Judge dismisses Brooks' suit against city, Mid-Tex

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Judge Bob Moore of the 118th District Court has dismissed a lawsuit against the city of Big Spring and Mid-Tex Detention Center.

The suit followed the Feb. 17, 1992, kidnapping of Carmen Brooks, a bilingual teacher with the Big Spring Correctional Centers.

Brooks was attacked by two inmates, Pedro Sotello-Romero and Juan E. Ramirez. She was held in a choke hold with a box-cutter-type knife while the two inmates demanded a vehicle. The knife was reportedly stolen from the prison's arts and crafts program.

Prison officials made a vehicle available to Romero and Ramirez and they fled the facility west on Interstate 20 at a high rate of speed.

Following a 100 mph-plus chase, the vehicle was stopped five miles east of downtown Midland on I-20 when pursuing officers shot out two of the vehicle's tires.

Romero attempted to use Brooks' body as a shield, but, was shot and killed by Department of Public Safety Trooper Curtis Becker.

A few weeks after the escape, Brooks filed a lawsuit maintaining the city and Mid-Tex failed to provide a safe workplace, failed to properly monitor and supervise inmates and failed to implement appropriate hostage response strategies.

Brooks listed her damages including medical expenses, loss of earning capacity, physical pain, depression, mental anguish, permanent physical impairment and cosmetic impairment.

Brooks received numerous small lacerations from glass and metal as the bullets passed through the rear window before striking Ramirez's body.

In his decision, Judge Moore dismissed the suit, ruling Mid-Tex and the city could not held liable for the prison employee's ordeal.

Brooks' attorneys, Vicki Grigg of Austin and Wayne Basden of Big Spring, have not filed an appeal.

When asked if an appeal could be expected, Basden said, "No... no it's over."

In recent interviews, Brooks said the nightmares and psychological trauma of the event have lessened in intensity, and that coping with the incident is becoming easier.

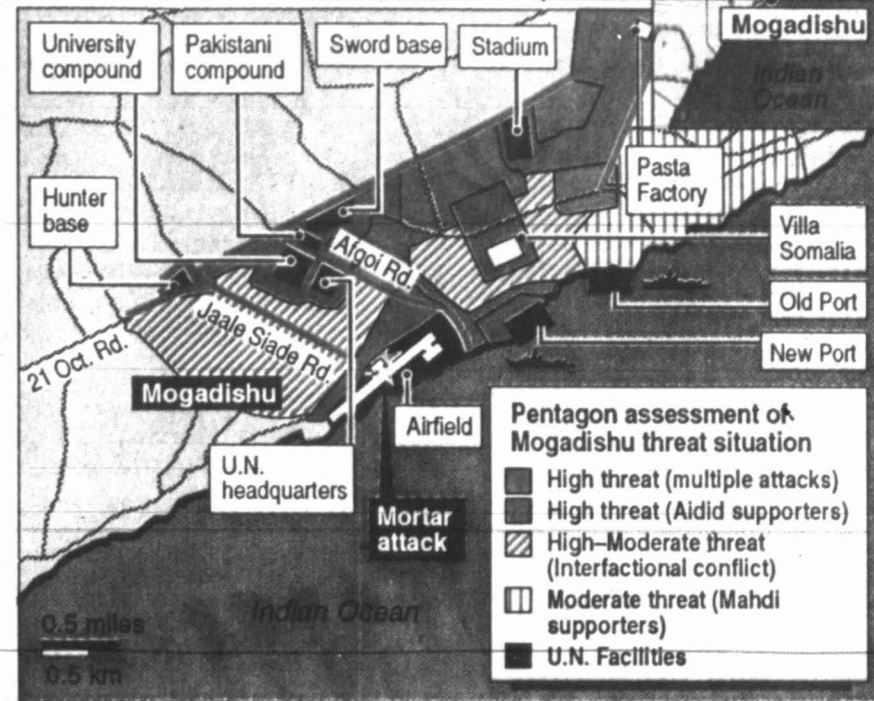

Trooper Becker received a citation from the

New attack on U.S. troops

An American soldier was killed and 12 others wounded in a mortar attack by Somali militiamen on Mogadishu's airport. The latest attack on the airport came several hours after the arrival of the first of some 600 infantrymen ordered into Somalia since Sunday by Clinton.

They are bringing with them four Abrams tanks, 14 Bradley fighting machines and two AC-130 aerial gunships. All will be attached to the Quick Reaction Force.

Center finds United Way crucial

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

With a long waiting list and tight budget, the Westside Day Care Center keeps a close eye on every penny it receives.

The $20,000 it receives from United Way is crucial, even though it is only 6 percent of its overall budget, says center director Melinda Hernandez.

"Right now government funding is real low and we depend on United Way for everyday expenses," she said. United Way has been allocating money for the center since 1973.

Other funding is derived from a childcare management services regional contract with the Texas Department of Human Services, sliding scale tuition and private donations. Fees paid by parents are about 10 percent of the $180,000 annual budget.

In 1989, with the help of a private contribution, the center was able to paint the inside of the building and its playground equipment.

On an average the center provides care for 67 children, but is licensed for 85. "Enrollment is down and the need is definitely there but the money is not," Hernandez said. "There are people who qualify but there just isn't the money."

Celebrating its 20th anniversary, the center continues to provide child care for a nominal fee to parents qualifying — many accepted free.

Fees are collected from parents on an ability-to-pay basis. The family's monthly income is evaluated and the amount each mother or family can pay is established.

One criteria for placement is that the parent or parents must be working or seeking an education or vocational education.

About half of the center's mothers are single, Hernandez said.

Investor claims Big Spring can be area's jewel

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Business Editor

Wake up Big Spring! You've got potential to be the jewel of West Texas.

Take it from Michael Harkinson, a former resident of Hawaii and Florida, now a local who's trying to sell West Texas to Hawaii real estate investors. He chose Big Spring as his home base, moving from Hawaii where he lived eight years.

"With some of the right moves, this town could rebuild itself," said Harkinson of Hana-Hou Investments. "This place could really boom."

Hana-Hou is Hawaiian for "one more time."

Big Spring is more than just an office for Harkinson. On Aug. 29, he bought the Twin Towers apartment complex on West U.S. Highway 80 for Francis Moy, a client of Hawaii Real Estate Professionals, and is now manager overseeing renovations.

On Sept. 9, he and Ken Sikes of Real Estate Professionals bought the Sandra Gale Apartments two blocks away, changed the name to Western Hills Apartments and will soon renovate that facility.

Harkinson said he wants to spruce up the image of the Westside, not only renovating but providing security and playgrounds with half-court basketball grounds at both complexes. Rents will go up to what a survey indicates 75 percent of median income renters can afford. Government-subsidized apartments may be available.

"Our plan is to provide good, clean, low income housing for low income people and safety," he said.

And, he added, "There has to be something for the children to be able to do."

Occupancy at the 48-unit Twin Towers has already increased from 65 percent to 85 percent. The 65-unit Western Hills complex is 30 percent full.

Harkinson found Big Spring through a Twin Tower for-sale ad in a Dallas newspaper. He came to Texas seeking investments for equity-rich Hawaiians who benefited from a recent real estate boom. The average house in Hawaii is $330,000, compared to average sales price of $131,000 for the United States and $46,000 in Big Spring.

Pointing to recent Big Spring Herald reports on increasing retail businesses, jobs and housing, Harkinson said the area has potential.

Gross sales and wages have been down some in recent years - when inflation is taken into account - but appear to be leveling. In addition, Please see INVESTOR, page 5

Superintendent outlines poorer schools' needs

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A $400,000 per-campus gap in the education finance law could mean the difference in poor schools having reading and science labs, the former Edgewood district's superintendent has testified in a trial on the measure.

"It would have a great effect," said Jimmy Vasquez, who was for 13 years superintendent of Edgewood, the school that led in filing a state court lawsuit nearly a decade ago seeking equitable school funding.

The $400,000 gap is based on a $600 per-student difference between richer and poorer school districts, and an average-size campus, said lawyer Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund. He represents poor schools challenging the new law.

The law guarantees property-poor school districts $3,600 per student at a local property tax rate of $1.50 per $100 valuation, in state and local funds combined.

The wealthiest school districts, based on local property values, can raise up to $4,200 per student at that tax rate.

Poor school districts say about $165 million is shifted from them to wealthier districts under the new law, compared with the funding formulas used last year.

Vasquez testified that in poor schools dealing with minority and economically disadvantaged students who don't speak English, a funding loss "will have a disastrous effect, as far as I'm concerned."

"We're talking about the most fragile kind of kids," said Vasquez, who works for the Texas Education Agency, overseeing school districts with governance problems.

Lawyer Kevin O'Hanlon of TEA, helping defend the law in the case, said that Edgewood has received significantly more from the state since the original funding lawsuit was filed.

