PLO, Israel sign historic peace accord

The Associated Press

Peace accord to be signed at the White House

Monday's signing of the peace accord between Israel and the PLO will take place on the South Lawn at the White House. About 3,000 guests are expected to attend the signing ceremony which will start at around 11 a.m. EST.

WASHINGTON — Enemies without mercy for a generation, Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization stand ready to seal a historic accord promising self-government for Palestinians and the hope of a broader peace between Jews and Arabs.

On the eve of a White House signing ceremony, PLO Leader Yasser Arafat and Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin underscored the enormity of their agreement and the gulf that divides them still.

Arafat said in an Associated Press interview that he hoped the agreement would "build a future for the generations to come."

Told that Arafat also predicted to reporters that the accords would lead to a Palestinian state with Jerusalem as the capital, Rabin replied gruffly: "He can forget about it."

Rabin arrived in Washington only a few hours before the elaborately scripted signing ceremony was to begin on the South Lawn of the White House.

Arafat, beaming, flew into Andrews Air Force base at mid-afternoon Sunday, and met with Assistant Secretary of State Edward Djerejian in his first-ever high-level diplomatic contact with an American official.

The Palestinian flag, green, white and black with a red triangle, flew outside Arafat's downtown Washington hotel. Inside, the man who swore death to Israel for three decades met with former President Carter, the man who presided over the treaty signing that brought Israel and Egypt together in the late 1970s.

President Clinton was playing hopeful host, pledging the United States would assist in implementing the agreements, and expressing optimism that Jordan, Lebanon and Syria also would negotiate successfully with Israel. The Palestinian agreement, he told the Washington Post in an interview, is the first step toward the "flowering of the Middle East."

Already there was reason for some optimism. Israeli and Jordanian officials met at the State Department on Sunday working over final details of a document that could serve as the framework for a peace treaty between them. An announcement was possible on Tuesday.

The PLO-Israeli accords call for Palestinian self-government first in Jericho on the West Bank and in Gaza, and later in the rest of the West Bank territory that Israel won in a 1967

Council to adopt budget Tuesday

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A 2.9 percent city property tax increase and a fiscal 1993-94 city budget that would spend 1.8 percent less than this year are scheduled for second and final readings Tuesday.

A 25 percent hike in trash fees will also be considered by the Big Spring City Council when they meet at 5:30 p.m. in Building 1106 in Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

The tax increase, less than current annual U.S. inflation of more than 3 percent, was enthusiastically backed by the council three weeks ago because it is earmarked for moving and bulldozing abandoned lots. It will raise about $60,000 next year.

"That's the only way I'd do it," Mayor Tim Blackshear said of the idea.

The proposed tax rate of 65.5 cents per $100 valuation is 1.8 cents more than the effective rate, what's needed to bring in the same property tax revenue as this year. But because of an increase in city property values, it's actually lower than the current rate of 66.09 cents.

For the owner of a $20,000 home that didn't change in value, that's a drop of $1.18 in city taxes.

Garbage rates are proposed to increase 25 percent, to $7.50 a month for residential users, to pay for federal landfill pollution mandates. It is expected to raise $336,000. Proposed landfill gate fees for city and county residents dumping their own trash at the landfill were taken out.

"We're afraid people will dump their trash around the county," said Councilman Ladd Smith, who wanted the gate fees taken out.

Expenditures next year, not including the city's federal prison operation, are projected to be $18.8 million, down $349,585 from this year. Spending for the federal prison is set at $9.8 million, down $468,320 from this year.

Reimbursement increases triggers citizens' outrage

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A quadrupling of undocumented monthly reimbursements for Big Spring City Council members - money handed over with no questions asked - is scheduled for final council approval Tuesday.

In other council business, at least one salary increase will be considered by the council while another is stricken. No city employee raises are included in the city's fiscal 1993-94 budget, however, all non-management employees got a 5 percent raise in May.

The proposed expense account increase may face legal challenge. Some city residents, in anonymous phone calls to the Big Spring Herald, threatened legal action, claiming it's a salary increase that needs voter approval.

City Attorney Mike Thomas, who reported getting similar calls, told the council three weeks ago that increasing reimbursements appears defensible in court. "I believe it's defensible," he said. "Can I guarantee you a victory, no."

Reimbursements for council members would increase from $50 to $200 a month, except the mayor, whose reimbursements would increase from $100 to $250.

In other action, the council will again consider approving the fiscal 1993-94 budget of Moore Development for Big Spring, rejected three weeks ago because it included a 3.75 percent increase for Moore Development

Hurricane remains drops rain on area

By GARY SHANKS

Big Spring was drenched with more than half an inch of rain as the remains of what was Hurricane Lidia pushed moisture across Mexico and Southwest Texas.

With the tropical moisture in the area, upper-level instability triggered numerous thunderstorms in the area, according to National Weather Service officials.

U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Station personnel measured .66 of an inch of rain at their location on the north service road of Interstate 20 between U.S. Highway 87 and Texas Highway 350.

This brings the total rainfall for 1993 to 15.61 inches at the research station. This is about two inches above the total accumulated average rainfall for Big Spring, which is 13.79 inches of rainfall up to Sept. 12, according to USDA officials.

The rains were more consistent than other recent precipitation. Boyce Hale, along the Wasson Road extension, measured .54 of an inch of rain for Sunday, bringing his totals to .78 of an inch for the month.

Total overall precipitation figures, however, are lower for the southern parts of the city, with Hale measuring only 11.77 inches for the year.

In the eastern-central part of the city, Tommy Hart measured .50 of an inch of rain for Sunday.

As the tropical moisture is expected to stay in the area, continuing thunderstorm activity is likely across West Texas, according to National Weather Service officials.

Security increased in Corsicana's schools

The Associated Press

CORSICANA — Corsicana School District officials have decided to increase security at all district campuses following a brawl at an elementary school that police say was racially motivated.

"I think the most important thing to let people know is that we are not going to put up with any misbehavior on our campuses," said Corsicana school superintendent Jim Dickson.

In addition, school administrators at a meeting Saturday agreed to take a "zero tolerance" position toward violence such as that which occurred last week.

Dickson said the action was taken to "ensure a safe environment for the education of all our young people on every district campus."

One teacher and four police officers — including Corsicana Police Chief G.M. Cox — were injured in Thursday's melee that interrupted an open house at Lincoln Elementary School.

Witnesses said that 15 to 20 young black men had shouted, "No peace, no justice" as they ran through the elementary school's halls, then fought with police who tried to apprehend them.

Police say they believe the incident was planned and racially motivated.

The confrontation at Lincoln was preceded Thursday by a problem at Collins Middle School. The principal, attempting to break up a fight between a black student and a white student, was struck by a student.

Officials said they did not know whether there was a connection between the incidents.

Fair attendance good

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Attendance at the 1993 Howard County Fair is similar to last year's fair — good, but not great, according to Arnold Marshall, past president of the Howard County Fair Association.

The entertainment tent was packed late Friday for Tejano Music Night and on Saturday, almost 1,000 people flocked to hear the music of country and western singer Dude Mowrey.

Ticket sales at the gate reflected an overall attendance of about 20,000, said Skipper Driver, coordinator of the 1993 fair. This is up slightly from last year's attendance records, Driver said. "We had a real good run."

Fair organizers will spend much of today doing book keeping work, counting incomes and expenses. Overall profitability figures will not be available until this is completed.

