School board formally passes $1.42 tax rate

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Big Spring Independent School District trustees officially set a tax rate of $1.422 per $100 property valuation during their meeting Thursday.

The tax rate includes an increase of 90.7 cents per $100 property valuation to be paid in 1994. This increase, however, is completely offset with the dissolution of the County Education District (CED).

At the bottom line, property owners will pay the same total school rate as last year. "They paid $1.42 last year and they'll pay $1.42 this year," said BSISD Superintendent W.A. McQueary said during a recent meeting of the board.

The only difference will be paying the taxes to a single entity, the school district, instead of both the BSISD and the CED.

There are $336,000 of uncollected taxes in the CED, trustees were told during the meeting. Even though the CED no longer exists, BSISD and the Coahoma Independent School District have been named as the recipient of these funds and given power to collect them. Delinquent tax collections overall are up for the year, said Assistant Superintendent of Business Ron Plumlee.

Assistant Business Manager Ron Logback said negotiations with the insurance company to replace the roof at Bauer Magnet School, damaged in 'ast spring's hail storms, were not going well.

Trustees accepted a bid of more than $90,000 to repair the roofs, but only under the condition that the insurance settlement is at least $80,000.

"We may end up in litigation over this," McQueary said.

In other business, a textbook committee for the 1993-94 year was established, and bids for more than $11,000 in athletic equipment were accepted.

BSISD Board President Don Baker and Trustee Dan Wise were reappointed to serve on the Howard County Appraisal District

Proposition 5 would qualify Texas sheriffs

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the sixth of a daily 15-part series looking at the pros and cons of 16 prospective constitutional amendments.

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Proposition 5 on the Nov. 2 ballot would authorize the Legislature to prescribe qualifications for county sheriffs.

Legislation accompanying passage of the amendment would require sheriffs taking office after Jan. 1 to be licensed within two years by the Texas Commission on Law Enforcement Officer Standards-Education.

TCLEOSE, under state law, currently licenses deputy sheriffs and constables. Those in office before Jan. 1 would be grandfathered.

The commission would set sheriff standards, according to the legislation. The requirements would include a high school education or equivalent, be at least 21 years old in most cases, have 400 hours of training, a licensing examination, 40 hours of continuing education every two years, psychological testing and drug screening.

Those opposed to the proposed amendment, according to the House Research Organization, say local voters should decide qualifications based on unique circumstances of each county, sparsely populated counties could have problems, requirements could change and exclude experienced law officers such as career FBI agents, and state law already provides for removal of sheriffs for incompetency, official

Star Party set for state park

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

Star gazers are hoping the clouds will dissipate before the Star Party Extravaganza Saturday.

It is the second party sponsored by the Big Spring State Park and the Howard County Heritage Museum. The first party took place in April with about 350 people attending, park officials said.

"If the weather permits, we should have an even better show this time," said park manager Ron Alton. "It is taking place the night after a new moon, which is a great time for star gazing."

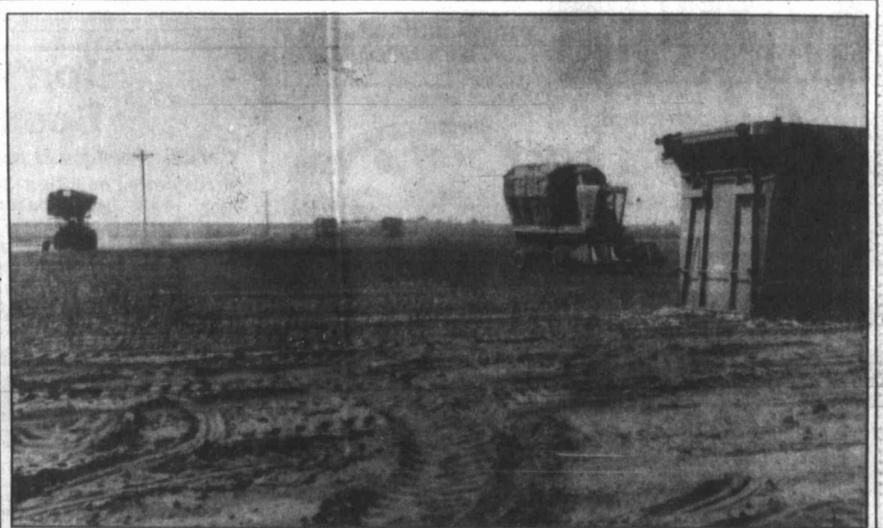

Local resident and long time star gazer Sonny Choate will give a slide presentation, Alton said. Midland's West Texas Astronomy Club and San Angelo Astronomy Club members will bring their telescopes. Saturn and various constellations will be in view.

"We should have a fantastic 18-inch telescope for viewing from a San Angelo guy," Alton said.

The event will begin at 8 p.m. at the upper picnic pavilion area, located next to the playground. The entrance gate will close at 8:45 p.m. Star gazing will begin at 10:15 p.m.

Alton suggests star gazers bring a blanket, flashlight and binoculars.

Varied groups urge NAFTA passage

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Business, agriculture, and environmental interests Thursday urged passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement and said charges that it would cost American jobs were false.

Ironically, they said that many of the problems that NAFTA opponents predict will happen if the agreement is passed will occur if it is defeated.

The agreement would gradually remove tariffs and other barriers to trade among the United States, Canada and Mexico, creating the world's largest and richest trading zone.

A battle over NAFTA is underway in the U.S. House, which is scheduled to vote Nov. 17. Senate approval is considered likely.

Critics of the agreement, including former presidential candidate Ross Perot, say it will hurt the American economy and the environment along the U.S.-Mexico border.

But Bryan Riley, a trade economist for Citizens for a Sound Economy, a pro-business group based in Washington, D.C., said more U.S. jobs will be needed under the agreement to produce more exports going to Mexico.

"NAFTA means more, better-paying jobs for Texas workers," Riley said.

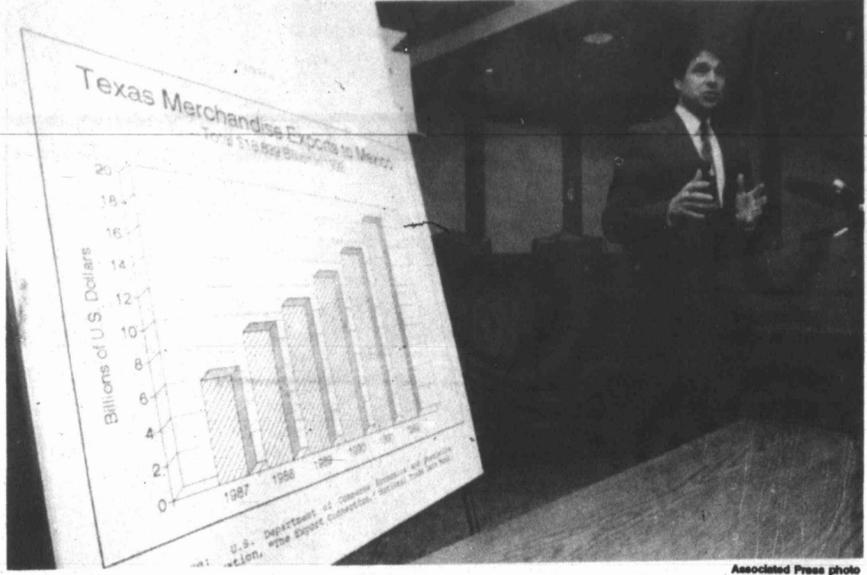

Ironically, the company that Perot built his multi-billion dollar personal fortune on is among those lining up in favor of NAFTA.

Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems Corp., now owned by General Motors, took out a full page ad in The Dallas Morning News Thursday in support of the pact.

EDS spokesman Randy Dove said, "It's not about Ross Perot. ... This is about market creation. It's about dropping barriers. It's about expanding opportunities."

And Peter Emerson, a senior economist with the Environmental Defense Fund, said NAFTA will help address environmental problems on the border.

"The truth is that there are very serious trade-related environmental problems. The truth is those problems have occurred without the NAFTA and without this NAFTA those problems will become worse," he said.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry speaks in favor of the North American Free Trade Agreement during a news conference in Austin Thursday.

Agriculture interests also voiced support of the agreement.

"Mexico is going to trade with someone, make no mistake about that," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry.

"They will either trade with the European Economic Community or the Japanese or they'll trade with us," he said.

Perry said that in 1992, Mexico imported $42 billion worth of goods from the United States, including $18 billion from Texas.

"The bottom line is somebody's got some money down there and they're spending it," he said.

And Tommy Klemcke, director of commodity activities for the Texas Farm Bureau, said NAFTA will reduce the number of U.S. companies going to Mexico.

"The elimination of Mexico's high tariffs will allow companies to remain in the U.S. — or even relocate back to the U.S. — and still sell directly into the Mexican market virtually duty free," he said.

Buddy Garcia, a legislative aide to state Sen. Eddie Lucio, D-Brownsville, noted that debate over the agreement has drawn attention to economic and environmental problems currently on the border. But he said those problems were not caused by NAFTA since it is not in effect.

The 660-foot gasoline tanker OMI Charger lies with a giant hold in its side as a result of an explosion and fire that occurred Saturday night near the mouth of the Houston Ship Channel. The cause of the blast, which killed at least two people and left another missing, is still under investigation.

