Bad water drives residents to seek relief from council

With the replacement of water pipes in the Capehart Addition completed, a few residents in that area are asking, "What about us?"

Danne Pruitt and Denise Wilkinson will represent the residents of Armstrong Drive at today's meeting of the Big Spring City Council.

At the meeting, Pruitt and Wilkinson will display containers of tap water with rust contents so high, seeing through a clear glass container of the water is impossible.

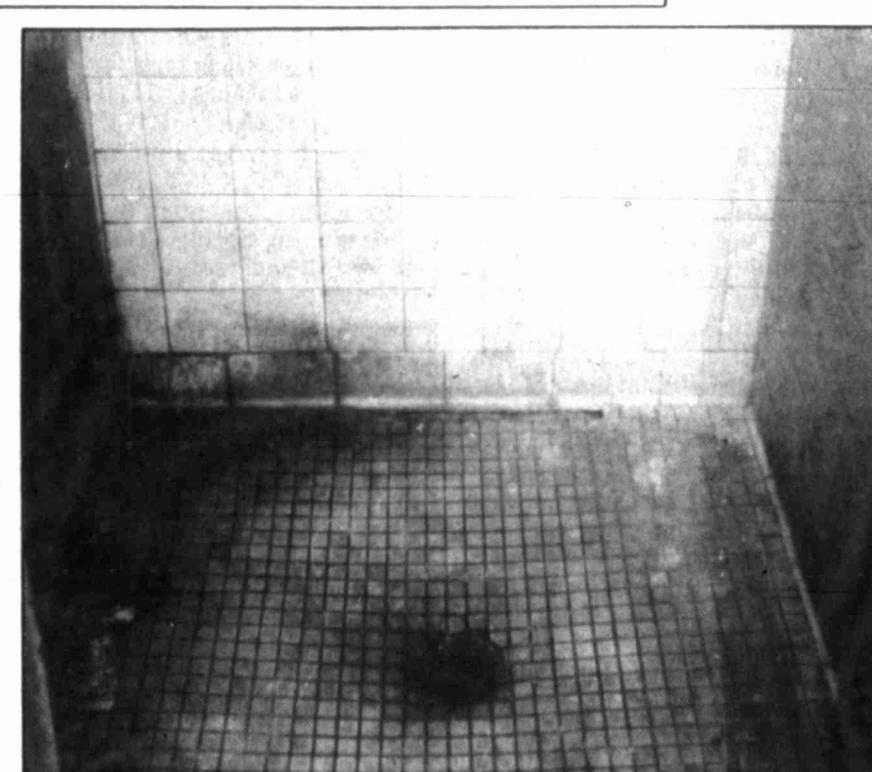

The women have photographs exhibiting stains from the rust-laden water, which damages sinks, tubs and household appliances.

Responding to complaints about the water, city crews have opened fire hydrants in attempts to clear the water lines. Because of this, rust stains line the curbing of Armstrong Drive.

The water also has unpleasant odor, smelling somewhat like rotten eggs. This odor increases as tubs or basins are filled with the water, Wilkinson said.

Rust-laden water along Armstrong Drive leaves deposits, ruining fixtures and appliances in residences. Two representatives from this neighborhood will address the Big Spring City Council in a meeting tonight.

Hantavirus possible in Howard County; 16 Texas cases investigated

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Big Spring residents likely will never know if the death of a Howard County man was caused by the mysterious illness known as hantavirus.

State and national health officials currently are looking into 16 possible Texas cases of the rodent-borne virus, responsible for the deaths of at least a dozen people in the Southwestern United States.

According to officials at the Texas Department of Health, symptoms exhibited in the death of a 22-year-old Howard County man match those of others known to have the illness.

The man died in May at Scenic Mountain Medical Center. Since testing for hantavirus was not done before interment of the body, there is no way to document it as the cause of death, health officials said.

Texas Commissioner of Health Dr. David Smith said the 16 reports have come from doctors in 12 counties all over the state who have observed patients with symptoms that fit the illness.

Of the 16 cases being investigated in Texas, Smith said, "When possible, blood and tissue samples from patients have been sent for testing to CDC in Atlanta. Those test results are still incomplete."

"We expect maybe sporadic cases, but we don't expect the outbreak situation that is going on in the Four Corners area," said Beverly Ray, a nurse epidemiologist with the Texas Department of Health.

Until now, the rare illness had been found only in New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and Utah. Most cases were clustered where those states meet, called the Four Corners.

Month left in jail facility decision

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

Buying jail space at a regional facility in Odessa or pursuing a new city-county facility must be decided within a month.

Because both require long-term commitments, it's probably not feasible to pursue both, Howard County commissioners said at a meeting Monday. Among problems is projecting space needs.

"I wish we had a crystal ball," remarked Precinct 3 Commissioner Bill Crooker.

A regional jail of more than 500 beds is proposed for Odessa, opening by September 1994, the jail's developer told commissioners at the meeting. Area counties are being approached to subscribe for $28.50 per bed per day, $4 less than state payments to Howard County for holding state prisoners. The long-term future of state payments is unknown.

"We're going to start designing the facility right now, this week," said Keith Cecil, managing director of Corplan of Dallas, retained by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission. "It is timely to start focusing on a number."

Twenty-year contracts must be signed by next month. Cecil said beds contracted can be reduced after the first year if jail populations drop, but only if drops are not caused by using another facility, such as a local city-county jail. The county could also contract beds out to other counties.

Commissioners are considering reserving space for 25 beds for males and five for females, estimated average county overflow from state prisoners next year, according to Sheriff A.N. Standard. Another option is reserving space for all county prisoners, up to another 34 beds, but a local holding cell would be needed.

Unused beds, after the first year, can be kept reserved by paying a $5.55 per day cost, the debt retirement cost, but 90 days notice must be given so beds can be rented back out. Another 90 days is required to get reserved beds back.

The $8 million facility, to be backed by $13 million in bonds by private investors, would be built under a regional jail authority created by the Ector County Commissioners Court. Projected minimum bed space from other counties are Ector, 200; Midland, 250; Dawson, 30; Garza, 5; Pecos, 10; Ward, 10; Andrews, Crane and Yoakum counties opted out, leaving a total 535.

Proposed in Howard County is a 200-bed city-county jail, requiring no tax increase because costs would be covered by renting space for area prisoners. It would be operated by the county. The $3.8 million construction cost would be paid out at $300,000 a year for 20 years. It's estimated as much as $2.1 million could be generated annually compared to a $1.5 million operation cost.

Rains provide slight relief to farmers*Evening showers drop less than inch of needed rain in the area

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

Without a significant rain since April, the billowy rain-filled clouds rolling in Monday was a blessing to area cotton farmers.

"It really did help," said Don Richardson, Howard County Extension Agent-Agriculture. "It was reported .6 inches fell in Big Spring."

"This is a good rain. If it was widespread across the county, it could be considered a million dollar rain. We need more rain, but right now it sure was beneficial. Some cotton crops were getting pretty weak. This may have revived them," he said.

With temperatures above 90, cotton has the warmth needed to grow. But warm temperatures and gusty winds without any rain are slowing cotton growth.

"We really need two to four inch rain right now, and in another three to four weeks another three inch rain," Richardson said. "That is ideal."

Rainfall for the year is 10.84 inches, slightly above average, according to Agricultural Research Station reports.

Monday's rain was produced by moist wind blowing from the southwest and southeast colliding with upper level disturbance, according to a National Weather Service spokesperson in Lubbock.

Martin County farmers, like those in Howard County, are looking to the skies for answers.

