King remembered; the struggle goes on

Local citizens recall the struggle

By JANET AUSBURY Staff Writer

Martin Luther King's struggles to bring economic and social equality to African-Americans earned him a place in history and a federal holiday honoring him.

But, in some cases, King's mission and message may be lost in the translation to younger generations who know his name primarily from a paragraph in a history book or a holiday listing on the calendar.

Liz Smith, a member of the Howard County NAACP who teaches African-American history to children, described King as a mentor whose spirit still lives on.

"What he stood for was peace and harmony," she said. "Peace and harmony are a trail everyone has to walk, if it takes going to jail."

King, his activities and his beliefs have been a part of Smith's life since she was very young. She remembers a friend of her mother's going to King's marches.

"I was only four or five years old at the time, but knew this lady as being involved with Martin Luther King's cause," she said.

Smith is appreciative of the activities scheduled to honor King, such as the hour-long program presented by the Veterans Administration Medical Center on Jan. 14 and the various displays done in the schools.

However, she believes a specific community-wide program, encouraging participation and attendance by all people, would be a more fitting tribute to a man who preached desegregation and cooperation

Remember what King was about on his holiday

ATLANTA — People should help the needy instead of sleeping, shopping and watching TV sports on the holiday honoring the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., advocates said.

"If ... folks are taking the day off. and sleeping in, then it's not going to help much,' said Alan Minton, director of the Martin Luther King Federal Holiday Commission in Atlanta.

"But if you can get people to go out and do community service, then you've got a good holiday," he said.

The ninth annual King Day was marked today in all 50 states, with some cities holding rallies and parades. President Clinton was to speak at Howard University in Washington.

But Minton and other supporters say they still are struggling for credibility for the federal holiday. Most companies do not give workers the day off.

One reason for lack of support is that some people wrongly perceive the day as a celebration for blacks, supporters said.

'There's no need for the federal government, the state government and corporations to give off a day if it just belongs to just one group,' said Minton, whose commission was created to encourage observance of the holiday.

"The white community has not embraced the holiday as much as they possibly could, but they certainly are embracing it more and more,' he said.

One way to increase the popularity of the holiday is to link King Day to community service and prevent it everyone, not just black people, will go to," said Smith.

Clarance Hartfield Jr., president of the Howard County NAACP, said the problems in leadership experienced by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference after King's incarceration illustrate King's power and influence.

"He had a vision. The NAACP had been banned from doing business in Alabama for eight years, so King created the SCLC to take up the void," explained Hartfield.

King was jailed for his activities and the SCLC-his vision-was left directionless because its members did not know where to turn to replace him. "Nobody wanted to do what he did," said Hartfield.

The SCLC eventually chose Ralph Abernathy as its leader, but by that time King was out of jail and back to his life's work as a civil rights activist.

State officials to attend Jan 25 UCRA meeting

By TIM JONES Staff Writer

Representatives of the Attorney General's Office will be at the Jan. 25 meeting of the Upper Colorado River Authority.

The representatives are being sent at the request of Gov. Ann Richards in response to allegations of violtions of the Texas open Meetings, Open Records Act. She has also requested an investigation into the allegations.

Four officials with the governor's office met with four directors of the UCRA board on Jan. 3 to discuss the possibility open meetings and open records provisions violations.

Fred Ellis and Julian Vera from the governor's office and Susan Reiss and Karen Gladney from the governor's special counsel office met with UCRA board members Victor W. Choate, C. Skeete Foster, Ruby Gutierrez and Sara Ortiz in Austin during a specially called meeting on Jan. 3.

"Job openings were not posted in a timely fashion," Gutierrez charges and "the Dec. 28, 1993, meeting notice was not posted in Tom Green County," stated a report provided by the governor's office. "In the area of quality and competitive bidding, the UCRA does not offer female and minority-owned businesses bid opportunities, thereby failing to comply with requests for proposals," Gutierrez claims. In addition, she said, "other quality bids are not com-pared to the lowest bids in terms of the service level cifered, as lowest does not always mean that taxpayers are being best served."

Hartfield recalls King from a distance

By JANET AUSBURY Staff Writer

Clarance Hartfield Jr., president of the Howard County chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, experienced several Martin Luther King rallies firsthand, but at a distance.

Known to many as "Frog," the Big Spring native earned his nickname as a child because of his panicky swimming style when pushed into a lake during a Boy Scout camping trip. I found out late it was shallow enough I could have stood up in it. But I didn't know that at the time,' he laughed.

While in the Army, Hartfield was on standby in riot control squads to protect government property, most notably in Selma, Ala. at the beginning of the march from Selma to Montgomery.

"It never got to the point of using

WASHINGTON - Army scientists have made the first identifications of newly returned American remains from the North Korean War in an investigatory breakthrough that could unravel some lingering mysteries of the conflict that cost more than 33,000 U.S. lives.

Although the Army hasn't officially released the names, three were provided to the co-founder of the Korean-Cold War Family Association of the Missing and were confirmed to The Associated Press by officials speaking on condition of anonymity.

The remains are believed to those of the pilot and three crewmen of an Air Force strategic bomber shot down near the Chinese border in April 1951, according to U.S. defense officials.

The investigation into their fate raises questions about North Korea's treatment of crew members who apparently survived shootdown, and Soviet fnvolvement in the three-year battle for control of the Korean península.

Pat Dunton, whose father was a crew member on the B-29 but has not been found, said in an interview that Army officials told her three of the four names on the dog tags returned with the remains.

They are Lt. George Aaron, of New York City, who was the pilot; 2nd Lt. Elmer T. Bullock, of Penacook, N.H., the plane's radar observer; and Master Sgt. Robert Wilson Jones, of Dekalb, Texas, the flight engineer.

Mrs. Dunton said the Army gave her the names in hopes her group violence," said Hartfield, who was sometimes as far as a mile and a half from the center of the action.

Agitators were usually in the rear of the crowd and not in the front. However, when water or tear gas was used to control the crowds, people in front tended to run toward the back.

Hartfield sometimes worried about the consequences of being caught in a crowd of panicking rioters, but he was not involved in any such incidents.

"It was really frustrating to see the news clips with dogs being unleashed on the crowds and so on, he said. "I was lucky I had enough rank to drive a car and didn't have to take the bus.

