Black History series begins Monday

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

In recognition of Black History Month, the Big Spring Herald will publish four week-long series celebrating

African-American heritage and culture. Each Monday throughout Feburary a different series will begin. Herald staff writers have reseached the history of slavery, the civil rights struggle, socio-economic issues and arts and culture.

The first series on slavery will look at the first slave ships arriving in the United States, slave life in the states and the slave trade's peak. Another story will examine the impact of religion on slave life. The series will end with two stories on the underground railroad and

The Civil Rights struggle will be covered with six stories beginning with Reconstruction and following the struggle through the 1930s, 1950s, 1960s and today. Article topics will include desegregation law suits, boycotts and lunch counter sit-ins. The impact of Martin Luther King Jr. and Malcolm X on the civil rights movement will be covered during the week.

Black

Other stories during the week will examine the Civil Rights Acts of 1963-64 and African-American elected

The third series will focus on socio-economic issues beginning with examining economic impacts on African-American families. Other issues include education, health and interracial relationships.

The final series of the month will look at the influence of African-Americans on the arts and our culture.

The first story will focus on music from the beginning of gospel in the cotton fields of the South to the New York Metropolitan Opera's concerts today.

The final days of the month-long series will examine the Harlem Renaissance, black dance theaters, art and

Each of the daily articles will be noted with a Black History Month logo incorporating the likeness of Martin Luther King Jr. It is not the Herald's intention to minimize the contributions that other civil rights leaders, such as Malcolm X and Thurgood Marshall

From the December day Rosa Parks refused to give up her seat on the bus, King became the human face of the movement.

He, as well as the other leaders, assisted in moving the country forward, ending segregation and outlawing many forms of discrimination.

The series is a tribute to King, Malcolm X, Marshall, Parks and the thousands of people who fought for the rights of all people.

Sex study throws state into turmoil

By CONNIE SWINNEY Staff Writer

Proposals that sex education be mandated in public schools are sending shock waves through communities across Texas, according to advocates and critics.

Some parents adamantly oppose sex education in schools, claiming it encourages youth to become sexually active. Public education, they say, should only teach academics, leaving sex education in the home.

Others believe skyrocketing teen pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease (STD) rates in Texas can be combated by the public schools arming youth with sex

As a result, groups such as the Adolescent Pregnancy and Parenthood Advisory Council (APPAC), West Texans for Life, Planned Parenthood and the Texas Council for Family Values lay blame on one another for a perceived destruction of the teen population.

"APPAC (the governor's advisory council since 1987) talks about abstinence but with a plus. It is counterac-* Please see REPORT, Page 7A

To our readers:

As part of our dedication to making the Big Spring Herald the best newspaper in West Texas, we age making several changes that should make the paper easier to read and to use.

The news digest column on page one has been enlarged in order to put in as much local copy as possible along with increasing its readability. A business digest has been added to page 1 of the Sunday business section. Other changes include making standing heads such as police report, deaths, Stork Club, briefs easier to locate in the paper. Page headers have also been changed for easier identification of the page.

The paper is now using the latest in laser technology, along with a new typeface, to make the stories in the paper more readable. Although the main portion of the paper's redesign has been completed, the Herald's effort to improve the product will be ongoing, with continuing assessment of the product to ensure it is the best quality product available in West Texas.

The goal of the Herald is to provide the best local coverage, mixed with state, national and international news. And, as always, the Herald welcomes any suggestions from our readers.

Second generation forms local Tejano band

By MARTHA E. FLORES Staff Writer

At the age of 4, Jimmy Olague would sit in the kitchen while his mother was cooking dinner and play his drums - a set of boxes, suitcases, pots and pans.

The amazing thing was he could keep a beat," said Tom Olague Jr., Jimmy's older brother. A few years later, Jimmy received a set of drums for Christmas and has not stopped playing since. Throughout high school, he was involved in the Big Spring High School band. He then attended Texas Tech University, receiving a bachelor's degree in music. Recently, the Olague brothers joined seven friends in forming La Primera, a Tejano music band.

Johnny Lozano and Roman Ortega play saxophones. Johnny Saldivar plays lead guitar and Ramon Fierro plays bass guitar. Tom and Manual Hilario share lead vocal responsibilities with Manual also playing keyboards. Richard Hilario plays the accordion and John Rodriquez works the sound board. Jimmy is - naturally - on drums.

All Big Spring natives, most of the band's members are second generation musicians.

Tom and Jimmy grew-up listening to their father, Tom Olague Sr., play Tejano music. The elder Olague has participated in bands since the early 1950s. And La Primera's first public appearance was playing between sets at a local nightclub where the senior Olague's performed last month.

"Tom Sr. has been very supportive of the band by giving us opportunities to play and also helping out with equipment," said Saldivar, whose own father plays gui-· Please see BAND, Page 7A

Lawmakers facing deadline on school finance measures

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DALLAS - A Feb. 20 deadline looms for Texas lawmakers to pass a constitutional amendment on school finance that voters can consider by a court-mandated June deadline, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said Saturday.

"I want to impress upon you something," he told newspaper executives and others. "Your schools are about to close.

The state Supreme Court has given the Legislature until June 1 to come up with a constitutional plan to equalize funding among rich and poor school districts. The ruling last January was the court's third scrapping of a school funding plan.

The February deadline would allow enough time for the proposed amendment to be placed on the May 1 ballot and voted upon.

Think of the humiliation. What in the world are the other 49 states in this great country of ours going to think about Texas letting its public schools close?" Bullock asked Texas Press Association members.

"It is a very real possibility, considering the lateness of the day. Check your watch," he said. But Bullock still expressed hope

Sharp offers legislators 460 money-saving ideas

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AUSTIN - Legislators on Thursday were given 460 money-saving ideas worth $4.5 billion as Comptroller John Sharp issued a new audit of state government operations.

Sharp said the ideas - from eliminating front license plates to reorganizing state bureaucracies could salvage vital services, avoid a tax increase and make the government more businesslike.

"We want state government to run a lot more like how Southwest Airlines operates in Texas and a lot less like how General Motors func-tions out of Detroit," he said.

It is the second such audit in two years as cash-strapped lawmakers try to balance the state budget. In 1991, Sharp proposed nearly

Proposed tax hits south, west hard

Economic recovery based on more taxes, really sounds like more of the same babble we have been hearing for several years. Taxes are being proposed on energy which is expected to hit people in the yest and south harder than anywhere else in the nation.

What's interesting is this tax is supposed to spur economic recovery. But, it's taking money out of businesses' pockets and citizens' pocket to pay this tax. Some spur to economic recovery.

This proposed tax is broad-based and could be anything from a fee on imported oil to taxes on amounts of carbon pollution fuels emit when burned or a BTU tax, based on the amount of heat each kind of fuel produces.

While Wyoming would feel the brunt of a gasoline tax the most, paying about $70 in new taxes, families in Georgia would pay about $65, South Carolina residents about $64 and Texas residents about $62.

Lawmakers in energy producing states are trying to come up with a proposal that would hurt their region the least.

Instead of looking at where people can be taxed, look at cuts that can be made throughout the White House, the budget and have the courage to make those cuts.

Maybe they could come up with a solution. Although it would not be a bad idea to let your congressman know your aren't to happy about having to pay any more taxes of any kind. And, to get an explanation of how a tax on energy is going to spur economic recovery.

Be consistent on economic reform

The president's men have announced he will unveil an economic reform and recovery package in his State of the Union speech two weeks from now. That's too soon in one sense, since a month or so longer would allow for more detailed consideration, and about 20 years too late in another since Washington's wrong steps over that period are at least partially responsible for the nation's economic difficulties today. Whatever the president offers, it needs to be as internally consistent as it is purposeful.

The grim reality is that there is no easy solution to the nation's economic puzzle and good reason to doubt that one will present itself any time soon, a fact that Bill Clinton will undoubtedly reassert when he speaks to Congress on Feb. 17. There are also well understood political reasons for moving quickly. During the campaign, the president promised to present and guide to passage within 100 days a program to restore vitality to the economy and to cut the deficit in half. The public's belief in that promise played a central role in his election

The trick will be to avoid pandering to political pressures even while acknowledging them. The complexities are such that even the most rational of plans could have unexpected consequences. Trying to give something to all the competing interests who are pulling and tugging on the new administration would inevitably produce a program that is a contradictory, inefficient and ineffective mess.

For example, the automobile industry, in the name of job preservation and economic health, has let it be known it wants heavy import duties slapped on imports. That would raise the cost of foreign vehicles by thousands of dollars. Given the way the market works, it would all but guarantee that the American Big Three would raise their own prices as well.

That would be an economic depressant of massive scope. What would help the thousands who work for American auto companies would hurt the millions of us who buy cars each year. Higher prices for a product most Americans feel is vital to their economic and psychic well-being would automatically translate into harder times for most consumers. An economy that needs a jump start might get a kick in the head instead. No less importantly, the imposition of significant tariffs or other economic penalties on foreign imports would severely strain world markets. Japan and Europe would be under heavy pressure to retaliate. American exporters, who have been almost single-handedly responsible for such economic recovery as the United States has experienced, could be slapped with crippling import duties. An international trading system painstakingly constructed over decades and already threatened by the strains of intense competition could quickly unravel

Detroit's spokesmen argue just the opposite, of course. They say that Japanese and European carmakers have not been playing by the rules and that it's time to restore a "level playing field." Whether they are right or wrong, the debate is not a digression from the subject of President Clinton's economic proposals. The choices that his Commerce Department makes on import duties will intimately affect the economy and therefore his budgetary package. It is not a decision separate and apart from all others, but intimately related to them.

