Remembering Kennedy 30 years later

Margaret Lloyd looks over one of two special editions put out by the Big Spring Herald Nov. 22, 1963, the day President John Kennedy was assassinated in Dallas. Lloyd's mother saved the paper. Kennedy's assassination shocked the nation and brought about many changes which have profoundly affected this country.

Death profoundly affected country's functioning

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

The assassination of President John F. Kennedy affected Americans personally. But the popular president's death also affected the country functionally.

The sudden, sad death of Kennedy led to the passage of several of his programs through Congress and also prompted the writing and ratification of the 25th Amendment, which guarantees the lines of succession for both the presidency and the vice presidency.

Kennedy's program for reform, called the "New Frontier," met with partial success when Congress approved several packages such as aid for economically deprived areas, an increase from $1 to $1.25 in the minimum wage and the Peace Corps program.

Other programs, such as civil rights bills, a Cabinet-level Department of Urban Affairs and medical care for the aged (Medicare) did not succeed until Johnson assumed the presidency and galvanized Congress into action.

"Kennedy's death gave Lyndon Johnson a stronger platform to push civil rights in 1964 and 1965 and Johnson played on it," said Roger Olien, professor of American history at University of Texas-Permian Basin.

Johnson was able to convince Congress that quick passage of Kennedy's programs would serve as a sort of tribute to the slain president, Olien explained.

"Johnson used Kennedy's death as his trump card. Had Kennedy lived, he would not have succeeded as well in getting Congress to approve his programs," continued Olien.

He added that most historians believe the Vietnam War started with Kennedy's policies in that region. "Johnson's political skills got him in more trouble than Kennedy because he got more done."

"My hunch is that Kennedy would have had more trouble pushing Vietnam policies through Congress."

An indirect result of Kennedy's assassination was the relatively quick adoption of the 25th Amendment, which was proposed in 1965 and ratified in 1967.

The amendment also allows the vice president to become acting president in the event the president is unable to perform the duties of office.

Dr. Jerry Franks, professor of government and philosophy at Midland College, explained the fears that prompted the amendment's passage.

"Johnson was riding in a car behind Kennedy's when Kennedy was assassinated," he said, pointing out the possibility that the

'Hell is Texas' - on film

By JANET AUSBURY

Big Spring may not be the movie capital of the world, but it was just what three aspiring filmmakers needed.

Former residents Zane Rutledge, Jance Allen, and B. Z. Lewis, all 25, have nearly completed filming of their movie, "Hell is Texas." They praised the cooperative spirit and generosity of Big Spring and area residents.

"We owe a huge debt to this town," said Lewis. "People have bent over backwards to help us," added Allen.

"Zane's mother has been feeding us a lot, too," said Lewis. Big Spring residents Rick Hamby, Russ Rutledge (Zane's father) and Ronda Fowler have roles in the movie, and many local extras were used. "The principal actors, Tyler Mason and Mark Nutter, are from Dallas."

"Hell is Texas" could loosely be described as a Western. The main characters die and discover themselves in a West Texas version of Hell, where the beer is not cold and gunfights and swordplay become a regular feature of afterlife existence.

The filmmakers themselves even have a hard time describing the movie. The script was written by Rutledge, who is also the director. Allen and Lewis are handling the sound and Please see FILM, page 8A

Big Springers shared the nation's shock

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Staff Writer

It was a typical autumn Friday in Texas, cool enough to wear a jacket outside. Many were home eating lunch, some watching "As The World Turns" on television.

Ladd Smith was driving into Dallas, on his way back from Big Spring. He was listening to a live radio report of President John Kennedy's motorcade leaving downtown Dallas. Kennedy was halfway through a three-day swing through Texas to help mend a rift in the Democratic Party and prepare for next year's re-election campaign.

About 12:30 p.m., Nov. 22, 1963, the motorcade with Kennedy's open limousine was headed down Elm Street towards a triple overpass of an expressway, the last leg of a trip from the airport to the Dallas Trade Mart where the president was to speak at a luncheon. Three shots rang out in less than nine seconds. Conspiracy buffs say there were four shots, two at or nearly at the same time.

"My God, it was a complete shock!" said Smith, recalling the moment he heard the news broke by an emotional radio announcer.

As First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy cradled her dying husband's blood-smeared head on her lap, the limousine raced to nearby Parkland Hospital. Police began a frantic search of the area.

Margaret Lloyd, who grew up in Dallas, was home in Big Spring watching "As The World Turns" when the show was interrupted with a news flash that the president had been shot. She called her husband, then president of Security State Bank. Her husband told her Kennedy wouldn't survive with a head wound.

"I couldn't believe he was going to die," Lloyd said.

Big Spring Herald Editor Joe Pickle was home eating lunch after sending the day's paper to the print shop, also watching "As The World Turns," when he saw the same news flash.

"I watched for about 30 seconds and dropped everything and went back to work," Pickle said. "Of course, I was in a state of shock. But your job overrides your feelings."

Traffic signs are not hard to understand

It shouldn't be too hard to understand what a flashing yellow light means, especially at 8 a.m. and near a school. It means go slow, very slow because children are out and about, crossing streets to go to school.

There was a letter to the editor recently from Wanda Mathis about her daughter's recent brush with death as a car nearly hit her in the crosswalk. A crosswalk supervised by a crossing guard who was out there with the child.

No parent should have to watch their child nearly get run over in an area where we know to go slow and be extremely careful.

Is it going to take the death of a child before we wake up and understand it pays to follow the traffic laws? There is no excuse for not obeying them, especially in a school zone. Nothing is worth someone's life.

It is our responsibility, whether we are a parent or not, to see the children get to school safely.

Although the Big Spring Police Department can't be at every elementary each morning, Goliad needs to be given a high priority. A ticket for any and every violation should wake people up to their responsibilities.

But, we should not leave it entirely up to the police. We need to police ourselves, make sure we are being responsible when driving.

We cannot afford wait until a child is hurt or killed before taking action.

Conspiracy theory wins

I was only three years old when the late President John F. Kennedy was killed by a sniper's bullet in Dallas.

But, it really doesn't matter how old you were at the time, Kennedy's assassination had a profound effect on this country.

And, the turmoil surrounding his death has not died down in 30 years since it happened. It was an important event in our country's history, the first president killed while in office in the 20th century.

What's amazing is an Associated Press poll shows that only 12 percent of the American people believe, even with 30 years of investigation and re-examinations of his death, that they have been told the truth of the matter.

According to the poll, seven in 10 suspect a conspiracy. Of those who were young at the time, they are more likely to believe not all the truth has been told.

To gather their conclusion, AP randomly sampled 1,026 adults in all states except Alaska and Hawaii.

The percentage of Americans who believe either the Mafia or the CIA were involved in the conspiracy are pretty close - 56 percent say the CIA and 55 percent say the Mafia. As for Lee Harvey Oswald, 71 percent believe he was part of the conspiracy and only 15 percent believe he acted alone.

Some believe - 28 percent - Lyndon B. Johnson was involved in a conspiracy to kill Kennedy. Also mentioned was the Cuban government, anti-Castro Cuban exiles, the Dallas Police and American military leaders.

More people now believe in a conspiracy than in the poll AP conducted 15 years ago. A startling find was most adults who were infants or toddlers were more likely than the elders to have an opinion. And, the number of people who are unsure or have no opinion is not growing.

Will we ever know the truth? It is possible we already do but it was just too shocking. Camelot gone, the charismatic Kennedy gone. Just to much to lose so suddenly.

Concern, love appreciated

We would like to take this opportunity to let everyone know how much we appreciate the outpour of love, concern and prayers that so many gave to us when we found out that our daughter, Maleah had relapsed with leukemia.

We were overwhelmed with everyone's desire to help.

We want to thank our church family at College Baptist and all the other churches in town that are praying for Maleah. We would like to thank the employees, the Employees Club, and the Union of the Federal Correctional Institute of Big Spring for their support and their concern by giving so much to help us get through this time. We would also like to thank each business and merchant that donated items for the

We would like to thank everyone who remembered us in their prayers. It is great to live in a community with so many caring people.

Attendance a treasure

Thank you for the wonderful, poignant articles about our son, Larry. Debbie Lincecum wrote with skill and caring to capture Larry's persona with artfully combined words. The ads were a beautiful enticement to attend the Symphony.

Our thanks must go to the entire community for the awesome attendance at the symphony performance as well as the outpouring of love for each of us. The officers and members of the Big Spring Symphony and the Symphony Guild went out of their way for Larry, and for us. Gene C. Smith conducted with aplomb the musicians who executed such beautiful music. Dan and Kathy Lusk hosted a lovely reception at their Greenhouse attesting to their competence with food and hospitality. Julie Shirey's party following was, as always, a blast... a perfect ending to an unforgettable evening.

Coming home to perform in Big Spring was a thrill for Larry and for all of our family. We are very humbled by the love shown to us. Each remembrance (flowers, calls, notes, food) will always be our treasures. The people of Big Spring have once again proven their superiority. How grand to live in this incredible town!

Thank you, Big Spring!

Point Deadly crusade for animal rights

By DANIEL T. OLIVER
For Scripps Howard News Service

Scientific studies of cats may hold hope for a cure for Sudden Infant Death syndrome (SIDS), which kills 8,000 babies annually.

But animal rights organizations such as the Animal Liberation Front and People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals evidently think cats' lives are more important than those of children.

When members of the front broke into a Texas Tech laboratory, destroyed equipment and stole five cats involved in a SIDS experiment, PETA was quick to come to the front's defense and it filed a formal complaint with the National Institutes of Health against the professors whose possibly life-saving experiment had been destroyed.

Such actions are typical of the animal rights movement, a $200 million industry comprised of as many as 10 million activists and sympathizers and more than 1,000 organizations.

Of 126 schools responding to a recent American Association of Medical Colleges survey, 76 reported combined losses in excess of $4.5 million and 33,000 hours of lost labor during the past five years as a result of animal rights demonstrations and terrorism. Additional security, insurance and compliance with new regulations advocated by animal rightists has cost the schools an estimated $17.3 million and 170,000 man-hours.

The green movement, animal rights activists fundamentally oppose technological progress. But technology has improved the quality of life for man and animals alike. Many once common diseases virtually have been eradicated. And only relatively affluent societies can afford to keep pets. Millions of Americans pamper pet cats and dogs. In other parts of the world, cats and dogs are dinner.

Animal rights groups are a long way from achieving their ultimate goals, but they are patient. Organizations such as PETA devote great energy to indoctrinating school children through "environmental education" curricula.

Animal rights groups also "lobby for laws and regulations to restrict and eventually ban all animal industries," says Kathleen Marquardt, chairman of Putting People First.

The animal rights movement is indeed a potent lobbying force. A University of Oregon study found that 38 percent of animal rights activists have campaigned for candidates who support animal rights. "Compared to the general public, or even campaign contributors, this level of public activity is truly extraordinary," the study says.

The animal rights movement may be the fastest growing social movement in the United States. Membership in animal rights groups has grown five-fold since 1984, and about 20 percent of all Americans have given money to such organizations.

Counterpoint Deadly actions of laboratories

By CHRISTINE JACKSON
For Scripps Howard News Service

In laboratories across the country, animals endure abuses that would be illegal for someone to inflict on a dog on the street.

A laboratory's public relations department can give you a grand tour of the facility, but they won't show you what they don't want you to see.

Underground animal liberationists, undercover investigators for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals (PETA) and courageous whistleblowers have exposed what really goes on in U.S. laboratories.

Dan Oliver, who considers himself enough of an authority on the animal rights movement to have written a book about it, has his story wrong, we at PETA aren't terrorists.

You couldn't get much more sickeningly sweet than our live-and-let-live philosophy, encompassing every animal from the littlest inchworm to the biggest blue whale. We share a philosophy of no violence to living beings with the Animal Liberation Front, but the ALF is a mysterious, independent entity.

ALF members do the dangerous work; they risk their personal freedom to rescue animals from laboratories, damage torturous or lethal devices and remove documents pertaining to the experiments.

Sometimes PETA receives from anonymous sources documents obtained during liberation actions. Sometimes journalists do. We distribute such materials to Congress and the media so that the public can be made aware of what horrors our federal tax dollars fund.

In the Texas Tech laboratory from which liberationists saved five beautiful cats from certain death, cats had been made to balance on pedestals in the water or run on treadmills for hours at a stretch.

It was not until after details of these gruesome sleep deprivation studies were revealed that the experimenter claimed, suddenly and in contradiction to his grant applications, to be studying Sudden Infant Death Syndrome (SIDS).

A liberation at the University of Oregon exposed the 20-year career of a woman with no medical or veterinary training who sewed kittens' eyes shut, rotated cats' eyeballs in their sockets and made the animals jump from a high platform onto a plank. For these tests, which the experimenter herself admits would have no direct application to human health, taxpayers have paid $95,000 a year.

Whistleblowers — people on the inside who decide to take action to help the animals in their facilities — have worked with PETA to show the public what's going on behind closed doors.

Last year, three employees in the animal laboratory at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, told PETA about the ongoing animal suffering they witnessed there. All were touched by the fate of a dog named Genesee, whose crying, loss of appetite, loss of balance, and circling were diagnosed by the school's chief veterinarian first as a "pulled toe," and later as a "dislocated hip."

He put her in a restraining sling, and the next morning she was found dead.

A PETA investigator, who secured a job in the laboratory and filmed and videotaped the condition of the animals used in scabies experiments, heard rabbits scream when deep scabies scabs were ripped from their ears and saw dogs tear at their skin from the itching.

After reviewing our investigator's evidence, the National Institutes of Health condemned WSU's animal care program and the U.S. Department of Agriculture charged the laboratory with 18 violations of the federal Animal Welfare Act.

Someone who allowed a companion dog to deteriorate so profoundly could be charged with cruelty — and possibly fined or jailed — for not obtaining veterinary care for the animal. But in the laboratory, ignoring animal suffering is all in a day's work.

Christine Jackson is a senior writer for People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals.

Most reasonable people agree that animal should be treated humanely, as is evident from the support enjoyed by local shelters operated by the Humane Society and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. But humane treatment no longer is the top priority of animal rights groups, including the national Humane Society and SPCA.

"It is not larger, cleaner cages that justice demands... but empty cages; not 'traditional' animal agriculture, but a complete end to all commerce in the flesh of dead animals, not 'more humane' hunting and trapping, but the total eradication of these practices," says Tom Regan, one of the movement's leading philosophers.

By this formula, most medical research would come to an end. Insulin, made from animal byproducts, no longer would be available to diabetics. Hunting, fishing and trapping would not be permitted. Even breeding and keeping pets violates the strictures of animal rights extremists.

Like their close ideological kin in

This is partly the result of urbanization. Many American no longer need to come in direct contact with farms or wildlife. To them, milk comes from a carton, not a cow. This makes overblown charges of farm animal abuse an easy sale. Sadly, the dramatic growth in the political animal rights movement diverts resources from front-line humane organizations, such as animal shelters.

We have seen only the beginning of a protracted political contest over the proper status of animals. There's more at stake than fur coats.

