VA announces new joint work program

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

An on-the-job training program for military veterans released from duty after Aug. 1, 1990, went into effect this month.

The Service Members Occupational Conversion and Training Act will pay wage reimbursements up to $10,000 to employers who establish approved training and offer prospects of long-term employment. Up to $12,000 is available for training certain disabled veterans.

"I'm optimistic about the program," said Vicki Ditmore, local veterans employment representative at the Texas Employment Commission. "It could give somebody an opportunity for a pretty good future."

Ditmore, who expects to be busy getting the word out, said veterans and interested employers should call her at 267-7437. Access to local, state and interstate job banks is available.

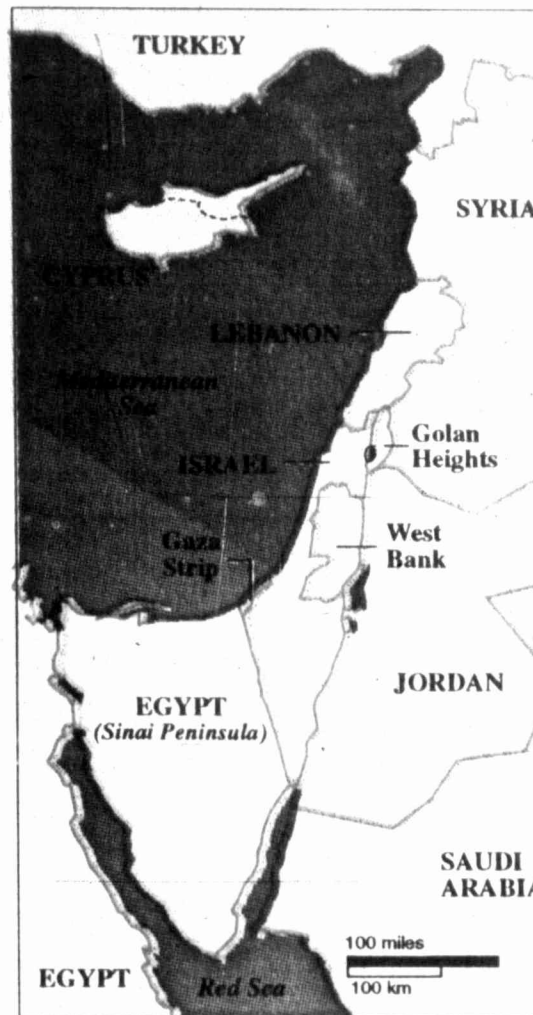

To qualify, a veteran must have been honorably discharged and served more than 90 days, unless discharged earlier because of service-connected disability.

If not unemployed eight of 15 weeks preceding application or 30 percent disabled, the Defense Department will determine if the veteran's primary or secondary military occupation is not readily transferable to the civilian workforce.

Because federal benefits cannot be duplicated, for example, use of the GI Bill and SMOCTA, the program may not be for everyone, Ditmore said. "It's for the veteran who's looking for good, steady employment, who's not looking to go back to school, at least immediately."

Of about 450 veterans signed with the local employment office, about 45 were recently discharged, Ditmore estimates. Of those, 85 are actively seeking work.

SMOCTA is jointly implemented by the departments of Defense, Labor and Veterans Affairs.

Commissioners approve '93-94 county budget

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

A fiscal 1993-94 county budget that will spend 7.4 percent more than the previous year was unanimously approved by Howard County commissioners Monday.

A 3 percent property tax increase will be considered in two weeks. "The budget is sufficient to maintain the quality of county services," said County Judge Ben Lockhart.

The United States' annual inflation rate since October was 3.1 percent.

The largest single budget increase is a 5 percent pay raise for employees, which at $150,000, accounts for more than a fourth of the $519,700 budget increase. The raise is lower than U.S. annual inflation of more than 10 percent since 1990, when employees received a 3 percent raise. In 1987, employees got a $65-a-month across-the-board raise.

"It's the first significant raise they've had since 1987," Lockhart said, explaining his support for the raises.

Among other large increases, according to County Auditor Jackie Olson, were right-of-way funds increased from $51,100 to $150,000 for expansion of U.S. 87 into four divided lanes south of town and appropriations for indigent health care increased from $511,559 to $525,545 to match 10 percent of last year's general revenue tax, as required by state law.

Major cuts, Olson said, include road and bridge vehicle funds dropping from $245,400 to $139,000, sheriff's vehicle funds going from $87,060 to $44,500, fire department equipment funds dropping from

'A lot of people call this a deficit budget. We consider it balanced, because we know that at the end of the year we'll still have money.'

Jackie Olson
County Auditor

$5,000 to nothing, and elimination of a data processing position to save $29,220.

The $7.6 million budget, which goes into effect Oct. 1, spends $1.1 million more than projected revenue, but fund balances from this year will keep the county from going into the red. A projected Sept. 30, 1994, balance of $1.9 million would be enough to operate county government until January 1995 when property tax revenues start coming in.

"A lot of people call this a deficit budget," Olson said. "We consider it balanced, because we know that at the end of the year we'll still have money."

The considered tax rate of 40.999 cents per $100 valuation, is up 1.194 cents from the effective rate - what's needed to bring in the same revenue as this year. The current rate, 38.15 cents, is lower than the 39.805-cent effective rate because property valuations dropped 4.2 percent.

For a $20,000 home that did not change in value, it would amount to a tax increase of $5.70, not including exemptions.

FBI will conduct robbery seminar for local banks

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

"What to do in case of robbery" is the topic of an upcoming seminar for employees of area financial institutions that will be conducted by an agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The seminar is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 23, in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Gary Macnoll, an agent with the Abilene office of the FBI, will conduct the seminar with the help of Deputy Woodie Howell of the Howard County Sheriff's Office.

The bank security and robbery seminar is open to all employees of area banks, credit unions and savings and loans.

The seminar will cover correct procedures and policies regarding potential risk to people and property. "We need this kind of intervention now," said Howell. Please see SEMINAR, page 6

Deputies seek hot check artist

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

The Howard County Sheriff's Office is searching for a man who has allegedly defrauded local merchants of thousands of dollars.

Ernest Zavala is charged in connection with writing more than 100 hot checks and a forgery at an area bank, deputies said.

Zavala is alleged to have opened an account with a forged check and received 200 blank checks for the account.

A warrant has been issued for Zavala's arrest by Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles. He is also wanted by the Odessa Police Department on charges larceny and other felony crimes.

"We believe he is still in the Big Spring-Coahoma area and are requesting citizens, especially store clerks, to be particularly attentive."

said Deputy Woodie Howell, who is investigating the case.

Zavala has been in prison for assault and other crimes and is considered dangerous, according to police reports.

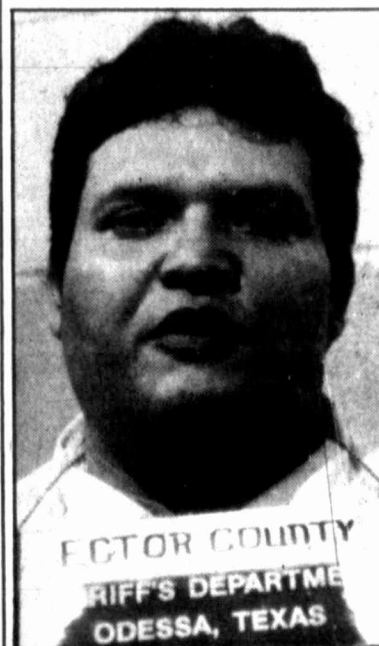

"No one should attempt to apprehend this man by themselves," Howell said. "They should discretely call the sheriff's office as soon as possible."

Zavala is described as a Hispanic male, 37 years old; 5 feet, 7 inches tall and 190 pounds.

He has been seen driving an older model, white Chevrolet automobile.

Zavala has no traceable address, but is thought to be living in Howard County.

Sheriff's deputies say they hope to make an arrest soon, because Zavala's alleged criminal activity is hurting local merchants. "At this Please see CHECKS, page 6

Judge allowing vouchers for now

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A judge says that parents who want state money to pay for private school tuition can be part of a longrunning education case — at least for now.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown of Travis County said Monday he will consider the legal basis for their claim on Sept. 22.

The parents, represented by San Antonio lawyer Allan Parker, argue that they have a right under the Texas Constitution to spend state education funds on private schools, in a so-called voucher system.

"I strongly believe that my children deserve a better education than what they've gotten so far," said Margie Gutierrez of San Antonio.

She said she has already put her daughters, age 9 and 12, in a private school, "but it has been a sacrifice for us."

Parker, who also represents parents from Laredo and El Paso, said that competition through vouchers is the only way to "force the public education bureaucracy to be efficient."

The constitution requires "an efficient system of free public schools."

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter, representing the state, said parents don't have a constitutional right to spend state funds as they choose.

"That's really a presentation that ought to be made to the Legislature," Ms. Hunter said. "It's not appropriate for a court to order a voucher system."

Depending on how McCown rules on the parents' arguments, they could participate in a trial that is scheduled to start Oct. 4 on the latest school finance law.

