Council sets enterprise zone hearing

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

An enterprise and reinvestment zone to induce economic development in "distressed" areas may soon be established on the north and west sides of Big Spring, possibly by next month.

"We've been thinking about it for several years and we decided to go for it," said City Manager Lanny Lambert.

A public hearing is scheduled for 5:30 p.m. Tuesday in building 1106 at the McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark. The Big Spring City Council is scheduled to vote on a proposed ordinance establishing the zone after the hearing.

An application seeking state approval of the zone must also be submitted to the Texas Department of Commerce.

"That'll probably take 30 days from submission," Lambert said of state approval. "We'll probably submit next Wednesday after the council approves it."

Qualifying businesses — only four per year are allowed — can get state sales tax and franchise tax refunds of up to $1.25 million for five years, if at least 25 percent of employees hired and maintained are residents in the enterprise zone. Businesses must be approved by the city and department of commerce.

Lambert said the city may also reduce building permit fees. Texas Utilities Electric can waive up to 5 percent on electric bills.

Neighborhoods and areas being considered for the zone include the Big Spring McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark, the Capehart Addition on old Webb Air Force Base, areas north of 11th Place west of Gregg Street and areas north of Second Street east of Gregg.

Communities in an 110-mile radius that have enterprise zones include Odessa, Midland, Abilene, Brownfield and Levelland.

Midland has created 152 jobs with three projects since 1989. During the same span, Abilene has seen 237 created jobs by two projects.

One project in Odessa has resulted in 286 jobs. Brownfield and Levelland have not as yet created any jobs through enterprise zone projects.

For each permanent job — an employee who works at least 50 percent of time for the qualifying business — businesses can receive a $2,000 state sales tax refund, up to a maximum of $250,000 per year for five years. The tax refunds apply to building materials, machinery and equipment.

Franchise tax reductions will equal either half of increased apportioned taxable capital or 5 percent of apportioned earned surplus income.

Also available are one-time sales tax refunds of up to $5,000 for at least 10 retained jobs after three years and a franchise tax refund up to $5,000 for at least 10 created jobs. Each are limited to three businesses per year in the zone.

CRMWD project passes halfway point in pipeline

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Construction crews on the Lake O. H. Ivie pipeline project have passed the halfway point between the reservoir and San Angelo.

The contractor, John D. Stephens Co., has pushed past Farm-to-Market Road 381 and is 26 miles along its 48.8-mile journey to the San Angelo terminal, according to Joe Pickle, information specialist with the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Stephens' gigantic ditching machine will soon be joined by a second, more advanced model, if all goes as planned. This should ensure the target completion date of July 1 for the San Angelo leg of the pipeline project.

At a recent meeting of the CRMWD board of directors, plans were made to refinance bonds for the reservoir-pipeline project. Because of lower interest rates available, CRMWD could save more than $11 million by the time the bonds are retired in 2021. These bonds total $148 million.

Directors also approved building a $150,000 control center across E. 24th Street from CRMWD headquarters. This center will provide electronic control and monitoring of CRMWD pipeline equipment.

CRMWD will make a $15,000 contribution to a coalition seeking to reform the Endangered Species Act, removing some restrictive portions of the animal-protection legislation.

The district received state approval to continue its weather

Coahoma brush fire damages two homes

HERALD STAFF REPORT

COAHOMA — What began as a burning pile of rubbish ignited two house fires that kept county and city firefighters busy for 1½ hours Tuesday.

According to County Fire Chief C. Roy Wright, the blaze started about 1 p.m. in the 400 block of South Avenue in Coahoma.

Wright said a homeowner was burning leaves, branches and other yard waste, when the fire spread to a line of high grass along his chain-link fence.

The fire spread to an adjacent wooden fence, setting it ablaze.

Flames quickly spread to a detached bedroom at one home and another nearby residence.

County and city firefighters were joined by garden-hose-welding neighbors as flames threatened to engulf the dwellings. In all, damages estimated between $12,000 and $15,000 were sustained before firefighters brought the flames under control.

Wright noted that most of the damage was limited to the exterior of the homes.

Trustees to hear physicians' concerns

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Physicians from neighboring cities will meet with Big Spring Independent School District trustees Thursday to discuss concerns about their participation in the district's health care plan.

BSISD's partially self-funded health insurance plan, accepted in November, outlined a preferred physician list of local doctors.

Using the list of local physicians shaves five percent from rates and deviating from the list to out-of-town doctors tacks on a 10 percent penalty.

BSISD health insurance premiums skyrocketed in November when the board tentatively accepted the plan. Employee premiums climbed between 37 and 46 percent on options for families and 70 to 73 percent on options for single employees.