"I've been shocked," she said in a quavering voice when told by a reporter that the Army had made a preliminary identification of her husband's remains. "I'm going to be sit-ting on pins and needles until they can tell me something official."

She said Jones had been serving in Korea only three weeks when his plane went down. She said the Air Force told her at the time that he and Aaron, the pilot, were the last to escape the plane, which apparently exploded in the sky.

The preliminary identifications of the four crew members were made at the Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii. They must be reviewed and confirmed by Army leaders before a positive identification is declared.

"We do not consider remains identified until the process is complete,' Marine Corps Maj. Steve Little of the Pentagon's public affairs staff said Thursday.

The four sets of remains are among 194 sets that North Korea has returned over the past three years, including 148 handed over late last year in what the communist government privately told American officials was a gesture to improve relations.

Hartfield believes the history of civil rights is so strongly focused on King because of his stirring "I Have A Dream" speech, his strong issues and his constant presence in the news. "People could identify with the issues going on," he said.

He added that King's assassination, similarly to that of John F. Kennedy, elevated the slain leader to superhero status in the eyes of many

Smith and Hartfield, as adults, have recollections in varying degrees of King when he was active, not simply a picture in a history book. Children learning about King today have slightly different perceptions of the man and his work.

Hartfield thinks that although students should be made aware of King and his significant contributions to civil rights in this country, other African-Americans should be given attention as well.

"They need to learn more about people like Ralph Abernathy, another important civil rights leader. Or even Colin Powell and what he's done in the Army as a general. Jesse Jackson is another one. There are so many out there," he said.

Austin looking into hospital's operation

The Associated Press

I EXAS

AUSTIN — City Council members have ordered City Manager Camille Barnett to appoint an assistant to run the day-to-day operation of the city so that she can devote full time to resolving problems at the city owned Brackenridge Hospital. Council members made the decision early today following a lengthy meeting with Ms. Barnett. The hospital has a $21 million revenue shortfall.

Council members also voted to order Ms. Barnett to return the four percent raise the council voted her only two weeks ago.

Mayor Bruce Todd said the meeting was held to "evaluate the city manager's performance - every aspect - including continued employment."

Earlier in Sunday's meeting, council members questioned Ms. Barnett about the revenue shortfall and why it took hospital administrators so long to discover the problem, which surfaced in November.

She recently told the city council the hospital's debt was caused by inaccurate accounting procedures. Councilman Ronney Reynolds said he is concerned that city staff knew about the problems for months and didn't try solving them.

"I will express those disappointments to the city manager," he said. "I will tell her to spend 110 percent of her time on the hospital. I think she needs to move over there immediately and leave other duties to her assistants

'I will express those disappointments to the city manager. I will tell her to spend 110 percent of her time on the hospital. I think she needs to move over there immediately and leave other duties to her assistants."

"I expect her to eat, sleep and breathe Brackenridge Ms. Barnett said she has begun doing that. "I'm already spending more than 100 percent of my time on the hospital, and it will stay that way until the problem is solved," she said, adding that the city's daily management is being run by her assistant managers.

Councilman Max Nofziger said he does not view Ms. Barnett's handling of Brackenridge "as a pass-fail test on her continued employment.'

"It is a big issue, and I wouldn't be surprised if we kind of reopened our evaluation of the city manager." Nofziger said. "But for me, the priority is not blaming the city manager.

Ms. Barnett said Saturday she is had not been asked to do so.

Two malls ban bandanna wearing

BEAUMONT (AP) - Officials at two Southeast Texas shopping malls say there's been little controversy over their recent decision banning patrons from wearing bandannas on the premises.

Mall officials say colored bandannas are signs of street gang affiliation, and for safety purposes they're asking that patrons not wear them.

Rusty Schaller, operations manager at Central Mall in Port Arthur, said mall officials so far have not received any formal complaints against the ban or statements in favor of it in the month the policy has been in force.

"We haven't received any comment either way, other than from the people we've asked to remove them," he said.

"We have asked people not to wear bandannas, and its not a big issue," said Mike Hansen, manager of Parkdale Mall in Beaumont, where the ban has been in effect for several months.

City officials want to tear down HemisFair

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - HemisFair Arena lost one of its main tenants when the NBA's San Antonio Spurs moved this season into the new Alamodome. Now, city officials are hoping to tear down the 25-year-old facility

Officials want to demolish the 16,057-seat arena, which opened for the 1968 World's Fair, to make way for a $140 million expansion of San Antonio's convention facilities.

"The Arena has got to come down," said Mayor Nelson Wolff, who has taken an active role in preliminary plans to expand the Convention Center. "That is the only option.

The state-of-the-art Alamodome stadium anchors the city's hopes for luring major conventions.

Converting the HemisFair site into an additional 192,000 square feet of contiguous exhibit space to the 240,000-square-foot Convention Center could be another drawing card, officials say.

Trying to make sense of attack

HOUSTON (AP) - Residents of an upscale, and normally peaceful area near Rice University are trying to make sense out of a weekend attack in which an art store operator was shot and left for dead. The woman survived and was hospitalized in fair condition. Police said the woman was sexually assaulted, shot in the head and left for dead at the art and curio shop in a late morning attack Saturday The attack occurred in a neighborhood known as the Rice Village. Residents said they couldn't recall something so violent happening in their area although others said it was just a matter of time.

PROGRESO - Officials seized ballot boxes and were investigating reports of violence in two separate voting-day incidents in South Texas.

Cameron County sheriff's deputies seized ballot boxes Saturday from the Indian Lake Town Hall after election officials refused to announce the results of the town's alderman

Election administrator Jean Powell would not announce the results to the Valley Morning Star, saying that she and others had "a lot to talk about."

Fred Pfeifer, a former alderman, said sheriff's deputies arrived at the town hall late Saturday night and took the ballot boxes.

Lavern Kolar, one of the candidates for alderman, said the votes are going to be recounted Monday because of a one-vote difference between her and her opponent, Willette Parker.

Cameron County District Attorney Luis Saenz said there was enough probable cause to impound the balot boxes.

About 130 residents turned out to vote on Saturday. More than 70 residents voted in early elections.

In Progreso, the Hidalgo County Sheriff's Department was investigating a report that violent incidents occurred less than an hour after municipal election polls closed Saturday.