Investigation continuing into causes of explosion aboard tanker in channel

The Associated Press

GALVESTON — Divers on Thursday inspected a crippled fuel tanker to check for further structural damage as a Marine Board of Investigation continued its probe of the weekend explosion aboard the empty vessel near the mouth of the Houston Ship Channel.

The 660-foot OMI Charger exploded twice, burned and partially sank Saturday night. Three of the 35 crewmembers aboard were killed and more than a dozen were injured.

A panel of Coast Guard and National Transportation Safety Board officials investigating the accident has established no cause, but authorities have said two welders patching a hole in a below-deck tank might have sparked the blasts.

The tanker's captain, Wayne Nason of Belgrade, Maine, on Wednesday testified that gasoline fumes accidentally shifting to where the welding was taking place might be to blame.

Nason said workers took the same precautions as always before they began welding, and gas detectors were used before the men were allowed to begin welding in an area near ship's pump room.

"The condition of that tank changed enormously and suddenly," Nason told investigators. "The only thing probable, in my opinion, is that the vapors had to be introduced from the deck."

Nason theorized that a crew member might have turned a valve that caused fumes in forward cargo tanks to shift toward the stern, closer to the area being welded.

The OMI Charger's chief mate, Robert Wren, told the board that early gas readings showed hydrocarbon levels too high to permit welding. He said the tank was pumped and blown dry and subsequent readings showed the area was safe.

Welding began about 6 p.m. while Wren monitored the atmosphere for gas, he said.

"I was obviously comfortable with the readings or I wouldn't have entered the tank myself," Wren said, adding that he left the welder, Keith Kelly of Mobile, Ala., about 7:15 p.m.

The ship exploded about 8 p.m., with a second blast about an hour later. A fire raged out of control for about 5 1/2 hours. Kelly's body was later found by divers inside the fuel tank.

Coast Guard Lt. Jeff Hudkins on Thursday said the board planned to continue hearing testimony through the weekend.

"Then the board and the staff is going to have to put all this together," Hudkins said.

Salvage crews, who finished removing some 365,000 gallons of the tanker's own fuel on Wednesday, studied ways to refloat the ship. It is listing and its stern is sitting in the mud in about 40 feet of water. Its bow is in the air.

Divers on Thursday searched for any structural damage that would cause the ship to break up when workers try to recover it, Hudkins said.

When it exploded, the tanker was empty except for its own fuel supply and was returning from Tampa, Fla., to Texas City. The ship routinely delivered gasoline from an Amoco Oil Co. refinery at Texas City.

Ranchers, farmers attend ag bonanza

The Associated Press

LUBBOCK — Smells of hay, barbecue — and, yes, manure — waft over the 800-acre showplace billed as Texas' first working farm show.

The three-day Farmer-Stockman Show opened Tuesday with the roar of harvest equipment. The show featured exhibits, seminars and demonstrations.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry called the event "one-stop shopping" for a farmer or rancher. Its benefits, Perry said, are in educating consumers and showcasing new products.

"My first impression was 'Big,'" Perry said, stretching his arms wide. The Lubbock show could become the world's largest of its type within three years, he said.

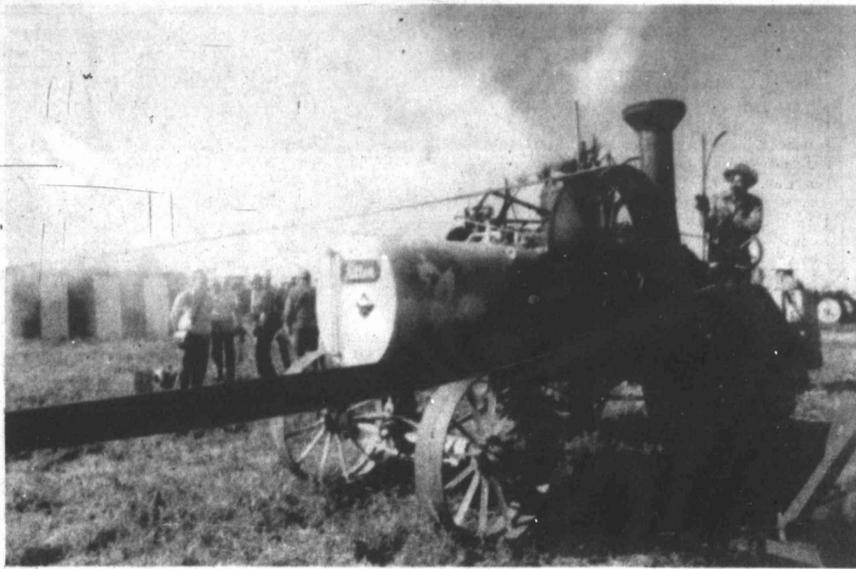

Texas Farmer-Stockman magazine sponsored the event at the city of Lubbock farm.

"People can see the equipment, watch it work side by side with a competitor, and talk with expert people from the factory," said editor Charles Taylor.

Spectators boarded trailers to fields where workers were harvesting corn, cotton and sorghum. After harvest, the workers would till the land and then replant to demonstrate different techniques and equipment.

The Soil Conservation Service set up four dirt pans under a sprinkler to show how correct grazing can limit erosion.

"Everybody likes new innovations," said Curtis Preston of the agriculture extension service in Muleshoe. "But when it comes down to it, what will make them a profit is the hot topic."

Farmers clustered around booths to see new seed varieties, irrigator pumps and satellite services that feed market reports into home computers. Salesmen peddled cattle vaccines, windmills and fire-ant killers.

In one noisy tent, a pair of sows snuggled, asleep.

Rows of neatly aligned machines were displayed almost everywhere. Some pick rocks, others grind hay or spray water across crops.

"Pretty tractor," remarked Lockney sorghum farmer Wayne Bramlet, who was poking the equipment with a giveaway yardstick.

Several hundred people roamed the grounds Tuesday.

"If your customers are here, you might as well be here," said Dewey Coffman of the Federal Crop Insurance Corp. in Oklahoma City. "It's the place to be."

Woman must serve 15 years of sentence

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Dolores Markee, sentenced to 58 years in prison for the Jan. 6 murder of her former husband, must serve 15 years before being eligible for parole.

The 31-year-old woman said she killed George Paouris because he was molesting their 5-year-old daughter. Jurors, who deliberated for 90 minutes, said later they did not believe Ms. Markee's claim. The San Antonio-Express News said Thursday.

District Court Judge Mary Roman read the jury's verdict Thursday and then formally sentenced Ms. Markee to 58 years in prison. Ms. Markee bowed her head when the verdict was read in the 175th District Court.

Paouris' widow, Terri, said she was happy with the verdict.

"I am disappointed the system didn't care as much about him when he was alive as they did in prosecuting the person who killed him," she said. "I hope the people realize he loved his daughter, and he didn't do anything to her."

NAFTA touted as job creator for U.S. workers

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) — Opponents of the North American Free Trade Agreement should take their eyes off Mexico for a moment and look at Portugal.

So says pro-NAFTA economist Ray Perryman when talking about worries in Congress that the tariff-lifting pact would send U.S. jobs to Mexico's lower-wage economy.

Perryman told the South Texas-Mexico Economic Development Conference on Thursday that some wealthier European nations worried that Portugal would steal jobs when brought into the European Economic Community.

"Portugal gained a lot of jobs, but the other countries in the region gained more," said Perryman, a Baylor University economist and business consultant.

"NAFTA will be blamed for jobs that go into Mexico, but the practical reality is that these jobs would have gone to Mexico anyway," Perryman said. "And instead of going to Mexico, they might have gone somewhere else. They might have gone to Malaysia."

Judge blocks rule requiring meat labels

AUSTIN (AP) — U.S. Agriculture

Secretary Mike Espy says he's "extremely disappointed" in a federal judge's decision to block a rule requiring safe-handling instructions on uncooked meat and poultry products.

"I believe, as I always have, that the safe handling label is fundamental in our effort to prevent consumers and especially children from getting ill all across this country due to improper handling and cooking of meat and poultry products," Espy said in a statement.

He praised businesses that already have moved to comply with the rule, and urged others to follow their example despite the decision.

U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin on Thursday agreed to block the rule, which was to require the information be provided with meat and poultry beginning Friday.

Former Hightower aides found guilty of conspiracy

AUSTIN (AP) — Federal prosecutors say the convictions of three former leaders of the Texas Department of Agriculture on conspiracy charges may lead to further inquiries.

A federal jury deliberated nearly two days before finding three former top aides to former Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower guilty Thursday of conspiring to steal public money to pay for political fund-raising.

Mike Moeller, Peter McRae and Billie Quicksall had been charged with conspiring to commit bribery and using about $173,000 in public money to hire political fund-raisers.

Moeller was found guilty on seven counts. Quicksall was found guilty on four counts and innocent on two other counts. McRae was found guilty on five counts.

The three showed no emotion when the verdict was read. Sentencing was scheduled for Nov. 19. They likely will face about four years in prison, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Mills.

$640 million earmarked for super collider project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though congressional negotiators have approved $640 million for the super collider, the oft-contested program's future isn't assured.

Foes of the $11 billion atom smasher will mount their latest attack next week when Congress debates the $22 billion conference report that includes the controversial collider money.

And both sides are predicting they'll prevail in the heretofore collider-unfriendly House.

