Newsoms dealing to buy Furr's

Furr's selling as part of a five-year consolidation plan

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

An agreement is in the works to sell Furr's Supermarket store in the College Park Shopping Center to Big Spring grocer Don Newsom.

The deal has not been signed, but action is expected within the next two weeks, according to Buz Doyle, with the Furr's corporate office in New Mexico.

Don Newsom and Kent Newsom were not immediately available for comment, today or Wednesday.

The move is part of Furr's five-year plan to maximize strength and profitability of the supermarket chain. Jan Friederich, chairman and CEO of Furr's, said this comes at the midpoint in the five-year plan.

In March, 1991, Furr's led a buy-out, incorporating a shift in corporate headquarters to Albuquerque from Lubbock.

Closing the Big Spring store, the last of two stores that served Big Spring for many years, was done as part of a business plan. "Big Spring does not fit our geographic market strategy," Doyle said. Sales were reportedly strong, however, at the Big Spring store.

A second store in Snyder was closed because of the same reasoning, according to Doyle.

Furr's sales and profits are up, because of the plan, according to Friederich. Overhead and store expenses are down as well, he said. "We've just posted the best six-month earning in our company's history."

It is unclear what will become of the Furr's store's employees. Furr's officials declined to comment on how many will be transferred to other cities or will be laid off.

"Furr's has achieved results on an accelerated basis. We're further along with meeting our five-year goals than we thought we'd be at this time," Friederich said.

Emphasis will now be made on remodeling the remaining Furr's stores, with expanded video rentals departments. Furr's Supermarket's, Inc. has 73 stores in New Mexico and West Texas.

A customer removes grocery bags from his shopping cart to put in the trunk of his car in front of the Furr's Supermarket Wednesday morning. The store in the College Park Shopping Center, along with the former store on 11th Place, is slated to be sold to the Newsom's grocery store chain.

Council outlines goals, problems

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Problems and goals targeted by the Big Spring City Council at a day-long retreat last month were recently released in summarized form.

The June 6 Saturday meeting, at McDowell Ranch on Garden City Route, was to develop a sense of teamwork between council members and staff as well as develop short- and long-range goals. Staff joined the council in the afternoon.

"Remember: time spent at this retreat will save time at city council meetings!" City Manager Lanny Lambert said of retreat goals.

City problems were identified in areas of attitude and pride, infrastructure, water, cooperation between the city and county, appearance, declining tax base, community decline, inadequate minority involvement, low income of residents.

City assets were noted in areas of past success, climate and natural beauty, location in West Texas, good schools, good people, amenities such as golf courses, lakes, auditorium and quality of life, VA Medical Center, Fina Inc. refinery, Big Spring State Hospital, prisons and airport.

Goals are to speak positive, develop pride program, beautification programs, tourism support, musicals and use of auditorium, cleaning up that includes enforcement of weed, junked vehicles and dilapidated structure ordinances, increasing jobs and tax base, retain businesses, buying local, communicate better and recruiting and retaining quality employees.

The meeting was designed to get council members away from other problems and interruptions and into a relaxed atmosphere to facilitate frank discussion. Council members left the meeting refreshed, with some saying they wanted to do it again soon. Lambert plans to do it annually.

Retreat rules give an indication of how the meeting was conducted: Everyone is equal; no hidden agendas; city manager is facilitator, not city manager; every complaint must include a solution; everyone's opinion is important; must laugh every 30 minutes.

To help get the chuckles going, Lambert quietly passed out copies of different cartoons at frequent intervals. Council members were also required to tell about their past, including two secrets nobody else knew.

Johnson Street the next city paving project

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The cracked and frequently patched Johnson Street is being completely rebuilt. Also, water pipes underneath are being replaced.

A seven-member city crew began ripping up asphalt and concrete Monday while a four-member crew started replacing water pipes. Work is expected to be complete in four more weeks, said City Manager Lanny Lambert.

"It should be 20 years before we have to do anything else to it except sealcoat occasionally," Lambert said.

Sealcoating is asphalt resurfacing. Rebuilding the street involves laying a new flexible base of caliche, limestone and concrete base followed a two-inch asphalt overlay.

The street is being rebuilt from Fourth to 11th streets. 12-inch water pipes are being replaced from Seventh to 11th so the street won't have to be ripped up in the near future because of busted pipes.

It's the largest project yet tackled by the street crew, Lambert said. It's the second project for the pipe crew, formed last year in time to replace pipes in Capehart Addition housing on the old Air Force Base. So crews are learning a little on the job, Lambert said.

"So far it's going very smooth," he said. "We've had less problems than we anticipated and it's going right on schedule."

The project is part of a $300,000 summer street program that includes rebuilding half a dozen intersections on 25th Street and purchasing materials for sealcoating of 20 miles of streets. The county does the sealcoat. Please see CITY, page 11A

New long distance law could prove beneficial for county

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Some help is on the way for Forsan and other rural Texas phone users, with passage of a new state law expanding local calling areas, set to go into effect Sept. 1.

Although Forsan and Big Spring are separated by only 12 miles, calls between the two cities are charged as long distance.

"In many, many communities... people can't reach their doctors or they can't reach a hospital or organize a Little League team or call their school" without long-distance charges, said Austin attorney Jim Boyle, a member of the group Texas Communities for Expanded Local Calling Areas, which will meet tomorrow in Lubbock.

The Forsan Independent School District has been operating with two Southwestern Bell foreign exchange lines. Although expensive, these two Big Spring numbers save the school district money, as numerous calls are made to the county seat.

The new legislation has, so far, met with approval from Forsan school officials. "We think we'll be able to do away with our Southwestern Bell lines," said Superintendent George White. "That will be a considerable savings."

