SWCID Fest promises 'hot time'

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

SWCIDFest 1993's Lone Star Fiesta is expected to draw alumni and other visitors to the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf and Howard College for three days of activity.

This year's "Tex-Mex" theme promises a "hot time" for those at SWCIDFest, according to SWCID administrator Ron Brasel SWCIDFest provides an opportunity for graduates and others to reestablish ties within the college, Brasel said. The public, however, is encouraged to attend any of the activities.

Today's activities begin at 4 p.m. with a faculty vs. staff volleyball game at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Tex-Mex Dinner at the SWCID Student Union Building (SUB) begins at 5:30.

Also at the SUB, two students will be chosen as Mr. and Miss SWCID. This pageant begins at 7 p.m. and is followed by a performance by Harry C. Anderson, a deaf, blind storyteller and artist.

tonight. Saturday festivities begin early as teams and individuals compete in golf, basketball and volleyball tournaments. The golf tournament is at the Municipal Golf Course. Basketball and volleyball tournaments will be in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

At 10 a.m., SWCID opens its doors for tours of all facilities and archives. Also at 10, the SWCID alumni meeting begins.

At 1 p.m., a petting zoo for children opens on the Howard College campus. The petting zoo will remain open until the largest of the weekend's festivities begins at 5:30 p.m. - The SWCID Carnival at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"We have 20 different booths, including food booths," Brasel said. Some booths will be geared toward children and others will be for adults.

Judge proclaims Awareness Month in Howard County

By CONNIE SWINNEY

Staff Writer

Judge Ben Lockhart proclaimed April to be Alcohol Awareness Month in Howard County, in line with the national and regional campaign known as "Let's Draw the Line" Against Underage Drinking.

"Virtually no use of alcohol, tobacco or illicit drugs (except cocaine) begins after age 25, research shows, Lockhart said.

For 1991, 18 juvenile offenders violated drinking laws. according to the Juvenile Tracking and Case Load Management System Statistical Report.

A year later, the number was more than cut in half due to the efforts of the Permian Basin Regional Council on Alcohol and Drug Abuse, a local juvenile probation

PBRCADA is spearheading the local April awareness

Those charged with being a "minor in possession" of alcohol are referred for PBRCADA counseling on Tuesday nights in more and more cases, said Patricia Dunham, juvenile probation officer for the 118th District, servicing Howard, Martin and Glasscock counties.

She added those efforts are directly related to the decreased numbers.

"It obviously is working because our stats are cut in half," Dunham said.

Lockhart added the minors in possession cases he sees involving repeat offenders of liquor laws is increasing. "(Underage drinking) seems to be holding pretty steady," he said. "We see quite a few repeat offenders."

Moreover, penalties have been stiffened in the last two years which include fines as high as $500 plus court costs as well as jail time or alternative sentencing.

"The penalties for repeat offenders will become even stiffer (in the future)," he said: "(Youth) need to consider the consequences because some of the things they're charged with can effect the rest of their lives.

PBRCADA joined the national effort in requesting the judge's "Draw the Line" proclamation for the county and

"County government week is to show the citizens that the county is involved in more things throughout the city and county than just prosecution of criminals," said Kay Kennemur, secretary to the county judge and on a fivemember committee planning events for next week. "It's to let people know what goes on in county government." A few other functions include state and national voting, keeping records of deaths, births, marriages and. land deeds, appraising property, collecting taxes, registering vehicles, maintaining roads outside the city, operating a jail, law enforcement, fire protection and indigent health care. An open house with refreshments and tours of depart-

AUSTIN - Austinite Brett Stahl says marijuana should be legalized. This week, he will tell a jury why.

Stahl, who went to trial Thursday on charges of possession of the drug, plans to make a pitch for it before a Travis County Court-at-Law.

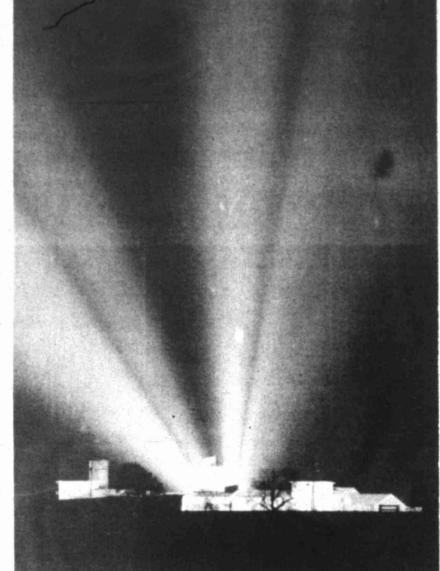

He was arrested last year after he took some marijuana into the state comptroller's office to challenge a state tax on illegal drugs. He had asked workers how many tax stamps he needed to buy.

"It was all done very civilly and in good humor," Paul Velte, Stahl's attorney, told the Austin American-

FBI agents not optimistic about Koresh manuscript

The Associated Press

TEXAS

WACO, Texas - Federal authorities say they don't know whether religious cult leader David Koresh's latest promise — to end his standoff after writing a religious manuscript - is anything more than another

"We have had so many stalling tactics over such a long period of time we are not that overly optimistic," FBI spokesman Richard Swensen said Thursday.

Authorities have been in a standoff with Koresh since a Feb. 28 raid by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms erupted into a gunfight that left four agents dead and 16 wounded. Koresh, who has said six cultists died, remains holed up with 78 followers and 17 children inside a heavily armed compound east of Waco.

He said this week that he's prepared to end his standoff with lawmen but first wants to write a manuscript that deciphers the Book of Revelation's seven seals. No one quite seems to know how long that will

Swensen said the FBI won't wait forever on Koresh, who attempted to voice his religious thoughts in a rambling, 58-minute radio broadcast March 2. The doomsday preacher had promised to come out after delivering that sermon, then said God had told him to wait for a message before Earthquake? Not in a million

The Associated Press

WACO, Texas — Doomsday cult leader David Koresh is prophesying that an earthquake will rock the Lake Waco area and crack open a dam. Well, it hasn't in a million years or more, says an expert.

