Bust nabs 3, 150 pounds of marijuana

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Three suspects were arrested on Saturday in the seizure of about 150 pounds of marijuana on the north side of Big Spring, officials reported.

The seizure was reportedly the largest locally in 10 years.

The estimated street value is about $200,000, Deputy Sheriff Barney Edens said.

Israel Martinez, 28; Fredrico Martinez, 44; and Irma Martinez, 51; all of Big Spring were arrested and charged with aggravated possession of marijuana.

"All of them had prior arrests of drug-related charges," Edens said.

The Howard County Sheriff's Office and the Permian Basin Drug Task Force, acting on investigated information.

"We got the information and were told it was expected to happen," Edens said. "We set up surveillance and the vehicles were identified, so we executed the warrant."

"The stuff had not been ready for distribution. They were going to have to separate it," Edens said. "This was some high quality product."

Five officials from the task force and sheriff's office conducted the seizure near 11:15 p.m., north of town off Birdwell Lane.

Deputy Sheriff Bobby Callaway of Mitchell County led the operation and is scheduled to conduct a press conference at 11 a.m. today.

Bond was set at $40,000 each by Justice of the Peace Jack Buchanan of Coahoma.

Counts named to energy council

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Texas Rep. David Counts, D-Knox City, has been selected to serve on the Energy Council, composed of legislative leaders from nine energy-producing states.

The council assists in the development of federal and state legislation regarding energy and the environment.

"As chairman of the House Committee on Natural Resources, Representative Counts has a thorough knowledge of these issues," said House Speaker James E. (Pete) Laney, who appointed Counts to the council.

"One of the most important functions of the Energy Council is to make federal policy-makers aware of the concerns of our state and I am confident that Representative Counts will do a good job of representing our state," Laney said.

The next meeting will be in June, following the current legislative session.

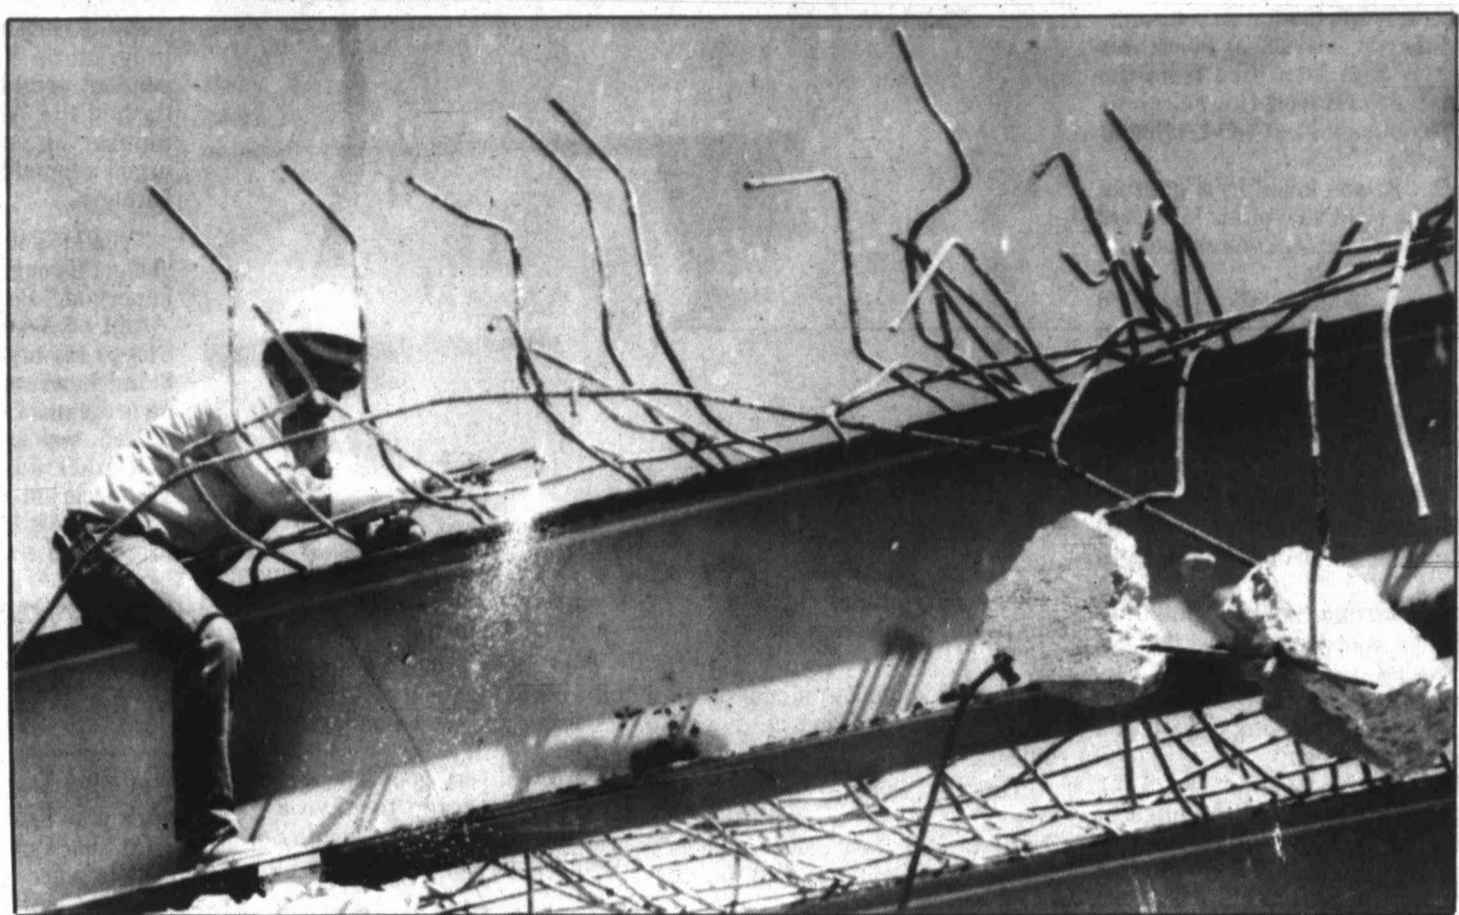

This is the first time Counts will serve on the council. One of his primary goals as a member is to promote the use of natural gas, Counts said.

Natural gas is better for the environment than other forms of energy and, since Texas has an abundant supply, an increased use of natural gas would create jobs and help the Texas economy, according to Counts.

"I'm very proud the speaker has the confidence in me to appoint me to the committee," Counts said. "This has an impact on our energy community in Texas."

Counts has many constituents in energy-producing areas, including Howard County. "My main goals are to create jobs and protect the environment," Counts said.

The council meets quarterly in Irving and is funded by its member states, Texas, Alabama, Alaska, Arkansas, Colorado, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Wyoming.

Local residents cheer Montford, "Governor for Day"

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The Big Spring area was well represented by city and business leaders in Austin Saturday when State Rep. John Montford, D-Lubbock, was sworn in as governor for the day.

"There was a pretty good contingent from Big Spring," said Terry Burns, director of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

"It went real well," said Burns, among several local chamber members who attended. "I think that's a nice honor for Montford. It reflects on our whole area."

An estimated 1,700 attended events Saturday. Among local residents: Mayor Tim Blackshear, City Manager Lanny Lambert, Moore Development for Big Spring Director Ted St. Clair and Hooper Sanders, Montford's representative in Big Spring. Events included a 1 p.m. swearing-in ceremony followed by a barbecue luncheon on Capital grounds. Former governors

Dolph Briscoe and Preston Smith attended as well as former lieutenant governors Bill Hobby and Ben Barnes.

Northern Exposure star Barry Corbin, who plays a radio personality on the television show, and G.W. Bailey, captain on the movie Police Academy and motor pool sergeant on the television show MASH, were master of ceremonies for a dance Friday night. Reuniting to provide music for the dance were the Texas Playboys.

Tours were given of the Capitol and governor's mansion. "Everything went off like clockwork," said Montford spokesman Jerry Hall. "Everybody had a good time. There were a lot of people from Big Spring."

Montford, who took office in 1983, is chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and sits on the Legislative Budget Board, which drafts proposed state budgets. The 28 counties in his district include Howard, Martin, Borden and Glasscock.

He was a Lubbock County criminal district attorney from 1979-82 and had a private law practice in Lubbock before becoming senator.

Ernest Williams: Blowing his way across Texas

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

Bike riding and balloons are the focus of Ernest Dwain Williams' life.

The 42-year-old former circus clown is blowing his way across the eastern and southwestern portion of the United States, making his living by selling balloon art.

Williams, traveling on his 10-speed bike since August, passed through Big Spring Friday on his way to the West.

"I'm from nowhere really," he said. "My father (a carpenter) moved all the time, so I'm still moving all the time."

One of ten brothers and sisters, Williams was born in a town outside of Los Angeles.

As he passed 30 years old, he said he started to reevaluate his niche in life - that's when he started his first countryside trek.

"I guess I was having a mid-life crisis," he said. "I traveled around for about a year, bicycling from El Paso to Washington."

Shortly after his year-long tour, Williams joined the Carden International Circus, as "Pockets the Clown."

"I disliked the circus because I didn't feel like the clowns were dedicated professionals," he laughed. "No really, they tried to make the children laugh, but they seemed like it was just their job to be doing it."

His balloon art, including shaping many-colored balloons into figures such as animals, baskets, race cars and hats, was a talent he began to perfect.

He said he did not learn his intricate balloon art talents as a clown but almost 20 years earlier, as a boy transfixed by a clown combining balloons into "mind-boggling" shapes.

"It makes me feel really good to do it. I enjoy doing the detail work that nobody else does," he said. "My creations have lots of details. It's a craft that I can do, and I especially like the challenge of new requests."

Please see BALLOONS, page 6A

Dwain Williams, travelling balloon sculpturist, works on another creation Friday morning. Williams whose art forms range from two inches to five feet, can create anything from mermaids and cars to ballerinas to turtles.

Columbus blasts on overdue science mission

By The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Columbia thundered into orbit today with seven astronauts on a science mission chartered by Germany and years overdue.

The 4.5 million-pound shuttle rose from its seaside pad on time at 10:50 a.m. EDT, tearing through thick clouds as it arced over the Atlantic Ocean.

It was NASA's third attempt to launch Columbia on the laboratory research mission. The first, one month ago, ended abruptly with an engine shutdown.

"We all thoroughly enjoyed the ascent," shuttle commander

Steven Nagel said after Columbia reached a 184-mile-high orbit.

A few minutes before liftoff, launch director Bob Sieck wished the two German astronauts a good flight in their language: "Einen guten Flug."

At the German scientific control center in the town of Oberpfaffenhofen outside Munich, shuttle mission workers broke into loud applause as Columbia lifted off.

"It finally worked," said an exultant Reinhard Fiege, a German government research official who watched from Kennedy Space Center.

By launching today, nine days after shuttle Discovery returned from orbit, NASA set a record for the shortest interval between U.S. human space flights. The old record of 10 days was set in 1985.

First cult member identified

By The Associated Press

WACO — Cult leader David Koresh's brother-in-law, David Jones, was the first victim identified from the fire that devastated the religious group's compound last week, officials said Sunday.

