CrimeStoppers ready for a return?

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

The local CrimeStoppers program, dormant for several months, may soon have a revival, thanks to efforts by local law enforcement agencies.

Deputy Investigator Tony Chavez of the Howard County Sheriff's Office said he found out accidentally that the CrimeStoppers program had been discontinued when he asked KBST Radio to broadcast a CrimeStoppers brief. The station informed him CrimeStoppers no longer existed.

The sheriff's office then confirmed with the Big Spring

Police Department that the program was no longer in existence. Chavez did not know why the program was stopped, but said the sheriff's office will reward tips leading to the arrest and prosecution of criminals.

Detective James Rider of the Big Spring Police Department is working with the Chamber of Commerce to reinstate CrimeStoppers. "I'll be meeting with the city manager (Lanny Lambert) and the vice president of the chamber (Terry Burns) to see what we can get started," he said.

"Some of the newer people like Terry Burns weren't aware we had been doing CrimeStoppers," Rider added. He was not sure when or why the program was stopped. Burns said he was indeed surprised to find out that CrimeStoppers had been a function of the Chamber. "The first I'd heard about it was when Detective Rider called me," he said.

Burns has been with the Chamber since April 1 and said there were no records indicating that CrimeStoppers was one of its programs. Office workers answering phones at the chamber were equally surprised.

Burns, Rider and Lambert did not know why or exactly when CrimeStoppers ceased to function. A meeting to discuss restarting the program had been scheduled for Wednesday morning, but according to Burns, "I found out from Detective Rider the meeting had been canceled."

Parents, teachers say motorists need to use caution

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

A Goliad Middle School student crosses the crosswalk at the end of a school day Tuesday, as a car drives past her in the background. Some parents and school officials have complained about speeding in school zones, which can be particularly hazardous at Goliad, which does not have a crossing guard at the crosswalk.

Warning: School crossing zones may be hazardous to your child's health.

This message won't appear on any school crossing zone, but children and adults crossing streets near schools in early morning and midafternoon, when school traffic is heaviest, may want to exercise extra caution nonetheless.

Big Spring resident Wanda Mathis, in a letter to the editor published Wednesday, Nov. 17, expressed her concern about motorists disobeying school traffic rules.

"My 12-year-old daughter was nearly hit by a car...she was not jaywalking," Mathis wrote. This was not the first time Mathis' daughter had nearly been hit. "But this time it was so close, and the car was going so fast, my heart stopped."

School administrators share Mathis' concern. Jean Broughton, principal of Goliad Middle School, where Mathis' daughter attends school, said some problems are caused by parents in a hurry.

"If they're paying attention, there's usually not a problem," she said. Additional traffic problems are caused by parents dropping their children off in the faculty parking lot.

"I know they want to drop their children off right in front of the school, but the traffic can really get backed up from parents and faculty in that lot," said Broughton.

She also pointed out that Goliad Middle School's crosswalk has flashing yellow lights and a posted 20-mph speed limit.

Janice Rosson, principal at College Heights Elementary School, said she receives two or three complaints a year about traffic and crowded school parking lots.

College Heights' crossing guard, John Stiehl, "gets awfully mad because people speed by him," added Rosson.

Stiehl, who works 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. and 2:50 to 3:50 p.m., said he sees many cars speeding through the crossing zones, even when he is leading children across the street.

"A lot of cars come through too fast. They just whiz by," he said. "I grab the kids and try to keep them from getting hit. I've almost been hit myself a few times."

Stiehl suggests perhaps the blinking lights at the middle school crosswalk could be changed to revolving lights, "like those on top of police cars," and possibly get more attention.

"It's always been that way," Stiehl said about the traffic. "I just hope somebody doesn't get run over out there."

Lt. Roger Sweatt of the Big Spring Police Department said the police have received very few complaints about people speeding through school zones. The lack of complaints, rather than reflecting little or no trouble, may Please see ZONES, page 6

New internist brings practice to Big Spring

Dr. Manuel Carrasco, a specialist in internal medicine, began serving the community Monday at Malone-Hogan Clinic.

Carrasco, 39, said he came to Big Spring because he has a greater chance to develop his practice here. "I also look forward to being able to serve the Hispanic community here," he commented.

Educated in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Carrasco interned at medical institutions in New York City and was most recently a doctor at Woodhull Hospital and Booth Memorial Medical Center in Queens.

Carrasco described his specialty as being the core of medical practice. "In many specialties—cardiology, gastroenterology, pulmonary diseases, infectious diseases—the internal medicine specialist is the first doctor the sick person will see."

Three days into his new job, Carrasco has already treated several patients. "Some of them have gone home already. That's fast service," he quipped.

The greatest encouragement for moving to Big Spring, according to Carrasco, was the friendliness of the city's residents. "These are very nice people here," he said.

He extended the same compliment to the clinic. "The staff here is friendly, and that's the most important point."

John Paul Anderson of Southwest Builders, feels good about Big Spring and he's found a way to show it - by helping the police department.

He recently donated $3,500 for a couple dozen gun racks to be mounted in marked patrol units. It provides extra safety for police because weapons that were kept loose in the vehicles are now secured and can only be removed by an officer.

"It's something we looked at before, we just never had the money," said Acting Police Chief Jerry Edwards. "We didn't go out and solicit it. He just approached us one day and said, 'What would you like.'"

"This is Southwest Builders' way of showing support for the police department to help them do the things they do, by giving them the tools they need," said Paul Hopper, speaking on behalf of Anderson. "It's just one of those Please see DONATION, page 6

Volunteers 'mother' new mothers

The Associated Press

TYLER — Tara Arciniega speaks about her work in a way that not many can. She looks forward to it. She gets excited about it.

"It's hard to describe — witnessing and being a part of the birth of a life," Mrs. Arciniega said. "Being a part of that creates an instant bond with the mother. It makes you feel needed. That feeling never gets old."

Mrs. Arciniega volunteers as a doula.

Translated literally, the Greek word means an experienced woman who guides and assists a new mother with infant-care tasks. Today, doulas are women who provide labor support to a pregnant woman.

When Mrs. Arciniega was in the hospital having her third child, she met two teen-age mothers. "They really had a very difficult time with the birth experience," she said.

"They didn't handle it very well... They had a real struggle bonding with the infants... They were scared and just weren't prepared."

The United States has the highest pregnancy, abortion and birth rates in adolescents of developed countries, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Texas ranks second in the nation for young women 19 and under who have babies. Smith County reported 362 live births in 1990 by those in the age group making it one of the highest rates in Texas.

Teen-age girls often receive inadequate prenatal care, if they receive any at all. And according to the National Commission to Prevent Infant Mortality, lack of prenatal care leads to poor coping skills during labor and birth. This leads to increased complications for mother and child.

Mrs. Arciniega wanted to help. She had an idea. She approached Cindy Kidwell, Mother Frances Hospital director of Volunteer Services, with the idea about a year ago.

"In January of this year, it really took off. And by March, we had the first training session," Mrs. Arciniega said.

"Tara had to do a lot of the groundwork," Ms. Kidwell said. "Kathy Lovelady (unit manager of labor and delivery) took the program to the physicians to get their support."

"It took time to create. But what we have is something really spectacular," Ms. Kidwell said.

The program originally focused on teenage mothers," Ms. Kidwell said. "But we realized there were a lot of mothers who could use the support. They, too, could benefit from having a female labor coach."

The program's goal is to provide comfort and encouragement to mothers-to-be who would otherwise receive none and make labor an easier process. Anyone can request a doula.

Absence of prenatal preparatory classes and an unfamiliar hospital environment contribute to maternal anxiety, according to a report by Ms. Lovelady. Anxiety caused by fear of childbirth is one of the strongest predictors of labor pain and promotes a very hard birth experience, Mrs. Arciniega said.

Research shows that if mothers have a good childbirth experience, they will have less postpartum depression and that having moral, physical and emotional support prior to delivery helps bring about shorter labor and more positive birthing experience. Some studies have even shown that few Caesarian deliveries are required with the influence and support of a doula.

A study in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology of 189 women going into labor for the first time, 92 of whom were offered companionship from labor volunteers, concluded that the women with support retained higher self-esteem and lower postpartum depression and anxiety after their babies were born.

