Don't get SPOOKED, but...

Some things just might go bump in West Texas

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

No Halloween would be complete without spooky stories, and sheriff's deputy Woodie Howell, a Coahoma resident, knows some of the area's best creepy legends and places.

Howell agreed to share several local legends with the caveat that most of these stories have more creativity than truth behind them.

At the turn of the century, a woman lost her daughter out at the salt marsh lake flats, just west of Big Spring. The woman never found her daughter and spent the rest of her life wandering the area, carrying a lighted lantern and calling the girl's name.

Some nights, they say her lantern light is still visible around the flats, and the wind carries the sound of the woman calling her daughter's name.

A ranch in eastern Howard County overlooks a group of hills that used to house a Comanche Indian campsite. The Indians supposedly used these hills to send smoke signals that could be seen as far away as New Mexico.

"The old cowboys around here say that on moonless nights, you can still see the smoke signals and hear the Indian chants out there," said Howell.

More sad than spooky is the story of the pioneer family passing through the area with a wagon train. The wife and daughter fell ill, and the husband buried them in eastern Howard County, off E. Howard Field Road. The graves are actually still there, said Howell.

A graveyard in Garden City is said to contain a grave that glows in the dark. Howell warned that it is illegal to enter this cemetery after dark, and a deputy is posted to guard it. Howell has seen the grave, but noted that in daylight, the glow is not visible.

An old oak tree in a vacant lot by Lancaster was supposedly a site for hangings many years ago. When Howell was in high school, a popular prank involved tying stuffed dummies to the "hanging tree" and driving friends just close enough to the tree so they could see something — or someone — hanging from the tree. "I don't know if kids still do that or not," he said.

The town of Stanton carries a creepy incentive for travelers to stop and visit. On the top of a hill, a monastery built by monks in the 1880s still stands. "There were a lot of stories about that monastery years ago; things went wrong, people died, and eventually the monks abandoned it," said Howell.

For many years the monastery remained abandoned, a great place for people to drive through. The chill go down their spines as they looked at the huge hill.

According to Howell, the monastery has taken on a new life in recent years as the site of a Halloween spook house.

Howell said most of the hauntings in the area, lantern light over the flat, smoke signals and the hill cannot be substantiated.

Even if there are no roots in fact, the stories are still good fun for the Halloween listener.

Howell, president of the Stanton Lions Club, was asked about the reliability of reports of the spook areas, thrill seekers and the Lions Club's Halloween event Saturday. "I don't know if the fun is real or not," he said.

In the top photo, Chenelle Griffin lets out a cackle as she holds onto a whisk broom during a Halloween costume party at the Tune Town Day Care Center Wednesday afternoon. Forget those ghoulish thoughts. Halloween long a Christian festival

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Halloween is a time of spooky fun for children and adults alike, but for those who perceive Halloween to be a celebration of Satanism, the holiday holds no charm.

However, the history of Halloween may surprise those who believe the holiday to be Satanic or nothing more than a celebration of superstition.

According to the 1989 Encyclopedia Americana, Halloween has its roots in a pre-Christian Druid festival held to honor the Celtic god of the dead (Samhain). The festival was held on Nov. 1, the beginning of the Celtic new year.

This festival of the dead was eventually incorporated into Christian ritual, and in the ninth century, a feast in honor of all the saints (All Hallows) was fixed on Nov. 1. The night before this feast came to be known as All Hallows Eve.

In the 11th century, Nov. 2 was specified as All Souls Day to honor the souls of the dead, especially those who had died in the preceding year.

In medieval Europe, people believed that elves, fairies, and witches (who sometimes took the shape of cats) flew on All Hallows Eve, and bonfires were lit to ward off these spirits. All Hallows Eve was also a time for games and for seeking the future by burning nuts in a fire or throwing apple parings over the shoulder.

Scottish Gaelic brought the name, which means "the evening of the dead."

Today's Halloween is a mix of the old and the new, with children in costumes for candy, and the name of the holiday still carries a religious custom.

Although the holiday is now a secular and cultural event, it still carries the spirit of the dead.

College has computer open house

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

New technology in the Howard College computer labs was the highlight of a computer open house last week at the college's Horace Garrett building.

A new networked lab, which opened the week before fall classes started, features new computers and printers hooked together with the latest networking software. The lab cost approximately $25,000 to install. Barbara Brumley, division chair of computer information systems, said eventually the network will be expanded to involve the entire campus.

Several popular software applications such as Windows, Word Perfect, Lotus 1-2-3 and Paradox are now on the computers and will be taught in special five-week classes that earn students one credit hour. Brumley said the new computers and classes are due partly to results of a survey the department conducted last summer.

Employers were asked what their most important computer training needs were. Training in software applications was cited by 60 percent of businesses; PC maintenance and support was cited by 54 percent; and 30 percent requested more training in using the Windows system. "We got a lot of good input from these businesses," said Brumley.

The high demand for software application training prompted the addition of the intensive five-week courses for employees and individuals who wish to learn various software packages but don't have the time for the standard 16-week course. Additional courses in PC troubleshooting and upgrading, as well as Windows use, have been added.

Several associate degree and certificate programs are available through the computer information systems department, in addition to skill-improving courses. The department recently added an electronic bulletin board, the Hawk's Nest. The bulletin board number is 264-5006. The board provides computer assistance and a forum for those interested in com-

NAACP director defends Bledsoe

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Assistant state attorney general and NAACP leader Gary Bledsoe is the innocent target of a political and racial "character assassination campaign," the NAACP's executive director said Friday.

Benjamin Chavis, speaking to hundreds of Bledsoe supporters at a rally, urged Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle to quickly complete an inquiry into allegations that Bledsoe conducted non-government work on state time.

He predicted Bledsoe, who also serves as Travis Democratic Party chairman, would be cleared.

Bledsoe, greeted at the rally by people applauding and chanting his name, was placed on paid leave from his state job two weeks ago by Attorney General Dan Morales while the inquiry is conducted.

"Bring this investigation to a close, and let the real culprits be exposed," Chavis said. "Racism is a sin before God... The vicious attacks on Gary Bledsoe are clearly illegal and immoral. I think the Republican Party of Texas needs to repent for its sins."

Republican leaders called for an investigation following a newspaper report that Bledsoe sometimes conducted NAACP work during office hours. But they haven't been happy with the probe so far, noting that like Bledsoe, Earle and Morales are Democrats.

The GOP has claimed a double standard because Republican U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison was indicted once, saw the charges dropped, and now faces a second grand jury investigation into charges that she used her previous post as state treasurer for political and personal gain.

Others, however, said the GOP is trying to deflect attention from Mrs. Hutchison by attacking Bledsoe.

"The questions about Gary Bledsoe's non-state activities on state time are questions of ethics, not race," GOP Chairman Fred Meyer and executive director Karen Hughes said in a statement.

"The taxpayers of Texas have a right to expect that their state employees are conducting primarily state business from their state offices on state time, and if any personal or political work is done, that time is made up," the Republican leaders said.

Gail Van Winkle, an assistant district attorney, said Earle's office is reviewing an investigative report that was requested from Morales. She said the inquiry "is certainly one we're trying to do as soon as possible."

Chavis said the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People conducted its own investigation and found no wrongdoing by Bledsoe, who is state president of the civil rights group.

Bledsoe has been placed on leave from the Texas Attorney General's office while he is under investigation for conducting personal business on state time.

Bledsoe is "a great public servant," Chavis said, adding that the attack on him "reminds me of kind of a new McCarthyism."

"We stand with Gary Bledsoe," he said. "If you come after one state conference president, you come after the whole nation."

Others at the rally included NAACP officials from around Texas, lawmakers, the Texas AFL-CIO, state Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle, former Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower, church representatives, Texas State Employees Union and former Attorney General Jim Mattox, who plans to challenge Mrs. Hutchison for the Senate. Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock also sent a letter of support.

Bledsoe called the rally "one incredible experience."

He cited civil rights work he has done in his job at the attorney general's office and suggested that allegations against him come from those uncomfortable with diverse voices in state government.

"All we're talking about is sharing power... African Americans are taxpayers, too," he said.

Most of the rally speakers directed their anger at Republicans. But Sen. Royce West said he had a message for Morales, who is up for election next year.

"We asked you to come and support Gary Bledsoe. You didn't show," said West, D-Dallas. "Be assured that we will remember... I'm not so sure that we need to look at supporting someone that can't support us."

Morales spokesman Ron Dusek said the attorney general would not respond to personal attacks.

Prosecutors quietly subpoena Treasury documents in probe

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — In a move sharply contrasting last June's raid on the treasury, a Travis County grand jury has quietly re-subpoenaed box loads of records in a probe of U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison.

Attorneys for Hutchison say the new subpoenas are an attempt by prosecutors to sidestep legal problems with the highly publicized June 10 search, which they claim was illegal because officers had no search warrant.

"What they're trying to do is sanitize their previous screw-ups," Hutchison's lead attorney, Dick DeGuerin, told the Austin American-Statesman in Saturday editions. "There was a raid on June the 10th, and it was conducted without constitutional, judicial approval, and they're worried about it."

Prosecutor Steve McCleery called DeGuerin's charges ridiculous.

McCleery said prosecutors just want to make sure the new grand jury has all the information it needs.

He said the original search was legal because officers had grand jury subpoenas.

"We didn't have to re-subpoena. It was just an extra step to be sure that (the materials seized on June 10) were before this grand jury. They could have considered it even without the subpoenas.

"It's certainly not an admission that there was anything wrong with the original subpoenas, because we have complete confidence in their legality," McCleery said.

Still, if Hutchison is re-indicted and the judge sides with the defense, the materials seized in June could be barred as evidence.

Among the items seized by law officers in June were computer files, schedules, personnel records and other items.

Hutchison, 50, is accused of misusing state employees and equipment for personal and political reasons during her 2-year tenure as Texas treasurer. She also is accused of covering up the crime by ordering the destruction of hundreds of Treasury Department computer files.

The senator was indicted on four felonies and a misdemeanor on Sept. 27, but those indictments were thrown out this week after it was discovered that a member of the grand jury that handed them up was ineligible. Prosecutors immediately began presenting the case to a second grand jury and re-subpoenaed at least eight witnesses and the Treasury Department records.

Hutchison, a Republican, has denied any wrongdoing. She says the case against her is designed to hurt her re-election bid next year. Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle is a Democrat.

Morales may be facing Democratic challenger

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Attorney General Dan Morales may find another Democratic hat thrown into the ring for his job next year.

Morales, a first-term Democrat seeking re-election next year, may have a challenger from his own party, U.S. Rep. Jim Chapman of Sulphur Springs, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports in Saturday's editions.

Gay Erwin, Morales' campaign manager, said the attorney general has not been informed of Chapman's intentions, but knows that Chapman has contacted potential supporters.

Ms. Erwin said Morales is confident he will be re-elected despite several GOP challengers.

Chapman, an attorney, had been considered a likely Democratic contender for a U.S. Senate race in 1994. But in recent weeks he has made key contacts about the attorney general's office, sources told the Star-Telegram.

Bill Mashek, a Chapman aide in Washington, D.C., declined to comment on reports that Chapman disclosed his intentions to challenge Morales to some key Democrats this week. He will announce his decision next week, Mashek said.

Both parties' primary elections are March 8. Candidates must state their intentions to run by Jan. 3.

AFL-CIO President Joe Gunn confirmed that Chapman had solicited support from his group.

"I have been in meetings where I've heard it discussed," Gunn said.

Morales' handling of accusations against top assistant Gary Bledsoe has angered blacks in Chapman's native East Texas, one Democrat said.

Here are excerpts from recent editorials in newspapers in the United States:

The Virginian-Pilot and The Ledger-Star, Norfolk, Va., on economics:

You have to wonder whether anyone in the Royal Swedish Academy of Science has been to the United States recently or talked to an American trying to find work.

The members of the academy are the folks who pick the winners of the Nobel Prize for economics. Once again they have selected Americans, handing the $825,000 intellectual jackpot to Robert W. Fogel of the University of Chicago and Douglass C. North of Washington University in St. Louis.

Last year's winner also was an American. So were seven of the last 10, and since the prize was first awarded in economics 34 years ago, 21 of those picked were U.S. residents.

Fogel and North won this year, the academy said, "for having renewed research in economic history by applying economic theory and quantitative methods in order to explain economic and institutional change."

Probably quite clear to the academy, but meaningless blather to millions of Americans.

They have different criteria for determining the economist of the year.

And their winner might be a laid-off father working two part-time jobs, struggling desperately to pay the rent and keep a car while juggling bills so he can provide decent food and clothes for an out-of-work wife and a couple of kids.

The Sun Herald, Gulfport, Miss., on refugees:

Since men first sailed out of sight of land, the law of the sea has bound skippers to pick up other sailors in distress. Now the United States government has a policy that imposes fines on ships that rescue people who happen to be undocumented immigrants.

It is a stupid policy. It is inhumane. It ought to be abolished and replaced by the same common sense that has guided ship's masters for centuries.

Captain Petros Maratos of the cruise ship Royal Majesty was passing through the Florida Straits at 3 a.m. one recent morning. His crew spotted eight Cubans adrift on a raft made from three inner tubes, 30 miles from land. The captain did what he should have done; he took the eight aboard his vessel.

Because he rescued these people from a precarious situation, he and his ship now face a $24,000 fine — $3,000 for each of the eight who were rescued. The fine is automatic, never mind that federal and international laws order captains to lend assistance to people in danger at sea.

Eight people on a makeshift raft in open waters 30 miles from land are clearly in a dangerous, life-threatening situation. It is not, and never should be, the ship captain's place to be concerned about immigration documents or visas or other paperwork. To hold him and the ship liable in those circumstances is outrageous.

What's wrong with the Immigration and Naturalization people? Why not simply require ship captains who rescue immigrants, documented or not, to turn them over to the authorities when they reach port safely?

Then INS agents can determine who's legal and who's not. And take whatever steps are proper.

The Daily Gazette, Schenectady, N.Y., on the superconducting super collider:

The decision to scrap the superconducting super collider is excellent news, perhaps even a sign that Congress is serious about getting federal spending under control.

It is indeed a pity that the government has already spent $2 billion on the project, but that was no excuse for spending another $9 billion or so. The physicists who were pushing for this scientific experiment did not provide concrete examples of economic benefits that would accrue to the taxpayers who would be stuck with the bill. Instead, some made comically overblown claims about how the super collider would unlock the secrets of the universe.

It's true that pure scientific research often does, eventually, lead to economic benefits. The government should fund a certain amount of it. But there is no way that one project should eat up billions of dollars. That's not how the great scientific discoveries of the past were made.

There really is a lot of fat in the federal budget, and the country really would be a lot better off if it were cut.

The Rapid City (S.D.) Journal on the Denny beating:

This justice was an injustice, they said.

Some white residents of Los Angeles angrily expressed that belief... after two black men, Damian Williams and Henry Watson, were acquitted of attempted murder in an attack on a white man, Reginald Denny, during the 1992 Los Angeles riots.

It was not unlike the reaction following the acquittals of four white policemen beating black motorist Rodney King.

Only then the reaction exploded into death and destruction. That the American justice system is imperfect should come as no surprise to anyone. Any system that relies on humans beings to pass judgment on other human beings cannot be perfect.

But is there a better system? We can tinker with the system, trying to fine-tune it to stack the odds toward impartial juries. But at some point don't we have to trust that the best system requires that people analyze the facts of a case and decide guilt or innocence?

In both cases, videotapes compelled people outside the process to pass their own judgment. Anyone with a television could see the policemen bludgeoning King and the black men bludgeoning Denny.

The temptation is to equate the crimes and compare the verdicts. Were the white policemen, who were retried (on federal charges) and found guilty, punished appropriately? Will the black defendants, who were convicted and await sentencing on charges other than attempted murder, get equal punishment?

Such questions lead to a more disturbing situation: Forces outside the process, in effect, demanding that one verdict influence another. People demanding. The threat of riots looms.

Are the jurors in any of these cases guilty of allowing such forces to intrude on their deliberations and verdicts? Probably only they know for sure or to what extent.

What is sure is that justice is best served by judging each case separately on its own facts, without regard to potential repercussions or the race of defendants or victims.

To demand otherwise only makes an imperfect system even more imperfect.

Tampa (Fla.) Tribune on student cheating:

Cheating in the classroom is hardly a new phenomenon, but the findings of a new survey suggest it may be more pervasive than previously thought.

Of the 1,975 high school students questioned during the 1992-93 term, 78 admitted to cheating and 80 percent said cheating is widespread in their schools.

Some said they had copied another student's homework, others said they had cheated on exams or tests and still others said they read only summaries rather than the entire books they were assigned. Plagiarism in essays was admitted by 14 percent of the respondents.

Here's the frightening part: All the students surveyed (by Who's Who Among High School Students) were so-called high achievers. They are not the academic laggards at the low end of the grading scale who might feel they'll be left behind if they don't resort to dishonest tactics.

What do these responses tell us? That today's high school students are under too much pressure to succeed academically? That earning a grade has become more important than learning the material? That the classroom is a place to survive, not a place where one can revel in the pleasure of acquiring knowledge?

Saint Paul (Minn.) Pioneer Press on the changing Girl Scouts:

An organization doesn't survive for 81 years without adjusting to changing needs. And so it is with the Girl Scouts. This is evident in the willingness of the organization to consider altering the reference to God in the Girl Scout promise to permit the option of pledging to serve Allah, "the creator" — or nothing at all. That's a wise move for an organization committed to achieving more diversity in its members and leaders.

Take this cold! Please!

This hot-house flower from the coast just can't handle this cold weather. Snow, in October, in West Texas, is just to weird for me.

West Texas isn't supposed to get any snow until maybe, just maybe, December. And, not always then. Most of the time, West Texans only have to suffer through the icy chill of a cold wind chill factor. Which can be much worse, actually, than the real thing.

Wind can make things good or it can make it bad. There is nothing to compare to the gentle breeze along the coast on a hot day. Not that it does much good cutting through all that humidity down there, but, hey, it's a breeze. And, a gentle breeze is much better than stifling hot on the coast.

To say the least, I want the Indian Summer back. Or at least the cold we have been having, with the sun shining and only the wind stirring up the cold hanging around.

I have been trying to acclimate myself ever since leaving the coast. But, once blood thins out to accommodate the heat, it is hard going trying to thicken it back up.

I was a good girl when the first cold sprang upon us. I kept the heater off. I may have shivered a bit, but I had to try to get used to this cold stuff.

I have to endure all the comments about being cold when nobody else is. But, I have always been that way. Must be a part of my overall contrariness.

But, then I freeze at 69 degrees no matter what type of antifreeze I use.

I remember a time when I thought cold weather was fun. I can vaguely remember playing in snow, having snowball fights and building pretty pathetic snowmen out of a meager snowfall. I truly have never lived anywhere where a whole lot of snow fell at one time and stayed for a long time.

I remember Dad having to shovel snow a couple of times, nothing too deep. He just wanted the stuff off the driveway.

And, just before we moved to Ingleside, it snowed on Thanksgiving in Van Horn. That was the last of snow that was something more than flakes for a long, long time.

It really doesn't take long for blood to thin out. After a year of living in Ingleside, I was a cold-natured as the natives. But, even so, I didn't have to buy a heavy coat until about nine years after moving. And, I only got that one because I won a trip to Chicago and the trip was in the dead of winter. Chicago is much, much more colder than Ingleside.

I suppose, given time, I could learn to enjoy cold weather — not! About the only good thing about cold weather is you can put on a lot. In the heat, there is only so much you can get rid of to be comfortable.

Oh well, maybe if luck prevails, there will be enough snow this year to actually do something like make snow angles or even snowmen.

Now, that would make dealing with the cold worthwhile.

WW II-era Coahoma graduates meet

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

"What have you been doing for the last 51 years?" This is the question about a dozen graduates of Coahoma High School were called on to answer Saturday.

About half of the 24 young men and women who graduated from Coahoma High School in 1942 reunited Friday and Saturday at the Day's Inn motel in Big Spring.

