Full-scale attack launched against Yeltsin's forces

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Battle tanks shelled the Russia White House and commandos fired AK-47s in a full-scale assault by President Boris Yeltsin's forces on hardliners holding the parliament building. Streaks of orange flame erupted from the barrels of the T-72 tanks as they pounded the white marble office building. Papers came floating out of the shattered windows, followed by heavy black smoke. Soldiers dragged away bodies while machine guns blasted from a neighboring hotel and apartment house. At least 20 people were reported killed and dozens wounded, including a U.S. Marine who was hit by a stray bullet at the American Embassy, across the street from the White House. About 400 embassy employees took shelter underground. The hardline leaders, Vice President Alexander Rutskoi and parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov, remained inside the burning building. The Interfax news agency said they offered to negotiate, but the government insisted on unconditional surrender. "The time for talks is over," Yeltsin spokesman Anatoly Krasikov told The Associated Press. "Now the only thing they can do is to hang out the white flag." The ITAR-Tass news agency reported that government forces had captured the first four floors of the 19-story building. It said at least 20 people were killed. Hundreds of spectators, some holding children by the hand, watched from a bridge over the Moscow River. Riveted by the scene, they ignored attempts by soldiers to wave them back out of danger. Yeltsin had promised not to use force to end a two-week standoff with lawmakers who defied his Sept. 21 decree dissolving parliament and calling new elections. But he changed his mind after Russia's long political crisis exploded into riots by parliament supporters on Sunday. At least 24 people were reported killed when the crowds smashed through police lines Sunday afternoon.

Boys' Club works for boys and city

By DAVE HARGRAVE Sports Editor

The Big Spring Boys' Club is just another example of the United Way at work in Big Spring. The Boys' Club is a place where boys can hang out with friends, but it's so much more. There are computers with educational programs. There's a trampoline and a small gymnasium, great for relaxing after the long school day. There's a wood shop, and plenty of pool and table tennis tables. If a boy thinks he has too much homework to play games or work with the computers, he can walk upstairs to the Boys' Club's study hall. All of this comes at the whopping membership cost of $1 per year, said Boys' Club director Bert Andries. "The purpose of the fee is just to reinforce the idea of membership to the boys," Andries said. "It gives them the privileges of membership, but it also gives them the responsibility of taking care of the club, too." Andries said the United Way has funneled about $35,000 to the Boys' Club in the past year. The Boys' Club sits at 212 E. Third St., where it's been since 1971. The boys who belong to the Boys' Club get support from the community, but they give back as well. The boys participate in various city cleanups, and they regularly clean up a stretch of the Snyder Highway, just north of Interstate 20. Andries said the typical after-school turnout at the club these days is about 20 boys, but that should pick up when colder weather arrives. "We're more or less growing slowly," said Andries, who been working with Boys' Club members for more

Moscow violence

Events leading up to the violent showdown in Moscow (All times given are local):

1 p.m. Hundreds of stone-throwing hard-liners battled police in central Moscow near Foreign Ministry and set up burning barricades. 3 p.m. Parliament speaker Ruslan Khasbulatov condemned police actions from inside parliament, where he and other hard-line lawmakers have been held up since President Boris Yeltsin disbanded parliament Sept. 21. 9 p.m. Demonstrators dispersed, leaving behind piles of debris which were bulldozed to the side of the Garden Ring Road. 12:30 p.m. Several dozen hard-line supporters of parliament attempted to rebuild the barricades on the Garden Ring Road, but were dispersed by police. 2 p.m. About 10,000 parliament supporters gathered at October Square under a giant statue of Soviet founder Vladimir I. Lenin. Riot police attempted to block the demonstration, but were overwhelmed by protesters. 2:30 p.m. Demonstrators left the square and headed down Garden Ring Road toward the Parliament, known as the White House. They punched through police lines with clubs, metal pipes, and wooden planks and pelted officers with a steady rain of rocks and bottles. 4 p.m. Demonstrators reached the White House, and volleys of gunfire erupted. Much of the firing was in the air. Volunteer parliament guards stormed the nearby city government building after driving captured army trucks through the plate glass front doors, and sprayed the building with bullets. 6 p.m. At the urging of Khasbulatov, thousands of parliament supporters gathered at the main television complex and attempted to storm the building, which was guarded by elite government troops stationed inside. 6:30 p.m. Yeltsin declared a state of emergency in Moscow. 8 p.m. Three television channels went off the air after demonstrators fired rocket-propelled grenades at the television center, starting a fierce gunbattle. Dozens of protesters stormed the building, but were repulsed by the troops inside. Government forces at the television center were reinforced by troops in 12 personnel carriers.

School to approve 90.7 cent tax rate at Oct. 14 meeting

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Tax payers of the Big Spring Independent School District provided no input at a public hearing for the 1994 tax rate recently. No citizen appeared to contest the tax rate Thursday, advertised as a large increase, but will result in no additional taxes because of the dissolution of the County Education District (CED). The BSISD's Board of Trustees will officially set a tax rate with an increase of 90.7 cents per $100 property valuation in their regular meeting on Oct. 14, 5:15 p.m. at the board room at Big Spring High School. Property owners will pay the same rate as last year. "They paid $1.42 last year and they'll pay $1.42 this year," said BSISD Superintendent W.A. McQueary in a recent meeting of the board. The paper increase stems from the school district's absorption of the CED. Because of truth in taxation laws, the school board must post the increase in their tax rate, as the CED tax rate was originally designed as that of a separate taxing entity. So although there will be no actual tax increase to the local property owner, the BSISD tax rate will technically jump from 50.5 cents per $100 property valuation to 142.2 cents per $100, while the CED tax rate will be reduced from 90.7 cents to 0.0 cents. "The bottom line is, we paid $1.42 last year and $1.42 this year," said Assistant Superintendent Ron Plumlee. Other school boards across the state are setting tax rates similar to that of BSISD, McQueary explained. Thursday's hearing was mandated by state laws, as well as local advertisements proclaiming the move. The Texas Legislature passed laws governing these CED tax-rate absorptions, but did not adapt the truth in taxation laws governing the process. The overall tax rate puts the school district well short of the $1.50 per $100 tax-rate limit. Above this amount, a referendum must be established and voter approval given for the tax increase, Plumlee explained. Keeping the overall tax rate the same, while faced with area property devaluations, led to the board's adoption of a deficit budget this year, budgeting into the red at year's end.