Poor school districts that challenged the current law in their lengthy court battle for equitable school funding had opposed making the voucher claim part of this lawsuit.

"If there's been an issue that is very different from what we've been doing for nine years, this is it," said Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, representing poor school districts.

Judge Scott McCown questions a plaintiff's attorney during a hearing on school finance Monday in Austin. Several school districts are challenging the school finance reform measures in court.

He said that if numerous issues are added to the case, a trial could last months, delaying any judgment to change the system.

McCown also refused to separate from this case Monday the issue of whether the state's share of school funding is adequate. Schools rely on state aid and local property taxes.

The case so far has focused on equity, or how school money is divided, rather than on the amount of state funding.

The Texas Supreme Court has ordered the state to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth. The current law is legislators' latest effort to do that.

One group of wealthy school districts has pushed for addressing the issue of adequate state funding in this case, but another group of rich districts said that should be put off for a separate trial.

McCown said the Oct. 4 trial will begin with the equity issue, and he'll decide later whether to also include the other issues.

In other action Monday, McCown refused to halt distribution of surplus tax money collected by 188 county education districts.

Several school districts challenged

Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno's plans for redistributing that money. The education districts, now defunct, were in place for two years under a previous school finance system.

McCown had temporarily blocked the education districts from spending the surplus money in response to a lawsuit by two Bexar County school districts. One superintendent had said Meno's plan would penalize districts with above-average wealth and those that are very poor.

But on Monday, McCown said there hadn't been any evidence to show the commissioner had abused his discretion, or to demonstrate that Meno's plan wasn't the most equitable method.

Briefs

Restaurant hosts both Dems, Limbaugh fans

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Is there enough room at the Cadillac Bar & Restaurant for both fans of conservative commentator Rush Limbaugh and the Bexar County Democratic Executive Committee?

That question may be answered Thursday night when members of the executive committee meet to consider whether they will continue to hold their meetings at the restaurant.

The problem developed because the restaurant last month set up a "Rush Room" in an effort to boost lunchtime business.

"Rush rooms" are areas set up by some restaurants where diners can enjoy a meal while listening to Limbaugh lampoon President Clinton and liberals.

That didn't set well with Democratic activist Hank Brown, former president of the Texas AFL-CIO.

Odessa man pleading guilty to old murder

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An Odessa man says he pleaded no contest to a 16-year-old murder charge because he can't adjust to life outside prison walls and he wants to return.

Rudolfo Martin Rodriguez, 45, entered the plea Monday under a plea bargain that calls for him to be sentenced to up to 15 years in prison.

District Judge Sharon MacLae will sentence Rodriguez after a background investigation by the state Adult Probation Department.

Rodriguez admitted fatally shooting Alfredo R. Garza, 31, on Oct. 9, 1977, in a housing project at San Antonio.

Rodriguez said he was a heroin addict and Garza was his dealer. The two argued over a heroin sale and Rodriguez shot him six times with a .22-caliber pistol he had taken in a burglary.

Guardsmen's autopsies reveal shots in back

AUSTIN (AP) — All three Texas National Guardsmen who died in a training exercise at Fort Hood were shot in the back and one of the men tested positive for the active ingredient most commonly found in marijuana, a U.S. Defense Department autopsy has revealed.

The men, members of a McAllen-based National Guard unit, were killed while conducting a live ammunition exercise at the Central Texas military installation on July 21.

The Austin American-Statesman reported today that the autopsy revealed that Spec. Daniel Benitez, 27, of Donna, tested positive for tetrahydrocannabinol acid or THC, the active ingredient most commonly found in marijuana. It did not indicate how much was found.

No drugs were found in the other two soldiers.

The newspaper obtained the autopsy and toxicology reports under the federal Freedom of Information Act.

Rain needed to reduce threat from range fires

FORT WORTH (AP) — Federal and state officials are considering moving more firefighters and firefighting equipment into Central Texas because of dry weather that has increased the fire threat to parched grasslands.

During the weekend, President Clinton approved Gov. Ann Richards' request to declare 149 of Texas's 254 counties in a state of emergency so that federal Forest Service fire teams can be pre-positioned if the dry weather continues.

Plans to move in the fire teams are on hold while state and national forestry officials determine whether recent rains have lessened the threat since the request for emergency status was made Aug. 30, officials said.

Tom Millwee, coordinator for the state's Division of Emergency Management, said if the reevaluation finds that dangerous conditions are still present, firefighting planes, bulldozers and other equipment will be moved in from around the country.

"You're not going to want to wait four to eight hours to get anything in here," he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram. With high winds, fires can spread out of control in that amount of time, he said.

P&WD to use computer for endangered species

AUSTIN (AP) — The executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department says a new computer system which quickly identifies habitats of endangered species will allow the agency to protect a wide variety of species.

"What we need to do is focus on ecological systems, and that's what this program will enable us to do," said Andrew Sansom.

The agency has acquired the computer system through an $80,000 donation from the U.S. Defense Department.

Col. Joseph Graf, district engineer for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, commended the program.

"This is truly a remarkable technology that we can bring to bear in the scientific community and hopefully enhance the planning and the execution that we do in our various projects," Graf said.

Cisneros will tour troubled complex

HOUSTON (AP) — Two weeks after the death of the last black man to leave Vidor's public housing, Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros will visit East Texas for a news conference on the segregation of the complex.

Former Vidor resident Bill Simpson left the complex on Sept. 1 following racial harassment that he said was intolerable.

Cisneros was scheduled to hold a mid-morning news conference at the Orange County Courthouse to outline his concerns, then travel to Vidor to visit the 74-unit complex, about 100 miles east of Houston.

Twisters rip through state; more expected

Kirk Lewis, manager of Bobby Valentine's Sports Gallery Cafe, looks over the damage sustained after high winds blew through north Arlington Monday morning. One person in a nearby hotel was injured in the early morning storm.

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Twisters, heavy rain and high wind cut through the Dallas-Fort Worth area Monday, leaving toppled trees, crumpled buildings and minor injuries in their wake.

Douglas Cain, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service, said the storm moved from southwest to northeast, which is normal for tornado activity in North Texas because of the jet flow. Johnson, Denton, Collin, Tarrant and Dallas counties were hit hard.

Cain acknowledged Monday's weather was slightly unusual. "This is a little bit early," he said, adding that a minor tornado season crops up in October. "Our best season is the springtime."

The storms were touched off by a cold front clashing with the remnants of Hurricane Lidia. Lidia, which moved across Mexico Monday. Flash flood watches were in effect overnight for most of North, South and Central Texas.

More severe storms were expected in those areas early Tuesday, the weather service said.

Officials said Arlington and Cleburne sustained the worst damage Monday morning, and by Monday evening 1.31 inches of rain had fallen in Mineral Wells and 1.26 inches were recorded at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

Sometime after 7 a.m., a storm ripped through Cleburne, about 65 miles southwest of Dallas, causing more than $8 million in damage, according to the Department of Public Safety's Division of Emergency Management. Initial reports indicated the storms flattened 10 businesses and three-city owned facilities. In addition, 100 commercial businesses, 247 homes and 50 cars were damaged. Several minor injuries also were reported.

"Our awnings were lifted up and pulled away from the building," Gary Bennett of Bennett Printing and Office Supply told the Cleburne Times-Review. "We can salvage some of them. We also had some ceiling damage."

Scientists rally to save super collider

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Some of the nation's premier physicists are using the nation's youth in their latest bid to rescue the super collider.

The scientists said Monday at a collider conference that death of the giant atom smasher would bring research in high-energy physics to a virtual halt — and would deter students from entering the field.

The symposium at George Washington University kicked off a week-long lobbying effort in advance of a critical Senate vote later this month. Hundreds of college and high school students attended the event organized by a division of the American Physical Society.

More than 500 scientists, business leaders and others will be in town this week to seek support on Capitol Hill for the controversial program.

The focus on youth is part of the campaign to save the Texas-based project, knocked on the ropes earlier this year by a House decision to terminate funding.

"We must use the SSC to encourage young Americans to see the value of education," said James Gates, a University of Maryland theoretical physicist and president-elect of the National Society of Black Physicists.

Speaking to the students, he added:

"It's your future at stake here."

Harvard experimental physicist Melissa Franklin, who was 17 when she opted for a career in physics, said she would be reluctant to recommend a similar job path to others if the massive experiment is axed.

"If they kill the project the youth interested in this are going to be totally disillusioned and I think they'll go do other things," she said.

"Would I go into it (right now)? I'd be very scared, I think."

Florida State University postdoctoral physics student Stephane Keller said his future, and his colleagues', rides on the super collider.

"If they cancel this kind of project, work here is going to be gone,"

Keller said. "It means all the young people who are at my level are guaranteed of not finding a job."

Proponents are reaching to foreign shores in their bid to save the project, which has come under fire in Congress for its multi-billion-dollar price tag and allegations of lax management.

The Nobel laureates were joined on screen by one of the superstars in the field: British physicist Stephen Hawking.