Along with lamb and steer judging in the morning and early afternoons, Friday and Saturday's fair crowds were treated to a two-day chili and barbecue cook-off.

Winners of the cook-off included people from several cities around West Texas, according to Dan Wright who organized the event.

Big Spring resident Danny Kennemur kept some of the honors in town, winning the briskett-cooking competition.

A San Angelo woman, Wanda Carmack, won the overall chili championship. And an Odessa man, Beac Chapman was the first-place winner in the showmanship category, Wright said.

Winning sheep categories were John Williams, Jr. of Sterling City and Marcus Below.

Winners in the candy category were Donna R. Murphy for adults and Marco A. Castillo for youth.

The award for best exhibition booth in the commercial category was given to the Creative Celebration company. In the non-commercial category, Howard County 4-H Club members took first place for their booth.

Discovery's mission going smoothly

The Associated Press

SPACE CENTER — A network of springs nudged a $363 million communications satellite into space as Discovery's five-man crew accomplished one of the chief jobs of its 10-day mission.

The Advanced Communications Technology Satellite was bounced from the shuttle cargo bay hours after launch Sunday, then propelled by a rocket from Discovery's 184-mile altitude to a 22,300-mile-high orbit less than an hour later.

The 3-ton satellite, called ACTS, is designed to transmit data 20 times faster than present craft and could one day shrink the size of satellite dishes on Earth to 1 1/2 feet in diameter, project managers said.

With one space delivery down, Discovery's astronauts had one to go.

Astronaut Daniel Bursch reached into the cargo bay this morning with the shuttle's 50-foot robot arm and grabbed hold of a reusable German platform carrying a star-scanning ultraviolet telescope.

"Good job," said Mission Control's Jay Apt, who watched video images beamed down from the shuttle. "We had a beautiful view the whole time."

The telescope, along with spectrographs mounted on the 1,500-pound pallet, was to be hoisted out of the shuttle and released today after tests by astronauts and ground controllers.

The satellite will trail Discovery by 40 miles for about a week before Bursch reeals it in for the trip home.

The $70 million German-financed project is designed to study celestial objects, including white dwarfs and supernovas, in an attempt to understand the life cycle of stars.

After nearly two months of delays related to equipment problems, payload concerns, even a meteor shower, Discovery roared into orbit on time without a hitch early Sunday. "Hey Houston, I gotta tell ya, you've never seen five happier guys up here," commander Frank Culbertson Jr. told Mission Control shortly after reaching orbit. "It's been a long time coming."

The Space Shuttle Discovery lifts off early Sunday at Kennedy Space Center's Launch Pad 39-B to begin its 10-day mission which is going smoothly so far.

Two engine pump sensors failed on the way up, but that posed no problem since identical sensors worked fine, said launch director Bob Sieck. If one of those sensors had failed prior to launch, however, it would have meant another aborted launch. A broken fuel-flow sensor caused an engine shutdown three seconds before liftoff last month.

The ACTS satellite was deployed one orbit later than planned because of a temporary drop in communications from the ground to Discovery that was caused by interference from the payload radio system.

ACTS project manager Richard Gerney later said the satellite appeared to be working properly. "It looks like a very good mission at this point," Gerney said.

Communication companies, broadcasting organizations, universities, hospitals and the government plan 73 experiments with the satellite over the next two years.

Judge makes parents pay for kids' sins

The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — If a district court judge has his way, parents will feel the sting of their children's misbehavior — through parental probation.

Judge Andy Mireles believes parents should be responsible for their children and has taken steps to ensure they do.

Mireles, a judge in the 73rd District Court, and other San Antonio judges have started placing some young offenders' parents on probation along with their children.

"I had one mother argue with me," Mireles said. "She said, 'I have to work. I can't watch him.' I said, 'Well, your son is going to get killed if he keeps on like he has been, so you have a choice.'"

Parental probation is a new trend in court-imposed parental responsibility being used in San Antonio and around the country, said Laura Burney, associate law professor at St. Mary's University School of Law.

"Parental responsibility is probably the new angle on dealing with juvenile crime," Ms. Burney told the San Antonio Express-News in Sunday editions. "How effective it is is hard to say."

District Judge Carmen Kelsey recently earned praise from San Antonio officials and residents when she ordered the mother of a young car thief to pay $100-a-month child support to the state while her son is incarcerated.

The judge also ordered the mother to pay restitution to the family of a boy who was killed during the crime and the owner of the stolen car.

"I think we have to do something with these kids and these parents," Kelsey said. "I think this probation is a good idea, too."

So far, Mireles — who like Kelsey is a designated juvenile judge — is the only one in San Antonio actively placing parents on probation.

But both Kelsey and District Judge John Specia, who also handles some juvenile cases, said they support the plan and intend to consider it.

Mireles devised an order himself, with blanks for the specifics of each case. The judge, as well as lawyers and parent or parents, signs the order.

The order is enforceable by contempt of court, which can mean a fine or jail time. "Now I can look at Joey and say, 'If you don't do what I say, I'll put your mama in jail.' It has an impact," Mireles said.

JFK lectern donated

HOUSTON (AP) — The lectern that President John F. Kennedy stood behind when he asked 49,000 people at Rice Stadium, "Why send a man to the moon?" has been donated to Space Center Houston.

The lectern was donated to the space agency on Sunday, the 31st anniversary of Kennedy's speech.

In his historic speech, Kennedy said, "The exploration of space will go ahead, whether we join it or not, and it is one of the great adventures of all time. No nation which expects to be the leader of other nations can expect to stay behind in this race for space."

The donation was made to commemorate the speech and the 30th anniversary of Rice's department of space physics and astronomy.

The lectern will sit on public display in the theater that shows On Human Destiny, the film featuring quotes from Kennedy's Sept. 12, 1962, speech.

Hurricane Lidia approaching Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Hurricane Lidia, gusting at up to 125 mph, headed toward Mexico's Pacific coast today, threatening flimsy homes and poor neighborhoods from Tepic to Los Mochis.

The National Water Commission, which tracks storms, said Sunday night the hurricane was "extremely dangerous" and issued an alert for coastal areas about 400 miles south of the Arizona border.

The windows are being sealed and we are taking every precaution," said Karina Escobedo, a receptionist at the Hotel Colina del Valle in Los Mochis. She said it had rained heavily since dawn Sunday.

The hurricane was expected to hit the mainland this morning near Piaxtla, a hamlet about 30 miles north of Mazatlan, a port and popular resort, said Capt. Ruben Navarro, head of civil defense for Sinaloa state.

"They are beginning to evacuate the people, especially from the banks of rivers ... the tidelands, the poor neighborhoods where there is risk of flooding," Navarro said.

About 300 residents were taken to shelters in the state capital of Culiacan. He said the storm threatened the frail homes of the poor, but should not damage stronger buildings.

Lidia had maximum sustained winds of 102 mph with gusts of up to 125 mph.

Rare booby draws crowd from around the world

The Associated Press

DALLAS — The visitors have come from as far as Germany and Australia. Some stay for hours. Others just a few minutes. But they've come in droves for a peek at Bobby, the blue-footed booby.

Marjorie Bryant says when she first saw him, she thought he was just another "dumb bird."

But the dumpy brown and white aquatic bird that has taken up residence on the boat dock at her home on Lake LBJ in Central Texas turned out to be a rare booby, making only its second-recorded visit to Texas.

Mrs. Bryant says he's not much of a bird aficionado. But her neighbor, Jane Flack, thought the bird that showed up on her dock June 2 looked like one she'd seen on a cruise to the Galapagos Islands. So she sent a picture to the Audubon Society.