So is virtually everything. By now, there is near unanimity that the explosion of federal deficit and debt must be contained and then reduced for the sake of America's long-term economic health. That requires structural changes in the tax code and in expenditures. At the same time, the economic recovery is an uncertain thing. If the debt and deficit medicine is too bitter, the patient could have a relapse. Rather than "growing the economy," Washington could end up burying it.

Specifically, a broad-based energy tax similar to one advanced by Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen the other day is a worthwhile idea in theory and could be in practice. It would raise revenue and curb energy consumption, both of which are worthwhile goals. Combined with a hike in the tax rate on high-income individuals, it might redress the structural imbalance created by the Reagan tax and budget policies of 1981.

But there is no way to deal with the immediate budget problems without a growing economy.

Higher taxes are a wash at best if imposed on a stagnant economy. At worst, they can push it into contraction and prolonged decline. The proposed solution becomes part of

Then there is the matter of economic stimulus. Once upon a time, the president and his advisers spoke of a $60 billion infusion of targeted "infrastructure investment," a fancy new way to describe an old practice. The numbers are currently more modest, some $15 billion to $20 billion, and their impact on a $6-trillion-a-year economy would probably be more modest yet. If the theory that our economy is in trouble because our roads, schools and sewer systems are deteriorating has any validity at all, the proposed sum is laughable. But since even the puny $15 billion to $20 billion would require new taxes, it could be counterproductive

Such are the conundrums facing the president. They cannot be wished away. But if there are no guarantees, there is one clear probability. The more he tries to square the circle, the more likely he is to fail. This is one of those times when consistent vision and persistent insistence on its implementation are at least as important as the specific details.

Well, I am getting a good deal better about having to speak in front of people. For the longest time, the fear of getting up in front of a crowd of people haunted me to the upmost of its ability.

Now my Mom was a natural in speech class when she was in college. She could just get up there and let go with her speech. She got all the nuances down and if she wanted, you would be in tears by the time she got through talking. To put it mildly, Mom is a good speaker

Personally, I don't know how I developed that fear. Maybe its a result of being a quiet bookworm who could converse easier with books than people. I admit to not voluntarily doing anything in front of a classroom of fellow students if I could at all get out of it. Unfortunately or fortunately depending on the perspective, my teachers wouldn't let me out of it. One of the first times I had to do anything in front of a crowd was a 4-H sewing project. I didn't even have to speak, only model the silly outfit for a bunch of 4-Hers and their parents and judges. So I lost it prior to going on. But, somehow I lived through that nightmare.

So, my Mom thought it would help me if I did another 4-H project. This one was called method demostration.

Alright, the subject wasn't that great - earthworms. But, since my fellow 4-Her and I both were raising rabbits, earthworms was a natural. Somehow made it through that project. We went to state competition with our method demonstration and I had a major case of the nerves the whole way through. Speech classes in college didn't seem to help much. I had my nerves and ran thorugh the speech like a house on fire. They told me I sounded like an Englishman instead of the Texan I am. But, the funny thing is becoming a journalist is what helped me the most. One thing in this business is you can't be afraid to talk to people. Otherwise, someone else gets the answers and you are left standing in the cold It wasn't an overnight change at all. I can still remember walking up and down the mall in Del Rio to get up the courage to approach someone about something they wanted in the paper. Maybe I just didn't want to get turned down immediately but if I got the first one, the rest just came easier.

So, when I was asked to address the Optimist Club and to talk to the students at Bauer Magnate Elementary about putting out their own newsletter, it was much easier. None of the nervous stomach, at least not too much.

Well, at least one fear has been put to rest. Now, to get to work on

On choosing a team

"Tex." Anyone who has been in the military has known someone who goes by that nickname. I met at least two dozen of them.

That's one of the fringe benefits of being from Texas. You can tell people, "Jus' call me Tex." And many of them will be instantly impressed.

"Tex." It has an aura. Cowpokes, wide-open spaces, straighttalking, straight-shooting, stud poker-playing, drink the beer straight from the long-neck bottles, remember-the-Alamo kind of guys.

I can't think of another state that provides this kind of instant perk. Why, if you are known as "Tex," you can get away with calling a female "Darlin" and not be accused of sexual fiendishness.

Compare that to being from Illinois. Nobody has ever said to me, "Howdy, Ill." How'd you want to be called Ill? Or you wouldn't say to guys from Mississippi, "How's it going, Miss," or "Nice day, Mississ." Not unless you wanted to exchange beer bottle scars

But if you're from Texas and call yourself "Tex," you can be a short, scrawny accountant, terrified of spiders, horses and guns, but you still have that mystique. Be honest, if Ross Perot was from Iowa, people would have giggled

I thought about that in trying to decide which team to cheer for in Sunday's Super Bowl Since I'm not from Dallas or

Buffalo, and don't have a bet on the game, there's no reason for me to favor either team. But it's not as much fun if you don't take sides and find an excuse to make a stupid three-hour emotional investment in one team or another. That's the American way. So I've done what I do when I have to pick a World Series favorite. Since Chicago teams are never in it, I base my choice on personal prejudice, malice and which city's residents I believe are most deserving of an opportunity to hail a champion and get blotto drunk.

So let us consider the comparative merits of Dallas, Texas, and Buffalo, N.Y.

Dallas, of course, was the setting for one of the most popular shows in the history of television. Before that, there were scores of western movies set in or near Dallas. There have been movies and books about Dallas oil tycoons, real-life and fictional. In the postwar era, Dallas became one of the great real estate boomtowns of the Southwest, with ego-bloated millionaires trying to outdo each other in putting up eyesore skyscrapers.

Actually, if you go to Dallas, you don't even know you're in Texas. In the business district, you see more Brooks Brothers suits than in Philadelphia or Chicago. And outside of the business district, you think you died and for your sins have been condemned to spend eternity wandering through shopping centers.

In fact, the best reason to visit Dallas is to immediately drive to nearby Fort Worth, where there are old buildings instead of glass towers, saloons instead of cocktail lounges, crinkly-eyed guys who of Bostonians and tall, lanky women who drink beer instead of chardonnay.

Thurgood Marshall once suggested his own epitaph: "He did what he could with what he had." What he had was great courage, powers of persuasion and personal integrity. What he did - as a lawyer, solicitor general and first black Supreme Court justice — was help translate the Constitution's grandiose promises of equality into real, everyday terms. His death at the age of 84 deprives Americans of every race of an energetic advocate and a true hero. From the waning days of the Warren court to the increasingly conservative Burger and Rehnquist courts, when he became the "great dissenter," Justice Marshall never varied from his basic principles Paying tribute to his former colleague, Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist said, "The members of this court will miss Justice Marshall's wit, warmth and charm." They would honor his memory most by matching his commitment to equality.

Republicans moving to block Clinton Marshall tapes

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Senate Republicans are mounting a battle to block President Clinton's move to lift the ban on gays in the military, but Majority Leader George Mitchell predicts the White House will prevail.

SUNDAY, JANUARY 31, 1993

Mitchell, D-Maine, said the compromise Clinton struck with moderate Democrats such as Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia — delaying the formal lifting of the ban for six months improves Clinton's chances.

"I believe that given this directive and support for it that a majority of the Senate will reject an effort to immediately codify the existing policy," Mitchell said.

Clinton, calling it a "dramatic step forward," on Friday carried out a campaign vow and moved to suspend the 50-year-old ban on homosexuals in the military. Clinton's pledge had drawn the opposition of many in Congress and in the military.

But his hand was strengthened by the six-month compromise and by a Thursday ruling by a federal judge in California that the military ban violated the Constitution.

The major features of Clinton's -Defense Secretary Les Aspin has until July 15 to draft terms of an executive order ending the current policy. The order would at the same time establish strict standards of sexual conduct for all members of the military — and it could, for instance, bar gays from certain kinds of duties involving close quarters.

-Starting at once, recruiters are barred from asking enlistees about their sexual orientation.

-During the next six months, proceedings against gay members of the military will be suspended; gay soldiers in the process of being discharged will be removed from active duty and placed in the standby

-Commanding officers during the interim period will still be allowed to reassign gay members of the military to other units if they consider their presence disruptive.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Clinton also was open to the idea of barring gays from combat, sea duty and other close quarters if senior Pentagon officials felt that was necessary to maintain military Senate Republicans vowed Friday to press legislation to overturn Clinton's policy with legislation.

"It's a big mistake," said Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kan-"The so-called Clinton compromise is nothing more than political damage control for a besieged White House.

But Mitchell said that with Nunn on board, the president's position should be upheld in the Senate. Republicans have a far smaller margin in the House, where Clinton's policy was never believed to be at risk.