"There has been an outstanding response to the program. The volunteers are so committed; they're very generous with their time. And it's extremely rewarding work," Ms. Kidwell said. "They develop relationships with the new moms. It's very satisfying."

The Tyler program has 15 trained volunteers. Ms. Kidwell says they hope to get 30-40 doulas.

"After the volunteer fills out an application and the screening process is completed, the doula goes through a training session. They then commit to one eight-hour day per month. That could be done on a weekend," Ms. Kidwell said.

Training includes two four-hour sessions of intense, non-stop Lamaze-based training conducted by labor and delivery nurses. Volunteers are then required to observe two labors and births.

"Some doulas come to visit after the birth. They feel like part of the family," said Cindy Robinson, a registered nurse who directs the doula training. "They like to check up on the moms."

Doula volunteers are taught about the emotional and physical aspects surrounding pregnancy and learn about the medical side of the process. They provide no medical interventions but must be able to explain procedure to the mother.

Doulas provide instruction in breathing techniques, give comfort, encouragement and guidance.

Doulas become part of the medical support team, Ms. Robinson said. They serve as a liaison between mother and physician, mother and nurse and/or mother and her family.

"Doulas can help communicate and express the needs mothers are intimidated or afraid to ask for," Mrs. Arciniega said.

Past experience in nursing is not necessary to become a doula. Many are mothers and grandmothers. Some have full-time jobs and volunteer on the weekends.

A worker removes the icy slush from the field prior to the start of the Dallas Cowboys-Miami Dolphins game Thursday in Irving. Numerous highways throughout north, central and eastern Texas were iced by sleet and freezing rain Thursday and driving conditions across a large area remained extremely hazardous this morning.

Freezing rain, sleet leaves North Texas slippery, dangerous

The Associated Press

Texans fighting their way to the mall today for the busiest shopping day of the year may have to slosh through some cold, wet weather. Of course, indoors is the place to be under such conditions.

Roads across the central and eastern portions of the state remained ice-covered and hazardous this morning. Temperatures were in the teens and 20s at 5 a.m. with some wind chill factors in the single digits.

Temperatures ranged from 9 degrees at Dalhart to 40 degrees at McAllen.

Statewide, the cold snap will be one for the record books. Low temperature records were broken Thursday at the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, Corpus Christi and Amarillo, the National Weather Service reports.

At Midland, the temperature dropped to 15 degrees this morning, establishing a new record low, according to the NWS.

A winter storm warning was issued for the northeast and east-central portions of North Texas. Freezing rain and sleet was expected today in parts of the region.

Highs are expected in the lower 40s in the west to the middle 30s in the southeast. Lows tonight will be from the lower to middle 20s.

Light rain and drizzle was falling generally east of a line from Laredo to Austin to College Station this morning.

The forecast for South Texas calls for the clouds along with the freezing rain and drizzle to decrease from the west during the day. Skies should be clear to partly cloudy across much of the area tonight.

Highs today will range from the upper 30s into the middle 40s. Lows tonight will range from the teens across the Hill Country to the mid-30s over the lower valley. Skies generally were clear this morning across West Texas, where temperatures were in the teens and 20s.

The forecast calls for sunny skies today and clear skies tonight. The highs will range from the 30s in the Panhandle to the 50s in the far west and along the Rio Grande. Lows will be in the teens and 20s.

The weather definitely took its toll Thursday on North Texas. Dallas police reported more than 60 accidents by early evening. In Fort Worth, about 100 accidents were reported within three hours of the wintry weather hitting.

A five-vehicle wreck in Mesquite hospitalized an off-duty Dallas police officer. No traffic fatalities were reported.

Texas Department of Transportation officials dispatched crews to sand bridges and overpasses, which freeze faster than roadways. Officials also warned travelers to stay indoors, if possible.

"If you don't have to go anywhere, don't. If you have to go out, the best thing to do would be just to slow it down," said James Black, of the Dallas office of the Department of Transportation.

Black offered a few tips for those who were braving the rough conditions: allow plenty of space between cars, don't slam on the brakes, and "use plenty of caution and plenty of good sense."

In one of the more unusual weather-related incidents, a trucker driving on a highway outside Texas Stadium — which hosted a snow-marred game between the Dallas Cowboys and Miami Dolphins — lost a load of Christmas trees.

The inclement weather was also causing problems at airports, where many flights were either delayed or canceled.

Grandmothers cooked. Some people exercised in advance to make room for all the Thanksgiving calories. Sonic the Hedgehog had an accident in his first Macy's parade appearance.

And while it was toasty indoors as the turkey cooked, temperatures outside fell to record lows in many places and snow stranded travelers and postponed dinners in the Upper Midwest.

Sleet and freezing rain caused scores of accidents in three hours in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, and icy roads claimed at least seven lives in other states.

American Airlines, on the rebound from a crippling strike, canceled all evening flights at its main hub at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport due to bad weather. Other airlines with fewer flights were able to keep operating.

In Biloxi, Miss., Mary Joiner fixed Thanksgiving dinner for 300 of her closest friends and family members.

"A lot of people do not have a place to call their own," Joiner said before the annual feast at Loaves and Fishes, a soup kitchen, where she is kitchen manager. "Having a place like this at least gives them that. It would have helped when I was living on the streets 15 years ago."

Thanksgiving dinner helped Louis Mazzotta, 31, a homeless man at the Pine Street Inn shelter in Boston.

"It made me feel good inside," he said. "It brought back when my Mom was alive and I used to have all this."

Thousands of people braved a chilly morning to line New York City's Broadway for the 67th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, the showcase for marching bands and huge helium balloons of cartoon characters.

One new balloon, of Sonic the Hedgehog, a character from a video game, went astray in the morning breeze and toppled a street light. Two spectators were slightly injured by falling pieces of the light.

Sonic was banished. "The hedgehog is being taken off the parade route and is being deflated," said police Detective Louis Llanes.

Thousands more turned out for a two-mile parade in Detroit, where Diane Efthemiou, 32, a worker at General Motors Corp., wore a colorful peasant costume on the popular

People line up for turkey, dressing and other types of food Thursday at Bluebird Park in Laguna Beach, Calif. This is the seventh annual Thanksgiving picnic put on by the community for themselves, those less fortunate and families who lost their homes in last month's firestorms that devastated the area. More than 400 people were expected to attend the outdoor get-together.

Pinocchio float.

"It was wonderful," Efthemiou said. "The kids — they'd think I was a Hollywood star when you shook their hand."

Others stayed inside. Bally's Holiday Spa in the Baltimore suburb of Towson, Md., was jammed with about 70 people at 9 a.m.

"This will help me not feel so guilty as I go into a feeding frenzy," said Stacey Molli, 29, of Baltimore, as she worked out on a stair-climbing machine.

"I'll burn 500 or 600 calories here to make room for something," said Joe Hargadon, 62, as he pedaled on an exercise bicycle.

In Buffalo, a record 3,107 people — some dressed as turkeys and Santa Claus — ran in the 98th annual Turkey Trot, a five-mile race that organizers say is the oldest continually run road race in the country.

In some spots, the weather outside was frightful, with record cold, icy roads and flying snow.

From Monday to midday Thursday,

Bismarck, N.D., had received 23 inches of snow, a record for one storm at any time of the year there. The Salvation Army postponed its Thanksgiving dinner until Friday and Meals on Wheels didn't deliver.

Numerous travelers were snowbound in Bismarck motels. Robin Stanton, a clerk at a Comfort Inn, said the motel had about 30 stranded travelers from as far away as Winnipeg, Manitoba, and Denver.

"Everyone has really good hearts about it," Stanton said.

A mixture of snow and rain made traveling treacherous on numerous roads in much of southern and eastern Oklahoma, where at least four people died on slick roads.

"We've got two separate fatal crashes, one a double fatality, the other a single," Highway Patrol dispatcher Casey Blackford said from Muskogee. A second person involved in the single fatality died at a hospital shortly after the accident.

Slick roads were blamed for two accidents in Wisconsin that killed three people.

As much as a foot of snow fell overnight in parts of Minnesota, prompting many people to just stay home. Roads were icy as far south as Missouri and Kansas.

Rain and sleet caused havoc in Texas, covering bridges and overpasses with ice. Dallas police reported more than 60 accidents by early evening, and authorities in Fort Worth reported about 100 accidents in the three hours after wintry weather hit.