These 1942 graduates of Coahoma High came from across the state and as far away as Kentucky to join with old friends from a time when their adult lives were just beginning.

Several graduates from the classes of 1941 and 1943 also came to participate in the reunion, according to organizer Hollis R. Bond.

Although she has been back to see family in the area, Earlene Williams, who now lives in Kentucky, had not seen many of those in attendance. "When you come back to see your family, you spend time with your family — I've really not seen very many of them (classmates) at all," Williams said.

"This has been a real thrill to me," she added.

Most of the graduates made it into town for the dinner meeting, Friday, and a final couple came to attend Saturday events.

In a meeting room decked in Bulldog red and white, each graduate told the group what has been going on in their lives since high school. "That's taken up almost all of the morning," Bond said.

Songs from the "Hit Parade" of 1942 served as background music for the meetings. CHS Annuals from the years 1938-1942 were on display at the event. During the afternoon, Saturday, the graduates used a "speaker phone" to contact friends from other classes living around the country.

Former Coahoma Bulldog Grey Burkhead of Lubbock served as moderator for the two-day event. He and his wife, Edna were instrumental in organizing the event.

Bond and his wife, Dorothy, of Mansfield also were active in planning and coordinating the reunion.

The Bond's and Burkheads were joined by former Coahoma graduates and their spouses. Other graduates include Virginia (Satterfield) Ashby of Lubbock; Harold Boswell of Decatur and his wife, Frances; Carmen (Brooks) Davis of Electra; Martin "Buzzy" Hubbard of Odessa; Lloyd Wolf of Big Spring; Eddie Carpenter of Coahoma and his wife, Claire; Williams of Ashland, Ky.; Grant Young of Rising Star and his wife, Dorothy; Willis Winters of Plainview and his wife, Pattie; Herbert Linley and wife of Tulsa, Okla., and Freda Jo (Bond) Hoover of Big Spring.

After lunch Saturday, a memorial service was conducted by Bond, a retired Navy chaplain, for the five class members known to have died — W.D. Coats, Evelyn Loudamy, Max Wheeler, Elmo White and Gay Nell (Yardley) Fowler.

One member of the class of '42, Wanda Blair, has not been located. Members are asking for any information that might help in locating her.

You can't do that in school

These Coahoma High School students got a head start on Halloween as students and teachers attended school in costumes Friday.

'Frost is on the pumpkin' in G-City

This is yet again a very busy week in Glasscock county. With stripping going on and the winter weather coming, farmers are working killer hours.

We have seen the "frost on the pumpkin" several times this week and all are anxious to get this harvest to its successful end. Everyone who watches the weather took in their plants this week and spent time getting them ready for the winter.

Teachers are busy helping students get ready for the academic decathlon. That causes all to be making early morning hours.

The football players have worked hard this week to get ready for Wink. Stuart Wilde was so proud to be recognized by the Associated Press for his efforts in last week's game, he has almost walked on clouds all week!

The neat thing would be if he could do that Friday night at Wink! This is always a hard game for the boys, when they play against their former coach, Sam Scott.

They have such a desire to show him exactly how well they can do. Even with the norther blowing and rain falling, the boys expect to see the fans there and hear them yell. And, I for one, plan to be there!

There was some discussion as to what else could be done to help boost the boys. It was noted that in a game attended on Garden City's open night, the boys were heard discussing how they felt about the fans who were leaving before the end of the game.

Many of the losing team's fans were packing up and leaving. Several of the boys felt it was an example of poor sportsmanship on the part of parents and other fans. Many parents do not fully realize the extent that their actions effect players and their fellow students.

Each child there has a job to do, and they feel it is our job to use our time watching them. We love to watch them win and we should love them enough to watch them always, regardless of the score. I think Garden City does an admirable job of supporting the football players, high school and junior high, and the band, drill team, and cheerleaders. So the moral of this long story is: keep up the good work.

The band did very well at contest last week and we want them to know how very proud we are of their hard work. They spend many hours working hard, we have seen so much improvement since their first days this year.

The Headstart program for Garden City has been officially approved and will begin Jan 3. So, for those of you who have four year olds, and are interested, the school is working on admissions and enrollment information to be made available at a later date.

Bea Correa is the person to contact if you are interested in classes to learn English. She has all the information and can be reached at 354-2243.

Everyone should know by now that a hunting safety course is required for certain age boys. If you are in need of this course, you should contact Charles Zachery at 354-2230. Plans are to teach this course at the school at night or on the weekend in the very near future.

Hard freeze helps cotton

The Associated Press

Temperatures ticked down by the minute Friday and flurries sugarcoated the Texas Panhandle as gusty north winds ushered in the season's first deep cold snap.

"It's still yuck out there," said Lila Cooley, who was cooking meatloaf and catfish lunches at the Hartley Truck Stop. She said almost one inch of snow had accumulated in Hartley, 70 miles northwest of Amarillo.

Cotton farmers considered the freeze good news.

But the National Weather Service urged Texans to protect their pets, tender plants and pipes.

Thermometers plunged across the state as the arctic front moved south. In a 30-minute stretch Friday morning in Lubbock, the mercury dropped seven notches to 35 degrees, said weather service forecaster Ken Wigner.

Forecaster Terry Getz in Amarillo expected record low temperatures near 10 degrees Friday night, quite a change from Thursday afternoon, when Amarillo reached 71 degrees.

The Panhandle's flurries would taper off into the night, he predicted.

"They're so small and the wind is blowing them around so fast, they're going to have a hard time accumulating," Getz said.

Three inches of snow fell on Halloween in 1991, he said.

The forecast also looked messy around Midland and San Angelo, where it rained through the morning.

"Chances are they could have some of that terrible thing called freezing rain, or sleet," Wigner said.

Meanwhile, thunderstorms and high winds hit the San Antonio and Houston areas.

Haitian rightists try filling power vacuum

The Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — On the day President Jean-Bertrand Aristide was to return, the climax of a U.N. plan to restore democracy, his opponents were maneuvering to replace his government instead.

Twelve political parties and pressure groups said in a joint communique Saturday that if Aristide doesn't resign by 3 p.m. Sunday (3 p.m. EST) they will announce plans to replace him.

The United States and the United Nations have warned against such a move.

U.N. special envoy Dante Caputo said he expected some minor disturbances, but said any attempt by anti-Aristide elements to appoint a new government would not work.

"I would hope that common sense would prevail and they (Aristide's opponents) would realize this is going nowhere," he told The Associated Press late Saturday.

The latest person to declare political ambitions was Claude Raymond, a former army commander under the dictatorship of Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier.

"The time has come for a burst of national effort" he declared over Radio Signal on Saturday.

Many Aristide supporters stayed in their homes or did not wish to discuss politics openly Saturday following a rash of anti-Aristide attacks.

The United States was one of the major forces behind the U.N.-brokered agreement that Aristide and military leader Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras signed in July, laying out the terms for Aristide to regain the office from which the military ousted him in September 1991.

Among other things, the agreement called for the appointment of a transitional government, for Cedras to step down and for Aristide to return from exile Oct. 30.

The process was effectively blocked from the beginning. An Aristide ally was named premier, but has been largely powerless.

Then Cedras refused to step down. A U.S. warship that was carrying troops for an international force to aid the transition turned back in the face of an unruly mob at the capital's port.

The United Nations imposed an oil embargo on Oct. 18, but although the ensuing fuel shortages have increased the misery in the Western Hemisphere's poorest country, it has not been enough to break the impasse.

A previous oil embargo was seen as inducing Cedras to sign the agreement with Aristide.

Thirty foreigners held a vigil for Aristide on Saturday outside the church where a leading Aristide campaign backer was assassinated Sept. 11, and a few Haitians watched quietly from the fringes.

Two miles away, anti-Aristide activists had already begun celebrating. About 150 people, mostly young men, were milling about the Normandie Bar, a hangout for the armed pro-military civilian groups known as "attaches."

"The political class is more and more in favor of closing off the negotiations (for Aristide's return)," Hubert de Ronceray, the head of a small rightist party favoring new elections, said Friday.

Among the groups demanding Aristide's resignation was the Front for the Advancement and Progress of Haiti, or FRAPH, a military-backed political movement that has used intimidation to shut down the city several days this month.

The United Nations warned Friday that replacing his government likely would bring increased international sanctions against Haiti. Since the embargo on weapons and oil took effect, the nation, which shares the island of Hispaniola with the Dominican Republic, has been fast running out of fuel.

An American warship from the international fleet enforcing the embargo entered the Port-au-Prince harbor area Friday and was still there Saturday.

As sporadic gunfire rattled across the capital Friday night, the Haitian army broadcast a communique asking countrymen to show "tolerance and mutual love."

The United Nations contends the accord remains in effect despite the passing of Saturday's deadline. Cedras said in an interview broadcast on Friday that it had expired and could not be extended unless both signers, he and Aristide, agreed.

Caputo called all parties in the feud to a meeting in Haiti to discuss fulfilling provisions of the agreement that have not been met. Those include parliamentary approval of an amnesty law, the separation of the army and police, Cedras' resignation and Aristide's return.

Caputo stressed that the meeting was not intended to renegotiate the pact.

It was not known whether Aristide himself would be asked, or would attend the meetings, tentatively set for Wednesday and Thursday. U.S. officials expect that he will be represented by Prime Minister Robert Malval.

The prime minister told CNN late Saturday that he would attend the meeting, subject to Aristide's approval.

Deaths

Zada Flynt

Zada Flynt, 49, of Midland, died Friday, Oct. 29, 1993 at a Midland hospital.

Services were Saturday, Oct. 30, at 4 p.m. at the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. Ralph Caffey, pastor of Airport Baptist Church in Big Spring officiating.

FLYNT

Interment followed at Resthaven Memorial Park in Midland under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

She was born April 5, 1944, in San Antonio and moved to Big Spring from Midland in 1966. She returned to Midland in 1990. She worked as a secretary for several businesses in Big Spring and Midland, and was a member of the Forsan Baptist Church.

She is survived by her parents, Hazel and Robert Crawford of Big Spring; a sister, Zeba Smith of Big Spring; one niece and one nephew, also of Big Spring.

She was preceded in death by her husband, "Bud" Flynt.

Clinton reassuring Americans about health plan

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton sought Saturday to quell fears that his health-care plan would hurt Americans in their wallets, saying just 15 percent of them would pay more for the same benefits.

Clinton, in his weekly radio address, argued that the price was a fair one to guarantee affordable health coverage for all Americans.

"One hundred percent of the American people get something no one has today — absolute security," he said.

Telling Americans he wanted to "give it to you straight," Clinton said 60 percent would "pay the same or less to get the same or better benefits." He added that 25 percent would pay more for better benefits while 15 percent — mostly young, healthy, single Americans — would "pay more for the same benefits."

As soon as Clinton's proposal was released formally on Wednesday, new questions arose about how many people would pay more under the plan as critics assailed it as a heavy-handed bureaucratic approach to health reform. Rival plans abound on Capitol Hill, some of them representing more modest efforts to encourage broader access to health coverage and some advocating a taxpayer-financed, government-run system.

The White House estimates 71 million Americans would pay more, most of them facing premium increases of less than $500 a year.

Rep. Bob Livingston of Louisiana, Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said that if many Americans would pay more, "we'll just have to make some adjustments."

"When I signed on the bill, as I told Mrs. Clinton, it doesn't necessarily mean that I'm going to agree with every dot, every crossed T or every exclamation point," he said on CNN's "Newsmaker Saturday."

Democrats, too, showed some signs of concern.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said that if many Americans would pay more, "we'll just have to make some adjustments."

"When I signed on the bill, as I told Mrs. Clinton, it doesn't necessarily mean that I'm going to agree with every dot, every crossed T or every exclamation point," he said on CNN's "Newsmaker Saturday."

The Clinton plan calls for sharply higher taxes on tobacco products and a 1 percent levy on big companies that set up their own health plans.

superheated wax was burning so hot, other materials had ignited in the kitchen and she was forced to leave the home.

After getting the call, firefighters sped to the scene and found the fire had burned through the ceiling and into the attic. Structural damage was estimated at about $5,000.

Settles credits the functioning smoke detector with preventing injuries and limiting damage in the blaze.

Firefighters had the blaze extinguished within 10 minutes, but stayed on the scene for more than an hour to be sure the fire would not rekindle.

A nationwide campaign has been in place for a few years, trying to remind people to change batteries when time changes for daylight savings time, Settles said.

Are we a living part of God's 'Jurassic Park?'

Scientists who demand that miracles be explained with logic, this is for you:

Suppose God is not the "magician" the rest of us envision. What if God, instead, is a technocrat, a supreme scientist who has literally engineered the universe over which He presides, an inventor bound by His own natural laws.

Scripture may yet make sense. In where-else California, there is something called the Alcor Life Extension Foundation. It deals in the arguably specious science of cryogenics.

It is selling immortality. You sign up, and later, when you die, your remains are plunged head-first into a tank of super-cold liquid nitrogen.

You will be thus "preserved," the Alcor people say, awaiting the day when medicine can cure what killed you.

Some Alcor clients have been hanging around upside down for more than 20 years, so there is a demand for what Alcor supplies.

But you saw the dinosaur movie "Jurassic Park."

It describes a much less messy way to live forever.

As Michael Crichton's dinosaurs were duplicated and grown from the DNA in preserved prehistoric blood — so might we be.

A drop of blood contains the blueprint for an identical new you — a replicable mathematical formula, if you will, which could be used to rebuild you in every detail down to the tiniest genetic predisposition.

They call it cloning. Sooner than you imagine, we will be able to reconstruct the person you are from a preserved drop of blood or a speck of bodily tissue — with the exception of your right-now up-to-date personality.

That, to a great extent, was formed by your experiences and memories. But wait a minute!

We can presently preserve your VOICE for all eternity with a handheld tape recorder.

We can do THAT NOW.

We can measure the electrical impulses produced by your brain with an electroencephalograph.

We can do THAT NOW.

How near, then, is the day when we might store your learned behavior and your lifetime of recollections — perhaps on something as compact as a compact disc?

Conceivably, your only meaningful "earthly remains" may be kept on a laboratory shelf, on a glass slide — and a CD bearing your cerebral biography, awaiting reawakening.

What if God, in the beginning, planned it that way?

What if He made you scientifically "recallable"?

Now some key words in The Word take on some added meaning.

Surely and easily, an omnipotent God could read and write down your genetic code, just as an earthly scientist might. He could preserve your precise formula for cloning.

He could store your personality — your memories — perhaps even erase the unhappy ones.

For on that day, wherein "every tear shall be wiped away" — on that "resurrection morning" — it may be said that God so loved you — that He SAVED you — and that unmysically, calculatedly, quite scientifically ... you were BORN AGAIN.

Follow the lights to Klondike

Dave Hargrave

Dorothy, in her attempt to get back to her loved ones, clicked her sparkling slippers three times and chanted:

"There's no place like home,
 There's no place like home,
 There's no place like home."
 It worked.

Dave, in his attempt to stay sane as he watched his first six-man football game at Klondike Friday, used this mantra.

"Midfield is at the 40,
 Midfield is at the 40,
 Midfield is at the 40."

Maybe there's something to this chanting business, because my chant worked just as well as Dorothy's. I sat right on the 40-yard line.

(Well, actually, I was in the press box overlooking the 40. I value my life.)

I continually wrote first-and-10 in my notebook instead of first-and-15, but at least I knew where the ball was.

At least most of the time. Klondike's yard markers are faded at best, so I just had to look at the 40 and count to where the ball was. Usually, before my counting was finished, the ball had already been snapped for the next play.

Huddled in the dark press box, I did my best to stay up to speed. As I looked down on the field, I realized the stands were like a ghost town. About 20 Klondike fans were on the home side, clumped together on one end of the bleachers where blankets hung over the railings to block the vicious wind.

Three Wellman fans had the run of the visitors' bleachers. The wind was too much for the Klondike band, which left before the first quarter ended. Could you blame them? Snow started blowing (it never hit the ground, so you can't say snow was falling) before the game began.

The fans hadn't stayed home, however. After Klondike's first touchdown, car horns from everywhere blared. That's when I realized why all of the cars at the game were parked in a circle around the field. Boy, was I slow.

The cold had turned six-man football into drive-in football. When Wellman started scoring, their fans' horn brigade blared as loud as Klondike's. One Wellman fan had a horn that sounded like it came off an 18-wheeler, but I wasn't stepping outside the press box to look for a truck.

Keeping up with the action was easier than I thought it would be. In fact, by the fourth quarter I was beginning to wonder if 11-man football and six-man football were really all that different - on the field, at least.

Perhaps I'd been too busy counting yards to notice the subtleties and not-so-subtleties of the game. But then, late in the game when Klondike needed to score in a hurry, I saw Klondike's center snap the ball.

By himself. With no line around him. Klondike was going for a pass with three wide receivers and two boys in the backfield. And one lonely lineman.

After that, I figured 11-man football was as close to six-man as Madonna is to Rush Limbaugh. Two different animals.

I can't say I like six-man better than 11-man - I'd have to see more games and gain a better understanding of the six-man game before casting my ballot. But the atmosphere was incredible, one I'd love to return to the next time the Big Spring Steers have the night off.

The Friday night lights let me know I was in for something special.

On the way to Klondike, I was hoping I was going in the right direction as I headed east on FM 828. I reached the top of a slight hill just after Sparenburg, and suddenly there they were.

The lights. Four sets of them, sticking out of the horizons surrounded by nothing but the open countryside.

I checked the odometer.

Seven miles later, I parked the car to enjoy some drive-in football.

Big Spring High School runner Joe Franklin, left, prepares to pass Andrews runner Rosendo Lopez near the end of the District 3-4A cross country boys' race in Big Spring Saturday. Franklin edged Lopez by 0.23 seconds to take the title. Big Spring's boys' team won its first district title in school history and will take its act to the Lubbock Regional Saturday. Also for Big Spring, Evy Perez won the girls' individual district championship.

Big Spring boys take first-ever district title

 Sports Editor

Big Spring High School's boys' cross country team stayed indoors after Saturday's District 3-4A cross country championship meet at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark. The runners were huddled in a circle, but they weren't trying to keep warm.

Each one of them was getting a feel of the district championship trophy - the first one in the history of Big Spring boys' cross country.

"This is the one that I didn't think we'd ever get," said Big Spring coach Randy Britton, whose been coaching cross country and boys' track at Big Spring for nearly two decades. He glanced toward his team as it passed around the trophy. "I'd told them to touch that as long as they can."

Big Spring's boys did it in convincing fashion, scoring 33 points to Lubbock's 52. Andrews was third and Lake View was fourth.

Joe Franklin, a Big Spring junior running his first year of cross country, won the race in a classic duel with Rosendo Lopez of Andrews. The pair was neck-and-neck almost the entire race, Franklin said, but at the wire Franklin won by a quarter-second. Franklin crossed the finish line of the three-mile course at 16 minutes and 35.55 seconds. Lopez, who briefly disputed his runner-up status, crossed at 16:35.76.

"I saw my foot go across and both his feet still behind it, and I just said

FRANKLIN

PEREZ

"Yes," said Franklin. "It's just a great feeling."

Franklin said he tried to draft Lopez, to use him as a wind shield, but the wind was just too strong for such strategy.

"I just decided to stay beside him, and try to outkick him at the end," he said.

Franklin's win was just part of Big Spring's victory. Robert Rios, a sophomore, finished third for Big Spring with a time of 16:41.45. Jesse Ornales was fourth at 16:50.96 for the Steers. The other key finishers for Big Spring were Randy Farr (10th - 17:43.70), Lehebron Farr (16th - 18:14.24) and Jamie Olivarez (20th - 18:35.52).

Big Spring's boys team now moves on to the Lubbock Regional Saturday, where the top three teams and top 10 individuals will move on to the state meet in Austin Nov. 13.

Also advancing to Lubbock is Big Spring's Evy Perez, who won the girls' individual district championship by running the two-mile course in 12:36.00, 22.78 seconds better than Lake View's Michelle Levens. Perez, a senior, finished fourth in the district meet last season.