The 116,000 acres planted are better off than last when more than half were replanted because of too much rain.

"A producer from the north east part of the county came in and said he received an inch and half yesterday," said Nestor Hernandez, Martin County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service. "If we could get that all over the county it sure would help."

"We are needing some right here right now. The crops have to have moisture. Nothing a producer can do; it is beyond his control."

Granite pavers in place at Capitol

AUSTIN (AP) — The first commemorative granite pavers have been installed at the Texas Capitol. — six years after sales of the markers began, and in a different place than originally planned.

"We are thrilled to see the first pavers in place," Dealey Herndon, executive director of the State Preservation Board, said Monday.

The Capitol Committee, a non-profit group established to support the Capitol preservation and expansion project, began selling the pavers at $300 each in 1987. Each paver included names designated by donors.

Initial plans called for the names to be cut into squares on the Capitol's Great Walk at its south entrance.

But the decision was made to move the project to the north entrance for technical reasons and to preserve the historic design of the walk, said Tracy Castleman, State Preservation Board coordinator for the paver project.

Inscriptions will be sandblasted into 12-inch by 12-inch Texas red granite squares. Donors were contacted in August 1992 to confirm names and notify them of project status.

The state delayed installing pavers until exterior preservation work was completed on the Capitol, Ms. Castleman said. More than 2,000 pavers will be laid near the north entrance.

More wealthy districts challenging finance law

AUSTIN (AP) — More property-rich school districts have decided to challenge the new school finance law.

Lawyers said Monday that school boards had passed resolutions to join the lawsuit against measure in the districts of Richardson, Andrews, Klondike, Allison and Borden County.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Austin, who oversees the long-running school finance case, has set July 15 as the deadline for challenging the law.

Dallas lawyer Earl Luna — who represents a number of wealthy districts — said if school boards pass resolutions later than that, he would file a new suit that likely would be consolidated with the main case.

The wealthy district of Carrollton-Farmers Branch earlier announced it is challenging the law, as did many property-poor school districts.

The law, designed to meet a Texas Supreme Court order to even out funding available to school districts, gives the state's wealthiest districts in several options for sharing some property with poor districts. Schools rely on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

Attorney John Green, shown in this July 9 photo, who was Ector County District Attorney in the early 1970's, prosecuted Johnny Meadows in the killing of Odessa resident Gloria Sue Nix Green in 1972. Meadows was sentenced to life in prison for the murder but was paroled in 1990 after serving 18 years. Houston police arrested Meadows on aggravated sexual assault charges.

Rape no surprise to those who put Meadows away*The Associated Press

ODESSA — The authorities who helped put Johnny Meadows in prison in 1972 say a new rape accusation against the paroled killer comes as no surprise.

Meadows' confessions to dozens of murders in the 1960s and early 1970s earned him the nickname "Tiger" and the wrath of Permian Basin law enforcement officers who describe him as a nonsensical con artist.

Meadows recanted his confessions and 194th District Judge John Vance threw some of them out in 1973, ruling that evidence existed the statements were coerced. Meadows was convicted of just one murder, the 1971 strangulation of Gloria Sue Nix Green, 26, an Odessa oil company secretary.

After 18 years in prison, Meadows, a "model inmate," was paroled in Harris County in October 1990.

Then, on June 11, Houston police arrested him on charges of aggravated sexual assault, attempted aggravated sexual assault and parole violation. Meadows, 56, allegedly posed as an attorney, lured a woman into an attorney's office and raped her at knife point.

He is being held without bond in Harris County Jail. Arraignment was postponed Monday until next month. "He's a cunning — just a mean,

This may well be the worst decision I've made in my life, and I feel terrible for what has occurred," Fox said. "(But) at the time I made the decision, I made it believing it was the best decision to be made in the case at that time."

36 killed as quake rocks Japan

More than 100 are reported missing

The Associated Press

OKUSHIRI, Japan — Normally placid fishing villages in northern Japan awoke to massive destruction today following a major earthquake that set hundreds of houses ablaze and triggered tidal waves as far away as South Korea.

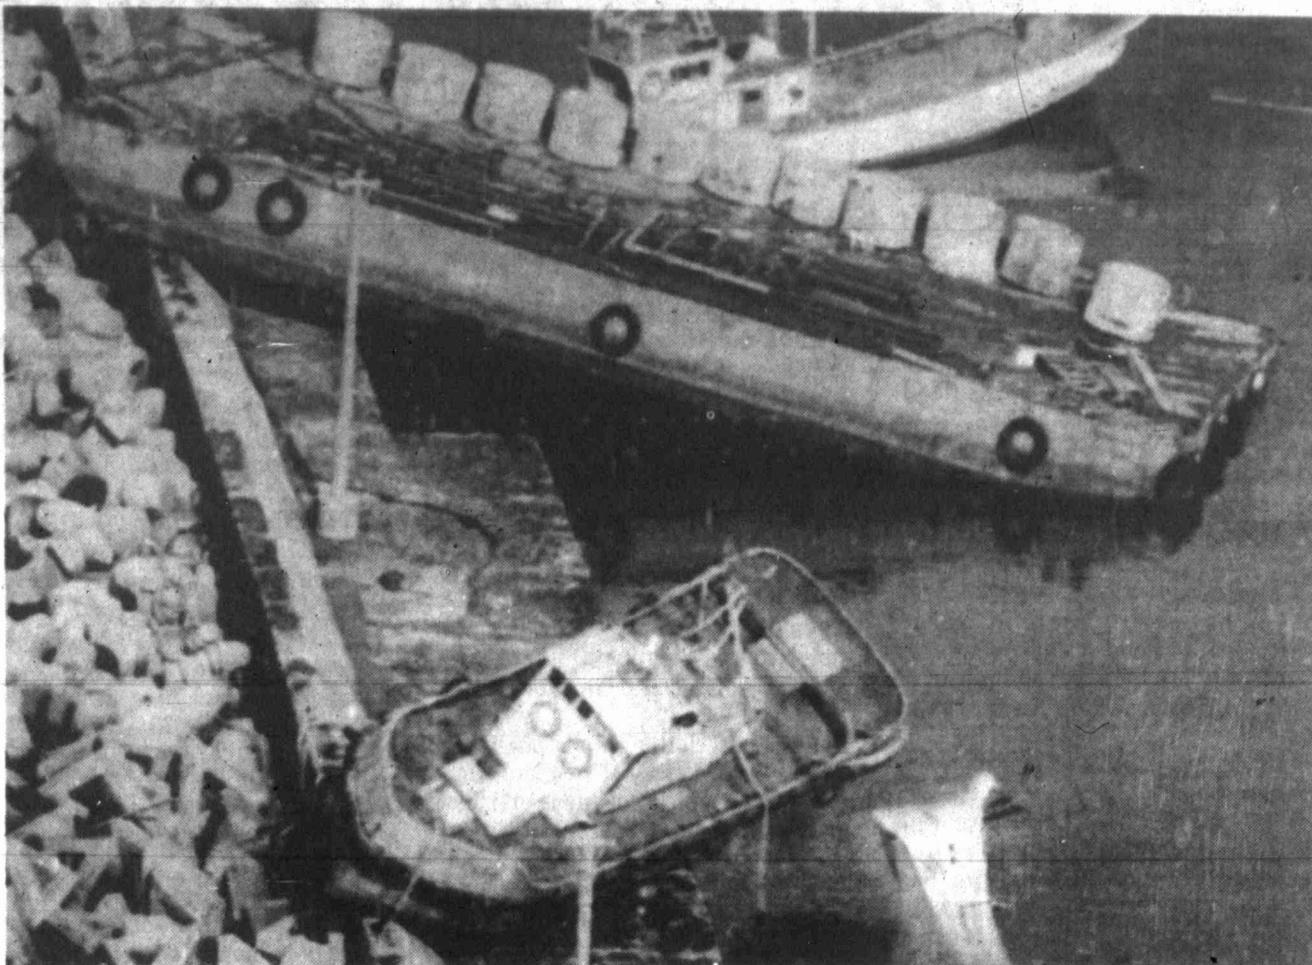

Hokkaido prefectural police said 36 people were known to have died, and that the number of casualties was expected to rise. Kyodo News Service reported at least 52 dead and 152 missing.

