Two UCRA directors resign

By TIM JONES
Staff Writer

Two members of the Upper Colorado River Authority Board of Directors suddenly resigned Monday, in the face of investigations instigated by Gov. Ann Richards' office and Attorney General Dan Morales.

Board chairman Harry B. Elam and Victor W. Choate, the board's secretary-treasurer, resigned one day before the board's regular meeting set for this evening in San Angelo.

That meeting has been rescheduled to begin one hour earlier, at 5 p.m., in San Angelo's First National Bank of West Texas.

Choate's resignation simply stated, "I hereby submit my resignation as a director of the Upper Colorado River Authority, effective Jan. 24, 1994."

Elam formally notified the UCRA of his resignation, effective Jan. 24, 1994, saying, "The current personal conflicts and irreconcilable differences of views have directed our energy on internal matters rather than in which the UCRA was enacted...by copy of this letter to Sen. Bill Sims and Rep. Robert Junell, I want to express my thanks for their confidence and support during my tenure of service. I leave with hopes of optimism for the UCRA."

Gov. Ann Richards, weeks before the resignations, had already asked a representative from the Attorney General's office to attend this evening's meeting to investigate possible violations of the Texas Open Meetings Act.

In a telephone interview, Sara Ortiz, a board member from Colorado City, spoke about the turn of events on Monday.

Ortiz said the UCRA office was closed and the locks were changed. Two other directors, Patricia Ivey and Ruby Gutierrez, entered the office with District Attorney Charlotte Harris and Diane Wilson, the DA's special investigator.

The UCRA office was secured, and a security guard placed there. The phone rang last night until about 1:30 a.m.

"It's as if someone wanted to retrieve something out of that office very badly," Ortiz said.

HC trustees' decision could trim two nursing programs

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

The Howard County Junior College District Board of Trustees approved a motion at Monday's meeting that may end the college's nursing programs in Del Rio and Brownwood.

Dusty Johnston, the college's vice president of instruction, presented a special report to the board about the programs. The state nursing board requires nursing programs to have at least two instructors; one is not considered sufficient to have expertise in all areas of nursing.

The Snyder nursing program currently has one instructor and 12 students. Providing a second instructor at Snyder would not be a problem because it is a relatively short distance — 49 miles — and instructors can be traded between the Snyder and Big Spring locations.

However, Del Rio and Brownwood — with one instructor for 12 students and one instructor for eight students, respectively — cannot practically be given a second instructor because there are not enough students in the programs, said Johnston.

Without a second instructor, the programs cannot continue. Alternatives include working with the Cisco and Ranger college campuses near Abilene to provide a nursing program for Brownwood students.

The administration is also working with Southwest Texas Junior College in Uvalde to provide a nursing program for Del Rio students.

The current crop of nursing students in Brownwood will graduate in May, as will the associate degree nursing students in Del Rio.

Students in Del Rio's licensed vocational nurse program may be affected, but board members stressed the necessity of providing a smooth educational transition for those students before discontinuing its nursing program.

The board approved a motion to allow the administration to explore all options related to moving the programs to other campuses and discontinuing Howard College involvement.

Dr. Bruce Cox, a guest at the meeting, said there is still a need for local nurses and encouraged the local medical and academic communities to work together to solve the problem.

In other business, the board approved a recycling and conservation policy to be included in the student handbook for all HCJCD campuses.

State law required the policy be included into Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf's handbook because of its funding. Community colleges in general have not been required to adopt the policy. However, all Howard College campuses will have the new policy in their handbooks.

The board also approved the extension of Howard College President Cheri Sparks' contract through August 1995, bids for roofing work and new track lighting for the dental hygiene lab, the hiring of Dorothy Joy as associate degree nursing instructor in Kerrville and a resolution thanking the Dora Roberts Foundation for recent donations to Howard College and SWCID.

In Sparks' report to the board, she said the college is due for an annual self-study before an accreditation visit by the South-

Taylor's 'mom and pop' team makes Mattie's Diner special

By TIM JONES
Staff Writer

The "mom and pop operation" concept may be something of a dying breed, but as long as Jack and Mattie Taylor operate Mattie's Diner a little taste of the past is still available in downtown Big Spring.

The diner at 209 W. 3rd is a small breakfast and lunch spot frequented by locals in search of home-cooked specialties and that cozy atmosphere well-known by regular patrons.