"Not to fund the SSC would seriously weaken the whole range of physics in the U.S., including those parts that have immediate applications and contribute to the American success story," Hawking said.

PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat speaks to reporters in his Washington hotel shortly before midnight Monday. Arafat called the day which saw a historic peace pact signed between Israel and the PLO "a very important historical day, which we were expecting for a long, long time," adding "we hope this will reflect real and just peace for all of us."

Mideast peace: Men of violence lurk in shadows

The Associated Press

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Lurking in the shadows as Yasser Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin exchanged handshakes over their historic peace treaty are extremists on both sides who feel betrayed and have vowed to wreck the agreement.

Whether they will be able to is not yet clear. But many insiders fear the long hoped-for era of co-existence between Arab and Jew will, at the very least, be ushered in by inter-Palestinian bloodshed.

The Arab hard-liners could also launch a new wave of terrorism against Israel, the United States and countries that pump economic aid into Arafat's ministate in the Gaza Strip and the West Bank town of Jericho.

Arafat's aides, swept up in the euphoria of events, are scoffing — publicly at least — at threats by his radical rivals and firebrand Muslim fundamentalists to destroy the peace agreement and assassinate the PLO chief.

The bewildering speed with which events have unfolded since Arafat's secret negotiations with Israel were disclosed Aug. 28 has left his opponents little time to organize a coherent counterstrategy beyond noisy street protests.

But Arafat faces not just traditional Palestinian hard-liners opposed to any dealings with Israel, but close, longtime comrades who believe he has sold out the Palestinian struggle.

Two of the PLO's biggest factions, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine and the Marxist Democratic Front, are considering quitting the movement and joining forces with the fundamentalist Hamas, possibly to form an alternative PLO to give coherence to the anti-Arafat opposition.

Many Palestinians in Jordan believe that a power struggle and bloody in-fighting will erupt when Arafat takes control of Gaza and Jericho. Gaza, a Hamas stronghold, is likely to be a flashpoint.

"It's going to be a bloodbath. Many people don't like what's happening," warned political analyst Jamal Shaer, a former Cabinet minister. "The radicals and fundamentalists will fight him, maybe attempt to overthrow him and take over."

Labib Kamhawi, a political science professor at Jordan University, noted: "Violence can be expected if Arafat curbs these people."

"He's more inclined to use force than the opposition, just to confirm his authority. But he'll face a lot of difficulty containing acts of violence."

More working women just 'want to go home'

Women fought long and hard for a place in the workplace.

Next, they sought and won acceptance in the executive suite.

However gradually, their pay scale is moving up to match that of men.

Now the prize they sought is diminished by the cost it cost.

The Yankelovich survey each year has asked working women if they would quit their jobs.

"If you didn't need the money, would you quit your job?"

For the first 20 years of the survey, about 30 percent of working women said "yes."

By 1989, the number grew to 38 percent.

The most recent survey shows that 56 percent of working women WOULD LIKE TO GO HOME!

Ann Clurman, one of the Yankelovich partners, suggests that the real message of the women's movement was that "you can be anything you want to be."

Now that they have proved it, they feel free to stay home without apology.

Commercial ads on television are re-aiming themselves at Mom in the kitchen.

A new organization called FEMALE (Formerly Employed Mothers At Loose Ends) has 2,000 members.

It has now redefined its own acronym, has changed its name to Formerly Employed Mothers At the Leading Edge.

For The Wall Street Journal, Alecia Swasy has designated these re-liberated women "Power Moms."

They apply to parenting the same skills, organization and energy which they refined in the office, shop or boardroom.

And where a dozen years ago the stay-at-homes were apologizing for their "old-fashioned bench-warming," now it's a status symbol.

"She's likely to be organizing a $50,000 community fund raiser while, at the same time, holding down the equivalent of a part-time job in her child's classroom."

Can't Mom get so busy with extra-curricular civic and social activities that she is no more "at home" than her office-worker counterpart? Yes.

So — do the children of stay-at-home moms turn out better?

That will be debated and evaluated for yet a while.

All of us with long enough memories recall mothers who were "always there," and we can't imagine any compromise to be an improvement.

On the other hand, I see in my own professional family examples of office-working mothers who seek so conscientiously to compensate that their children probably get altogether as much TLC as any.

Perhaps the next generation of young mothers of young children, who can afford to, will stay home ...

Until the children are grown and Mother needs a new career.

A Bosnian army soldier takes advantage of downtown Sarajevo's relative tranquility to enjoy a quiet moment with his family Monday. Though fighting continues at a low level, the city has been at its calmest since the war began. Elsewhere, Croats and Muslims clashed around Mostar and near Gornji Vakuf in central Bosnia.

Support greatly appreciated

The Big Spring Jaycees, would like to extend our heart felt gratitude to the following merchants for their more than generous donations to the 1993 Labor Day rest stop. We had 2,000 visitors stop and relax. Without these people this project could not have been possible.

a big way. The United Way has set two goals this year. The allocations committee felt from past experience it would be a stretch to go beyond last year's goal of $235,000. However, the agencies submitted justifications amounting to $275,000.

Assuming the Howard County work force numbers approximately 14,000. The $275,000 goal could be easily met if each worker in Howard County contributed just $19 and some change. When you say it, it sounds like such a small amount. Yet, to some wage earners, $19.00 at one time can put a dent in the family budget. United Way folks well understand and are concerned that no one gives grudgingly. Perhaps the solution is to give in increments. If $19 is divided by 12 months, a contributor's amount would be $2.28 per month. There are various ways the contribution can be amortized. One of the most convenient ways is by payroll deduction. An employee can have the amount he desires to give automatically deducted from his paycheck and never knows it is missing. Many folks choose payroll deduction.

This is a plea to that person who has participated in the United Way drive sparingly or not at all. There is a need by the agencies, United Way, the community and perhaps by you, the giver, most of all. Please give - the United Way!

If we all give what we can, we will be winners - all of us - the United Way.

It's not that bad

After attending the Town Hall meeting called in regards to the water Big Spring receives, I want to say a personal "thank you to Mr. Ivie and the Water Board."

I was born and raised in the Oklahoma Panhandle in the "Dust Bowl" and well remember the many times the well went dry and the suffering this brought to our livestock and the family.

We moved to Big Spring in March of 51 and the city couldn't get water to the second-story apartment we lived in. Without water to the swamp cooler we suffered then also.

We carried water from the tub to the lawn the next year at our new home.

Yes, we say "thank you Mr. Ivie for the water these past many years."

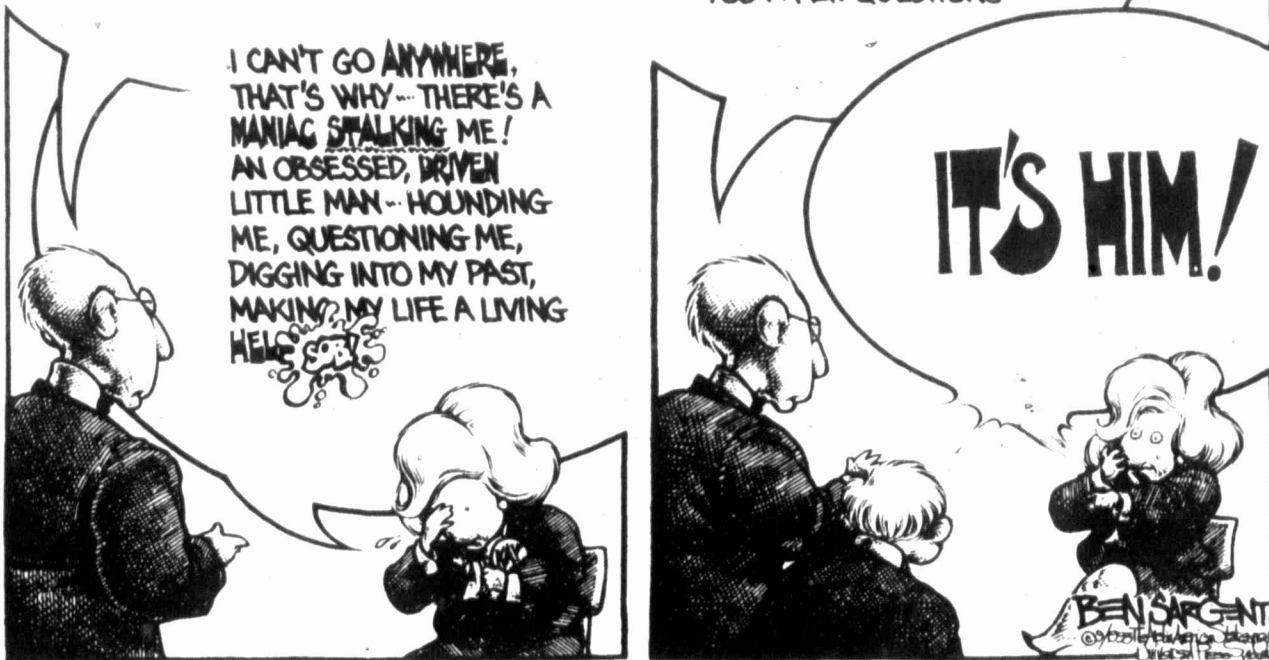

We citizens voted in the early 70's for a water bond to be placed in escrow to be used ONLY in the coming years to replace all the water system which was AGED at that time.