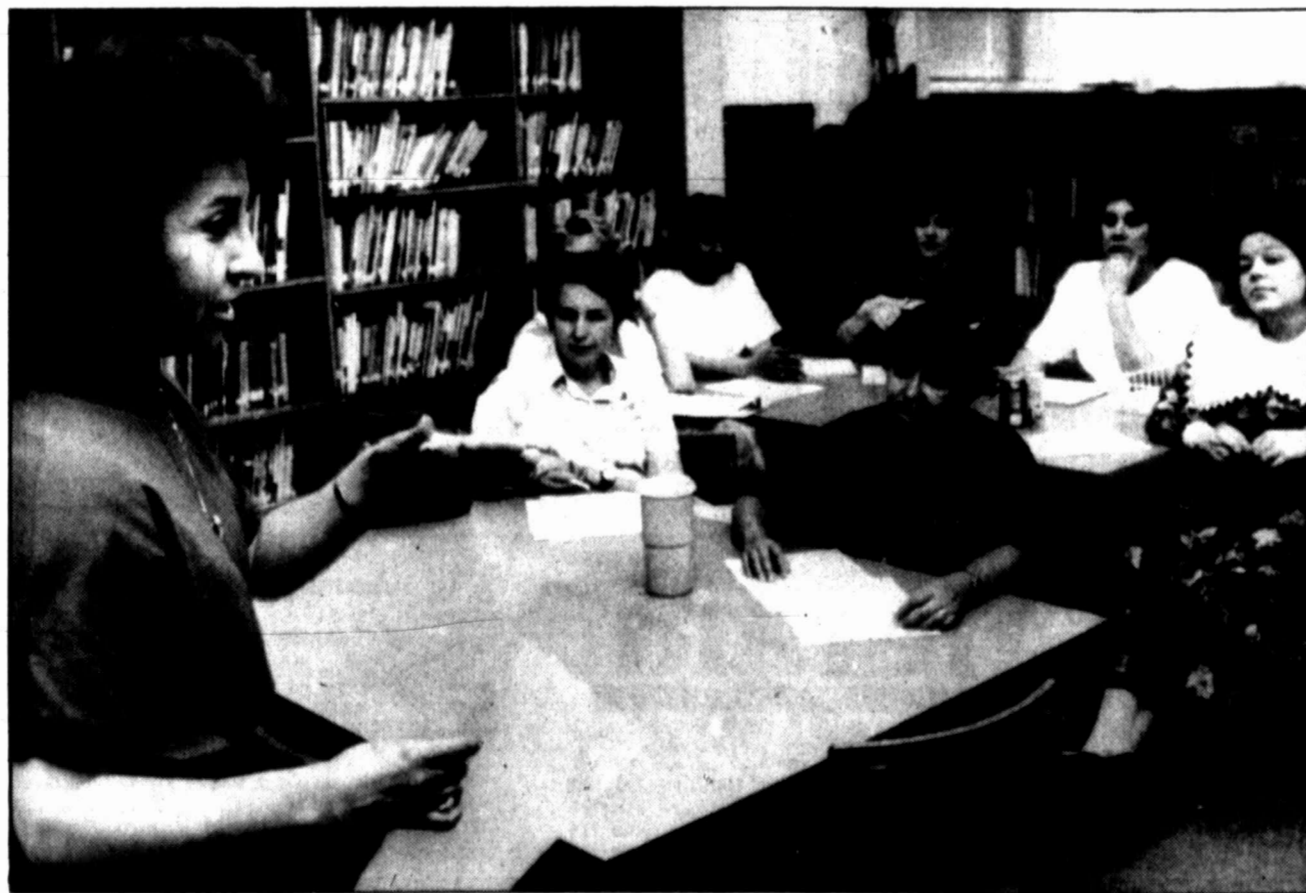

"They are concerned about the way the self-funded plan is set up," said Superintendent Bill McQueary. "The technique (excluding out-of-town physicians) was done to keep the rates as low as possible."

McQueary said the unpopular high-cost plan is scheduled to be replaced with a new plan in two to three months.

In other business, the board is expected to:

- Meet in closed session to consider teacher contract recommendations.
- Elect a new director for the Region XVIII Educational Service Center.
- Approve a waiver request for an additional in-service (educator training) day for the 1993-94 school year. The in-service day will be used to educate teachers on utilizing technology as teaching

Last of student campers rescued

Power outages, closed schools storm leftovers

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

The last of a group of high school campers were rescued from the snowy Appalachian wilderness, but the storm that swept the East Coast over the weekend — causing more than 200 deaths — wasn't finished causing trouble.