If Clinton's effort at striking a compromise didn't win the support of Dole and other congressional Republicans, it did at least seem to subdue some of the criticism of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This has been a difficult issue for all of us," said Joint Chiefs Chairman Colin Powell, a Bush appointee. "The president has made a statement that we support. He has given us a direction to move in, and we are going to be moving in that direction.

Clinton took a first step by ordering military recruiters to stop asking about the sexual preference of those seeking to enter the service. But a showdown lies in the months ahead.

He set July 15 as the deadline for drafting a formal order lifting the ban. Meanwhile Congress will make its views known with nationally televised hearings.

The episode was an example of the stark difference between campaigning and governing. It also was an example of how gridlock often is less a product of divided party control between Congress and the White House than a result of institutional tension between the two branches.

Clinton's problems on the issue were not with Republicans, but with Sen. Sam Nunn, a Georgia Democrat who worked to help elect him.

In the first months of the attacks, there was little public reaction. But eventually ordinary Germans began to take to the streets by the tens of thousands to express their revulsion. Ignatz Bubis, the leader of the Jewish Communities in Germany, has been critical of the government's response to the violence, and he repeated his call for more vigilance. "The political parties are challenged in this fight — and I describe it as a fight - not to ease up or give in to this radicalism and this violence," Bubis said in a speech in

Army sweeps Somali bandit nest

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

AFGOI, Somalia - Hundreds of American soldiers swept into this important crossroads town at dusk Saturday in an airborne raid on a nest of bandits who threaten the international effort to feed Somalia's hungry

"We're going to lay down a big footprint," said army Maj. Marty Culp before some 700 men of the 10th Mountain Division descended on the town

A squadron of helicopters landed most of the soldiers on the eastern outskirts of the dusty, ramshackle town 45 miles west of Mogadishu an hour before sundown.

The units formed up and began a broad sweep through the sprawling community of 40,000 people, moving on foot in squads of 12 and in armored personnel carriers.

and gun-mounted pickup trucks that bandits and militias use as war wagons. But they were not planning house-by-house searches. Helicopter gunships swooped overhead, providing air cover.

No organized resistance was expected, but Culp said some of the bandits being forced out of their lucrative lifestyle might take a few potshots at the American troops.

It was one of the largest operations staged by U.S. troops since American Marines landed in Mogadishu, the capital, on Dec. 9.

The United States and 21 allied nations have since committed more than 38,000 troops to protect aid shipments to the starving people of this East Africa nation.

More than 350,000 Somalis already have died of hunger, war and disease, and an estimated 2 million tribution point in south-central Sofamines of the century. Before the Americans and their allies arrived, experts estimated that at least half of all donated food and other aid was being looted. Some of the looters were free-

PERUCA, Croatia — Danger to 20,000 Croatians living down river from a dynamited dam eased Saturday after emergency crews worked through the night to plug holes and keep the structure from bursting.

Croat and Serb forces declared a cease-fire Saturday in their battle for the Peruca dam. But clashes raged elsewhere in Croatia and in neighboring Bosnia-Herzegovina, where mortars reportedly killed two and wounded 50 in the capital, Sarajevo.

The new bloodletting in Croatia also killed efforts to bring peace to Bosnia. Mediators threw in the towel and handed the problem to the U.N. Security Council after warring Muslims and Serbs rejected a peace

Fighting in Croatia broke out again last week as Croats launched an offensive to retake territory captured by Serbs in the 1991 civil war. Serb troops in retreat detonated mines in the dam on Thursday, touching off panic in towns and villages downstream.

On Friday, emergency workers prevented a major floodwave by opening the main sluice at the base of the dam, which provided most of eastern Croatia's electricity.

Teenage pregnancy in Texas approaches epidemic proportion · Ranking second in the nation in the number of births to teens, Texas also ranks second in the number of births per 1,000 teens between the ages of 15 and 17.

 One-third of all dropouts are pregnancy related; $17 billion annually is associated with costs related to school dropouts in Texas.

Saldivar and both of the Hilarios compose music and write lyrics. Another difficult thing for the band members is finding time when everyone can practice. All have day jobs, so evenings are all that is left. Other commitments sometimes leave them less time for practice that "We get together about three times a week," Tom said.

Sometimes a few of the members convene to practice on a smaller scale, and Manual and Richard practice together everyday.

Saldivar says the band is ready to pay its dues. "It sometimes is difficult with everything going on, but everybody wants to reach for the stars and do what it takes," he said.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. -America's first satellite, a baby metal moon named Explorer 1, soared into orbit 35 years ago Sunday and thrust the United States into the Space Age.

Nearly 1,100 U.S. space launches have followed, 84 of them with humans on board. But for those who helped make history on Jan. 31, 1958, little Explorer 1 still is the most thrilling of all.

"There are several that stick out in my mind. That one certainly does. It was the first of a kind," said Bob Moser, who was launch test director for Explorer 1 and later served as test supervisor for the Apollo moon missions.

For University of Iowa physicist James A. Van Allen, the success of Explorer 1 was "exhilarating."

Van Allen's geiger counter on Explorer 1 led to his most notable discovery: bands of intense radiation surrounding Earth, much like huge donuts. The belts now bear his

"We had discovered a whole new phenomenon which had not been known or predicted before," Van Allen said. "We were really on top of from 300 miles up was beeping, pitithe world, professionally speaking." It was a humbling road to get ground.

The Soviet Union beat the United States into space by four months. with Sputnik 1, the world's first artificial satellite. The 184-pound beeping ball was launched Oct. 4, 1957. and began the Space Age.

Sputnik 2 followed on Nov. 3, 1957, carrying the doomed dog Laika.

Desperate to get something, anything, into orbit, the United States turned to the new Vanguard rocket, a Naval Research Laboratory project. President Eisenhower insisted on the Vanguard rather than the proven Army Redstone missile because he wanted to emphasize peaceful uses of space. NASA had not vet been established

The Free World saw its first attempted satellite launch on Dec. 6, 1957, from Cape Canaveral.

"It was very depressing," recalled Vanguard launch director Bob Gray. You work on something for years and you bust yourself and all of a sudden you finally get to where you're going to go ahead and launch the thing. It looks like, 'Boy, there she goes,' and you're totally de-

By then, Explorer 1 had been joined in orbit by Explorer 3, which carried another Van Allen geiger counter. The second Explorer never made it to orbit because of a rocket malfunction. By then, too, three more Vanguards had been launched, one of them successfully. It hoisted Vanguard 1, the second U.S. satellite and the world's fourth. Vanguard 1 still orbits Earth.

The oldest human-made object in space has traveled more than 5.28 billion miles since it was launched March 17, 1958, the Naval Research Laboratory said. It's expected to remain aloft for another 300 years thanks to its size — a scant 31/4 pounds - and high orbit - 2,089 miles by 352 miles.

Naval Research Laboratory sciennally, on Jan. 31 at 10:48 p.m., tists no longer track Vanguard 1. Its radio transmitter went dead in 1964. Explorer 1 transmitted data until mid-1958 and plunged through the

And they say they don't know how they'll make it if their Social Security benefits don't keep up with inflation.

The White House acknowledged Thursday that President Clinton was considering trimming cost-of-living adjustments (COLAs) for the nation's 41 million Social Security recipients as a way to cut the deficit.

The government could save about $10 billion next year if it denied So-cost-of-living adjustment, which is scheduled to show up in January 1994 checks. The Social Security Administration estimates the increase would be 3.2 percent, adding about time I leave the house is every Fri-$21 a month to the current average monthly benefit of $653.

"Combined with the fact that outof-pocket health care costs are rising, the loss or suspension of payments to keep up with inflation could put countless seniors below the poverty line," Richtman said Friday.

The American Association of Retired Persons believes that freezing COLAs, even for a year, would push half a million Americans below the

When Sally Wilson's daughter was a toddler, she liked to crawl to the top of the stairs and listen to the music.

Wilson, a piano teacher in Big Spring nearly 25 years, thinks her daughter's lifelong love of music had already begun at that

"My mother would pick her up and take her back down the stairs, but just a few minutes later she'd be back," recalled Wilson. "She loved to listen."

That kind of devotion to music is nothing new to Wilson. She's been enthralled by it all her life. "I've just always loved music," said Wilson, who teaches piano nearly every day at her home. "I teach because I need to do it.

"I love the interaction with the pupils. No two are ever the same."

Her students are children and adults, teens and retirees. At present, she teaches a local schoolteacher, a nurse and one 6-year-old boy who started lessons when he was 4.

Wilson says anyone can learn to play piano. The secret? Practice. "There's a natural ability some people have, but nothing takes the place of good, hard work," Wilson said. "But it helps if you have a good ear." A dedicated person herself, Wilson admits she has little tolerance for people who won't give their time and energy.

"If a person really wants to play, he can do it," she said. "That's one way you can tell when a child is ready to start piano - when he really wants to. "If you don't put the effort into it, you're not going to succeed. You get out of it what you put into Wilson believes piano lessons give a child more than just an appreciation for music. "Probably the most important thing you get is discipline," she said. "The parents of my 6-year-old (piano student) say he's a hard worker. It teaches children good habits. "It teaches you to be a good citizen," Wilson said. "You do your part — you learn your lessons and become a dependable person." For Wilson, there were benefits to the career. "When I started, my kids were little, and I wanted to stay home with them," she said. "This way

I could do that.'