Record cold mostly in the teens, single digits and below zero extended from Washington to Maine and as far south as Abilene, Texas. Dodge City, Kan., dropped to 3 above zero; topping a record that had stood since 1880.

But for real cold, Yellowstone National Park was the place to be, with the official coldest reading in the Lower 48 states. The steaming hot water of Old Faithful geyser erupted into air that was 36 degrees below zero.

Holiday shopping season should be decent for retailers

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Like pollsters trying to predict an election winner or a bookie setting odds on the Super Bowl, just about everyone connected with the retail business seems to have a forecast for the Christmas shopping season.

Depending on whom you ask, it'll be a good season because consumers are more relaxed about the economy, or a downer because they're beset by financial concerns.

Chances are the season, which has its traditional start Friday, will turn out OK for many retailers, better than it appeared a few months ago.

But sales won't come easy — the bulk of business is expected in the last 10 days of the season — and retailers will again resort to low prices, extra services and a few gimmicks to get people into their stores.

Kmart stores were open Thanksgiving for people who wanted to work off their turkey dinner by pushing shopping carts. Many retailers were also opening earlier than usual Friday.

Many department stores are again using plush toys as a bonus for shoppers spending a specific amount. Macy's eastern stores are selling Lamb Chop toys modeled after the Shari Lewis puppet for $13 to customers who spend $35. A moose is the mascot in Macy's western stores, and Dayton Hudson's department stores have brought back Santa Bear for a ninth year.

Other stores are providing special services. Bloomingdale's in New York will gift wrap customers' purchases while they continue to shop, and has added staffers fluent in several languages to help the store's many foreign shoppers.

The Sharper Image decided to go to its customers rather than wait for all of them to show up. The gadget retailer has several Manhattan stores, but it's taken up space in Bloomingdale's — and will remain there after Christmas — to take advantage of the heavy and well-heeled shopper traffic.

Most retailers are going to have what consumers really want — discounts all season long. The recession made markdowns a way of life for stores, and the price cuts are built into their holiday budgets.

Predictions for how the season will turn out have become another Christmas fixture, partly because the holidays are no longer the guaranteed money-maker they once were.

Christmas 1992 was the first good holiday season for the retail industry in four years. So industry watchers have consulted their crystal balls, with varying results.

After surveying consumers, the accounting and consulting firm Arthur Andersen said that Americans are very confident and three-quarters will spend the same or more as they did last year on gifts, giving retailers a robust season.

But America's Research Group, a consumer research firm, puts a more negative spin on the season, saying 40 percent of Americans are uneasy about the economy and will spend less on gifts this year.

One thing is certain: Consumers will be playing a cat-and-mouse game with retailers, delaying their spending and forcing nervous storeowners to cut prices even lower than the merchants already plan.

Retail industry analysts who were pessimistic about the season back in the summer are more upbeat now, thanks to signs that the economy is improving.

Salomon Brothers Inc. analyst Jeffrey Feiner, for example, said the so-so business that has prevailed until now should strengthen late in the season.

Clinton's invisible adviser steps briefly into spotlight

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Many a Thanksgiving traveler owes something to Bruce Lindsey, even if they've never heard of him.

He's the short, neat, mild-looking guy with glasses who's always hovering near President Clinton. The one whose name rarely makes it into the photo caption, and that's just the way he's wanted it.

Clinton blew Lindsey's cover this week when he said his Arkansas buddy "had a lot to do with" bringing the American Airlines strike to an end.

The public mention — the first from Clinton, according to Lindsey's wife — could signal Lindsey's emergence as an out-front player. At any rate, his subterranean profile was briefly visible above ground.

Until recently, Lindsey held the double title of White House personnel director and senior adviser. With most jobs filled, he's dropped the first but kept the second, which has always better reflected his central role in the administration's affairs.

His White House quarters are closer than anyone else's to the Oval Office. He's been traveling with Clinton as candidate and president for two years, delivering good news and bad, heading off crises, controlling damage. Just last week, he accompanied Clinton to the West Coast.

"He's like a family doctor," said longtime friend Skip Rutherford. "He diagnoses most of the problems before the world even knows they are problems. And he solves most of them before they ever become problems."

It was Lindsey, a labor lawyer, who called the White House shots on the American strike. He talked to both sides and decided Clinton should talk to them. The president's reassurances clinched the deal, just in time to avert airport chaos over the holidays.

And just in time to get Lindsey himself home to his wife and two daughters on the American flight he'd booked to Little Rock.

Lindsey, an avid pianist with a jazzy red sports car, has known Clinton and supported his career since the 1970s. When Clinton ran for president, Lindsey went through the rough times with him — not only physically but emotionally.

In New Hampshire, during Clinton's bleakest hours, Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., called to find out who was with the candidate. Told it was Lindsey, he said, "Everything's fine, then."

Lindsey's formal title was campaign director, but that barely began to describe what he did. He was a window on Clinton's habits, whereabouts, thoughts and feelings. He was keeper of the schedule, watchdog of the photo op, wry commentator on the campaign and the candidate.

Asked once about Clinton's claim that he had lost a seemingly impossible amount of weight in one campaign week, Lindsey deadpanned: "Different scales, different cities."

Another time, describing the type person the president-elect would put in his Cabinet, Lindsey said, "He wants people who ... go ahead and disagree with him when they disagree."

He could have been describing himself. Pryor once explained his faith in Lindsey this way: "Bruce tells the truth."

Lindsey's family never moved to Washington. He lives in a room in a Georgetown house and has seen his wife, Bev, only twice since September, when she became director of the state Department of Arkansas Heritage.

She keeps close tabs on him, however, and became worried a few weeks ago when White House colleagues told her he had been losing weight.

President Clinton confers with senior adviser Bruce Lindsey (right). Clinton blew Lindsey's cover last week when he said his Arkansas buddy "had a lot to do with" bringing the American Airlines strike to an end. Lindsey's name rarely makes it into the photo caption, and that's the way he's wanted it.

Lone Star State's armor-clad conquistadors have waged a seesaw — and good-natured — battle with the Pilgrims of Plymouth. Gov. Ann Richards fired the latest salvo recently when she signed an official memorandum declaring Texas' version of the celebration "the first true Thanksgiving in the United States."

No response has come from Weld, but Brooks Kelly, executive director of the Plymouth County Development Council and one of the main players in the Texas-Massachusetts debate, believes it's Texas' turn to respond.

Liberals not Clinton cheerleaders

WASHINGTON — President Clinton unloaded his anger on the "knee-jerk liberal press" the other day, putting as legions of politicians have before him that he's blamed when he shouldn't be and isn't given credit when he deserves it.

Leonard Larsen

After all, the president said in an interview with Rolling Stone magazine of the same knee-jerk liberal press, he had "fought more damn battles" in less than a year in office than any president in the last 20 years and all he gets is dumped on. The president seemed to be suggesting he expects — and he's entitled to have — the knee-jerk liberal press to be his cheerleaders against the knee-jerk conservative press and he doesn't get that and that's not fair.

Paso's thanksgiving celebration. The writ seeks to return Onate (as played by Hall) to Massachusetts for the continuation of a mock trial begun in November 1991. Hall and a group of conquistadors were arrested then in Plymouth and charged with "blasphemy and spreading false rumors."

The trial ended when the evidence was found to be inconclusive and a recommendation was made that the Pilgrims visit El Paso the following year for the reenactment of the 1598 Thanksgiving. They did and were nearly lynched by Texas "bad men" before being saved by a town marshal.

Remembering that things were quite different in the Southwest during the 16th century is the only way I can truly commiserate with Onate. That, of course, is because I've been to El Paso on a few occasions. And not once can I remember having been truly grateful for having gotten there.

Limbaugh's rush to success

Would you look at this. No sooner had Rush Limbaugh's second book, "See, I Told You So" (Pocket, $24), appeared in bookstores, it went directly to No. 1 on the best-seller list. Again.

How the liberals must be burning. They can trash him. They can dismiss him as just another conservative white man foaming at the mouth in the age of political correctness. They can bristle at his "femi-Nazi" lines, they can shudder when he dead-eyes their darling sugarbabes in the White House, the Clintons, they can do eyerolls when he sneers at the liberal agenda, they can gather in their clusters at cocktail parties and speak of his insensitivities towards all their never-ending series of political and social issues and cautions.