Participants needed for study

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

All area residents, but especially those families with a history of neurological disorders, are urged to participate in a research project, conducted locally by the Texas Tech University Health Sciences Center. The project is under the direction of Dr. Shirley Poduslo of Texas Tech, and is designed to gather critical information on Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (Lou Gehrig's disease), Huntington's Chorea and multiple sclerosis. People in their 20s with Down's syndrome would be exceptionally valuable participants in the study. All participants are asked to come to St. Mary's Episcopal Church, 1001 Goliad, between 3 p.m. and 5:30 Tuesday. Blood samples will be collected from each participant and the data from a battery of tests on each sample will provide valuable information in the search for treatments for these disorders. Slides will be prepared so that researchers can refer to this data base for decades, coordinators say. There is no charge for the testing and all information will be kept confidential, between Poduslo's research group and those tested. Information and family history forms may be completed at the collection site. Consent forms for blood samples must be signed by a guardian or family member in situations such as for Alzheimer's patients who are not able to make decisions for themselves. Participants must be 15 years old or older. Persons interested in participating in the project should contact Connie Fowler, local chairperson, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 263-7361, extension 7383. Local medical and clerical personnel will be assisting with the project on a voluntary basis.

Beal's Creek funding moves to committee

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Another chunk of federal money was recently earmarked for the Beal's Creek flood control project in Big Spring by the U.S. Senate. A Senate appropriations bill approved 81-10 last week, now headed to a Senate/House conference committee, provides $600,000 for a diversion channel here and a railroad bridge over it in the annual budget for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and other agencies. An aide in Congressman Charles Stenholm's office this morning was checking to see if the House bill includes the flood control funding. The Senate bill also includes other water projects throughout the nation as well as $640 million for the Superconducting Super Collider in Ellis County. Both Texas senators, Phil Gramm and Kay Bailey Hutchison voted for it. Actual funding for the Beal's Creek project could be available this month, according to a spokeswoman in Gramm's Washington office. The total cost of the flood control project is $4.7 million, of which the city is paying $1.4 million. Local voters approved bonds in October, to be paid with an added city property tax rate of about 3 cents per $100 valuation. An original completion date of mid 1995 has been moved back by the Corp of Engineer's to mid 1997, according to city Public Works Director Tom Decell. Construction that was to begin next fall is scheduled to begin in January 1995. Local survey work for relocation of electric, telephone, gas and water lines continues, Decell said. "We're doing preliminary survey work, finding property corners ... just getting our basic details down."

Sen. Montford appointed to handbook project

By PATRICK DRISCOLL Staff Writer

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, was recently appointed by Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock to a committee to write a "plain language" handbook for jurors. Montford, an attorney and former district attorney in Lubbock, joins four other senators and five House representatives to work with the State Bar of Texas in the Jurors' Handbook Project. It will deal with juror duties and responsibilities, trial procedures, legal terminology and other practical information. "Trial jurors across this state - particularly in criminal courts - have a critical need to know in exact terms what their duties are and what the consequences are of their decisions," Bullock said in a press release. Whether that includes instructions on early releases was not mentioned in the release. An aide in Bullock's Austin office this morning was checking. Bullock did tout Montford's abilities. "John Montford has the legal expertise and good judgment Texas needs," he said. "I have total faith in his ability to bring rhyme and reason to the courts." A Spanish language version of the book will be made. State law requires the State Bar to review and update it annually. In addition, Montford joins two other senators in a Family Code study. It will look at laws governing marriage, divorce, property division, child custody and support. Montford also recently was appointed to a committee charged with studying pros and cons of home equity lending and three state arts committees. Montford chairs the Senate Finance Committee, serves on the Legislative Budget Board, Legislative Audit Committee, Legislative Reference Library Board and Legislative Criminal Justice Board.

Resignations come out of raid report

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Two top federal agents have resigned following a government report that accused them of lying and misleading the public after the failed Branch Davidian raid.

Dan Hartnett, associate director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, and Dan Conroy, deputy associate ATF director, quit Saturday, according to The Dallas Morning News' Sunday editions. They were the top ATF officials in Waco after the Feb. 28 raid.

Hartnett, 53, had been with the ATF for 24 years, and Conroy, 50, was with the agency for 26 years. They were among five ATF officials placed on administrative leave last week after release of a Treasury Department review into the raid. The Treasury Department oversees the ATF.

"We are resigning because we do not agree with the findings of the Waco administrative review," Hartnett and Conroy said in a statement. "The report does not reflect the facts of what occurred in the aftermath of the Waco tragedy."

Four ATF agents and six cult members died in the shootout. A standoff lasted 51 days, ending April 19 when fire consumed the compound, killing Koresh and more than 80 of his followers.

The Treasury report said the raid should have been canceled after an undercover ATF agent told commanders that the Branch Davidians knew the government was coming.

The report said Hartnett, Conroy, and others in Washington failed to take into account the inexperience of raid commanders in planning the assault, and did not recognize the need for less risky contingency plans.

The report also said the men made misstatements to the public or allowed them to be made, and failed to keep superiors fully apprised of key reasons for the raid's failure.

In their first public comment since release of the report, the men said they never lied or intentionally misled anyone. Hartnett and Conroy were unable to be reached Sunday night.

Dick DeGuerin, a Houston attorney who represented Koresh, said Sunday that further investigation was needed.

"Conroy was caught in many lies. He was lying through his teeth and knew he was when he was meeting with the press in Waco," DeGuerin told The Associated Press. "He doesn't have any choice but to turn tail and run."

"I assume there will be referral of findings to the Justice Department and that Justice will treat their misleading statements and testimony as seriously as it would if someone, not a government agent, had lied under oath."

Two religious scholars who analyzed a manuscript Koresh was writing told Newsweek that they believed the cult leader intended to keep his word to authorities and surrender when he had finished the work, according to the magazine.

"I agree wholeheartedly," DeGuerin said. "That is what he put in writing to me."

Hartnett and Conroy said before the Waco operation that they had planned to retire at the end of the year. Their resignations, delivered to Treasury Department officials in Washington, were effective immediately.

Stephen Higgins, the former ATF director, announced his resignation Monday before release of the report.

Another report is being prepared on the FBI's April 19 tear-gas assault on Koresh's compound.

Studing the construction

Kevin Ramier, 9, of Combine, Texas, studies a pterodactyl made from a K'Nex color-coded plastic construction set at the Science Place Museum at the State Fair of Texas Grounds in Dallas. Donations for a children's charity were collected based upon the weight of the materials used in the kids' creations. The state fair opened Friday and continues through Oct. 24.

