must win, right?

But wait — if the good guys won, why didn't they leave word somewhere so that the bad guys couldn't get started in the first place? At the very least, the good guys would read ALL the Post classifieds and get a jump on their mail!

STOP! That way lies madness! Or at least some genuine science fiction. "Time Trax" has little real science fiction. It was made by the kind of people who say "sci fi" — the one sure sign of retailers with no respect for the form.

Even NBC's "Quantum Leap," with its dips into soap opera, has more respect for the genre and its fans. It's about the present, not the future.

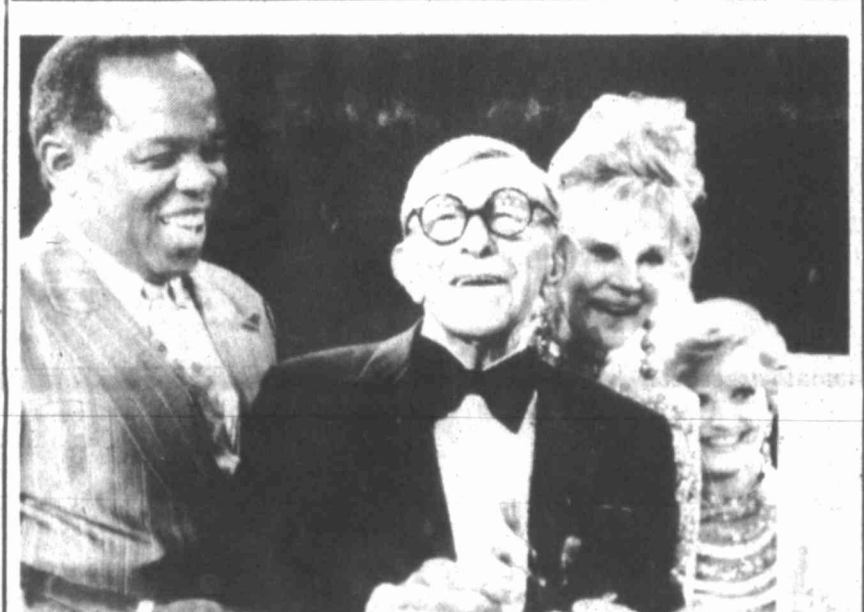

"Leap" hero Sam Beckett (Scott Bakula), is unstuck in time and his psyche bounces into the bodies of people, mostly unknown to him, who have lived during his lifetime. He spends his "leaps" in abject fear and uncertainty.

Yet Sam goes around monkeying with the fine details of history to set right some wrongs. He doesn't tamper with great historic events because he can't.

His quest is part of some larger scheme that he and viewers don't yet understand. He and other "Quantum Leap" characters give you stories and people you can care about.

"Time Trax" has none of that.

Dear Abby - Letters

Open door policy invited thief

DEAR ABBY: Your letter about the woman who locked her doors when leaving the house to go to the mailbox brought back some painful memories.

We have always kept our front door locked day and night. One day, when my wife was out raking leaves in the front yard, she left the back door unlocked. While she was outside, someone slipped into our house, went directly to our dining room buffet, took $2,000 worth of silver, then went into my wife's purse and took $200 of her money and $250 of her sister's money. Then the thief went to a bookcase drawer where I had hidden $1,700, which was to be deposited in the bank that day.

Believe me, Abby, from then on, when we take a nap, work in the yard or do anything outdoors, we lock our doors!

I was 27 years old before I slept behind a locked door, but these days, you can't be too careful! -- HOWARD CHILDRESS, MURFREESBORO, TENN.

DEAR HOWARD: One doesn't have to be a Sherlock Holmes to deduce that the thief was familiar with your house and knew exactly where to find your money. And you're right, one can't be too careful these days.

As a parting shot, the best place for one's cash is in the bank. Banks also rent safe-deposit boxes where clients can keep valuables, important documents, and irreplaceable photographs and memorabilia. There they are safe from fire, floods and thieves.

DEAR ABBY: We work for a small company of 10 employees, all female except for the owner. The director, whom we'll call Betty, got married recently. She invited everyone in the office to her wedding, except for three of us. Although the three of us probably wouldn't have attended the wedding, we were offended and hurt that we weren't invited. To top it off, she paraded her wedding dress in front of us at the office and continually spoke of her wedding arrangements.