The Texas Supreme Court in 1989 ordered lawmakers to even out funding available to school districts of differing property wealth. The Legislature twice has struck out with reform laws intended to meet that order.

Even though spokesmen for poor school districts say most of them lose state aid under the new law compared with last year, O'Hanlon said, Edgewood budgeted $5 million more for 1993-94, at about $86 million.

Current Edgewood Superintendent Dolores Munoz said she expects the district to lose $1.3 million in state aid. She said $6 million of the budget is scheduled to come from the district's fund balance.

Toxic smoke pours from a battery recycling center in Pecos Thursday. Hundreds of people were evacuated from area schools and Reeves County Hospital as firefighters brought the fire under control. The smoke from the burning car batteries was not lethal, but can irritate eyes and burn skin, officials said.

Dozens treated during Pecos warehouse fire

The Associated Press

PECOS — Hundreds of people were evacuated from residences, businesses and schools Thursday because of toxic smoke from a fire that destroyed a storage facility at a battery recycling center on the west edge of town.

The fire began shortly after 9 a.m. and was extinguished by about 5:30 p.m. by Pecos firefighters. Nearly 50 people suffered respiratory problems after breathing the harsh fumes.

The fire gutted a 100-by-100 foot metal warehouse at Recovery and Reclamation Inc. used for storing used, alkaline car batteries and other materials.

Joe Basham, director of environmental affairs for the company, said the fire was started by an unknown material found inside a 55-gallon drum. The drum was among 13 that had been transferred to the warehouse from an undetermined source.

Basham said the drums were labeled as lithium batteries. However, when workers began to open them, they found they were full of thin, rectangular aluminum plates.

The workers were resealing the barrels when Basham said he discovered a substance that looked similar to aluminum foil under the plates.

When he exposed the material to the air, it ignited.

Basham said he tried to smother the flames with the aluminum plates. When they appeared to go out, Basham stuffed the materials back into the drums.

But the drums then started to melt, and fire quickly spread throughout the warehouse, consuming car batteries, plastic battery casings and other materials, he said.

"It was such an intense heat fire that I just told everybody to get out. We left," Basham said.

Basham said the company is still trying to determine where the drums originated. He also said that early reports that the warehouse contained lithium were incorrect. However, several of the used batteries contained sulfuric acid.

Basham said firefighters probably could have controlled the fire within an hour but that they ran out of water.

Heavy, black smoke from the fire near Texas Highway 17 could be seen miles away.

At least 44 people were treated for complaints of headaches, nausea, shortness of breath and a burning sensation on the skin, said Nancy Ontiveros, a spokeswoman for Reeves County Hospital.

The hospital was temporarily evacuated during the afternoon and doctors treated patients at the Pecos civic center, where plastic mats were turned into beds and medical equipment was stacked in a corner.

Seven people who were in the hospital prior to the fire were transferred to hospitals in Monahans, about 40 miles away. Another patient was taken to Odessa. The Reeves County facility reopened Thursday night.

Pecos, with a population of about 12,000, is on Interstate 20, about 75 miles southwest of Odessa and about 300 miles east of El Paso.

"Basically, we've had people who are asthmatic or who have inhaled the smoke by driving by the cloud or who inhaled the smoke" near the scene, Ms. Ontiveros said.

However, hospital officials stressed that people could start feeling symptoms 12-24 hours after exposure to the fumes.

Jerry Mora, an employee for the Texas Department of Transportation, said he and a fellow worker had stopped about a mile from the facility when they saw a black cloud billowing up into the air.

"At first I thought it was a brush fire," Mora said.

High court suspends Galveston Co. judge

GALVESTON (AP) — The Texas Supreme Court has suspended Galveston County court-at-law Judge John Thoma until it is determined whether he extorted money from a defendant.

Robert Flowers, executive director of the Commission on Judicial Conduct, said Thursday's suspension will be in effect "until his problems are resolved." The commission oversees Texas judges.

The panel had filed a motion with the Texas Supreme Court on Sept. 17 calling for Thoma's suspension without pay until the commission rules on allegations that he conspired to extort money from a defendant.

The suspension is effective immediately, according to the decision signed by Chief Justice Tom Phillips and the other eight justices.

Thoma could not be reached for comment, the Houston Chronicle reported today. One of his attorneys, Gerald Burks of Galveston, declined to comment on the court's action and his other attorney, Bruce Fort of Texas City, did not return a phone call from the Chronicle.

Jury awards millions to injured woman

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A Nueces County jury has awarded more than $22 million to the family of a woman who suffered permanent brain damage after a box of brass hinges fell on her at a Builders Square four years ago.

Rosalinda Gomez was injured Sept. 15, 1989, at the home improvement store when a box weighing about 35 pounds fell on her, said her attorney, David Perry.

Mrs. Gomez, 40, suffers permanent brain damage and has developed an incurable form of meningitis, an infection or swelling of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord, Perry said.

"She is essentially an invalid at home," he said. "She is able to get up and walk around, but she is not able to care for herself in a meaningful fashion. She is not able to work. She is not able to perform any of the usual duties of a wife and mother.

"I was very pleased for the family that they will have provisions made for their economic security, which is extremely necessary for them," Perry said of the verdict. "They will have extremely high future medical costs to care for her."

Dredging foes backing King Ranch challenge

HARLINGEN (AP) — People who've questioned the dredging of Laguna Madre's Intracoastal Waterway south of Corpus Christi don't feel so alone now that the King Ranch has entered the debate.

"It sort of validates our position, I think," said Walter Kittelberger, chairman of the Lower Laguna Madre Foundation.

"We were thought of as off-the-wall for even suggesting the alternative that the dredging be stopped," Kittelberger, a fishing guide from Port Mansfield, said Thursday.

But with attorneys for the King Ranch now suggesting the same thing, Kittelberger said the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers should notice that shrimpers, fisherman and ranchers are questioning the wisdom of dredging.

"If it's not good for the people on land and it's not good for people on the bay, just who is it good for?" Kittelberger said.

Resigned housing chief still receiving paycheck

HOUSTON (AP) — Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros demanded his resignation, but the man who supervised an all-white housing complex in Vidor still is working for the agency in another capacity.

Cisneros traveled to Texas nearly a month ago and seized control of the Orange County Housing Authority after it failed to integrate blacks into the Vidor complex.

Residents urge adoption of easier calling standard

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Rural Texans seeking an end to long distance charges for short-distance telephone calls criticized a proposal before the Public Utility Commission on Thursday.

The PUC is considering a rule to implement legislation that was aimed at ending some of the long distance charges.

But many rural Texans said the proposed rule drawn up by the PUC staff runs contrary to the bill that lawmakers passed earlier this year. About 100 people, mostly rural residents, attended the hearing before the three-member commission.

"We need some of the same considerations that have been given to urban areas," said state Rep. Richard Raymond, D-Benavides.

The problem for many rural Texans is that they are charged long distance rates when they make a call just a few miles away.

For instance, Diana Fleming of Rains County in northeast Texas said that residents in the county's three towns, which are about 10 miles away from one another, are charged long distance fees when making calls to those towns.

"A lot of phone companies are complaining about the high cost of implementing extended local service," said Ms. Fleming, who is chairwoman of Texas Communities for Expanded Local Calling Areas.

"I'm having a very hard time being sympathetic to that because it costs much less than the multi-million dollars they spent during the last (legislative session) for advertising and lobbying to be deregulated," she said.

But she and others said the staff drawn proposal would make the expanded local service too expensive, inefficient and difficult to obtain.

The proposal would charge residential customers $3.50 per month for each telephone exchange that is added to the local calling area.

Flu bug strikes terror

Wow. Is anybody besides me getting nervous about this year's flu?

To hear some of the medical talk, this thing is some kind of viral horse-man of the apocalypse.

"Tonight we have eminent physician Dr. Cash Ectomy from the Atlanta Clinic for People with Good Insurance. Dr. Ectomy, what do you in the medical community suggest to prepare for this upcoming Type A 'Beijing Flu' influenza virus?"

"You should make your peace with God."

"How is that again, doctor?"

"There will be no survivors. The human race has met its end."

"Uh... Er... Next up on our program: he's wacky, he's tacky — Robin Williams!"

Well, maybe it hasn't been that bad, but they're making a lot of noise about this flu bug. I'm definitely getting a flu vaccination this year.

For one thing, I've got so much stuff to do, I can't be sick.

That's ridiculous.

If my lungs and spleen fall out, I'd just better pick them up and put them in the refrigerator, because I can't be sick.

The last time I remember this nasty strain of flu being real bad was in 1984.

I remember that year. I actually got sick enough to call Ralph to get the Buick — and I don't do that. My stomach might eat holes in itself from time to time, but I have to be near death before I blow chunks.