Storm remnants today included impassable roads, closed schools, mountains of snow on city streets and financial worries. Thousands still had no electrical service.

The death toll from Cuba to Canada reached 219, and 48 people were missing at sea off Florida and Nova Scotia.

The National Weather Service warned Tuesday that much of the East, especially the Ohio Valley and New England, is likely to face springtime flooding because of the storm.

A group of Michigan students on a survival-training trip board buses at the Air National Guard base in Knoxville, Tenn., Tuesday to be driven to a Red Cross shelter. The students were taken by helicopter out of the Smoky Mountains after last weekend's snowstorm forced officials to search for those who hadn't already come out on their own.

The last 24 campers from the Cranbrook Kingswood Upper School outside Detroit were found Tuesday near Fontana Lake in North Carolina, said Col. Larry Shelton of the Tennessee Air National Guard.

"When we heard the helicopters, we knew we were OK," said student co-leader Meghan Nealis, 18.

The 24 were among a group of 117 who set out more than a week ago for an expedition in the Smokies. Most were teen-agers who had undergone wilderness survival training. Some emerged from the woods on their own Sunday and others were rescued Monday.

One teacher and one student remained hospitalized today with frostbite after the ordeal that began with the blizzard that blew through on Friday.

Their boots froze. Their trails disappeared under fallen trees and waist-deep snow. They doubled up in sleeping bags to stay warm.

"There was never any time to panic. There was never any time for fear because we knew what we had to do and we did it," said Shane Lavery, 16.

The group was to take chartered buses back to Michigan, leaving sometime this morning, said Ray Carson, spokesman for the exclusive private school. They were expected to get back to the school this afternoon.

Other survivors of the storm still were struggling today to get their lives back to normal.

Two Florida men who recently moved to Liberty, N.C., near the Tennessee line, spent the past few days taking water and wood to mountain residents trapped in their homes by waist-high snow drifts and fallen trees.

Among other efforts, Greg Kimble and Bernie Wooley rescued an elderly woman who had no heat.

"We tried to take the Jeep, but we couldn't make it, so we drug her down to the house on a sled," Wooley said of the quarter-mile ride. "We got her warmed up again."

Tennessee Gov. Ned McWherter surveyed damage in the eastern part of his state on Tuesday.

"It's worse than I thought it would be," McWherter said. "It looks more like a hurricane came through here than a snow storm."

GM recalling pickups; 20,000 police vehicles

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. recalled 1.8 million 1988-93 full-size trucks to fix a problem that could result in an engine compartment fire.

The recall announced Tuesday involves about half of all 1988-93 Chevrolet and GMC full-size pickup trucks and 1992 Suburban, Blazer and Yukon models equipped with 5-liter, 5.7-liter and 7.4-liter engines coupled with 4L60, 4L60-E and 3L80 automatic transmissions.

The vehicles could have a condition in which transmission fluid is vented and may come in contact with the catalytic converter, especially when the trucks are used to carry heavy loads at high speeds or to carry heavy loads off road.

Dealers will install a longer vent hose to reroute the vented fluid from any heat source.

GM said it learned about the problem from field reports of about 400 fires which involved an undetermined number of minor injuries. The condition has not resulted in any deaths.

Separately, GM recalled about 20,000 1991-92 Chevrolet police cars and special service wagons that carry police dogs used in areas where salt is used to clear snow-covered or icy roads.

A disabled engine or fire could result from an electrical groundout condition caused by corrosion between the 12-volt junction block and the metal inner fender skirt.

NY gays protest exclusion from St. Patrick's parade

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Gays and lesbians promised a loud throng of protesters at today's St. Patrick's Day parade, which they have fought for three years to join.

The latest development in the ongoing dispute over inclusion of homosexuals came late Tuesday when a judge said protesters could not march anywhere on the Fifth Avenue route before the traditional parade.

Roman Catholic opposition has kept gays from marching under their own banner in the parade.

The Ancient Order of Hibernians, the parade sponsor, lost control over the parade, then regained it in recent months as legal and political battles flared over allowing homosexual participation.

The Irish Lesbian and Gay Organization asked members and supporters to gather for unspecified protest activities two hours before the parade start, spokeswoman Anne Maguire said.

"I think that you can guarantee a lively, angry, but proud group of Irish, lesbian and gay New Yorkers," said City Councilman Tom Duane, who is homosexual.

Nearly 4,500 police officers were assigned to the parade, about 700 to 800 more than normal, officials said.

NY Post's editor returns as staff rips new publisher

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK — Pete Hamill received a hero's welcome, New York style — a catered, Kosher lunchtime feast — as he returned to his editor's office at the New York Post, in another defiant move by staff against the newspaper's new owner.