Assault on Somali warlord continues

The Associated Press

NAIROBI, Kenya — New fighting erupted today in Somalia in the second day of a major U.N. assault aimed at shattering the military command structure of fugitive warlord Mohamed Farrah Aidid.

The fighting followed Sunday's deaths of five American soldiers and the shooting down of two U.S. Blackhawk helicopters in the early hours of the search for Aidid's key lieutenants.

The fighting died down overnight in the Somali capital of Mogadishu, but shooting could be heard from the area where Sunday's battle took place, including apparent cannon fire from U.S. helicopters.

"We consider the operation to be ongoing," Maj. David Stockwell, the chief U.N. military spokesman in Mogadishu, said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press in Nairobi.

Stockwell said he had no details of the renewed fighting. He said officials were investigating reports that some U.S. soldiers had been taken hostage.

The mission started Sunday was the biggest military operation launched by the United Nations since it took over the humanitarian effort in May and brought the largest single day's toll of American deaths.

An undetermined number of U.N. peacekeepers were wounded Sunday.

"We were going after Aidid's military lieutenant structure. We did not expect to find Aidid."

Maj. David Stockwell
U.N. Spokesman

Stockwell said Sunday's fighting erupted after hundreds of U.N. troops, including two U.S. army infantry companies and 70 elite Rangers, captured 24 Somalis in a search for Aidid's aides. Stockwell said several key aides were among those rounded up.

"We were going after Aidid's military lieutenant structure," Stockwell said. "We did not expect to find Aidid."

Stockwell said three of the Somali detainees died of wounds sustained in the shooting that broke out as they were being led out of the area where they were captured.

A spokesman for Aidid said at least 30 Somalis were killed in the fighting, including a number of civilians caught in the crossfire.

The two Blackhawks were shot down by rifle-propelled grenades a mile east of the Bakara Market in southern Mogadishu, injuring crew members.

The area is a stronghold of Aidid, blamed by the United Nations for the deaths of 61 peacekeepers and the wounding of more than 180 in clashes since June. Sixteen U.S. soldiers have been killed to date in Somalia.

Earlier Sunday, a Somali U.N. employee was killed and three U.S. Marines were wounded when their military vehicle was ripped apart by a detonated land mine, Stockwell said.

President Clinton said the United States must not waver from its commitment to help erase "brutality and anarchy" in the East African country.

But Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., said Sunday: "I think we ought to leave now."

Bradley said Congress may cut off money for U.S. involvement in Somalia if the Clinton administration doesn't change course in Mogadishu, where U.N. troops have been caught up in an urban guerrilla war against Aidid's forces.

Relief groups such as France's Medecins Sans Frontieres (Doctors Without Borders) have sharply criticized U.N. and U.S. forces in Somalia, saying the humanitarian mission has degenerated into a repressive military campaign.

Bar-codes being used to avoid body mix-ups

MIAMI (AP) — Those black-and-white bar codes that help speed customers through store checkout lines now may help ensure they make it to their funerals on time, too.

In an effort to avoid those embarrassing body mix-ups, the Dade County Medical Examiner this week begins a trial run of bar-coded toe tags to identify corpses.

The system — similar to one already in use in Los Angeles — should be fully operational in January.

The bar codes look like the ones at stores that are read by computer scanners. "We have scanners just like Home Depot," said Scott J. Hanks, forensic morgue supervisor.

Instead of coming up with a price, the morgue computer will print out a name and other pertinent information. Workers then will make sure it matches the name and case number written on the tag attached to the body's big toe.

The only problem so far has been with the label adhesive, which loses its stickiness in the morgue's varying temperatures. Officials are now testing a new glue.

While praising the new system, Dade officials point out the county has had only three misplaced corpses out of 118,437 bodies handled since 1956.

Yeltsin promises to use restraint

WASHINGTON (AP) — Russian President Boris N. Yeltsin told the Clinton administration he would use restraint and "as little force as possible" though he is determined to put down the rebel uprising.

That promise, made just hours before Yeltsin's tanks attacked the parliament building, was reassuring to the administration, which has preached restraint while publicly offering unwavering support to the Russian leader.

On Sunday night, Clinton stood firmly in Yeltsin's corner, telling an audience in Sacramento the Russian president "has bent over backwards not to have the soldiers fire on anybody, not to promote any violence. And he may be thinking today he went too far. Because they basically got up a head of steam and the situation got out of control."

Even as troops and tanks advanced on the parliament building, Clinton said that he was receiving regular updates on the situation and that the Yeltsin forces were moving "to secure the area where the trouble occurred."

Disgruntled employee kills co-workers

LA VERNE, Calif. (AP) — A former department store employee who felt he was unfairly passed over for promotion allegedly killed two co-workers.

Sergio Nelson, 19, of Pomona, was arrested at home Saturday night and booked for investigation of murder. He was being held early today without bail, Lt. Jim Strona said.

Robin Shirley, 32, and Lee Thompson, 22, both of Pomona, were shot in the back of the head early Saturday as they sat in a car outside the Target store before their shifts, police said.

Nelson walked up to the car and allegedly fired six or seven shots from a handgun through the open back window, Strona said.

Shirley recently had received a promotion in the stockroom that Nelson felt he should have been given, Detective Carl Brubaker said. Thompson, a new employee, "was at the wrong place with the wrong person at the wrong time," Brubaker said.

More Americans pushed over the poverty line

SUITLAND, Md. (AP) — Linger unemployment amid a slow recovery from the recession pushed hundreds of thousands of more Americans into poverty last year, analysts say.

The Census Bureau planned today to release poverty and income statistics for 1992, the first full year of the economic recovery and the last year Republicans were in the White House.

In 1991, 35.7 million Americans lived below the poverty line, the highest number since 1964. Altogether, 14.2 percent of the population was poor, the highest rate since 1984.

Robert Greenstein, executive director of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a Washington public issues group, projects the 1992 poverty rate was near 15 percent, putting the number of poor near the 1962 level of 38.6 million.

Clinton pleads for plan at town meeting

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — President Clinton opened and closed a statewide town meeting with pleas for a health-care reform plan he held out as a salve for the myriad insecurities facing Americans in a changing world.

some people to remove their drivers licenses and credit cards before tossing their wallets into the pillowcase.

Police estimated the total taken at $550.