"Nothing happens here as far as earthquakes," said O.T. Hayward, professor emeritus of geology at Baylor University. "Literally, we're one of the most seismically quiet places in the United States.' In a letter April 9 to the FBI, Koresh said: "I forewarn you, the Lake Waco area of all Mount Carmel will be terribly shaken. The waters of the lake will be emptied through the broken dam (misspelled damn)." When that warning got no respect, Koresh repeated the threat in a Wednesday letter to his lawyer: "I was shown a fault line running throughout the Lake Waco area ... The earthquake in Waco is not to be taken lightly. It will probably be the thing to shake some sense into the people."

There is a fault line, Hayward said in an interview Thursday.

"It's under you," he told a reporter. "So you're safe." He said estimates are that the Balcones system — stretching from Mexico through South Texas and toward Dallas, East Texas and Arkansas may have been active in South Texas as recently as 20 million years ago.

"We hope David gets his inspiration and finishes his manuscript overnight. We hope a lot of things, Swensen said.

"David has his time frame as to when he is going to finish his manuscript, but we are on our own time schedule for whatever we are going to do," he added, avoiding giving details about any plans to end the

Swensen said Koresh won't receive the peace and quiet most writer's

"We will continue with the noises at night," he said. Those disturbing sounds have included, dentist drills, rabbits being slaughtered and thundering locomotives.

Koresh's attorney Dick DeGuerin, who spoke with the cult leader

First officer tried to abort landing

GRAPEVINE, Texas — The first officer of an ill-fated American Airlines DC-10 tried to abort a landing at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport during a heavy thunderstorm, but was overruled by the captain, an investigation revealed.

The captain took the controls of the jumbo jet himself and landed it, but the airplane "weathervaned" and slipped off the runway into thick mud, at which time the landing gear collapsed, the National Transportation Safety Board said Thursday and 13 crew members.

American Airlines said 33 passengers and four crew members were injured as they slid down inflatable escape slides about 25 feet into the mud. The angle of the slides was so steep that the slides offered little cushion on the way down, an airline spokesman said.

The NTSB today began its third day of an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the incident. NTSB chairman Carl W. Vogt said it will take several more days for agency investigators to gather data on the various aspects of the mishap.

No attempts have been made yet to place blame or analyze what could have prevented the incident. Vogt said

He said the flight data recorder and the cockpit voice recorder would be played in Washington today for various parties involved in the investigation but said no transcript would be released immediately

About six or seven minutes before landing, a low-level windshear alert was reported by air traffic controllers about 1 1/2 miles from the end of the runway but was canceled four minutes later, Vogt said.

The cockpit crew requested that Flight 102 be allowed to make its landing from the south, into the 30 mph gusts from the north-northwest that were being experienced. The flight tower refused, and the flight came in for a landing from the north,

As the plane made its descent, Vogt said, the first officer was at the controls. When the jumbo jet reached an altitude of about 200 feet, the first officer "was uncomfortable with the approach" and said he was going to abort the landing, Vogt said.

But the captain overrode him, took over the controls and landed anyway, Vogt said.

'As the nose of the plane cut down, the pilot said he felt the aircraft was 'weathervaning' to the right. He applied corrective control measures but the aircraft continued to veer to the right," Vogt said.

The jet rested on its belly, tilted on its mangled left wing Thursday. The landing wheels remained intact on the right side of the aircraft but were snapped apart on the left.

The NTSB official said the captain had 10,000 flying hours, including 575 hours on a DC-10; the first officer had 4,000 flying hours, including 376 hours on a DC-10; and the flight engineer had 20,000 hours, including ,800 hours on a DC-10.

He said that there was no evidence of any injuries from impact and no indications that lightning had hit the plane, as some passengers had reported. There was also no evidence of breakage or leakage before touchdown and there wasn't any problems with the tires on the aircraft.

Gore finds hot seat over taxes

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Vice President Al Gore today said it was unlikely the country would adopt a national sales tax "in the near term" as he defended administration tax policies during a call-in session on national TV.

Gore, making an hour-long appearance on NBC's "Today" show, said that while a sales tax or valueadded tax was one option being considered to finance health-care reform, "I've never been for that particular approach in concept.

"It's something that in the future may have to be considered but it's not something that's right on the president's desk," Gore said.

"I personally don't think it's likely to occur in the near term," he added. Fielding questions from viewers around the country, Gore found himself on the hot seat over the administration's proposed energy tax increase and over its consideration of a sales tax or a tobacco tax increase to pay for health reforms.

Clinton to offer GOP senators smaller jobs bill

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton will offer a scaled-down version of his $16.3 billion jobs bill that "goes the extra mile" to break a Republican logiam in the Senate, Vice President Al Gore said today.

Gore said the new version — to be announced by Clinton today - would retain the job-creating features of the original package while cutting several billion dollars and adding an extra $200 million for hiring new police officers.

In an interview on NBC's "Today" show, Gore said the compromise would "retain the emphasis on ... getting people to work right away to get the economy moving again,"

"We are going the extra mile, doing everything we possibly can to break the gridlock," he said. He added that Republicans had made no counteroffer, saying, "their position is apparently to just do nothing and

Senate leaders of both parties are searching for a compromise now that the president has agreed to shrink the measure to get it through Con-

Clinton asked the two sides Thursday to begin talks aimed at fashioning a deal. Based on his remarks and earlier offers from Republicans, money for unemployment benefits, transportation projects, childhood immunization and summer jobs seemed likeliest to survive, along with a new proposal the president made for hiring extra police officers.