The 57-year-old Hamill, fired last Friday by the tabloid's new owner, Abe J. Hirschfeld, said he felt so honored that allies had kept his name on the masthead as editor-in-chief that he could not stay away.

"I'm taking the position that I have a contract with the New York Post, and we're going to put out the New York Post," he said Tuesday as dozens of staffers in the crisis-battered newsroom greeted his arrival with the chant, "Pete! Pete! Pete!"

As for Hirschfeld, Hamill said, "I think he's nuts."

Corned beef, potato salad and champagne flavored the celebration before Post staffers turned to the task of getting out today's paper.

Hamill's dismissal last Friday — minutes after a bankruptcy judge took the Post away from would-be rescuer Steven Hoffenberg and awarded it to former ally Hirschfeld — had plunged the 192-year-old daily, the nation's oldest, into yet another battle to survive.

In two turbulent days, Hirschfeld fired 70 workers, reinstated 50 of them — all reporters and editors — and announced a partnership with Wilbert Tatum, owner of the Amsterdam News, a black-oriented weekly with a reputation for inflammatory coverage.

After missing Monday's edition, the Post staff produced a Tuesday paper dominated by 16 pages of bitter attacks on both men. "Who is this nut who's holding the Post hostage?" was the headline on one story about Hirschfeld's eccentric behavior.