If animal rights groups succeed in institutionalizing their agendas, Americans can expect to see less life-saving medical research; higher costs for food, clothing and animal byproducts; and, ironically, increased animal suffering, particularly for wildlife.

Gold Star winners honored

GLEENDA CUMMINGS
Staff Writer

All of the District 6 Gold Star winners were honored at a banquet in Midland at Midland College Road Runner Hall. City mayor, J.D. Faircloth welcomed the honorees and Bill Clanton, City Manager addressed the group of 120.

TU Electric, Texas-New Mexico Power Company and West Texas Utilities had representatives on hand to present the recognition awards to the youth from 23 counties in the District 6 area.

The youth, who were selected by awards committees from their respective counties have spent several years participating in project work, which along with teaching technical knowledge, develops their skills through hands-on activities.

4-H has always been a partner to other education entities which have similar missions. 4-H provides for utilizing classroom knowledge with real life experiences through an array of projects and multi-generational contact using adults, and other older youth such as those honored at the 4-H Gold Star Banquet to teach.

Throughout the 4-H experience members are constantly exposed to activities designed to develop life skills.

The youth who reach Gold Star level have developed life skills that will always serve them in their personal, business and professional lives. Only a select few are chosen for this honor. These few are chosen according to the number of senior members in each county.

Karla Jones and Audrey Strube are this year's winners from Glasscock County. Howard County recipients are Justin Wood and Dustin Gaskins and Martin County winners are Tandi Peugh and Rawley Mims.

Gold Star winners received a framed certificate and a pin for recognition of their leadership abilities.

The luncheon and recognition was sponsored by the electric companies which serve the Extension Far West District 6.

4-H members of this district would like to thank TU Electric, Texas-New Mexico Power Company and West Texas Utilities for their support and encouragement of the 4-H program and the Gold Star. A large portion of the recognition and prestige associated with this and other awards are due to these companies' staunch support. It is small recompense just to say, "Thank you!" but is the only way to recognize the support given, except to continue to be dedicated 4-Hers.

A steel anchor cage is lowered into a hole prepared for one of the 65 foot power poles which will be a part of Cap Rock Electric's current transmission line construction project.

New lines could lead to savings at Cap Rock

Herald Staff Report

Cost control through efficiency is a major goal for Cap Rock Electric.

Construction of a 138kV transmission line will help Cap Rock achieve that goal. By connecting existing transmission lines and substations, the company should show increased reliability and lower wholesale power costs.

Increased reliability will be gained through the integrated loop design of the transmission facilities.

"This particular design will provide two sources of power feed," said Mark Sullivan, Cap Rock's engineering manager. "This will enable us to switch the load if one transmission line should fail for any reason. This will give us flexibility we have never had before."

Cap Rock's new transmission facilities will also tie into the transmission system of Southwestern Public Service Company (SPS) of Amarillo. This will allow Cap Rock to disconnect from Texas Utilities Electric Company in its northern service area and purchase wholesale power from SPS and the Southwest Power Pool.

"Our biggest cost is purchasing wholesale power," said John Parker, vice president-chief financial officer of Cap Rock. "Change of wholesale supplier from TU to SPS will help us to succeed in reducing that cost. This change will provide enormous future savings to Cap Rock's customer-members."

SPS will construct two 230kV transmission line segments, totaling 132.8 miles. The first segment extends from an exchange near Hobbs, N.M., to an interchange adjacent to Cap Rock's Vealmoor Substation, 20 miles from Big Spring.

Poles used in the construction are of Cor-Ten steel, designed to allow the rust to protect the pole and eliminate the need for painting.

A typical pole is 65 feet in length and 20 inches in diameter.

Transmission line construction in Howard County at the present time is north of Big Spring on Gail Road. Cap Rock's current transmission construction project is scheduled for completion Feb. 1, 1994.

Third graders re-create feast

GARDEN CITY — For several years the third grade classes at Garden City have celebrated Thanksgiving with a feast. The students bring the kinds of foods the pilgrims ate at their first feast and a few of their personal favorites.

This year, Thanksgiving Feast for Phyllis Pitts and Rita Bell's classes will be at 11 a.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23. Parents and interested parties are invited to attend.

Drippy Seminar

GARDEN CITY — Everything you always wanted to know about drip irrigation and were afraid to ask — those questions are about to be answered.

A meeting to show the benefits of using drip irrigation and the commitment required of farmers to make drip a profitable investment in the use of row crops, alfalfa and turf is scheduled for 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 23, at the St. Lawrence Hall.

Topics to be covered include: using nitrogen with drip systems and scheduling; the importance of emission uniformity and emitter design; and economic considerations, system leasing and purchase.

This would be a good meeting to attend those interested in improving their lawns or gardens, organizers said, because drip systems can be installed during winter months when lawn care is at a minimum.

Holiday 'Boot-Scout' slated in Stanton

STANTON — There will be a "Denim and Diamonds Holiday Boot-Scout" at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 4, at the Martin County Community Center in Stanton.

Featured will be Elton Williams with Wes King and Stampede. There will be refreshments and a silent auction. For ticket information, call the Martin County Historical Museum.

to air nuclear missile about 250 miles south of Seoul, Korea, when he got a call, which would have been sometime after midnight, saying the president was shot.

"I said, 'You're kidding me,'" said Edens, a Howard County sheriff deputy who was then an enlisted man in the U.S. Army and later a Dallas police officer.

While in the foxhole, Edens was connected to radio communication between his battalion and company commanders. "I was listening to the battalion commander telling the company commander that we were fixing to go on a worldwide red alert. It hit me by surprise, and then about 15 minutes later all kinds of sirens started going off."

Pat DeAnda, then 15 years old, was home from school while recovering from the flu, when she heard. She was sweeping the kitchen floor and listening to the radio when it was announced.

"I can still feel my hands around the broom and I remember freezing, and I remember changing the channels because I kept saying, 'This is a mistake,'" said DeAnda, a teacher at College Heights Elementary and former Big Spring City Council member. "That day changed my mind about how good and pure American people are."

Seven or eight minutes after the shots, Smith continued driving to the Fina Inc. office in the Mercantile Bank Building, where he worked since July when Fina transferred him from Big Spring. He drove down Commerce Street and under the triple underpass of the expressway, the opposite direction the motorcade traveled.

"People were still just standing around like they were in a trance," said Smith, now retired and severing on the city council here.

Similar reactions occurred in Big Spring, according to one of two special editions the Herald put out that afternoon.

"Downtown business establishments came to a grinding halt, customers who were in stores stopped their shopping as word of the tragic event reached them," it states. "Clerks and management gathered to discuss the event."

At 1 p.m., Kennedy, who had never regained consciousness, died. Doctors said he never had a chance. Soon after church bells began to ring in Big Spring and flags at the local courthouse and post office were lowered to half mast. Lloyd called her husband back to tell him.

"It was very, very sad," she said. Ken Morrison, a Big Spring native working construction in Washington State, had just taken a right turn on Taylor Street in Port Townsend when he saw lawyer-friend A.C. Grady walk out of his office with tears coming off his chin.

"Here's a man with a hard nose and tears were falling. I knew it had to be serious for him to be crying in public," said Morrison, now retired and living in Big Spring. It was "totally uncharacteristic of this man to exhibit emotion.... He was an old sorehead type."

Morrison stopped and asked what was wrong. Together they walked down to the Elks Lodge for "a good stiff drink."

Kennedy's death, Morrison said, was "totally unbelievable."

"When the final grim bulletin 'The president is dead' was announced, a silence fell" in Big Spring, according to the Herald. "Some turned and walked away from the radios to stand staring out of the windows. Even the traffic in the street seemed diminished."

"This is a regrettable, a terrible thing," then Big Spring Mayor George Zachariah had told the Herald.

About 1:15 p.m., Dallas police officer J.D. Tippit was shot and killed, reportedly by assassination suspect Lee Harvey Oswald while resisting arrest, about half a mile from where Kennedy was shot.

During that time, Smith and his wife were grappling with whether to sign papers as planned to buy a house in Dallas. Smith, an avowed fiscal conservative, said they were worried about Dallas' reputation as a hotbed of conservatism.

"There was so much publicity about the adamant conservatism in Dallas it was really a tough place to be right then," he said. "I do not agree and still do not agree politically with John F. Kennedy, but that is not the way to solve a problem."

At 4 p.m., about an hour and a half after Oswald's capture in a theater four miles from Kennedy's assassination, and Lyndon Johnson's swearing in as president during a flight back to Washington, Smith signed papers to buy the Dallas house.

Two days later, on Sunday, as Kennedy's body lay in state in the Capitol Rotunda in Washington, Oswald was shot and killed by Dallas nightclub owner Jack Ruby in front of a television audience. Officials said evidence against Oswald was overwhelming. Oswald denied both murders during two days of questioning.

The next day, Monday, Kennedy was buried with full military honors in Arlington National Cemetery.

"I remember the children were so small and they didn't know what was going on," said Lloyd, who watched it on television.

"It was their daddy, my heart was out to them," she said as her eyes brimmed with tears.

On that Monday in Big Spring, citywide rites were held at the City Park Amphitheatre and First Methodist Church. Churches also held memorial services Saturday and Monday. Schools and Webb Air Force Base closed all day Monday and most businesses closed from 11 a.m. to noon. In accordance with a proclamation from President Johnson, churches were open so prayers could be said.

Meanwhile, in South Korea, Edens was relieved from his foxhole position after being kept there three days because of the red alert. He said it was just him and a .50-caliber machine gun.

"It was cold and wet and it rained."

Affect

United States could have lost a president and a vice president simultaneously.

But the greater fear was in Johnson serving the remainder of Kennedy's term with no vice president. "Johnson had had a heart attack and wore a pacemaker," said Franks.

The two men next in the line of succession, the Speaker of the House and the president pro tempore of the Senate, were not particularly young or healthy themselves and would not have been popular choices to replace Johnson if his health failed.

"People saw a picture of the three of them together and it made them afraid of the possibilities," said Franks.

Although Johnson had been re-elected with Hubert Humphrey as vice president by the time the 25th Amendment was passed, the amendment was put to the test several years later.

In 1973, Gerald Ford became the first vice president chosen according to the amendment's provision for filling a vacancy in the vice presidency. He was nominated by President Richard Nixon after Vice President Spiro T. Agnew resigned.

A year later, the amendment provided for the filling of the presidency and the vice presidency, when Ford stepped in to replace Nixon and Nelson A. Rockefeller became vice president under the amendment's procedure.

After 30 years, conspiracy still the top theory

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — After 30 years of investigations and re-examinations of the death of President Kennedy, just 12 percent of the American people believe they have been told the whole truth, according to an Associated Press poll.

Seven in 10 suspect a conspiracy, and those who were young on Nov. 22, 1963, are especially likely to be among the 82 percent who believe the truth has not been told.

In keeping with many recent polls that show Americans suspicious and distrustful toward government, 78 percent think there was an official cover-up.

There are other reasons why the truth could have been obscured: sloppiness by the Warren Commission investigators, a lack of hard evidence, a desire to close a wound to the national psyche. But the poll shows the public suspicions lean heavily toward conspiracy theories.

Lyndon B. Johnson is sworn in as president of the United States in the cabinet of the presidential plane as Jacqueline Kennedy stands at his side on Nov. 22, 1963. Judge Sarah T. Hughes administers the oath of office.

For the first time, the country had a president and a vice president who had not been elected to office. Prior to the ratification of the amendment, vacancies in the vice presidency remained unfilled until the next election.

The amendment played an important part in national affairs more recently when in 1985, Vice President George Bush became the first acting president during President Ronald Reagan's cancer surgery.

Franks urged people to read the 25th Amendment and to understand that it has been used several times to assure the smooth transition of power at the highest levels of government.

Although Kennedy's brief tenure as president ended 30 years ago, many governmental programs and procedures started or inspired by him are still important today, which shows the lasting impact his presidency made on the country.

Robert Crandall, center, chairman of American Airlines, talks with employees at a rally Friday in Fort Worth. The striking flight attendants are in the third day of their scheduled 11-day walkout.

AA criticized for faulty information

Flight attendant's strike enters day 3

The Associated Press

Strike-stunned American Airlines scrambled to give passengers more information about flight cancellations Saturday after the government criticized the carrier for providing inaccurate information.

In the third day of a walkout by flight attendants, American said it had added reservations staff and was better able to determine which flights were likely to run. But most of American's planes were still flying only freight and mail.

"I'm just going to go to the gate, and if it doesn't leave, I've got another flight an hour later," business traveler Phil Andrakakos said at Washington's National Airport.

"As soon as I heard about the strike, I called and I got backup reservations."

The 21,000-member Association of Professional Flight Attendants went on strike Thursday after a year of contract negotiations between the union and the airline broke down over differences in pay, health benefits, staffing and scheduling. The 11-day walkout, timed to coincide with the year's heaviest travel period, is the biggest against an airline since 1989.

According to various reports — including from company pilots — most of American's flights, which usually carry about 200,000 passengers daily, were flying but only with freight and mail. Passengers can't fly on an airplane without the federally mandated minimum number of flight attendants.

American tried to respond to stranded travelers' complaints that provoked an order from the nation's transportation chief to keep people better informed.

Airline spokesman Al Becker said more flight attendants were reporting for work each day, meaning more passengers were likely to make their trips.

The union has estimated that 95 percent of flight attendants are honoring picket lines.

On the picket line at New York's LaGuardia Airport, strikers were joined Saturday by health care workers from Local 1199.

Anne Moroh, a member of the executive committee of the flight attendants' union, said that supporters have "come out by the hundreds ... not only on the picket lines but financially, morally, making telephone calls and every way they can."

Another solidarity rally was planned by Local 1199 on Wednesday — Thanksgiving eve, the heaviest travel day of the year.

When American can't get travelers on another of its flights, they have been competing for a dwindling number of seats on rival airlines.

Neighbor's haunted by girl's face

The Associated Press

BANGOR, Maine — Neighbors used to see 5-year-old Tavielle Kigas watching them from her window. Her mother wouldn't let her go out and play.

One day, her face disappeared. Police found her body inside her apartment last week. Her mother said she starved Tavielle to death because the child was "evil."

The neighbors, haunted by the image of the girl at the window, buried Tavielle on Thursday. They are trying to cope with the senselessness of a young girl's death and the lost opportunities to intervene in a troubled family's life.

"Every day we have to look at that window," said Laurie Stratton, who lives next door in the tidy housing development. "It's hard to eat. It's hard to sleep."

Tonia Kigas, 28, is in jail charged with murder. Police have been unable to locate the father, Todd Kigas, who is wanted for arrest on an unrelated theft charge. The couple were divorced in July.

Ms. Kigas told police she believed her daughter died Nov. 12 because that's when the screams stopped, a police affidavit said.

The affidavit said Ms. Kigas began withholding food and water a month ago because her daughter was "evil." She said she didn't kill Tavielle, but just "let it happen."

The affidavit indicates that Ms. Kigas simply turned up the radio when the little girl screamed, once for a period of more than 48 hours, although her neighbors say they didn't hear anything. Ms. Kigas dialed 911 on Monday.

19-year-old gets life for 'fun' killing

The Associated Press

PATERSON, N.J. — A 19-year-old who strangled a one-time friend while the victim recited the "Hail Mary" got no mercy from a judge.