Although Clinton offered compromise, he couldn't resist putting pressure on Republicans who have blocked the bill from coming to a

"I have done my part now to end the gridlock," he said in Rose Garden remarks aimed at the GOP. "I ask you to do yours.

"I don't call it gridlock," Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said earlier in the day. "I just think we have a good debate.

Even as Clinton spoke, the measure's prospects became more bleak Democratic Sens. Russell Feingold and Herbert Kohl of Wisconsin said they would oppose the package unless it was accompanied by budget

Dole and Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, both out of town during Congress' two-week Easter recess, hoped to talk quickly by telephone.

But in New Hampshire earlier Thursday, Dole repeated GOP complaints that most of the package is not urgent and should be paid for by equal slashes in other programs. Democrats want to finance it by borrowing, which drives up the budget

"If it isn't an emergency, then we ought to pay for it or we shouldn't spend it in the first place," Dole told business leaders in Manchester, N.H.

The Senate will vote Tuesday on whether to cut off the Republican filibuster that has halted work on the bill. Three earlier attempts failed when the Senate's 43 Republicans held their ranks. Sixty votes are needed in the 100-member Senate to end the delays.

Although Clinton mentioned no figures, a senior administration official speaking on condition of anonymity said the president was talking about "a substantial amount" of cuts - in the billions of dollars.

Report faults Aspin's leadership during base closing procedure

WASHINGTON - Defense Secretary Les Aspin did a poor job overseeing the military services as they selected bases for possible closure, a congressional report says.

"While the office of secretary of defense provided guidance, it was not actively involved in monitoring the process. Had OSD been more involved, certain problems could have been avoided," the General Accounting Office said in a report released Thursday.

The GAO's review of the Defense Department's base closure recommendations also found fault with several of the Navy, Army and Air Force selections.

The GAO, which is the investigative arm of Congress, singled out the Charleston Naval Shipyard in South Carolina and K.I. Sawyer Air Force

The report said the selection only a couple of weeks to work the ocess generally was sound, but that the department missed an good job." opportunity to reduce even more excess depot maintenance due to a lack of leadership on Aspin's part.

In addition, Aspin's office failed to review how the services estimated potential savings from their recommended cuts. GAO said the Defense Logistics Agency significantly overstated its savings estimates.

The department estimated $12.8 billion in savings from closing the major bases over a 20-year period. The GAO put it at about $940 million saying the GAO was "correct in saying the overall exercise was a valuable and money-saving proposition."

"GAO misses the mark in its criticism of the office of the secretary, he said. "If they had asked us, we could have pointed out that we had

In a statement, the Pentagon said "it is noteworthy that the GAO's overall assessment is that the recommendations and selection process for base closures and realignments were generally sound.

'The GAO report apparently recognizes the value of closing bases as part of the administration's effort to reduce military spending and promote economic reuse.'

The Pentagon recommended on March 12 that 31 major military bases be shut down and 134 others Vernon Guidry, Aspin's chief be scaled back. Daniel's dream - a fighting chance zard is recovering from heart surgery, columns published last year will be used.

MONROE, La — Daniel Brantley is 15. He's been blind since birth. I met him a year ago in his home town of Shreveport.

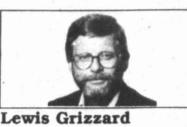

I made a public appearance there. After the show, Daniel's mother brought him backstage.

I do not mean for any of this to be self-serving. It was just something about Daniel Brantley. He asked me questions about my work and my lift hat I couldn't answer.

He wanted to know where I was when I put this book or that book on tape. He wanted to know who the announcer was on the tape.

He asked me about names and places from columns I'd written years before and had completely forgotten about.

Then, h e wanted to know about my boyhood friend and idol, Weyman C. Wannamaker, Jr., a great Ameri-

"Mr. Lewis," he began, always the polite one, "is Weyman C. Wannamaker, Jr. here with you?'

I said, "I'm afraid not, Daniel." "I really wanted to talk to him," he "I'll say!" added his mother. "For his birthday last year he invited hi

Where did Daniel get this interest in me and what appeared to be an interest and humor in general?

I cut a comedy album in Shreveport that night. We decided to dedicate it to him: "To Daniel Brantley, my No. 1 fan.

Because of Daniel and his remarkable zest for life and laughter, despite his blindness, I did a thing here for the Louisiana Center for the Blind. I met another remarkable person named Joanne Wilson, who is the director of the center. She's blind since she was 16.

"What we do at the center," she told me, "is try to change the image of blind people. The image we want to lose is that of the blind beggar on

"The center teaches blind people self-esteem, work skills and independence. We prepare them to live better lives, to be worthwhile employ-

(start itals) Set them free. (end

The deal I did here was to raise money for the center's summer program for blind children. The center wasn't going to be opened for the children this summer, because it couldn't afford it.

But a lot of kind people in Monroe came through for us. The reason I said "us" is that they have named the summer program after me. I've never been so honored.

After the show, Daniel came backstage again and did his impressions of presidents Nixon, Carter, Reagan and Bush for me, and damned fine impressions they were. Prediction: This young man will be on a stage himself one of these days.

I saw Daniel again and I met Roland and Andrea and Chico, and many others, all blind children who want what the rest of us want - a fighting chance.

Before Daniel left he asked me, "Are there any good eye doctors over there at Emory Hospital in Atlanta where you had your heart surgery?" Amazing.

"I don"t know," I said to him. "Why do you ask?"

"Well," he said, "maybe one day I can have an operation like you did on my eyes and be able to see."

I'll mention to Weyman to include Daniel's dream in his prayers, too. (c) 1993 by Cowles Syndicate, Inc.

Word court renders its decisions

The Court of Peeves, Irks & Crotches opens its April assizes with the plea of many plaintiffs for a definitive order on "different from" and "different than." The court, after prolonged reflection, ducks.

