AgExpo offers something for everyone

Rominger, Perry will be keynote speakers for Saturday session

GLEENDA CUMMINGS
Staff Writer

AgExpo is for everyone, according to organizers who have planned the coming weekend's activities at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

While programs and exhibits are traditionally aimed at the agricultural community, there are some events that are going to suit almost everyone's tastes.

Certainly of general interest will be keynote addresses Saturday by Texas Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry and Richard Rominger, deputy secretary of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Perry was elected in 1990 after serving three terms in the Texas House. He grew up in Haskell north of Abilene and has a family farm and ranch there. He is an avid proponent of value-added agricultural processing.

As deputy secretary is assistant to USDA's Secretary Mike Espy, Rominger plays a key supervisory role in all activities in one of the federal government's largest and most diverse departments.

"We're working together to make this agency both farmer-friendly and taxpayer-friendly," Rominger was quoted as saying in a recent USDA release. His appearance during AgExpo is aimed at meeting those goals.

Included in today's edition of the Herald is a special tabloid section detailing events scheduled for the weekend, but the following workshops might be of special interest to those residents of Howard County not involved in the agriculture industry.

LIVESTOCK RELATED ACTIVITIES: (10 a.m. Room A)

Robin Richards will present a beef promotion update. Robin is a hometown girl who graduated from Howard College and was on the rodeo team while there.

Mary Kinney Bielamowicz is the daughter of Leon and Grace Kinney. Her father is the former manager of the local Texas Employment Commission office and helped Bielamowicz in her decision to become a nutritionist.

She will present a program on the safety of beef in our diet entitled "Beef - It's Good for You!"

Some people are under the impression that they should not eat beef because of their cholesterol problems, however, beef has no more cholesterol than chicken.

HORSES: (10 a.m. Room B)

In the horse educational programs, participants will be treated to a talk on freeze branding. This is an international Alpha System for marking to identify animals and prevent theft.

It is the latest technique and it is entirely possible that it may become available for breeders of other animals.

Also included in this portion of the program is Don Braly of the Midland County Sheriff's Department and Barney Edens of the Howard County Sheriff's Department, both of whom will address the topic of livestock and equipment theft.

HORTICULTURE: (10 a.m., Room C)

Police officers throw pepper gas grenades through the back window of an Apache Bend apartment to end a three-hour standoff with an outpatient of the Big Spring State Hospital. The man was safely taken into custody and transported to the hospital for evaluation.

Police end outpatient's standoff safely, quietly

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

A standoff between Big Spring police and a Big Spring State Hospital outpatient Tuesday afternoon ended with the man's confinement in the state hospital for evaluation.

At approximately 1:30 p.m., police were contacted by the state hospital's outpatient clinic. The man, whose name is not being released because of patient confidentiality laws, had barricaded himself in his apartment and was threatening to harm himself and others.

When police arrived at the man's apartment in the Apache Bend complex on Airbase Road, he threatened them with a machete. The officers called for assistance, including a hostage negotiator who kept in contact with the man.

About 45 minutes after the three-hour standoff began, the man came to the door, threatening the police officers and himself. Police said he had several superficial cuts on his abdomen and arms.

At approximately 4:10 p.m., two officers with gas masks threw OC pepper gas grenades into a back window of the man's apartment. Several minutes later, he left the apartment and was handcuffed by police, who transported him to the state hospital for evaluation.

Don Myrick, a neighbor who watched the standoff along with many other nearby residents, said he has known the man for approximately five years and does not fear him.

Myrick said the man has been in and out of the state hospital since the age of 18 months.

"He's a good guy," said Myrick, who estimated the man's age at 35 to 37 years old. "He gets to drinking and along with the medicine he takes that the state hospital gives him, it makes him go a little crazy sometimes."

Myrick repeatedly emphasized the man did not have a gun. "Now, he might have a knife, I don't know," he said. "But he doesn't have a gun, I can tell you that."

Choate announces commissioner's run on Republican ticket

By TIM JONES
Staff Writer

John M. (Sonny) Choate has filed his candidacy for the Precinct 4 commissioner's race in the March Republican Primary.

A 57-year-old Howard County native, Choate graduated from Big Spring High School, received a bachelor's degree in agricultural economics from Texas A&M, and retired from the Air Force achieving the rank of lieutenant colonel. He then came home and opened a plumbing business.

Choate and his wife, Eunice, and have three grown children.

"After attending the commissioner's meetings over the last year, I decided to file as a Republican in the Precinct 4 race. I fully understand the job's requirements and its constraints and opportunities," Choate said.

Choate outlined a number of specific goals.

"I am going to try to make our county government more efficient and practical. I am going to try to improve the maintenance of our roads," he said.

"I am going to try to find a way to improve our local work force," he continued. "Training, education and, most of all, motivation to improve oneself. That's what's needed."

"I am going to try to slow the stream of state and federal mandates telling us how to run our farms, businesses and lives. I am going to try to make the state better do its job and quit dumping its responsibilities on the citizens."

One of Choate's chief concerns was the effect downsizing at Big Spring State Hospital will have on various municipal and county governments in the future.

"They (the state) are taking themselves out of the mental health business and laying it on us, discreetly failing to mention any less taxes needed to run state government," he explained. "It's like in the schools, where they have the authority but not the responsibility to implement all these bright ideas."

Choate added that he would try to coordinate the efforts of the city, county, chamber of commerce and the Moore Development Board with other interests in the community to bring new industry to Howard County. "We must reverse this constant

Hughes to be candidate for Prec. 2 commissioner

By TIM JONES
Staff Writer

Ricky Hughes, a local farmer and rancher, has announced his candidacy in the Democratic primary race for Precinct 2 county commissioner.

Hughes, 39, was born in Big Spring, raised in the Knott community and graduated from Sands High School. He then began farming in Howard County and has been self-employed in that capacity for 21 years.

"After years of having my own business, I have the experience to make sound decisions on any issues that would effect Howard County," Hughes said.

"I defiantly support tax abatements," he explained. "I feel this is a very important way to compete with other cities and counties for industry. Yet, I believe each industry must stand on its own merits."

Explaining further, Hughes affirmed that "a strong representative for the people in Precinct 2 and Howard County is needed."

"One of my goals is to make county government more efficient. Also, I would like to see the city and county governments work together to build a stronger community."

Hughes' wife, Leah, is employed by American Medical Transport and is a veterinary assistant for Dr. Joe Neff. They have two teenage children, Wes, 18, and Kara, 14. The family resides at 2001 Edgemere in the Kentwood Addition.