James Wanger was sentenced Friday to life in prison and must serve at least 40 years before becoming eligible for parole.

"How dare you play God," Margaret Chircop, the victim's mother, told Wanger before sentencing. "How dare you extinguish my son's life, to say my son had no right to live."

Wanger, of Clifton, declined to speak on his own behalf before sentencing but his grandfather, Paul Colombo, tearfully asked for mercy after telling the judge he knew the victim and shared the family's grief.

"None of us believe James is capable of such an act," Colombo said.

Robert Solimine Jr., 17, of North Haledon was strangled in February 1992 while sitting in his car with Wanger.

"It was a murder basically for fun," said prosecutor John Snowdon. Another teen-ager in the car and two others in an adjacent car pleaded guilty to murder in juvenile court and received reduced sentences in exchange for their testimony.

The teens testified they banded together in 1991 to form a group with Mafia-like rituals headed by Frank Castaldo, then 18. Prosecutors allege Castaldo masterminded the slaying but wasn't there. He will stand trial Jan. 3.

Nigeria's senators refuse to back down to dictator

The Associated Press

LAGOS, Nigeria — In one of the first signs of open opposition to the new military ruler, Nigeria's elected senators on Saturday swore not to surrender their seats in the newly outlawed federal legislature.

But the 67 members of the Senate did not say how they would resist the new government.

Gen. Sani Abacha ousted the short-lived civilian government of Ernest Shonekan on Wednesday, dissolving the federal legislature, the 30 state governments and all local councils.

He banned all political activity and said he and a ruling junta were in charge. Like the string of military dictators before him, he promised to institute a new democratic system, but did not say when.

The Senate statement was a rare show of unity for a chamber that had been sharply divided during a long political crisis that began with the cancellation of June 12 presidential elections.

It was issued after the legislators were ejected from their government-paid hotel rooms in Abuja, the capital.

"The military must know that they are not armed to treat Nigerians and Nigeria like a conquered people and an occupied territory," the senators said.

"Every military administration justifies its take-over with claims to have the ability to clean up the society, but ends up being more corrupt than the preceding one."

Abacha is among the most fabulously wealthy of all Nigeria's rulers, military and civilian, all accused of enriching themselves from the West African nation's oil industry.

Nigeria was plunged into chaos when Gen. Ibrahim Babangida, who spent eight years promising democracy, nullified the results of the June 12 election that was to return the nation to elected civilian government.

The apparent winner of that vote, in his first remarks since Abacha's takeover, said Saturday he would have to consult with his advisers before deciding what action to take.

"It was a sledgehammer," Moshood K.O. Abiola told reporters outside his Lagos home.

After canceling the results of the presidential election, Babangida resigned under pressure and named the mild-mannered Shonekan to succeed him.

Abacha said he was ousting Shonekan and dismantling democratic institutions to better grapple with Nigeria's worsening economic woes and widespread civil unrest. Nigeria has been in the grip of a nationwide general strike protesting a huge fuel price increase Shonekan imposed two weeks ago.

music.

"It's all digital," said Lewis proudly about the soundtrack. "The sound is on a DAT (digital audio tape) recorder, and the music is on a Mac computer system. It's very unusual to have a movie with this budget that would have an all-digital soundtrack."

Lewis estimated the film's budget to be in the $20,000 range. Many local residents volunteered time, services, and props or charged minimum prices. Actors and crew personnel from Dallas also took cuts in their normal salaries to work on the project.

Producer Karen Inwood and cinematographer Charlie Bott spent their vacations and weekends flying to Big Spring to work on the film.

Inwood and Bott are former coworkers of Rutledge's, when they all worked at the same Los Angeles computer animation and video production company.

Lewis and Allen had lived in Seattle and worked as musicians. They learned to perform many other tasks, such as lighting and makeup, for the film.

Rutledge said the next few months will be spent editing the movie and negotiating distribution deals. He preferred not to name the companies who had expressed interest.

"One company told us that if the movie is half as good as the trailer, we can get limited domestic release and full-blown international release," he said.

Rutledge further explained that the movie might have wider release overseas because Westerns and other "typically American" movies go over well with international audiences.

Tyler Mason and Mark Nutter portray enemies in the film "Hell is Texas" who end up cooperating in the afterlife, where Hell is a lot like a western, and the beer isn't even cold.

The movie could also be released straight to videotape, which Rutledge said could avoid many marketing and distribution hassles. "But it's kind of a nice ego boost to see your movie released on the big screen," he admitted.

Lewis, Allen, and Rutledge are not sure when the movie might be released but are hoping that a deal will be in place by next spring.

They don't have their next project firmly in mind, but are contemplating several ideas, "preferably shorter than this, unless we have a much bigger budget," said Rutledge.

Although the three are contemplating locating their production company, Puppy Dog Head Productions, in Northern California, they say they will not forget Big Spring when "Hell is Texas" is completed.

"We will definitely have the premiere here in Big Spring," said Rutledge. "After everything everyone here has done for us, we think that's the only way to do it."

"Even if it's released to video and we have to show it on the big screen TV at The Brewery," quipped Lewis.

Support for Tech Prep is being encouraged

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce Education Committee encouraged support of the Tech Prep program in its last meeting of the year last Thursday.

The committee had prepared a list of several recommendations concerning missions, goals, and objectives of Howard College and Big Spring Independent School District.

Murray Murphy, assistant superintendent of BSISD, suggested BSISD, Howard College, and Tech Prep directors get together to share information about the program, which will be implemented next spring.

Cheryl Sparks, president of Howard College, commented, "Tech Prep is preparation for a technological world, not just vocational education."

The committee also discussed its Partnership 2000 plan. The Partnership 2000 brochure describes the mission as "to provide citizens the opportunity to achieve the highest quality of life through a partnership among the students, families, schools, and the Howard County community."

The committee is planning to distribute this information more widely through the community.

Terry Burns, executive director of the chamber, recommended compressing the information into a package which could be run as advertising in the Herald, rather than trying to distribute the original brochures.

The committee also recommended that all chamber committees be allowed time during the quarterly luncheons to update the community about their particular areas.

Sparks described a San Angelo Chamber of Commerce meeting she recently attended and praised its format. "It was seamless; everybody knew when they were supposed to talk and they kept it brief and interesting."

The committee also reaffirmed its mission to encourage sharing of ideas and goals between the academic and business worlds in Big Spring and Howard County.

In other business, the committee recommended at least one joint meeting per year between the Education and Health Committees, and nominated Gary Carter of First National Bank to chair the committee next year. Murphy is the current chairman.

Burglars hitting Tubbs Addition; sheriff's office requesting help

The Associated Press

The Howard County Sheriff's Office is asking for the community's help in stopping a series of burglaries in the southern part of the county.

"We're having a rash of burglaries in the part of the county around Tubbs Addition," said Deputy Investigator Tony Chavez. He added that anyone seeing suspicious individuals or vehicles in the Tubbs Addition area should contact the Sheriff's Office at 264-2244.

A press release from the Sheriff's Office requests help in solving the most recent burglary in that area, which occurred on Thursday, Nov. 18.

The back door of a Tubbs Addition residence was kicked in and a TV, VCR, stereo set with speakers, and men's and ladies' jewelry were taken.

The Sheriff's Office will reward tips leading to the arrest and prosecution of the person or persons involved with this crime. Chavez added that tips leading to the solution of other county crimes will be rewarded as well.

Don't ask any dumb questions

It was just like any classroom, filled with desks and lined with chalkboards. You knew you had to go in, you knew you'd better sit down, but you made sure to sit in the back.

It was just like any college course. You try not to look the professor in the eye - you might be asked a question. And, most of all, if you dare speak - never, EVER, ask the dumb question.

Yeah, it was just another class. Exceptions?

Well, for one thing, between the desks and the chalkboards were nearly a dozen television cameras. Oh, one other thing. The teacher was big. Really big, like a bear. This professor, standing a good 6-foot-4 and gracefully carrying at least 225 pounds, pounced on a room with a menacing posture and a mean stare.

You knew he was in the room before you saw him come in.

It was Intimidation 101 - part of Indiana University's curriculum taught each basketball season by professor Bobby Knight.

I spent two years at The Tribune in New Albany, Ind., before coming to Big Spring, and covering the Indiana Hoosiers during those long winter months was the highlight of my stay.

And the lowlight. Knight's enormous ego makes its appearance before Indiana home games even begin.

Knight has made a habit of entering the gym minutes after his team has already taken the court. The Hoosiers rush onto the court to a thunderous standing ovation. Once the fans' shouts die down, Knight and his red sweater slide onto the court and receive a second and louder ovation - which makes it abundantly clear why Knight doesn't enter with his team.

During the game, Knight actually isn't too bad. Knight's reputation as a referee-baiter is well-deserved, but so many coaches around the country have adopted his attitude. Knight's act is no longer unique. The only difference between Knight and many other referee's-worst-nightmares across the country is Knight's intimidating physique.

But then there's after the game, where he adds to his towering-inferno ego by slamming writers.

Of course, I'm sensitive in this area. A lot of folks up north love Knight precisely because of his disrespect for the media.

When Knight decides to attend his post-game press conference - sometimes he'll send an assistant to either throw quotes to the writers or tell them Knight has left for an early-morning fishing trip - he immediately searches for meat.

He waits for the first question he deems stupid and pounces.

When Knight truly explodes, what he says isn't printable. Knight never addressed me - I never had the courage to ask him a question - but I walked out of some press conferences feeling like Knight had just kicked me out for cheating on a test I never even took.

All of this nonsense was tough to deal with at the time, but now I'm glad I went through it. Living with Knight's faults is easy - he's still a great coach, he (in his intimidating way) cares about his players, the program and Indiana University, and he is entertaining.

But a year and thousands of miles later, I still can't shake the ugly part of the whole Indiana basketball scene. I'm glad I left.

Hoosier fans care more for Knight than for the team. Knight has never scored a basket or blocked a shot at Indiana, yet he gets all of the attention.

Maybe that's Knight's way of taking pressure off his players. Maybe all is right at Indiana. But one advertisement in Indiana's basketball program last season says it all, and whenever I miss covering the Hoosiers, I cure the longing by thinking of this ad.

The ad, for a bank, shows nothing except a dollar bill. In the center of the bill, George Washington's face has been replaced with Knight's.

The caption reads: "Just a suggestion."

Robinson rampage leads Lady Hawks

Ladies finish 3-0 in Howard College Classic with blasting of Blinn

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

The Howard College Lady Hawks are starting to give their coach difficulty in finding things to gripe about.

The Lady Hawks completed a three-game tear through their own Howard College Classic by blasting Blinn Junior College 97-59 Saturday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Classic MVP Annette Robinson, despite playing only 28 minutes, scored 31 points to lead the Lady Hawks, now 10-0 for the season. Cathy Grice added 15 points and Tiffany Johnson 12 for Howard.

Head coach Royce Chadwick, usually not shy in pointing out his team's shortcomings, admitted the Lady Hawks played very well this weekend.

"It was an exceptional tournament for us," he said. "There were spurts where we played as good as any team I've ever coached. A lot of the freshmen are growing up quickly, and that's encouraging."

After routing Fort Sill by 74 points Thursday and Grayson College by 29 Friday night, few expected Howard to have much trouble with Blinn, and the Lady Hawks played up to expectations.

Actually, the Lady Bucks (2-2) stayed close to Howard for a few minutes, and were within two points (15-13) with 13:25 left in the first half. But that's when Howard kicked its offense into overdrive.

Freshman guard Eureka Ray started things off with a three-point play to key a 17-0 run that turned the game squarely into Howard's corner. By the time Blinn post player E.J. Jones sank a short jumper with 7:34 left in the half, Howard had ballooned its lead to 34-14.

Blinn rallied briefly behind another Jones jumper and a three-pointer by Pam Rains, but Robinson sank a pair of free throws and a lay-in off a feed from Grice to start a 21-4 run which ended with the Lady Hawks holding a 55-24 lead at the half.

"In the first three minutes, I don't think we played pretty good," Chadwick said, temporarily reverting to his Grinch mode. "I called a timeout ... and reminded them that we are in the entertainment business and we weren't entertaining anybody. So we cranked it up a notch or two, and they played a lot better."

Besides Robinson, Lady Hawks making the all-tournament team were Grice and post player Angel Spinks. They were joined on the all-tourney team by Jones and Nigel Boyles of Blinn, Jeanne Bailey and Muriel Mitchell of Frank Phillips, Yolanda Miller and Daniel Paley of Grayson, Stephanie Cotter and Shannon Willis of South Plains and Melzetta George and Marie Hamilton of Fort Sill.

In other Saturday junior college action, Grayson defeated Frank Phillips 71-54 and South Plains routed Fort Sill, 104-36.

Irish fall: Now who's No. 1?

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind. - Just when it looked like Notre Dame had found one more miracle, luck ran out on the Irish.

Boston College upset No. 1 Notre Dame and the New Year's Day bowl picture, stunning the Irish 41-39 Saturday on David Gordon's 41-yard field goal as time expired.

Gordon's kick stopped the longest winning streak in the nation at 17 games and spoiled a shot by Notre Dame - which rallied from a 21-point deficit in the fourth quarter - for only its third perfect regular season since 1949. The loss clouded Notre Dame's chances for a ninth national championship.

The Irish (11-1), finally showing some of the emotion that carried them past then-No. 1 Florida State on the same field last week, overcame a 38-17 deficit in the final 11 minutes. Kevin McDougal's 4-yard touchdown pass on fourth down to Lake Dawson with 1:09 left put the Irish ahead 39-38.

But Glenn Foley, who threw four touchdown passes, drove the Eagles (8-2) 57 yards in eight plays to set up the winning field goal. Gordon had missed from 40 yards into the wind earlier in the game.

The victory was the Eagles' eighth in a row and avenged one of their most embarrassing defeats, a 54-7 loss at Notre Dame last year.

The Irish seemed flat for most of the afternoon and looked much different than the team that powered past Florida State last week. Boston College led 24-14 at halftime and scored a touchdown on its first possession of the second half.

But Lee Becton's 29-yard touchdown run, plus his two-point conversion pass back to McDougal, made it 38-25 with 10:12 to play. After Foley fumbled a snap, the first big mistake of the day for Boston College, Notre Dame scored again on Ray Zellars' 4-yard run with 4:02 left and cut its deficit to 38-32.

The Irish got the ball again after forcing Boston College to punt. McDougal threw 46 yards to Derrick Mayes, who made a sprawling, over-the-shoulder catch and put the ball at the Eagles 21.

Vaqueros corral Mustangs

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

MONAHANS - The Sands Mustangs led 4-0 late in the first quarter of their six-man football regional playoff game Friday against Sierra Blanca, and they had first-and-goal on the Sierra Blanca 5. This had been Sands' season to date - take an early lead, add to it and let the defense take care of the rest.

This time, however, Sierra Blanca's defense made the play of the game, and Sierra Blanca's offense took care of the rest.

Sierra Blanca (7-3) kept Sands from scoring on that series with a gallant goal-line stand, then scored on its first play from its own 1-yard-line to seize all the momentum Sands (10-1-1) possessed just moments before. The Vaqueros never looked back and won convincingly, 36-20.