"My family is very important to me," said Wilson, married to Chesley Wilson. They raised three children, all grown now and with families of their own -Joan Harmon of Big Spring, pianist at Hillcrest Baptist Church; Steve Wilson of Austin and Stacy Putnam of Houston.

During the heyday of Big Spring's Webb Air Force Base. Wilson kept as many as 52 students — all taking 45-minute private lessons. Now her numbers have dropped considerably, but Wilson doesn't mind.

"I used to teach until 9 o'clock at night and get up early on Saturday and start again," she recalled. "I know it was hard on my family and it was hard on me. This way is much easier. At times she wonders if piano teaching is a dying art. "Sometimes I think, 'Who will 'If you don't put the effort into it, you're not going to succeed. You get out of it what you put into it.'

Sally Wilson piano teacher

keep this going?,' "Wilson said. "I see so many good teachers retiring and there's no one to replace them.

But then she looks at her own daughter Joan, who as a little girl climbed the stairs to hear piano lessons

"She always had a talent for it," recalls the proud mom. "She's so good. I don't think there's anything you can put in front of her that she can't play. I know she's going to teach someday.' Wilson herself was encouraged by her parents. Living in a rural area outside San Angelo, they drove her and a sister 25 miles each way to piano lessons every Although her favorite pieces are all classical — "Furelise" by Beethoven, "Clair de Lune" by Debussy and anything by Bach Wilson does not try to limit the tastes of her students. In recent weeks they have been playing "Anything I Do, I Do for You" and "Lean on Me" along with the theme from "Beauty and the Beast.'

"As soon as they're ready, I start them on classical music," Wilson explained. "But they enjoy playing thes popular pieces. some of them. And I enjoy it, too.'

Although she likes "Lean on Me," Wilson admits she is choosy about what she listens to. But be it classical, jazz or pop can she imagine life without music?

"No," Wilson said, without hesitation. "It is a part of me, as much as my husband or children are a part of me. I love it."

Manufacturers listen to customers

Many manufacturers are beginning to regard communication with consumers as a strategic tool rather than a burden.

A recent study suggests that most manufacturers pay attention to customer correspondence. Listening to customers pays off for the company because keeping existing customers costs less than winning new ones.

Manufacturers recognize the potential benefit of increased product sales to satisfied consumers and of reduced negative word-of-mouth communication. Manufacturers understand that they can use consumer ideas to get new product concepts and obtain information on how to market their products.

Consumers can benefit. Customers who write letters to businesses are likely to get a response to their letter — whether they criticize, praise or ask for information. In the study mentioned above, over 80 percent of manufacturers responded to of getting a satisfactory response money in the future.

consumer letters within 90 days. Average response time was just 17

Consumers can take advantage of manufacturers' willingness to communicate by writing about issues of concern. Rather than tolerating unacceptable purchases, a letter to the manufacturer may bring a satisfactory resolution. A letter of praise for a good product or brand could cause the manufacturer to continue production of an item that otherwise would have been discontinued.

from the manufacturer by using certain strategies:

 Keep your letter sincere and reasonable. Letters which portray unreasonable anger, bitterness or hatred are likely to be ineffective.

 Ask specific questions or state your expectations clearly. This prevents a "form letter" answer and results in a response which deals directly with the problem identified.

 If cost is involved, use numbers. Cost of the same product may vary from region to region. Unless you provide cost information, the manufacturer might not understand your specific situation.

Two-way communication between consumers and manufacturers can help improve the quality and variety of products on the market. As a bonus, some manufacturers respond with coupons or special offers, thus reimbursing the consumer for prob-Consumers increase their chances lem purchases or saving additional Week after week I lay in that bed, a human incubator. Each day that I remained pregnant gave my baby a better chance of survival. How incredible that I should be in such a situation ... again.

I was in my seventh month when my last child was born. At 3 pounds she put up a struggle, clinging to the thread of life. They let me hold her for awhile before taking her down to the morgue. The doctor said the difficult pregnancy had been "just one of those things," and I needn't fear it would happen again. But it did.

The nurses assured me of the advances medical science had made since my last pregnancy. I was being carefully monitored and receiving injections that would mature my baby's respiratory system. A team of experts was standing by; they would

I held onto the pregnancy as long as I could. It was as though I was keeping my child safe within me through sheer force of will. But too soon, much too soon, labor became inevitable. I caught a glimpse of her before they took her to the intensive care nursery. She didn't look like a baby at all, she looked like what she was, a developing fetus. Later that evening, they took me to see her. It was the first time in nearly a month that I had been out of bed, that my feet touched the floor. She was incredibly small. Her entire hand from wrist to fingertip was no more than an inch long, her head no bigger than a tennis ball. She was hooked up to various devises. Tubes I listened politely, then dismissed and hoses crisscrossed her little pain and loss. I wouldn't allow my- that icy March morning I watched them bury my baby. Inside the tiny white coffin she was naked, wrapped only in cotton. That bothered me for a long time. I hadn't thought to send a blanket ahead to the funeral home. "When they bury this little one," I promised myself, "She'll be fully dressed and wrapped in a warm blanket. I'll see to it.'

The nurses showed me how to put my hands inside the incubator. They said it was important that I touch her. I didn't want to do that. I wanted to distance myself. But I did as was told. My fingers stroked her skin. I made physical contact with the child who, only hours before, had been inside my body. As she fought her battle, I fought one of my own. It was a battle I was losing. I was succumbing to hope

Her prospects weren't promising. Each day I thought surely we'd lose her. We named her, Tristi. I could envision that pretty name inscribed on a tiny cross. She was born three days after Valentine's Day. There had been a terrible blizzard that night. We brought her home in April, a warm, sunny, Easter Monday. She still weighed less than 5 pounds. The fear remained with me. Every time

"Please God, don't take her now. I was prepared to give her up to you in the beginning, but not now!"

This year's March of Dimes poster child is a little girl born very prematurely. She isn't my daughter, but she could be. On Feb. 17, my miracle baby will become a teen-ager. She has long blonde hair, hazel eyes and skin like porcelain. In her cheerleader's outfit it's obvious she's becoming quite the young woman. She's the best behaved of my brood, extremely affectionate, and especially fond of elderly people.

Besides her beauty and sweet disposition she's as bright as a new penny. She's won awards in poetry and speech writing competitions. When she grows up she wants to be a professional artist. Often, when I look at her, I think of the days when I took loose change to school to fill the slots of the March of Dimes cards. In later years, instead of dimes, I gave whatever few dollars I could spare.

All in all, I feel I got my money's

South Padre has always attracted Texas mavericks

One of the great things about visiting South Padre Island is the fascinating characters you meet. Like Harpoon Barry, the tattoo artist who is a champion water skier, despite the fact he has a peg leg. Or the Amazing Walter, who builds sand castles for a living and does magic tricks as a sideline. Or Ila Loetscher, the turtle lady, who takes care of sick turtles in her home and gives them names

South Padre was first chartered in 1519 by the Spanish explorer Alonso de Pineda who named it White Island. In 1804 a missionary priest, Padre Jose Nicholas Balli, established the first settlement on the island and became the island's namesake. In 1964, the Port Mansfield Gulf Channel was completed, which separated South Padre Island from Padre Island forever.

Letting go of grudges is act of bravery

DEAR READERS: Did you know there is an International Forgiveness Week? Well, neither did I until five years ago when Alice Parenti of Fresno, Calif., wrote to tell me about it. And this is the week.

If you are a card-carrying member of the human race, there is at least one person in your life who needs your forgiveness. Or perhaps it's you who needs to be forgiven, so hop aboard the mea culpa bandwagon, let go of those grudges and give your ulcer a chance to heal.

DECIDE TO FORGIVE Decide to forgive For resentment is negative

Resentment is poisonous Resentment diminishes and devours the self.

Be the first to forgive, To smile and to take the first step. And you will see happiness bloom On the face of your human brother

Be always the first Do not wait for others to forgive For by forgiving You become the master of fate The fashioner of life The doer of miracles.

In return you will receive Untold peace and happiness. Here is the program for achieving a truly forgiving heart:

Sunday: Forgive yourself. Monday: Forgive your family Tuesday: Forgive your friends and Wednesday: Forgive across economic lines within your own nation.

Thursday: Forgive across cultural lines within your own nation. Friday: Forgive across political lines within your own nation. Saturday: Forgive other nations.

Only the brave know how to forgive. A coward never forgives. It is not in his nature.

Now, Dear Readers, if you will forgive me for repeating a portion of the lovely poem titled "Forgiveness," by George Roemisch, here it is:

'Forgiveness is the fragrance of the violet that clings fast to the heel that crushed it.'

So, if perchance you are the 'heel" that crushed a violet, this is the week to seek forgiveness.

To forgive is the highest,

Most beautiful form of love.

You can learn to tune noise out of your mind, says Dr. Kenneth Roy, an acoustics researcher at Armstrong World Industries in Lancaster, Pa. 'But your body receives it, and there's a stress reaction," he says. So other remedies are in order. How much noise is too much depends on what you are doing, whether you like the sound and the noise level to which you're accustomed. A noise unnoticeable in the middle of the afternoon will be annoying in the middle of the night. se is measured on a decibe (db) scale which goes from zero, or the absence of sound, to about 120 db equal to a 747 jet taking off. Most people are comfortable up to about 65 decibels, with quiet registered at 40 decibels. To sleep, 30 or below is considered within the comfort zone.

