Collecting scam robbing Herald subscribers

Big Spring Herald subscribers should know who their carrier is, demand to see a receipt book and, if not sure, call the newspaper at 263-7331 to verify who their carrier is, said Circulation Director John Holwager. The office is open till 7:30 p.m. on weekdays.

If they're a bogus collector, call police at 263-8311. "We don't want them to lose money by paying someone else other than the authorized carrier," Holwager

In the past week, half a dozen or more customers called about bogus carriers trying to collect subscription money, Holwager said. Many more may have been approached and even bilked. The one's who've called us so far have recognized that the person is not their carrier," he said. "But for each person who recognizes who their carrier is, there may be ten others who have no idea who their carrier

Customers who've called all describe the same crook; a man of medium height, stocky build, blond hair and a mustache, Holwager said.

There is another option for customers, Holwager pointed out, paying in advance by mail or at the office. The Herald is beginning a promotion to convince customers to do just that.

"I prefer that they pay through the office," Holwager said. "It's better for them.

Elks sponsored drug awareness program continues to grow

By JANET AUSBURY Staff Writer

The Drug Awareness Education Program sponsored by Elks Lodge 1386 is continuing to grow and reach more people with its drug prevention message, according to program chairman Austin Ferguson.

The program focuses on marijuana, cocaine, alcohol, and tobacco and targets youth from the third through ninth grades. The local effort particularly targets third through fifth graders, said Big Spring police officer Stan Parker, who works with the D-FY-IT program.

"That's the age when they're the most vulnerable," said Parker. "We try to get to them before, during and after those years.'

The goal of the program is to stop drug abuse before it starts by providing youngsters, parents and teachers with information about the physical and mental consequences of drug use.

"The Elks believe that if children know the facts about these drugs, they will decide for themselves not to use them," said Frank Crawford, Exalted Ruler of the lodge.

Lodge member Frances Ferguson said the lodge is coordinating their efforts with the local D-FY-IT program to reach more children sooner. "In the bigger towns, Elks go into the schools themselves and distribute the literature and talk to the kids,"

"Here it's more difficult because almost all the lodge members work 8 to 5. Since the D-FY-IT program is already going into the schools, we distribute the information through them."

Frances has worked with adolescent and adult drug abusers at the Big Spring State Hospital. "It really hurts to see them," she said. "Some of them can hardly function or think anymore. It makes you wish you had gotten to them sooner.

Using D-FY-IT as a means to spread the Elks message is more effective than lecturing to students, she added.

"Since it's kids talking to kids, a peer telling them This is stupid, you can enjoy life without this' seems to hit closer to home than if they hear it from an adult. They listen more."

The local effort is part of a nationwide campaign. "The Elks Drug Awareness Program is a logical complement to our other youth programs," said Crawford.

Other Elks-sponsored youth programs include sponsorship of Scout troops and sports teams, as well as the awarding of college scholarships.

100 Big Spring families find help through Salvation Army

By JANET AUSBURY Staff Writer

Giving thanks will be easier this holiday season for 100 Big Spring families, because of the Salvation Army's special Thanksgiving food distribution.

Grocery bags filled with canned and ary goods were nanded out by Salvation Army workers at the old Schwartz building, 215 E. Third Street, from 10 a.m. to noon Tuesday. Each family received three bags of food.

"It's a real good program," said one woman who asked not to be identified. "If it wasn't for the Salvation Army, some of us wouldn't have a Thanksgiving. I'm really, really grateful.

Other women sitting next to her nodded their agreement.

Lt. Albert Villafuerte said the families were chosen by drawing names from among those who applied for Christmas assistance.

The families selected have at least four members at home. "We tried to target larger families," he explained.

Villafuerte's wife and fellow lieutenant Yvette said the average income for families needing their assistance has dropped dramatically in the last year.

The poverty level for a family of four is $1,200 a month," said Yvette. "Some of these families have incomes of $900 to $1,000 a month at most, counting food stamps, housing assistance, and other programs.

Along with the Villafuertes and Salvation Army staffers, homeless men living in the Salvation Army's shelter helped hand out the bags

"It's hard to get people to come out and volunteer, but the homeless have really helped us out," said Villafuerte. "If it wasn't for them sorting out food and helping prepare food baskets, we couldn't Villafuerte said the community is to thank for making the donations possible. "The food was collected from Brownie troops, the Boy Scout food drive, and other food drives; the grocery bags were donated by the grocery stores.'

Food collected by the various lood drives will also be used for Christmas food baskets and other food giveaways throughout the

On Thanksgiving Day from 4-6 p.m., the Salvation Army will provide a complete Thanksgiving meal at its shelter at 308 Aylesford. Villafuerte said elderly persons or shut-ins who wish to have meals delivered can call 267-8239 or 267-1175 and leave their name, phone number and

Villafuerte added that two more volunteers and their vehicles are needed to assist with the meal

Indians hope to add casino gambling also

The Associated Press

EL PASO — They came to play bingo, but the buzz seemed to be about casino gambling.

Hundreds of people showed up Tuesday night for the opening of the Tigua Indians' Speaking Rock Bingo and Entertainment Center, clearly excited about playing for prizes ranging from $400 to progressive jackpots of up to $50,000. The word 'casino" just seemed to keep creeping up.

"I like to play poker and they're eventually going to have a card room," Carl Marks said enthusiastically as he lined up to be among the first batch of citizens to play at the 900-seat hall.

The Tiguas seemed equally enthused about the inauguration of what they believe may be their most promising commercial endeavour.

"Our people have traveled a road of poverty," said tribal Gov. Julian Granillo. "Today is a new beginning for our people.

The "superbingo" hall offers sessions from Tuesday to Sunday, enough to keep bingo fans happy, while offering jackpots high enough to quicken the pulses of gambling enthusiasts.

"If I like it I might come every day," Rosalia Casillas said jokingly. Speaking Rock officials expect to give away $1 million over a six-week period. Tigua leaders are also anticipating a good payoff for the tribe. "The many dreams that we've had are just beginning," said tribal elder Miguel Pedraza. Projections say Speaking Rock could generate up to $6 million for the tribe each year. Seven Circle Resorts, the management company hired to run it, has guaranteed the tribe will receive at least $50,000 each month.