A candidate was reported to have punched a girl in the face and also to have struck a man with a truck after the polls closed, the newspaper reported Sunday. Other details were sketchy.

A crowd gathered at City Hall as the election returns were announced. A noisy demonstratic broke out, followed by a procession of honking cars and trucks filled with supporters of the winners. Sheriff's Lt. Roy Quintanilha told The Associated Press Sunday that no information would be released on the alleged incidents until Monday.

In the election, Mayor Ofelia Garcia maintained her position as the first and only mayor of Progreso, defeating challenger J. Manuel Garza by 24 votes.

Garza said he will ask for a recount.

MIKE COCHRAN Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN - Twice condemned to die, and currently on Death Row, rapist-killer Kenneth Allen McDuff goes on trial Thursday with his life once again on the line. And this time it involves a murder case with a missing body. Even in Texas, with its lurid history of desperados, serial killers, campus snipers and presidential assas-American Celebration of Civil Rights sins, McDuff is unique. Brutally so.

In 1966, prosecutors portrayed him as a remorseless monster who murdered two teen-age boys, then raped and strangled their terrified companion with a broomstick.

A Fort Worth jury ruled he should die in the electric chair.

In 1993, state attorneys branded McDuff a sadistic sexual predator who kidnapped, assaulted and killed a young Waco woman while on parole.

A Houston jury ordered that he die by lethal injection.

The original sentence was commuted to life imprisonment after the Supreme Court struck down the death penalty in 1972, and McDuff was paroled in 1989 - a decision still under investigation. Last year's verdict in Houston is being appealed.

Now, the State of Texas is seeking yet another death sentence for McDuff, 47, accused this time in the December 1991 disappearance of an Austin woman, Colleen Reed.

Searchers on foot, horseback and in helicopters never found her body. But an accomplice says McDuff abducted the 28-year-old accountant from a carwash, took her to a remote area, raped her, tortured her and forced her into his car trunk.

He drove away, the accomplice said, vowing to "use her up." "This whole episode was devastating to the community," says chief prosecutor David Counts of Austin, a Travis County assistant district attorney.

"I think the community demands that he answer for this crime.'

Counts said the state also wants a backup of sorts in the event that McDuff's Houston conviction and death penalty is overturned.

"A safety net," he called it. Because of intense media coverage, compounded by McDuff's controversial parole, the trial was moved from Austin to Seguin, a small town 30 miles east of San Antonio.

Court-appointed attorney Chris Gunter of Austin is reluctant to discuss his case or his client.

"We just hope we can find a jury that will focus on these charges and not his past," Gunter said, conceding that McDuff's criminal history will likely come out.

"But we're ready for trial. We're anxious to get started."

The attorneys plan to meet with state District Judge Wil Flowers Thursday to dispose of pretrial matters, then begin jury selection on Fri-

Counts said Feb. 7 was the target date for testimony to begin. Asked about prosecuting a capital murder case without the victim's body, he said: "It's not typical but it's not unheard of. The body itself is not an element of the offense the state has to prove. It's merely a circumstance of the crime. Counts said that "sounds kind of cold." but as a practical matter justice would be ill-served if the absence of a body precluded prosecution

"We will prove up her death circumstantially," he said.

Counts said he expects the defense to attack the credibility of his key witness, Hank Worley, who was McDuff's accomplice in the abduction of Colleen Reed. "He's not your preacher next door," Counts sighed.

But, he pointed out, the Texas Code of Criminal Procedure stipulates that a jury cannot convict on accomplice testimony alone, and other witnesses will corroborate Worley's story.

In a sworn statement and in Houston testimony, Worley said McDuff forced Ms. Reed to perform repeated sexual acts, then tortured her with cigarettes.

A native of Rosebud, near Waco, McDuff is a surly, stone-faced, small-town bully with black hair, piercing brown eyes and a big, slightly crooked nose

Investigators say he is a consummate liar and a cunning con-artist who has never admitted raping or killing anyone.

But Roy Dale Green, an accomplice in the 1966 triple slayings, quoted McDuff as saying that kidnapping and killing women "is like stealing ... and killing chickens."

Former Fort Worth prosecutor Charles Butts, now a San Antonio lawyer, recalls the 1966 case as the most vicious of his career.

'My personal impression was that McDuff was a heartless, coldblooded, methodical Killer." Butts said.

More than a quarter century later, investigators maintained McDuff was perhaps even more dangerous, relentlessly abducting, assaulting and killing a new generation of women.

"He was basically an animal who had to be taken off the streets." said U.S. Marshal Mike Earp in 1992 after McDuff was arrested in Kansas City, Mo., during a nationwide manhunt.

Investigators say the McDuff death toll is at least nine, most likely more, and dates back to the 1960s.

"He's always been a vicious, coldblooded killer," says Falls County Sheriff Larry Pamplin. "He's more animal than human. It's a shame the man could not have been executed for the 1966 killings.

"Look how many lives could have been saved.'

Goal getting closer

Martin Luther King Jr. is a name synonymous with civil rights and the struggle for equality.

While King is remember most for his work to gain equal rights, not only for Blacks, but for all Americans who were being discriminated against, he also pushed acceptance of each other.

It is disheartening that, during this celebration of a man who dedicated his life to seeing that others had a better life, there are still many people in this country that haven't heard the message.

A simple message of working together, living together, having the same opportunities for all Americans despite race, color, creed.

While most Americans are remembering King for his work in bringing America closer to its ideal of "all men are created equal," the Ku Klux Klan marched and rallied to promote their agenda of white supremacy.

In today's world, just as it was then in the 1960s, there is no room for this kind of thinking - on King's day or any other day. There is no room for thinking one race or one color is ever better than another.

It is long past time that we quit thinking in terms of race and start thinking in terms of being one with all that being one implies.

Working together toward the time when, in truth not just on paper, people of every race and color stand was one is a goal worthy of the memory of Martin Luther King Jr.

PERSPECTIVE

A little manic on mechanics

Mike Royko is on vacation. In his absence, his favorite columns are being reprinted. This column first ran on Jan. 9, 1980.