"This is terrible and it is so sad," said Prime Minister Kiichi Miyazawa, who planned to travel to the stricken region later in the day.

The Japanese, living square on the Pacific "rim of fire," face a constant threat of destruction from earthquakes and volcanic activity. Monday's quake matched the strongest to hit Japan in 15 years, 7.8 on the Richter scale, the Central Meteorological Agency said.

It was centered 30 miles under the Sea of Japan and about 50 miles west of Hokkaido, the nation's third most populous island with 5.6 million people. Several strong aftershocks followed.

Tidal waves reported to be 16 feet high lashed areas of the Japan Sea coast, sweeping away scores of wooden houses and destroying small fishing boats moored at ports along the coasts of both Japan and South Korea.

Fishing boats rest on a pier on Okushiri Island on Japan's northernmost island of Kokkaido Tuesday after being washed ashore by tidal waves Monday. The tidal waves followed an earthquake measuring 7.8 on the Richter scale that left at least 36 people dead and at least 100 missing.

The tidal waves slammed into Sakhalin Island and the Russian town of Nakhodka near Vladivostok, washing a dozen fishing ships aground but no injuries were reported, said a Russian state emergency committee spokesman.

Meteorological Agency officials said many of Japan's quake victims did not have time to flee to higher ground before the tidal waves struck.

Worst hit was Okushiri, a small island just 30 miles south of the epicenter.

An entire hillside collapsed on the island's two-story wooden Yososo

Hotel, killing at least five people and leaving about 20 missing. The public television network NHK reported six or seven people were rescued from the burning hotel.

About 300 houses burned on another part of the island of 4,600 people.

Jahnnae Green, 10, of Boston, Mass., tries to beat the heat by cooling off in the Christian Science Center fountain in downtown Boston Wednesday. The temperature broke a 110-year-old record for this date, as the mercury soared to 99 degrees.

U.N. gives Iraq one more chance

The Associated Press

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council says it is sending a senior envoy to Iraq in the U.N.-Iraqi show-down over allowing monitoring of missile testing. But the council president warned Baghdad it was "playing with fire."

The move Monday appeared to head off punitive U.S. air strikes for now.

President Clinton, on vacation in Hawaii, said he will leave it up to the United Nations for the time being.

"They've got a strategy. I want to let them do their work for a couple of days before I say anything," he said.

Council diplomats made clear the United Nations may have to destroy the two rocket test sites near Baghdad if Iraq persists in barring video monitors there.

David Hannay, the Security Council president and British ambassador, said weapons inspectors "would have to consider destruction" of the two sites if Iraq rejects other solutions, such as the TV monitoring.

Skinheads believed to be more dangerous than Klan

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Skinheads have replaced older white supremacist groups as the nation's most dangerous racist movement, the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith says.

Racist skinheads have committed 22 murders in the last three years, the ADL said in a report Monday.

"Not even the Ku Klux Klans, so notorious for their use of the rope and the gun, come close to the skinheads in the number and severity of crimes committed," the ADL said.

The number of skinheads has grown steadily since 1988, when 1,500 members were reported in 12 states, according to the report. In 1993, an estimated 3,500 were found in 40 states, the report said.

While exceeding the established groups in fury, the skinheads are turning to the old-line hate groups like the Klan, Aryan Nation and the Iraqi capital Thursday.

Last month, the Security Council warned Iraq of "serious consequences" if it failed to cooperate with U.N. weapons inspectors.

On Sunday, U.N. inspectors abruptly left Iraq after Saddam Hussein's government refused to let them seal off seal equipment at the testing sites until the issue was resolved.

The decision to send Ekeus was seen as a last chance for Iraq, not as a U.N. concession.

Ekeus and Hannay stressed there would be no negotiations, that Ekeus would insist that Iraq permit installation of monitoring cameras.

Ekeus' Special Commission oversees elimination of Iraq's weapons of mass destruction as specified in the 1991 Gulf War cease-fire.

Ancient cloth discovered

CHICAGO (AP) — Archaeologists say they have discovered the oldest cloth ever found, a fragment dating to 7000 B.C.

The semifossilized cloth — about 3 inches by 1 1/2 inches and possibly linen — was found in southeastern Turkey, clinging to what was probably the handle of a tool made from an antler, the University of Chicago said in a statement today.

It is at least 500 years older than any cloth ever found before.

"This is a fascinating discovery because it pushes back the date at which we know textiles were produced," said Gillian Vögelsang-Eastwood, director of the Stitching Textile Research Center at the National Museum of Ethnology at Leiden in the Netherlands, and one of the scholars studying the cloth.

The cloth was recovered from Cayonu, an archaeological site near the Tigris River about 30 miles from the city of Diyarbakir. The site has been the scene of joint explorations by the University of Chicago and Istanbul University.

No cloth made earlier than about 6500 B.C. to 6000 B.C. previously had been discovered, the university said, although some minute clay impressions of textiles about the same age as the Cayonu cloth have been found.

Would like to have clean pipes for water

To the editor:

In today's society when it is so hard to earn a dollar and support a family in the w., we would like we want the best that the dollar will buy. Even the biggest companies advertise that if you buy from them you will receive the best for your money. Will you tell me what happened to Big Spring city water. It certainly has not been the best for my money. I live on the base and the pipes are old and the system is not good clean system any more. My water is tinted orange. It colors my sink and my bathtub, and my toilet never looks like it has been cleaned. I fill the tub with water for my children to bathe and you cannot even see the bottom of the tub. Any one taking a bath or shower has to hold their breath because of the smell. You really do not feel clean.

I pour glasses of water and have to hold my nose because of the smell. I cannot even rinse my teeth after brushing them with the water from the faucet. I now have to buy bottled water and ice to have anything to drink. I put a filter system on the end of my faucet because the people who do the RO systems refuse to put one in because the water ruins the machine. I was sick and had diarrhea because of this water for three days. My whites are now dingy yellow and I worry about washing any good clothes. Bleach will not even turn them back to white.

I understand that monies are hard to come by to care for a city but as long as I pay the water bill it doesn't seem fair that all we can do is flush our toilet. We were told that when the Capehart additions' old pipes were replaced Armstrong Drive would be included. There was 695,000 dollars in bonds sold to do this system over. Only 250,000 dollars was used and Armstrong Drive still has not been done. All machines are up and no one seems to be changing our pipes in the future.

They have come out and flushed our system out and it only makes the smell worse and then we end up with sediment in the bottom of the sink and tub.

The city of Big Spring is changing the pipes out for a new company to come into the base. If the pipes are bad enough to have to change the pipes so that a company will move onto the Air Base, when I am sure they are not good enough for the people who live on the base. Their whole life is around a home that the water is not fit to use because of old pipes. I and the others who live on Armstrong Drive do not feel this is being fair. The city knows our pipes are not fit and yet we have to fight to get them to change the old pipes. The city is trying to say it is the pipes in the houses, yet one family has replaced all the old pipes with PVC pipes leading up to his house and in the house itself. When he replaced a part of the pipe that was leaking last year the pvc pipe was all rusted and his water still smells. This problem is not a problem in our own houses. It is a problem in the lines in the street.

