Police clear 25 burglaries with arrests

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

A break-in at the Spring City Do-it Center on Saturday, Nov. 13, resulted in the arrest of four people and allowed police to clear 25 area burglaries from their files, according to a press release from the Big Spring Police Department.

Roman Wolf Hines, 20, of 1610 Mesquite; Michael Wayne Peterson, 20, of 1507 S. Scurry; and a 16-year-old boy were arrested and charged with burglary of a building.

Additional investigation and information garnered from questioning the suspects led to the arrest of John Williford, 20, who listed an address of HC 61, Box 253, on the same charge.

At approximately 12:30 a.m. Saturday, police officers responded to an alarm reported by Leclair Security.

Upon arriving, officers arrested Hines, Peterson and the juvenile, as they exited the store.

Investigation during the weekend by detectives and an investigator with the Howard County Sheriff's Office resulted in the clearance of approximately 10 business burglaries in the city and one in the county.

Approximately 12 to 15 burglaries of self-storage lockers have also been solved.

"They realized it was in their best interests to tell everything they had done," said Detective Sgt. Scott Griffin about the suspects.

Stolen property valued at approximately $3,000, including VCRs, power tools and a pool table, has been recovered.

According to Griffin, the suspects have not been linked to the Nov. 2 robbery of Chuck's Surplus. However, as that investigation continues, police are "looking into the possibility" of a connection between the Chuck's Surplus robbery and the burglary suspects.

Hines, Peterson and Williford were taken to the Big Spring City Jail.

Peterson is free on $10,000 bond; Hines and Williford are being held lieu of $10,000 bond each.

The juvenile was taken to the Howard County Juvenile Facility.

VA to begin new testing of Gulf vets

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

The Department of Veterans Affairs will soon begin testing Persian Gulf veterans for health problems that may be related to their exposure to chemical agents, according to Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown.

The VA Medical Center in Birmingham, Ala., will soon begin a pilot program in which neurological and other tests will be performed on veterans from Alabama and Georgia who believe they were exposed to chemical warfare, said Brown.

The veterans' symptoms include fatigue, headache, diarrhea, irritability, forgetfulness and weakness.

"We have never ruled out the possibility of exposure to chemical agents," Brown said, "despite the fact that until recently, the Defense Department had assured us there was no evidence that chemical agents had been detected in the Persian Gulf region."

Brown has also directed that examination results of about 10,000 veterans on the VA's Persian Gulf Registry be reviewed to determine if these people should be called back for neurological and other tests.

VA facilities are being asked to submit research proposals specifically dealing with the health effects of exposure to chemical warfare.

"Now that we know some of our men and women may have been exposed, we must immediately focus our research efforts on ways to help them get better and look for the long term health effects," said Brown.

The VA started the Persian Gulf Registry Program at its 172 medical centers, offering physical examinations to Gulf veterans concerned they had been exposed to chemicals.

Three referral centers were also established to handle cases of unusual symptoms in Gulf veterans at VA hospitals in Houston, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C.

Patricia Atkins, public affairs officer at Big Spring's VA Medical Center, said 32 Persian Gulf veterans have come to the center since January 1993, reporting symptoms similar to those of Gulf veterans who suspect chemical exposure.

"At first, they thought it was from the oil well fires," said Atkins. The local Gulf veterans were suffering primarily from headaches, irritability and fatigue.

Atkins said these veterans are now part of the registry program and may be called back for more tests if deemed necessary. "That's what the registry is all about — to make sure we don't miss anybody," she explained.

The Big Spring VA Medical Center serves 46 counties in Texas and one in New Mexico. Atkins was not sure how many Persian Gulf veterans reside within the center's treatment area. She recommended concerned Gulf veterans contact the center at 264-4811.

"Be specific that you want a Persian Gulf exam," advised Atkins. She added that veterans wanting the examination should be prepared to spend most of the day at the center.

On the national level, a panel of experts from the federal and private sectors was assembled by Brown to study the possible health effects of military service in the Persian Gulf. Chronic fatigue syndrome and multiple chemical sensitivity are among the effects being examined.

The VA will establish new environmental research centers focusing on Gulf health issues, including teams of scientists specializing in the study of toxic and environmental hazards.

Moore Board, Mid-Tex near OK for funds

By PATRICK DRISCOLL

Funding to expand the prison operated by Mid-Tex Detentions Inc. - creating up to 100 jobs - may get approved city backing next week.

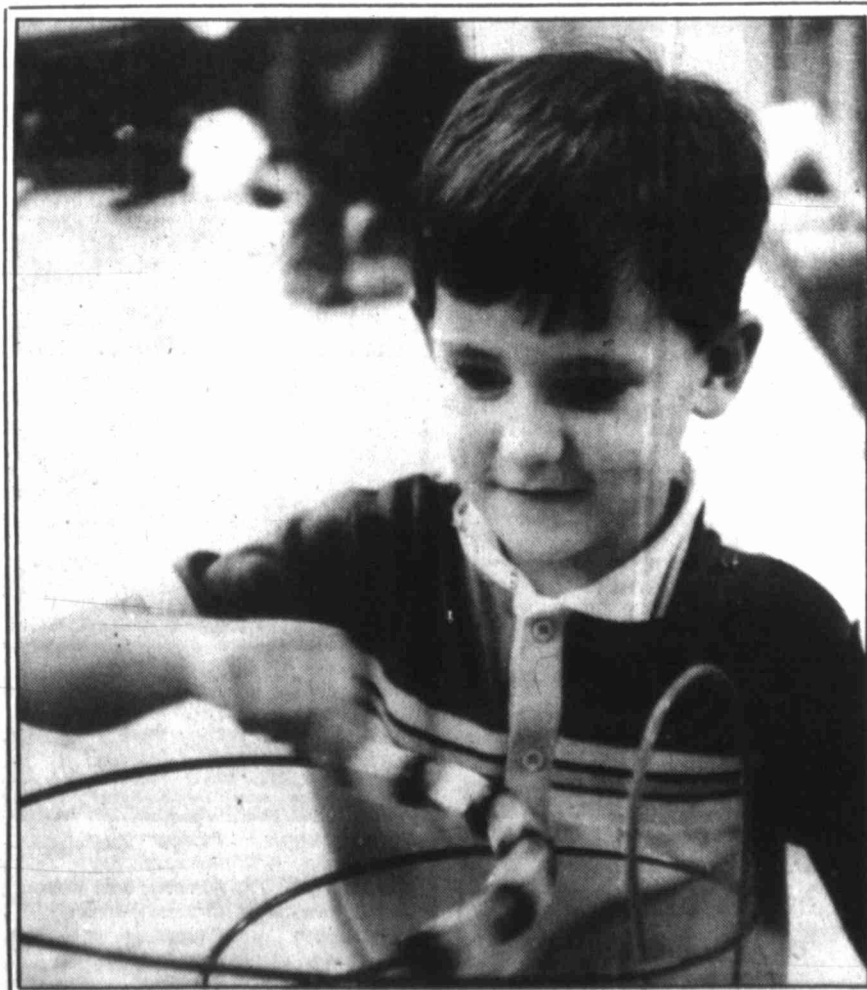

A tentative agreement was reached Monday by representatives of the company and Moore Development for Big Spring Inc., the city's economic development group. Company officials and the Moore Development board now must approve it. Details weren't released.

"I am positive that things will get worked out," said Jim Purcell, president of Moore Development. "We're exploring all options on how we can get more jobs to Big Spring... prudently."

"I'm feeling kind of confident that we're getting somewhere," said Johnny Rutherford, chief financial officer for Mid-Tex. "Based on the feedback from our bankers, we'll know what to approach Moore with."

Mid-Tex initially asked for backing of $2 million to add 500 prison beds to the facility's 785 existing beds, according to an announcement two weeks ago. Officials aren't saying whether all of the request will be met.

Two suspects in girls' deaths now in custody

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH, Texas — Two suspects were detained today over the deaths of two college students shot execution-style in a vacant lot, police said.

The victims may have been fleeing a $6,000 drug debt, police reports indicate.

The two suspects were taken into custody at a south Fort Worth apartment complex, said a police dispatcher who declined to give his name. Further details were not immediately released.

One of the victims, Channing Elizabeth Freelove, 19, earlier in the week had asked her parents for $6,000 to pay her drug dealer, according to police reports released Monday. She told them she had been dealing narcotics and that 10 pounds of marijuana had been stolen from her apartment. Her parents did not give her the money, the reports said.

A week before her death, Freelove went to a friend and asked for help in getting the marijuana back.