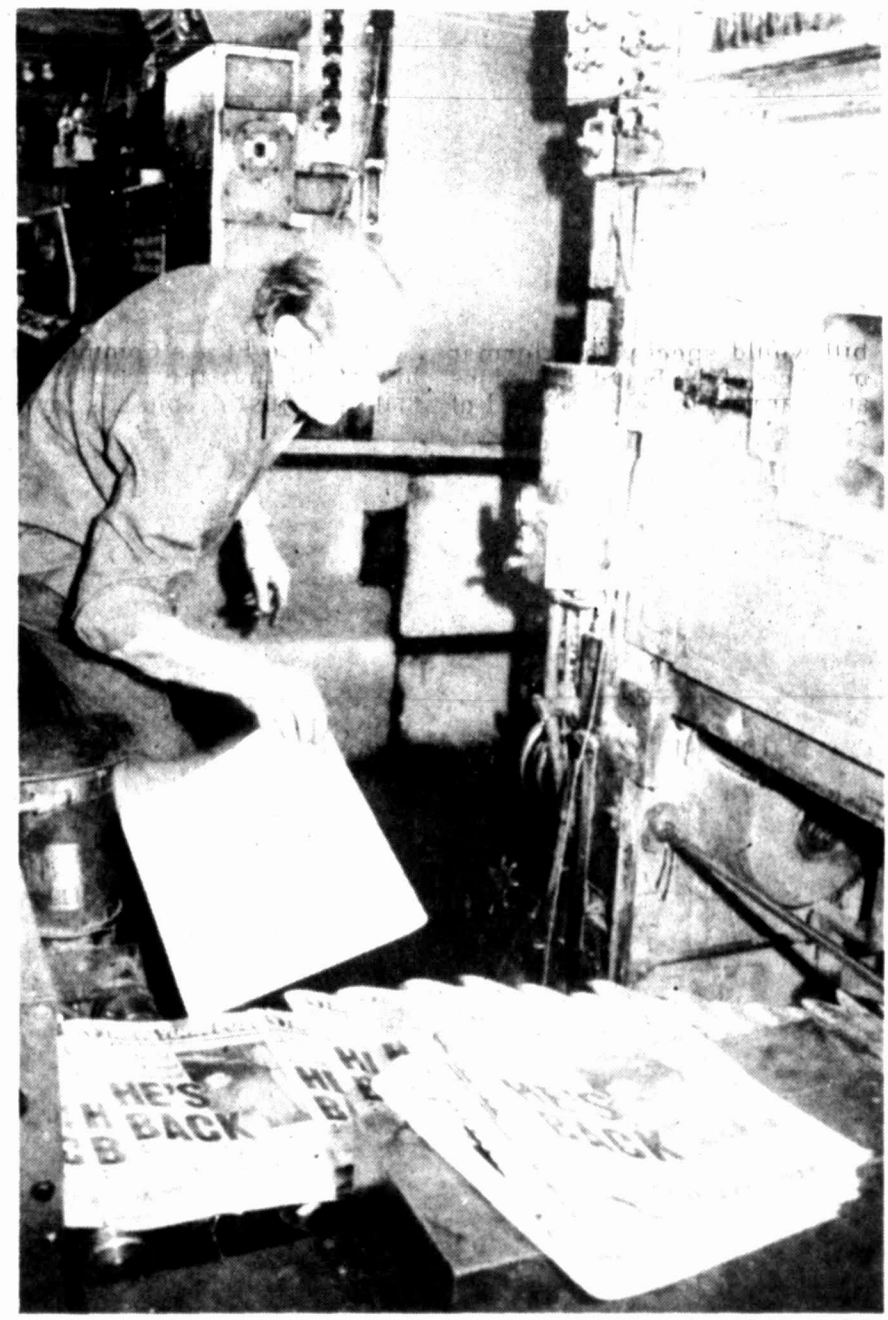

Faxes and phone calls from around the United States and abroad flooded the Post after it printed Hirschfeld's office phone number in what it called an "urgent appeal for help" to save the paper.

"Since yesterday I must have taken 2,000 calls," said reporter Bruce Cotler. "The faxes are spilling out on the floor." He said 98 percent of them backed the Post staff against Hirschfeld.

Hirschfeld complained that his phones were paralyzed by calls responding to the appeal, but insisted he wasn't dismayed by the attacks in the paper.

"I think it's great, I think it's excellent," he said. "All I know is that people were standing in line to buy the Post."

The newsroom celebration was darkened by nagging worries over money.

New York Post pressroom superintendent Victor Occipinti checks Wednesday morning's edition as it comes off the presses Tuesday night in New York. In two days of turmoil, Post owner Abe J. Hirschfeld fired 70 Post workers, then reinstated 50 of them. After missing Monday's edition, the staff turned out a Tuesday paper that sharply attacked Hirschfeld and his eccentric behavior.

Explosion rips Calcutta, killing 50

Terror spreading, despite absence of link to Bombay

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

CALCUTTA, India — A huge bomb blast rocked central Calcutta early today, killing about 50 people and spreading the terror that began with a series of explosions in Bombay last week.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, nor any evidence that the blast was linked to the Bombay explosions that killed more than 300 people and wounded 1,100.

Police said a bomb toppled two timeworn buildings housing furniture shops and storerooms where dozens of day laborers slept.

Outside, homeless rickshaw pullers and other poor sidewalk dwellers were buried under bricks and debris.

Nearby buildings were badly damaged, and the midnight explosion shook the city's police headquarters, 300 yards away.

Press Trust of India said 50 people were killed and about 100 wounded, and casualties were still being dug out.

Police detailed two owners of the buildings for interrogation, Press Trust said.

"The extent of the damage cannot be caused by anything but a very powerful bomb," Deputy Police Commissioner Goutam Chakrabarty told Press Trust.

A police spokesman said army demolitions experts and police forensics specialists were just beginning to search for clues about the type and manner of the detonation.

An 18-year-old survivor said he had just finished working close to midnight when the explosion went off.

"We were nine people in the room. I had just started my rice,

Firefighters and local residents aid in the recovery of bodies from the collapsed buildings in central Calcutta Wednesday. A huge bomb blast rocked the congested area earlier in the day, killing 50 people and injuring about 100 others.

and as I put the first bite into my mouth there was a big bang," said Abdul Hussein, speaking from his hospital bed.

"It was like a massive earthquake. I was buried under bricks. I screamed and screamed. I don't know how long I screamed. Then I lost consciousness. I woke up and screamed again, and that time the screaming brought help," said Hussein.

"My father who was sitting beside me is dead," he said.

Calcutta, with 10 million people, is India's second largest city. Its formerly elegant Victorian buildings, now corroded with neglect, once housed the administration of Britain's colonial empire in the Indian subcontinent.

Today's blast was bound to heighten tension in a nation still frightened and perplexed by the coordinated explosion of 13 bombs within two hours in Bombay on Friday.

The Director General of Police of Maharashtra, of which Bombay is the capital, said initial investigations did not suggest a link between the explosions there and in Calcutta.

"But we certainly have to find out if there is a similarity between what happened here and there," S. Ramamurthi told The Associated Press.

Bombay, 1,000 miles to the west, is India's financial capital. Friday's explosions gutted the lower floors of the Bombay Stock Exchange, blasted out the street-level offices of the Air India building, demolished a packed public bus and damaged three hotels.

A militant Sikh group claimed responsibility for the Bombay assault, but the police investigation appeared to focus on Indian criminals with connections to the Middle East.

Though proof is lacking, many Indians believed the bombings were related to the Hindu-Muslim riots that swept the nation in December, then reignited in Bombay in January. Nearly 2,000 people were killed.

If Muslims are blamed, more deadly religious riots like the ones that claimed 800 lives in the city in January are sure to break out, many Bombay residents believe.

Others are determined not to succumb to fear.