We just want what is rightfully ours, which is to go to the faucet and get a glass of water that is fit to drink and use in cooking and does not make you sick from the smell or

Busy helping others

Editor:

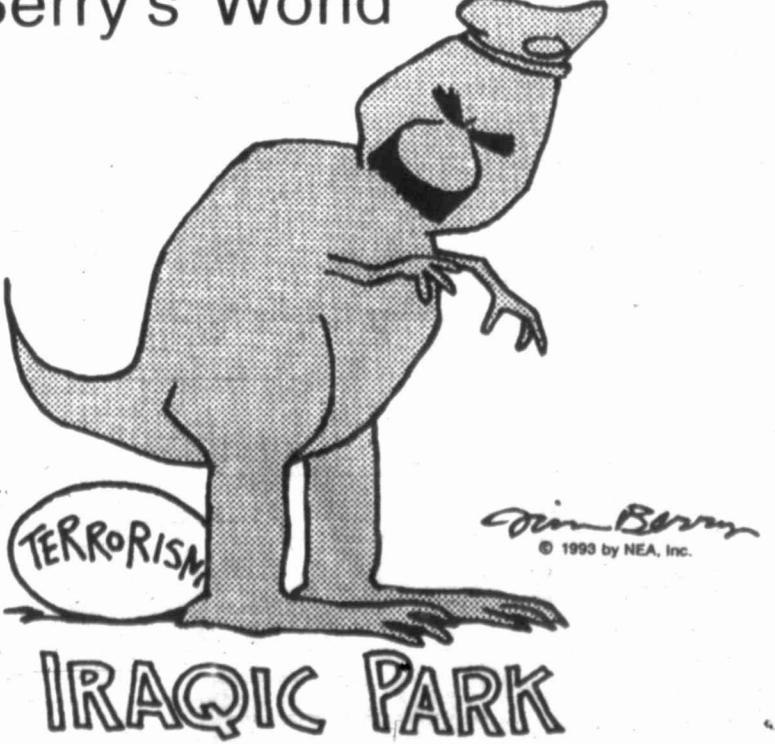

Big Spring has many "busy bodies" and get no thanks. Deservedly so I thank and salute them. I borrow the term "busy bodies" and change its interpretation as: those who are "busy" doing something constructive, something for the fellowman. In this instance, something for the fellowwoman.

I speak of the Haven House of Big Spring. Big Spring citizens don't need it, neither do they make use of it; yet donors and sponsors unfailingly contribute to its care so that those of us "out-of-towners" can be made welcome, comfortable and free of an extra expense. Many acquaintances have been made, many stories and experiences have been passed, and much consoling has been done in this one house that otherwise may not have occurred or may have gone unnoticed. The concern for the veteran and family is certainly unmatched.

My father, a veteran of WWII, remains in the VA Hospital. I will wholeheartedly continue to applaud the concept of the house that Big Spring built.

Presidential dress: Duds and the man

"When did our presidents first start playing dress-up?" asked Slats Grobnik.

What do you mean by "dress-up"?

"Well, I saw President Clinton on TV when he went to Iowa to look at the floods. Actually, I figure he went there so we'd look at TV and see him looking at the floods."

"Sure. I mean, a president has got enough flunkies who could come into his office and tell him: 'Yeah, Mr. President, there's really legit flooding out there. It's not a hoax.' Then he could stay in his office and get some work done instead of posing for pictures on a bridge."

Maybe he went to the nation's heartland to assure the flood victims that he really cares.

"Yeah? Then if he really cares, why didn't he hoist some sandbags and make himself useful instead of just playing dress-up for the cameras?"

Once again, what do you mean by "dress-up"?

"When I saw him, he was wearing designer jeans, a work shirt and cowboy boots. It's like someone told him, 'OK, you're going out there with the common folks, so you better put on a common-folks costume.' And when he went to see some farmers, he even put a piece of straw in his mouth to chew on."

Maybe he likes to chew on straw.

"Come on, the guy is an egghead lawyer. He was a governor. He was even one of them rowdy scholars."

You mean a Rhodes Scholar, when he attended the elite Oxford College in England.

Don't get me wrong, I'm not saying you have to drink to have fun, no one in my immediate family drinks. (Although we used to) But!!! Here's my gripe - the very same things that Dusty Choate is whining about, goes on in my neighborhood 5 nights out of 7, and I have yet to see the City ban alcohol in my area. I have to tolerate squealing tires, screaming, cursing, fighting, bottle throwing, loud music - you name it. If you go out to say anything, you take a chance on property or bodily harm. Now! You say call the police? By the time you call and they arrive, the problem has moved on. So, scratch that! The problem lasts 2 to 3 minutes at a time but goes on til 4 in the morning. This is not a bad area, it's right by the High School.

So, city of Big Spring, instead of doing a Turtle issue on this, why don't you just do what you're going to do eventually anyway and make Big Spring a dry town?

That's the only way you're going to stop all this nonsense in a fair way. I'm sure you will soothe the rascally bottoms of the money holders in Big Spring while you're at it, Huh Dusty?

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, JULY 14, 1993

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Feeling confident today? That's fine, but watch out, because it could result in some careless spending. You have what it takes to make your mark in the professional world, and you don't need to overextend yourself to do it. Tonight: Tell another how you feel.****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Remain your happy-go-lucky self as you listen to what a partner is saying (or shouting). The uproar could be a power play for your attention. Intimate chats and openness are a better way to find new ideas and end the hassle quickly. Tonight: Investigate a travel opportunity.****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Pace yourself, because what could be an exceptionally fine day will be marred only if you get fatigued. Share the workload with partners. Success in a financial pursuit is possible today. Ask for advice - and listen to it. Tonight: Think hard about a new idea.****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your creative side comes out, heading right toward the winner's circle. Others are full of good ideas and want to be part of the celebration. Realize your limitations before you party too much. Tonight: Be careful - a loved one is jealous.****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Be more conscious of how others view you, and especially listen to your intuition when dealing with the boss. Get rid of what isn't working for you and replace it with something more creative. Tonight: Preen as you go out and about.****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Listen to a friend, whose information could prove valuable. You might get an exciting opportunity. Realize that another might have a vested interest in holding you back. Tonight: Get together with pal.****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): One-to-one relating will pay off today as long as you are open to another's input. You can be unusually successful in making changes on the career front. And what you thought was a lost cause on the home front proves otherwise. Tonight: Be your snuggly self.****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Ask questions to find out where others are coming from. Be on the alert for new possibilities. Don't try to make another agree with you. Tonight: Be less intense.****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be less fearful about what is going on. It could be leading to a professional offer that will open new doors. Evaluate your talents; you have more to invest in a project than funds. Ask yourself how much red tape you really have to put up with. Tonight: Keep your nose to the grindstone.****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Touch base with a loved one and you might just hear some amazing news. Your creativity is high and you are capable of making important decisions. Let an associate in on what is happening, but be careful about a friend who could be jealous. Tonight: Have dinner with a pal.****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Today's script involves home, security and a better sense of self. You might want to consider working more from your house. Your ingenuity is high; don't let a boss get you down - and don't take no for an answer. Follow your gut. Tonight: Remember, your home is your castle.****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Clear your desk, return all calls and generally catch up on your work. A friend brings news that surprises and delights you. A child or loved one is pleased and lets you know it. Let your creativity flow. Tonight: Chat with a favorite person over dinner.****

IF JULY 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your focus this year should be on making your wishes come true. Your base of friends will grow, helping you gain a clearer sense of who you are. If attached, a child or other loved one, although well-meaning, will give you some problems. If single, you'll find that love has many ups and downs, with the ups winning out after autumn. Use your creativity to stay in tune with the moment and you will get what you want in the long run. TAURUS helps you along the road of success.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Proper term important to mother

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to the letter from a birth mother whose daughter was adopted shortly after birth. You responded with a beautiful poem titled, "Legacy of an Adopted Child."