A bill approved last session by the Legislature allows expansion of calling areas under certain criteria: The telephone exchange must serve a non-metropolitan area; the expansion must win 70-percent support in an election called by petition; and the Public Utility Commission must approve.

Telephone exchanges up to 22 miles apart could be linked.

Phone companies, however, will be allowed to charge $3.50 per residential line and $7 per business line each month in an exchange that expands.

This summer, attorneys and analysts in PUC's telephone division are writing rules to implement the new law. Many details still are not settled.

Confusing is the 22-mile issue: Does the mileage run from city limit to city limit, or between telephone offices? And are the miles counted by air or road?

"The analysis that the PUC needs to perform is ongoing," said Guillermo Garcia, director of public information for the commission. "We are not in the position to tell the pluses and negatives right now."

Tim Raven, president of the Texas Telephone Association, said the bill, signed by Gov. Ann Richards, will be helpful to his industry because of its workable design.

Boyle expects the law to help many schools and local governments burdened by expensive calls to areas they serve.

"Long distance has been a real handicap to those communities," Boyle said. "This is an effort to bring fairness to rural areas."

Weaver arrest scheme ruled to be flawed

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Within days of the siege that left three people dead at white separatist Randy Weaver's cabin last August, an FBI agent concluded that U.S. Marshals Service tactics all but invited the confrontation.

Marshals' scheme for arresting Weaver was flawed, Special Agent Jon Uda wrote in an assessment shortly after the Aug. 21 shootout that left Deputy Marshal William Degan and Weaver's 14-year-old son, Samuel, dead.

Weaver's wife, Vicki, was killed by an FBI sniper the next day.

Uda objected to marshals approaching Weaver's remote northern Idaho cabin about 24 times in the six months before the gunfight. Marshals had the cabin under surveillance as part of a plan to arrest Weaver, who failed to appear for a 1991 trial on a federal weapons charge.

Lottery winner gets time for no support

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A man who squandered a $7 million jackpot while failing to pay child support for his two sons drew 18 months in jail.

Albert Tecci, a 42-year-old who was among the "Ten Most Wanted" deadbeat dads in a recent state Revenue Department campaign, was convicted Wednesday of failing to pay $32,000 in support for the youngsters, now 12 and 13.

Tecci split the $7 million Colorado lottery prize in 1989 with the woman who was to become his second wife. But he testified he was broke by mid-1992 and hadn't been able to pay child support since.

No charges filed in actor's death

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — No charges will be brought against crew members in the shooting death of actor Brandon Lee on a movie set, a prosecutor says.

However, District Attorney Jerry Spivey said he has not yet ruled out criminal negligence charges against the film production company, Crowvision.

The 28-year-old son of martial arts star Bruce Lee was killed March 31 during filming of "The Crow." A gun that was supposed to hold a blank instead fired part of a dummy bullet that apparently had been inserted for an earlier, closeup scene.

Murder weapon believed found

NEW YORK (AP) — Investigators have recovered the gun they believe was used by a Colombian drug lord's hit man to kill crusading journalist Manuel de Dios.

The weapon was fished out of a canal off the East River in the Queens borough after a two-month search by the Police Department's scuba team, Commissioner Raymond Kelly said Wednesday. It was found in pieces in a plastic bag.

Investigators believe the pieces are from the 9mm automatic pistol used last year by a hooded hit man, Kelly said. The man fired two shots into de Dios' head as he sat on a barstool at a restaurant in the Jackson Heights section of Queens.

At the time, de Dios, former editor of the Spanish-language newspaper El Diario-La Prensa, was publishing two magazines — El Crimen and Cambio XXI — known for naming names and revealing other details of the narcotics trade.

Spivey said in today's Wilmington Morning Star that crew members were apparently careless, but not enough to warrant charges. He said no one intended to harm Lee.

Clinton: 'Hang in there'

$2.48 billion in relief promised to Mid-west

The Associated Press

DES MOINES, Iowa — President Clinton brought encouraging words, a symbolic hand with sandbags and the promise of at least $2.48 billion in disaster relief to the flooded Midwest on Wednesday. "Hang in there," he told residents lining up for drinking water.

During a fast-paced stopover on his way back to Washington from a Hawaiian vacation, Clinton viewed the flood damage from the presidential helicopter, offered support at a long water line, answered questions about help on a radio call-in program and even filled a few sandbags.

Discussing the worst natural disaster ever to hit the Midwest, Clinton said, "I have seen whole towns flooded, I have seen massive amounts of farmland flooded, but I've never seen anything on this scale before."

The president chose Des Moines for his second Midwest inspection tour in 10 days because the area has been particularly hard hit, earning the dubious distinction of being the largest American city ever to lose its water supply.

A quarter of a million people were still without safe drinking water after flood waters overwhelmed the city's water purification facilities.

Clinton announced that he had forwarded to Congress on Wednesday a request for $2.48 billion in emergency spending in the current budget year, which ends on Sept. 30. And he said that amount, double what he proposed in his earlier visit, would probably need to be expanded as well.

He pledged to push Congress to approve whatever amount was necessary and suggested the administration may put forward a proposal for extra assistance in the next five days.

The U.S. Treasury would have to borrow the emergency funds, causing the deficit to rise. Clinton said, however, he wasn't concerned because estimates of the deficit have fallen $20 billion since he took office.

"So while, you know, a few billion dollars will add to it in this year, it will still be lower than everyone thought it was going to be, and it will not in any way affect the five-year deficit reduction program now moving through Congress," he said.

The largest chunk of the $2.48 billion package, some $945 million, would go to disaster relief administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. An additional $145 million would be earmarked for road and bridge repairs and rebuilding of damaged dams and other flood control works.

After a helicopter tour in which Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad pointed out flooded fields, damaged railroad bridges and the city's contaminated water works, Clinton visited with Des Moines residents at a water distribution center and then took calls on WHO, the Des Moines radio station where a young Ronald Reagan got his break as a sportscaster.