It turned out to be the booby, which rarely leaves a habitat that extends along Mexico's Pacific coast and the Galapagos Islands west of Ecuador.

Word spread fast. More than 425 people arrived in the first two weeks, Bryant said. The visitors have come from six states, as well as Australia, Germany and Brazil.

"Some of them come in and sit quietly for hours, just watching the bird. Others take hundred of pictures, while others just check him off their list and go," Mrs. Bryant told The Dallas Morning News. "One couple drove all the way in from Florida, saw the booby, then turned around and drove home."

Edward Kutack of Austin, author of Birders' Guide to Texas, said there's only been one other recorded sighting of the blue-footed booby in Texas, around Port Isabel in the 1970s. And it only stayed one day.

"To call this a rare bird is really not strong enough," he said. Besides the other Texas sighting, one was seen in Arizona and another in California.

Questions of how the booby, about 6 months old, came to Central Texas and how long it will stay remain unanswered.

"There's a lot of theories, ranging from being blown off course by a storm getting caught in a jet stream," he said. "But what really happens, no one knows."

Kutack and Bryan Hale of the Travis Audubon Society say the bird may pack up and head home at the first cold snap.

But Mrs. Bryant, who has affectionately named the bird Bobby, hopes he stays.

"I don't know what we'll do when he goes. He's been pretty good company. I'm going to miss him," she said.

Peace accord provokes riots, celebrations

The Associated Press

NABLUS, Occupied West Bank — A strike called by Palestinian opponents of the Israel-PLO agreement shut down much of the Gaza Strip and West Bank today. But a festive mood reigned in Jericho, where supporters danced, waved Palestinian flags and paraded huge pictures of Yasser Arafat.

Police called up extra forces nationwide after an Israeli bus driver and three soldiers were killed in several attacks on Sunday. Three Palestinians were also killed, including the man who attacked the bus driver.

Most of the attacks were blamed on Muslim fundamentalists, underscoring their determination to continue "armed struggle."

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, en route to the signing of the agreement in Washington, told Israelis: "We have no choice but to grit our teeth and fight those who carry out the murderous attacks," while making peace.

Pointing to the bloodshed, right-wing leaders urged Rabin to cancel plans to sign the accord giving Palestinians autonomy, starting in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank city of Jericho.

"The hand that pulled the trigger is not different than Arafat's blood-soaked hands," said Likud party lawmaker Zahi Hanegbi, referring to the ambush on the soldiers.

A general strike called in the West Bank and Gaza Strip by Hamas and Islamic Jihad, two fundamentalist groups, was generally observed.

In Nablus, the West Bank's largest town, shops were shuttered, but some cars displayed olive branches and photographs of Arafat. Supporters greeted passing cars with shouts of "shalom!" the Hebrew word for peace.

Protesters burned tires in the streets of the Balata refugee camp, where slogans on the wall reflected the divisions:

Graffiti of the Democratic Front — a PLO faction opposed to the agreement — declared that "whoever signs does not represent our people." Arafat's supporters wrote that "the recognition of the PLO is the recognition of the Palestinian state."

burned tires and threw stones at passing cars, even those owned by Palestinians. Israeli soldiers fired in the air when stones were thrown at them in the Jabalya refugee camp.

The Islamic Jihad militants claimed responsibility for the killing of an Israeli bus driver on Sunday, saying:

"Yesterday's attack with Allah's knife was to say no to the surrender, no to the signing of the Gaza-Jericho agreement, no to the recognition of the security and safety of the Zionist traitors."

Hamas leaflets called the signing the "blackest day in Islamic history."

In Jericho, which is expected to become Arafat's headquarters after Israeli forces withdraw, about 1,000 youths marched and danced in the streets in celebration of the signing.

They unfurled scores of outlawed green-white-red-and-black Palestinian flags and hung a billboard-sized poster of Arafat from a building. Israeli soldiers stayed away from the celebration.

Israeli newspapers reflected the ambivalent feelings many Israelis had about peacemaking amid bloodshed.

The daily Maariv called Sunday's attacks "the War Against Peace" and split their front page in half — one part devoted to Rabin in Washington and another edged in red that recounted the killings.

However, Davar, the daily newspaper of Rabin's Labor party, had a front page editorial in Hebrew and Arabic entitled "Peace be Upon You:" — "Aleichem Hashalom" in Hebrew and "Aleikum Essalam" in Arabic.

Inmate AIDS deaths related to drug use

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than half of the prison inmates nationwide who died from AIDS in 1991 were in New York and New Jersey, where widespread drug abuse has caused much of the spread of the disease, a government study said.

Two-thirds of the inmate deaths in New York and New Jersey prisons that year were from AIDS, said the study issued Sunday by the Justice Department's Bureau of Justice Statistics.

The AIDS deaths among inmates in both states appears to reflect widespread intravenous injection of drugs among males in New York City and neighboring cities, said Dr. Mervyn Silverman, president of the American Foundation for AIDS Research.

AIDS cases resulting from intravenous drug use are much more prevalent in the Northeast than elsewhere in the country, Silverman said.

Nationally, 24 percent of AIDS cases have been attributed to intravenous drug use, Silverman said. But in the last couple of years, more than 50 percent of new AIDS cases diagnosed in New York City are linked to intravenous drug injection, he said.

"In the Northeast, especially in cities like New York, and probably some in New Jersey, AIDS has become the highest cause of death in men" ages 25 to 40.

The Justice Department study compiled data on inmate deaths in state prisons nationwide.

In 1991, 210 of the 318 inmate deaths in New York state were the result of AIDS, the study said. Of inmate AIDS victims, 199 were men and 11 were women, the study found.

In New Jersey that year, 66 of the 96 inmate deaths were attributed to AIDS. All the AIDS victims were male.

Florida ranked third with 59 AIDS deaths among inmates, followed by 38 in California, 19 in Pennsylvania, 18 Texas, 14 in both North Carolina and Maryland, 13 in Georgia, 12 in South Carolina, 11 in Connecticut, 10 in Illinois and eight in Massachusetts.

Michigan prison authorities did not report whether inmates died of AIDS-related causes, the study said.

The study found that 528 of the 1,863 inmate deaths in 1991 nationwide were due to AIDS. All but 15 of the AIDS victims were men.

That figure is more than double the 254 AIDS-caused deaths recorded in the nation's federal, state and local prisons and jails from November 1985 through September 1986, according to a 1987 Justice Department study.

The highest rate of AIDS infection was found among state and federal prisoners in the Northeast.

Flood victims vote to move

VALMEYER, Ill. (AP) — Residents of flood-ravaged Valmeyer don't plan on getting soaked again.

The town of 900 has voted to pick up and move to higher ground just to the east, Mayor Dennis Knobloch said Saturday.

"We thought when the water went down, all our problems would go with it," he said. "But the water was just the tip of the destruction."

Ballots were passed out to voters Wednesday and Thursday. Of 239 ballots tabulated, 66 percent approved of moving to higher ground, Knobloch said.

More than half of the 346 homes in town sustained major damage during weeks of high water this summer. Officials will now begin buying land, and construction could start next spring or summer, Knobloch said.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency may be willing to buy out some property owners because it would be cheaper than paying flood insurance claims, spokesman Len DeCarlo said.

Planners said it could cost more than $16 million to build a new town.