Vision USA offering exams to low-income families

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Low-income, uninsured workers and their families who cannot afford eye care may be eligible for a free eye exam program now in its fourth consecutive year in Texas.

The program, called Vision USA, is part of a nationwide charity effort by the American Optometric Association (AOA) with support by a grant from Vistakon, a division of Johnson and Johnson Vision Products.

Those wishing to apply for the program may call telephone counselors at 1-800-766-4466 from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Central Standard Time through Jan. 31.

Individuals may also write for an application from Vision USA, 243 N. Lindbergh Blvd., St. Louis, Mo. 63141. Applications must be returned by Jan. 25.

Those who meet the requirements for the program will be assigned to an available Vision USA optometrist in their community and notified by mail which doctor's office to call for an appointment. Dr. John Marshall is the participating Vision USA doctor in Big Spring.

Comprehensive eye exams will be given in March, coinciding with Save Your Vision Week/Month. This will be Marshall's third year to participate in the program.

"I see about four or five people each year," he said. "I'd say the oldest might have been 50, and I examined a few kids last year. They cover all ages, male and female."

His Vision USA patients are generally from Big Spring, although he recalled having patients from Stanton and other areas in and near Howard County.

One woman he examined last year had to be referred elsewhere for eye problems, but most of his Vision USA patients have simply needed corrective lenses. "It affects their quality of life. Some can't even drive," he said.

To qualify for a free eye exam, applicants must have a job or live in a household where at least one person is working full or part time; not be covered by a health insurance plan (people covered by Medicare, Medicaid or private health insurance are not eligible even if their plans don't cover vision care); not have had an eye exam during the past 12 months; and have income falling below an established level based on household size and be unable to afford care.

Eligibility thresholds may vary by state.

In Texas last year, 287 optometrists donated free eye care to 1,440 low-income working families.

Nearly 8,000 AOA optometrists have participated in Vision USA during each of the first three years of the program, providing free eye care to more than 115,000 children and adults.

Nine out of 10 people who received eye examinations through the 1993 Vision USA program had eye health or vision problems. For one out of 10, it was the first eye exam performed.

While some have complained that commissioners are paid too much, Choate said, "$30,000 does not seem high, and I am not about to tell these men they do not earn their pay."

However, he did note that if elected, he would not support additional pay increases for commissioners. "I have experience in business, managing people and money," Choate said in summarizing his announcement. "I have no quick solutions to our problems, but I will work. I will listen and I will try."

Mattox says troops would help halt tide of illegal immigrants

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Federal troops should be put along the U.S.-Mexico border to halt illegal immigration and fight crime, Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Jim Mattox said Tuesday.

"There's a whole problem with border policing," the former Texas attorney general said at a news conference. "There is no systematic way to stop drugs or crime in either direction. I may not have all the answers, but I'll tell you, I've seen the problems."

"Very clearly, along the border areas, I want the border areas protected. I want the flow of illegal activities stopped in both directions. I think in a very small zone along the border areas we need to try to use the troops in an adequate way to stop what is happening."

The use of soldiers along the border is one element of a 14-point "battle plan" released Tuesday by Mattox to attack crime. Other provisions of his plan include reform of the criminal justice system, construction of more prisons, expansion of boot camps for juvenile offenders and emphasis on victims rights.

Mattox faces U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews of Houston and Dallas businessman Richard Fisher in the Democratic primary in March. The winner will face incumbent Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison or one of five Republican challengers in November. Andrews spokesman Scott Sutherland branded the Mattox border proposal "outrageous."

"Here's a guy who didn't support NAFTA and he would like to create a 38th Parallel between Texas and its largest trade market," Sutherland said, adding that Andrews believed the answer was to give the Border Patrol more resources to do its job.

"We have a law enforcement agency trained to do that job," Sutherland said. "Granted, sometimes they are overwhelmed, but the answer isn't to bring more gun power to the problem."

Fisher called the idea "a ham-fisted approach that appeals to racism" and said he favored stricter sanctions on employers who use illegal aliens. He also called for greater presence by the U.S. Border Patrol rather than federal troops.

"I don't think South Texans want tanks on their front lawns," he said. "I want to crack down on this stuff. I want to be harsh, but I don't want to use American troops."

Mattox's anti-crime pitch came in conjunction with him receiving the endorsement of the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas. The association, which represents police officers around the state, is touting Mattox as "the proven law and order candidate for Texas."

Anxious astronauts await first Hubble images

The Associated Press

SPACE CENTER, Houston — The seven astronauts who made repairs on the Hubble Space Telescope last month said Tuesday the $629 million mission was proof NASA can accomplish difficult tasks with careful focus of its resources.

"This mission was kind of a convergence where everything worked very well," said payload commander Story Musgrave, who led four spacewalkers through installation of 11 new parts on the Hubble last month.

"Here was an example where NASA gave its best heart and its best soul toward something, which boils down to energy and attention to detail. It is an example of if you give something your very best shot ... it ends up working."

The Hubble was snatched from orbit a month ago Tuesday by the shuttle Endeavour's robot arm and secured in the open cargo bay. Astronauts Musgrave, Jeffrey Hoffman, Kathryn Thornton and Tom Akers, working in pairs, then set out on alternating days for five repair spacewalks.

The telescope was released 369 miles above Earth on Dec. 10, rejuvenated with optics to correct its myopia, new guidance and power systems and upgraded computer memory.

NASA says it will be late this month or early February — after exhaustive testing — before it is known whether repairs were a success. Hubble scientists say the instrument so far appears in perfect shape.

Their work done, all the astronauts can do is wait. "We knew when we did our part that that was not enough," Musgrave said. "Every single morning we call the Hubble project to find out how the check is going."

Added astronaut Claude Nicollier: "We have good indication that it works. I expect good news about the optical components, but we don't have the final answer yet. We'll know very soon."

If the Hubble is fully restored, the mission is likely to be a big boost for NASA, which endured a year of lost satellites and funding fights and badly needed a victory.

Endeavour commander Richard Covey said the crew didn't set out to repair NASA's image, but he hopes that will be a fringe benefit.

"That's a lot of baggage to carry with you," Covey said.

Legendary Red Adair retiring

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The world's best-known fireman — Paul N. "Red" Adair — traded in his red coveralls Tuesday for a fisherman's cap, announcing the sale of his 35-year-old company to a Louisiana firm.

The 78-year-old veteran of more than 2,000 land and offshore oil well fires sold his Houston-based Red Adair Company, Inc. to Global Industries, Ltd., of Lafayette, La. for an undisclosed amount.