A friend of mine swears this happened. It was shortly before midnight and he heard some loud voices outside the window of his first-floor apartment in the city. He looked out and saw two men standing at the curb quarreling. One of them held a pistol in his hand and was saying: "I told you that I was going to shoot the sonofabitch, and I'm gonna do it.'

The other man said: "You shouldn't oughta do it.

The man with the gun said: "No, I told you that if it happened one more time, I was going to do it, and I'm going to. Now get out of the way.' With that, he raised the pistol and calmly blasted several holes into the hood of an old Pontiac parked at the curb Shoving the smoking pistol into his pocket, he snarled at the car: There, you sonofabitch, I'm through with you.

And the two of them walked away. My friend called the police and they rushed to the scene about half an hour later. They wrote down the license plate number and presumably they are trying to trace the man who shot his car. I'm not sure what they will do when they find him. If seems to me that a person ought to have the right to shoot his own car if the thing deserves being shot.

And without knowing anything more about the case than these few sketchy facts, my guess is that the police will find a man who is now at peace with himself.

There comes a point in trying to deal with mechanical objects especially those mass-produced today — when the only answer is violence, even murder.

I've murdered several such objects myself over the years and have felt better for it.

I killed a TV set once, and my conscience doesn't bother me. The TV had developed a vicious habit of flipping-just when the Cub game was in a crucial situation, which was almost all the time. I'd haul it to the repair shop, the man would tinker with it, and I'd haul it back. It would work fine for a while. Then Ernie Banks would come to bat in the last of the ninth with the score tied, dig in, wiggle his fingers; the pitcher would shake off a signal, nod his head, go into his windup. And the TV picture would start flipping. I'd turn the horizontal control and for a moment it would stop flipping. But as soon as I sat down, it would begin again. It was as if it had a brain of its own and was trying to torture me.

It reached a point when I'd sit there, not thinking about the game, but just swearing at the TV, calling it every filthy name I could think of. And the more I swore, the more it flipped.

So one day I just pulled the plug and carried it out to the back porch. I yelled to the people from the first floor, who were sitting in the yard, to get out of the way.

"Don't jump," they said, scrambling out of their chairs.

I threw it, and as it dropped I shouted, "Die you lousy

Oh, I felt good when it shattered with a loud noise. And the downstairs neighbors stared up at me for a moment, went inside, and didn't sit in the back yard again for the rest of the summer. They were probably afraid I'd get mad at the washing machine.

that isn't easy. Typewriters have a

This one had developed all kinds of evil habits, especially when I was nearing a deadline. The ribbon wouldn't reverse. The "c" would stick. It would single-space when it was supposed to double-space. Then the "k" started sticking, too. Finally

First, I tried tearing it limb from limb, but typewriters are strong. really resisted. I tried ripping out the "u", or maybe it was the "f", gashed

I managed to yank off the carriage return but that was about it. So I just picked it up and threw it at the wall, spraining my back.

Finally, I raised it above my head and smashed it to the floor. That really did it. Pieces flew all over the office. And my instep, where it landed, was swollen for a month.

The last machine I killed was a cassette recorder, and no machine ever deserved execution more.

presidential candidate, and he had said some of the most wonderfully stupid things I had ever heard.

But when I played the interview back, the cassette was blank. All that stupidity was lost to history.

I put it on the floor and jumped on it, and laughed as its Japanese innards came squirting out.

That was the last machine I killed, but I've beaten up several others. Mostly coffee machines and other mechanical thieves.

Some readers may recall a column a few years ago in which I recommended not letting coffee machines and other vending devices get away with taking your money and not giving you anything. I recommended the best way to kick them. (Not with your toe. With the bottom of your foot, as if kicking down a lady's door.)

In that column, I said kicking it wouldn't get you your money back, but you'd feel better.

The response was heartwarming. Hundreds of people wrote about how much better they felt after kicking a cheating machine.

However, one young man wrote and said that he followed my advice and was happily kicking the office coffee machine when his boss came by and fired him.

Your crazy advice cost me my job," he said. "Now what should I do

I told him to put my column on the floor, face up, and jump up and down on it and he'd feel better.

He said he'd try. Then he called back and said: "You're right, I feel better. Good, I said.

"Yeah, but the landlord lives downstairs and because of all the noise, he says he wants me to move out.'

Some people just can't be helped. (C) 1994 By The Chicago Tribune

> I am still being held hostage by an IV pole at Emory University Hospital. As we speak, I am plotting my escape.

There are several bags of medicine hanging atop my pole. From each bag a tube runs into a central tube that leads to a needle that is stuck inside the top of my left wrist. That is how the medicine gets into my bloodstream.

I'm not certain exactly what each medicine is. One rather large bag resembles a rhinoceros udder. It is filled with a white, milky substance.

Another has what looks like Mrs. Butterworth's syrup inside it, while a third is some sort of antibiotic substance - a sort of Orkin-Man-in-abag to ward off any bugs that might want to encamp in my innards.

Whither I goest, goest my IV pole, but we don't goest very far. The six steps from my bed to my bathroom is about the limit of how far Ivy and I can travel. We'd look silly at a karaoke bar singing "Don't Fence Me In" together anyway.

What's wrong with me is I'm sick. That's what my doctor said.

"You're sick," he said. "And what's the plan of treatment?" I asked him. "We're going to attach you to a pole until you get better," he explained.

You see, I take a prescribed blood thinner because I have an artificial aortic valve in my heart. But a few weeks ago my blood became much too thin, because I also took a large amount of a blood-thinning over-thecounter painkiller in an attempt to treat lower back pain I encountered during a venture around the country promoting and signing a book l wrote.

My blood became so thin, I bled internally, which is very dangerous and caused the most severe pain I've for Turner's Department Store in Lovington, Portales, Tucumcari, and Clovis, N.M. for about nine years. The family I worked for owned a small series of chain stores and banks. My immediate supervisor was a great man by the name of Manson "Bill" Hawkins who was from Lubbock and also part owner of the operation. Even though the stores in Lovington and Tucumcari have closed and Mr. Hawkins is deceased, to this day I often think of him with fond memories for everything he taught me and helped me with. I consider him as a second dad and will always be grateful for the opportunity I had to learn under him.