Girls used as human shields

ATLANTA (AP) — A young man grabbed two 13-year-old girls as shields during a gunfight with another man. One girl was killed, the other injured.

Both gunmen — who escaped unhurt — will be charged with murder, police said.

Aisha Heard of Atlanta died Saturday after being shot in the head. The other girl, Jamina Bolston, was released from a hospital Sunday after treatment for a bullet wound to her hip.

Police said William Herman Berry, 19, drove up to a public housing complex and began shooting at 18-year-old Osceola Kelly, with whom he had been feuding. Kelly grabbed the girls and returned fire, police said.

Kelly and Berry were being held on aggravated assault charges. Both would be charged with murder today, police Sgt. C.L. Horton said Sunday.

Miss Heard fell to the ground after being shot and was trampled by panicking bystanders, police said. An autopsy is planned to determine cause of death.

Police Chief Eldrin Bell called the death "another useless, senseless tragedy of children killing children."

Three Americans claimed killed

MOGADISHU, Somalia (AP) — Somalis working for Western news organizations said they saw the bodies of at least three Americans killed today when U.N. soldiers came under fire during a weapons search in Mogadishu.

American and Malaysian soldiers in the multinational U.N. force that has been trying to restore order to Somalia since last year were conducting the search when they encountered gunfire. U.S. helicopters backing the soldiers repeatedly raked the area with machine guns and 20mm cannon fire.

The battle appeared as intense as the one Thursday that erupted after American and Pakistani peacekeepers were ambushed as they were clearing roadblocks in another section of southern Mogadishu.

In that battle, Cobra gunships laid down withering fire to help the ground troops withdraw from the ambush, which supporters of fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid said killed at least 125 Somali men, women and children.

Gas prices drop around nation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gas prices dropped nearly 1 1/2 cents a gallon the past three weeks to about $1.13, according to a nationwide survey of pump prices.

The drop continues a trend that began last spring and was offset by a small jump in August, said industry analyst Tribly Lundberg. She said Sunday the new price dip mirrored a similar drop in crude oil prices.

AIDS coverage sparks heated debate at conference

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The American media are still struggling with "outing" gay newsmakers and whether journalists should take part in gay marches, according to a panel of news executives.

The question of whether the AIDS crisis is adequately covered by U.S. newspapers and broadcasters also arose on Sunday during the sometimes-heated panel discussion that concluded the three-day National Lesbian and Gay Journalists Conference.

About 500 gay editors and reporters from around the country attended the group's second annual meeting.

Panelists agreed the news media should not aggressively "out," or reveal the homosexuality of newsmakers, but efforts should be made to persuade individuals to reveal that information if it is relevant to the story.

"My own predisposition is that we need to be very careful about keeping things out of the newspaper, but I don't think we should make a point of identifying someone as gay or lesbian unless there is a special point," said Geneva Overholser, editor of The Des Moines Register.

Pearl Stewart, editor of The Oakland Tribune, said that in cases where sexual orientation is pertinent to the story, "it seems to me some pressure should be brought to bear on the person" to disclose that information.

But "if he chooses not to, I don't see taking it any further," she said.

Members of the panel wrestled at length with the issue of whether homosexual journalists should be allowed to join in public events such as the recent gay pride march in Washington, D.C.

Fair a great success

Another Howard County Fair has come and gone, ending Saturday at the Howard County Fair Barn.

But, more than 20,000 people took advantage of the events to have an enjoyable week. The fair had something to offer everyone - young and old alike.

There was various food contests, livestock judging and various forms of entertainment from Dude Mowrey to a kitchen band. This year's fair also celebrated the 10th anniversary of the Home Sports Entertainment with a display of sports memorabilia.

County fairs are family and fun, and this year's fair was no exception.

The success of the 1993 fair is good for this county. And, we hope the 1994 fair is as successful for all involved.

Documenting heritage month

Journalism is the opportunity to document history as it unfolds. Unlike other historians who labor long hours between library stacks, journalists do not read about what happened; they see it take place.

Martha E. Flores

Time does not stop. Every event is a catalyst for another. Every action shapes the future. There are no actions without consequence and lives are in the balance.

Like every reporter at one time or another, I have been in awe and amazement of the history I have seen unfold. For a 25-year-old, the fiery spectacular from Fina Oil & Chemical plant's explosion was not only overwhelming, but it surfaced fear from the depths of my being.

Interviewing neighbors of a woman who was murdered by her husband then buried in the city's landfill is something I will not forget. Interviewing a 104-year-old woman who has seen modes of transportation go from horse and buggy to Boeing 747s gave me a better understanding of how history unfolds and how each event is dependent on another.

History slowly crawls in. Like the movement of the earth, it is not realized until after the fact. It does not break in a fiery spectacular every time. It develops slowly with incidents that may not seem like much fusing with other modest events to produce monumental change.

Not many had the vision to foresee that Rosa Parks refusing to give up her seat would culminate with the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

The same goes with Fr. Hidalgo's 'Grito de Dolores.' It was the beginning of Mexico's 11 year battle in the early 1800s to win freedom from Spanish rule. And it all started with a man filled with conviction pleading to the people of Dolores to march in protest and fight for what was theirs.

In the two years I have been with the Big Spring Herald, I have been witness to change slowly creeping into the midst.

What I have seen is people with convictions and commitment working toward change, especially in the Hispanic community.

Hispanic Women for Progress have been the most involved in the last 18 months since their establishment. They have coordinated financial aid workshops for college bound students, tutoring sessions, conversational Spanish workshops for teachers and scholarship awards.

Presently, they are coordinating their most ambitious endeavor, a day long event with museum in recognition of Hispanic Heritage Month (Sept. 15-Oct. 15). The Sept. 25 celebration will have food, entertainment and historical displays.

Under the leadership of Rudy Gutierrez and Ester Lopez, the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's Minority Involvement Committee is also preparing to commemorate Hispanic heritage by having a reception at the chamber's offices Thursday (Sept. 16). At the function, minority business owners and other guests will have the opportunity to learn more about the chamber, the Minority Involvement Committee and the Howard College Business Development Center. They will also have the opportunity to meet committee members as well as other chamber members.

The committee was established in January to increase the involvement of minorities in civic affairs. Members have formulated a long term plan to reach their goals and with the reception they have begun to take steps toward them.

In the last few years, involvement among Hispanics seems to have taken off. Chicano Golf Association is raising thousands of dollars for scholarships. League of United Latin American Citizens also has scholarship drives during their Cinco de Mayo and Diez y Seis de Septiembre festivals.

There are also individuals who on their own are changing the face of eternity. And throughout the planning and during the events, the Herald will be on hand to document what is taking place. It will also be taking part in celebrating Hispanic Heritage Month.

Beginning with Black History Month in 1992, the newspaper has published a month-long front page series commemorating African American heritage. In September of that year, a similar series was published during Hispanic Heritage Month. In February 1992, our second annual black history series was published.

For the upcoming heritage month, the Herald staff is proud to introduce what is foreseen as the most extensive coverage of Hispanic Heritage Month to date.

Each reporter, as well as editors, will emphasize the rich local Hispanic culture in their coverage and sections. Stories will not only be published on page 1, but in Life!, Sports, West Texas and Business. A logo will accompany each story.

With past coverage, the newspaper has established its commitment to giving all sectors of the community balanced, equal coverage. With the upcoming series, it is underscoring its commitment.

Country music and the Ryman

NASHVILLE — This is the part of this town the Chamber of Commerce had just as soon forgot about ... the really interesting part.