"I talked to people who had lost everything, their farms and businesses. It was a very moving thing," Clinton recounted to callers.

Man found innocent in the bludgeoning death of family

The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — A man was acquitted Wednesday of stabbing and bludgeoning to death his wife and three children in a bloodbath that he had blamed on the woman.

Sam Kastanis, 45, was found innocent of four counts of aggravated homicide after the jury deliberated seven hours. He could have faced the death penalty if convicted.

"A year and a half I've waited for this," a tearful Kastanis said after the verdict was announced. "The truth is the truth is all I can say."

Prosecutor Kent Morgan had tried to pin the slayings on Kastanis, but the defense contended that a mentally ill and desperate Margaret Kastanis had killed her three children and then stabbed herself four times in the chest.

"A tragic shell of a woman killed her children and killed herself," said defense attorney Ron Yengich.

Morgan left the courtroom after the jurors were dismissed and wasn't immediately available for comment. The verdict marked the first time a defendant has been acquitted on a capital homicide charge in Utah since 1984.

Throughout the investigation and trial, Kastanis was supported by the dead woman's relatives, as well as his own. They say Mrs. Kastanis was depressed and paranoid in the weeks before the killing.

"We're very happy. All we wanted was the truth and the Margaret we know did not do this," Mrs. Kastanis' mother, Frances Jenkins, said after the verdict.

Her father, Orren Jenkins, told KSL-TV. "We lost a daughter and three grandchildren, but legally, by this verdict, we didn't lose a son."

Lawsuits test Wal-Mart's 'no dating' policy

The Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — They met at the sporting goods section of Wal-Mart and their romance blossomed on bowling nights with co-workers. Laural Allen and Samuel Johnson never thought their relationship would get them fired.

Allen said they were dismissed by Wal-Mart in February after their supervisor learned they violated a company policy that forbids married employees to date.

They fought back with a lawsuit. On Wednesday they received support from State Attorney General Robert Abrams, who filed his own lawsuit.

Allen, 23, is separated from her husband. Johnson, 20, is single.

"The manager said it wasn't morally right. Who is she to make a moral judgment on me?" Allen said. "I didn't think I was doing anything wrong."

Allen and Johnson, who now live together, are seeking $2 million each from the Arkansas-based retailing giant. They worked at a store in Johnstown, about 40 miles northwest of Albany.

Abrams said Wal-Mart's "no dating" policy for married employees violates state anti-discrimination laws.

"The law makes it clear that employers must judge workers by their performance on the job, not by what they do in their private lives," he said.

Abrams is seeking to reinstate the couple with back pay, and to prevent the company from using its policy in the future.

Wal-Mart spokesman Don Shinkle contended the store did not break state law. He said the pair was fired after "disruptive" behavior that included excessive breaks together, open displays of affection and visits to one another while on duty.

"Anyone who has had the experience of trying to purchase a product or service and having to wait while sales people visit with each other can certainly appreciate our position," Shinkle said.

Border health commission established to assess problems along U.S.-Mexico border

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president of the American Health Association says health conditions along the U.S. Mexico border are a "ticking time bomb" and that efforts to combat the Third World diseases found there are long overdue.

The AMA and its head, Dr. Joseph Painter, Wednesday endorsed legislation that would create a binational health commission to coordinate disease prevention efforts along the 2,000-mile border.

Without such a commission, health conditions will not improve in a region marred by poverty, pollution and inadequate infrastructure, Painter and several lawmakers said at a Capitol news conference.

"The public health consequence of drastic population growth and poor environmental conditions are staggering," said the bill's author, Rep. Ron Coleman, D-El Paso. Sen. Jeff Bingaman, D-N.M., is sponsoring the measure in the Senate.

"Hepatitis is three to four times more prevalent in the border region than it is in the rest of the country," said Coleman, who chairs the Congressional Border Caucus.

"Tuberculosis, shigellosis, rabies and even leprosy are real public health threats in the border region of our country."

Painter, whose organization four years ago identified the border area as a "virtual cesspool and breeding ground for infectious disease," said the implications are national.

Outbreaks of salmonella infection in Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey and several Canadian provinces in 1991 were traced back to produce from the Rio Grande Valley. Similarly, an outbreak of measles in Washington state was traced back to Mexico.

"We can already see vestiges of what is happening with the rates of diseases such as hepatitis, dysentery, tuberculosis rising on our side of the border as well as across the border," Painter told reporters.

"We can see sporadic outbreaks that are occurring across this nation of similar diseases as people travel to other parts of the country and spread the disease."

Said Rep. Bob Filner, D-Calif.: "This is an American health problem."

Dr. David Smith, commissioner of the Texas Department of Health, said that the medical community alone cannot reverse the border's health woes.

"We need to have business at the table, we need to have universities and others," he said. "Because if we just play in the health sandbox, we won't fix this problem. We're too myopic."

'Very little' acid left in beached tanker

The Associated Press

PLAYA AZUL, Mexico — A wrecked tanker beached in this scenic resort has spilled thousands of tons of highly corrosive sulfuric acid into the Pacific Ocean in past weeks, a U.S. salvage expert said Wednesday.

The expert from Titan Maritime Industries, who insisted on anonymity, said he climbed into the 404-foot tanker Betula and saw "very little" acid left of the 4,400 tons it carried when it became derelict.

He said he saw only a few bubbles left in the hold of the Norwegian-registered ship, lying on its side about 100 yards from the beach, half of its

Workers for Titan, a U.S.-based salvage company, take a small boat out to the grounded Norwegian tanker Betula Wednesday, off the Mexican Pacific coastal resort of Playa Azul. One of the workers who climbed into the ship told journalists on the beach that 4,400 tons of sulfuric acid in the ship's cargo had leaked and only "bubbles remained."

main deck awash lengthwise.