Jones, 38, was killed by a gunshot blast to the right side of his face, said David Pareya, a McLennan County Justice of the Peace.

Court records had earlier identified Jones as the mailman who notified Koresh that the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms was preparing to raid the site.

Jones, 5-11 and 155 pounds, was the brother of Koresh's wife, Rachel Jones. Jones' father, sister, two nieces and a nephew were believed to be among 86 victims of Monday's fire.

"Yes, I already know. I have no comment," said Mary Jones, the victim's mother.

Investigators said they determined it was Jones by matching fingerprints and dental records.

Pareya justice could not detail the caliber of the bullet or the angle it entered. Pareya said the corpse was found atop a cinderblock bunker where Koresh stashed much of his ammunition.

Houston attorney Dick DeGuerin, who represents Koresh, said he spoke with Jones several times during his visits into the compound during the siege. One of their conversations lasted about an hour, dealing mostly with Jones' tip.

"He was called in when I needed to talk to him and he was very quiet," DeGuerin said in a telephone interview from Washington, where he is trying another case.

Jones told DeGuerin he had been driving his car, which had U.S. Postal service identification on it because he used it during his route, near the compound when he encountered a television photographer who appeared lost.

An armored vehicle loaded on a flatbed truck passes a Texas Department of Public Safety officer manning a checkpoint on a road near the destroyed Branch Davidian compound near Waco Thursday morning.

"The guy, looking nervous, said 'Are you really a mailman?'" DeGuerin said. Once Jones confirmed that he was, DeGuerin said the photographer warned Jones.

"He said 'There's going to be a big gunfight with these religious nuts over here. You better get out of here,'" the attorney said.

Jones then warned Koresh, who had his troops ready to ambush federal agents when they tried to arrest the cult leader for weapons violations. Investigators expect Jones' identity to be the first of many. They said Sunday they're confident they'll match names with 43 other corpses.

"They have a 90 percent probability of identifying the people that have been recovered," Pareya said.

Four more bodies have been located and are expected to be sent to medical examiners Monday.

"We feel very good about the fact that we're going to have a good response as far as the identity of the victims," he said.

Pareya also said any such announcement will come from peace justices and not lead medical examiner Dr. Nizam Peerwani. The doctor canceled a news conference scheduled for late Sunday afternoon in Fort Worth.

On Saturday, Peerwani told reporters gunshots killed two people — an adult male and an adult female — and three others died of smoke inhalation and carbon monoxide poisoning. He said further tests were needed before the final determinations could be made on a sixth victim.

Perot: Demand economic remedies

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Dallas billionaire Ross Perot returned to the airwaves Sunday night, urging television viewers nationwide to call the White House and demand tougher remedies for the nation's sluggish economy.

At the close of his 30-minute, paid program on NBC, the former independent-presidential candidate even flashed the White House telephone number on television screens and urged a torrent of calls to the administration.

"You've got to keep calling until you get through because this is really important," Perot told viewers.

And he asked them to contribute $15 to his organization, United We Stand America. "The money is spent on programs like this," he said.

Perot was critical of defense cuts and other administration policies. The program aired only hours after Perot appeared on NBC's "Meet the Press" and slammed President Clinton's economic plan, saying it would not adequately address the deficit and would create only temporary jobs.

He also said America must be cautious about military involvement in the former Yugoslavia because "you've got another Vietnam sitting over there." But he said aid to Russia should be increased.

Perot called the stimulus package — which failed last week in the face of a Republican filibuster — "a very poorly conceived" plan. He said it would have resulted in unneeded government spending and few permanent jobs.

He said it might have produced some temporary summer work, but that a real job "is working at a company for years, not getting a one-year pop."

Perot fended off questions on whether his economic proposals in the 1992 campaign would have required even higher and broader taxes than proposed by Clinton. He said that wasn't the issue.

"Nobody has taxed everybody better than the president is about to," said Perot. He said Americans have shown a willingness to pay higher taxes to reduce the deficit but that Clinton's approach does not adequately address deficit reduction.

"In terms of what he (Clinton) has proposed, it's how he's spending it. We're not balancing the budget. We're not paying the debt," said Perot. In his campaign, he called for a 50-cents-a-gallon tax on gasoline to erase the federal government's red ink.

On Bosnia, Perot said Europeans "ought to be taking the lead" and that even U.S. air strikes pose the dangers of American pilots being shot down and becoming prisoners.

"The last thing we should do is put our troops at risk on an undeclared war," said Perot.

"And keep in mind once you start flying air strikes, it's just a matter of time 'til somebody gets shot down. (Then) you've got your first POWs again."

Some U.S. lawmakers are urging military action, including Sen. Joseph R. Biden Jr., D-Del.

Cisneros promises help to El Paso residents

By The Associated Press

EL PASO — Pedro Madrid made no attempt to hide his pessimism.

On Sunday, he was standing in the colonia where HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros had just said he will seek aid for the impoverished housing subdivision and others like it. And Madrid was noting he's heard many other promises before.

"The people that come out here give people hope," Madrid said, "and then it diminishes."

Madrid was not convinced Cisneros' visit to the area would be the same. Though the colonia shop owner did set his own deadline for continuing to hold out hope.

"If I see change from here to ... October then I think he's definitely here to help," Madrid said. "If I don't see change by October, then it's going to be another eight years."

Cisneros was in El Paso Sunday on a fact-finding tour to assess the area's housing problems.

The visit included stops at a tenement and the colonia where Madrid owns a store. Colonias, which dot the U.S.-Mexico border, are generally low-income areas whose residents frequently lack water and sewage lines and other basic necessities.

Cisneros said he would be meeting with President Clinton today and would tell him there more funding and programs are needed for colonias.

He announced later during the convention of the El Paso Interreligious Sponsoring Organization that he was designating a post devoted to finding solutions for the colonias' problems.

The office's efforts will focus on finding new federal funds for the subdivisions, identifying new ways of getting necessary funding and ensuring states use the monies as designated, Cisneros said.

"The reality is people should not live in the conditions that I've seen today in parts of El Paso," he said.

Veronica Pinales, a factory worker, said she was gratified that Cisneros visited her housing project on El Paso's south side, one of the city's poorest areas and also one with the highest Hispanic population.

Ms. Pinales lives on the second story of an old building where tenants must draw water from an outdoor faucet outside and share communal toilets. She believes Cisneros' visit may eventually result in some positive changes.

"But some doubts remain. 'I hope they will improve conditions for us who live here,'" she said.

AIDS dare part of gang initiation

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Several 14- and 15-year-old girls have boasted about a dare they've taken to join one of San Antonio's largest gangs: having sex with male gang members who have tested positive for the AIDS virus. Planned Parenthood officials say.

Planned Parenthood counselors in San Antonio here have tested five girls over the past several months for acquired immune deficiency syndrome. The girls bragged of the dare while being tested, Planned Parenthood spokeswoman Jo Ann King-Sinnett said.

"The girls said they were dared to sleep with someone who said they were HIV-positive," King-Sinnett said.

"If the test came up negative, then it was like they were brave enough to have unprotected sex and they were tough enough and their body was tough enough to fight the disease."

None of the girls has tested positive yet, but the virus can sometimes take months after a sexual encounter to show up on a test.

Norma Velasco, a counselor at the organization's clinic, said she has encountered the initiation rite in only one San Antonio gang. However, that gang is believed to be the largest in the city, with hundreds of members.

"It just goes to show you their mental capacity, that they think they are invincible and it won't happen to them," said Norma Velasco, a counselor at the organization's clinic.

Missing boy believed found

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities believe skeletal remains found in a clump of woods in far southwest Houston may be the body of a 9-year-old boy who has been missing since August.

A group of teen-agers playing in the woods found the remains Saturday afternoon, police said.

Some articles of clothing were found near the bones, but investigators said they will not know the sex or estimated age until after an autopsy.

They said the body appears to have been in the woods for months. However, the remains appear to be that of a child and investigators will compare them with the dental records of David Kazmouz, who has been missing since Aug. 19.

Kazmouz was playing at a friend's house and was last seen by the neighbor when he left to go home.

No protest-free weekend for neighbors

DALLAS (AP) — Neighbors of obstetrician Norman Tompkins had hoped a court injunction against some anti-abortion activists would give them a weekend free of protests.

"We're tired of it," said neighbor Dick Fogel. "It's a real circus around here."

Dear Jax, If you rub the powder off a butterfly's wings, will it really die?

More than they seem

WHAT YOU NEED: Paper - scissors - tape - crayons

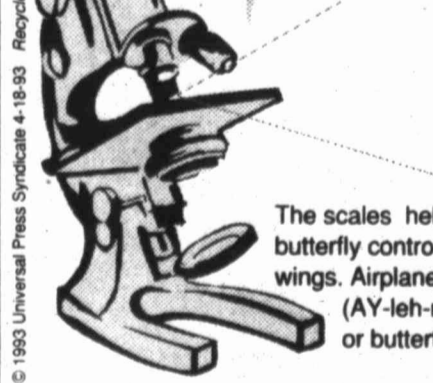

WHAT TO DO: Cut lots of circles. Make them the size of a big coin, like a half-dollar. Then cut them in half. Color them any color you like.

MORE STUFF TO DO:

Tape a row of the half-circles across the bottom of another piece of paper. Start a new row above the first, moved over just a bit, like in this drawing. Keep going until the paper is filled. If you like, use the colors to make a pattern.

butterflies - up close & personal

Some schools have microscopes. Some do not. If your school has one, take a moth or a butterfly to class to inspect under the lens. You'll think you're looking at a rooftop covered with shingles. The scales are only on the wing tops.

The scales help the moth or butterfly control the way air flows over its wings. Airplanes use flaps called ailerons (AY-leh-ronz) to do the same thing. If moths or butterflies can't fly right, they can't live - so they die.

Dear Joe & Shelley, That's practically a childhood legend. Everyone has heard that you'd kill a butterfly (or a moth) if you rubbed the powder from its wings. But hardly anyone knows why it's actually true.

That powder is really tiny little shingles all over the wings - like scales. Without them, the moth or butterfly cannot control its flying. It dies because we've accidentally taken away its ability to find food and shelter.

This is a terrific thing to do a report on at school. You Can even make a model of a moth or butterfly wing out of just paper and tape.

Jax Place
Jax Place

SO WHAT: Take your project to school and see if anyone can figure out what it's supposed to be. Tell them it's a butterfly wing. When they say you must be really dumb, pull out an encyclopedia and show them a picture to prove it. Blow air over the wing. What happens?

World economy not improving

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world economy, after suffering through two years of dismal growth, will fare little better in 1993 as unexpectedly severe recessions in Japan and Europe continue to retard growth, the International Monetary Fund is predicting.

The IMF's new economic forecast, due to be released officially on Monday, highlights the dangers facing the fragile economic recovery underway in the United States.

While America is expected to perform better than any other major economic power this year, economists are worried that the subdued U.S. recovery is at risk from weakness in the world's two other economic superpowers — Japan and Germany.

The sluggish global economy, rising trade tensions between the economic superpowers and efforts to tie up the loose ends on a $28.4 billion economic aid package for Russia are at the top of the agenda as the IMF and its sister lending agency, the World Bank, hold their annual spring meeting this week in Washington.