The old Ryman Auditorium is the main draw, but the pawn shops and peep shows and seedy bars are all part of it, too, painted attendants to the dethroned queen of country music real estate.

They took country music out of the Ryman, but you can't take the Ryman out of the music.

People still want to see her. I say 'her' because the old brick church seems like a mother, one who gave life and sustained it, turned her back on a few children and remained a faithful supporter of her favorites.

It's hard for me to pass through Nashville without visiting, without paying respects. About once a year I stop.

And, once inside that venerable hall, my mood darkens. I wander about and wonder whose bright idea it was to move the Opry to suburbia, to give it a theme park mentality and a shiny hotel with lots of glass and fancy rooms that cost more than the average annual income of country music's pioneer fans.

Why couldn't the show have remained here, true to itself, in this unair-conditioned building, where the faithful once sat on church pews and the sun streamed through colored windows?

Go ahead. Separate the rest of the operation from its heart if space and practicality were a problem, but leave the mother church alone.

When they built their modern Opryland, they cut up part of the Ryman stage floor and hauled it across town, but that wasn't enough. That's like tearing down Notre Dame and saving a window.

The Opry has had several homes in its lifetime, I know, but this is the one consistent with our imaginings of how it was when it mattered so much to so many, when our grandparents listened on the radio and smiled through their bone weariness.

The Ryman now is a sad little museum run by retired people, who smile or don't and sell you a ticket for $2.50 and leave you alone to walk across the stage that was good enough for Hank and Patsy. Signs ask you not to write on the walls.

There are vintage black-and-white photographs covering the walls leading to the stage, and posters lettered by a professional help guide the tour. The hall sat 3,000, one sign says, and you can almost feel the heat of that many fans sitting close and waiting for the music. The old microphone at stage center is held together with extra wires.

The museum exhibits are limited and enshrined in dusty cases. Most everything here came from Roy Acuff, who donated items from his foreign travels.

These are a mixed bag and have nothing to do with the Opry: a Leaning Tower of Pisa replica, ceramic ashtrays, foreign coins, wood carvings. It's as if Roy Acuff almost decided to have a garage sale, but then thought better of it and donated his 'treasures.'

I guess the rest of Nashville's museums — and there are dozens — have exhausted the good stuff, the cowboy hats, the boots, the spangles and baby shoes of the stars. They're not here.

You can buy things, of course, including cardboard fans like the ones that used to keep the visitors cool, or T-shirts, or tapes and videos. To buy a video here would be a little like money-changing in the temple, though, so I decline.

Tootsie's Orchid Lounge, which used to be accessible through a Ryman back door and an alley, is still open. But at noon I notice a fellow at the door charging the tourists admission. That doesn't seem right.

Next to Tootsie's a guitar store is alive behind security bars.

This is just one more stage of evolution for what used to be the center of Music City. I should get with the program and appreciate it as such.

But this is my annual lament, the funk that accomplishes nothing, a curmudgeon's prayer. If the musicians are taking their shows from Tennessee to Missouri, why should I worry about the fate of the old Ryman?

It's a miracle it wasn't torn down.

Breaking with the past to choose peace

Scripps Howard News Service

In a world inured to ethnic strife, from Bosnia to the Caucasus to South Africa, the reconciliation struggling to be born in the Middle East is a courageous and historic undertaking. Israeli and Palestinian leaders have broken with the past to forge a new chance for their peoples.

To appreciate the revolution they are reaching for, place the mutual recognition of Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization in context. As recently as last year's Israeli election campaign, new Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin vowed never to speak to the terrorist PLO. A mere two and a half years ago, Palestinians danced on their rooftops as Iraqi scud missiles fell on Tel Aviv.

Now the two peoples' leaders are exchanging solemn letters and signatures and handshakes. For these formalities to inaugurate the hoped for new era in the Middle East, many minds must be transformed. 'You don't make peace with friends,' Rabin said Thursday. 'You make it with very unsavory enemies.'

If you succeed, the fixed animosity that has oriented your thinking and politics for decades, perpetually renewed by wars and lesser violence, must dissolve. Enemies must turn into collaborators in the work of building the peace.

This difficult metamorphosis hinges on actions. It began with the act of meeting in Madrid in 1991 — and even then, PLO participation in the U.S.-hosted peace talks was indirect, by tacit consent of the parties. Their decision to hold secret face-to-face Israeli-PLO talks in Norway was a giant step.

Just as actions advance the process, they can set it back. Any deed betraying bad faith will instantly corrode both sides' resolve. Continuing American involvement is an important hedge against deadlock or misunderstanding.

Material help, too, must come from the outside world, to quickly bring concrete change on the ground. If Palestinian autonomy is to produce stability, not chaos, especially in the teeming ghetto of Gaza, the new regime must win the loyalty of impoverished people tempted by rejectionists' fiery demagoguery. That will take schools and clinics and jobs and reliable police.

The founding of Israel with United Nations sanction, back in 1948, was part of the great rebuilding effort after World War II. But implacable Arab hostility left Israel repeatedly attacked, constantly on guard, and the region seething with bitter passions. Now, the PLO's change of course, and the Israeli government's decision to credit it, permit constructive development to resume. Friends and neighbors of these two long-suffering peoples must support them in dealing ethnic hate a stunning defeat.

Missing Carson a tad

Dave Letterman's debut on CBS was silly.

But that was nothing new. Dave Letterman's old show on NBC was silly.

That's sort of where most American television humor is today. It's silly. It's juvenile. It's not worth waiting up for until a half hour before midnight.

Plus, in order to watch Letterman's new show, I had to watch the 11 o'clock local news, which was a lot like the 6 o'clock local news I had seen five hours earlier.

There had been a train wreck east of Atlanta. The local news showed all the smoke billowing up from the train at 6. They showed the same smoke at 11. Smoke's smoke.

Plus, after seeing the train wreck in the hit movie, 'The Fugitive,' all other train wrecks, real or staged, will forever pale in comparison.

Now that was a train wreck. If the engineer of the train that wrecked east of Atlanta had been a one-armed man that would have been a story worth watching twice.

Letterman's late night audience is a young audience. That may be one reason the show is built around stupid dog tricks, a bandleader who looks like Wally Cox, with a constant silly grin on his face, and guests who act like they are trying to entertain third-graders.

Bill Murray was Letterman's first guest. He is the comic genius who gave us 'Ground Hog Day,' which was so bad it was selected as an in-flight movie.

He appeared dressed as a homeless person, presumably out of breath, and said, 'I went to the other place,' referring to Letterman's old studio.

That brought the audience to its knees. But you think that was funny? Later Murray spray-painted 'Dave' on the front of Letterman's desk.

A thousand out-of-work chimpanzees, who once appeared on 'The Ed Sullivan Show' phoned their agents and pondered a comeback on modern television.

After that, Billy Joel sang an angry song with the new CBS Orchestra that looked more like the Joliet All-Murderers Drum and Bugle Corps.

The closest anybody came to being funny was when surprise guest Paul Newman stood up in the audience and asked, 'Where are the singing cats?' as if he had wandered into the wrong theater.

After he said that, Paul Newman had the good sense to leave.

Maybe I miss Johnny Carson too much. And I do miss Johnny Carson.

'The Tonight Show' had class. Carson had it. The orchestra had it. The material was class and aimed at adults. Guests didn't vandalize the furniture.