The company has been contracted by Mexican authorities to salvage Betula, and the expert told reporters on the beach he wanted the government to release all further information.

Navy and Interior Department officials have repeatedly insisted there had been no acid spill, only small amounts of bunker oil of the 300 tons the Betula was carrying for fuel.

Mexico lets Chinese into waters

Government says will repatriate the 750 undocumented workers

The Associated Press

MEXICO CITY — Unwelcome in the United States and unable to survive much longer on their rickety and filthy ships, 658 Chinese may have to enter Mexico today, the first step before being sent back to their homeland.

Mexico agreed Wednesday to receive the boats, apparently ending a week's standoff with Washington, which had stopped the ships from reaching U.S. shores.

The ship's crews will be jailed on immigrant-smuggling charges and the 658 passengers will be sent home to China, said Foreign Undersecretary Andres Rozental.

"None of the Chinese will remain in Mexico nor will they be allowed to pass along to a third country," he said, noting that the refugees clearly were bound for the United States when they were intercepted by the U.S. Coast Guard on June 6.

Rozental denied that Mexico was succumbing to U.S. pressure, saying the government made its own decision following the calls by its citizens and the international community concerned for the refugees.

"The decision has been made in response to a humanitarian situation that had turned critical, with more than 600 human being abandoned to their luck on the high seas," he said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Joseph Snyder welcomed what he described as Mexico's "humanitarian decision."

The ships were last reported to be grouped together within a 200-yard radius of each other in international waters, about 60 miles from the Mexican port of Ensenada and roughly 100 miles southwest of San Diego.

Signs in English that read "USA I Love You" and "Bread We Want, Freedom We Want" decked the rusting vessels.

The Chinese had languished on the crowded and filthy boats, decked with dangling laundry off Mexico's Baja coastline, while Mexico and the United States debated their fate.

The U.S. Coast Guard intercepted the rusty ships after the captain of one of the vessels radioed for help, reporting engine failure.

Coast Guard officials inspecting the ships found the Chinese living in foul conditions, sustaining themselves on undercooked rice and impure water and relieving themselves in corners of the boats.

According to authorities, the refugees have remained aboard the ships since they began their voyage from China's Fuzhou Province three months ago.

Last Friday, Mexico rejected a U.S. request to grant temporary asylum to the migrants in exchange for a U.S. government offer to pay the costs of repatriating the Chinese.

Natural gas restored in Sarajevo; life there is still 'a living hell'

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — Natural gas was restored to Sarajevo today, a major breakthrough in a four-week utility crisis. But most of the city, said by one U.N. aid worker to be "living through hell," remained without power or running water.

Restoration of gas, which was cut off by Serb forces last month, will enable residents to cook normally for the first time in weeks.

Meanwhile, in Zagreb, Croatia, today a U.N. spokesman confirmed new Serb-Croat clashes in the Dalmatian hinterland and, for the first time in months, Serb shelling of Karlovac, some 40 miles southwest of Zagreb.

There was additional good news for Sarajevo amid some of the worst suffering of the nearly 16-month siege: 75 tons of diesel fuel blocked for days by Serbs at Sarajevo airport reached the city.

The fuel went first to the city bakery and a key water-pumping station before arriving at Kosevo hospital, where doctors recently have performed operations only by natural light.

Serbs released the fuel after a six-hour visit to Sarajevo by U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees Sadako Ogata on Wednesday.

Mrs. Ogata condemned the Serb blockade of Sarajevo and met with Bosnian President Alija Izetbegovic on Wednesday.

Describing finances as "very, very tight," Ogata also said she would meet Friday with donor countries in Geneva to appeal for money. Her spokeswoman, Sylvania Foa, said an additional $200 million was needed to meet "bare-bones" requirements for the rest of the year.

Running water was restored late Wednesday in some western neighborhoods, where about 20 percent of the city's 380,000 residents live. But restoration of electricity and the rest of the water system hinges on delicate negotiations between the Muslim-led Bosnian government and Serb leaders.

Checking the damage

A rescue worker jumps over the debris of a damaged house in the western Greek port city of Patras, after an earthquake registering 5.4 on the Richter scale struck the city on Wednesday. Officials said up to 300 buildings were damaged and at least five people were injured.

Iran frees Iraqi prisoners of war

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran has freed 459 Iraqis taken prisoner during its 1980-88 war with Iraq, Iranian radio reported Wednesday.

The radio, monitored by the British Broadcasting Corp. in London, said the men were handed over to Iraqi authorities Wednesday at the Khosravi border post, 330 miles southwest of Tehran.

The radio said the men were freed as a "humanitarian gesture," and said Iran hoped for reciprocal action.

Castro supporters, detractors fighting

SALVADOR, Brazil (AP) — Supporters of Fidel Castro scuffled with anti-Castro Cuban exiles Wednesday on the eve of a summit of 23 leaders from Spain, Portugal and their former colonies.

Seven protesters from Miami, Fla. were marching downtown with banners reading "Dictator" and "Murderer," when they were attacked by about 30 members of Brazil's Communist Party. The Brazilians, shouting "Get out, bums!," tore down the banners and started a fistfight.

The scuffle ended before police arrived.

Anti-Castro groups have said they will protest during the two-day summit, which begins Thursday. Castro had not arrived at the time of the protest.

Security increased at Colombian jail

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — The government is building two electrified fences around a jail holding 17 members of the Medellin drug cartel as part of efforts to increase security at the prison, the justice minister said Wednesday.

Authorities also are installing a television system so that inmates can give court testimony without leaving the jail, said Justice Minister Andres Gonzalez on the Nacional TV news program.

Inmates at the prison in the Medellin suburb of Itagui have been caught with marijuana and liquor, as well as an unauthorized radiotelephone and beeper.