But tribal officials are really banking on the facility giving way to a more lucrative casino.

CORPUS CHRISTI - Some Hispanic Texas National Guardsmen who filed discrimination complaints against the agency deserve reinstatements, promotions and back pay, according to investigators' recommendations.

The recommendations stem from yearlong equal-opportunity inquiry that examined 31 discrimination complaints filed against the Guard. The proposed settlements also ask the Guard to work to ensure that its members are not retaliated against when they file discrimination complaints.

Lt. Col. Edmond Komandosky, a Guard spokesman, said he could not comment on the recommendations because he had not seen them.

State officials and San Antonio attorney Luis Roberto Vera Jr. are negotiating a settlement of the cases. Gov. Ann Richards, Secretary of State John Hannah and Maj. Gen. Sam Turk, the adjutant general of the Texas Guard, approved the investigators' recommendations, said Juan Hinojosa, a McAllen attorney appointed by the governor to examine the discrimination charges for the state.

If implemented, the recommendations would provide some current and former Guard members with hundreds of thousands of dollars in pay and retirement benefits.

Richards has asked Hannah to try to settle the complaints. But Hinojosa said a $200 million class-action lawsuit has slowed the negotiations. Many of the 31 complainants also have joined the lawsuit, which was filed in Bexar County District Court.

"Once a lawsuit has been filed ... we couldn't talk to them (complainants) directly," said Hinojosa, who refused to comment on specifics of the recommendations. "My position is those individuals who want to take our recommendations ought to

The commission approved Tuesday, by a 3-0 vote, an agreement reached last month by Bell, consumer advocates and utility regulators making Texas the 40th state to allow the service.

The service will be available in Austin starting Jan. 1. Service to Houston and San Antonio will begin in 1994 and Dallas and Fort Worth a year later. All of the company's service area is expected to have Caller ID by late 1995, said Jon Loehman, rate administration division manag-

Jurors found Phillips 66 negligent in explosion

HOUSTON (AP) - The first set of civil suits to go to trial seeking damages in the deadly 1989 Phillips Co. plant explosion resulted in a $730,500 award for 15 plaintiffs.

The plaintiffs were seeking $200 million in damages stemming from the Oct. 23, 1989, blast in Pasadena that killed 23 people and injured 130

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas spiritual adviser accused of influencing followers who died mysteriously has been convicted on unrelated charges of bankruptcy fraud.

A federal jury convicted Terri Hoffman of 10 counts and acquitted her of two in a document-laden case that rarely touched on the more unusual side of her story.

Mrs. Hoffman, 55, left the courthouse without comment Tuesday, and was allowed to remain free until her Jan. 14 sentencing. She faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine on each count.

Mrs. Hoffman also faces lawsuits accusing her of causing and benefiting from the 10 associates and relatives who committed suicide or suffered untimely deaths after willing or giving property to her.

Door for a plea bargain left open

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Attorneys say they are leaving the door open for plea agreements for two people charged with helping a surgeon's wife hire hit men to kill a teen-ager who broke up with her daughter.

Cameron County District Attorney Luis Saenz confirmed Tuesday that his office was discussing possible deals with 72-year-old Maria Mercedes Martinez, a reputed folk healer and fortune teller, and Daniel Garza, 43, believed to be one of Mrs. Martinez's clients.

Rescuer, two children killed in fire City Bits

LUBBOCK — A man who attempted to save two children from a burning house has died of injuries sustained in the blaze.

Robert Hurt, 25, was burned when he tried unsuccessfully to rescue Brian Miller, 8, and his 5-year-old sister, Brittany, early Monday. He died Tuesday; a memorial service was held the same day, a fire department spokesman said.

the living room," Barlow said. "We believe the fire was accidental in nature. "There was a smoke detector, but

Chemical weapons buried in 215 sites

WASHINGTON (AP) - Containers of nerve agents, mustard gas and other chemical weapons may be buried in at least 215 sites around the country, the Pentagon said in a final report on unaccounted-for chemical toxins.

The report, sent to Congress on Tuesday, said the Army is not aware of any immediate threats to human health or safety and that some of the sites may prove to have little or no chemical contamination.

But it said it will probably take up to the year 2034, at an estimated cost of $17.7 billion, to destroy all the non-stockpile chemical agents and materiel such as storage facilities and spray tanks.

The 215 sites with confirmed or potential chemical weapons are at 48 active military installations and 34 formerly used defense sites in 33 states, the U.S. Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia.

Senate negotiators may try again today to reach agreement, thus avoiding the need for next week's session. But the talks grew so acrimonious Tuesday night that it was unclear whether they would resume. Each side accused the other of intransigence.

Airwave indeceny

hard to regulate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress and the Federal Communications Commission are finding out how hard it is to regulate "indecency" on the airwaves: Once again, a court says they're treading on the First

A federal appeals court ruled Tuesday that regulators went too far when they banned so-called indecent material on radio and TV between 6 a.m. and midnight as part of the government's effort to protect young eyes and ears from objectionable material.

It's the third time since 1988 that the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit has struck down attempts by the FCC, at the behest of Congress, to ban indecent programming on the airwaves.

The court told the FCC that, in an effort to protect children, the agency had drawn rules so narrowly they infringed the First Amendment rights of adults. The FCC has fought similar battles to regulate the "diala-porn" telephone sex industry.

American Airlines struggled to get passengers where they wanted to go today as mechanics at United staged a slowdown that threatened to cause still more turmoil during the busiest travel period of the year.

Former aide claims swap intentional

The Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla. — A former nurse's aide who previously said she knew nothing about a baby swap at a hospital 15 years ago now says the switch was intentional.

Patsy Webb issued a statement Tuesday saying a doctor at Hardee Memorial Hospital in Wauchula in 1978 gave the order to switch Kimberly Mays with another, ailing

The 60-year-old said she is speaking out new because she is sick with a respiratory illness.

Lawyers for Ms. Webb offered no corroborating evidence and refused to provide a motive or comment beyond the statement. She wouldn't talk with reporters.

Kimberly was caught in a tug-ofwar between the man who raised her, Robert Mays, and her biological parents, Ernest and Regina Twigg. Last summer, Circuit Judge Stephen Dakan ruled that Mays is the girl's legal father. Dakan said the Twiggs have no right even to visit her. The ruling is under appeal.

