Water topic for Tuesday meeting

The three water supply lakes of the Colorado River Municipal Water District and other projects, including pipelines, evaporation fields. Not shown is the Ward County Well Field and naturally polluted Natural Dam Lake in Martin County, near Howard County north of Interstate 20, and a catchment pond built north of the lake.

Battling nature to clean up polluted drinking water is nothing new to the Colorado River Municipal Water District, which is sponsoring a town hall meeting on the subject Tuesday.

The meeting is 7 p.m. at Municipal Auditorium at Third and Nolan streets.

Manager Owen Ivie, who didn't have time to comment by press time today, said at a similar town-hall meeting in 1990 that one-tenth of the district's budget is spent on quality control. Many of those projects may be outlined Tuesday.

Probably the biggest target is Natural Dam Lake in Martin County, the saltiest body of water in the country due to evaporation.

The county raised the dam five inches in 1957 when it threatened to overflow. When it neared overflow again in 1986 from heavy rains, water was discharged to protect the dam and it flowed down Beal's Creek to the Colorado River and on to Lake Spence at Robert Lee. Water in Spence was also discharged but not enough to prevent a marked jump in municipal water salinity, now as high as three times state recommended standards.

"Prior to 1986 it was okay," Ivie said at the 1990 public meeting. There had been a "respectable quality of water."

In 1988, $2.5 million was authorized to raise the dam. After more heavy rains, another $2.5 million was authorized in 1991 to build a relief reservoir upstream. More rains in June put water levels near the dam's top again, within two-inches.

"District officials were sweating out the phenomenon of why in the last eight years it always rains on the 480-mile watershed," said district Secretary Joe Pickle in a July newsletter.

Lake Spence's pollution does not all come from Natural Dam Lake. Ivie estimates nearly a third of the salt in Big Spring tap water is from oilfield activity during the first half of the century. There are other desalting efforts to handle that and natural salt pollution along Beal's Creek and the Colorado River.

In 1991, a $7 million evaporation pond was finished in Mitchell County to draw off low flows of the creek and river, diverting it from Lake

Council wants six requests met

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Tuesday's town-hall meeting on the city's salty drinking water was one of six requests city officials recently made to the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

The requests were made in a letter dated July 28 to water district Manager Owen Ivie and signed by Mayor Tim Blackshear. It includes names, but not signatures, of all Big Spring City Council members, indicating unanimous support.

After stating citizens complain of bad water more than anything else, and pledging council support for the water district, it says, "We would like to ask for your help in the following areas:

1. Give us the maximum amount of Lake Thomas (in Borden County) water available.
2. Prepare plans for the construction of a water line from the Lake Ivie (near Ballinger) water line at Garden City to Big Spring ... We expect the district to share the cost of this line - just like we have supported the Ivie line.

3. Give us the maximum amount of O'Barr well field water available.

4. Set up a 'town-hall' meeting for the citizens of Big Spring to discuss water quality and what CRMWD is doing about it.

5. Make water quality the number one priority of CRMWD.

6. Give us a break for the poor quality water delivered from Lake Spence - especially when every customer except Big Spring will have good quality water."

Jim Bill Little, one of four Big Spring directors on the water district board, said he and other representatives of Big Spring are there to serve at the pleasure of the council, but the city must work within guidelines set by other member cities of Odessa and Snyder.

On the pipeline extension, Little said criteria would probably include whether it "would be needed." He said he doesn't know if a population increase is part of that criteria.

More Lake Thomas water will be mixed with Big Spring's "as it becomes available," he said. But the O'Barr well field is not a stable source and would only make a "minor" difference.

A price break on polluted Lake Spence water is "pretty well" an "impossibility" because costs are for impounding water and delivering it to cities. A decreased charge would be unfair to other cities.

Concerning the town-hall meeting, he said, "We'd certainly be glad to have one."

MHMR hearing set for former BSSH workers

MARTHA E. FLORES/

A hearing is set for Tuesday involving two former Big Spring State Hospital employees who allege they were wrongfully terminated.

Texas Mental Health and Mental Retardation officials will review documents and testimony to determine if Anita Brooks and Teresa Walker's request for reinstatement with retroactive pay will be granted.

"They were relieved of their jobs and have filed for a hearing," said BSSH Superintendent Robert von Rosenberg. "Officers will hear the case and a decision will be made whether we acted properly or not."

The administrator said he did not know if he would be attending the hearing, but Personal Director Dennis Warrington would be present.

Brooks and Walker worked at the facility for about two years, according to Abraham Speers, the legal assistant and mediator who represents the former employees. Speers was unable to give Brooks and Walker's former positions nor salary during a telephone interview.

He says his clients were wrongfully relieved from their jobs because they had knowledge of unprofessional conduct by others employed at the hospital.

"Their termination was a cover up because they (Brooks and Walker) are knowledgeable of what has transpired in the past which was unprofessional," he said. "A great deal of unprofessional conduct has taken place in the past."

Speers said he would divulge what his clients say transpired at the hospital during the hearing. "Some facts will be revealed at the meeting," he

Thompson making difference

"It takes a whole village to raise a child."

Margy Thompson's youth prepared her for her livelihood; one of the most important aspects in her life as well as hundreds of youth each year.

Thompson, the chief juvenile probation officer for the district, works with youth, reaching out to provide guidance in their lives.

"I am consumed with it. It's something that I could leave at work, but it comes home with me," said Margy, who is 53 years old.

"The kindness that people showed to me when I was younger and how the system worked then, when you don't have a place to live, gave me preparation to work with children," she added. "Most kids I work with don't have a 'home' because of a lack of funds, lack of love or lack of interest."

Thompson was born and raised in the Rio Grande Valley in the South Texas city of Edinburg.

By the time she was 12 years old, Thompson had already lost her mother to lung cancer. Misfortune struck again when her father became ill.

"We were very poor," said Thompson, who was the oldest of two daughters. "I know how hopeless and helpless a child feels when they think, 'Who's going to take care of me?'"

"So much of my childhood had me angry at how the system treated children," she added. "By the time I was 14 or 15, I knew I couldn't help change this mess right now, but I could grow up and do something."

Following a stay in a boarding home and with an "adoptive" family, Thompson began to gain the foundation for achieving her goals.

"I feel like I got a lot of help along the way, including the family I stayed with," she said. "So many helped me in the right way, it made me determined to become productive; to become mentally and physically comfortable."

Her tumultuous childhood gave way to some structure as she inched closer to adulthood.

After graduating from high school in 1958, she attended a Baptist girls' school.

By 1961, she married her first husband, attorney Jack Thompson. As she strived to find her niche, she

Capitol idea: Old buildings yield material

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Renovators of the Texas Capitol have opted to use lumber from demolished buildings across the state in their attempt to duplicate the grain and look of century-old woodwork.

"It's not like you can go out and buy this stuff anymore," said Tom Duncan, project director for Darby & Mitchell Inc., the millwork contractor for the renovation.

So officials went looking for a source of long-leaf yellow pine lumber that would match the ornamentation in the Statehouse.

They found what they were looking for in a building scheduled for demolition in Knippa, a Uvalde County community 70 miles west of San Antonio, and in a century-old warehouse that had been demolished in Port Arthur.

Duncan said he had a good feeling from the start about the building in Knippa.

"We looked at it very closely — checked things like the color, the grain structure ... whether it had absorbed any oils or odors during the years," Duncan said. "That's all important."

The wood passed the test. Most of the salvaged wood was in huge timbers. It was trucked from Knippa to East Austin's Delta Lumber Co., where it was resawed and milled into usable boards.

Today, it decorates newly restored doorways in what will be legislative offices on the Capitol's fourth floor. Other old pine came from the demolished warehouse in Port Arthur, Duncan said.