The violations led to a crackdown that included transferring inmates to other facilities, the withholding of privileges and the new security measures announced Wednesday.

The drug traffickers, who surrendered in exchange for leniency, include the three Ochoa brothers — Fabio, Juan David and Jorge Luis — who ran the Medellin cartel with Pablo Escobar.

Escobar surrendered in June 1991, but escaped from a luxury jail a year later.

15 stranded gray whales rescued

LA PAZ, Mexico (AP) — Scientists saved 15 gray whales stranded on a Baja California beach and returned them to the sea, the Excelsior news agency reported Wednesday. It said two other whales died.

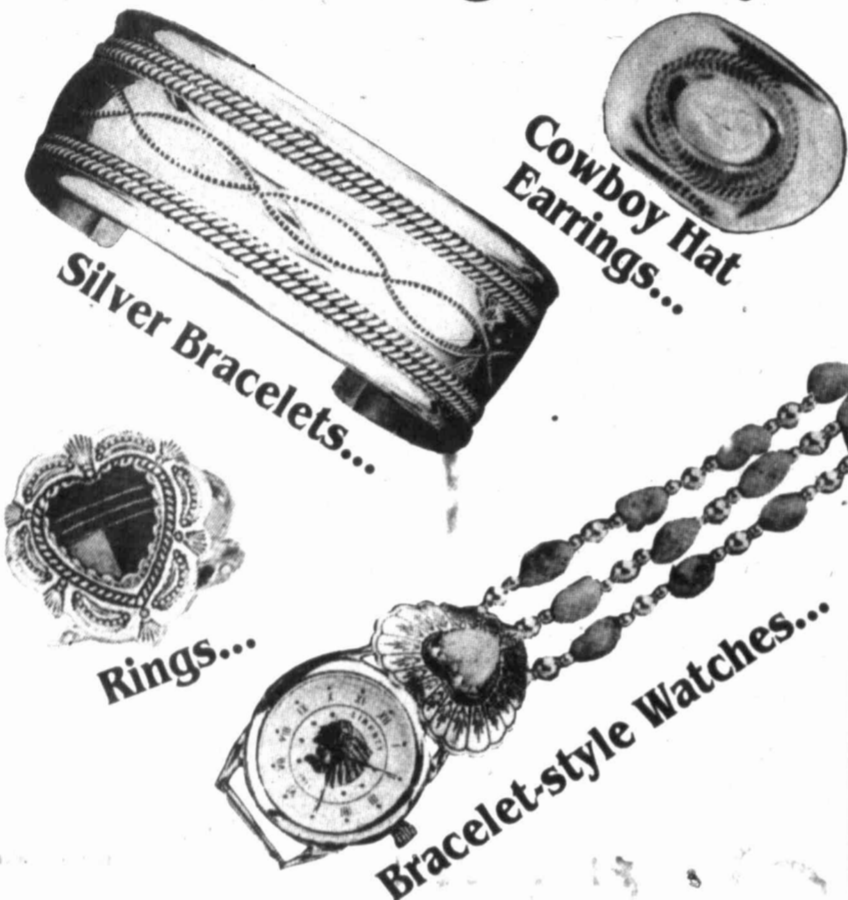

The whales apparently were looking for squid when violent waves washed them ashore Sunday, said Dr. Luis Fleischer, president of the International Whaling Commission and leader of the rescue effort.

They were beached near La Paz, 770 miles northwest of Mexico City, the report said.

Smog emergency puts cars off streets

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — A smog emergency that forced 40 percent of Santiago's 600,000 automobiles off the streets and idled 126 factories Wednesday was extended for another 24 hours, the government said.

Can't get no respect

Some states just find themselves always on the butt-end of someone's joke

The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — West Virginia? Hillbillies and first cousins who marry each other.

New Jersey? "Did you hear the latest?" Johnny Carson once quipped. "A tidal wave hit the New Jersey coast — causing $7.52 in damage."

Arkansas? People without shoes. George Bush also called Arkansas "the biggest failure of the United States," although, it must be admitted, that was more of a swipe at Bill Clinton.

It's enough to make you wonder where all the jokes are about uncultured Connecticut residents or hick Rhode Islanders.

But the Rodney Dangerfields of the road atlas can take heart: Help, in the form of these touchy times, may be on the way.

"It's a lot more difficult to use stereotypes in general," says Tim Kelleher, a staff writer for "The Arsenio Hall Show" and a former stand-up comic. "We're living in such politically correct times."

"I think if it doesn't hurt anyone directly, it's OK," he said. "If you're saying people in Appalachia marry their cousins, if you go to Appalachia, you got a problem. But if you go somewhere else and say you were just in Appalachia, it's OK."

Still, Kelleher acknowledged, "People are so touchy. You have to be so innocuous. You make a joke and you get five phone calls the next day from people who were offended."

Regional stereotypes in America date back to British jokes about Yankees, then portrayed as uncouth country bumpkins, said Ken Thigpen, a Penn State University professor of folk history and American studies.

"There are often conflicting stereotypes," Thigpen said. "One Texas stereotype is of a braggart, who says, 'Everything's bigger in Texas, everything's better in Texas.' At the same time, there's the western Texas stereotype of the man of few words."

Stereotypes often develop as a rivalry between neighboring states, he said, while others are more regionally based.

But he couldn't explain why some states continue to be the butt of jokes while others aren't.

"I think there are those places that are different," Thigpen said, "for better or worse."

An example: It recently was discovered that a Kentucky software maker that uses graphics to symbolize each of the 50 states offered an igloo for Alaska, a cable car for California, a horse for Kentucky — and an out-house for West Virginia.

That's exactly the kind of thing that West Virginia Tourism and Parks Commissioner John Brown worried about before taking his job four years ago.