Abby, please let us know what the proper procedure is for wedding invitations when working in a small office like this. -- NOT INVITED IN CINCINNATI

DEAR NOT INVITED: Nowhere is it written that a bride must invite all of her co-workers to her wedding. You say that you and the others would not have attended had you been invited, in which case you should have felt relieved that you weren't.

DEAR ABBY: The poem you attributed to Dorothy Parker was written by Ogden Nash. It was slightly misquoted; here's the correct wording:

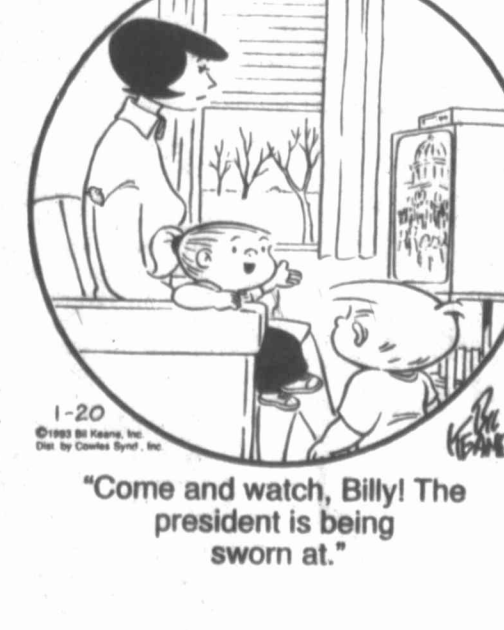

"Candy is dandy
"But liquor is quicker."
However, it was Dorothy Parker who wrote:

"Men seldom make passes
"At girls who wear glasses."
My own contribution:
"Avoid death if you can;
"It can kill you." -- YOUR TENNESSEE FAN

NO. 92-06-35892
CITIZENS FEDERAL CREDIT V. JAMES ROBERT STUTEVILLE AND DEBRA STUTEVILLE IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF HOWARD COUNTY, TEXAS 118TH JUDICIAL DISTRICT
 TO: Any sheriff or constable within the State of Texas:
 You are hereby commanded to cause to be published once each week for four consecutive weeks, the first publication to be at least 28 days before the return date thereof, in a newspaper printed in Howard County, Texas, the accompanying citation, of which the following is a true copy:

CITATION BY PUBLICATION
 The State of Texas
 To JAMES ROBERT STUTEVILLE, Defendant in the cause numbered and entitled below.
 You are hereby commanded to appear before the Honorable District Court, 118th Judicial District of Howard County, Texas, at the Court-house in Big Spring, Texas, at or before 10:00 a.m. of the first Monday next after the expiration of 42 days from Jan. 11, 1993, the date of issuance of this citation, by filing a written answer to Plaintiff's Original Petition that was filed in the Court on June 30, 1992, numbered 92-06-35892 on the docket of the Court, and entitled CITIZENS FEDERAL CREDIT UNION, Plaintiff, v. James Robert Stuteville and Debra Stuteville, Defendants.

A brief statement of the nature of this suit is as follows: This is a suit on a promissory note executed by Defendants JAMES ROBERT STUTEVILLE and DEBRA STUTEVILLE, dated May 22, 1990, in the original principal sum of $14,500.00, payable to the order of Plaintiff CITIZENS FEDERAL CREDIT UNION in monthly installments as provided in said note. The suit alleges that Defendants defaulted in payments on said note, and that after all lawful offsets and credits there is a balance due on the note of $11,994.80 as of August 23, 1991, with interest thereon at the rate of 15% per annum thereafter and $5.00 representing the late payment fee. Plaintiff alleges that it has exercised its option to accelerate maturity and has declared the full amount due. The suit asks for judgment against the Defendants, jointly and severally, for the full amount due on the note, with interest, reasonable attorney fees and costs of court, all of which is more fully shown by Plaintiff's Original Petition on file in this suit.

If this citation is not served within 30 days after date of its issuance, it shall be returned unexecuted. The officer executing this writ shall promptly serve it and make due return according to requirements of law, and the mandates of this citation.
 Issued under my hand and the seal of this Court at Big Spring, Texas, on the 11th day of Jan., 1993.
 GLENDA BRASEL,
 District Clerk