Lake View won the team title, and Big Spring did not have enough girls to qualify for the team standings. Other finishers for Big Spring were Pauline DelBosque (13th - 14:40.24), Stephanie Mendoza (16th - 15:39.66) and Shelly Schroder (17th - 19:21.69).

Perez was pleased with her time. "In this weather, yeah," she said. "When we started, the wind was really tough. Then when we made the first turn, it got a little better."

Perez had a small amount of trouble with cold weather in Levelland Oct. 23, as did the entire boys' team. The boys' team ran its worst meet of the season at Levelland, but followed it with perhaps its best.

"We just wanted to come back and make up for our mistakes last week," Olivarez said.

Britton looked like a boy by the tree on Christmas morning after the boys' race.

"I'm really at a loss for words, because it's been just so much hard work for these kids," he said. "Joe showed some remarkable stamina. I mean, this is his first district championship meet."

"Our 4, 5 and 6 runners finished a lot higher than I thought they would. I knew they had the ability to finish where they did, but I didn't think they knew that."

BSHS swimmers get feet wet in new pool during Saturday meet

By STEVE REAGAN
 Sports Editor

The Big Spring High School swim team showed off more than a brand-new pool Saturday afternoon.

Opening their season with a dual-double meet with Pecos and Andrews, the Steers christened the Horace Garrett Natatorium with a competitive showing that impressed head coach Harlan Smith.

"It went off well," Smith said of the results, which saw the Big Spring girls split with Andrews and Pecos and the boys narrowly lose to both teams. "I was pleased with the way we swam."

The Big Spring girls lost to Pecos, 49-35, but set two school records in the process. The 200 meter medley relay team of Brandy Kaz, Shannon Korell, Leann Campbell and Ronna Osborn set a new record with a time of 2:12.20, while Korell set a new standard in the 100 meter butterfly with a time of 1:13.05.

The Lady Steers came back to defeat Andrews by a 57-31 score.

"Starting off, the girls are pretty strong, stronger than they were when we finished up last season," Smith said. "I expected us to beat Andrews, although I wasn't too sure about Pecos. But we gave them a run for their money. Well, not a run, but a swim."

The Big Spring boys dropped two close decisions: 48-40 to Pecos and 44-42 to Andrews.

"The guys are young, but they came through real well," Smith said. "They raced well ... which was the main thing I was looking for today."

Smith jokingly added that since this was the first meet at the Garrett Natatorium, all times today were pool records.

Complete meet results can be found in SportsExtra, page 10-A.

Sterling City flies over frosty Forsan

JOHN A. MOSELEY
 News Editor

FORSAN — On a night not fit for man nor beast, Sterling City's Eagles soared.

Well, almost. Virtually grounded by icy, gale-force winds that whistled a light snow past the eyes, the Eagles put their playoff hopes in the hands of running backs Albert Estrada and John Williams.

Estrada and Williams did not disappoint, combining for 157 overland yards and three rushing touchdowns en route to a 31-3 win over Forsan's Buffaloes.

The Eagles improved to 8-1 on the year and 3-1 in District 9-1A play, and enter the final week of the season needing a win over Roscoe to guarantee themselves a playoff berth.

Despite mounting four long, sustained drives during the game, the Buffs only managed points out of their first march when Rusty Baker nailed a 25-yard field goal with 5 minutes, 20 seconds remaining in the first quarter.

From that point forward, the playing conditions and Buff prospects only worsened.

"We're just not the team we were earlier in the season," Forsan coach Jan East observed following the game. "We've got four kids out with injuries and we just don't have the depth to throw at people that are bigger, stronger and faster than we are."

Time and time again during those drives, Buff tailback Jacoby Hopper would seemingly break free, only to be quickly chased down by Eagle linebackers Estrada and Justin Clark.

Sterling City wasted little time in answering Forsan's challenge. Estrada picked up 10 yards on the Eagles' first play from scrimmage. Williams followed with a 7-yard tote, and after an incomplete pass, Estrada picked up two more.

That set up a pivotal fourth-down play. Forsan stacked its defense in a goal-line formation in an attempt to regain possession at midfield, but Estrada ducked outside left end, shrugged off an arm tackle and set sail on a 51-yard run to give the Eagles a 6-3 lead with 3:23 remaining in the quarter.

And when Forsan was unable to convert a fourth-and-one situation at the Sterling City 46 with 20 seconds remaining in the first period, the rout was on.

Josh Murrell broke loose for 47 yards on his only carry of the night, setting the Eagles up at the Forsan 6 as the period ended. Quarterback Phillip Thomas covered that distance on the first play of the period to make it 12-3.

Forsan mounted another sustained drive behind workhorse tailback Hopper, but again fell inches short on a fourth-down play at the Sterling City 33.

Both teams swapped fumbles and punts, but with the winds at their backs, the Eagles got the better end of the bargain. Donnie Bautista's punt sailed 46 yards and pinned the Buffs at their own 11, but when Chris Evans was forced to punt from his own 32, the ball traveled just 15 yards, leaving the Eagles just 46 yards from payday.

BSHS tennis team falls in semifinals

LUBBOCK - Cold weather, bizarre circumstances and Fort Worth Boswell proved to be the downfall of the Big Spring High School tennis team Friday.

Or should we say Saturday.

Big Spring, the undefeated District 3-4A champions and the second seed in the Lubbock Regional, fell to third-seeded Boswell in a semifinal that lasted well into the early hours of Saturday morning.

Boswell won 9-6. The match was called when it was determined that even if Big Spring would have finished the match tied at 9-9, Boswell would have won because it had claimed the most sets.

As the second seed, Big Spring drew a first-round bye, and it beat Hereford 10-6 to advance to the semifinals. The Hereford match was played in a 2-degree wind-chill factor, and that took a lot out of Big Spring's team, said Big Spring coach Ralph Davis.

"All in all, we had a great season," Davis said. "We just came up one match short of our goal, and that was to reach the finals of the regional. And I think we could have done if not for all this business about rescheduling and all of the other distractions."

The semifinal with Boswell was not supposed to be played until Saturday, but regional officials found an available indoor tennis arena Friday night and opted to play the semifinals immediately in an attempt to beat the weather.

The arena had just four courts, however, so the match dragged on for hours upon hours, Davis said.

Big Spring's boys did not have a good time against Boswell. Big Spring's Luciano Delgado was the only Steer to win a singles match. Delgado beat Scott Ludwig 6-2, 6-3. All three of Big Spring's boys' doubles teams were defeated.

Lara Stevenson and Debbig Cunningham won singles matches for Big Spring. Only three girls' singles matches were completed.

In girls' doubles action, Stevenson and Amy Dominguez won for Big Spring, as did Angela Griffin and Maria Villareal. Villareal, Big Spring's No. 1 girls' singles player, performed well despite having a pinched nerve in her back.

"She was very courageous and played her heart out," Davis said. Villareal and Griffin won their first set, lost the second, and that's when the match was called.

Big Spring played Borger Saturday in the consolation match.

Bulldogs blast McCamey, 41-6

McCAMEY - Coahoma earned its second straight cakewalk win Friday with a 41-6 thrashing of the McCamey Badgers.

Coahoma (4-5, 2-3 in District 6-2A) grabbed a 21-6 halftime lead thanks in part to two touchdowns by Kelby Bailey. With the Bulldogs leading 7-6, Bailey scored with 37 seconds left in the first quarter on a 5-yard run. In the second quarter, Bailey caught a 20-yard touchdown pass thrown by Henry De La Rosa.

Bailey scored three touchdowns on the night and ran for 146 yards on 29 carries.

"We were kind of slow starting there, but once they got going, the kids did a good job on both sides of the ball," Coahoma coach Steve Park said. "McCamey scored first ... and after that, the kids took control."

Coahoma quarterback Brandon McGuire threw for 204 yards, completing 8 of 15 passes. He scored on a 6-yard run for the game's first touchdown, and he later hit Bucky Williams with a 55-yard touchdown pass.

McCamey dropped to 1-8, 0-5. The Bulldogs finish the season Friday at home against Ozona.

Sports Editor

PATRICIA - A vicious wind and the Wellman Wildcats cut down the Klondike Cougars' playoff hopes Friday night.

Wellman (5-4, 3-1 in District 5) beat Klondike (6-3, 2-2) 37-34 in a seesaw battle, and now Klondike must pray Wellman loses to Sands this coming Friday. A Wellman loss and a Klondike win at Dawson Friday would at least give the Cougars a chance for the playoffs, but Cougar coach Ed Wilson wasn't exactly planning for a postseason trip after the loss.

"Mathematically, it's possible, but it's going to be really hard," he said. "When you go into the first of the year, looking at the kids we had coming back, then Mike Lee gets hurt, some other kids don't come out...that's tough for a bunch of kids that it was supposed to be their year. It's just dissolved."

Klondike missed star running back Mike Lee, who hasn't played since injuring a knee in the Oct. 10 game with Grady, like a peanut-butter sandwich misses bread. Klondike gained just 125 yards rushing - 168 total - which made it a wonder that the Cougars stayed as close as they did.

In fact, Klondike could have won if not for missed extra points. Klondike placekicker Mike Nickles made just two of five extra-point attempts - that's six points that Klondike could have had but didn't (extra-point kicks are worth two points in six-man football, runs are worth one point).

"I don't know if it was the wind - we just didn't kick well," Wilson said. "We had a chance to win. There's not much you can say about extra points, you just miss them."

Klondike trailed 14-8 after gaining just two first downs in the first half, but it tied the game in a flash when quarterback Tanner Etheredge broke several tackles on the way to a 46-yard touchdown run on the second half's first play.

Wall 61, Stanton 27

STANTON - Stanton's thin playoff hopes became even thinner Friday at the hands of the Wall Hawks, the state's fourth-ranked Class 2A team.

Wall clinched the District 6-2A title by running roughshod over the Buffs in the first half, grabbing a 47-7 halftime lead. Stanton started well, tying the game at 7 on a 15-yard touchdown run by quarterback J.J. Ortiz, but the fun didn't last long.

On the bright side for Stanton, Jerele Lee had another big game, gaining 240 yards.

Wall's Cory Braden scored four touchdowns, one on a fumble return. Surprisingly, at least when you look at the score, Stanton nearly gained as many yards as Wall - the Hawks had 411 total yards, the Buffs had 398. Stanton turned the ball over twice, while Wall did not commit a turnover.

Stanton finishes its season at 5-4, 3-3.

Wall 14 33 8 6-61
Stanton 7 0 12 8-27

Wink 41, Garden City 7

WINK - Wink took Garden City out of first place in District 8-1A Friday with ease.

Wink (6-2, 2-0) took sole possession of first place in the four-team district behind solid running from Shane Hanes and Mike Moranda, who combined for all 336 of Wink's total yards.

Moranda had 154 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries. Hanes had 182 yards and four touchdowns. Garden City fell to 2-7, 2-1.

Garden City led 7-6 at the end of the first quarter after a 4-yard touchdown run by Bearkat star Stuart Wilde. Wink led 14-7 at halftime.

"We played well; it was 14-7 at the half," Garden City coach Dennis Bryant said. "They just finally wore us down a little bit. They're a good football team."

Wink only attempted one pass. Garden City completed 1 of 3 passes. Garden City had 122 total yards.

The Bearkats fumbled the ball four times.

Despite their record, the Bearkats can still make the playoffs. To do that, however, they will have to defeat Rankin, formerly ranked No. 1 in the state.

"We're going to have to play awfully well to beat Rankin," Bryant said. "Fortunately, we have an off week to prepare for them."

The Garden City-Rankin game will be played at Rankin Nov. 12.

Garden City 7 0 0 0-7
Wink 6 8 20 7-41

Greenwood 56, Colorado City 28

COLORADO CITY - The Greenwood Rangers cruised toward their season-ending showdown with Kermit by crushing Colorado City in Frigid Wolf Stadium Friday night.

The Rangers (6-2-1, 3-1 in District 6-3A) scored 42 points in the first half en route to blitzing the Wolves (1-8, 0-4). Greenwood had 477 rushing yards, led by Shawn Sayles' 106 yards on only six carries.

"It was a good game. We had the opportunity to play a lot of kids," Greenwood coach Bob Purser said. "It looks like we're going to be at full strength next week (against Kermit)."

On defense, Michael P. Smith had two interceptions and lineman Jaie Gillam had two fumble recoveries. Kicking into a stiff northern wind through most of the game, Josh Jones was a perfect 8-for-8 on conversion kicks.

Hilbert Ochoa had 99 rushing yards and Damon Cumba 92 for the Rangers.

Greenwood returns to action Friday at home against Kermit. The winner of that game, which begins at 8 p.m., will secure the second-place playoff spot for the district.

Greenwood 35 7 7 7-56
C-City 0 6 8 14-28

Klondike running back Erik Ariemendez (1) tries to escape two Wellman defenders during the District 5 six-man football game in Patricia Friday night.

The tie broke just as quickly. On Wellman's first play of the half, freshman running back Sean Rowden went straight up the middle 65 yards for a touchdown run. Wellman led 22-14 after the extra point.

Rowden teamed with junior running back Trevor Baker to dominate the ground game. Rowden gained 169 yards on 18 carries, while Baker had 104 in 21. Rowden had two touchdowns; Baker had one.

"We had two running backs that just ran excellent tonight, plus we were eventually able to pass the ball," said Wellman coach John Cornelius. "The only time we looked out of it was in the first quarter when the wind was in our face."

Klondike received a big break late in the third quarter to take its last lead of the game. Wellman quarterback Russell Moorhead, who completed 6 of 12 passes, threw a ball right into the hands of Klondike defender Cody Oaks, who received some fine blocking on his 63-yard jaunt to the end zone. Klondike led 28-22.

Before the quarter ended, Wellman had the lead for good. Baker scored on a 6-yard run, then with 5:03 left in the game Rowden scored from 1 yard out to give the Wildcats a 38-27 lead. Klondike scored again on an Etheredge touchdown with 3:36 remaining, but by the time it reclaimed the ball they had just three seconds to try to launch a 58-yard miracle.

Etheredge never even got a pass off.

Should Wellman lose against Sands, and Klondike and Grady win their games, those three teams would tie for second in district with two losses each.

What happens then is confusing at best, but it's the only hope Klondike has for the playoffs.

Southwest Conference Roundup

Texas Tech raids Austin, posts win over Longhorns

By The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes had been feeling some pressure from the Red Raiders' 1-5 start that had the student newspaper calling for his job.

So the Red Raiders' 31-22 upset of Texas Saturday in blustery winds and near-freezing temperatures was especially warming for Dykes.

"It meant a lot to me," Dykes said. "I had a lot of nooses hanging in the trees."

Dykes can thank an opportunistic defense and barreling back Bam Morris, who ran for two scores while topping the 1,000-yard mark.

Texas coach John Mackovic praised Tech's offense, namely Morris and quarterback Robert Hall.

"We did the best we could do to stay with them and we were afraid if they got going real fast and strong, they would gather some steam in a hurry, and they did that," Mackovic said.

Tech (3-5, 2-2 Southwest Conference) turned three of four Texas turnovers into 17 points, including a 54-yard interception return for a touchdown by Marcus Coleman, which crippled the Longhorns' chances for a comeback late in the game.

Texas (2-4-1, 2-1) had rallied from a 17-0 first-quarter deficit to pull within 17-14 when Coleman stepped in front of a Shea Morenz pass and streaked down the sideline for the score, giving Tech a 24-14 margin with 9:17 to play.

Cat Adams intercepted Morenz on the Longhorns' next drive, and returned the ball to the Texas 29. Four plays later, Morris slammed into the end zone from the 1, giving Tech a 31-14 lead with 7:37 remaining.

Texas struck back with an seven-play, 80-yard drive, capped by an 8-yard touchdown run by Roderick Walker, which pulled the Longhorns to within 31-22 with 5:02 left.

But Lovell Pinkney dropped a Morenz pass on fourth-and-10 with 1:48 left, and Tech took over at their own 40 and ran out the clock.

Winds gusting up to 30 mph played havoc with passes and punts and made 40-degree temperatures feel like the teens as players had trouble hanging onto the ball.

Neither the weather nor Texas' defense could slow Morris, who carried 33 times for 169 yards, including touchdown runs of 1 and 3 yards. He broke the 1,000-yard mark in the second quarter and now has 1,059 yards and seven 100-yard games this year.

Hall finished 15-of-28 for 189 yards with a touchdown and one interception.

TCU 28, Houston 10

FORT WORTH — Max Knake threw two touchdowns and scrambled for another Saturday as Texas Christian used a frisky, alert defense to hammer out a 28-10 Southwest Conference victory over Houston.

With a frosty, blustery wind dictating momentum, the Horned Frogs (4-4, 2-2) pounced on three Houston fumbles and picked off a pass to secure their third straight triumph.

The Cougars (1-5-1, 1-2-1) contributed mightily to their own downfall with a moribund running attack, untimely penalties and several dropped passes.

Texas Tech running back Byron 'Bam' Morris (4) drives through the defensive arms of Texas' Chris Carter (16) and Winfred Tubbs during the second quarter Saturday. Morris, the nation's third-best rusher, topped 1,000 yards in the second quarter and scored two touchdowns in Tech's 31-22 win.

TCU struck for two quick touchdowns in the first quarter, made it 21-3 at halftime and pretty much wrapped it up early in the fourth period on a 11-yard scoring pass from Knake to fullback John Oglesby.

Oglesby also got the first TCU touchdown, capping a 66-yard drive highlighted by Knake passes of 8, 11 and 19 yards and a 17-yard run by Kyle McPherson.

Knake, a sophomore, scrambled seven yards on a broken pass play for the second Frog score after TCU tackle Royal West stripped the ball from a Cougar back and Greg Evans recovered at the Houston 22.

Texas A&M 37, SMU 13

COLLEGE STATION — Terry Venetoulis kicked three field goals and Greg Hill scored two touchdowns Saturday as No. 11 Texas A&M coasted to 37-13 victory over Southern Methodist.

The Aggies (7-1, 5-0 SWC) won their 20th consecutive Southwest Conference game.

It wasn't a day for spectacular offense on a 44-degree afternoon and, while never in trouble, A&M couldn't walk over the 32-point underdog Mustangs (1-5-2, 1-3-1) like the 53,076 fans in Kyle Field expected.

The Mustangs gave the Texas A&M offense fits for three periods with an eight-man front and forced the Aggies to settle for field goals of 31, 20, and 37 yards by Venetoulis.

Hill rushed for 129 yards on 21 carries and scored on runs of 28 and 1 yards. Rodney Thomas had an 18-yard TD run for the Aggies and rushed for 79 yards on 15 carries.

Freshman Leeland McElroy scored on a 13-yard run and rushed nine times for 70 yards.

The Mustangs scored the first offensive touchdown on A&M's defense this year. Mark Elred hit James Whitmore with a 79-yard pass out of the run-and-shoot offense and the Mustangs' touchdown came on a 14-yard pass from Elred to Mick Rossley.

The Aggies could produce only a 17-3 lead at halftime. After an exchange of field goals, the Mustangs tried a gamble that backfired.

On fourth-and-8 from the Aggies 37, defensive lineman Sam Adams caught Kevin Shepard for a 16-yard loss on a double reverse.

The Aggies made the Mustangs pay by quickly driving 47 yards, the payoff coming on an 18-yard run by Thomas.

A 13-yard punt into a 30 mph wind by Larry Israel set A&M up for another second-period score with Hill crossing the goal from 28 yards out.

'Dogs blast Borden County in District 6

By STEVE REAGAN Sportswriter

LORAINE — In a battle of stars, Loraine's star shined brightest.

Sophomore Corey Woodell, Loraine's all-purpose back, outduelled Borden County's Cody Cox to lead the Bulldogs to a 66-36 victory in District 6 six-man action Friday night.

The win clinches the district title for Loraine (6-3 overall, 4-0 in league play), while Borden County fell to 4-5 and 3-1 with the loss.

Woodell combined his running and passing skills to account for more than 350 yards total offense (186 rushing, 170 passing) and an amazing eight touchdowns. Those numbers out-shined an otherwise sterling performance by Cox, who gained 206 yards rushing and scored four touchdowns.