A Sunday school teacher with children in another room started to come out into the main hall but the robber warned her to close the door and stay inside.

The man collected the money and told the victims to go into the pastor's office until he left and not to call the police, the minister said.

James, who has been pastor of the Pentecostal church since it was built in 1980, said he was appalled that such a crime could happen.

"For someone to rob a small church," James said. "That's getting pretty low."

Ikey Green, a member of the church for the past six years and who was robbed of his wallet, called the incident "unreal" and said he could never envision the robbery of a church.

"It seemed more like a dream than anything," he said.

The robber was described as a white male, 6 feet tall and 25 to 30 years of age. He was wearing a red and blue wind breaker, blue jeans and new high-top tennis shoes.

The car that witnesses saw leaving the church following the robbery matched the description of the getaway car used during a grocery store robbery at Lubbock on Saturday, Officer Victor Quintana said.

In the grocery store robbery, someone took $350 at knife-point from a cash register at the Arnett-Bentson Grocery, police said.

How much further can the country's morals drop?

Even given this day and time of random killing and robbery of almost everything, it still seems unbelievable - a church robbed while services were going on.

That's right. Just as the minister is getting ready to start his sermon, an armed gunman walks in and steals $550 from the members of the congregation.

As the 66-year-old minister Marvin James said "For someone to rob a small church, that's getting pretty low."

Pretty low indeed. A church assaulted during the middle of a service.

We have been asking ourselves for a long time what is wrong with this country and trying many different ways to fix what is wrong. Some of it has worked and, obviously, most of it has not.

But, where do you start to fix the wrong when a church is no longer considered taboo, especially when there are people inside worshipping?

It is an unbelievable drop in character this country has taken.

Use some common sense

First things first. The Big Spring Woman's Club kicked off its annual coat drive last Friday. Last year the club collected and distributed over 400 coats.

It was a collective effort between the club members, several area cleaners and businesses and of course the citizens of Big Spring. The coats went to the state hospital, the Northside Community Center, the Westside Daycare Center, various schools and individuals.

While last year's drive was a tremendous success, winter is right around the corner and there is a need again this year. There are three drop-off locations. The following businesses have graciously allowed drums to be set up. They are Don's in College Park Plaza (the old Furr's), Harris Lumber on FM 700, and Sun Country Coldwell Banker Realty on Gregg Street. A&E, Comet, Gregg Street and Quality Cleaners have volunteered to clean the coats. So, please check your closets and do a good deed for someone.

You know it's strange, Paul Harvey had a column in the paper a couple of weeks ago about how a woman on welfare was collecting over $3,000 a month in benefits. Ironically, my renter called the same week to ask my assistance in helping her with her struggle to get some assistance from a couple of government agencies.

This woman is in her early fifties and has rented from me for the last four years. She has worked as a waitress for the last 12. On several occasions, she has had to work two or three part-time jobs just to make ends meet.

The point here is the woman has always worked and worked hard.

Brenda Brooks

Disaster struck though a couple of months ago when she became ill and unable to work. She went to the welfare office and they gave her some food stamps and told her to come back in a month.

Since she doesn't have children, she is only eligible for $209 per month from the New Mexico General assistance fund. We called HUD to see if we could put the property on the rental property listing. We were told most certainly.

However, there was only one catch, they were not taking applications for rental assistance until November, and then there would be a six month to a year wait before she would receive a housing allowance.

I asked the woman at the HUD office, what was my renter suppose to do until then? She didn't have any suggestions. We're waiting to hear from Social Security, maybe they can help.

The whole situation has really made me wonder. Here's a woman who can't work and there's no help available, and there are people who are getting help and don't want to work. Now don't get me wrong. I've said it before, I'm a die-hard liberal. I believe the government has a moral obligation to help its citizens. I just think it should exercise a little more sense in which citizens it helps.

Barney at rest, in peace and pieces

On a cool morning with the early fall sun at our backs, we buried Barney, the dog.

Or at least we buried the miscellaneous bones that my new dog, Pete, had brought one by one from some secret spot in the woods I had searched for and never found.

I try not to hold it against Pete, this macabre mission he made of delivering Barney piecemeal in such an unbecoming, triumphant manner. I stumbled over Barney's skull on the way to the mailbox one day, and squealed like a girl.

Pete danced about me excitedly, wanting praise. Pete is young and unschooled, never knew Barney and must be forgiven.

The rest of Barney appeared a bone at a time; I collected the remains in a box in the barn, which at first seemed silly, or at best ghoul-ish. But then I warmed to the idea of a decent burial for Barney.

The late, wise editor Michael Grehl once told me never to write about my dogs or my children, and that's the only one of his newspaper tenets I ever knowingly and flagrantly violated.

"My" children all belong to someone else and therefore I can maintain a veneer of objectivity and sense of humor when chronicling their misadventures.

And Barney was too wonderful not to share with the world. Like Jack London's Buck, Barney did not read the newspapers. Thus he never complained about what I wrote, and that alone is worth something.

I am sorry for people who don't own dogs, who don't know that inimitable dog gift of total loyalty and friendship. You cannot get the same treatment from other humans or cats.

People are all right in a pinch and periods of prosperity, as are cats. But their loyalty is conditional. A dog will stick by you when the bottle is dry and the ammunition wet.

That wonderful Tennessee writer Tom T. Hall put it into perfect words, a precious few, when he wrote of old dogs, children and watermelon wine, the only things worth a "solitary dime":

He said women think about themselves when menfolk ain't around, And friends are hard to find when they discover that you down.

He said I tried it all when I was young and in my natural prime; Now it's old dogs, children and watermelon wine.

Old dogs care about you even when you make mistakes. God bless little children while they're still too young to hate.

When he moved away, I found my pen and copied down that line "Bout old dogs and children and watermelon wine."

The world without dogs would be barren as a moonscape, and literature and music would miss them a lot, too. Think. There would be no "Call of the Wild," no "Dog of Flanders," fewer Robert Service poems, no "Three Dog Night," no "101 Dalmatians."

Dogs are heartfelt poetry, the kind that rhymes. They are songs with a melody, the fireside chats of the animal kingdom.

Even the names of the great dogs I have known, or known about, reek of uncomplicated love and trust: Barney, Sport, Buster, Jack, Ol' Yeller, Wheeler, Randy, Humphrey. It makes me feel good just to list them.

Mutts usually are the best dogs because they are free of human interference; people have not arranged their marriages and tried to mold their looks and personalities. A dog that comes home with you as a puppy abandoned at a garbage bin is a mystery unraveling and loyal as a tick.