We share many of the same opinions, to be sure, but what impresses me most about him is he did something that used to be a very American thing to do before it became politically incorrect to be successful in this country.

That is because so many American newspapers, for instance, are of a decided liberal bent. No matter how strong a conservative voice there might be in the midst of that, it constantly faces the editorial decisions it isn't, well, fit to print, or, it is frightened or diluted.

First, he felt, and rightly so, the frustrations of conservatives—and we old fogey, traditional-value folk—at the lack of public voices that sang our song. He noticed the other side had forum upon forum, and that if he were able to be heard, he would have a vast audience at his command.

So he simply became Rush Limbaugh, out of nowhere it seems. He didn't go to work for a newspaper or a network and face the battle to be heard. He went to work for himself. He also realized the competition in radio is a fierce one. The war for the advertising dollar is so heated that, if a show sells, a show runs. Most newspapers on the other hand have no competition in their respective markets.

A radio station takes Limbaugh's syndicated program. Its ratings hit no matter what it espoused. It's how, by the way, Howard Stern stays on the air. And, by the way again, his book, "Howard Stern: Private Parts" (Simon and Schuster, $23), is No. 3 behind Limbaugh's.

To tell you the truth, the Limbaugh phenomenon with the talk show plus the enormous success of his two books (despite the fact many major newspapers won't even review them) has caused me to ask myself a serious question. They had a radio department at my journalism school. What the hell was I thinking about?

Rabin say unrest may delay withdrawal

The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — After one of the bloodiest days since the signing of the Israel-PLO accord, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has warned there could be a delay in the start of the Israeli withdrawal from the Gaza Strip.

Thirty-four Palestinians, including a 10-year-old boy and two 12-year-old boys, were injured in the violence Thursday, hospital officials said. Army radio said the military has sent reinforcements to Gaza.

Thursday's unrest came a day after the army killed guerrilla leader Imad Aqal in an ambush. Aqal, 23, was commander of Izzedine el Qassem, the military wing of the Muslim fundamentalist group Hamas that is waging a violent campaign to derail the Israel-PLO peace talks.

In a leaflet, Hamas threatened to kill Israeli soldiers in retaliation.

A commercial strike was underway for a second day in Gaza to mourn the death of Aqal, who topped Israel's most-wanted list for killing 11 Israeli soldiers and four Palestinians suspected of being informers.

He was regarded as a hero in Gaza, especially among youths, for his success in eluding capture for two years. He often disguised himself as a Jewish settler, wearing a skullcap and driving cars with yellow Israeli plates.

Masked activists burned tires on main roads throughout Gaza this morning, while preachers announced plans for further demonstrations later in the day, Arab reporters said.

The protests have been the most widespread and violent since the signing of the accord on Sept. 13.

Some residents compared the unrest to the early days of the intifadeh, or Palestinian uprising, which began in December 1987.

The Haaretz daily, an Israeli newspaper, said the army was considering imposing a curfew on all of Gaza if violence escalated today.

Rabin said on Israel television Thursday that the Dec. 13 date for beginning to carry out the Israel-PLO agreement was only a target.

"It isn't a holy date," Rabin said. "It is better to budget more time and to know that we have finished something over which there are no misunderstandings, or varying interpretations," he said, noting the unresolved issues of protecting Jewish settlements and other security concerns.

Rabin has suggested several times in recent weeks that Israel may not stick to the Dec. 13 deadline for beginning a troop pullback in Gaza. The redeployment is supposed to be completed by April 13.

Palestinians have said meeting the deadline for the start of a withdrawal from most of Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho is an important test that will establish the credibility of the peace process.

Rabin's remarks also came after Israeli and Palestinian negotiators in Cairo ended another round of talks in an apparent impasse over security issues. No date was set for resuming the talks. Dr. Zakaria al-Agha, a top Fatah official in the Gaza Strip, predicted more violence unless rapid progress was made in beginning Israel's withdrawal and establishing Palestinian self-rule.

Meanwhile, a Palestinian visiting from Saudi Arabia died today of gunshot wounds sustained Thursday when soldiers fired at a car that failed to stop at a roadblock, the army said. He was identified by Palestinian reporters as Ahmed Abdullah Mohammed Azaharna, 29.

Australia's native animals decimated by new critters

The Associated Press

SYDNEY, Australia — The colonization of Australia drove aborigines off their hunting grounds, but they weren't the only victims of contact with the outside world. Native animals and plants have been crowded out, too.

Rats, mice and cats accompanied the first Europeans to the once-isolated continent in the late 18th century. English colonists nostalgic for home then imported foxes and rabbits to hunt, which escaped and thrived in the wild.

Pigs, goats and horses brought in by farmers got away and multiplied, roaming the Outback in small herds.

Most of these new species flourished in an environment free of their natural predators. Some brought new diseases.

As a result, Australia now has the world's highest extinction rate of mammal species, according to the World Wide Fund for Nature.

Thirty species of Australian mammals and birds have died out, along with at least 100 plant species. Another 178 plant species and 57 species of birds, mammals, reptiles, frogs and fishes are endangered. Australian wildlife experts held a summit this month to map out a campaign to fight back against introduced species — a war they know they can never win.

Science won't find a "magic bullet" to kill feral animals, once-domestic breeds that are now wild, said Peter Wilson, acting manager of the natural heritage conservation division of the National Parks and Wildlife Service.

"We're not looking at eradication. The scientists are telling us that is not feasible in most of the critical species that are causing the most impact on agriculture and wildlife," Wilson said.

"The perfect example is the rabbit, which was declared a noxious animal in New South Wales in 1860. We've been blazing away at it with high-tech and low-tech weapons for 130 years," he said in an interview.

Current efforts to control a range of animals considered pests focus on a mixture of neutering and birth control as well as trapping, hunting, poison baits, and attempts to develop diseases that kill only certain species. The impact of feral animals on native wildlife and agriculture has been catastrophic, Wilson said.

Australia has 3 million domestic cats, but some 12 million feral cats are believed to be loose, compared with 44 million in America, the Australian National Parks and Wildlife Service says.

Studies show that the average domestic cat kills about 25 native animals a year, indicating that the nation's domestic cats alone could be wiping out 75 million animals each year.

Cats kill any animal up to their own size, including 100 species of native bird, 50 types of mammals, 50 kinds of reptiles, and numerous frogs and insects.

Rabbits descended from 24 bunnies brought to Victoria in 1859 by the now notorious Thomas Austin have spread over half of Australia. They nibble plant shoots below ground level, depriving native species of forage and causing erosion and soil damage.

Australians have fenced, bulldozed, poisoned, trapped, and shot rabbits, and tried biological warfare in the 1950s, releasing a South American rabbit disease among the Aussie bunnies, with limited success.

Three days before Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, British intelligence intercepted a "Most Secret" message from Japan that in retrospect seems to hint at imminent hostilities. The message was among a few dozen documents released Thursday, the first of Winston Churchill's wartime intelligence files from 1941 to 1942 to become public.

Wartime files show Churchill had prior warning of attack?

The Associated Press

LONDON — Three days before Japan attacked Pearl Harbor, British intelligence intercepted a "Most Secret" message from Japan that in retrospect seems to hint at imminent hostilities.

The message was among a few dozen documents released Thursday, the first of Winston Churchill's wartime intelligence files from 1941 and 1942 to become public. The rest of the 1,273 files go on view today.

Public records officials said the files leave open the question of whether Churchill knew Japan was going to attack the main U.S. base in Hawaii.

Two authors this year revived speculation that Britain's World War II leader knew the attack was coming and kept quiet in order to pitch America into the war.

The secret files of British intelligence are being opened under Prime Minister John Major's policy of lessening official secrecy. Historians hope they will shed new light on the war.

One document showed that Churchill knew of mass deaths in Nazi concentration camps in 1942. Jewish groups have long claimed that Britain knew more than it said about the death camps operated by the Nazis during the war.

None of the documents referred directly to Japan's carrier-borne aircraft attack on Pearl Harbor in the early hours of Dec. 7, 1941. About 2,400 Americans died in the attack. Nineteen ships and 120 aircraft were lost.

But one may have been hinted at a step toward war. The message, dated Dec. 4, 1941, and marked "Most Secret," was an order from the Japanese foreign minister to the ambassador in Washington to burn secret documents and codes.