The Taylors moved to Big Spring from Abilene in 1960 and were previously located in the Permian building at 902 W. 3rd, a spin on the present address.

They were at the old location for eight years, and have been at the new diner for two years. Jack was a chef at the Holiday Inn for nine years, so he handles the cooking chores, while Mattie waits on everyone and runs that cash register.

"We go to Lake Colorado City every Thursday to go fishing," Mattie said.

"We look forward to retiring maybe about December of 1997.

"We've threatened to retire twice now, but three times a charm," she chuckled.

Until that day arrives, hungry eaters can feast on daily lunch specials such as chicken fried steak, liver with or without the onions, and specials such as chicken and dumplings and chicken livers and gizzards. The cream gravy and chicken strips or Friday fish dinners fit the bill, as well.

If cash is short, $2 will buy you biscuits and gravy with coffee for breakfast. Local patrons drink coffee, and you might run into Paul Bishop, Adele Huston, Dalton White, Mavis Cramer or Burt Barnett during the morning coffee rush.

Lunchtime you'll find Justice of the Peace Bill Shankles, Squeaky and Margaret Thompson or Kenneth and Travis Crow, for starters. Yarns are spun and smokers are welcome.

"I hope no one thinks I purposely forgot to mention their name(s), I forget more everyday," Mattie said. "We've not forgotten what a value a hot plate lunch for $3.99 is, and that includes dessert and a drink."

A sign or two decorates Mattie's, featuring tongue-in-cheek humor, of course. For example:

"Children: Tired of being harassed by your stupid parents? Act now, move out, get a job, pay your own bills while you still know everything."

Another reads: "If you are not satisfied, tell Mattie. If you get lucky and are pleased, tell everybody."

The Taylors were married in 1954 and have four grown children. Jack Jr., Retha and Marie are Big Spring residents and Wesley lives in Houston. They have five grandchildren, and another is due next month. The five grandchildren are Belinda, Saleena, Shawn, Annaliese and Shana.

Mattie and Jack invite the uninitiated to try them out. "Don't let the small size or the crowds deter you," Mattie said. "We take lots of phone orders from local businesses and workers at the state hospital."

Mattie and Jack Taylor extend a warm invitation to the uninitiated to come by 209 W. 3rd and enjoy their delicious hot plate lunches and hearty breakfasts.

Clinton finalizes address

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — White House officials hope President Clinton's State of the Union address tonight can help re-energize his presidency and mobilize national support for his most ambitious initiative, universal health care.

"It's all ready to go," Clinton declared on his morning jog. "I'm ready to go back to work."

"The big issues are crime and health care and welfare reform, and that's what he's going to focus on tonight," said a senior aide, George Stephanopoulos.

The speech, scheduled for national broadcast at 9 p.m. EST to a joint session of Congress, comes at a good time for Clinton.

Both the economy and his own standing in public opinion polls are on the rebound.

"This an opportunity for the president to establish his presence as an articulator of government programs and possibilities," said Henry Graff, a Columbia University political scientist. "He hasn't had this kind of forum in a long time."

It was Clinton's first official State of the Union address, even though his speech on economic policy last Feb. 16 had many of the trappings of one.

He only addressed Congress formally on one other occasion: his speech Sept. 22 on his health care plan.

For the most part, Clinton has favored more limited settings for getting his message across, such as "town hall meetings" and TV talk-show interviews.

"It's an important speech. It's really his first State of the Union address," Stephanopoulos said today on NBC. "He's now been in office for a year. And he wants to tell the American people and actually thank them for the accomplishments of the first year and lay out the agenda for the second year."

"He will try to lay out both what he accomplished last year briefly and

Perry Clinton's second choice for Defense

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — As defense secretary, William J. Perry must become a forceful spokesman for administration policy to fill an embarrassing gap in President Clinton's national security team. For a man who prefers to work behind the scenes, that could take some getting used to, associates say.

Clinton on Monday revealed his choice of Perry, 66, the Pentagon's No. 2 official, to replace Defense Secretary Les Aspin. The announcement came six days after Clinton's initial choice, retired Navy Adm. Bobby Inman, withdrew while complaining of unfair media coverage.

"He has the right vision for the job. ... He has been on the cutting edge of defense issues," said Clinton, adding that many people had told him, "Bill Perry is real pro — you can depend on him."

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said John Deutch, the current No. 3 in the Pentagon, is being considered as Perry's replacement.