Wilson Follett discussed the question in his "Modern American Usage." He too was unable to offer any positive guidance, but he said something of profound wisdom: "It is often better to find a way around a linguistic thicket than to bull one's way through it.' The general guideline - not a rule, just a guideline - is to use "different than" with a following clause. Thus, "Let me know if your telephone number is different than it was a year ago." "Life in a foster home proved no different than life had been for the girl all along."

In other constructions, "different from" works better. "She sought to be different from her classmates." "Justice Scalia's approach is different from Justice Blackmun's approach." "How different his performance from his promises.

Among the exhibits offered by the plaintiffs are two clippings from Chicago. From the Sun-Times: "The football program at Augustana College is different than the one at Nebraska." From the Tribune: "Women have higher death rates from heart attacks and react differently to treatment than men.'

The court approves the Tribune's use of "different than." Surely it would have startled readers to read that women "react differently to treatment from men.

The sentence from the Sun-Times is clumsy. Taking Follett's advice, the sportswriter who stumbled over "different than" might have sought a way around the thicket: "Augustana College and Nebraska have different football programs." Or, "Football is one thing at Augustana College. It's something very different at Nebraska. Or, "Augustana's football program differs from Nebraska's.

A plaintiff in Augusta, Ga., identifying himself as John Doe, moves for an injunction against "to while away." In evidence he offers a headline from The Augusta Chronicle: "Spearing pike one way to while away northern winter months." To the plaintiff this is "awful!" Nonsense. Motion denied. Webster's dates "to while away" from 1635. It is better in every respect than "to wile away," which carries overtones of enticement and trickery. Women's wiles. A wily politician. Milton's Nymph brought "quips and cranks, and wanton wiles, nods, and becks, and wreathed smiles." If one has an idle hour, let one while it

On its own motion, the court will briefly address the use of "a while" and "awhile." The court does not approve of "awhile," even in such constructions as, "The senator left awhile ago." Two words are better than one: "The dispute over a Bosnian policy will continued for quite a while." "It will be a while before Clinton's performance can be fairly judged.

At its autumn assizes last year, the court roundly condemned "got." The condemnation has been roundly ignored. Ann B. Kitchin of Littleton, Colo., appeals for one more blast. She offers in evidence.

From the Reader's Digest, "she got sidetracked." From The Denver Post, "the real thing got stuffed in the trash." From the Rocky Mountain News, "Bill and Shirley got married 44 years ago." From Reuters, "They dressed like male pirates, even dueled like male pirates, but they got pregnant like women.

The court cannot explain its anathema on the matter of "got." In most constructions, a more euphonious way can be found to phrase a given sentence. Many an ugly "got" may be eliminated by taking refuge in the passive voice: "The real thing was stuffed in the trash." "Bill and Shirley were married.

In an effort to be just, the court acknowledges that some "gots" must be tolerated. It would have spoiled the Reuters paragraph to say that the female pirates "became pregnant like women." Something sounds amiss in, "I Have You Under My Skin.

Helen Cullen of Seattle asks a declaratory judgment: Is it "champing at the bit" or "chomping at the bit"/ Madam, the court declares, it's "champing." In the sense of showing impatience at delay or restraint, "champing" has been around since the 14th century. "To chomp" dates only from 1847. Its primary meaning is to bite heavily, as a dog chomps on

The court will add that "champing at the bit" is a phrase likely to be lost on those who have never seen a horse. A better way to express impatience can be found. All a writer has to do is look.

Police

Have you ever heard statements such as, "If a burglar wants in my house bad enough, there's no way to stop him, so it doesn't matter what security measures I use,"?

This is only partly true. Unfortunately some people have been burglarized when they seemed to do all the "right" things to prevent such a crime. This doesn't mean you should give up on protecting your home and Burglary is pretty much a crime of opportunity. Give the burglar a chance, especially by not being careful and he will take you up on your offer. So what are some things you can do to keep burglars away from your home? There are many areas to look at. Today I will go over outside security as your first defense barrier.

Maybe you think a thick hedge of shrubbery or a tall wooden fence is the answer to securing your property. These things may give you privacy but not security.

There is a big difference. Privacy only means it keeps those on the outside from looking in, not from getting inside your property. That tall fence or thick hedge may become the perfect hiding place for a burglar to watch you leave your home. Then he knows the coast is clear to commit his crime. Worse yet, your privacy fence means that no one outside or passing by will see the burglar breaking into your house.

Take a good look at your yard or the grounds around your home. Stand near the roadway or over in a neighbor's yard. All the doors and windows should be visible. If someone were breaking out a window or forcing a door, you want neighbors or people passing by to see what is taking place.

Hedges should be trimmed at least six inches below the window. Shrubbery should be 18 to 24 inches below the window. Shrubbery should be 18 to 24 inches away from doorways. Tall trees should be trimmed from the bottom up to assure good visibili-

If you are renting, speak to your landlord and explain why you want trees and shrubs trimmed or removed. When he understands that it will ultimately protect his property, he probably will have no problem with your request. These suggestions don't mean you can't landscape your yard. I've seen some beautiful yards that meet these suggestions. You may just need to do a little planning.

Also if you are going to put in outside lighting, think ahead as to placement. It's best to have lighting around doorways and windows. The sidewalk and driveway are other good places to put outdoor lights. There are a lot of yard lights in this country that serve no security purpose. They only light up a tree or a patch of grass. There is nothing wrong with decorative lighting, but if your budget can only allow for a sin-gle yard light then think ahead about where to put it.

As for the type of light to use, that is a subject that needs to be covered on its own. There are many products out there on the market to fit about any budget. I plan to cover that subject in the future.

