Businesses rally behind United Way

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Big Spring area businesses are rallying behind United Way of Big Spring/Howard County, bringing lagging donations up to more than 30 percent of the agency's goal of $235,000.

Donations were lagging well behind those of last year, but UW volunteers have helped close the gap, according to UW Executive Director Sherrie Bordofsky. "The Commercial Division is making a blitz on the businesses and we expect to have a great report from them next week," Bordofsky said.

The United Way has received more than $70,000 in the drive so far.

A phone bank, manned by UW volunteers, has been a successful tool, and all divisions of the United Way fund-drive are still hard at work. A progress meeting is planned for 6:30 p.m. Thursday at TU Electric.

"In the next three weeks, I hope we will have the majority of the money and pledges back into the office so that I can give a victory total by Nov. 15," Bordofsky said.

The need in Big Spring is greater than it has been in many years, Bordofsky said. With collections running behind last year's, UW volunteers are working harder because last year's collections fell slightly short of the same $235,000 goal set for this year's drive.

Bordofsky stressed the need for everyone to work together to make the campaign successful.

United Way Campaign Manager Joe Cook said the 1993 goal is $235,000, but the need of the 11 community-service organizations funded by the United Way is $275,000.

Cook called this greater figure the United Way Gold and said it could be achieved, even without larger corporate donations, if Big Spring's working population would give only $20 each.

The thrust of this year's campaign is education, letting people know about United Way and all the agencies it assists. "There are a lot of people out there who will give if you merely ask them," Cook said.

At the United Way Kickoff Luncheon, Texas Tech basketball coach Marsha Sharp said United Way contributions should not be thought of as simply money. "We're talking about people's lives here — not just things and money."

This year's Big Spring United Way video, "Winners*All of Us*The United Way," was premiered at the meeting, prepared by KWAB videographer Loran Warren and Randy Lynn of KBST and KWAB.

The video, which focuses on various UW contributor's views of United Way, is available for public viewing by calling the United Way office at 267-5201.

The goal for this year's funding is the same as that of the last two years, $235,000, according to United Way officials.

A new agency, however, has been added to the 10 agencies routinely covered under the United Way umbrella. Rape Crisis/Victim Services is slated to receive $4,000 in funding from the United Way.

The American Red Cross will receive $5,700; the Boys Club will get $35,000; Boy Scouts will receive $6,000; the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center will get $15,000; Northside Community Center will receive $14,000; the Salvation Army will get $31,000; the Westside Community Center will get $25,000; Westside Day Care Center will receive $20,000; Girl Scouts will get $4,000; the Big Spring YMCA will get $10,000; collection losses were estimated at $18,300 and operating expenses were estimated at $47,000.

Girl Scout Troop 230 displays the Halloween basket they prepared for cancer survivor Lana Anguiano. The troop will prepare holiday baskets each month through the end of the year for Anguiano.

Girl Scouting project helps cancer patient

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Girl Scouts Troop 230, with help from United Way, is working to bring cheer and needed supplies to a local woman fighting cancer.

The Girl Scout troop needed a service project so the girls could earn badges. Once the badges are earned, they can perform service projects each year and add jewels to the badge.

For their initial project, troop leaders April Ferguson, Karen Bearden, Debbie Gunn, and Susan Loper worked with United Way coordinator Sherrie Bordofsky to find a project for the girls. Bordofsky had no trouble matching the troop with someone in need.

Lana Anguiano, 35, suffers from cancer and has had her larynx removed. She cannot talk and cannot eat anything except a liquid supplement called Ensure. The cost of medical treatment and the supplements has left the family in poor financial shape, according to Bordofsky.

The troop decided to adopt Anguiano and fix her holiday baskets each month through the end of the year. On Tuesday, Troops 230 and 234 met with Bordofsky to learn about the United Way. Troop 230 also put together a Halloween basket for Anguiano.

The Halloween basket contains decorations such as pumpkins, Indian corn, and a supply of Ensure. The girls are excited about helping Anguiano. Kendra Bearden, 9, said, "It's nice to help people and it's fun to see people get well." Each holiday basket will contain a supply of Ensure for Anguiano.

Troop 230 was originally supposed to have a surprise visit from Anguiano while visiting the United Way office. However, Anguiano became very ill and had to go to the hospital, Bordofsky said.

The troop, Bordofsky, and Anguiano hope to reschedule the visit soon. "The girls are just so excited. They really want to meet Lana. And she really wanted to be here," said Bordofsky.

Meanwhile, the troop hopes its Halloween basket will serve as a cheerful first introduction to Anguiano. "It's sort of fun because you get to help somebody out. You get a good feeling," said 9-year-old Lori Ellis.

Council may deregulate all taxicabs

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

Deregulating local taxi services would create safety hazards, Taxi Big Spring owner David Mitchem said in response to a recent suggestion from City Manager Lanny Lambert.

Lambert told the Big Spring City Council Tuesday that the city doesn't have the manpower or resources to ensure regulations are followed. His comments followed remarks from a former employee of Mitchem's who claims the taxi company isn't following rules.

"I think the city should get out of the taxi cab regulating business," Lambert advised. He added that the city collects just $210 a year on taxi permits.

Mitchem said that would open doors to services without insurance, driving while under the influence of drugs and even burglars posing as a taxi driver as they check neighborhoods for empty homes.

"I think it's kind of silly," Mitchem said. "Just everybody's going to want to grab a car and run a taxi without anybody holding the reins on who's driving."

The former employee, Wayne Mayo, who said he quit his job because he was told to quit smoking, asked the council for an investigation of Taxi Big Spring.

He charged that meters in the three vehicles are not reading the same, rates and licenses are not posted as required, brakes are bad and a window is cracked.

"I'd appreciate it," Mayo said of his request.

Mitchem said there is a window cracked but said meters are working the way they should and rates and licenses have been posted.

"I'll take another look," he said of rates and license notices. "If they need to be put back in there, I'll put

VA Medical Center's address now 300 Veterans Boulevard

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

The Veterans Administration Medical Center officially has a new address, but the location hasn't changed.

The VA Medical Center used to call 2400 Gregg St. home, but last year on Veterans' Day, the center named a previously nameless street in front of the building. A ceremony was held to celebrate the new name, and the center's unofficial new address became 300 Veterans Boulevard.

Naming the street was relatively easy, but making an official mailing address change took longer. Just this month, the center was finally able to change its mailing address from the Gregg St. address to 300 Veterans Boulevard.

Accompanying the address change will be a new parking lot and improved access to the building. Construction on the new parking lot and entranceway should start in November, said Fred Cox, chief of voluntary service at the center.

The new street name was chosen to create a better, more appropriate address for the hospital. "We all decided it was a good name," Cox said. "It does a better job of depicting the hospital's location." Because there is only one VA Medical Center in town, he does not think out-of-town visitors will

TASB lodges complaint on requirements

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A school board group says lawmakers responded pretty well this year to pleas for no new state requirements without increased funding. But the Texas Association of School Boards still has some complaints.

For example, the group said Wednesday, school districts are supposed to separate and collect juice box drinks under a new state recycling law. But they say they are having a hard time finding recyclers to take the waste.

"We have heard from several school districts saying we are trying to comply with this law ... Nobody wants this stuff," said Nancy Cotton of the association, especially citing rural districts.

She called the requirement an example of several state mandates that "are well-intentioned, but they're not always well thought-out." "Our primary purpose is educating kids," Ms. Cotton said. "These are good things, but if the state would help us carry them out, that would be nice."

Rep. Robert Saunders, D-LaGrange, said companies producing such packaging have been contacted by the state and are putting target programs in place to collect the used boxes. He said if they don't, school districts might prefer more permanent drinking containers to disposable packages.

"I don't think companies want to get out of the business of producing this particular packaging," he said.

School districts that can't recycle the boxes could still discard them, Saunders added.

The association has long complained that the state doesn't fund all it requires of school districts. Last year, it put out a study saying several state mandates, such as smaller class sizes, cost more than $1.5 billion in 1991-92.

The recycling law was among new state provisions that the school board group says create problems, without putting a price tag on them. Among others are:

— A law meant to ensure that teachers who received bonuses under a merit pay system don't lose the extra money because the system was abolished.