I can certainly relate to this poem, being the mother of two children, an 11-year-old son by birth, and an adopted 2-year-old daughter from Korea. This column referred to the "natural" mother vs. "birth" mother, which brings me to my reason for writing.

As an adoptive parent, I feel it is important to educate the public regarding the use of proper terms when speaking about adoption. I consider myself and my daughter to be very "natural" and "real." I have also been asked whether or not I have any children "of my own." My response is: "Are you asking if I have any children by birth?"

I do not wish to discourage these questions, and I am very sympathetic to the fact that most people simply do not know the proper terms to use, but I am concerned about how their questions sound to the adopted child. Imagine how you and your child would feel if someone asked you point-blank: "Do you know anything about her real mother?" Thanks for helping me educate a few people. — JUST CALL ME "MOM"

DEAR MOM: You have made some excellent points. Thanks for educating the general public concerning adoption terminology.

DEAR ABBY: I recently attended the wedding of a co-worker and was shocked to see another guest (female) handing out her business cards to all the guests. (She was in real estate.)

I noticed that some of the guests politely put the card in purse or pocket, then walked away shaking their heads as if to say, "How tasteless!"

I have been in business a long time, and I carry my business cards with me, but I am very discreet about where and to whom I give them.

In your opinion, Abby, when is it appropriate to give someone your business card? — APPALLED IN BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF.

DEAR APPALLED: When he or she has asked for it.

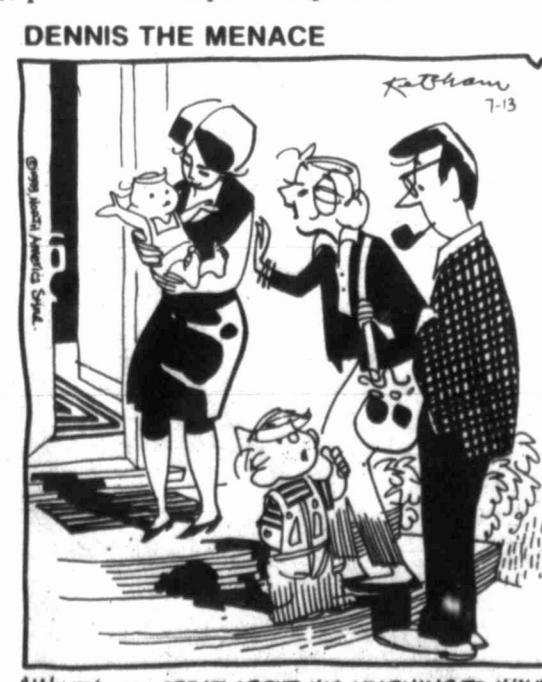

DEAR ABBY: My problem is one that many others have these days. I do not enjoy being videotaped. As a matter of fact, I HATE IT! I am not photogenic. I absolutely despise the way I look in the playbacks. For some reason or other, the person doing the recording just assumes that he or she has the right to film anyone who happens to be around. They don't even bother to ask for permission.

What is the best way to handle this invasion of privacy — besides destroying the video camera?

I would assume the host or hostess should be able to control the videotaping, but sometimes, they are the guilty parties. — THEDA PACHECO, BALTIMORE

DEAR THEDA: If you see the "taper" first, you can get out of camera range. You can also let the taper know how you feel about having your picture taken. Whatever you do — do not stick out your tongue and cross your eyes in an effort to "ruin" the tape. It will give the taper an even more unflattering picture to preserve for posterity.

Poll: Gun control with stem violence*The Associated Press

MORROW, Ga. — A new survey of police officers shows most believe strict gun-control measures will not decrease violent crime.

The poll of 3,825 members of the Southern States Police Benevolent Association found 95.8 percent rejected an outright ban on all firearms and 96.4 percent strongly support firearms ownership for self-protection.