A senior IMF official, who briefed reporters on the upcoming discussions on condition that his name not be used, characterized the current global economy as "bad, still bad and it could be worse."

While praising the new Clinton administration for taking steps to cut the federal deficit, he said more would have to be done and suggested that the administration should intensify its discussions on a Value Added Tax, a form of national sales tax, as one of the best ways the country could boost its international competitiveness.

After march reality returns

WASHINGTON (AP) — For one day in one place, gays cherished the freedom to be themselves. But after marching hundreds of thousands strong through the nation's capital, they return home still facing discrimination and scorn.

"The only thing we're asking for is the same thing everyone else wants," said Eustacia Smith, 25, of New York, who hopes one day to marry her lesbian partner legally. "Nothing more, nothing less."

Hundreds of thousands of gay men and women streamed across the National Mall on Sunday, demanding an end to legal discrimination against them while reveling in the bond and support of a common cause.

They marched and chanted and kissed and stretched out on the grass together on a sunny, summery day.

Organizers, often alluding to the civil rights movement of the 1960s, exhorted participants to take the day's message — "a simple matter of justice" — back to hometowns across America.

"We won't compromise our freedom. We won't negotiate our freedom away so those who have freedom can be more comfortable," said David Mixer, a Los Angeles business consultant and fund-raiser who has advised President Clinton on gay issues.

Gays of every description covered the Mall — parents and children, black and white, flamboyant and dignified. There were people in wheelchairs, and a separate group of marchers with AIDS.

Sessions a no show

WASHINGTON (AP) — FBI Director William Sessions — not the Justice Department — decided to cancel his appearance on a television news program to discuss the end of the standoff with cult leader David Koresh, an agency spokesman said.

Sunday's appearance on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley" had not yet been firmed up, and the cancellation "was Director Sessions's decision and his decision alone," FBI spokesman Barry Smith said.

"He felt at this point in time it would be inappropriate to appear and discuss the (Waco cult) issues given that it might adversely impact any prosecution of the case," Smith said.

At the beginning of Sunday's show, Brinkley said Sessions' superiors had ordered him not to appear.

"Williams Sessions, the director of the FBI, was announced as being here with us this morning for an interview, and he announced he would come," Brinkley said. "Late yesterday, the Department of Justice ordered him not to come. We do not know why."

At the conclusion of the show, presumably after some contact with Sessions, Brinkley said the FBI director "wants us to know that it was his idea not to come today, and he was not ordered to do so."

Serbs reject U.N. peace plan

By The Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Bosnian Serbs' self-styled parliament rejected a U.N. peace plan for Bosnia on Monday, virtually inviting tougher sanctions on Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

The assembly, meeting in Bijeljina, Bosnia, followed the lead of Radovan Karadzic, the Bosnian Serb leader who rejected the plan Sunday in a meeting with European Community negotiator David Owen.

The move came despite increasing pressure from Yugoslav leaders, including Serbian President Slobodan Milosevic, who sent a dramatic letter to the assembly early Monday urging it to approve the plan.

"This is not the moment to compete in patriotism. This is the moment for a far-sighted and brave decision," the Tanjug news agency quoted a message from the Yugoslav and Serbian leaders as saying.

The Serbs met overnight because they believed the sanctions took effect at midnight New York time.

But the U.N. Security Council in New York, after concluding that its deadline was vague, agreed last week that the sanctions would take effect at 6:01 a.m. (12:01 a.m. EDT) Tuesday, said U.N. spokeswoman Marian Holk. Yugoslavia, now made up of Serbia and Montenegro, is accused of backing the Bosnian Serb offensive, to help create a "Greater Serbia."

The sanctions include: freezing Yugoslav state and private funds in overseas banks; prohibiting Yugoslav ships from U.N. members' territory; detaining those ships, trains and aircraft already abroad; and blockading Yugoslav goods on the vital Danube River.

The United States and its Western European allies also planned to consult next week about the option of strikes on Bosnian Serb positions if the Serbs continue to oppose the plan.

Karadzic was grim as he arrived in Bijeljina to report to the Bosnian Serb assembly before the vote.

"If World War III erupts, it will be because of the Vance-Owen plan," he told reporters.

Still, in an hour-long speech to the assembly, Karadzic repeatedly warned of the serious consequences of rejecting the plan.

"We have to consider seriously the possibility of military intervention," Karadzic told deputies. "We are openly threatened, and there will be most serious pressure on our brothers in Yugoslavia if we don't sign."

"If we don't accept ... the people must be prepared to eat little. And we must switch to war economy," he said.

The deputies applauded the out-of-the-meeting fighting back tears and saying the U.N. plan should have been more seriously considered.

The peace plan calls for Bosnia to be split along ethnic lines into 10 semi-autonomous provinces, with each ethnic group a majority in three of the provinces. They would share the 10th which includes Sarajevo.

Bosnian Muslims and Croats already have signed.

Bosnian Serbs, however, want a map that would make the provinces under their control contiguous and connect them with Serbia and Serb-held areas of Croatia into a "Greater Serbia."

Karadzic said Owen offered no major concessions and demanded acceptance of terms calling for a multi-ethnic central Bosnian government — something the Serbs oppose.

In return, Owen offered only "minor" changes to the map the Serbs have rejected, Karadzic said.

Also present at the meeting with Owen were Milosevic, Yugoslav federal president Dobrica Cosic, and Momir Bulatovic, president of tiny Montenegro.

Sources close to the meeting said the others spent much of their time trying to convince Karadzic to accept the plan.

Owen stormed out of a meeting with Karadzic on Saturday but agreed to return to Belgrade on Sunday after giving Milosevic, the chief backer of Bosnian Serb fighters, time to exert pressure on Karadzic.

The Muslim-led Bosnian government says at least 134,000 people have died or are missing in the year-long war. The Serbs have captured about 70 percent of Bosnia since it seceded from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

In other developments Sunday: —U.N. helicopters were evacuating the last of the seriously wounded from Srebrenica where a cease-fire took effect a week ago after months of Serb siege, to Tuzla, 40 miles to the northwest.

—A Security Council delegation headed by Ambassador Diego Arria of Venezuela visited Srebrenica. Arria refused to say whether he would recommend military intervention, but spoke emotionally of the horrors he saw. "If we don't watch out, this could become slow-motion genocide," he told reporters in Muslim-held Tuzla.

—U.N. officials in Sarajevo said Croat-Muslim fighting diminished. But Croat militia spokesman Veso Vigar said fighting continued around Busovaca, 25 miles northwest of Sarajevo.

In the war, a U.S.-led coalition pushed Iraqi troops from the oil-rich emirate after an eight-month occupation.

The all-expenses-paid visit, dubbed Desert Peace, was organized by a group of more than 30 Kuwaiti and American companies and organizations in cooperation with the two governments.

The visit comes on the heels of a tremendous welcome Kuwaitis gave to former President Bush, who is considered a war hero in the emirate.

Clinton's health care reform legislation could be in congressional jeopardy

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's effort to enact health care reform legislation this year is in jeopardy, say an increasing number of lawmakers, the result of the sheer enormity of the task, its controversial nature and inevitable turf struggles in Congress.

"I refuse to give up hope. ... But if we can't do it this year, we'll do as much as we can and wrap it up next year," said Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on health.

"It's going to be difficult," said House Ways and Means Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill. "If it involves an increase in revenue, it's tough."

Clinton's measure is widely expected to call for higher taxes to finance health coverage for 36 million uninsured Americans.

Clinton is expected to unveil his health care plan in May — later than his initial target date of May 1 — although the administration has yet to say when formal legislation will be drafted.

The president was emphatic in a nationally televised speech to Congress on Feb. 17 about when he wanted it passed.

"All of our efforts to strengthen the economy will fail" if action is not taken this year, he said. "Not next year, not five years from now but this year."

Since then, however, several senior administration officials have acknowledged Clinton is unlikely to get his wish. The officials, speaking privately, said the White House hopes to generate public demand for action this year when Clinton unveils his package and travels the country promoting it.

On Sunday, Clinton vowed in a speech to newspaper publishers to "bust a gut" fighting for enactment of a far-reaching national health care program. "We cannot go on ignoring the fundamental problems," he said. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, initially wanted to make the health bill part of this year's tax bill in the hope of speeding it through Congress.

But two key lawmakers, Rostenkowski and Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, objected. The idea was swiftly dropped.

Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole told reporters last week: "It's not going to pass this year. Nobody has the votes. They don't have the votes."

Dole, who led the GOP filibuster that killed Clinton's jobs bill, has called for a bipartisan measure on health care.

Democrats are reluctant to be quite as blunt, at least on the record. "If we can get it done this year we will," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said late last month.

Another top House Democrat, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the majority leadership now would be satisfied with health-care action any time within the 103rd Congress, which runs through 1994.

Democrats who have long pushed health care reform are annoyed at naysayers within their own party.

"These people ... are positioning themselves as skeptics to be in a neutral position so they can be in a better negotiating position," said Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va.

Clinton "is a practical person. He's a superb salesman. He hasn't even started yet on health care," Rockefeller said. "Take away the president, take away the Congress, the American people are mad, fed up and disgusted with this all by themselves."

Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, also scolded his colleagues for predicting doom about Clinton's chances this year.

Dingell said he considers the subject the most "complex, technical, political and substantial" he'd ever encounter. But "we have passed virtually impossible legislation under very narrow and limited time constraints, and I see no reason we can't do it with this issue."

Waxman and other hard-core advocates of health care reform are worried that delays will make the president's package tougher to pass.

"I'm afraid of all the special interest groups that are going to attack it and pull it apart if the Clinton proposal is sitting out there too long," Waxman said.

At least a dozen panels — which means a dozen chairmen with a dozen ideas about what should be done — are vying for a chunk of the measure. The big ones that will have a say are the House Ways and Means, Energy and Commerce, Judiciary and Education and Labor committees.

As for the Senate, one White House official said Clinton hopes to attract the votes of moderate Republicans committed to health care reform.

The test will be if the White House can find enough of them to forestall the minority from a death-knell filibuster.

Republican senators who succeeded in bottling up Clinton's jobs bill say health care is a different story, and the president's efforts to court their views and allow room for compromise will be key.

"It shouldn't be ideological," said Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo. "It should not be a sense that the administration is blessed with the geniuses who have all the answers and it's up to the boobs in Congress to pass the bill."

Sometimes it seems the problem with drugs is just not going to go away. It doesn't seem to matter how much money we throw at it, trying to stop the flow of the drugs into the United States.

Three dates outline Mexico's history

1810, 1862 and 1891 - Three years outlining history and forecasting the future. Sept. 16, 1810, is remembered as the day the fight for Mexico's independence from Spain began with a passionate speech by a priest named Miguel Hidalgo y Costilla at the foot of his church's steps in Dolores.

speaking to people in something other than their native tongue. To decrease the discomfort level, the local office has five claim representatives who are bilingual and one representative who is fluent in American Sign Language.

In 1862 on May 5 the Mexican Army, under the command of General Ignacio Zaragoza, began fighting for their independence from the French, winning the battle of Puebla against the French army.

The battles of Puebla and Mexico City did not mark the end. After capturing Mexico City, the French sent Archduke Maximilian of Austria and his wife Carlotta of Belgium to reign over Mexico.