Throughout my life, I have made some personal observations about businesses that I have patronized regardless of size, location, kind, and their merchants or storekeepers. Sometimes it is the little things done by a business that make it succeed. I believe the top three things are courtesy, cleanliness, and service

If you are in the restaurant business consider these questions: Are you always striving to keep your establishment clean? Are you keeping the restrooms clean as well as the kitchen and dining area? Some customers will make a parallel between the restrooms and the kitchen in their cleanliness. Are you making small change at the cash register without the customer requesting it, so that it encourages the customer to leave the waitress or waiter a ten or fifteen percent tip? The better the service, the bigger the tip should be.

There are some questions for all businesses to consider: Are you friendly, cheerful, and respectful? Do you sincerely make your customers feel welcome and that you want them to return? Do you make all customers feel important? That person needing an empty box should be treated as courteously as the person making a large purchase. Do you carry in your inventory a variety of quality of your products - less expensive, medium price, and expensive? Do you accept major credit cards? Does your business smell good, and is it attractive? Are you practicing the Golden Rule or The Good Ethics of Business? If you do not have what your customer needs, please guide or refer him/her to some other business establishment in our community.

I encourage everyone who can to please join our Chamber of Commerce. If you cannot, then I would encourage you to form an alliance with your immediate business neighbors to take turns and benefit from each other's advertisement campaigns. One way you might go about doing this is by sharing the cost. You must be a promoter and make use and support the media - newspaper, radio stations, printed materials, and television.

The banks as loaning institutions must become involved and make investments in our community to support and encourage small businesses.

Because of its location, Big Spring is known as "The Crossroads of West Texas." Big Spring must continue to be a community that develops its tourist potential to increase more activity which the small businesses will benefit from.

As one of the Co-Chairpersons of the Minority Involvement Committee through the Chamber of Commerce promoting small businesses. I felt compelled to write this article to offer support and encouragement for all businesses in our community.

Victory for the three children

The three children in McHenry County, Ill., about whom we have been writing won an almost complete victory in court late last week. In an utter reversal of the direction the case had been taking, it was agreed before Judge Frank J. Rhode Jr. that:

- The children will not be sent to the home of the birth mother and her boyfriend for any more overnight visits.

- The birth mother will drop her motion to have the three children returned immediately to her and the boyfriend.

- The Illinois Department of Children and Family Services (DCFS) will devise a new set of guidelines in the case

What this means is that the children - a 4-year-old girl, a 3-yearold boy and a 21-month-old girl will no longer be required to spend days at a time in the home where, according to reports, they were infested with lice during seven separate visits, were kept hungry and dirty, and were left unsupervised with the woman who, it is alleged, has a history of neglecting them to the point of abuse, and with the man who, it is also alleged, once offered to sell the older girl to a volunteer at a homeless shelter.

"Your honor," said Thomas Quinn, public defender for the birth mother, "we have re-evaluated our position ... for the best interests of the children, and (the birth mother's) best interests, we are going to be withdrawing our petition for restoration at this time ... for the best interests of the children, putting final custody with her would not be in their best interest."

Thus, at least for now, the children do not face the prospect of being sent back to the birth mother and boyfriend by Judge Rhode. That Quinn was announcing his client's apparent change in attitude was perhaps understandable. He knew that Illinois Gov. Jim Edgar had, in the last week, taken a personal interest in the case, expressing his concern for the well-being of the children. The birth mother and boyfriend were about to lose their most powerful advocate: DCFS. The agency had been pushing for extended overnight visits leading to quick reunification, but it became clear that DCFS could no longer take that position with Edgar expressing his doubts.

The agreed order spared DCFS from having to say anything at all in court. DCFS had an attorney present, but she was not required to utter one word, and did not.

As for Judge Rhode, the agreed order enabled him to yet again conduct a court hearing in which not a word of testimony from witnesses was heard. They were present in the McHenry County courthouse, waiting - four witnesses who wanted to tell the judge what they knew about conditions in the home of the birth mother and boyfriend, and about the lives the children have led. But because all parties went along with the new order, none of the witnesses were called to the stand.

A Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) from neighboring Lake County, assigned last month by Judge Rhode, handed in her preliminary report on the case.

Her report, by all indications, was one of the reasons the birth mother and boyfriend were willing to revise their demands so completely. Although the report was not made public, we have learned that it contained information that would have made it virtually impossible for the judge to continue with the overnight visitation, or to send the children back to the birth mother and boyfriend any time soon.

Judge Rhode - who has said from the bench that he is not reading any of these columns, and who ordered the CASA investigator not to read the Chicago Tribune, where they are appearing - said of the report: "I have not looked at it ... I really don't feel it should be necessary (to read it) under the circumstances.

The birth mother's attorney asked the judge to eliminate the rights of foster parents Charles and Patricia Lewis to official standing in court. The children have been living with the Crystal Lake, Ill., foster parents for more than a year. The children were removed from the birth mother when they were found living in a car with her.

Quinn asked the judge to rule that the foster parents may not be parties to court proceedings involving the three children. The judge denied the request.

Although the overnight visits are no longer permitted, DCFS' stated goal still is to eventually send the children back to the birth mother and boyfriend. By taking the actions they did last week, the judge and lawyers may have been thinking that they will extinguish public anger and remove the spotlight of attention from this case for a while. That, it can be argued, is not a good idea, and is even a dangerous one. In columns in coming weeks, we will explain why. For now, though, the news is that the children have won.

Severe quake rocks California

The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES - A severe earthquake centered in the San Fernando Valley jolted Southern California early today and was felt from San Diego to Las Vegas. There were no immediate reports of injuries or serious damage

The 4:31 a.m. quake's magnitude measured a preliminary 6.6 on the Richter scale, said Kate Hutton, a seismologist at the California Institute of Technology in Pasedena.

She said it was centered northwest of Los Angeles in the northern San Fernando Valley, the same area where a 6.4 quake in 1971 killed at least 58 people.

The Alaska Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer, Alaska, measured the quake's magnitude at 6.7. The U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park said 6.5.

The guake was felt for 30 seconds or more, and several aftershocks followed within minutes. Dishes fell off shelves, some buildings were damaged and there were widespread phone and power outages. The quake was strong enough to send a television slamming to the floor in a Glendale home.

Near Hollywood, at least some structural damage was visible in older buildings. But the full extent of damage was uncertain before dawn. A section of the Santa Monica Freeway was closed because of buckling, ABC News reported.