One last area to discuss, especially if you have a very large yard or multiple lots. Have you let the lot become overgrown? Is it a storage yard for machinery and automobiles? Keep in mind that besides being a possible fire hazard, an overgrown neglected yard provides a great hiding place for would-be burglars to watch sur-

Grizzard moved from intensive care

ATLANTA — Lewis Grizzard, 46, was moved from the intensive care unit to a private room at Emory University Hospital yesterday. His doctors are optimistic about his condition, which remains stable. If Mr. Grizzard's marked improvement continues as it has for the past few days, doctors will assess whether he will be well enough to return home by the end of the week.

Mr. Grizzard's heart is pumping well on its own and improving every day. He was removed from cardiac assist devices March 27, five days after a 12-hour operation to replace his faulty aortic valve. He was taken off the national waiting list for a heart transplant two weeks ago.

Mr. Grizzard's lung function has improved and he continues to work four times a day with a respiratory therapist, who gives him a breathing treatment to keep his lungs clear. He also works with physical therapists twice a day to help him regain physical strength. Mr. Grizzard's nurses report that, for the first time since his extensive surgery, he is acting like his old self. They took him outside on Easter Sunday for a few hours to enjoy the sunshine.

Since Mr. Grizzard still requires time and rest to recuperate fully, the hospital is restricting the number of visitors to only a few of his close family members and friends

Steers continue roll, down Loboes

HERALD STAFF REPORT

MONAHANS - Maybe an unexpected 100-mile bus trip had something to do with it, but the Big Spring Steers found themselves in an unaccustomed position of having to play catchup against the Monahans Loboes here Thursday.

In a game that was rescheduled to Monahans because of recent heavy rains in Big Spring, the Steers spotted the Loboes a one-run lead before rallying to take a 7-1 victory in District 3-4A action.

The win improves the first-place Steers' record to 6-0 in district standings, 11-6 overall. Monahans fell to 1-5 and 8-7 with the loss.

Luis Bustamante went the distance for Big Spring to pick up his third consecutive victory. T.J. Adams was tagged with the loss.

It took us awhile to get going," Big Spring coach Bobby Doe said. "We really didn't start swinging the bats until about the fifth inning. I guess it took us awhile to wake up and realize we had a game to play.

Bobby Doe the next inning when Trey Terrazas the bases, Terrazas singled and scored on Brian Hamblin's double, and designated runner Michael Sizenbach scored on a single by Bustamante.

Because of the schedule switch, the Steers now have four of their last six regular season games at home. Doe, who blamed a long layoff rather than the site switch for the Steers' sluggish start Thursday, said his team has its destiny in its own hands.

Ryan's post surgery focus: resume farewell year ASAP

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas - Forget any notion that Texas Rangers pitcher Nolan Ryan gave any thought to aborting his 1993 farewell tour because of the torn cartilage he suffered in his right knee this week.

'Oh, no, no. His whole focus is to be able to play the rest of the season," Dr. John Conway said after completing the 40-minute arthroscopic procedure late Thursday afternoon at Harris Methodist Hospital in Fort Worth.

"Best case, he misses two or three starts and comes back and throws another no-hitter. Worst case, he's out three or four months and misses most of the season — I don't expect that at all," said Conway, orthopedic consultant for the Texas Rangers.

Ryan experienced sharp pain in the knee during a rocky, four-inning stint Wednesday night against the Baltimore Orioles. A magnetic resonance imaging test Thursday morning revealed tears in both the medial and lateral cartilage. Cartilage is a smooth, slippery c-shaped substance that prevents two ends of bones from rubbing together and grating. "He wasn't excited about having to

Ryan didn't appear at Conway's press briefing after the operation, but the Rangers released a statement from the pitcher, who is playing his 27th and final season.

"I woke up this morning, and when I couldn't move my right leg, I knew something was wrong," Ryan

"I feel that the surgery went well. I'll start my rehabilitation as soon as the doctor gives me the clearance to do so. I'll be back as soon as possible and should be better and stronger physically as a result of the surgery,"

Ryan was getting ready to leave the hospital on crutches soon after the operation. Conway said Ryan could start riding a bicycle today and resume his regular training when he felt comfortable doing so. He will not have to wear a brace on the knee, Conway said.

"I just left him," Conway said. "He was in good spirits. I'm optimistic he is going to recover quickly. I think it would be unreasonable to expect he will be back before three weeks. I'd say three to six weeks would be the window I'm hoping for."

The surgeon said the operation was done under local anesthesia,

He hit a drive deep to center field earmarked as a two-or three-run hit — and was robbed when McRae made a diving, off-balance grab as he tumbled to the ground.

Srebrenica reported on verge of falling to Serbs

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Serb militiamen closed in on Srebrenica today, and officials in the largest of the three remaining Muslim enclaves in eastern Bosnia tried to work out a surrender.

A spokesman for Bosnia's Muslimled government said Srebrenica officials were negotiating with Serbs to give up the town in return for the safe evacuation of Muslim civilians and troops.

Last week, the Texas Telephone Association (TTA) made public a commitment to invest more than $1.4 billion in Texas. This would be over and above the normal construction budgets of

A commitment of this magnitude ought to make big news in Texas. Right? Well, chances are, you haven't read much about the $1.4 billion offer, even though big-city newspaper publishers have known about it for months.

Makes you wonder what gives? And perhaps more importantly, what do these newspaper publishers have to do with blocking a commitment that could bring jobs and technological

Texans deserve to know why they've been kept in the dark

Here's the background so you can decide yourself.

Telephone companies in Texas, including mine, are seeking changes in the way they are regulated. The TTA does not support total deregulation. For example, continued Public Utility Commission (PUC) of Texas regulation of basic local telephone

The rate you pay telephone companies for local service is low

Telephone companies in Texas are seeking the flexibility to compete in areas where competition already exists. We want the financial incentives to invest in advanced telecommunications technologies; like Distance Learning which links teachers with distant classrooms over the phone lines; and Telemedicine which allows health care professionals to video conference with patients and educators to share medical expertise. Services like these are examples of how telecommunications stands ready to improve

For some five months now, the newspaper industry, led by publishers of papers owned by out-of-state media conglomerates, have raised false concerns about the TTA proposal. They called it a deregulation proposal. It's not. They said telephone company profits are financing foreign investments. That's not true. The newspaper bosses are wrong to make such ludicrous, unfounded accusations.