The association said the Texas Education Agency has interpreted the law to forbid school districts from ever increasing other teachers' pay to eliminate the difference between them and those who had been on the career ladder.

Gov. Ann Richards gestures during a news conference on Capitol Hill Wednesday. The governor was in Washington to meet with Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary and President Clinton to discuss the super collider project and to lobby for passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement. Rep. Jim Chapman and Rep. Martin Frost look on.

Richards meets with Clinton over collider salvage efforts

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Texas Gov. Ann Richards said Wednesday she's been assured by Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary that the federal government intends to repay Texas for its sizeable investment in the aborted super collider project.

Richards was in Washington this week to untangle the complicated web left by the death of the $11 billion giant atom smasher and to lobby for passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement. Before leaving town, she met with President Clinton and White House chief of staff Mack McLarty.

The meetings had a dual purpose: to ensure that Texas recoups its $400 million-plus investment into the super collider; and to seek administration commitments to salvage as much as possible of the work already done on the project south of Dallas near Waxahachie.

Also Wednesday, the Senate hammered the final nails in the super collider's coffin, voting 89-11 for an energy and water appropriations bill that contains the project's termination plan. The legislation now goes to Clinton's desk.

Richards said that during her Oval Office visit with Clinton there was no discussion of the president vetoing the $22 billion appropriations package.

"I'm going to tell you the truth: There's a whole lot of stuff in there for Texas," the governor said as she emerged from the White House, adding that a request to veto the bill "would have been almost counterproductive."

Earlier at a Capitol news conference, Richards detailed the results of her morning session with O'Leary. "She asked me to consider her my partner in this effort, that she clearly understood that the obligation was there and that they intended to satisfy that obligation," Richards said.

"I think the Department of Energy is very anxious to use the portions of the project that they can complete within the money that they have available to them."

A leading collider supporter, Rep. Jim Chapman, said congressional critics may be less conciliatory than the administration. "Everyone just fervently hopes there's a way to do this without litigation," the Sulphur Springs Democrat said of his fellow collider supporters.

"But I'm not confident the Congress has the judgment to recognize what's in the country's long-term economic interest," he said.

Congress will provide $640 million this year to terminate the collider under an agreement hammered out last week by congressional negotiators and approved Tuesday by the House. The Energy Department has estimated the shutdown could top $1.1 billion, but critics have attacked those figures as inflated and suggested they will fight any costs they view as unnecessary.

Some $2 billion has been spent on the physics experiment under construction 35 miles south of Dallas. In addition to Texas' $400 million contribution, the state has spent millions more on building and upgrading roads leading to the remote site.

Richards declined to specify how much she will seek to recoup from the federal government. "We want to make sure of our figures from all sources before we actually give the administration a specific number," she said.

The governor said O'Leary has agreed to travel to Texas next month, either to Waxahachie or Dallas, to further discuss the project's termination. O'Leary also is expected to visit her department's nuclear weapon disassembly plant, Pantex, located near Amarillo on the trip, tentatively scheduled for Nov. 11.

New chief of ATF visits Texas agents

DALLAS (AP) — The Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms' new chief says the Treasury Department's report on the armed cult siege will be required reading for all new agents.

John Magaw and Ron Noble, assistant Secretary of the Treasury on Wednesday met with agents in the bureau's Dallas field division.

Magaw said there were lessons to be learned from the Branch Davidian siege 10 miles east of Waco, but he said it's time to move on.

Magaw and Noble also met with agents in Houston later in the day. There also was another meeting scheduled with ATF agents in New Orleans.

"I believe the single mistake is that in hindsight, which is always 20-20, we didn't say stop, we ought not to do this," Magaw said during a news conference.

Truck owners near settlement with GM

MARSHALL (AP) — Some Texas owners of General Motors trucks have moved closer to a settlement of their class action lawsuit against the manufacturer following a court hearing.

State District Judge Bonnie Leggat Wednesday held the final hearing on a proposed settlement in a class action lawsuit against General Motors.

It is not known when the judge will decide whether to approve the proposal in the lawsuit brought on behalf of a Marshall policeman and others.

The lawsuit filed in Harrison County's 71st District Court sought damages for Tommy Dollar, who owned a General Motors Model CK truck with a side-mounted fuel tank, and other plaintiffs, according to the Marshall News Messenger.

A similar lawsuit involving six million GM truck owners across the country was heard by U.S. District Judge John Yohn.

American Airlines, Gaylord team up

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — American Airlines and Gaylord Entertainment Co. will pool resources to attract tourists to Nashville, Tenn.,

where Gaylord is expanding and the airline wants a London route for its hub.

"We think it would be a heck of a lot more successful than either of us could do by ourselves," Michael W. Gunn, American Airlines' senior vice president of marketing, said Wednesday.

Gunn said the two companies will spend millions of dollars on the five-year campaign, but he would not be more specific.

"This is a forerunner of what you'll see other people try to do," he said.

The entertainment company is always looking for ways to increase its visitors, and American Airlines wants to raise the number of passengers into and out of its hub, the executives said.

Collider collapse costs Westinghouse workers

ROUND ROCK (AP) — Westinghouse magnet division employees, who moved from around the country to Texas to work on the superconducting super collider, are trying to come to grips with Congress' decision to kill the scientific project.

"We would have never come here if we knew they were going to do this to us," said Jane Maynard, whose husband, Rick, is an accounts manager on the project.

The family moved in 1991 from South Carolina to the Round Rock area and built a $250,000 home. "I expected to see this thing through to termination — 2002 or whenever," said Rick Maynard, 44.

Morale was low among 160 division employees who, despite the funding cut, were still working early this week on the $190 million contract for super collider magnets.

"We have received no official notification" that the project is cancelled, Maynard said.

McFarland's feelings mixed on the future

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A condemned inmate who came within minutes of execution before winning a stay says he has mixed feelings about the future.

Frank McFarland, 30, of Hurst, was to die early Wednesday for a 1988 Tarrant County slaying.

But the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the U.S. Supreme Court issued separate reprieves just before midnight Tuesday, when McFarland could have been executed.

Be safe on Halloween

Halloween is almost upon us and soon all the little ghosts and goblins, princesses and Ninja Turtles will be taking to the street in a quest for candy and treats.

Although this should be a day of fun and candy, there are some out there who would ruin it for all of us. So, every parent needs to be careful when taking their children trick or treating.

Some tips are: trick or treat in your own neighborhood; only let children eat candy that has a wrapper on it; take the children to a party instead of house to house trick or treating; have an adult in the group to watch over the children.

Those are just a few tips to help you and your children have a safe and happy Halloween.

And, motorists need to be extra careful. There will hordes of children running around, so slow down around neighborhoods where there will be children. And, be more alert for the children.

Let's make it a safe and good time for all.

Finding fun with math

I learned something the other day that I can do math!!!

Wow, what a revelation! I can actually add, subtract, multiply and divide without a calculator. Believe me, that is the truly amazing part - no calculator.

So how did I gain this amazing insight? I was forced to do some math without a calculator handy, mainly because I wanted to get a head start on some work that was due the next day.

I have never liked numbers or anything that goes with them. Most journalists fall into the profession because they don't have to do any math or much of any. Ever read one of those stories which said something about someone considering five things only to find that about six were listed in the story? Example of a journalist doing math. Actually, not all of us are that bad.

Math just wasn't something I was ever interested in, dating back to when I was born. I have always had trouble in the subject. It's not that I can't do it, it is just that I don't want to be bothered adding numbers up.

When I started school, for the first few years, Dad was there to help. At that time, he could help with the stuff. That is until they invented something called "new math." Then, he couldn't help me at all, it was different from how he had learned to do the very same thing.

So, instead, I muddled my way through, semi-learning how to do it.

I was at the point in sixth grade where my teacher was about to flunk me for my math. She told my Mom, that I spent too much time reading in class and not enough time learning to multiply, add, subtract and divide.

Now, at this point in my life, about the only thing I knew of the multiplication table was how to multiply by two and five.

So, the threat came down, and boy it was the worst threat that could ever be threatened. They - my teacher and my Mom and Dad - were going to take away my BOOKS until I learned how to multiply. Mom said I learned that multiplication table in no time flat.