Barney's grave is up on a modest hill where an old log house used to sit. I call the spot "the old home place." Time has almost buried the chimney bricks and closed the root cellar, but my imagination still can render a floor plan.

Each spring the hillside is covered with daffodils that propagate and make a glorious statement in butter yellow. It is one of springtime's most pleasant duties to make the walk up the hill and check on the progress of the ever-spreading flowers.

Now the trek will have double meaning, and Barney will never want for a fresh bouquet. Pete and I will make the walk together.

Selling NAFTA a job for the president

Scripps Howard News Service

On the NAFTA team at the White House, there is a young Clintonite with the title "surrogate scheduler." Her job? To line up stand-ins for the president, who is too busy selling his health care reforms to crusade for free trade.

Favorite administration surrogates include Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen and Secretary of State Warren Christopher. The secretaries of labor and commerce are doing their part, as is, of course, trade representative Mickey Kantor. The latest outside celebrity to join the effort for the North American Free Trade Agreement is Lee Iacocca, who met with the president Thursday. The former Chrysler chairman joins all five living former presidents — Bush, Reagan, Carter, Ford and Nixon — and 41 of the 50 governors, not to mention talk show cult figure Rush Limbaugh, in embracing NAFTA's opening of the Mexican market to American goods and services. The trouble is, the lineup on the other side of the issue includes not just surrogates but also principals. House Democratic leader Dick Gephardt of Missouri announced his opposition to NAFTA this week, and he will actually cast a vote on the agreement's fate. He is, to say the least, well placed to influence undecided colleagues.

Gephardt is not alone in the Democratic leadership in Congress to oppose his president on this issue. David Bonior, D-Mich., majority whip, is leading the anti-NAFTA charge. Their allies in organized labor are the backbone of the protectionist lobby and an important source of campaign funding for Hill Democrats.

In the House, where NAFTA is expected to face a decisive vote in November, about 100 Democrats have taken no stand. Some two-thirds of Republicans were considered pro-NAFTA last summer, but support frayed when labor activists and Ross Perot enthusiasts and Pat Buchananite isolationists descended on town meetings back in their districts. The president has scores of converts to make to carry the House.

This is no work for surrogates alone. The president himself, with his famous capacity for empathy, must address grass-roots fears and convince Americans that increased exports to Mexico will temper, not aggravate, inevitable labor adjustments here.

Equally, the president must change politicians' minds. He must deploy the full range of arguments he made so powerfully in his White House speech last week justifying increased trade with our neighbors and with the world.

The priority the president places on reforming health care is understandable, but it must not be allowed to drown NAFTA out. To lose this one for lack of commitment at the top would corrode respect for the president's seriousness across the board.

Sneering service

I was checking into a hotel one late night recently. The desk clerk didn't give me a key, he gave me a rectangular plastic card.

This wasn't my first rodeo. I had stayed at hotel rooms before, and I knew most hotels now give you a plastic card to open the door to your room, not a key.

There was no bellman on duty at the hour I checked in. It was a small town. The bellman got off at 6 p.m. and went over to eat dinner with Aunt Bee and Opie.

So up the elevator—it wasn't that small a town—I went with my bags to my room.

I read the instructions carefully on the rectangular plastic card.

Insert card into slot in door, it read. When green light appears, remove card and door will open.

I inserted the card into the slot in the door. I am good at following directions. A green light did appear, then disappeared. I took the card out and turned the door handle.

The door wouldn't open. I figured it out. I had to remove the card while the green light was still on in order to get the door to open.

I inserted the card into the slot again. The green light appeared again. I tried to yank the card out before it disappeared again.

I wasn't fast enough. The door still wouldn't open.

"Fast light," I said to myself. Actually I said something else, but they wouldn't allow that kind of language on the Andy Griffith Show.

I tried a third time.

No luck.

Wyatt Earp wasn't fast enough to outdraw that stupid green light.

Then, I suddenly had to go to the bathroom. Why is it that whenever you can't unlock a door you immediately have to go to the bathroom?

It never fails. You can't find your keys to your house and all of a sudden you feel like you drank a Poland Springs water truck for lunch.

I'm tired. I'm sleepy. I have to go to the bathroom, and I'm standing outside a hotel room with a silly rectangular plastic card that supposed to open my door, but won't.

I know what I have to do. I have to get back on the elevator, go back down to the lobby, use the lobby restroom and then tell the desk clerk my card won't open my door.

He will, of course, be skeptical. He will look at me like, here is a grown man who can't do anything as simple as insert a card in a slot, wait for the green light, then take out the card and open the door.

And he will be correct.

I found the lobby bathroom, then went to the desk clerk.

"I can't get my card to open my door," I said.

"Did you read the instructions on the card?" he asked me, skeptically.

Distan covered his face. I thought for a moment how good it would feel to remove a portion of that, the portion near his nose.

"I read the instructions," I said. "This card won't open my door."

He gave me a new one. The second card didn't work either, so, finally, the desk clerk had to accompany me to my room. He inserted the first card into the slot and my door opened. It took him three seconds. I had to go to the bathroom again.

"There," he said. "That wasn't so hard, was it?" he sneered. And he did sneer. It was a hotel desk clerk's sneer, the same kind you get from a waiter in a spiffy restaurant when you ask if you can have some ice cream on top of the pie a la mode.

I have brought up this situation before. Hotel people tell me that cards keep thieves from stealing keys and breaking into rooms. Of course they do. The thieves couldn't figure out how to work one of those cards, either.

I went to the hotel restaurant for lunch the next day. I ordered pie a la mode.

"Want some ice cream on top of that?" the waiter asked.

The hotel and I are even on sneers.

stormed the mayor's office and attacked the state television company.
The two days of bloodshed were the worst political violence in Moscow since the 1917 Bolshevik Revolution, but their impact — particularly in Russia's far-flung provinces — was unclear.
While the storming of the White House could break the hard-line opposition, it also could provide Yeltsin's opponents with martyrs and ruin his reputation as a man of peace.
When Yeltsin stood up to the Communist coup attempt in August 1991, his opponents either balked at storming the White House or were unable to get the military to attack the building, ringed with civilian demonstrators.
On Monday, the army struck with overwhelming force, including at least 10 heavy tanks, 7 light tanks, and 25 armored personnel carriers.
Yeltsin immediately went on nationwide television to explain the assault, while it was still raging.
"All that was and still is going on in Moscow — was an armed revolt planned in advance," he said. "It was organized by Communists seeking revenge, by fascist leaders and some of the former lawmakers."