Ms. Webb "was asked by one of the treating physicians to switch the Twiggs and Mays babies but she refused," according to the statement. "Upon arrival at work the next day she immediately saw the infants had been switched.

"She was informed that if she said anything about the babies being switched, she would be immediately terminated from her employment at the hospital.'

According to her statement, Ms. Webb's own child was sick with leukemia at the time and she remained silent to maintain the health insurance.

In sworn statements given during the dispute between the Mays and Twigg families, Ms. Webb said she knew nothing about the swap. John Blakely, an attorney for the Twiggs, said the woman's statement is "the first of the smoking guns."

"What Patsy Webb says does not surprise me because that is what we believed for years," Blakely said.

However, Art Ginsburg, who represented Kimberly against the Twiggs, said, "You've got to understand that Patsy Webb's testimony has been taken on three different occasions before now where she has denied any of this.'

George Russ, another Mays attorney, said the Ms. Webb's story regarding the doctor doesn't make

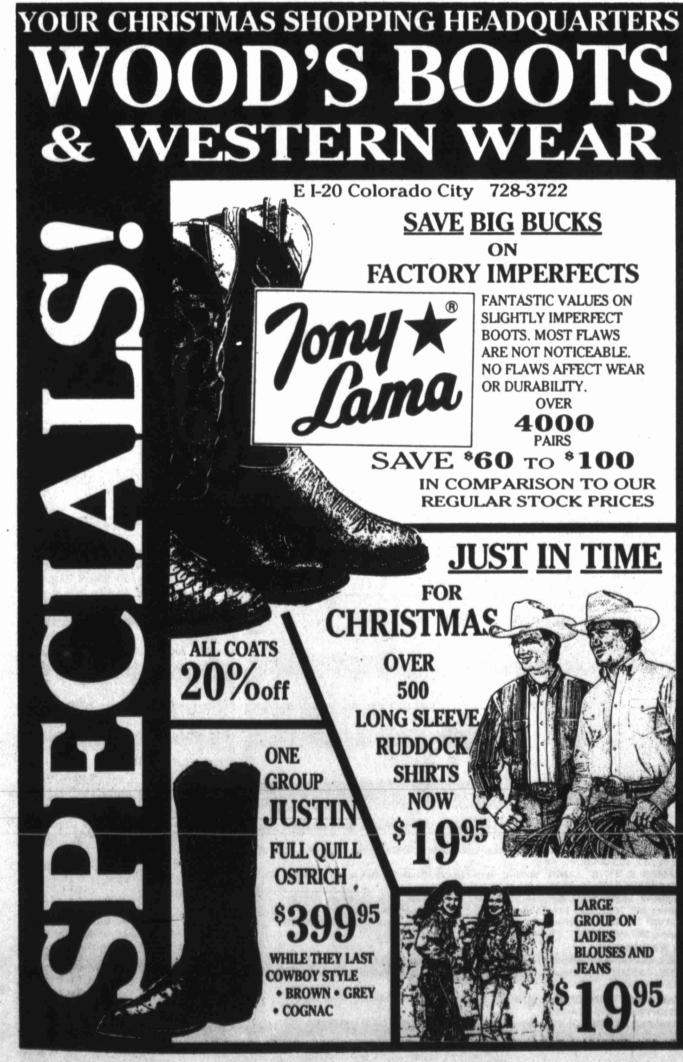

"If he was going to do something like that, certainly he would not pick out an obscure nurse's aide and switch the babies," Russ said. He added, "This woman has clearly admitted she is a liar.'

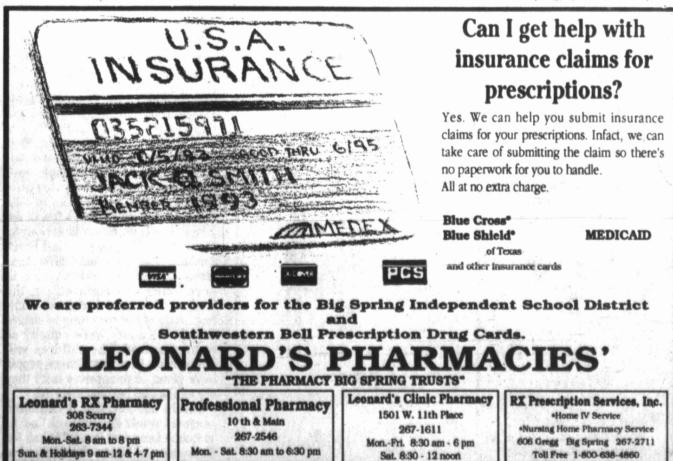

The baby swap came to light when the child raised by the Twiggs, Arlena, developed heart problems and blood tests showed she wasn't their biological daughter. After Arlena died in 1988, the Twiggs launched a search that led them to Kimberly.

The Twiggs have publicly suggested Mays was behind the baby swap. They have said they will appeal all the way to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Both the Twigg and Mays families won settlements in lawsuits against Hardee Memorial, getting $7 million and $6.6 million respectively. Hardee Memorial closed in 1992 and filed for bankruptcy protection.

Fulfilling a need year round

Some sleep under the viaduct, in vacant buildings or in cars. Many others live in houses, but are jobless. Add a myriad of other problems, such as handicaps or a spouse drinking or taking drugs.

They're of all races and ages, from babies in diapers to men and women pushing 80 years or so. Some wear tattered clothes, are unshaven. Others could walk into one of your favorite restaurants and you wouldn't blink and eye. And yes, some appear perfectly fit to work.

Their common thread, for whatever reasons, is they're needy. There are several hundred in Big Spring.

Today and Thursday, 300 or more will eat Thanksgiving dinner at the Spring Tabernacle Church at 1209 Wright and the Salvation Army lodge at Third and Aylford. Thanksgiving food baskets are also being given out by both those groups as well as the Northside Community Center.

Some are regulars, others just need help a short while. It began modestly nearly three years ago with church members donating a can or two of food during Wednesday services. It mushroomed into daily trips to stores to collect dated milk, eggs, bread and other food that's donated instead of thrown out. At first food was delivered to families, now most come to the church.