Should NAFTA pass, supporters hope to reap bonanza of deals

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supporters of the North American Free Trade Agreement hope to reap a vote bonanza from deals on wheat, citrus fruit and other items as the clock ticks down to Wednesday's House decision on the pact.

An Associated Press survey found that President Clinton and his congressional backers had 193 likely votes for the agreement, trailing the apparent 203 votes in opposition. That left 38 publicly undeclared lawmakers, with supporters needing 218 votes to prevail.

"We're not there yet. This is going to be a close vote," presidential adviser David Gergen said this morning as he used separate appearances on CBS and NBC to deliver a cautious but upbeat assessment of NAFTA's chances.

Gergen said the White House "estimates conservatively that we're within about a dozen votes. I think it might be a little closer than that. ... A number of people are privately committing, but they haven't yet come out publicly."

In a determined campaign to avoid a bruising political setback, the White House was wooing not just undecided lawmakers, but opponents as well. Their weapons: new wheat protections for western legislators, and agreements to protect producers of citrus fruit, sugar and winter vegetables in Florida's big 23-member House delegation.

"It's extremely close, and NAFTA is going to be ratified," predicted Bill Frenzel, a former House Republican from Minnesota advising the White House on NAFTA.

Foes of the agreement said they remained undaunted, and claimed at least 223 supporters — more than enough to kill the pact designed to eliminate tariffs and other restrictions on trade between Canada, Mexico and the United States over 15 years.

Rep. Marcy Kaptur, D-Ohio, a leader of the NAFTA opponents, accused Clinton of "winning and dining people now at taxpayers' expense," a reference to the deals the White House has reportedly offered for votes.

"It's a man's way of doing business," she said in an interview. "I mean, men like confrontation, not cooperation. For President Clinton and many of the men involved, winning becomes more important than many of the values involved. ... I think he's demeaning the debate by doing all of this" deal-making.

A pair of free-trade supporters, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they hope to grab up to a dozen votes from Florida before the House vote Wednesday night. According to the AP survey, five Floridians said they support NAFTA or are likely to do so; 15 are ready to oppose it, and three are undecided.

The state's lawmakers scheduled a meeting today in the Capitol to hear from agricultural interests.

Congressional sources said the administration struck a deal with some lawmakers from Oklahoma and Texas to act against Canadian wheat imports in exchange for their votes.

Guerrillas launch attack on Israel

The Associated Press

MARJAYOUN, Lebanon — Iranian-backed guerrillas today launched their heaviest assault on Israel's self-styled security zone in south Lebanon since the signing of the Israel-PLO peace accord, security sources said.

Four soldiers were wounded, two from Israel and two from Lebanon, and 12 Lebanese militia captured in a spate of ground assaults on villages, the sources said on condition of anonymity. One Hezbollah attacker was killed.

The Shiite Muslim Hezbollah claimed responsibility. Hezbollah is the standard-bearer of Iran's brand of Shiite fundamentalism in Lebanon. It opposes the U.S.-sponsored Middle East peace process as well as the Israeli-PLO accord signed Sept. 13, and advocates war to destroy Israel.

The attacks came a day after the announcement that U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher will visit the Middle East next month to revive the peace process.

NAFTA would send chocolate bars south

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The ancient Aztecs delighted in chocolate as a hot drink, but U.S. candy makers are counting on the Mexican who said "A sweet tooth knows no borders" to expand exports under free trade.

Mexicans are showing mixed feelings about an invasion of made-in-the-USA chocolate bars, which would increase dramatically under the proposed North American Free Trade Agreement.

"It's painful to think we are buying all these American chocolate bars, when really we have much finer chocolate here at home," said Silvia Mena.

But friend Lucilla Granados chimed in, "Boy, do I love that Hershey's bar."

Bitter-tasting Mexican chocolates have long been a favorite here. But more and more Mexicans in this nation of 85 million people are reaching for the American-made chocolate bar to the tune of $76 million last year.

Clinton may cancel S. Korea trip in deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton's top advisers are urging him to cancel an annual military exercise with South Korea if North Korea agrees to permit immediate inspections of its nuclear facilities.

The recommendations are included in a memo to be presented to Clinton today, two U.S. officials said Monday after a White House meeting that worked out the strategy. They spoke on condition of anonymity.

Clinton is expected to make a decision before heading to Seattle on Thursday for a meeting with Asian leaders, including China's Jiang Zemin. China has been working to get the reclusive North Korean government to allow inspections.

Under the proposal advocated by Secretary of State Warren Christopher, Defense Secretary Les Aspin and other top aides, the United States would announce it is canceling next spring's Team Spirit exercise with South Korea.

Some injured find long wait for social security

WASHINGTON (AP) — During the year he waited for Social Security benefits, Fabius Buras had to stop driving, sell his beloved taxicab and turn to charity for food and money.

Depressed by the loss of his income after two strokes, Buras twice tried to kill himself.

Across the country, thousands of injured or ill workers like Buras are waiting for Social Security to decide their claims for disability benefits. Some go hungry, others lose their homes. Families fall apart, people die on the waiting list.

And though Congress recently boosted Social Security's budget by $320 million to pare the backlog and accelerate decisions, the agency's plans to hire more workers now appear tangled in the politics of streamlining government.

Warrant issued to strip search Michael Jackson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Police have a warrant to strip-search Michael Jackson to corroborate a 13-year-old boy's allegations he was molested, a source says.

Jackson's lawyers, meanwhile, said the pop superstar was not trying to duck the criminal investigation when he checked into a drug rehabilitation center overseas.

9-year-olds more likely to read than teenagers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Seventeen-year-olds think it is more important to learn math and computer skills than to read. And only 42 percent spend time each week reading books other than homework, according to a survey on children's reading habits.

Nine-year-olds are twice as likely to read books as are 17-year-olds, the survey found. Some 86 percent said they do so at least a few times a week. The survey was released today by the American Federation of Teachers, a union, and Chrysler Corp.

Poor Mexicans worry more about survival

The Associated Press

MATAMOROS, Mexico — Home for Tomasa Garcia is a shanty surrounded by a blowing, often-burning sprawl of garbage at the city dump.

Home for Maximino Camacho Hernandez is a farming community across the road from a giant chemical plant.

Most poorer Mexicans, such as Garcia and Camacho, are more worried about their daily struggle than about pollution, even though Mexico's environment has received attention during the debate over the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Mrs. Garcia, 37, who collects recyclables to help support her family, doesn't want to see the garbage better disposed. "Here one can find some shoes for the children," she said.

"If they buried the garbage, how would we live?"

Camacho opposes government plans to move him from the house where he has lived for 50 years.

The government wants to relocate those living around Quimica Fluor to provide a 1.3-mile buffer zone to protect residents in the event of a chemical leak. The plant makes hydrofluoric acid for refrigerators and other uses.

"I've been here so many years since they put the Quimica in," said Camacho, a hearty 70-year-old farmer on horseback. "It never endangered me or my family."

Supporters say the treaty would ensure strict enforcement of Mexico's tough environmental laws and provide billions of dollars to clean up the 2,000-mile border with the United States.

Opponents say NAFTA would allow more unchecked growth and accompanying pollution. They argue that the NAFTA side agreement negotiated to satisfy environmental concerns is vague and lacks teeth.

They point to Carbon II, a $1.6 billion coal-burning plant that was set for completion in 1996 about 150 miles southwest of San Antonio, Texas.

Amid pressure from environmentalists on both sides of the border, Southern California Edison Co. recently scrapped plans to operate the plant, which was expected to spew 120,000 tons of sulphur dioxide annually, polluting air in both countries.

"The problem is that no one really knows what will happen to the Mexican environment under NAFTA," said Homero Aridjis of the Mexico City-based environmental group of 100. "What is really needed is an environmental impact report."

What few dispute is that Mexico must improve its environment, NAFTA or no NAFTA. And not just on the border.

From deforestation on the Yucatan peninsula to choking air pollution in Mexico City to untreated sewage and toxic sites throughout the republic, Mexico faces a sobering array of ecological problems.

Many emphasize Mexico's recent progress in environmental enforcement.

Officers for a new federal environmental enforcement agency now inspect and fine industries for environmental crimes. The state-owned oil company Petroleos Mexicanos was recently fined for a chemical spill in the southern state of Veracruz.

"Mexico, in four years, has had to try to move environmentally to where it has taken the United States 25 years to come," said Fred Quintana, executive director of the Matamoros Maquiladora Association, an industry group. "I think they should be given credit for that."