"There can be no forgiveness, because they lifted their hand against peaceful people" in Sunday's rioting, he added.
The attack came after Yeltsin's government gave the hard-line lawmakers one last chance to surrender their arms and leave the building.
When they refused, Yeltsin issued a decree ordering the ministries of defense, interior and security to restore order. That was the official sanction for the assault.
Elite commandos of the Interior Ministry's KGB Dzerzhinsky Division, wearing plain clothes but riding on armored personnel carriers, approached the building from two directions at about 7 a.m.
They were followed by tanks and soldiers from the Russian army's Taman Division and by paratroopers from the Tula Division. The units apparently had come into Moscow overnight from bases around the capital.

Braves win NL West as Giants fall in LA

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — After winning game No. 104, the Braves waited and watched. And, finally, on the last day of the best pennant race in years, the San Francisco Giants cracked.

The Braves won their third straight NL West title Sunday — but it didn't happen until three hours after their 5-3 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

With players watching on a big-screen television in the trainers' room, and about 8,000 fans watching on the scoreboard television in Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium, the title finally came when the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Giants 12-1 a continent away. Only then, after a marathon stretch drive that baseball will never forget, did the party finally begin.

"Three in a row is great," manager Bobby Cox said in the midst of a boisterous champagne celebration. "This was the toughest one. We had to win so many games, it was unbelievable."

Atlanta and San Francisco began the day in a tie for first, only the second time since divisional play began in 1969 that teams were even going into the final day. But the Braves made the Giants the first team since the 1954 New York Yankees to win 103 games and finish second.

"We showed character," said David Justice, who hit his 40th homer. "They showed a lot of character, too. It's unfortunate one of us had to go home. I'm just happy it's them."

The two-time NL champions needed a remarkable comeback to win the race. The Braves, in a hitting slump throughout the first half of the season, trailed the Giants by 9 1/2 games on Aug. 8.

The July 18 acquisition of Fred McGriff helped Atlanta's offense get going, and the Braves won 39 of their final 50 games.

"He made everyone in the lineup better," said Tom Glavine, who beat the Rockies for his 22nd win. "The day he stepped in the clubhouse we became a better team."

San Francisco, however, kept up the pressure by winning 14 of 16 before Sunday's loss. A Giants win would have forced a playoff game Monday night. Atlanta players had their bags packed in the clubhouse for a possible flight to San Francisco on Sunday night.

Glavine (22-6) won for the eighth time in nine starts, allowing three runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings with four strikeouts and one walk. Greg McMichael pitched the final two innings for his 19th save in 21 chances, giving the Braves a 13-0 sweep of the Rockies, the first time this century an NL team swept a season series from a rival.

GLAVINE

Atlanta took control of the day early, going ahead 2-0 in the third on RBI singles by McGriff and Terry Pendleton off David Nied (5-9), a former Brave who was the first player taken in the expansion draft last fall. Pendleton had nine RBI in the three-game series.

Otis Nixon opened the third with a single and took second on Jeff Blauser's grounder. Gant walked before McGriff's single scored Nixon. Gant was thrown out trying for third by center fielder Chris Jones, but Justice and Pendleton followed with singles for the second run.

Atlanta made it 4-0 in the fourth. Nixon walked with two outs and Blauser singled him to second before Gant followed with a liner to center that Jones misplayed into a triple, allowing two runs.

Glavine faced only 13 hitters in the first four innings, giving up only a bloop single to Jerald Clark in the second.

San Francisco Giants manager Dusty Baker struck an entire season's worth of sweat and toil on a 21-year-old rookie. Salomon Torres welcomed the challenge but couldn't handle the task.

And since six relievers couldn't do much better, San Francisco saw its pennant hopes expire. Pitching, which had been the Giants' weak spot all season, failed them with the NL West title on the line.

"We were out of gas with our pitching," said Baker, whose relievers gave up eight runs on homers. "Everybody that went out there today was extremely exhausted because they had pitched so much."

Baker made so many trips to the mound, he ended up exhausted, too.

The first-year manager's controversial decision to start Torres (3-5), who gave up three runs and walked five in 3 1-3 innings, turned out not to matter much after Dave Burba was tagged with three more runs on two homers in the fifth. The Dodgers were up 6-1, and San Francisco never threatened again.

For days, Baker had mulled over whether to go with Torres' talent or the experience of Scott Sanderson or Jim Deshaies. He chose Torres, who began the season with the Giants' Class AA Shreveport club.

"Sometimes you've got to go with ability over veteran," he said.

Baker gave Torres the ball even though the right-hander was 1-4 with a 4.44 ERA in his previous five starts.

Cowboys roll past Packers

By The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Just when there was hope in the outside world that the world champion Dallas Cowboys had a fatal flaw, they fixed it.

Remember Eddie Murray, the 14-year veteran of five NFL teams?

On Sunday, he tied the best performance of his NFL career with five field goals in a 36-14 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

The 37-year-old Murray tied a club record with five field goals, including long-distance 48 and 50 yarders.

Dallas, which had lost its first two games thanks in part to poor placekicking by Lin Elliott, evened its record at 2-2. Meanwhile the Packers, last-second losers in two games, fell to 1-3. Murray stole the spotlight away from Emmitt Smith, who made his first start. Smith scored on a 22-yard run and gained 71 yards on 13 carries before a tight hamstring forced him to the sidelines.

It also was Troy Aikman's fourth 300-yard passing day as he hit 18 of 23 passes for 317 yards and a 61-yard scoring pass to Michael Irvin.

The all-out Cowboys, who held a 10-7 lead, stunned the Packers with an onside kick that Darrin Smith recovered after Derrick Gainer knocked the ball loose from Marcus Wilson. Murray made the gamble pay off with a 19-yard field goal for a 13-7 advantage.

A 50-yard Murray field goal and Smith's scoring run put the Cowboys up 26-7 before Green Bay's Robert Brooks made the most exciting play of the game, a 95-yard kickoff return for a touchdown.

Other NFL Games

Randall Cunningham and Joe Montana, two of the NFL's marquee quarterbacks, were knocked out of games Sunday — although you couldn't tell it by the final scores.

Cunningham broke his left leg in the Philadelphia Eagles' 35-30 comeback victory over the New York Jets. He will be sidelined eight to 10 weeks and may need surgery.