You won't see Mr. Tonn at many ministerial meetings. He just doesn't have time. But you can find him at the church a lot. He'll likely be wearing blue jeans.

Many seem to respond to messages about God while others look oblivious. Tears brim the eyelids of several. Children look like they usually do, mostly happy.

Another local church put them up for the night. Tonn gave them a box of food for the trip. Still, what did those 85 to 150 fam-

Nipping at stereotypes

Scripps Howard News Service

The stray pooches of Mission Viejo, Calif., are no doubt eager to be incarcerated in the city's new $2.3 million dog shelter, described by The Associated Press this way: The shelter includes skylights. heated floors, paneled walls, showers, private water lines for each cage and a get-acquainted park."

The luxurious nature of the shelter, in fact, has stoked the fires of envy among some humans, perhaps because the shelter's annual $323,000 operating costs is $129,000 more than Mission Viejo spends on a community center for senior citizens. But fear not: Councilwoman Sharon Cody says the huge expense serves the best of all causes:

"We have to get people over that stereotypical image of the dog pound," she said.

Tammy Faye and James Bakker, all will recall, suffered greatly over their dog's palatial digs, which were at least financed by sucker money, not tax receipts. Their problem was in failing to point out that the money had been spent not for their dog's benefit but to help humanity broaden its horizons.

Crucial question: Did they intend to kill the child?

The Associated Press

PRESTON, England — The judge in the case of two schoolmates accused of murdering a toddler told jurors it does not matter who inflicted the deadly blow if both boys intended to kill or badly hurt the 2year-old.

"The crucial question is ... what was the intention of each defendant on the railway line when the fatal injuries were inflicted?" Judge Michael Morland said Tuesday, a day before the jury of nine men and three women was to begin delibera-

The two 11-year-olds, who can be identified in news reports only as Child A and Child B, are charged with abducting and murdering James Bulger and trying to abduct another 2-year-old.

Blurred pictures from security videotapes show the older boys walking with James out of a Liverpool shopping mall Feb. 12. James' mutilated body was found 2> miles away two days later.

The boys pleaded innocent. The trial began Nov. 1.

The boys sat quietly as Morland told jurors not to "allow your emotions to warp your judgment.'

Emotions still run strong in Liverpool. Nine months after his death, James' grave in the city's northern suburbs was blanketed with frostcovered flowers and stuffed animals. Because the defendants were 10 when James was killed, for the two to be convicted, the jury must be convinced they understood that what they were doing was wrong. A murder conviction also requires a finding that they intended to kill or seriously injure James. If jurors are in doubt, they could return a verdict of manslaughter. Both boys admitted to police to being on the railroad track when James was killed. Child B has confessed to police to killing him. Child A maintained his innocence through 6) hours of police questioning. Morland told jurors they could convict for murder without knowing which boy delivered the fatal blow "if you were sure that both had decided to kill or inflict really serious injury to James Bulger."

"To put it simply, are you sure they were in it together?"

The prosecution charges that the boys set out to take a child and at least hurt him. Motive is not at issue in the trial.

The judge told jurors to take into account the number of blows to the body: 30 in all from fists, feet, bricks and an iron bar.

They should consider why James was stripped of his shoes, socks, trousers and underpants, why the body was moved onto a railroad track. "Was that to suggest that the child had been subject to some form of assault, possibly by an adult, and then run over by a train? Was that to conceal, or attempt to conceal, the true cause of death?" Morland asked.

To decide whether the boys knew their actions were seriously wrong, Morland advised jurors to recall the testimony of psychiatrists who said they probably did. He noted that both boys attended a Church of England school where they were taught right from wrong.

Morland also pointed to the many lies that Child A told police, and his refusal to admit anything until confronted by evidence.

Child A told police he never touched James. "Well, that wasn't true, was it?" the judge said, reminding jurors that Child A's shoe print was found on James' face.
Brian Walsh, Child B's lawyer, said his client meant only to hurt the toddler and was guilty at most of manslaughter.

If convicted of manslaughter or murder, the two boys likely face indefinite sentences. They have been in custody since their arrests Feb.

Russia's rush to commerce has turned the sleepy boulevards of Soviet times into a honking, smog-belching free-for-all.

Traffic planners, road crews and driving schools haven't kept up. Siberia-sized potholes and the occasional open manhole turn engines to borscht, but drivers hard-water from a leaking pipe. Some drivers try to flee by using the sidewalk, where it's easier to get up some speed so long as pedestrians are nimble. Sidewalks also are popular for parking, just as the fast lanes of busy highways are choice for on-the-spot car repairs.

Not surprisingly, both the number and the severity of traffic accidents are up. In the first six months of this year, there were 613 people killed on Moscow roads, up 10.8 percent from the same period last year. And 1992 was itself a record year for traffic deaths in the city, with 1,360 over 12 months.

BERLIN — A prestigious university has used more than 200 human corpses - including the bodies of eight children — in automobile crash tests, the head of the research team confirmed Tuesday.

News of the tests, reported Tuesday in the national newspaper Bild and by TV networks, drew condemnation and outrage.

"In an age when experiments on animals are being put into question, such tests must be carried out on dummies and not on children's cadavers," said a statement issued by the Germany's largest automobile club, ADAC.

ARD, one of Germany's two main TV networks, reported Tuesday night that the state government of Baden-Wuerttemberg, where Heidelberg University is located, had demanded a written explanation of the experiments. Dr. Rainer Mattern, head of Heidelberg University's forensic pathology department, said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press that the tests with children's bodies ended in 1989, but said the university is continuing to adult cadavers.

He said that all the corpses were used with the permission of family

Elders weary of war; youth ready for action

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Most of Sarajevo's soldiers have had enough of fighting after almost 20 months of war. But teenage boys, approaching manhood in a world of guns and daily death, still crave a chance to be combat heroes.

'The kids are still looking for adventure," said Salih Dzidic, a Bosnian army officer weary of seeing comrades die. "They think it's cool to walk around with sunglasses and an automatic rifle. But they haven't seen the battles.'

Dzenan Pirija, who turns 17 next month, wants to join the Bosnian army's elite special forces unit. More than adventure, he seeks vengeance for the expulsion of his family from a Serb sector of Sarajevo in June 1992.

