It's not just for veterans, it's for everyone," said Fred Cox, chief of voluntary service at the VA Medical Center, an organizer of events.

Bees buzz Tuesday's city council meeting

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

Staff Writer

Living next door to beehives doesn't bother some but it frightens

Bees have been kept by Alex Sechelski at 2602 Apache for at least a year with no reported problems. But that doesn't ease worries of eight neighbors, especially a woman who says she's "severely allergic" to bee and wasp stings. Three others support Sechelski, one saying he's an experienced and responsible bee keeper.

Under a new city ordinance passed last year, neighbors were informed of Sechelski's application for annual permit renewal and invited to respond in writing. The Big Spring City Council two weeks ago postponed a decision until responses from neighbors could be read.

"They want to try to be sensitive to needs of the neighborhood," said City Manager Lanny Lambert.

The council considers the application again Tuesday. They meet at 5:30 p.m. in Building 1106 in Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

Following are some written comments from neighbors.

"Mr. Sechelski is a very experienced and responsible bee keeper," one said. "We have not had any problems with Mr. Sechelski's bees and would like to give him our full support.

I am 'severely allergic' to bee or wasp stings. I don't want to be in 300 miles of any, if I can help it," a woman said.

"If a group of bees would swarm around me while I'm watering my flower beds, I'd be terrified," another woman said. "To put up a 'no trespassing' sign wouldn't help. They can't read any better than the neighbor's cats that fertilize my

Sense of self lacking in Davidian children

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Some of the children released from the Branch Davidian compound outside Waco had been imbued with such a strong sense of Armageddon that they drew pictures of their home in flames weeks before it burned, says a psychiatrist who treated the youths.

However, the children lacked a sense of self and traditional family, said Dr. Bruce Perry, associate professor of psychiatry at Baylor College of Medicine.

Perry also said that during the six months he studied the children, he found they were unanimously convinced that cult leader David Koresh would rise from the dead, slay the group's enemies and return them to their parents.

Perry led a trauma assessment team that treated and studied the children released from the cult's compound outside Waco. He talked about the experience Saturday in Minneapolis at the national conference of the Cult Awareness Network.

A standoff between the cult and federal agents ended April 19 when a fire consumed the compound after agents battered the structure and set off tear gas. At least 81 cult members, including Koresh, died that

The children, ranging in age from 5 months to 12 years, were treated by the team after they were released from the compound in early March. They were kept at a Methodist home in Waco for six weeks.

Perry said the children reorganized themselves into a tiny society that duplicated the rules they had been taught by the Branch Davidi-

An 8-year-old boy made a detailed picture of a horse in a field with the compound in the background. But when asked to draw a picture of himself, he produced a primitive sketch of a stick figure with no hands or face. And when asked to draw his family, he drew a tiny, equally anonymous figure in a corner of a page.

"These children had no sense of a traditional family," Perry said. 'Their sense of self was lacking.'

Other children, when asked to draw their home, drew a building in flames - weeks before the fire destroyed the compound.

"They knew what was coming. Their whole vision was apocalyptic. When I first met these kids and asked, 'Where are your parents?' they all said, 'They're dead,'" he

"They'd been taught a scenario in which the 'bad guys' would break in and kill everyone, then Kcresh would rise from the dead and kill the bad guys and everybody would be happy," Perry said.

Oil companies band together for research

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Budget constraints and low oil prices in recent years have forced rival oil companies like Amoco Production and Conoco to work together on expensive research projects, industry executives say. The major oil producers can no longer afford to pump dollars into research without considering returns, officials say. "We no longer can afford the luxury of doing work for the intellectual value alone," said Lowell Smith, manager with Amoco Production Research in Tulsa, Okla Conoco and Amoco have cut about 25 percent of their research staff and spending in recent years, and Chevron's is down by about 33 percent since 1991. Arco, which cut its research staff from 1.450 to 750 in 1991, announced recently that it is cutting another 100 employees in that area. Shell also made more deep cuts late last month

The only major exception is Exxon, which budgeted $624 million last year for research.

(il companies are pooling their resources to develop technology jointly, and then, if necessary, finetuning it in their own shops.

They're doing it in cooperation with other oil companies, with service companies like Baker Hughes Oilfield Operations and Halliburton, and with university laboratories.