The recycled wood also shows up in decorative trimwork in other parts of the capitol. It has been used to patch holes in the original woodwork, such as holes drilled for now-removed door locks or wall pipes.

Carpenters have made the repairs so carefully that in many places the grain lines appear almost a perfect match, noticeable only because of the lighter color of the newly installed wood.

"It's a little tricky," said Don Janicke, with the Southern Pine Association, a lumber trade group.

Death row inmate David Lewis was one of the lucky ones in February. He was sentenced to die for the Nov. 30, 1986, shooting death of a 75-year-old Luvkin woman. But Lewis said he was disappointed that an appeals court threw out his conviction. In recent months, Texas is averaging executing one inmate per month.

Texas averages one execution per week

The Associated Press

HUNTSVILLE — In the quiet just before midnight, Mike Heath sets up shop under the glow of eerie pink floodlights that reflect off 20-foot-high red brick walls.

A few candles. Maybe a sign or two. Sometimes he's alone. Other times a handful of companions join him at Avenue I and 12th Street, outside a corner of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Walls Unit prison.

For years, Heath, 25, has been a fixture outside the death house where the state — just after midnight — administers lethal injections to convicted killers.

Now, the University of Houston graduate student and opponent of the death penalty finds his 90-mile trip from Houston to Huntsville becoming all too familiar as the pace of executions in Texas has accelerated to a one-per-week clip.

The lethal needle has been used five times in the last five weeks — an unprecedented briskness in a state that by far leads the nation in the administering of capital punishment.

This year, 12 inmates have been put to death and 66 since 1982, when executions resumed. Texas had 12 executions in 1992.

It also is likely another five convicted killers will meet their demise in the next several weeks, including two this week, making 1993 the busiest execution year in Texas.

Those five additions also would mean Texas had executed more prisoners in one year than all but three states had since the U.S. Supreme Court allowed the penalty to resume in 1976.

"I don't see this as discouraging,"

Heath says of the increased frequency of his trips. "I see it as something I'm compelled to do. I stand for many people in the world who say what's happening behind those walls is wrong."

Barring a legal challenge which could entangle the capital punishment statutes in the courts, it appears the execution pace in Texas is likely to remain steady.

State attorneys note that broad issues regarding the death penalty have been resolved and the only questions now tend to be very narrow.

"People out there come up with issues now like spaghetti thrown on a wall," says Bob Walt, an assistant attorney general who handles capital cases. "Sometimes it sticks. I don't think you'll see anything extensive but you may see things on the edges."

San Antonio officials worrying about plague

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two years of above-average rainfall may have helped an old nemesis, bubonic plague, spread to areas where it seldom has been seen — including a rural area west of San Antonio and a Dallas suburb.

The disease is borne by fleas but is spread by rodent populations particularly prairie dogs, ground squirrels and wood rats.

Health officials are urging that people and pets avoid contact with rats, squirrels and other rodents as they track the apparent eastward spread of the plague.

This year's most notable evidence of plague in Texas occurred in Merkel, about 10 miles west of Abilene. A major die-off of white-throated wood rats and fox squirrels was attributed to plague.

Health officers also found the disease in other Taylor County animals including coyotes, a bobcat, a raccoon, a skunk, a possum and a domestic cat.

Since 1992, 16 human cases of plague have been recorded in the United States, including a 94-year-old woman from Jayton, in Kent County about 80 miles north of Abilene.

Alamo City dry spell comes to sprinkled end

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The longest dry spell in San Antonio history is officially over, but officials aren't ecstatic about it.

Although the one-hundredth of an inch of rain broke the two-month rainless streak, it didn't do much practical good.

The smallest amount of rain that can be accurately recorded in the three official rain gauges at San Antonio International Airport — 0.01 inches of rain — was recorded at 6:10 p.m. Sunday.

Still, a bulletin from the National Weather Service stated:

"It's over. ... It's over. ... It's over. ... The longest period of consecutive days without measurable rain in San Antonio has officially ended."

"We weren't all that thrilled about it. We would much rather have ended the record with some rain that did some good," meteorologist Larry Eblen said. "It kind of left you with an anti-climactic feeling. But now that the streak has ended, chances appear good for some meaningful rain.

The dry spell began after a particularly heavy downpour. It rained 1.29 inches June 26.

However, 1993 won't be the driest August ever. In 1899, 1902 and 1952, no rain at all was recorded during the month of August.

Two inmates escape Madison County unit

MIDWAY (AP) — Officials at the Ferguson prison unit say two trustees walked off an outside recreation yard and escaped by driving away in a pickup truck.

Jess Bushong, 19, and Ian Drew Fields, 24, apparently left late Saturday night, officials said. They answered a routine check at 10 p.m. Saturday, but were missing at a similar check at midnight, officials said.

The two are believed to have left in a maroon and white 1989 Chevrolet extended cab truck with license number "Texas BLO-973," state prison spokesman Charlie Brown said.

"We don't have any idea where they may be," Brown said. "We put out the APB and that will bring in local law enforcement officials."

The Ferguson Unit is at Midway, about 25 miles northwest of Huntsville.

Bushong had been at the facility since June 1992 serving 10 years for two counts of burglary in Coryell County and one count of burglary of a vehicle in Hamilton County.

Property-rich school districts across state vote for sharing

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Voters in property-wealthy school districts across the state voted Saturday to send some of their tax dollars to aid less wealthy areas.

The state's richest districts were given five options by the Legislature for reducing their per-student property wealth below $280,000. Each school board had to select one or more of those options.

They options are: consolidate with another school system; merge tax bases; detach taxable property to put on another district's tax rolls; contract with a poor district to educate some of their children; or purchase attendance credits from the state. Most districts chose to write a check to the state.

Districts without an option in place by Oct. 16 will either be forced to consolidate with a property-poor district or have taxable property removed from their tax rolls with that property being attached to the tax rolls of a property-poor district.

All of the seven area school districts that held elections Saturday have filed lawsuits to have the law overturned as an unconstitutional statewide property tax. A hearing will be held on the challenges in October.

Elections were held in Grapevine-Colleyville, Highland Park, Plano, Carrollton-Farmers Branch and Richardson in the Dallas area, while several were called in the Panhandle. All of the districts approved their options to equalize funding.

Bushland ISD voters approved 76-21 the purchase of 360 attendance credits for about $1 million.

The district — sprawling north, west and south of Amarillo — takes in a West Amarillo shopping mall and natural gas company that boost property wealth to $340,000 per student. Bushland ISD has 370 students.

In East Amarillo, Highland Park ISD voters chose to funnel $5.3 million to Canyon and Amarillo school districts.

"We didn't have much of a turnout, but it was a good turnout as far as results," said Superintendent Mike Salvato. There were 121 ballots cast for the move and seven against.

"We didn't want to send money to the state and let them redistribute it anywhere," Salvato said. "If we're going to have to give money, we wanted to have it benefit possibly neighboring districts."

Highland Park-Amarillo ISD has 773 students. Its $713,000 per-student property wealth comes mostly from a beef packing plant, copper refinery and utility plant.

About 70 miles northeast of Amarillo, Lefors ISD voters decided to send $313,600 to Austin for 66 attendance credits.

"This seemed to be the best poison," Superintendent Joe Roper said. Lefors ISD has 136 students and property wealth of $430,000 per student because of big oil and gas reserves. Ninety-one people voted for the option and four people voted against.

In Ira, a ranching and Oil Patch town about 75 miles northwest of Abilene, voters decided to reduce their per-student property wealth of $413,941. Ira ISD has 184 students.

Superintendent Rick Howard said voters approved 114-1 a plan contracting to educate 42 children from Snyder. Cost would be about $200,000, Howard said.

"We've tightened our belt and tried to keep our budget as slim as possible," he said. "We can't shoulder any more tax hikes."