"None of the intercepts obviously indicate that British sources were aware in advance of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, although it was clear that Japan was about to enter the war," the Public Records Office said in a statement.

But it added, "Historians making a detailed examination of all the relevant material might draw a different conclusion."

In a recent book, "Betrayal at Pearl Harbor," authors James Rusbridger and Eric Nave claimed that Britain had cracked vital Japanese codes and was able to intercept naval signals which alerted them to an imminent attack on Pearl Harbor.

Nave, who died in July, was an Australian cryptanalyst who broke important Japanese codes before and during the war.

The report on German police activity dated Sept. 26, 1942, included a breakdown of deaths in the Nazi camps for August.

"Report on deaths in German prison camps during August reveal the following figures," the report stated.

"Niederhagen 21; Auschwitz 6,829 men, 1,525 women; Flossen-burg 88; Buchenwald 74."

NAFTA transition should be shock-free

The Associated Press

DALLAS — The North American Free Trade Agreement will go into effect New Year's Day. After the hotly contested ratification debate of recent weeks, it's important the North American economy's new era gets off to a good start.

For the most part, that means avoiding the pitfalls conjured up by free trade's foes — plant closings that shove workers into unemployment lines, environmental calamities, sudden surges of imports. The opposition won't simply melt away, and it will stand ready to blame the new agreement for anything amiss in U.S.-Mexican economic relations.

Fortunately for the United States, Mexico and Canada, it's not difficult to justify hopes that the free-trade deal will arrive without glaring problems, real or imagined.

The text of the free-trade agreement provides one reason to anticipate a relatively easy transition. A question often posed: Why did it take 2,000 pages of lawyerly language and tables to knock down nearly all of North America's trade barriers?

The pact's hefty oaths to the interest in managing the shift to more open trade as painlessly as possible. All three countries wanted to avoid sudden shocks, so they agreed to remove some trade restraints gradually.

Industries ready to compete will see the free market arrive Jan. 1.

Industries most at risk of dislocation and job losses will receive up to 15 years to prepare themselves.

"Anybody who had any sensitivity qualified for a slow phase-out," said Dallas lawyer Joe "Chip" Pitts, who works on free-trade matters for Baker & McKenzie.

To ease any burden on U.S. producers, for example, tariffs on textiles and apparel will take a decade to unravel. Sugar, orange juice and other sensitive U.S. agricultural products will lose their protection over 15 years. What's more, tariffs can "snap back" to their former levels if imports surge and cause layoffs.

American industries won't have a free ride under free trade. They will have to adjust. The reality of it, however, won't hit on the first day. Just the opposite: the benefits of free trade will tend to come early, with any pain coming later and more slowly. Surely, that will help in the first few years of the new North American market.

The economic outlook for 1994 and 1995 offers a second, perhaps more important reason for optimism for a good start for free trade. Hard times are bad for business, and the trade deal will look much better if it's implemented during good times.

Recall the Canadian experience under the bilateral free-trade agreement with the United States, which entered into force Jan. 1, 1989. It caught Canada at the peak of its longest post-World War II expansion.

"We hope it serves as a catalyst for other people to become a part of the city. We want people to feel good about our city," he said. "It's time that the people in the city show their appreciation where it ought to go."

instead be a source of the problem.

"People may think we already know there's a problem, or we can't do anything about it, or their child didn't actually get hit so they don't report it to us," he said.

"If someone complains, I'll hear about it right away. People need to let us know when they see problems at the school zones so we know where we need to be."

Sweatt said the lack of manpower at the police department makes it impossible to post an officer at all the school crossing zones every day. They rotate school zones so each zone is covered part of the day if possible, either morning or afternoon.

have to go to Midland or Lubbock," he said.

Carrasco has lived here for two weeks already and had considered relocating as long ago as January. He is pleased he finally made the move. "I hope the honeymoon will continue," he said.

Another problem, also due to lack of manpower, is that patrol officers may be called away from their posts. Sweatt recalled when he used to patrol the crossing zones at Goliad and College Heights. "I'd get set up with my radar and be ready to go, and a call would come in on the radio that I'd have to go respond to," he said. "We can't be at every crossing zone all the time, but we'd like to know where the biggest problems are."

If police know where the greatest problems with crossing zone speeders exist, they will step up efforts to patrol the area and ticket offenders, Sweatt said. "There's nothing worse than seeing a child get hurt," he added.

BSSH volunteers brighten holidays

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
 Staff Writer

"Medicine doesn't do everything," says Kathy Higgins, director of community relations for Big Spring State Hospital.

That's why there's the hospital's Volunteer Services, to pick up where mental health treatment leaves off. You're likely to hear more about it as the Christmas season kicks in.

"Self image or self esteem is very important. That is one of the things that many of our patients are lacking," Higgins said. "If they have certain things, it makes them feel better."

Things like shampoo, after-shave and makeup are provided to patients year-round through several annual fundraisers, donations and volunteer work. Each of 300 or more patients is given a present on Christmas morning. Patients who leave to be with families have presents waiting when they get back.

"We want everybody to have something on Christmas morning," Higgins said.

The volunteer group is currently seeking donations and help in several areas:

• Secret Santas - to provide new gifts or monetary donations. They can be delivered to Higgins' office or mailed to Big Spring State Hospital, PO Box 231, Big Spring, TX 79721. Escorts and money are also needed for an annual shopping trip for patients to a local store Dec. 6-10.

• Secret Shoppers - if you would like to do shopping yourself. Appropriate gifts include personal items, such as those mentioned, as well as board games. Don't wrap, and leave price tag for evaluation and sorting purposes. For a complete gift list call Higgins at 264-4271.

• Santa's Helpers - to wrap gifts, beginning Dec. 6, between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. Those under 16 must be accompanied by an adult. Wrapping is hoped to be completed by Dec. 17.

• Party Patron - to bring snacks and possibly spending an hour or so with patients and staff, serving and enjoying parties.

In addition, everyone is encouraged to come and sing carols at the annual Carol Of Lights, Dec. 6 at 6:30 p.m., when the campus is lit for Christmas.

Jane Hammond, left, and Barbara Murphy wrap gifts for the Volunteer Services program at the Big Spring State Hospital. The program, using several annual fundraisers, donations and volunteers like Hammond and Murphy, provides a wrapped present each of 300 or more patients on Christmas morning.

Christians should be thankful

By ELWIN COLLOM
 Coahoma First Baptist

In his book "To Brighten Each Day," J. Winston Pearce writes about an incident that happened in a college Sunday school department one Sunday morning.

A young lady had been asked to speak on the subject, "What I am grateful for." She began by saying, "I am grateful that I know you are not supposed to end a sentence with a preposition." The class enjoyed that comment, remembering certain professors.

She then told her story. When she was 14 she had been diagnosed with a brain tumor. The physicians told her and her parents that she could not live without an operation. However, the surgeon said as a result of the surgery she could lose her hearing, speech, mobility, thinking, or sight. He then left the family to discuss the situation. The father led the family in prayer, and the surgery was performed.

The young lady concluded her testimony with these words, "You saw me walk in; I heard you sing; I think coherently. True, I am blind; I cannot see your faces. And, yet, I see so much more than I ever saw with my natural sight. What am I grateful for? I am grateful for life and parents who know how to pray."

The young lady was not bitter because of what she didn't have, but rather grateful for what she did have. Sometimes we are prone to think how wonderful life would be if we could only have something we don't have, rather than thanking God for how wonderful life is because of what we do have.

The Bible says, "we are to enter his gates with thanksgiving" (Psalms 100:4); "with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God" (Philippians 4:6); we are to be "always giving thanks for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" (Ephesians 5:20); "let the word of Christ richly dwell within you, with all wisdom teaching and admonishing one another with psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with thankfulness in your hearts" (Colossians 3:16).

The principle is clear. We Christians are to be a thankful people who are not ashamed to express our thankfulness. As Christians there are many blessings for which we can be grateful. The following is only a sampling.