Cinco de Mayo is celebrated in commemoration of the fight for independence from French rule. It was not until 1867 that Mexico won its independence.

Less than 30 years later, F.S. Gomez and Telesforo Fierro traveled from Mexico to West Texas to fight a different battle - an economic fight against poverty and oppression.

Telesforo Fierro is first noted in the Howard County Tax Office records in 1891, when he purchased a small parcel of land on the north-side. But relatives say Telesforo and his father were traveling across the West Texas prairie long before the last decade of the 18th century.

In 1886, F.S. Gomez at the age of 22 had a photograph taken in San Angelo. By 1905, Gomez had opened several northside businesses, including Gomez Hall and Gomez Grocery.

For a night and sometimes a week-end, the lives of the brave men in Pueblo and other battlegrounds in Mexico came together with the lives of those adventuring in West Texas, seeking a better life for their children and their children's children.

When a claim is denied, it is sometimes best to have a representative when filing for a decision hearing before an administrative law judge. A list of representatives who do not charge is available at the local office.

If a representative is needed, SSA claims representative are available free of charge or private firms providing the same services for a fee. A private firm may deduct up to 25 percent of the claimant's back pay for services rendered.

The best thing for a claimant to do is shop around and find out what a representative is willing to do. If a contract is signed, read it carefully to determine what the terms are.

Panning the movie critics

Lewis Grizzard

Editor's Note: While Lewis Grizzard recovers from heart surgery, previously run columns will be used. I've always been a little wary of movie critics both in print and on television.

The problem with most movie critics is that they look at movies with an eye that often is too technical. They get all heated up about photographic angles, weaknesses in the script, believability of the actors and actresses and whether or not they can convince their bosses to send them back to the Cannes Film Festival this year, with the economy the way it is.

I see a lot of movies. Basically it's because I like popcorn.

I know I would have popcorn at home, but there's no place where the aroma of popcorn nails you right in your olfactory like a movie theater.

Most everybody liked "Fried Green Tomatoes," even the harshest of critics.

I heard a grown man who went to see it say, "I cried like a baby."

I enjoyed it, too. My grandmother used to cook fried green tomatoes. But let's look at movie critics and two other movies, which critics always refer to as "films."

I read ten reviews that said "Grand Canyon" was a wonderful movie, and also I read several reviews that said "Shining Through" was a piece of cinematic garbage.

If the critics praise a movie, I seldom like it. The critics thought "Kiss of the Spider Woman" was a good movie. I hadn't even finished my popcorn when I got up and walked out on that dog.

And rarely if the critics pan a movie do I not think it was terrific. I tested this theory by going to see both "Grand Canyon," which the critics loved, and "Shining Through," which they thumbed down.

Nothing had changed. "Grand Canyon" was sort of a "Kiss of the Spider Woman" from hell.

Here are a few of the things that were wrong with it. It was boring. It was depressing.

It was about how awful it is to live in Los Angeles.

When I attend a movie, I don't want to be bored nor depressed, and I already knew everybody in Los Angeles would be a little happier if they moved to Whistletop, Ala., and ate some fried green tomatoes.

Not even Kevin Kline nor Danny Glover, two of my favorite actors, could keep me from an occasional doze. Then, I went to see "Shining Through" with Michael Douglas and Melanie Griffith.

What a great movie. Nazis. Spies. Mystery. Intrigue. Blood. Trains. A surprise ending. The critics said Melanie Griffith was terrible in her role as a spy and as lover of her boss Michael Douglas.

If I were looking for a lover and a fellow spy person, Melanie Griffith would be my first choice.

I suppose you might be saying, "Well, by expressing such thoughts, doesn't that make you a movie critic, too? Why should I believe you and not full-time movie critics?"

I'll tell you why. Unlike full-time movie critics, I look only at the enjoyment factor. I don't care how well-crafted a movie is. If it's not enjoyable, it's a dud in my book, not to be confused with Milk Duds, which I sometimes buy to eat with my popcorn.

That's usually the problem with experts in any field. They are too picky and too hard to please.

Go see, "Shining Through." Avoid "Grand Canyon" like the heartbreak of psoriasis.

Meanwhile, I'm off to the Spartanburg Film Festival. A report on Francis the Talking Mule's comeback attempt when I return.

Patchwork habeas corpus

Scripps Howard News Service

Habeas corpus - often the basis for challenges to the constitutionality of criminal convictions - is Latin for "you have the body." But who has the code book? Two recent decisions prove that the Supreme Court's habeas corpus philosophy remains pretty much indecipherable.

In a Michigan murder case, Withrow vs. Williams, the high court ruled 5-4 that state prisoners may launch appeals to federal courts on the ground that police failed to recite their "Miranda rights" - to remain silent, to call a lawyer, etc. Prisoners may petition the federal bench, the majority stated, even if state appellate courts have found their Miranda entreaties baseless.

In dissent, Justice Antonin Scalia rightly observed that his colleagues' ruling "mocked" the competence of state courts. (In Withrow, the Michigan Court of Appeals had rejected the prisoner's claim that he wasn't read his rights.) What's more, the decision logically clashes with the Supreme Court's 1976 ruling in Stone vs. Powell. There, federal judges were barred from hearing habeas corpus petitions from state prisoners alleging conviction through tainted evidence - if the prisoners had had a fair chance to make that case before a state court.

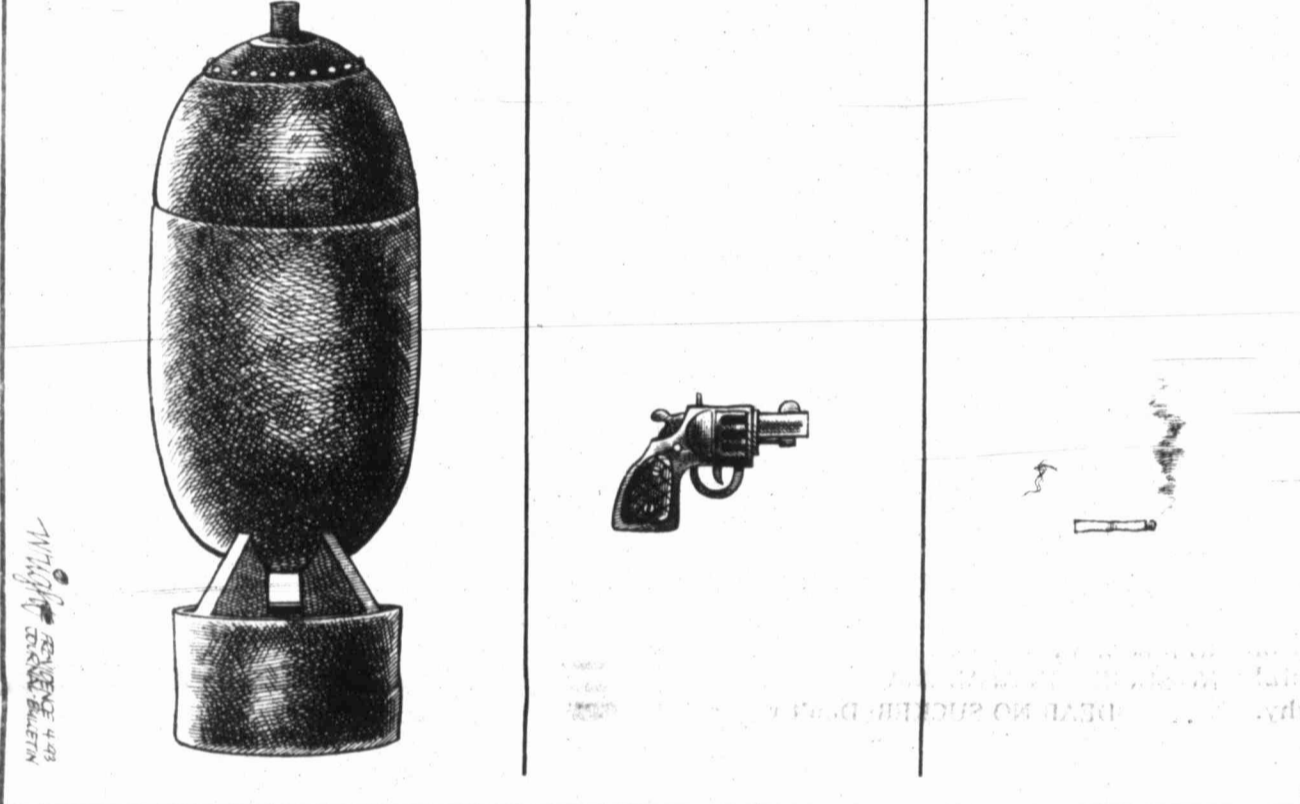

The high court's later decision suggests, then, that some habeas corpus rights - those automatically meriting federal review - are more equal than others.

The jurists weren't quite finished mystifying, however. Right along with the expansive Withrow decree, a different five-justice majority came down for trimming habeas corpus rights in a Wisconsin homicide case, Brecht vs. Abrahamson.

Here, the court decided that constitutional errors in state trials can't invalidate a conviction unless the prisoner can prove that the mistakes had a "substantial and injurious effect" on the verdict. But shouldn't a presumption of innocence be paramount? Since the state sullied the proceedings, it seems to us the state should have to demonstrate that its error was harmless.

So the court flipped and flopped and managed to flummox almost everyone, including Justice Byron White, who lamented in Brecht, "Our habeas corpus jurisprudence is taking on the appearance of a confused patchwork." These may have been the wisest words of the day.

Checking out the freak show

VALLEY, Ala. - The 16-ton whale prostrate in the refrigerator truck looked flat and misshapen. A sign explained:

"This sign is covering an incision where 13 tons were removed to prepare this whale for freezing."

It was a glorious spring day. Except maybe for Willy the Whale, on ice since June 1966, headliner of a freak show of big trucks circled at the edge of a shopping center parking lot.

"See Willy the Whale. Frozen since 1966." The signs were in bold blue and white, and the truck was purring. You had the feeling that if something went wrong with the diesel, the whole world would smell like a fish market.

But for the rest of us creatures great and small - alive to breathe the crisp air, romp an earth airbrushed in azalea pink and do perverse things like pay to see nature's bloopers in a ripoff rodeo - it was a nice day.

For $2.50 you could visit all four of the politically incorrect exhibits. The collection seemed almost like the forbidden parts of the fair when I was a child, where the barkers looked sinister and half-naked women/apes creatures were painted on signs. Somewhere along the way those carnival attractions disappeared, replaced with more sanitized thrills: big vats of plastic balls in which children jumped, high-tech adult rides like weightlessness machines.

But here in the Valley it was 1955 again, and the world was a simpler, crueler place.

"Please pay at the snakes," a sign at the first booth instructed, and so I wandered over to the truck with cartoon figures of men with snakes wrapped around massive forearms.

Rheta Grimsley Johnson

Inside there were no strong men, just two small children gazing at a pile of pythons, wide as flat tires and about as active. One was shedding - a snake, not a child - an embarrassing bit of personal grooming on public display.

In the snake truck you could buy "The Lord's Prayer on A Penny" from a bubble gum machine. I figured I'd already contributed enough to this outfit.