The sound of burglar alarms, car alarms and emergency sirens blended into a constant wailing.

The quake was felt in Santa Barbara and Bakersfield to the north and San Diego to the south and as far as Las Vegas.

A photographer in a Long Beach apartment building, Dennis Kinsekla, said: "This thing just swayed and creaked. I thought it was going to come down.'

"It was a pretty good rocker here," said a Long Beach resident 20 miles to the south

"I had some glass break, some things fall off shelves. It rocked the water out of the pool," said the resident, who was cut off in phone troubles after the quake.

Today's earthquake followed a swarm of about 12 quakes near Santa Monica, the strongest of which was 3.7. But Hutton said they don't registered 7.1 on the scale.

know whether those quakes were linked to today's.

The last big earthquake to hit the area was on June 28, 1992. The Landers quake, east of Los Angeles, measured 7.5 on the Richter scale and was followed a few hours later by a magnitude 6.6 quake in the Big Bear area.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus a reading of 6.5 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 5.5.

An earthquake of 6 on the Richter scale can cause severe damage in the local area. A 7 reading is a "major" earthquake, capable of widespread heavy damage; 8 is a 'great" quake, capable of tremendous damage. Damage is usually less severe in areas with strict building codes, however.

The San Francisco earthquake of 1906, which occurred before the Richter scale was devised, has been estimated at 8.3 on the Richter scale. The October 1989 Bay Area quake

Burleigh County Commissioner Doug Schonert hustles for cover from strong winds Friday while surveying the work of a private plow driver hired to help the county remove snow from rural roads. Arctic blast chills east

The Associated Press

An Arctic blast that swept across the eastern United States brought record lows and deadly, freezing winds, turning roads into treacherous sheets of ice - for motorists who were able to start their cars.

The deep freeze, with wind chills of more than 100 below zero, snapped power lines and water mains and caused at least six deaths.

"This is bitter cold. It's terrible. It's pathetic," said Herb Craig of Dade City, Fla., stalled near Chicago when the brakes froze on his 18-wheeler

The National Weather Service said ice and snow that hit the Plains this weekend would spread throughout the East today, with heavy snows in mountainous areas and gales along the coast.

Record lows were felt from the Great Lakes to the Carolinas Sunday, and still colder temperatures were forecast today. Up to 18 inches of new snow was expected in State College, Pa.

And a so-called "Siberian Express," even more potent and widespread than the weekend's bitter cold, was scheduled to invade the Upper Midwest today.

Watertown, N.Y., chilled to 43

snow and wind chills more than 100 degrees below zero to get help. He suffered frostbite of his hands and face, but was in good condition today, officials said.

The weather also was blamed for the deaths of an Alzheimer's patient who wandered into the lowa snow, a homeless man in Nashville, Tenn., a Newark, N.J., man whose unheated apartment dropped to 36 degrees and two motorists in Oklahoma.

"We're having ice wrecks everywhere," said Wayne Fowler, a sheriff's dispatcher in Craig County, Okla. Icy roads caused at least 77 accidents across the state Sunday

Record demand for heat and frozen power lines caused power outages for thousands in West Virginia. And it seemed like everybody was having furnace trouble in Edinboro, Pa., Denny Jones said

"It feels like we're about three miles south of the Arctic Circle,' said Jones, who owns Jones Plumbing and Heating and spent the weekend making repairs in 20-below wind chills.

Cowboys jump on Packers; 49ers are next

IRVING, Texas — The Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys figure their somewhat lackluster victory over Green Bay has the San Francisco 49ers totally confused.

"We'll be the underdog just like we were last year," safety James Washington said. "And you know how that came out.'

Dallas beat the Packers 27-17 Sunday in a mediocre game that included two Cowboys interceptions, a lost fumble and untimely penalties. It set up an NFC title game rematch with the 49ers, who fell to the Cowboys 30-20 in Candlestick Park last year. San Francisco advanced Saturday with an impressive 44-3 rout of the New York Giants.

'W e 'll have to play our best game of the season, Dallas running back Emmitt Smith said. "There's no way I can see us beating the 49ers SMITH if we play offense the same way we did today. Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson concurred: "We can be much sharper than this in all three areas, and next week we'll have to be. The 49ers are tremendous and I hear they're the best team in football again. We'll just have to wait and see.

The Cowboys beat the 49ers 26-17 in October at Texas Stadium, but "I think they are definitely bet-

Smith, who wore special shoulder pads to protect the injury, rushed 13 times for 60 yards and caught two passes for 27 yards before coming out after trying to block Tony Bennett. After the game, Smith said his shoulder was fine.

"There was just a short burst of pain," Smith said. "It was stupid. I got myself into a bad situation. I had to deliver a blow and hurt

Howard College hosts another men's/women's basketball doubleheader tonight, and while the HC women are trying to prevent a losing streak (that sounds strange, doesn't it?), the men are on the brink of a 3-0 conference mark.

The Hawks (13-6, 2-0 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference) battle the New Mexico Junior College Thunderbirds at 8 p.m. at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Lady Hawks (20-1, 0-1) start the action against NMJC at 6 p.m.

Hawks must change lineup again

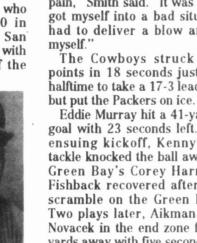

Howard's Charles Poe has played everywhere this season - down low, on the wing, point guard - and tonight he'll be moving again, this time to small forward.

Jerard Billingsley, a 6-foot-3 wing for the Hawks, is doubtful for tonight's game because he reinjured a knee in Howard's 94-92 overtime win Thursday against the New Mexico Military Institute. Howard coach Tommy Collins said Poe will likely start at Billingsley's slot on the wing, and 6-6 Chris Smith will take Poe's place down low.

Smith, a freshman from Chicago, was dismissed from the team by Collins earlier this month, but Collins reinstated him Wednesday

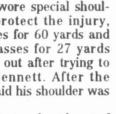

Howard faces a real challenge in NMJC, particularly inside, where the Thunderbirds have 6-10 Carlos Curtis, 6-5 Ed Barton and 6-6 Terrence Fitzpatrick.

But the Hawks must also deal with Shawn Baker, a 6-0 freshman guard

Montana shoots down All-Texas Super Bowl dream

Championship.