Highland Park ISD in North Texas voted 6,726-225 to send a $32 million check to the state, according to school district spokeswoman Becky Nugent.

Grapevine-Colleyville Independent School District also opted to buy attendance credits.

Elite U.S. troops raid U.N. compound

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — It sure looked good.

Elite American troops under the cover of darkness dropped from helicopters on ropes. They tied up people inside and forced them to lie on the floor. It was quick, precise, the stuff of a recruiting commercial.

There was just one problem. They raided the wrong target. In fact, they raided a building housing U.N. personnel.

Three foreign U.N. workers and five Somali employees were briefly detained today in what the chief U.N. military spokesman, Maj. David Stockwell, nevertheless described as "a successful operation."

Letterman on tube twice as much tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — It's the cigar, kids ...

Every Letterman devotee will be watching tonight as NBC rebroadcasts the very first edition of "Late Night with David Letterman." Originally aired Feb. 1, 1982, this precious artifact will be on display in Dave's old slot at 12:35 a.m. EDT.

Oh, yeah: Also tonight, CBS unveils "Late Show with David Letterman." This means CBS is finally making good on its relentless "Same Dave, better time, new station" campaign the network launched when Letterman jumped from NBC in June.

With guests Bill Murray and Billy Joel, the "Late Show" premiere starts at 11:35 p.m. EDT. In this long-awaited faceoff, Dave goes up against NBC's "Tonight Show" with host Jay Leno, who will welcome as his guests country singer Garth Brooks and "Beverly Hills 90210" heartthrob Luke Perry.

Anti-poverty program has bi-partisan backing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Don't be misled by all the partisanship and exaggeration. There's more to the big new deficit-reduction law than an 11 percent tax increase on the well-to-do and an extra dime-a-day gasoline tax on the average driver.

The law expands a major anti-poverty program at a time when spending cutters are even eyeing Social Security.

But this expansion, costing $20.8 billion over the next five years, has broad support in both parties because it goes only to the working poor. It would supplement the wages of about 11 million families with children and — for the first time — about 4 1/2 million childless workers, more than offsetting for most of them the 4.3-cent-a-gallon increase in the gasoline tax.

Liberalization of this "earned-income credit" is the first step toward Clinton's campaign goal of ensuring that no four-member family earning the minimum wage has to live in poverty. Achieving that goal will require at least two more big steps — one by the poor, one by Congress.

March yields audience for those with cause

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was room for everyone at the march to commemorate the 30th anniversary of that day in 1963 when Martin Luther King Jr. said "I have a dream." Those with a cause — from gay rights to animal rights — got a big, free audience.

But many in that audience didn't get what they were looking for: a message to take home and live by.

"They're not telling us how to do or what to do. They're telling us what's been done and who did it," said H.L. Barner, an Army major from Portsmouth, Va.

About 75,000 people gathered Saturday before the Lincoln Memorial. They camped out in the hot, hot sun to hear dozens — hours — of speeches.

Haiti moving closer to democratic rule

WASHINGTON (AP) — The swearing in of a new Haitian prime minister appointed by ousted President Jean-Bertrand Aristide is bringing Haiti a big step closer to the reinstatement of full democratic rule.

With Aristide presiding, the Haitian Embassy was the setting today for Robert Malval, a 50-year-old moderate businessman, to take on the demanding assignment of guiding Haiti back to democracy as head of a transition government.

Malval wanted the ceremony to take place in Washington so Aristide could officiate, said former Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., who serves as unpaid counsel to Aristide.

Aristide has lived virtually all of the past 22 months of his exile in Washington and, under an accord reached last month with Haiti's military leaders, will be allowed to return to his homeland as president on Oct. 30.

JERUSALEM — The historic promise of peace between Israel and the PLO brought sharp protests from hard-liners today as Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin planned to submit a plan for Palestinian self-rule.

The 18-member Cabinet was to meet tonight to debate the proposal, which would implement autonomy first in the occupied Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho.

Rabin spokesman Gad Ben-Ari denied Israeli media reports that the Cabinet would also be asked to vote on recognition of Yasser Arafat's PLO.

"At this point, I don't see it as an issue at all. It's not on the agenda," he said. "The Cabinet is being asked to vote on the draft agreement which will then be signed by the two delegations in Washington, hopefully this week."

Israeli sources said the PLO had first to amend its covenant to eliminate the idea of destroying the Jewish state by removing references to "armed struggle" and demands for Jews who immigrated after 1948 to return to their countries of origin.

But sources quoted by army radio said Israel's government would open direct negotiations with Arafat's organization if the PLO met Israel's conditions.

If agreement is reached on the autonomy plan, the independent daily Haaretz reported, Foreign Minister Shimon Peres will fly to Washington to sign the pact with a senior PLO figure. It said the United States would also renew its dialogue with the PLO, which was suspended three years ago.

An agreement, while preliminary, would be the first significant breakthrough after 22 months of talks.

Both PLO and Israeli officials voiced optimism that an agreement would be reached this week in Washington, where talks resume Tuesday.

Dr. Azmi Shuaibi, a senior adviser to the Palestinian negotiating team, said he expected the Palestinians and Israelis to agree on the declaration of principles within the next 48 hours and for a PLO-Israeli meeting to take place soon.

"Our expectations are that within the next two days, possibly before the end of the week, there will be a meeting on an official level between the PLO and Israel," he told The Associated Press.

He said, however, that months of detailed negotiations were needed before autonomy could be elemented. Issues outstanding include the future of Israeli settlements, the extent of self-governing authority Palestinians will have in areas outside Gaza and Jericho, and cooperation on internal security.

In an interview with the daily Maariv newspaper, Rabin was quoted as saying that "the time has not come for that yet" for a meeting with Arafat and "there is no de facto recognition of the PLO."

"The significance of the agreement, as crystallized in the past few days, is a joint agreement for limited self-rule between Israel and the Palestinians," he said, adding there was nothing "permanent" about the arrangements.

Bassam Abu Sharif, a senior adviser to Arafat, said Palestinian negotiators expected to reach an agreement soon.

"We feel we are five minutes away from the first concrete step to be taken on the road to establish peace," he told Israel radio.

"This is the breakthrough," agreed Health Minister Haim Ramon on Israel television. "This week or next, we will sign an agreement of principles."

Rabin met with Cabinet Secretary Elyakim Rubinstein, who has served as the chief peace negotiator for Israel since talks began under the previous Likud government. Israel radios said Rubinstein threatened to resign in protest of the deal.

Coastal residents starting evacuation as Emily nears

The Associated Press

NAGS HEAD, N.C. — Up to 100,000 people on North Carolina's barrier islands were ordered to evacuate early today as Hurricane Emily twisted on a path toward the southeastern United States.

While beachgoers enjoyed relatively calm seas Sunday, forecasters warned waves would begin to build all along the East Coast. Gale force winds also could reach North Carolina shores by today.

The state of emergency in Dare County — effective this morning — covers communities stretching along the Outer Banks, a loop of fragile islands off North Carolina's coast.

"Nobody's going to be arrested for not leaving, but they're probably going to be asked for their next of kin," said county spokesman Ray Sturza. "Use common sense — and then go."

National Park Service campgrounds at Cape Point and Frisco on Hatteras Island also were to be evacuated today, officials said.

The National Hurricane Center declared a hurricane watch Sunday from Cape Romain, S.C. — about 20 miles north of Charleston, S.C. — to Fenwick Island on the Delaware-Maryland border.

A watch means hurricane conditions pose a threat. A warning — meaning hurricane conditions are expected within 24 hours — could be issued today.

The storm's maximum sustained winds were near 85 mph this morning. They were expected to increase "a little" over the next 24 hours, forecaster Lixion Avila of the National Hurricane Center said today.

Hurricane Andrew tore through South Florida and Louisiana last year with sustained winds of 145 mph.