"I'll take it a little easier, I'll try to play a little golf, take my boat out" said Adair, donned in an uncustomary blue suit set off by a flame-red silk handkerchief in the breast pocket. "Get out and enjoy life a little bit."

When asked how much Global paid him for the company he bought in 1959 for a mere $125 investment, Adair chuckled, then said: "I can't count that high. I didn't go but to ninth grade at school."

Global, which began as a struggling offshore diving business when bought by now-President and CEO William J. Dore, has ballooned into a $60 million company that specializes in offshore contracting and diving.

The 12-member staff of Red Adair have signed on with Global and will remain in Houston, said Dore, who attended the news conference with Adair. The firefighting unit, now under the arm of Global, will retain the Red Adair name.

Except for a "freak accident" that resulted in one firefighter's broken leg, Adair contends he still has the best record in the oil firefighting business.

Houston oilwell firefighter Paul N. "Red" Adair turns to answer a question from the media Tuesday after announcing that his firefighting business, Red Adair Company Inc., has been sold to Global Industries Ltd. of Louisiana. Adair will stay on as a consultant.

The 5-foot-7 Houston native, who proudly spent his 76th birthday clad in his traditional red coveralls working to cap off the burning wells in Kuwait, once said he would never retire.

And on Tuesday, Adair, who will work for Global as a consultant, refused to use the word.

He indicated it would be quite possible, if Global wanted him to, to return to the oilpatch.

Isn't 78 too old to be working fires? "Oh, hell no, I'm in as good shape as anybody in this room, I think," he said.

Adair revolutionized the science of capping exploding and burning wells, using explosives, drilling mud and concrete to control and cap wild well fires.

His death-defying feats are legendary, from battling the July 1988 explosion of the Piper Alpha platform that killed 167 men in the North Sea, to hundreds of desert wells that burned for months in Kuwait in 1991.

In 1968, he was portrayed by John Wayne in "Hellfighters," a movie based on Adair's life.

Adair's longtime employee, Asger

"Boots" Hansen and Edward O. "Coots" Matthews, split with him in 1977 to form Boots & Coots Co., one of Adair's main competitors.

"We're still friends," Adair said Tuesday.

With more time to spend with his family and "Blow-Out," his 74-foot Hatteras fishing yacht, Adair told reporters what risky business he would no longer be involved in.

"I know the dangerous things I'm not going to do," said Adair with a laugh. "I'm not going to come home at 3 o'clock (in the morning) and go to the Cutty Sark anymore."

Inmates cheer, applaud prosecutor's resignation

KINGSVILLE (AP) — Inmates in the Kleberg County Jail cheered and applauded "like a team scored a touchdown" when they learned that a prosecutor with a reputation for toughness and getting long prison sentences had resigned, a jail official says.

Kleberg County Jail administrator Les Ewing said the 31 inmates learned about the resignation of Assistant District Attorney Susan Snyder on a television newscast Tuesday.

"They just applauded like a team scored a touchdown or something," Ewing said. "She is feared by the inmates."

Ms. Snyder resigned Monday after she received a letter from District Attorney Carlos Valdez reassigning her to the Corpus Christi office.

Valdez's letter, dated Dec. 30, criticized Ms. Snyder for her comments to a Corpus Christi Caller-Times Sound Off line last week, when she spoke out about a recent case in which a drug dealer received 54 years in prison for transporting 54 pounds of marijuana. She praised the sentence.

East Texan safe after Mexico ordeal

GRAPEVINE (AP) — While Indian rebels retreated into the jungles of Mexico following a bloody uprising, an East Texan man made his own retreat home.

Tom Landers of White Oak, who was stranded in Comitán, Mexico during the uprising, says he is glad to be home. He arrived via Mexico City on a flight to Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport Tuesday night.

Landers said he was stopped on New Year's Day by rebels from the Zapatista Army of National Liberation who forced him off the road.

The 52-year-old insurance adjuster manager for the Key Service Group in Longview and his wife had been visiting friends in Honduras for Christmas. Mrs. Landers flew home early. Landers decided to drive the couple's car home.

Mrs. Landers called her mother, Billie Padgett, Tuesday to tell her she was on her way to Dallas to pick up her husband.

Student sent home over nose ring

WELLINGTON (AP) — A Wellington High School junior who was sent home for wearing a nose ring to school was to return to school today, a school official says.

Principal Carl Taylor said Tuesday that Jonathon Skelton was sent Monday because the nose ring is a distraction.

Skelton will be put in "an alternative education program" that separates him from other students because of the distraction, Taylor added.

"If he takes the earring out of his nose, he can go back to the regular classroom," Taylor said.

Skelton says the ring is not a distraction.

Watchdog groups calling for nuclear plant study

AUSTIN (AP) — Government watchdog groups say it makes sense for the Public Utility Commission to study customer savings that might come from mothballing the idle South Texas Project nuclear power plant, rather than restarting it.

"What we're asking is to have a definitive study done by a neutral third party, and that's the PUC," said Tom Smith, director of Public Citizen.

Smith was joined Tuesday by representatives of Texas Citizen Action, Greenpeace and the Texas Nuclear Responsibility Network in calling for the study concerning the plant near Bay City. The facility hasn't produced electricity since February 1993 because of maintenance and equipment problems.

"It just makes sense to quit throwing good money after bad," Smith said.

Officials with Houston Lighting & Power Co., the plant's managing partner, have a Friday meeting scheduled with the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. Other plant owners include Central Power and Light of Corpus Christi and the cities of Austin and San Antonio.

It's your responsibility

The deadline to file has passed. And, now those who have chosen to run for election face their first test in the March 8 Democratic and Republican primaries.

Several candidates have decided to run for the two Howard County Commissioners' Court positions up for grabs this time around.

And, Gov. Ann Richards will be facing challenges from both sides as she attempts to hold on to the Governor's Mansion.

There are several things, we as voters need to do. One: decide that we are going to vote in both the primaries and the general election in November.

Two: Figure out what is important to you, as far as Howard County and the state of Texas is concerned.

Three: Find out what the candidates are about and if they address any of the concerns you have. Don't forget this is also your time to speak up. Question the candidates, talk to them about your concerns and find out what they would do, if elected.

Four: Don't make a snap decision, hear what the candidates have to say and study the issues before making your decision.

Five: Don't be fooled by the mudslinging that is bound to happen, especially in the statewide elections. Look beyond the mud to the issues.

Six: Make your decision and be out March 8 to finalize it by casting your vote. Then return to the polls in November to make your final decision for this political year.

This is our government. It is a reflection of us and what we want. But, we have to make sure it is doing what is best for this county and for this state.

And, the only way to do that is to vote. It truly is the most important job you have.