The publishers would have you believe this is a complicated issue between two large interests that needs to be studied for

Phone companies are ready to invest $1.4 billion in a fiber optic system that will bring jobs and new business to Texas. Sure, that will help grow our business, but don't forget, we're also willing to freeze basic phone rates to ensure that our local customers are protected.

The TTA group has negotiated in good faith. TTA representatives attended every meeting held, and tried to work with the publishers in every way reasonable. We said "yes" to rate freezes and even to local network competition.

The newspaper publishers, on the other hand, did little more than to delay any progress serious talks could have produced. They offer no vision for Texas. Let's hope their message to Texans wasn't spoken by their paid lobbyist when he said, "Let's take these guys out." H-m-m-m.

today, and must continue to remain affordable. The TTA proposes to freeze these low basic local rates for four years.

So, where's the catch?

the quality of life for all Texans.

Enter the "Big-City" Publishers.

In an attempt to appease the newspaper moguls, state leaders called for meetings between the telephone and newspaper industries to settle their differences. A reasonable idea.

But, we've been trying to get representatives of these publishers to sit down and talk since November. They refused to do so until just recently and have done little more than drag their feet.

Their strategy? It's been reported in their own words. A paid newspaper industry lobbyist is quoted one day saying his group would continue to seek a compromise with telephone companies. Then, speaking before the Texas Daily Newspaper Association the same lobbyist is quoted saying: "We need to slam these guys. Let's take these guys out." So much for the publishers' motives. Why are they fighting progress?

Money. The newspaper bosses have used a massive lobbying effort and scare campaign to protect their own self-interests. They see any change in telephone regulation as a direct threat (although unfounded) to their classified advertising profits. As long as they can stall the talks, they can continue to keep any competitive threat at bay.

The presiding judge, Maj. Gen. Anatoly Ukolov, said the court would decide when to resume the trial after it received a medical report on Alexander Tizyakov, 67, who was rushed from the courtroom with heart trouble shortly after the trial began on Wednesday.

The medical report will determine whether Tizyakov, now in a military hospital in Moscow, is too ill to defend himself. His co-defendants have argued that the trial cannot proceed without him. Tizyakov had headed an association of state factories in what was then the Soviet Union and was a member of the self-proclaimed 'State Committee for the State of Emergency" that seized power from Mikhail Gorbachev on Aug. 18-21, munists, mainly elderly people,

The other defendants include some of the most powerful men of the old regime: former KGB chief Vladimir Kryuchkov, Defense Minister Dmitry Yazov, Soviet parliament leader Anatoly Lukyanov, and Vice President Gennady Yanayev.

They are accused of placing Mikhail Gorbachev under house arrest and declaring emergency rule in an attempt to preserve the Soviet Union under hard-line Communist rule. Ironically, the failed coup accelerated the country's breakup.

If the defendants are found guilty, they could face the death penalty. If they are acquitted, the small but vociferous minority of loyal Communists left in Russia will take heart.

As he entered the courthouse today. Yanayev called the proceedings a "political trial" against President Boris Yeltsin's opponents. "History will vindicate us," he said. A crowd of about 30 die-hard Com-

The accused traitors turned the first two days of their trial into a political attack on Yeltsin, Prosecutor-General Valentin Stepankov and the Supreme Court itself.

On Thursday, the defendants and their lawyers said Stepankov had prejudiced the trial by writing a book that pronounced the defendants

Industrialists laugh at Yeltsin; vice president goes on attack

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — A hostile audience of state factory directors jeered President Boris Yeltsin today, and his vice president called for an investigation of corruption in the administration.

The developments, which received heavy television coverage, put Yeltsin on the defensive as he campaigned for support in an April 25 referendum on his leadership. Vice President Alexander Rutskoi,

Calling for a major investigation of corruption, Rutksoi said "Russia must be shown who is really betraying it, who is guilty of ruining the economy — the legislators, or those who are busy ... robbing the country and violating laws." The referendum will ask voters whether they have confidence in Yeltsin and approve of his economic policies, as well as whether they want new presidential and parliamentary elections. Yeltsin said this week he would step down if voters did not express confidence in him.

Public opinion polls indicate that about 60 percent of Moscow residents intend to support Yeltsin in the referendum. But Yeltsin has had trouble finding sympathetic live audiences this month, and his handful of ordered Rutksoi's 80-minute address campaign appearances — both in Moscow and in Siberia — have been rocky.

Today, Yeltsin was interrupted by laughter three times during a halfhour address to nearly 5,000 Russian business people in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses, where Soviet leaders once dictated policy in an atmosphere of strict discipline.

State television showed the factory managers laughing and said their reaction to Yeltsin was "to put it mildly, unambiguous.' The audience consisted mostly of items such as computers. The Clinton White House has taken a harder line than the Bush administration did concerning the trade imbalance. It is pushing the Japanese to buy mere American-made computer chips and other high-technology products, as well as live up to previous pledges concerning purchase of U.S. auto parts and farm goods. In addition to trade disputes, Clinton and Miyazawa were expected to spend time today discussing Western assistance to Russia.

The Japanese on Wednesday unveiled their own $1.8 billion aid package for Russia. But administration officials complained it was insufficient because it emphasizes credit guarantees to spur sales of Japanese products to Russia rather than providing significant sums of direct for-trade deficit with Japan accounted tries. for 59 percent of the total U.S. shortfall of $84.3 billion. Analysts predict that unless something is done, the imbalance will worsen even further this year.

By putting forward a pump-priming package of increased government spending and tax breaks, the Japanese insist they will boost domestic demand for American and other foreign goods and thus do their part to stimulate a sluggish global economy.