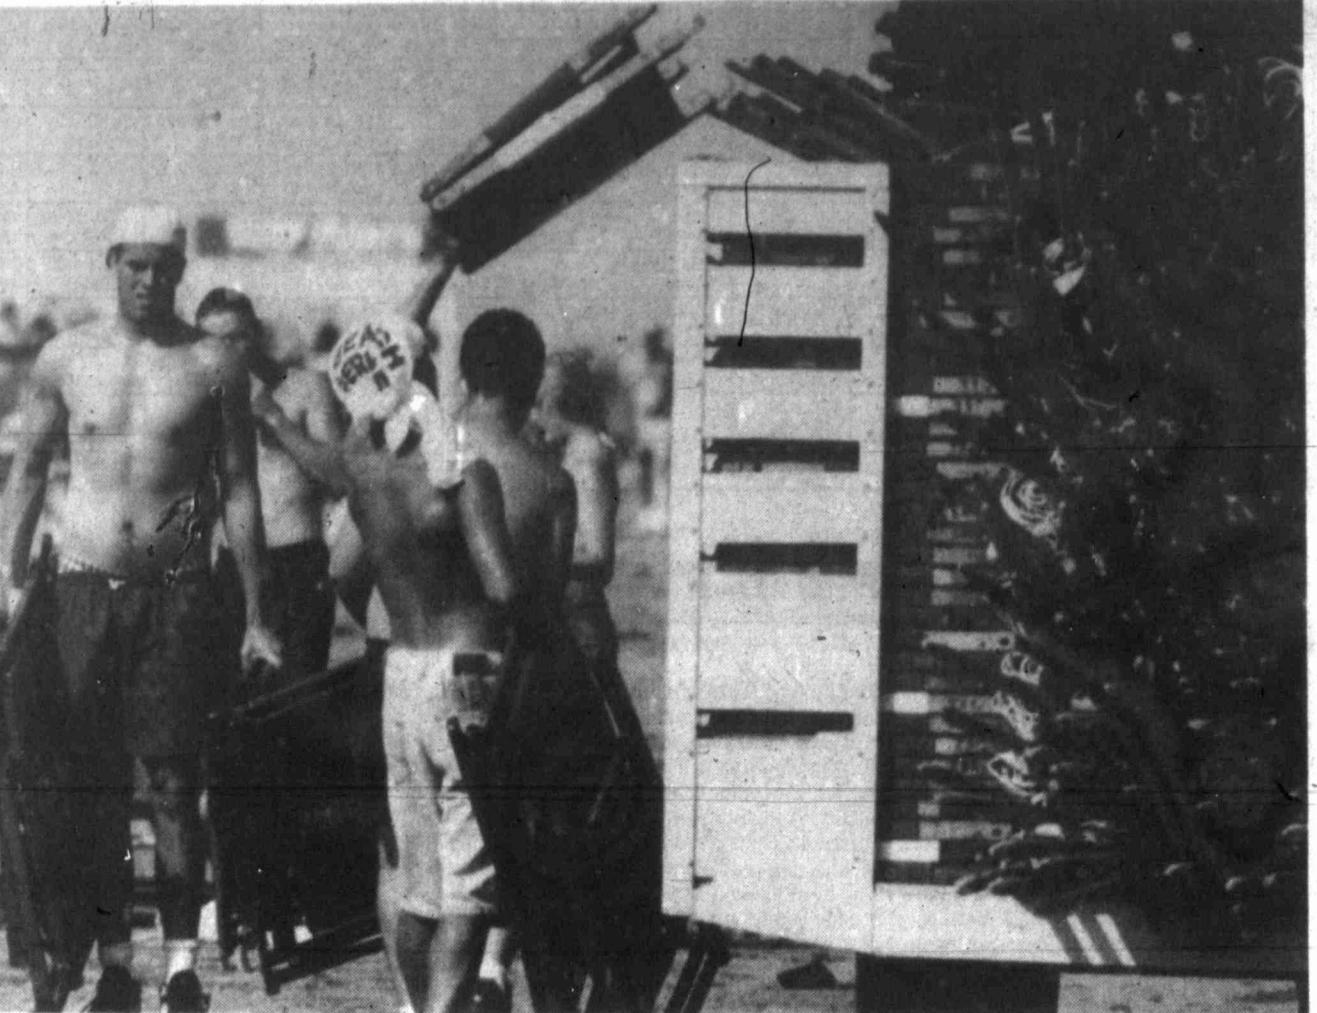

About 86 percent said waiting periods to purchase guns would affect only law-abiding citizens, and 63.8 percent preferred an instant background check.

The officers ranked drugs, the decline of family values and the combination of light prison sentences and early release programs as the top three reasons for the nation's upsurge in violent crime.

The poll, conducted by Spectrum Resources Inc. of Tallahassee, Fla., has less than 1 percent margin of error.

"We simply had enough of every special interest group ... claiming they spoke for rank-and-file officers on the subject of gun control," association President Jack Roberts said Friday. "The only way to know how law enforcement feels about gun control is to ask them."

The association has 10,614 members across the South.

Computers assisting in sign language interpretation*The Associated Press

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. — Joann Ripic was born deaf and cannot hear the testimony that will decide her guilt or innocence in the slaying of her husband.

But she's been able to follow every word in Broome County Court with the help of sign-language interpreters and computers that provide almost instantaneous translation.

While sign-language interpreters have been commonplace in courtrooms for years, computer-assisted translations remain rare.

"It bodes very well for hearing impaired people. It is opening the courtroom in every sense of the word," said E. Ross Stuckless of the National Technical Institute for the Deaf in Rochester.

Mrs. Ripic, 39, has been on trial since June 24. She is charged with murder for allegedly conspiring with her teen-age son, Roy G. Rowe, Jr., in 1990 to kill her husband, Thomas Ripic, 49.

Rowe, now 19, was convicted in 1991 of manslaughter and is serving four to 12 years in prison. The jury acquitted him of murder, concluding he shot his stepfather in a state of emotional distress.

Witnesses have testified that the 6-foot, 300-pound Ripic abused Rowe, his younger brother and a teen-age sister, as well as Mrs. Ripic.

Mrs. Ripic's deafness has been an issue throughout the case.

In 1991, Judge Martin E. Smith declared that Mrs. Ripic was not adequately advised of her rights when she was questioned hours after the killing. The judge threw out statements of how and why she helped her son kill her husband.

Police used inexperienced and non-certified interpreters, even though investigators had access to a certified interpreter, the judge said.

An appeals court agreed that most of Mrs. Ripic's statement to police was inadmissible. But it preserved the prosecution's case by allowing her declaration "I had to kill him" to be used against her.

Court officials have gone to lengths to ensure that Mrs. Ripic understands the proceedings.

Two court-appointed interpreters take turns relating testimony in sign language, while Mrs. Ripic's personal interpreter sits at the defense table to enable the defendant and her lawyer to converse.

Set up throughout the courtroom are video screens linked to the court reporter's stenographic machine via computer. There are screens for the reporter, Mrs. Ripic, the judge and the prosecutor, and one screen facing the seats for the few deaf people who have been attending the trial.

As court reporter Aaron Alweis records the testimony, it is translated and flashed onto the screens in question-and-answer format. The technology is much like the closed-captioning of TV shows.

"It groups the words and every 10 seconds or so a batch of words shoots out across the screen," Alweis said.

Computers have been used in New York courtrooms since at least 1990 to provide "real-time" translation, said Ivy Miller of the state Office of Court Administration.

Animal lovers

Local youth work for free and enjoy it as volunteers for the Humane Society

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Features Editor

They've spent hours in the sun, working hard every day. Sometimes they have to do jobs they don't like, and sometimes the place they work smells bad.

These kids aren't even getting paid, but they say they wouldn't trade their summer jobs for any. They are volunteers at the Big Spring Humane Society.

"I just like working with animals," said Becky Collins, 10. "They're so cute. And it gives me something to do. I'd probably be at home being bored if I weren't here."

A group of young people has been working at the shelter almost every day this summer, helping volunteer Bettie Cox. Their jobs include feeding animals, cleaning cages, filling dog swimming pools and giving shots and medication.

Other kids agreed. Some say they prefer certain animals, or they like working with dogs better than cats.

Johnny Payne, 13, is one of those.

"I just think dogs are cool," said Johnny, who has a dog at home, too. "They play with you and you can train them. I don't like cats as much because they will scratch you."

Walker Kyle, 13, likes everything he does at the shelter, except cleaning the cat litter boxes.

"Those are awful," he said.

"Feeding is my favorite." Walker loves animals, but he's not sure exactly why.

After the kids have finished their work, though, they usually enjoy playing with the animals. Some out of dog food, hiding pills inside so the dogs will eat them. Otherwise, a dog might not take the medicine.

"It really tricks them," Jason said.

Bettie, who teaches some of these kids in her math classes at Goliad during the school year, said the young volunteers have been great.

"Without these kids, we couldn't survive in the summer," she said. "A lot of our adults go on vacation, and there's really more work to be done."

Every year, Cox asks her students if they want to help out at the shelter. She said there are nearly always some who do, sometimes more than she needs.

"But you can tell the strong-hearted from the weak-hearted in a few days," Cox said. "They have to know this is a place of business and it's not just a place to fiddle around."

After the kids have finished their work, though, they usually enjoy playing with the animals. Some squirt the dogs with a water hose and they love it. Others pet cats.

Cox said young people who want to help at the shelter should call the humane society, 267-7832. The adult volunteers can arrange transportation.

"This is really fun and interesting," said Johnny.

"It's hard work, but it's always fun," said Amy Schilling, 13. "I love it."

Some of the other kids who volunteer at the shelter include Larry Ward; Holly and Sarah Hammonds; Steve Collins; Sherry, Josh, and Steve Hanson; and Chris and Sarah Weaver.

Dragons for real, giraffes and friends

By The Associated Press

Komodo dragons, a huge lizard that may or may not have some ancestral link to dinosaurs, fascinate many youngsters, so Peter Sis's book is a winner in my household. Sis's artwork is clever — the boy in the book "Komodo" sees Komodo dragons everywhere, from his shadow to the shape of the clouds above.

For children who always knew those long giraffe necks served some purpose, Pascal Lemaitre provides "Emily the Giraffe." Emily is a friendly African giraffe who delights her friends by twisting her body into the number 9 or stretching her neck out to become a diving board at a water hole. When a hunter mistakenly catches her in his butterfly net, he makes it up to her with a trip from Africa to his northern homeland. Emily has a swell time there, doing circus tricks and helping rescue fire victims from the upper stories of burning buildings.

Allison dies following copter crash

By The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — NASCAR driver Davey Allison died today of injuries suffered when the helicopter he was piloting crashed at Talladega Superspeedway.