At 5 a.m. EDT, the center of the storm was located near latitude 31.8 degrees north and longitude 71.1 degrees west, about 350 miles to the southeast of Cape Hatteras. It was moving toward the west-northwest near 8 mph, but a turn back to northwest was likely. It was not projected to make landfall before Tuesday.

Hurricane Hugo, which killed 29 people and caused $5.9 billion in damage when it hit South Carolina in September 1989 with winds of 135 mph, was on the minds of many of those watching Emily's progress.

"Everybody is preparing earlier this time," said Karen Eyerly, who works at a surf shop in Myrtle Beach, S.C. "I'm stocking up on food and water and just making sure I have supplies."

Elaine Smith, operations manager at a home-supply store in Newport News, Va., said customers were stocking up on flashlights and other emergency items.

The store ordered extra batteries. "I figure by tomorrow we'll be wiped out of them," she said.

Others were taking a wait-and-see attitude.

Watching and waiting on Jacksonville Beach Sunday, onlookers view the pounding surf and ominous skies to the east as Hurricane Emily apparently moves toward landfall somewhere north of the Florida coast.

What will be the affect?

There is a war going on between cable television and the telephone companies. Recently, a judge overturned a 1984 rule barring telephone companies from offering programming over the networks to which they provide telephone services.

Are our leaders today equal to yesterday's?

Quality leadership is neither the product of one great individual nor the result of odd historical accidents. Rather, it comes from deeply bred traditions and communities that shape and mold talented and gifted persons.

Race Matters, Cornel West

Do today's leaders have iron constitutions - solid and strong? Or do they have constitutions made of gold - pretty and malleable?

Is Henry Cisneros a good leader? Is President Bill Clinton? Were Presidents George Bush and Ronald Reagan? Martin Luther King Jr., Malcolm X and President John Fitzgerald Kennedy? Abraham Lincoln? How about Robert E. Lee?

Did they and do they have iron constitutions?

What does it take to be a leader and is the word leader synonymous with the word saint? Can leaders be trans-cultural and trans-generational?

The monosyllabic answers of yes and no seem too small to fit the magnitude of the questions posed.

Everyone can be a leader but few are equipped with the vision to preserve and prevail, achieving justice. For some, the war waged is won when power and prestige is achieved. For others, what just is not fair.

With each leader, followed steps are taken shaping the present and future. Lives are in the balance and the domino effect has no end nor beginning.

The lost art of showing respect

Lewis Grizzard

A close friend's mother died last week after a long illness. They had the funeral in Newnan, 35 miles southwest of Atlanta, where my friend and I had gone to high school together 30 years ago.

Somebody played "How Great Thou Art" on a piano and there were a lot of remarks about how pretty all the flowers were.

I thought about all the months my friend had sat by her mother's side in a hospital room, day and night, and how different her life will be now.

Like me, she's an only child and divorced. You just get on with it. There's no other choice.

For the graveside service, we took my friend's mother down a two-lane road to the little town of Whitesburg, Ga., where she had lived.

The procession pulled out of the funeral home in Newnan with a police escort.

At every intersection an officer had stopped traffic. At every intersection, an officer stood at attention, hat over heart. We left Newnan and drove out into the country. Each oncoming car pulled off to the shoulder of the road until the procession had passed it. There was not one exception.

They still do that down here, I was thinking to myself.

They always did that when I was a child, but I assumed that practice had long ago disappeared.

Back in Atlanta, I mentioned what I had seen to a group of friends.

One, a native New Yorker, said, "I'd never seen that until I moved south. I've even seen cars pull over on the other side of a four-lane for a funeral. What's that about?"

How do you answer such a question? I pondered it for a moment, answering it for myself first.

And then I said, "Respect."

That's what it is, isn't it? You meet a funeral procession and you pull over to the side of the road is a way of saying you respect the fact that someone has died, someone has lost a mother or father or husband or wife or brother or sister or friend.

To drive on past without such acknowledgment would say you just didn't care.

These days, I guess such respect is confined to rural areas. Meet a funeral procession in a city like Atlanta and pull over to the side of the road and somebody would run over you, and you probably would get a ticket for creating some sort of traffic hazard.

But there is still time and room for such respect in the Newmans and other such towns and villages. Bless them for that.

Respect for others was something I guess I took for granted and thought would endure no matter what else might be modernized or cosmopolitanized, if there is such a word. But it hasn't.

Respect for parents. I was reading where there has been something like four instances in metro Atlanta this year where children have either killed or tried to kill their parents for disciplining them.

Respect for teachers. Cops routinely patrol school halls these days.

Respect for any kind of authority seems to be rare.

Respect for human life is even dissolving. They'll shoot you for your tennis shoes. Michael Jordan's father was asleep on the side of the road. A couple of punks killed him, it seems, for sport.

I don't know how you reinstate something like respect. When somebody tries to reinstate the basic values that are the thread of society, scorn is the loudest reaction.

My only hope is that there will remain pockets, at least, where dear hearts and good people continue to outnumber the drags.

There is one in Coweta County, Ga. I saw it last week with my own eyes. It made me proud I was once in its number.

The war between telephone and cable

Scripps Howard News Service

When is competition anti-competitive? When one party already enjoys monopoly entree to consumers.

That is the advantage local telephone companies have over the cable systems they now seek to rival by wiring communities for video services and selling programming. A federal judge's ruling the other day opens the way for just such competition — even though it's a race the powerful phone companies seem bound to win.

One might argue that cable and phone service are both regulated monopolies. Cable systems usually enjoy exclusive franchises granted by local governments. But there is this important difference: Telephone service is a modern-day necessity, present in almost every home. Cable TV is still an entertainment option; nearly half of American households do without, by choice or for lack of access.

With their nearly universal coverage, then, phone companies can "tax" their captive audience to finance their entry into the video market. Offering the full range of futuristic services, from home shopping to pay-per-view movies, in addition to telephone service, they seem bound to succeed.

Before Tuesday's ruling by a Virginia judge, regional Bell companies were forbidden to sell video programming in their own service areas. Now Judge T.S. Ellis has overturned that provision, on questionable First Amendment grounds. This is only the latest mischief to come from the courts, which ruled in 1991 that phone companies could enter the data-provider business. As we see it, this is "vertical integration"; competition was protected by the earlier provision that the Baby Bells could sell transmission services but could not also originate programs.

The Justice Department should appeal the new ruling. At the same time, we note that technological advances are transforming the field of communications more profoundly than any judicial opinions or legislation. The rapid development of the cellular telephone industry, for example, may soon pose as basic a challenge to the local phone companies' dominance as cable TV did to the networks.

For all these changes to serve the public interest, no powerful trust can be allowed to dominate the market.

Checking out Canadian news

In the marginally quaint ski village of Ste. Adele, Quebec, a tall ugly tower of bright golden girders rises from the mountains and maples.

The tower was built for bungee jumping, including a novel New Zealand-style jump that snaps a fool from earth to sky, instead of the other way around.

The best thing about even a short trip to a foreign country — Canada counts — is seeing things you don't see at home, hearing new arguments about strange issues, watching unfamiliar politicians make fools of themselves in unfamiliar tongues.

During my few days in Quebec I saw plenty to write home about. New Canadian Prime Minister Kim Campbell was taking a page from Bill Clinton's workbook, trying to soften her tough-guy image by substituting an early morning deejay.

The conservative, PM seemed about as comfortable in the role as Mother Theresa playing Belle Wauling. But with her earthy language and frumpy dress, she at least looked the part.

The French and the English of Montreal are still embroiled in the eternal squabble over language — how many centimeters larger the French must appear than the English on a sign advertising a special on a carton of eggs — that sort of thing.