An early field goal from Steven Grigg and two early Sierra Blanca turnovers had Sands in control. However, that first-and-goal at the Sierra Blanca 5 had become a Please see SANDS, page 10A

Boston College's Ivan Boyd (83) celebrates his second-quarter touchdown as he jumps into the arms of teammate Pete Mitchell during Saturday's game with Notre Dame. Boston College stunned Notre Dame 41-39 thanks to a game-ending field goal, so the No. 1 Irish will likely drop from the top spot. The team Notre Dame beat last week, Florida State, could return to the No. 1 ranking.

After gaining another first down, Notre Dame took a timeout before McDougal found Dawson over the middle in the end zone for the go-ahead score.

Becton set a Notre Dame record by rushing for more than 100 yards for the sixth straight game. He gained 122 yards on 14 carries.

Foley completed 30 of 48 passes for 315 yards. He also tied Heisman Trophy winner Doug Flutie's school record for the most completions in a career with 677.

Foley, who had just 121 passing yards in last year's 47-point loss, threw two touchdown passes each to Ivan Boyd and Pete Mitchell as Boston College opened a 38-14 lead early in the fourth quarter. While Foley was rarely pressured, the Eagles' defensive line overcame its size disadvantage and repeatedly stuffed the vaunted Irish running game. Jeff Burris, a safety used regularly in goal-line situations, scored on a 1-yard run to pull Notre Dame to 17-14. Foley then led Boston College on a perfectly executed 65-yard drive, chewing up more than five minutes before hitting Pete Mitchell with a 3-yard pass for the 10-point halftime lead.

Frenship ambushes Lady Steers at Crossroads Classic

Big Spring girls blown out for second straight game

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Unfortunately for the Big Spring Lady Steers, they saved their worst for last at the Howard College Crossroads Tournament Saturday.

The Frenship Lady Tigers, ranked fourth in the state 4A polls, looked every bit as good as their ranking as they man-handled the Lady Steers 72-27 in the tournament's third-place game at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The loss dropped the Lady Steers' record to 1-3 for the season, while Frenship improved to 3-1 with the victory.

Both teams were coming off disappointing losses Friday: Lovelady downed Big Spring 78-49 while the Lady Tigers dropped a 37-35 decision to Jayton. But it was obvious Saturday that Frenship rebounded much quicker from its defeat than Big Spring.

The Lady Tigers employed a suffocating full-court pressure defense that constantly gave the Lady Steers trouble. Frenship's defense caused 35 Big Spring turnovers and kept Big Spring from developing any kind of flow on offense.

Behind Dalawna Meloy (24 points) and Jeremie Field and Yolanda Jenkins (12 points apiece), the Lady Tigers built a 17-3 lead after one quarter and never looked back.

Kerry Gregg led Big Spring with 11 points. BSIS coach Ron Taylor conceded that Frenship had a good team, but also believed that his team did not put forth a good effort.

"Pitiful," Taylor said. "We just didn't compete. I felt we at least got after it. Today, I felt like we didn't get after them at all. Frenship may be ranked fourth in the state, but that doesn't mean we can't run an offense against them. Our kids just went nuts."

Big Spring's offensive woes were perfectly illustrated at the start of the second half. Already down 34-12 at the half, the Lady Steers committed turnovers on 11 of their first 12 possessions of the third quarter, while Frenship increased its lead to 47-12. The game, for all practical purposes, was over.

"It's like I've been saying ... all we can do is try to learn something from it," Taylor said, "and try to get better."

Big Spring post player Amy Earnst earned all-tournament honors along with Angie Brazier of Odessa Permian, Dalawna Meloy of Frenship, Buffy Ferguson of Jayton and tournament most valuable player Stacie Stewart and B.J. Bird of Lovelady.

In the championship game, Lovelady downed Jayton 76-61. Permian claimed the consolation crown with a 65-42 victory over San Angelo Lake View, and Lamesa defeated Lubbock Estacado 46-27.

Big Spring 3 9 6 9 - 27

Sands' Clayton Fryer (44) looks for running room during the first half of Sands' regional playoff game against Sierra Blanca Friday. Sierra Blanca won 36-20. The Mustangs finished the season 10-1-1. Sierra Blanca advances to play Dell City, which beat Loraine.

Tech routs Houston, 58-7

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Bam Morris rushed for 223 yards, including three touchdowns, to set a Southwest Conference single-season rushing record as Texas Tech routed the Houston Cougars 58-7 Saturday and qualified for a bowl invitation.

Morris' 40 carries, a career high, gave him 1,752 yards for the season, breaking Earl Campbell's conference record of 1,744 set in 1977. Morris, a 6-2, 240-pound junior, needed 216 in the game to surpass Campbell's mark.

Quarterback Robert Hall contributed to the explosive Texas Tech offense by completing 20 of 29 passes for 303 yards, including two touchdowns.

The Red Raiders are likely to receive an invitation to the Dec. 24 John Hancock Bowl in El Paso or the Dec. 31 Alamo Bowl in San Antonio. Houston fell to 1-8-1.

The Red Raiders started scoring midway through the first period on a 1-yard run by Hall and held a 31-0 lead by intermission. All four of Texas Tech's first-half touchdowns were scored after Cougar turnovers.

Texas A&M 59, TCU 3

FORT WORTH — Greg Hill ran for two touchdowns, including a 94-yarder, and Corey Pullig passed for two scores Saturday as 10th-ranked Texas A&M earned at least a tie for the Southwest Conference title with a 59-3 victory over Texas Christian.

The Aggies (9-1 overall; 6-0 SWC) won a record-tying 21st consecutive SWC game, placing them in the same company with the 1968-71 Texas Longhorn teams under coach Darrell Royal.

TCU, which lost for the 21st consecutive time to Texas A&M, finished the season at 4-7 and 2-6.

The Aggies struck quickly behind Pullig, who completed three passes for 56 yards before he hit tight end James McKeenan with a 2-yard scoring pass.

Hill scored on a 1-yard run and Pullig and wide receiver Tony Harrison connected on a 71-yard pass-and-run. Pullig didn't play in the second half and finished with 9 of 15 passes for 202 yards.

Hill had 125 yards rushing on 10 carries and didn't play in the second fourth-and-inches at the 1 when Sands quarterback Delynn Reed handed off to Neil Allen, a 193-pound fullback.

Allen never had a chance. Several Vaqueros planted Allen for no gain, and Sierra Blanca took over at its own 1.

"They stuffed our biggest, strongest guy," said Sands coach Bob Keyes. "I'd like to go back and call another play, after seeing that."

Bad quickly became worse for Sands.

Sierra Blanca quarterback Troy Canaba, taking the snap in his own end zone, scrambled to his left and found a wide-open Mark Garcia, who streaked down the sideline for a 79-yard touchdown.

A potential 12-0 lead for Sands had become an 8-4 deficit faster than football players jump on free food. The Mustangs never recovered.

"With that goal-line stand, we made a statement about the kind of football we were going to play," said Sierra Blanca coach James Showers, who is in his first year coaching six-man ball. "When our defense plays well, the whole team plays well, since a lot of them go both ways."

Four minutes later, Sierra Blanca scored on another big play. Canaba, who completed 12 of 14 passes on the night and was the game's leading rusher with 61 yards on five carries, broke two tackles at midfield and reached the end zone on a 47-yard run.

Sands trailed 16-4 at halftime - an unfamiliar situation for the Mustangs - and it had to play catch-up without star tailback Heath half.

SMU 42, Navy 13

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Ramon Flanigan ran for 148 yards and a touchdown Saturday as Southern Methodist closed a disappointing season on a positive note.

Flanigan accounted for 249 of the Mustangs' 297 offensive yards in the first half as SMU (2-7-2) built a 28-0 lead. The redshirt freshman completed 13 of 19 passes and rushed 10 times for 112 yards before half-time.

He left early in the fourth quarter, but by then the damage had been done. Flanigan finished with 15 rushing attempts and was 14-of-22 passing for 142 yards and a touchdown.

SMU's defense, meanwhile, hardly resembled the unit that allowed an average of 34 points in its previous six games. Navy (4-6) managed only seven first downs in the decisive first half and did not score until the fourth quarter.

Texas 38, Baylor 17

AUSTIN — Mike Adams had 267 all-purpose yards and a touchdown and Tony Brackens sacked the quarterback three times Saturday as Texas kept its Cotton Bowl hopes alive and eliminated Baylor from the bowl picture with a 38-17 victory.

The Longhorns (5-4-1 overall, 5-1 Southwest Conference) turned a defensive struggle in the first half into an offensive showcase by running at the heart of Baylor's monstrous defensive line in the second half.

Baylor (5-6, 3-4) scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter on runs of 1 and 14 yards by John Henry, but it wasn't enough.

Texas avenged a heartbreaking 21-20 loss last year to the Bears in Waco that eliminated the Longhorns from bowl contention. Saturday's victory sets up a Thanksgiving night showdown between Texas and Texas A&M for a berth in the Cotton Bowl.

Should Texas lose to the Aggies, it too would be eliminated from bowl contention for not meeting the necessary six-victory condition.

Texas was never seriously threatened Saturday despite four turnovers, two of which resulted in 10 Baylor points. The Bears had three turnovers, including a fumble by quarterback J.J. Joe on the Baylor 17 that resulted in a third quarter 17-yard touchdown run by Texas' Curtis Jackson on the next play.

Adams did most of the Longhorns' offensive damage in the first half, catching three passes for 54 yards, including a lunging 16-yard touchdown toss from Morenz. Adams finished with six catches for 153 yards, his fourth consecutive 100-yard game and sixth this season. He also had 90 yards in punt and kick returns and 24 yards rushing.

Phil Brown took over in the second half, rushing for 145 yards in the final two periods after gaining only 17 yards in the first half.

Steers fall at Merkel; Forsan sweeps pair

MERKEL - Big Spring's boys' basketball team lost 83-75 at Merkel Friday to fall to 0-2 on the season.

Merkel (2-0) led by 10 after one quarter, but Big Spring slowly chipped away at the deficit. The Steers tied the game in the fourth quarter and had the ball, but they could not take the lead.

"We played awfully well at times," said Big Spring coach Gary Tipton. "We just made some errors at the end, and you can't make errors against a team like Merkel. They are tough to beat at home."

Tyrone Banks led Big Spring in scoring with 15 points.

Big Spring won the junior varsity game, 68-57. Big Spring hosts Lamesa Tuesday.

BRONTE - Coahoma's boys' team played its second nail-biter in as many games Friday.

The Bulldogs (1-1) lost at Bronte, 71-65, in double overtime.

The turning point in the final overtime, Nichols said, was when Bronte turned a two-point deficit into a four-point lead in a span of 30 seconds.

Juan Ruiz had a strong game for Coahoma - he scored a team-high 14 points and had four assists and eight steals.

Coahoma's girls' team (2-0) won at Bronte, 47-31. Angela Crippen led the Bulldogettes with 21 points.

Michigan wide receiver Mercury Hayes, right, makes a fingertip catch for a touchdown in front of Ohio State's Walter Taylor (2) Saturday. Michigan stunned undefeated Ohio State, winning 28-0.

District 3-4A teams survive; Midland Lee and Cooper advance

From staff and wire reports

The two District 3-4A teams in the state playoffs, Andrews and Sweetwater, are still alive.

Andrews (10-1), the district runner-up, beat Canyon Randall 44-29 Friday night at Lubbock's Jones Stadium. In the same stadium Saturday afternoon, Sweetwater (8-3) beat Plainview, 28-16.

Andrews and Canyon Randall were tied at 21 early in the fourth quarter, but the Mustangs broke that tie on Bryan Leopard's 10-yard touchdown run. With 5:24 left, Andrews scored on a safety to make the score 29-21. Two minutes later, Kevin Lawrence scored on a 1-yard touchdown run as Andrews pulled away.

Leopard, Andrews' quarterback, rushed for 109 yards on 14 carries and scored two touchdowns. Lawrence had 128 yards and two touchdowns on 19 carries.

Abilene Cooper beat El Paso Riverside 61-22.

Cooper quarterback Zac Allen ran for four touchdowns in the game. Three of the touchdowns were 3-yard runs - the other was a 1-yard run.

Cooper led 26-0 after one quarter. The Cougars will play Fort Worth Haltom this weekend.

In Saturday action, Midland Lee walloped El Paso Bowie, 79-13. Midland Lee (10-1-1) plays Lewisville (11-0-1) this weekend.

Two District 6-2A teams that local fans may have seen this year, Wall and Ozona, were both eliminated. Wall (10-1) lost 24-7 to Goldthwaite, while Ozona lost 33-8 to the Hamlin Pied Pipers.

Rankin won Friday, beating Petersburg 18-0. Wink, District 8-1A's other representative, defeated Plains 28-14. District 9-1A's Roscoe lost to Alford, 23-16.

For more scores, see SportsExtra on page 12A.

Other Friday action

Converse Judson rolled through San Antonio Holmes 45-7 Friday night in a Class 5A Division II regional game. The Rockets' biggest obstacle to repeat was cleared out by Alief Elsik, which knocked out Cy Creek 7-3.

Judson (11-0-1) next faces the winner of Saturday night's game between Eagle Pass (6-4) and Mission (9-2).

Two-time defending 2A champ Schulenburg (9-3) beat Mason 33-7 to advance to a regional game against Freer (11-0), which beat Tidehaven 35-6.

A very young Bartlett continued its run for a second straight 1A title by beating Center Point 20-6.

Upset bug bites Miami, Ohio State

By The Associated Press

Boston College scored the upset of the season Saturday, beating No. 1 Notre Dame 41-39 on a 41-yard field goal by David Gordon on the final play of the game.

The loss ended Notre Dame's perfect season and may have ended its national championship hopes — a dramatic comedown for a team that was talking all week about a rematch with Florida State in the Fiesta Bowl on New Year's Day.

Notre Dame's loss left the national championship picture as clouded as it's been all season. Only one team finished its season unbeaten and untied — No. 6 Auburn, which beat No. 11 Alabama 22-14 Saturday. The 11-0 Tigers are on probation, though, and will not play in a post-season bowl.

No. 9 West Virginia (9-0) beat No. 4 Miami, while No. 3 Nebraska (10-0) had the weekend off to prepare for Friday's game with No. 15 Oklahoma.

No. 2 Florida State (9-1) played North Carolina State on Saturday night.

In addition to Nebraska and Oklahoma, No. 13 North Carolina and No. 19 Arizona were idle.

West Va. 17, Miami 14

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP) — Robert Walker scored on a 19-yard run with 6:08 left as the ninth-ranked Mountaineers beat No. 4 Miami 17-14 Saturday and clinched a tie for the Big East championship.

The Mountaineers (10-0, 6-0 Big East) handed Miami (8-2, 6-1) its first conference loss since the Big East began in 1991.

West Virginia took advantage of a critical holding penalty against Miami to score the go-ahead touchdown on a sweep by Walker, who gained 100 yards on 27 carries.