However, administration officials said Thursday that Clinton would press Miyazawa to go beyond the stimulus package. They said the president would raise specific U.S. complaints about Japanese barriers in a number of areas.

But Japanese officials insisted today's meeting was a get-acquainted session to build trust between the two leaders and not a negotiating session on specific trade disputes.

Miyazawa, who speaks fluent English, planned private talks with Clinton during the morning before both men were joined by aides for a working lunch. The meetings were to conclude with a joint news conference.

70 years Ackerly FBC honors anniversary

HERALD STAFF REPORT

It was 70 years ago that the Baptists in Ackerly organized themselves into a church.

The First Baptist Church of Ackerly is still going strong, with three members who joined in the 1920s still in attendance. Leon Bodine joined with his family in July 1925. Neva Springfield and Jack Archer were baptized in 1926 in a pond near the first meeting place.

In the early years, churchgoers met in the old Sparenberg School building for Sunday school every week. Preachers from the area would give sermons once a month.

In August of 1923, people of the surrounding communities met to build a tabernacle and hold a revival in Ackerly. Many people pitched in with donations of lumber and nails, hard work and a piano on loan.

The charter members of Ackerly Baptist were Mrs. and Mrs. T.R. Mauldin and Truitt; Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Appling; Mr. and Mrs. N.J. Etheridge; Mr. and Mrs. J.N. Hinson; Mrs. John Stewart; Mrs. M.M. Smith; and Mr. and Mrs. W.M. Miller.

Singles Club

The Big Spring Singles held an organizational meeting April 12, at the West Texas Center For The Arts. Officers were elected, and it was decided to meet every Monday at 7 p.m. at the Center until the organization's charter and by laws are set. The Big Spring Singles is a new group being formed to provide a non-invasive, casual way for single adults (21 or older) to meet other single adults and to enjoy social activities as well as community-oriented service projects. The Singles will pattern themselves, to some extent, after the now successful West Texas Singles Association in Odessa that now has over two hundred members. We welcome new visitors of all levels of accomplishment who have a desire to join a friendly atmosphere of people in like circumstances.

The group has an attendance of almost 30 members and is growing rapidly. It plans to provide frequent activities to include house/back yard parties, dance parties, eat-outs, picnics, fishing trips, out of town trips and any other activities that the group may consider fun. We will be active in many community and charitable projects as well.

Prospectors Club

The Big Spring Prospector's Club met in regular session April 8 at 606 East 3rd St. Charles Leek, president, presided. 15 members and three guests were present. After a short business session everyone enjoyed a pot-luck salad meal. Elaine Matteson, Club hostess had decorated the tables with fresh lilacs. Members discussed the past Gem and mineral show and what could be done for the 1994 show, which will be the 25th anniversary. Plans will be made during the upcoming months to make the anniversary special. Show and tell items were furnished by Charles Leek and Nora Nixson. Nora demonstrated making smaller zip-lock bags from larger ones without losing the "zip-loc" feature. This would be very handy for many lapidary uses e.g. cabochons, findings, etc. Charles displayed a number of Bible-land artifacts which had been given to him for the Club.

After the meal Jerald Wilson ran a VCR program titled, "Wit and Wisdom of Willer Wood." Wood resides in Martin County and certainly has considerable talent. We understood that he makes these tapes as a hobby. He is a standup, one-man

The male-dominated struggle for the soul of the Southern Baptist Convention has moved to the women's auxiliary

In a recent decision, the Women's Missionary Union agreed to support all Southern Baptist missions, not just those sanctioned by conservative convention leaders. The women have raised hundreds of millions of dollars for convention missions since 1888.

The issue threatens to drive another wedge between Southern Baptist conservatives and moderates. The two factions have been battling for control of the denomination for a decade, with the conservatives generally getting the upper hand.

"Are we not weary of the taking of sides?" Women's missionary executive director Dellanna O'Brien asked members after the vote affirming their 105-year commitment to all Southern Baptist millions, regardless of political affiliation within the

Prison minister discusses law and order

By TERRY MATTINGLY Scripps Howard News Service

Every few months some kind of riot, drug scam, murder or jailhouse drama briefly puts the prison crisis in the headlines.

This week's siege at Ohio's only maximum-security prison is another chapter in an ongoing tragedy.

Meanwhile, politicians fight on a less violent but still emotional front as they seek bond issues, taxes, lotteries and other ways to raise funds for new prisons.

There's no end in sight. America's best-known prison minister is convinced that it's time to put the criminal justice system as we know it out of its misery. Also, public officials must recognize that the prison crisis is spiritual as well as legal, according to Chuck Colson of Prison Fellowship. "No culture can survive without a moral consensus, shared beliefs about right and wrong, a common standard of truth. This is what defines the rules we live by," said the former Nixon White House aide in a recent National Press Club appearance. "It permits freedom without anarchy. It is the agreement that society is governed more by transcendent truths than by individ-

Since Colson was speaking to a pack of secular journalists, he conceded he doesn't think Christianity should be the only voice in this debate. But he did insist that it is impossible to discuss justice, public morality and right and wrong without input from religious groups.

in 1976, shortly after pleading guilty to Watergate-era crimes. Since then he has visited more than 600 prisons. "One as a resident, and the others as a visitor," he noted.

Bishop: All faiths should work together

By The Associated Press

BALTIMORE — As a Boy Scout in Lebanon, Pa., in the 1940s, William Keeler learned more than building campfires and tying square knots. He learned something about God.

Summer camp brought the Roman Catholic youngster into contact with Protestants and Jews.