Computer easing along

Remember that old saying "be careful what you wish for because you just might get it."

That's right, I asked for it and I got it and it is just a tad more than I bargained for.

It's a nice piece of computer equipment - one of those electronic schedule, memo, address book and business card organizers.

So, what could possibly be the problem with it? Figuring out how it works, that's what.

The book which tells you how to input all the information is bigger than the computer itself.

Now, I get along fairly well with computers. Have to now, it's part of the job description. "Pagination experience preferred" or "Macintosh experience preferred."

See what I mean, you just can't get away from computers anymore. In fact, most people have them in their homes as well as at their workplace. And, sometimes they even use the computers for more than just playing video games.

So, here I am with a tiny little computer in hand. And, what I am finding out? That you have to be able to read and follow directions.

Read and follow the directions. Then, memorize the directions so you don't have to cart around the instruction book every time you want to enter a piece of information.

What has always amazed me was people who figured learning to read well wasn't important any more with the advent of the computer. Thing is, we still don't have talking computers - although they are not so far away.

But, even if you can talk to the computer, you still have to learn how to read the information on the screen. Most of us don't have instant recall of the spoken word. Otherwise, there wouldn't be so many communication breakdowns.

Even in the world of "Star Trek" with all the advances in computers in that world, they still have to read the information.

So, for me, reading the information isn't really a problem. It's understanding it and committing it to memory. And, this one isn't really a hard computer to learn at all.

So, I'll learn it - piecemeal that is. And continue to learn to work the thing. After all, it is a Christmas present and one does have to use those.

So far, I can enter telephone numbers and memos. I don't know how to change them yet, haven't gotten that far in the book.

And, I have finally got the time and date set right on it. That's a very important part because without the correct time and date, the schedule portion will be off. Can't be operating in 1991 when it is 1994, now can we?

When I saw how complicated it was going to be, I wished I had one of those nice, leather organizers. Mainly, because it is simple and what I am used to (but usually in vinyl, not leather).

But, one thing about this computer one, it is smaller and will take up less space in the purse. And, with 64KB (whatever that means) I assume it will hold a lot more stuff.

Laugh and learn something

Editor's Note: Mike Royko is on vacation. During his absence, his favorite columns will be reprinted. This column was originally published on Jan. 12, 1977.

It seems to me the practical joke has become a dormant form of humor.

Whenever I hear people talking about great practical jokes, they are inevitably the old classics, most of them collected years ago in a book by H. Allen Smith.

So I was pleased to recently hear about two fine, sadistic practical jokes that sounded original.

One was the work of a Chicago salesman who became bored with the ritual of sending out Christmas cards.

"My wife and I weren't going to bother last year, but we already had the cards and that's when I got this idea," he related.

"You know how some people will write a few personal lines on a card?"

"Well, here's what I did. If a guy had been in the service, I'd write something like: 'Hi, Joe, old buddy. Got your address from Jim Scanlon (you remember, the old barracks moocher). Me and the wife and kids are going to be passing through Chicago during the Christmas holidays, and we'll stop by and spend a night or two with you, and we can sip a few brews and rehash our days in the old outfit.'"

"The I'd sign it with a phony name, something like: 'Your old pal, Wilbur Crull.'"

"I was driving South on a sales trip the next week, so I took them along and mailed them all from small Southern towns.

"You can imagine how people reacted when the cards came. Wives were yelling: 'Who the hell is this guy? They're going to move in with us during Christmas?' Husbands were saying: 'For God's sake, I knew a hundred yokels in the Army. He could be any one of them!"

"For guys who hadn't been in the service, I just substituted something about college days.

"My wife and I talked to several of them after they got the cards. They were in a panic. One couple had such an argument about his lousy old-time friends, they almost got divorced. Another friend of mine wouldn't answer his doorbell if he didn't recognize the person outside. It was beautiful.

"You know what I'll do next Christmas? I'm going to say something like: 'Joe, old buddy. My pickup truck broke down and we couldn't make it to Chicago. But we'll be there for sure this year, ya hear?'"

The other joke was the work of a restaurant owner in Madison, Wis.

He and three friends were on a fishing trip way up north. They were staying in a cabin on the shore of a wilderness lake.

It was 10 p.m. They had fished all day, had a few beers, played some poker, and were going to turn in and get up before dawn for more fishing.

One of them, let's call him Joe, was the first to his bunk. He was exhausted. Within a few minutes, he was snoring.

The restaurant owner quickly told the others his plan.

One of them got Joe's wristwatch, which he had put on a dresser, and changed the time to 4:45.

Then they changed their own watches and the alarm clock to 4:45.

They set the alarm clock to go off at exactly five o'clock, turned off all the lights, took off their clothes, and went to bed.

Fifteen minutes later, the alarm clock went off. They all got up, shuffling around, making the grumbly, miserable sounds that men make early in the morning. One of them put toast and coffee on.

The most miserable was Joe. He sat on the edge of his bed, shaking his head, moaning: "I don't feel like I've been to bed at all."

He kept looking at his watch, the clock, asking them what time they had, mumbling and groaning.

He complained as he drank his coffee, and on the way to the boat. "I must be getting old," he said, as they dropped anchor and began fishing.

Every few minutes, he'd glance at his watch and look at the eastern horizon and say: "What time have you got?"

"Five-forty," somebody would say. "Boy, it's dark," Joe would say.

A little later: "What time have you got?"

"Six."

He began looking concerned.

"Shouldn't it be getting light soon?" he asked.

"Daylight Savings," one of them replied.

By the time his watch said 6:40, he had stopped casting. He just sat there staring into the darkness.

Finally, in a voice filled with genuine terror, he cried: "I'm telling you, something is wrong! It's not getting light today! It's not getting light today! Something is wrong!"

"End of the world," they hooted.

"Doesn't matter, because the fish aren't biting anyway."

That's when he caught on. And he took it well, although they had to wrestle an oar out of his hands.

Letters to the Editor

Christmas spirit is still alive

Editor:

It is now 12:45 a.m. and it has happened again. Someone took great pleasure of stealing some more lollipops out of our yard. This is a total of 10 lollipop decorations that has been stolen this year. Today started out with excitement and joy being with family and friends on Christmas Day. All week and especially tonight people would stop and admire our Christmas decorations.

Some would take the time to take a picture to remember what our family had to offer them during this time of sharing. But as usual all things have to come to an end. While my family was trying to settle down from all the excitement, someone had to ruin it again by stealing and depriving our joy of sharing with the community. If anyone knows where these decorations may be, please find it in your hearts to return them. We will ask no questions. We have children that also enjoy decorating and sharing with this community and I don't want them to learn that evil concurs good. So Big Spring please help in keeping the spirit of Christmas alive.