The companies themselves also are doing more, NAFTA supporters say. Jose Rodriguez Anguiano, manager of a project to improve environmental practices of companies at the FINSA Industrial Park in Matamoros, said companies at the sprawling complex are investing in plants to treat their water discharges. Three such facilities are in operation.

Critics of the maquiladoras, as foreign-owned border assembly plants are known, say the water-treatment plants are long overdue. They say U.S. companies should do much more to clean up the border because the industries drew much of the uncontrolled growth of the last three decades.

Slain students may have been fleeing debt

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Two college students shot execution-style in a vacant lot may have been fleeing a $6,000 drug debt, police reports indicate.

One of the victims, Channing Elizabeth Freelove, 19, earlier in the week had asked her parents for $6,000 to pay her drug dealer, according to police reports released Monday. She told them she had been dealing narcotics and that 10 pounds of marijuana had been stolen from her apartment. Her parents did not give her the money, the reports said.

A week before her death, Freelove went to a friend and asked for help in getting the marijuana back.

"If I don't come up with the money or pot in two weeks, he's going to kill me," the 20-year-old woman, who asked not to be identified by name, recalled Freelove saying. "He's not joking, he's serious. This is my life."

The friend told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Freelove told her she had to come up with $5,000 or $6,000.

Jury selected for trial on bankruptcy fraud

DALLAS (AP) — Attorneys for self-proclaimed spiritual adviser Terri Hoffman says she kept changing her bankruptcy filings not because she was hiding anything but because of the complexity of the forms.

"This is not a highly educated woman," attorney Shirley Baccus-Lobel said Monday on the first day of Ms. Hoffman's trial on charges of bankruptcy fraud.

She is being tried on accusations she hid assets from the government in her filings.

A trustee testified that five different times, after saying her bankruptcy filings were complete, Ms. Hoffman revised her bankruptcy filings after they were scrutinized by officials assigned to her case.

"On the one hand she would indicate they were complete," said Molly Bartholomew, a lawyer who was appointed to see Ms. Hoffman's 1991 bankruptcy claim.

Expert faults FBI 'mind-set' in Davidian assault

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI fell victim to a "law enforcement mind-set" in ignoring expert advice and launching a tear-gas assault against a religious cult's complex that led to 85 deaths, an outside authority says.

The FBI could have avoided last spring's debacle near Waco, Texas, if it had heeded its negotiators and behavioral experts who opposed pressure tactics, wrote Alan Stone, a Harvard University professor of law and psychiatry.

Instead, he wrote, the bureau succumbed to the "gut instinct" of the "law enforcement mind-set, the action-control imperative" in dealing with the Branch Davidians, led by David Koresh.

Stone's report was released Monday, five weeks after the Justice Department, an outside evaluator and nine other experts issued findings. He said he used their work and conducted additional studies to pursue unanswered questions. The department hired him and the other consultants to recommend how to deal with similar cases in the future.

On April 19 after a 13-month siege, the FBI used an armored vehicle to punch holes in the buildings and poured tear gas through the holes. Shortly thereafter, flames engulfed the complex.

Whitehead: I'll try to put myself out of a job

AUSTIN (AP) — State Treasurer Martha Whitehead promises if voters elect her next year, she'll work to put herself out of office by abolishing her agency.

"The people of this state are truly desperate to see this kind of reform happen," Mrs. Whitehead, a Democrat who draws a $79,247-a-year salary, said Monday. "I truly believe that state officials ought to be responsive to the clear message that the taxpayers are sending us: that we must indeed do more with less."

But Republicans greeted her announcement with suspicion.

"Beware of Democrats who offer to save money, because frequently their offers turn out to build bigger bureaucracies and cost more," said Karen Hughes, state GOP executive director.

Urban sprawl is a threat to farmland

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The land that produces much of America's traditional holiday food is in danger of being gobbled up, according to a private group devoted to preserving farmland.

"At this time of year, we should all consider the threat facing the farmland that produces the bounty for our Thanksgiving dinner tables," said Ralph E. Grossi, president of the American Farmland Trust.

"All too often, our best and most productive farmland, much of it on the urban edge, is being lost to sprawl that is wasteful, expensive and unnecessary," he said in a news release this week.

Of the 27 top producing counties of such Thanksgiving staples as turkeys, cranberries, sweet potatoes, squash, green peas and carrots, 20 lie in urban-edge counties under pressure from rapid population growth and urban sprawl, Grossi said.

"This Thanksgiving, let's be grateful for the most abundant food supply history has ever known," he said. "But let's also resolve to protect the farmland that makes it possible so future generations can be just as blessed as we are today."

American Farmland Trust is a private membership organization working to stop the loss of productive farmland and to promote farming practices that will lead to a healthy environment.

The organization named the following Thanksgiving staples and the top three counties producing each:

—Turkeys: Duplin, N.C.; Union, N.C.; and Rockingham, Va.

—Sweet potatoes: Johnston, N.C.; Nash, N.C.; and Merced, Calif.

—Squash: Dade, Fla.; Lee, Fla.; and Gloucester, N.J.

—Carrots: Imperial, Calif.; Kern, Calif.; and Orange, Fla.

—Cranberries: Plymouth, Mass.; Burlington, N.J.; and Wood, Wis.

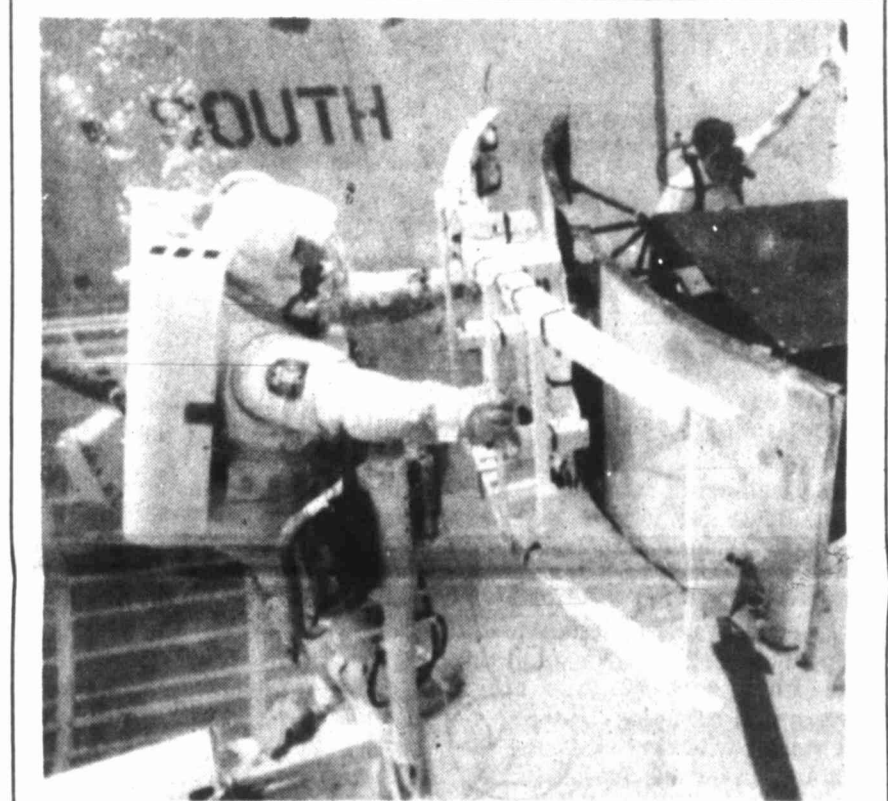

—Green peas: Umatilla, Ore.; Skagit, Wash.; and Fond Du Lac, Wis.

—Snap beans: Dade, Fla.; Portage, Wis.; and Marion, Ore.

—Pecans: Dona Ana, N.M.; Dougherty, Ga.; and Mitchell, Ga.

—Pumpkins: Tazewell, Ill.; Sutter, Calif.; and San Joaquin, Calif.

All the counties were said to be high in development vulnerability except for Duplin, N.C.; Wood, Wis.; Umatilla, Ore.; Fond Du Lac, Wis.; Dougherty, Ga.; Mitchell, Ga.; and Tazewell, Ill.

Imagine manufacturers responsible forever

Fifteen years ago, a single paragraph in a complex legislative catch-all cleared Congress.

In effect, it said that any aircraft manufacturer was liable for any malfunction of its aircraft FOREVER!

Imagine, if you can, what an automobile would cost if the manufacturer were liable for any malfunction FOREVER!

For that manufacturer to purchase adequate insurance protection would multiply the price of any new car.

Because for any malfunction, even 10 years down the road, you could sue.

Many airplanes with periodic overhaul keep flying for 50 years.

The effect of the new law should have been anticipated.