I learned it well enough to recite it to my teacher and then promptly forgot it in the welter of new books to read. I sure didn't want to be bothered by numbers when there were printed words on a page that were so much more exciting.

I scraped by in high school. I probably would have done better in math if I had to face a TAAS test just to graduate. As it was then, I got by with a course called Consumer Math. Had to take it because I had already taken algebra twice and couldn't quite grasp the concept.

Once, in college, I got brave and took an introductory algebra course. I understood it somewhat better than in high school, but, it was still math.

So, I figured science was the way to go. Silly me, there is more math in science than there is in math! Logic classes were the same, very similar to math which is way I had trouble in logic. After taking those classes, I decided logic was very illogical.

Even music was math. But, I never realized it when you were playing it. Only when I started my college career as a music major did I find out how much of a role math played in music.

Now, I can appreciate the mathematical precision of Johann Sebastian Bach, especially in his fugues. Those things were precise works of art, all mathematically constructed to produce a beautiful piece of music. Bach was the one who invented the keys and put the time into music.

So, I was very leery of doing anything that involved math. I am always impressed with people who can do the stuff in their heads. That truly amazes me.

But, it also truly amazes me that I can do it, even it is the long way and not in my head.

No reason to hail this gang

I can understand why various thugs who lead street gangs have gathered in Chicago for what they call a "peace summit." It's a smart public-relations move.

They know that the TV crews will come running to capture their goofy babblings.

That means they will be seen by their followers, who will feel important and gain a greater sense of identity, which is part of what gang membership is about. At least that's what sociologists and the other deep thinkers tell us.

Even more significant, they will reach a huge audience of young, potential gang recruits. Some kids will see them and think: "Hey, if I join the Insane Idiots, maybe I can grow up to go on TV, too."

In big TV markets such as Chicago, by making the news shows, they will get hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of free advertising for their product, which is gang membership.

And I can understand why the TV news shows go along with the farce. With little effort, they get to fill 30 seconds or so with some colorful guys who are called "prince" or "king" or the "the high hoo-ha" and wear flamboyant robes and beanies and make somber pronouncements about their "agendas" for peace and brotherhood among the "nations."

They know that because the reporters don't want to be accused of lacking sensitivity or being bigots, none will say:

"Excuse me, High Hoo-Ha, grand ruler of the Insane Idiot Nation, but what is your real name and have you ever done time for blowing someone away with an automatic weapon?"

Or: "Say, Prince Whoozits, what's the going rate these days for a kilo of heroin in your town?"

And maybe: "Tell us, High Hoo-Ha, Prince and King, can't you guys ever have a shootout without accidentally zapping a few innocent toddlers?"

Instead, we will hear about their "agendas," which will be filled with sociological babble they learned by listening to public radio or talking to their parole officers.

But what I don't understand is why they are taken seriously and given the time of day by politicians, civil rights leaders and legitimate community organizations. Doesn't anyone look at the headlines or the 10 o'clock news?

Every year, the thugs who attend the "peace summit" declare that they are calling a truce, that there will be an end to the urban warfare.

Then what happens? Some kid is walking to school and makes a detour to the morgue. An old lady sitting by her window catches a stray bullet in the head. A guy wears a sports jacket with the wrong colors or wiggles his fingers incorrectly and his mother has to call the undertaker.

And the drugs flow. That's where the prince, the king and the high hoo-ha make their money. That's what most of the gang shootings are about: Who gets to sell the stuff that toasts out the brains of the junkies.

But when they gather at their summit, the prince, the king and the high hoo-ha say they have nothing to do with that sort of thing.

Really? If they aren't doing it, who is? Maybe the cops should be on the lookout for strange green men from Mars.

But some politicians will show up and jabber about the potential for good deeds by these hard-eyed summiters.

After all, a guy might be a killer and a dope merchant, but if he and his gangbangers can bring out the votes, a political leader must look at the big picture and think of a greater good. Such as using the thugs to get elected.

Of course, there's nothing new about this. There have always been some politicians who were in the pocket of the crime syndicate.

But at least they had the delicacy to do it on the sly. And if a politician was caught attending the wedding of a Mafia boss' daughter, he would slap a fedora over his face and scamper away when the cameramen showed up. He didn't make speeches about the potential for good that existed in the heart of a hit man.

Nor did the crime syndicate bosses hold "peace summits" to declare: "We want to send a clear signal to America that we are gathered here to heal the family." That's what some Prince Whoozits in a beanie just said.

The traditional mobsters wouldn't say something like that because they knew that America wouldn't believe them. Besides, it would be bad for the morale of their troops, who might think they were going to be out of work.

But here we have an even more murderous crew holding a "summit," unveiling their "agendas" and making somber pronouncements for the media.

I know that Chicago is a convention town, and we try to be gracious to visitors.

That's only common courtesy.

But maybe, just this once, we should fingerprint the conventioners.

Reviewer counts in the dark

Bob Greene

cheerleading outfit. ... We see blood on the zombie's mouth."

I asked Payne to explain her reviewing technique. Does reducing movies to their most distressing parts bother her?

"Actually, it really doesn't bother me at all," she said. "I am very detached from the whole thing. Tallying up the acts of violence and the swear words and the sex - it is like doing a scientific research report."

(Yes, she does keep track of the swear words and obscenities in each movie she sees, letting her subscribers know how many times each unpleasant word appears in each movie. "Some parents do not want their children to see any movies with the F-word, and some parents feel that their children are going to hear the F-word among their friends, anyway, and they don't care. So I count the words and report them.")

Payne, 51, said that she goes to the movies just like anyone else: She buys a ticket and sits in the theater. But with a notepad.

"I am really good at writing in the dark," she said. "I'm writing down what is happening - the fights, the shootings, the sex. I sit in the back row of the theater. Against the wall. On the right side."

She prides herself on not being a moralist. "My personality is such that I tend not to get emotionally involved with what I am seeing on the screen and writing down," she said. "We all have our hot buttons, but I am a thinking person rather than a feeling person." She believes the best service she can provide is simply to tell parents what they will encounter when they go to the movies with their children.

"They are able to make their own individual judgments based on how the information I provide is measured against their own values," she said.

Writing in the dark movie theaters, she is aware that once in a while she may inadvertently neglect her duties. "I might miss a swear word, perhaps a minor swear word," she said. "But I try not to. I do not allow myself to become involved with what I am seeing. I am a very analytical person."

The circulation of her newsletter is relatively small - less than 2,000. She is unaware of whether big-studio entertainment executives know what she is doing: "I don't know what they think of me." If she is upset that, even though she does not evaluate R-rated movies, but only movies meant for young people, the movies are filled with bloodshed and sex and obscene words, she does not choose to dwell on her feelings. "My technique is to say, 'This is what is here, and you make your own judgments.'"

Her newsletter is published on a small budget. The crass and moronic plot developments she dispassionately catalogs ("We get a brief glimpse of bloody innards" ... "A school is vandalized and set afire") presumably made millions for the screenwriters and directors who came up with them in the first place, probably not in much more elaborate terms than the ones she uses.

"I am not affected by what I see," she said.

No easy answer

Editor:
Re your editorial of Wednesday, 20 October, apparently F. Scott McCown has a preference in the "equitably" funded school situation. There is no easy answer to this mess our legislators have saddled us with. In the first place, money is not the answer to the education problem. And SB-7 CERTAINLY isn't, though it has some good points, I guess. It includes an incentive for an increase in the pregnancy rate of school kids - through the Compensatory Education Allotment. $10,000,000 has been appropriated and set aside for distribution, with "preference" to the districts that apply that have the highest concentration of students who are pregnant or who are parents.

If money were the answer, then Somervell County, or Glen Rose, should have straight-A students, with nothing less than salutorians graduating. Unfortunately, such is not the case.

And Forsan should be up there close to Glen Rose with their graduates. But such is not the case.

Mandated school equal funding will probably be in the courts for years to come, and cost you and I billions of dollars.

"When one form of tax is substituted for another, it's the same taxpayers who foot the bill," says Gov. Richards. This is true - as long as the same people are targeted.