Michigan 28, Ohio St. 0

At Ann Arbor, Mich., the Wolverines (7-4, 5-3 Big Ten) took control of the Rose Bowl bid out of Ohio State's hands, scoring early and dominating on both sides of the ball. The Buckeyes (9-1-1, 6-1-1 Big Ten) needed either a win or a tie to clinch their first trip to Pasadena since the 1984 season. Instead, their 16-game unbeaten streak ended and they were blanked for the first time in 11 years.

Auburn 22, Alabama 14

At Auburn, Ala., the Tigers beat the Crimson Tide (8-2-1) for the first time since 1989 by coming back from a 14-5 third-quarter deficit. Backup quarterback Patrick Nix came into the game on a fourth-and-15 at the Crimson Tide 35 and threw a touchdown pass to Frank Sanders on his first play to begin the comeback. James Bostic sealed the victory on a 70-yard touchdown run with 2:19 left.

Florida 52, Vanderbilt 0

At Gainesville, Fla., the No. 8 Gators (9-1, 7-1) earned a berth in the SEC championship game for a second straight year. More importantly, perhaps, they played almost flawlessly in the final tuneup for next week's finale against Florida State.

Vanderbilt (4-6, 1-6) had eight turnovers.

Penn St. 43, Northwestern 21

At Evanston, Ill., Mike Archie rushed for a career-high 173 yards and two touchdowns, Kerry Collins passed for 278 yards and Bobby Engram caught eight passes for 132 yards for the No. 14 Nittany Lions (8-2, 5-2 Big Ten).

The Wildcats (2-9, 0-8) ended the season with eight straight losses.

Colorado 21, Iowa St. 16

At Ames, Iowa, A 49-yard touchdown pass from halfback Lamont Warren to Charles Johnson in the fourth quarter rallied the No. 18 Buffaloes (7-3-1), who finished second in the Big Eight at 5-1-1 and secured a coalition bowl bid. The Cyclones (3-8, 2-5) scored 14 points in the fourth quarter.

Indiana 24, Purdue 17

At Bloomington, Ind., Shane Thomas scored on a 10-yard run in the fourth quarter after Purdue rallied from a 17-7 deficit to tie the game. Purdue (1-10, 0-8 Big Ten) finished its worst season in 86 years. Indiana (8-3, 5-3), No. 21, guaranteed itself a bowl bid.

Va. Tech 20, Virginia 17

At Charlottesville, Va., Virginia Tech (8-3) put the finishing touches on another late-season collapse by 23rd-ranked Virginia (7-4), which for the second consecutive year started 5-0 before losing four of six to end the regular season. The Hokies are headed to the Independence Bowl.

Clemson 16, S. Carolina 13

At Columbia, S.C., late-season replacement quarterback Dexter McCleon directed a Clemson (8-3) comeback from a 13-3 halftime deficit. Nelson Welch's third field goal, a 31-yarder with 11:53 remaining, gave Clemson the game-winning points.

Kansas St. 21, Okla. St. 17

At Stillwater, Okla., Chad May's 2-yard touchdown pass to Brad Seib ended a stunning six-play drive that gave No. 20 Kansas State a 21-17 victory over Oklahoma State in a game the Cowboys seemed to have won moments earlier.

May completed five of six passes on the final drive, all of them sideline patterns that allowed Kansas State's receivers to get out of bounds.

The victory gave the Wildcats (8-2-1 overall, 4-2-1 Big Eight) the third eight-win season in school history. It was just their seventh road victory since 1980, three of them coming in Stillwater.

Oklahoma State (3-8, 0-7) wound up winless in the conference for the second time in three years.

The Cowboys seemed to have a victory when Lawson Vaughn kicked a 43-yard field goal with 58 seconds to play. That capped a 10-point fourth-quarter rally that saw them overcome a 14-7 deficit.

As it turned out, May had more than enough time.

He threw for 18 yards to Kevin Lockett on second and 15, moving the ball to the 33. After a procedure penalty, he rolled to his left and hit Andre Coleman for 24 yards to the OSU 48. Then came a 26-yard completion to Lockett, to the Cowboy 22.

A 5-yard completion to Mitch Running moved the ball to the 17. Then the Cowboys were called for pass interference in the end zone, giving Kansas State the ball at the 2-yard line.

On the next play, May threw to a wide-open Seib in the back of the end zone.

Tennessee 48, Kentucky 0

LEXINGTON, Ky. — The seventh-ranked Volunteers continued their late-season tear, crushing Kentucky 48-0 as Cory Fleming and Joey Kent each had two touchdown passes and Charlie Garner rushed 19 times for 186 yards and another score Saturday.

The Volunteers (8-1-1, 5-1-1 Southeastern Conference) have outscored their last three opponents 148-13 since tying Alabama 17-17.

It was the worst loss for Kentucky (6-5, 4-4) since a 55-0 drubbing by Centre in 1921.

Area Fishing Report

Cooler weather may have thinned the crowds, but it didn't cool the results at Lake E.V. Spence last weekend.

Black bass were quite active, with one being reported at 7 pounds, 3 ounces. Larger strippers are beginning to appear, as witnessed in a 16 3/4-pound catch.

From Paint Creek Marina, Kerry Wise of Midland reeled in five black bass ranging up to 4.5 pounds and totalling 17. Dee Anderson of Ackerly hooked five blue catfish up to 21 1/2 pounds, and 52 1/2 in all. Cut bait was used.

Out of Wildcat Marina, Stella Malloy of Odessa wrestled in a black bass weighing 7 pounds, 3 ounces. Odessa's Rancy Barron landed a 16 3/4-pound striped bass.

Gradually, fishing is moving to the relative calm of winter at Lake O.H. Ivie with surface temperature 59 degrees and bottom 57 degrees. Lake elevation was 1549.86, or .66 below spillway.

Black bass fishing slacked off to good with plastic worms in 15-20 ft. working best. Catches with top-water lure dropped off.

Small-mouth fishing continued good along ridges and off points, slabs and large jigs getting best results.

Crappie fishing was fair to good in 15-20 ft. of water along ridges. There were occasional crappie up to 2 lbs.

Channel catfishing was only fair above baited holes in 18-20 ft. of water. There were no reports of walleye and white bass, but a few yellow catfish were caught on trollines.

Port Isabel beat Carrizo Springs, 14-0

Expos deal DeShields to Dodgers; Johnson escapes from New York

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers, looking to add speed to their lineup, acquired second baseman Delino DeShields from the Montreal Expos on Friday in a trade for pitcher Pedro Martinez.

DeShields, 24, hit .295 with 43 stolen bases last season. In four full years in the majors, the left-handed hitter has batted .277 and averaged 47 steals.

Martinez, 22, was 10-5 with a 2.61 ERA in 65 games last season, all but two of them in relief. In his first full year in the majors, he had 119 strikeouts in 107 innings of work.

"I never thought I'd be a Dodger," DeShields said by telephone from his home in West Palm Beach, Fla. "I'm excited. I'm a little bit surprised, but I'm excited."

The Dodgers finished 81-81 last season and in fourth place in the NL West, 23 games behind the first-place Atlanta Braves.

Jody Reed, 31, played second base for them and hit .276 with one stolen base. Reed became a free agent following the World Series and said recently he was hurt that he didn't believe the Dodgers were making much of an effort to re-sign him.

That's obviously something that won't happen now.

Dodgers general manager Fred Claire said: "The point of all of this (the trade) was simply an opportunity to add a young player who we feel is one of the top young players in baseball."

The Dodgers also spoke with Robby Thompson, who recently re-signed with the San Francisco Giants.

DeShields earned $1,537,500 in 1993 and is eligible for salary arbitration.

Last year, Johnson hit .238 with seven homers and 26 RBIs in just 72 games. He spent part of the year on the disabled list because of a viral infection that made him weak and dizzy, and his season ended on July 22 when he broke his right thumb.

The Expos intend to make Martinez a starter next year. He could take the place of Dennis Martinez, who is a free agent and not expected to re-sign with the Expos.

Martinez earned $114,000 last season. He is not eligible for arbitration until after the 1995 season. His brother, Ramon, is a starter for the Dodgers.

Johnson signs with Rockies

DENVER — Howard Johnson, one of six active players to hit 200 homers and steal 200 bases, became the first free agent to sign with another team this offseason, agreeing Friday to a one-year contract with the Colorado Rockies.

The switch-hitting Johnson, who turns 33 on Nov. 29, is a veteran of 11 major-league seasons, the last nine with the New York Mets.

Johnson has displayed an impressive combination of power and speed, averaging 31 homers, 95 RBIs and 32 stolen bases from 1987-91.

Hardin-Simmons honors former Big Spring resident

Longtime Big Spring resident Ed F. Cherry, who died in 1985, was recently inducted into the Hardin-Simmons University Athletic Hall of Fame.

Cherry, whose picture at right dates back to 1937, has a plaque in his honor in Hardin-Simmons' Hall of Fame Room. Those from Big Spring who attended the recent induction included Cherry's stepdaughters, Hoylene Foster and Robin Walker, and their mother, Frances Cherry Dixon. Also present was Cherry's brother, William Cherry of Redondo Beach, Calif., who presented the acceptance speech; and nephew, Loyd Cook of Fort Worth. Cook was accompanied by his wife, Beverly.

CHERRY

Ed Cherry was born to W.T. and Ida Melton Cherry on July 16, 1913. He went to high school at Shamrock, then went to Amarillo Junior College, where he helped the Badgers win a football state title. Cherry then moved to Hardin-Simmons, where he starred in football. He helped the Cowboys to marks of 9-2 and 8-0-1 in the 1936 and '37 seasons.

Cherry was named to the Associated Press 1936 Honorable Mention All-America team after helping the Cowboys beat UTEP 34-6 in the Sun Bowl. He duplicated the feat his final season, and he was also named to the Coca-Cola All-South team.

Against Ouachita Baptist in 1937, Cherry scored four touchdowns on runs of 9, 17, 3 and 34 yards.

The Chicago Cardinals drafted Cherry, who later went on to play for the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Cherry joined the Navy during WWII and achieved the rank of Lieutenant Commander. After the war, he started coaching. He was head football coach at Richmond High School for four years - in 1941 Richmond won its district.

Cherry was raised in Wellington, but his family moved to Big Spring in 1950. He and his brother, John, owned and operated a lumber yard in Big Spring in the '50s, and they also started farming.

Cherry later joined the Howard County Sheriff's Dept., where he served 10 years and was Chief Deputy before accepting the job of Howard County Juvenile Probation Officer. He had that job for 10 years, until he retired.

Cherry was one of the original organizers of the Howard County Mounted Patrol, later known as the Howard County Sheriff's Posse. He served as president of the club for 17 years, and it was under his leadership that the club won the National Title to American Association of Sheriff Posses and Riding Clubs in 1969.

Big Spring teams play in soccer tournament

Two Big Spring girls' soccer teams competed in the Turkey Shootout tournament in Midland last weekend.

The under-14 team, called The Sting, played their first match against the Hobbs (N.M.) Green Machine. Hobbs won 1-0.

In their second match, the Sting stung the Hobbs Bruins with two early goals by Jessica Cobos. The Sting won 2-0.

The tournament was double-elimination, and the Sting lost in their third match, 4-1 to the San Angelo Flashback. Maggie Haddad had Big Spring's only goal.

The Sting finished fifth in the tournament.

Playing well in the forward positions for the Sting were Cobos, Haddad, Alma Gonzales, Kelly Hinojos and Loretta Sterks. Alicia Wood, Juanita Valdez, Maria Hinojos, Amy Phillips and Misty Bryan did well at halfback.

Tracie Bellinghausen, Amanda Salgado and Jaclyn Owusu were strong at fullback. Monica Rubio and Michelle Steward played well as the Sting's goalies.

The under-12 team played three difficult matches - they were short-handed in each one. They played against two Lubbock teams and a Midland team.

Brittany Roberson, Lindsey Marino and Nicci Vizcaino played well in the forward spots. Candice Wade, Kristi Simpson and Valeria Aguirre starred at halfback.

The fullbacks, who also had good tournaments, were Laura Partlow, Krystal Shuttlesworth and Angela Menzl. Anita Valdez played well as the team's goalie.

Coaches for both teams were Josh Owusu and Gilbert Cobos.

Sampras, Graf set to win yet again

By The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, Germany — Pete Sampras blasted his way into the final of the ATP Tour World Championship Saturday with an impressive 51-minute victory over Andrei Medvedev 6-3, 6-0.

Michael Stich beat Goran Ivanisevic 7-6 (7-2), 7-6 (12-10) in the other semifinal.

Stich will replace Jim Courier as No. 2 in the rankings if he beats Sampras, who is assured of finishing the year as No. 1.

Sampras lost only seven points in his eight service games. He won 88 percent of his first-serve points and ended the match with his 1,000th ace of the season.

Sampras has won eight titles this year, including Wimbledon and the U.S. Open, and his singles record for the season is 83-14, the best since Ivan Lendl went 84-7 in 1985.

Graf reaches finals of Virginia Slims

NEW YORK — In a pair of long matches, Steffi Graf and Arantxa Sanchez Vicario fought off unexpectedly strong challenges and advanced to the title match of the Virginia Slims Championships.

Graf, the world's No. 1-ranked player, needed 1 hour, 46 minutes Saturday to beat German Anke Huber 6-2, 3-6, 6-3. Then Sanchez, ranked No. 2, battled for 2 hours, 34 minutes before eliminating unseeded Mary Pierce 6-2, 5-7, 6-2. Sunday's unique final in this season-ending, $3.5 million tournament will be the only best-of-5-sets match the women play during the year.

After Graf's elongated struggle, Sanchez Vicario began as if she would make short work of Pierce, rolling through the first set in 34 minutes.

It turned out to be an illusion.

After the two battled to 2-2 in the second set, there were six consecutive service breaks before Pierce fought off one break point and held to take a 6-5 lead. She then took a 15-40 lead and eventually broke Sanchez Vicario from deuce to tie the match at one set apiece.

Giving thanks

Many blessings Phinneys thankful to have each other

As Ron Phinney lay in a hospital burn unit, recovering from an on-the-job accident, his dad came by for a visit. At some point, Clovis Phinney took out a cigarette he planned to smoke.

"I told him two Phinneys had already dodged bullets and if he quit smoking, he might dodge one, too," Ron recalled. Little did he know how prophetic those words would seem later.

At the time, Ron was referring to his own survival of a shock of 12,000 volts in an accident that happened not long after his brother came close to death during a lunch hour.

On Oct. 16, 1991, Feron Phinney, a real estate officer for a Killen bank, was headed to lunch with some colleagues.

He and another man started for Luby's Cafeteria, where they would meet some other bank employees. But at the last minute, they decided to eat barbecue.

Less than an hour later, the world watched in horror as George Hennard began a shooting spree in that Luby's restaurant.

"We heard about it on the radio, and we knew he went there to eat all the time," said Janie Phinney, mother of Feron, Ron and daughter Lusara Wegner. "We were scared to death."

But his parents soon found out Feron was all right, in fact he had gone to the Luby's during the aftermath of the massacre to see about some colleagues.

At the time, their son's close call was a great relief to the Phinneys, but little more.