And Ray Charles was playing the Montreal Forum, generating barrels of newspaper ink in the process. The Canadians wrote as if they'd just discovered of Ray, fished him out of the Georgia swamps. One reviewer claimed that if Ray sang your telephone bill, you'd gladly pay it twice.

But the newspaper commentary that fascinated me most wasn't about Ray or other important matters. Instead, it concerned a United States issue, one that seemed to enthrall Canadians.

I saw no less than three long newspaper pieces about it in three days and heard it discussed on television.

The issue: A lawsuit involving former waitresses at an Atlanta-based restaurant chain called Hooters.

You have seen the Hooters billboards. A woman in orange shorts, tight T-shirt and an eager look advertises the beer-and-a-belch look in many Southern cities.

But several women who used to work for Hooters as waitresses claim they were shocked at the harassment they had to endure from customers and management. They are suing.

Several years ago, when I spied my first Hooters restaurant, I wondered aloud if they'd get away with it. They did.

After all, this is the era of Rush Limbaugh; if you can't laugh at a sexist joke, you have no sense of humor. To be crude at the expense of another turns out to be no big deal, despite what we thought in the 1960s, a decade of wimps and bed-wetters.

But I'll admit I don't give a hoot about the outcome of the waitresses' lawsuit. What did they expect?

They put on come-on costumes to peddle beer to men who came to a place called Hooters for the purpose of gawking at the merchandise. To expect respect in that situation is like believing you'll ride alone on the New York subway at rush hour.

Hooters management, of course, denies the harassment charges and says the owl is its symbol and that only all-American fun is served up in its establishment.

Lawsuits and damages have become as American as motherhood and apple pie, and I suppose this farce of a case will be heard. The women of Hooters will make a case that they needed the money for school, or for children or for car payments.

They will say that even barmaids in a place called Hooters deserve respect. And they might even get some sympathy, or, better yet, lots of money.

People as far away as Montreal will shake out their newspaper in the morning and read of the plight of U.S. working women who can't get a decent break.

Foolishness is universal and needs no translation.

Thompson

gained a position in the El Paso County Juvenile Probation Department a year later.

"I had always wanted to be a probation officer or warden of a women's prison," she said. "Sometimes, I think maybe it's a control thing."

Thompson was able to take control of her own life first when she graduated in 1972 from the University of Texas at Austin.

Her bachelor's in sociology prepared her for some graduate work at Sul Ross University, as well as at UT of the Permian Basin.

When she arrived in Big Spring in 1974, she worked for the Big Spring State Hospital as a social worker.

"From the day I came to town, I wanted to see if I could be a juvenile probation officer," she said.

After a stint with the State Board of Pardons and Parole in the early 1980s, she was appointed the 118th Judicial District's chief juvenile probation officer.

Serving Martin, Howard and Glasscock counties, Thompson and her staff are in charge of temporarily holding troubled and delinquent youth, as well as those in need of supervision.

"I've been privileged to work with juveniles and get paid for it," Thompson said.

A privilege tantamount to her work is her family, said Thompson, who remarried five years ago.

Her husband, Billy Bradberry, is a Howard College electronics instructor who teaches at the local federal prison.

"On Sundays, I take my grandkids to Sunday school. My father taught me that a person must never live without faith," said Thompson, who has a daughter, Debbie, and four grandchildren. "I want them to have that experience."

"There have been many times in my life that all I had was the faith in my life... that it would get better for me," she added.

Along with faith, Thompson's strength of character assisted her in becoming a success, as well as helping others find a productive pathway.

"Discipline and determination," she said of what she considers two key ingredients of success. "There are too many lost children because there are too many people in their lives that don't see to it that things get done."

"We need to help one another in the community and do all we can for them," she said. "The whole village should be available to the child in that context."

said. "It is a bit premature to discuss those facts at this time. It involves a great deal of horseplay out there."

"What I can say is that unlawful termination has taken place at the state hospital."

Prior to the terminations, an incident involving Brooks and Walker was investigated and dismissed, according to Speers. Later, a second investigation was launched and shortly thereafter, the two were terminated, he said.

"The initial investigation found the charges to be unfounded," Speers said. "I believed after that point a conspiratorial alliance was formed; then a second hearing was set. Grounds of a conspiracy began to take shape in my mind because of the information my clients have. Trumped up charges led to their termination but it was a smoke screen. Charges were somewhat manufactured to eliminate Brooks and Walker."

Speers also claims racial discrimination was a factor in their dismissal. "There are no blacks in any meaningful titles," he said. "What I mean by meaningful titles is in the higher echelon starting with management, unit supervisors and administrative positions."

"There are a number of blacks who have worked more than a decade who have not received promotions."

Von Rosenberg did not have figures available Thursday involving the breakdown of what positions African-Americans have. He said Warrington would have those figures at the hearing.

The hearing, open to the public, is scheduled for 9 a.m. in the administrative library.

Spence and saving room for freshwater floods that heavy rains bring. Two other evaporation ponds filled up after water was discharged from Natural Dam Lake.

The district is now waiting for a flood of the magnitude that occurs once every 25 years to replenish Spence with fresh water and bring tap water within state standards. The flood is 12 years overdue. Even average flooding could bring water within state standards in five to seven years.

"Our time's coming," Ivie said in 1991. "We're just waiting on Mother Nature."

Meanwhile, there are other avenues, Ivie said.

In 1995, when an $115 million, 150-mile pipeline from Lake O.H. Ivie near Ballinger to Midland/Odessa is completed, more water from Lake J.B. Thomas in Borden County will be available to mix with Big Spring water. That could bring the city's water within state standards during winter months and reduce it by a third in summer. Water from Lake Thomas and Lake Ivie meet state standards.

Also, if needed, water from Lake Ivie could be pumped to Big Spring by building a 30-mile pipe from a juncture in the Midland/Odessa line going through Glasscock County.

What those needs are has not been defined.

1993 Property Tax Rates in Coahoma ISD

This notice concerns 1993 property tax rates for Coahoma ISD school district. It presents information about three tax rates. Last year's tax rate is the actual rate the school district used to determine property taxes last year. This year's effective tax rate would impose the same total taxes as last year if you compare properties taxed in both years. This year's rollback tax rate is the highest tax rate the school district can set before it must hold a rollback election. In each case these rates are found by dividing the total amount of taxes and state funds by the tax base (the total value of taxable property) with adjustments as required by state law. The rates are given per $100 of property value.

Last year's tax rate:

Last year's operating taxes	$ 2,226,105
Last year's debt taxes	$ 726,881
Last year's total taxes	$ 2,952,986
Last year's tax base	$ 182,869,955
Last year's total tax rate	$.483 /$100

This year's effective tax rate:

Last year's adjusted taxes (after subtracting taxes on lost property)	$ 879,401
+ This year's adjusted tax base (after subtracting value of new property)	$ 173,161,828
- This year's effective tax rate	$.5078 /$100
x 1.03 = maximum rate unless the school district publishes notices and holds hearing	$.5230 /$100

This year's rollback tax rate:

School maintenance and operations component	$ 2,226,105
+ This year's tax base	$ 173,686,834
- This year's local maintenance and operating rate	$ 1,2816 /$100
+ $36 cent = this year's maximum operating rate	$ 1,3416 /$100
+ This year's debt rate	$.4179 /$100
- This year's rollback rate	$ 1,7595 /$100

Schedule A

Unencumbered Fund Balances

The following estimated balances will be left in the unit's property tax accounts at the end of the fiscal year. These balances are not encumbered by a corresponding debt obligation.

Type of Property Tax Fund	Balance
Local Maintenance	0
Debt Service	0

Schedule B

1993 Debt Service

The unit plans to pay the following amounts for long-term debts that are secured by property taxes. These amounts will be paid from property tax revenues (or additional sales tax revenues, if applicable).