Anyway, regurgitative references aside, I was really sick. My temperature got up to 102 degrees plus, which also never happens to me. My core temperature usually runs between 97 and 98 — at a temp of 100 I'm sick as dog.

So I'm laying in bed having hallucinations from the fever, and everybody I know wants to come in and do something for me.

Unlike a lot of people, I don't like anybody around when I'm sick.

"Gary, d'you want some 7-Up?"

"No"

"D'you want some soup?"

"No"

"Want me to get you another pillow?"

"No"

Gary Shanks

"I've got some books here if you feel like reading." (Click-click!)

"Gary, put the gun down!"

"Are you going to leave me alone?"

"Yes! Now please put the gun down."

"And close the door on your way out. I'm letting in all these bats and Smurfs!"

"Uh... sure Gary."

Anyway, I don't want to have to live through another week of that again. I mean, geeze, it hasn't even been 10 years yet.

I don't know what it is, but I just can't stand having the flu.

I've been hurt a lot in my life, what with motorcycle wrecks in traffic and on dirt, along with innumerable other accidents.

But I can safely say, I'd rather have good, wholesome injury than a week-long illness.

I just can't stand the thought of little virus demons entering my cells, taking over their DNA and forcing them to become engines of destruction for more of my cells.

I don't like that.

And then of course, there's bacteria in your throat and lungs, spewing out enzymes from their primordial little bodies, dissolving one's helpless cells.

That's no good either.

I suppose I should have a point to all this rambling.

The point is: This might be a real good year to get a flu shot.

Researchers at The Centers for Disease Control have issued a warning that this year's flu is "stronger than ever," already causing several deaths in Louisiana.

Unless you feel some macho need to take this virus on mano-y-viro, I'd suggest you see your doctor and get a flu shot.

Case in point: Congressional hearings are all for the show

WASHINGTON — A current goofiness in Washington concerns congressional appearances by Hillary Rodham Clinton and how she captivated the bully boys on Capitol Hill.

True enough, the First Lady's cool professionalism and mastery of her subject — the Clinton administration proposal for reform in the nation's health care system — brought praise, even applause, from committee members who nodded and grinned for the TV cameras and every once in a while asked a relevant question.

Even Rep. Dick Armey, R-Texas, a Republican foe who was obviously surprised when he had some of his own ammunition fired back at him by Mrs. Clinton, conceded in good nature that the president's wife was not only brainy but tough.

Mrs. Clinton's handling of that exchange appeared to discourage other barbed questions from other Republicans who seemed disinclined to test her on a subject she has spent eight months researching.

Not so surprising since, typically, most members would have arrived at the hearings with a few notes, those probably supplied by aides who are paid to do that but aren't paid to get their congressional bosses into losing arguments with the wife of the president.

The attendant media, of course, rhapsodized at Mrs. Clinton's performances, some noting she discussed the subject of health reform for hours, without notes, and all the while displayed not just her knowledge of the health care system and its need for repair but an acute sense of the politics of such an enormous undertaking.

It was said she had members of Congress spellbound, eating out of her hand, each one straining to praise her more than the last fellow.

One columnist who's been around a long time gushed in the appropriate showbiz language that the president's wife is now "a superstar."

But it might also be said about the First Lady's appearances on Capitol Hill that for all the congressional tail-wagging and praise for this remarkable woman serving in this remarkable role, health care reform is still a distant, doubtful objective and Mrs. Clinton can't be sure of a single vote.

Her visits to Capitol Hill, it ought to be remembered, were less informative than they were part of the endless, repetitive, mind-numbing, time-wasting, show-boating and downright foolish process of congressional hearings.

It's a form of showbiz — the congressional brand — and if the First Lady was lauded and treated with lavish expressions of kindness after she discussed health care reform with several congressional committees, it was less from congressional gallantry and respect than from congressional self-preservation.

Members of Congress are not so dumb they would hector the nation's First Lady with tough questions and harsh manners while the television lights are on and the nation's herd journalists are watching.

If any dumbbell member is encountered so waspish as to be unkind in public to Mrs. Clinton — for now, anyway — chances are you'll have run across a member who's announced his or her retirement or a member from a district so safe that re-election is a lock.

It is truly extraordinary business that Mrs. Clinton is conducting here: explaining in long, if somewhat unscientific, detail the contents of the Clinton administration's health reform package, appearing as her husband's spokesperson and expert advocate, revealing not only her command of the subject but the political insights of a seasoned lobbyist.

But it's still Congress she's dealing with and, persuasive as Mrs. Clinton may have sounded, members of Congress over the next several months will be hearing other views on health care reform from legions of paid lobbyists whose work is greased by campaign contributions and highly financed grass roots political action.

On congressional matters that's the kind of persuasion that often decides the issue and is likely to decide this one, no matter how much charm and knowledge Mrs. Clinton took to Capitol Hill.

Bargaining Bob Michel, adieu

Scripps Howard News Service

The Congress that freshman House member Robert Michel entered in 1957 had not yet become an arena for ideological gladiators, and a worthy idea could sometimes escape the ramping lions of partisanship. Michel, retiring after 13 years as House minority leader, was arguably too much wedded to that gentler era. But he also proved the worth of compromise.

In the pivotal years of the Reagan presidency, 1981-82, Michel used his now-derided bargaining skills to overcome House Democrats' 50-seat edge. By helping forge a coalition of Republicans and conservative Democrats, the Illinoisan saved Reagan's economic package — a trick no bridge-burner could have managed. Later, when Democrats grew stronger, Michel's chumminess with majority bigwigs like Dan Rostenkowski kept the GOP from total impotence.

Yet Michel overplayed the conciliatory role — especially when he rounded up Republican votes for the budget pact in which George Bush broke his "no new taxes" pledge. The gentleman from Peoria also fell prey to the Bridge-on-the-River-Kwai syndrome: He had invested so much work in the House that he initially tried to protect it when GOP Young Turks set about to blow open its self-serving practices.

Now Newt Gingrich figures to replace Michel, a change that should allow House Republicans to sharply distinguish their views from Democrats'. Very good. But when the time comes for principled negotiation, we hope that Gingrich, or whoever, recalls the legacy of Bob Michel.

Children are forever

Editors' note: While Lewis Grizzard is on vacation, "best of Grizzard" columns will be used.

Two very close friends of mine recently became fathers for the first time.

Another friend's wife is scheduled to deliver their first child soon. All three of these men are 40 or older.

"It's never too late," each has said to me at one time or the other during their wives' pregnancies.

I guess they're right. I'm 41, been down one time, two times, and three times in marriage, but as far as I know, I have held on to my ability to father a child.

We actually tried in my first marriage, but there was a problem she later overcame with medical help. Now, with her new husband, she is the mother she always wanted to be.

Second time was a whirlwind. Third time, she already had two, one out in the playground screaming, the other outside riding his Big Wheel.

Ever hear the sound of Big Wheel — a plastic tricycle — makes as it is pedaled across a driveway?

Severe nervous breakdowns have been spawned from less.

"Men," a wise person once said to me, "often want children to satisfy their egos. They want to look down in that crib and say, 'Hey, that's my boy!'"

"They look upon their children as proof of their manhood, and as their link with immortality, but some never quite understand the responsibility that comes with being a father to a child."

"It takes a real grown-up to be a good parent. And some men never really grow up."

I've thought about those words, often, especially lately when previously childless friends suddenly turned faithful and multiplied.

Why would I really want a child? To satisfy my ego? To leave a living monument?

To have something I could love without conditions and be loved in return in the same manner? (That sort of thing is difficult to find, you know.)

In order to be the father I never really had? To be able to pass along what I have learned, what I think to be the truth and the way?

But a number of things stand between me and fatherhood. Number One being the fact I'm not married.

But even if I did marry again, I'd probably still think twice about children.

I've proved I'm not a good marriage risk. I came from a broken home. I don't want my child to have to do the same.

There remains childlike tendencies in my own repertoire. I have not quite given up on the idea of finding the ultimate party, and sometimes I have trouble giving up the night.

And there is the fact most things have an escape clause. You can leave a bad marriage, a bad job, and a city where the sun never shines. But children are forever.

What I could do rather than have children of my own is become the friendly uncle to my three buddies' children.

I could joke with them and bring them small gifts and enjoy their company while I am around them, and then split with no responsibility for them when the spirit moves me.

I'd miss the "goodnight-daddy's," but I also wouldn't have to put up with strange, loud music coming from the upstairs bedroom and explaining to my son if he didn't take off that earring, I would, cut him out of the will.

This entire discussion, quite frankly, has made me nervous. Maybe I'll bring it up again next year.

Heart disease critical for Hispanics

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Heart and blood-vessel disease is the number one killer of Hispanics and may be linked to higher numbers of smokers among the Hispanic population.

Statistics from the American Heart Association indicate heart and blood-vessel disease is responsible for 32 percent of all deaths in the U.S. Hispanic population.