- 1) We should be grateful for God who loves us and sent His son to die on the cross for our sins so that through faith in Him we might have eternal life in the future and the abundant life in the present. (John 3:16, 10:10).
  - 2) We should be grateful for a Savior who will never leave us nor abandon us (Hebrews 13:6).
  - 3) We should be grateful for the power of prayer that comes through Jesus Christ (John 14:12-14).
  - 4) We should be grateful for the changed life we have in Him (2 Corinthians 5:17).
- As a husband, father, and pastor I am grateful for several blessings.
- 1) I am grateful for a loving wife of 18 years who has stood beside me through all of life's trials, even during those times when I wasn't worth standing beside.
  - 2) I am grateful for a son and daughter who add surprise and spice to life.
  - 3) I am grateful for a caring church who supports me as their pastor and who have a genuine concern for their community.
- I hope I started your thankfulness juices to flowing. If so, during the season of Thanksgiving don't let the opportunity pass you by without telling God, and others, some of what you are grateful "for."

Inspiration is written by local ministers.

'Let There Be Peace'

Lewis awarded Honor Medal

Special to the Herald

Big Spring civic leader Susan Zack Lewis on Tuesday was presented with the George Washington Honor Medal of Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge.

Howard College president Cheri Sparks presented Lewis the award at the noon meeting of the Big Spring Rotary Club.

Lewis earned the honor for a speech she gives at Girls RYLA (Rotary Youth Leadership Award) each year. Titled "Let There Be Peace," the speech recounts her experiences in a visit to China just prior to and during the student rebellion.

Lewis said her experience in China and working with the speech gave her a better appreciation for her father's immigration to the U.S., and honed her understanding of the concept of freedom.

"I had always lived under the idea that I knew what liberty meant," Lewis said. "But it never hit me until I was in China with those students: We are admired in ways we don't understand. We have a very unique country." Over several years of giving the speech, it has evolved with the changing times, she said.

"I'm always amazed at what is continually happening, and the things I have to add to it because of changes in the world," Lewis said. The Freedoms Foundation, an educational foundation to promote understanding of our heritage, recognizes organizations and individuals whose work helps bring about appreciation of our nation and its principles of human dignity and freedom, according to a news release.

Since 1949, it has recognized more than 50,000 Americans in several categories, including education, essays, programs and individual achievement. Lewis' speech was chosen, according to a press release from the foundation, as an "outstanding contribution in bringing about a better understanding of America."

Lewis is one of the founding members of Girls RYLA, now in its 10th year. The leadership camp brings together 70 women from West Texas and the Panhandle.

Lewis and her husband, Bob, also known as Tumbleweed Smith, run Orange Productions, which does slide presentations and commercial advertising. He is a radio personality, newspaper columnist and speaker.

Among Lewis' other activities are: The Big Spring Symphony board, American Cancer Society, 1935 Hyperion Club and Green Thumb Garden Club.

Church News

Rising Thought

The energies of The Rising Thought Center Fellowship will be directed during the month of December to helping people become aware of the opportunity to participate in WORLD HEALING DAY Dec. 31, 1993.

At noon Greenwich Time, which is 6 A.M. West Texas Time, the people of the world are invited to participate in an hour of concentrated activity for the purpose of promoting peace and harmony on Planet Earth.

In preparation for this grand endeavor The Rising Thought Center will be open for an hour from 6-7 a.m. throughout the month of December. On Nov. 22 the Center, located at 307 Union, celebrated its first month of existence. No one is excluded from the activities at the center.

Starting Thanksgiving Day a candle will be lighted at sundown and prayers offered for Inner Peace and Outer Peace to radiate among all humankind. "Let There Be Peace On Earth" will be sung. Any questions can be answered at 264-7473 (RISE).

Christmas musical

The KING'S KIDS of College Baptist Church will present a Christmas musical Sunday, December 5 at 7:00 p.m. in the church auditorium at 1105 Birdwell.

The musical, "The Don't Be Afraid Brigade," tells the story of angels in heaven contemplating bringing the "news" of Christ's birth to earth. It is directed by Elisha McMeans and Kandi Wilkinson.

The KING'S KIDS are a veteran group, having presented a number of musicals in recent years. Featured speakers in the production are Chris McGee, Sharissa McMeans, Lacey Wilkinson, Shane Blackshear, and Jessi Weir.

Crestview revival

There will be a revival Sunday through Wednesday at Crestview Baptist Church, 2305 Gatesville. Services will be 7 p.m. nightly and 10:50 a.m. Sunday.

Evangelist will be Dr. John Stepp of Dallas, and special music is planned by choirs, groups and individuals.

Nazarene celebrations

The beginning of the Christmas season is signaled each year at First Church of the Nazarene by the adorning of the sanctuary with greenery and masses of poinsettias.

Nov. 28 will be the first Sunday of advent and the first advent candle will be lighted in the morning service. Another advent candle will be lighted each week throughout the season and the largest, brightest candle - the Christ candle - will be added the last Sunday before Christmas. Church information says it signifies the arrival of the Light of the world, Jesus Christ.

Church takes on economic initiative

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Paying more than lip service to the scarcity of black businesses in the city, a Houston church is opening its own grocery store to teach people how to launch and run their own businesses.

The Deliverance Grocery and Deli Institute at 1102 Pinemont is the first of several new economic initiatives at Northwest Community Baptist Church.

"As minorities we are major consumers but we do very little in the way of distribution and almost nothing in production," said the Rev. James Dixon.

"If minority communities are going to rise and become major players in the economic mainstream of America, we're going to have to become producers and distributors, and not merely consumers," he said.

The store is operating under the auspices of Excel-Eco Inc., a non-profit corporation formed by the church board to promote economic initiatives and entrepreneurship.

In January the church purchased a 28,000-square-foot shopping center across the street that had fallen victim to the savings and loan fiasco and never opened. Deliverance Grocery occupies 8,500 square feet of the facility.

The store, which opened this week, will carry essential grocery items, but Dixon said it won't advertise or compete with other grocery stores.

Instead, it's designed to be a training ground for business people.

The store will employ a staff of 16 people, including several full-time managers. The trainees will be recruited from the Texas Employment Agency and the community. Dixon said he hopes the trainees will join major supermarket chains in the Houston area when their four-year training period ends.

Dixon predicted the program will save area supermarkets money otherwise spent on staff development because they won't have to train new employees.

He said he's asking some major Houston supermarkets for help in stocking the store's shelves as a tax writeoff, and for commitments in hiring personnel.

The Greater Houston Partnership estimates there were 12,989 black-owned businesses here in 1987, the latest year for which figures are available. They represent only 6.6 percent of Houston businesses.

Deliverance Grocery is the first of many initiatives by the church to improve Houston's black business climate. Through Excel-Eco Inc. the church plans to open a restaurant, a dry cleaning store and a printing shop in the shopping center.

Groundbreaking for a new church sanctuary near the shopping center is planned for mid-1994. The church's membership has grown so fast — 51 members joined last Sunday alone — that services are being held at Delmar Gymnasium at 2020 Mangum behind Northwest Mall.

Dixon said contributions are being accepted, and volunteers are needed to stock shelves at the new store.

1905 Hyperion

The 1905 Hyperion Club met November 18, 1993 in the home of Mrs. Carl (Joyce) Bradley. Co-hostesses were Mrs. R.C. (Betty) Thomas and Mrs. Joe (Virginia) Whitten.

Mrs. Flynn (Grace) Long introduced Sue Sewell of Family Home Health Equipment. She stressed that it was important to family members and patients to know what and what Medicare policies were in regard to medical equipment.

Doctors must prescribe the equipment before it can be taken by the patient. Diagnosis must fit with what is prescribed or Medicare will not pay. There are many rules and regulations which are often confusing to patients and their families.

Out of curiosity members asked prices: Air mattress $1,500, basic electric wheel chair $4,000 and plain lightweight regular wheelchair $1,300.

During the business meeting, Mrs. Harlan (Doris) Huijbregtse introduced a new member, Mrs. Lee (Fran) Emerson.

After discussion, members voted to contribute $200 a year for three (3) years to the Hyperion Council Fund for a work of art or other gift to the Doris Roberts Community Center in the City Park.

The next meeting will be Guest Day and will be held at the First United Methodist Church Dec. 16,

1948 Hyperion

The 1948 Hyperion Club met Nov. 18 in the home of Mrs. Helen Bizzell with Mrs. Gerald Wooten as cohostesses.

Mrs. Roy Lamb introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Tammy Watt, who gave a very enthusiastic talk on "Community Spirit."