"I do not consider SB 7 to be a permanent solution" says Senator John T. Montford. "No solution can be permanent until we have resolved how much money is needed in the system to provide a good education, and whether we should continue to rely on property taxes as a major funding source."

There is another source of funding available that apparently meets all the requirements. The Alliance for Quality Education, AQE, their plan would repeal the local business property tax for schools. The franchise/earned surplus tax, which is paid only by corporations, would also be eliminated. "The single broad-based replacement tax would be levied against all businesses in the state equally, based on their economic activity in Texas, with very small businesses and agriculture exempted. Economic models show that such a tax would increase economic growth in the state by making the tax system more efficient" say AQE leaders. And this plan would also bring tax relief for homeowners as well. As it stands now, everyone loses. And proposition 4 is in the same category as Robin Hood, only this one is hydra-headed, or as the plains Indian used to say - "He speaks with forked tongue."

Only through active voters participation can these problems be solved. A fellow told me the other day that if he didn't understand the amendment, he automatically voted against it. This may not be the proper attitude, but at least he voted. Thanks for your time.

Experience La Primera

There is a phenomenon in our very midst that if you have not yet experienced you should make the time to in your very near future.

I have had the honor of watching these young men at rehearsals where there concentration is so intense that they are oblivious to anything or anyone around them. In their eyes is mirrored all the opportunities their collective efforts and talents will no doubt, garner them.

On stage, like a meteor with all its awesome beauty and force explodes upon entering earth's atmosphere so does Big Spring's Premier group La Primera!

They are transformed into showmen who transcend the generations. I have watched audiences reaction to their performance and like a cobra that mesmerizes its captives so does La Primera. They are contagious! Worth catching. As individual as their talents are their personalities. They come together so well. Jimmy, Tom Olague Jr., Johnny Saldivar, Roman Ortega, Johnny Lozano, Manuel, Richard Hilaro, Moe Fierro along with their manager Junior Moreno are to be commended for their talents. As a former San Antonioian let me tell you that when they went up against 38 bands and came up fifth - they were superb! San Antonio is to Tejano Music what Nashville is to country! It is practically unheard of in South Texas to even consider anyone from West Texas. Tejano music is dominated by South Texans! I'm impressed to say the least.

In closing let me say that it gives me a good feeling knowing that these very talented young men are bringing attention to Big Spring from all over Texas and parts of New Mexico. Continued notoriety and success for all your hard work and talents. Adelante con exito!

Clinton pitching NAFTA to Texans

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A high-powered Clinton administration pitch for the North American Free Trade Agreement has reinvigorated Texas business and civic leaders' efforts on behalf of the imperiled pact.

Some of the 58-plus Texans invited Wednesday to the three-hour session at the Old Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House emerged eager to sell the agreement to a skeptical public.

"I think we got the boost that we needed here today," said Karol Rice, an Austin businesswoman who is executive director of the Texas chapter of the Democratic Leadership Council.

"We have allowed Ross Perot and the anti-(NAFTA) forces to spread the myths, spread the half-truths and the misinformation," she told reporters after the briefing. "The economic arguments, the intellectual arguments are overwhelmingly pro-NAFTA. What we have failed to do is dispel those half-truths."

The guests rubbed elbows with Vice President Al Gore, Commerce Secretary Ron Brown, Transportation Secretary Federico Pena, Council of Economic Advisers Chairwoman Laura Tyson and William Daley, who is running the White House's NAFTA operation. Texas Gov. Ann Richards, in town to sell NAFTA to skeptical lawmakers, also made an appearance.

The message drummed into their heads was jobs, jobs, jobs.

"The message today was quite frankly that exports equal jobs," said Bill Calhoun, who chairs the Black Republican Council of Texas and is affiliated with the Houston Citizens Chamber of Commerce.

Two firefighters hold a hose as a hillside in Laguna Beach, Calif., bursts into flames early Thursday. More than 100 homes were destroyed by the wildfire in the area.

Wildfires destroy homes; Laguna Beach evacuated

The Associated Press

More than a dozen wildfires raced across parched Southern California, scorching or destroying more than 450 homes and turning part of posh Laguna Beach into a flaming ghost town. Arson was suspected in at least four blazes.

The fires blackened nearly 80,000 acres, forced thousands to flee their homes and overwhelmed weary firefighters who repeatedly were forced to retreat from burning neighborhoods as 70-mph Santa Ana winds drove the flames.

The hot, dry conditions that turned the region into a tinderbox were forecast to continue today with highs again in the mid-80s, though winds were expected only to reach 25 mph.

Firefighters ordered residents in northern Laguna Beach, a community of 24,500, to leave and then fled themselves as the arson fire consumed their command post on Wednesday. At least 310 homes were damaged or destroyed — among more than 450 homes that burned in 13 major fires from Ventura County to the Mexican border.

In Laguna Beach, 40 miles southeast of Los Angeles, fire burned 10 miles down a canyon to seaside neighborhoods where million-dollar homes overlook the Pacific Ocean. Within minutes dozens of houses were in flames and 2,500 acres were charred.

"It's out of control everywhere," said Harriett Wieder, chairman of the Orange County board of supervisors.

"We've totally extended our resources, our firefighting equipment, everything. Our communications equipment is on overload. This is a major national disaster."

At least 27 firefighters and five residents were hurt battling the fires. Most suffered minor injuries such as smoke inhalation, but two firefighters were in critical condition and two were in serious condition early today, said Barbara Rook, a nurse at Sherman Oaks Hospital & Health Center's burn center.

In Irvine, at least 200 people were evacuated late Wednesday as the northern end of the Laguna Beach fire edged toward homes in the Turtle Rock area, said police Cmdr. Gene Nordan.

"You just never know when it is going to be coming through," Larry Green, of nearby Newport Beach, said as he and others gathered in a parking lot and nervously watched the fire advance this morning.

A 6,000-acre fire roared out of control in Cleveland National Forest and threatened the town of Rancho Santa Margarita, the U.S. Forest Service said. The number of structures at risk was unknown.

Gov. Pete Wilson toured several burned areas and declared states of emergency for Los Angeles, Ventura, Orange, Riverside and San Diego counties.

Arson also was suspected in a blaze that destroyed a trailer park in Laguna Beach, and in fires near Thousand Oaks in Ventura County and Tecate, on the Mexican border.

A transient was arrested in connection with a 5,000-acre fire that forced evacuations and destroyed 115 houses and other structures in Altadena early Wednesday. Another undetermined number of residents were evacuated from nearby Sierra Madre after wind-fanned embers re-ignited.

South of Laguna Beach, traffic was backed up for miles along the Pacific Coast Highway, many of the vehicles packed with families' belongings. Other residents took refuge at area high schools.

"We were watching it on TV," resident Mark Berger said. "Then the wind changed, the fire charged and the police said, 'Grab your kids and get out!'"

Deer, rabbits and other wild animals trying to escape the flames bounded down hillsides and jumped into a swimming pool, said resident Wayne Wright.

In San Diego, fire threatened the Wild Animal Park and keepers rushed to evacuate animals including 26 rare California condors. The park had only minor damage, however, and was expected to reopen today, said spokesman Jeff Jouett.

Travelers arriving at Los Angeles International Airport on Wednesday night said they gazed down at the infernos in wonder.

"We all said it looked like the whole place was burning down. It was incredible," said Kim Lemna, 26, of Camarillo who flew over Laguna Beach.

U.N. peacekeepers accuse Croats of massacre

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — U.N. peacekeepers accused Bosnian Croat forces Wednesday of massacring Muslims in a village north of Sarajevo, where U.N. troops found at least 15 bodies and all 52 houses burned down.

The peacekeepers entered the village Tuesday after being forcibly kept out for three days by Croats seeking to hide the massacre, a U.N. statement said.

"It is clear that the (Croat) troops were attempting to hide from us the atrocities they had committed" during Saturday's attack, the statement quoted Gen. Jean Cot, commander of U.N. forces in former Yugoslavia, as saying.

U.N. troops were threatened with weapons and several of their armored vehicles were damaged by gunfire and grenades, the statement said.

The 15 bodies the peacekeepers found Tuesday included "a group of women, holding each other's arms, who had been shot to death," it said. Others had been burned to death.