Montana was felled by a strained left hamstring in the second quarter, but the Kansas City Chiefs went on to defeat the Los Angeles Raiders 24-9. Montana, who missed the second game of the season with a wrist injury, was limping badly after the game and his status is uncertain for next week.

Seattle quarterback Rick Mirer also took his lumps, sidelined with a sprained left ankle in the last 21 seconds of the first half. After Dan McGwire threw for a touchdown before halftime, Mirer returned and led the Seahawks past San Diego 31-14 for their third straight victory.

Eagles 35, Jets 30

Eagles backup Bubby Brister rallied Philadelphia from a two-touchdown deficit. Eric Allen raced 94 yards with an interception for the winning touchdown.

Cunningham was injured in the second quarter when he appeared to take a mis-step and then was hit by Marvin Washington and Scott Mercereau.

Runnels shuts out Monahans twice

Monahans visited Blankenship Field Thursday and wishes it hadn't.

Runnels Junior High blasted Monahans 34-0 in the "B" game, then 31-0 in the "A" contest.

Runnels took a 2-0 lead in the first quarter of the "A" game when Jason Brock tackled a Monahans running back in the end zone for a safety. Then Runnels' Jeff Denton put on a show.

Denton ran for a 1-yard touchdown, and Brock Gee added the two-point conversion on a pass from Gabriel Mendoza. Runnels led 10-0 at halftime.

Denton then tackled the Monahans quarterback in the end zone for a safety. Soon after, Runnels' Robin Cisneros returned a punt 50 yards for a touchdown. Oscar Canales kicked the extra point, and Runnels led 19-0.

Runnels added two fourth-quarter touchdowns on Marcus Hyatt's 18-yard run and Bo Eldridge's fumble recovery.

Additional fine performances for Runnels came from Charles Rodriguez, Antwone Edwards, James Newman, Val Torres, Sammy Prince, James Smith, Gil Grawunder, Josh Ferneau, Kaman Barber, Frankie Loya, C.J. Ashley, Jeremy Collier, Bobby Rodriguez and Luis Pena.

Jeremy Klaus, another Runnels standout, injured his left knee in the game and is expected to miss the rest of the season.

Runnels 'B' 34, Monahans 0

Five different Runnels players scored touchdowns in this romp.

Michael Lee started the show for the Yearlings with a 43-yard touchdown run in the first quarter. John Lawdermilk added the extra point.

In the second quarter, Lee launched a 75-yard touchdown pass to Robert Cisneros. Runnels led 13-0 at the half.

Lawdermilk broke free for a 51-yard touchdown run in the third quarter, and he threw a two-point conversion pass to Greg Wollenzein in the fourth quarter.

In the fourth, Runnels scored two touchdowns. Jacob Rios ran for a 39-yard touchdown, and he later added an extra point to Justin Cotton's 34-yard touchdown run.

Defensive standouts were Dusty Osborn, Chris Perry, Chris Felty, John Peters, Jason Cerda, Bobby Legg, Dylan Chambers, Ricky Perez, Clayton Pate, Eddie Campos, Shane Haynie and Will Shoals.

Goliad White 6, Monahans 0

MONAHANS - Ray Zapata scored the only touchdown of this Thursday game as Goliad edged Monahans.

Zapata's 1-yard touchdown run came with 2 seconds left in the second quarter. Daniel White, Angel Larez, Dusty Clayton, Michael Krueger, Travis Gray, Chris Ari, Jason Campos and Jason Mims provided strong blocking for Goliad.

Zapata, Johnny Delacruz, Rudy Gamboa, Gilbert Rubio, Jacob Flores and Josh Lory led Goliad's superb defensive effort.

Monahans 12, Goliad Black 8

MONAHANS - Goliad fell short in a hard-hitting game Thursday.

Goliad trailed 6-0 when Tory Mitchell intercepted a Monahans two-point conversion attempt and returned it 97 yards for two points of his own.

Jake Turner's reverse pass to Matt Mendoza was good for a Goliad 28-yard touchdown, but the Lobos held on for the win.

Josh Ontiveros, Joe Owens, Brandon Turner, Mitchell and Tyrone Smith played well offensively for Goliad. Thomas Garza, Mendoza, Carlos Viera and Chris Keller were defensive standouts.

Greenwood 28, Coahoma 7th 6

GREENWOOD - Vincent Garcia's 32-yard touchdown run in the second quarter was Coahoma's lone highlight as they dropped a 28-6 decision to Greenwood in seventh-grade football action Thursday.

Offensively, Coahoma coaches praised the play of Garcia and linemen B.J. Batson and Aaron Boodle. Defensive stars for Coahoma were Garcia from his cornerback position and defensive lineman Lester Duffer.

Coahoma (3-1) returns to action at 5 p.m. Thursday against Wall at Bulldog Stadium.

Greenwood 34, Coahoma 8th 0

GREENWOOD - Greenwood completed its evening sweep with a 34-0 whitewash of Coahoma in the eighth-grade game Thursday.

Coahoma coaches cited the play of Roy Ladesma, Jerry Mann, Anthony Gonzales and Jim Boudreau. The junior high Bulldogs fell to 1-3 with the loss.

Coahoma returns to action at 6:30 p.m. Thursday at home against Wall.

Forsan 22, Garden City 0

Forsan Junior High blasted Garden City Thursday.

After a scoreless first quarter, T.J. Lipham scored on a 63-yard run. Forsan's second touchdown came in the third quarter Joey Jackson's 22-yard run. The Buffaloes' final touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Jackson scored on a 48-yard run. Jackson also added an extra point.

Blaine Roman intercepted a pass in the end zone on the next-to-last play of the game to keep Garden City off the scoreboard. Forsan is 2-1 and hosts Roscoe Thursday.

Crossroads plays third week

The Crossroads Little Football League enjoyed its third week of action Saturday.

Steers 30, Lions 26

Clarence Wilkin was unstoppable in this game, scoring four touchdowns to help the Steers (1-1) outscore the Lions (1-2).

Believe or not, Wilkin was the only boy to reach the end zone four times. Mario Hernandez of the Lions also scored four TDs.

Zack Tuttle had a strong game on offense for the Steers, while Wilkin and Robert Aldridge were the Steers' defensive leaders.

Offensive linemen James Wallace, Larry Martinez and Johnny Coley played well for the Lions, while John Lopez, Chri McBrayer and Chad Puga were strong on defense.