It appears that the rusty water and broken pipes may not be because of the water we receive but because of the $9 million that has disappeared in the following years and no pipes replaced.

It's vacation time, so here is Gripes II. Remember, these are the readers' gripes, not mine. I'm the cheerful sort.

"Roseanne and Tom Arnold. Two pigs who give decent overweight people a bad name."

"People who come up to you at the funeral of a very loved and near one to say: 'Don't cry, honey, he/she is in a better place now.' How the hell do they know?"

"Members of Congress who insist on pushing through their 'pork barrel' projects even when the country can't and shouldn't have to afford them."

"Rolling Stone magazine. Self-righteous swill."

"People who bring crying (or otherwise disruptive) children to church services, formal events and restaurants. And why don't restaurants have 'no children' areas similar to 'no smoking' areas?"

"Milk cartons that say, 'Open Here' and don't."

"When my car (or anything) is not working and my husband checks it out and it works perfect. Like he has healing power. Makes me furious."

"People who say, 'I see it' when they mean, 'I saw it.' (Very Midwest-ern.)"

"Movies with German characters speaking English with German accents. Why bother?"

"People who spank their kids. Parents are role models. When they hit their children, they are teaching their children to hit. Somebody should hit those adult fools."

"Today I am most annoyed by the sentence, 'He is not a happy camper.' This stupid sentence is used to cover any type of dissatisfaction."

"Years ago, they used to make pants with sufficiently long zippers (that reached your crotch) so that when you had to take a wee you could do so in comfort. In the past few years (copying the French designers), the American pants makers learned that they could save a third of a cent per pair of pants by shortening the length of the zippers. This causes a reverse trap in the plumbing that requires more pressure to function properly. There is already pain in life without that."

"People who never experienced the great Depression screaming how tough it is today."

"Young women with messed up hair who call it a style."

"Female guests on late-night talk shows who feel they have to act 'slutty.'"

"Anyone who leaves the car directional signal on for miles while they're traveling."

"Finger-lickers who deposit their saliva on letters, dollar bills, playing cards, newspapers and book pages. Ugh."

"Trashy TV commercials like so-called classy businessmen slurping milk out of their cereal bowls when we are trying to teach our children table manners. Disgusting."

"Discussing illnesses, operations, etc., when eating."

"Women guests, sitting on the stage on TV talk shows being almost naked, with their busts showing and their skirts up to their navels. There should be a law by the producers that women should appear decently dressed, and not showing their intimate body parts. These women have no shame."

"Wait persons who call my husband and me 'guys.' We're 67 and 72 years old. How impertinent. A sign of our times."

"My pet peeve is the Lamaze method of 'natural' childbirth. That stupid 'pant breathing' they teach all these gullible pregnant women does not reduce the pain of contractions one bit. All it does is cause women to feel like cowardly failures of they have to resort to pharmaceutical anesthetics during labor which, by the way, really do work. Arghhhhh."

"White suburbanite children who think they belong to gangs and talk in rapper lingo. The punks would faint if they met a bum like I used to be."

"Neighbors who pick my tomatoes and peppers in the middle of the night. If they would just ask I would be glad to give them what they need."

"I hate people that get right up in my face to talk. Especially if they are ugly."

"To label a child 'illegitimate' is to commit child abuse. There are no illegitimate children, only illegitimate parents."

"People who start every sentence with 'dude.'"

"Media who criticize and badger Hillary Rodham Clinton without trial. This is a national and media form of sexual harassment par excellence."

"Toothpicks, at any time. Shoot the person that developed them."

"People who wake up the neighborhood while having noisy sex."

Summer slips to shoulder season

Bob Greene

EBENSBURG, Pa. — Travel writer Jim Buerger refers to this as "the shoulder season," which is probably much more elegant a term than Thumper Silvasky would choose to use.

The shoulder season, by Buerger's definition, is "those two or three weeks that cannot be categorized as either summer or autumn, but which constitute a transition period with some of the best characteristics of each season." That name — the shoulder season — refers to the uncertainty of people in September about whether they should expose their shoulders or cover them, not knowing what the weather may be.

I'd not heard the term before, and I wasn't going to mention it to Thumper. He's 19, and he is what used to be referred to as a carny — from spring to October he travels to carnivals and county fairs all around the country, serving as barker and proprietor for a particular attraction that has been around ever since the invention of fairs.

He sits on a stepladder in front of one of those he-man machines — the carnival devices that propel an object upward when someone smacks the target at the bottom with a wooden mallet. Popeye did it a million times in a million cartoons. You pay a dollar, you get two swings, and the world — or at least the world that has gathered at a specific moment on a specific fairground — judges how strong you are.

"Come on, man, I need a bell-ringer!" Thumper calls out, but right now he has no takers. Sitting on that stepladder in cutoff jeans and a red Budweiser cap, he looks out across the dusty floor of the Cambria County Fair. Autumn is coming to western Pennsylvania, the trees are already beginning to turn, and there won't be many fairs after this one.

"School's started," Thumper says, those two words explaining everything. "The kids can't come in the daytime. Not on a weekday. We'll start getting people at 7, 7:30."

It isn't quite chilly now, a few minutes after 6 p.m., but you know it isn't July, either. The shoulder season. "The first week of October, I go home," Thumper says, then, returning to his barker's caw, turns toward the midway again and brays: "I need a bell-ringer!" and, getting no response, adds loudly: "Give you a free bandana just for trying!"

There's something about summer that makes you want to hang on. When fall turns to winter, it happens overnight, like a piece of amber changing suddenly to something opaque. Spring emerges softly out of winter, and is so welcome that you're eager to forget what came before. The border from spring to summer is often seamless.

This, though, this right now, this shoulder season in September, is built in as if by nature's design. It's a time for getting ready, and a time for saying goodbye. They know this feeling in fancy places, and they know it in modest places; they know it at the Cambria County Fair, which always rolls around during the shoulder season, and which eases into its weekday nights slowly, because school is in.

The words from an old hit song bleed out of a loudspeaker somewhere on the fairgrounds: "You were mine, at the time ..." It seems a perfect sound for a September evening. All 14 chairs — 13 metal, one wooden — at Red's Lunch stand on the midway sit empty right now, waiting for the nighttime diners who may or may not arrive. "You were mine, at the time, and the feeling was divine ..."

The evening's business on the fairgrounds is beginning to pick up already; over there, over at the Berry-Go-Round ride, a line has formed. The ride — it is designed for the youngest fairgoers, they twirl slowly in cars painted to look like strawberries — has drawn a crowd. The parents will take their toddlers on this ride and then will head for home, in Johnstown or Altoona or here in Ebensburg, before the night's temperatures start to drop, in plenty of time to get plenty of sleep for school tomorrow, for work tomorrow.

"You were mine, at the time ..." Not much business right now over at Deedy's Dime Pitch. The easiest rule at the fair, now and always: take a dime out of your pocket, toss it and try to make it stick inside a glass tumbler or a shot glass or an ash-tray, take your prize home if you do. Tonight you toss, and your dime doesn't have a chance. It skips harmlessly into the dust, from where the proprietor retrieves it and banks it. "Getting chilly," she says.

So it is, in the inevitable shoulder season. Hang on to summer; hang on as long as you can. It was yours, at the time. Thumper Silvasky, across the way, is still at it. "I need a bell-ringer," he calls to someone who does not stop. "You're the man for the job," he calls to the figure in retreat.

We still could have been friends

John A. Moseley

What wonders are there left to behold?

The demise of the Soviet Union, the fall of the Berlin Wall and the reunification of Germany — all significant events of the past five years, can only pale in comparison to what place Monday in Washington between Israel and the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

Mere adjectives and descriptive phrases simply cannot adequately express the significance of Yasser Arafat's and Yitzhak Rabin's meeting to sign an accord promising self-government for Palestinians.

Even as recently as three weeks ago, one would have been laughed into hiding one's dolittle noggin for even suggesting that the PLO and Israel would ever get so far as to admitting that the other has a right to exist.

An Associated Press story called them "enemies without mercy for a generation," an apt term, perhaps, but far short of actually describing the two entities.

For at least the last 30 years, Arafat has sworn death to Israel, steadfastly denying the Jewish state's right to exist.

And Israel, like the United States, has always considered the PLO a terrorist organization, refusing any official contact, much less recognition as a legitimate bargaining entity for Palestinian interests.

The idea that Arafat would renounce the PLO's long-held commitment to the destruction of Israel has always seemed the unlikely of possibilities.

Jews and the other Semitic tribesmen of the region, most of us learned long ago from our Bibles, have been bitter enemies since the beginning of recorded history.