Column on prayer is applauded

Editor:

I would like to applaud Mr. Rudy Gutierrez for his column, "Prayer is a part of life", which appeared in your paper December 20, 1993. I agree with Mr. Gutierrez that prayer should not be banned from schools or school activities. I believe that the vast majority approves of prayer in school and only a very small minority does not. The youth today need all the help we can give them but no help we can provide can compare to that of our Almighty God. Thank you, Mr. Gutierrez for your article.

Lewis Grizzard

Call me 'MAOD...'

Editor's Note: Mr. Grizzard continues to have health problems. While he is recovering, "best of Grizzard" columns will be reprinted.

I was glancing through the paper the other day and I came across the personal ads in the classified section.

Ever read those ads? They're much more interesting than reading the soybean futures on the financial pages, and I lost interest in Dick Tracy years ago.

One ad read, "GWM wants to meet GWM for travel and intimate relationship. Must be nonsmoker."

After some thinking (I'm also brilliant on the Jumble word game, having gotten "UTIGRA" - guitar - in 15 seconds), I figured what the capital letters in the ads stood for.

"GWM," of course, is a "gay white male," and I'm thinking here's this gay guy who wants to travel and become intimate with another gay guy and he's got to know the facts about AIDS, but what he's concerned about is breathing secondhand smoke from his lover's cigarette.

Another ad read, "SWF wants SWM who's into jazz, the classics, vintage wines and hiking."

"SWF" and "SWM," I figure, have to stand for "single white female" and "single white male."

"Straight" is possible, too, but let's not get overly immersed in detail, and just who does this SWF think she is kidding here?

Any single white female who has to resort to taking out an ad to find a boyfriend would take a SWM who's into yodeling, Hustler magazine, Ripple and robbing convenience stores.

Still another ad read: "SBM, handsome, athletic, financially secure, wants SBF, 20s, who will be his princess."

If I were a SBF (single black female) I would want to know how this narcissist got his money and if being his princess meant I'd have to get tied up or do anything involving live animals.

I don't think I'd ever put an ad in the personal section. But if I ever did resort to such a thing, I'm afraid I'd have a difficult time getting all I wanted to say about myself in a few capital letters.

I'm a "DWM," a divorced white male (OK, an off-DWM). On top of that I'm a "MAODWM," a "middle-aged-off-divorced-white-male," and I don't smoke, which makes me a "MAODWMS."

I'd also like for prospective companions to know I'm a Protestant, a college graduate, a 14-handicap golfer, and I snore, which now has me up to being a "MAODWMS-SPCG14HGWS."

Naturally I'd also want to point out I'm a dog lover who brushes his teeth regularly, still has his hair, loves egg sandwiches, and often entertains friends by doing a simply marvelous impression of FDR declaring war on the Japanese in 1941.

Now, how are you going to get all that in a classified ad?

If my social life reaches the desperate point, I can always go after the "SWHWs."

Single Waffle House waitresses. They're around 24 hours a day and make the best egg sandwiches in town.

Don't be saddled by loss

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

For some people, a saddle is their prized possession. For others, it is their livelihood.

At a price of several hundred to several thousand dollars, saddles are often custom made to the owner's specifications and personalized with certain measurements.

But saddle thefts are quite common, said Kim Hillman, whose husband, Jon, has been making custom saddles for more than two decades.

After hearing the frustration of customers and friends who lost saddles to thieves, never to have them returned, Kim Hillman decided to do something about the problem.

Often insurance companies don't include saddles along with a homeowner's policy, Hillman said. Some companies consider them like jewelry or art - items that must be registered separately and occasionally with an additional premium.

When the theft of a saddle is reported to the police, it can be very difficult to identify the lost item.

"The problem is getting a good description of the saddle," Hillman said. "People often have no way to really identify it."

Kim Hillman, shown photographing one of her husband Jon's custom saddles, formed the National Saddle Registry after hearing concerns about saddle theft. Hillman registers saddles with complete descriptions, issues serial numbers and transfer papers for sales.

That's how she developed the idea of forming a saddle registry database and operating it out of her home southwest of Big Spring.

Under Hillman's system, named the National Saddle Registry, saddle owners pay $20 to file an application with a detailed description of the saddle, and information about its owner.

Each saddle is registered by computer and assigned an identification number. Owners are given an ID tag to attach to the saddle in a designated spot, and it is recommended to also list the number on another part of the saddle - stamped, handwritten or engraved.

When a registered saddle is sold, the identification number can be transferred to the new owner. If a registered saddle is stolen, the theft can be reported, and the serial number used as ID.

"People may not intentionally buy a stolen saddle," Hillman said. "But they may not know. There may be no way of knowing where it came from."

But a serial number can be checked against the records of the National Saddle Registry, the original owner contacted and a saddle shop or a potential buyer can determine if the saddle was sold or stolen. Without a transfer certificate, the legitimacy of the sale can be called into question.

"A thief will have less reason to steal your saddle if he knows it will bring less money because he doesn't have the paperwork," Hillman said. "NSR gives each saddle an identity."

Some saddle owners mark them with a driver's license number, or a serial number assigned by the saddlemaker.

"Using your driver's license is fine if you never sell or trade the saddle," Hillman said. In the case of preassigned serial numbers, the owner often keeps no record or can't find it when the saddle is stolen.

Under the NSR system, Hillman takes care of the database herself. Owners must only remember to register their saddles and formally transfer them to a new owner when sold or traded.

For information about NSR, contact the Hillmans at HC 63 Box 134, Big Spring, or call 263-0753.

Expo showcases styles in natural fibers

GLENDA CUMMINGS
Staff Writer

For some, the highlight of the day Saturday at the Ag Exp will be the Natural Fibers Style Show.

Beginning at 3 p.m. on the floor of the coliseum, the show will feature as models members of the families of producers.

"We always try to involve the children and grandchildren of producers to provide an added attraction and to generate excitement. It gives the kids a chance to be involved too," said Marae Brooks, assistant manager of the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce. This year the coordinator of the show is Dene Sheppard and her assistant is Angie Clanton. "These are two people I can count on to help with such events," said Brooks.

The show will feature two producer families, including the husbands. "We are really proud that they have agreed to model for us," said Sheppard.

Models will be sponsored by the Cottage, La Lani's, Beth Ann's, The Look, and the Kids Shop. Models were encouraged to find garments that interested them and the stores agreed to help with the sponsorship. All garments will be 100 percent natural fibers, most of them 100 percent cotton.