"We must show bravery to the rest of the world, and that's what we're doing," said banker Vasudev Luthria. He was interviewed Tuesday in the building where the stock market was relocated after a bomb hit the main trading center.

Sarajevo scene of heavy fighting, convoys stymied

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Serbs and Bosnian government forces exchanged heavy artillery, tank and mortar fire today near Sarajevo's airport, U.N. officials said.

In eastern Bosnia, aid convoys were still being prevented from reaching stranded Muslims in Srebrenica and other towns. The U.N. military commander for Bosnia is in Srebrenica and has declared he will stay until Serbs allow the convoy through.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported in Belgrade that Bosnian government forces managed to cut a vital road linking the Bosnian Serb headquarters of Pale, east of Sarajevo, with Serb-dominated Yugoslavia. The road crosses the border near where the convoys were halted by Serb forces.

U.N. spokesman Maj. Pepe Gallegos said U.N. observers counted about 500 rounds of fire since early morning around the Butmir suburb, which borders the Sarajevo airport.

"This isn't just shelling, this is a fight," he said.

Butmir is a key government position sandwiched by Serb positions. Sarajevans have used Butmir as a staging point for nightly crossings in and out of the besieged capital.

U.N. relief flights continued into Sarajevo as the fighting went on adjacent to the airport. In a series of pushes in recent weeks, Serb forces have captured chunks of other western Sarajevo suburbs.

The fighting around Butmir came a day after a sharp increase in sniping and shelling around Sarajevo. At least one person was killed and 30 were wounded in Sarajevo on Tuesday.

Also Tuesday, the United Nations confirmed the first bombing of eastern Bosnia in violation of a "no fly zone."

The United Nations would probably again consider military enforcement of the zone, David Owen, chief EC mediator on the conflict, said late Tuesday.

U.N. forces gearing up for attack

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

MOGADISHU, Somalia — U.S.-led forces in Somalia are gearing up for a military strike against fighters that attacked the southern port of Kismayu and broke a cease-fire, U.S. military officials said today.

One of the country's main warlords pulled out of peace talks because of the renewed violence.

The clash occurred Tuesday when about 300 supporters of Mohamed Said Hirsi, known as Gen. Morgan, attacked 40 to 50 backers of Col. Omar Jess, forcing them from Kismayu.

The rivals fought with guns, grenades, rocks and sticks. At least 49 people were injured and there were likely to be some dead, according to the international relief agency Medecins Sans Frontieres, which has doctors in Kismayu.

The U.S.-led coalition arrived in December to safeguard aid deliveries in Somalia, which has been wracked by famine and a civil war that toppled Siad Barre in January 1991. More than 350,000 people died last year.

The American forces have led the operation but have handed over most areas to other troops ahead of turning over the entire operation to the United Nations in May. About 150 to 200 U.S. soldiers remain in Kismayu, but Belgian troops have been in control of the district since March 5.

Sure as a shamrock, it's St. Patrick's Day

Heritage holds stories of hope, suffering

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

The O'Briens celebrated Saint Patrick's Day for more than 65 years by getting together with their large family, passing out shamrocks to their children and wearing green to show Irish pride, recalls 74-year-old Lucille O'Brien of Sand Springs.

O'Brien, born in Ellis County in central Texas, was raised in Big Spring and moved to Sand Springs in 1976.

She remembers Saint Patrick's Day celebrations as one of the biggest family reunions of the year, bringing together four sons, two daughters, about 10 grandchildren and about five great grandchildren, until 10 years ago.

Since O'Brien's husband, Roy, passed away in 1985, the extent of her Saint Patrick's Day recognition is shown in her "wearing of the green" and remembrance of stories her father's mother would tell.

Until she was 89 years old, O'Brien's grandmother would de-

'When I was small, I remember her telling us about the mistreatment of Irish (settlers) when they started arriving in the U.S. They didn't have good living conditions or good pay; they were treated like peons.'

Lucille O'Brien, Sand Springs, on the stories of her grandmother scribe the plight and success of people of Irish descent.

"When I was small, I remember her telling us about the mistreatment of Irish (settlers) when they started arriving in the U.S.," she said. "They didn't have good living conditions or good pay; they were treated like peons."

Due to harsh economic conditions in the late 1800s, thousands of Irish immigrated to New England, eventually settling throughout the U.S., including Texas.

Working alongside Chinese and African-Americans, the Irish were a significant link in building the railroad. The O'Briens migrated to Georgia and then central Texas, where they started building their economic status as farmers and ranchers.

O'Brien said Saint Patrick's Day events in her family included singing and acknowledging pride in one's heritage.