It ruined the airplane business in the United States.

Paul Harvey

Americans who need airplanes are shopping today in Canada, England, Israel, Japan — anywhere else.

In 1978, our thriving aircraft industry produced 17,811 planes each year. Last year, 880.

Piper, which once made 5,200 planes a year, made 113 last year and is in bankruptcy.

But shouldn't a plane buyer be assured the plane is safe whatever the cost? Of course. But listen to the abuse the "forever law" has invited:

Beech aircraft were involved in 203 crashes in the mid-1980s.

Federal investigators blamed the weather, faulty maintenance, air-control errors — but not once was Beech's design or manufacturing the cause of the crash.

Yet Beech, defending itself in court, had to spend half a million dollars on each case.

And the manufacturer must fight even the most capricious case.

The only segment of the aircraft industry which is growing is the "homebuilts" encouraged by the Experimental Aircraft Association.

The small-plane business otherwise is almost out of business.

Some encouragement is on the horizon. Congress is contemplating a law already co-sponsored by more than half the members of the House which could pull the small-plane business out of its nosedive.

Cessna Aircraft, which stopped building piston planes in 1986, says it will resume production — rehiring 1,500 workers — if and when the new law becomes effective.

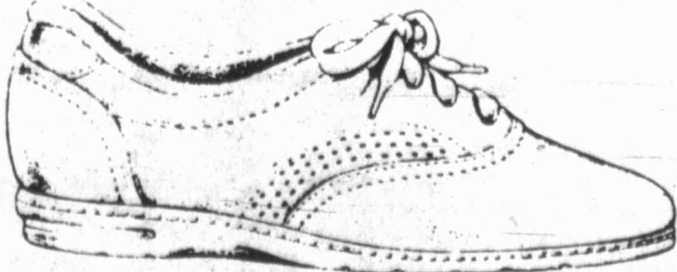

The wording of the new law will be determined by the House Public Works Subcommittee on Aviation, but in effect, it will probably limit any liability on any plane to 15 years.

After that, any fault in manufacture would surely have to manifest itself.

Understandably, the principal opponents to the proposed new law are trial lawyers.

Remembering the women who served their country

It was a long time in coming but seven years ago, the United States started honoring the contribution of women to the Armed Forces.

The Vietnam Women's Memorial was recently unveiled during Veterans Day activities on Washington's Mall. Long overdue, at last the women who served have a statue that recognizes their contribution.

Women have played a role in the wars mankind has seen fit to fight since the American Revolution.

While often times their roles are non-combatative, nevertheless they fought as hard as anyone.

Florence Nightingale was unafraid to tend to the wounded underfire, setting a new precedent for taking care of wounded service men.

And, women in service since have followed her example. But, for the most part, their role has gone unrecognized.

Today, the VA Medical Center is conducting a day-long ceremony to honor the women who served their country. National Women Veterans Recognition Week is Nov. 7-14.

Join the VA in saluting the women veterans who did their part in this country's wars.

Honoring Vietnam's women

Scrrips Howard News Service

The late Malcolm Muggeridge once quipped that, in editorial writing, time is always high. Nevertheless, it really is high time for the vast array of statuary in the nation's capital to include a monument to U.S. military women.

The memorial, which features three fatigue-clad women tending a wounded G.I., primarily honors the 11,000 female service members, mostly nurses, assigned to Vietnam during the war; civilian women who supported the troops through the Red Cross, the USO and other groups; and perhaps 254,000 servicewomen who served during the Vietnam era outside Southeast Asia.

The sculpture implicitly pays tribute to the 1.8 million women who have worn this nation's uniform since Revolutionary times. Female veterans of many wars will look at artist Glenna Goodacre's work and remember bloody heads they once cradled.

Any fighting man whose torn body ended up in the tender care of an Army, Navy or Air Force nurse will surely snap a salute to the new memorial; so will younger troops who depended on females in combat-support roles during, say, Operation Desert Storm. Even so, a few Vietnam veterans have quibbled that the statue chiefly commemorates political correctness. The criticism is misguided.

In the first place, the monument accurately portrays what women did in Vietnam. The three female figures are angels of mercy, not bandaged Valkyries taking on the Viet Cong. Also, although only eight servicewomen were killed in Vietnam, thousands faced its horrors in the shape of dead, dying and maimed G.I.s. A public that for years played deaf to Vietnam's male veterans also ignored the wrenching experiences of female veterans. These women deserve catharsis.

Their monument will join others. The Mall's black granite wall, a visual hush, solemnly honors the Vietnam dead. A nearby statue of three infantrymen pays homage to combat gallantry. The Vietnam Women's Memorial, a short distance away, will acknowledge the comforters.

Some claim all this creates a vista that is aesthetically "busy." We think what is achieved is a sense of completion, and peace.

What makes Perot tic?

Mike Royko

After flipping through a large stack of biographical material on Ross Perot, I still haven't found the answers to several key questions about him.

Does he look under the bed before turning in? Does he sleep with the lights on? Does he often go tiptoeing down the stairs after hearing strange squeaks and bumps in the night? And does he believe in the bogey man?

These might seem like strange questions, but based on Perot's behavior, I'm not sure. For all of his confidence when yipping and yapping on TV, Perot appears to be one real jumpy guy.

Of course, we all have reason to be jumpy. You can be bopped on the head in your hallway or zapped if you tout your horn at the wrong homicidal driver.

But Perot seems to think that there are all sorts of shadowy creeps out there constantly stalking him. No wonder he's so scrawny: He probably can't eat or get a good night's sleep.

He sounded his most recent alarm at one of his anti-NAFTA rallies, causing his loving followers to gasp and look woeful.

The latest mortal danger comes from a band of Cuban hit men. As Perot described them: "A Mafia-like group. And they have been dispatched to bump him off because they are for NAFTA and he isn't."

As Perot tells it, this Mafia-like group of Cubans are in the drug trade. And if NAFTA is enacted, they will be able to smuggle drugs into this country by tucking the stuff into Mexican merchandise.

That is a fascinating plot if you are in the B-movie business. But as reality, it has a few gaping holes.

For one thing, the big-time drug merchants of Latin America have long been highly efficient at flooding us with drugs. The federal government has just about given up on being able to stop them. So why would they want to create a furor and bring heat on themselves by doing away with Perot?

Second, some goof with 25 cents and a pay phone was the originator of this story.

This anonymous caller phoned a tip service in California and said he was with a man who spoke only Spanish. This man had just been released from a Mexican jail. While in jail, he heard about the plot to bump off Perot.

That's it. No names, no specifics. Just a voice on a phone.

Over the years, I've had hundreds of calls of this kind. Often I can hear a jukebox playing in the background and somebody yelling for another round.

But this tip was passed along to the cops and, as a matter of routine, relayed by authorities to Perot.

And in a twinkling, Perot had spread the word, and it was all over the news shows. Naturally, Perot vowed to bravely go on with his anti-NAFTA crusade, despite the mortal threat to life and scrawny limb. What a bold guy.

Of course, he's become accustomed to this kind of danger.

When he was making his run for president, he talked about a plot by armed terrorists to invade his estate in Texas. They were Black Panthers or maybe Viet Cong or some such menaces.

That, too, made big headlines and hot 30-second news squibs on the networks.

But the horde of armed terrorists never showed up. Which must have been a relief to Perot because the cops in his part of Texas said they didn't know anything about any invading terrorist army. Nor did Perot's former security chief. This led to conjecture that Perot might have seen a raccoon run across his lawn. In the moonlight, it would be easy to mistake a raccoon for 25 highly-trained killers.

Then there was the nasty business about a threat to his daughter's wedding.

He said a Republican plot had been uncovered to invade the wedding and spread phony photographs of his daughter that would sully her reputation.

This, too, was hot news for a while. But it also raised puzzling questions.

For one, why wouldn't a man worth two or three billion dollars hire enough security guards to prevent someone from crashing a wedding? And if he couldn't defend the borders of a church from invasion, how could he, as president, defend the borders of the United States?

The anti-wedding plot was investigated and found to be nothing but a fantasy, and Perot hasn't said anything about it since. But, who knows, the villains might turn up with those photos at the daughter's silver wedding anniversary.

So for Perot's peace of mind, I hope that NAFTA is approved. If it isn't, he will be given credit for defeating it, and therefore, he will be blamed.

Then every time he sees a raccoon or armadillo cross his lawn, he will think he has seen Pancho Villa.

When the wind rustles through the trees, he will think he hears a voice saying: "Hey, gringo, what you got in those saddlebags?"

It would be a terrible thing for this man to go through the rest of his life thinking: "I wonder what's really in this taco?"