"I came to the job with the bias of most natives," Brown said. "After growing up hearing about all the negative things about West Virginia, you think everyone's thinking negative things about the state."

But a survey several years ago showed most people did not think poorly of West Virginia, Brown said.

"We not only had no negative image, we had no image. People didn't know where we were or what we were like," he said.

Gerald Hall, vice president of the New Jersey Chamber of Commerce, called it "an uphill battle" to polish the Garden State's besmirched image, rooted in the urban decay characteristic of towns like Newark and Camden and industrial pollution common along one short stretch of the New Jersey Turnpike.

There is truth to the negative image of New Jersey's industrial parts, but to sully the entire state is unfair, Hall said.

Much of New Jersey is farmland, and the state also has a wide expanse of forestland known as the Pine Barrens and miles of beaches that attract tourists from the Northeast and Canada, Hall said. Travel magazines and beach-goers describe the state's southern coast as one of the nation's most beautiful.

"But it's hard to fight the image, the clichés," Hall said.

Although the sign speaks to dog owners, Motor Cat and her master, "J Catman," of Arlington, Va., have nothing to worry about, as they tour the streets of the Washington metropolitan area astride their Suzuki 500. The cat, mirroring her master in a custom helmet, lives for speed according to Catman and is constantly trying to coax her master to go faster.

No cheesecake, calendar flops

The Associated Press

PLEASANT HILLS, Pa. — A fire company turned down the heat in its 1993 fund-raising calendar and lost money when it published photos of buildings instead of women.

"I think it's safe to say the fire company's out of the calendar business completely," Fire Chief Dan Haack said Tuesday.

The volunteer fire company in this Pittsburgh suburb raised $90,000 in 1989 with its first calendar, "Blazes of Glory." The nationally marketed calendar depicted scantily clad women posing with firefighting equipment.

That was great for the company's annual budget of about $60,000 to $70,000, Haack said.

But in 1990, 1991 and 1992, similar cheesecake calendars flooded the market and with so many competitors, the borough's sequel, "Take the Heat," made only about $10,000 a year.

"It wasn't worth it," the chief said. This year, the firefighters replaced bathing beauties with photos of churches, the borough hall, the Pleasant Hills Elementary School and other buildings.

The clean calendar cost about $8,000 to publish. Sales brought in only one-quarter of that sum, Haack said.

Local business suffers heavy fire damage

Herald Staff Report

An estimated $15,000 damage was caused when carpets and pads caught fire in a back room at Crown Decorating Center, 1909 Gregg, shortly before 10 p.m. Wednesday.

Cause is undetermined, which means arson has not been ruled out, said Big Spring Fire Marshal Burr Lea Settles.

"Only because we can't pinpoint why the fire originated where it did," he said. "We looked at it real close last night."

A call came in at 9:48 p.m. from someone at Premier Video, Settles said. Firefighters arrived two minutes later as the fire, which at first smoldered for a while, began to flame, Settles said. If the call didn't come in when it did, much more damage probably would have been caused.

Three pumper trucks and 13 firefighters had the fire under control within minutes, he said. A snorkel was brought as standby.

ing annually in return for city help with county fires.

The $300,000 came from a $1.1 million bond approved by city voters in October. More street projects are being planned.

"We intend to keep going until we run out of money," Lambert said.

City paving doesn't include current resurfacing of Third and Fourth streets, which the state is doing. And money for paving of dirt streets on the Westside last spring, from Fourth to 11th and Abrams to Sunset, came from a state grant as well as city money. Four-fifths of $406,210 for the Westside project came from the state.

Black bears coming back to Texas

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Recent sightings of black bears have raised concern among ranchers about their livestock. But state wildlife officials warn that it is against the law to kill or harass the endangered animal.

"Black bears are attempting to reestablish in Texas," Rick Taylor, a bear specialist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said Wednesday.

"Sightings may increase the next couple of years up to about 150 miles from the Rio Grande. There has been good reproduction in Mexico and in Big Bend National Park the last several years," he said.

Earlier this week, a sow and cub were spotted several times in Mountain Home, a community northwest of Kerrville in Kerr County.

A couple of weeks ago, a black bear was seen near Mountain Home by two Parks and Wildlife employees. Taylor said the sightings may be of the same bear.

In late May, three men from Tennessee driving home from California hit and killed a 300-pound male black bear on Interstate 10 in Jeff Davis County, he said.

Taylor said the black bear poses little threat to humans. "They're scared of us. They are pretty shy creatures," he said.

Since black bears are on the endangered species list in Texas, it is illegal to kill or harass them, he said.

Girls of summer, Audra Bingham, catcher, and Andi Schneider, batter, are looking forward to playing softball during the school year. Both have played on United Girls Softball Association teams since they were 5-years-old. Recently, the Coahoma Independent School District approved a softball program beginning the upcoming school year.

Tobacco surplus down 12 percent

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON D.C. — The Tobacco Merchants Association says the U.S. tobacco industry closed the first quarter of this year with a trade surplus of $877 million, a drop of some 12 percent from the same period of 1992.

"In the first quarter of 1993, U.S. cigarette manufacturers exported 45.7 billion cigarettes, valued at $911.2 million, up nearly $85.4 million or 10.3 percent over the first three months of 1992," said Farrell Delman, president of the association.

This helped propel the first-quarter tobacco products surplus of almost $984 million up over 8.8 percent, he said.

"In spite of the 8.8 percent increase in the value of exported tobacco products, the decline in the positive contribution made by direct leaf exports explains the decline in the overall first-quarter performance," Delman said.

Leaf tobacco exports of nearly 63.4 million kilograms, valued at over $365 million, were down 9.6 percent in quantity and almost 17 percent in value, but leaf tobacco imports, at 91.8 million kilograms and valued at more than $288 million, were up 24 percent in quantity and 4 percent in value.