The president applauded Perry's work in the 1970s on developing stealth technology for weapons and his more recent work in revising Pentagon purchasing rules.

Reaction from Congress was quick and enthusiastic, with predictions that the Senate will easily confirm the deputy defense secretary to replace his boss.

"A great choice ... a real professional with depth of experience," said Sen. Joseph Lieberman, D-Conn., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, the ranking Republican on Armed Services, said, "I have worked well with Dr. Perry in the past and he has done a good job as deputy secretary of defense."

President Clinton announces that he will nominate William Perry (right) to be the next defense secretary at a White House conference Monday.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, another member of that panel, cited Perry's experience "in all aspects of defense operations." He declared Perry "confirmable. ... He's already got the highest level of clearance."

Lawrence Korb, a former assistant defense secretary, called Perry "a good, safe choice" for Clinton. But he suggested the real test will be how well Perry moves from the Pentagon's corridors into a global limelight.

"What does he think about the use of force in Bosnia?" Korb said. "How will he articulate the president's strategic view in the world? How will he deal with the press, with Congress? Those are the key questions."

P.X. Kelley, who retired as Marine Corps commandant in 1987, described Perry as "very thoughtful, an excellent listener and very, very bright," but said his rather unassuming nature can be deceiving.

"Under that calm and quiet demeanor is a man made of tempered steel," said Kelley, who worked with Perry on a task force on rapid deployment issues during the Carter administration.

In contrast to Inman, who said he had to find a certain "comfort level" with Clinton before taking the job, Perry lauded the president's leadership and spent more time talking about others than about himself at Monday's announcement.

Inman himself said Perry's nomination was "wonderful news." Perry is "calmer ... has more patience and is a better listener," Inman said on CNN's "Larry King Live" program, contrasting Perry's personality with his own.

Perry acknowledged that he had had some reservations about taking the job, and told the White House on Saturday that he needed time to discuss the step with his family.

U.N. commander urges use of NAATO airpower against warring factions

The Associated Press

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina — The future of Europe is at stake in Bosnia and only swift, retaliatory air strikes will end aggression by the warring factions, the U.N. commander in former Yugoslavia said Monday.

By contrast, the U.N. secretary-general questioned NATO's willingness to use force despite the recent renewal of its threat to stage air attacks to protect U.N. areas. He warned that the conflict could spread with outside intervention, and urged more diplomacy to solve it.

The differing views came during what the departing U.N. commander for Bosnia, Lt. Gen. Francis Brigueumont of Belgium, has called a crisis for the U.N. peacekeeping mission in Bosnia. They illustrated the lack of consensus on how to end Europe's worst bloodshed since 1945.

Gen. Jean Cot of France, commander of all U.N. troops in the former Yugoslav federation, used the transfer of Brigueumont's command to Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose of Britain as a platform to reiterate his view that only military action by other nations can stop the war.

Fighting has escalated since peace talks failed again last week. U.N. peacekeepers themselves and the six U.N.-designated "safe zones" in Bosnia are under threat.

"The problem is very simple. In case of a massive attack against the safe areas or anywhere else, the only means that we have of reacting against this — of reacting immediately — is close air support," Cot told reporters.

He spoke at Sarajevo's U.N.-controlled airport, a symbol of what outsiders have and have not achieved after 21 months of war that has killed more than 200,000 people.

If you had cancer cure...

If you had a cure for cancer, who's going to test it for you?

You may be a man or woman with impressive medical credentials. You may have discovered that dandelion greens cure cancer, but for a pharmaceutical company, there is no money in dandelion greens, and for you to conduct tests adequate to satisfy the Food and Drug Administration would cost millions.

Paul Harvey News has allowed itself sometimes to encourage informal public testing of some harmless home remedy — gin-soaked raisins for arthritis — supplemental zinc for macular degeneration. It's not because I have any wish to become a "medicine man" but rather because years of observation have taught me that the emerging science of nutrition deserves to be dignified.

I don't know if Dr. Fereydoon Batmanghelidj's idea is worth anything or not. This native of Iran, with a medical education in Great Britain, spent years trying to convince medical associations and medical publications in Britain and in the United States that eight to 10 glasses of his "medicine" each day would remedy many human ills.

But his prescribed remedy was "water" — and there is no money in water.

So he went public. Dr. Batmanghelidj wrote a book called "Your Body's Many Cries for Water."

"The author is convinced that 'Americans are over-medicated' and that 'our nation could reduce medical costs by 60 percent just by recognizing the medicinal value of water.'"