Hillary picks a villain

WASHINGTON — Every good fight needs a bad guy, and in the battle over health-care reform Hillary Clinton has decided the villain will be the insurance industry.

Mrs. Clinton has been beating up on the insurers, who oppose her plan, as avaricious, selfish, arrogant and profligate.

Once it was explained to the insurance industry that this description wasn't meant to be flattering, a top industry executive retorted — in a word play that we can only hope was intentional — that the first lady's attitude was "very unhealthy."

Mrs. Clinton's problem is that she doesn't want to take on the entire insurance industry, although such an ad campaign offers some attractive possibilities: "You're in Good Hands with — whoops!" or "Get a piece of the Rock — and heave it through Prudential's window."

She wants to pick a fight with the health insurance people, but not the fire, accident, death, auto and business-interruption insurers and certainly not those valuable underwriters who insure the secondary sex characteristics of starlets and the more socially mentionable body parts of major athletes.

The other key parties to the health-care debate — doctors, hospitals and patients — are pretty much unassailable P.R.-wise: doctors and hospitals because you never know when you'll need one, and patients because you never know when you'll be one.

Of course, it could be done, but it would require a major shift in public opinion and the cooperation of the Clintons' numerous friends in the entertainment industry producing TV shows like "Marcus Welby, Quack," soaps like "General Hospital: The Medicare Mill," movies like "The Three Hypochondriacs" and special events like the "Cools Light Celebrity Pro-Am Neurosurgery Tournament."

But Mrs. Clinton doesn't have that kind of time. Good politics requires vilifying the health insurance industry. But how?

Ironically, the first lady is no stranger herself to being demonized.

Her opponents like to portray her as a Svengali-like shrew manipulating her nice but gullible and disorganized husband to further the sinister cause of crazed feminist socialism or socialist feminism or whatever. (A form of government that perhaps we ought not to dismiss out of hand, although one I would prefer to see get a trial run somewhere else first — say, Burundi.)

A truly good villain needs a sinister headquarters, like the Kremlin or the Forbidden City in the great days of the Red Menace. But how do you paint a portrait of shadowy evildoers pulling the strings from their lair in Hartford, Conn.? It's as if the Trilateral Commission were operating out of Mayberry.

A good villain should look like a villain, like Saddam Hussein, and dress the part, like Moammar Gadhafi. But close your eyes and try to visualize an insurance agent. Nothing comes to mind, unless you're married to one, and even then the image is probably indistinct.

How can you not like an industry whose basic proposition is: "We're willing to bet a lot of money that nothing bad happens to you?" I see only one hope. During the State of the Union address, Mrs. Clinton should have her husband read aloud from the fine print of today's health insurance policies until the TV audience slumps into a deep, hypnotic sleep.

Then he should announce that the health insurance industry is preparing to seize the government and impose a feminist-socialist dictatorship. Then Mrs. Clinton can tell the nation it will wake up when she counts to three — or not, as she chooses.

Dale McFeatters writes this column weekly for Scripps Howard News Service.

Hope, goodness after darkest times

MANSFIELD, Ohio — Someone told me there was a man in the basement, and that he was waiting for me.

Indeed there was. Meeting him turned out to be one of the nicest things that has happened to me in a long time — and, as you will see, many of you who read this column should have an exceedingly warm feeling about it, too.

This was in a beautiful, refurbished old movie house called the Renaissance Theatre, downtown here. I had just finished making a speech in the theater, and was attending a reception in the grand, newly elegant lobby, when I got the message: The man was waiting.

So I went down a flight of stairs, and there, in a lower-level waiting area, was an Amish man named Albert Miller. He was dressed in the conservative, dark clothing favored by the Amish, and although I had never had the chance to speak to him before, I felt as if I knew him.

In August of 1991, 10 members of an Amish family were heading toward their farm in a horse-drawn buggy. This was in Morrow County, about half-an-hour from Mansfield. The Amish attempt to live peaceful and simple lives, very much different from the rest of contemporary U.S. society. They have no electricity in their homes, no cars, no telephones; they do not keep photographs of themselves in their homes, because they consider photographs to be graven images. To support their families, they farm and make wooden and leather goods.

On that August night, a man in a pickup truck — intoxicated — slammed into the back of the buggy. Six members of the Amish family were killed. They were Aden Yoder, 27; his wife, Esther, 27; their son Eli, 6; Mrs. Yoder's mother, Sarah

Bob Greene

Miller, 54; her daughter Clara, 16, and son Noah, 14.

Four children of Aden and Esther Yoder were injured, some of them severely. Susie, 5, Lydia, 4, Anna, 2, and Atlee, 1, not only had to be rushed to the hospital for emergency treatment — but, soon after, had to be told that they had no mother and father.

We wrote about the children in a column more than two years ago. They are living on a Morrow County farm with surviving members of their family, being brought up in the tranquil Amish way of life, trying to do their best. The Amish do not believe in lawsuits, so no civil legal action was taken by the family against the driver of the truck (who is currently serving a 6- to 10-year prison term).

And here, in the basement of the old theater, was Albert Miller, oldest son of Sarah.

"I just wanted to come tonight to pass along our thanks to the people who read your column, and who helped us," he said.

When we printed the address of a fund that had been set up to help the Yoder children with their medical care and other expenses, you responded with speed and compassion. To date, almost $250,000 has been sent to the fund, and, at least for now, the children are free from financial worry.

"We are taught to believe that no matter how bad things may seem, something good may come of it," Miller said. "After the accident, it was difficult to believe there could be anything good. But finding out that so many people who didn't even know our family had taken us into their hearts, and had tried to help us — it is one of the most wonderful feelings you could ever imagine."

He had been brought to the speech by Howard Hall, the Morrow County prosecuting attorney who had led the case that put the drunken driver in prison. "Albert said he really wanted to be here tonight," Hall said. "He really wanted to make sure that all the people who have helped his family know how grateful they are. I would never really have gotten to know Albert and the family if the tragedy hadn't happened, but my life is better for knowing them. There are times when I think that if we all could live like they do, this world would be a much more peaceful world."

Hall said that Albert Miller had sat in the back of the theater, and that after the speech he had chosen to wait on the lower level of the building rather than be a part of the somewhat hectic reception up in the lobby. "He just spent some quiet time down here with some of us," Hall said. "Our plans were just to say thanks, and then get a late dinner on the way back to the farm."

Miller was not in any way soliciting more funds for the family, but just in case any of you remain interested in helping, the mailing address is still: Miller and Yoder Family Fund, First Knox National Bank, 10 Plymouth St., Lexington, Ohio 44904.

"The people who helped us are so exceptionally kind," Albert Miller said. Yes, I said. Yes, they are.

Suspects

"If I don't come up with the money or pot in two weeks, he's going to kill me," the 20-year-old woman, who asked not to be identified by name, recalled Freelove saying. "He's not joking; he's serious. This is my life."
The friend told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that Freelove told her she had to come up with $5,000 or $6,000.
"She said there was no way she could come up with the money in time," the friend said. "She was real anxious but she wasn't crying or yelling. She was just real serious about it."
"She wasn't sure what she was going to do. She was talking about moving to California," the friend said.

their bodies were found next to was clothes and a television. Tucked in the waistband of Freelove's jeans was a handgun, police said.
At Golchert's apartment near Texas Christian University detectives found 2 1/2 pounds of what was believed to be marijuana, $1,090 in cash and narcotics paraphernalia.
"We are still investigating the extent of the victims' involvement in drugs," said Lt. Pat Knebllick, a police spokeswoman.
Friends of both victims said the two had experimented with illegal drugs. Some former classmates said they might have also been involved with drug dealing.
Other police reports indicate Freelove had been robbed at gunpoint Wednesday night and reported her apartment burglarized Friday morning.

Freelove, a freshman pre-med student at Texas Christian University, and Golchert, a student at Tarrant County Junior College, graduated from Paschal High School in May.
Golchert's family reportedly lives in Corpus Christi.
The women were found dead early Saturday in a vacant lot in Southwest Fort Worth. They were lying face down next to Freelove's car. They had been shot in the head and neck.

Eighty to 100 jobs are expected to be created with the prison expansion, the second since it opened here in 1989. Payroll would double to $4 million annually. The $6 million to $7 million building would be located at Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.
Used to house illegal immigrants detained by the federal government, the prison is actually owned by the city but managed by Mid-Tex.

Stanton girl stars in upcoming novel

By JANET AUSBURY
 Staff Writer

Erin Wheeler, 11-year-old daughter of Alexis and Gene Wheeler of Stanton, will be appearing soon in a bookstore near you.