In the home, major sources of unwanted noise are appliances, television, sound system, shouting and rowdy play. To ideally deal with the first, replace older dishwashers, refrigerators and clothes washers.

Newer appliances have an acoustical barrier such as a sound absorbing material built in. Buy a white noise machine or use a small fan near the bed or desk to mask sounds from other rooms, such as television or conversation. Most sound comes into the house through windows and gaps in doors. Weatherstripping is a first step. Give it a try with masking tape. If the noise level goes down, install weatherstripping and a plastic or rubber strip that fits between the bottom of the door and the door sill. Weatherstrip windows.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women in the United States will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as the result of breast can-

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

Guidelines For Screening Mammography Established by the American Cancer Society.

 35-40 years of age -One baseline mammogram.

II. 40-50 years of age A mammogram every 1-2 years depending on breast type and

III. 50 years of age and over -An annual physical examination and annual mammogram.

IV. Asymptomatic women under 50 years of age with significant high risk factors should be examined at appropriate intervals. These risk factors include previous breast cancer and family history of cancer.

V. A symptomatic woman should have a mammogram at any age when she experiences a mass, nipple discharge, skin changes or unexplained breast pain.

A screening mammogram is an x-ray of the breast using extremely low dosages of radiation (usually comparable to dental xrays) and is designed to find very early cancers.

A female technologist who is highly trained in mammography will perform the examination.

Juliette's ability became public when the dog and the Eisenmans attended a clinic here in December that tested dogs with suspected hearing problems.

When the experts saw the Eisenman boys signing and the dog's response, they were awestruck.

Not everybody loves 'Da Boys'

It seems like every time you turn a corner these days you see some yahoo decked out in Cowboy or Super Bowl XXVII garb. (In fact, let me know if you see anyone who isn't wearing a Cowboys' hat, sweat shirt, jacket, or boxer shorts and I'll do a feature story on them for the newspaper.)

Since Dallas' return to the higher ranks of the NFL, Cowboy fans have appeared out of nowhere to be found everywhere. And who can blame them. Only a fool, a masochist or the two or three remaining Houston Oiler fans would have bragged about loyalty to a team with a 1-15 record, like the Cowboys sported three years

But going hand-and-Cowboyautographed-football with the reemergence of Cowboys fans is another phenomenon - the reemergence of Cowboy haters. They call them the "Cryboys," root against them no matter who they're playing and even write books about why they can't stand you-know-

Yes, a couple of former newsmen and diehard Cowboy haters wrote a book called "The Semi-Official Dallas Cowboy Haters Handbook" in 1983. And a recent Associated Press story said the authors believe the time is ripe for an updated version.

What all these Cowboy killjoys may not realize is that hating a team is undoubtedly the greatest compliment you can pay it.

How many Cowboy haters would there be if Tom Landry had never had a winning season? How many people would curse the helmets with the stars if Dallas had seldom made the playoffs or never been to a Super Bowl? There's a reason why Tampa Bay Buccaneers or TCU Horned Frog haters handbooks aren't occupying Teams that don't win and win consistently don't attract anybody's ire. Jealousy rages in the emotionally twisted mind of the sports fan. And if any team besides their favorite has continued success, the really good (read disturbed) fan will grow to despise that success. Not that there aren't factors other than the Cowboys' success that cultivated Cowboy dislike over the years. Former general manager Tex Schramm's arrogance, Tom Landry's stoicism and Roger Staubach's goody-goody image gave Dallas anti-fans plenty of excuses to detest da Boys.

But for true Cowboy haters, the worst thing about those darn Cryboys is they keep getting so much attention because they keep getting. themselves in situations like today — Super Bowls and NFC championship games and the like. Even with their five-year playoff drought in the 1980s, the Cowboys have played in 11 of the 23 NFC championship games. And in one 13-year stretch they played in an amazing 10 NFC

Today marks their sixth Roman Numeral Bowl in The Big Game's 27-year legacy. That's enough to make anyone who's not a Cowboy fan tire of watching Dallas and hearing about how good the Wowboys

One notable aspect of the hoopla leading up to today's Super Bowl is the number of media members picking the underdog Bills to beat Dallas. Despite the Cowboys standing as 61/2 point favorites, a lot of journalistic nods are going to Buffalo.

Sports Illustrated's Paul Zimmerman likes the Bills today. And so do all three Dallas Morning News NFL/ Cowboy beat writers.

Most picking the Bills point to Buffalo's improved defense and newfound maturity as reasons why Super Bowl XXVII will produce an upset. These aren't the same distraction-ridden Bills of the last two Super Bowls, they say. But I don't think I've heard any of them say the Bills will win because they match up well against Dallas.

Yes, this Buffalo team does seem to have its wits about it now more than it has in the last two seasons. -But will that be enough to stop the Cowboys' offense? I don't think so, because other top defenses in the NFL haven't stopped Dallas. I think Dallas will win by scoring 30 or more points and maintaining possession of the football. Buffalo's defense looked good in playoff wins over Pittsburgh and much of a passing game, and the and championships. Sure, she's No. Dolphins, without much running, den't come close to the power and PASADENA, Calif. — Something has to give on Super Sunday. Two teams of destiny, one trying to avoid the unforgivable and the other trying to complete the unimaginable, could make this a Super Bowl that's unforgettable.

The Buffalo Bills are only the second team to make it to three straight Super Bowls. But if they fall to the Dallas Cowboys they become the only team to lose three straight. That's the kind of losers' label that can haunt a franchise for years. Dallas, once America's Team and participants in five Super Bowls in nine years, is back to the NFL championship game for the first time since 1979. The stunning return is only three seasons since they were 1-15 and less than four years after a housecleaning that ousted the only president, coach and player personnel director the team had in its nearly 30-year history.

Certainly Buffalo has the most to lose — a third straight Super Bowl.

It didn't that week.

In the greatest comeback in NEI history, the Bills went ahead 38-35, then won 41-38 in overtime. They went on to win easily at Pittsburgh Bowl for the third straight time.

"I still can't believe we won that game," said defensive coordinate Walt Corey, who's been in pro foo ball as player and coach for 33 years. "I never saw anything like it. Everything just seemed to fall into place and it's been working since."

"That comeback finally created an atmosphere where we knew we had to be together," backup running back Kenneth Davis said.

That hasn't only been the case with the Bills, who in 1989 were

In those four years, Johnson and Jones made 46 trades, the most important of which sent Herschel Walker to Minnesota in 1989 for 12 players and draft choices. Seles on top of tennis world

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MELBOURNE, Australia - Monica Seles is looking mighty scary on the court these days, even if she's still all giggles off it, and a Grand Slam sweep this year looms as a real possibility.

Groundstrokes and grunts got her to No. 1, and now she's stretching the gap between herself and the rest of the intimidated women in tennis with frightening new skills.

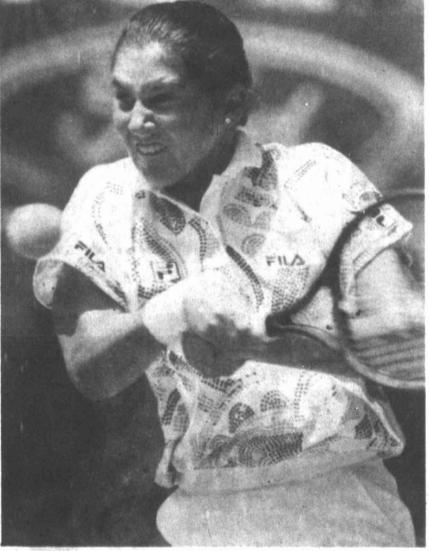

Her serves, faster and livelier than ever, whizzed by Steffi Graf seven times for aces Saturday in Seles' 4-6, 6-3, 6-2 victory in the Australian Open final.

Her volleys, assured and accurate when she tried them, accounted for four winners in 14 approaches to the net, two more of each than the generally more aggressive Graf.

Not long ago, Seles wouldn't serve seven aces in a tournament, volley four times in a month or approach the net 14 times in year. She couldn't remember ever serving so many

At 19, Seles still has an Olive Oyl physique - none of the rippling muscles of Martina Navratilova, none of the athletic grace of Graf. But in a sport in which mental toughness is perhaps more important than physical strength, Seles is in a class of her own. The difference between her and the rest of the women in tennis can be measured not just in the rankings Miami. But the Steelers, without or money, nor even in match records 1, has $7.2 million in tournament earnings and eight Grand Slam titles. ease see 'Da Boys', Page 5B But the real difference is in her atti-aces against a player of Graf's tude, her willingness to work on her game and her ability to improve.

Instead of being satisfied with her current dominance, Seles is intent on serving harder, learning how and when to approach the net, volleying to end points more quickly.

She's not a complete player yet. Her footwork at the net remains awkward, her legs splayed in different directions on occasion. Those new skills are in the early stage of development, but it's amazing enough that they are emerging even as she continues to win. And they can pay off at the one Grand Slam she hasn't won, Wimbledon, where Graf beat her in the final last Seles wasn't afraid to stay with her bigger serve against Graf even after double-faulting to start the match and missing on a lot of first serves in the first two sets. She could have played it safe, but safe doesn't help you get better and it doesn't even always help to win.