State cuts nursing home's Medicaid funding

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH — The Texas Department of Human Services found no problems at a Fort Worth nursing home that had been denied Medicaid funding following reports of patient problems.

All Seasons Nursing Center, owned by Fort Worth's mayor pro tem Virginia Nell Webber and her husband Wu Fang Huey-Yu, was monitored by state regulators on Thursday. Officials found no problems in the one-day review.

But Chuck Stevenson, DHS director of operations for long-term care in Austin said the agency has not yet given the thumbs up for the facility.

"Things look pretty good up there today," Stevenson said. "We don't have concerns about the level of patient care today."

Stevenson said on Sept. 10 the home's Medicaid funding was cut off after several patients were found to have pressure sores and severe weight loss. Others were in need of grooming and personal hygiene, investigators said.

"There was a failure to contact a physician in several cases where seizures had occurred," said Stevenson. "And there was no documentation that insulin had been given on some days to patients who needed daily insulin."

One had lost 25 pounds during a 3-month stay at All Seasons, which DHS termed a severe loss because body weight already was low. A total of 14 out of 80 residents were unwashed, had dirty clothes or needed other hygiene, he said.

Ms. Webber is president and 51 percent owner of All Seasons and her husband owns the remaining 49 percent, according to state records.

Ms. Webber has denied any wrongdoing connected with the business. She did not immediately return phone calls from The Associated Press Thursday.

Attorney Booker T. Morris of Houston said he was appealing the state action.

Don't shoot, it's me

Scripps Howard News Service

One of the grand illusions of home security is that smart people can protect themselves by keeping a handgun around the house. A bad guy breaks in, you blast him (or her) into the next county, just like they do in cops-and-robbers or old cowboy movies.

Trouble is, it doesn't usually work that way.

What often happens in real life is that you end up shooting your neighbor, who's returning a garden hose; or the bad guy shoots you with your own gun; or your wife (or husband) takes a shot at you in a fit of rage; or your curious 10-year-old finds the gun and accidentally target practice on various cats, dogs, brothers, sisters and pals.

It goes without saying that having a loaded gun around the house is risky, but a report by medical researchers at Emory University, the University of Tennessee, the University of Washington and Case Western Reserve University shows just how dangerous it can be.

Their study of homicides in and around Memphis, Cleveland and Seattle found that keeping a gun in the house nearly triples the possibility that someone will be killed there. Victims usually are killed by a relative or friend, rarely by a stranger.

An earlier study found that someone in your family is five times more likely to commit suicide if a gun is kept in the house.

"The protective benefits are far outweighed by the hazards of having a gun in the home," says Arthur Kellermann, who teaches emergency medicine and public health at Emory in Atlanta.

The steady stream of shooting victims, many of them young people who need blood transfusions, surgery, intensive care and costly rehabilitation, has created severe medical and financial problems for families, hospitals and the taxpaying public. Who pays for this carnage? We all do, one way or another.

No doubt there are homeowners adept at handling firearms. But most of us are kidding ourselves if we think that having an arsenal in the bedroom will improve our chances of staying alive.

FBI's white wash of Waco

WASHINGTON — A whitewash of the FBI and its blunders in the tragedy at Waco, Texas, has been submitted, raising new questions about the operations of the bureau and its oversight by the Justice Department and the Clinton administration.

The whitewash, prepared by a friendly former Justice Department official, found blame for no one — from Attorney General Janet Reno down to FBI supervisors and field agents — in the FBI's decision on April 19 to attack a religious cult compound with tanks and tear gas.

That raid, planned by FBI specialists to end a 51-day standoff with the Branch Davidian cult and its leader, David Koresh, actually ended in a fire set by the Koresh followers. An estimated 75 persons were killed, at least 25 of them children.

They didn't march peacefully out of the compound when roaring tanks spewed tear gas and rammed holes in the fragile structures, as one wacky theory by FBI experts predicted they would. Instead, the frantic inhabitants killed each other and themselves, just as other experts had predicted.

In a closely-related earlier probe, a tougher report by outsiders criticized the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms for mistakes which on Feb. 28 started the appalling chain of events of death and destruction at Waco.

That ATF report, commissioned by the Treasury Department, assigned blame top-to-bottom in the ATF for the bungled initial attack on the cult and resulted in a series of forced retirements and firings.

Grassroots push for better schools

There is a great plan out there that would solve the Texas school-funding dilemma and, at the same time, vastly improve the Texas economy — but the Texas Legislature probably will squash it like a bug. The plan is being pushed by an association of Texas big businesses — so naturally I was skeptical of the plan.

But so help me, it looks like a great idea!

Alliance for Quality Education (AQE) is an association of businessmen and industry leaders in Texas.

Under the AQE plan, businesses would supply 70 percent of the money needed to fund Texas schools equally. The remaining 30 percent would come from individual property taxes.

The new plan would provide an additional $700 million more for education over the current system, and would still leave some control in the hands of local voters while providing a constitutionally-balanced funding source.

This would solve Texas' court mandated need for funding equalization. The plan is written in such a way that local decisions can be made concerning funds from property taxes and subsequent funding of local schools. The 70-percent bulk of the funding would be distributed equally among schools, depending on population and other factors.

OK, so it solves the school funding problem. But that's only part of it. Businesses would be taxed according to total receipts — not from property and equipment values.

In an age where jobs are steadily flowing from high-paying manufacturing jobs to low-paying jobs in the service sector, this could be a significant boost for the economy.

Manufacturing jobs are the bread and butter of any economy and Texas, like most other states, unfairly burdens these kinds of businesses by taxing them on their property value.

Service-sector businesses have been getting a comparatively free

Leonard Larsen

In the initial encounter at Waco, four ATF agents were shot to death and several others wounded by gunmen inside the compound when supervisors ordered a raid to commence, even after — as the Treasury probes established — ATF leaders knew Koresh and his followers had been warned that agents were coming.

An element of the ATF finding was that officials had sought to cover up ATF mistakes and mislead superiors, diverting blame and accountability in the botched initial raid.

Despite evidence of similar FBI misinformation — that "child abuse" had to be stopped inside the cult compound, for example, or that FBI resources were so stretched that an immediate confrontation was necessary, or that the tank attack was the only remedy, or that there was little likelihood of mass suicide — the whitewash report on the FBI action at Waco drew no conclusions of error or blame.

There wasn't even comment on admissions that controversies were ongoing inside the FBI as to what to do about the Branch Davidian stand-off and how to end it.

The evaluation of the FBI conduct in the Waco tragedy, as submitted by former Justice Department official

Edward S. G. Dennis Jr., even included a bizarre assertion that the FBI "exhibited extraordinary restraint and handled this crisis with great professionalism."

"I find that there is no place in the evaluation for blame and no place for fault," Dennis said.

Adding to the strangeness of the suggestion that the FBI and its officials were in no way responsible for a tragically botched FBI operation was another performance by Reno as the Clinton administration's designated good soldier and shock absorber for bad news.

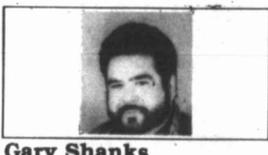

Reno herself, then only recently sworn in to head the Justice Department, had been fed FBI misinformation before the April 19 raid was launched, fooled as a newcomer into approving the raid and then standing alone to accept "responsibility" for the decision.

Still obviously tied to that "responsibility," Reno accepted the Dennis whitewash report and declined to answer reporters' questions about its obvious collisions with fact.

So far there's been no peep of presidential protest or approval of either the FBI whitewash or the harsher finding against the ATF, both agencies clearly involved in the fatally flawed operations against the same band of religious cultists.

It may be another insight into the Clinton White House and a president who apparently prefers his decisions already chewed up and digested, a chief executive who hesitates to decide the hard ones for himself.

ride in Texas, making beaucoup income and paying taxes on only a little bit of office space.

By their very nature, manufacturing businesses have a lot of bucks tied up in factories, raw materials, real estate, ect. So they've been taking a pounding on taxes for a long time.

While something like a cosmetic plastic surgery center has a bit of office space and a little equipment to pay taxes on, yet brings in a king's ransom in receipts.

Service sector jobs produce no real income to an overall economy — while manufacturing jobs, in essence, actually produce capital, injecting money into an economy.

Not to mention the fact that their employees are better paid, statistically.

In return for Texas business funding the lion's share of education, the association asks for the repeal of corporate taxes — which is more than fair in my opinion.

With this plan, the practice of abatement will be obsolete, as real estate and equipment investments will not be taxed by the state or local agencies.

This will relieve communities of the burden of offering huge tax breaks to lure companies to their area.

The plan, overall, will make Texas much more attractive for incoming manufacturers and will ensure a bright future for the state. But, of course, it won't pass the legislature.

Two groups of businessmen who would find themselves paying much more are doctors and lawyers with private offices.

Although, currently, these folks bring in exceedingly healthy annual receipts, they only pay a smidgen of property taxes to our school districts. Under the new plan, they would be taxed according to receipts, paying as much per dollar of business as manufacturing industries.

I'm not trying to pick on doctors and lawyers, they're just a good example of businesses whose services are worth a lot and their overhead is often quite low in comparison.

But I'll be willing to bet, the Texas branches of the American Bar Association and the American Medical Association would fight the AQE plan tooth and nail.