Well, sort of. Erin was the model for the heroine of a novel released this fall, "Promise of the Faraway Flower." The children's novel was written by Dr. Tom Parks, a longtime family friend who is on the Clemson University faculty in South Carolina.

"Tom's known me ever since I was born," said Erin as she explained how she became the main character in a novel. "He based the character on me, but not on anything I specifically did."

Although the novel's Erin does not look like her real-life counterpart or act exactly like her, the real Erin Wheeler is pleased with her.

"Promise of the Faraway Flower" is about a seed that is washed into the pocket of a tourist during a tropical rainstorm. The seed ends up 3,000 miles away in the hands of Erin, a sixth-grader who sets out to discover the seed's unique powers.

"Tom told me in mid-summer that I was going to be in the book," said Erin. "He started writing it last fall but he wouldn't tell me what it was about because he wanted it to be a surprise."

And what a surprise it was. "I was really excited. I thought it was great," said Erin. Her friends and family are equally excited, she added.

Erin is quick to sing the praises of Tom Parks as a writer. "He's a really good writer. He's written some plays. He likes to write."

The book, is currently available in hardcover from Kendall-Hunt Publishers of Iowa for $13.95. About 100 pages long, it is targeted to grades 4 through 8.

It will be in schools in about a year and in bookstores by the end of this year, said Erin. Of course, she already has a copy.

"My uncle will probably donate a copy to the library here," Erin predicted. "I think everyone should have a copy. It's great."

Erin said she will sign copies of the books for her friends and anyone else who requests an autograph. She does not plan to capitalize on her literary stardom, however. "I like having one shot at being famous," she said.

The debut of "Promise of the Faraway Flower" was publicized in conjunction with South Carolina's Flower Festival Day and the 125th anniversary of Park Seed Company. Attendees included the governor of South Carolina and many media people. However, the book's best promoter is probably none other than Erin herself.

"Go right out and buy it," urged Erin. "It's wonderful."

Hillcrest Baptist teens sign pledge cards, vow to remain abstinent until marriage

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
 Features Editor

It's not as if they were wearing a big "V" on their foreheads.

But some local students say they've made a decision that could be a source of others' ridicule - they will not be sexually active until marriage.

"This is something I've planned on my whole life," said Kirstie Moates, 16.

"Everybody gets looked at for something," said Julie McKinnon, 15.

Both are among a group of youth at Hillcrest Baptist Church who recently signed pledge cards saying they will be sexually abstinent. They've joined a program called "True Love Waits."

Designed to include the whole family and peer group for support, the program urges them to avoid sexual contact out of respect and love for God, themselves, their future mate and future children.

"If more kids had done this 10 or 15 years ago, there would be less pregnancies, less abortions, less divorces and AIDS," Julie said.

"My parents said they wish this program had been around when my brother was this age," said Brittney Phillips, 13. She said she has some friends who have already had sex, but the program will work for them, too.

"They can get a second chance," she said.

"They can turn their lives around," said Julie.

Amanda Burton, 13, admitted signing the card was not a split-second decision.

"I had to think about it," she said. "I was a little scared at first. I thought about what other people would say."

Shay Adams, 17, said he "catches some flak" for remaining chaste.

"They might say, 'Are you gay or something?'" he said. "But I know it's my choice."

Most of the teens said their parents were behind them.

"They thought it was a good idea," said Mark Miller, 15.

Amanda's and Brittney's parents supported them by giving them rings to wear as a reminder. Marked with a heart, key and cross, the rings stand for love, a promise to God and the "key to their hearts," Amanda said.

"We can look at these rings as a symbol for us," Brittney said. Then, on their wedding nights, the girls plan to give the rings to their husbands.

Julie said "True Love Waits" can make someone feel better about him/herself.

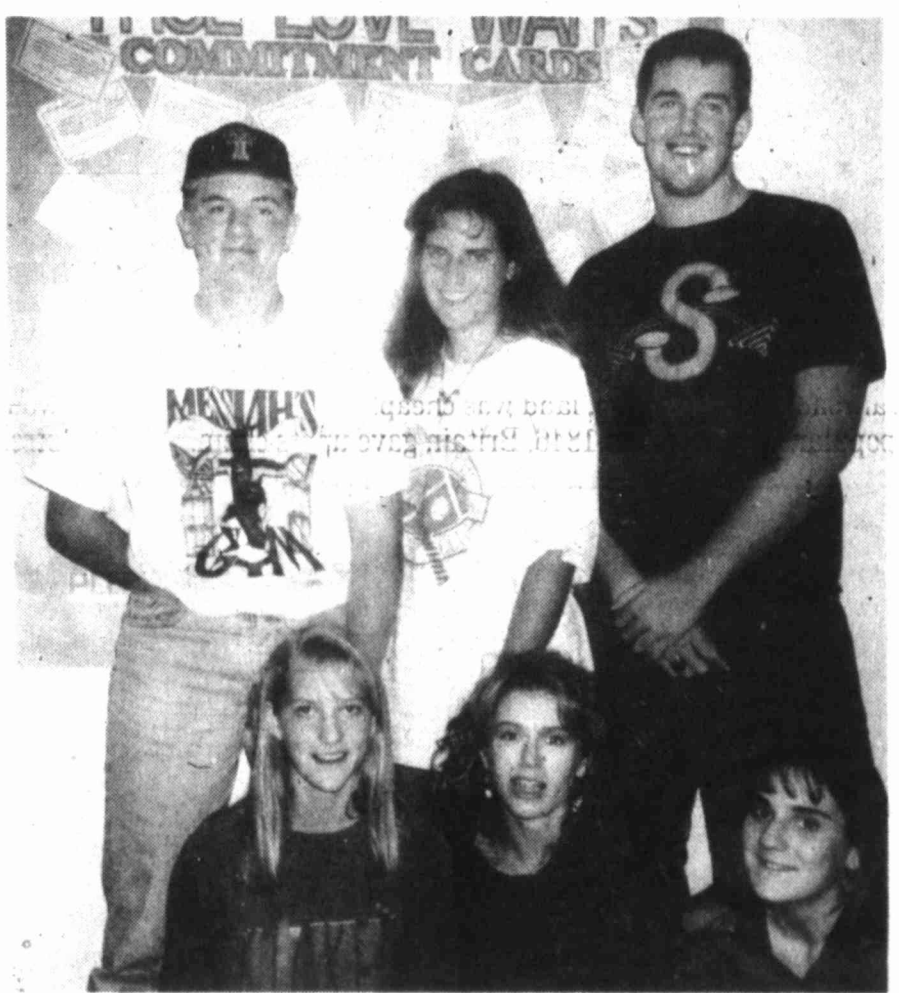

"I think some people might look at us and say, 'Look what they're doing,'" she said.

Shay said it's all about keeping a promise.

"Being able to keep a promise takes a big person," Shay said, "to make it and keep it."

"If you do (have sex), you're not a bad person," Shay said. "But we're saying it's better to wait."

Shay thinks a lot of other kids would sign the card, but might fear they would break the promise.

What about times when the pressure is on?

"I'll think about the card I signed, and about my promise to God," Brittney said.

"What goal do you set out that's easy?" Kirstie said.

Good Sweat

Humans sweat to keep cool. It's the body's way of keeping its temperature down. But sometimes the palms of our hands sweat when we're nervous, or when we do certain kinds of exercise. Why?

David Robertshaw, a scientist at Cornell University, tried to answer this question by studying dogs.

"Dogs pant to reduce their body heat," Robertshaw said. But they also sweat from their paws. When dogs run, this sweat increases friction and keeps them from slipping.

"Humans have similar sweat glands in their palms," Robertshaw said. This may have been left over from the days when humans were swinging on vines. Sweaty palms helped early man grip the vine, just as the sweat on dogs' paws helps them grip the ground when they run.

Crowning a Queen

How do ants pick a new queen? That question has a pretty simple answer: They don't. New queens are just born that way.

Ants live in groups called colonies. In order to survive, the ants must live and work together. A colony is made up of three different kinds of ants: one or more queens, a few male ants and many female workers. Each kind of ant has its own job in the colony.

It all starts with the queen ant. She's the largest ant and her job is to mate and lay eggs. From her eggs come all the future queens, males and workers.

Science lady turns everyday items into magical scene of discovery for students

By BILL SMITH
 St. Louis Post-Dispatch

Give her a raw potato and a couple of plastic drinking straws and Janice VanCleave will teach you about the strength of air.

Give her a paper match and a pinch of modeling clay and she'll put the clay and the match on your wrist and show you the beating of your own heart.