Their reasons for wearing green and donning shamrocks has become Americanized somewhat, because unlike their significance in Ireland, the color and clovers symbolize pride and luck.

Historians say originally, green symbolized fruitful land in Ireland and the shamrock signified the religious trinity.

Either way, the O'Briens looked forward to their Saint Patrick's Day recognition for many years.

O'Brien said, "To be Irish means, you can be proud because we've come a long way."

Anyone can be Irish on St. Patrick's Day — or at least honor the Irish with wearin' o' the green. Did you forget? For a quick history lesson on how the holiday developed in honor of a priest in Ireland, plus a handy Irish blessing to impress your friends, see page 2B.

U.S., Irish celebrations differ

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Saint Patrick's Day, celebrated March 17 each year, commemorates the feast of Saint Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland.

Saint Patrick was a missionary to Ireland about 400 A.D., who is credited with converting many Irish to Christianity.

St. Patrick's Day is a national holiday in Ireland and recognized symbolically in the United States.

In Ireland, St. Patrick's Day is primarily a religious holiday. People honor the saint by attending special religious services, enjoying family and community gatherings as well as wearing shamrocks.

In the U.S., however, it has become a day marked by parades and parties.

Bellydancers

Residents of Mountain View Lodge and their families were entertained Saturday by dancers from the Middle Eastern Dance Organization of Midland. "They had a great time," said Roy Hughes, activity coordinator. He said activities are aimed at getting the families more involved with residents of the care center.

Cabbage dishes: Create a surprising variety of flavors

The Latin name for cabbage is Brassica. The word cabbage is an Anglicized version of the colloquial French word caboché, meaning "head."

The origin of cabbage has been argued by scholars for centuries. Leafy wild cabbage was eaten at least 4,000 years ago on the coasts of Europe and northern Africa and in China. The Celts brought it into northern Europe. Through the centuries Great Britain considered it as the national flower of England.

Cabbage was first planted in North America in 1541-42 when Jacques Cartier planted it in Canada on his third voyage. It is thought that American Colonists planted it to feed their stock.

There are a number of legends about cabbage: Babies were found in the cabbage patch, and in Scotland young women guessed at the figure and size of their husbands by drawing cabbages, blindfolded on Halloween. To dream of cabbage meant sickness of loved ones and loss of money.

Raw cabbage is a good source of Vitamin C and some Vitamin A. The cooking process does, however, reduce some of the nutritive values as it does in most vegetables.

It is important not to overcook cabbage. Also, cooking cabbage with the least amount of water possible preserves vitamins and helps to maintain flavor. There are 24 calories in 3/2 ounces of raw cabbage and 20 calories in the same amount of cooked cabbage.

It can be a real challenge to prepare cabbage in new and different ways. The following are a few I believe you will enjoy.

SWEET AND SOUR MEATBALLS WITH RED CABBAGE

- 1 medium onion, minced
- 1 clove garlic, minced, optional
- 1 tsp. margarine
- 1/2 cup cider vinegar
- 1 tsp. caraway seeds
- 3 whole cloves
- 1 bay leaf
- 1 pound ground beef
- 1 egg
- 1/4 cup fine dry bread crumbs
- 1/4 cup chopped raisins
- 1/4 tsp. nutmeg
- 1 tsp. salt
- 1/4 tsp. pepper
- 4 cups chopped red cabbage
- 2 tsp. brown sugar

Sue Haugh

1 tart apple, peeled and diced

In large saucepan or dutch oven, cook onion and garlic in margarine about 5 minutes. Add next four ingredients, stir, cover and simmer 5 minutes. Mix ground beef, egg, bread crumbs, raisins, nutmeg, salt and pepper and shape into about 16 small meatballs. Add meatballs to onion and spice mixture. Roll meatballs gently, so they will start cooking on outside (about 8 minutes). Remove meatballs. Mix cabbage with brown sugar and apple. Add a little salt and pepper. Place cabbage mixture in bottom of pan. Add meatballs. Cover and simmer 45 minutes. To serve, place meatballs on serving dish and surround with cabbage. Serves 4.

ANGIE'S COLE SLAW

1 head cabbage, shredded fairly thin

- 1 medium onion, chopped
- 3/4 cup sugar
- 3/4 cup vinegar
- 2 tsp. celery seed
- 1 tsp. dry mustard
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 3/4 cup canola oil

Use a large container with tight fitting lid for this recipe. Place cabbage and onion in container and mix well. Sprinkle sugar over mixture. DO NOT STIR. In saucepan mix vinegar, celery seed, mustard and salt. Bring to boil. Remove from heat and add 3/4 cup canola oil. Stir. Pour liquid mixture over cabbage and onion mixture, again DO NOT STIR. Cover tightly. Refrigerate 24 hours. Stir before serving. Keeps several days in refrigerator. This slaw has a sweet and sour flavor.