There are plenty of other businesses (chiropractors, investment firms, ect.) that fall into this low-property-value, high-income group.

Not to mention the fact that this plan would take corporate taxes out of the hands of Texas legislators and put it into a new school-financing fund. Texas lawmakers, as a rule, are loathe to give up control over any money.

So here we have a workable plan, that would solve the school problems, beef up the Texas economy and job market — and we can't have it because the common people who would benefit from better public schools and better jobs don't have any lobbyists in Austin. Stinks, doesn't it.

When lawmakers again tackle the school finance problem next year, it appears the AQE plan will at least be on the books, but without a lot of public support, I'm not getting my hopes up.

To learn more about the program, or to become involved in this grassroots push for a better Texas, write the Alliance for Quality Education, P.O. Box 731, Dallas, Texas, 75221-0731 — or call (800) 282-8080.

Why I am not Jordan

"I have called this press conference to announce I am not going to retire."

"Why not?"

"I need a job."

"But there must be other reasons?"

"I don't have $46 million in the bank and I need the company health insurance are two that come to mind."

"But you have to sit around trying to think of column ideas all the time. That must really become a grind?"

"Sometimes. But I don't have to do any heavy lifting."

"But what about all the pressure?"

"What pressure? If I mess up, nobody dies."

"But what if you write a lousy column? All those readers see it."

"They can always read Abby."

"Aren't you being a little callous here?"

"Of course not. I'm just saying for 50 cents, how much insight do you expect to get? If Michael Jordan has a bad night, there's always Scottie Pippen."

"But what about your health?"

"Doctors say I can type all I want to."

"Let's talk about burn-out. You have been in the league for 16 years."

"That's nothing. My mother taught first-grade for over 30 years for a lot less than I'm making, and I don't have to convince 6-year-olds to sit down and shut up."

"But what about living in the spotlight? Your picture is in the paper. You're a celebrity."

"So I'll get a gun."

"You're referring, of course, to Atlanta Falcon receiver Andre Rison, who says he carries a gun because of his celebrity status as a pro football player."

"If I were Andre Rison, I would carry two guns. He's not only a celebrity, he also plays for the Falcons."

"But don't people often harass you in public for what you write?"

"Yo, I don't mind that as long as they don't challenge my manhood."

"Still, there must be other things you would like to accomplish. As they said about Michael Jordan, there's a lot more to him than just being a great basketball player."

"Yeah, like the 46 million in the bank."

"You wouldn't like to, say, go into teaching?"

"I can't convince my dog to sit down and shut up."

"How about television?"

"Too many have already tried to outdo Andy Rooney."

"What about acting? You did an episode of 'Designing Women.'"

"In one scene I had to hug Delta Burke. Like I said, heavy lifting isn't my bag."

"Some say Michael Jordan is retiring because he's already won three league championships and several Most Valuable Player awards. Is one of the reasons you're not retiring the fact you've never won a Pulitzer?"

"Winning the Pulitzer has never entered my mind."

"Oh come on. The Pulitzer is the highest prize in journalism. Surely you must covet such a prestigious award."

"Awards are nice, but I didn't get into the profession to win awards."

"What did you get into it for?"

"To get mentioned favorably on the Rush Limbaugh radio show. That was enough for me."

"Michael Jordan retired in his prime. You're telling us you don't think you reached your prime yet?"

"No. I just said I still need a steady job."

"That sounds like a cop-out. How much more money do you need before you feel secure enough to retire?"

"Forty-five million and change."

"One more question. What primary goal do you hope to attain before you finally do retire?"

"Outlast Beavis and Butt-head."

"How long might that take?"

"November 1996, if we're lucky."

Clinton hailing U.S. pilot's release

Senate seems in agreement on withdrawal

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate went on record Friday backing President Clinton's timetable for withdrawing U.S. troops from Somalia in a critical congressional test of the administration's foreign policy.

By a vote of 76-23, the Senate approved a measure that maintains the president's withdrawal date of March 31. It would enforce that by cutting off funds for the Somalia operation at that time unless Congress specifically authorized additional spending — a concession by the White House.

The death of 18 Americans and wounding of more than 70 others during an Oct. 3 firefight in Somalia touched off an outcry in Congress with lawmakers demanding the immediate withdrawal of American troops.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., who was a prisoner of war during the Vietnam conflict, brought silence to the Senate chamber when he asked his colleagues what would happen if Americans die within the next six months.

"On whose hands rest the blood of American troops? Ask yourself this question," the senator said.

Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who said he had been scolded by some for supporting a Democratic president, reminded senators that he backed former President Bush in the call for U.S. forces in the Persian Gulf War.

"I supported my president ... and I do the same tonight," Dole said.

To avert a major defeat for the administration, Clinton and Senate leaders negotiated for two days on a compromise amendment to this year's defense spending bill that limits the mission to a humanitarian operation.

U.S. Army helicopter pilot Michael Durant clings on to a red beret as he is carried on a stretcher to a waiting helicopter in Mogadishu Friday on his way to a military hospital in Germany. Durant was released by Somali warlord Aidid's militia after 11 days of captivity after his helicopter was shot down in Mogadishu. Durant has injuries to his back and leg.

Passage of the amendment came after the Senate turned back a measure by several Republicans that would force an immediate withdrawal by limiting funds only to the expense of pulling out troops and ensuring their protection.

"Our mission in Somalia is over. It's time to come home," argued McCain.

Another sponsor of that measure, Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, asked his colleagues if the nation could "justify more funerals of Americans over the next six months" based on an ill-defined policy.

The Senate rejected the measure, 61-38.

As they did during the Persian Gulf War vote, senators sat in their chairs and cast their vote. Watching the proceedings from the visitors' gallery was Mary Ellen Durant, the sister of the American pilot released by the Somalis Thursday.

The amendment that won approval said the Senate approves the use of American troops to protect U.S. personnel and bases and to provide assistance in the free flow of supplies and relief operations.

The measure requires that U.S. forces in Somalia remain under the command and control of U.S. commanders under the ultimate direction of the president. It also urges Clinton to intensify efforts to have United Nations members immediately send their troops to assume the security work of Americans in Somalia.

"This offers the best path out of Somalia," said Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman Sam

Nunn, D-Ga. "The issue is not whether we're going to get out of Somalia. The issue is when we're going to get out of Somalia but even more important how we're going to get out of Somalia."

Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., a leading critic of the president's policy who had pushed for an earlier withdrawal date, said Congress had a constitutional right and obligation to vote on the policy.

"It is important to set such a date because we here in this body share the ultimate responsibility of sending our sons and daughters to defend the nation's honor, to protect our nation's interests, and, in many cases never to come back alive," Byrd said.

In a letter to Byrd, Clinton thanked the senator for working with the administration to find common ground on the issue.

Judge in Denny beating refuses to dismiss juror

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The judge in the Reginald Denny beating case refused to dismiss one of the two remaining white jurors, a woman who was said to have run down a hotel hallway screaming, "I can't take it anymore!"

Superior Court Judge John Ouderkirk also released transcripts Thursday of a closed hearing that led to the removal on Monday of a juror deliberating the case. During that hearing, the forewoman complained that the juror, a black woman, couldn't remember what she was doing from one moment to the next.

"I just don't think she is all up there," the forewoman said.

The developments Thursday in the tumultuous, racially volatile case raised further questions about whether the defendants were getting a fair trial. Legal scholars have said the judge's handling of the jury could be grounds for appeal.

The anonymous, sequestered jury has twice been told to start its deliberations all over again because of the removal of two jurors, one of them for personal reasons unrelated to the trial.

Damian Williams, 20, and Henry Watson, 29, are charged with attempted murder in the attack on Denny, a white truck driver who was pulled from his rig and beaten bloody at the outset of the 1992 riots. The defendants, both black, could get life in prison.

Columbia again tries for launch

The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — For the second morning in a row, NASA fueled space shuttle Columbia for liftoff today on a record-long medical research flight despite storms in the forecast.

Columbia was scheduled to blast off at 10:53 a.m. EDT with seven astronauts and 48 rats on a mission devoted to learning how to counteract the rigors of space travel. The chances of good weather were put at only 30 percent.

During the flight, the crew will decapitate five or six of the rats with a little guillotine and perform the first animal dissections in space. The rest of the rats will be killed and dissected upon the shuttle's return to Earth.

Thursday's launch attempt was thwarted at the last minute by a glitch in a computer system that is used to monitor the takeoff in case the shuttle veers off course toward a populated area and has to be blown up.

Thunderclouds were among the other problems Thursday. After waiting two hours for the skies to clear, NASA resumed the countdown but had to halt it for good at 31 seconds because of the computer problem.

Air Force Col. Bill Sample said one of the computers monitoring the radio link used to send the self-destruct command to the shuttle registered a failure in that link.

Columbia's 14-day journey will be the longest shuttle flight ever.

Blood, saliva, urine and other samples will be taken from the astronauts while in orbit.

As for the rats, biologists say the only way to know precisely what happens to creatures in weightlessness is to dissect them before their bodies are subjected to gravity at the end of the flight, and then preserve the tissue for analysis.

Chamber minority committee meeting goals

MARTHA E. FLORES
Regional Editor

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Minority Involvement Committee wants to build on the foundation it has constructed since its establishment in January.