Then, about five months later, another son took a brush with

From left are Shelly, Ron, Clovis and Janie Phinney. Three of the family have survived brushes with death in the last few years.

'If it hadn't been but for a little bit of faith, there'd be too many Phinneys in the cemetery. We've got a lot to be thankful for this year.'

Ron Phinney

death. On May 28, 1992, after an electrical storm, Ron Phinney went to check some power lines near Itan for his company, Chevron.

But a faulty or miswired switch meant the power didn't go off when Ron and his co-workers thought it had. High on a bucket truck, he grabbed two wires - and took 12,000 volts in one hand and out the other.

As Ron headed to the hospital, someone called his wife, Shelly, and a friend went to tell his parents.

"We saw him (Ron's friend) coming up the walk out there, and he had his head down," recalled Clovis. All Janie could say, he added, "was 'Oh, no.'"

Janie said she knew something had happened to Ron.

"I thought this was it," she said.

Shelly arrived at the hospital before Ron, and saw him come in on the ambulance. She thought he had been burned, possibly that he had lost his hands.

Meanwhile, Ron was feeling some of the most intense pain he had ever experienced.

"It was like the hairs on my chest were needles," he recalled.

"I went to touch him, and he said, 'Dad, don't do that. It hurts too much,'" said Clovis.

Ron would recover, but with little feeling in one arm and several other health problems. He would have to go back to school and find another job.

"But I knew I was extremely lucky," Ron said. On the hospital burn unit, he saw other patients who lost limbs because of similar shocks.

Meanwhile, Clovis must have heard his son's hospital-room advice. The Fina refinery retiree quit smoking about the time of the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout in November of that same year.

His doctor promised him a free physical if he would stick with it three months. He did.

"But that doctor moved away," Janie explained. So Clovis put off the physical and soon they had to find another physician.

Clovis told him of the previous doctor's promise, and he agreed to honor it.

It was the following summer before he got the physical, and everything checked out fine. But because of a family history of heart trouble, and the years of smoking, the doctor suggested a stress test.

Clovis failed the test.

On Oct. 26, the elder Phinney had triple bypass surgery on his heart.

"I felt fine. I was cutting wood the week before," Clovis said. But, from what his friends tell him, he's going to feel like cutting a whole lot more wood soon.

"They tell me, 'You aren't going to believe how much better you feel,'" Clovis said. His doctors told him at the time he failed the stress test, he had been heading for a heart attack.

Now, the family is counting its blessings. The Phinneys have a new appreciation for how lucky they are to have each other.

"If it hadn't been but for a little bit of faith, there'd be too many Phinneys in the cemetery," said Ron. "We've got a lot to be thankful for this year."

Children - her life's joy

Young faces brighten Hilario home, she can't imagine life without them

As Dolores Hilario sees it, having the children is enough.

The 37-year-old Big Spring resident has three children of her own, but raises for a niece and nephew as well. Sharing her small home are Jonathan Paul, 1; Marcus, 4; Deborah, 15; Louis, 17; and Robert, 18.

Dolores, who never finished high school, relies on public assistance while she looks for a job. But she's thankful for what she has - and enjoys a houseful of youthful energy.

"I can't imagine life without my kids," she said. "I'd rather them be here than anywhere."

Having three teenagers around the house would give some mothers fits. Not Dolores.

"They don't have a father living here, but they don't get into trouble," she said. "I talk to them, tell them they'd better not get into trouble because I can't get them out."

Dolores took in her niece, Deborah, when Dolores' mother - the girl's guardian - died. Jonathan Paul came into her care when his father was unable to provide him a good home. She's working on custody.

"I like kids. They never get on my nerves like they do some people," Dolores says. In fact, they give her as much as she gives them, Dolores said.

"I just love them, and they love me back, that's all."

Times get tough financially, and this Christmas, Dolores hopes to get good and gifts from the Northside Community Center to brighten the holidays. She doesn't worry much.

"I've got food to feed my kids," she said. "They're okay and in good health and everything."

A few years ago, Dolores lost her mother and two brothers in a year's time.

"If I didn't have my kids then, I don't know what I would have done," she said. "I just pray to God to give me strength to handle everything."

Bryan and Belinda Beck, shown by the Howard College sign, made her education a priority in their family. Now Belinda says she realizes what a sacrifice her husband made, and appreciates him more than she can say.

A husband's sacrifice

Bryan Beck makes wife's education possible

Like most people, Belinda and Bryan Beck stay busy with work, children and school.

But the two, high school sweethearts who married eight years ago, have managed to keep up with their non-stop lives without sacrificing their relationship.

"About 2-1/2 years ago, we decided to send me to dental hygiene school here at Howard College," Belinda explained in a letter to the Herald. She answered an ad asking for stories about being thankful.

Belinda's answer? She's thankful for the man she married.

"Not only did he send me to college, but he took the role of being part-time cook, housekeeper, 'Mr. Mom' and study partner," she wrote. "There is no way I could make it in college without him by my side - he's wonderful!"

Although she admits furthering her education and raising two children can be stressful, she says having Bryan around makes it easier. She hangs on with his encouragement and support.

"I'm so thankful," Belinda concluded, "that we still have a loving, trusting, give-and-take relationship in an age where it seems no one can stay together."

Corral honored with Showcase award

Nine innovative programs in the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation system won 1993 Showcase Awards at the annual Helen Farrabee Conference in Austin. Award winners are programs and services which focus on three key elements of the agency's vision - community - based services, the evolving role of state facilities, and consumer/customer driven services.

In the Mental Health category, Big Spring State Hospital - The Corral, a psychosocial rehabilitation program, was a winner.

The program is operated in downtown Big Spring. It is a gathering place for individuals with mental illness who are working their way back into the community. As volunteers, they give many hours to community projects and events, including Christmas in April, Artfest and Cinco de Mayo.

In addition, The Corral provides consumers with vocational programs that result in meaningful employment. Two new employees of the Lions Club and one at the Herald were trained at The Corral.

This is a valuable and needed service offered to consumers, who are able to use their skills to become productive members of our community. If you have jobs during the holidays and need some extra help, call Adrian Ayala at The Corral, 263-0900. He is the job developer and does a great job of coordinating employees and employers.

Thanksgiving services for BSSH patients, staff and the community will be Wednesday, in the Tollett-All-Faith Chapel at 10:15 a.m. Chaplain Rick Foster will be conducting the services.

Following the Thanksgiving holidays, Christmas will be in full swing. Santa's helpers are stocking shelves and beginning to fill wish lists.

If you would like to donate to BSSH patients, and have little shopping time, a $10 donation will buy a sweatshirt and the volunteers will do your shopping for you. Sweatshirts are comfortable and warm for patient activities, and we would like to be able to purchase one for each patient. The current census is 303, so every $10 will help.

Donations can be sent to Volunteer Services Council, Box 231, Big Spring, 79721.

Thanks to the 8 people who donated blood during the November 4 blood drive. Because we can make up to three components from each unit of blood, those donations will help to save or sustain the lives of as many as 24 patients.

The National Institute of Mental Health Panic Disorder Education Program is an effective campaign designed to increase awareness about panic disorder and the therapies available for treating this chronic, devastating mental condition that affects more than three million Americans.

Panic disorder is one of the most treatable of all mental illnesses. Yet, it probably is the mental illness most apt to be unrecognized, incorrectly diagnosed and inappropriately treated. People with panic disorder experience unexpected and repeated episodes of intense fear accompanied by a set of unexplained physical symptoms, such as chest pain, heart palpitations, shortness of breath, dizziness, or abdominal distress.

Panic disorder is more common than you might think...

* More than 3 million Americans will have panic disorder in their lifetime.

* Approximately 1 million people have panic disorder at any given time.

* Women are twice as likely as men to develop panic disorder.

* Panic disorder typically strikes in young adulthood, with the median age of onset occurring at 24 years.

Panic disorder is a serious and debilitating mental illness...

* One-third of panic disorder sufferers begin to avoid situations where they fear an attack may occur or where help is not available, a condition known as agoraphobia.

* About 50 percent of people with panic disorder will have an episode of clinical depression at some time in their lives.

* People who have panic disorder often turn to alcohol and illicit drugs in an attempt to alleviate the painful mental and physical symptoms of their condition. About 30 percent "self-medicate" with alcohol and 17 percent use drugs, such as cocaine and marijuana.

Treatment is available and it works...

* Effective treatments for panic disorder include medications and a type of psychotherapy called cognitive-behavioral therapy. NIMH is conducting a large study evaluating the effectiveness of combining these treatments.

* Appropriate treatment by an experienced professional reduces or completely prevents panic attacks in 70 to 90 percent of people with panic disorders.

* With proper treatment, most patients show significant progress in a couple of months.

Kathy Higgins is the Director of Community Relations at BSSH, which include the Volunteer Services and Public Information Department. Memorials and contributions can be mailed to Volunteer Services Council, P.O. Box 231, Big Spring, Tx. 79721.

Tree of Life ACS fundraiser

By purchasing a Christmas tree ornament through the "Tree of Life" project, Howard and Glasscock County residents have an opportunity to honor a special person during the holiday season and aid in the Crusade against cancer.

Sponsored by the American Cancer Society of Howard/Glasscock Unit, the "Tree of Life" project is designed to raise money for cancer education, research, and local patient services.

Donations in honor of someone who has fought cancer, or in memory of someone who has died of cancer can be made from now until the end of December. Ornaments for each individual will be placed on our beautiful Christmas Tree and then will be sent to the honoree or family of the honoree after Christmas. This is a wonderful way to recognize a special person, and do something positive in the battle against cancer. Each honoree or, in the case of a memorial gift, the honoree's family, will be notified of the donation.

Donations can be made by sending a check to Lucy Bonner, payable to the American Cancer Society, at P.O. Box 2121, Big Spring, TX 79721 or, "Tree of Life" forms are available at the Merle Norman store located in the Big Spring Mall where the "Tree of Life" will be located.

For more information contact Lucy Bonner at 263-6305.

Northside Center offers meat, coats

Local children can sign up through Dec. 1 to receive new coats from the Northside Community Center. Families with children who need coats should go by the center, 108 NE 8th St. to sign up for the program.

In addition, the center has meat available for local residents who will receive Thanksgiving food baskets without meat. There are turkeys, hams, etc. available for those residents.

Families must go by the center Monday to get signed up for meat.

Join 4-H: Livestock not required

By MICHAEL KELSEY
Howard County Extension Agent

I have heard a lot of questions and comments concerning who is involved in 4-H.

Several calls to the office have resulted in questions such as "Don't I have to show an animal to be in 4-H?" Comments, such as "I don't have a place to keep an animal, therefore I can't become involved" have also been the result of several conversations.

All these thoughts come at a very appropriate time of year as I am currently updating Howard County's 4-H participation reports. These reports itemize each of the different project enrollment areas into groups by gender and project interest. The project enrollment areas include 42 different interests and vary from Aquatic Sciences to Wood Science with everything in between.

After all the numbers of our current 4-H enrollment were entered into the computer, some very interesting data was produced.

We currently have 214 youth enrolled in the 4-H program. These youth are involved in 288 projects within the 42 project areas. Over 40 percent of these projects have nothing to do with showing an animal. They include: automotive, clothing and textiles, computer science, consumer life skills, electricity, family life education, food and nutrition, leadership, photography, small engines and shooting sports.

Of the 214 4-H club members county-wide, 122 are male and 92 are female. We reached 1676 school children through our school curriculum enrichment programs last year.

That sums up to 1890 young people that the Howard County 4-H program reached in 1992. The ethnic breakdowns are as follows: 1882 white (62.5%), 93 black (4.9%), 595 Hispanic (31.5%) and 20 Asian (1.06%). These numbers correspond with the ethnic breakdown of Howard County from the 1990 census reports.

Some may be interested in what we offer through our school enrichment programs. There are a total of 22 different programs that we have literature and video presentations on.

They range from "County Government" to "Food and Fiber" to "From Egg to Chick." We have also offered videos on Africanized Bee Education. The most popular program we offer is "Ag in the Classroom." This program teaches young people exactly where their food and clothing comes from and what it takes to produce these necessities.

They learn that everyone is involved in agriculture from the producer to the consumer. They also learn how important agriculture is to the economic success of Howard County and Big Spring. All of the programs mentioned are available for teachers to use at no cost. Many of the programs, we (county extension agents) present ourselves.

There are many opportunities available to young people through 4-H. Every time I am asked about 4-H, I always challenge anyone to find a project that does not fall under a 4-H program area.

"I encourage you to find out more about your 4-H club by calling our office at 264-2238. It costs nothing to join and the benefits can only add to your success in life."

Well-traveled kids sacrifice trip for others

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Fellow Iowan," who boasted that his well-traveled children had been all over the world since the age of 2. I wonder how many other world travelers had their vacations ruined by children who were far too young to appreciate sight-seeing.

Dear Abby

A 2-year-old doesn't care whether he rides a pony around a pyramid or a potato patch, and a 3-year-old can camp as happily in his own backyard as he can at the foot of the Himalayas.

Incidentally, our children have also had the good fortune to have seen quite a bit of the world, but only after they were old enough to appreciate it and to behave respectfully toward other travelers and people of different cultures. — LAURA NELSON, PLEASANT HILL, CALIF.

DEAR LAURA: "Fellow Iowan's" letter prompted numerous letters from my readers, and if my mail is a barometer, be assured you are speaking for many. The following letter is another example of the same point of view:

DEAR ABBY: Here's another perspective on the letter from "Fellow Iowan" who resented the letter from a reader who said she and her husband were able to travel worldwide because they were childless by choice. "Fellow Iowan" pointed out that even though she had a child, when he was 2, she took him to Egypt and the Himalayas.

My husband and I enjoy traveling. We've been all over the world in tour buses, airplanes and cruise ships — and many trips were spoiled by people who brought their small children along.

Two- and 3-year-olds do not gain much from foreign travel. They tire easily, cry, whine, sing and chatter because they are tired, bored or hungry. They also kick the backs of airplane seats while Mom and Dad snore contentedly beside them.

People who travel with children should teach them how to behave in public — and also wait until the kids are old enough to enjoy the trip. — KANSAS CITY TRAVELER

DEAR ABBY: In May 1988, I bought myself an answering machine. My very first call was from an old boyfriend I had met in the early '80s when we were at "Camp Courage" in Minnesota. We were both in wheelchairs — and will be for the rest of our lives — but that is not a problem for either of us. I was 23 and he was 20 when I first spotted this handsome guy at lunch, so I arranged to sit next to him at dinner that evening. An exciting romance followed, but we eventually split up on rather unfriendly terms.

Abby, we had no communication all those years, but when I returned his call, he told me he was now living only 90 miles from me and wanted to see me. I wanted to see him, too, so the next day, he drove up and spent the weekend with me. We hit it off so well that he drove up the following weekend, too. It soon became a habit! We have had our disagreements, but I always hung onto the hope that we would eventually be together for good.

Last month, he surprised me when he told me that he wanted to spend the rest of his life with me! I was thrilled because that's what I had been hoping for.