Rather, she stayed with it and came up with four aces in the final set, the last one at 102 mph to save a break point at 4-2, 30-40. In that third set, Seles made an astonishing 79 percent of her first serves without letting up on her power, and that was a key factor in keeping Graf

Oilers name Ryan to defensive post

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON — Buddy Ryan's ambitions don't bother Houston Oilers coach Jack Pardee.

"I don't think I'd want a coach who didn't want to be a head coach," Pardee said after Ryan signed a two-year contract as the Oilers' defensive coordinator Friday.

"If you want to be a head coach, you'd better be around a winner and fellow coaches were. that's what we're trying to do here,' said Pardee.

secondary coach Pat Thomas. The Oilers gave Eddy's defense much of the blame for allowing the Bills to rally from a 35-3 third-quarter deficit. "I'd think those defensive players are ready to go to work and erase the stink on their backs from that collapse," said Ryan. "I'm sure they don't like that feeling any more than the rest of the organization.'

He was also an assistant coach under Mike Ditka with Chicago and helped the Bears win the 1986 Super Bowl against New England.

Pardee admits he has personality differences with the volatile Ryan. But the Oilers coach said he's not worried about that, either.

"I just want good coaches. Good coaches come in all kinds of personalities." said Pardee.

Ryan sought the head coaching job at New England before it was awarded to Parcells. He interviewed with Adams and General Manager Mike Holovak on Thursday, but left town after talking with Pardee.

"I thought it went real good," said Ryan. "Jack and I had a good visit. I'm looking forward to something positive happening. Ryan said he didn't know who his Candidates to replace Eddy include Houston assistant general manager Floyd Reese, formerly an Oilers assistant coach, and former Chicago Bears defensive coordinator Vince Tobin.

Ryan's name was among the first mentioned following Eddy's dismissal, but at the time he was still pursuing a head coaching job with the Patriots, Pardee said.

The Oiler organization is trying to improve the team and he's got a good track record of having good defenses," said Pardee. "We've made progress to get a better defense here and now we've got to make more

No details were provided by Ryan on his discussion with Pardee.

"We don't have to go into that," he said. "Everybody's got their philosophy and I think mine is pretty well documented so I don't think we need to go into that."

Houston is also seeking a replacement for receivers coach Chris Palmer, who declined a new contract to become receivers coach under Parcells. Special teams coach Richard Smith is interviewing with Denver and Chicago.

"It's been difficult, having so many changes and possibly more," said Pardee. "We can't go into meetings and say we did this last year. We have a lot to do in the off season. But this is going to help us get

One such bit of serendipity was the arrival of Norv Turner as offensive coordinator last season to tutor Aikman, the No. 1 overall pick in

Turner, who came from the Rams. was Johnson's second choice for the job and one of the few assistants he's ever hired that he didn't know personally. "He's made my career,"

It also was serendipity that brought the Cowboys three-time Pro Bowl pass rusher Charles Haley, whose disputes with teammates and coaches made him expendable in San Francisco. He was obtained for two draft choices just before the season in trade No. 46, and helped solidify a defense that has no Pro Bowlers but allowed the fewest yards in

That record has had a serendipitous result for Dave Wannstedt, the defensive coordinator who has been with Johnson for the past 15 years and is his closest friend. Wannstedt has been named coach of the Chicago Bears, the first time an assistant at the Super Bowl has already been publicly hired by another team.

Wannstedt will have the chore of trying to stop Buffalo's no-huddle offense, which features Thurman Thomas, perhaps the game's best allaround running back. He'll also try to stop quarterback Jim Kelly from throwing to Andre Reed, James Lofton and Don Beebe. Dallas matches that with Smith, Aikman and wide receivers Michael Irvin, Alvin Harper and Kelvin Martin.

Defensively, it's Dallas' no-names against Buffalo's all-stars, Bruce Smith, Cornelius Bennett, Shane Conlan.

But what makes this Bills defense different from the one that allowed the Giants to keep the ball for more than 40 minutes two years ago is the ability to stop the run. Smith. Bennett and Conlan are all important in that scheme, but so are lessheralded players such as nose tackle Jeff Wright, defensive end Phil Hansen, outside linebacker Marvcus Patton and strong safety Henry

All but Wright are in their third year or less, the kind of transfusion the Bills finally needed after their two losses - the 20-19 defeat by the Giants and last year's 37-24 thrashing by Washington.

Lady Steers roll on

Big Spring is 9-0 after Pecos rout

By MIKE BUTTS Staff Writer

When a basketball team dominates its district the way the Big Spring Lady Steers have done this season, sometimes motivation is hard to come by.

So in the Lady Steers 86-47 romp over Pecos Friday night at Steer Gym, Big Spring coach Ron Taylor pointed to the last time the teams played as inspiration for his players.
"I felt like we had one horrible game in district against Pecos (Jan. 8)," said Taylor, whose first-place Lady Steers are now 9-0 in Distict 3-4A and 20-5 overall. "That was one reason we played well tonight. The kids wanted to show they were better than what they showed there (in Pecos).

And they showed it by getting their biggest offensive output of the season. Big Spring's previous highpoint game was in a 73-42 win over San Angelo Lake View Jan. 19. The Lady Steers had their lowest point total of district play in their earlier win over Pecos, 44-35.

But this time Big Spring got almost perfect shooting from the two players that represent their best inside and outside scoring threats. Junior post Amy Earnst hit on 10 of 13 short-range field goals, finishing with 22 points in three quarters of play. And senior wing Leslie Fryar took seven three-pointers and made all of them for 21 points. With Big Spring ahead 69-30 after three periods, Fryar also sat out the final

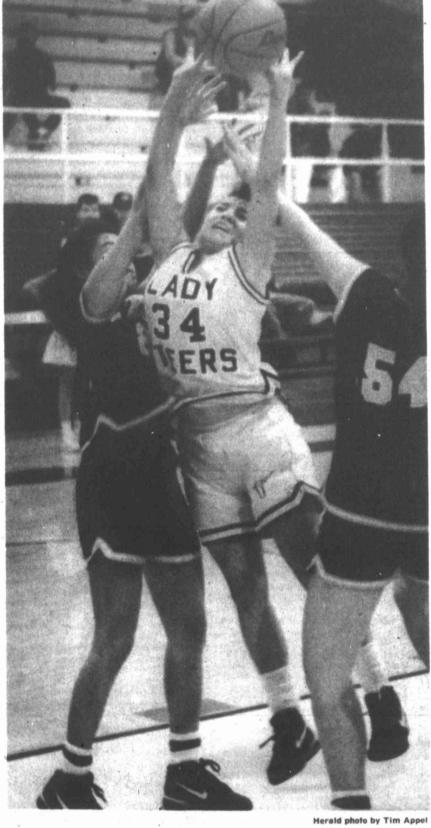

"I guess she was just in a groove tonight," Taylor said of Fryar, a 5-foot-4, all-district player. "You could see it in her face when she had

Pecos (4-4 in district, 10-11 overall) lead only once at 4-3. They struggled against Big Spring's press and height advantage. With their tallest players standing only 5-7, the Lady Eagles are probably the shortest team in the district. Big Spring's Earnst is 5-11.

Pecos managed only three points in the second period on a bucket and a free throw by senior Monica Navarette. The Lady Steers led 21-10 after one quarter and 39-13 at the

"(Our) pressure was killing them and I felt like our half-court defense was taking them out of the ball game," Taylor said. "Another key was there was no way they could stop Amy (Earsnt) as small as they games left on its district schedule. It could clinch a second-place playoff spot Tuesday in Sweetwater with a win. The Lady Steers travel to Andrews Feb. 5 and finish out their district games and regular season Feb. 12 against Fort Stockton in Big

The Lady Steers, district champions last season, have now won 19 straight district games and 20 out of their last 21. But Taylor isn't worried about the team getting complacent.

"If you're going to be the district champion you can't relax, you got to take every game seriously," Taylor said. "You have to come out pumped, and these kids have learned everybody's going to take their shots at us so you have to be ready.

Forsan squads sweep Irion County

By DAVID ROMAN Special Writer

The Forsan Queens returned to District 9A action against the Irion County Lady Hornets with a solid 52-36 win Friday at Irion County. Forsan's boys team also beat Irion County Friday, 70-52 (see score-board, page 4B for summaries).

In the girls game Micki McAdams hit a jump shot 12 seconds into the game and later the Queens pushed the lead to 7-0. The Lady Hornets got within 4 points at 8-4 with 1:45 to play in the first quarter before Forsan outscored Irion County 6-2 on baskets by Jenny Conaway and Claudette Coats. For the Big Spring Steers, it was another close loss, one that coach Gary Tipton said puts his team's back to the wall. For the Pecos Eagles, it was a chance to play spoiler.

Pecos' 82-74 win over the Steers Friday at Steer Gym was the Eagles' second district win in seven tries. But more importantly, it dropped Big Spring into a three-way tie for third with a 3-4 district mark, causing Tipton to say his team can't lose any more games. It ended a week where the Steers dropped two district games. Tuesday they lost to Monahans 66-65. Big Spring is now 12-12 for the season while Pecos goes to 11-13.