"I feel we had a real good start," said co-chair Ester Lopez. "We have completed a lot of the goals and objectives set out early on. We are at the stage where we need to reevaluate what we have done and look at what we are going to do."

Lopez co-chairs the committee with Rudy Gutierrez, parental involvement coordinator for the Big Spring Independent School District.

Lopez is Howard College's continuing education director.

Accomplished goals include relocating Howard College Business Center's Small and Minority Breakfast to a more familiar setting. The first breakfast of the semester was at Sacred Heart Catholic Church's Fellowship Hall.

The most recent breakfast took place Wednesday at the El Nopal Cafe. It was touted by center director Danette Toone as the most successful breakfast to date.

The chamber promotes the breakfast through direct mail and public service announcements.

At the Diez y Seis de Septiembre festival, the committee manned a booth and distributed information about the committee itself, the chamber and the business center.

Other goals met include sponsoring a chamber community luncheon recognizing minority business owners and leaders, and increasing minority participation in the chamber's Leadership Big Spring program.

"At Wednesday's meeting, we looked at what goals we have met," Lopez said. "We have met a lot of our short term goals. Our medium term goals are now becoming our short term goals."

One goal that is considered a medium- to long-term goal is the establishment of criteria for the chamber's man and women of the year award winners.

Currently, recipients of those awards are selected by the six most recent men and women of the year. The committee has proposed the chamber board adopt criteria for nominees. Bancroft will address the board about the issue at the upcoming meeting next week.

Committee leaders say they will continue to focus on maintaining participation from its 21 members. They will continue to have a presence at minority community functions.

"Even though we have met a lot of goals, it is like doing housework," Gutierrez said. "It is never done. We must keep maintaining it."

Arts and Crafts Festival scheduled for weekend

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Exhibitors are gearing up for the 17th Annual Big Spring Arts and Crafts Festival Saturday and Sunday at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

With more than 200 exhibitors, the show will not only be one of the oldest of its kind in West Texas, but one of the largest, according to organizer Mel Prather.

Hours for the show are Saturday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Prather, who founded the local festival, said he was pleased with both the quality and variety of displays at the 1993 festival.

"Due to the popularity of the Big Spring festival, we've been able to be selective in the exhibitors we wish to have participating at this year's show," Prather said.

"And, while we're always happy to welcome back some of our more popular booths, we're also pleased to be able to offer new ones," he added.

New exhibitors' wares include items from rustic bird houses, to finished shaker furniture, Prather explained.

Others will have original clothing, jewelry, paintings, quilts, wind chimes, ceramics and furniture. New items on display also will include seasonal decorations including Christmas tree decorations and gift items.

Returning exhibitors will offer

Hill brings benefit of 34 years experience to post at College Park Church of God

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

J.W. Hill retired from pastoring in 1988. Soon, however, he tired of the traveling involved in work as an evangelist, and is now back in the pulpit full time.

Hill came to College Park Church of God, 603 Tulane Ave., two months ago, bringing with him more 34 years of experience.

"Just wanted to settle down a little bit, in pastoral work," said Hill, 65. "We're enjoying being here."

Born in Shamrock and raised in Lubbock, Hill said he matured quickly when he ran away from home at 15 years old to join the Navy during World War II.

"I was afraid the war was going to be over before I got in," he said, smiling. "I grew up fast."

He worked on a hospital evacuation ship as a gunner for a year before his age was discovered and he was sent home. His ship was sent to war zones in the Pacific but he didn't see combat.

His life really changed when he found God, thanks to his wife, Mildred, who was a Christian. He was 21 years old when he was saved. Seven years later, he became a pastor in Denton.

Other pastor positions, starting from most recent, include 18 years at Riverside Church of God in Fort Worth, six years at Graham Church of God in Graham and 12 years at Arlington Heights Church of God in Fort Worth.

From 1988 until recently, he was an evangelist traveling the country. He and his group made trips mostly in Texas, Oklahoma, Virginia and North Carolina.

Hill also spent 13 years taking correspondence courses to get a degree from Bible college. He graduated from University Bible Institute in Alabama, Tenn., but had also taken courses from Lee College in Cleveland, Tenn., and Search Light Bible School in Golden, Colo.

Hill said he is a prophesy preacher. "We are living in the end time, definitely," he said. "I would encourage people to do their best to hold onto what they have and be ready for the return of the Lord."

His goals are aimed at the church and the entire community. "I'd like to, of course, see our church grow," he said. College Park Church of God has about 200 members at present.

But his plans go further. "I'd like to be a help to the community," Hill said, "and the city of Big Spring."

Leadership

Two gave group boost it needed

Silent and strong leaders: Those words can be used to describe Tommy Billalba and Ben Garcia Jr.

Working quietly and preferring to stay behind the scenes, the Chicano Golf Association president and vice president have been instrumental in rejuvenating the 20-year-old organization, according to club members.

"The association was about to fold when Tommy became president. He took over at a time when the association needed leadership," said club secretary Charlie Marmolejo.

Club treasurer Albert Alvarez says of Garcia, "Ben is one of those fellows that doesn't like the limelight but he does a lot good things. He leads the club real well."

"Ben takes charge of things that need to be done without asking for help," Alvarez said. "He doesn't like to take any of the credit for all the good he does. He knows what is going on and is very well liked."

The driving force behind Billalba and Garcia's administration is their commitment to providing academic scholarships. From 1989 to 1992, the association awarded slightly less than $8,000 in scholarships and emergency assistance.

In 1993 alone, the club awarded more than $9,000 and expects to award several thousand more in the spring of 1994.

The amount of the scholarship has grown from $250 to $1,000.

"When I first became president in 1989, I wanted to get a scholarship drive off the ground," Billalba said. "In the next few years, I would like the club to award a full scholarship."

Billalba, a Big Spring native and 15-year Winn-Dixie employee, says although he did not attend college, he is aware how important a college education is and how easily expenses can mount.

"I hear about the high costs of a college education and I hope the club can help somebody make it all the way," he said.

Since the club's formation in 1972, it has organized tournaments for its members and other golf enthusiasts. In the late 1980s, its mission became two-fold, coordinating golf tournaments and raising money for scholarships, civic organizations and people in need.

Each spring, the club member begin monthly tournaments with half designated as fundraisers. Culminating the summer activities is a major two-day fundraiser with a golf tournament, dance and dinner.

Recipients of the club members' benevolence include college bound students, United Way, Northside Community Center, Westside DayCare Center, Big Spring Boys Club and Hispanic Women for Progress.

Baptist meeting

A look at the issues

By JACK CHAMBERS
Special to the Herald

The annual meeting of the Baptist General Convention of Texas (BGCT) will take place Oct. 25-26 in Dallas. As in previous years, several controversial issues will be addressed.

COMMENTARY

First, there is the issue of who will lead the state convention for the next year. Jerold McBride, pastor of First Baptist Church of San Angelo, will be nominated for president.

McBride and his church are supporters of the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship (CBF). The CBF was formed by so-called "moderates" in the Southern Baptist Convention (SBC), who are upset that Biblical conservatives have ousted theological liberals from various national leadership positions.

The CBF has its own missions organization, which competes for dollars with the Cooperative Program, the legitimate funding structure of the SBC. (Notice the deceptive similarity of the names "Cooperative Baptist Fellowship" and "Cooperative Program.")

Gerald Davidson, pastor of First Baptist Church, Arnold, Missouri, knows about the agenda of the CBF. While president of the Missouri Baptist Convention, he attended several CBF meetings, where pastors were taught how to redirect their churches' offerings from the Cooperative Program to the CBF.

Davidson told me, "This is an obvious stepping stone towards a new denomination. The CBF wants to take away as many churches and dollars as possible."

One of my brothers and his wife, along with their three small children, recently went to Ethiopia to serve as career Baptist missionaries. They, along with missionaries across the globe, have sacrificed everything to spread the good news of Jesus Christ. They are financially dependent on the tithes and offerings of Baptists through the Cooperative Program.

The election of Jerold McBride could cause divisiveness by weakening the BGCT's support of Baptist missionaries like my brother. And, the future of over 30 Texas Baptist institutions (universities, children's please see Baptist, page 9.

Mona Lou Tonn, above, sings before the Women Aglow Harvest Luncheon Wednesday. ## Miracle of a new life

Hall tells of inspiration to start local children's ministry

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

Barbara Hall never cared for children.

The Big Spring resident was too busy living life in the fast lane - owning several businesses, drinking and going to parties. She didn't have time to think about the needs of anyone except herself.

"I was outgoing, always making sure I pleased everybody, but I was really selfish," said Hall, the speaker at Women Aglow's Harvest Luncheon Wednesday. Women Aglow is a non-denominational Christian group.

One night in November of 1991, Hall said, her life reached its lowest point. She was overworked, depending on drinks to make it through each day, and constantly taking on more projects.

Fed up and frustrated, angry at everyone close to her, she took a drive. When she could see no alternative, Hall began planning suicide.

She says only the grace of God working through her husband and sister saved her life. Within six months, she had given her life to her faith.

"God gave me a new heart," Hall said. "He gave me a heart for children."

Now Hall and her husband, Mike - owners of Chapman's Meat Market and Artifacts - are building a children's ministry. In the near future, they envision starting a home for underprivileged kids in the area.

At present, the Halls are raising two children - their son, Zac, and Michael, a boy whose mother was not able to care for him.