This figure includes 37 percent of the deaths of Hispanic women and 28 percent of Hispanic men. This is almost double the number killed by all forms of cancer, according to AHA statistics.

Compared to the overall statistics of 28.4 percent of men and 22.8 percent of women smokers in the U.S. — 43.9 percent of Mexican American men smoke and 24.2 percent of Mexican American women smoke.

Statistics are similar for Puerto Rican and Cuban Americans.

Other preventable or treatable risk factors for heart disease include high blood pressure, high cholesterol counts and physical inactivity.

In addition, obesity, which also contributes to heart disease, is statistically more prevalent among Hispanic people.

According to Big Spring cardiologist Dr. Manish Shroff, priorities for reducing the risk of heart disease include quitting smoking, getting regular exercise and controlling conditions such as high blood pressure and diabetes.

Diabetes and high blood pressure can greatly increase the risk of heart and blood-vessel disease if left untreated, Shroff said. Treatment for these diseases, including diet and medications, should be followed faithfully.

Regular exercise not only increases cardiopulmonary fitness, it actually changes the pattern of blood cholesterol and lipids. It increases the HDL (good cholesterol) and reduces the LDL (bad cholesterol).

Diet is important, Shroff explained. Traditional Mexican food often is high in cholesterol and saturated fat. A diet high in these fats can increase the risk of heart disease.

Although no true genetic correlation has been established in the Hispanic population, those with family histories of heart disease can add another risk to the list.

Student battling brain tumors pursues goals

The Associated Press

KING RANCH — Nineteen-year-old David T. Perez, in a wheelchair with a brain tumor, has simple goals these days.

"To walk. To not depend on anyone. To drive again," he said, listing them.

Once, his goals were more far-reaching but no less ambitious. He dreamed of having a career and earning enough money to move his family from its white-washed brick home on the King Ranch to a big house in a larger city.

But that dream, the aspirations of a boy whose parents' and grandparents' lives began and ended on this sprawling cattle ranch, was shattered one day five years ago.

It was the first day of classes at H.M. King High School in Kingsville and David came home sick.

Within days, he was hospitalized with a high fever. A tumor was found at the stem of his brain. His relatives were told to prepare for his death.

"At first, they told me he was inoperable. They didn't give me any hope," said David's mother, Emma. She is a divorced mother of four and works as a cook at the main residence on the King Ranch.

"One night at the hospital, he fell into a coma. The doctor told me to bring the priest and call the family."

They waited two days, and instead of dying, David opened his eyes and looked at them. The doctors decided to operate and David began the slow process of physical rehabilitation.

His mother said his future is uncertain — he has been near death twice since that first illness. He also began an equally painful struggle to obtain an education — an effort that relatives and friends describe as tenacious and courageous.

Despite not having the use of his right arm and being unable to walk alone, David managed to graduate in the top 10 percent of his class last May. He rolled across the stage in a wheelchair pushed by his stepfather amid a standing ovation from peers and teachers.

Today, he is enrolled in two courses, algebra and writing, at Texas A&M University-Kingsville, where his tuition is paid by a Pell Grant.

"He's a perfectionist. I think that's the reason for his success," said Anita Perez, homebound teacher for Kingsville Independent School District. "I worked with him one day at a time, one year at a time, but always having an attainable goal," she added.

Perez, who coached and counseled David through four years of illness and triumph, said he has been one of the most demanding and courageous students she has ever had.

I.Q. Vidaurri, dean of student services at A&M-Kingsville, said David is one of 33 disabled students attending classes on the campus.

"I feel like it's very hard and difficult for them to pass college work," he said. "I want to give them the best opportunity to learn something. And they make friends real quickly. The socialization part is very helpful to the students."

For David, life since the tumor has been a series of small and large battles. Each time he was able to achieve some academic success, he fell ill and had to struggle to maintain his grades.

The cracked cement driveway at his family's house makes it hard for his mother to push his wheelchair from the doorway to the family car, an unreliable two-door Ford. He has been unable to get a motorized wheelchair because his family lacks funds and he doesn't qualify to receive one free from the state. As a college student, no transportation is available for him to attend class so his sister drops him off and an aunt picks him up on campus.

"We would take a step forward and go back three," Anita Perez said. "His determination and his willpower and his stubbornness got him through high school."

One such obstacle occurred in 1990, when David was rehospitalized and underwent surgery a second time and chemotherapy. When he finally came home, Anita Perez was assigned as his homebound teacher. She said David was determined to complete all his assignments without modifications, and then became just as determined to return to school with his classmates. There, he managed to keep up with his classmates and even take some honors courses.

However, in his senior year, David fell ill once again. He spent Thanksgiving of 1992 through New Year's Day of 1993 in the hospital. He returned to school and managed to catch up with his classmates so he could graduate in May A 4+ years after he began, Perez said.

Neither David nor his mother know what caused his illness. Two operations and five years later, David speculates that a head injury when he was fishing with friends could have led to the problem.

"In 1988, he was a normal child," his mother said. "He had just graduated from eighth grade and was so excited about playing football" at H.M. King High.

David said the hardest time was his second hospitalization, when he had so much schoolwork to catch up with. He would like to pursue some sort of writing career. "That's what I'm good at," he said. "I want to study for something I'm good at and that's not boring."

His mother says David was also the most academically motivated of her children and today helps tutor his younger brother and sister.

"I'm just praying," she said when asked about her oldest son's future. "They (the doctors) just say, 'Go from day to day.' He's been with me for a lot of years and I pray he'll be with me a lot longer."

Russia holds national day of mourning for slain

The Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Boris Yeltsin suspended Russia's highest court Thursday in a continuing clampdown on opposition strongholds. But, on a national day of mourning for the scores who died in this week's violence, he also appealed for healing.

The government persisted with efforts to round up and charge leaders of the hard-line revolt crushed by tanks in the streets of Moscow on Monday. There were no reports of new violence.

Flags adorned with black ribbons lined the capital's streets, churches held special masses, and mourners filed past coffins overflowing with flowers.

Yeltsin said the Constitutional Court had played "a negative and collaborationist role" in this week's crisis. Earlier, he said the court bore some blame for the bloodshed Sunday and Monday because it became involved in politics and backed parliament against him.

The Constitutional Court is a panel of 13 judges charged with ruling on constitutional issues. It voted 9-4 against Yeltsin's Sept. 21 decree dissolving the hard-line parliament that had stymied his reforms.

The court's chairman, Valery Zorkin, frequently sided with parliament leaders against Yeltsin in the 18-month power struggle that paralyzed the Russian government.

Yeltsin has called elections for a new parliament in December. He said the Constitutional Court would be reconvened only after the legislators adopt a new, post-Soviet constitution.

Zorkin resigned as chairman under pressure on Wednesday, and several judges who had supported Yeltsin said they would not take part in court sessions until the new legislature was impeached. Yeltsin said his move to suspend the court was necessary since it no longer had 10 judges, the required quorum.

Yeltsin said the judges could keep their perks of office, and he asked their help in creating guidelines for a new court.

The Constitutional Court is only the latest target to fall since Yeltsin's bloody victory Monday. He has also declining property values the past decade started leveling during the past few years.

Moscow Mayor Yuri Luzhkov, after consulting with Yeltsin, disbanded the city council. Leaders of the revolt against the president have been imprisoned.

The biggest problem, he said, is that many locals are too down on the town. "The attitude is quite prevalent and it's something we have to overcome," he said. "That's a real problem when you're trying to deal with clients somewhere else and you get that type of reaction."

But seeds of change have been planted, he said, referring to the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's year-long study to develop ways to increase tourism. A preliminary report released to the Herald last week concentrates on natural and frequent rallies, including a May Day demonstration at which a police officer was killed.

Anpilov is accused of helping organize the legislators' armed rebellion at the Russian parliament building, or White House.

Also Thursday, authorities charged Stanislav Terekhov, leader of the Officers' Union, of stealing weapons.

Now a resident and registered voter of Texas, as well as a member of the local chamber, Harkinson has dug in, conducting feasibility studies of the area, including other West Texas towns.

"We have a number of things going, but we just don't want to publicize it at this point," he said.

Societies devoted to support of Catholic churches

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

They bring comfort to the sick and grieving. They see that the sanctuary is clean and cared for, with fresh flowers every week.

Members of Our Lady of the Guadalupe Society are busy servants of their faith.

The women's groups are active at Sacred Heart Catholic Church and St. Thomas Catholic Church, where the Guadalupe society is combined with the traditional altar society.

"We try to keep up with whatever's going on in the church and how we can help," said Sally Munoz, treasurer of Sacred Heart's group. At once-a-month meetings, the women hear a prayer and mini-sermon from the Rev. J.P. Delaney, the parish priest. Then they discuss recent events and how they can get involved.

Similarly, ladies of St. Thomas altar society meet regularly to discuss financial matters and plan projects.