That's why even the most optimistic of observers had their doubts last week when Arafat and Rabin announced that they were near reaching the accords that call for Palestinian self-government in Jericho and in Gaza, and later in the rest of the West Bank territory that Israel won in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The turn of events seems even more earth-shattering, when I remember what a college classmate of mine once explained to me.

Samir Al-Siksik was a good friend of mine back in the early 1970s when he, his brother Muhammed and I all attended Paris Junior College.

I was 18 and Samir was 26, and on a couple of occasions, he helped me out of close scrapes — nothing all that serious, just the kind of mischief your normal 18-year-old college freshman with overactive hormones is liable to encounter.

Samir and I had a couple of classes together, played spades as partners in the Student Union Building, and were even known to get rowdy together. Since he didn't drink, he usually went along to make sure the "nice American boys," he sometimes teasingly called us, didn't wind up in the hoosegong on DWI charges.

He also explained a few things to me one wiggler night in 1971 ... only a few days before FBI agents descended on the campus and summarily spirited Samir, Muhammed and a couple of other Arab students away, deporting them without much of a hearing two or three days later.

Samir explained that while he and his parents lived in Kuwait, they were Palestinians. His family had lost everything when the nation of Israel was formed, and it had taken a number of years before his father had been able to come even close to recouping any of the family's fortune.

His point, believe it or not, was to suggest that I'd probably be a terrorist if I'd been raised under the same circumstances.

Consider, he said, what I'd do if the United Nations one day passed a resolution recognizing Mexico's old claims to Texas, declaring my home once again a portion of Mexico.

Even worse, he said, would be a law denying Anglos the right of self-government in what had once been our homeland, and in most cases, non Hispanics would be denied the right to vote.

I considered the comparison, and was forced to admit that it wouldn't be hard to picture myself as a terrorist under those circumstances.

We were later told by federal officials that Samir and his brother were believed to be Black September-berists, we didn't yet know what that meant; had been trained in guerrilla warfare and assassination in the Soviet Union; and was believed to be plotting the assassination of Jordan's King Hussein when he visited the United States later that year.

I can only hope that Samir is still with us today, supporting the accords and working a lasting peace in the Mideast.

Maybe I'm naive ... have been several times in the past ... but I still think we'd be friends.

"We haven't been hit hard yet, but it could happen."

Because of recent bank robberies in Midland and Odessa, as well as other West Texas cities, the FBI lectures have been given in several cities this year, Macnoll said.

Bank robberies tend to occur in cycles of frequency, and, currently, the number of incidents is high, he said.

The FBI's Abilene office serves 15 counties in West Texas. The seminars are given as a service to protect people and property, according to Macnoll. "We're not consultants — we're not paid," he said.

The seminar, sponsored by the Coahoma State Bank, is provided at no cost and is handled through Howard College's Continuing Education Department.

The seminar will consist of a lecture, as well as video and other audio-visual teaching methods.

youth EXPLOSION

Sound off: Do young people drink?

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

It's unanimous — about 30 students at the Big Spring High School agree, without dissent, that more than half of all high-school teenagers drink alcohol at some times.

Drinking before school, however, is not thought to be extremely common, several youths explained. "I've seen that once or twice," one BSHS band student said.

In a recent interview at BSHS, all of the students agreed the number of underage drinkers is greater than half.

"Ask anybody in the class, they'll tell you," said BSHS student Ray Bennett. "That's why they all miss Mondays," quipped another.

For many older teenagers, drinking is said to be an every-weekend affair. Some drink every day while others only occasionally.

There are quite a few total abstainers at the high school, even in the older grades, several students said. All agreed, however, these were outnumbered by imbibers.

Some statistics indicate the use of illicit drugs such as marijuana and cocaine to be dropping slightly among high schoolers, but not the use of alcohol. "I think both have gone up," said BSHS student Lea Tolison.

When asked if they think alcohol consumption has increased in recent years, several students answered affirmatively. "Yes — very definitely," one student said. "Drastically," said another.

The Big Spring Independent School District has strict regulations against having alcohol on any school campus, according to Superintendent W.A. McQuerey. They also have a no-tolerance, immediate-expulsion policy toward any student found with illicit drugs or weapons on school property.

Specifications for the drug-sniffing-dog contract with BSISD stipulates the dog must be able to detect alcohol as well as illicit drugs.

Recently, a lower bid for these services was challenged by the board of trustees because they could not guarantee their dog could detect alcohol.

The dog and its handlers keep to a regular schedule, checking each campus in the Big Spring School District. The parking lot of the high school is also checked, with the student being called from class when the dog "alerts" on their vehicle.

"Our whole educational system is full of (information regarding) dangers of alcohol abuse and drug abuse," McQuerey said. The thrust is to create a drug and alcohol free school," he added.

These Big Spring High School band students served as an impromptu panel of experts in a recent survey of more than 30 high school students. The students answered questions and offered opinions about the use of alcohol by teenagers.

Underage drinking: You pay big time

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

Want to drink even though you aren't old enough?

You might have to pay for it. Punishments for the crime take a bite out of a young person's wallet.

Local police officers said those under 21 caught with alcohol or at a party where the beverages are being served will be issued a citation. Then they must appear in court.

Those under age 16 must bring a parent, although Municipal Judge Arnold Marshall prefers that any minor in the court have a parent with them.

The cost of disobeying the law increases with each offense.

"Fines go up each time, and I think that helps them get the message," Marshall said. "I've got to make an impression."

On the first offense, a young person is usually required to attend six hours of alcohol education. On the second offense, they are usually fined and required to attend the class again — paying a fee for it, too. The third offense means an increased fine and another try at the class — and paying for it again.

Usually the second and third offenses become part of a young person's permanent record.

Police Sgt. Stan Parker, school resource officer, said attitudes toward the no-drinking law differ among teens.

"Some are scared," he said. "Others aren't. They don't seem to care much, because they probably don't fear any discipline at home."

But for many young people, getting caught drinking is their first dealing with police officers on the wrong side of the law.

"That can be a little scary," Parker said. As an alternative, the school has D-FY-IT, a program that gives discounts at local businesses if they abstain from drugs and drinking. The organization even has an alternative to evening entertainment that involves alcohol — a hangout called The Place.

The Place is open 3-10 p.m. weekdays and 6 p.m.-1 a.m. weekends.

Bye, bye Bears: Bauer chooses new Steer mascot

By GLENDA CUMMINGS
NIE Coordinator

It seems that Bauer students are really "with it" since the September Newsletter is already in the hands of many readers.

The fifth grade students prepare the newspaper themselves, from the writing to the typing, etc. for a language arts grade. Teachers pair the students according to interests and students have much input in the assignments they receive for the newsletter.

Big news this month is a change — no longer are they the Bauer Bears, they are the Bauer Steers.

Being Steers is hoped to create pride in the students, motivating them for the time they become Big Spring High School Steers.

The colors were changed to black and gold and a contest held to design a new logo. Three of last year's fifth graders designs were chosen and combined for the new logo and students have been ordering the T-shirts.

Principal Andre Clark, in the newsletter, tries to reinforce the new school discipline plan with advice on parenting, also the theme for Bauer PTA.

"We are going to celebrate parenting because parents are the first teachers," Clark said. It is planned for this school year to stress the positive and not the negative.

Students at Bauer will be rewarded for the good things they do and Clark hopes to influence the parents to do the same at home. A person's mind, Clark said, is like a thought bank — a piggy bank which needs frequent small deposits to help make their successful.

All the deposits should be as positive as possible because negative thoughts make large withdrawals in the "success account."

Think about what is being deposited into your mind by friends, the environment, teachers, newspapers and television!

Clark also said a library card should be as valuable to any student as any Master Card or Visa.

Things to keep in mind: the recycling of cans will continue this year, every second Tuesday of the month students will recycle Bauer. Also keep in mind that Bauer students will raise money for the American Heart Association with a Jump Rope-a-thon.

Complaints? Local youth gripes

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

What is on the mind of the average Big Spring teenager?

Complaints from area high-school students range from poor cafeteria food to police harassment, but many are reasonably satisfied with things as they are, according to teenagers polled around the city recently.

Many of the teenagers were unable to voice a specific concern, saying everything is much as it should be. "I can't think of anything that could be improved — that could be improved," said Jeff Suggs, a Big Spring High School student.

Other's voiced concerns similar to those of older Big Spring residents.

One young man said, "Probably the streets here are something. I've got a friend from South Dakota. He says he's never seen a city with dirt streets before. They're torn up."

driving," another boy interjected.

Other topics included water quality, speed limits on W. FM-700, and a lack of recreational facilities in and around Big Spring. "All you can do is play video games or watch a movie," one young woman said.

Two high-school athletes said area police sometimes interrogate or "hassle" teenagers without cause, blaming them for the behavior of relatives. "They hear your last name and then try to take you in, or give you trouble," said Tyrone Banks.

"Sometimes they pull you over and hassle you for what your brother did, or what your cousin did, or what your sister did — and they put it on you," said Jason Threats.

A few students said parts of the high school need attention. "Some of the football equipment needs to be replaced, and some of the bathrooms are not in good shape," said Kaman Barber.