I didn't stay long with the snakes. There are others to worry about the humane treatment of pythons. They weren't as pitiful as the next stop, anyway, the giant steer Big Jimbo.

Jimbo sat with his broad gray back to his visitors, his bulk and smells sealed behind glass.

Any medium-sized cow would have looked huge in the cramped quarters, but this bovine giant, the sign said, was not just any cow. He was 6 feet tall and 12 feet long, or the equivalent of 12,000 quarter pounders. (Pure science always excites me.)

Each day Jimbo eats 30 pounds of grain, a bale of hay and drinks 50 gallons of water, or so they said.

While I was sharing the truck, Jimbo just sat there, looking bored. Probably wondering when his next helping of grain was coming.

In the next truck Geronimo the miniature stallion stood a mere 24 inches high and weighed only 126 pounds. Unlike Jimbo, Geronimo had room to move around. On the wall were three horseshoes: one from a draft horse, another from a quarter horse and then Geronimo's, about the size of a nail head. The children from the snake exhibit darted in, looked, ran out. Small horses are a dime a dozen these days.

All the exhibits paled compared to Willy the Whale, which shared a freezer with Della the Dolphin, a black, deflated-looking animal. It was either the worst case of freezer burn in history, or Della hadn't been much of a specimen ever.

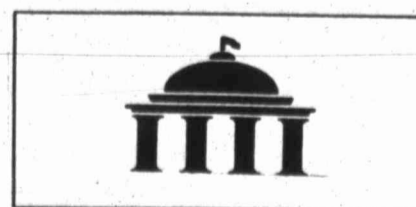

At Willie's mouth was yet another obnoxious sign, this one proclaiming "42 teeth of Pure Ivory, Value of Ivory $5,000." Along the whale's leathery back were scattered a lobster, a few shark teeth and other tidbits from the deep. Here, on the red clay banks of the Chattahoochee River, the whale carcass splattered like a bad dream.

I couldn't help but imagine the ribbing Willy's driver must take at truck stops. He must get sick of jokes about frozen fish sticks.

The whole tour took less than 10 minutes, but then I didn't stop to buy any cotton candy. I left the circle of trucks, where speakers were blaring what sounded like a pre-recorded "live" radio broadcast.

There are, I decided, worse entertainments than television. May the freak show and its country cousins rest in peace.

DEAR ABBY: My unmarried, college-educated daughter is a high school teacher in her mid-30s. She hit me up for a $5,000 loan as the down payment on a house she wanted to buy. Knowing that she has a long history of improperly managing her financial affairs, I refused, and told her why.

about where my next meal is coming from. Well, her mother gave her the money without consulting me, and I am angry. Am I justified in being angry with both my daughter and my wife? — NO SUCKER IN ALABAMA

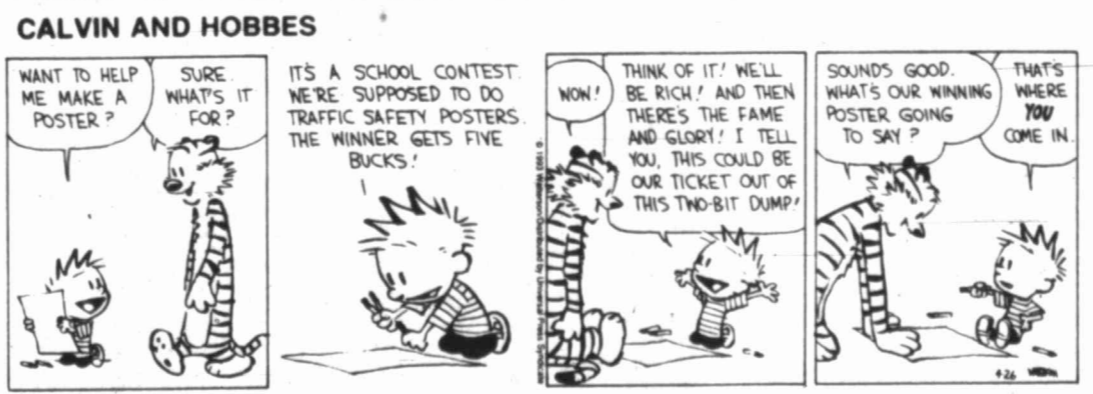

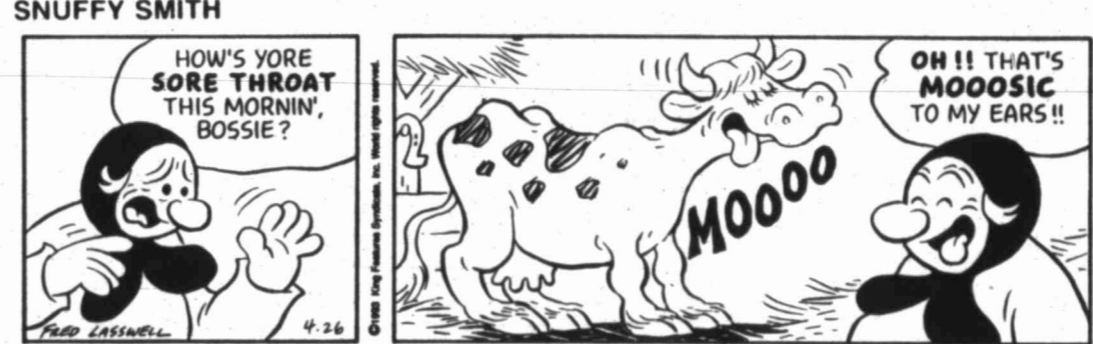

I am the son of a sharecropper who grew up during the Great Depression days. I learned to deny myself many material things I wanted in order to have financial security. This is something my daughter never learned. She impulsively buys anything that strikes her fancy, with no thought of saving for a rainy day.

A schoolteacher in her mid-30s should be responsible for her own welfare without asking her parents to bail her out. Parents should present a united front. I suggest you have a heart-to-heart talk with your wife about caving in to your daughter's requests for money, because this situation is likely to arise again and again — as the cost of maintaining a house is perpetual.

Volunteers honored

Among those given special honors at Thursday's VA Medical Center Volunteer Recognition Banquet were: Carol Trevino, with the American Legion, honored with a 6,250 hour pin; Sam Myers, of the DAV, honored with an 8,750 hour pin; Lila Holland, DAV, recognized for 12,043 hours of work and 19 years of service; and Martha Moody, Red Cross and Gold Star Mothers, recognized for 38 years of service and 22,865 hours of volunteerism.

Commissioners meet

Howard County Commissioners Court is scheduled to meet Monday at 9 a.m. at the courthouse.
A request for appointment as representative to establish extended area telephone service from Forsan to Big Spring is among six items on the agenda.
Also on the agenda: subscription requisition for the library, budget amendments, bills, purchase requests and approval of minutes for the last meeting.

The Big Spring City Council meets Tuesday at 5 p.m. in Building 1106 in Big Spring McMahon Wrinkle Airpark.

Among items for consideration: appointments to board of Colorado River Municipal Water District, resolution amending city personnel policy to address sexual harassment, issuance of $2.6 million in bonds for Beal's Creek flood control project.

Absentee voting slow

With less than two days left for early voting, local voting is slow.
As of this morning 584, 3.69 percent of registered county voters, voted in the senate races and special election for three constitutional amendments proposing to restructure school finance.

Citywide elections for two contested district council seats is even slower. As of Friday, 30 voted in District 3, 2.2 percent of 13,045 registered. In District 1, 12 voted, .8 percent of 14,070 registered.

Early voting ends Tuesday at 5 p.m. The state ballot and school board races for Big Spring and Coahoma are at the Howard County Courthouse. City ballots are at city hall.
Polls for state, school and city elections will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday.

Police

The Big Spring Police Department reported the following arrests:
• Jerry Field Badlock, 21, of Big Spring was arrested and charged with parole violation.
• Michael L. Smith, 38, of Howard County was arrested on local warrants.
• Stacy Quinn Perry, 17, of Howard County was arrested on local warrants.
Police also reported the following incidents:

Balloons

Williams said he makes most of his stops at festivals, flea markets and businesses, filling requests for his art.

His past and present travels have taken him through 12 states, including New Mexico, Colorado, Utah, Washington, Georgia and West Virginia.

Through the years, he has been a taxi driver, waiter, massage therapist and carpenter as well as a part-time student.

He added he accumulated 165 hours in 11 different colleges and universities across the country, including the University of Texas at Austin.

"I just studied whatever sounded interesting," he said. "I never even got any degrees."
Williams, who is unmarried, added obtaining a degree would not come close to the fulfillment of his current occupation.
"I would love to meet someone who wants to travel with me - save up enough money and travel to Europe," he said. "I just want to travel around the world doing balloons."

Collections help him keep track

By CONNIE SWINNEY
Staff Writer

At 77 years old, J.R. "Dick" Piper finished his 40-year career in civil service just this year, but he's not retiring from one of his all-time favorite jobs — umpiring local Little League baseball, in a youth sports management career spanning 35 years.

"(The baseball officials) keep wanting to know if I'm coming back, and I tell them if the good Lord keeps giving me good health, I'll be there," he said. "I've always wanted to work closely with kids. I just enjoy working with them."

Piper, who served in World War II in the U.S. Army Air Corps, was born in 1916 in Austin. He hails from a family whose pioneer roots were planted in Big Spring in the early 1900s.

His enthusiasm for involvement in sports mirrors his dedication to his postal job, which he started in 1952.

As the war came to an end, Piper's stepfather, A. E. "Preach" True, called his son to come home as his mother, Myrtle, became ill.

"My father was working at the post office, and I tended to the farm (starting in 1945)," said Piper, one of five siblings. Later, Piper worked for an oil field company and the city fire department.

"I decided I wanted to have a career in the postal service. I knew it would be a good civil service job," he said. "When you go to work for some public service everyday, you get out on the street and you get to meet a lot of people."

Piper said he felt he was pretty fortunate to have gained employment from the U.S. Postal Service in Big Spring.

"Back in the 1930s and 1940s, jobs were pretty scarce," he added. "It was pretty hard to get a decent job. You had to take just about any job you could get."

Being recognized for decades of civil and military service, Piper received many awards. One award cited him for "... your unselfish attitude; your willingness to assist others and your dedication to the community."

Those words, Piper says, guided him in different aspects of his life. Other notable awards include an Expert Driver Award and a commendation from the National Association of Letter Carriers.

Piper's passion for preserving mementos through the years has resulted in a collection of items, including a post card collection, started in 1941; a Brooklyn newspaper, announcing the bombing of Pearl Harbor a week after the actual event; British currency from one of his military stations; and military materials like his uniform, hats and even the iron he used to press them.

"I still keep in touch with two friends' sisters that I met in 1941," he said.

Other items include an October 1945 Big Spring Herald, including the history of the World War II; a musical art collection he received while he was serving; and a collection of poems, written by his late wife, Dorothy, who died in 1985.

He married his wife in Big Spring in 1947, and they had five children: Henri, Jim, Lucy, Jo Anna and Jackie. Piper has one grandson and five great grandchildren.

He said family has played an important role in his life.

"When I married, I wanted to have a good family and raise them right," he said. "I've been blessed that none of them have had any bad problems."