Adding to Borden's woes was turnovers and penalties. The Coyotes lost four fumbles, had a pass intercepted and had three touchdowns called back by penalties.

After the game, Borden coach Bobby Avery, who was red-faced from the cold far more than the errors, said he had hoped the frigid condition would have worked in the Coyotes' favor.

"With the wind and the cold, my plan was to use our big hoss (Cox), and it worked pretty well," Avery said. "In the second half, I didn't expect them to have the success in the spread (offense) that they did. That Woodell is just great."

The Coyotes got off to a good start, scoring the game's first touchdown when Cox barreled over from the 3 midway through the first quarter, but as the game progressed, Loraine gradually began pulling away.

The Bulldogs pulled to within two points on a 17-yard touchdown run by Arthur Gonzales later in the first, then took the lead for good on Woodell's first score, a 3-yard plunge, early in the second quarter.

The Coyotes apparently retook the lead on their next possession when Cox scored from the 5, but a holding penalty negated the score and a subsequent pass from quarterback Kurt Hess on fourth down was incomplete, giving Loraine the ball.

Borden again had a chance to reclaim the lead on its next possession, but on fourth-and-goal from the one, Michael Seay fumbled before crossing the goal line. Loraine recovered in the end zone, and the Bulldogs had dodged another bullet.

They wasted little time cashing in the gift, marching 60 yards in five plays. Gonzales capped the drive with a 9-yard TD run, giving Loraine a 19-8 lead at halftime.

The loss didn't kill Borden's playoff hopes, but did take away their comfort zone. The Coyotes now have to beat Highland Friday in Gall to make the postseason as the second-place team in the district.

Grady 43, Dawson 6

LENORAH — Did someone say the Grady Wildcats weren't going to the playoffs?

Don't speak too soon. Grady's 43-6 pasting of Dawson Friday, coupled with Wellman's win over Klondike, boosted Grady's unlikely but possible playoff plans in six-man District 5.

"It's all going to come down to Friday night," said Grady coach Roger Smith, who saw his team shut out Dawson after the first quarter. "We have to beat Loop, and Sands has to beat Wellman."

If that happens, then it's up to Klondike. If Klondike loses at Dawson, Grady and Wellman would tie for second. Under that scenario, Grady would get the runner-up playoff spot for beating Wellman in the regular season, Smith said.

If Klondike beats Dawson, then there would be a three-way tie for second place. Smith said a coin flip would be used to eliminate one team, then the tie between the two remaining teams would be broken on a head-to-head basis.

Dawson 6 0 0 0 - 6
Grady 14 14 0 15 - 43

Sands 68, Loop 0

ACKERLY — The Sands Mustangs (8-0-1, 4-0 in six-man District 5) battered the Loop Longhorns 68-0 Friday in a game called at halftime because of the 45-point rule.

Loop fell to 0-9, 0-4. Sands held Loop to just 57 total yards, and the Longhorns did not gain a first down. The Mustangs, meanwhile, gained 269 yards in total offense (237 rushing, 32 passing), intercepted two passes and recovered a fumble.

In addition, the Mustangs recovered two of their own kickoffs early in the game.

Tailback Heath Gillespie, who finished with 100 yards on nine carries, scored on runs of 35, 1 and 24 yards and Neil Allen added a 38-yard touchdown run to give the Mustangs a 32-0 lead after the first quarter.

The win clinched a playoff spot for the Mustangs, but Sands still has to defeat Wellman Friday in Wellman to claim the district title.

Norman inches closer to PGA earnings title

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Greg Norman, needing something spectacular to bail out of trouble after an annoying bogey from a miscommunication between caddies, came ever so close to an eagle-eagle finish Saturday in the $3 million Tour Championship.

Yet only a few inches made the difference, as Norman had to satisfy himself with a pair of birdies on the last two holes to cap his surge within two strokes of leader David Frost at the Olympic Club.

Norman's 68 put him in position to claim the $540,000 winner's share Sunday and capture the year's money title. But he knows he'll have more to contend with than just Frost, whose 69 gave him an 8-under, 205 through three rounds.

"I've played myself back into contention to win the title," said Norman, who carded a 1-over-par 72 in the first round before coming back with a 67 in the second round. "The most important thing is to win the championship. If it's not enough to win the money title, then I'll be happy if I won anyway."

"Anybody on the leaderboard, you've got to be wary of. Anybody within six shots has a chance."

Among those are Scott Simpson, Jim Gallagher, Rick Fehr and John Huston at 208, Tom Kite at 209, three others at 211 and two at 212.

Nick Price, the current money leader and Vardon Trophy favorite, and Paul Azinger, a co-favorite with Price for PGA Player of the Year, are both probably out of the title hunt here at 215.

Norman was falling out, himself, early in the round when he three-putted for bogey during an upsetting incident on No. 3. Norman left his first putt four feet short as the crowd roared during his stroke because of a good shot Scott Simpson had just made over the trees on No. 4.

Simpson's caddy and Norman's caddy had talked to each other before those shots, but each thought the other's player was going to hit second. When they hit at virtually the same time, Norman got mightily upset.

"It was a communication problem," Norman said, still not pleased with the situation after the round. "Until I speak to Scott, I don't want to say anything. Everybody else knew what was going on except me."

Norman will be playing Sunday with Frost, a South African who lives in Dallas and won his last two tournaments on this continent — the Canadian Open and Hardee's Classic. Frost was pretty much ignored Saturday, but that will change.

"The crowd's going to be a little more rowdy tomorrow," Frost said. "They're going to be pulling for Greg more than me, but I've been in that position before. I can handle it."

Three times, in 1989, '90 and '91, Frost won $1 million prizes in tournaments in South Africa.

"I've won a lot of big-money tournaments," Frost said. "Here I'm playing more for the trophy than the money."

So is Norman, who had putting problems on the back nine that he couldn't blame on the crowd.

"I'm either trying to read too much into the lake pull, or not enough," Norman said, referring to the tendency of putts to roll toward Lake Merced. "I'm over-reading or under-reading. It's just killing me down there. I can handle the top on the front nine, but the back nine's eating me alive."

He missed an eagle by inches on 17 when his 12-footer curled just left. But he closed out the round with a nearly perfect pitching wedge that carried 15 feet past the pin and spun back to within just nine inches.

2. Entry forms for the Birthday Sweepstakes Contest will appear in the Herald each day. Additional entry forms will be available at the participating merchants. No purchase is necessary. A person may become a contestant by depositing their entry form with the participating merchants or delivering their entry form to the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry St., P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, TX 79720. All entries being forwarded by mail must bear sufficient postage. The Herald takes no responsibility for any lost or misdirected entries.

3. During the first 50 days of the Herald's 54 day contest, the Herald will publish 2 birthday dates as chosen by random draw from all entries received in the advertisements of 2 participating merchants on the Birthday Sweepstakes page each day. The value of each of the birthdates published will be $10.00. The final week of the contest will be known as Grand Prize Week; Tuesday and Wednesday of this week (December 21, 22) the two birthdates published will have a value of $25.00 each, on Thursday (December 23) the two birthdates published will have a value of $100.00, Friday, December 24, the final day of the contest one birthdate will be published. The value of this number, known as the Grand Prize Birthdate, will be $250.

4. All entries drawn during the contest, up to and including December 24, will be returned to the draw drum the day following the publication of the birthdate number.

5. The holder of the Birthday number published in the Herald's Birthday Sweepstakes Contest from October 24th to December 24th, must call the Big Spring Herald at 263-7331, by no later than 5:30 p.m. on the 7th business day following the publishing of the winning number. Contest Department hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday thru Friday. The contest office is not open on Saturdays, Sundays or Statutory holidays. Upon reporting a winning Birthday, the holder of the number will be advised of the steps to follow to claim the prize. Published Birthday numbers reported to the Herald following the close of the contest department on the 7th business day following publication of the number, will not be accepted and will not be eligible to claim a prize.

6. The holder of the Grand Prize Birthday number as published on December 24, the final day of the contest, must call the contest department of the Herald at 263-7331 no later than 5:30 p.m. December 31st. Business hours are shown in rule number 5. If the Grand Prize, relating to the birthday plate number published in the Herald on December 24th, has not been claimed by the close of the contest on the 7th business day following publication, a 2nd Grand Prize Number will be published on the 8th business day following the publication of the initial Grand Prize number. This process will be repeated, until the Grand Prize has been claimed.

7. If a successful winner receives 6-day home delivery of the Big Spring Herald, by carrier, motor route delivery, or mail, the prize money awarded to that person shall be DOUBLED. The winner must be receiving home delivery the day the winning number appears in the Herald.

Boxer Dallas Malloy makes a quick fist as she weighs in Friday in Lynnwood, Wash., for her scheduled Saturday fight against Heather Poyner. The two women are the first females to compete in a sanctioned amateur boxing match in the United States.

fall to Monahans

The Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team ended its season with a 15-13, 15-6 defeat at the hands of Monahans Friday at Steer Gym.

The loss gave the Lady Steers a final record of 7-19 overall and 2-10 in District 3-4A play. Monahans clinched the district title with a 10-2 league mark.

"It was a real good match," BSHS coach Lois Ann McKenzie said. "Everybody played good ... We had a chance to win it."

McKenzie singled out Kathy Smith, Angie Powell, Molly Smith and Laura Elrod for their efforts during the game.

"Kathy probably hit a ball as hard as anybody I've seen this year," McKenzie said. "Monahans has a good team, but we didn't let them walk over us."

McKenzie said the season was a good learning experience for her team, which had no seniors on the final roster.

"They all got a lot of experience ... and some of them didn't have any varsity experience before this year," she said. "That should really help us next year."

swim lessons

Swimming is usually considered a summer activity, but now is as good a time as any for youngsters to enroll in swim lessons at the Big Spring Family YMCA.

"It is a big misconception to think that it will only take a few days to learn how to swim," said Greg Allen, the Y's aquatics/sports director. "It is also a big misconception to think that just because your child can swim, he or she is safe in the water."

Allen said the YMCA is trying to educate the community on the misconceptions associated with swimming, primarily water safety. Texas is considered to have one of the largest numbers of drowning victims in the United States, Allen said, partly due to its number of people and partly due to the vast amount of standing water.

For information on the Y's year-round swimming programs, call 267-8234.

Youth tennis program starts in Big Spring

All Big Spring youth (ages 5-17) interested in participating in a year-round junior development tennis program are urged to make inquiries and sign up.

The program will use the Figure 7 Tennis Center three days per week.

Contact Big Spring tennis coach Ralph T. Davis at 264-9229 or at 264-3641 (ext. 141). Please leave name, age, telephone number and level of player (beginner, intermediate or advanced).

Howard athletics searches for 'parents'

The Howard College Athletic Department is searching for "Adopt-A-Hawk" parents for the '93-94 season.

The "Adopt-A-Hawk" program affords local residents a opportunity to be a part of HC athletics by providing a home atmosphere away from home for the Hawk and Lady Hawk players.

"Our adopted parents give our athletes someone to take a special interest in them and display our West Texas hospitality," said HC Athletic Director Royce Chadwick. "Many of our youngsters are nervous being away from home for the first time. Adopted parents make them feel more at home by offering an occasional home-cooked meal and a supporter in the stands."

Anyone interested in joining the program should call Pam Shuttlesworth at 264-5106 or Chadwick at 264-5040. Openings are still available.

Deer season starts Saturday

Land owners and hunters are reminded of the regulation changes for Howard County during the upcoming deer season, which opens Nov. 6 and runs through Jan. 2.

Special antlerless deer permits are no longer required for harvesting doe deer in Howard County. The new either-sex deer season requires that antlerless deer may be tagged with the appropriate tag from the hunting license. Buck deer must also be tagged with the appropriate tag from the license.

The bag limit is two does and one buck for Howard County and does not represent a change from last year's limit. Anyone harvesting a deer in Texas must cut or punch out the month and day from the license tag and attach the dated tag to the carcass immediately after harvesting the animal.

Recently completed deer population surveys in Howard County allow the Texas Parks and Wildlife Dept. to issue the following deer harvest recommendations: It is recommended that no antlerless deer be taken north of I-20 due to light population densities. South of I-20, the recommended harvest rate is one antlerless deer per 500 acres.

Ferrell's Chimney & Air Duct Cleaning

Barry Dunnam will give you a free safety inspection from the top of your chimney to the bottom.

As winter is quickly approaching, you may want to ask yourself, "How long has it been since we have had our chimney cleaned or inspected?" Most people neglect their chimney and fireplaces creating a potentially hazardous situation for their homes and families. They do not try to frighten people, but the fact remains that an average of 40,000 homes burn each year because of unsafe chimneys and fireplaces.

Soot, created by burning wood, contains creosote which is a flammable material that builds up in your chimney and can be ignited when you build a fire in your fireplace. This often results in chimney fires which can spread throughout your home. For this reason, Ferrell's recommends that you have your chimney inspected periodically.

Ferrell's Chimney and Air Duct Cleaning provides a free safety inspection from the top to bottom of your wood burning system. They are a full service company whose services range from a simple no mess cleaning or repairs, to a total rebuilding of your chimney and firebox; they also sell chimney caps and spark arrestors for every installation, as well as, all types of fireplace accessories. Call Ferrell's Chimney and Air Duct Cleaning at 267-6504 for your free inspection today!

Earnhardt waving to Wallace in Winston Cup rear-view mirror

Thomson News Service

To Rusty Wallace, Dale Earnhardt is like that piece of gum you find on the sole of your shoe on a hot summer day.

You can't get rid of it.

Wallace has nine wins this Winston Cup season. He's been No. 1 more times than any other driver this season. In fact, he's been No. 1 so many times this season that you would think Wallace should be No. 1 in this duel with Earnhardt.

But he isn't. Earnhardt leads the race by 72 points. Wallace wins, yet he loses. The No. 2 car, despite its brilliant run, may be consigned to a No. 2 finish this season.

"It's frustrating," Wallace said. It should be. After all, Alan Kulwicki managed a measly two wins in 1992 and won the Winston Cup championship. Earnhardt took four checkered flags in 1991, but won the title. In 1989, Wallace won the championship with only six wins.

But Wallace, with nine wins this season, lags behind Earnhardt. It seems Earnhardt, who gave away huge chunks of ground from a lead that was 309 points after 21 races is giving away nothing now. After losing 299 points on his lead in four races, Earnhardt has dropped just 10 in the last three.

The news here is that with his stubbornness Earnhardt can assure himself a sixth Winston Cup championship by finishing no better than sixth at Phoenix and Atlanta, even if Wallace wins both starts.

If Wallace does win the last two races he will tie the modern-day record for most wins in one season set by Bill Elliott in 1985.

Guess what? Elliott didn't win the championship either. He claimed $2.4 million in prize money, but couldn't claim the ultimate prize.

How did this happen? Earnhardt had something to do with it. The 3 car nearly always finishes what it starts. Earnhardt also has 19 Top 10 finishes, second only to Wallace's 20.

But the key stat here is that Wallace failed to finish four races in mid-season. He was in first place before an accident at Talladega where he suffered a broken wrist. Not surprisingly, he finished 38th, 29th, 21st, and 39th in his next four starts.

Wallace went from first place to fifth place.

"I had those four darn DNF's in the middle of the year and they keep plaguing me," Wallace said. "Even at all those races, the car was flying. There's nothing I can do about it now."

What Wallace can do now is win and hope Earnhardt springs another leak. It could happen just as suddenly as Earnhardt's cushion was pulled out from under him in September when Wallace climbed back into contention.

Wallace will be ready for an Earnhardt slip.

"I'm not going to give up," he said. "I'm going to slug it out until the very end."

Ros Big Oly BSHS g medal in Big Spring has had stars throughout its history. Just one Olympian, if you've lived in more than a decade, you probably know the name Magers, a 1978 graduate of Big Spring High School, put together an athletic career that comes only every so often to any town, not just Big Spring.

Magers, a 6-foot States Olympic Volleyball player, along with the teammates, helped silver medal at the Angeles.

The silver medal after Magers walked Big Spring High as soon after her arrival as she was a senior player, and she led the third-place finish in the final four in 1977.

Rose Magers: Big Spring's Olympic hero

BSHS graduate earned silver medal in v-ball at 1984 games

Big Spring has had plenty of sports stars throughout the years, but it's had just one Olympic medalist.

If you've lived in Big Spring for more than a decade, then you probably know the name Rose Magers.

Magers, a 1978 graduate of Big Spring High School, put together an athletic career that comes only every so often to any town, not just Big Spring.

MAGERS

Magers, a 6-foot-3 hitter, was an integral part of the 1984 United States Olympic Volleyball Team. Her play, along with the play of her elite teammates, helped the U.S. take the silver medal at the '84 games in Los Angeles.

The silver medal came 10 years after Magers walked into the halls of Big Spring High as a freshman. Not soon after her arrival, her athletic prowess was loud and clear. By her senior season, she was an All-State player, and she led Big Spring to a third-place finish in the state tournament. The Lady Steers reached the Final Four in 1977, but they lost in the semifinals.

Magers made the University of Houston her college choice, and the lift she gave the Lady Steers carried over to her new team. As a freshman, she was invited to the National Sports Festival. As a sophomore and junior, Magers earned All-Southwest Conference and All-Region honors. In Magers' junior season, Houston finished third in the NCAA Tournament.

Magers transferred to Louisiana State University to play her senior season. Houston coach Ruth Nelson took the LSU coaching job that year, and Magers opted to follow her coach.

Nothing changed. Magers was named to the All-Southeastern Conference team.

Upon graduating from LSU, Magers joined the U.S. national team for training.

Magers' Olympic career did not stop on the medals stand in Los Angeles, like it did for many of her teammates. Magers continued training with Team USA in the hopes of going for the gold in 1988, but when the U.S. Olympic Committee would not let her know whether she would be on the '88 team, she chose to turn professional.

Once again, when Magers decided to do something, she did it right.

She and Olympic teammate Sue Woodstra left Team USA to play in Japan's professional league. Though the league was 21 years old at the time, Magers became the first non-Japanese player to win the Most Valuable Player award. She was the top blocker in the league, and she finished third in spiking percentage and points served.

Magers excelled off the court as well, and she never forgot her hometown.

The City of Big Spring named August 20, 1984 "Rose Magers Day." Magers enjoyed the festivities in person, and she has returned to Big Spring numerous times since. In August 1985, Magers held a garage sale in Big Spring to unload some of her Olympic memorabilia.

Magers now teaches and coaches in the Huntsville, Ala. area.

Hart recalls more than half-century of county legends

Welcome to our Howard County sports legends special section.

Sports Editor Dave Hargrave (you know, Mr. Transplanted Hoosier) and I put in quite a few hours sorting through old photographs and stories to give you folks a more-or-less representative cross-section of some of the greatest athletes to have played in Howard County.

Of course, none of this would have been possible without the many clippings and photos sent in by readers throughout the area.

Anyway, before I get to rambling, let me tell you the purpose of this column. Since Dave is new to this area, and probably wouldn't know a living, breathing Howard County sports legend if he shook his hand (you should hear some of the things he says about me), he asked me to write a few lines on the subject.

Well, Mama Reagan didn't raise a fool. Faced with such a daunting prospect, I phoned one of the greatest legends around, former Herald Sports Editor Tommy Hart.

Hart spent many, many years manning the sports desk at the Herald before getting kicked upstairs to the managing editor position in 1970. If anyone would have a few memories to share, Tommy would be the man, I figured.

I figured right. Tommy acted not at all like you would expect someone to act when a reporter calls him at 9 p.m. on a weeknight. In fact, he warmed to the subject almost immediately.

"I dealt with over 3,000 Big Spring ballplayers during my time on the sports desk," Hart said. "And that's an awful lot of ballplayers to remember when they come up to you years later and shake your hand."

Sifting through more than 60

years of memories was difficult at first, but once he got going, he became a walking, talking version of Big Spring Sports Trivial Pursuit.

For example, he told me how the Steers got their nickname. That's right, there wasn't always a Steer at Dear Ol' Big Spring High. In fact, up until 1924, the Steers were known as the Blue Jays (which ought to warm the hearts of Toronto baseball fans everywhere).