"We do many things, taking care of the church and helping out," said Ramona Molina, treasurer of St. Thomas' organization.

Both groups buy flowers for the altar, do volunteer work and give money to young men who aspire to become priests. Some of their other activities include: Working at bingo fundraisers, taking food to the families of deceased parishioners, teaching young people and working at festivals.

At the Diez y Seis celebration recently, Sacred Heart's group made $1,000 selling food. St. Thomas members worked a booth every night of the Howard County Fair.

The Guadalupe society is named for an appearance the Virgin Mary made in Mexico City, members said.

She appeared to an Indian, and told him to build a church on the spot where he saw her. Some say he called her "Guadalupe" in his lan-

Historic Troop 1 keeps tradition alive

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

The Pioneer Patrol of Troop 1 is keeping alive a tradition that began before their parents were born.

The tradition is Boy Scout Troop 1, longest chartered scout troop west of the Mississippi and longest active - 77 years - until 1988. It became active again a month ago.

"It's fine, I'm glad we started it," said Patrol Leader Slate Broyles, 12, at the troop's fourth weekly meeting earlier this week.

So far six scouts are registered, four coming from Troop 5, one of four troops in the county, and two others who came up from Weblos Cub Scouts.

"Hopefully ... we can build from these six kids, up to 12 or 16. I don't think it'll take long," said Stan Partee, who joined Tom Wegner and Stephen Honea to assist Scoutmaster Frank Broyles.

Troop 1 was chartered in 1911 because a concerned mother, Mrs. B. Reagan, read in a magazine how a new movement for boys had been chartered by Congress, according to local historian Joe Pickle, former guage. As a sign of the miracle, Mary gave the man roses to bring back to his village - an impossible sight in the desert in December.

To honor their patron, members of both groups organize special events on Dec. 12 - the day of Mary's appearance. Sacred Heart's members have a singing service and mass, then serve donuts and coffee to churchgoers. St. Thomas' group organizes a fiesta with the children.

Designed as an extension of the church family, the group is a haven for its members.

"It's good to be part of something," Munoz said. "It has helped me stay close to the church."

"We were raised to be active in the church," explained Molina. "My parents were active, and we followed in their footsteps."

"My mother taught us to work for the good of the church," said St. Thomas altar society president Gavina Nunez. She's worked with the society since 1955.

Recently, a young man joined Sacred Heart's Our Lady of the Guadalupe Society. As far as many remember, he's the first. But some say more should join.

St. Thomas' group has a few young members, but with their busy lives, many find it difficult to make it to meetings and activities. Some members said they wish more young women would become active in the group.

"There's a satisfaction in it," Molina said. "It is something we should do - help the church."

Working for the Lord

Immaculate Heart of Mary has active altar society

Herald Staff Report

Jewel Hyer is a dedicated member of Immaculate Heart of Mary Catholic Church's altar society.

She's been part of the group since 1961, when the church was founded.

Although not connected to the Our Lady of the Guadalupe Society, the group performs many similar functions to those organizations in other local churches.

"It's the women of the church," Hyer said. "We go a little farther than what you have to, do more than just cleaning the church. We do many other things."

"I just think it's a wonderful group."

Members help the church celebrate wedding anniversaries, welcome new priests, honor special events and give support and comfort.

"We're working in the church, wherever we're needed," Hyer said. "We're working for the Lord."

See the symptoms? Find solution

By ED WALKER
Baptist Temple

This past Sunday I was part of a group of people who stood along Gregg Street to make a statement to this community and the world that the killing of children is morally wrong.

We stood in the afternoon sun quietly and held signs for motorists to read. These signs made clear our view on the matter of abortion.

Abortion is only one of the symptoms of the real problems of our nation. Acceptance of the homosexual lifestyle and devaluing of the traditional family are still other symptoms of the same disease.

I read with interest the lead story on the front page of the Herald on Sunday. The young lady with six children and a drug problem touched me, but the deeper problem is not the drugs and economic conditioning of that young woman. It is the overall callousness of our society to what is happening all around us.

We are being systematically desensitized to ungodliness. In other words, we are not shocked at such things as 1.6 million unborn children killed each year. We are not even shocked when we read that our state leads the nation in births to 12 and 13-year-olds. We shrug and go on about our business. What must happen for us to wake up and see where we are headed?

While I stood with my sign Sunday, I read the back with interest. On it was a verse of scripture that caused me to do some deep thinking.

The solution was right before me. In Paul's second letter to young Timothy in the third chapter we read, "...in the last days difficult times will come. For men will be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, arrogant, revilers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, unholly, unlovely"

Scouts say thanks

Officials of the Lone Star district for Boy Scouts said "thanks" at a dinner affair Thursday in Garrett Hall, First United Methodist Church.

"This is a complimentary affair," said Tommy McCann, district chairman, "and a way to show our appreciation to all who help."

There was recognition for two special friends of Scouting, Dorothy Garrett and Marie Hall. Plans for the affair were finalized at the monthly district committee meeting at Days Inn.

Brian Marlary, training chairman, announced there will be a campfire program Saturday, 6 p.m. at Lake Thomas, primarily for Cubs and parents, but also for Scouts.

Bill Bradford, camping chairman, reported 1,835 boys participated in summer camp at Scout Ranch in the Davis Mountains. That program, which has 26 troops registered for 1994 season, has been extended to seven weeks. Also, Hughs aquatic camp on Lake Colorado City will have an additional week.

Membership in the district, which advanced by nearly 100 boys after the fall roundup, continued to grow slowly, according to Ladd Smith, chairman. One new troop has been added.

Retired Teachers

The Fall District XVIII Meeting of Texas Retired Teachers' Association will be October 19, 1993 in the First Methodist Church, at 409 North 3rd Street, Lamesa.

Quilting Guild

The Signal Mountain Quilting Guild met Sept. 24 in the Parish Hall of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, with eight members attending.

The project was to complete stars and cut out patterns for a quilted angel doll. At the business meeting it was decided to try to attend the Midland Quilters Guild Show Oct. 16.

On display at the Howard County Library are finished and partially finished projects made by members of the guild. Included in the display are some of the quilting books available at the library.

Anyone interested in quilting or learning to quilt is invited to join the guild. Meetings are the second and fourth Friday of each month. For more information, call 264-7107 or 267-1037.

1955 Hyperion

Mrs. David Elrod was the hostess for the 1955 Hyperion Club on October 5, at her home. Co-hostesses were Mrs. Ed Holt and Mrs. Tommy Dodson.

Sheree Moates was the guest speaker. She is a local artist who has studied with Windberg. She started with decorative painting as a hobby.

Through encouragement from family and friends, she was urged to enter some of her work in an art showing. She was not sure what she should do so she asked the Lord to guide her and give her a sign if she should take her art seriously by being able to sell at least one painting.

After selling 15, she began to be a serious painter. When a workshop by Windberg was offered, she entered and was accepted. She has an Associate of Arts degree and plans on, as her children get older, to work on a Masters at Texas Tech in art.

Sheree teaches at the Howard County College where the West Texas Art Association has recently relocated. There is a waiting list for her classes for both children and adults.

Also a guest was Mamie Floyd, who has recently moved to Big Spring from Nacogdoches.

Woman's Club

The Big Spring Woman's Club met Monday, Sept. 20 at the home of Teri Thomas. The program for the evening was presented by Diane Roach. She told the club members how to properly care for their nails.

Stefanie Wilkerson was treated to a manicure as a demonstration. Donna Tune conducted the business meeting. Wrapping paper order forms were turned in. The orders should be here before the next meeting.

On Saturday, Sept. 25 club members served lunch to the volunteers working at the Humane Society. This effort was coordinated by Teri Newton.

The next regular meeting will be on Monday, Oct. 18.

Jain faith video

Sunday beginning at 9:45 a.m. the Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland will host a video tape presentation on the life of the founder of the Jain faith, Lord Mahavir.

The Jain faith, one of the three oldest traditions originating in India, is based on total commitment to the principle of ahimsa: avoiding harm to living beings. Although relatively few in number, Jains have had a major influence on persons outside their faith community, including Mahatma Gandhi and Martin Luther King, Jr. The public is invited to attend. Child care will be provided.

Friday Football Forecast

Compiled by Herald Sports Staff

BIG SPRING (4-1, 1-0) at ANDREWS (5-0, 1-0)

Andrews' numbers cannot be ignored. The Mustangs gain 376 yards per game; they allow just 136 per game. They've allowed 10 points this season.

Even against a soft pre-district schedule, those are scary statistics. The Steers have played superbly their last two games. They've allowed just 36 points in their five games, impressive numbers to anyone except maybe Andrews fans. Quarterback Wes Hughes and the Steer offense put it all together last week in Big Spring's 28-10 win over Monahans.

As Hughes said about this game, "It's going to be war - I think it's a coin toss, really. Whoever wants it most is going to take it."