Jay Leno, Carson's NBC successor, has managed to maintain some of that. At least you get the feeling he's going for those of us in the audience who don't think 'Wayne's World' was the funniest thing since they showed a guy with an asparagus stalk stuck in his navel on 'America's Funniest Home Videos.'

Arsenio Hall is funny only if you laugh at people who wave their fists in the air and bark, and I've got my doubts about Chevy Chase's attempt. The first 14 times he fell down it was laughable. But Gerald Ford has been out of office for a long time.

I know Carson isn't coming back. But I wish for somebody who could make late-night television what it ought to be a time for those of us who think Beavis and Butt-head are about as comical as a commercial for a yeast infection.

Anybody who thinks spray-paint humor is a riot ought to be in bed nursing their zits by that time anyway.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The focus today is on getting what you want - which you usually do in the long run. Be more assertive when talking to a boss, and use your instincts when discussing an important matter. Another will respond positively. Tonight: Play.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Assume responsibility for a project. Confusion may surround an important friendship. You need to be more aware of the role that gossip plays in your choices. A friend offers you a treat that is hard to resist. Tonight: Indulge yourself.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check out rumors, get more information and seek out another's expert advice. The scenario today involves travel, higher education and new insights. A foreigner could play an interesting role in your day. Tonight: How about a foreign movie?

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): One-to-one relating has you cheery, as a partner lets you know how much you are needed and adored. Accept the compliments graciously. Don't let a change in plans upset an important relationship. Tonight: Be with that important person.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be more aware of others' reactions as you hear some important information. A co-worker comes up with an idea that could make both of you some money. Be careful not to be the only one to invest, however. Tonight: Be a party animal.

IF SEPTEMBER 14 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Expect an unusual year filled with security-building financial opportunities and creative brainstorming. A change in scenery or domicile is likely. Dear Abby - Letters...

No prayer of seeing book again

DEAR ABBY: I was asked by a co-worker if I had a certain book with information on saints for a study she was doing on the subject. I said yes, and she asked if she could borrow it. I delivered the book to her, and after she had had it for about a month, I said if she was through with it, I would like to have it returned. Without her giving me a yes or no, more time elapsed and still no book, so I asked her again.

She said: "Promise you won't get upset, but remember when my car was stolen? Well, your book was in the trunk of my car."

I asked her to please check the car, and the garage where her car had been serviced following its return. I heard nothing from her, so I asked her again. She said she "forgot" to look.

Abby, to replace this out-of-print book would cost $140. I told her this and she said, "Oh, the $140 would be no problem."

Meanwhile, not a word has been mentioned about it, and now I have the feeling that she has no intention of paying for a replacement. She happens to be a very religious person who never misses church. What can I do? My late husband left me this book. I am so mad at myself! — DISGUSTED WITH BIBLE PEOPLE IN N.J.

DEAR DISGUSTED: Not all "Bible people" practice what they read in the Bible, and your friend may be one of them. Tell her why the book is so important to you, and offer to go with her to the garage where the car was returned to help her make the inquiry. If the book is not located, advise her that you are initiating a book search to obtain a replacement copy — and you plan to send her the bill...

DEAR DISGUSTED: You are to be commended for your sensitivity. If wearing your friend's jewelry would make you feel uncomfortable (or sad) because you came by it due to her misfortune, perhaps you could buy it as an investment and not wear it.

Since she "desperately needs the cash," it would be an act of generosity to buy some of her jewelry, and if her fortunes reverse, she could buy it back.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Raymond Burr dies at home

The Associated Press

Raymond Burr, the portly actor who became a TV icon as a crime-solving lawyer in the long-running "Perry Mason" series, died at his Northern California ranch. He was 76.

Burr died at home Sunday night in the Sonoma County community of Dry Creek, Calif. Burr's friend Charles Macaulay said Burr's physician, Paul Margulio, gave the cause of death as metastatic cancer of the liver.

In mid-August, Burr completed location work in Denver for his last Perry Mason TV film, "The Case of the Killer Kiss," reporting to the set at 4 a.m. despite his illness.

Burr, who had a busy film career before "Perry Mason," also starred as the crusty, wheelchair-using San Francisco detective in the NBC series "Ironside," which ran from 1967 to 1975. Toward the end of his life, his illness forced him to use a wheelchair for real.

"Perry Mason" became television's most successful lawyer series, appearing weekly on CBS for nine seasons from 1957 to 1966. The formula was always the same. Aided by investigator Paul Drake (William Hopper) and secretary Della Street (Barbara Hale), Mason ferreted out the truth and foiled prosecutor Hamilton Burger (William Talman) at trial's end, often with a dramatic courtroom confession from the real culprit.

Burr returned to the TV courtroom in 1985 for a two-hour movie "Perry Mason." It was the highest rated TV movie that year, prompting periodic returns each season. In all, he made 26 of the Perry Mason films.

The Canadian-born Burr arrived in Hollywood in 1946 after World War II service and he made his film debut in "San Quentin." He worked steadily, often as the villain because of his formidable presence and sad, threatening eyes.

Among his memorable roles: as the prosecutor of Montgomery Clift in "A Place in the Sun"; the stalker of Natalie Wood in "A Cry in the Night"; the murderer James Stewart sees from his apartment in "Rear Window."

His other films include: "Ruthless," "The Adventures of Don Juan," "Key to the City," "Meet Danny Wilson," "Tarzan and the She-Devil," "You're Never Too Young," "Tomorrow Never Comes." Burr appeared in the first "Godzilla" movie, playing an American reporter in scenes inserted into the Japanese original for the U.S. release. He missed the chance for a nest egg: "I tried desperately to get a piece of the action, but they wouldn't give it to me. But I did get paid for one day's work — more than anyone else was ever paid."

"Perry Mason" provided the security that few actors achieve. The series was an immediate ratings winner, and Burr was awarded the Emmy for best series actor in 1959 and 1961.

"Perry Mason went on the air when people were first buying television sets," Burr said in an Associated Press interview this year. "A lot of people in this country didn't know what their legal system was all about. I'm sure just from the people who have watched the show over the years, particularly the minorities, they found out the system of justice was for them."

Raymond William Stacy Burr was born in New Westminster, British Columbia, on May 21, 1917. His parents divorced when he was 6, and Raymond grew up in Vallejo, Calif., where his grandfather ran a small hotel.

In later years, Burr related the family's privations during the Depression. A junior high school dropout, he worked at many jobs: traveling salesman, store clerk, hotel manager, forest ranger, ranch hand ("I mended fences and herded sheep and piled rocks from one place to another.")

A role in a church play got him interested in acting. A handsome, sturdy six-footer, he spent a summer at a Toronto theater and was hired for a tour of England with a repertory company.

Not everyone was happy to see the two old enemies brought together. Palestinian militants opposed to the agreement launched a series of attacks in Gaza City on Sunday and four Israelis were killed.

YOU CAN

Dear Arthur,
 Computers are very complicated things. How they work is really hard to explain in the space of a comic strip. But, I can give you a new way to think about computers. You Can think about them and they cannot think about you!

Computers are just machines that follow instructions we give them. We call the instructions a program. That means a computer is like a program-player. And the computer turns into anything — any kind of machine — we can tell it to.

With the right program, a computer can be a typewriter, a game, a musical instrument, or even a telescope. It can be any kind of machine we can program it to be. This is why the job of being a computer programmer is such a big deal.

Here's a secret: I don't use a pencil to draw this comic. I use a computer that has been turned into a drawing machine by the programs I play on it.