"I want revenge. If the war ends too soon, I can't get it," he said.

His friend, Kemal Zbanic, would rather be improving his basketball skills and frequenting discos. But if the war drags on, he too wants to join the special forces.

"We have a guy in my neighbor-hood who is hiding because he doesn't want to fight — he only goes out at night," Zbanic said. "He should be ashamed. When I'm 18, I won't be afraid to join the army.'

Young men in Sarajevo are required to serve in the army once they turn 18, although exemptions are granted for certain professional, religious and medical reasons. Draft evaders face jail, but Dzidic said only a few such cases have occurred.

He said, "Even now, most people would be ashamed to dodge the army. But after I've been through all this, sending eight buddies to die, every kid I'd talk to, I'd say don't fight if you don't have to.'

Dzidic remains scarred by memories of the four-day battle for Sarajevo's Otes district a year ago, when a Serb tank and artillery assault forced Bosnian defenders to abandon their positions. Dzidic sent several members of his unit to their deaths in a desperate attempt to hold the area long enough for 1,500 civilians to flee their homes.

"Nobody knows why we're fighting anymore," he said. "Last year, people fought for an ideal. This year, they're just fighting to stay alive, nothing else.'

Zbanic, 16, said youths his age are growing up faster than normal because of the war.

"My real life began with the war. Everything before has faded. It feels like I've been living this all my life,"

He said he was afraid of being crippled in combat, but not of dying. He and Pirija both noted that 10 Sarajevo civilians had been killed during the war for every one soldier. And they said living with daily sniping and shelling had toughened

These kids are different from other kids in the world. They've seen so many dead and so much blood, they're not surprised by anything,' Dzidic concurred. "Their interest isn't in culture or social life or sports. Their interest is finding out about weapons."

He said it was common for even pre-teen boys in Sarajevo to know how a rocket-propelled grenade is fired or to be able to distinguish different kinds of mortar and artillery

Yet attitudes also have changed. Dzidic recalled the fervor of teenage soldiers when the war was brand-new in April and May 1992.

"They died with a smile on their face, convinced they were doing the right thing," he said. "We'll never have that mood again.'

A turkey dinner for your funny bone, not necessarily your appetite

By JANET AUSBURY Staff Writer

Tired of the same old Thanksgiving dinner? We, the food experts are personally so weary of turkey, mashed potatoes, pumpkin pie, and all that traditional holiday Americana that we would gladly choke with a bag of giblets any individual attempting to serve us this kind of food.

We suspect some of you may feel the same way. Don't worry; no jury in America would convict us.

We have taken it upon ourselves to develop a new holiday meal that retains much of the caloric content and none of the flavor of our beloved traditional Thanksgiving.

Our taste-twisting recommendation for this season is Tofu Turkey Twin with Sweet 'n' Sour Dressing, Some Kind of Side Dish, and Dessert That Nobody Else Likes So That Way You Can Have More.

This delicious combination, like all our recipes, has not been tested by our kitchen and very likely would not be even if we had a kitchen. After all, we are not your mother.

However, we firmly believe the following meal to be colorful, well balanced, and very rarely fatal. We think Americans will switch in droves to this type of holiday meal once they have sampled it. You try it

TOFU TURKEY TWIN (Looks roughly like a turkey but tastes nothing like one. At least, we don't think it would. We personally would not touch tofu with a 10 feet chopstick.) Several blocks tofu

Popsicle sticks Aluminum foil

Cut tofu blocks into smaller blocks and mold into a turkey-shaped lump. Leave a big enough opening in the tofu for the Sweet 'n' Sour Dressing.

To make tofu drumsticks: Insert Popsicle sticks firmly into tofu blocks and cover sticks with aluminum foil so they look less like sticks and more like bones. Stuff the tofu, salt and pepper it, cover with aluminum foil and bake until kitchen starts to smell or aluminum catches on fire. Note: Tofu has no taste of its own, so don't screw up the dressing.

SWEET 'N' SOUR DRESSING Grape half Pineapple chunks Bottle of lemon juice Brown M&Ms

Croutons or stale bread (remove mold first) Salt

Celery salt (no longer available in stores; use your mother's 30-yearold bottle) Cheerios

Combine ingredients in glass bowl. Decide that bowl is too small and transfer ingredients to larger plastic ing theme: "Blue-The Forgotten bowl. Stir until you are bored. Stuff dressing in tofu and bake.

If you forget to put dressing into the tofu prior to baking, ignite dressing briefly with blowtorch and serve on tofu. Dressing has been heated properly when M&Ms have softened just enough to coat the Cheerios.

SOME KIND OF SIDE DISH

Peas Carrots Banana peel (for balance of colors) Eggplant

Salt Pepper Crushed potato chips

Cream of mushroom soup Place crushed potato chips in bottom of bowl (preferably one that is oven-safe). Pour in peas. Slice carrots and place on top of peas. Place banana peel on top of carrots. Place eggplant slices in trash can. Dump everything else into bowl and cover with more crushed potato chips.

Bake until done. DESSERT FOR ONE

Canned spinach Whipped cream

Pepper Vanilla Sugar

Combine ingredients and pour into ready-made pie crust. Bake until spinach is browned. To ensure solitude while eating, top pie with zucchini slices or braised chicken livers.

Best when hot.

Whatever is cooking, is doing

The first Thanksgiving by presidential proclamation was celebrated Nov. 26, 1789; following that, no regular holiday was set aside for many decades. In 1830 Sarah Josepha Hale, editor of the famous Godey's Lady's Book, started a campaign stressing the idea of making Thanksgiving a national festival to be observed by all our people. Her campaign succeeded in 1863 when President Abraham Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day. Now it is always celebrated the fourth Thursday in November. Sir Walter Scott wrote the following that certainly can be applied to this feasting day. "Give no more to every guest than he's able to digest: Give him always of the prime; And give but little at a time;

Give to all but just enough, Let them neither starve nor stuff, And that each may have his due, Let your neighbour carve for squares and serve. you.

'Fonzie' brings Happy Days to Lamesa with last-second layup

By DAVE HARGRAVE Sports Editor

Some guy wearing a leather jacket and riding a motorcycle killed the Big Spring Steers with his coolness Tuesday night.