PINEAPPLE COLESLAW

- 1 medium head cabbage, shredded thinly
- 1 (8 oz.) can crushed pineapple, drained
- 1/2 package (10 1/2 oz.) miniature marshmallows
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 1/4 cups salad dressing

Place cabbage, pineapple, marshmallows, salt and sugar in large mixing bowl. Blend thoroughly. Gradually add salad dressing, mixing well after each addition. Refrigerate 2 to 3 hours to blend flavors. A sweet version of coleslaw.

ORIENTAL SAUTEED CABBAGE

- 1/2 cup canola oil
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 1 large clove garlic, finely chopped
- 4 cups cabbage, thinly shredded
- 3 tbsp. soy sauce
- 1/4 tsp. crushed red pepper flakes

Salt to taste

Heat oil in wok or medium size skillet until very hot. Saute onion and garlic in oil until tender. Stir in cabbage, saute, stirring constantly, until cabbage is crisp-tender, about 4-5 minutes. Stir in soy sauce and red pepper. Season to taste with salt. Makes 4 servings. This makes a good side dish.

Facts are name of game for TV

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

LOS ANGELES — Ambulance-chasing, if not drama, may be raised to new heights by television's increasingly frenzied scramble to turn headlines into movie fodder.

Networks are lunging for quickie films spun from New York's World Trade Center bombing and the deadly standoff in Waco, Texas, and various and sundry other human tragedies and triumphs.

READ about it in the press. SEE it on TV news. MARVEL at the tabloid gossip. And then, perhaps in mere months, GO BEHIND THE HEADLINES with an "inspired by" TV movie — or two, or three (if Amy Fisher is involved).

Producers jockey to buy rights. Facts are sliced and diced into a script, which may have a tenuous link to reality. Production is hurried so a network can emerge first with the melodrama promising the REAL STORY.

Even as Branch Davidian sect leader David Koresh kept Army tanks at bay in Waco, NBC announced a dramatization to air as part of its "In the Line of Duty" movie series about slain officers. Four lawmen died in the siege.

An NBC film on the Feb. 26 Trade Center bombing also was announced and could be broadcast as early as May — one of four important "sweeps" periods used by local stations to set ad rates.

Gary Coker, Koresh's former attorney in Waco, said he's received eight or nine offers for as much as $100,000 for rights.

"TV movies, miniseries and (theatrical) movies. This is pretty amazing since the guy might be dead," Coker told the Daily News of Los Angeles.

The NBC "Line of Duty" segment, at this point, is based solely on public records, said Ken Kaufman of Patchett Kaufman Entertainment, the project's producer. No rights have been purchased.

About 20 people, including firefighters and teachers, have sold their stories to Wilshire Court Productions, which is doing the trade center film for NBC.

Four skiers rescued last month after three days in the Colorado wilderness have signed with a talent agency to turn their ordeal into a movie, while a fifth skier in the party with a conflicting story to tell is being pursued by a rival agency.

"Siege at County Hospital" about the Feb. 8 shooting of three Los Angeles doctors in the nation's busiest emergency room is already in production for NBC.

Speed is imperative, Kaufman said. "It's a funny world out there... Undoubtedly, in the present climate, other people would jump in if our project were delayed," he said.

Haste will not undermine quality, he insisted. Others say there's little time to focus on perspective or effectively sift through the often-conflicting viewpoints that sources may offer.

'Barbarians': No clear heroes

By LUAINE LEE Thomson News Service

High finance is not exactly the currency of the little box. It's complicated and alien with big sounding words and many-digit numbers. But author Larry Gelbart, who wrote "MASH," has found a bull market with his adaptation of "Barbarians at the Gate" coming to HBO on March 20.

Starring James Garner and Jonathan Pryce, as real-life money men F. Ross Johnson and Henry Kravis, the show manages to elucidate the manipulations of Wall Street with a wicked and funny light.

"It's easy to understand that Fagin is sending out these little boys to pick pockets," says Gelbart, who admits he can barely balance his check book. "But it's very hard to talk about leveraged buyouts and junk bonds and mergers and bankers. It's just impossible."

But if Fagin was a villain, there are no clear-cut antichrists here, says Gelbart, though his sentiments are fairly obvious.

"Because 'MASH' was about grace under pressure, these people do not have that kind of grace. Taking my cue from the book (by Bryan Burroughs and John Helyar), we see men in $2,000 Armani suits, surrounded by millions of dollars worth of art, talking like men from "Wiseguys" or "Goodfellas."