The majority of the imports were oriental tobacco, a type not grown in the United States but required in the manufacture of American Blend cigarettes, Delman said.

CISD approves softball program

MARTHA E. FLORES

COAHOMA - Batter up! Coahoma High School will have a girls softball team in the upcoming school year.

The Coahoma Independent School District Monday approved the sports program after parents and United Girls Softball Association officials recently proposed it. A strong summer softball league and the University Interscholastic League recently allowing girls softball programs in high schools prompted the group to address the board.

"About 35 girls expressed an interest to play ball during the school year," said David Elmore, Coahoma USGA president. "Since UIL started allowing it statewide, we thought it could happen here."

The program will be open to ninth through 12th graders. Coaching the team will be assistant baseball coach Danny Randolph. The program will be the only one in Howard County.

The nearest 2A school (Coahoma's classification) with such a program is Winters about 100 miles southeast in Runnels County. The team will compete against 2A District teams, such as Hermaleigh, Merkel and Westbrook. Midland and Abilene school districts are exploring the feasibility of introducing a girls softball program, said CISD athletic director Steve Park.

The season will run parallel with the boys baseball program. The games will be played at the city softball fields, where the UGSA games are played.

"There is a lot of interest in Coahoma in girls softball," said CISD superintendent L.D. Monroe. "They have been very successful. They have a lot-talent. I think it will be very exciting."

Other programs available to girls are golf, tennis, track and basketball. The basketball program has about 35 girls participating. Many believe the softball program will have at least that many its first year.

More than a $1 million in bids open by CRMWD

Special to the Herald

Bids totalling more than $1 million were opened recently by the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

Actual contracts, if awarded, will be made by the CRMWD board in a meeting around mid-July.

Henry Pratt Co. of Aurora, Ill. submitted the apparent low bid on butterfly and cone valves for the Lake O.H. Ivie-San Angelo and Midland-Odessa pipeline in the amount of $829,843. That total could be lowered to $798,443 if an alternate for a steel accumulator tank is exercised.

D.D. Johnston Co. of Big Spring was apparent low bidder on a building for a new control center to be built across the street from the present headquarters building at 400 E. 24th Street in Big Spring.

Johnston's proposal was for $263,998 for a 3,960 square foot building, which would match the headquarters structure in appearance.

Hail storm damages cotton crops in Texas

The Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — Hail storms damaged almost 35,000 acres of cotton in Collingsworth County last week, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service reports.

Dale Dunlap, Extension agricultural agent in Wellington, said at least 6,000 acres were completely destroyed.

"The hail was mostly golf ball-sized, but it came down in massive sheets over a large area," Dunlap said. "In some fields the stalks were cut off."

Within a matter of hours, two hail storms hit Collingsworth County, accompanied by the Gulf Coast. Zeidler said high temperatures should be in the low to mid 90s for most of the state, and in the upper 90s to low 100s for the Trans-Pecos region and West Texas.

Producers in South Texas and the Coastal Bend reported their fears that Tropical Storm Arlene would devastate the grain sorghum crop there.

Producers in West Texas and the Coastal Bend reported their fears that Tropical Storm Arlene would devastate the grain sorghum crop there.

Lin Wilson, district Extension director in Corpus Christi, said grain sorghum yields have been surprisingly good. Yields have ranged from 5,500 pounds per acre in the best fields to 4,000 pounds per acre in fields with moderate drainage. Grades also were good considering weather-related problems, he said.

John Norman Jr., Extension entomologist in Weslaco, said another hot and mostly dry week was good for the grain and corn harvest across the lower Rio Grande Valley.

Paul Gross, district Extension director in Amarillo, said heavy rain also fell in parts of Moore, Hutchinsson, Ochiltree, Lipscomb, Hemphill, Wheeler and Donley counties last week.

Showers and thunderstorms are expected to continue in the Panhandle until Wednesday, according to Jon Zeidler, meteorologist at the National Weather Service Agricultural Service Center in College Station. Zeidler said a low pressure trough in West Texas is responsible for rain in the Panhandle and the Trans-Pecos region.

"Total rainfall amounts will average between 0.25 and 0.75 inches, with some isolated locations getting up to 3 inches," he said.

The rest of the state will remain dry this week except for showers forecast along the Gulf Coast. Zeidler said high temperatures should be in the low to mid 90s for most of the state, and in the upper 90s to low 100s for the Trans-Pecos region and West Texas.

McMurry students' requirements revised

The Associated Press

ABILENE — McMurry University students soon will be required to take three new classes under a $96,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

The idea to revise McMurry's core curriculum spawned from a self-study required every 10 years by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools for accreditation.

NEH officials said McMurry's proposed "courses and workshops are well-designed, and faculty support and involvement are widespread, suggesting that it will produce a genuine, positive impact on the curriculum and the students."

The classes are: a one-hour freshman ethics course, a four-hour advanced course entitled "Persons and Communities," and a four-hour advanced course entitled "Human Knowledge."

The courses, which will involve a "team-teaching" approach, are designed to introduce students to the major methods of moral reasoning and to develop awareness and sensitivity to moral claims and conflicts.

McMurry University, a four-year liberal arts school, opened in 1923 and has an enrollment of 1,500 students.

The school is owned and operated by the Northwest Texas and New Mexico Conferences of the United Methodist Church, and offers 42 majors and eight pre-professional sequences.

Dr. Sandra Harper, dean of the college of arts and sciences at McMurry and the project's assistant director, said the new requirements will not change the number of hours needed to graduate from McMurry.

Dallas may lose Norton

By The Associated Press

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys underestimated Ken Norton's ability, so next season they're going to have to pay for that mistake or lose their top linebacker.