'And that offered me many opportunities to work with people from other churches and to engage in a kind of informal dialogue with them, to see their goodness and their interest in things that were good,"

Keeler, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Baltimore, is continuing that same ecumenical philosophy during his three-year term as president of the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

Keeler, 62, has devoted much of his clerical life to improving ties with other denominations, especially Jews. In February, he met with Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres to discuss a wide range of issues, including peace in the Middle East, improved Israeli-Vatican relations and efforts to combat anti-Semitism in Poland

Churches get involved with health care

The ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS - Jean Denton's duties include monitoring blood pressure and giving advice to dieters - traditional tasks for a nurse but a marked departure for a church deacon.

Denton is both. She's among a rapidly growing number of health professionals across the country whose offices are churches and whose tools are the techniques of preventive medicine.

The Health Ministries Association estimates that 1,000 other churches nationwide from several denominations have set up 'church nurse' programs, most within the past five years.

"We're trying to put together who works at St. Paul's Episcopal Church. "If you see yourself as a creature of God, then you tend to yourself in body and mind as well

When St. Paul's program began four years ago, it was the first in Indiana; since then, she said, 12 other churches in the state have begun similar programs.

Such ministries don't compete with the traditional medical professions, they cooperate with it, said the Rev. David F. Carlson, a director of the Des Moines, Iowabased Health Ministries Association.

The association helps organize classes to train registered nurses for their church roles. There are currently about 20 training

The overall goal is to keep people healthy ... out of the health care system," said Carlson. The focuses are education. early intervention and prevention. "Those are not necessarily medical functions. It's like premedical," he said. Nurses work part time or full time, depending on the needs of the church and funding.

Supporters said such programs have been spurred on by the same incentive that has led to political moves to revamp the nation's health care system: rising medical

A survey by the National Council of Churches released in November of 1991 said that three-fourths of the 1,900 churches responding provide at least one health care competent, very knowledgeable in what is a very delicate area," said Rev. Thomas J. Reese, a Jesuit scholar who wrote a book about Catholic bishops in the United States.

"The Jewish community knows when they need someone to talk to, he is there. He is easy to work with and is very sensitive to their concerns," Reese said.

In 1987, Keeler was instrumental in arranging meetings between the pope and American Jewish leaders, who were stung by John Paul's earlier reception at the Vatican of former Austrian President Kurt Waldheim, alleged to have past Nazi links.

Keeler again eased strained ties in 1991 when Cardinal Jozef Glemp of Poland wanted to visit the United States. Glemp had delivered a sermon two years before that many Jews viewed as containing anti-Semitic references. Keeler helped set up a conciliatory meeting between American Jewish leaders and the Polish cardinal.

"He has a quality of intellectual honesty and integrity," said Rabbi A. James Rudin, national interreligious affairs director of the American Jewish Committee. "Some of the things he raises a lot of people don't want to talk about. He'll talk about "He's very respected for his work not only anti-Semitism, but the roots

It makes sense to Keeler that different faiths should develop ties rather than remain isolated by their

"In an age of increasing secularism. there is enormous value for pegple of faith to link up to identify common concerns and to bear a common witness to the faith we have that every human being has a special dignity as a child of God," said Keeler.

Keeler describes his role as conference president as that of being a traffic cop - keeping conference business moving. But he also may need his diplomatic skills as Catholics struggle with potentially divisive issues such as the role of women in the church.

In November, the bishops defeated a controversial document, nine years in the making, that outlined the role of women in the church. It firmly prohibited ordination of women while affirming their equal

'We came into a meeting with a document that many felt was only half cooked," Keeler said.

The church does not see itself as authorized to have women priests because of tradition that dates to Christ, Keeler said. He said he understands why this exclusion would upset many women.

There is a federal regulation requiring eye doctors to give patients a copy of their eyeglass prescriptions at the time they are written. But contact lens prescriptions are

Because contact lenses touch the eye. the optometrist must be certain the lens fits perfectly. Otherwise, serious eye health problems can develop. Equally important, the optometrist must be sure the patient is caring for his or her lenses properly. Studies show that the majority of eye healthcare problems, such as infections of the cornea, are due to improper lens care or failure to follow wearing schedules. This is why the follow-up visits are so important. Your readers can find out their state's law on releasing the contact lens prescription from their state board of optometry, located in the state capital. They can get the state board's address and phone number from the local office of their state representative or state senator.

Before making an appointment for an examination for contact lenses, consumers should ask about the cost of replacement and spare lenses. They should be a fraction of the initial cost, which includes examination fees and follow-up visits. -- JAMES C. DENNIS THE MENACE

To make a long story short, he finally told me that the diamond isn't real, but the sentiment behind

I feel betrayed and humiliated. I would have been happy to wait until he could have bought me a real diamond. He is not broke. He could have bought me a ring on the layaway plan.

I truly believe that if I hadn't found out the ring was a fake, he never would have told me. This has put a strain on our relationship. Am I wrong to have lost faith in him? Or should I forget about it and try to pick up where we left off? What would you do, Abby? -- NO CITY, PLEASE

DEAR NO CITY: I would return the ring and say goodbye. There is no misery like being married to a man (or woman) you can't trust. THE FAMILY CIRCUS

Skylights can spill light throughout a house that's esigned with a "light well" opening up different levels of the structure. Popular option: a balcony around an open stairway.

Exterior house paint lasts longer if the surface is prepared before painting. Scrape and sand where necessary, then wash surfaces to remove dirt and paint particles that would interfere with bonding.

Storm shutters may become mandatory for new construction in areas prone to hurricanes. Properly installed shutters might have protected many homes damaged by Hurricane Andrew last

For more color in the garden, let forsythia grow uncut, instead of trimming the bushes into a formal hedge.

FHA loans have gotten more attractive, because the maximum amount has been raised to $151,725 in high-cost housing areas. The cap is 95 percent of the local median price or 75 percent of the loan limit of the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., whichever is less.

Easier loans make it easier to buy. If you're thinking of a home of your own, come talk to the real estate pros at Home Realtors, 110 W. Marcy,