Reporters entering the village Wednesday described finding the bodies of three middle-aged women clinging to each other just inside a crawl-space beneath the ruins of a home. They had been shot several times. One had her throat cut.

Reporters saw 13 other bodies, including a boy whose fingers were chopped off and a girl whose skull was crushed, The New York Times reported Thursday.

"Those who did this are not soldiers, they are scum," Brig. Angus Ramsey, chief of staff of the U.N. Protection Force in Bosnia, said, according to Thursday's Washington Post. "This is not war. This is a war crime. Those who have done this thing will one day answer for it."

The U.N. statement said two young women from a group of 25 refugees who escaped the village accused the attackers of rape. The whereabouts of many of the estimated 250 people who lived in Stupni Do, 20 miles north of the capital, were unknown.

Bosnian Croats denied their units massacred the villagers and said any fighting in the area was to defend against attacks from Muslim-led government troops.

The Post and Times both quoted an unnamed spokesman for the Bosnian Croat military in Mostar as saying there was a massacre, but it was not of the size reported. He did not elaborate.

Croatian radio reported counter-allegations of a massacre Tuesday by government forces in Rastovci, a village near Novi Travnik to the northwest. The radio said seven bodies were found. U.N. officials could not confirm the report.

Croat and Muslim-led government forces fought together against Bosnian Serbs early in the war, which started when Bosnia seceded from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia more than 18 months ago. Their alliance has collapsed in fighting for land in central Bosnia not occupied by Serbs, who hold 70 percent of the country.

In other developments on Wednesday: —In Sarajevo, one of two renegade army commanders hunted down on charges of criminal activity was shot to death trying to escape, the government said. Seventeen others, including police and civilians, were killed in the confrontation.

—In Geneva, U.N. envoy Thorvald Stoltenberg said the Bosnian army appeared to be responsible for an attack on a U.N. relief convoy Monday in which a Danish driver was killed and 11 other people were wounded. The attack led to the suspension of U.N. aid convoys to central Bosnia.

—Stoltenberg also said he and Lord Owen of the European Community, who tried to mediate a peace settlement in Bosnia, have not given up on negotiations but that it would take months to prepare for new talks.

In Sarajevo, government and army officials said the two renegade commanders surrendered Tuesday with a number of their loyalists after a daylong sweep of the city.

One of them, Musan Topalovic, known as Caco, was killed as he tried to escape from a government vehicle early Wednesday morning, the government said.

The other, Ramiz Delalic, known by the nickname of Celu, was in "special investigative custody" along with six of Caco's bodyguards, officials said.

The two commanders, who controlled parts of the city, were expelled from the army Monday and ordered arrested on charges of organized crime.

An elated Obi Ozoemena, one of 23 hostages freed, celebrates his freedom with the soldiers that gained his release early Thursday when Nigerian Security Forces stormed a hijacked Nigerian Airways plane, ending a three-day siege. Five people were hurt, including a hijacker, and a flight attendant was reportedly killed during the storming.

Troops storm hijacked plane to free hostages; one killed

The Associated Press

NIAMEY, Niger — Government troops assaulted a hijacked Nigerian Airways jetliner at midnight Wednesday, freeing 23 hostages and ending a three-day siege. A flight attendant was reported killed.

Five people were hurt in the raid on the Airbus 310, including one hijacker, said Niger's foreign minister, M. Abdoulhamane Hama. The troops arrested four air pirates, the minister said.

The special Niger commando force burst into the rear of the plane while the hijackers and hostages were eating, firing tear gas and bullets. Passengers said the surprised hijackers, armed with guns and knives, tried to flee.

Hama called the raid a "great success."

The young Nigerian hijackers, who said they were opposed to the military-installed Nigerian government, took over the plane Monday after it took off from Lagos, Nigeria. They diverted it to Niamey, the capital of neighboring Niger.

They freed most of the 159 passengers Monday, but continued to hold 20 passengers and three crew members.

The hijackers issued a number of demands, ranging from government's resignation to a restoration of press freedom. They said Wednesday that unless authorities met one demand, they would ignite gasoline they had splashed through the plane, authorities said.

Passengers freed from the plane, which has parked on the Niamey airport tarmac, said the assault on the aircraft came when the hijackers were in a relaxed mood.

E.C. Njemanze, a passenger, said people on board the aircraft had just finished eating and were bantering with their captors when blue-clad federal commandos stormed through the rear hatch of the plane.

"They weren't cut out for the job," Njemanze said of the hijackers. "I've read about it, I've seen films about it, now I've lived it. It was very harrowing."

Obi Ozoemena, another passenger from Nigeria, said he saw a male flight attendant killed by bullets fired in the aircraft. He said there were several shots fired outside.

"They were caught completely by surprise," Ozoemena said of the hijackers.

The Foreign Ministry also confirmed at least one death.

Nigeria has been plagued by political turmoil since the military dictator, Gen. Ibrahim Babangida, voided the results of the June 12 presidential election that was to end a decade of military dictatorship.

Babangida subsequently resigned under pressure but named as his successor a civilian supporter, Ernest Shonekan. Shonekan has promised to hold new elections.

Though the protests in Nigeria have occasionally collapsed into mob street violence, the plane hijacking is the first terrorist act linked to the political crisis.

Radio claims Burundi coup has collapsed after a week

The Associated Press

BUJUMBURA, Burundi — The military coup that toppled Burundi's first democratically elected government a week ago has collapsed, a U.N. official said today.

"The government has effectively reassumed power," James Jonah, the U.N. undersecretary for African affairs, told reporters after meeting with coup leaders.

"I was assured by the army commander that he recognizes the civilian leaders and the troops will retire to barracks," Jonah said.

Jonah said he was discussing with surviving members of the civilian government the size and makeup of an international force they say they need for protection.

The collapse of the coup had been announced earlier by Radio Burundi in what it described as a "government communique." The station had been in the hands of the military.

The station said Francois Ngeze, a former foreign minister named by the military as head of state, had been placed under house arrest in Bujumbura.

It also said 15 officers who took part in the coup fled the country to escape arrest. The military had been seeking amnesty for the soldiers.

Meanwhile, a Sabena jetliner landed at the capital's airport to evacuate a number of foreign tourists who had been trapped in Bujumbura since the Oct. 21 coup.

AHA Heart Walk proves wildly successful

By GARY SHANKS Staff Writer

Organizers of the Big Spring American Heart Walk consider last Saturday's event extremely successful. Some $4,500 was raised for the American Heart Association by the walk's 55 participants...

The big fish eat smaller fish

There are natural laws which defy reorder. One such is that 'big fish eat little fish.' To an observer, it may appear cruel, but in the wild, only the fittest survive to strengthen the breed.

Paul Harvey

And when we, for all our good intentions, penalize the fittest to preserve the weak... in race horses or cattle, in dogs or people, we defy an irrevocable law that was calculated to make each generation stronger and healthier.

Inevitably, however, the inefficient small farms were merged into big ones because big fish eat little fish. And thus was created the most productive system of agriculture in the world.

But three druggists were able to convince an Arkansas judge that Wal-Mart prices were too low, threatening to drive their small drug stores out of business.

And the judge agreed with them. Thus, a nation so ultimately anxious about the 'high price of health care' is enforcing HIGHER PRICES FOR HEALTH CARE!

Though the verdict is being appealed, meanwhile, everybody in Arkansas must pay higher prices than necessary.

Ironically, in defending the impact of her health care program on small business, Hillary Clinton said, 'I can't go out and save every undercapitalized entrepreneur in America.'

The understocked corner grocery store is no more.

Woolworth five-and-dime stores are disappearing. Nine hundred seventy will be closed or redesigned this year.

Big fish eat little fish or else... big fish die and little fish, overpopulated, starve.

Red Ribbon Week continues at CHS

By GARY SHANKS
 Staff Writer

Coahoma Independent School District students continue a week of ceremonial observation of the hope for a drug-free Texas and a drug-free America with Red Ribbon Week.

Originally scheduled for Wednesday, a district-wide assembly and drug-dog demonstration at the Coahoma football stadium has been rescheduled due to inclement weather. The assembly is now scheduled for Nov. 3 at 1:30 p.m.