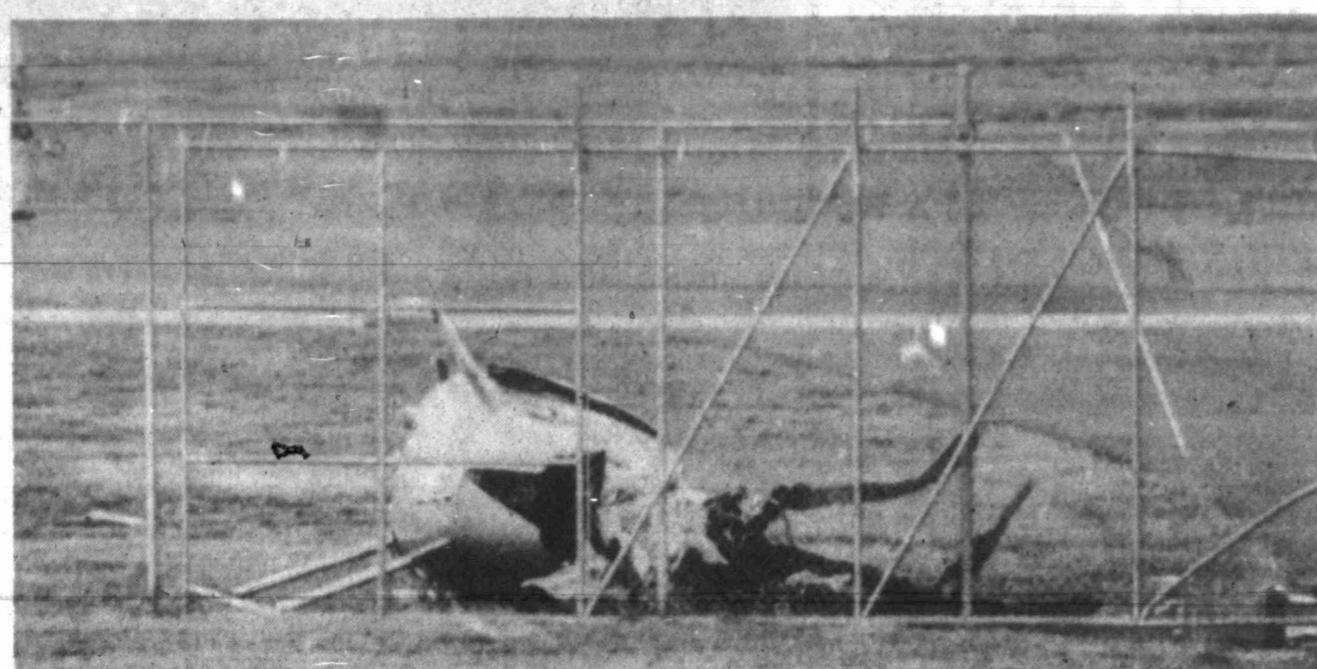

Caraway Medical Center spokesman David Smitherman said Allison, 32, was pronounced dead at 7 a.m. CDT.

"The cause of death was massive head injuries," Smitherman said. "He never regained consciousness following the crash."

Allison and veteran racer Red Farmer were the only two people aboard Allison's recently purchased helicopter when it crashed Monday afternoon in a section of the track infield not normally used by helicopters.

Smitherman said Farmer, who suffered broken ribs and a broken collarbone, remained in intensive care today but had rested comfortably during the night. "He is stable, alert and responsive," said the spokesman.

Allison is survived by his parents, Bobby and Judy Allison; his wife Liz and two children, ages 3 years and

The wreckage of a helicopter flown by NASCAR driver Davey Allison lies on the infield of the Talladega Superspeedway Monday after it crashed on the track, killing Allison and seriously injuring racer Red Farmer. Both men were flown to a Birmingham, Ala. hospital.

11 months; and two sisters.

The family asked that Allison's organs be donated for transplant "so others may live," Smitherman said.

Members of the racing fraternity began gathering at the hospital soon after the crash. Retired driver Benny Parsons said doctors Monday night had expressed "a ray of hope" about Allison's condition.

"It's just a very tragic situation," said Parsons.

Brian VanDercrook, a spokesman for the Robert Yates racing team that Allison drove for, said the organization was devastated.

"I think what we have to do is reflect on the lessons we learned from Davey on dealing with adversity," said VanDercrook. VanDercrook said he did not know whether the team would remain in competition this year.

An investigator from the National Transportation Safety Board was in Talladega to sort out conflicting accounts of what happened in the 3 p.m. crash in the track infield. A news conference was planned for late today.

Speedway president Mike Helton said Allison went down while attempting to land. The chopper came to rest on its side near a chain-link fence just yards away from a garage and a media center.

"They crashed on landing. It just went out of control," Helton said Monday night. "It didn't really hit anything."

But V.H. Steed, an official with the Federal Aviation Administration in Atlanta, said the agency was told the helicopter was taking off when it went down.

"The report we had was that he was departing and hit a fence," Steed said.

Smitherman said Allison suffered an acute subdural hematoma, an injury deep in the brain. A helicopter ambulance took Allison and Farmer to the hospital, about 50 miles west of the race track.

Farmer was conscious after the accident.

"Red crawled out and they were trying to get Davey out, but they had to get emergency units to cut him out," Carolyn Yates said after talking to her husband Robert, who owns the Ford Thunderbirds driven by Allison on the Winston Cup circuit. "The helicopter hit a fence and it turned upside down."

A cousin, Donnie Johnson, said Allison purchased the helicopter only three weeks ago. He and Farmer had flown from Birmingham to the track to watch racer Neil Bonnett's son David, who was testing a Busch Grand National car.

Tourney games resume today

Monday evening's downpour put just a minor crimp in the District 3 Little League tournament, forcing the postponement of only one game.

The Coahoma-Odessa Sherwood game has been rescheduled for 6 p.m. tonight at the National League park.

The contest will be broadcast locally on radio station KBST (1490 AM).

Other Monday games were able to beat the bad weather. In loser's bracket action, Odessa Salinas defeated Midland Eastern 8-0.

At the American League park, Midland Tower downed Midland Northern 7-2 and Midland North Central crushed West Odessa 18-2 in winner's bracket games.

The Coahoma-Sherwood game tonight will be followed by the Salinas-Northern matchup at 8 p.m. at the NL park. Tower and North Central are tentatively scheduled to play at 8 tonight at the AL park.

Coahoma falls in Senior tourney

MIDLAND — Brandon McGuire allowed only one hit, but it was enough to send Coahoma's Senior League all-stars into the loser's bracket of the District 3 tournament here Monday.

McGuire carried a no-hitter against Odessa Floyd Gwin into the sixth inning Monday. Opposing pitcher Craig Lunsford, however, reached on a bunt single and eventually scored on an error for the winning margin.

"Brandon pitched a good game," Coahoma coach Bill Gressett said. "It was tough to lose a no-hitter on a bunt single, and we couldn't get anything going offensively."

Coahoma returns to action Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Angel Stadium against an opponent to be determined.

Bass club sets tourney

The Big Spring Bass Club will hold a non-points fun tournament Saturday at Lake Champion.

This will be a team event with a five-fish limit per team. Tournament hours will be 6 a.m.-3 p.m. with weigh-in at the boat ramp.

For more information, contact Randy McKinney at 267-4843.

Don Drysdale laid to rest

GLENDALE, Calif. (AP) — Don Drysdale was eulogized by Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Orel Hershiser, broadcaster Dick Enberg and others at memorial services for the Hall of Fame pitcher at Forest Lawn chapel.