The long-time churchgoer has been a member of Trinity Baptist Church since 1949.

Beside church and family, Piper said he can reflect on the physical impact being a mail carrier has had on his life. "I was trying to deliver the mail as it should be delivered — how, when and where it should be delivered," he said. "Just like the men I have worked with through the years, I have always prided myself on properly delivering the mail."

In the last 10 years, Piper has kept physically fit by doing household carpentry, plumbing, electrical work, painting and house additions like a closed-in porch.

"It's because of delivering mail that I have been able to be kept in such good shape all these years," Piper added. "(Delivering the mail) kept me continually active."

Natural disasters important part of area history

In 1938, Charles Dempsey of Forsan was brave enough to focus and shoot a photograph of an approaching storm. This storm had worsened until, as Dempsey's photograph shows, a tornado developed, endangering the town.

The path of the tornado took it from the Gulf lease at Forsan to Coahoma. It narrowly missed the Dempsey home and headed toward the Texas Tool and Machine Company's plant where it destroyed a tool shed.

Storms of this intensity are a continuous threat to the residents of West Texas. And, with dire predictions of our deteriorating earthy stability, such danger is a surety to worsen. Or is it? No doubt the future holds many droughts, floods, sandstorms, and similar disasters, but we will be prepared and aware of our dangers through the marvels of science and the broadcast media. It is in the past where the elements created catastrophes with little warning and no concern for humanity.

In an article in the 1949 Big Spring Herald on Sunday, October 2, a story appeared telling of the arrival of newcomers to Big Spring in 1886. Their first experience was cowboys laughing at them as a dust storm struck and the wind whipped the girls' shirts, and "Mrs. Everley's hat sailed away on a high wind. Her hat was found the next day in the cemetery..."

Dust storms were furious and appeared as moving walls churning toward the town.

A famous photograph of an approaching storm in 1884 shows the Bauer house silhouetted against a tidal wave of dust. The town awaits the storm in the foreground. Another such storm in 1894 darkened the skies so much that residents were forced to, "light the lamps at 5 p.m."

Local humorist Shine Phillips wrote of sandstorms in his book Big Spring. "A blackout has nothing on a sandstorm for anonymity, and people have been known to ride right on through Big Spring, following the road, without ever knowing the town was there."

Floods were just as bad. Even after the flooding of 1986, probably the worst flood in Big Spring's recorded history occurred July 24 through 26, 1902. Sulphur Draw filled with water, and the trail yards became a "roaring river a half mile wide." Businesses along First Street and up Main were ruined in the swell. The rainfall that year was recorded at 27.28 inches, much of it no doubt coming in July.

The records of these events are easy to locate because of their newsworthiness during their day. The museum maintains a number of photographs of floods, oil fires, sandstorms and more.

But we are always interested in obtaining more of these photograph records. If you have photographs you would like to donate to the museum, or allow us to copy, please call 267-8255. It's a great way to let your name become a part of recorded history.

Man's performance found truly moo-ving

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — There was only one way to describe Ed Burman's performance Wednesday at Carnegie Hall: utterly moo-ving.

On a stage lit by chandeliers and piled with haystacks, Burman won a competition billed as the first ever "National Moo-Off" with his impersonation of a "cow with anxiety that's waiting for food."

Burman, 41, a beer distributor salesman from Fallston,

Md., was among five faux cows picked as finalists in the contest promoting a spread called "Move Over Butter."

The other finalists were Joseph Dart, 75, a retired firefighter from Boston; Vance Jones, 36, a building mechanic from Dallas; and Ted Atkinson, 32, a newspaper delivery man from Seattle.

More than 100,000 people took up the company's offer to call an 800 number and try to win a trip for two to Maui by recording their best moos.

Burman picked up the phone and drew on childhood experience.

"I used to sit around the dining room table and entertain my brothers with all kinds of sounds," he said.

The company's marketing department picked Burman and four other regional winners, flying them to New York. On Wednesday morning, they gathered at Carnegie Hall's Weill Recital Hall before a small crowd and a panel of judges that included a professional baritone.

Steers, Andrews to battle Tuesday

By MIKE BUTTS
Sports Editor

Baseball fans who like plenty of plots and subplots with their games should get their fill Tuesday. That's when Big Spring plays the Andrews Mustangs at 5 p.m. at Steer Park. Here are some of the game's many highlights:

- The contest could decide the district 3-4A championship. The teams are tied for first at 8-1 coming in, 2 1/2 games ahead of third-place Lake View (5-3).

•The revenge factor for Andrews couldn't be greater. The Mustangs only lost in the last 13 games was to Big Spring in the teams' first district meeting March 30. In its first seven district games Andrews averaged over eight runs, not counting when Big Spring shut them out in Andrews 1-0. The Mustangs have scored 12 runs twice and nine runs once in their last five games.

•I think Big Spring is probably the biggest game they've had since they played us last," Steer coach Bobby Doe said.

•With a 2 1/2 game lead for a playoff spot, the Steers are all but assured of a post-season berth. Doe says the Andrews game will give the Steers an idea of how they could do in the playoffs.

"They're the most well-rounded team in the district," Doe said.

The Steers will most likely see senior righthander Jason Matthews again. Matthews tossed a three-hitter against Big Spring the first time the teams played. He is 5-2.

Although primarily a fastball thrower, Doe expects Matthews to mix up his pitches more against Big Spring. The Steers generally hit the fastball better.

"We'll be looking for a lot of breaking pitches," Doe said. "Matthews threw a lot of breaking pitches last time. So we'll be working on (that today)."

With Andrews' recent offensive surge, Doe feels his team needs to hold the Mustangs' scoring down.

"I think we have to keep them probably below four runs for us to win the game," Doe said. "We should hit their pitching and I think we should score more than three."

The Steers last played the Mustangs under the lights in Andrews. Doe said he expects Tuesday's game to have more scoring because of its daylight playing time.

Big Spring has a nine-day break after the Andrews game. So it will have no reason to hold back any of its pitchers.

"We're going to throw everybody we can Tuesday," Doe said.

Quarterbacks go 1-2 in NFL draft

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — If there was a change in the NFL draft in the first year of free agency, it was a subtle one.

After quarterbacks went 1-2 in Sunday's draft for the first time in 22 years, teams got down to the basics. As in most years, the big guys went quickly — a half dozen offensive linemen in the first 19 picks and an equal number of defensive linemen in the first round.

"It's always a dance of the elephants," general manager George Young of the New York Giants said after the first round. "You got five offensive tackles that go. All the big guys go, whether they're linebackers or defensive linemen. They always go early."

There were no surprises at the top other than the trade by the New Orleans Saints of linebacker Pat Swilling, the 1991 defensive MVP, to Detroit. In return, the Saints got the eighth overall pick in the draft, which they used on offensive tackle Willie Roaf of Louisiana Tech.

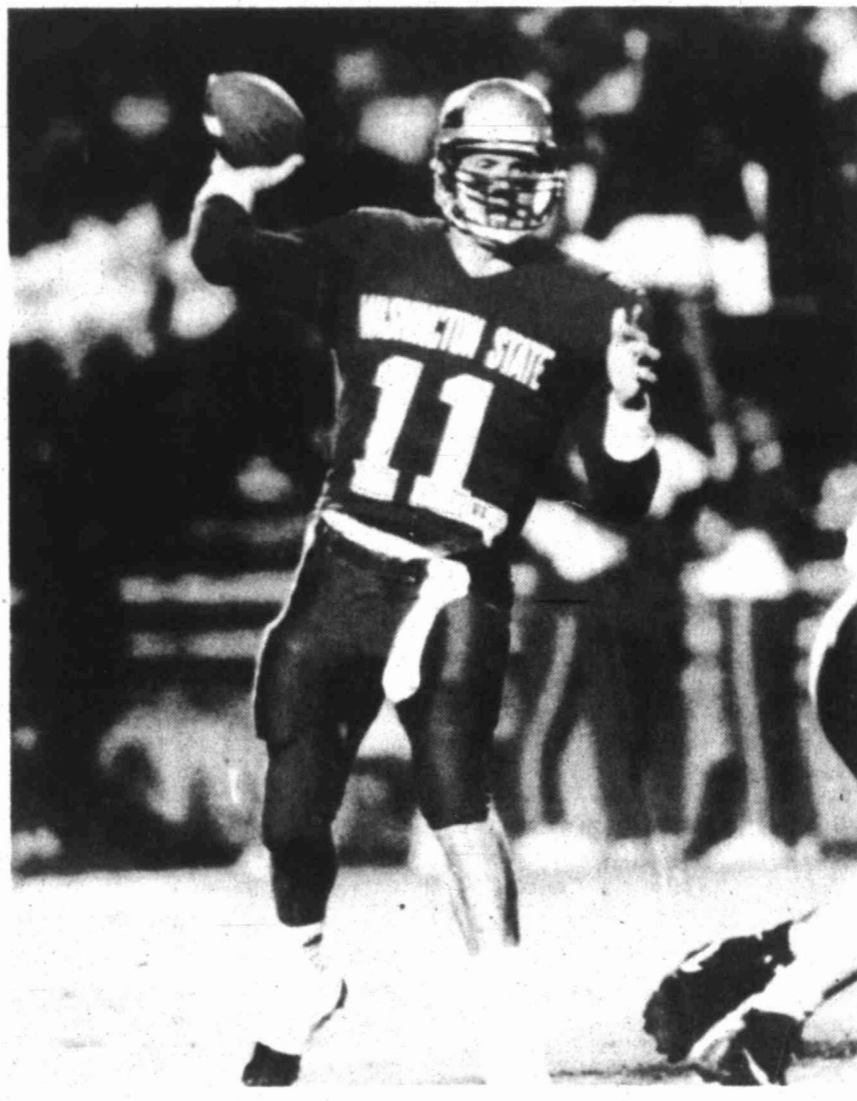

Drew Bledsoe, the Washington State quarterback, went to New England and Rick Mirer of Notre Dame to Seattle. Bill Parcells, the Patriots' new coach, said Bledsoe had been his team's first choice all along, although he considered both Mirer and a trade.

Teams like Atlanta, Houston, Washington, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Indianapolis drafted specifically to fill holes lost by defecting free agents, and there were seven first-round trades — six swaps of draft position, the seventh one the Swilling deal.

But there were others who went to the best available athlete theory, like Pittsburgh, which needs linebackers, had plenty of defensive backs and still went for cornerback Deon Figures of Colorado.

"When you're drafting 23rd in the first round, you don't always have the luxury of doing that," Steelers coach Bill Cowher said.

So it was a typical draft day. After Bledsoe and Mirer, no quarterbacks went until Washington's Billy Joe Hobert went to the Los Angeles Raiders on the last pick of the second round. Please see DRAFT, page B6

Dallas maintains Miami connection

By The Associated Press

IRVING — The world champion Dallas Cowboys got some more help from that football factory down south, the University of Miami Hurricanes.

Coach Jimmy Johnson couldn't work a blockbuster trade so he dropped down Sunday in the NFL draft for two second round picks to get players he had recruited out of high school, wide receiver Kevin Williams and linebacker Darrin Smith.

"It's fortunate for us nobody else got them because these are two outstanding players who will contribute immediately," Johnson said. "We know what they can do. Our theory is 'if you like 'em, take 'em.'"