Coahoma students and staff are wearing and displaying the red ribbon, which has become a symbol of the officers who have died in the line of duty in the nation's war on drugs, according to CISD coordinator Sarah Crippen.

Red Ribbon Week activities began Sunday as students gathered for Sunday afternoon festivities. These activities culminate in a parade through downtown Coahoma, Crippen said. The parade begins Saturday at 9:30 and follows a route from First Street to the football field.

The Coahoma Drug Free Youth in Texas (D-FY-IT) students are providing free red vinyl ribbons throughout the week. The ribbons have been displayed on vehicle antennas and other prominent places.

Coahoma businesses and churches also are getting involved in displaying the red ribbons.

At the high school this week, the Individual and Family Life class dressed in black and white to symbolize the many victims of drunk-driving accidents. Daily announcements of the statistics of drunk-driving have been announced and a vehicle, wrecked in a drinking-related accident is on display from Henson Wrecking company.

On Wednesday, the speech class performed an original skit regarding Red Ribbon Week and Pat Crowell from Howard College spoke on the dangers of drinking.

Today, names were drawn every 30 minutes of students designated as symbolic victims of drinking and driving. The origination of wearing red ribbons as a symbol of the war on drugs dates back to the 1985 kidnapping and murder of Drug Enforcement Agency agent Enrique Camarena. Members of Camarena's community wore red ribbons to show their support of him, following the incident.

The practice was eventually picked up by other communities and called Red Ribbon Week.

Elbow students study Indian culture

By GARY SHANKS
 Staff Writer

Fifth graders at Elbow Elementary School are spending an entire six-week period studying the various American Indian tribes and cultures.

Visual, historical works were put on display Wednesday, depicting tools, mythical figures, villages and other aspects of the American Indian.

Each of the 49 fifth graders produced one of these projects, gathered research about their assigned tribe and produced a research paper on this information, said Connie Eggleston, a fifth-grade social studies teacher at Elbow.

"They were each assigned a different tribe," Eggleston said of the projects. American Indian cultures from across the continent were studied.

Each student spent three weeks producing the visual works. Some projects are on display at the school.

Creative works depicting American Indian cultures went on display at Elbow Elementary School, Wednesday. Each of 49 Fifth grade students were given specific tribes on which to study, report and depict in these art works.

CHS class of '42 to meet Friday and Saturday

By GARY SHANKS
 Staff Writer

About 51 years ago, 24 young men and women graduated from Coahoma High School, and about half of these will reunite Friday and Saturday at the Day's Inn motel in Big Spring.

These 1942 graduates of Coahoma High School are coming from across the state and as far away as Kentucky to join with old friends from a time when their adult lives were just beginning.

The class of 1942 also is extending an invitation to members of the classes of 1941 and 1943 to join them, organizers said.

On tap at the reunion will be a dinner meeting on Friday at the Day's Inn at 300 Tulane in Big Spring, with further meetings scheduled for Saturday in the motel's meeting room. A group photograph is scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Songs from the "Hit Parade" of 1942 will serve as background music for the meetings, organizers said. The meeting room will be decorated in Coahoma High red and white while the former students each report on major events in their lives over the last 51 years.

Former Coahoma Bulldog Grey

Burkhead of Lubbock is serving as moderator for the two-day event. He and his wife, Edna have been instrumental in organizing the event.

Hollis R. Bond and his wife, Dorothy, of Mansfield also were active in planning the reunion.

They will be joining former Coahoma graduates and their spouses. Other graduates include Virginia (Satterfield) Ashby of Lubbock, Harold Boswell of Decatur, Texas; Carmen (Brooks) Davis of Electra, Martin "Buzzy" Hubbard of Odessa, Lloyd Wolf of Big Spring, Eddie Carpenter of Coahoma, Earlene (Reid) Williams of Ashland, Ky.; Grant Young of Rising Star, Willis Winters of Plainview, Herbert Linley of Tulsa, Okla. and Freda Jo (Bond) Hoover of Big Spring.

A memorial service will be conducted by Bond, a retired Navy chaplain, for the five class members known to have died.

These include W.D. Coats, Evelyn Loudamy, Max Wheeler, Elmo White and Gay Nell (Yardley) Fowler.

One member of the class of '42, Wanda Blair, has not been located. Members are asking for any information that might help in locating this missing member.

O'Leary to Texas oil producers: Suffer

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — State officials were angered by remarks of U.S. Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary, who downplayed the role of the nation's smaller producers of oil in remarks earlier this week.

Texas Railroad Commissioners Mary Scott Nabers and Barry Williamson invited Ms. O'Leary to come to Texas and see how the oilpatch works.

On Monday, Ms. O'Leary was quoted as saying that she has no firm ideas for helping independent oil operators stay in business. She suggested the industry's smaller, domestic players may be a dying breed too feeble to salvage in an era when Big Oil is setting its sights overseas.

Williamson took offense to the comments. "By any measure, the independent segment of the oil and gas industry is critical to the energy health of our nation, both now and for the foreseeable future," he said.

He said independent producers drill about 85 percent of wells in the U.S. and produce about 31 percent of the nation's crude oil and 60 percent of natural gas.

Ms. Nabers said in a letter to O'Leary, "Make no mistake about it, independent oil and gas producers remain a vital part of this nation's future."

Briefs

Martin County Commissioners

The Martin County Commissioner's Court met in a special meeting Wednesday to discuss road repair needs with Knox Industries representatives.

The meeting concerned university land owned by the state of Texas. No action was taken in the meeting, however.

Also at the meeting, bids were authorized for road reclaimer equipment.

Improvements needed to meet requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act were discussed. Priorities will be set in the November meeting, said County Judge Bob Deavenport.

Also in the November meeting, commissioners will canvass votes on the upcoming constitutional amendment election on Nov. 2.

C-City Illegal runaway returned

Mitchell County Commissioners approved the payment of foster care for a Honduran runaway youth apprehended in Mitchell County in a meeting Tuesday.

Cost for the care was $160, for care given while awaiting immigration authorities, according to Mitchell County officials.

Also in the meeting, the sale of property held in trust by the Colorado Independent School District was approved. The lot of land had been held for non-payment of taxes.

Bids were authorized for a new Sheriff's Department vehicle and a truck for Precinct 4.

Other student made musical instruments from canes. Some made weapons and others produced tools.

The projects were produced at home and brought back to the school for exhibition.

At the completion of the six-week period, near the Thanksgiving holidays, student will dress in traditional garb of their assigned tribe and meet for a "powwow."

Assigning different cultures to each of the children provided students an opportunity to share similarities and differences in the various American Indian cultures.

Tennis team ready for dogfight

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

For the past several weeks, Ralph Davis has watched his Big Spring High School tennis team waltz through the regular season undefeated and, for the most part, untested.

He has been pleased with the results - 10-0 overall and 6-0 in District 3-4A play - but a nagging thought still crosses his mind: How much of the record is a result of Big Spring's talent, and how much reflects a lack of talent in the district?

Answers will be forthcoming Friday when the Steers begin play in the Region 1-4A tennis tournament in Lubbock. Not only will Big Spring be facing quality competition, but they'll be facing plenty of it.

Perennial favorite Wichita Falls, along with other regional threats like Plainview and Fort Worth Boswell, will join Big Spring and District 3-4A runner-up Sweetwater in the 16-team tournament, which will be played at various sites throughout Lubbock.

Bad news is not something Davis and the Steers needed this week, but it's what they got when number-one girls singles player Maria Villareal suffered a pinched nerve in her lower back. Her status is day-to-day, although it is doubtful she will be at full speed by the weekend.

"I'm a little disappointed," Villareal said. "I wasn't expecting it, and all of a sudden it happened. I'll play ... but my back will be hurting the whole time. I'll be taking a lot of Advil."

Wichita Falls has bumped Big Spring from the tournament the past two years, including a 10-0 white-wash in last year's quarterfinals.

Still, team members are undaunted by the task facing them.

"It's good we got to see Wichita

Falls last year. We know what they're like," sophomore team member Colby Wegman. "It's a shame we played them so early last year. Hopefully, we'll get to play them in the finals this year."