Plans are still being finalized for the possibility of having models featuring the Tex-cellana fabric of 50 percent cotton and 50 percent wool.

Tex-cellana is a trial fabric in conjunction with the mills at Texas Tech University. Several women from the St. Lawrence area did extensive work as part of an experiment to explore the possibility of getting a textile mill for the area that would use local products of cotton and wool.

Also a possibility for the style show is the new "undyed denim" available at the local mills, as is the regular "blue" denim.

And, if anyone has a garment of the "Fox Fiber Denim," a natural color denim made from cotton that is naturally tan, blue or green, with no dye necessary, Sheppard or Clanton will be glad to hear from them and give them a spot in the show.

"That would be a great addition to the show, especially as it does feature natural fibers in deference to the local producers," Sheppard said.

"The style show is the single most attended event of the day for the Ag Expo and is well-sponsored by the community with door prizes and the like," said Brooks. "We urge everyone to make plans to attend."

More ham gets eaten in December than any other month, according to the American Meat Institute. The HoneyBaked Ham Co. suggests this stretch for leftover ham:

To make Ham & Potato Cakes, grind 1 cup baked ham and combine with 1 cup mashed potatoes, 1 tablespoon fresh chopped parsley, 1/2 teaspoon grated onion and 1/4 teaspoon wet mustard (or to taste). Shape into flat cakes and dip lightly in flour. Saute in margarine on both sides.

This savory cheese bread is easy to make: Thaw 2 loaves frozen bread dough, then knead loaves together. Roll out on floured surface; cover with plastic wrap and let rest 15 minutes. Roll into a 14-inch circle and spray baking sheet with non-stick cooking spray. Fry 5 slices bacon until crisp; drain and crumble. Saute a medium onion, thinly sliced, in bacon drippings. Remove and reserve drippings. Brush circle of dough with drippings, distribute crisp bacon, 8 ounces shredded mozzarella and 1 teaspoon Italian herb seasoning evenly over dough.

Roll dough as for jellyroll, pinching dough together at long seam. Cut into 3/4-inch slices, arranging cut-sides down in pan. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled in size, about 2 hours. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 20 to 25 minutes or until golden.

Gold Medal's new $2.95 "Homemade Breads" booklet includes 11 recipes for bread machines plus coffee cakes, quick breads, rolls, muffins and regular yeast breads. It's available in the magazine section of grocery stores through mid-March.

Daddy's volunteer spirit

Johnson never turned down chance to help daughter's causes

As we reflect on 1993, it was a good year for Volunteer projects, new volunteers, renovations - with a new look for Community Relations - and award winning programs.

Big Spring State Hospital and the entire TXMHMR system have had the challenge of striving to provide quality care and balance the needs of the people we serve with the monies appropriated to the Department by the Legislature.

As always, our hospital, under the administration of Robert von Rosenberg, is high on the list of quality facilities in the state. The hospital has lost some services, but they have been replaced or compensated for through other innovative and less costly options.

Although it has been a successful year in terms of programs growing and being state-wide winners, every win, every success has been overshadowed with the loss of one more special person. Our program, community, families and friends have lost too many valuable people in our lives and we close 1993 with an overwhelming sadness for those losses.

For the third time this year, since my return from El Paso to Big Spring, I am struggling to write an article and a tribute to a special person. The past 10 months, I have written these articles in dimly lit hospital rooms, on the road to out-of-town hospitals, sometimes, with a flashlight in the car. This final article for 1993 is also the final tribute to the real example of a volunteer and care-taker in my life - my Dad, Jim Johnson.

True volunteers are there for all seasons, for all reasons, and for all purposes. They are born with a spirit of giving, which some pass on with words, some by example. His way was simply to give where needed, quietly, without fanfare, unconditionally, but always with strength and support.

Jim's purpose was not to spend time at the hospital entertaining or working with patients, but instead, as a silent friend of the hospital. He was always there with a donation if our program needed a boost, he bought tickets, crafts, goodies, or cleaned out his closet for me when I needed men's clothing.

He came to a Volunteer luncheon, just because I needed him to be there. Years ago, when the

Kathy Higgins

Halloween parade was becoming an important event at the hospital, and we needed community support. I rounded the corner riding a motorcycle, wearing a pumpkin suit, and there he stood, watching quietly, smiling and enjoying.

He wanted to attend the State meeting in Austin last September, but his health prevented that - he would have beamed as our group accepted many awards and honors. In November, even when things were at their worst, he sent a donation for our Christmas fund.

When I worked for TXMHMR in El Paso, funds were short, so he sent his Christmas donation for our patients there. The State Center needed equipment to work with handicapped patients, there was no money - so he and my brother designed it, built it and delivered it to the Center.

In 1991, the El Paso volunteer group attended a meeting in Abilene, and stopped in Big Spring for lunch so they could meet the charming man they knew only on the phone, but who had helped them in so many ways. They met him and with his twinkling blue eyes, and his genteel manner, he charmed them. He was a true Southern gentleman in every sense of the word. To borrow an old expression, "they don't make 'em like that anymore."

Dr. Preston Harrison late superintendent of BSSH, labeled our mission as that of "people helping people." He, too, belonged to that generation of true gentlemen and was a friend of my Daddy's. Where do these qualities come from? Some are taught by words, but I was raised with examples, more than words that sometimes get lost.

When the alcohol and drug abuse unit was strong at BSSH, I watched him, with assistance from Dr. Harrison, try to help a machinist who worked for him, in a battle against alcoholism.

The phone would ring in the middle of the night and Jack was in trouble. Daddy would bail him out of whatever mess he was in - send him a buss ticket to return to Big Spring from some place he wasn't supposed to be, or even go get him and bring him home.

Daddy always said, "He's a good man, maybe he will get better." He never gave up helping him until his death in a train accident.

My first job out of college was a job at Bauer elementary school, before it was a Magnet school, and before the days of federal aid programs. Many of my students were underprivileged, in need of food, clothing and school supplies.

All I had to do was tell him, and throughout those teaching years, he gave his charitable donations to me to use as I saw fit. Twenty five years ago, I did not label that volunteering, but in retrospect, I now know that is how the spirit of helping people is born. It is born in those who give unconditionally.

What greater legacy could anyone leave behind than to be remembered as one who loved life? He lived and loved life and he savored every minute of beautiful things - a sunset, the mountains, a rainy day, music, and his home, family, and friends. And he did not put off until tomorrow appreciating them.

Anyone who knew him knows that he lived his life to the fullest - day by day. As we move into 1994, I would challenge each person in our community to strive for his philosophy of life. Let us celebrate the lives of those we have lost, give thanks for the life we have and remember - today is the first day of the rest of your life.