The Steers played two of three key phases of the game well. But it was the one they didn't play well in free throw shooting - that killed them. Big Spring made just five of 15 from the line, compared to 17 of 26 for Pecos. Using a definite height advantage, Big Spring shot well from the floor, 54 percent. And the Steers soundly outrebounded Pecos 41-22. But the Eagles got outstanding games from senior post player Brian Gibson and sophomore forward Quentin Terry. Gibson, the tallest Eagle at 6-foot-2, burned the Steers front line for 32 points to go along with eight rebounds. His two biggest rebound came late in the game when Peco had missed free throw attempts. The 6-1 Terry, hitting medium range jumpers, finished the game with 20 points and seven rebounds.

Gibson was a workhorse in the second half. The Steers limited him to eight points in the first half, but he fired in 15 third quarter points and nine more in the fourth.

Tipton said Gibson's play hurt Big Spring late in the game. "Twice they missed shots, we got the inside position and he got the rebound," said Tipton. "Late in the ballgame we couldn't keep our hands on the ball." The Steers hit a stretch in the fourth quarter when they turned the ball over six of seven times down the court. They saw a 63-61 lead go to a 71-69 deficit. But the Steers hung tough and took the lead, 72-71, on an offensive rebound by Jody

Pecos answered with a short jumper by Terry and a three-pointer by James Ornelas. The Eagles had the lead for good, 75-73 with 1:10 left. The Steers trailed 19-16 after the first quarter and 34-31 at the half. Behind the scoring of guard Wes Hughes and forward Torbin Lancaster Big Spring managed to take a 56-55 lead going into the fourth quarter. Early in the fourth Hughes hit a three-pointer, giving Big Spring a 63-61 lead. That's when the Steers started their series of turnovers.

Hughes and Lancaster led Big Spring in scoring with 17 points. Leggett followed with 16.

Tipton saw a bright side to it all. 'We must win every game," he said. 'The great thing about that is anybody can play when things are going good. We've got to come up with some kids who can play when things are going bad.

"I don't know who it will be, but the cream will rise to the top. We're fixing to see how much cream we've

JV STEERS WIN

Despite having leading scorers Trey Terrazas and Dustin Waters moved up the the varsity, the Steers unior varsity defeated Pecos 65-38 Friday. Big Spring moves to 13-9 overall and 6-1 in district play. Heath Anderson, Payton Sedberry and Salvador Sanchez paced Big Spring with eight points each. Chris Wollenzien added seven points.

The Steers will be on the road Tuesday against Sweetwater. Both JV and varsity play at 7:30 p.m.

Several factors go into selection of hunting dogs

By LARRY REA

The Commercial Appeal

Cute puppies don't always make the best hunting dogs Hunters should keep that in mind when selecting a puppy. Picking the right puppy, or young dog, is a major step in developing a top-notch hunt-

This time of the year, many hunters are looking to replace or add a dog to their kennel. For them, a hunting dog is a key partner to success in the field

With the right dog, a hunter can make maximum use of his time in the field and increase the hunt's Many hunters, however, spend time trying to develop, or correct, dogs who are lacking in inherent

"Unfortunately, they don't realize through training, Howard said.

lat no matter how much time they spend with the dog, some of its problems are due to inherent characteristics that cannot be corrected," said Kevin Howard of the St. Louis-based Ralston Purina Co

The dog's genetics plays a big part in what a hunter should, or should not, expect once in the field. A good motto to follow in selecting a hunting dog is: "Good dogs are born, not made When selecting a puppy there are several important characteristics to look for in the dog's parents: Quality of nose: One of the reasons dogs are used in hunting is because of their keen and discriminating sense of smell. Their ability to locate game is vital to the success of

The dog's basic ability to smell is inherent and cannot be improved your pup, that's the dog for you.

 Desire: A dog that works hard and applies himself to the task is said to have desire. Don't fool yourself into thinking that you can increase the dog's motivation. It's something with which a dog is born.

 A team player: Look for a cooperative dog willing to work with you, a dog that is attentive and eager to please. Dog handlers use the term "bid-able" to refer to a cooperative

 Avoid spooky, nervous dogs: These dogs lack self-confidence and probably don't have the mental stability needed to handle the rigors of a hunt. Self-confident dogs are better

- This dog's for you: Once you are satisfied the dog's parents reflect the abilities you would like to see in

able to adjust to gunfire, loud noises, birds and water.

Best results on the large-mouth bass were being had in 20 to 40 feet of water along the deepest points and drop-offs along the channels. Spinner, crankbaits and slab appeared to get better results when worked slowly. Lighter colors seemed to enhance catches.

Smallmouth bass were biting fair below the 18-inch keeper range. They were being caught mos'y in 15 to 30 feet of water along ridges and

Crappie fishing was fair, with minnows and jigs as bait, and in 15-20 feet of water. With warming trends, tempo on this is due to pick Channel catfishing was only poor up the Concho River arm with worms as bait. Results, however, are to good, but they still were mostly pretty good for this time of year. No walleye or yellow catfishes of note were reported, although white bass are beginning to be taken on jigs or points, and with jigs and slabs best slabs over points in the lake.

Payton, four others make Hall of Fame

LOS ANGELES — Chuck Noll and Bill Walsh, the most dominant coaches in Super Bowl history, and Walter Payton, who rushed for more yards than any player in the NFL, are the newest members of pro football's Hall of Fame.

Noll, who won four Super Bowls, and Walsh, who won three were elected Saturday along with Payton.

They will be joined in the Class of 1993 by Dan Fouts, one of just three passers to throw for more than 40,000 yards, and guard Larry Little, one of the premier offensive linemen of his time.

The five were chosen by a a 34-member media panel from a group of 15 finalists, and will be inducted July 31 in Canton, Ohio.

Payton had 10 seasons of 1,000 yards or more rushing for the Chicago Bears and finished his career with 16,726 yards. He had 77 games with more than 100 yards rushing and scored 110 rushing touchdowns. He was elected in his first year of

'I played a kids' game and got paid for it. I tried to play the way I was taught and I owe a debt of gratitude to the coaches I played for - in high school, in college and with the Bears. You are an extension of these Payton called the Hall of Fame honor a nice one, but not the crowning achievement of his career.

When I was able to walk off the field for the last time in 1987, that was the crowning moment," he said. "To hear the fans cheer and call my name and see a lot of them cry along with me, that stands out.'

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MAUNA LANI, Hawaii - Defending champion Arnold Palmer dropped a 10-foot birdie putt worth $50,000 Saturday on the ninth hole in the Senior Skins Game.

Palmer's heroics on the last hole of the day insured there would be no shutouts among the four legends from the over-50 tour.

Ray Floyd won a total of four skins worth $60,000, Jack Nicklaus dropped long birdie putts for two skins and $30,000 and Chi Chi Rodriguez interrupted the flow of oneliners long enough to birdie the seventh hole for $25,000.

And Chi Chi, whose quick wit and on-course commentary encompassed subjects ranging from politics to pantyhose, very nearly stole the two skins from Palmer on the last hole of the day.

His 35-foot chip shot for birdie-4 hit the back of the hole and spun out. "I should have left the pin in," Rodriguez said.

"It was a mistake, but it was the right mistake, because Arnie won

Eye on the economy

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

The local economy last year improved over the year before, indicate increases in sales and Local business leaders laud the improvement while being somewhat cautious, but express optimism for the future.

"I was very suprised, pleas-antly suprised," said Big Spring City Manager Lanny Lambert, who joined the city in October. "I had been hoping that our economy had bottomed out and that a rebound was on the way. This is an indication that it may be."

"I'd feel a lot better if those numbers were way up but as long we keep the economy going up we're doing good," said Ted St. Clair, director of Moore Development for Big Spring, a city economic development group funded by a city half-cent sales tax. The numbers:

· December employment for Howard County was 14,395, an increase of 371, 2.6 pecent, from December 1991. Job increases steadily increased since 1989 when number of jobs bottomed since 1980, with an annual average 13,322. The high was 1982 with 15,723.

"It's nice knowing that it's not going the other direction," said Jim Purcell, president of State National Bank and a board member of Moore Development.

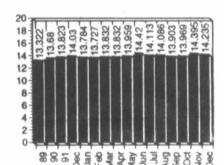

"Three hundred and seventy people, that's quite a bit of an increase in labor," said Linda Roger, executive director of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

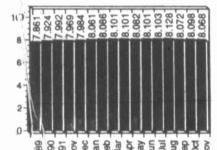

Unemployment numbers fluc tuated more the past few years, but rose consistently since 1990. The annual average in 1989 was 6.9 percent. That dropped to 5 percent in 1990, then rose to 5.2 percent in 1991 and to 5.4 percent last year.

In December, 964 were unemployed, 185 more than December 1991. That left an enemployment rate of 6.4 percent for December compared to 5.3 percent a year

Joe Wallace of the Texas Employment Commission office in Big Spring pointed out that weekly unemployment claims for last year nearly doubled, to 16,581, compared to 8,907 the year before and 7,122 in 1990.