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON - Joe Montana has disappointed a lot of people in his illustrious career.

This time, it's much of the state of Texas.

Montana, obtained to take the Kansas City Chiefs to the Super Bowl, moved them within one step of that goal Sunday by leading the Chiefs to a 28-20 win over the Houston Oilers. That ended a dream deep in the heart of many Texans — a Houston-Dallas Super Bowl.

It was vintage Montana - two fourth-quarter touchdowns 54 seconds apart — that turned Kansas City's 13-7 deficit into a 21-13 lead.

In fact, 212 of Montana's 299 passing yards came after intermission. "Every time we're down and Joe's at quarterback, we feel like we're going to come back and win the game," said Willie Davis, who atoned for dropping a sure TD pass in the first half with a circus catch of an 18yarder in the fourth quarter. But it wasn't just Joe.

The Kansas City defense, which played most of the game with six defensive backs against the run-andshoot, tied a playoff record by sacking Warren Moon nine times. Despite that "dime" alignment, they held Gary Brown, who had 1,002 yards in eight games, to just 17 yards in 11 carries.

Still, midway through the fourth quarter, it still looked like the Oilers were in position to win their 12th straight game and move to the AFC title game after six straight first- or second-round eliminations.

They led 10-0 at halftime on a 49yard field goal by Al Del Greco and a 2-yard TD run by Brown. Montana's 7-yard touchdown pass to Keith Cash on Kansas City's first second-half possession cut it to 10-7.

But 3:24 into the fourth quarter, the game seemed to turn Houston's way when Terry Hoage picked off an underthrown Montana pass and returned it 12 yards to the Kansas City 25. Two plays later, it was third and one at the 16 when Bennie Thompson blitzed from his safety position and threw Moon for a 9-yard

The Oilers had to settle for Del Greco's 43-yard field goal

"I thought the interception had turned the game in our favor," said Buddy Ryan, the Oilers' defensive coordinator who seemed to be in a chess match all day with Montana. "It turned out it didn't."

It took Montana just three plays to get them in the end zone. The first was a 20-yard pass to Cash; the second a 38-yard gain when Cris Dishman was called for interference when he hauled down Davis, the third an 11-yard TD to J.J. Birden.

On the first play after the kickoff, Derrick Thomas burst through and jarred the ball loose from Moon and Dan Saleaumua fell on it at the

Sorry Bills, Chiefs - the real Super

Oilers' 12. Two plays later, after Montana had been sacked by William Fuller, he found Davis, who made a circus catch from 18 yards out and it was 21-13.

Moon, who finished 32 of 43 for 306 yards, led the Oilers on a 79yard scoring drive capped by a 7yard TD pass to Ernest Givins with 3:35 left.

But Montana, who now has seven touchdowns in fourth guarters in his last two appearances against Ryan defenses, brought the Chiefs right back.

The key play was a 41-yard completion to Cash that was tipped by Fuller.

The clincher was Marcus Allen's 21-yard TD run.

defense that is vastly under-rated.

Whether you're 2-0 or 2-2, you have to beat the right teams,' Collins said. "At the beginning, everyone pretty much conceded that Midland and Odessa are in COLLINS the playoffs, so that leaves us, New Mexico, New Mexico Military, Frank Phillips and South Plains to battle for the other two spots. For us, those first two games were vitally important because we were competing against the teams we're going to have to eliminate."

Lady Hawks end long week of waiting

Last Monday, South Plains handed Howard its first regular-season loss since Feb. 21, 1992 and its first conference loss since December 1991.

"it's just The 49ers, as they proved been a very, Saturday in their 44-3 thrashing of very long the New York Giants, have one of the week," said best offenses on the planet and a Howard coach Royce And the Cowboys, despite their Chadwick. lackluster performance against "When some-Green Bay Sunday, are more than thing happens capable of making a repeat trip to like what hap-to turn right around and play Monday at midnight, because you know you didn't play like you could have. We've had to wait an entire week for the opportunity just to play again.

NMJC, like Howard, is looking for that first conference win - the Lady Thunderbirds lost at Western Texas last week. New Mexico has two of the best post players in the confer-ence, Chadwick said - 6-2 Marvina Burton and 6-0 Trinella Hinex.

Many coaches, after a loss ends dreams of a perfect season, say the loss is good for the team, it will make it stronger down the road. Chadwick doesn't buy into that theory, though he hopes he can at the end of the season.

"It's really tough to say a right jab that hits you in the jaw and puts you flat on your back is good," he said. "Now, if we respond to it, if we come out and play well the rest of the way, maybe you can say it was good. But if we just lay down there and don't get up, you could point to that game and say that was the one that beat us. That's what ended it for us."

Bowl is the Cowboys vs. the 49ers The rest of the Lower 48 states are no doubt breathing a sigh of relief that an all-Texas Super Bowl will not become a reality this year. It looked like a distinct possibility there for a few weeks, what with the Dallas Cowboys repeating as NFC East champs and the Houston Oilers reeling off 11 straight wins. No doubt executives at NBC, which will televise Super Bowl XXVIII, were hitting their knees on a nightly basis, praying for the Chiefs, the Bills, the Giants, the 49ers - anybody, for Pete's sake! - to derail the possible

Cowboys-Oilers matchup in the Ultimate Game. Well, the folks at the Peacock Network can breathe easy -they have a shot at decent ratings after all. When Joe Montana pulled his usual fourth-quarter magic - was anybody really, really surprised? -Sunday afternoon, the Houston Oilers rode slowly into the postseason sunset once again.

The Oilers being out of the Super Bowl mix means several things:

· Buddy Ryan will have to find someone else besides his fellow coaches to punch out during the next few months. It looks increasingly like the AFC representative in the Super Bowl will be the Buffalo Bills (how's that for an exciting prospect?), who will make all kinds of history when they lose their fourth straight Big Game.

• If Montana can pull some more rabbits out of his hat and lead Kansas City past Buffalo in the frozen north Sunday, NBC broadcast-

PORTLAND, Ore. - It was a wild week in the Nancy Kerrigan case with accusations, arrests, confessions and denials. Still, key questions remain unanswered about the attack at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships.

What did Tonya Harding know, and when did she know it?