Every Jan. 1, I reorganize my life. This year it is without him and it will never be the same again - but the legacy of a life lived to the fullest lives on. What more can I say? He was my Daddy.

Kathy Higgins is the Director of Community Relations at BSSH, which the Volunteer Services and Public Information Department.

Ladies romp, Steers fall against Sweetwater

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

SWEETWATER - Tuesday's boys' and girls' varsity basketball games between Big Spring and Sweetwater were nearly carbon copies of each other - with the results being the exception.

Pressure defense proved too much for Sweetwater's girls and Big Spring's boys to handle. The Lady Steers swarmed Sweetwater with a menacing full-court trap and won by the deceivably close score of 62-41. After that game, Sweetwater's boys returned the favor, frustrating the Steers with a full-court press en route to an 83-53 win in the District 3-4A opener for both teams.

Earnst scores 30 for Lady Steers

Big Spring (12-5, 3-0 in district) needed just one quarter to shake off the rust that came with not playing since Dec. 17. In a first half that took about an hour to complete, Big Spring weathered foul trouble to build a 35-20 halftime lead. The Lady Steers' key spurt was an 11-point run in the second quarter that put them ahead 33-17. Seven of those 11 points came on free throws - in the lengthy first half, Big Spring shot 14 free throws, Sweetwater 25.

"Sweetwater had 20 points in the first half, and 18 of them came on free throws," said Big Spring coach Ron Taylor. "The officials have to call what they see, and our kids adjusted and didn't let it get to them."

Big Spring's Amy Earnst led all scorers with 30 points despite being double- or triple-teamed most of the night. Earnst, a 6-foot senior, scored 21 in the first half. Sarah Bristow added 10 for the Lady Steers. Jameia Owens scored 16 for Sweetwater (4-11, 1-1).

"The full-court pressure really hurt them," Taylor said. "I thought it would. When we get the baseline cut off, and then we've got Amy, a 6-footer, coming in on the trap, that's tough to handle."

"One thing that helps them is that they're so big," said Sweetwater coach Lisa Logan. "That makes Big Spring's trap that much better. It was really hard for us to see over it."

"They're really big and intimidating. They didn't let us get any shots in the paint."

Big Spring's largest lead was 55-29 with 2:31 left in the game. The win was the Lady Steers' 25th consecutive district win.

Steers fall on the road

Big Spring's Josh Jones nailed a 3-pointer from the top of the key to start Tuesday's scoring, but little went right after that for the Steers (3-15, 0-1).

The game essentially came down to two Sweetwater spurts. Trailing 7-6, Sweetwater scored the next 11 points on its way to a 21-10 lead after one quarter. Big Spring stayed with the Mustangs in the second quarter and trailed 37-27 at halftime, but Sweetwater (11-8, 1-0) scored the first seven points of the second half to remove any momentum the Steers may have had.

The win was Sweetwater's fifth in a row. "We're down 10 at half, and we feel like we can make a run at them, but then before we even score we're down 17 points," Big Spring coach Gary Tipton said. "When you get in that situation, you have to start taking some chances, and sometimes that works and sometimes it doesn't. Tonight it didn't."

"We just didn't do a good job of handling their press at all," Tipton added. "They're a very, very quick basketball team. They press you, but they keep enough people back that you don't get anything cheap."

Sweetwater placed five scorers in double figures. Senior guard Zolzie Steakley led the way with 17.

Big Spring's Wes Hughes led all scorers with 19.

"I was surprised we won by that much. I know one thing - it won't be that way in Big Spring," said Sweetwater coach Kenny Chandler. "Right now our strength is in our numbers. We have enough players that we can run and press for 32 minutes, because I can substitute freely."

Both the Steers and Lady Steers play Friday in Steer Gym against Pecos. Tipton said the Steers need a win.

"The thing that you look at is that Sweetwater is probably the best team in the district right now," Tipton said. "Now what we've got is a loss on the road against the team that probably ought to win the thing. I don't think anyone in district is going to go 12-0, so what you have to do is win all your home games and hope to slip up on a couple of people on the road."

"Sweetwater did what they were supposed to - it won a home game. Friday night, we've got a home game, and we have to win it."

Coahoma sweeps pair from Colorado City

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

COAHOMA - The Coahoma boys and girls basketball teams took different routes to similar results here Tuesday night.

The Bulldogs started a bit slowly, then ended the evening with a 69-49 win over Colorado City. The Bulldogettes, meanwhile, had to hang on for dear life before escaping with a 45-42 win over C-City. Both games were at Coahoma Elementary Gym.

GIRLS GAME

There everybody was, all comfortable with a rout, when all of the sudden a basketball game broke out.

Entering the final quarter, the only danger for the crowd, it seemed, was the possibility of being put to sleep. That possibility seemed real when Brandi Gressett sank a 10-footer to give the Bulldogettes (10-8) a 40-26 lead with 5:13 remaining.

That's when all hoops broke out. C-City's comeback began innocently enough when Shanna Haggerton hit a short jumper with 3:51 left. In the space of a minute, however, the Lady Wolves (3-10) had sank a pair of free throws, another jumper and a three-pointer from Krissy Crawford to cut Coahoma's lead to five.

Tammy Bennett and Angela Crippen seemed to quell the disturbance with a jumper and free throw, respectively, to put the Bulldogettes back up by 43-35 with 2:29 remaining, but the Lady Wolves had one more run left.

Crawford again provided long-distance help, canning a three-pointer with 90 seconds remaining to pull C-City within five, and Haggerton added a jumper with 56 seconds left to make the score 43-40.

But Crippen, who finished the night with 18 points, gave the Bulldogettes a little bit of breathing room with a pair of free throws, and the Lady Wolves could only manage a jumper by Mini Sparkman with 2 seconds left.

All in all, Coahoma coach Philip Ritchey said, it made for good drama.

"I think we kind of relaxed too much - even me," he said. "But you've got to give (Colorado City) some credit, too. They made some good shots ... But we were able to hang on for the win, which was good for us."

But if the ending was good drama, the rest of the game was not great art. Both teams had trouble finding a handle on the ball, as evidenced by the more than 50 turnovers committed Tuesday.

"Neither one of us handled the ball well tonight," Ritchey said. "That's kind of been on and off for us."

The Bulldogettes led, 8-5, after one quarter before Colorado City rallied to tie the game at 16-16 at the half. But Coahoma opened the second half with an Elizabeth Hernandez jumper, and a Crippen three-pointer keyed a run that gave the Bulldogettes a 9-point lead after three quarters.