The next meeting will be Dec. 16 in the home of Mrs. Jerry Forsythe with Mrs. Jerry Currie as co-hostess.

beginning at 9:45 AM, The Unitarian Universalist Church of Midland will host a program entitled "Who is Baha'u'llah?"

This program will outline the life of the founder of the Baha'i Faith. This religion, founded in the late 19th century in the Middle East, is one of the world's most wide spread, and rapidly growing religions.

The speaker will be David Fly, former chairman of the Midland and Odessa Baha'i communities. He is a teacher at Baha'i schools throughout the state of Texas. He teaches economics and coaches the Academic Decathlon and Texaco Star Academic Challenge Teams at Lee High School in Midland.

The public is invited to attend.

WINSTON-SALEM — May 1 is the day North Carolina Baptists will turn off their television sets to protest violence and moral depravity depicted on some television shows.

More than 4,000 delegates to the state's annual convention voted unanimously last week to declare that day as the Great American TV Turn-Off Day.

"Many of us are deeply concerned today about the programs which are continually transmitted into the homes of America by the television industry," said the Rev. Clay Warf, pastor of Roxboro Baptist Church.

"We invite other Baptist state conventions to join us in turning off our televisions on this day in protest of the assault on Christian morals and values as well as common decency."

The resolution represents one more protest by Christian denominations against television programming. A number of denominations protested the contents of "NYPD Blue," a new police show that aired this fall and contains profanity, nudity and sex.

Earlier this month, the state Baptist newspaper editorialized against television as "a powerful medium that portrays illicit sex, alcohol and drugs and violence of all sorts as the norm."

The Baptist State Convention of North Carolina has about 1.2 million members in 3,577 churches.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb. — The Catholic Church in western Nebraska is dealing with a shortage of priests and wide-open spaces with the help of answering machines and cellular telephones.

Priests in the diocese that covers

45,000 square miles west of Grand Island often may serve two, three or even four parishes in different towns.

The Rev. Bryan Ernest of Alliance, diocesan director of vocations, said the average number of Catholics per priest in the diocese is 800 to 900. Some priests serve more than 1,000 parishioners.

Nine men are studying for the priesthood in the Grand Island Diocese, there are 60 active priests and 25 retired.

Lett goof paves way to Dolphins win

By The Associated Press

Steve Reagan

Lett rolls snake eyes a 2nd time

If there's a person in this universe who feels lower than Leon Lett right now, I really don't want to know about him.

You've really got to pity Lett. He's a probable future All-Pro defensive tackle for the Dallas Cowboys, but all anyone will be talking about in the near future when they mention Lett is his propensity for mistakes.

Hmm, "propensity for mistakes." That's a nice way of saying Leon screwed up again.

Yep. No need to sugar-coat the thing. Leon just flat screwed up.

His first boo-boo was bad enough. During the Cowboys' 52-17 romp over the Buffalo Bills in January's Super Bowl, Lett picked up a fumble and was on his way to a touchdown when he began celebrating a little early.

Before Leon could cross the goal line, Buffalo's Don Beebe caught up with him and knocked the ball free. What should have been a touchdown became a touchback.

Oh, well, we said at the time. It's not as if the mistake cost Dallas the game or anything. Just another piece of film for those blooper shows, I guess.

Ha-ha-ha. Bet you no one in Dallas is laughing now, not after his second mistake. This one cost them a game.

In case you missed it, the Cowboys were hanging onto a 14-13 lead over Miami in the closing seconds of their game Thursday. The Dolphins, with time almost gone, lined up for a 41-yard field goal.

The Cowboys appeared to clinch the game when they blocked the field-goal try. Hugs were exchanged as the ball rolled harmlessly downfield.

When a field goal attempt is blocked, the ball does not become live unless a member of the defending team touches it past the line of scrimmage.

In the heat of the moment, apparently, Lett forgot this tidbit and started racing after the ball. Trying to cover it on the icy field, instead he booted it further downfield, where the alert Dolphins recovered it on the Dallas 1-yard line.

Given a second chance, the Dolphins kicked the winning field goal with no time left. Miami 16, Dallas 14.

Now, I'm sure almost every red-blooded Dallas fan is just about ready to fit Lett for the chopping block. I know I was.

But the more I thought about it, the more I realized that what Lett must be going through right about now is far worse than any kind of torture you or I could devise.

After all, it's not everybody who gets a chance to go brain-dead on national TV. I have made more than a few boneheaded errors in my time (I know that's hard to believe), but 90 million people didn't get to watch.

And Lett's done it twice in 10 months.

Yes, I bet ol' Leon's feeling thinner than a tadpole right now, and will for a long time to come. Anything a vaunted expert like myself might say about the matter couldn't possibly make him feel any worse.

And it was, after all, just a game. It's not as if President Clinton accidentally ordered a nuclear missile strike against Russia. It was just a game, a game where millions of people watched incredulously as Lett snatched defeat from the jaws of victory.

The Cowboys are still in the thick of the playoff hunt and will, in all likelihood, rebound just fine from this freakish defeat.

As will Lett. Now, if he does it again...

IRVING — Don Shula has coached in 486 NFL games, but never had he witnessed anything like Leon Lett's blunder on a bizarre snowy Thanksgiving Day in Texas Stadium.

"I've been around a lot of football games but I've never seen one end like that before," the Miami coach said of Pete Stoyanovich's second-chance field goal that gave the Dolphins a startling 16-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

Lett, whose hotdog play in the Super Bowl allowed Buffalo's Don Beebe to catch him from behind and stop a sure touchdown, touched the ball after Stoyanovich's 41-yard attempt was blocked. Miami's Jeff Dellenbach recovered on the Dallas 1 with three seconds to play.

With his teammates scraping away snow to clear a kicking area, Stoyanovich then hit the winner through the snowy mist from 19 yards out on a day better fit for tobogganing than football.

The frozen crowd at Texas Stadium sat in shocked amazement. Cowboys Jerry Jones, jubilant on the sidelines moments earlier, suddenly had the look of a most confused man.

"We had it won," Jones said. "Then it was taken away."

As for the Dolphins, they piled on each other as if they had just won the AFC championship.

"I thought it was all over when Pete got blocked but at least our people had the knowledge to get down there and recover it," Shula said.

"You don't ever give Stoyanovich a second chance."

Said Dellenbach: "We all had the Miami placekicker Pete Stoyanovich (10) and several of his teammates celebrate after he kicked the winning field goal as time ran out in Miami's 16-14 win over the Dallas Cowboys Thursday at Texas Stadium.

presence of mind that they had to touch the ball so we stayed away. I tried to get them to touch it and they did. We knew what the rules were."

Stoyanovich said his first kick was too low.

"I was too close to the line of scrimmage but didn't know it because of the snow covering the markers," he said. "... it must have been incredible entertainment." Ironically, Lett had lost the ball on the 1-yard line in the last Super Bowl to Beebe, who batted it out of his hands after a downfield chase with the game out of reach.

"It's the most disappointing loss I've ever been around," Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson said. "We had it won. Leon made a mistake. One of a hundred mistakes in the game. But that one cost it."

Johnson added: "I still don't know exactly what happened but someone said Leon's leg hit the ball as he slid. We are hurting now."

Lett hid from his shame afterward as teammates fetched his clothes from the dressing room.

"We never assume anything and

Big plays tell tale as Aggies down UT

By The Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — The eighth-ranked Texas A&M Aggies taught Texas something about returns in their 100th meeting.

Freshman Leeland McElroy tied an NCAA record with his third kickoff return for a touchdown of the season, a game-breaking 100-yarder, and the Aggies rode several other big plays for an 18-9 Thanksgiving night victory.

The victory, A&M's record 23rd straight against Southwest Conference foes, means the Aggies will return to the Cotton Bowl for the third straight year as the league's champion.

"Even the Yans seemed to be a little bit quiet, but that changed after Leeland's return," Texas A&M coach R.C. Slocum said. "When Leeland took off, it seemed to lift the entire stadium."

The Aggies (10-1, 7-0 SWC) beat the Longhorns (5-5-1, 5-2) for the ninth time in 10 games. A&M won its 19th consecutive home game before 74,748 freezing fans at Kyle Field, where the Aggies are 50-3-1 since 1985.