Anyway, Joe Ward, a BSHS and University of Texas graduate, approached the school board around 1924 and asked them to change the school's mascot to one more closely resembling the Longhorns of UT.

That's how the Steers came into existence.

Back in the '20s, Big Spring played its football games on a combination baseball-football field at the intersection of Second and Lancaster streets. "It was all dust and no grass," Hart said.

One of the earliest Big Spring players Hart recalled was Billy Flowers, who played for the Steers in 1929. Flowers' main claim to fame was scoring on a 97-yard touchdown run against state power Breckenridge that year.

"Breckenridge was the perennial tough guys in the state," Hart said. "Of course, they were as illegal as anybody. They brought in players

Big Spring's contribution to NFL rolls a noteworthy one

Fourteen BSHS graduates have gone on to play professionally

Big Spring High School quarterback Charles Johnson, shown in this photo from the 1956 BSHS yearbook, went on to play quarterback for three National Football League teams: the St. Louis Cardinals, Houston Oilers and Denver Broncos.

Anyone in town who thinks Big Spring doesn't have any heroes in the athletic arena ought to stop by Big Spring High School someday.

Near the center of the school is the display case for the school's Hall of Fame. A Big Spring history aficionado could probably stand in front of the glass windows for hours. The pictures, mementos and other items in the display honors sports heroes, congressmen, University Scholastic League contest winners, Congressional Medal of Honor winners - just about everything one could imagine.

But for football fans, one item jumps out immediately, even though it's tucked down in the lower left corner of the case. Bend down, squat, eye it from above - however - just looking in that corner says all that's necessary.

Big Spring has contributed more than its share to professional football.

In that corner is a picture of each of the Big Spring exes who played professional football. For a town Big Spring's size, the number is astonishing.

14. That's right, fourteen Big Spring graduates have gone on to play professional football, and one of them - John Thomas "J.T." Smith - won a Rookie of the Year award with the Kansas City Chiefs.

In fact, a man from Big Spring has played professional football every decade since the 1930s.

So far, Big Spring hasn't had a professional player in the '90s.

But there's still plenty of time. KENNETH COFFEY, a 1978 graduate, is Big Spring's most recent professional player, and he played in the most Super Bowls among the Big Spring contingent - two. He earned those rings playing for the Washington Redskins from 1982 through 1988.

Coffey played his college ball at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos, and during his career STSU won two NAIA championships. He retired in '88 due to an injury. He went on to be an accountant on the East Coast, and he is a member of the Christian Athletes Speakers Bureau in Washington, D.C.

Big Spring assistant principal Craig Fischer, who has been at BSHS for two decades, said: "He was a great player, but he was so little. You'd never have expected him to play pro ball."

J.T. SMITH, a 1974 graduate, was one of the National Football League's premiere tight ends in his prime.

After his college career at North Texas State University in Denton, Smith joined the Kansas City Chiefs in 1979 and promptly won the Rookie of the Year award.

After the 1985 season, Smith was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals.

THURMAN RANDLE, Class of '64, was a tackle who never played in a professional game, but he was a Philadelphia Eagles for a brief time in the '70s before being cut from the squad.

CHARLEY WEST graduated in 1964 and played on the same Steer teams as Randle. However, he lasted a bit longer in the professional ranks. Actually, he lasted a lot longer.

West, a defensive back, attended the University of Texas-El Paso and then joined the Minnesota Vikings in 1968. After the 1972 season, he moved on to the Detroit Lions and played there for seven seasons.

He finally ended his career in 1981 after a two-year stint with the Denver Broncos.

West now coaches the football team at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

DANNY BIRDWELL, who graduated in 1958, was the first Big Spring player to suit up for the Super Bowl.

Birdwell, a star on defense, played for the Oakland Raiders from 1962 to 1969 after his days at the University of Houston. He played in Super Bowl II at the Orange Bowl in Miami, Fla., but his Raiders fell to the Green Bay Packers.

Birdwell died in 1977. JIMMY EVANS, Class of '56, was known in Big Spring for his basketball skills - not football. That quickly

Upon graduating, Evans attended Howard College and became a junior college All-American in basketball. After his two years at Howard, he left his home for Texas Western, better known today as UTEP.

At UTEP, some guy named Bum Phillips (you might remember him - you know, the countrified oowboy-hat-wearing coach of the Houston Oilers in the 1970s) persuaded him to play football for the Miners, and before long Evans was second in the nation in receptions.

His talent at catching a football carried on to the pros. He signed with the Dallas Cowboys in 1964 but never played for them. Before the season him. Later that year, the New York Jets acquired him, and he played in the Big Apple for three seasons.

CHARLES JOHNSON is the quarterback of the Big Spring bunch.

Johnson, Class of '56, wasted no time becoming a star after his graduation. At New Mexico State University, Johnson twice earned the Outstanding Player of the Sun Bowl award.

He joined the St. Louis Cardinals in 1961 and quarterbacked there for nine seasons. He also played for the Houston Oilers (1970-71) and the Denver Broncos (1973-75). You'll find his name in the Ring of Honor at Mile High Stadium, home of the Broncos.

BILLY "CHOP" VAN PELT, like Thurman Randle, never played in a regular-season professional game.

Van Pelt, Class of '49, was a guard who tried out for the Los Angeles Rams.

He did not make the Rams, but he went on to coach with Gene Mayfield at Odessa Permian.

Van Pelt attended Howard College and Austin College.

R.E. "PEPPY" BLOUNT, Class of '43, has had quite a noteworthy life on and off the football field.

George Halas of the Chicago Bears drafted Blount, but Blount, who was an end at the University of Texas and played with legendary quarterback Bobby Layne and legendary coach Tom Landry, played in just three games.

That was the extent of his professional career in football, but he's been heard from plenty since.

He's written several books, including "The Football Game" and "The Brothers." He also wrote a book about his playing days called "Mama, Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up To

Big Time Bowlers

Ringener rings it up on PBA tour

RINGENER

Ringener, who turned 35 on Oct. 14, is certainly Big Spring and Howard County's most famous bowler, and with good reason. Ringener has been bowling on the Professional Bowlers Association circuit since 1979.

From 1979 to 1983, Ringener never bowled in more than 16 PBA tournaments in a year, but he doubled that in 1984 when he bowled in 33 PBA events and earned $25,768.

A lot of us have to work to make that kind of money.

However, being a PBA bowler is not pure paradise. The tour keeps Ringener on the road a good 35 weeks a year, which tends to keep him away from his wife and two children.

"When I was 20, it was all about seeing the country, the excitement," said Ringener in a 1990 interview. "Now it's a job."

1984 was a high-water mark for Ringener in terms of tournaments bowled, but not for earnings. His most successful year, as far as money goes, was 1989, when he earned $50,832. He bowled in 30 tournaments.

Here's a list of Ringener's earnings since he started on the PBA tour. The number of tournaments he bowled each year is in parentheses:

- 1979 - $3,660 (11)
- 1980 - $568 (8)
- 1981 - $2,615 (16)

- 1982 - $8,838 (12)
- 1983 - $18,230 (11)
- 1984 - $25,768 (33)
- 1985 - $20,320 (29)
- 1986 - $20,775 (23)
- 1987 - $32,905 (22)
- 1988 - $47,710 (30)
- 1989 - $50,832 (30)
- 1990 - $29,230 (30)
- 1991 - $30,235 (30)
- 1992 - $37,045 (27)

Through 14 tournaments this season, Ringener earned $23,355. He picked up $15,000 for finishing third in the 1993 Bud Light PBA National Championship, which is recognized as the second leg of the bowling's Triple Crown.

During his career in the PBA, Ringener has bowled eight perfect games.

Davis in elite class among female bowlers bowlers for years, but just recently she became Big Spring's second person to tour with the Professional Bowlers Association.

Davis has bowled in numerous professional tournaments throughout her career, but she just joined the PBA this summer. Earlier this month, she went on her first PBA Tour.

It's to be expected. Davis has accomplished just about everything else - why not join the PBA?

Her crowning achievement came in 1979 when she was chosen as the Texas Woman Bowler of the Year.

"That was out of like 125,000 women who bowl in Texas," Davis said in a 1990 interview. "It's an honor you dream about as a bowler."

Any Big Spring bowler knows of Davis. In fact, the women bowlers in Big Spring may have grown tired of her through the years - in 1990, after a four-year absence from the Big Spring Women's Annual City Bowling Championship, Davis won the title for an unprecedented 13th time. In that tournament, Davis averaged 202 for her nine games.

Davis, who started bowling in 1960, won the open singles state title in 1987 and 1988. She won the state amateur championship for Team USA in 1978.

In 1980, Davis teamed with Coahoma's Annie Ward to win the state doubles title. In that state tournament, she rolled a 1,941 for all nine events (doubles, singles and team) to win the All-Events open division and become the first bowler in the history of the tournament to score more than a 1,900.

That same year, Davis carried a seasonal average of 204, making her one of the top 50 female bowlers in the country.

Bowling may not look like a physically demanding sport, but talented bowlers who play regularly will tell you impressions are deceiving. Davis, as she trained for the Team USA trials in 1988, ran four miles a day, rode a stationary bike for 10 miles, lifted weights and bowled for four hours for her typical daily workout.

Guess you could say the work has paid off.

Big Spring's Joycece Davis has been one of the country's best female

Burcham combined football, lifting skills

Jay Burcham made a name for himself at Big Spring High School with his sheer strength, but there's a lot more to him than that.

Burcham, a 1987 graduate of Big Spring and a defensive tackle for the 1986 District 2-4A Champion Steer football team, set a school bench press record before his graduation.

He set the record as a sophomore, when he lifted 405 pounds, and by the time he graduated he was lifting 465 pounds.

BURCHAM

He had the size of a linebacker (6-foot-2, 220 pounds), but his size and speed made for a winning combination on the line of scrimmage. He started lifting weights with his father, Phillip, at age 12 (his father can bench well more than 400 pounds as well), and it paid off. Burcham weighed just 160 pounds as a sophomore but was 235 by the time he graduated.

Burcham, an All-State selection his senior year even though he was playing defense for the first time as a Steer, was courted by numerous colleges, and he chose Abilene Christian University. After his signing, Bur-cham suited up for the North in the Texas High School Coaches All-Star Game in July 1987, and he made four of the victorious North team's first seven tackles of the contest before heading to the bench because of a twisted knee.

Burcham dealt with injuries much of his career but always bounced back. In Big Spring's 1985 game against Estacado, Burcham suffered a crack in his sternum. In 1986, he missed the season's first two games with a broken hand. To top that, Burcham has had to endure seven knee surgeries in a career that saw his stardom continue at ACU.

That stardom came on and off the field. During his career at ACU, Burcham accomplished the following:

- set ACU bench press record
- named football team's representative to the University President
- named Lone Star Conference Defensive Player of the Week
- named ACU Defensive Player of the Week
- led defensive line in tackles
- named assistant coach to the defensive line in his senior year
- graduated on the Dean's List with a bachelor's of science degree
- graduated with honors with an master's degree

Burcham went on to earn a Ph.D. at Saybrook Institute of Stamford University.

Buske shattered 36-year-old Big Spring High discus record

Carlisle "Frosty" Robison set the Big Spring High School discus record in 1954 when he let loose with a 169-foot toss. The record aged and aged - no one seemed to be able to break it.

That is, until Pete Buske came along.

Buske, a 1990 graduate of Big Spring, flirted with the record for much of his high school career, and in his senior year he broke the mark with a throw of 169-1/4.

The record still stands.

First, though, he tied the mark. At the District 4-4A track championship meet on April 12, 1990, Buske finished second in the shot put (49-8) and won the discus with a school-record-tying 169. The Steers won the boys' district title that day.

The next week, Buske won the discus with a throw of 164-9 in the regional qualifying meet in Odessa.

Still, Buske's athletic prowess wasn't limited to track and field. Buske played tackle for Big Spring in 1989, the year the Steer football team reached the state semifinals, and he was named Second Team All-State. Under the flexible rules for All-State selection, Buske was named to the team as a guard.

Buske went on to play football at Angelo State University upon graduation, but after one season he decided to concentrate on his studies. He's now a biology major at Texas Tech.

"He was an extremely hard worker who developed into a tremendous discus thrower," said Big Spring track coach Randy Britton. "He was extremely dedicated."

Pete Buske, shown in this 1990 file photo, broke a Big Spring High School discus record that had stood for 36 years. Aside from his track and field exploits, he also earned all-district honors on the BSHS football team.

County has its share of sports milestones

"Good night!" R.E. "Peppy" Blount of Big Spring uses that phrase more often than not when he's getting ready to tell a story. Blount, one of 14 Big Springers to reach the ranks of professional football, was just one of the numerous sports figures of Howard County that I discovered during the Herald sports staff's (all two of us) work on this section.

Dave Hargrave

Good night! - What a job. I've lived here for three months or so, and I had no idea Howard County had so many notable sports heroes. It seemed that in my research on one sports star, I'd find the names of three other stars I didn't know about.

Finding this information was a major thrill. It's hard to find a reason to boast or be proud of an area when you've only lived in it for three months, but I've managed to do it.

My last home, New Albany, Ind., had its share of hometown heroes. Two, to be exact.

Fuzzy Zoeller, the professional golfer, and Hall of Fame second baseman Billy Herman, who died last year, are from New Albany. We had a parade in New Albany for Zoeller after he won the Masters, but unfortunately, no one came to watch.

Everyone in the town was marching in the parade.

I walked behind the horses.

Still, as far as I know, those were the only sports heroes in New Albany. No professional football players (like, well, there's no room in this column for all of those names) and no professional bowlers (like Philip Ringener or Joycece Davis). The sheer quantity of sports stars from Howard County blows me away. It also blew this section away.

In case you haven't noticed, four pages is simply not enough room to cover all Howard County sports stars from the past. Doubling the size of the section wouldn't help much.

If your favorite local sports star isn't in this section, I apologize. A lot of names that were submitted to us by our readers aren't in here simply because we don't have the room. Other sports stars are missing because they weren't brought to our attention, and they may have been overlooked by a new-to-the-area sports editor.

Of particular interest was information we received on the 1936-37 Forsan boys' basketball team, which played an incredible amount of games - 40 - and finished 34-6. Time constraints, however, made it impossible to do the research the team deserves.

We'll do our best to feature more Howard County sports stars from the past during the coming months. If you have any stories ideas in that area, fell free to call us at 263-7331.

from all over the area." Such cheating was wide-spread in those days, and in 1931, Big Spring coach Obie Bristow decided that if he couldn't beat them, he'd join them, bringing in three Oklahoma boys, Mike Roberts, Elmer Dyer and Itasca "Tack" Dennis, to play for the Steers.

That team was a dominating one, outscoring its opponents 393-7 that season. Yet, despite that disparity, Big Spring didn't make the playoffs that season.

The quarterback on that team, by the way, was Howard Schwarzzenbach, who became a veterinarian in the area.

Bristow, as the above tale might illustrate, was a bit of a colorful character himself. A second-team All-American at Oklahoma, he played against the immortal Jim Thorpe and Ernie Nevers during his college career.

"Nevers was voted the best football player of the first half-century," Hart said. "But Obie said he couldn't hold a candle to Thorpe. He said Thorpe was the greatest athlete he ever saw."

But perhaps the most bizarre story relating to Bristow was when he had to go down to Mexico one year to ransom his father, who had been kidnapped.

Another football great that played for Big Spring was Olie Cordell, Class of 1936. After graduation, Cordell went to Rice, where he earned All-Southwest Conference honors. He then played professionally at Miami in the old All-America Conference before finishing his career with a brief stint in the National Football League.

The greatest Big Spring football team? In Hart's book, it was the 1953 group that became the only local team to advance to the state finals, where they lost to Port Neches in a rain-soaked contest.

"The Port Neches coach knew that the only way his kids would win was if the weather was unfavorable," Hart said. "(Joe) Pickle and I flew down there the day of the game, and I'd never seen so much rain in my life."

The best Big Spring basketball team in Hart's opinion was the 1955 squad led by Jan Laudermilk and Jimmy Evans. Laudermilk, now a doctor in Dallas, still holds the record for most points in a game by an individual with 75.

Blazing a trail in cross country

BSHS' Mimi Regalado made three trips to state meet for Lady Steers

For a high school athlete, reaching the state finals in any sport symbolizes the pinnacle of success. One former Big Spring cross country runner knows all about that.

Mimi Regalado, a 1991 graduate of Big Spring High School, reached that pinnacle three times - as a freshman in 1987, a junior in 1989 and a senior in 1990. Not bad for someone that started running simply because her older sister, Yvette, insulted her volleyball skills.

"I wanted to be in some sport; I ran the relays in junior high and I played volleyball, but I guess I wasn't too good," Regalado was quoted as saying in a 1990 story in the Herald. "My sister told me I wasn't any good in volleyball, so I decided to try cross country; she was in it. I never had run distance before."

Regalado took up cross country with a vengeance. She became just the second Big Spring girls to run on the cross country team for four years - Raquel Alivar (BSHS '90) was the first. It not surprising that Regalado is approaching her current endeavor - she's an Airman First Class in the United States Air Force - with the same dedication. She's been nominated for Airman of the Month twice, said her mother, Patsy Riddle.

Regalado improved her time each year at the state finals, but strangely, her place fell each time as the competition apparently strengthened.

As a freshman, Regalado finished the two-mile course in Georgetown

"I wanted to be in some sport; I ran the relays in junior high and I played volleyball, but I guess I wasn't too good. My sister told me I wasn't any good in volleyball, so I decided to try cross country; she was in it. I never had run distance before."
Mimi Regalado

with a time of 13 minutes, 27 seconds - good for 27th place. Her junior year, she cut her time to 13:10, but her place fell to 30th in the state.

On her final trip, she shaved another 10 second off her time and finished in 13 minutes flat, but this time she was 45th. That 1990 trip was the same one in which Coahoma's Sarah Parks finished third in the girls' Class AA meet earlier in the morning.

Regalado held the school record of 12:38 until Sept. 18 of this year, when Big Spring senior Evy Perez shattered the mark with a 12:15 in San Angelo. Regalado has Perez beat in state finals appearance, however. Perez appeared in her first state finals last season as a junior.

Regalado did it all at Big Spring. In addition to her stellar running career, she was named the Big Spring High School Band Sweetheart her senior year.

She probably wasn't all that bad of a volleyball player, either.

Rogers makes name along shooting circuit

Trapshooter owns state, national titles

It would not be inappropriate to call Kelly Rogers a shooting star. In fact, it practically defines the man.

Rogers, a 1983 graduate of Big Spring High School, began shooting trap when the Howard County Shooting Sports 4-H Club was organized in 1980. Rogers, 15 at the time, went on to become one of the premiere shooters in the state.

In 4-H competition, Rogers was a member of All-District and All-State trap and skeet teams for three years. At the 1991 and '92 Texas State 4-H tournaments in San Antonio, he was high overall champion for the three-day event.

This year was even better for Rogers. He was the high overall senior individual in the International Clay Pigeon and Skeet competition and was named the Howard County 4-H Gold Star Award winner for his "accomplishments in the shooting sports while representing his home town, county, state and nation."

In international clay pigeon competition, Rogers won the Junior Championship title in 1982 and again in 1983 at the U.S. International Shotgun Championships in Fort Benning, Ga.

He became a junior member of the U.S. Development Team from 1982-85.

His success wasn't limited to the United States, however. In April

Submitted photo Kelly Rogers has won several state, national and international trapshooting titles since he began competing in the early 1980s. His also is a member of the Big Spring High School Hall of Fame.

1983 in Mexico City, he won a silver medal in the junior division at the 12th Annual Benito Juarez Shoot and participated in the World Moving Target Championships later that year in Edmonton, Alberta, where he again won a silver medal in the junior division.

Also that year, he posted his first perfect score in international-style competition when he hit all 100 of his targets at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Rogers kept up his globe-trotting in 1984, traveling with the United States team to Mexico City for the 13th Annual Benito Juarez shoot. This time, he captured the gold medal in the junior division.