A friend of the Halls literally showed up on their doorstep with Michael and asked them to keep him for a few days. Soon they had custody, and he's been with them several months.

"This was something I never would have done, and it has been absolutely wonderful," Hall said.

Now her Suburban has become a church bus for other children in the community, ferrying them to worship on Sundays. But she wishes she could do more.

"I see so many children who have these needs, and there just aren't enough foster parents to go around," she said.

At Wednesday's luncheon, Hall urged others to learn from her example.

"There's no reason anyone should have to go through what I've been through, but I know there are people hurting like I was hurting," she said.

The difference, Hall said, is that while she always considered Jesus her savior, it was only in March of 1992 that she made him "Lord of her life."

Hall said she gave credit to God for saving her from destruction the November before, but was not fully committed to a new life. For reasons she can't explain, she called her pastor one day in March and asked to come over for coffee.

She wasn't sure what to expect.

"The minute I walked in, he knew," she said, "but he waited for me to say it." Soon she was on her knees, Hall said, begging God to heal her of alcoholism and all her sins.

Three days later, she told her family.

"In a flash, the desire changes from self to others," Hall said. "I feel good about myself, I'm not trying to fit an image, but being what God created me to be."

"I still have bad moments, but they're not bad days and weeks, just moments," she said. "To realize that God is the Lord of your life makes everything easier. You don't have to struggle."

With the meat market slated to close for good at the end of this week, Hall and her husband will concentrate on their ministry.

"They're seeing God's vision for them, a place for children who don't have anything," said Kay Bancroft, a friend of Hall's and the originator of Women Aglow.

homes, hospitals, nursing homes, etc.) could be jeopardized with McBride at the helm.

Messengers in Dallas will have the opportunity to show their support for the SBC and the Cooperative Program by electing a slate of three officers, all of whom are biblically conservative pastors: president - Wayne Allen (First Baptist, Carrollton); 1st vice president - John Hatch (First Baptist, Lake Jackson); and 2nd vice president - Robert Lacey (Hillcrest Baptist, Big Spring).

Messengers will also deal with Baylor University. Baylor's current leadership continues to disappoint Texas Baptists (especially those of us who attended the school) with policies based more on secular humanism than with historic Christianity. And, university trustees (now called "regents") got away with piracy two years ago, when they convinced the BGCT to reduce its representation on Baylor's governing board by three-fourths.

At this year's meeting, messengers should reduce funding to any Texas Baptist institution in direct proportion to the level of reduced representation on governing boards. (This would lower annual BGCT funding for Baylor from $4 million to $1 million.)

This is not an "anti-Baylor" proposal. I, for one, still love the school, even though I oppose its current leaders. But a reduction in funding would be the only fair thing to do, considering that Baylor currently gets the same dollars-per-student as other Texas Baptist Universities, even though these other schools are still controlled by the BGCT. (I previously wrote a column calling on Texas Baptists to cut off Baylor entirely, but I feel the above proposal is more reasonable.)

Finally, messengers to the BGCT should cut off all funding to the Baptist Joint Committee (BJC) in Washington, D.C., as the SBC did years ago. The BJC is just a Baptist version of the ACLU. Under the cloak of promoting the "separation of church and state," the BJC's agenda is directed towards removing religious influences from public life. In a recent newsletter, this group actually advocated the abolition of a national day of prayer!

A meeting of conservative Baptists who are concerned about these issues will be held at the YMCA, across the street from First Baptist Church of Dallas, at 8:00 a.m., Monday, Oct. 25 (the opening day of the convention). If you want to be a messenger to the BGCT, there's probably still time for your church to elect you.

Heavenly expectations

By The Associated Press

Despite denominational differences, most Christians share an optimistic view of life beyond the grave. And a recent survey of 13,000 Lutherans finds their concepts of heaven and hell are about like those of believers in general.

Two surveys find both groups overwhelmingly expect to go to heaven, and only a scant few have any worries about going to hell. They anticipate a happy hereafter.

The large Lutheran sampling came from readers of the Lutheran and Lutheran Women Today, periodicals of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, while the responses of believers in general were in Gallup polls.

Of the 78 percent of Americans who believe there is a heaven, 94 percent think their prospects for getting there are excellent, good or fair. Lutherans indicated similar optimism, 93.6 percent expecting to go to heaven.

Most of them, 84.8 percent, think they will be reunited with loved ones in that happy eternity.

Of the 60 percent of Americans generally who think there is a hell, 77 percent see little chance of going there themselves. But 19 percent admit they're uneasy about it.

While a much larger proportion of Lutherans believe hell exists, 91.8 percent, they seemed slightly more sanguine about it. Only about 16.5 percent worry about going there themselves.

But a considerably larger proportion, 51.8 percent, worry that a loved one may end up there.

"Very few people picture themselves in hell," writes church historian Martin Marty in conjunction with the Lutheran findings. "It's no threat to them, so it's hardly a motivator."

As to the nature of hell, 92.5 percent of the Lutherans say it is "separation from God." Many of them, 72.6 percent, also say it's a "state of despair, hopelessness," and 73.4 percent say it's "beyond our ability to imagine."

Bishops say yes to health care, no to abortion

By TERRY MATTINGLY
Scripps Howard News Service

It would be hard to name a cause that the U.S. Catholic bishops could back with more fervor than health-care reform.

In one call for improved health care, they endorsed "group medicine" through "municipal clinics" and cited the special needs of urban and working-class Americans.

"A vast amount of unnecessary sickness and suffering exists among the poor and lower middle classes" because of inadequate care, the bishops said.

Some of this language sounds archaic, which is understandable since it was written in 1919.

More recently, the U.S. Catholic bishops unanimously adopted the latest of many such calls for reform.

"Every person has a right to adequate health care," they said. "This right flows from the sanctity of human life and the dignity that belongs to all human persons, who are made in the image of God... Our call for health care reform is rooted in the biblical call to heal the sick and to serve 'the least of these,' the priorities of social justice and the principle of the common good."

This can be seen as another example of a trend in Catholic teaching that portrays issues of human life and death as part of one "seamless garment."

Friday football forecast

Compiled by Herald Sports Staff

SWEETWATER (3-2, 1-0) at BIG SPRING (4-2, 1-1)

The Steers are hurting. Star tailback Lonnie Jackson will likely sit on the bench (oops! - The Steers don't have a bench on their sideline) because of an ankle injury. Ditto for Ricky Gonzalpz, Big Spring's starting center. Tedric McCallister, a tight end who was having a fine year, is lost for the season to a broken leg.

High time to pick the Sweetwater Mustangs, right? Wrong. The Steers still have their defense, and Big Spring is deep enough to handle a few injuries. Also, Sweetwater's defense isn't equal to the defense of those other Mustangs from Andrews.

Sweetwater averages 487 yards per game on offense, but the Steers will push that number down considerably. The key will be slowing down Sweetwater quarterback Terry Clemmer, who has passed for 1,375 yards this season.

BIG SPRING 30, SWEETWATER 24

COAHOMA (2-4, 0-2) at STANTON (4-2, 2-1)

This traditional rivalry takes on a little more meaning with the fact that Coahoma absolutely cannot lose if it wants to make the playoffs. Stanton, meanwhile, doesn't quite have its back against the wall, but a loss would do the trick.

The Bulldogs have the size advantage, while Stanton has the edge in speed, especially at running back.

Coahoma will put forth its best effort, but when all else is even, go with speed.

STANTON 28, COAHOMA 24

ROBERT LEE (6-0, 1-0) at FORSAN (3-3, 0-1)

We feel the same way about this game as we did about last week's Forsan-Roscoe battle. Forsan can win this game, but on paper Robert Lee looks too strong.

Forsan is short-handed. Two-way starter Troy Sanders broke his leg and won't be playing again this season, and tight end Brandon Kemper is questionable for tonight's game.

Forsan doesn't have many players to go around, a typical problem for Class 1A squads.

After their strong defensive stand at Roscoe last week, the Buffaloes can't be counted out. Call us gutless - we're picking the favorite.

ROBERT LEE 17, FORSAN 7

COLORADO CITY (1-5, 0-1) at CRANE (2-4, 0-1)

A long season will get longer tonight for the Colorado City Wolves, who seem to be going nowhere.

The Wolves haven't come close to winning since their season-opening shutout of Hawley, and they won't tonight, either. Anything that could go wrong for C-City has.

Just so you know, Crane lost 33-14 to Greenwood last week. Does that mean anything?

Only to C-City, who still has to play Greenwood.

CRANE 31, COLORADO CITY 10

GREENWOOD (4-1-1, 1-0) at REAGAN CO. (6-0, 1-0)

This is a tough game for the Greenwood Rangers, who make their third long road trip in four weeks.

The Reagan County Owls are state-ranked, and for good reason. The Owls are loaded at almost every position, while the Rangers have speed at the skill positions and size on the line. They do lack depth, but that won't swing the tide Greenwood's way.

Go with the Owls at home.

REAGAN CO. 36, GREENWOOD 14

GARDEN CITY (0-5) at FORT DAVIS (2-3)

If Garden City is going to win a game this year, tonight or next Friday is when it will happen.

The Bearkats face the politically incorrect Indians tonight in the District 8-1A opener for both teams. Fort Davis was 4-6 last season, and it has plenty of returning players - seven on offense and eight on defense.