Cheer to the top

Forsan cheerleaders took the top spot at the recent Battle of the Cheerleaders during the Howard County Fair. Members of the squad include, not in order: Amber Ciniceros, Laurie Light, Randi Hamby, Kim Roman, Jenny Conaway and Tara De La Garza.

BRAIN TWISTER

These questions come from Sunday's Big Spring Herald. See how many you know, then check next Tuesday for the correct responses.

1. Answer true or false.

200 Years Old on Sept. 18

Our Capitol's Birthday

We sometimes hold a cornerstone-laying ceremony when we build an important building. This painting shows Washington laying the Capitol's cornerstone on Sept. 18, 1793. He was a member of a group called the Freemasons, which still exists today. It is a custom that they wear aprons at their meetings.

The cornerstone

Experts have been looking and looking for the Capitol's cornerstone. They would like to take another look at it after 200 years.

George Washington laid the Capitol's cornerstone on Sept. 18, 1793.

He was a member of the Freemasons, a group that arranged for the ceremony. This group's purpose is to build brotherhood and character. The stone was probably lowered by ropes onto a specially engraved silver plate. Washington used a gavel to pound the stone into place, and a silver trowel to spread the mortar that held it in place.

The Capitol has grown so much that finding the cornerstone has been a big challenge.

The U.S. Capitol Building in Washington, D.C., is one of the most famous buildings in the world.

It has become a powerful symbol of our government because of what goes on inside.

Our Congress meets there and passes laws that affect all of us. What our country does also affects people around the world.

THE CAPITOL'S DOME HELPS IT TO REALLY STAND OUT.

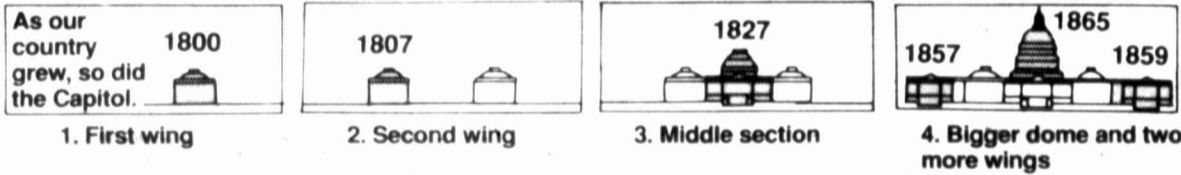

The first part of the Capitol was not finished until seven years later, in 1800. In 1800, there were:

- 16 states
- 32 senators
- 74 representatives

By the time of Lincoln's second inauguration, the Capitol looked much like it does today.

U.S. CAPITOL TRY 'N FIND

Rookie Cookie's Recipe

Congressional Bean Soup

It is a tradition to serve bean soup in the Senate dining room.

You'll need:

- 2 pounds small Michigan navy beans
- 1 smoked ham hock or 1/2 pound bacon
- salt
- pepper

What to do:

1. Put beans in a large pot. Cover with cold water and let soak overnight.
2. Add ham hock or bacon.
3. Bring to a boil over medium heat.
4. Reduce heat to low. Simmer 2 1/2 hours.
5. Add salt and pepper to taste. Serves 6.

Let's Visit Our U.S. Capitol

1. The House Chamber has benches for the 435 members. Representatives usually do not have specially assigned seats.
2. Statuary Hall used to be where the House met. Today it is one of the rooms where statues are displayed. Each state can send statues of two of its most outstanding citizens.
3. The Great Rotunda is a circular room in the center of the Capitol, under the dome.
4. The Old Senate Chamber has been restored to look as it did back in 1824. This photo shows the vice president's desk.
5. The Senate Chamber has assigned seats for its 100 senators. The Democrats sit on one side and the Republicans on the other.

Who is your representative?

Who are your state's two senators?

My, how it has grown!

Today the Capitol is:

- 350 feet deep (about the length of a football field)
- 751 feet long (about the length of two football fields)

It has:

- 540 rooms
- 658 windows
- 850 doorways
- 180 fireplaces
- 16 1/2 acres of floor space
- grounds that cover 181 acres

The whisper secret

Statuary Hall is a favorite stop for tourists. If you stand in a special spot in this huge room and whisper, what you say can be heard way across the room.

The story is that John Quincy Adams knew about this spot when he was serving in the House of Representatives. He would pretend that he was asleep at his desk and listen to what was being said across the room.

THIS WHISPER CAN BE HEARD WAY ACROSS THE ROOM!

After finding out who represents you in Congress, you might want to write them:

Senator
 The United States Senate
 Washington, D.C. 20510

Representative
 House of Representatives
 Washington, D.C. 20515

See Congress on TV

If you want to see what goes on inside the U.S. Capitol, you might watch two C-SPAN TV channels. There is a special C-SPAN channel for the House and another one for the Senate.

What you will see are members of Congress in action. Sometimes they are making speeches. Sometimes they are in committee meetings. Other times they might be passing laws.

If your family or school subscribes to a cable service, you get C-SPAN at no extra charge.

Cable companies pay money to support C-SPAN as a service to the public.

When the House or Senate is not in session, you can see other public affairs programs.

Ken Griffey Jr. and Juan Gonzalez aren't even 24 years old yet, and already they're reaching marks accomplished by some of baseball's greats.

Gonzalez set a career high with his 44th home run, one more than last season, as the Texas Rangers routed Cleveland 12-1 to move within 2 1/2 games of AL West-leading Chicago. The White Sox lost 9-0 at Kansas City, which moved within five games.

Rob Ducey, who has 43 homers less than Gonzalez this season, got the Rangers started with a solo homer in the third inning off Jose Mesa (10-11).

Gonzalez, who had three hits, added a two-run shot later in the inning. He turns 24 on Oct. 16.

Rafael Palmeiro added a sixth-inning solo homer, his 36th, and Dean Palmer had a bases-empty homer in the seventh, his 29th.

Gonzalez, Palmeiro and Palmer homered in the same game for the first time this season, and their 109 homers combined is the most by a threesome on the same team since Henry Aaron, Darrell Evans and Dave Johnson had 124 for Atlanta in 1973.

Kevin Brown (13-11) won his third consecutive start, pitching a six-hitter for his major league-tying 11th complete game.

Griffey's sacrifice fly in the first inning Monday night put him in the record book with Hall of Famers Joe DiMaggio, Ted Williams, Ty Cobb and Mel Ott as the only players to record three consecutive 100-RBI seasons before their 24th birthday. Seattle beat California 10-1 at Anaheim. Griffey will be 24 on Nov. 21.

Things changed in the AL East. New York beat Milwaukee 3-1 at County Stadium to move into second place, 1 1/2 games behind idle Toronto. Baltimore dropped two games out with a 6-4 loss at Boston.

Rookie Rich Amaral's three hits paced a 14-hit Seattle attack that made it easy for Chris Bosio (9-7) to win his fifth straight decision. The right-hander allowed four hits in eight innings, striking out six and walking three.

Mark Langston dropped to 15-8.

Red Sox 6

Boston had four walks and three hits in a four-run sixth inning, overcoming homers by Harold Baines and Chris Hoiles and breaking a five-game home losing streak.