Texas kicked two early field goals to lead 6-0, but upset hopes were tarnished midway through the second quarter when McElroy became the fifth NCAA player to return three kickoffs for TDs in a season.

McElroy took the ball 2 yards deep in his end zone, broke between blocks by Wilbert Biggens and Detron Smith to get into the clear, then sidestepped and outran Texas kicker Scott Szerezy to the end zone.

But the Longhorns, 21-point underdogs, were within striking distance until the 5:55 mark of the fourth quarter.

Facing fourth-and-1 at the Aggie 2-yard line, backup defensive back Dennis Allen intercepted Shea Morenz's pass.

The Aggies then zoomed downfield on Rodney Thomas' 54-yard run and hit a 20-yard field goal by Terry Venetoulis with 53 seconds to play.

"We had them fourth-and-1 and that's it, game over. One yard and we had them. That's kind of the way the whole season has been," said Texas tackle Blake Brockermyer.

Texas coach John Mackovic said the play was his call.

"It was an option play where the quarterback could run, pass or pitch the ball," Mackovic said. "The quarterback decided not to toss it but passed instead and it just didn't happen. I call the plays and I accept the responsibility."

That wasn't the first time the Texas offense stalled in a key spot. But Mackovic can't take all the blame — the Aggies' "Wrecking Crew" defense deserves plenty of the credit.

Bowl looking for new team

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — A non-Southwest Conference team will be invited to take the league's spot in the inaugural Alamo Bowl because only two SWC schools had enough victories to qualify for post-season play.

There was no immediate word on who the replacement team would be.

The third-place finisher in the SWC was to play the No. 4 team from the Pacific-10 in the Dec. 31 game in San Antonio's new Alamodome.

But because only No. 8 Texas A&M and Texas Tech reached the mandatory six victories over Division I-A teams, SWC commissioner Steven Hatchell announced Thursday night that his league was relinquishing its contractual berth.

"The Southwest Conference gives its official blessing for the Builders Square Alamo Bowl to seek another team," Hatchell said in a statement released just after A&M defeated Texas 18-9 Thursday night. "... We will look forward to being there next year."

Derrick Fox, the bowl's executive director, said the game will hold a spot for the SWC's third-place finisher in the 1994 game.

On May 17, the Pac-10 and SWC signed a two-year contract linking them to the game.

Bears win; Lions lose Sanders SPORTS EXTRA

By The Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — The Detroit Lions lost Barry Sanders, the game, and most of their lead in the NFC Central.

The resurgent Chicago Bears, led by defensive end Trace Armstrong, had five sacks and forced four turnovers in a 10-6 win over the Lions on Thursday.

"It was a poor effort and I want to apologize to the fans on this Thanksgiving Day," Lions' coach Wayne Fontes said. "It definitely ruined my holiday. I thought we were ready to play. But the better team won, because they dominated this football game."

It was the third straight road win for the Bears (6-5) who have staged comebacks in successive games at San Diego, Kansas City and Detroit. The Lions (7-4) have lost their last two games and will fall into a tie with Green Bay if the Packers defeat the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday.

"We're 7-4. We're going to have to do it the hard way, now," Lions' linebacker Chris Spielman said. "Barry's down now, too. But I better never, ever hear that as an excuse. The situation dictates that other people have to step up."

Sanders, the NFL's leading rusher, sprained his left knee midway through the third quarter. He is expected to miss 3-5 weeks with a partial tear of the medial collateral ligament. The sprain won't require surgery, said Dr. David Collon, a team physician.

"Barry has been so durable," Lions' quarterback Rodney Peete said. "We have only played one game without him since he's been here. He missed a game at Washington (with sore ribs in 1991). It will be interesting to see how this team plays without Barry Sanders.

But Sanders was never much of a factor in this game, gaining 63 yards on 16 carries.

The Lions finished with just 230 yards, five more than the Bears. The difference was the turnovers.

"The key was that we mixed it up a lot," Bears' coach Dave Wannstedt said. "On some plays we rushed three guys, on some we rushed four, and on others we rushed five. They never knew what was coming next."

Jim Harbaugh, who has experienced some of his worst games in the Silverdome, completed 9 of 16 passes for 123 yards, including the game's only touchdown on a 42-yard strike to Terry Obee. He had one interception.

"That's my first win in this state since my last Michigan-Ohio State game," Harbaugh said. "I think there's a lot of confidence on this team right now."

Kevin Butler added a 27-yard field goal for the Bears. Jason Hanson kicked two field goals for mistake-prone Detroit.

Peete, who completed 22 of 33 for 167 yards, was the victim of Chicago's swarming defense. Peete lost 21 yards on the five sacks, was intercepted twice and lost two fumbles.

No. 1 picture should clear this weekend

By The Associated Press

By the end of the day, Florida State should know exactly what it needs to do in order to stay No. 1.

The Seminoles have the unique advantage this weekend of playing one day after the two undefeated teams pursuing them in the college football polls. No. 2 Nebraska played No. 16 Oklahoma and No. 5 West Virginia played No. 11 Boston College this afternoon.

Florida State plays Saturday afternoon at No. 7 Florida.

If Nebraska wins by 21 points, Florida State will know that it, too, needs to win by a big margin. If Nebraska loses and West Virginia wins, the Seminoles can probably hang onto the No. 1 ranking with a victory — whether it's by 1 point or 50.

If Nebraska and West Virginia both post shutouts, the Seminoles may need to blank the Gators (9-1) as well.

"You have to think in terms of outscoring them," Florida State coach Bobby Bowden said. "They are going to score points, they are going to get their share."

A convincing victory by the Cornhuskers (10-0), combined with a less-than-spectacular victory by Florida State, could elevate Nebraska to No. 1 in the AP poll. But a lackluster performance or a 1-point victory could actually cost them their No. 2 ranking.

"What better opportunity could you ask for than to play the No. 1 team in the country on the last game of the season before the bowl picture unravels?" Oklahoma defensive lineman Russell Allen said.

The Mountaineers (10-0) could vault past No. 3 Auburn and No. 4 Notre Dame with a strong performance at Boston against the Eagles (8-2), who shocked the country last weekend by beating then-No. 1 Notre Dame.

"We're going to be absolutely judged by what happens this Friday, like it or not," Boston College coach Tom Coughlin said. "In athletics, you're as good as the last time you lined up."

The champion of the Western Athletic Conference and a berth in the Holiday Bowl will be decided Saturday. Brigham Young can get the nod if it beats Texas El-Paso and Wyoming beats San Diego State. If BYU wins and Wyoming loses, Fresno State will get the bid based on a complicated tiebreaker formula.

Fresno State, which has finished its regular season, also gets the bid if BYU and Wyoming lose.

Georgia Tech quarterback Eric Zeier (10) can't shake Georgia Tech linebacker Freddie Coger (91) as he goes down for an eight-yard loss during their game Thursday in Atlanta.

Minutemen prep for No. 6 Kansas

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — John Calipari greeted his team for practice about 12 hours after the biggest victory in school history and quickly lectured them on the real world.

The upset of No. 1 North Carolina on Wednesday night was ancient history by early Thursday afternoon, and Calipari had to bring up the next season NIT title tonight.

"We're double-digit underdogs again," Calipari told the team. He also had to tell the 19th-ranked Minutemen they would be without 6-foot-11 freshman center Marcus Camby, who injured his right knee early in the overtime against the defending national champions and is expected to be out at least two weeks.

Camby's loss hurts even more because the Minutemen will again be at a size disadvantage against the Jayhawks. Kansas' frontline may not be as tall and deep as North Carolina's, but it is as strong and experienced. "The win over North Carolina showed we can play against guys that size, and they were strong too," said forward Lou Roe, who had 28 points and 14 rebounds in leading the relentless Minutemen to a 54-52 rebound advantage. "We have to put it behind us, though, and get ready to get it on Friday night."

Roe won't have Camby to help him against Kansas as the heralded freshman was to have an MRI today.

"They have so many guys and they just kept coming in and beating me up," said Roe, who had flu-like symptoms at Thursday's practice. "I really thought about giving up, but I couldn't and I didn't."

When Kansas beat No. 9 Minnesota in the other semifinal, almost everybody expected another Kansas-North Carolina showdown.

"A lot of people thought we had no chance, and we heard them all," Calipari said. "People told us to hang in there and try to keep it close. This team has an attitude of refuse to lose."