Description of Debt	Principal or Contract Payment to be Paid from Property Taxes	Interest to be Paid from Property Taxes	Other Amounts to be Paid	Total Payment
1993 Bond Obligation	$615,000	$87,656	Bond Fee $1,500	$704,156
(Expand as needed)
Total required for 1993 debt service			$ 704,156
- Amount (if any) paid from funds listed in Schedule A			$ 0
- Excess collections last year			$ 0
- Total to be paid from taxes in 1993			$ 704,156
+ Amount added in anticipation that the unit will collect only 97% of its taxes in 1993			$ 21,778
- Total Debt Levy			$ 725,934

Explanation of Conversion from County Education District Taxes

County Education Districts have been abolished. In order to compare school tax rates from last year to this year, it is necessary to compare the combined school tax rate below to the school district's proposed tax rate for this year.

Last year the Coahoma ISD School District's tax rate was .483

Last year the Howard & Glasscock County Education District's tax rate was .907

The combined School District and County Education District tax rate was 1.39

The proposed tax rate for Coahoma ISD School District for this year is 1.42

COAHOMA - Season tickets for Coahoma home football games will be on sale through Sept. 3 at the school district administration office, High School Drive and Main Street.

Season tickets, good for all five home games, are $15 and may be purchased between 8:30 a.m.-4 p.m. daily.

For more information, contact Judy Park at 394-4290.

Area fishing report

Fishing at Lake O.H. Ivie the past week was sort of hung on high center - hot and dry, and fish were enough to go to the deep water. Bass fishing, both large and small-mouth, continued good but in 25 to 40 feet of water, on plastic worms and live minnows.

Crappie fishing was fair to sometimes good in 25-30 feet. Minnows and night fishing got the best results. Channel catfishing continued good to excellent over baited holes in 10-20 feet of water, with stink bait best. A few white bass were caught around feeding schools.

From Lake J.B. Thomas came word that "The black bass are tearing 'em up." For instance, Richard Howard and his son, Jeremy, reeled in three bass totalling 13 pounds in early morning fishing.

Crappie fishing was fair to good, but on bottom at 18-20 feet in rocky areas. Channel catfish were sort of iffy. Shad had dropped off schooling, so white bass catches were poor.

North Carolina's William Henderson breaks through USC defenders on his way to a fourth-quarter touchdown Sunday. North Carolina won the Disneyland Pigskin Classic 31-9.

Tar Heels trounce Trojans

By The Associated Press

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Southern Cal is seeking a return to the national spotlight. North Carolina's program wants it for the first time.

Between them, the two schools have produced the most 1,000-yard rushers in college football history. But the biggest names — O.J. Simpson, Marcus Allen, Charles White, Mike Garrett — went to Southern Cal.

Two North Carolina tailbacks named Johnson — Leon and Curtis — are out to change that. They helped No. 20 North Carolina to a 31-9 victory over the 18th-ranked Trojans in the Pigskin Classic on Sunday night.

"Hopefully, this victory goes a long way in giving us the respect that we feel we deserve," said Leon Johnson, UNC's leading rusher with 94 yards on 10 carries. "We came into Southern Cal's backyard and beat them."

The Tar Heels spoiled John Robinson's return as USC coach after a 10-year absence.

The loss was USC's second straight at Anaheim Stadium. Fresno State defeated the Trojans 24-7 in the Freedom Bowl last season, which led to Larry Smith's firing and Robinson's return.

"We expect to get back to the top," Robinson said. "We obviously have some problems, but I think a lot of these are solvable."

North Carolina coach Mack Brown wasn't sure who would replace tailback Natrone Means when the 1,000-yard rusher entered the NFL draft after his junior year.

Curtis Johnson was used sparingly last season behind Means. Leon Johnson came to UNC as a quarterback, moving to tailback when Means departed. The Johnsons are not related.

"There was a lot of pressure seeming that this was the first game without Natro, but we worked hard in practice and it all paid off," Leon Johnson said. "The great thing is that we are so deep at running back and we have a lot of young players who may not even play this season."

Leon, a redshirt freshman, also caught four passes for 35. Curtis Johnson gained 78 yards on 17 carries.

"We had some big plays from our tailbacks, which was a concern coming in," Brown said.

Southern Cal's running game was dealt a major blow when its best rusher, Dwight McFadden, broke his left ankle late in the first quarter.

He'll undergo surgery and be out for three months. The sophomore gained 44 yards on seven carries.

Losing McFadden puts a snag in Robinson's plan to reinstitute the ground game that helped make the Trojans famous.

Scott Fields, Deon Strother and freshman David Dotson were rotated in as replacements. Dotson finished as the Trojans' leading rusher with 48 yards on nine carries. Fields gained 16 yards on seven carries and Strother 13 on four carries.

"Late in the game we were having tailback tryouts," Robinson.

Going in, Brown believed a victory would provide a huge boost to his school's rising program.

"Hopefully this game will give us national recognition," he said. "At North Carolina, people talk about tradition, and we have trouble getting our name mentioned in that group."

After Southern Cal controlled the first quarter behind McFadden, the remainder of the game belonged to North Carolina. Fields fumbled on a hit by Ray Jacobs, who recovered. Marcus Wall followed with a 6-yard TD run that gave the Tar Heels a 21-3 lead.

Tripp Pignetti kicked a 26-yard field goal on the first play of the fourth quarter and William Henderson scored from 8 yards out as North Carolina took a 31-3 lead.

Tyler Cashman gave Southern Cal a late TD when he caught a 5-yard pass from Rob Johnson. Cole Ford's point-after was blocked by Troy Barnett.

The Johnsons staked the Tar Heels to a 14-3 halftime lead.

Wildcats play for the home fans this year

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

WESTBROOK - One year after restarting its football program, Westbrook High School has a lot more experience and even a few wins to brag about.

The Westbrook Wildcats took to the field last season after a 49-year hiatus, and the results were encouraging. They finished 3-3 with wins over three JV six-man squads. On last season's six-game schedule, four games were against JV teams. This season, Westbrook will play five JV teams and four varsity opponents.

Westbrook has 14 boys out for its high school team and 16 on the junior high team.

"Last year, we had about 20 on each team to start out," said Westbrook head coach Jim Hill. "We had a lot of seniors last year, and they'd never been in athletics, so they really wanted to come out. I think 13 kids stayed with us - some quit and we lost a few to injuries. We had 16 stay with the junior high team, but a few of them decided football wasn't something they were interested in."

Westbrook has just 23 boys in the high school, Hill said. The entire enrollment at Westbrook, including the high school and the junior high, is 148.

Few of last season's players had any football experience. One that did is senior Chris Higgins, who played at the junior high level for Coahoma.

"Last year, it took our first two games to just to figure out what we wanted to do," Higgins said. "Once the season starts, we'll be ready for them. We're just catching on to the new guys, seeing how they play. We don't have the size that we had last year, but we've got a lot more speed."

Greg Conaway, a senior, took his first taste of high school football last season.

Conaway said: "They'd been talking getting a team here, but it took a long time. We really worked hard when we found out we had a team, and coach Hill helped us out a lot after the first game with our conditioning. I never realized how much a football game can take out of you.

"I've got a tape of the newscast they did, some television station came out when we started last year."

"Something to show the grandkids," Hill said.

Hill has been teaching at Westbrook for 11 years. He's coached in Oklahoma - his home state - and at Lamesa and Sands. Most of his experience is in 11-man football, but he has help from two experienced six-man coaches this season - Karl Schoenfield and Victor Garcia.

"The kids here are learning by leaps and bounds, and the community is very supportive of this program," said Schoenfield.

Hill said a football team had been approved for Westbrook six years ago, "but the oil crunch hit, and we didn't go with it because of the economy." Money is still tight, as it usually is when a small school fields a football team, but that hasn't stopped the Wildcats from building a football version of a field of dreams.