They will join four other Miami players on the Dallas team.

Williams, a game-breaker at 5-foot-9, 190-pounds and 4.28 speed in the 40, will be the Cowboys third down replacement for Kelvin Martin, who signed with Seattle. He'll also be the starting punt returner and bring back kickoffs.

can tell you who our punt returner is," Johnson said.

The 6-0, 228-pound Smith, who runs a 4.49 in the 40, will play outside linebacker and be a contributor on the special teams.

"We knew both players very well," Johnson said. "Williams is the most exciting kick returner I've ever been around. He has tremendous speed and was the fastest player at Miami. He offsets the loss of Kelvin Martin to free agency."

Johnson said Smith "is the fastest linebacker I've been around. He will also be an outstanding special teams player. Both these players will contribute to our team this year."

Dallas drafted 46th and 54th in the second round after trading its first round 29th pick to Green Bay.

Dallas drafted last in the third round and took defensive back Mike Middleton, a 5-10, 209-pounder from Indiana who could possibly be converted to safety.

The Cowboys had to wait six hours and 35 minutes before they made their first pick.

Williams, who played high school football at Dallas Roosevelt, averaged 12 yards per punt return.

Registraton for the Coahoma Super Hoops Basketball Camp are being accepted through June 1.

The camp, offered by Coahoma coach Kim Nichols to boys and girls ages 9-14, will be held June 7-11 in Coahoma. Registration fee is $40 and covers the cost of a camp T-shirt and various awards.

Enrollment forms can be picked up at Coahoma High School or Coahoma Elementary. For more information, contact Nichols at 394-4535 or 394-4755.

Tigers continue hit parade; Rangers down Brewers

By The Associated Press

Even the Detroit Tigers are amazed at what they're seeing these days. "You just sit back and watch," Tony Phillips said after the Tigers ran up another football-like score, trouncing Minnesota 16-5 Sunday.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

The Tigers completed their first three-game sweep in Minnesota since August 1972, outscoring the Twins 45-10. Phillips, Chad Kreuter, Alan Trammell and Mickey Tettleton all homered, giving Detroit an 11-2 edge in that department in three days.

Detroit has won five in a row and 10 of 11. The Tigers lead the majors with 8 1/2 runs per game; the NFL's Detroit Lions averaged 17 points per game.

"We knew we were capable of scoring bunches of runs. We've always felt like that, even for the last two years. We're never out of a game," Phillips said.

In other games, California edged Boston 2-1, New York held off Seattle 10-9, Toronto beat Chicago 1-0, Texas topped Milwaukee 6-1, Cleveland defeated Oakland 6-0 and Kansas City beat Baltimore 3-2. RANGERS 6, BREWERS 1

New York's Pat Kelly, right, is caught stealing by Seattle second baseman Fernando Pina on a throw by catcher Dave Valle in the third inning of their game Sunday night in Seattle.

Kenny Rogers pitched a three-hitter for his first complete game since 1988 in the Texas League, and the Rangers won at Milwaukee. Rogers (2-1) struck out five, walked two and retired the final 16 batters. Jaime Navarro (0-2) allowed six runs on 10 hits in 6 2-3 innings. Ivan Rodriguez drove in three runs and Jose Canseco drove in two.

Canseco has 750 RBIs in 988 career games and became the first player since Ted Williams in 1947 to reach 750 RBIs in his first 1,000 games. Canseco batted sixth for the second

Philadelphia on fire; Pirates avoid sweep by Houston

By The Associated Press

Not even Tom Candiotti's knuckleball could stop the Philadelphia Phillies.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Pete Incaviglia hit a two-run homer and drove in three runs as the Phillies defeated Los Angeles 5-2 Sunday at Veterans Stadium to sweep the three-game series and send the Dodgers to their sixth straight loss.

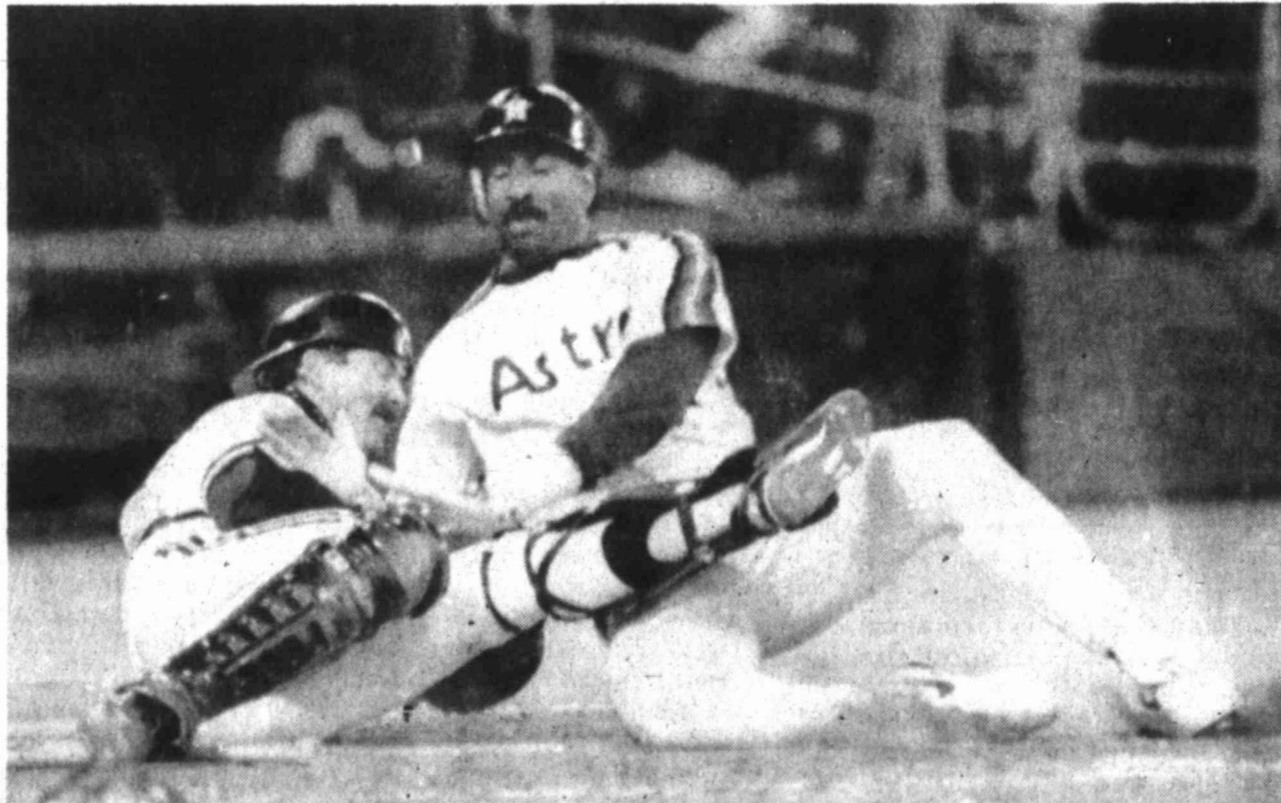

The Phillies improved to 13-4, tops in the major leagues. The 13 wins also are their most victories in April since a 12-6 start in 1981.

Incaviglia entered the game with a lifetime average of .083 (2-for-24) against Candiotti. But it seems everyone on the Phillies is hot right now, no matter who provides the opposition.

The Phillies are nine games over .500 for the first time since Aug. 22, 1987 (66-57). They are 9-2 at home.

Elsewhere in the NL it was San Francisco 4, Montreal 1; Pittsburgh 7, Houston 2; San Diego 9, New York 8; St. Louis 7, Atlanta 3; Chicago 2, Cincinnati 1; and Florida 11, Colorado 1. PIRATES 7, ASTROS 2

Bill Swift pitched seven strong innings and scored the go-ahead run as San Francisco defeated Montreal at Olympic Stadium to snap the Expos' six-game winning streak. Swift (1-1) allowed four hits and one run. Rod Beck pitched the ninth for his sixth save. CARDINALS 7, BRAVES 3

Omar Olivares pitched six solid innings as St. Louis beat Atlanta and Greg Maddux (2-2) at Busch Memorial Stadium. Ozzie Smith and Todd Zeile each had three hits for the Cardinals.

PADRES 9, METS 8

Reliever Anthony Young lost his 16th straight decision when Craig Shipley stole third base and continued home in the eighth inning on a throwing error as San Diego beat New York at Shea Stadium in a game marred by a bench-clearing brawl.

Florida won two of three games against Colorado in the battle of the expansion teams, routing the Rockies 11-1 as Junior Felix hit a grand slam to highlight an eight-run fourth inning at Denver. CUBS 2, REDS 1

Steve Buechele tripled home the tying run and scored on Jose Vizcaino's fourth straight single, capping Chicago's ninth-inning rally at Wrigley Field.

A day after Cincinnati routed Chicago 15-5, the Reds took a 1-0 lead into the ninth. But Tim Belcher (1-2), bidding for his second straight shutout, couldn't hold the lead.

Trainer aiming toward Derby

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Not even a year has gone by since Mark Hennig struck out on his own as a thoroughbred trainer, and already he's got a horse in the Kentucky Derby.

"You're not supposed to get this lucky," Hennig admitted.

For five years, Hennig was an assistant to one of the world's most famous trainers, D. Wayne Lukas. He broke away from Lukas last July, and in November the owners of Personal Hope, Lee and Debi Lewis, switched trainers — from Lukas to Hennig.

Since then, Personal Hope has won four of five starts, including the 1 1/8-mile Santa Anita Derby on April 3 and will be among the favorites for the Kentucky Derby on Saturday.

"We've been playing catch-up with this horse as we go along," the 28-year-old Hennig said. "Hopefully, he's learned enough. This might be another stepping stone to what he can do down the road."

Hennig came to his first Derby with Lukas in 1989, the year after Lukas won with Winning Colors. Even though Hennig was responsible for more than 30 of the horses in Lukas' stable at a time, it was different then.

"I don't get as much sleep now," Hennig said. "I might have had 38 horses then, but when it was Derby time, Wayne came in and he was responsible. But I haven't fallen apart yet."

Lukas bought the colt for the Lewises at the 1991 Fasig Tipton Saratoga sale for $75,000. He raced once for Lukas, finishing eighth in a maiden race at Belmont on June 7, the Sunday after the Belmont Stakes.

Hennig first met the Lewises when, as a Lukas assistant, he handled another of their horses, Onward. Hennig and his wife Carma became friends of the Lewises, and last August Lewis offered the horse to Hennig.

"I hope Wayne has no ill feelings," Hennig said after the Santa Anita Derby. "I felt like the Lewises were going to move the horse anyway, and I wasn't going to say no to a friend just because I'd be a little uncomfortable."

After five months off, Personal Hope got a new jockey — Gary Stevens instead of Chris Antley — and a new start, winning a maiden race at Hollywood Park last Dec. 19. His next start was an allowance victory the following Month at Santa Anita, and he won his stakes debut, the Bradbury, on Feb. 17 at Santa Anita.

Personal Hope's only loss for Hennig came to Corby in the San Felipe on March 14. It wasn't a disappointment, though.