Alfonzo "Fonzie" Jenkins, a 6-foot-2 junior, grabbed an offensive rebound and scored with one second remaining to give Lamesa a 76-75 buzzer-beating win at Steer Gym. He didn't say "Aaaayyyyyy" with his thumb up or punch jukeboxes into action like the Fonzie of Happy Days fame, but this Fonzie was cool under

First, however, Lamesa had to watch Big Spring's Tyrone Banks display his own cool under pressure. Banks sank two free throws with eight seconds left to give the Steers a one-point lead. Lamesa's Alvin Cantu brought the ball upcourt and passed it to the top of the key where teammate Chris Winford was standing.

Winford drove to his right and, having no choice as the clock wound down, forced an ugly 15-footer into the air. The ball never hit rim - it bounced off the backboard into the arms of Jenkins, who sank an uncontested layup as the buzzer sounded.

"I thought it was over," Jenkins said. "I thought it was going in at first, but then all of the sudden it fell right into my hands. No one was on me, so I just put it back up. I didn't even think about it."

Jenkins led a superbly balanced Lamesa attack with 14 points. Eleven players entered the game for the Golden Tors (1-1), and all of them scored.

This game will burn in the back of the Steers' minds, until their Saturday game at Snyder, for a number of reasons.

First, the Steers (0-3) jumped out to an 11-0 lead. They nearly lost the lead but managed to push it back to nine, 31-22. Lamesa then scored 13 straight points, thanks in large part to a full-court press that bewildered the Steers' guards.

Second, the Steers twice fought back from six-point deficits in the second half. The second time, they took a 70-68 lead with 2:08 to go on Wes Hughes's three-point play. The comebacks were in vain.

Third, the Steers committed 29 turnovers - 18 in the first half when Lamesa was struggling to stay close. Many of the turnovers came when Big Spring's Dustin Waters (32) and Heath Anderson, right, fight Lamesa's Alvin Cantu (50) and Josh Stevens (44) for a rebound Tuesday. Waters had 22 points and 17 rebounds, but that wasn't enough. Lamesa won 76-75 on a last-second basket.

"You know, you talk to the kids, but sometimes they don't listen, and you tell them usually it isn't the shot that beats you...it's what happens after. You've got to be ready to block out and get the rebound."

> Gary Tipton BSHS basketball coach

Steer guards passed the ball to post players in backcourt.

"Our forwards and guards have got to take the bee by the horns, instead of giving the ball up to somebody who taking the ball upcourt is not their job," said Big Spring coach Gary Tipton. "Some if that is just being young. A lot of that is just being young.

"You bet it hurts, especially when you had chances to win the ball game. You know, you talk to the kids, but sometimes they don't listen, and you tell them usually it isn't the shot that beats you...it's what happens after. You've got to be ready to block out and get the rebound."

Big Spring got results from junior post player Dustin Waters, who had game highs in points (22) and rebounds (17). Banks added 14

Nichols wouldn't relate what he said to his charges at halftime. but whatever it was, it worked. The intensity that the coach said hadn't been there in the first 16 minutes appeared in spades in the third quarter. After allowing a Miller bucket to start the second half, the rest of the quarter belonged to Coahoma. McGuire started things off with a leaning 10-footer that cut Highland's lead to 22-18.

The rest of the Bulldogs took their cue from McGuire. Henry scored inside on Coahoma's next two possessions - once on a three-point play - to give the 'Dogs the lead, Harmon nailed a three-pointer and Murphy added another inside basket to give Coahoma a 28-22 lead with 5:32 left in the third.

The Bulldogs built their lead to nine points on another Harmon trey before Highland finally broke the spell on a three-pointer from Harbuck. The Hornets nibbled at the deficit and trailed by five (35-30) entering the final quarter.

Highland chipped away further at the Coahoma lead in the fourth, getting as close as three points twice, but key baskets by Milliken and McGuire down the stretch preserved the victory.

"I think they were a little embarrassed by their first-half performance," Nichols said of his team. "It seemed that no one wanted to get the offense going. Milliken did a good job in the second half of getting the offense off the ground.

Lady Steers fall to Lamesa girls

LAMESA - Turnovers and Kechia Mason proved too much for the Big Spring Lady Steers to overcome Tuesday night as they dropped a 50-36 decision to Lamesa Tuesday

Mason was unstoppable Tuesday, scoring 25 points to lead the Lady Tors (3-3). Amy Earnst scored 18 points to lead Big Spring (1-4). Lamesa took a 17-8 lead after the first quarter, and the Lady Steers never got closer than five points the rest of the way.

BSHS coach Ron Taylor said his young team appears to be having a confidence crisis.

"We were just flat," Taylor said.
"It's hard for me to explain; we

COLORADO CITY - Stanton's boys' team won 49-44 Tuesday at C-City, and once again a pair of sophomores stepped into the spot-

Stanton sophomores Jason Hopper and Taylor Looney scored 16 and 15 points, respectively, as they continued to pick up the scoring slack for Eric Martel. Martel, 6foot-3, has battled back from an injury, but he's not at full strength

Editor's Note: This is the second of a two-part series about Howard College's only football season - 1949 - and the events surrounding it. Tomorrow, some of the players off that team offer their views on what they remember about the team.

Some of the players on Howard College's one and only football team back in 1949 still live in Big Spring, and they haven't forgotten they played for the Jayhawks.

But the details are fuzzy. So many years have passed. They don't remember much. Casually mention the Howard gridiron group to members of that team, and they probably have little to say.

Most of them just laugh. "Well, it was a laughing matter," said Louis Stallings, quarterback of the team, after he laughed as he heard a newspaper was interested in a story on the team. "I played on the best team we ever had." Can't argue with that. Even if Howard was 0-10.

"We got thumped every time out, that's all I remember," said Big Spring's Horace Rankin, who rides on the Senior Pro Rodeo circuit today. Actually, Howard stayed close in the first half of games before wilt-ing to the flaws caused by lack of conditioning. Several of the players had been out of high school for several years, said assistant coach Harold Davis, who is now on Howard's Board of Directors.

The players, some of which had enrolled at Howard just for the chance to play football, were simply out of shape.