"I think we at least have a good chance," senior Lara Stevenson said. "But we'll have to prove ourselves a whole lot more than we have."

—Stevenson's doubles partner, senior Amy Dominguez, said Big Spring's regular-season waltz hasn't really prepared the team for the competition at regional.

"We won district really easy," she said. "Now, we'll have to prove we can win when it's not so easy. (Wichita Falls) is what I'm nervous about. We can't forget about the other teams, but Wichita Falls is the team to beat."

Davis said how far Big Spring advances depends in large part on the seeding the Steers receive. Seeding won't be determined until a coaches' meeting Thursday night.

Davis is lobbying for a number-two seed behind Wichita Falls. If that occurs, Big Spring will get a first-round bye and not have to play until

Piazza gets nod as top NL rookie

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — One of Mike Piazza's greatest inspirations wasn't around to celebrate his National League Rookie of the Year award. Roy Campanella, who taught Piazza as much about life as about baseball, died four months ago.

From his wheelchair, Campanella tutored Piazza, beginning at spring training when Piazza won the Dodgers' catching job.

Piazza was at bat in Dodger Stadium on the June evening when Campanella's death was announced in the press box. The Hall of Fame catcher never made a secret of his affection for his protégé.

"I would hope he would say he's proud of me. He told me that well before he passed on," Piazza said Wednesday night in a telephone call from Taiwan where the Dodgers are on a five-game exhibition tour.

"Roy not only was a tremendous baseball player, but a tremendous human being," he said. "What he talked to me about was just playing and having fun."

Piazza shone for the Dodgers during a season marred by the deaths of Campanella and Don Drysdale. Darryl Strawberry's extended stint on the disabled list and the firecracker tossed at Dodger Stadium by Vince Coleman of the New York Mets.

The catcher hit .318 with 35 home runs and 112 RBIs.

"To hit .300 was something very satisfying for me," Piazza said. "I think that's something pretty difficult to do for my position and considering my foot speed."

His average was the highest of any NL Rookie of the Year since the award began in 1947, and he was the first winner to drive in 100 runs.

"I really didn't go into the season with any specific numbers in mind," he said. "I'd shown I could hit with power in the minor leagues the last two seasons."

Piazza homered twice in a game five times after Aug. 29, including the final day of the season, when he drove in four runs as the Dodgers routed the Giants 12-1 and knocked San Francisco out of a first-place tie with Atlanta. That day remains his favorite memory in a season full of them.

"For me to catch that amount of games and finish the way that I did, I was most proud of," he said. "The last day for me and the fans was probably the best of the season."

For months, Piazza was considered a shoo-in to win rookie honors. He heard the talk, but paid more attention to the advice of teammate Eric Karros, the 1992 NL rookie of the year.

Seagraves, Ozona battle in Big Spring

Big Spring Steer football fans looking for a game Friday night can still head to Memorial Stadium.

The Steers are off this week, but the Ozona Lions will be playing the Seagraves Eagles Friday at 8 p.m. in Memorial Stadium.

Ozona, members of District 6-2A, is 5-3, 3-2 in district. Seagraves is 7-1, 5-0 in District 4-2A.

YMCA offers swim lessons

Swimming is usually considered a summer activity, but now is as good a time as any for youngsters to enroll in swim lessons at the Big Spring Family YMCA.

"It is a big misconception to think that it will only take a few days to learn how to swim," said Greg Allen, the Y's aquatics/sports director. "It is also a big misconception to think that just because your child can swim, he or she is safe in the water."

Allen said the YMCA is trying to educate the community on the misconceptions associated with swimming, primarily water safety. Texas is considered to have one of the largest numbers of drowning victims in the United States, Allen said, partly due to its number of people and partly due to the vast amount of standing water.

For information on the Y's year-round swimming programs, call 267-8234.

Howard athletics searches for 'parents'

The Howard College Athletic Department is searching for "Adopt-A-Hawk" parents for the '93-94 season.

The "Adopt-A-Hawk" program affords local residents an opportunity to be a part of HC athletics by providing a home atmosphere away from home for the Hawk and Lady Hawk players.

Anyone interested in joining the program should call Pam Shuttlesworth at 264-5106 or Chadwick at 264-5040. Openings are still available.

Battered Buffaloes prep for Sterling City showdown

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

This season's Forsan football team should be called the Broken Buffs, considering all of the broken arms and legs the squad has suffered.

Friday, however, Forsan could be hoping its opponent - Sterling City - will be suffering from a broken spirit.

Sterling City (7-1, 2-1 in District 9-1A) clashed with Robert Lee Friday in a match of undefeated teams. The winner would get the upper hand in the district race.

Robert Lee crushed the Eagles, 37-0.

"We had a lot of bad breaks against Robert Lee," said Sterling City coach Howard McDaniel. "We got off to a bad start, and before we knew it we were drowning."

"Momentum means everything in this game, and we just couldn't get any. But we're going to bounce back. Our kids have had pretty good workouts this week."

Sterling City offers a stiff challenge for Forsan (3-5, 0-3), to say the least. Running back Andy Vargas averages 147 yards per game for the Eagles, McDaniel said. However, McDaniel expects a challenge from Forsan as well. Game time for Forsan's final 1993 home game is 7:30 p.m.

"Our district is really talented, and Forsan played Roscoe 7-0," McDaniel said. "Forsan's proven that they are a good football team. In this district, there's a fine line between a win and a loss."

Forsan quarterback Chris Evans, center, passed under pressure from a Robert Lee defender earlier this season. Trailing the play is Forsan's Chad Kemper (31). Forsan hosts Sterling City Friday at 7:30 p.m.

For Forsan, a fine line stands between a winning season and a losing one, but injuries have pushed it toward the losing side.

Four players - Troy Sanders, Jeremy Etheredge, Oscar Barraza and Brandon Kemper - are out for the season. Sanders has a broken leg, Etheredge has torn knee ligaments, Barraza has a broken leg and Kemper has an eye injury. Two other key players, Brad Everett and Rudy Munoz, are playing hurt. Some junior varsity players will dress Friday night - Forsan may need them. Forsan coach Jan East said injuries are a major reason why his team has an 0-3 district mark.

"I think they had a big influence on our season," he said. "After the Water Valley game, I didn't know if we had a really good team, but we had a decent team, one that would be competitive and might have a shot at district. But then Sanders broke his leg, and it just escalated from there."

"You could see it in the Roby game - when Oscar Barraza got hurt, it took a lot out of us. He's a leader on both sides of the ball. Injuries have really hurt us, the kids have been having to play new positions each week. You're always going to have injuries, you know, but we weren't expecting the scale of injuries we've had."

East doesn't expect his team to roll over and die, however. After playing larger teams most of the season, Forsan should be able to hold the line of scrimmage with Sterling City.

"They're not as big as the folks we've been playing," East said. "If we can get a break or two, we're can play the spoiler role."

East said his players should keep in mind they still have a chance to play .500 for the season, but he also has another goal in mind.

"Right now, we'd just like to keep everybody healthy so coach (Terry) McDonald can have enough guys to start his basketball season."

Young Coahoma playing for pride, .500 record as it readies for Badgers

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

COAHOMA - The playoffs are no longer a possibility for the Coahoma Bulldogs, but coach Steve Park hopes the seeds for future postseason action are being planted in the final weeks of the '93 football season.

The Bulldogs (3-5 overall, 1-3 in District 6-2A) travel to McCamey Friday night to take on the Badgers (1-7, 0-4). Game time is 8 p.m.

Three straight losses at the start of the district schedule dropped the Bulldogs out of the playoff race, but Park does see hope for the future - and he has the numbers to back up his optimism.

In last week's 26-0 romp over Iraan, the Dogs started eight underclassmen on offense and seven on defense. That translates to a heck of a lot of experience that Coahoma will have in the starting lineup next year.

Two of the brightest lights among the group have been sophomore tailback Kelby Bailey (more than 500 yards rushing in seven games) and junior quarterback Brandon McGuire (546 yards passing).

Aside from experience, there are other things the Bulldogs hope to accomplish during the last two weeks of the season - like a .500

"(McCamey plays) real aggressive football. They play good defense. They played Stanton real close and played Iraan real close also ... they're not as bad as their record indicates."