No one knows for sure what lies ahead for us, but we love each other very much and believe we can have a long and happy future. We are both very independent and strong-willed, and it will be an interesting challenge. Our adventure is just beginning. Wish us luck. — SUE IN MINNESOTA

DEAR SUE: Thanks for a wonderful upper of a letter. And the best of luck to you both in your future together.

Meditations on the empty chairs

Christina Ferchalk

We dust off the cornucopia and the little pilgrim people salt and pepper shakers, hang a spray of Indian corn on the front door and make ready. If Thanksgiving came during any other time of the year it would be a one day affair and that would be the end of it. But it doesn't quite work out that way, does it? In America, Thanksgiving is only the beginning, the gateway of the holiday season.

From the end of November until the first of January it's party time. We pull out all the stops. It's a time of peace, love, friendship, warmth, brotherhood, and joy. Oh sure, we gripe about the additional cost and effort, but we're just blowing smoke. We need this time of year. We anticipate it, welcome it, embrace it... Provided, of course, that our families are intact.

The only aspect of life that can turn the holiday season into a time of dread is the absence of someone we love. How many military families this year will be facing an empty chair at their holiday tables? Would I be wrong in answering... too many? These families have my deepest empathy. I know all about the secret tears that salt your pumpkin pie and chocolate chip cookies. I know the truth behind that phony smile you wear. You try to hide the hurt so as not to ruin the holidays for those around you. There are no words of comfort for again will he poster you in the kitchen every 15 minutes, like a little kid, asking if it's time to eat that turkey yet.

Remember how much she loved Christmas? Never again will you hear her say, "I'm wrapping your presents now, so stay out of the bedroom, and no peeking!"

And remember how that man just couldn't keep a secret? This will be the first year he won't say to you, "I know what the kids got you for Christmas. I'll tell you but don't let on you know, okay."

The chair at your table, that painful reminder, will never be filled again. You could remove it from sight, but wouldn't that be a useless gesture? Instead, look at that chair, not with your eyes, but with your heart. Is the chair really empty? Is heaven so very far away that the distance cannot be traversed even now, at this special time of year?

Those of us who will sit at a full table this Thanksgiving have been given a precious gift. How blessed we are to still have this time together. In gratitude we should ask the Lord to extend His grace to all the empty chairs.

Happy Thanksgiving, my friends.

Jacqueline Bigar Horoscope

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, NOV. 21, 1993
ARIES (March 21-April 19): Relax for a change and take a day off. You do, however, need to communicate with someone at a distance who cares a lot about you. Be clear as to your choices. Go for an unusual adventure. Tonight: Communicate with a dear friend.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Be aware of the high-voltage activity around you today, and know that you can make a difference. Try to be more upbeat and positive. Find the gang and go for fun and adventure. The more friends around you, the happier the day. Tonight: Continue as if it's Saturday night.
GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Visit with an older relative; your presence is crucial. You might consider getting a head start on tomorrow's workload; a boss would notice. Mate is not as honest as you might think. Do some investigating. Tonight: Don't argue with a difficult partner.
CANCER (June 21-July 22): Reach out for others at a distance. Consider gathering your friends or family for a day trip. You'll enjoy the unusual and the unique. Be open to a change in plans. Tonight: Try an exotic restaurant.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Encounters will be rewarding today if you understand that another's tantrums are merely a way of getting attention. Be loving. Check out a purchase carefully before closing the deal. Tonight: Balance the books.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your popularity is high despite a rift with a family member. It will help if you talk things over after the problem surfaces. Realize that you need more space. Tonight: Popularity peaks.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Take time off to rest. Then, complete an important household project. You need to take better care of yourself. Screen your phone calls today. The pace would be too hectic. Tonight: Whatever works for you.
SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You want to play out a romantic fantasy today, but be careful how you do it. You are in an overindulgent mood and could push too hard. Decide whether what you want is reasonable. Know your limits. Tonight: Some conservatism would help.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Settle down today. You are all nerves and are coming off as more caustic than you want. Entertain at home and try to mellow out. Tonight: "Veg" in front of the television.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Feel free today to tell it as it is. Your awareness of what is going on with yourself is important. You can vent anger diplomatically if you try. Communications will open up afterward. Tonight: Have a heavy talk.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You could spend far more today than you intended. Because of your sensitivity to another, you feel unusually pushed. Go for what is important to you and be aware of your image at work. Tonight: Prepare for tomorrow.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your charisma is high today, but a parent or other authority figure does not see eye-to-eye with you. You get a chance to make your points clearly. Use that animal magnetism. Tonight: Go for who or what you want.

IF NOV. 21 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Romance will peak and your creativity will reach a high point during this most unusual year. You are in a high cycle and will see the benefits in the summer and next fall. Things will go especially well for those in creative professions. Watch your weight, as the tendency to overindulge could get you out of shape. Also watch spending. Your awareness of your charisma and intellectual capacities will make you a winner. PISCES absolutely adores you.

This Las Vegas charms visitors

Albuquerque? Santa Fe? Ruidoso? Nah! Las Vegas.

Most people pass right through Las Vegas on their way to other New Mexico destinations. But travelers taking the time to explore the area are rewarded, indeed.

Even motorists passing through are sure to notice some of the outstanding structures in the city. For those who stop off at the Plaza Hotel for a meal, or perhaps to spend the night, just getting out of the car will make them want to stay awhile.

The plaza across the street from the hotel is intriguing. There is a vibrant energy and you hear interesting sounds of life. Should you wander into the book store next to the hotel, you'll find a little shop like you might find in New England somewhere. The couple who own the store love it. "My husband had to go work for the school 25 years so we could stay in business," remarks the female partner. They've had it some 40 years.

On weekends, the Plaza hotel has some entertainment. The performer might be a classical guitarist, a flute player or an Elvis impersonator. The lobby of the hotel is filled with folks of every age, all in a friendly mood. It's sort of like an old time get-together in a small town. The people know each other and appreciate the opportunity to visit.

Las Vegas was founded in 1835. Its original name was Las Vegas

Tumbleweed Smith

Grandes en el Rio de las Gallinas (the large meadows on the Turkey river). It became a major population center and a stopping point for traders headed for Santa Fe. The nearby mineral and lumbering resources, lush grazing lands and fertile valleys brought settlers to the area. Las Vegas soon became the leading commercial trade center in New Mexico.

After the arrival of the railroad in 1879, elaborate commercial and residential structures sprang up. People flocked to Las Vegas for the fresh air, good climate and therapeutic hot springs. In 1900, Las Vegas was the largest city in New Mexico. It became the most violent wild west community on America's western frontier.

The good citizens of Las Vegas, tiring of the violence, began dragging prisoners out of the jail at night and hanging them from a windmill that stood on the town plaza.

In 1905 Las Vegas began to decline when its position as a major shipping point ended with the diversion of rail traffic to the South. The agricultural depression of the 20's and 30's and a long drought helped bring to a close almost a century of economic boom-town prosperity for Las Vegas.

The city, with a current population of 15,000, presents itself today much as it appeared at the turn of the century. Bridge street, just off the plaza, still retains most of its original architecture and has become one of the best preserved outdoor museums in New Mexico. Nearly 1,000 buildings in Las Vegas are on the National Register of Historic Places.

Storrie Lake State Park, four miles north of Las Vegas, is at the foothills of the Sangre de Cristo Mountains, the southernmost range of the Rockies. The lake is famous for its crappie, rainbow and German brown trout.

The mountains surrounding the city offer attractive vistas and inviting streams. Skiing is popular at Sipapu, an hour's drive from Las Vegas.

Highlands University, with an enrollment of some 3,000, is celebrating 100 years in Las Vegas. Its campus near downtown has impressive landscaping, stone buildings and Spanish tile roofs.

With all the city's charm, it is no wonder more tourists are spending more time in the nation's original Las Vegas.

Museum programs feature living history

Living history is a term used to describe the use of people reenacting events or activities from the past. These people wear appropriate dress for the time they wish to interpret and act in a manner as represents their piece of history.

Angie Way

Probably the most famous of these are battlefield reenactments, especially of the Civil War time. Individuals may spend hundreds of dollars on duplicates of uniforms and their accoutrements simply for the opportunity to participate in a charge or mock battle.

Near to Big Spring the most popular living history reenactors must surely be the volunteers of Fort Concho. They are popular attractions at the fort and around this part of the state and around this part of Texas. They wear their blues and even have a firing cannon.

Their fearless leader, Curator of Education Bob Blundthart, is an eager organizer of wonderful events featuring his "soldiers." As I once heard someone say at Fort Concho, "Bob never misses a chance to fire that cannon."

If you want to see a little living history in Big Spring, you might try the Heritage Museum's Family Nights. Our first since the opening of the expansion area was held this past Thursday. We plan to have this special event once every season.

In case you missed it this time, look for another in the early spring. We typically have several individuals in pioneer dress placed throughout the museum to show you how butter was made, or how a cylinder graphophone works, or explain more about some of the special items from the museum's collection. In fact, for some items this is your only chance to see them displayed because of their fragile nature or need for high security.

To top this all is the free admission and refreshments we serve so that everyone can come and enjoy the evening.

During the month of November you can see a special treat at the museum. The Texas Watercolor Society traveling exhibition is now on display. It consists of thirty paintings selected by a juror from the annual show.

All award winners are displayed including the Best of Show watercolor, Deep Sea Islands by Dorothy Slavich of Kerrville, Texas. Other works are by artists from New York, California, Louisiana, Missouri, Pennsylvania, Germany, and of course from all corners of Texas.

Also something new to see this month is the Big Spring Refinery Exhibit. The story of the Cosden and Fina Refinery is as interesting a part of Big Spring's history as you could want to learn. The exhibit features information on the Units of the Refinery, a refinery control room with computers on which to call up your supervisor or set the percentage of water to acid mix, and a 1940 era Cosden service station.

Lately, we have become well-known for our special events. A very special event is our upcoming "Big Spring's Favorites & Wine Tasting."

The favorites part is art collected by private collectors in Big Spring and loaned to the museum for this one evening special showing. The evening begins at 6:30 p.m. on Dec. 9. The wine tasting is open to the public and will compliment the favorites in art by being the favorites of Texas' vintages and brews.

Tickets to view the art are $15 for individual and $25 per couple. You may wish to add your pieces of fine art to the show. If so, give the museum a call for more information at 267-8255.

Angie Way is curator of the Heritage Museum.

Corporate taxes dues

The last 1993 federal estimated tax payment for calendar-year corporations is due Dec. 15, announced the Internal Revenue Service.

Generally, a corporation must make estimated tax payments if it expects it to be $500 or more, after credits. Corporate estimated tax payments are made by depositing the payment at a qualified financial institution or a federal reserve bank or branch.

A corporation operating on a fiscal, rather than a calendar tax year, makes its fourth estimated tax payment on or before the 15th day of the 12th month of its tax year. A worksheet, Form 1120-W, is available to help determine estimated tax payment.

Economy growth slow

Prolonged recessions in Europe and Japan, fiscal drag from Washington and slimming corporate profit margins should hold U.S. economic growth below 3 percent for the year and under 2 percent for 1994, writes Maureen Allyn, Chief Economist of Scudder, Stevens & Clark, Inc. in Scudder's Fall 1993 Business Outlook.

Inflation should remain around 3 percent through next year, though some companies may find opportunities to raise prices as the economy drags forward. "Stable inflation is the silver lining to this struggling expansion," she writes.

Thanksgiving Food costs steady

JOHN A. MOSELEY
News Editor

If inflation can be called anything to cheer about, anyone compiling a list of things to be thankful about this Thanksgiving will have to include an economically priced holiday dinner.

According to the Texas Agricultural Extension Service in College Station, the price of the traditional Thanksgiving dinner will only cost about 20 cents per serving more than it did a year ago.

Of course, some might remember that last year's Thanksgiving dinner was about seven cents per serving less expensive than it had been in 1991.

Nonetheless, Richard Edwards, an Extension Service food marketing specialist, says retail prices and the farmer's share of producing that meal appear to be close to last year.

That one meal — eight ounces of turkey, one serving of stuffing, green beans, a slice of pecan pie, a slice of pumpkin pie (one apparently must have both), two ounces of cranberry sauce, potatoes, sweet potatoes, a dinner roll and one serving of salad with dressing — will cost about $2.93. The farmer's share of that is 66 cents, Edwards said.

The difference of $2.27 goes to the people between the farmer and the dinner table — processors, wholesalers and retailers.

Last year, the same meal ran $2.74 per serving, and the farmer's share was about 68 cents.

Edwards noted that his estimates reflect normal, not sale prices, and the increase from last year can be attributed to a slight climb in the price of sweet potatoes, cranberries and dinner rolls.

This year, an eight-ounce serving of turkey will cost the consumer about 45 cents, of which the farmer receives about 23 cents.

For other portions of the meal, the farmer's share is even less. For example, only two cents of the 13-cent cost of four ounces of green beans will go to the farmer.

In addition, Edwards said Texas pecan growers will make less this year than last. Their share of a store-baked pecan pie, which costs the consumer about 63 cents per serving, is 10 cents. Last year the farmer's share of that pie was 13 cents.

The benefits of the "low-cost" Thanksgiving meal are being

Low profits for pecans

JOHN A. MOSELEY
News Editor

The two best buys on any holiday food shopping list this fall will undoubtedly be turkey and pecans, according to food marketing specialists with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

While extension service personnel say the best food bargain of the year is unquestionably Thanksgiving turkeys, thanks primarily to in-store special promotions, local pecan producers say a bumper crop has hurt their business — depressing prices and lessening demand as commercial customers hold off purchases waiting for prices to drop even more.

"We've got a great crop," said Horace Tubbs, whose 30-acre orchard is located south of Big Spring. "We've had several thousand pounds taken out there already, but they're really not buying yet."

"I called around yesterday, and nobody's buying, they're all holding ... thinking the price is going to drop," he added, expressing frustration with the situation. "I'll tell you, I'd be willing to sell this orchard right now. It's a beautiful orchard, but I'm just about to go nuts."

"Nobody wants 'em or everybody wants 'em," he continued. "You got deer, raccoons, skunks, people ... every kind of varmint there is out there getting them all day and all night. They just don't want to pay for them."

Tubbs seemed almost philosophical when asked if the current price for pecans was enough to provide a profit after production and harvesting costs.

"Oh, I don't ever pay attention to that," he said. "This business is kind of like going to Las Vegas. You take in what you get and keep what you win and be happy with that."

According to extension service specialist Richard Edwards of College Station, pecan prices will be exceptionally low this year — perhaps as little as half the price they brought last year. In-shell pecans, he said, are bringing $1 to $1.50 per pound, while shelled nutmeats are $3 to $3.50 when bought in bulk.

Prices for a turkey dinner

This Thanksgiving, consumers can expect to pay only about 20 cents more per serving than last year due to slightly higher prices for such items as cranberries, sweet potatoes and dinner rolls.

pointed out by farm groups during National Farm-City Week, which will be observed this week. The Texas Farm Bureau and the Extension Service are spearheading those efforts in Texas.

Edwards also noted that the 20-cent increase in the meal's price is still below inflation.

"Retail prices have stayed below inflation for the past two years," he said. "However, the farmer's percentage has decreased. Cost components such as labor and transportation have been increasing more quickly than the farmer's share."