Beakman Place

computer Art

I want to draw a red blood cell. I start by drawing this shape on the computer. It's really a bunch of math that describes this curvy thing.

Next, I tell the computer program to spin the shape around the dotted line. I get this thing that looks like a bagel-shaped bird cage.

Now I tell the program to pretend the bird-cage-thing has a shiny surface and that there are 2 lights shining on it. What does it look like now?

Lastly, each weird little area is given a color that represents how light or dark it would be if a light was shining on it. The areas together turn out to be a good drawing of a red blood cell!

Sampras, who earned $535,000, regained the No. 1 ranking in the world by advancing to the final after top-seeded Jim Courier lost to Pioline in the fourth round. Pioline, playing in his first Grand Slam final, was the first Frenchman since Henri Cochet in 1932 to reach the final.
Second-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario of Spain and Helena Sukova of the Czech Republic beat ninth-seeded Amanda Coetzer of South Africa and Ines Gorrochategui of Argentina 6-4, 6-2 in the women's doubles final.

Buffalo exacts bit of revenge

By The Associated Press

IRVING— Now the Dallas Cowboys know how the Buffalo Bills felt last January in Pasadena.
The gift-giving Cowboys watched the Bills cash in on mistakes for a 13-10 victory that was at least partial revenge for a 35-point rout in last year's Super Bowl.
As the Bills filed into the dressing room after the game, they shouted "How 'Bout Them Cowboys!"
It was a slam at Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson who used the phrase after the club's NFC championship victory over San Francisco. Johnson had ired Buffalo players in his book by saying he knew the Cowboys would beat the Bills.
"The Cowboys know how it feels now to turn the ball over," said Buffalo quarterback Jim Kelly. "This sure feels good after all the talk that went on about last January."
It was turnover turnaround from the Super Bowl which Dallas won by converting nine mistakes into a 52-17 rout of the Bills, who lost their third consecutive NFL championship.
"We created the turnovers and it set the tempo for the game," said defensive end Bruce Smith. "I can tell you this game means a great deal to the players, our fans and management of the Bills."
Besides the points scored off turnovers, Dallas placekicker Lin Elliott missed two field goals which likely will cost him his job and Troy Aikman suffered an interception at the two-yard line in the last 30 seconds.

Steve Christie's 35-yard field goal with 2:49 left was the game-winner after rookie Kevin Williams had fumbled on a punt return.
"This one has special meaning," said Buffalo coach Marv Levy. "They beat us in the Super Bowl and did it with turnovers. We scored all of our points off turnovers."
Safety Matt Darby preserved the victory with an interception at the Buffalo 2-yard line with 10 seconds left.
"I saw Jay Novacek wide open and I thought it was over but Matt made a great play by tipping the ball then catching it," Levy said. "This is a feel good game for sure."
Darby said "It was great to beat Dallas after what happened in the Super Bowl. It's the biggest play of my pro career."
Buffalo is 2-0 while Dallas starts 0-2, a position from which no team has ever won the Super Bowl.
"We have put Pasadena behind us," Levy said.
"He's a rookie and made rookie mistakes," Johnson said of Williams. "We're bringing in field goal kickers to Valley Ranch next week. We'll bring in as many as necessary."
The Cowboys tied it 10-10 with 6:51 to play on a 98-yard drive with Williams, a second-round pick from Miami, scoring his first NFL touchdown on a 5-yard reverse.
Buffalo later punted to Williams who was stripped of the ball by Mark Maddox and recovered by Steve Tasker at the Cowboys 34. Then Christie hit the game-winner.

Oilers romp past Montana-less Kansas City

By The Associated Press

It was an all-too-familiar scene for Joe Montana. And for Dave Krieg.
One week after his triumphant return to an NFL starting berth, Montana stood on the sidelines with an injured wrist Sunday. He watched the Houston Oilers batter Krieg and the Kansas City Chiefs 30-0.
"You don't know how happy I was to see Krieg come out," cornerback Kris Dishman said. "I mean, Krieg's a good quarterback, but Montana's great."
The Oilers (1-1) were great in handing Kansas City (1-1) its first shutout in six years. They recovered three fumbles, had two interceptions by Marcus Robertson, got four sacks and William Fuller blocked three passes. Kris Dishman scored on a 58-yard fumble return.
"They put so much pressure on Krieg that I think the DBs should take them out for all their help," Dishman said. "I don't think any quarterback could have gotten the ball off with the pressure they put on today."
Montana never got the chance after coach Marty Schottenheimer decided the star quarterback should rest the wrist injury, sustained in an opening-game victory at Tampa.
"I didn't think it was appropriate to play Joe today," Schottenheimer said. "I felt right now that we'd be better served with Dave Krieg. It was discussed, but it was my decision not to play him. I never asked him to go in."
While Montana was out, Reggie White was in his former team's way most of the day. But the Eagles came out ahead when Roger Ruzek kicked a 30-yard field goal with 5 seconds to go for a 20-17 victory at Green Bay (1-1).
"I think we reacted well, in the beginning especially," said White, who had four tackles, four assists, two sacks and two forced fumbles.

"We let it go in the second half, big time. In games like this when you get a hold of them, you can't let it go."
In other games, it was Phoenix 17, Washington 10; New Orleans 34, Atlanta 31; Minnesota 10, Chicago 7; Detroit 19, New England 16 in overtime; the Los Angeles Raiders 17, Seattle 13; Denver 34, San Diego 17; the New York Jets 24, Miami 14; New York Giants 23, Tampa Bay 7; the Los Angeles Rams 27, Pittsburgh 0; and Indianapolis 9, Cincinnati 6.
Tonight, San Francisco is at Cleveland.
Oilers 30
Chiefs 0
At Houston, all the turmoil of the past week surrounding defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan and players on the offense was washed away by an overwhelming defense and three field goals by Al Del Greco.
"That crap doesn't bother me unless it comes from (owner) Bud Adams or someone else in authority," Ryan said. "I knew we'd play well because regardless of all that crap, we had three great practices."
Eagles 20
Packers 17
The Eagles (2-0) came to Green Bay determined to ruin Reggie's reunion. Despite White's sensational performances, they did just that.
Randall Cunningham, twice stripped of the ball by White in the first half, eluded his former teammate and threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to Victor Bailey to tie the score 17-17 with 4:14 left.
"We're a team that plays four quarters," said Cunningham, who completed 23 of 29 passes for 209 yards. "I don't get down. If I worry, I make more mistakes. Nobody cared that I made mistakes because they knew that I didn't care."

Cardinals 17
Redskins 10
The Cardinals hadn't won at RFK Stadium since 1978, when they repented St. Louis. Phoenix (1-1) scored on a 58-yard punt return by Johnny Bailey. Greg Davis' team-record 53-yard field goal and Ron Moore's 18-yard run.
Washington (1-1) lost Mark Rypien in the second quarter with a sprained knee.
Gary Clark, the star receiver who left the Redskins for the Cardinals as a free agent, caught six passes for 93 yards.
"This is the week we turned it around," Cardinals coach Joe Bugel said.
Saints 34
Falcons 31
At Atlanta, Morten Andersen made history with his 25th straight field goal, then missed twice before connecting on a 44-yarder to win the game on the final play for New Orleans (2-0). Former Falcon Wade Wilson went 22-for-34 for 341 yards and three scores as New Orleans set a team mark by gaining 557 yards.
But former Saint Bobby Hebert, relieving ineffective starter Chris Miller, connected with Michael Haynes on scoring passes of 4 and 98 yards and with Mike Pritchard on a 3-yard score for Atlanta (0-2).
Hebert was stripped of the ball by Renaldo Turnbull with 24 seconds to go, giving Andersen a chance to win it.
Vikings 10
Bears 7
At Minneapolis, Jim McMahon was on target all day against his former team.