Garden City's defense continues to play well, but we have yet to see its offense. Garden City's first win comes next week at home against Sanderson.

FORT DAVIS 14, GARDEN CITY 8

SANDS (5-0-1, 1-0) at KLONDIKE (5-1, 1-0)

Probably the most important game of the year for both teams. The winner has the inside track to the playoffs, while the loser will have to scramble to make the postseason.

Under normal circumstances, we'd pick Klondike at home, but Mike Lee, the Cougars' outstanding tailback, is hurting, which means that Klondike is also.

Without Lee to worry about, Sands' stingy defense will dominate.

SANDS 24, KLONDIKE 12

GRADY (5-1, 0-1) at WELLMAN (3-3, 1-0)

A must-win situation for the Grady Wildcats. The 'Cats watched their perfect record soiled by a fourth-quarter Klondike rally last week and can ill afford to go 0-2 in tough District 5.

Wellman, a preseason favorite to win the district, struggled in non-conference action but righted the ship last week against Loop.

But this is a game the Wildcats have to win, and they have more than enough speed to get the job done.

GRADY 38, WELLMAN 36

BORDEN COUNTY (2-4, 1-0) at IRA (0-6, 0-1)

Bobby Avery has been telling people all along not to count the Borden County Coyotes out, and his words are starting to look prophetic. The Coyotes lost four of five non-conference games but opened District 6 play with a convincing win over Hermleigh.

Tonight, Borden travels to Ira, which is still looking for its first win. The reason for the Bulldogs' goose egg is simple: injuries have decimated the team.

The Coyotes get a bit of a breather before starting the meat of their district schedule.

BORDEN CO. 86, IRA 6

LAST WEEK: 8 RIGHT, 1 WRONG.

Klondike misses key player, faces Sands

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

PATRICIA - The Klondike Cougars are facing their biggest game of the year tonight, and they'll be doing it without one of their biggest guns.

The Cougars (5-1 and 1-0 in District 5 six-man) will host district rival Sands (5-0-1, 1-0) tonight at 7:30 in a game that will go a long way toward determining the district's playoff representatives.

Unfortunately for the Cougars, however, they'll be going into the game minus tailback-linebacker Mike Lee. Lee, Klondike's leading rusher, suffered a knee injury last Friday against Grady and will undergo arthroscopic surgery today in Midland.

LEE

Lee, along with quarterback Tanner Etheredge, formed a potent 1-2 punch for the Cougars and, needless to say, his presence will be missed in Klondike's backfield.

"We can't try to be like Mike without Mike," Klondike coach Ed Wilson said. "Our whole offense will probably change ... We'll replace Mike with a freshman (Eric Arismendez) on offense and a sophomore (Ryan Jones) on defense."

The Cougars are not in the best of shape, even without Lee's injury. Center Mike Nickles is "about 60 percent recovered" from a sprained knee and ankle on his right leg, while Lee's primary replacement at linebacker, Adam Binnix, is out for Friday's game.

And injuries are something Wilson and the Cougars can ill-afford right now, especially with the Mustangs coming to town.

"(The injuries) definitely came at the wrong time," he said. "This game could be for the gold football (district championship trophy). They're definitely tough breaks. We've just got to go out there and play the game."

Despite the loss of Lee, Sands coach Bob Keyes still believes the Cougars are a more-than-capable football team.

"They may be even more dangerous now," Keyes said. "They may go out there Friday and play more inspired football ... Sometimes you get that response from the kids, and they go out and pick up the slack."

Wilson said the team's emphasis on offense will shift away from the power running personified by Lee to a more "finesse" style offense. More emphasis also will be put on quarterback Etheredge, who has been productive both running and passing the ball.

Regardless of who plays where for who, Keyes doesn't expect any let-down from either team.

"We'll definitely be ready to play Klondike," Keyes said. "I know they are always ready to play us."

Wilson said Sands' depth presents a unique challenge for a six-man team.

"They platoon on both offense and defense," Wilson said. "They look real sound on both offense and defense. They do a lot of good things; their's just not a lot of weaknesses there. (Tailback) Heath Gillespie does a great job ... They're just going to be tough to beat."

Despite Lee's absence, Keyes said the Mustangs are preparing for a similar attack.

"We haven't changed much, we're still working on the running game," he said. "All we can do is work on what we see on film and go from there."

"This game is very important for our future and our program," Wilson said. "As far as this year goes ... it looks like it could very well be a district championship game."

GRADY at WELLMAN

The Grady Wildcats were the surprise team in the area, going undefeated in their first five games. But that record was sullied last week when Klondike rallied in the fourth quarter for a 38-34 victory.

Now, the Wildcat must regroup in a hurry, because they face pre-season favorite Wellman on the road tonight at 7:30.

"It's definitely a must-win game for us," Grady coach Roger Smith said. "The next four games are must-wins for us as well, as far as not having to depend on someone else to knock someone off for us ... If we win the next four games, we'll make the playoffs."

The biggest chore for the Wildcats this week was shaking off the sting of the Klondike rally.

"It hurt quite a bit," Smith said. "I felt like we should have won ... But you win some and you lose some. We lost it pretty much the same way we won the first five, as a team."

Philly's got a chance

Who'd-a think it?

I mean, who woulda think it? The Philadelphia Phillies, who look more like a bunch of frat-house rejects than a baseball team, are going to the World Series.

Straight-laced types around the free world are drowning their sorrows in their Perrier these days. The clean-shaven Atlanta Braves were sent packing, and the beer-and-a-shot Phils will take the National League banner to the Series against the Toronto Blue Jays.

Who'd-a think it? Actually, it's not so bad that these Phils will take part in the Series.

It should be refreshing, this year's World Series. The Braves were definitely a great team this year, what with 104 wins and all. But an Atlanta-Toronto World Series would have had the vaunted experts furrowing their brows and drawing up comparisons to World War II.

Now, everybody can just relax and enjoy the games.

No one will expect the Phillies to win - therefore, of course, everyone will be rooting for them.

But you want to know something? Everybody gather 'round, because I don't want to say this too loud.

Philly's got a chance.

Yeah, you heard me right.

Philadelphia, despite its "what-me-worry" approach to the game and Keystone Kops perception, is really a pretty decent team, as the following comparison shows.

STARTING PITCHING - Toronto has two excellent starters in Juan Guzman and Dave Stewart, but after that the Jays are suspect. The same can be said of the Phils. Curt Schilling and Tommy Greene are standouts, but after that the pickings are a bit thin.

Edge: Even.

RELIEF PITCHING - This might be the Blue Jays' biggest advantage.

Steve Reagan

Duane Ward had 45 saves this season for Toronto, while Philly's Mitch "Wild Thing" Williams led the league in nothing except gray hairs caused.

Edge: Blue Jays.

HITTING - Everyone looks at Toronto's lineup that includes Rickey Henderson, Paul Molitor, Roberto Alomar and Joe Carter and declares it the best hitting group in the majors, but Chicago showed that good pitching can slow them down.

The Lenny Dykstra and Darren Daulton-led Phillies, meanwhile, ate up the best rotation in baseball (Atlanta's).

Edge: Phillies.

DEFENSE - Another edge for the Blue Jays. Toronto is solid up the middle with Alomar, Tony Fernandez and Devon White, while Philadelphia almost blew two of its wins over the Braves with costly errors.

Edge: Blue Jays.

MANAGERS - Toronto's Cito Gaston is a quiet, efficient type who doesn't do much except win. He is smart enough to put his best players on the field and allow them to do what they do best. Philadelphia's Jim Fregosi, meanwhile, has wrapped up the Manager of the Year award by leading the Phils from last place in '92 to the Series this year.

Edge: Phillies.

My prediction? If pressed to the wall and forced to bet the family fortune, I would say the Blue Jays in six games.

But I'll be rooting for the Phillies.

An October dream comes true

After a 5-hour wait in line, John Campbell and his son, Jimmy, of Turnersville, N.J., happily hold their World Series tickets, which they purchased at Veterans Stadium in Philadelphia Thursday. The two were among thousands of ticket lottery winners to line up at the stadium after the Philadelphia Phillies clinched the National League championship Wednesday with a win over the Atlanta Braves. The Phillies will battle the Toronto Blue Jays in the Series, which starts Saturday night in Toronto.

Area fishing report

It was much the same story at Lake O.H. Ivie last week for fishermen - good to excellent results on black bass; good for small-mouth bass; fair to good for crappie, channel and yellow catfish.

Quite a good percentage of the black bass catches were in the 18-inch keeper category. Crank and buzz baits along shoreline off points and among lake weeds got best results. Some nice-sized bass were still being taken on plastic worms in 15-20 feet of water. Small-mouth bass were hitting worms and jigs best off points and rock ridges.

Crappie fishing dropped off as the specimen started moving out of deep water toward surface as water temperature decreased to 72.9 surface. The temperature at bottom was 61.9 degrees.

Channel catfish were hitting minnows either on trotlines or rod and reel, and yellow catfish took live bait best in 25 feet of water along rocky areas. Now and then there were reports of a few white bass.

Lake level at the week's end was 1549.64, roughly a foot and a half below spillway.

Black bass waded with striped bass in popularity at Lake E.V. Spence, where surface water temperature was 73 degrees. Fishing out of Paint Creek Marina, Darroll Sorey and Preston and Tom Stewart from Greenwood reeled in 15 small stripers 18 to 22 inches long. They used live bait and top water lures.