Mediate wins GGO in playoff

By The Associated Press

GREENSBORO, N.C. — It all added up this time around for Rocco Mediate.

Mediate, who led after three rounds of last year's Greater Greensboro Open only to fall victim to Davis Love III's record-setting 62, birdied the fourth playoff hole Sunday to beat Steve Elkington and win the $1.5 million event.

"I remembered I birdied the first two holes here last year on Sunday and the first time I looked at the leaderboard I was four back, but I was three ahead of him when I started," Mediate said. "It didn't compute at all."

"It was like maybe I can do it this year. It wasn't like revenge or anything. I knew I could play the golf course."

Mediate, whose other PGA Tour win came in a playoff at the 1991 Doral Open, overcame a double bogey on the par-5 15th and then had to save pars on the second and third extra holes before sinking a 4-foot putt to finish it.

Mediate trailed 54-hole leaders Elkington and Mike Sullivan by four strokes, marking the biggest final-day move by a tournament winner this season. He closed with a 3-under-par 69 Sunday for a four-day total of 281.

Elkington, who is now 1-3 in playoffs, matched that figure with a 1-over 73.

"We can sit here and talk about what I could have done and should have done, but it really doesn't mean anything anymore," said Elkington, who could have become only the seventh multiple winner at the tour's third oldest event.

Elkington, the 1990 Greensboro Open winner, bogeyed Nos. 15 and 16 to fall a shot back, but made a 15-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole to force the playoff.

The dramatic playoff was held on the course's last three holes, considered among the most difficult on the 6,958-yard Forest Oaks Country Club layout. And with winds gusting to 30 mph, the players took turns scrambling to keep alive.

Elkington sank a 4-footer for par on the first playoff hole. Mediate got up and down from the sand to save par on the second extra hole, a par 3.

Elkington had a great opportunity to end the match on the 18th hole, the third of the playoff, when he landed an approach shot within 10 feet of the pin. But he missed the birdie putt, then halved the hole when Mediate, hitting out of a fairway bunker, chipped to 6 feet and made the par putt.

They returned again to the 16th hole to continue the playoff, but this time Mediate won it.

"Once it left the putter it was right in the center," Mediate said of his winning putt. "I had the same exact putt at Doral. I was laughing to myself because it was the same thing I had before."

"I never got ahead of myself, which I'm happy with. I just got the job done."

Gil Morgan, Paul Azinger and Dudley Hart were tied at 282. Hart shot 71, Azinger 72 and Morgan 73.

Sullivan, who led for the first three rounds, ballooned to a final-round 77 and finished at 285.

Mediate, who started several groups ahead of the leaders, posted a 4-under-par 32 on the front side. He grabbed the lead at 9-under on the 11th hole with a birdie after hitting his 120-yard approach shot to within 4 feet.

"I just felt like I was an hour and 40 minutes in front of them (the leaders) and you post the numbers on this course and the last three holes are real pains in the butt."

Devils stop Penguin playoff streak

By The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Pittsburgh Penguins' NHL-record 14-game playoff winning streak was halted Sunday by the New Jersey Devils, who averted a first-round sweep by defeating the two-time Stanley Cup champions 4-1.

NHL PLAYOFFS

Stephane Richer, scoreless in the opening three games of the series, had a goal and two assists, and goalie Chris Terreri made 30 saves in frustrating Mario Lemieux and Co.

The Penguins, who had an overall 21-game (20-0-1) unbeaten streak, can wrap up the best-of-7 series by winning Game 5 Monday night at Pittsburgh.

New Jersey broke the game open by scoring twice after Jaromir Jagr was given a five-minute major and a game misconduct for a high-sticking penalty against Valeri Zelepukin with 2:16 left in the second period.

Defenseman Tommy Albain stretched the lead to 2-0 with 9.4 seconds left in the period by converting a pass from Richer past Barrasso from the right point.

Claude Lemieux connected at 1:52 of the third period to make it 3-0 and added an empty-net goal with 17.8 seconds remaining.

Kevin Stevens got the Penguins' goal at 3:28 by beating Terreri from in close after a nice pass from Mario Lemieux.

Knicks, Suns heavy favorites to advance

By The Associated Press

Sunday was supposed to be a day that mattered, a season-ending day featuring nationally televised games with playoff implications — Chicago vs. New York for the best record in the East, Detroit vs. New Jersey for the final spot in the East.

It turned into the exact opposite — a day of nine almost meaningless games, none with any influence on the opening round of the playoffs.

The playoff picture, or at least what was left of it, came into full focus on Saturday night. Indiana beat Miami to clinch its final Eastern berth, and Charlotte, New Jersey and Atlanta all learned their playoff seedings before midnight.

All the Western Conference seedings were determined by Friday night.

The first round of the playoffs gets underway Thursday night, and the action doesn't let up at least until mid-June. Here's a look ahead at the opening-round series, and how the teams did against each other in the regular season.

EASTERN CONFERENCE

NEW YORK VS. INDIANA

The Knicks have the best conference record and homecourt advantage through the first three playoff rounds, and it looks like they'll make it to the second round fairly easily.

New York won the season series with Indiana three games to one, getting double-figure scoring from five players in each game. Patrick Ewing has a distinct advantage over Indiana center Rik Smits and the Pacers just don't have the bulk to match up with New York's front line.

CHICAGO VS. ATLANTA

The big matchup in this series is between Michael Jordan and Dominique Wilkins, the top two scorers in the league. Wilkins outscored Jordan 34.8 to 32.8 in the teams' four matchups, but each team won two games. The key in the playoffs will be depth, and Chicago has the advantage in that area.

"You have to contain 'Nique, not let him get his 30, and keep Kevin Willis off the boards," Bulls forward Horace Grant said. "They're not a one-man show anymore."

CLEVELAND VS. NEW JERSEY

In a matchup of two teams that ended the season going in opposite directions, Cleveland seems to have the advantage. The Cavaliers won 11 of their last 12, while the Nets lost 10 of their final 11 and have lost Kenny Anderson, Drazen Petrovic and Chris Dudley to injuries.

The season series was a 2-2 split, with no game decided by more than six points. A big factor in this series will be the injury to Anderson, which could allow Cavaliers point guard Mark Price to dominate backup Rumeal Robinson.

BOSTON VS. CHARLOTTE

"Just two weeks ago we were hoping to get into the playoffs. Now we're hoping to make some noise," Hornets coach Allan Bristow said.

Charlotte could do just that if it can carry the momentum from a five-game, season-ending winning streak into the playoffs. Boston won the season series three games to one, but the first three games were played in the season's first 60 days.

WESTERN CONFERENCE

PHOENIX VS. LA LAKERS

This series shapes up as possibly the biggest mismatch of the playoffs. The Suns finished 43 games over .500, the Lakers were four games below. Phoenix has been waiting all year for a chance to prove its regular-season dominance was no fluke, the Lakers had to fight all season to qualify for the eighth playoff berth for a second straight year.

Phoenix swept the season series 5-0, winning by 10, 16, 28, 15 and 1.

HOUSTON VS. LA CLIPPERS

The Rockets swept the season series four games to none, with Hakeem Olajuwon posting a double-double in each game to average 21.3 points and 12.3 rebounds.

Houston won 11 of its last 13 and 28 of its last 34 and has played extremely well since the season's midpoint. The Clippers (41-41) finished at .500 to qualify for the second straight year, but they will have plenty of trouble against a bigger, more talented opponent.

Wallace wins Hanes 500

By The Associated Press

MARTINSVILLE, Va. — The difference for Rusty Wallace is that he is feeling good and feeling good about himself.

After three frustrating and disappointing seasons in which he totaled five victories and failed to finish among the top five in points, Wallace has turned it around "big time."

Eight races into the 1993 season, the 1989 NASCAR Winston Cup champion has won four times, including the last three in a row.

The 36-year-old Wallace climbed from his Pontiac Grand Prix Sunday after running away with the Hanes 500 at Martinsville Speedway, looking as if he was ready to start another 500-lap race.

"I feel a hell of a lot better because of my physical fitness," said Wallace, who began a workout regimen late last season at the suggestion of team co-owner Roger Penske.

"Roger had a deal last year where he passed out because of a hypertension-type situation," Wallace explained. "He began working out and lost weight and now he's in perfect physical health. He told me how good he felt and what it meant to him, and I could see how good he looked, so I got into it."

Draft

Continued from page B2 round and was the only other quarterback picked in Sunday's four rounds. But there were predictable moves by the usual suspects: Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson, who couldn't sit still when he had multiple high draft choices from the Herschel Walker trade, couldn't sit still again. With the 29th and last pick in the first round after winning the Super Bowl, he traded it away for three later choices. Then his first two picks came from the college he used to coach — wide receiver Kevin Williams and linebacker Darrin Smith of Miami, who will join a half-dozen other ex-Miami players on the Cowboys. San Diego's Bobby Beathard, who never met a first-round pick he wanted, got stuck with taking Stanford defensive back Darrien Gordon with his first pick. But Beathard, who had just one No. 1 in his dozen years in Washington, made up for it in the second round by trading to San Francisco next year's top pick to move up and take running back Natrone Means of North Carolina. That was a reprise of what he did two years ago when he traded his 1992 No. 1 to the Redskins to move up in the second round for guard Eric Moten and that pick turned out to be Desmond Howard. Parcells' choice of Bledsoe was hardly a surprise. But unlike Troy Aikman, who was made an instant starter in 1989, when Johnson took him No. 1 for a 3-13 Dallas team, Bledsoe may not be an instant starter. "In the final analysis, we thought Bledsoe had a little more ability to throw the ball effectively," Parcells said. "But I promise you I will not throw him to the wolves and he will not play until he's ready to play." Mirer went No. 2 and was happy to be going west rather than east. Then Phoenix swapped places with the New York Jets and took Georgia running back Garrison Hearst; the Jets took linebacker Marvin Jones of Florida State and Cincinnati took Alabama defensive lineman John Copeland. Eric Curry, the other Alabama defensive end, went to Tampa Bay; Chicago took USC wide receiver Curtis Conway; the Saints took Roaf;

Atlanta took offensive tackle Lincoln Kennedy and the Los Angeles Rams took Notre Dame running back Jerome Bettis, one of four Fighting Irish players taken in the first round. That was one short of the record set by Southern California in 1968. With the 11th pick, Denver took defensive end Dan Williams of Toledo; the Raiders took safety Patrick Bates of Texas A&M; Houston took tackle Brad Hopkins of Illinois; Cleveland took center Steve Everitt of Michigan and Green Bay took Clemson linebacker Wayne Simmons. Then Indianapolis took California wide receiver Sean Dawkins; Washington took Notre Dame cornerback Tom Carter; Phoenix took South Carolina tackle Ernest Dye; Philadelphia took Jackson State tackle Lester Holmes and New Orleans took Notre Dame tight end Irv Smith. Minnesota then took running back Robert Smith of Ohio State; the Chargers took Gordon; the Steelers chose Figures; Philadelphia took defensive tackle Leonard Renfro of Colorado; Miami took Penn State wide receiver O.J. McDuffie; San Francisco took defensive linemen Dana Stubblefield of Kansas and Todd Kely of Tennessee; Buffalo took defensive back Thomas Smith of North Carolina.