We had a lot of guys that had been in the military, and they wanted to play football again, "Stallings said. "At least, they thought they wanted to play football again. They had played in high school, and they were all enthusiastic and ready to go and thought we had a really good squad.

"The problem was, these guys were so far removed from football that they couldn't last. They were out of shape, and they started dropping like flies. It wasn't quite as much fun as they thought it would be."

Another problem was jobs. Many of the players, especially the ones that had enrolled at Howard just to play football, had full-time jobs.

Bill Wheeler of Stanton said: "So many of the guys were older, they had full-time jobs, and you never did know whether they were going to show up for a game or not."

Those players who did make the game sometimes left more to be "One funny thing I do remember," Wheeler said, "is that we had these two boys from Sterling City.... They were just scared to death. They'd never played anything before except six-man ball, and they thought they weeks. They just were scared of having that many guys on the field."

Kimball Guthrie, who played center for the Jayhawks, said it was hard to compare anything to Howard's football team - it was put together so quickly and dismantled even faster. He remembers some of his teammates, including Billy "Chop" Van Pelt, one of Big Spring's professional football players.

"He was about as big of a star as you could get on a 10-game losing team," Guthrie said. "I don't know if we had any stars."

Guthrie said losing all 10 ball games didn't take the fun out of the season. No one had to play on the team - they were playing because they wanted to play.

"We were just starting out. You couldn't expect to be very good. You just admired the coaches for putting up with you for a whole season."

John Dibrell, who retired from coaching in the early '40s to open Dibrell's Sporting Goods, came out of retirement to be Howard's interim coach. Davis and Gordon McCallister were assistants. Howard went so far as to hire a permanent head coach for the 1950 season - a season that never began.

"I wasn't too sorry when it ended," said Guthrie, who chose to go to Howard when he heard about the football team. "It wasn't the losing, it was just football. I got it out of my system. And I wasn't big enough to play anywhere else."

According to Davis, Howard football players that still live in the local area, besides the men quoted above, include Delmer Turner, Gerald Harris, Don Williams, Troy Brown, Eugene Rush and Joe Horton. Other players included Jimmie Jennings, Charlie Seydler, B.B. Lees, Nino Lujan, A.J. Cain, Sam Thurman, Jim Black, Eddie Hickson, Harold Baker, Blain Mitchell, Kenneth Barnes, "Goat" Hull, Elton Prater, Robert Reed, Moe Madison, Cleone Russell, Billy Hamrick, Earnest Potter, Quin Grigsby and Ensor Puckett.

Soon after the 1949 Howard football season ended, the Korean War began. Many of the players that had served in the military in WWII were called back into dum. Davis said. That, plus the high expenses of the football season that caught the Howard's Board of Directors eye, led the Board to cancel the 1950 season. Football never returned.

"We didn't have any dorms. To continue the program, to get enough players, we would have had to bring in some players from other areas. but you'd have to find them a place to stay," Davis said. "Under the situation we were in, the limitations that the college was putting on the program, it was probably best that they took their losses and got out when they did."

Palmeiro backs off, apologizes for insults of his replacement

By The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas - Rafael Palmeiro, who had called Will Clark a "lowlife" with "no class," has apologized to the newly signed Rangers first baseman.

"I think Will Clark is a great person and a great ballplayer," Palmeiro said Tuesday night on Fort Worth radio station WBAP. "I was speaking out of frustration and I want to apologize to Will." Clark signed a five-year, $30 million contract with the Rangers Monday. The contract means Palmeiro probably will have to sign with another team. Both were freeagent first basemen and Palmeiro, who hoped to re-sign with Texas, had blasted Clark.

"That's Will," Palmeiro was quoted as saying in Tuesday's editions of the Fort Worth Star Telegram! That's the way he isn'tle's got no class. Friendship didn't matter to him. He was looking out for himself. I don't think much of Will. He's a

Rangers organization as "low class" and called club president Tom

Schieffer a "backstabbing liar." "They never gave me the option of getting back with them," Palmeiro said. "It was unprofessional. But that's the way Schieffer operates."

Palmeiro told WBAP that he wants everybody out there to know that he (Clark) deserves better. That's not the way I am and he deserves better.'

Earlier Tuesday, Clark said his former college roommate had the right to his opinion.

"I respect Rafael Palmeiro as both an athlete and a person," Clark said during a news conference in center field of the Rangers' new stadium. "What he says is his opinion."

Before the conference, Clark greeted another Ranger who had criticized him, Jose Canseco, with a handshake at The Ballpark in Arlington. Canseco and Clark reportedly had personality clashes in the Clark downplayed the reported episodes with Canseco.

"The thing with Jose and I a few years agnowas blown outcop proportition quite a bit," Clark said: diego; inq Canseco was ambivalent about Clark's arrival.

"I'm sad that Palmeiro won't be with the Rangers," Canseco said.

Palmeiro also described the "On the other hand, I'm glad we got a player of such quality as Will Clark. ... It's an organizational move, and if they're happy with it, I guess the players have to be happy with it,

> Clark, a teammate of Palmeiro's at Mississippi State, declined to say whether there was an unwritten rule that baseball players don't compete for their friends' jobs.

> Said his agent, Jeff Moorad: "I've always been aware of the fact that once you become a free agent, there are no rules." The Rangers, who said they feared being left without a power-hitting first baseman if they didn't sign Clark, were pleased with the acquisi-

"On behalf of all the Rangers owners and all the fans and everybody who knows we'll win a pennant, I'd like to welcome Will Clark to the Texas Rangers organization," said Rangers managing partner George

The fax that killed Mojo may be investigated

By The Associated Press

ODESSA — The Texas Rangers may open a criminal investigation into the source of information that led to the release of a Permian High School student's records.

The Texas Open Records Act forbids the unauthorized disclosure of a student's records. Permian was disqualified from the playoffs last week after the records of Permian football player Benji Garcia were faxed to the District 4-5A Executive Committee. The anonymous fax alleged Garcia was ineligible to play because University Interscholastic League rules required that he sit out one year after transferring from Odessa

Representatives from the Rangers and the Ector County Independent School District were scheduled to meet today to discuss the law enforcement agency's involvement, a Rangers spokesman said.