He kept up his busy schedule in 1985. Among his achievements were:

- third place in the junior division of the Grand Prix of Nations Shooting Competition in Montecatini, Italy.
- junior division gold medal at the Pacific Coast Invitational.
- overall bronze medal at the National Sports Festival in Baton Rouge, La.

- fourth place in junior division and silver medalist in team competition at the World Moving Target Championship, also held in Montecatini.

In American-style trapshooting, Rogers was on the Amateur Trapshooting Association Junior All-American first team from 1982-84. In 1983, he was selected by the ATA Youth Committee to receive the Hall of Fame Youth Scholarship Award, which he used to enter Texas Tech University to pursue a master's degree in business administration.

A highlight of 1988 came when Rogers won the Texas State Doubles Championship at the state meet in Amarillo. He won berths on the Texas state men's first team in 1988 and 1989 and was captain of the team in 1990.

Later that year, he broke 97.68 percent of 7,600 clay targets to win his first Trap and Field All-Around Average award, the top award for amateur trapshooting. He was the second-youngest ever to achieve the 97 percent mark and the fourth-youngest to earn the top all-around average award.

Also in 1990, Rogers was inducted into the Big Spring High School Hall of Fame.

During his vacation this year, Rogers participated in the Texas State Trapshoot at Midland. Among his winnings were: preliminary handicap champion; Lone Star singles champ; Lone Star doubles runner-up; State Doubles Open AA champ; parent and child champion (with his father); Open all-around champion; and Open high overall champion.

'Dogettes have winning tradition

Coahoma girls claimed district 10 years straight

When it comes to winning traditions, few teams equal the Coahoma Bulldogettes for consistent excellence.

The Bulldogettes, Coahoma High School's girls basketball team, began making trips to the state playoffs during the early 1960s, and have made several repeat trips since.

Under coach Grady Tindol, the 1961 Bulldogettes, who featured Ginger Richters, Barbara Ritter, Glenda Haney and Johnnie Lou Nichols, powered their way to a 25-7 overall record and a bi-district showdown with Sundown.

This was to begin a pattern that repeated itself for three years. Three consecutive times, Coahoma advanced to the playoffs, and three times Sundown beat them in bi-district play.

During that time, Sandie Clanton put her name in the record books by scoring 48 points in the Bulldogettes' 53-48 victory over Jim Ned in 1964.

After a three-year absence, the Bulldogettes again returned to the state playoffs in 1967 when Donna Duke, Terry Edens, Karen Gross and Gina Williams led the team to a district title, a feat the team repeated the next year.

In 1969 and 1970, the 'Dogettes did themselves one better, earning a spot in the regional tournament both times. Each year, however, Slaton sent the Coahoma girls packing.

Coach Leatrice West took over the program the next year, and the Bulldogettes didn't miss a beat, earning a trip to the regional tournament in 1971 and 1972 and another district title in 1973.

Coahoma's girls switched coaches in the 1974, but not results. Sonny Barnes took the helm of the program and once again led the Bulldogettes to the regional tournament, where they lost by one point to eventual state champion Slaton.

Consecutive trips to the playoffs in 1976 and '77 drove the Bulldogettes' streak of postseason appearances to 10 before the program hit a dry streak, not making another trip to the playoffs until 1982, in which they lost to another eventual state champion - this time Comanche.

That marked the last time Coahoma's girls won a district title, although they have made several playoff appearances as district runners-up since then.

Hill Billies were mid-50s six-man power

Sportswriter named team

They were named by a sportswriter, played their games on a field that was just as much dirt as grass and are no longer in existence. But for a few years in the mid-1950s, the Knott Hill Billies were one of the hottest six-man teams around.

When Knott High School, which closed in 1960, decided to field a football team, school officials were at a loss to name for the school mascot. Enter Tommy Hart, who was then sports editor for the Herald, who provided the name Hill Billies.

The Hill Billies played six-man football for several years until the school district merged with Ackerly to form the Sands Consolidated Independent School District in 1960.

Perhaps the high point of Knott's football program came in 1955, when the Billies went 8-3 and advanced to the regional final, where they lost to Garden City.

The Billies' first big victory that year was a 33-7 homecoming romp over the Dawson Dragons. After a scoreless first half, quarterback Woody Long directed a 55-yard scoring drive that put Knott on top to stay.

That TD keyed a 21-point third quarter that gave the Hill Billies firm control of the game.

But bigger wins were coming for Coach Bill Bolen's Billies.

To reach the playoffs, Knott had to get past District 6-B favorite Gail, and did just that with a 48-28 upset at Knott in November.

Roosevelt Shaw passed 11 yards to John Shanks in the first quarter to give the Billies the lead. Shaw had set up the score with an interception a few minutes before.

After Gail tied the game, Knott took the lead for good in the second quarter. A pass from Long to Delano Shaw gave the Billies a 13-6 lead, then after a fumble recovery, Long and Shaw again connected on a 19-yard TD pass. Knott increased its lead to 33-14 at the half and never looked back.

After claiming the district title, Knott advanced to the playoffs, where they faced District 5-B champion Clint, which was undefeated, in the bi-district round.

Knott took the lead for good in the second quarter, but was unable to shake the Lions. It was not until a Clint pass into the end zone on the last play of the game fell incomplete that the Billies were able to claim a 25-22 win.

Trialing 8-7 in the second quarter, Knott went ahead to stay on a 15-yard pass from Long to Roosevelt Shaw, and the teams traded touchdowns from there.

Steers made run at state title during '89 football season

The 1953 Big Spring football team remains the only local squad to make the state finals, but the '89 Steers came oh-so-close to duplicating that feat.

The Steers, coached by David Thompson, were a talented team led by quarterback Rance Thompson and wingback Neal Mayfield on offense and Pat Wilbert and Freddy Rodriguez on defense.

Big Spring started the season slowly, edging Hobbs, N.M. 21-7 and dropping a 20-14 decision to Lubbock Estacado. Things got even worse the next week when Plainview downed the Steers 35-14.

Going into the district schedule, the 1-2 Steers hardly resembled a playoff team in the making, but coach Thompson moved Mayfield to wingback to best utilize his running and receiving skills, and the junior responded with 199 yards in combined offense as the Steers opened District 4-4A play with a 28-16 win over Monahans.

Big Spring's defense played a big role in the Steers' next win, a 36-15 victory over Sweetwater. Then the Steers improved their record to 4-2 with a 50-14 blowout of Lake View. The Steers gained 568 yards in total offense.

Defensive standouts Jermaine Miller, Wilbert, Frank Garza, Joe Downey and Charles LeGrand were the heroes of the Steers' next victory, a 28-0 whitewash of Pecos.

Big Spring clinched its second playoff trip in four years the next week by downing Andrews in a 35-

33 nail-biter at Memorial Stadium. The Steers led 28-13 at the half, but had to rely on a 38-yard touchdown run by tailback Otis Riffey and two second-half interceptions by Rodriguez to preserve the win.

The District 4-4A title was Big Spring's following week as Rance Thompson completed 10 of 18 passes for 158 yards in leading the Steers to a 28-16 win over the Snyder Tigers.

The Steers opened the playoffs against Hereford, the same team that defeated them in the area playoffs three years earlier. But a 37-yard field goal by Gerald Cobos proved to be the difference in a 22-19 Big Spring victory, the Steers first in the playoffs since 1953.

Their next game, in the regional finals against Fort Worth Brewer, proved to be a case of utter domination by the Steers. Mayfield gained 122 yards on 14 carries and the Steers accounted for 341 yards on the ground as they blasted Brewer by a 39-6 score.

In the quarterfinals, Big Spring faced a rematch with Monahans. At Midland's Memorial Stadium, Thompson connected with Mayfield on a 27-yard TD pass late in the fourth quarter, and Rodriguez intercepted a last-minute Monahans pass to give Big Spring a 20-19 win and a berth in the state semifinals.

That's where the Steers' year ground to a halt. The Tyler Chapel Hill Bulldogs, who went on to win the state 4A title, beat the Steers 59-6 in Bedford. The Steers ended the season with an 11-3 record.

Real Hill Billies
Bruce Parker, left, and Woody Long were members of the Knott Hill Billies six-man football team in the mid-1950s. Knott fielded a football team until the school merged with Ackerly in 1960.

While still playing football at UT, Blount was elected state representative from the old 91st District, which included Tom Green, Irion, Glasscock, Sterling and Howard counties. He was just 21 at the time.

Today, Blount is a lawyer in Longview, Texas. This coming weekend, Blount will be the master of ceremonies at his 50th class reunion in Big Spring.

CLIFF PATTON, Class of '41, wasn't a congressman like Blount - just a football player.

And a good one. Patton played professionally for six seasons, the first five coming with the Philadelphia Eagles. He finished his career in 1951 with the Chicago Cardinals. At one time, Patton held the record for most extra-point kicks made consecutively.

He played college ball at Texas Christian University. After his playing days, Patton coached at Big Spring, Eagle Pass, Vidor, La Pryor and Crystal City.

HARRY BURRUS, a 1937 graduate, played professionally in the All-American Conference. He was an end for New York, Chicago and Brooklyn from 1946 to 1950.

He later became the athletic director at Washington University in St. Louis.

OLIE CORDILL, Class of '36, was an All-Star in his rookie season with the Cleveland Rams in 1940, and he went on to play professionally for five more seasons.

Cordill, who is deceased, was an All-Southwest Conference running back with Rice University.

BOB FLOWERS, Class of '35, played defense for the Green Bay Packers for eight seasons - 1942 through 1949.

He was a Red Raider, playing at Texas Tech after his days with the Steers.

MELVIN "SWEDE" PITMAN was the first of the long line of Big Spring professional football players.

Pitman, Class of '24, played profes-

Festival Fun

Though in many schools the Fall festival has replaced the Halloween carnival, the costumes, games and enthusiasm has remained the same. Cakewalks still remain one of the more popular games, and for 1993, Barney has replaced last year's Batman costumes.

Best of all, parents can not only feel secure in the whereabouts of their children, but can participate with them at the festivals.

Weddings

Lintner-Vaughn

Tracy Lintner, Green Bay, Wis., formerly of Big Spring, and Steven Vaughn, Oconto Falls, Wis. were married on Sept. 25, 1993, at Pilgrim Lutheran Church in Green Bay. The Rev. Spangler, pastor, performed the ceremony.

MRS. ROBERT WILBANKS II

Christian Church reception hall.

The bride's cake was three tiered, white on a pedestal surrounded by five heart shaped cakes.

The groom's cake was a heart-shaped lemon cake with white icing. Both tables were covered with peach satin overlaid with white lace.

The bride was a student at Maranatha Christian School and plans to attend Howard College.

The groom attended Big Spring High. He is co-owner of a video store.

Sledge

Bobby J. and Elizabeth Jo Sledge will celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary by renewing their vows at 2 p.m., Nov. 6, 1993, at the Chapel of First Baptist Church. Dr. Kenneth Patrick will preside.

They met while attending Howard Junior College. They were married Nov. 6, 1953, at the home of her parents.

They have lived in Big Spring and Sweetwater during their marriage.

They have three daughters: Karen Nachlinger, Snyder; Lisa Sledge, Stephenville; and the late Becky Wall; and five grandchildren.

BOBBY AND ELIZABETH SLEDGE

During leisure time, they like fishing, painting and spending time with their grandchildren.

Staggs

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Staggs, Big Spring, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Oct. 15-18 with a family weekend at the Inn of the Hills River Resort in Kerrville, hosted by their children and grandchildren.

All children and grandchildren attended, along with family members from Albany, Georgia, San Antonio, San Angelo, Lubbock, Denton, Gainesville, Austin, Lago Vista, Houston and Dallas.

Martin was born in Shamrock. His wife was born Lillian Mitchell in Lamesa. Martin came to Lamesa in 1937 to work and he was introduced to Lillian by a friend. He joined the Air Force in January 1941.

They married Oct. 18, 1943. Dr. Elmer D. Landreth performed the ceremony at First Methodist Church Parsonage, Lamesa. Mrs. Landreth and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Staggs attended the wedding.

They have three children and their spouses: Mr. and Mrs. Tindall Staggs, Albany, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Richard Staggs, San Antonio; and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Abbott, San Angelo. A son, Bruce, died in Florida in 1945.

They also have six grandchildren, Jason and Shelly Staggs, Ricky and Megan Staggs, Katie and Kelsey Abbott.

During their marriage they have lived in Winterhaven, Fla.; Irving; and Big Spring.

Martin retired from the VA Hospital in 1979. Lillian retired from Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center in 1985.

MR. AND MRS. MARTIN STAGGS

They have been active members of the First United Methodist Church, Big Spring since 1945; the Couples Class; and the Reba Thomas Circle.

In commenting about their marriage they say, "Put your trust in the Lord and He will direct thy paths. The Lord has blessed us with a wonderful family and many friends".

Martin enjoys working in his wood shop. They both enjoy visiting their children and grandchildren; doing volunteer work; and their cabin they built in Cloudcroft, N.M.

Paid announcement

Tredaway-Saverance

Tonya Sharee Tredaway, Big Spring, and Shanan Wayne Saverance, were married on Oct. 28, 1993, at First Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Flynn Long performed the ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mike and Sherida Tredaway, Big Spring. Parents of the groom are Glenn and Sharron Harrell, Big Spring; and Dewayne and Lou Saverance, Coleman.

The couple stood before an arch flanked on each side with seven-candle candelabras decorated with ivy and peach roses.

Randy Stevens played the pipe organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown with a traditional high illusion collar, highlighted with strands of beads. The beaded bodice, full satin skirt and cathedral train were highlighted by sequins. Her train was accented with satin beaded roses and her satin hat was decorated with satin and net roses with a fingertip veil.

She carried a white and forest green rose cascade with peach and forest green streamers. She also carried her grandfather's handkerchief.

Matron of honor was Paige Skelton, Big Spring.

Bridesmaids were Amber Hillger and Christy Hillger, both of Big Spring.

Flower girl was Brittney Benson, Big Spring. Ringbearer was Stephen Tilley, the bride's cousin. Honorary ringbearer was Stefan Martinez, the groom's nephew.

Best man was Kevin Rodgers, Big Spring.

Groomsmen were Gregg Skelton and Jimmy Voight, both of Big Spring.

Ushers and candlelighters were Cody Tredaway, brother of the bride, and Wes Crow, cousin of the bride.

MRS. SHANAN SAVERANCE

A reception took place in the parlor of the First Presbyterian Church.

The bride's table was covered with a cream tablecloth. The cake, made by the groom's mother, was four tiered with two satellites attached with cascading staircases trimmed with peach and forest green roses.

The groom's table was covered with a white cloth and held a German chocolate cake. Each had a ceramic picture frame with a baby picture of the bride and groom.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High and is attending Howard Junior College.

The groom is a graduate of Big Spring High, attended Howard Junior College and is employed by Southwest Tool Inc.

Thrills in the air: Aboard Fifi

ABOARD FIFI: I am privileged to be riding on the flight deck (there's no cockpit) with a crew of the Confederate Air Force on the world's only flying B-29.

We left Longview a little after 10 AM headed for Midland. We are to rendezvous shortly with a C-46 and a B-24 for a noon hour fly-by over of Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene. The other two planes left the Longview airport 20 minutes before we took off.

I just learned that it takes $3,000 an hour to operate this baby. I have even more respect for it now.

"We take Fifi on tour all over the country as part of our flying museum," says flight engineer Dan Secker of Midland. "We like for people to see it, especially kids. It keeps that World War Two spirit alive."

Money to operate Fifi comes from selling T-shirts and caps, videos, tours and photographs of the plane. "While we're giving tours, we tell people about the part the B-29 played in the war, how many people were on board and just how it operated," says Dan.

He likes to be able to tell young people about the plane. He also enjoys hearing from men who served aboard the B-29's during the war.

Dan says because of the way the plane was made, it was nearly impossible for the pilot to do everything, so the position of flight engi-near was created. "We generally have a minimum crew of six," says Dan. "But usually we fly with ten or twelve people on board."

The crew positions are pilot, copilot, flight engineer, two scanners who ride in back and watch the engines and wings for any problem that might occur. "Then we have an APU operator. He runs the generator (Auxiliary Power Unit) that is used to start the engines."

Fifi flies from fifty to eighty hours a year. It stays in Midland at the CAF headquarters and museum from October through May, then hits the air show circuit. Different crews move the plane from city to city every Monday. Enroute, young crew members receive their training on the aircraft.

This year the plane visited the East Coast. Last year it was out west. Next year it will travel to the central part of the country.

Colonel Tom Cloyd of El Paso is the pilot. "To me it's a tremendous thrill to fly the plane. Being able to fly one of a kind, the last of an era, is truly exciting. I never get tired of being around the plane and flying it. What a privilege it is for me to get to fly something like this."

Tom is a corporate pilot by profession. "We had jets, but back in the early sixties companies started buying surplus warplanes like the DC 3, B-25 and the Douglas A-26 and converting them to corporate planes. So I learned to fly them."

When Tom joined the CAF in 81, he petitioned to join the B-29 crew. After two years of training in the plane, he became its pilot. He also flies the B-24.

"The B-20 was strictly a South Pacific airplane built to bomb Japan. The plane could travel 3,000 miles at a time and carry 20,000 pounds of bombs. It traveled at a speed of 300 miles an hour at high altitudes."

The Enola Gay, the plane that dropped the atomic bomb on Hiroshima, was a B-29. That plane is being restored now at the Garber museum in Silver Hill, Maryland.

The men in the plane are having a ball. They seem relaxed and comfortable, the same way pilots in World War Two went about their work. I see the B-24 and the C-46 out the window. We're together, flying low for the crowd at Dyess. Soon we'll be in Midland.

Investments, job hunting among new library books

Among the new books at Howard County Library this month are:

"Beating the Street" by Peter Lynch.

During the 13 years Peter Lynch was the manager of the Fidelity Magellan Fund, until his retirement in 1990, Magellan was the top-ranked general equity mutual fund. An investment of $1000 in 1977 was worth $28,000 in 1990. TIME called Lynch the nation's #1 money manager. His philosophy is every investor can profit if he invests in what he knows.

Lynch shows investors how he puts his investing philosophy and techniques into action as he takes readers step-by-step through the process of selecting the stocks he recommended in the 1992 Barrons Roundtable. Lynch believes in a mixture of stocks, growth funds and blue-chip funds and explains how to adjust new investments among these different types of funds.

"Get Tough! - The U.S. Special Forces Physical Conditioning Program" by Tom Fitzgerald.

This book presents a comprehensive twelve-week regimen of calisthenics, stretching, and running designed to condition your entire body to the best that it can be. It's not for the timid or lazy - the program demands a time commitment of one to two hours per day, five days a week, with no excuses or missed workouts! If you've ever wondered what it would be like to be in the very best physical shape possible, Get Tough is the book for you.

"What Are We Trying to Teach Them Anyway?" By Ronald K. Pierce.

Pierce confronts this problem not as a detached "expert" but as a concerned father. The book is the result of his effort to discover for himself why school so often fails to equip our kids to face life as self-determining adults.

Pierce argues that instead of trying to reform our schools by raising test scores, we should instead decide what kind of people we want our children to be and then design schools that will allow them to develop accordingly.

Seeing child-centered schools in action convinced him we can have schools that foster the qualities young people need if they are to become independent and self-governing: love of freedom, joy in learning, a sense of control over their lives, resistance to coercion and intimidation, a sense of community.

"Resumes DON'T Get Jobs - The Realities and Myths of Job Hunting" by Bob Weinstein.

To find out what really works in today's competitive market, read this eye-opening guide. It explodes the myths other career manuals would have you believe, and puts sound, savvy, realistic advice in their place.

"Grandchildren Are So Much Fun, I Should Have Had Them First" by Lois Wyse.

This is a book about the joys of being a grandparent. It has new twist, though - being a grandparent in the brand-new world of computers, faxes, disposable diapers and those ever-present juiceboxes. This book tugs at your heart on one page and makes you chuckle on the next.