Steve Park

record, for starters.

"That's one of our goals," coach Steve Park admitted. "Plus, we have Ozona next week, and we could knock them out of the playoffs. So that's something to play for."

And there's also some intangibles to inspire the Bulldogs.

"The kids want to end up (the season) with a lot of pride, and have some fun," Park said. "We're going out there and trying to some fun. That's what it's about."

The Dogs go into the game relatively healthy, with the exception of receiver-defensive back Chad Wright, who is sidelined the rest of the season with a partial ligament tear in his right knee. The good news is that the injury will not require surgery.

In McCamey, Coahoma will be facing a team that has also had its share of bad breaks. Since defeating Class 1A power Wink in their season opener, the Badgers have gone winless.

"They play real aggressive football," Park said. "They play good defense. They played Stanton real close and played Iraan real close also. They tend to have trouble on offense with turnovers, but they're not as bad as their record indicates."

The Badgers line up on offense in the Wing T, although they will use a one-back or no-back formation on occasion, and mix the run and pass very well, Park said.

But it is McCamey's defense that most concerns Park. The Badgers line up in a 5-3 formation that features plenty of stunts and blitzes. "They're going to be bringing folks," he said.

To defeat McCamey, the Bulldogs are going to have to display a business-like attitude toward the game, Park said.

Directions

To get to McCamey, take Interstate 20 west to Odessa, then turn south on U.S. Highway 385. McCamey is about 52 miles south of Odessa on 385.

Dallas Stars harpoon the Whalers

By The Associated Press
DALLAS — The Dallas Stars knew they'd need a fast start from high-scoring center Mike Modano to sell hockey in Texas. Thus far, Modano's putting the puck in the net while the Stars are unbeaten at home and putting fans in the seats at Reunion Arena. Modano scored his ninth and 10th goals of the season Wednesday night, pushing the Stars to 3-0-2 at home with a 5-1 victory over the Hartford Whalers. "We've felt comfortable here right from the start," Modano said. "We've worked hard to build a home ice advantage and the fans have been great. We've really tried to get a quick start every game at home." Modano, entering his fifth NHL season, has never scored more than 33 goals. He's well on his way to the 50-plus goals, 100-plus points season that's been predicted for him since the Stars made him the first overall pick of the 1988 draft. "I've really concentrated on hanging in better in front of the net," Modano said. "I think only one of my goals has come from the perimeter. And the guys are getting me the puck. It's been amazing." Modano got Dallas' scoring started with a first-period goal, knocked in a power play goal in the third period and added an assist. Russ Courtnall and Grant Ledyard each had a goal and an assist. Goalie Andy Moog improved his all-time record against the Whalers to 24-7-3. Moog was on track for his 19th career shutout until Patrick Poulin scored a power play goal with 5:15 remaining. Moog and Hartford goalie Sean Burke were in the middle of a brawl with :02 left that involved several players from both teams. The incident earned Hartford right wing Nick Kypreos a match penalty. Kypreos nailed Dallas left wing James Black from behind, sending Black head first into the boards behind the Stars net. Black received a severe laceration on his forehead and is out indefinitely. Moog retaliated, pushing Kypreos in the back of the head. As both teams pushed and shoved, Burke skated the length of the ice from his goal crease to join the altercation. Kypreos will receive a suspension of at least one game for the match penalty. League officials will review the incident to determine the length of the suspension. "Kypreos went out of his way and took a flying leap at James Black," Moog said. "It's an extremely cheap shot. We're not going to take that." Burke said he wasn't surprised that Moog retaliated.

Huge point spread gives Eagles Halloween trick

By The Associated Press
PHILADELPHIA — Coach Rich Kotite rejects the notion that his Philadelphia Eagles must play a perfect game Sunday to beat the highly favored Dallas Cowboys. "When you say you have to play a perfect game, that means that we're really not worth a damn," Kotite said Tuesday. "I don't believe that. Nobody plays a perfect game." The Eagles are 11-point home underdogs against the Cowboys. Nobody can recall when in the last decade the Eagles drew such little respect at home. Kotite doesn't think it's lack of respect, nor does he agree that the Cowboys deserve to be rated 11 points over his crippled team. "I think that every week point spreads are sometimes lopsided, and teams do overcome that," the coach said. "I think that basically what the prognosticators or whoever does those point spreads probably is saying is, 'Well, they're without Randall (Cunningham). They're without Freddy (Barnett). They're without Kenny Rose.' I think that's what it's based upon. I don't know if the word is respect or whatever." Kotite said the big number in a series between such bitter rivals didn't bother him or his players. "I sometimes think that when we're a favorite it bothers me more than when we're underdogs," he declared. Kotite is fully aware that the Super Bowl champions are on a roll now with four straight victories. The Eagles have lost two after opening with four straight wins. "But our records are the same (4-2)," he said. "Who knows what it's going to be? We still think we're a respectable, good team. We're a competitive team. And we're going to do all we can to go out and beat the Dallas Cowboys." Kotite conceded that the Cowboys have one of the most powerful offenses in the NFL. "It's important that we limit their time on the field. We have to sustain drives and score points," he said. Someone asked if Kotite had any tricks up his sleeve for the Halloween day game. "You don't go out there and try to gimmick Dallas," he responded. "The gist that I get is that we better have a double flea flicker pass to get into the end zone. I think that there are some things that we do well and we have to be ourselves, do the things that we do best." For all his team's injuries, Kotite said, "it's easy as hell to feel sorry for yourself because you have some built-in things (excuses) that you can use if you want. We have to work our way out of this."

Have bat, will travel - for a price

By The Associated Press
NEW YORK — While eight more players filed for free agency Wednesday, baseball executives were more interested in the $29 million, four-year contract extension that elevated Frank Thomas to No. 2 on the salary list. Thomas, who has played just 3 1/2 seasons in the major leagues, will average $7.25 million a year from 1995 through 1998, according to terms that became available Wednesday. The two option years make him the first baseball player to agree to a salary for the year 2000. Thomas, 25, made a $900,000 base salary this season and is signed for 1994 at $2.5 million. The new contract, announced Tuesday, calls for yearly salaries of $7.15 million from 1995 through 1998, gives the White Sox a $7.15 million option for 1999 with a $150,000 buyout and a $7.25 million option for 2000 with a

$250,000 buyout. On the free agent front, outfielders Luis Polonia and Ellis Burks and second baseman Julio Franco headed the group who filed. Thirty-six have become free agents this week, and approximately 76 more are potentially eligible to file by the Nov. 7 deadline. The number eligible depends on option years and players covered by the restriction against repeat free agency within a five-year period. Forty-two players are in that group, and clubs have until midnight Thursday to block them from filing by offering salary arbitration. Only one player has been offered arbitration thus far: Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Kevin Gross. Polonia hit .271 for California and tied for second in the AL with 55 steals. Burks batted .275 for the Chicago White Sox with 17 homers and 74 RBIs, and Franco hit .289 for Texas with 14 homers and 84 RBIs. Others filing were Cleveland infielder Jeff Treadway, outfielder Dion James and pitcher Mike Witt of the New York Yankees, Toronto shortstop Alfredo Griffin and Atlanta first baseman Sid Bream. California made infielder Rene Gonzales eligible to file by deciding to give him a $150,000 buyout instead of exercising a $900,000 option. Among non-eligibles, the New York Yankees exercised a $250,000 1994 option on left-handed pitcher Paul Gibson and the Chicago Cubs declined to exercise a 1994 option on infielder Glenallen Hill.

Friday afternoon. "If things go according to schedule and we play like we've been, we probably won't be tested until Saturday in the semis," Davis said. Davis added that it's important that the team approach the tournament with a business-as-usual attitude. "You've really got to approach it with the attitude that you're going out there to play a tennis match, and not let the team format affect you in any way," Davis said. "We'll practice just like we would for any other match. And a professional attitude will go a long way toward success at regional, team members said. "We've all got to want it," Dominguez said. "We've got to play hard and stay on the court and not give up." "I think we're a lot better prepared than (last year)," Paul McKinney said. "We know what to expect from the other teams ... We've got to keep our minds on the games, and not lose our mental toughness."