Many big oil companies have all but abandoned expensive, very longterm research, either turning it over to universities or joining with schools or industry consortiums.

What research oil companies are involved in isn't usually on the same scale that it was a decade ago.

Ten years ago, Amoco spent about 25 percent of its research budget on long-term, high-risk projects, Smith estimated. Now, it spends less than 10 percent.

Fresh hope offered Alzheimer's victims

WASHINGTON (AP) - A new understanding about how a gene influences Alzheimer's disease offers fresh hope for a diagnostic test and, eventually, a drug to prevent the memory-robbing disorder.

At a symposium Sunday sponsored by the federal National Institute on Aging, a series of new studies showed that one form of a gene called apolipoprotein-E, or apoE, may protect some people from developing Alzheimer's disease, while a flawed form of the same gene substantially increases the risk.

The research, originated by a Duke University team led by Dr. Allen Roses, showed that a rare form of the gene, called apoE2, appears to protect people from developing Alzheimer's disease, but another form of the gene, apoE4, results in a substantially greater risk of developing the disease. This is a major discovery that moves Alzheimer's research to a new and higher level," said Stuart Roth of the Alzheimer's Association. "It offers real hope for the manage-ment of Alzheimer's disease."

Study fails to confirm findings

ATLANTA (AP) - A study of heart patients failed to confirm a finding that magnesium injections gich immediately after a heart attack could reduce deaths.

The study did show that one drug safely reduces heart pain and anoth-er reduces the odds of dying from a heart attack.

In 1992, British researchers studied 2,300 patients and found that injections of magnesium cut heart attack deaths by 25 percent, generating great excitement among cardi-

Clinton confident of NAFTA's passage

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - President Clinton portrays himself as being in an uphill struggle against the one-liners of Ross Perot and the pressure of organized labor but insists he can salvage the North American Free Trade Agreement.

"I think we'll make it," he said

In a wide-ranging interview on NBC's "Meet the Press," Clinton also said North Korea must not be allowed to develop a nuclear bomb, confirmed that U.S. troops will resume street patrols in Somalia and declined to criticize Russian President Boris Yeltsin for delaying a promised early presidential election.

On the trade pact, Clinton said he is 30 votes short in the House, and attributed much of his problems to union opposition.

"At least for the undecided Democrats, our big problem is the raw muscle — the sort of naked pressure — that the labor forces have put on," Clinton said.

He accused labor of resorting to 'roughshod, musclebound tactics,' including threatening to end financial support for lawmakers who support the trade deal and to field candidates against them at election

It was a striking remark from a Democratic president who muscled hundreds of thousands of dollars from labor groups as a candidate, and another example of how the trade deal has spawned odd alliances.

Interviewed later on "CNN Late Edition," AFL-CIO Secretary-Treasurer Thomas Donahue said his "gut

Another piece of beauty lost to us

Although the bird's chances of surviving the flight to San Antonio weren't good, it is still a blow to hear it died from the gunshot

The death of the young whooping crane depletes the species number to 144. That just is not a lot of whooping cranes. But, worst of all, another piece of beauty has gone from us.

And, this is just a bird, an endangered species, another lifeform nearly eradicated from this earth. We tend to kill off that which is lovely around us. We don't take care of our piece of earth, another species or ourselves. We let it all go to waste.

It can be seen in our cities where kids are killing kids, murder has become common place and ugliness surrounds us.

We pollute our water, land, air and still continue to do so. We junk up our land and let it go because we have forgotten how to appreciate what is around us.

And, worse, when someone takes an initiative to cleanup, we trash what has been cleaned up. It seems we take the easy way out - it is harder to take care of something, appreciate it than it is

So, one bird has died. But, with that bird's death, a little piece of us has died also.

Honor our veterans

Veterans Day is a time for us to pause and reflect upon the accomplishments and sacrifice of our nation's military veterans, past and present. It is a time not only to recognize them with public ceremony, but also to seek them out, thank them, and learn from them.

Throughout its history, America has fought 11 major wars and numerous smaller conflicts. More than 40 million citizens have served our country in time of war. Well over half of those veterans - more than 27 million women and men - are alive

Our veterans have profoundly shaped our country's history. The prosperity and freedom we enjoy today are direct results of their service and commitment. Their devotion to our nation's fundamental principles is a valuable legacy to be shared by all. It is essential for our youth, in particular, to understand the responsibilities of citizenship, for America's future is in their hands. (Veterans Day National Committee, Department of Veterans Affairs, Washington, D.C., 1993).