Chapters such as "Which One Is The Grandmother?" "Fax Me No Questions," "Watch Out, Grandma's In The Kitchen," and "The absolute Truth About Grandfathers" illustrate with wit and humor the life and times of grandparents. This book cements forever that loving bond that links the generations.

"Government Racket - Washington Waste From A to Z" by Martin L. Gross.

If you knew how the government was wasting billions of your tax dollars - nearly enough to balance the budget - wouldn't you try to stop it? Now you can get all the facts from A to Z in this shocking and persuasive new book.

Learn why our government costs too much and delivers too little to too many Americans. Never before has a book provided the American public with the astonishing, infuriating truths about government waste and inefficiency!

Holiday helpers

With Christmas right around the corner, The Salvation Army has geared the wheels in motion for the first step of their Christmas Cheer program.

The agency began taking Christmas assistance applications Oct. 25 and will continue to take them through Nov. 5. Applicants must bring in proof of Social Security cards for everyone in the household, proof of any and all income, (AFDC, HUD, food stamps, check stubs, etc.), proof of expenses (rent, utility bills, and any other monthly payments), photo ID for the applicant, and sizes of clothing and shoes for children age 12 and under.

The Christmas Cheer program includes: the Angel Tree, food baskets, and toys for tots. Last year, the program helped 1173 people with Christmas. The aid consisted of 304 food baskets, 414 angels adopted off the tree by the community, and 1027 toys that were distributed by The Salvation Army for children not adopted through the Angel Tree program.

This year, The Salvation Army, will be giving out Thanksgiving baskets to needy families. Those considered for the baskets will come from the Christmas applications. The number of baskets given away will depend on the supply available. Anyone needing information regarding one of these programs please contact The Salvation Army at 267-8239.

Fall foliage

Wondering where and when the best fall color areas of the state will be this fall? Call 1-800-452-9292 to the Texas Travel Information Centers, operated by the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), for the latest color updates and events around the state. The phone center is open from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m.

The foliage report is compiled and updated weekly from spotters around the state and distributed to callers by counselors at the 11 information centers and the phone center in Austin.

TxDOT spotters tell us there is a hint of color in several areas. While some leaves are turning, the first flush of brilliant hues of orange and red will probably be around the end of October, peaking towards mid-November.

Atlanta, Tyler, San Augustine, Martin Creek and Dangerfield State Parks report the leaves are beginning to change. Lost Maples State Natural Area near Vanderpool is expecting its color in mid-November.

Mom's proof was in her rice pudding deliveries

DEAR ABBY: Back in September 1990, my mother (Mrs. Rudolph O. Oberg) wrote to thank you for your gourmet rice pudding recipe. You printed her letter and the fact that you were working on your second recipe booklet. In her letter, Mother mentioned that she was taking the rice pudding to several elderly friends. The whole family — and many of Mom's friends — laughed about her "elderly friends." You see, Mother failed to mention that she was also "elderly." (She was 78.)

Dear Abby

That previous July, Mom had parachuted out of an airplane at 10,000 feet. My daughter said she was the only grandmother she knew who had to be landed before 7:30 a.m. or after 11:00 p.m. — because she was never home in-between!

Mother passed away last March from lung cancer. (She never smoked a day in her life.) When I went to take care of her at the end, there in the refrigerator was the rice pudding. She just wasn't up to delivering it to one of her "elderly" friends — so I delivered it for her.

Someday I'll make rice pudding and take it to an "elderly" friend — and thus continue the tradition for another generation. Thank you, Abby, for the joy you brought to my mother's life. — JOSEPHINE KILBOURN, JOPPA, MD.

DEAR JOSEPHINE: Thank you for the joy you brought to MY life, by allowing me to share your letter with my readers.

DEAR ABBY: "Disgusted With Bible People in N.J.," lamenting the failure to return borrowed books, is someone I can relate to. I have at least a half-dozen books missing from my library; all were loaned to friends who had promised to return them as soon as they finished reading them. Some of these books I will probably never see again.

Abby, please declare a "Return Borrowed Books Week" to remind the clods to do just that. Actually, I treasured mine so much, I wouldn't mind if they were gift-wrapped and sent to me as Christmas presents!

TULSA HOUSEWIFE: I will not disclose your name, but if anyone in Tulsa has a book borrowed from someone whose initials are L.B. living on East 58th Street, please return it.

P.S. Instead of declaring a "Return Borrowed Books Week," if people would go through their libraries and put all borrowed books in a box, and place the box just inside their own front door as a reminder to return them, it might help.

DEAR ABBY: The letter about the woman who carried her own tea bags in her purse when she went out to eat reminded me of something that occurred in Veedersburg, Ind., many years ago.

There was a small family-owned restaurant next to an A&P store. One day, a woman bought a loaf of bread and some lunch meat at the A&P — then came into the restaurant, made her own sandwiches, and asked the waitress to bring her some ketchup.

— FRAN IN WESLACO, TEXAS

DEAR FRAN: You are not the only reader who replied to that letter. Read on.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a waitress in a family restaurant, and I've seen it all. One day, six women came in carrying a cake they had purchased at a nearby bakery. They sat down, ordered coffee, and asked the waitress to please cut the cake and serve it. Can anybody top this? — CATHY IN PITTSBURGH

Reunions scheduled

Classes of 1983, 1963 and pre-1940 list weekend activities

Special to the Herald

During Big Spring High School homecoming weekend, Nov. 5-6, several classes plan events. Here are a few of the plans:

The BSHS graduating class of 1983 will celebrate their 10th year reunion during Homecoming Weekend Nov. 5-6. The class has planned a float for the homecoming parade on Nov. 5. As a group they will attend the football game with a get-together planned to follow at Howard College Student Union Bldg. Sat. Nov. 6 from 12 p.m.-2 p.m. Members of Class of '83 will have a "Pot-Luck Family Picnic" at the Old Settlers Pavilion at Comanche Trail Park.

If adverse weather occurs, it will be moved to the Cactus room (Student Union Bldg.) at Howard College. Also planned is a Barbeque & Social at the Day's Inn from 7 p.m.-12 a.m. ($10 per person). Food will be served until 8 p.m. Music from the 80's will be provided.

The remaining class members listed below have not been located or have not responded. For more information contact Amy Ragan Burchett 264-5028, Jamie Phillips, 264-5101, Melissa Blassingame McMillan, 267-7471, Pat Ramirez Leos, 264-7334.

Food show tasty idea for 4-Hers, judges

By MICHAEL KELSEY
 County Extension Agent

Two food training workshops set the stage for the annual Howard County Food Show held Oct. 26.

Twenty-two leaders and 4-H members gathered at the 14th & Main Church of Christ for the competition which proved to be the largest in several years. 4-H members prepared their dishes to exhibit them in one of several categories including: breads and cereals, fruits and vegetables, main dishes, nutritious snacks, beef, pork and lamb. Not only did these members have to prepare their dishes but they had to know all the nutritional information including cost concerning a serving of their dishes. All 4-H members that prepared dishes earned the right to represent Howard County at the District VI Food Show in December.

Preparing dishes for the food show were Katie Gaskins - Lambs, Courtney Grissam - Beef, Clay Hart - Pork, Steven Nichols - Breads and Cereals, Trisha Nichols - Main Dish, Dawn Parker - Nutritious Snacks and Desserts, Taylor Sheppard - Lamb, Tonya Tabor - Breads and Cereals, Paylee Taylor - Breads and Cereals.

Special thanks to the following leaders who assisted with the food show: Chris Gaskins, Teresa Gaskins, Linda Grissam, Leslie Nichols, Donna Parker, Debbie Sheppard, Gary Tabor, Linda Tabor, and Fredi Walker. Sepcial thanks is also extended to the judges of the food show: Denise Munsell, Brenda Overbeck, Marsha Montague, Lynn Dee Montague all of Andrews.

My last trick-or-treating venture

When I was a kid, we'd start trick or treating several days before Halloween night, allowing us ample time to hit every house in town, whether we were welcome there or not.

Occasionally a homeowner would tell us to get away from his door or he'd take a broom to the bunch of us. That was OK. If he preferred scraping soap from his windshield to dropping goodies in our bags, that was his prerogative.

In those days trick or treating was a long, laborious process. People weren't content with just tossing us candy bars and sending us on our way. We had to come inside the house and stand in overheated parlors until our identities were guessed.

The barely ventilated masks of that era would glum to our faces, cutting off our circulation. We couldn't breathe, couldn't see, couldn't swallow. Our lips would turn blue, our tongues would swell and noses bleed. Still, we'd have to wait until we heard: "OK, now I know who you are. You can take off your mask ... and try not to bleed on the carpet."

We really had to work for those Tootsie Rolls and popcorn balls.

The last time I went trick or treating I was a lunk, still living at home. One Halloween night my mother said, "Let's dress up and knock on Grandma's door." We knew my grandmother would recognize us right off the bat, but it was something stupid to do, and we were in the mood to do something stupid that night.

Grandma took one look at us and got to giggling. Her eyes started to water. Whipping out the white hankie she kept stashed in her shirt sleeve, she dried her eyes. Then she made beeline for the bathroom. Laughing always did that to her.

After a woman has given birth a few times that old bladder retention isn't what it used to be.

When she returned she was dressed like an old hobo. She looked amazingly like Jimmy Durante on the skids. "Let's knock on doors," she said. The woman was in her 70s but as game as all get out. Three generations of women went trick or treating that night, but we didn't get very far.

In front of the next door neighbor's house Grandma's eyes started to water again. She took out her hankie. It just so happened that the young neighbor woman, Sis, was looking out her window. Sis saw three overly large trick or treaters standing near her car, one of them holding a small, white object. Sis came flying out the front door yelling, "Oh no you don't, you're not going to soap my windows!"

For some reason Grandma panicked and took off running. The woman booked down the street as fast as her little old legs would carry her. Sis was in hot pursuit screaming, "I'll get you, you little brat!"

Mom and I ran after Sis, trying to explain. Sis caught up with Grandma, collared her, and wrestled the "soap" from her hands. Stunned, Sis looked at the hankie, then took a good look at Grandma. I saw the recognition dawn in her eyes.

Poor Sis was barely coherent. It took a long time but eventually Mom and I got her calmed down. Grandma, however, was beyond our help. She couldn't stop giggling. It was the most fun she'd had in years. We never did get to knock on any doors that night. Grandma laughed so hard she wet her pants.

We lost Grandma long ago, but at every family gathering the Halloween story is told and retold.

These days many communities are eliminating trick or treating. The world has become very different. I guess it will be up to us old-timers to tell kids about the days when Halloween was fun.

Where evil comes from Bible says Satan is 'deceiving' nations'

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Are some people just born evil — like Hitler, for example? I have been reading in my history class about some of the terrible things he did, and I don't know how to explain that kind of twisted mind. Where does evil come from anyway? Or can we say? — M.B.

Billy Graham

DEAR M.B.: The Bible doesn't answer all our questions about evil; in fact it speaks of "the mystery of iniquity" (2 Thessalonians 2:7, KJV), because evil often is mysterious and impossible to explain. It does, however, assure us that evil is real and is not just an illusion or negative thinking.

Satan (the Bible tells us) is ultimately responsible for the evil in the world, and he is active in "deceiving the nations" (Revelation 20:3). Satan introduced evil by rebelling against God, and since that time he has been at work seeking to get people to rebel against God also. Some people open themselves to greater evil by deliberately choosing to turn against God and His will. In doing so, they open themselves to satanic influence and deception to an unusual degree. I have read that Hitler was fascinated with the occult and occult practices.

However, that doesn't excuse us from our personal responsibility for doing wrong. In fact, the Bible tells us that we each are capable of great evil, and the source of much of the evil in our world is the human heart. "The heart is deceitful above all things and beyond cure. Who can understand it?" (Jeremiah 17:9).

The good news is that Christ came to cure our hearts — to forgive us and to give us power to overcome evil. No, few of us are as bad as we could be — but we all need Christ's forgiveness and help. Make Him the ruler of your life today.

New citizen borrows Eastwood's moniker

By The Associated Press

FORT WORTH — When Libyan native Bashir Zeglan became a U.S. citizen, he took a new name that really made his day.

Zeglan became Clint Eastwood Thursday as he and about 70 new U.S. citizens were naturalized.

Zeglan, a used car dealer, said the Hollywood tough guy was by far his favorite film star.

"I thought about Marlon Brando, Sylvester Stallone and Al Pacino, too," he said. "They're intriguing names, but Clint stands out from anyone else as an actor. He's my hero."

Couple hopes to keep marriage rolling

By The Associated Press

BEDFORD, Pa. — Eleanor Teets' stroll down the aisle was really a roll down the aisle.

The 69-year-old woman laced on a pair of roller skates and coasted toward her 71-year-old fiance, James Golby, who also wore skates, as the couple exchanged vows Sunday at a rink about 40 miles southeast of Pittsburgh.

Their nine-person wedding party also wore wheels but the Rev. Darwin Collins stuck to street shoes for the service. Golby topped his skates with a tux; the bride wore a knee-length gown with her wheels.

The couple met 12 years ago when their dates stood them up at a roller rink about 20 miles from where they were married.

Teets took charge that first night, asking Golby to skate with her, but not feeling too optimistic. "I didn't think anything would come out of it," she said.

But they continued to date until he finally popped the question — on skates, of course.

On 'the Rock'

McCall's military service called him far from home

Special to the Herald

EARECKSON AFS, Alaska - Nothing on this small, windswept island near the end of Alaska's Aleutian chain remotely resembles life in the U.S.

Only 44 miles from the Russian coast, this tiny air station, about four and a half miles long and two and a half miles wide, is home to less than 500 Air Force men and women.

Air Force Master Sgt. Steven E. McCall, whose wife, Kathy, is the daughter of Dorian Reed of Big Spring, has had to put his life on hold for a year while dealing with family separation, remote living conditions, and isolation from the outside world, at one of the Air Force's most secluded duty assignments.

Eareckson, formally known as Shemya, is a small early warning and space tracking station atop a small, rocky island that is home to the blue fox, seal, and walrus. The ever-present black volcanic sand that covers the island has given Eareckson the nickname "black pearl" of the Aleutians.

McCall is assigned to the 16th Space Surveillance Squadron where he works as a controller chief. "I'm responsible for the ground approach radar. This includes six air traffic controllers and 36,000 square miles of airspace," explained McCall.

Before being assigned to what the airmen have dubbed "the rock," McCall says what he had heard about the upcoming assignment was far from promising.

"It's better here than I expected. The facilities, rooms, and recreation center are excellent," said McCall, a 1971 graduate of Dobyns-Bennett High School, Kingsport, Tenn.

While life for McCall hasn't been as tough as he expected, there are moments when he misses the life he temporarily left behind.

"The hardest part of living here is being away from my family and experiencing my children's high school years," says McCall. "I also miss helping my wife, Kathy, with family problems."

Life on the island is confining at best, but most airmen stationed here find ways to make their one year tour a worthwhile one. "In my spare time, I barbecue, go to the gym, and study for my next test and promotion. On nice days, I explore the island and walk on the beach."

Whether they come here with a positive attitude or not, most airmen find that there are plenty of adjustments to be made during their assignment to Eareckson.

"I can't just pick up something from the store because there are no stores. I've also had to get used to being in the dorm again."

HAVE A SAFE HALLOWEEN

Don't let the trick be on you! Review these important safety tips with your child and have a "spooktacular" time!

- If possible, all trick or treating should be done while it's still light outside.
- Beware of masks that obstruct vision. Non-allergic makeup is a fun and inexpensive alternative.
- Always carry a flashlight when trick or treating after dark.
- If masks are a must, they should be worn on top of the head while walking to a destination.
- Be sure to clear your yard and front walk of any obstacles that could cause a fall.
- Instruct your child that no treats are to be eaten until they return home. A light snack before departure may help.
- Inspect all treats thoroughly. Wash and cut fruit; discard any unwrapped candy.
- Visit only well-lit, familiar homes.
- Cross only at corners. Never dart between parked cars or in the middle of the block. Don't forget to look both ways!
- Accept treats only at the front door. Never go inside a stranger's house for any reason.
- Plan a route and make sure the family knows the plan. Set a curfew and stick to it.
- White clothing or reflective tape will increase visibility after dark.
- Wigs and costumes should be made of non-flammable materials.
- Children under ten should always be accompanied by an adult.
- Know who your child will be trick or treating with and never let a child of any age trick or treat alone.
- Sharp or pointed toy weapons are unsafe and should be discouraged.

Article Claims New Pineapple Diet Aid Melts Away 900 Times It's Weight In Fat!

An article in the July issue of the Examiner claims an enzyme made from pineapple called BROMELAIN will take off as much as 7 lbs. in 48 hours, even 25 lbs. in a single week!

There have been 400 scientific studies on BROMELAIN and the pineapple enzyme is well known as a digestive aid and for arthritic inflammation. However, this is the first time studies have shown BROMELAIN may have the ability to absorb fat. One gram of BROMELAIN can absorb 2 lbs. of fat, according to the article. Every day around the clock, it gobbles up thousands of fat cells which are then eliminated naturally from the body. The recommended dose of BROMELAIN is 500 mg. with 600 G.D.U.s (Gelatin Dissolving Units). The cost is around .70¢ a day or $20.00 for a 30-day supply. The experts report improved digestion and rapid weight loss is possible if you take BROMELAIN right along with your regular meals. Just limit your high fat and high calorie food to help speed up the process, and of course, it's always wise to check with your doctor before going on any weight loss program.

NAFTA; what state, national experts say

Textile mills, such as Wright Fibers Inc. in Big Spring, shown under construction in August, are potential winners in the North American Free Trade agreement. Other winners are the auto industry, service industries and machinery and heavy equipment. Losers include apparel, sugar, citrus and vegetables and glass. Business, agriculture and environmental interests in Texas are urging support; see story page B9. Next week in Sunday Business: What they're saying locally.

Winners Losers

By JOAN LOWY
Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — Here's a look at who American business and industry executives say will be among the winners under a North American Free Trade Agreement:

- The auto industry. Despite labor union claims to the contrary, the evidence indicates NAFTA will lead to a flood of auto exports from the United States to Mexico.

The Commerce Department estimates there will be an increase of $1 billion in American-made auto exports to Mexico and another $1 billion in heavy trucks and buses in the first year of NAFTA.

Only a few thousands cars made in the United States are presently exported to Mexico each year, while many more assembled in Mexico are exported back to the

What representatives say

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Business Editor

Big Spring's representatives in Congress are backing the North American Free Trade Agreement, up for a House vote Nov. 17.

Free trade is what keeps the United States strong, always has, they argue. As advocates of the free market system in which competition helps drive quality and prices, North Americans would be hypocrites to close trade borders.

"By eliminating Mexico's trade barriers, NAFTA will increase the competitive advantage of U.S. industries and create jobs in the U.S.," said U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm of Stamford.

"In comparison with the European Community and the Far East, our greatest export opportunities are in our own hemisphere," said Sen. Phil Gramm of College Station. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison also backs NAFTA, according to reports.

But her Washington office last week declined to return phone calls.

Jobs would shift as higher-productive and technology-backed North Americans specialize in what they do best and have a bigger sales market. U.S. advantages include energy related industries, automobile production, agriculture, chemical production and service industries such as telecommunications and financial services.

Besides, they said, Mexico already has a better advantage. Mexico charges an average 10 percent tariff on U.S. goods while the United States charges an average 4 percent on Mexican goods.

They also point to Mexico lower some barriers since 1986. Since 1987, U.S. trade to Mexico increased from $12.4 billion to $42.4 billion last year, turning a trade deficit into a $5.4 billion surplus and doubling export jobs to 800,000. Texas exports rose 25 percent yearly, to $18.8 billion in 1992.

Scripps Howard News Service

WASHINGTON — Here's a look at who will be among the losers under a North American Free Trade Agreement:

• Apparel. The U.S. apparel industry has been losing jobs and market share for 30 years and NAFTA is not expected to help.

The agreement would phase out U.S. tariffs on Mexican apparel, which average about 18 percent, over 10 years. Some U.S. quotas would be eliminated immediately and some over 10 years.

Mexican apparel tariffs, which average about 20 percent, would also be phased out over 10 years. Mexico already has eliminated its apparel quotas.