"We haven't started an investigation per se," said Texas Rangers Captain Gene Powell of Midland. ECISD approached the county attorney, Ector County Sheriff's Department and the Texas Rangers Tuesday about conducting a criminal investigation into the incident.

If the Texas Rangers determine that the fax did involve the commission of a crime, ECISD likely would push for prosecution, said Mike Atkins, the school district's attorney.

"I would imagine we'd press charges," Atkins said. "It would be up to the board to decide."

Garcia also might be able to press charges, Atkins added.

Unauthorized release of student records is a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $25 to $4,000 and a jail sentence of three days to three Distribution of student records also is a misdemeanor, carrying a maximum punishment of a $1,000 fine and six months in jail, Atkins said.

Permian's football team, which went undefeated this season, forfeited all of its district wins last week when U.S. District Judge Harry Lee Hudspeth upheld the UIL's ruling that Garcia was ineligible to play this Garcia, a junior, played for Odessa High last year. He switched schools under the terms of ECISD's 1982 federal desegregation order that allows majority-to-minority transfers.

Thanksgiving: Share the blessings

DEAR READERS: Tomorrow is food, and remember the hungry. Thanksgiving, so let's take a moment and reflect upon all of those blessings for which we can be thankful.

How's your health? Only a few minor complaints? Well, thank God they're not major. If you are reading this -you're still here. You can probably think of at least one person who isn't around this year. (I know I can.)

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, or read the newspaper with two good eyes (or even one) praise the Lord! A lot of people could not. (Say a prayer for those who were injured, or who have perished, in fire, flood, earthquake or war.)

How's your pocketbook? Thin? You're not alone. But many people in the world are a lot poorer, and are making do with far less than we Americans.

Are you lonely? Well, the way to have a friend is to be one. If nobody calls you, don't stand on ceremony, pick up the phone and call someone. Go out of your way to do something nice for someone. It's a sure cure for the holiday blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern — concern for fair treatment under the law. In America we can cast a secret ballot or criticize our government without fearing a knock on the head or a knock on our door in the middle of the night.

Freedom rings! You can worship in the church of your choice (or not worship at all - if that's your choice).

As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving Prayer. Perhaps you will want to use it at your table tomorrow. Let one of the children read it:

"Oh, Heavenly Father, we thank thee for DENNIS THE MENACE to share a Thanksgiving meal — or, better yet, call and say, "I'm coming to get you, and I'll see that you get home." Try it, and let me know how your day was.

Aging, struggling Redskins face long road back

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Blame it on injuries, a new coach or a lack of bold off-season moves. The Washington Redskins have reached glory teams make the rapid plunge to mediocrity.

Or worse yet, in the Redskins' case, a game behind the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The Green Bay Packers, Pittsburgh Steelers and Dallas Cowboys have all been there before. Some manage to make it back. Washington's journey, however, will be arduous.

For starters, they have a huge question mark at quarterback. Mark Rypien, Super Bowl MVP after the 1991 season, hurt his knee in the second game of the year. Since returning, he's thrown one touchdown pass and seven interceptions, a total of 12 passes for 137 yards and horrific replay of the miserable 1992 campaign in which he was the NFC's lowest-rated passer.

Rypien watched Sunday's loss to the Rams from the bench as firstyear coach Richie Petitbon turned to Rich Gannon, a Minnesota discard who guided them to just two field NFL hell — the place where aging goals against the NFL's 19th ranked

> In the brave new world of NFL salary caps, the Redskins have an aging and high-paid group of oftinjured veterans. At the start of the season they had 18 players on their roster age 30 or over, five more than any other team in the league.

They also have a well-paid youngster, Desmond Howard, who has shown none of the flash or promise at wide receiver that persuaded the Redskins to trade up for the Heisman Trophy winner in the 1992 draft.

In two years. Howard has caught a money he's collected so far on his four-year $5.8 million contract.

have remained silent when asked about their problems.

"This is not the time to address those things," Redskins general manager Charley Casserly said. "We have six games left and we're going to play it out and try to get things going. Out guys have a good work ethic and we're not going to quit."

While no one with the Redskins is saying publicly that Howard's a bust. and there is constant carping from the front office to throw to Howard no touchdowns. That works out more. But the coaching staff says he roughly to $300,000 a catch for the runs poor pass routes and hasn't earned the job.

The rest of the offense is sputtering For the most part, the Redskins too, unable to put the ball in the end zone with the "San Francisco East" offense — and its short passing routes — that offensive coordinator Rod Dowhower installed during the off-season.

Reggie Brooks is well on his way toward a 1,000-yard rookie season and is fourth in the NFC in rushing. Yet the Redskins repeatedly have come up short on third- and fourthdown conversions when they needed only a yard or two, like Gerald Riggs delivered for them during their Super Bowl season two years.

There are other problems as well - and injuries are a common denominator.

Washington's once-dominating offensive line, "The Hogs," has just one remaining original member, center Jeff Bostic, and he has a bad knee. Their best pass protector, Jim Lachey, suffered a season-ending torn knee ligament in August.

In their place, a group of injuryriddled youngsters do a fair job of run-blocking but have trouble stopping opposing pass rushers. Ditto the defensive line, where Charles Mann and others have been slowed by injuries and unable to mount anything resembling a pass rush. The result? Opposing quarterbacks finish the game with clean uniforms and have all day to find receivers. Washington's pass defense is ranked 26th in the NFL.

And then there are intangibles, like how the team adjusts to its first new head coach in a dozen years, a period that included four Super Bowl appearances under Joe Gibbs.

While some expected changes under Petitbon, nobody expected such a fall from grace for a team that won the Super Bowl just two years

"Right now, the only thing I'm doing is playing one week at a time, Petitbon said, referring to Sunday's game against the Eagles (4-6). "I'm not looking to two weeks, or a month, or next season. I'm not going to speculate on anything except Philadelphia. It just doesn't do any

It's easy to see now that the Redskins, perhaps distracted by the sudden departure of Gibbs, missed. the ball on free agency last spring. They concentrated on one, Reggie White, and came up short after refusing to budge past a certain salary level. White is now giving the Green Bay Packers the pass rush they needed to make a run at the Central Division title.