Both teams want it bad. Our coin flip says Andrews' home-field advantage and a kicking game featuring AP Super Team selection Eric Langehennig will be just enough to win a battle of two dominating defenses.

Of course, some people probably remember what happened the last time we picked the Steers' opponent.

Big Spring 31, Snyder 0.

ANDREWS 10, BIG SPRING 9

WALL (5-0, 1-0) at COAHOMA (2-3, 0-1)

The last thing the Coahoma Bulldogs want to do is open district play with two losses - and the last team they need to meet to avoid that deficit is the Wall Hawks.

The Hawks, ranked fifth in the state Class 2A poll, are loaded on both sides of the ball. The Bulldogs, meanwhile, obviously miss leading rusher Edward Dunn, who is recovering from an appendectomy.

Coahoma's back is close to the - ahem! - wall, and the Bulldogs will be dangerous at home, but the Hawks have too many guns.

WALL 28, COAHOMA 14

FORSAN (3-2) at ROSCOE (5-0)

Tonight's game marks the District 9-1A opener for both teams, and when it's over Forsan will be back at the .500 mark.

No fault of their own - the Buffaloes are on a roll and are greatly improved over last season. Still, Roscoe is 5-0 for a reason. The Plowboys' mark includes cakewalks over Garden City (41-14) and Miles (55-0).

Forsan has three tough district road trips, to Roscoe, Roby and Bronte. The Buffs will have to win two of those to have a chance at the playoffs.

They may get one of those wins this week, but it's a lot to ask for.

ROSCOE 31, FORSAN 27

STANTON (3-2, 1-1) at OZONA (3-2, 1-1)

Stanton wants to avenge a heartbreaking 22-21 loss to Ozona last season, but road trips have not been kind in the Buffs this year. The Buffs were blasted at Post, 44-7, and lost a tough one at Iraan, 14-13, but they did win 42-2 at Colorado City.

Despite the road troubles, Stanton is a team that can be explosive. Ozona, on the other hand, is a team that beat Garden City by just six points Sept. 10, 12-6.

Garden City's defense is good, but not that good. Apologies to you Stanton fans who have seen us miss on our Stanton picks most of the year, but we're picking the Buffaloes.

STANTON 20, OZONA 10

SONORA (0-4) at COLORADO CITY (1-4)

Two teams that have not had the best of seasons open district play tonight when Colorado City hosts the Sonora Broncos.

The Broncos, who were supposed to challenge for a playoff spot in District 6-3A, have 15 letterman back from last season's 6-3-1 team, so winning is not a lost art at Sonora.

The Wolves started the season strong against Hawley, but have lacked offensive punch since then.

The struggle continues.

SONORA 10, COLORADO CITY 7

CRANE (2-3) at GREENWOOD (3-1-1)

Greenwood opens District 6-3A play tonight, and the Rangers will have things their way.

Without Indavong Phonasa last week, Greenwood steamrolled Lubbock Cooper, 39-16. Injuries are something Greenwood's thin-in-numbers squad can't afford, but the Rangers are hanging tough so far. Unlike that Texas baseball team, playoffs are a possibility for this bunch of Rangers.

Greenwood hasn't beaten Crane since 1988, but the Rangers will have the upper hand this time.

GREENWOOD 31, CRANE 21

KLONDIKE (4-1) at GRADY (5-0)

This one should be a doozy.

Both teams are loaded on offense and have underrated defenses. Klondike has Tanner Etheredge, who can pass you blind, while Grady features Tommy Hewtt, a quick-as-a-cat running back.

Klondike is a pre-season pick to make the playoffs, but Grady is home.

Three weeks ago, this might be considered an upset, but not now.

GRADY 34, KLONDIKE 32

SANDS (4-0-1) AT DAWSON (5-0)

Earlier in the season, the Sands Mustangs might have looked at their game with Dawson and figured on a more-or-less easy win, but no more. The Dragons have one of the best defenses around, giving up only 127 yards a game.

But the Mustangs can play defense too, not to mention offense.

Sands opens district play on a high note.

SANDS 24, DAWSON 12

BORDEN COUNTY (1-4) at HERMLEIGH (1-4)

The bad times may just about be over for the Borden County Coyotes. They've finished a killer of a non-conference schedule and open District 6 play against the struggling Hermleigh Cardinals.

Borden coach Bobby Avery said all along that it would take a few games for the Coyotes to get going, and he hasn't been blowing smoke.

But the shakedown cruise for the young Coyotes is over, and its time to start winning, starting tonight.

BORDEN COUNTY 46, HERMLEIGH 12

Six-man squads dive into district

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

For area six-man teams, the real season begins tonight.

After five weeks of non-conference play, area squads begin their respective district schedules tonight, and few games will be more important than the Klondike-Grady matchup at Lenorah.

Both teams enter the District 5 opener with a head of steam. Klondike, a pre-season playoff pick, sports a 4-1 record while the surprising Wildcats are undefeated.

In other area six-man games, Sands is at Dawson in District 5 play, while Borden County, defending champion in District 6, opens league play at Hermleigh.

Klondike at Grady

For the 5-0 Wildcats, few games will be more important than tonight's contest, which begins at 7:30 at Tunnell Field. And few opponents will be tougher than the Cougars, led by Tanner Etheredge and Mike Lee.

"It's extremely important," Grady coach Roger Smith said of tonight's contest. "It will pretty much set the pace for the last four games. If we win tonight, I think we'll be off and running."

Of paramount importance to Grady's defense will be stopping the Klondike duo of quarterback Etheredge and tailback Lee. Etheredge is coming off a five-touchdown pass performance against Borden County, while Lee is on pace to exceed 1,000 yards rushing.

"We're just going to have to go get 'em," Smith said of containing the duo. "You've got to put some pressure on Etheredge and not give him time to throw like he's had in the past few games."

While not possessing the impressive stats of Etheredge and Lee, Grady has an effective pass-run duo of its own in quarterback Timmy Garza and tailback Tommy Hewtt. Plus, the Wildcats are home for the game.

"I don't know if that'll be any advantage at all," Smith said. "I think that of home field advantage is kind of overrated. But our kids like to play at home, so ..."

Sands at Dawson

The Sands Mustangs (4-0-1) face a surprising team of their own tonight when they travel to Dawson to take on the undefeated Dragons.

Dawson, picked near the bottom of the District 5 polls, has earned their spotless record on merit, Sands coach Bob Keyes said.

"They've really been playing well the past few weeks," Keyes said. "I think they're kind of surprised themselves. They're not real big - they've got two kids on the line with fair size - but they have real good team quickness."

To combat the Dragons, Keyes is stressing consistent, mistake-free play from his team.

"We need to hold down the mental errors and be consistent in our plays," Keyes said. "To be able to sustain a drive will be very important."

Game time is 7:30 p.m. at Dawson.

Borden County at Hermleigh

Borden County coach Bobby Avery said tonight's game is a do-or-die situation if his Coyotes hope to successfully defend their district title.

Both teams sport identical 1-4 records.

"It's real important," Avery said of tonight's game. "I think it's the most important one of the year right here ... If we don't go 1-0-right here, we probably don't have much of a chance in district."

One thing in the Coyotes' favor, Avery said, was its tough non-conference schedule.

"I think they haven't played as hard of a schedule as we have," Avery said. "Our offense may be a little better than their's. It all depends on how well they stop (tailback) Cody Cox."

Game time is 7:30 p.m. in Hermleigh.

Philadelphia Phillie catcher Darren Daulton, right, watches Atlanta Brave first baseman Fred McGriff get congratulated by teammate Otis Nixon after McGriff hit a mammoth two-run homer in the first inning Thursday. Atlanta won 14-3 to tie the National League Championship Series at one game apiece. McGriff's homer traveled an estimated 438 feet. The NL playoffs now shift to Atlanta, where the third game of the series will be played Saturday afternoon. Starting pitchers will be Atlanta's Tom Glavine and Philadelphia's Terry Mulholland.

NL Playoffs

Braves' power surge evens series at 1-1

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Check the tape measures, the Philadelphia Phillies' ERAs and the look of disbelief on Tommy Greene's face. The Atlanta Braves are back.

The Braves, a team built on power hitting and power pitching, got both in abundance Thursday night in a record 14-3 rout of the Phillies in Game 2 of the National League playoffs. They also got exactly what they wanted in Philadelphia — a split.

The series goes to Atlanta for Game 3 Saturday, where the confidence-restored Braves will start Tom Glavine (22-6), part of their unmatched stable of pitching talent, against left-hander Terry Mulholland (12-9). Mulholland has pitched just twice in the last month because of a strained hip.

Atlanta's big bats, so quiet in the Phillies' 4-3, 10-inning victory in Game 1, broke loose big time against Greene (16-4), who was 10-0 in Veterans Stadium this season.