The U.S. apparel industry, which has shrunk from 1.25 million production workers in 1973 to about 800,000 in 1992, is a labor intensive industry made up

Alternate health care reform plans entering the debates

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Congressional competitors to President Clinton's health care reform plan have made good use of the five-week interval between the president's passionate introductory speech and presentation of his actual legislation.

• Several new alternatives have been introduced in the House and Senate.

• Opponents, Republicans and Democrats alike, have denounced the costs and complexity of the president's proposal during hearings featuring administration witnesses who were unable to defend the program with hard details.

• A group of moderate-conservative Democrats and Republicans supporting different visions of Clinton's managed competition approach to reform have begun meeting to iron out differences.

While administration officials insist the bill presented to congressional leaders by the president and first lady Wednesday is stronger for the extra weeks of critiques and number crunching, they concede privately the delay has cost them momentum and some goodwill in Congress.

Even as President Clinton talks of forging a bipartisan agreement on health care reform, many in the White House would seemingly prefer to fight than switch positions on a single point.

"Really, the White House is paying us the highest of compliments to take us so seriously and be so worried about our popularity."

Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn.
Author of competing plan

Briefing papers distributed by the administration continue to stress deficiencies in other legislation. White House health adviser Ira Magaziner tells reporters he's "encouraged" that some 260 members of Congress have signed on to at least one health care reform bill, but then challenges them to meet "our standard for detail in addressing the problem."

"Really, the White House is paying us the highest of compliments to take us so seriously and be so worried about our popularity," said Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., author of a competing managed competition bill that has been harshly criticized by the White House and its allies in recent weeks.

Cooper's proposal is the only measure so far to have significant bipartisan support in both the House and the Senate.

The principals of the Cooper plan — including Cooper and Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa, Sens. John Breaux, D-La., Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., David Durenberger, R-Minn. — have been meeting with Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., chief architect of a moderate Senate Republican health plan, and other senators in an effort to fashion a centrist bill based on the managed competition theory.

"We think there's great virtue in being in the mainstream," Chafee said. "There's a real commitment to reaching a bipartisan agreement," added Breaux.

While some Clinton partisans see this budding coalition as a threat, Cooper insists that no one is trying to freeze out the president and his team. "Clinton, Cooper, Chafee are all first cousins in this debate, all important to it," he said.

The biggest sticking point among the three is whether anyone should be required to pay for health insurance. Clinton wants both employers and individuals to pay; Chafee wants individuals to be responsible; Cooper wouldn't force anyone to buy coverage, but assumes most would if the market is competitive.

Clinton's camp says because it has no mandate, Cooper's approach can't ensure everyone is covered and Chafee's disrupts the employer-based system that covers most people today. Yet all parties hint there's room for a compromise.

But with the Republican and Democratic national committees turning up the partisan rhetoric on health care, it remains uncertain how many fellow party members Grandy and Chafee will be able to bring to the middle.

Lone oil producers dying out?

By ANA RADELAT
Thomson News Service

WASHINGTON — Oil patch lawmakers reacted angrily on Tuesday to Energy Secretary Hazel O'Leary's suggestion that independent oil producers are a dying breed that may be too weak to survive.

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., said he was "shocked and deeply troubled" by O'Leary's remarks at a conference in London.

"If she in fact did make such unwise comments, she should retract them," Boren said.

O'Leary told oil and banking executives that as Big Oil abandons the United States for overseas fields the industry's small domestic producers may be too weak to survive today's low oil prices.

The Energy Secretary also said her agency has no firm ideas to help independent oil producers stay in business.

"I haven't got the answer for the mom and pop businesses," O'Leary said, according to the Associated Press.

Larry Neal, spokesman for Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, said the senator thought O'Leary's comments were "astounding and astounding."

"What is she doing at that job if she has no ideas?" Neal said. "Is she willing to throw over small producers that are the backbone of the industry?"

Because U.S. dependence on foreign oil costs the nation about $1 billion each week, Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., said it was "inconceivable" that O'Leary would abandon the domestic oil industry.

"The secretary's remarks are particularly unfortunate in that they undermine the efforts currently underway within her own department to develop initiatives to promote domestic gas and oil production," Johnston said.

The Energy Department is poised to unveil a series of proposals — mostly tax breaks and regulatory rollbacks — aimed at promoting domestic oil and gas production.

Texas Railroad Commissioner Barry Williamson said O'Leary "must be terribly misinformed or ill-advised if she's willing to condemn the nation's producers to Jurassic Park."

According to the Independent Petroleum Association of America, 450,000 jobs have been lost in the U.S. oil industry over the past decade. The number of working oil rigs has dropped from about 4,000 to between 600 and 700.

Medical and legal professions are expected to be state's fastest job producers through end of century. See graph page 9B.

Cattle poisoning possible with season's first freeze

Don Richardson

The temperature dipping into the lower thirties created the season's first frost and some freeze damage across the area, resulting in the danger of Prussic Acid poisoning for local livestock.

This poison accumulates in the leaves and stems of sorghum type plants, including Johnsongrass, which has undergone the stress of frost. It can sometimes result from other stress factors such as drought, as well, but is more closely associated with freeze and frost damage in West Texas.

Stock that graze upon plants affected with Prussic Acid usually show signs almost immediately with death occurring quickly. Veterinarians can often help affected animals when found soon enough, but most producers find dead animals as their first warning signs of Prussic Acid poisoning.

The Texas A&M Diagnostic Veterinary Lab has developed a fairly simple test for Prussic Acid that most stockmen can administer themselves.

It is called the Picric Acid Test.

This test can be accomplished by first collecting suspected forage from damaged crops and cutting its blades into small pieces. Add these pieces to a small, clean, glass container with 100 ml of clean, pure water in it that has had one-half gram of Picric Acid added to it along with five grams of Sodium Carbonate.

After the solution has had good contact with the forage bits add small slips of filter paper to it. After a few minutes, remove the slips of paper and allow them to dry thoroughly in the air.

In the meantime obtain Chloroform and place it in a small, shallow container with a wide opening, such as a clean jar lid. After the bits of filter paper have dried place them in a larger glass jar than the lid holding the chloroform by taping the ends of the slips to the bottom of the jar. Turn the jar with the paper slips upside down over the smaller lid with the Chloroform.

If Prussic Acid is present in the forage you are testing, the bits of paper will begin to turn red. The darker the color of red that occurs the more danger of higher degree of Prussic Acid has occurred in the forage.

If suspected Prussic Acid is occurring in your livestock, it is recommended that a local veterinarian be contacted immediately. Some success in saving affected animals has been achieved when veterinary assistance has been obtained soon enough.

Various Texas groups pushing for passage of trade agreement

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Business, agriculture, and environmental interests last week urged passage of the North American Free Trade Agreement and said charges that it would cost American jobs were false.

Ironically, they said that many of the problems that NAFTA opponents predict will happen if the agreement is passed will occur if it is defeated.

The agreement would gradually remove tariffs and other barriers to trade among the United States, Canada and Mexico, creating the world's largest and richest trading zone.

A battle over NAFTA is underway in the U.S. House, which is scheduled to vote Nov. 17. Senate approval is considered likely.

Critics of the agreement, including former presidential candidate Ross Perot, say it will hurt the American economy and the environment along the U.S.-Mexico border.

But Bryan Riley, a trade economist for Citizens for a Sound Economy, a pro-business group based in Washington, D.C., said more U.S. jobs will be needed under the agreement to produce more exports going to Mexico.

"NAFTA means more, better-paying jobs for Texas workers," Riley said.

Ironically, the company that Perot built his multi-billion dollar personal fortune on is among those lining up in favor of NAFTA.

Dallas-based Electronic Data Systems Corp., now owned by General Motors, took out a full page ad in The Dallas Morning News Thursday in support of the pact.

EDS spokesman Randy Dove said, "It's not about Ross Perot. ... This is about market creation. It's about dropping barriers. It's about expanding opportunities."

And Peter Emerson, a senior economist with the Environmental Defense Fund, said NAFTA will help address environmental problems on the border.

"The truth is that there are very serious trade-related environmental problems. The truth is those problems have occurred without the NAFTA and without this NAFTA those problems will become worse," he said.

Agriculture interests also voiced support of the agreement.

"Mexico is going to trade with someone, make no mistake about that," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry.

"They will either trade with the European Economic Community or the Japanese or they'll trade with us," he said.

Perry said that in 1992, Mexico imported $42 billion worth of goods from the United States, including $18 billion from Texas.

"The bottom line is somebody's got some money down there and they're spending it," he said.

And Tommy Klemcke, director of commodity activities for the Texas Farm Bureau, said NAFTA will reduce the number of U.S. companies going to Mexico.

Losers

primarily of low-wage, low-skill workers.

It is exactly the kind of industry in which Third World countries are able to compete effectively. Imports now account for 65 percent of the apparel sold in the United States, with China, Hong Kong, and Taiwan the top suppliers. Mexico is the eighth largest apparel exporter to the United States.

With the eventual elimination of tariffs and quotas between the United States and Mexico, labor unions fear — and many economists believe they are correct — that American manufacturers will move their factories south of the border to take advantage of low wages.

"If you are going over a precipice, do you step on the gas or the brakes? We believe in stepping on the brakes," said Herman Starobin, research director for the International Ladies Garment Union, which is fighting NAFTA.

Some manufacturers are expected to shift their operations from Asia to Mexico, which indirectly benefits Americans through lower consumer prices and a healthier Mexican economy.

But that is small consolation to American workers displaced by NAFTA, many of whom are among the least able to recover. The industry's production workforce is 80 percent female, 21 percent Hispanic, 16 percent black and 8 percent Asian.

Sugar. "The way NAFTA is written right now, it would be devastating to the U.S. sugar industry," said Luther Markwart, vice president of the American Sugar Beet Growers Association.

Sugar cane and sugar beet growers and refiners have been waging war against imports for centuries. The sugar industry is protected by a complex system of price supports and market shares that prevent other countries from dumping cheap sugar on the American market and undermining the industry.

Sugar industry executives expect the following scenario to unfold if NAFTA is approved:

Tariff reductions will lead to U.S. corn sweeteners displacing a large share of the Mexican sugar market. In turn, Mexican refiners will find themselves with a surplus of sugar on their hands, which they will then unload on the U.S. market at prices higher than they could get at home, anyway.

This will muck up a series of delicate relationships with sugar producers from Caribbean and Central American countries, who will then pull out of their agreement on market share and start dumping cheap sugar in the United States. Prices will plummet and American producers and refiners will go out of business.

Sugar is a $10 billion industry employing 188,000 Americans in 19 states. Hardest hit would be Hawaii, Louisiana and South Texas.

Citrus and vegetables. Mexico shares the same winter growing season as Florida and South Texas for oranges, grapefruit and a long list of winter vegetables, including tomatoes, celery, cucumbers and carrots.

U.S. growers have long been protected from Mexican imports by tariffs and quotas, but NAFTA will eventually eliminate all that. The first time U.S. growers will face stiff competition from Mexico.

NAFTA's tariff phase-in period varies, depending on the product. Most vegetable tariffs would be eliminated immediately. Concentrated orange and grapefruit juice have the longest phase-in period — 15 years.

Cheap labor and weak environmental enforcement give Mexico the upper hand, according to U.S. growers.

"It's an unlevel playing field," Mike O'Hara, a spokesman for the Florida Fruit & Vegetable Association, said. "They'll be able to undercut our price."

With strong opposition to NAFTA from growers, it's not surprising that all but one of the 23 House members from Florida are opposed to the agreement or leaning against it.

The flip side of the coin here is that competition from Mexican citrus and vegetables may bring down prices for consumers.

Glass. The Mexican glass industry, which is dominated by the giant Vitro Corp., is a clear winner under NAFTA.

For example, Mexico will have to reduce its 20 percent tariff on flat glass — such as windows and auto windshields — by 2 percent a year until it is phased out 10 years later.

But the United States will eliminate its 5 percent tariff on flat glass immediately after the agreement goes into effect on Jan. 1.

"Clearly this would give Vitro a major competitive advantage both in Mexico and here," said John Ruch, a spokesman for PPG, one of the nation's largest glass manufacturers.

The flat glass industry predicts a loss of 6,000 jobs nationally over the 10 year phase-out of Mexico's tariff if NAFTA is approved.

The agreement also phases out U.S. tariffs on household glass — such as drinking glasses and cookware — over 15 years. The tariffs currently range from 15 percent to 37 percent, depending on the product.

The chief problem for household glass makers is competition from cheap Mexican labor. And environmental restrictions, always a concern for U.S. glass makers, are more loosely enforced in Mexico.

"We have restrictions on our plants that they don't have down there that cost millions and millions of dollars," complained L. Dale Lamb, national assistant secretary for the American Flint Glass Workers Union.

United States.

That is because Mexico requires that any imported auto have 36 percent Mexican-made content, leading U.S. manufacturers to open plants in Mexico to get access to the Mexican market. Mexico also requires car makers located in Mexico to export twice as much in dollar terms as they import to Mexico.

NAFTA would completely change these rules. U.S. auto makers would immediately be able to export to Mexico 20 percent more cars than they import from Mexico. That ceiling would rise gradually over 10 years to 55 percent more exports than imports, and then it would be removed entirely.

The Mexican auto market has been growing rapidly in recent years, with annual vehicle sales now at more than 700,000 a year. The Big Three U.S. auto makers estimate they will sell 60,000 American-made vehicles to Mexico in the first year of the agreement.

European and Japanese car makers would still have to meet Mexico's old, protectionist rules, giving Americans a big competitive edge.

Some segments of the U.S. auto industry — particularly assembly line jobs in parts plants — have suffered greatly from competition with low-wage Mexican workers. And U.S. firms will continue to move jobs and plants to Mexico where it is economical, with or without NAFTA.

However, American auto workers are more productive than Mexican workers. American parts plants are closer to the point of final assembly, and it makes political sense for The Big Three to keep as many jobs as possible in the United States.

Labor costs — which contribute only about $1,000 to the price of the average American-made car — are not the main factor in industry investment decisions. There are added costs to doing business in Mexico as a result of the country's poor infrastructure.

Textiles. With NAFTA, American textile manufacturers believe they are in the catbird's seat, for a change.

Competition from Asian imports has exploded over the past decade, rocking the industry. Employment has dropped from 728,000 in 1988 to 675,000 in 1992.

U.S. manufacturers have responded by investing more than $2 billion to modernize old plants. This has produced efficiencies, but it has also contributed to the employment drop.

The one bright spot has been a big increase in recent years of exports to Mexico despite high tariffs.

Textile tariffs vary according to product. The average Mexican textile tariff is 16.5 percent, with tariffs on items like bed linens as high as 20 percent. The average U.S. tariff on textiles from Mexico is 7 percent. These tariffs would be eliminated under NAFTA.

The agreement would give U.S. manufacturers greater access to a fast-growing market without paying high tariffs — an advantage Asian competitors would not have.

Manufacturers say they aren't worried about competition from Mexico despite lower wages there. The textile industry is considerably less labor-intensive than, say, the apparel industry, making wages less an issue.

Also, the U.S. textile industry is much larger than its competitors in Mexico and Canada and can generally produce efficiently and economically, especially in light of recent modernizations.

"With Mexico and Canada, trade is a two-way street and we're the biggest kid on the block," said Charles Bremer, international trade director of the American Textile Manufacturers Institute.

Service industries. Much of the direct investment that will be made in Mexico as a result of NAFTA will not come from manufacturers opening factories, but from service industries that want to sell Mexicans everything from ice cream to credit cards.

Pizza Hut and Blockbuster Video, for example, are just two U.S. franchise operations poised to expand in Mexico.

Banking, insurance, telecommunications, publishing, tourism, and scores of other Mexican service industries would be fully opened to American companies under NAFTA.

Machinery and heavy equipment. The influx of capital to Mexico brought about by NAFTA is expected to result in a commercial and residential building boom. Another side effect will be beefing up Mexico's sagging infrastructure, from highways to telephones.

All this will require capital goods, from earth movers to computer control systems for factories.

TAX PLANNING STRATEGIES FOR INVESTORS

Although tax rates under the new tax law can top 39.6%, Congress added some sweeteners for investors. As you review your investment portfolio, keep in mind that saving taxes is only one of many factors that should be considered when making an investment decision.

To direct investment capital to small businesses, Congress is offering a maximum 14% tax rate on gains from holdings in "qualified small business stock." Be sure to get the details before investing since the list of qualifying types is limited, and you have to hold your stock for at least five years to qualify for the break.

Another new tax break will allow investors to sell any listed stock and defer the capital gains tax. By reinvesting your stock proceeds within 60 days in a "specialized small business investment company" (SSBIC) licensed by the Small Business Administration, the tax on the original stock sale can be deferred until the SSBIC stock is sold.

Apart from these special programs, investors will find long-term capital gains more attractive than ordinary income. The maximum capital gain rate will remain at 28% under the new law, compared to the 39.6% top rate for other income. Investments in such things as stocks (especially growth stocks) and real estate produce capital gain income.

The higher tax rates will make investments in tax-free municipal bonds more attractive. At a 39.6% tax rate, a 6% tax-free investment equals a 9.9% taxable investment. A double benefit can be attained by investing in bonds issued by your home state — you'll also escape state income tax on the bond interest.

Two real estate changes are of note. First, tax credits for investing in low-income housing have been extended permanently. Second, the passive loss rules will be waived for certain real estate professionals.

OCT 31 1993

Jacqueline Bigar -

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31, 1993

ARIES (March 21-April 19): What seemed easy early in the day turns difficult. Try to find the real source of a financial problem. Prepare to keep a positive attitude so you can deal with the unexpected. Roll with the punches. Tonight: Prepare for a crash landing. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Fun and games surround you in the morning, giving you reason to celebrate. Ex-mate yearns for old times. If you reach out for another, the daytime hours will provide you with surprises. Be ready to adjust as another vents strong feelings. Tonight: Use earmuffs. ****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You haven't been in the best of moods lately, and the stress peaks today. An ex-mate longs for your affection. Be ready to hide out and avoid a problem. Explain to another that there isn't much you can do about a financial situation. Recognize your anger. Tonight: Play ostrich. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Focus on the excitement during the early part of today's rollercoaster ride. By evening another might cause you a problem. Watch for a loved one to have a tantrum. Tonight: Zero in on what you want. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You have the energy in the morning to deal with others. Your creativity is high and your intentions are good. Tonight, however, problems arise concerning family and home. Tonight: Get a head start on tomorrow's work. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You hear unexpected news that leaves you wondering. Excitement surrounds a love relationship. Be willing to express the depth of your affection. Be careful dealing with a work problem that pops up out of the blue. It could be the subject of much anger. Tonight: Exercise your intellect. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You get exciting input from a family member and end up feeling better than you have in a while. Be ready to take action. Sharing will bring positive results. Be careful with a money matter toward the end of the day. Security is becoming a greater issue. Tonight: Defer to a partner. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Excitement and good news surround you, leaving you upbeat. A family member might be trying to drag you down. Look closely at a domestic matter that you are talking too seriously. Tonight: Fireworks are likely. ****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You need to take care of your stress. Listen to your instincts when considering a risk this morning. A misunderstanding could cause a problem of immense dimensions. A loved one cares about you. Tonight: Attend to your stress. **

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A friend who challenges you might have a hidden agenda. Be careful. Touch base with a loved one at a distance. Tonight: Be a wild thing. **

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A loved one needs your attention and wants to work with you. Be aware that your intuition is correct. Be careful this afternoon, as a family member could go on the warpath. Tonight: Do the juggling act. **

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Watch the ups and downs of the day. A friend has delightful news for you, but do not take the situation for granted. Someone means well but could cause a problem when you least expect it. Tonight: Brainstorm with a buddy. **

IF OCTOBER 31, 1993 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The year ahead could be perplexing if you don't plan carefully. Your emotions will be stirred easily after Thanksgiving. While you'll be on a lucky cycle, there could be many lows as well as highs. Excitement will surround you when you least expect it. A family situation will become intolerable, and you might want to leave it behind. Partners will mean well but will challenge you.