Was she part of a plot, or an innocent victim of innuendo and someone else's crime?

Will she skate in the Winter Olympics next month in Norway, or will she get kicked off the U.S. team? Harding took the offensive Sunday in her fight to save her Olympic spot, insisting she had nothing to do with the clubbing of Kerrigan.

In the strongest statement yet from the U.S. figure skating champion, Harding said she was "shocked and angry" that anyone close to her might be involved in a plot to hurt Kerrigan.

Her ex-husband, Jeff Gillooly, also denied participating in this "bizarre and crazy event," his lawyer, Ron Hoevet, told The Associated Press on Sunday night.

No charges have been filed, either in Portland or Detroit, naming Gillooly or Harding.

U.S. Olympic officials met Sunday to discuss their options regarding Harding. They took no action, but said they wanted the matter resolved in the next few days.

Asked if it would be best if Harding withdrew from the team, USOC president LeRoy T. Walker said: "I suppose that would be the easiest possible out.'

In Stoneham, Mass., Kerrigan slipped out of the house at 2 a.m. Sunday to skate for the first time since she was clubbed on the right knee Jan. 6 in Detroit. She was accompanied by her family and an orthopedic specialist.

"It felt good to be on the ice again," she said. "My knee was a little stiff and it took some time to get loosened up.

Although Harding's bodyguard was charged in the case along with two other men, her lawyer, Dennis Rawlinson, said Harding had no knowledge of the plot.

' ' Tonya Harding categorically denies all accusations media and speculation that she was involved in any way in the assault, according to a statement read by Rawlinson

the husband of Harding's coach.

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, JANUARY 18, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You feel tired after dealing with someone who is pressuring you. Keep the screaming inside, and say little. You will handle the situation with a surprising coolness and come out the winner. Tonight: A nap, then a trip.*

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Play the ostrich today after news from a distance has you feeling ill-at-ease. Understand that you do not have the whole picture and need to check out your information before reacting. Your sense of humor will help you work things out. Tonight: Curl up with a good book.*

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You will spend much of today getting over a last-minute mistake. You feel pressured by another's opinion. Know that a loved one cares about you, even if it is not showing. Tonight: Be careful with your checkbook.*

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A friend is acting like a grump today. Laugh at the attitude; don't take it personally. Stay focused on your work. A light approach proves to be the right approach. Tonight: Burn the midnight oil.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You show your clear thinking abilities during today's tense moments and surprise even yourself with your solutions. Look past the obvious solution and stay focused on the bottom line. Tonight: Rent a movie.*

VIRCO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A partner satisfies your need to know more about a current problem. Do not underestimate what is going on. Remain attentive, and focus on the positive aspects of the situation. An upbeat approach will go a long way. Tonight: Cut out the flirting.*

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A personal matter has you upset and is making relationships difficult today. Acknolwedge what is happening, and be prepared to make a key decision that will ensure your long-term well-being. Tonight: Go out with friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your nerves are rather frayed, and troublesome news doesn't help the situation. Look to new ways of thinking, and don't get thrown off by what another says. Know that you will come out on top. Tonight: Soak in a bubble bath.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are overreacting to a problem that was actually caused by you. Use your creativity to find a solution. If you've been considering easing up on your demands, now is the time to do so, especially concerning a family member. Tonight: Make a favorite dinner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): The unexpected forces you to deal with an aspect of your personality that might make you uncomfortable. Don't fool yourself about what is going on; take a hard look at the facts. A family member or roommate gives you feedback that might be difficult to take. Tonight: Vanish.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your insecurities are causing you to overreact. Lighten up. You have more options than you realize. Increased sensitivity to another's point of view is the key. Try to be more upbeat. Tonight: Hang out.*

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You are pushing yourself to the limit today and need to realize your limitations. Cut down on spending. A friend might not be a friend; re-evaluate the relationship. Tonight: Find new stationery and write letters.*

IF JAN. 18 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Your key phrase this year should be "learn to adjust." You'll get more of what you want if you keep focused on your priorities and if you work at understanding what motivates those around you. Your commitment to family and community will increase. If single, a romantic attachment could grow out of a casual friendship or business connection. ARIES anchors and challenges you.

Dear Abby - Letters... Welcome mat missing for grandma

DEAR ABBY: We've heard enough about insensitive mothers-in-law. Now, let's talk about insensitive daughters-in-law. Take mine, for example.

I wrote to ask if I could visit my new grandbaby for five days. This meant an 800-mile (one way), plus overnight in a motel. Just before my departure, my son called to say that a three-day visit would be better for them. I said, "Fine. No problem." Upon my arrival, I found a note on their door explaining that nobody was hon but my son would be home right after work, so I waited for them in my car. I saw my beautiful grandbaby that evening. The next morning, Mom and baby suddenly had to go to the library. Joyfully, I offered to baby-sit, but my offer was declined, so to occupy myself, I borrowed a bicycle for the afternoon and returned to their house at 5 o'clock. My son and daughter-in-law were just getting up from the table - their dinner was finished! As my allotted three days would be up the next day, I left the next morning for my long drive home. I don't look forward to next year's visit, but I want to see my beautiful grandbaby again. I wonder, Dear Abby, what you - and your readers - think about this kind of hospitality from a daughter-in-law? - JILL IN OREGON DEAR JILL: It was clearly insulting, but I cannot understand how a son could treat his mother so shabbily. Was there a page missing from your letter? Or are your son and his wife simply mean-spirited and hostile?

someone will invariably ask, "How much is an eye examination?" This does not set well with me. I never hear anybody asking a lawyer or physician, "How much is an office visit?

Please tell me how to respond without being rude, yet letting them know that this is an inappropriate question under the circumstances. — SEEING RED

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from a waitress regarding how to control unruly children in a restaurant. She made up a story about how one child had been badly burned by steaming coffee while running unsupervised.

I remember when I was also a waitress putting myself through college. It was my first wedding reception job, in the only restaurant that catered weddings in our small community.

The ring bearer and the flower girl were chasing each other around, and sure enough, they ran into one of the waitresses. Lobster tails went flying along with the rest of the meals.

As the restaurant people had ordered only enough tails for the group, we had to pick up everything and lie that the chef would cook more tails. Need I say more? - R.M.H. IN NEW YORK