Coahoma returns to action Friday when the Bulldogettes host Eldorado at 6:30 p.m. in the elementary gym.

BOYS GAME

Unlike the girls game, which saved its drama for last, the boys game was decided quickly. The Coahoma Bulldogs grabbed the lead from the get-go and spent the rest of the evening just building on it, eventually cruising to an easy win.

Jason Milliken and Jason Harmon led the way for Coahoma (13-5) with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Colorado City (4-10) was paced by Robby Parras, who scored 14 points.

There was precious little drama in this game. Coahoma jumped out to a 19-12 first-quarter lead, and C-City never seriously threatened thereafter.

The smaller but quicker Bulldogs used their speed and three-point shooting ability (they sank six of the long-range shots during the game) to their best advantage, coach Kim Nichols said.

"We were concerned about their size," he said. "I think they probably outrebounded us, but we battled them inside when we had to."

The Bulldogs open District 6-2A action Friday when they host Eldorado at 8 p.m. in the elementary gym.

Lady Hawks beat San Jacinto

HOUSTON - The Howard College women's basketball team, ranked second in the NJCAA poll, improved to 18-0 Tuesday with a 81-68 win at San Jacinto Junior College.

Sophomore Annette Robinson scored 26 for Howard, 20 in the first half. Angel Spinks, a sophomore, scored 20, and Tiffany Johnson added 14.

The Lady Hawks had not played for 23 days, but they put San Jacinto away with a 14-point run in the second half. Howard coach Royce Chadwick said Howard's full-court press was the difference in the game.

Howard led 42-31 at halftime. On Thursday and Friday, the Lady Hawks play in the Blinn Tournament in Brenham.

Hawks fall to Lon Morris

JACKSONVILLE, Texas - Kavossy Franklin poured in 24 points, but that didn't keep Howard's men's team from falling to Lon Morris College 78-70.

Franklin hit three 3-pointers and was 7 of 8 from the free-throw line. Jerard Billingsley added 13 for Howard, which dropped to 11-5.

"Foul trouble forced us to play most of the last 10 minutes of the first half with our reserves," said Howard coach Tommy Collins. "We lost a big lead then."

Tonight the Hawks play in Lufkin against Angelina.

Forsan Queens beat Klondike

The contest was close from the start as neither team could push a lead beyond six points during the first three quarters. Klondike outscored the Buffaloes 13-6 in the final four minutes of the first half to take a 36-35 halftime lead.

Forsan took the lead on two baskets to start the fourth quarter, but a 12-point run by Klondike over the next 3:10 put the game out of reach for the Buffs.

Chris Evans led the Buffaloes with 28 points. Shane Sims and Jacoby Hopper added 10.

Runnels boys sweep Lamesa

The Runnels Junior High School boys basketball teams swept a pair of games with Lamesa at Runnels Gym Monday night.

Runnels prevailed in the B team game 37-32 behind 11 points from Luis Pena and 5 from James Newman. The Yearlings raced to a 24-8 halftime lead, but had to withstand a Lamesa rally to take the win.

Runnels B is now 5-0 for the season.

The Runnels A team took a little bit of revenge for an earlier loss this season with a 47-42 victory over Lamesa. Josh Fernau scored 14 points and Greg Wollenzien nine to lead the Yearlings, now 3-2 for the season.

The A Yearlings return to action Friday when they participate in the Andrews Junior High tournament.

Ryan issues apology, but not to the coach he punched

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON - Buddy Ryan apologized for the distraction he created by punching Kevin Gilbride.

The recipient, however, was not Ryan's counterpart - the Houston Oilers' offensive coordinator.

Ryan said he was sorry during a meeting with his defense.

"That's bad because our defense played so great the past two weeks," Ryan said. "I apologized to my players. I told them, 'It takes away from the glory you guys should be getting for the past two weeks.' They've done a great job."

Would he consider apologizing to Gilbride?

"I don't think so," Ryan said. Ryan, who has feuded all season with Gilbride, punched him on the left cheek shortly before halftime of Sunday night's 24-0 victory over the New York Jets in an apparent disagreement over Gilbride's play-calling.

Cornerback 'ris Dishman said the incident was of little concern to the players.

"This will just give the media something to talk about," Dishman said. "The players don't care. All we want is to get to the Super Bowl. All these distractions are in one ear and out the other."

Falcons, Redskins ax coaches Tuesday

By The Associated Press

Jerry Glanville, whose black clothing, big belt buckles, stock car racing and feuds with other coaches brought national attention to the lachrymose Atlanta Falcons, says he was fired because he wanted more control over his players.

Glanville, 52, was fired Tuesday after a second consecutive 6-10 season, this one after the Falcons spent $7 million on free agents before training camp.

He had one year left on a five-year contract.

Glanville, 28-38 with the Falcons, on Tuesday said a comment he made during meetings Monday with both club owner Rankin Smith and president Taylor Smith may have sealed his fate.

"I told them yesterday that if I didn't have the right to cut a player or keep a player, then I didn't want to be here," Glanville told the Greenville (S.C.) News.

He said it wasn't as much problems with drafting players as keeping or cutting players who were or were not doing their jobs.

Glanville, who took the Falcons to the playoffs in 1991, only to lose in the second round to eventual Super Bowl winner Washington, said the Smiths praised his work during their meeting Tuesday.

"Mr. (Rankin) Smith said today, 'You did everything you promised.' ... And he said, 'People in America didn't even know we were playing, and we're known from coast to coast

(now)'. And he said, 'You're not responsible for the losses that happened, and we know that,'" Glanville said. "He talked to me for a half-hour. I thought I was probably going to receive a nice, new contract."

Then Smith said he was firing him.

As a player and assistant coach, Richie Petitbon went to five Super Bowls with the Washington Redskins. As their head coach, he lasted only 10 months.

Owner Jack Kent Cooke fired him Tuesday, four days after the team ended its worst season (4-12) in three decades.

"With regret and after much thought, I have decided to release Richie Petitbon as head coach of the Washington Redskins," Cooke said in a statement after meeting with the coach for more than an hour.

Redskins general manager Charley Casserly said the search for a new coach had begun and indicated that a successor could be named before the end of the week.

The Redskins were granted permission later Tuesday by Cowboys owner Jerry Jones to interview Dallas offensive coordinator Norv Turner.

"The interview will not take away from the Cowboys' preparation for the playoffs," Jones said.

Casserly and Turner chatted two weeks ago on the field at Texas Stadium just before the kickoff of a Redskins-Cowboys game that Dallas subsequently won, 38-3, in the most one-sided defeat of a Washington team in eight years.