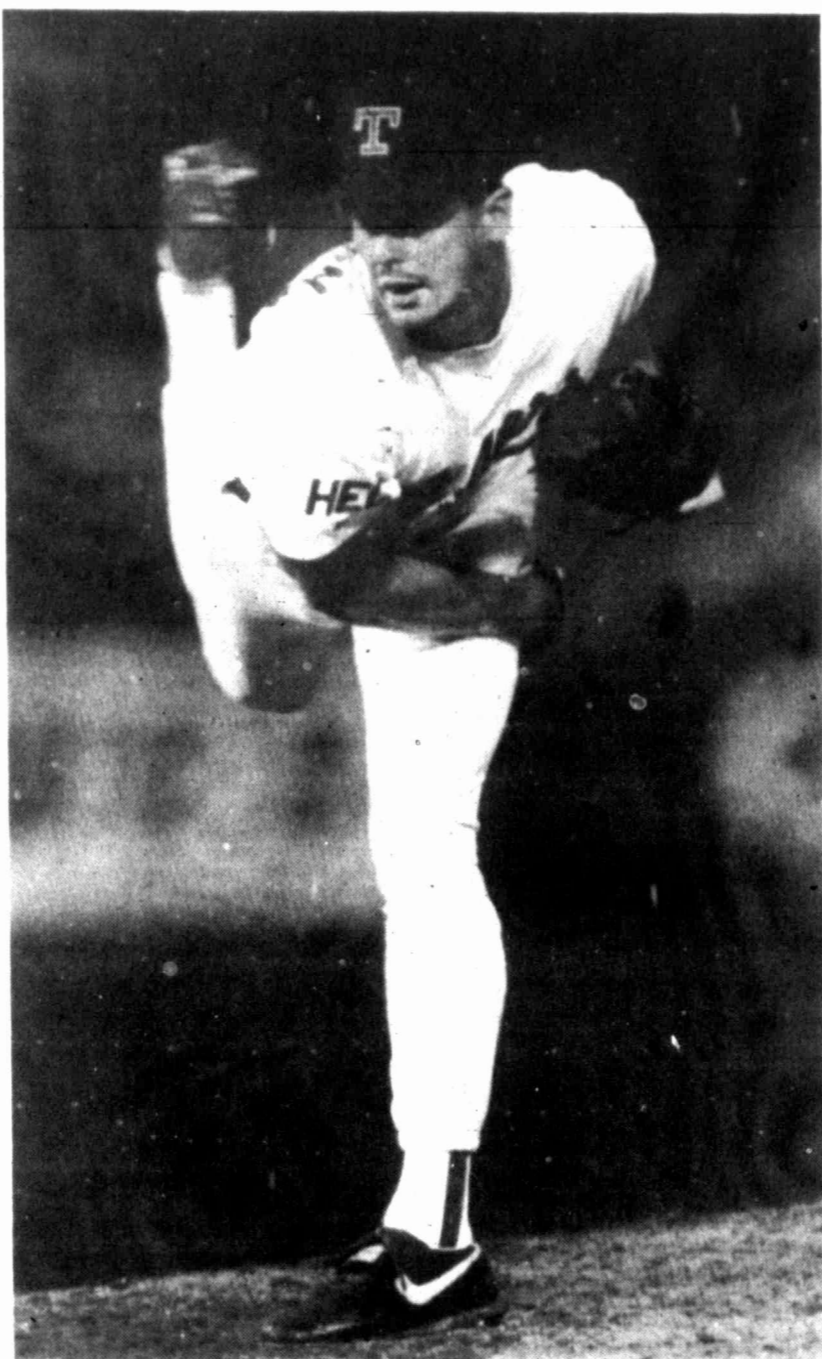

Tim Lincecum, who has 15 hits in his last 29 at-bats, gave Boston a 5-4 lead with a two-run single. Brad Pennington replaced Mark Williamson (7-5) and walked Mo Vaughn and Rob Deer, making it 6-4.

Paul Quantrill (6-10) was the winner.

Yankees 3

Jimmy Key (17-5) matched a career high with his 17th victory, allowing four hits in six innings, and New York regained second place with its victory at Milwaukee. Key is 10-2 after Yankees losses this season.

Lee Smith got the last four outs for his first save for New York and the 399th of his career. It was Smith's 44th save overall this season.

The Yankees scored twice in the third inning off Jamie Navarro (10-10) when Wade Boggs and Danny Tartabull had RBI singles.

Royals 9

White Sox 0
Kevin Appier allowed two hits in seven innings to help Kansas City beat Chicago. The Royals, who have won five straight games, got a three-run homer from Felix Jose.

Mark Gubicza finished up, allowing two hits, as the two pitchers sent the White Sox to their 13th shutout this season.

Chicago starter Tim Lincecum (3-5) lasted 5 1-3 innings, giving up six runs on seven hits.

Disc golf tourney goes down to wire

The third DiscOver Big Spring Disc Golf Tournament took place Saturday at Birdwell Park. The windy conditions were perfect for long drives and many throws longer than 400 feet.

Disc golf is played like golf, except flying discs are used and the holes are baskets.

In the amateur division, Jeff Anderson seemed to have it wrapped up after extending his one stroke lead after the first round to four strokes after the second 18 holes.

His lead came at the expense of Johnny Owens and William Anderson, who were second and third after 36 holes.

William Anderson, 11 strokes down, found his stroke during the "Final 9," combining 400-foot drives with deadly accurate 50-foot putts to score a 37, which was par. He leap-frogged Owens and pressured Jeff Anderson, who threw a 47. Jeff won by one stroke.

Finishing fourth through sixth in the amateur division were Lee Almaguer, Dale Kesterson and Kenny Stallings.

Greg Brooks won the open division, but the battle for second place provided the fireworks. Gary Neal and Sean Irby, both from Abilene, were close the entire tournament.

Neal led by two strokes after 18 holes and one after 36. In the "Final 9," Irby and Neal played evenly for the first five holes, then Irby slowly pulled away and took second.

Neal took third place, and fourth through sixth went in this order - Jody Colwell, Dave LeBlou and Mike Conner.

Lady Steers play tonight

The Big Spring volleyball team opens District 3-4A play tonight when it goes against San Angelo Lake View in Steer Gym.

The freshman match has been cancelled. The junior varsity will begin at 6 p.m. with the varsity to follow.

Bulldogs head to Tahoka

Coahoma fans will be headed the same direction as Big Spring fans this weekend. Big Spring travels to Lubbock for a Saturday game, while the Bulldogs travel to Tahoka for a Friday 8 p.m. game, hoping to win their first game of the young season.

Here are directions to the field at Tahoka High School:

- Take Lamesa Hwy North (Hwy 87)

- Second Exit will be Hwy. 380. Turn left (West) in the direction of Brownfield.

- Take Hwy. 380 until you are almost out of Tahoka. You'll see a water tower (that curiously enough says 'Home of the Bulldogs' on it) on the right. Turn right immediately after the water tower.

- Go two blocks, then turn left. You'll be pointed at the parking lot for the field.

Steers head to Lubbock

The Big Spring football team plays Saturday, 2 p.m., at Lubbock's Lowery Field against Lubbock High.

We'll have directions in Wednesday's Herald. Regardless of what those directions say, plan on extra drive time because of the construction.

Country club updates schedule

The Big Spring Country Club will have a two-man combination tournament Oct. 2-3. The first day will be a scramble, the second will be low ball.

A two-man scramble is slated for Oct. 30-31. Combined team age must be more than 80.

For additional information and tournament registration, please call the Big Spring Country Club pro shot at 267-5354.

Giants sink lower in NL West race

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jose Vizcaino drove in four runs and the Chicago Cubs dealt the reeling San Francisco Giants their sixth straight loss, 6-5.

Despite getting two homers from Robby Thompson, the Giants dropped 1 1/2 games behind the idle Atlanta Braves in the NL West after losing their 13th in 19 games. The Cubs have won nine of their last 11 games and got their first victory of the season at Candlestick Park.

The Cubs broke open a 3-2 game with three runs in the seventh off Giants reliever Kevin Rogers.

Winner Greg Hibbard (13-11) allowed solo homers to Thompson in the first and sixth innings. Randy Myers pitched the ninth for his NL-leadfig 45th save. Scott Sanderson (3-2) was the loser.

Padres 4

Dodgers 3

SAN DIEGO — Phil Plantier hit his 30th homer of the season in the 11th inning, lifting the San Diego Padres past the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3.

With one out, Plantier sent a 1-0 pitch over the left-center field fence off Jim Gott (4-8), who entered the game in the bottom of the 11th.

Gene Harris (6-5), who survived a bases-loaded jam in the top of the 11th, earned the victory.

The Dodgers loaded the bases with one out in the 11th but Harris struck out Jody Reed and got pinch-hitter Mitch Webster to end the threat on a flyout.

Phillies 5

Mets 0

NEW YORK — Tommy Greene finally found away to get a decision: pitch a shutout.

Greene, who had six no-decisions in his last seven starts, scattered six hits to lead the Philadelphia Phillies to a 5-0 victory over the New York Mets on Monday night.

The first-place Phillies picked up a half-game on idle Montreal in the NL East race and now lead the Expos by 5 1/2 games.

The Phillies, who lead the season series with the Mets 9-2, snapped a two-game losing streak and are 5-0 at Shea Stadium this season. The Mets have lost 10 of 11 to the Phillies at Shea over the past two seasons.

Greene (14-3) struck out six and walked one in his seventh complete game and second shutout of the season.

Bobby Jones (2-3) pitched 6 1-3 innings, allowing four runs on seven hits.

Kevin Stocker doubled with one out in the third inning, moved to second on a walk to Greene and scored on Lenny Dykstra's single.

Dave Hollins opened the Phillies' sixth with a walk, raced to third on Jim Eisenreich's single and scored on Pete Incaviglia's sacrifice fly to make it 2-0.

Cloud hanging over Cowboys gets darker with 0-2 start

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson, addressing a problem he can do something about, said Monday he has summoned eight kickers for a tryout to find a replacement for Lin Elliott.

Elliott missed two field goal attempts, including a 30-yarder, in Sunday's 13-10 loss to the Buffalo Bills.

Asked if he had fired Elliott, Johnson said: "I'll make a decision tomorrow. Elliott has had a year and a half to compete for the job. Nothing is resolved but I'm going to look at eight kickers with (kicking coach) Steve Hoffman."

Elliott missed a field goal and an extra point in an opening 35-16 loss to Washington.

"I dug my grave," he said after Sunday's game. "In practice I do well. On Sunday I struggle. I've let my teammates down."

Johnson would not name the kickers coming to Valley Ranch but the list was expected to include Matt Bahr, Eddie Murray, Jim Breech and Rich Andrews.

"We might lose something on kick-offs because Lin had been doing that well so we'd have to adjust our coverages," Johnson said.

The other problem, unsigned All-Pro running back Emmitt Smith, is something Johnson can't do anything about.