I encourage you to participate in our community's observance of Veterans Day at the VA Medical Center on November 11 at 11 a.m. and let all who served know that a grateful

I would like to dedicate this article to all the veterans, women and men, of Big Spring, Howard County, and their surroundings who have served in the armed forces during time of war and peace. I especially dedicate it to my brother, Robert Gutierrez, Jr., who served in the United States Marines during the early 60's, went to Vietnam, and was awarded the purple heart.

An hour passed. The doorbell rang. I opened the door. It was dark but I could see I had been hit by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir of trick or treaters

The children were pushing each other and their sacks further and further inside the door.

None was wearing costumes. I began passing out silverwrapped Dove bars.

"Look, mama!" one of the children screamed behind him to an adult, "he's giving out money."

Before I could explain, another kid said, "Naw, it ain't, it's just more candy.

The kids were gone. But still standing before me were four adults, one small woman and three men. They didn't have costumes either. But they did have sacks.

I passed out everything I thought I had. But there was one man probably in his early 20s - still standing in front of me with his sack opened. He was taller than I was.

I forgot about the M&M's and thought I had nothing left. I went to my refrigerator and found a pint of ice cream and dropped it into his sack. It hit bottom with a resounding thud. He left. Not one of the horde, including the adults—who came from who knows where-had thanked me.

The fight over the North American Free Trade Agreement has entered its final round, with the crucial vote scheduled for Nov. 17 in the House of Representatives. An observer from Mars would understand the commerce in question to be horsetrading, as pro- and anti-NAFTA forces vie to woo and cajole and threaten uncommitted legislators.

Florida districts clamor for citrus protection; a Hispanic member parlays his vote into a North American Development Bank; the president, lobbying all-out for passage, personally promises to condemn any Democratic candidate who uses NAFTA against a Republican from New York. Nearly drowned out in this festival of parochialism is any discussion of the national interest.

Yet if ever a congressional vote pertained to the greater good, the decision about NAFTA does. While its immediate effects may be limited, the agreement phasing out trade barriers between the United States and Mexico has enormous implications for this country's economic and political relations with the outside

The economic question at its simplest is the choice between protectionism and free trade. The former is associated with the Great Depression, deepened by the infamous Smoot-Hawley tariff of 1930; the latter is the course this country has championed for nearly 50 years.

NAFTA is grounded in confidence that the United States can and must compete in the global economy; the belief, too, that neighbors can prosper together, not only at one another's expense. The same United States that sought to raise up its exhausted friends and defeated enemies after World War II hopes now to see Mexico — and in turn all our neighbors south of the Rio Grande develop their way out of poverty and engage in mutually beneficial commerce with us. Supporters of NAFTA understand that poverty is the soil in which labor exploitation and environmental degradation thrive. Conscientious prosperity is what the countries with the cleanest factories and the best records in human rights all have in NAFTA, finally, is a vote of confidence in the friendliest, most progressive government Mexico ever had. If the United States turns its back on President Carlos Salinas de Gortari's brave market reforms, it will invite a revival of the anti-Americanism chronic in Mexico and all of Latin America It is depressing to think of members of Congress wheedling petty favors out of the administration in exchange for their support. If they were guided by the general welfare, NAFTA would be a no-brainer.

PRESTON, England — Her voice faltering, a woman testified today she nearly took charge of a toddler being dragged along by two older boys, but they convinced her they were taking him to a police station because he was lost.

Within hours of the encounter, 2year-old James Bulger was bludgeoned to death with bricks, stones and a metal pole on a railway track behind the police station.

Testifying at the murder trial of two 11-year-old boys, Elizabeth McCarrick said she got James to hold her 7-year-old daughter's hand. But the taller of the boys said to her: "It's all right missus, we will take him to the police station.

Cowboys roast Giants; lose Aikman to injury

Oilers slide past 'Hawks to reach .500 mark

By The Associated Press

IRVING, Texas — Troy Aikman got the Dallas Cowboys back into first place the hard way.