Manager Jim Fregosi held him back a day so he might start twice in the Vet, but there was no holding back the Braves' offense which tied an NL playoff record with 16 hits while setting a major league playoff record with the 14 runs.

Fred McGriff, who super-charged the Braves' dramatic 39-11 stretch run that seized the NL West title from the San Francisco Giants, got it going with a huge two-run drive in the first, and Greene and the Phillies never recovered.

Jeff Blauser, so sick Wednesday that he couldn't hear the rock concert-loud Phillies' fans, homered in a six-run third in which Greene never retired a hitter. Damon Berryhill and Terry Pendleton later went deep against Philadelphia's as-usual shaky bullpen, and Ron Gant had two doubles and three RBI.

The four-homer night was a Braves' postseason record, a significant accomplishment for a franchise that has showcased sluggers such as Hank Aaron, Orlando Cepeda and Dale Murphy.

Greg Maddux, the 20-game winner who rarely needs more than three runs to win, had an 8-0 lead by the third, and that's the NL equivalent of mailing it in. He gave up Dave Hollins' two-run homer in the fourth, but that was the only blip on his otherwise splendid pitching line.

The Braves' blowout — even more overpowering than their 13-4 pounding of Pittsburgh in Game 2 in last year's playoffs — was unexpected because of the opposing pitcher.

Greene had limited Atlanta to a .111 batting average this season, and no Braves' starter other than Mark Lemke, who was 2-for-4, had a career average higher than .273 against him. McGriff, for example, was 0-for-7, and Blauser 0-for-5.

Area fishing report

The second annual San Angelo Bass Club tournament at Lake O.H. Ivie last weekend drew 156 entries. Howard Ward weighed in the biggest bass at 8.11 pounds, and Ken Sanders had the two-fish best string at 9.2 lbs.

Water temperature was 77.3 degrees surface and 60 bottom, clear except for murky in the upper reaches. Black bass fishing was good to excellent with best results early or late, using surface lures, buzz baits and other crank baits. Plastic worms got good results along bluffs, ledges and points.

Small-mouth results were fair, best results coming from jigs and cranks along ledges and points in 15-20 ft. of water. A few were being caught in the shallows early and late.

Minnnows were best for crappie fishermen, and results were fair. Best spots were around the Observation Point and near the Concho bridge at FM 1929, and optimum depths were 30-40 ft.

Sox change lineup

By The Associated Press

TORONTO — The amount of attention being focused on Frank Thomas' bruised left triceps muscle has the White Sox slugger bewildered.

Yes, Thomas' large and powerful arms accounted for 41 homers and 128 RBIs this season, but the injury only caused him to miss playing first base, not his plate appearances.

Thomas will return to his customary position at first base tonight against the Toronto Blue Jays.

"It's fine, there's no big deal. I told you all along it's just going to take some time to heal, and it's been over a week now and I think it's finally healing a little bit," said Thomas, who banged his left arm into the fence trying to make a catch Sept. 19 in Oakland.

He insists that his inability to play the field did not lead to the two home losses to Toronto.

"We won a lot of games this year with me (at DH)," said Thomas, 3-for-4 with five walks in the series. "It had nothing to do with us losing those ballgames. We had easy opportunities to score and we didn't get it done."

Thomas' return to first base will get Bo Jackson into the lineup as DH and send Dan Pasqua — 0-for-6 as Thomas' replacement, with an error and other shaky defense — to the bench.

Pat Hentgen (19-9) will try to give Toronto a 3-0 lead in the best-of-7 series when he faces Wilson Alvarez (15-8), who was 5-0 for the White Sox in September with an .93 ERA.

Chicago White Sox pitcher Alex Fernandez, left, jokes with White Sox teammate Bo Jackson Thursday in Toronto. Jackson, who did not play in the first two games of the American League Championship Series, will start at designated hitter tonight. Toronto leads the series, two games to none.

The White Sox played especially well on the road this season, going 49-32 compared with 45-36 at home. Several players said they felt relieved to be hitting the road after being booed during Wednesday's 3-1 loss to the Blue Jays.

"The road takes a little pressure off of us," Jackson said. "Nobody likes to be booed."

And Hentgen has had trouble at home. He was a much better pitcher this season on the road (12-3, 2.91 ERA, 7 home runs) than at the SkyDome (7-6, 4.77 ERA, 20 HR).

On the biggest night of his baseball life, Hentgen won't even be the focus of attention in his own family.

While Hentgen was preparing for his Game 3 start, his sister was awaiting the birth of her first child in Detroit. That'll keep Hentgen's mother in Detroit, though his father will make the short trip north to Toronto for the game.

"I think my sister having the baby is more important," said Hentgen, who will become an uncle for the first time. "This is only a game."

Only a game. That's exactly the attitude Hentgen has had all year as he's gone from the bullpen to being the Blue Jays' best pitcher.

He sat in the dugout last fall as Toronto won the World Series, having been left off the postseason roster. He worked on his breaking pitches during the winter in Venezuela, but still entered the spring without a clearly defined role.

Steers, Bulldogs win JV contests

Big Spring JV 14
Andrews JV 0

Big Spring's junior varsity had no trouble beating Andrews Thursday at Memorial Stadium.

The Steer defense shut down the Mustangs, and the offense did its job. Ray McGee opened the scoring with a 4-yard touchdown run.

Manuel Cervantes' 22-yard touchdown run put the Steers in complete command.

Frankie Flores kicked two extra points for the Steers, who evened their record at 3-3.

Big Spring 9th 22
Andrews 9th 22

ANDREWS - Big Spring trailed 22-8 with just eight minutes remaining in the game, but the Steers rallied to tie the Mustangs.

Big Spring's Toma McVae ran for a 70-yard touchdown in the second quarter, but the Steers still trailed 14-8 at halftime.

In the fourth quarter, McVae started the comeback with a 10-yard touchdown run.

With three minutes left, Big Spring blocked a punt and recovered the ball at the Andrews 1-yard line. Robert Valencia ran the ball in from the 1, and McVae's two-point run tied the game.

The freshman Steers are 4-1-1, and their next game is at home against Sweetwater Thursday.

Coahoma JV 20
Wall JV 6

WALL - The Coahoma junior varsity kept its record spotless at 6-0 with its victory over Wall Thursday night.

The Bulldogs used the running of backs Chris Arguello and Gerardo Armendariz and an opportunistic defense to defeat the Hawks (4-2).

Coahoma took the opening kickoff and put together a 14-play drive that was capped by quarterback Adam Tindol, who dove over from a yard out.

In the second quarter, Arguello, who finished the game with 141 yards on 24 carries, added another touchdown on a 41-yard run.

Wall cut the lead to 14-6 at the half, but Coahoma linebacker Jonathan Miller put the game out of reach with a 33-yard interception return for touchdown in the fourth quarter.

Armendariz complimented Arguello's totals with 90 yards on 11 carries.

In ninth-grade action, Coahoma defeated Wall 22-8.

Stanton JV 32
Ozona JV 0

STANTON - Stanton fans had tickets to the Taylor Looney Show Thursday night.

Looney, Stanton's quarterback, had a hand in all five of the Buffalos' touchdowns. First, he intercepted an Ozona pass and returned it 13 yards for a score.

The next four touchdowns came on Looney passes. He hit Chris Carroll with a 47-yard touchdown pass, then connected with John Bryan for touchdowns of 14 and 22 yards. Stanton's final touchdown came on a 9-yard pass from Looney to Jerrod Stallings.

Looney completed 14 of 20 passes for 272 yards, and he had two interceptions on defense.

Stanton led 20-0 at halftime.

Francisco Garza and James Villa each had an interception for Stanton, and Matt Moore recovered a fumble.

Stanton's junior varsity team is 5-1, and its next game is Thursday, 6:30 p.m., at Coahoma.

Gambling not a factor in Jordan's retirement

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The NBA's investigation into Michael Jordan's gambling was not a factor in his decision to retire.

Commissioner David Stern said the ongoing investigation isn't finished and Jordan was not informed of any of the findings before the Chicago Bulls superstar announced his shocking retirement Wednesday.

Stern said there was "absolutely no connection" between the probe and the retirement.

"The investigation was nearly complete. We had a meeting scheduled, but we deferred it because of this. Michael said he would still come in because he wants the loop to be completed," Stern told the Washington Post.

Jordan contacted Stern on Tuesday and told him of his decision to retire, according to NBA spokesman Jan Hubbard.

Jordan said Wednesday he was leaving the NBA after nine seasons because he had nothing left to prove and no longer has a strong desire to play. He also said he was moving toward retiring even before the slaying of his father this summer.

The league's gambling probe still follows Jordan, and until it's addressed by both parties, the speculation will continue. With his retirement, even if the NBA discovered problems with Jordan's off-court activities, the league is powerless to do anything.