Drysdale, 56, who started with the Dodgers in Brooklyn before they moved to Los Angeles, apparently died of a heart attack the night of July 2 in his Montreal hotel room. His body was found the next day.

Toronto coach stable after wreck

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Toronto coach Rich Hacker was in serious but stable condition with a head injury and fractured right ankle sustained in an automobile accident, St. Louis University Hospital spokeswoman Marie Dilg said.

The 46-year-old Hacker's car was struck head-on about 11:45 p.m. Sunday while he was on his way from St. Louis' Lambert Airport to his home in Belleville, Ill.

Man pleads guilty to 5 slayings

By The Associated Press

CALDWELL, Ohio — A man who once said he had a compulsion to kill pleaded guilty Monday to murdering five outdoorsmen and was sentenced to life in prison.

Thomas Lee Dillon, 43, entered his plea to aggravated murder as part of a deal in which he avoided the death penalty.

He admitted shooting the men while they hunted, fished or jogged in rural Ohio between April 1989 and April 1992.

Under the plea agreement, Common Pleas Court John Nau issued the maximum sentence: life in prison with no chance of parole for 165 years.

"Today is the beginning of the end for Thomas Dillon," said Jean Paxton, whose 21-year-old son, Jaimie, was among the victims.

"We were given a life sentence the day he decided to kill our son," she said. "I think he's a pathetic coward. He has taken the coward's way out of everything."

Noble County Prosecutor Lucien Young III said the plea agreement was the "most practical solution," although he thought capital punishment was justified.

"I kind of felt like he ought to die," he said.

In addition to Paxton, who lived in Bannock, Dillon's victims were Gary Bradley, 44, of Williamstown, W.Va.; Claude Hawkins, 49, of Mansfield; Donald Welling, 35, of Strasburg; and Kevin Loring, 30, of Duxbury, Mass.

"I'm relieved. I'm happy," said Loring's mother, Sandra Young, tears streaming down her face.

Defense attorney Roger Synenberg said Dillon feels remorse.

"He has some regrets about this, but he's also got to put it all behind him," Synenberg said.

Investigators started watching Dillon last year when a friend called authorities, saying he suspected Dillon and that Dillon liked to shoot animals. Numerous animals had been shot in the areas where the men were killed.

He was arrested in November on unrelated federal weapons charges, which he pleaded guilty to in March.

The same month, in a telephone conversation with an Akron Beacon Journal reporter, Dillon said he had a compulsion to kill.

"I have major problems. I'm crazy," he said. "I want to kill. I want to kill."

Texas Rangers slugger Juan Gonzalez shows off his trophy after winning the home run contest portion of the All-Star Game festivities in Baltimore Monday.

Cowboys pleased with Aikman's progress

By The Associated Press

IRVING — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Troy Aikman has been saying he'll return from back surgery in time for the season opener, much faster than doctors would believe.

Believe it, his peers say.

"Let me tell you all something," wide receiver Michael Irvin said Monday after Aikman threw a football for the first time since the operation.

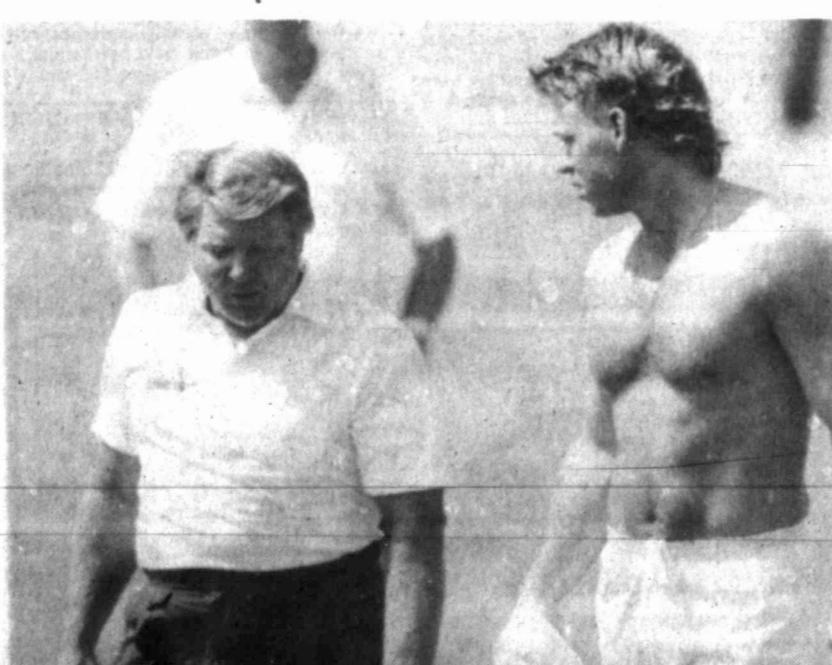

"You can put a measurement on what's the present answer (for when) most people come back in this amount of time or that amount of time, but you can never put a timetable on the strength of a man's mind and heart. That's what my boy got."

"He'll be there. Don't worry about it."

Aikman's series of short passes along the sidelines Monday was the first time the Super Bowl MVP has tested his arm since the June 19 surgery to repair a herniated disc.

While some — especially the doctors who prescribed a three-month rehabilitation — may consider the throws an important part of his progress, Aikman shrugged it off as no big deal.

"Just standing there throwing, I didn't expect to feel any pain or any discomfort ... It really doesn't test the back all that much, at least in my opinion," Aikman said.

"I could've thrown a week after surgery if I'd wanted to. It won't be until I actually start getting into some drops and trying to twist and make some throws that I'll have a better idea of where it's come."

Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson was slightly more upbeat about Aikman's progress.

"I'm very pleased with Troy," he said. "He's much further along than what anybody ever anticipated. I really feel optimistic and somewhat realistic that he'll be there for the opening ballgame."

But first, he's got to practice. Johnson has strict orders that players must practice to play in games and Aikman is intent on playing the Sept. 6 against Washington.

Aikman is aiming to begin working out with the team the second week of August, after the Cowboys return from an exhibition game in London against the Detroit Lions.

"Obviously, I would like to get out there as soon as I can," Aikman said. "Realistically, it won't be until after London, but optimistically I'd like to get a few days in before they take off."

Aikman plans to spend that week in Los Angeles rehabilitating under doctor supervision, then return to Austin to begin taking snaps. Dallas plays three exhibition games after facing the Lions, but he's not sure if he'll play in any of them.

Aikman said he expects to increase his work load in about a week, including making some of the more difficult-type throws he mentioned.

He also expects to begin jogging soon after training camp opens Thursday in Austin.

Bonds could shine in All-Star game

By The Associated Press

"I still watch the replay of those games and still get the same feelings."

"Barbie needs Barry Bonds to do things like that," Jackson said. "He's ripe to take the next step. The game always needs a player like that."

It's not that Bonds hasn't had his chances, either. In the last three playoff series with Pittsburgh, Bonds combined to hit .191 with one homer and three RBIs in 20 games. Some say Bonds can't join the elite until he has a really big show of his own.

Bonds is working on his third straight NL MVP award, and a lot of people think it should be four in a row. Bonds, signed to a six-deal for a record $43.75 million as a free agent, is hitting .348 with 24 homers and 71 RBIs for first-place San Francisco.

"Barry can follow in the footsteps of Babe Ruth, Joe DiMaggio and Mickey Mantle like I did," Reggie said. "He's already on the cover of all the magazines ... on ESPN and CNN every night. That's what I always looked for, a little exposure no matter what they said."

Bonds was mobbed by about a hundred kids when he arrived at Camden Yards at 9:30 a.m.