Aikman put on an impressive display of marksmanship Sunday that included 10 consecutive completions and two touchdown passes to Alvin Harper before leaving with a slight hamstring strain in a 31-9 victory over the New York Giants.

The defending Super Bowl champions earned their sixth consecutive victory after starting the season 0-2 without Emmitt Smith. The Giants dropped to 5-3 and fell a game behind the Cowboys in the NFC East.

Aikman went down while being chased by defensive end Keith Hamilton with 9:30 left in the third period and Dallas leading 17-6. Aikman's left shoe stuck to the artificial turf and he collapsed, with a gri-

Smith rushed 24 times for 117 yards and left with the game well in hand late in the fourth period.

Aikman hit 11 of 12 passes for 161 yards. He took advantage of single coverage on Harper to throw 28- and 50-yard touchdown passes in the first half, which ended with Dallas ahead 17-6.

A holding call on guard Bob Kratch negated a 7-yard scoring pass from Phil Simms to Mark Jackson, and a 47-yard Simms-to-Chris Galloway pass to the Dallas 25 positioned the Giants for a touchdown, but a flea flicker backfired. Oilers 24, Seahawks 14

HOUSTON — Warren Moon gave himself some job security on Sunday.

After being assured by coach Jack Pardee that he would be the starter as long as he remained successful, Moon had the 37th 300-yard passing day of his career in leading the Houston Oilers over the Seattle Seahawks 24-14.

Moon threw two touchdown passes as Houston (4-4) won its third straight game. Al Del Greco missed his first extra point since 1989, ending his team record streak of 76 in a row, but kicked three field goals for Rookie quarterback Rick Mirer threw one touchdown, pass for Seattle (4-5). He left the game with two minutes left because of an injured left foot.

Moon expressed concern during the week about his job status, still remembering that he was benched against New England earlier this year. But there was little chance of him being benched against the Moon hit his first eight passes of the day, including a 3-yard touchdown pass to Webster Slaughter.

The Oilers took a 22-7 halftime lead, aided by Del Greco's kicks of 33, 51 and 39 yards.

Moon, who ranks third on the NFL's all-time 300-yard list behind Dan Fouts and Dan Marino, hit 36 of 55 passes for 369 yards. He also threw two interceptions, both into the Seattle end zone.

Slaughter, slowed by injuries part of this season, had his biggest day for the Oilers. He had seven catches for 110 yards at the half and finished with 135 yards on nine catches.

Raiders 16, Bears 14 Kevin Butler missed a 30-yard

field goal attempt on the final play of the game as Los Angeles held off Chicago's late rally at Soldier Field. Jim Harbaugh threw a 13-yard touchdown pass to Terry Obee with 1:13 to play cutting the Raiders'. lead to two points. The Bears then recovered an onside kick and moved down to the 2.

The Bears ran two plays before Butler missed his kick. He also missed from 21 yards with 5:21 remaining. Jeff Jaeger kicked three field goals for the Raiders (5-3). Chicago (3-5) lost its third in a row.

Steelers 24, Bengals 16 Neil O'Donnell put Pittsburgh in a 16-point hole with poor play early in the game, then rallied the Steelers to victory in Cincinnati.

The Steelers (5-3) made their biggest comeback under secondyear coach Bill Cowher. The Bengals fell to 0-8 for the third time in franchise history.

Darryl Williams intercepted O'Donnell's pass and returned it for a 97-yard touchdown in helping straight win over the Bengals.

Rookie Ron Moore ran for 160 yards and Phoenix rushed for 243 yards to beat visiting Philadelphia.

Phoenix scored on 23-, 20- and 29-yard field goals by Greg Davis and a 10-yard pass from Chris Chandler to Gary Clark. Philadelphia got a 27-yard field goal from Matt Bahr on its first drive, but did not score again.

The latest area coaches who had to go through the Flipping-for-Playoffs scenario were Roger Smith of Grady and Ed Wilson of Klondike. Their teams, along with Wellman, ended in a three-way tie for second place in six-man District 5.

Last Friday, the three coaches met at Welch and, with their teams' season (and maybe a pinch of job security) riding on the outcome, flipped silver dollars into the air.