Westbrook played all road games last season, but Thursday the Wildcats will host their first football game in 50 years when Loraine comes to town. The field, which sits across from the school and next to a practice field, is complete with a new set of bleachers that Hill said will hold 600 to 700 fans.

"The school board deserves a lot of credit for putting 100 percent behind us. Without them, the wouldn't be where we're at," Hill said.

Westbrook's next step will be entering a district and playing only varsity teams. That happens next year.

"I think next year we'll be ready. I really believe that," Garcia said. "If they are coachable, they are competitive, and these kids are coachable."

For now, though, Westbrook will settle for its current schedule - especially now that it has a few home games for a change.

Allem cruises to victory in World Series of Golf

By The Associated Press

AKRON, Ohio — It was a blowout. Pure and simple.

With eight players within a stroke of the lead going into Sunday's final round of the World Series of Golf, a multiple-man race seemed in the offing.

South African Fulton Allem changed that script, with a spectacular 8-under-par 62 that gave him a five-shot victory and produced slack-jawed amazement from his would-be challengers.

"He didn't give us a chance," said Nick Price, one of three in the tie for second at 275.

"Ten under. I can't believe it. That's a great round of golf. I can't say enough about it," Price said after his closing 68 put him with defending champion Craig Stadler and Jim Gallagher.

"Sixty-two?" Stadler questioned, his eyebrows raised. "Good Lord. Is that what he shot? No wonder he blew us away."

"It was that stretch in the middle. I look at the leaderboard and he's 5 under. Then I look at the leaderboard and he's 9 under. Are you sure he didn't skip a couple of holes?"

The stocky, 35-year-old Allem put them away with a 40-foot chip-in eagle on the second hole and a string of six birdies — one on a 60-foot putt — in an eight-hole stretch in the middle of the round.

He capped off the best final round in the history of this elite, winners-only event at Firestone Country Club with a 6-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

With all the other contenders still on the golf course, he responded to a standing ovation from the gallery by raising both arms to the skies.

"To shoot 62 around Firestone you obviously get in that zone you get going maybe once or twice a year," he said. "I just capitalized on it."

Even though six golfers had yet to complete play, Allem, the spectators and the other players knew it was over when he finished with a 10-under 280 total.

The victory was Allem's second of the season, third of his American career and 17th around the world.

It was worth $360,000 from the total purse of $2 million and raised his season's earnings to $770,438.

It also provided him with a 10-year exemption on the PGA Tour, which he has played since finishing second in the 1987 World Series of Golf.

"The 10-year exemption means everything to me," Allem said. "To win at Firestone, where it all started for me, against a field of winners, nothing but great players, it's a very special feeling."

He also won at Houston in 1991 and qualified for this tournament earlier this season by winning the Colonial.

Fulton Allem celebrates after dropping a birdie putt on the 18th hole at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio, to finish at 10-under-par and win the World Series of Golf Sunday. Eight golfers were within a stroke of the lead going into the final round, but Allem won by five strokes.

Cowboys will cut Millen

By The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Hugh Millen, signed in the offseason as a backup quarterback to Troy Aikman, will be released when the Dallas Cowboys make their roster cuts Monday, according to a published report.

Head coach Jimmy Johnson refused to comment on whether Millen will be cut, but The Dallas Morning News reported in its Monday editions that it had learned the veteran quarterback will be waived.

NFL teams must cut from 60 players to 47 on Monday. When Aikman underwent back surgery earlier in the year, it appeared Millen would be the Cowboys' starter for the regular season-opener on Sept. 6 in Washington.

But Aikman healed quicker than expected, and last year's practice squad quarterback, Jason Garrett, outperformed Millen in this year's exhibition games.

"I can't speculate on what I might or might not do," Johnson said Sunday.

U.S. Open misses '92 champ

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Monica Seles made her first public appearance at a tennis event since her stabbing in April, returning Sunday to the scene of her 1991 and 1992 U.S. Open triumphs to join the tennis world in memory of Arthur Ashe.

Seles, smiling at court-side the day before the Open begins without her in the draw, waved to 13,000 fans who gave her a standing ovation. She sat beside Ashe's widow Jeanne and daughter Camera, signed autographs and, at one point, leaned over a railing from the president's box to exchange a kiss and hug with Jennifer Capriati. Still unable to practice because of the back wound from her attack at Hamburg, Germany, by an obsessed Steffi Graf fan, Seles was interviewed shortly afterward at Vail, Colo., where she's been undergoing physical therapy since. She also appeared in a televised interview last week. But this appearance at the National Tennis Center marked the first time she has come back to the crowd.

back to a court and back to public life.

Seles plans to hold a news conference Monday, shortly after her successor at No. 1, Graf, begins play against Robin White.

Men's No. 1 Jim Courier and No. 2 Pete Sampras played the first 12-point tiebreaker exhibition, but won't start for real until Tuesday or Wednesday.

Among the featured matches Monday are four-time champion and No. 3 seed Martina Navratilova against Gloria Pizzichini; No. 4 Conchita Martinez against Sandrine Testud; No. 9 Anke Huber against Karin Kschwendt; men's No. 9 Petr Korda against Wayne Ferreira, and No. 14 Alexander Volkov against Jonathan Stark.

McEnroe, a television commentator at this Open after 16 straight years as a player, said he thought only five men — Courier, Sampras, Agassi, Stefan Edberg and Boris Becker — have solid shots at winning.

"Stefan is probably the longest shot of those five," McEnroe said. "He's won it two times in a row and the pressure builds up."

McEnroe was one of only three players to win three in a row, along with Ivan Lendl and Bill Tilden, winner of six straight during the 1920s.

"To me, it's a great opportunity for Andre and Boris," said McEnroe, who is close friends of both. "Jim and Pete are fighting for No. 1 in the rankings. It would make it so much more exciting if Andre or Boris won."

Agassi has been training with new coach Pancho Segura, a former great player and a pivotal figure in Jimmy Connors' career.

"There's no question that since Wimbledon I've made some big improvements," said Agassi, who has gone back to his old full-swing serve instead of the tomahawk chop style he brandished at Wimbledon while recovering from tendinitis in the wrist. "I feel very solid about my game, about my match play, my competitiveness."

"The serve is not determined by your backswing, it's determined by your execution. But using the full range of motion gives me more of a rhythm, something I can count on as the match progresses."

Burton passes King in LPGA playoff

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Ontario (AP) — Brandie Burton made a 20-foot birdie putt on the first playoff hole Sunday to keep Betsy King a frustrated third-round leader and win the rain-drenched duMaurier Classic.

"Being a major, it doesn't get much sweeter than this," said Burton, 21, a three-time winner since turning pro in 1991. "I knew it was possible."

King, who lost for the seventh time after heading into the final round as a leader, was going for victory No. 29, one short of induction into the LPGA Hall of Fame.

King, who had a three-shot lead after 10, went on to a 1-under-71 for her 7-under 277.

Burton gave away a chance for an easy victory herself as she led by two on the 18th tee, but double-bogeyed for a 70.

King put her tee shot into a bunker on the par-4, 350-yard playoff hole. Her second shot was short and she was on the green in three.

Burton hit her tee shot on the fairway and sent an 8-iron within 20 feet.

Burton shrugged as her putt for the win slowed down, but it had enough to get to the lip and drop. She jumped in the air, ran to kiss her caddy and then congratulated King.

"I didn't think it was going to get there," Burton said. "I've always dreamed of winning on a birdie from more than 15 feet. It feels great."

Burton earned $120,000, while King, who had a one-stroke lead over Burton after three rounds, pocketed $74,474.

Dawn Coe-Jones had four birdies in a 68 to finish third, one stroke out of the playoff at the London Hunt and Country Club.