"We just have to understand who we are," Johnson said Monday. "We're a different team than the one who went to the Super Bowl. I still think we will get into the playoffs. We just can't sit around and depending on Emmitt Smith being with us."

But there's a hole in the dressing-room wall courtesy of defensive end Charles Haley. It symbolizes the frustrations and near revolt of the Cowboys players who feel they can't defend their Super Bowl championship without Smith.

"We'll never win with a rookie running back," said Haley, who imbedded his helmet into the wall. "We need to either get Emmitt here or they've got to get rid of him."

"There's a huge cloud hanging over this team," safety Bill Bates said.

Troy Aikman was forced to pass 45 times and was intercepted twice in Sunday's 13-10 loss to the Buffalo Bills because rookie Derrick Lassic couldn't produce on the ground as Smith did in the Super Bowl.

The Cowboys are 0-2 and no team has ever won the Super Bowl after such a start.

"In the past," Aikman said, clipping his words, "we've had success being a balanced football team."

The fans were restless in Texas Stadium.

"We want Emmitt, we want Emmitt," the crowd chanted.

Another banner read, "Sign Emmitt and Trade Your Ego."

Owner Jerry Jones wrung his hands and sat on his wallet.

"I don't want to jeopardize the future of this team," Jones said. "I'm frustrated and so is Emmitt. I understand the players being frustrated. While everyone has an opinion, we have opinions that are sound ones for the future."

Smith wants $4 million a year — in line with what Buffalo's Thurman Thomas makes — while Jones has offered $2.5 million.

"I don't know how the Cowboys can expect to get back to the Super Bowl without Emmitt Smith," Thomas said after Sunday's game. "They just can't do it. Emmitt would have made a difference against us today. In the Super Bowl, they controlled the ball with Emmitt. They didn't do that today."

Lassic, who helped Alabama win a national championship, wonders what kind of hornet's nest he has stepped on.

"It bothers me when one of my teammates says something bad about me," said Lassic, who lost a fumble and gained 52 yards on 19 carries.

Defensive back Kenny Gant said nobody should blame Lassic.

"It's not fair to knock him," Gant said. "He's a heck of a runner. We're just not getting a break."

Offensive tackle Nate Newton said the Smith contract dispute is tearing at the team.

"You keep seeing on film all the big plays Emmitt made for us last year," Newton said. "I'm for burning last year's film. I'm tired of talking about Emmitt."

Added Darryl Johnston: "Two weeks ago, people were talking about us like we're a dynasty. Now they talk like we're all done."

Cleveland's James Jones (96) celebrates his first-quarter touchdown with teammate Tommy Vardell (44) Monday. Cleveland beat San Francisco 23-13.

Browns batter 49ers, 23-13

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND — The Cleveland Browns could think of no better test. And after three painful losing seasons, the Browns proved Monday night they can play with the best again, beating the San Francisco 49ers 23-13 in the biggest victory of Bill Belichick's three years as coach.

The Browns (2-0) did it with defense, intercepting three passes from Steve Young, forcing him to fumble once, and blocking a field goal. San Francisco also muffed a 40-yard field goal attempt when holder Klaus Wilmsmeyer juggled the snap with 4:32 to play.

The 49ers (1-1) did not score in the second half.

Cleveland's James Jones, a defensive tackle with a taste for the end zone, turned the game around with a 1-yard TD run in the second quarter, and Bernie Kosar and Michael Jackson teamed on a 30-yard scoring pass that put Cleveland ahead for good just 35 seconds before halftime.

Young, still bothered by a fractured thumb sustained during pre-season, was intercepted three times for the second straight week, and two of the three led to Cleveland scores.

The loss stopped the 49ers' nine-game regular-season winning streak. It was only the second loss in the last 13 Monday night games for San Francisco.

Matt Stover kicked three field goals for Cleveland. Mike Cofer had two for the 49ers, and a third try — a 37-yarder on San Francisco's best chance of the third quarter — was blocked by Rob Burnett.

Marc Logan, filling in for injured Tom Rathman, scored the 49ers' only touchdown on a 4-yard run in the second quarter. San Francisco also played without injured defensive lineman Kevin Fagan, and it lost receiver Odessa Turner for part of the game. Turner left because of a concussion that resulted from a scary collision with Cleveland's Eric Turner early in third quarter.

The 49ers outgained the Browns by a 3-to-1 ratio for much of the first half, but interceptions by Clay Matthews and Selwyn Jones snuffed a couple of possessions.

Growing more confident as the game progressed, the Cleveland defense kept the Niners out of scoring territory most of the second half. Eric Turner intercepted a pass, and Jerry Ball and Michael Dean Perry — the anchors of the defense — teamed to shake the ball loose from Young and stop the 49ers after they'd penetrated to the 25-yard line midway through the fourth quarter.

Jones capped an 80-yard Cleveland drive with a 1-yard TD run on a play that caught San Francisco off guard.

Briefs

Emmitt Smith stands firm

CLEVELAND — In case the Dallas Cowboys didn't hear him the first time, Emmitt Smith said it again Monday night: He's prepared to sit out the season unless the Cowboys offer him a better contract.

"I will stand firm and perhaps take my chances again in February and next year when I'm in the restricted free-agent market," the star running back told ABC Sports during halftime of the Cleveland-San Francisco game.

The Cowboys have offered Smith a four-year, $11 million contract. He is seeking a deal worth about $4 million a season.

"I still think we're at the same spot we were at two, three, four weeks ago," Smith said in a live interview from his home in Pensacola, Fla. "The offers (Cowboys owner Jerry Jones) have made have been reasonably less than Thurman Thomas and other guys in the league have been offered, so I feel we're still at a standstill."

The defending champion Cowboys are 0-2 following Sunday's 13-10 loss to Buffalo. No team has had such a start and gone on to win the Super Bowl.

"None of my teammates deserve the position they're in," Smith said. "In some cases they are trying too hard. It's frustrating for me, for the coach and my teammates."

Rangers print playoff tickets

ARLINGTON — The Texas Rangers will begin accepting applications Friday for the 1993 American League Championship Series, in the event that Rangers are involved in post-season play.

Tickets will be sold in three price categories for the public sale — $40, $30 and $20. Tickets will be sold only in four-game strips, at prices of $160, $120 and $80. There is a maximum of four strips per order.

Orders must be postmarked no earlier than Friday, Sept. 17, and no later than Thursday, Sept. 23. Orders to be filled will be selected by random drawing from all mail received covering that seven-day span. Each order should include a $10 handling charge and a self-addressed stamped envelope, which will be used to return unfilled orders.

Fans may receive a lower-priced category than requested, and the balance of their money will be refunded.

Season ticket holders were mailed their applications for postseason tickets on Monday.

Checks or money orders for possible LCS games should be sent to: Texas Rangers, American League Championship Series, P.O. Box 1166, Arlington, TX 76004-1166.

Orders sent to a different address or postmarked prior to Sept. 17 or later than Sept. 23 will be disqualified.

The American League West division champion will host games one, two, six and seven of the series with the American League East division winner. The dates are Tuesday, Oct. 5, 7 p.m.; Wednesday, Oct. 6, 2 p.m.; Tuesday, Oct. 12, 7 p.m., if necessary; and Wednesday, Oct. 13, 7 p.m., if necessary.

For further information, contact the Texas Rangers ticket office at 817-273-5100.

Snow postpones Astros and Rockies

DENVER — It's snowing in September. Welcome to baseball in Colorado.

Heavy, wet snowflakes swirled through Mile High Stadium on Monday. Just 24 hours earlier it was 92 degrees.

Snow had fallen since morning, and in an hour and a half the Rockies were supposed to open a four-game homestand against Houston.

General manager Bob Gebhardt tested the grounds, walking from the clubhouse to center field. He talked to Astros manager Art Howe, then signaled to the media there would be no game. The game was rescheduled for a Tuesday doubleheader at 5:05 p.m. EDT.

It was the Rockies' second cancellation because of snow during their inaugural year — the first was April 12 against New York.

Rockies spokeswoman Karen Barnhart said this latest postponement didn't cause much of a stir in the Rockies' clubhouse.

"But I think everyone's a little surprised to see it snow this early in September," she said.

Robert Koopmeiners, a forecaster for the National Weather Service's Denver office, said the late-summer snowstorm, which deposited 5.3 inches in Denver Monday, was rare even by Colorado standards.

"It's not like record proportions, but it's fairly early," he said, noting Denver had a 4.2-inch snowfall Sept. 3, 1961.

Of the 5.3 inches that fell, only an inch remained because the ground still was warm from Sunday's balmy weather, when the Denver Broncos played at home.

Monday's low temperature of 33 degrees was a record for Sept. 13, falling a degree lower than the 34-degree mark reported in 1989. The high of 50 was a degree shy of the record chilly high temperature of 49 for Sept. 13.

Koopmeiners said there have been snowier Septembers in Denver — 17.2 inches in 1971. But he said the 5.3 inches Monday made this September already the city's eighth snowiest.