Klondike, perhaps on the strength of Wilson's "lucky" silver dollar, won the flip and starts the playoffs Thursday in Big Spring against

You would think that Wilson would be elated at the outcome - and you'd be right - and Smith would be dejected - right again - but you'd also think these grown men would find the whole matter of coin flips a crazy way to settle matters.

Well, you'd be sort of right on that count. Both coaches agree that the you get the idea. coin flip is a weird way to settle things, but is just about the fairest

I think of those other two coaches having to go home and tell their seniors that they tied for second but were out of the playoffs, that's a tough, tough chore. Any way you do it, the kids are not going to play and that's not'fair."

"I wish we had had a playoff (Saturday) morning," Smith said. "I don't know that there's a better system. A coin flip is about as fair as you can get."

As fair as, say, a points system, coaches?

"With a point system," Wilson said, "you've got a team beating another team as bad as they can just to get the points they need to make the playoffs, and I don't like that either." Smith agrees, sort of.

'If we had had a point system, we would have been in the playoffs," he said. "There's probably as many advantages as disadvantages to either system ... It all boils down to we should have beaten Klondike or we should've beaten Sands.'

And then the whole tie-breaker scenario could've taken a ... well,

DEAR READERS: "Fed-Up Stepmother in Lancaster, Pa." asked if other stepmothers are as fed up as she is. If my mail is any indication, many of them are. Here are some typical responses:

DEAR ABBY: Being a stepparent is your worst nightmare. Don't think for one minute you can "learn to love" his little darlings just because you fell in love with their father. You don't automatically love someone else's kids, especially if you have to deal with the children's mother, who is a manipulative shrew.

After I was divorced, a co-worker gave me a valuable piece of advice: "If you don't want stepchildren, never accept a date with a man who has children.' I wish I had taken that advice. - KNOWS ny, join the club and read on:

DEAR ABBY: Being a stepmother is hell on earth. When I married "Glen," I took on the responsibility of his 11-year-old daughter and 14-year-old son after their mother had walked out on them to "find herself" - she had already "found herself" another man.

Their father got custody, and the mother got visitation every other weekend - when she felt like it, which wasn't often.

She's 36, and still going to school. The kids are spoiled rotten. The son, now 18, moved out four months ago and we didn't hear from him until he needed money for his girlfriend's second abortion. (He's not even sure the baby is his.) His daughter will soon have her 16th birthday, and she's already picked out the car she wants.

If I sound bitter and angry, it's only because I am. —HAD IT DEAR ABBY: I could have written the letter from "Fed-Up Stepmother in Lancaster, DENNIS THE MENACE

* YOU'RE SUPPOSED TO SAY 'HELLO' BEFORE YOU SAY 'GOODBYE' !

Pa." Too many times the child abuse can be abuse from the child. Long before I entered the picture 10 years ago, these children were already highly developed in the art of working one parent against the other.

did not want to be their mom, yet I had to perform a "mother's duties." And I have gone from feeling that a stepmom is only to be stepped on, to really believing stepkids are a "step above" the rest; from "We don't have to mind you; you're not our mom," to "I wish you were my mom," from the 3-year-old to

In my first 40 years of life, I used my ability. These last 10, I have known and used God's — for I could not have done it on my own. I can now say, not because I have to but because I am able to, that I love my stepchildren. My husband and I have six kids between us, and for the life of me, I can't tell you which are mine and which are his. I'm proud to call-them all a step above the rest. Call me pooped, but also ... PROUD IN RED WING, MINN.

DEAR ABBY: I know how "Fed-Up Stepmother in Lancaster, Pa." feels, because I am also one.

When I was 28, I fell in love with a widower who was 38. He had four children. The youngest was 4 and the oldest was 12. Little did I know at the time that he was looking for a mother for his children.

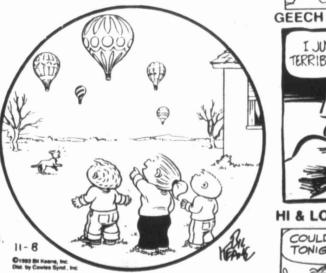

A year after we were married, we had a beautiful baby boy, and the next year we had twin girls, which are three reasons I haven't left him, and probably will not until the children are grown and on their own.

I have some advice for any woman who is considering marrying a man with children: Find a psychiatrist and get your head examined. — TOO LATE