Also, Tommy Johnson of Midland caught five stripers up to 3.5 pounds with live bait and a shiner.

Wildcat Marina reports included Glenn and Anthony Cobas, Odessa, who reeled in a 5.5-pound black bass, which was released.

Big Spring sweeps Sweetwater Thursday

JV, freshmen Steers win; 'Dogs rumble

Thursday night was another profitable one for local junior varsity and freshman teams. Big Spring won its freshman and JV games, and Coahoma blew out Stanton's JV squad.

Big Spring JV 22
Sweetwater JV 19

SWEETWATER - Ray McGee's 99-yard touchdown run got Big Spring's offense rolling, and the Steers held on to defeat Sweetwater in a Thursday JV game. McGee's dash, plus a two-point pass from Bucky Crenshaw to Manny Corvantes, put the Steers up 8-7 in the first quarter.

The lead grew to 16-7 when Crenshaw scored on a quarterback sneak and hit Donnie Hill with a two-point pass.

Big Spring's final points came in the fourth quarter on McGee's 25-yard touchdown run.

The JV Steers are 4-3, and their next game is Thursday at home against San Angelo Lake View.

Big Spring 8 8 0 6-22
Sweetwater 7 0 6 6-19

Big Spring 9th 28
Sweetwater 9th 20

Big Spring's freshmen looked to be in trouble Thursday night at Memorial Stadium. Sweetwater led the Steers 20-16 going into the fourth quarter.

That's when Toma McVae stepped in. McVae, who's having a strong season for the freshmen, caught a 75-yard touchdown pass from Tyler Murphy in the fourth quarter to give the Steers the lead. McVae added a 50-yard touchdown run later in the quarter to ice the Steers' 28-20 win.

"The effort was great again, we're always praising this team's effort," said Big Spring coach Gary Simmons, who saw the freshmen improve to 5-1-1. "We got behind again, but we came back. We had some great defensive stands in the fourth quarter."

McVae scored the first of his three touchdowns in the first quarter on a 3-yard run. In the second quarter, Big Spring's Chad Warren scored on a 25-yard run to give the Steers a 16-6 lead.

Sweetwater had a 25-yard touchdown pass later in the quarter to make the halftime score 16-12.

Sweetwater had a 1-yard touchdown run and a two-point conversion to grab a lead before McVae started his fourth-quarter heroics. The freshmen Steers travel to San Angelo Lake View Thursday for a 5 p.m. game.

Sweetwater 6 6 8 0-20
Big Spring 8 8 0 12-28

Coahoma JV 40
Stanton JV 12

COAHOMA - Coahoma's junior varsity scored the game's first 21 points and never looked back as they routed Stanton's JV Thursday night.

Coahoma improved to 7-0 with the win, while Stanton fell to 5-2 with the loss.

Tailback Chris Arguello opened the scoring for Coahoma in the first quarter when he tallied from 3 yards out. Matt Mackey's conversion kick made the score 7-0.

In the second, fullback Gerardo Armendariz got into the scoring act with a 5-yard touchdown run to make the score 13-0. Later in the quarter, wingback Marshall Wright added a 4-yard touchdown run.

Stanton broke its scoring drought when quarterback Taylor Looney, who finished the game completing 13 of 23 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns, hooked up with Chris Carroll on a 14-yard scoring pass.

Coahoma made the score 28-6 at halftime on freshman tailback Freddy Olivias' 45-yard scoring scamper.

The Bulldogs took the opening kickoff of the second half and immediately padded their lead when, on the second play from scrimmage, quarterback Adam Tindol passed 70 yards to Ronnie Grant for the touchdown.

Stanton fumbled away the ensuing kickoff and Tindol cashed the gift in, scoring from 20 yards out to make the score 40-6.

Looney finished the scoring for the game with a 5-yard touchdown pass to Jerrod

Stallings in the fourth quarter.

Playing well for the Bulldogs defensively were Kevin Dunlap, Jonathan Miller, Rocky Coates and Eli Sanders.

Coahoma returns to action Thursday at Iraan, while Stanton hosts Eldorado. Game time for both contests is 7 p.m.

Forsan JV 8,
Robert Lee JV 8

ROBERT LEE - Forsan's junior varsity team scored a touchdown and a two-point conversion with 1 minute left in the game to earn a tie at Robert Lee.

Josh Etheredge scored the touchdown, and Sky Massingill, Forsan's quarterback, added the two-point play.

Forsan's record is 2-3-1.

Alcohol played role in player's suicide

By The Associated Press

FORT SMITH, Ark. — The director of sports medicine for the Arkansas football team said Thursday that linebacker Shannon Wright provided coaches and players with an example to follow, when his life was in order.

"He was the epitome of hard work. He strived to be the best," UA trainer Dean Weber said, delivering a eulogy at Wright's funeral. "These are the things that made Shannon appealing to us."

Wright's battle with alcohol ended Wednesday when he apparently killed himself. He was buried Thursday in the town where he grew up, with eight of his teammates as pallbearers.

About 1,400 people attended the funeral for Wright, including the Razorback football team and coach Danny Ford.

Wright, who admitted he began drinking in high school, was found Wednesday morning behind the wheel of a vehicle in the driveway of a Fayetteville family with whom he lived during the summer. A .22-caliber revolver, seven empty beer cans and a partially empty beer can were in the vehicle, police said.

Weber, who said he is an alcoholic, talked about Wright's drinking problems. "You got upset with him sometimes because of dumb things he'd do," Weber said. "Then you'd see him going fishing or coming back from fishing, and he'd have that smile on his face. Those of us who knew him, he took us through a whole gamut of emotions."

Wright's body was found shortly after 6 a.m. Hours earlier, Wright had moved some of his belongings out of his girlfriend's residence.

Nicole Taylor said she and Wright had discussed problems he was having with his former girlfriend.

Police Chief Richard Watson said Wright told Miss Taylor that he needed some time alone, left the house and went to his vehicle. Later, the chief said, "someone looked down, saw him slumped over the wheel and thought he had passed out."

Police Lt. Tracey Risley, investigating officer, said there was no suicide note at the scene, but that the investigation revealed Wright had suicidal tendencies. The official cause of death and Wright's blood-alcohol level will be released by the state Crime Lab.

Andy Cox, a graduate assistant coach at Arkansas, was with Wright on Tuesday night. He said Wright and the woman broke up last week, but said there wasn't any animosity.

"He thought he wanted to marry her and she said she wanted some time," Cox said. "... it will make you crazy when you're young."

Cox said Wright was fine when he talked with athlete at the dorm shortly before the midnight curfew. Shortly after the 1990 Cotton Bowl, Wright was arrested in the theft of several cans of beer from a convenience store in Fort Smith. Eventually, he was fined $250, given a one-year suspended sentence and ordered to undergo a drug and alcohol rehabilitation program.

Baseball plans for playoff changes

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — The Braves found out that 104 victories don't necessarily get you to the World Series. Next year, when baseball's playoffs expand from four teams to eight, there will be more chances for big upsets.

"It will make the playoffs more intense," Bud Selig, chairman of baseball's ruling executive council, said Thursday, a day after Atlanta was eliminated in six games by the Philadelphia Phillies. "While people have said this may be the last great playoffs race, I don't believe that."

The Braves went 104-58, the most victories since the 1986 New York Mets. But six months of work came apart in four days, when they went from a 2-1 series lead to a 4-2 loss.

Next year, with three divisions, each qualifier will play a best-of-5 series just to get to a league championship.

"It's going to be a very intense series because every game puts you more in a jeopardy," Phillies president Bill Giles said.

Giles and John Harrington of the Boston Red Sox were the biggest advocates of an expanded postseason, which will stretch to four weeks next year.

"I think it's important the playoffs have this change," Phillies manager Jim Fregosi said. "Years ago, there were 16 clubs. Now we have 28. Soon it'll be 30. I think it's important for more clubs to get this excitement we had."

If these were the old days, before the split into divisions in 1969, the Phillies would have finished seven games behind the Braves at 97-65.

"When you win 100 games in a season, that is a super ballclub," Fregosi said. "The last time I won a division championship (with California in 1979), we won 88 games."

Braves general manager John Schuerholz said there's nothing you can do about a short series.

"If you have the best players, that's the bottom line," he said. "You get the best players."

Selig said he felt bad the Giants weren't in the playoffs this year. They went 103-59 and finished one game behind Atlanta in the NL West. He also understands that teams with outstanding regular seasons could lose in the first round next year.

"Once the playoffs start, hey look, that's true in any playoff system," he said. "But somehow, good teams do all right in the playoffs."

Owners and the Players Association haven't agreed on the expanded playoffs, partially because they haven't agreed how to divide the additional revenue. They also must decide how to break ties for both spots in the playoffs and which teams get the extra home games.

"The proposal we made is that if you're tied for a position to get in the first round, you would have a playoff game," Giles said. "If you are already automatically into the playoffs and you're just determining where you are, you would go by the records against each other, how you performed against the team you tied with. Then you would go by record within the division."

The morning after the Phillies' big win, Giles was glowing. It's easy to like the new system when your team has beaten an opponent that had seven more victories during the regular season.

"The more I think about it, the more I think the three-division idea is a good one," Giles said. "It will create so much more intensity and jeopardy."