 Retail sales in Big Spring from November 1991 through October increased 2.7 percent over the year before, totalling $154 million. It's the highest since 1982, inflation not accounted for, when there were $175 million retail sales. But the increases have not been consistant and last year's increase is not considered significant.

'It's not bad, it's not good," St. Clair said.

"I think holding your own is good," Purcell said

 New and used vehicle sales decreased 3.9 percent the past year, to about $2 million.

That's not much to worry about, Roger said. "I think several of the car dealers think the last two to three months have been good • Bank deposits in December were $373 million, 1.1 percent more than the year before. That's not significant either, Purcell said.

 Telephone line connections, an indicator of population and business activity, increased 240 the past year, to 13,848 in December, a 1.8 percent increase.

· Real estate residential sales totalled $10.6 million for the year, 22.1 percent more than the past year. Figures on number of homes sold were not available at press time.

 Construction permits issued last year totalled 268 for $11.2 million. Figures for 1991 were

Of those permits, 15 were for new commercial buildings valued at $3.2 million, including H.E.B Grocery Co.'s new store at Gregg and 20th Streets. New residential permits were 49 for $475,017. Other permits totalled 204 for Language changes were also made to include a history of and problems caused by boll weevils, said Lisa Edmondson, an aide to Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, a co-sponsor of the bill. The inclusions were requested by environmental groups.

"It did not hurt the integrity of the bill," said Edmondson, who was working on the bill last week. "It was just a safeguard to make them feel more comfortable with

Some $20 million in cotton production is lost to boll weevils annually, says Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, a Republican who last year criticized Richards veto. The state produces five million bales valued at $1.5 billion, the most of any state.

To repay an estimated $6 million to Amerada Hess Corp., eight tax entities will raise taxes about 50 percent for the county's 14,100 residents, who for years have had one of Texas' lowest tax burdens thanks to production from the Seminole field.

Don't forget to send economic census forms in

Linda Roger

The U.S. Bureau of the Census has sent out 31/2 million of the 1992 Economic Census forms which are due by Feb. 15. Firms that have not returned the Census form are violating

The Census Bureau is reminding businesses that, even after the Feb. 15 due date is past, the questionnaires still must be completed and returned.

Businesses are asked to report basic operating statistics for each location, the number of employees, annual payroll, and the value of goods produced and services provided during the year.

All responses are confidential. Individual responses may only be seen by sworn Census Bureau employees.

This census is conducted every five years. Together with the 1992 Census of Agricultural and the 1992 Census of Governments, 98 percent of all economic activity in the country will be covered.

This Census is important. Federal agencies use the census as the basis for many measures of economic activity such as monthly retail sales and Gross Domestic Product.

State and local agencies rely on the data for economic development and regional planning.

Trade associations and business publications find key business facts for their readers, and project future trends. Businesses get vital information for marketing and planning. If you have received the 1992 Economic Census questionnaire complete it and mail before February 15. Linda Roger is the executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. Her column appears each Sunday.

Foley's and May Department stores are consolidating

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

HOUSTON - Foley's will be adding 12 more stores to its system under a consolidation plan by the May Department Stores Co.

May announced Thursday that it would merge its May D&F stores into the Houston-based Foley's group.

The St. Louis-based company said the consolidated division will include 49 stores and be under the Foley's name by May 2.

Sticking to service

years; Lisa Gamble, five years; George Yeilding,

Most people are aware of the fact that extension work is associated with the various areas of agriculture in our community but another part of our work emphases leadership development. We do a lot of this in working with our various extension program areas committees and our program council in planning and implementing ongoing extension educational programs in our county. Youth work, primarily associated with the 4H Club program, is also highly publicized. But we work with other groups, as well, in striving to achieve progress towards meeting the goals set forth in our county's Long Range Extension Plan, a handbook identifying critical issues in our community that was developed by a large group of community leaders three years ago. This handbook serves as a guide in directing our program emphasis.

Improving the Pride and Imagesof our community was one of these issues that was identified as a major concern. One of the approaches to this problem was the need for development of youth programs addressed to this issue. A special program that we have become especially proud of has been the Junior Leadership Big Spring Program we have helped develop through cooperation with the local Chamber of Commerce. This program targets high school juniors in the area schools and exposes them to the various areas of city and county government, community leaders in business and industry, education health and government services. These youngsters visit and participate in programs hosted by the above mentioned groups for a ten week period. Through this we feel we have helped enhance the pride and image of our community in these developing young leaders. Most of the graduates of this program in recent years have indicated in their evaluations of this program that they had been totally unaware of the programs and opportunities offered by our community prior to exposure through this Junior Leadership Big Spring program.

Leadership's an important goal

The 1993 Class of junior leaders met this past week for their orientation program with Michael Kelsey and myself, along with some 1992 graduates of the program, who explained what the new class likely would experience in 1993 and the obligations and responsibilities expected from them to the program. Kelsey, our newly appointed extension agent, who has primarily youth work responsibilities in his duties, comes to us with a great deal of experience in leadership activities, and we are eagerly looking forward to his input in our 1993 program.

Another form of leadership development offered through the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is in its contest activities associated with method demonstrations, public speaking and livestock and horse judging contests and the recently developed Consumer Decision Making Contest. People unfamiliar with the judging confests might have a hard time determining just what type of leadership is developed by judging pigs and cows. There is a great deal more involved in this than just correctly placing a group of animals, important as that may be. Youngsters must justify their placing by presenting a set of oral reasons beore judges at these contests. They learn, in addition to values assessed to various species of livestock, decision making practices based on sound reasons and developing their skills in teamwork and speaking before others.

Michael is putting together the spring livestock judging program now and has already had a couple of practice sessions with interested youngsters. If your youngster is not already involved in this program but would like to be included, we invite you to please contact Michael or our office at either 264-2236 or 264-2238 for more information. Better yet, come by for a personal visit at our location in the Howard County Courthouse in the East wing of its first floor. With stock show activities dominating so much of our time this season of the year a call to the office for a scheduled appointment would be appreciated as both will be out of town at these events throughout the next several weeks.

SPECIAL TO THE HERALD

The Texas Homestead Law, which has protected farms, ranches and homes from seizure for more than 150 years, has been essential to protecting property owners in both good times and bad.

Delegates to the 89th annual convention of the Texas Farmers Union declared they would fight any new efforts by lenders and financial institutions to change the existing law which has worked ever since the days of the Republic of Texas.

This is one time when the old saying 'if it ain't broke, don't fix it' really applies," stated TFU President Joe Rankin. "The real estate bust of the 80s proved that even though thousands of people lost money and property, they were able to save their homesteads thanks to this

The TFU convention expressed concern about new attempts on behalf of lenders in the current session of the Texas Legislature to collateral-ize consumer and business loans against their customer's homestead equity. Under current Texas homestead law, equity loans are limited to first mortgages, home improvements and tax payments.

In addition, other attempts may be made to pressure elderly and retired homeowners to borrow money against their equity.

"Given the problems we have seen in other states, we don't believe it makes any sense for lenders to have this option of obtaining collateral against Texas homesteads," Rankin

"At a time when banks are showing record profits, we believe the banking industry should concentrate on supporting economic recovery in Texas by providing financing for family farms, ranches, businesses and commerce. There is certainly no evidence that we have been shown that shows that raiding the home and farm equity loans will stimulate. any type of economic activity," said Rankin

CHECK YOUR WITHHOLDING

If the IRS asked you for an interest-free loan, you'd probably turn them down. But if you typically get a big tax refund, you've made that interest-free loan after all.

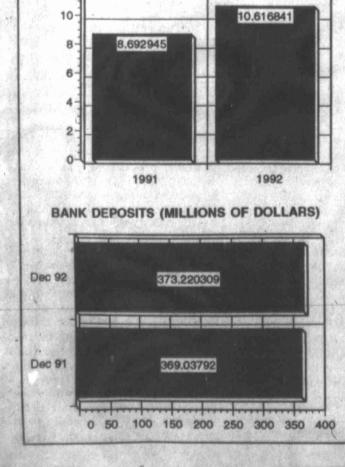

A large tax refund isn't a sign of good planning. It means you've overpaid the IRS, because too much was withheld from your paycheck. Psychologically, you may like the idea of a big tax refund. But financially, it pays to keep your refunds as small as possible. Every dollar that you don't lend to the IRS is a dollar more for you to invest.

To fine-tune your 1993 withholding, ask your employer for a copy of IRS Form W-4. This form will help you calculate the proper number of withholding allowances. If you're entitled to more allowances than you're currently claiming, consider filing a new W-4. By claiming additional allowances, you'll have less withheld from each paycheck.

If you claim more than ten withholding allowances, your employer is required to submit your W-4 to the IRS, and the IRS may ask you for supporting information. If you have carefully completed the W-4, this isn't anything to worry about. For some taxpayers, completing the W-4 can be difficult. If you need help, get a copy of IRS Publication 919, or give us a call.

What if you have the oppc site problem, and you always owe money at tax time? In that case, you could be penalized for underpayment of estimated tax. To avoid an underpayment penalty, make sure you pay at least 90% of the current year's tax liability through withholding or estimated taxes. Most taxpayers can also avoid an underpayment penalty if they pay at least 100% of their prior year's tax liability.