Norton last year fulfilled an incentive clause that allows him to become a free agent after the 1993 season because he led the team in tackles in 1992.

The team likely didn't expect Norton to pull the feat because he plays outside linebacker, and middle linebackers had led the team in tackles each season since Jimmy Johnson became coach in 1989.

But Norton played nearly ever down last year, not by design but out of necessity once Bill Bates was injured in the fifth game and Norton was needed more in the nickel defensive scheme.

The increased playing time allowed Norton to overtake rookie middle linebacker Robert Jones for the team tackle lead with 120. Jones finished with 108 tackles.

"Not too many people know about it, but I will be free after this year," said Norton, who at $565,000 this season is a bargain for the Cowboys.

"I'll worry about that when the time comes. I have to take care of business on the field in order for that to be a big deal for me next year."

Norton joins a long list of Cowboys who will be unrestricted free agents after this season. Tony Casillas, John Gesek, Kevin Gogan, Nate Newton, Jimmie Jones and James Washington are among a group that also will include Mark Stepnoski if he returns to the Pro Bowl.

One Cowboys official said the club never expected Norton to achieve the incentive clause. The Dallas Morning News reported.

Dallas Cowboy workers grab equipment bags to haul into the locker room at St. Edwards' University in Austin Wednesday. The reigning Super bowl champions will begin training camp in Austin this weekend. Players are checking in Thursday.

Teams prep for 2nd half battle

By The Associated Press

The Toronto Seven did just fine in the All-Star game. It's the American League East the Blue Jays better be worried about.

The first-place Blue Jays start the second half of the season with 10 losses in their last 11 games. The sudden slide has turned the East into a tight race, with four teams — New York, Detroit, Baltimore and Boston — within three games of the defending World Series champions.

In case the race stays close the rest of the way, mark down Sept. 30-Oct. 3 on the calendar: It's when Toronto visits Camden Yards to finish the season against the Orioles.

Baltimore's fans booed Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston in Tuesday's All-Star game for allowing his own Duane Ward to pitch the ninth in a 9-3 AL win instead of using the Orioles' Mike Mussina.

But back to the pennant race.

"Everybody goes through some struggles," said All-Star second baseman Roberto Alomar, one of seven Toronto players on the AL team. "What people don't realize is that we came a long way. Two months ago, we were seven games back."

For now, every team in the AL has a chance. Only 8 1/2 games separate the first six teams in the East and everybody's in the race in the West.

In the NL, it will take a collapse by the San Francisco Giants to make things interesting in September. But remember, Atlanta is 104-55 after the All-Star break the last two seasons.

The Philadelphia Phillies have shown signs lately why the NL East might have a race after all. The pitching has cracks and Mitch Williams has been inconsistent.

Here's how things shape up:

AL EAST

Each team needs a starting pitcher and the first to find one might be able to establish a comfortable lead. Last season, the Blue Jays got David Cone in August. This year, it could be the Mets' Sid Fernandez.

Dave Stewart (4-4, 4.69) and Jack Morris (5-9, 7.41) are showing their age. The Blue Jays' best starter is Pat Hentgen (11-4), but he's only 4-4 at home.

The Blue Jays have a 5.49 ERA in July and Joe Carter is batting .179 this month.

The Yankees are coming off a 2-8 trip to the West Coast. Despite collapsing in the late innings several times, New York actually gained on Toronto and trails by one game.

Give the Yankees an edge in schedule and pitching. New York plays most of its games at home the next six weeks and must take advantage. Detroit has 105 homers, but the Tigers pitching is weak.

Boston climbed back into the race without Roger Clemens. Clemens' time on the disabled list might help him in September when he tends to fade.

AL WEST

From top to bottom, the West is separated by 8 1/2 games.

The Chicago White Sox have the best talent but can't put together a winning streak. They hold a one-game lead over Kansas City and Texas. Seattle and California are two out.

The sleeper's in Seattle. Manager Lou Piniella has kept the Mariners close despite numerous injuries.

With Tony La Russa managing and Dennis Eckersley heating up, don't ever count the A's out of it. But Oakland needs another starter.

Texas is staying close without Jose Canseco, thanks to Juan Gonzalez, Rafael Palmeiro and Dean Palmer. But the Rangers' top winner is Charlie Leibrandt (9-4).

Hal McRae might have to rip up his office again soon to keep the Kansas City Royals close. Cone needs a big second half.

NL EAST

It seems only yesterday the St. Louis Cardinals were 11 1/2 games behind the Phillies. The Cardinals used their old formula of pitching, speed and defense to move within five games.

Greg Jefferies is batting .343 and the Cards .271 as a team. The addition of a starter might even put St. Louis within a game or two.

It looked like the Phillies' year for awhile. But Curt Schilling, Tommy Greene and Terry Mulholland have been shaky lately and the Phillies don't have a relief pitcher to match St. Louis' Lee Smith.

The Phillies should hang on if their pitching rebounds. If not, see you in St. Louis.

Only one other question in the East. Will New York's Anthony Young win a game?

NL WEST

The best team in baseball? It's the San Francisco Giants right now. Barry Bonds is on his way to a third MVP and Robby Thompson is having a career year.

Rookie manager Dusty Baker is a little concerned about his pitching going into the second half. Trevor Wilson is hurting and it's unlikely John Burkett, Bud Black and Bill Swift can keep up their first-half pace.

The Giants might try for Dennis Martinez of the Expos or Greg Harris of the Padres.

Atlanta was picked by just about everyone. The pitching hasn't been the problem, either. The Braves have scored two runs or less in 30 games this year.

This team needs an offensive spark, whether it's Fred McGriff of the Padres or calling up shortstop Chipper Jones.

Any team with Tom Glavine, Greg Maddux, John Smoltz and Steve Avery starting can put together a winning streak. But they better begin on Thursday.