Give her some Elmer's glue and a teaspoon of borax powder and she'll introduce you to Mr. Glob.

Slimy, sloppy, gooey Mr. Glob. Weir Mr. Glob. VanCleave and Mr. Glob recently brought their act, a kind of Old West traveling magical elixir show, to the St. Louis Science Center.

Dressed in a red denim skirt and vest sparkling with sequined cowboy boots, hats and covered wagons, VanCleave used everyday items like metal washers and plastic soda bottles to turn science into something almost magical.

"If we aren't entertaining kids these days, then we're not teaching them," says VanCleave, a former schoolteacher and author of 22 children's books on hands-on math, science and geography projects.

"We're competing with TV, with video games, with the media. To be a good teacher, you've got to be an actress."

VanCleave, who lives in the tiny Texas community of Riesel when she's not on the road, is committed to teaching children that science can be fun.

The Long Trail West The Oregon Trail

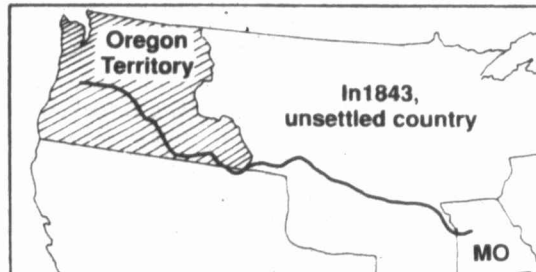

This painting is an artist's idea of life on the Oregon Trail. While older people, young kids and women might have ridden, most people chose to walk. Wagons were uncomfortable and often had no springs.

The Oregon Trail began in Missouri and crossed over what is now a part of Kansas, Nebraska, Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon.

This is another artist's view of what life on the trail was like. Not many photos were taken at that time. Some drawings are not true to life and do not give a very real picture.

Oregon Territory was made up of what is today Washington, Oregon, Idaho and part of Montana.

HOW LONG WAS YOUR LONGEST WALK EVER?
MOST OVERLANDERS WALKED ABOUT 15 MILES A DAY.

The trail

This story is about the Oregon Trail, a long trail of 2,000 miles that many people walked a long time ago. The trip took up to six months.

We are celebrating the trail's 150th anniversary this year.

Mountain men and fur trappers had traveled the trail before 1843.

However, in that year, the migration over the Oregon Trail really got under way.

This migration was one of the biggest overland movements of people ever.

Between the years of 1843 and 1860, more than 350,000 "overlanders," as they were called, took this trail west.

With the coming of the railroad, the Oregon Trail became less popular.

The overlanders did not stop to settle along the way in what is now Nebraska, Wyoming and Idaho.

The United States owned that land but it was not settled. There were no towns and only a few trading posts. The area was known as Indian Territory.

Why did they go?

When people first started traveling over the Oregon Trail, there was a question as to who owned the Oregon Territory—Britain or the United States.

The more Americans who settled there, the better the claim the U.S. had on the area. The U.S. government offered each settler 640 free acres. If they chose to buy more, land was cheap.

In 1846, Britain gave up its claim.

Families left for the West because they hoped to better themselves. The East was already settled. The West offered space and opportunities.

Risks

Indians: Indians were not the big problem that the first pioneers feared. Many never saw one the entire trip. Some Indians even offered to help at first. Later, as more overlanders moved through Indian Territory, serious conflicts arose.

Money: Most of the people who traveled this trail were not poor. However, they often had to sell most of what they owned to get outfitted for the trip.

Life: Many people died of cholera, a disease people got from drinking impure water. They also died from accidents and gunshot wounds.

Loneliness: Leaving behind friends and family whom they would never see again was very stressful for some overlanders.

Go West, Young Reader, Go West

Here are some of the places and things you might have seen and done on your six-month trip on the Oregon Trail. (We have given you the states these places are in today.)

Before you left, you might have studied one of the guidebooks about the trail. Some offered good information; others did not.

LET'S CELEBRATE NATIONAL GEOGRAPHY AWARENESS WEEK.

To Do: Use this page and do more research to write a pretend diary about what you saw and did at these places.

- Westport Landing
- Chimney Rock
- Scotts Bluff
- Fort Laramie
- Independence Rock
- South Pass
- Three Island Crossing
- Blue Mountains
- Columbia River
- Oregon City

1. Wagon trains left from towns along the Missouri River. Your family might have traveled by steamboat to Westport Landing (now in Kansas City, Mo.). This was one of the many "jumping-off" points.

2. Chimney Rock (Nebraska) is one of the trail's best-known landmarks. When you arrived there, you knew that you had gone about one-third of the way.

3. Mitchell Pass (Nebraska) is an opening between two mesas in an area called Scotts Bluff. The wagons went in single file through the pass. In other places, they spread out because the dust was so bad.

4. You would have picked up fresh supplies at Fort Laramie (Wyoming), a U.S. Army fort.

5. You would have wanted to reach Independence Rock (Wyoming) by July 4 to make certain you could cross over the mountains before the snows came.

6. South Pass (Wyoming) is a broad opening through the Rockies that made getting over these mountains possible. The Continental Divide runs through it. This imaginary line is where rivers on the east side flow east and those on the west flow west.

7. By going from one island to the next, you could have crossed the Snake River at a spot called Three Island Crossing (Idaho).

8. Crossing the Blue Mountains (Oregon) was another challenge for your wagon train.

9. For the next part of your trip, you would have built a raft and floated your wagon down the Columbia River (Oregon).

10. At last, you made it to Oregon City! Here you would rest, buy supplies, and move out to settle down in a nearby valley.

Two teams with questions begin getting their answers tonight when the Big Spring Steers and Lady Steers open the 1993-94 basketball season.

The Steers host Seminole in Steer Gym, while the Lady Steers travel to Midland to play Midland High School in Chaparral Center. Game time for both contests is 7:30 p.m.

Steers vs. Seminole

As boys' coach Gary Tipton (who is not averse to a down-home saying) might say, the Steers will be shuffling with a full deck for the first time this season when they host the Indians.

Five players who were committed to the football team - Wes Hughes, Torbin Lancaster, Dustin Waters, Tyrone Banks and Josh Jones - rejoined the team for its Saturday scrimmage with San Angelo and should be more or less at full speed for tonight's game.

"I was pleased with how much they seemed to have retained from last year," Tipton said of the quintet. "We haven't changed things that much, so it's really just a matter of refining their skills."

The Steers, Tipton said, will get a good indication of how they stand this season in tonight's game.

"The thing you look at in Seminole is that it's a great basketball town," he said. "It's a place where little boys grow up wanting to be basketball players. You'll run into a team that's very basketball smart - and very huge, also."

Seminole's front line features two players taller than 6-foot-7, "and they have a real good junior kid who shoots the ball well," Tipton said. "We're going to be jumping into the fire a little bit. It's not going to be easy getting a victory against them at all. I think that can be accomplished, but it's going to take great effort on our part."

Tipton's probable starting lineup for tonight's game has 5-11 junior Aaron Bellinghausen at the point, Hughes (6-0, sr.) at shooting guard, 6-2 junior Trey Terrazas at power forward and Lancaster (6-2, sr.) and Waters (6-0, jr.) at the posts.

"But we'll be playing everybody quite a bit," Tipton said. "I think than I thought we'd be," Taylor said. "We've looked real good in workouts (and) I felt we had a good scrimmage with Odessa and Snyder. The kids seem to be picking it up pretty good."

Another reason Taylor is feeling better is that returning District 3-4A Most Valuable Player Amy Earnst is almost fully recovered from a severe sprained ankle suffered in practice two weeks ago.

"It's still a little tender, but she's getting up and down the floor pretty well," Taylor said. "And she's getting her shooting touch back, also."

Tonight's probable starting lineup for the Lady Steers has Earnst (6-0, sr.) and 6-1 junior Kerry Gregg at the posts, 6-0 sophomore Leslie Elrod at the point and 5-8 junior Robbi Hall and 5-10 sophomore Robin Wise at the wings.

Taylor added he would not be hesitant to go to his bench.

"We going to have some depth. That part surprised me," he said. "Some of the kids have improved. I'm not going to be scared to put anybody in. They should be able to go in and not miss a beat."

Like the Steers, BSHS's girls will face a tough test in their season opener.

"Going by the preseason polls, Midland probably has the best 5A team in this area," Taylor said. "We're going to have to play well to compete with them, but I think we can. (The Lady Steers) have really started picking up things in practice."

Mattingly ties golden record

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees caught up with George Scott for the most Gold Gloves by an American League first baseman, winning for the eighth time in awards announced Monday.