Jeremy Randel, with ball, attracts a lot of attention in an under-8 division match Saturday in the Big Spring YMCA Soccer Association league. Trailing Randel are his Citizens Federal Credit Union Cub teammates, from left, Wesley Parks, David Hughes and Ian Ritchie. Ritchie scored all three goals for the Cubs as they tied the AutoTrend Bulldogs. Scoring for the Bulldogs were Jacob Castle, Brandon Gross and Ryan Wegman.

Oilers 8, Bulldogs 0

The Oilers (2-1) preserved a win on the game's final play.

The Oilers' Abel Guzman tackled a Bulldog runner at the one-foot line on the final play of the game. Guzman had trailed the runner for 50 yards before catching him.

Mike Smith scored the only touchdown of the game on a 15-yard run. Joshua Matthews also played well offensively for the Oilers. The Oilers' entire defensive unit takes credit for the shutout, with Robert and Anthony Garza turning in outstanding performances.

Paul Ruiz, Cleo Stone, Travis Hogg and Brandon Hart played well on the offensive line for the Bulldogs (0-2). Allen Belew, Curtin Drake and Eddie Gonzales were strong on defense for the 'Dogs.

Bulldogs 11 44, Buffaloes 11 14

Cody Teeler ran for two touchdowns and Michael Kinard passed for two others as the Bulldogs (2-0) rolled past the Buffaloes (1-2).

Jacob Eastham and Tommy Cruz caught touchdown passes. Oscar Velasquez and Lorin Wolf opened plenty of holes on the offensive line for the Bulldogs.

Defensive stars for the Bulldogs included Teeler (who scored a third touchdown on an interception return), Steven Henry, Delvin White, Joe Brice Wright and Blaine Wright. Chris Rios and Furillo Subia scored touchdowns for the Buffs. Stephen Tilley, Jonathan Becerra, Jeremy Becerra and Javier Becerra were the Buffs' top defensive players.

Longhorns 28, Packers 0

Lance Brock scored three touchdowns, and the defense took care of the rest as the Longhorns (3-0) cruised to a win.

Matt Green scored a touchdown, and Jose Pena played an excellent game at center for the winners. Joseph Clark, Adam Valencia and Chris Jackson led the Longhorns' superb defensive showing.

Remembering the right-field bleachers at Arlington Stadium

I promised myself I wasn't going to get that misty-eyed Sunday when the last pitch was thrown at Arlington Stadium, and I succeeded.

Barely. It wasn't as if they are tearing down Wrigley Field or Fenway Park, for Pete's sake. The stadium, which will be demolished in favor of the brand-spanking new The Ballpark in Arlington (what a great name - but don't get me started on that) doesn't even come close to those grand fields in terms of charisma.

In fact, Arlington Stadium was (I might as well use past tense now) a hodgepodge edifice that had about all the charm of your average post office.

It was originally built, I believe in the '50s, as the home for minor league and college baseball teams. After the Texas Rangers moved in back in 1972, seating was added here and there, giving the place a semi-ramshackle appearance.

There was no Green Monster in left field, no ivy-colored fences, no monuments in center field ... nothing that would make it stand out from any other ballpark in the country - unless you count the nachos, which I don't.

But as ordinary as the park was, it still was a good place to watch baseball, and it was where I fell in love with the game. In 1979 I moved to Fort Worth and lived in an apartment about a 10-minute drive from the stadium. I was young and free in the big city, and since the ballpark was so close by and tickets were cheap, I decided to catch a few Rangers games.

Finding a good seat in those days never was a problem. The Rangers weren't exactly horrible (they were in first place as late as July), but you could always count on the Rangers doing a second-half swoon, so good seats in August and September were never hard to find.

After a few trips, I finally gravitated to the right-field bleachers, partly because they were the cheapest but mostly because they were closest to my favorite Ranger that year - right fielder Al Oliver.

Oliver, in my opinion, was one of the sweetest-swinging hitters of his time, and he was a pretty fair fielder as well. In four years at Arlington Stadium, which was a pitcher's park in those days, Oliver averaged over .300.

The Rangers had other good players, such as Hall-of-Famer Ferguson Jenkins, catcher Jim Sundberg, reliever Jim Kern and second baseman Bump Wills, but Oliver was my favorite that year.

A fantasy of mine that year was for me to catch an Oliver home run bare-handed, then have him autograph the ball. I never caught one of Oliver's homers, although I almost had my head taken off by a Reggie Jackson line drive one night. Jackson always did like to hit at Arlington Stadium.

Anyway, a funny thing happened to me that year. Baseball, a sport I had always enjoyed but considered a distant second to football, assumed its rightful place at the top of my favorites' list.

There are certain rhythms to the game that can only be appreciated at the ballpark; TV, for whatever reason, does not do full justice to the game.

But sitting out in right field, with a program in one hand and those darned soggy nachos in another, talking about the comparative merits of certain players with some guy who was on his 15th beer (but god-natured, nonetheless), I found that going to a baseball game was just about the best fate a person could hope for.

And I guess I owe Arlington Stadium at least partial thanks for that.

I moved away from Fort Worth in 1980 and saw precious few Rangers games after that. I kept telling myself to catch a game this year, but other things always kept coming up.

I watched Sunday's final game at Arlington Stadium on TV and, as Juan Gonzalez made the final out in the final game at the rickety old place, I thought about what I would write about.

As I tried to recall all the memories I had about the place, I discovered that few really clear ones came to mind. All that I could remember was the general feelings I had watching the Rangers make their slow but sure way to winter vacation.

Feelings like the pleasure I took from striking up casual friendships in the right-field bleachers, resignation from watching the Rangers sink like a stone, joy at Oliver's exploits and a semi-sadness at the end of another season.

All of that I experienced at Arlington Stadium. Who the heck needed ivy-covered fences?

Dear Abby - Letters...

Son's sudden death is lesson to all

DEAR ABBY: This is in response to "Unsure in Framingham, Mass.," whose fiancée refused to marry him because of the high risk involved in his chosen career as a state trooper.

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter in your column regarding slamming doors in anger, it brought a smile to my face remembering the last time I slammed a door.

DEAR ABBY: A few months ago, you printed a letter from a woman who was distressed because a young man, apparently trying to reach his father on Father's Day to bury the hatchet after a longtime dispute, reached this woman's answering machine, but did not leave his own telephone number.

DEAR ABBY: I know egg-zactly how you must have felt.