It was the highest finish by a Canadian since Jocelyne Bourassa won the inaugural tournament in 1973.

A continuous afternoon rain wreaked havoc on the greens, causing an 11-minute stoppage while crews squeezed them off with only the leaders still playing.

King built the three-stroke lead, but Burton birdied 12 and 13 while King bogeyed 13.

King's big downfall occurred on 15 when she four-putted for double-bogey, giving Burton the lead.

"I just made one mistake," King said. "I didn't have one three-putt in the whole tournament. Then I four-putt."

"I don't think I played that badly. If I played badly, then Brandie played almost badly."

Burton took advantage of the double-bogey. "She just opened the door for me, that's what she did," Burton said. "I'm not going sit back and feel sorry for her."

Burton stretched it to the two-stroke lead with a birdie on 17. But Burton's drive on 18 went into the rough behind a tree. She topped her next shot, then three-putted for double-bogey while King made her par putt.

"I was real upset," Burton said. "That was my first three-putt of the tournament. I thought: 'How can I fall apart after playing so well all tournament.' But my caddy Chuck (Paris) is a very positive person. He told me I'm still in it."

Dottie Mohrnie had a 71 for 279, one stroke better than Kris Monaghan, 66, and Vicki Fergon, 72.

No surprises at Arlington

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. — Star of Cozzene, the 4-5 favorite, put on a late charge Sunday and overtook Evanescent in the stretch to win the Arlington Million by 3 1/4 lengths.

With arch-rival Lure scratched, Star of Cozzene was dazzling with a burst of speed down the stretch to win easily.

Johann Quatz was third and defending champion Dear Doctor fourth in the eight-horse field.

Ridden by Jose Santos, Star of Cozzene earned $600,000 and paid $3.60, $2.60 and $2.40. Evanescent returned $3.80 and $2.80, while Johann Quatz was $3.20 to show.

Santos became the second jockey to win the Million twice in its 13 runnings. He also won aboard Steinlen in 1989. Cash Asmussen won with Dear Doctor last year and Mill Native in 1988. Asmussen did not ride Dear Doctor, the invader from France, this time.

Little Bro Lantis, the South Dakota-bred gelding who won the recent Stars and Stripes Handicap at 43-1 odds by leading all the way, tried the same tactics but couldn't pull it off this time.

He held a narrow lead over Leger Cat and Peter Davies heading up the straightaway in the backstretch with Star of Cozzene racing comfortably in the field.

They bunched up near the far turn with Little Bro Lantis, Leger Cat and Peter Davies fighting for the lead with Star of Cozzene looming on the inside. Heading into the stretch turn, Star of Cozzene moved to the rail and then was taken to the outside for the final challenge.

Evanescent and Johann Quatz both entered contention and fought for the lead. Evanescent drew clear near the furlong marker. Charging around rivals at the top of the straightaway, Star of Cozzene put on a powerful surge that drew him abreast of the leaders nearing the 16th poll. Then he drew away rapidly.

The expected duel between Star of Cozzene and Lure was sidetracked when trainer Shug McGaughey decided to scratch his star because of the turf softened by rain. Star of Cozzene and Lure each had won twice going head-to-head with the loser finishing second.

Also cutting into the field of the Million that usually attracts international stars was the outbreak of equine viral arteritis at Arlington this summer.

The time of 2:07 2-5 for 1 1/4 miles on the turf was well off the track record of 1:58 4-5 set by Perrault when he won the Million in 1982.

In the earlier feature, the $400,000 Secretariat Stakes, Awad, a 22-1 shot bred in Maryland, was the upset winner. Awad overtook Explosive Red, the second choice, in the final yards to win the 1 1/4-mile turf race in 2:08 3-5.

Awad earned $240,000 and paid $47.40, $23 and $17.20. Explosive Red nosed out Brazany for second and returned $6.60 and $5.40. Brazany paid $13.20 to show.

CONTEST RULES:

RULES: Pick the team you think will win from each ADVERTISERS block on this page. Some ADVERTISERS will have 2 games in their block. Enter the winner of each game you select on the entry form beside the appropriate number on the entry form from the games found in the ADVERTISERS block. The score is only necessary in the last "TIE-BREAKER" box. Each contestant must pick from each ADVERTISERS block. Do not miss any games.

Winners will be announced in the next Tuesday Herald. Winners may pick up prize money at the Herald office, 710 Scurry, Big Spring, Tx. Prizes will be awarded in "Herald Football Bucks" which can only be spent with the merchants on this page. Herald employees cannot participate. Must be 18 or older to play. Only 2 entries per person, per week. Must be entered on original contest entry form.

In the event of a tie, a drawing will be held to determine the winner. When using the tie-breaker, the closest guess to the winner's score will be judged the winning entry.

All entries must be received by 3 p.m. each Friday evening at the Herald office. No exceptions. Decision of the Judges is final!

PUBLIC NOTICE

GLASSCOCK COUNTY
TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM
Glasscock County will hold a public hearing at 5:00 PM on Sept. 3, 1993 at the County Courthouse in regard to the submission of an application to the Texas Department of Housing and Community Affairs for a Texas Community Development Program (TCDFP) grant.
The purpose of this meeting is to allow citizens an opportunity to discuss the citizen participation plan, the development of local housing and community development needs, the amount of TCDFP funding available, and eligible TCDFP activities, and the use of past TCDFP funds. The County encourages citizens to participate in the development of this TCDFP application and to make their views known at this public hearing.
Citizens unable to attend this meeting may submit their views and proposals to the County Judge at the County Courthouse. Handicapped individuals that wish to attend this meeting should contact the County Judge's office to arrange for assistance.
County Judge
Glasscock County

PUBLIC NOTICE

TO: Unknown Father and to all whom it may concern, Respondent(s), GREETINGS:
YOU ARE HEREBY COMMANDED to appear and answer before the Honorable 118th District Court, Howard County, Texas at or before 10 o'clock a.m. of the Monday next after the expiration of 20 days from the date of service of this citation, then and there to answer the petition of Julia Lerma, Petitioner, filed in said Court on the 6th day of May, 1993, against Edna Lerma and the unknown father Respondent(s), and said suit being number 93-05-36533-0v on the docket of said Court, and entitled "In the Interest of Anissa Bernadette Lerma a child" the nature of which suit is a request for termination of parental rights and adoption.
The Court has authority in this suit to enter any judgment or decree in the child's interest which will be binding upon you, including the termination of the parent-child relationship, the determination of paternity and the appointment of a conservator with authority to consent to the child's adoption.
Issues and given under my hand and the Seal of said Court at Big Spring, Texas this 20th day of August A.D., 1993.

NFL's new rules for '93

Five rules changes have been instituted for the 1993 NFL season, the most notable being a more liberalized intentional grounding rule.
The five new NFL rules:

INTENTIONAL GROUNDING will not be called when a passer, while out of the pocket and facing an imminent loss of yardage, throws a pass that lands near or beyond the line of scrimmage, even if no offensive player(s) have a realistic chance to catch the ball (including if the ball lands out of bounds over the sideline or end line).
The "pocket" is defined as the area extending from the outside shoulders of a normal two-tight end alignment to the end zone behind the offensive team.

THE PLAY CLOCK was reduced from 45 seconds to 40 seconds to improve the pace of the game.

THE PENALTY FOR INELIGIBLE OFFENSIVE PLAYER DOWNFIELD on a forward pass was reduced from 10 yards to 5 yards.

IF KICKERS FOUL DURING A KICKOFF, SAFETY KICK OR PUNT before possession changes and the receiving team fouls after the change of possession, the receiving team retains possession of the ball after enforcement of its penalty. Note: this change eliminates the previous rule exception where the down was replayed.

A DEFENSIVE PLAYER may advance a backward pass after the pass touches the ground.