In his first game against the Bears (0-2) since they traded him four years ago, McMahon threw a 16-yard touchdown pass to Kris Carter with 8:17 to play. He completed 23 of 29 passes for 173 yards.
Barry Word, making his debut for the Vikings (1-1) after a trade two weeks ago from Kansas City, gained 94 yards in 24 carries and caught five passes for 58 yards.
The win was most satisfying for McMahon when he thought about Bears owner Mike McCaskey.
"That's the only guy I really don't like," he said. "I've got a lot of respect for the players on that team. It's just nice to beat the guy that's running it."
Lions 19
Patriots 16
Detroit (2-0) got started quickly, then needed Jason Hanson's fourth field goal, a 38-yarder at 11:04 of the extra period.
Just 11 seconds into the game, Detroit's Willie Clay returned Troy Brown's fumble of the opening kickoff 15 yards for a score. Barry Sanders ran for 148 yards and Hanson had field goals of 22, 23 and 26 yards.
Scott Sisson connected from 21, 26 and 32 yards for host New England (0-2), which tied it with 12 seconds left in regulation as first draft pick Drew Bledsoe hit a 2-yard TD pass to Vincent Brisby.
Raiders 17
Seahawks 13
At Seattle, Anthony Smith had four sacks of rookie Rick Mirer and Jeff Hostetler threw for a score and ran for one. Tim Brown had nine receptions for 97 yards for the Raiders (2-0).

The Seahawks (0-2) have lost six straight.
"When you get four sacks against somebody, then people expect it again," Smith said. "I had an average game last week (two sacks), so I was extra pumped up for this one."
Broncos 34
Chargers 17
At Denver, John Elway threw for 294 yards and two touchdowns as the Broncos moved to 2-0. Rookie Jason Flam nailed two field goals, including a 54-yarder, making him 6-for-6 in the NFL.
The Broncos limited the Chargers to 68 yards on 24 carries and held Marion Butts to four yards on eight carries.
Jets 24
Dolphins 14
At Miami, both teams went to 1-1 as Boomer Esiason had his second straight 300-yard passing game. Esiason threw TD passes of 20 yards to Pat Chaffey and 3 to Fred Baxter and scored on a 4-yard quarterback draw. Rob Moore made six catches for 124 yards, his second consecutive 100-yard game.
Dan Marino threw touchdown passes of 57 yards to Keith Jackson and 25 yards to Mark Ingram. But Jackson and linebacker John Osher-dahl were sidelined in the second half.
Giants 23
Buccaneers 7
The visiting Bucs (0-2) gained 45 yards on the ground on 19 carries. They weren't much better defensively as the Giants (2-0) got 134 yards rushing from Rodney Hampton.
David Treadwell made three field goals and is 7-for-7 as a Giant. Keith Hamilton had three sacks.

Minnesota rains on Texas tribute to Ryan

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON — With a Texas-sized tribute being set up for one of baseball's all-time greats, the guest of honor was more concerned with his lack of control and a missed opportunity.
Nolan Ryan, more interested in victories than festivities, was disappointed Sunday after spells of wildness forced him to pitch from behind in the count, allowing Minnesota to defeat Texas 4-2.
Ryan's first start since Aug. 23 ended in the sixth inning when David McCarty doubled in two runs. The 46-year-old strikeout king fanned three, walked five and allowed four runs on four hits in 5 2-3 innings.
"I was disappointed with my command and it showed," said Ryan (5-4). "Because of that, I wasn't able to go with my curve or changeup as much as I would've liked."

Ryan also was upset because the AL West-leading Chicago White Sox lost earlier Sunday, meaning the Rangers could've moved to 2 1/2 games out, the best in franchise history for this late in the season.
"You can't let opportunities like these slip by," said Ryan, seeking his first postseason since 1986 when he played with Houston.
As he was speaking to reporters, the Arlington Stadium field was being turned into a stage for "Nolan Ryan Day: Farewell to a Legend."
Participants included Hall of Famers Sandy Koufax and former Ranger pitcher Gaylord Perry, the catchers for six of Ryan's seven no-hitters, California Angels owner Gene Autry and several of Ryan's milestone strikeout victims.

Texas pitcher Nolan Ryan acknowledges fans during a ceremony in his honor at Arlington Stadium Sunday afternoon. The Rangers held the special day to honor Ryan for his 26 seasons in baseball.

Jammerz medal at Tulsa meet

Six local skaters compete at national contest

"My heart is still pounding. Everywhere we go, coaches tell me they can't believe we've gotten as good as we have in as short an amount of time."

David Mills
SK8 Jammerz coach

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

A few years ago, some Big Spring boys and girls thought it'd be neat to have a speed-skating team like the one their friends had in Midland. This year, many of those same kids found out how neat it was to compete for a national championship.

The Big Spring SK8 Jammerz speed-skating team has literally gone from nothing to something in the space of three years. That express elevator-type progress was capped two weekends ago when six members of the team participated in the national Junior Olympics speed-skating meet in Tulsa, Okla.

Gressett.

Morrison and Fannin won overall bronze medals in their age groups, while the Gressett sisters won a silver medal in the 2,000-meter relay event in their age group. Fannin added a bronze medal in a relay event, teaming with Metcalf.

Needless to say, Jammerz coach David Mills was pleased with his group's progress.

"My heart is still pounding," he said. "Everywhere we go, coaches tell me they can't believe we've gotten as good as we have in as short an amount of time."

Mills, who owns the Skateland rink in Big Spring, said he was approached by "a bunch of 'rink rats'" about three years ago asking if he would help them form a speed-skating team like the one their friends in Midland had.

Mills agreed to the proposition, and in February 1992, Mills took 13 kids to the group's first meet in Austin.

"We walked in ... and it was like we were in shock," Mills said. "We couldn't believe it was this involved. I looked back and about three of our kids were in tears."

Since then, however, the group has shown no compunction against rubbing shoulders with the big boys.

"We've gone nowhere but up," Mills said. "We take 14 or 15 kids to a meet, and we're going against teams that bring 40 or 50 kids ... These kids skate with all their heart. You just have to watch them."

"They're like a big family," Mills added. "They watch after each other. Oh, they bicker just like brothers and sisters, but when it's time to compete, they're on the floor together."

To qualify for the national meet, the Big Spring skaters had to place at the top four in their individual events at the regional meet in Houston. This meant intensive training. Kelly Gressett said the group that qualified for nationals worked out four hours a day, six days a week.

"It was (tiring)," she said. "But the closer we got to nationals, the better it got."

"It was hard getting up at 5 every morning to skate," her sister, Katrina, said. "I was tired, but it was what I wanted to do."

"For the most part, a lot of the kids did beaucoup hours of work outside (of the formal workouts)," Mills said. "I'd probably say they skated 20 hours a week, minimum. If they weren't working out, they were skating at the rink."

Now that the group has had its first taste of national recognition, Mills said the group is hungry for more.

"I just want the kids to do what the kids want to do," he said. "We are going to take to a new level. We have kids who are truly world-class athletes, and I just want to be there to help them."