The most recent gambling problems began during this year's playoffs. In May, during the Eastern Conference finals against the New York Knicks, Jordan and his father spent a night gambling at Atlantic City, arriving back in New York the morning of Game 2. There was such a fuss made over the trip that Jordan didn't speak to reporters for nearly two weeks.

Before the NBA Finals, Jordan responded to a book by San Diego businessman Richard Esquinas, who claimed Jordan lost $1.25 million to him in golf bets and they had negotiated a $300,000 settlement.

At that point, the NBA began an investigation into Jordan's gambling on golf and cards.

The league also investigated Jordan in 1992 after a bail bondsman was found shot to death with checks from Jordan totaling more than $200,000. There also were allegations that Jordan bet and associated with high-stakes gamblers, including James Bouler, a convicted cocaine dealer.

Jordan settled one gambling debt with Bouler with a $57,000 check, and the NBA investigation ended after three weeks with no action taken.

There is no timetable when the current investigation will be completed.

"I have stated previously that I planned to meet with Michael Jordan prior to the start of the season to discuss his offcourt activities," Stern said Wednesday.

Emmitt makes fans forget 0-2 start

Random thoughts while waiting 'til next year:

It's amazing what $13.6 million and a running back will do.

Just a few weeks ago, the Dallas Cowboys — and their fans — were bemoaning their fate. An 0-2 start will do that to people.

America's Team was Team Turmoil. People were pointing fingers, blame was being laid, plots were being detected. Strange things were afoot at Valley Ranch.

The reason for all these bad tidings — aside from the aforementioned 0-2 start — was the absence of one Emmitt Smith, running back extraordinaire.

Emmitt, depending on who you talked to, was either the key to the Cowboys' salvation or the agent of their destruction. Emmitt had not reported to work for his team because, since he had led the NFL in rushing for the past two years, he felt he should be the highest-paid running back in the league.

The nerve of some guys. Our hero, team owner Jerry Jones, held the line against free enterprise the best he could. There's a salary cap coming in 1994, he said, and if he paid Emmitt the millions he wanted, why there wouldn't be any money left over for the other players.

Jerry's heroic stand almost brings to mind Davey Crockett at the Alamo — but we all know what happened to Davey, right?

Anyway, the Cowboys, sans Emmitt, stumbled out the gate looking like anything except the defending NFL champs. They lost to the dreaded Deadskins, which was bad enough, but then they got beat by the Buffalo Bills, which at last account were still trying to figure out the license plate of the bus that ran over them at the last Super Bowl.

Something had to be done. Jerry, who was now the object of much scorn and ridicule from those dastardly media types, took another look at his pocketbook and found a few million that he had overlooked earlier.

He got on the horn with Emmitt's agents, said something to the effect that, by golly, maybe their guy deserved all those millions after all, and crafted a deal that brought Mr. Smith back to the land that he loves.

And the rest, as us cliché-lovers say, is history.

The 0-2 Cowboys are now the 2-2 Cowboys. Since Emmitt's return, Dallas has beaten Phoenix and absolutely obliterated Green Bay. The goose is once again laying the golden egg and the river of life flows freely.

All is right with the world.

If there is a moral to this story, children, it is this: If by some chance a rich uncle leaves you his millions or you hit the lotto or some other miracle occurs leaving you filthy rich, you might be tempted to by a professional sports team.

Buy a tropical island instead.

Hall of Fame catcher faces fine for misleading sales pitch

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK — How much is a Johnny Bench autographed baseball worth? Not as much as a home shopping show charged when the Hall of Fame catcher hawked the collectibles with a misleading pitch, the city's consumer watchdog charged Thursday.

"Johnny Bench should have stuck with catching balls and stayed out of pitching products," said acting Consumer Affairs czar Richard Schrader, who accused Bench and the Home Shopping Network of duping consumers.

Another television memorabilia show, Collector's Showcase, was also cited for inflating prices and providing misleading information to potential buyers.

Bench, the first celebrity endorser ever to face such charges in New York, faces a minimum fine of $5,000, as does Collector's Showcase. HSN faces a minimum fine of $12,500.

The city intends to seek higher fines once an exact number of violations is determined, said Consumer Affairs spokeswoman Linda Sachs. She said the city will go to court to collect the fines.

Bench was cited for an Aug. 5 appearance on the Home Shopping Network, where baseballs autographed by the ex-Cincinnati Reds star were on the block.

Viewers were initially told the signed balls were worth $129. Later they were told, "We could easily sell these out at $99.95." They were eventually sold for the "sensational" price of $49.95.

But a sports collectible price guide puts the value of an autographed Bench baseball at $35 — 40 percent below the "unbelievable deal" offered to HSN viewers.

"Throughout my career I have always leaned over backwards to be associated only with the best services and products and to be fair and honest with consumers and fans," Bench said in a statement Thursday. "If in any way I confused or misled anyone, it was not intentional and I am deeply sorry."

Bench said he was paid a flat fee for the appearance and had nothing to do with the show's format. The six-week investigation also charged HSN with misleading sales of: —A "limited edition" Joe DiMaggio autographed photo plaque. The item sold for $199.95 — "the least expensive Joe DiMaggio autographed item ever done." A month earlier, the same plaque had been offered at the same price. And DiMaggio signed photos sell for $125, while a Joe D. autograph alone brings $50, a trade publication said.

—A sheet of uncut sports cards for $39.95; they claimed it was worth $360. Consumers Affairs received an offer of $20 for the sheet at a card show.

—A football card collection initially offered for $170. "We've never sold it for below $199," the announcer said. One night earlier, the cards were selling for $139.95.

Maple Leafs beat Stars

By The Associated Press
TORONTO — Consecutive goals by Nikolai Plosschewsky, Todd Gill and Rob Pearson broke a third-period tie and lifted Toronto to a 6-3 victory over the Dallas Stars in the Maple Leafs' NHL season opener Thursday night.

Dave Andreychuk scored two other Toronto goals, both on power plays. Wendell Clark added an empty-net goal with 51 seconds left in regulation. Doug Gilmour picked up three assists.

Mike Modano, with two goals, and James Black scored for Dallas.

Andreychuk, who led the NHL in power-play goals the previous two seasons, got a quick start on making it three in a row. With Paul Cavallini off for interfering with Gilmour at 16:10 of the first period, Gilmour passed from behind goalie Andy Moog's net to Andreychuk, who was parked at the side of the crease. The puck was in the net before Moog could move.

Dear Abby - Letters

Widow's lesson at great expense

DEAR ABBY: After my father died, my 69-year-old mother started dating a 47-year-old man with two children. He told her that his marriage was "in name only" and the usual things such men tell widows when they are trying to win them over.

The bottom line: He took my mother for $100,000! That money was supposed to take care of her in her old age, and help put her grandchildren through college. Instead, she used it to buy a "skating rink" in North Carolina that didn't exist. I am enclosing copies of the bank transfers in case you don't believe that a woman can be so gullible.

Please tell older widows to make no business deals without consulting their own lawyer and/or financial adviser, or they may wind up in the poorhouse! — MOTHER'S DAUGHTER IN MASS.

DEAR DAUGHTER: Thanks for the supporting evidence. It is a pity that your mother was left so vulnerable — without a trusted adviser to help her manage her financial affairs.

Perhaps her costly experience will serve as a warning to others. I sincerely hope so.

DEAR ABBY: "Expecting in California" asked you how to deal with rude people who constantly ask personal questions. Your reply was to ask, "Why do you want to know?" Well, that doesn't always work.

My husband's aunt is one of those rude people who want to know everything that doesn't concern them. For weeks she pestered us about our insurance. At first, we avoided the questions. Then we asked her why she wanted to know. Of course, she was just "concerned about our well-being." Well, my husband finally broke down and DENNIS THE MENACE told her. I didn't think he should tell her anything, but it was too late to stop him. Anyway, she continued to ask personal questions like, "How much money do you make?" and "How much do you have in the bank?"

She finally broke the camel's back when she asked me how many miscarriages and abortions I had had. I was so infuriated I told her it was none of her business! And I also told her never to ask questions about insurance, money or anything else! Her reply: "Oh, I just wanted to see how far I could cross the line."

The moral: Being polite and indirect doesn't always work. — NOT SO POLITE IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR NOT: I think you were more polite than most people would have been under those circumstances.

DEAR ABBY: A letter you printed in your column a few years ago, regarding a physician whose life was saved by taking the PSA test for prostate cancer, saved another life. Mine.

Those few lines in your column advising all adult males to take this simple blood test, whether or not they have symptoms, was a lifesaver for me. That helpful message allowed me to find out in time to rid me of prostate cancer.

Abby, you should run that warning every year. You may use my name. — JERRY GROSS, LA JOLLA, CALIF.

DEAR JERRY GROSS: Thank you for writing and allowing me to use your name in order to warn others.