Second baseman Roberto Alomar and outfielder Devon White of the World Series champion Toronto Blue Jays, outfielder Ken Griffey Jr. of Seattle and pitcher Mark Langston of California were among seven of last year's winners to repeat.

Only Seattle shortstop Omar Vizquel, who replaced Baltimore's Cal Ripken, and Cleveland outfielder Kenny Lofton, who took the place of Minnesota's Kirby Puckett, were first-time winners.

Texas catcher Ivan Rodriguez and Chicago third baseman Robin Ventura filed out this year's team.

The National League winners were to be announced today. The Gold Gloves are presented by Rawlings to the best fielders in baseball as chosen in a vote by major league managers and coaches late in the regular season.

Rawlings began the Gold Gloves in 1957 with one combined team. Winners in both leagues were started the next season.

Mattingly matched Scott as the top winner at first base in the AL with his eighth award in nine years. The only time Mattingly missed out was 1990, when he was injured and Oakland's Mark McGwire won the award.

Mattingly, known for his quick throws, led major league first baseman with a .998 fielding percentage this year. He made only three errors in 1,345 total chances, including 84 assists.

Scott won in 1967-68 with Boston, and won again from 1971-76 while with the Red Sox and Milwaukee. Keith Hernandez holds the record for the most Gold Gloves by a first baseman, winning 11 straight times from 1978-88 with the New York Mets and St. Louis.

White and Langston each won their fifth Gold Gloves. White made only three errors in center field and Langston led AL pitchers with 47 assists.

Griffey, also a center fielder, became the first AL outfielder to win four straight Gold Gloves since Puckett in 1986-89. The acrobatic Alomar, who showed off his abilities in the World Series, and Ventura each won for the third year in a row.

Rodriguez became the first Texas catcher to win two straight Gold Gloves since Jim Sundberg won from 1976-81.

Vizquel ended Ripken's two-year streak at shortstop. Vizquel had a .980 percentage and became the first Seattle shortstop to win the award. Lofton, another center fielder, was the first Cleveland outfielder to win a Gold Glove since Rick Manning in 1976.

'Steel Curtain II' falls on Bills; Pittsburgh downs Buffalo, 23-0

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Buffalo Bills couldn't run and couldn't hide from a relentless Pittsburgh Steelers defense, and they were beaten so badly they could have sworn this was a Super Bowl.

The Steelers, playing more and more like a Super Bowl contender, knocked out Jim Kelly, Andre Reed and Don Beebe and shrugged off Barry Foster's own injury to dominate the defending AFC champions 23-0 Monday night.

For two years, the Steelers have talked of beating Buffalo to prove they belong among the NFL's elite. This night, they let the Bills do the talking as inflammatory remarks by Bruce Smith and Don Beebe proved more than sufficient inspiration.

"They made some ludicrous comments ... Beebe said if he played against the Steelers all the time, he'd have 128 touchdown catches," cornerback D.J.

Johnson said. "Defensive backs coach) Dick LeBeau told us about it at breakfast and said, 'Do what you have to do about it.'"

The Steelers (6-3) stuffed the NFL's top-rated rushing offense with the league's top rushing defense, and outgained the Bills 400-157 overall behind big games from quarterback Neil O'Donnell (16-of-27, 212 yards) and Leroy Thompson (30 carries for 108 yards).

"We knew they were the No. 1 defense — and we found out why," the Bills' Frank Reich said. "I don't know if it was a lack of execution on our part or if they were just playing so well."

Thompson now has consecutive 100-yard rushing games at home following Foster injuries. He had 101 yards in the second half against New Orleans on Oct. 17 when Foster left at halftime with a bruised shoulder.

Buffalo (7-2), last shut out 28-0 by Miami on Dec. 22, 1985, lost for the first time in six games and fell back into a first-place tie with Miami in the AFC East. The Steelers won their fifth in six games and lead Cleveland and Houston by a game in the AFC Central.

"When you shut out the reigning champs, it feels good. It shows what we're capable of when we put an entire game together," Johnson said. "This moves us into the upper echelon of teams in the AFC and the NFL."

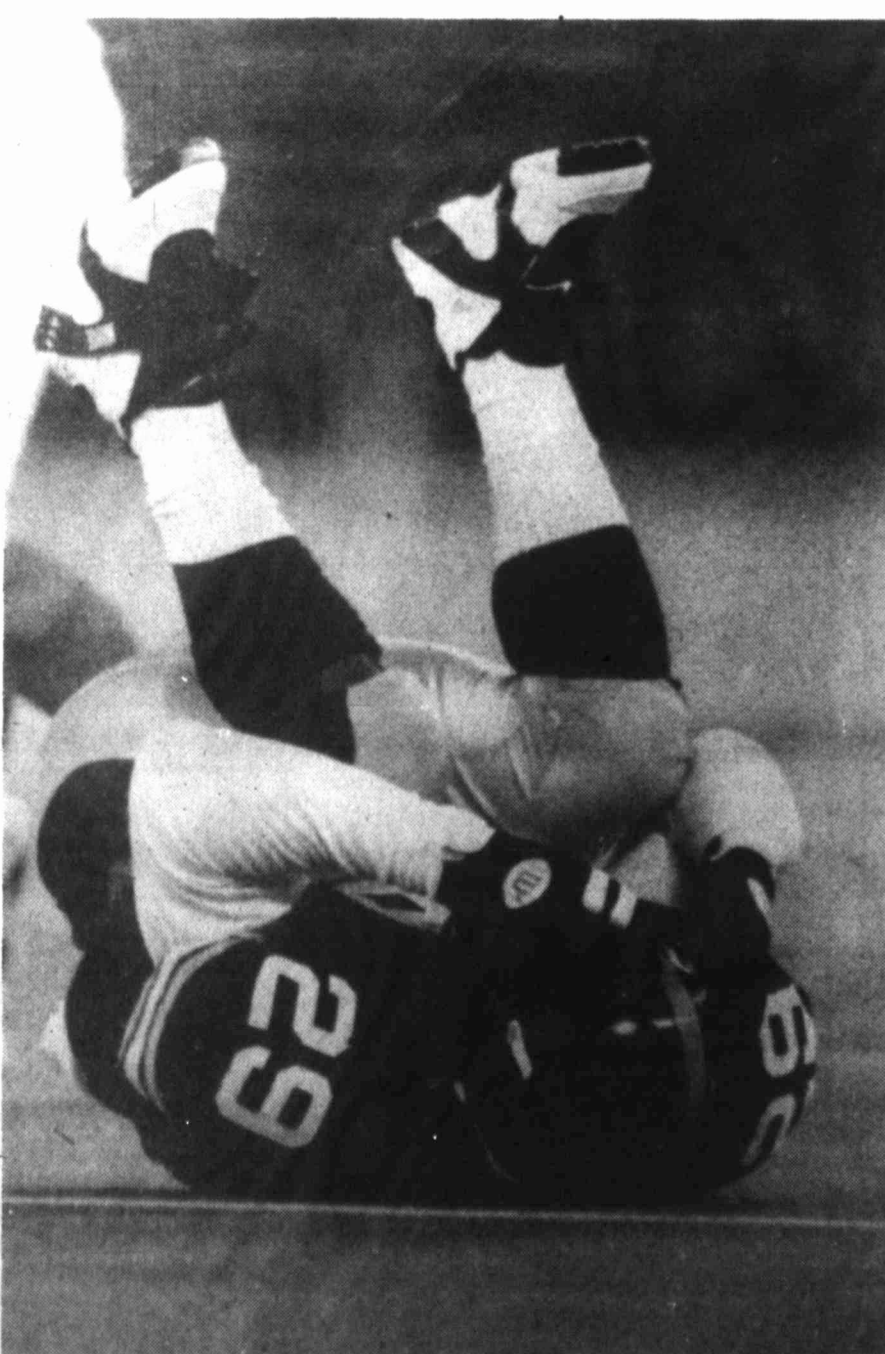

Pittsburgh had lost five straight to Buffalo since 1985, including a pair of defeats last year in coach Bill Cowher's rookie season.

"Does this send a message? The message is, 'We're coming,'" Cowher said.

Neither returned — and neither did the Bills' offense.

All three injured Bills will be reevaluated Tuesday, and coach Marv Levy said Pro Bowl receiver Reed will have a cast applied to his broken left wrist.

Pittsburgh Steeler running back Barry Foster rolls on the ground after injuring his ankle on a run in the first quarter Monday against Buffalo. Foster left the game and did not return, but the Steelers won anyway, 23-0.