Ethnic group marketing is capitalism strategy of 1990s

The Associated Press

Hosiery to satisfy the specific needs of the African-American woman, flesh-colored adhesive bandages designed for people of color?

Catalogs to meet the fashion tastes and needs of black consumers, cosmetics that complement dark skin tones, and displays of cultural goods in major department store chains?

Welcome to capitalism, multi-ethnic style.

It's the marketing strategy of the '90s — big business focusing on the spending power of ethnic groups such as Hispanics, Asians, Native Americans, and African-Americans by offering culturally significant products.

Amy Hilliard-Jones, director of integrated marketing services for Burrell Communications Group, the largest black-owned marketing communications firm, said this strategy was highlighted after the release of the 1990 Census Bureau reports.

"The 1990 Census was a real wake-up call to many companies today to the growing clout in ethnic communities," she said. "There are companies who want to market their products as a wise business decision, on the fact that these groups are now the growth market of the future."

Ms. Hilliard-Jones said some ethnic groups are increasing in population at three times the rate of the Anglo population.

Census figures indicate that Latinos will grow from 9 percent to 23 percent of the population by 2050; Asians will rise from 3 percent to 10 percent, and blacks will increase from 30 million in 1990 to some 62 million by 2050.

Chamber unique with recent accreditation

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Business Editor

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce this week joined an elite group.

Of 5,000 chambers in the United States, only 2 percent have been accredited 15 years or more by the United States Chamber of Commerce, according to local chamber Director Terry Burns. Big Spring's chamber joined that group with its fourth five-year re-accreditation.

"I'd say that's pretty good company," Burns said. Only 10 percent of the nation's chambers are even accredited, including 42 in Texas.

"I'm very pleased that we received this notification before the end of my year," said chamber President Ben

Bancroft. "We began the process over a year ago and six committees of volunteers studied every aspect of the chamber."

"A number of changes were made based on their recommendations," Bancroft said. "An on-site evaluator came in and followed up giving us significant additional input."

Among changes is the chamber now taking more stances on issues affecting the business community, such as recent endorsements of the North American Free Trade Agreement and Proposition 2 on the state ballot to allow property tax breaks to businesses for pollution abatement.

"Ben started this as the chairman of the accreditation committee, so it is particularly appropriate that we receive the designation while he is the chamber president," Burns said.

Students join board of chamber

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Chris Almandarez and Betsy Murphy, student body presidents of Howard College and Big Spring High School respectively, will represent the student community at local chamber of commerce board meetings, as ex-officio members.

Almandarez and Murphy attended their first Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce board of directors meeting Wednesday.

Chamber President-Elect Jeff Morris said the idea to invite the two students originated in the chamber's Nominating Committee.

"We recognize that the chamber of commerce is business oriented, but we felt it was important that the chamber represent the community as a whole," Morris said.

"We need to listen to all parts of the community, and one part is our young people. They are bright and have good ideas," he said.

"Students seemed to be the only group not represented on the board of directors of the chamber."

Almandarez, 20, was positive about his first meeting.

"I got to know a lot about the community, and I think this will bring Howard College and the community closer together," he said.

"They said I'm part of the board and I'm welcome to say anything," he added. "They're very nice. I think this will work out very well."

As ex officio members, Almandarez and Murphy will be invited to all meetings normally attended by the board. They do not have voting privileges but will discuss issues and voice concerns to the board.

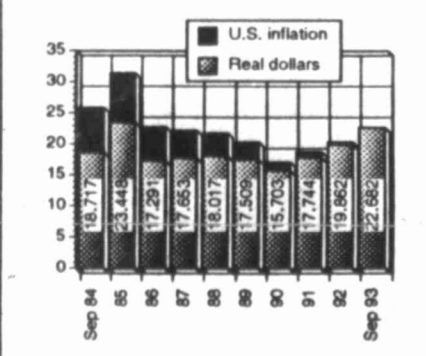

Murphy, 17, said, "This will help young people here in town. Other than this, it's hard to get our opinions out directly to the people who need to know."

She said she found her first board meeting interesting and said she will not hesitate to bring up issues that affect students.

Eye on the economy

Taxable retail sales reported for Big Spring in September, shown in millions on left, indicate the strongest sales month and/or third quarter in seven years, when U.S. inflation is accounted for. Percentage gain over last year, on right, shows Big Spring was second highest of area cities, all of which outgrew inflation.

County pecan show deadline is Nov. 29

The annual Howard County Pecan Show will be held Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 1-2, 1993. The deadline to submit entries is 5 p.m., Monday, Nov. 29, 1993.

Don Richardson

repeated, having half (10 pecans) the sample shelled and the remaining 10 pecans still in-shell for the final selection of state champions. Howard County has often had top contenders of several varieties qualify for state competition in recent years, reflecting the quality of work local growers are doing to improve their pecan management production.

Pecans, by nature, rarely breed true to form, that is, a pecan from, say, a Burkett tree, may or may not resemble a true Burkett variety but still show some characteristics of the Burkett traits. Pollen from pecan trees can be carried by the wind for several miles and can pollinate trees in a wide area, thus, pecans grown from nuts from the same tree may not even resemble each other. This is the way new varieties are discovered. These can be from crosses either randomly done by nature as described or by scientific means by pecan breeders hoping to find a new, highly desirable pecan.

matically forwarded on to the Western Regional Pecan Show to be held Dec. 13-14 in Ft. Stockton. Unqualifying entries can be returned to the owners, if requested. Unclaimed entries not qualifying for the Western Regional Show are given to pecan show workers that help conduct our show.

Volunteers are always needed to assist with the show. If you have an interest in pecans your help would be appreciated. Please contact our office if you want more information on this activity. You do not have to be a pecan grower to assist with the show.

Pecan shows have a purpose in addition to having pecans win awards. It also serves as an educational program to growers on how proper insect control, watering, and fertilization requirements can influence quality pecan production. The show also gives spectators the opportunity to have a better understanding about the many different varieties of pecans that are offered on today's market and become more knowledgeable about them when purchasing pecans for their home use. People interested in growing pecans also have an opportunity to evaluate the varieties and determine which variety that might best suit their own needs best.

Don Richardson is the Howard County agent for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. His column appears Sundays.

All entries must be turned in at the Howard County Extension Office in the courthouse in Big Spring. This office is located on the first floor of the east wing of that building.

An entry consists of 40 pecans of a single variety grown by a Howard County producer. The 40 pecans in a single entry must be of the same variety although not necessarily grown from the same tree. There is no entry fee and any grower is eligible to participate and is encouraged to do so.

A grower may only have one tree in his/her backyard or he/she may own several hundred trees. It does not matter. Many times a winning entry comes from a single backyard tree that has been properly cared for and managed for optimum production by its owner.

The entry must consist of 40 pecans due to the state rules governing all county pecan shows in Texas. All entries immediately become eligible to participate in the State Pecan Show but must go through a county show, followed by a regional show.

In the process, 10 of the original 40 pecans are randomly selected from the sample and weighed. These same 10 pecans are then cracked and shelled by the show committee members and reweighed again to determine the percent kernel. The sample is then judged against other entries of the same variety and if it is determined by the judges to be the best entry, the remaining 30 pecans are then forwarded on to the nearest Regional show where the process is repeated once again.

If that entry becomes the winner on the regional level, the remaining 20 pecans are sent to the state show where the process is once again

Three divisions are offered at county pecan shows, commercial, classic and native. These were once called in-shells, shelling and native. Commercial division entries are those pecans that are generally marketed as shelled pecans and are of the smaller varieties that usually take over 50 to make a pound. The classic varieties are those that are the larger varieties usually sold in the shell. Natives now include the true natives, which there are very few in our area of the state, and include all those that can be more accurately described as varietal seedlings. These are those pecans that someone planted from seed and grew into a productive tree. This class usually has the most interesting pecans in them.

All blue ribbon entries are automatically forwarded on to the Western Regional Pecan Show to be held Dec. 13-14 in Ft. Stockton.

Monterrey a model of US. trade

The Associated Press

MONTERREY, Mexico — At first sight, newcomers to this bustling city of skyscrapers and branches of some of the world's richest companies might think they were still in the United States.

It's not by accident. Monterrey, capital of Nuevo Leon state, has cellular phones, traffic jams and 3 million people, many of whom look to the United States as a model.

The Texas border is 125 miles or two hours away, and the wealthy and the middle class make weekend shopping excursions for cheaper and better-made clothing, electronics, even groceries.

The poor, about two-thirds of the population, can only dream of such trips. Many workers make $13 a day, and thousands live without running water, drainage and electricity in adjacent suburbs.

But the Americans are coming, and the government says new investments, jobs and dollars would abound under the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Already, McDonald's, Kentucky Fried Chicken, Burger King and other franchises dot the landscape. Walmart, Penney's and Dillards are on their way.

With all these and the dropped tariffs that will come if NAFTA takes effect, local shopping habits may change drastically.

"It will be great to have American products here," said housewife Miralda Ibarra. "We won't be going to the border as much."

Monterrey is Mexico's richest industrial center. It is what President Carlos Salinas de Gortari, who hails from the small town of Agualeguas, about 60 miles north of here, envisions for Mexico.

Business leaders have believed in free trade for nearly a century, when Isaac Garza and Francisco G. Sada founded the Cuauhtemoc brewery that grew through a marriage into a family dynasty.

Today the Garza-Sada empire exports beer, glass, steel, petrochemicals, plastics and cement from five huge conglomerates. Forbes magazine reported they are the 23th richest family in the world, worth almost $4 billion.

Their holdings include Vitro S.A. de C.V., North America's second-largest glassmaker, with 1992 sales topping $1 billion. In 1989 it bought Anchor Glass Container Corp. and in 1991 teamed with Corning Inc. in a joint venture.

Cementos Mexicanos, or Cemex, is Latin America's largest cement maker and ranked fourth in the world. Expanding to Europe, Cemex last year bought Spain's second-largest cement company.

At least five other giant companies also operate here, but the Garza-Sada clan dominates and wields huge political clout.

"They have a direct line to the president," said sociologist Abraham Nuncio.

With or without NAFTA, the world here is trade with the United States.

A century and a half ago, U.S. troops battled Mexicans in a bloody two-year invasion to seize land occupied by Mexican settlers. Texas had become the 28th state in 1845; the Mexican War lasted until 1848, when Mexico gave up its claims to parts of Texas, California, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Utah and Colorado.

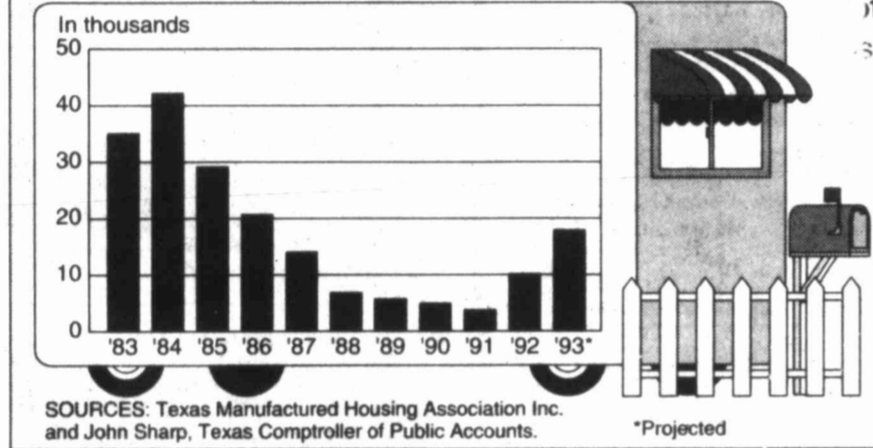

Today, bitterness over lost territory and a foreign presence is mostly forgotten. The newest joke making the rounds says Nuevo Leon wants to become a U.S. state.

Mobile home sales rolling again

The prediction of 18,000 new mobile home sales in 1993 greatly surpasses the 3,905 units sold in 1991. After seven straight years of declining sales, the projected numbers show that the industry is coming out of a slump. About 95 percent of mobile homes are sold as permanently-based housing, with new manufactured units selling for $15,000 to $50,000.

Thanksgiving

Just 100 years ago, almost every American spent at least six days each week in some agricultural pursuit... usually growing food, and Edwards notes only the most well-to-do were free to pursue other interests.

"Modern agriculture has freed us from the days of drudgery involved in food gathering," he said. "Now most of us just watch for sales at the supermarkets, buy the groceries and take them home — a job that takes an hour or two every week." Edwards also noted that American agriculture literally feeds the world, citing that one U.S. farmer or rancher produces enough food and fiber for 128 people, 94 in the United States and 34 in other countries.

Increasing demand world-wide, coupled with the importance agricultural exports have on the nation's trade balance, Edwards added, means "agriculture is destined to play an ever greater role in the future."

Chamber gains new members and officers

One of my favorite things to do is to announce new members. This time I get to announce a new member and a new restaurant, as Tony Aguilar is opening the Box Car Cafe back up down in railroad plaza.

Good to see that functioning again! Another restaurant has become a member as Subway Sandwiches joined, signed up by Terry Phillips. They plan a ribbon cutting when their new drive-thru is finished. Had a ribbon cutting on another new member, Cornerstone Christian Resource Center, signed by Pam Welch. They have really done a nice job on that store. Go by and take a look!

Other new members include Fiveash Plumbing, Lone Star Pawn Shop, Stanton Care Center and MEGA Computerized Business Services which was signed by Johnnie Lou Avery. We're very pleased to have all of these new members, which brings our total membership to 610 members! Certainly not a new member, but congratulations also go to Dick Helms at Athletic Supply as we cut a ribbon to open their beautiful new store in Big Spring Mall.

Big congratulations are due to President Ben Bancroft as the chamber receives its fifteen year re-accreditation. It is particularly important that it be announced during Ben's term, because he was the chairman of the committee during the study phase. A lot of people worked very hard on the effort, six committees, with a half-dozen people working on each. They studied virtually every phase of the chamber operation, and made a lot of changes as a result.

Only about 10 percent of the 5,000 chambers in the nation are accredited (42 in Texas) and less than 2 percent have been accredited 15 or more years. That puts us in pretty good company.

Congratulations are in order as our new officers are announced for the coming year. Ascending from the President-elect spot to assume the Presidency on Jan. 1 is Jeff Morris, refinery manager at Fina. Jeff has been on the executive board, and very active in the organization, particularly in leading the hard working task force studying long range plans for our tourism effort. You can look to see a particular focus on this area during his administration.

Coming in at President-elect is Jim Weaver, President of Citizens Credit Union. Jim was a vice president, served on the executive board, and has been one of our strongest and most productive officers.

The First Vice President slot will be filled by Cheri Sparks, President of Howard College. She has been serving on the board, and is very active in a number of chamber efforts.

The treasurer will be CPA Mark Morgan, who has previously served on the board and worked with the chamber in other capacities.

Rounding out the executive board will be the appropriate number of vice presidents which will be appointed by the new president after the program for the year has been planned and it is determined how many program divisions are necessary to accomplish the program. Sincere congratulations to this fine group of leaders.

Terry Burns is executive director of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce. His column appears Sundays.