Maybe this doctor is just another opportunist selling books, but on the chance that he has something, let's listen:

Paul Harvey

"Chronic and persistently increasing dehydration is the root cause of most all currently encountered major diseases in the human body."

As a prisoner in Iran, Dr. Batmanghelidj treated 3,000 fellow prisoners suffering peptic ulcers. The only thing he had with which to treat them were antacids and water. None responded to the antacids. All responded to the water.

This assumes the patient gets enough water, eight to 10 8-ounce glasses a day. And he says coffee, Coke, tea and juice are not satisfactory substitutes.

What he is prescribing for you amounts to 183 gallons of water this year, whether you feel like drinking it or not.

He says, "The scientific-medical establishment is still fighting diseases with palliatives — with drugs that treat diseases but neither prevent nor cure them."

He is convinced that enough water will prevent fatigue, heartburn and stress, which lead to major ailments and diseases such as ulcers, hypertension and arthritis.

He relates asthma, allergies and high cholesterol to dehydration.

Dr. Batmanghelidj hopes that Americans will test and prove his premise so that government agencies will be forced to pay attention.

his goals and objectives for the coming year," Press Secretary Dee Dee Myers said.

The president took the speech draft home with him overnight and made "considerable edits and changes, put his own mark on it," Myers said. He'll spend some time rehearsing it in this afternoon in the family theater, she added.

Clinton will speak "both in terms of specific policy and in terms of values and what we need to do to bring this country back together again, because the government can only do so much," she said.

The mention of the limits of government is intended to ease concerns by Republicans that Clinton's health-care plan would set up an intrusive new federal bureaucracy.

Myers said his prepared text should run 30 minutes to 40 minutes long. "But who knows? With applause, presidential riffs and ad libs, it could be an hour."

While health care is clearly the administration's No. 1 priority for Clinton's second year, he also planned a spirited pitch for strong federal action against crime and for moving ahead on welfare reform.

White House pollster Stanley Greenberg said Americans expect their leaders to deal with health care, crime and welfare reform legislation at the same time.

"They don't want them solved one by one. This is a choice that is not real," Greenberg said.

Greenberg, part of a team working with Clinton on the speech, said the president has spent many hours on the speech and has gone through a number of drafts with speech writers.

He practiced the speech Monday afternoon in the White House family theater, working on what was either the sixth or the seventh version, depending on who was doing the counting.

During his speech, Clinton will specifically endorse a proposal by Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., that is part of the Senate-passed crime bill requiring those convicted of three violent crimes to be sentenced to prison for life.

However, the legislation's effect would be limited — since it requires that the third felony be a federal offense.

"We hope and expect the president will stress the importance of crime legislation," Senate-Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, told reporters after he and House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., got a private briefing on the speech from Clinton on Monday.

Other report items included accreditation of the dental hygiene program by the American Dental Association and a regional meeting of trustees from the boards of Howard College, Odessa College and Midland College to be scheduled sometime in March.

Sparks also reported that the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board will consider recommendations on state funding for community colleges.

State funding for Howard College has dropped from 61 percent in 1985 to 46 percent in fiscal 1992.

The next board meeting will be at noon Monday, Feb. 28, in the student union's Tumbleweed Room.

Boy awaiting lung transplant

The Associated Press

BASTROP — Chad Trench has too much energy for the plastic tube tethering him to an oxygen machine in his home near here.

But the tube, which runs through his nostrils and down into his lungs, keeps the frisky 11-year-old honors student breathing. His lung capacity has been reduced by about 70 percent by a rare, apparently inherited condition causing the tiny air sacs of his lungs to deteriorate.

"He can't even walk from here to my house," Chad's grandmother, Molly Price, said out on the front porch, about 60 feet from her house next door. "But this little feller, he struggles."

The young science enthusiast has been home-tutored for almost two years. Now, he is looking forward to visiting Alaska — if all goes well with the lung transplant being planned for him at Washington University in St. Louis, Mo., later this year.

"I made her promise," Chad said of his grandmother.

Without a transplant, said Dr. Allan Frank, Chad's Austin pediatrician, he might not live out the year.

First, however, is the necessity to raise the thousands of dollars for travel to Missouri and living expenses there for Chad and his grandmother while he undergoes the operation and recovery.

"I hate to be a beggar," said Ms. Price, 62, who manages the snack bar at the Wal-Mart in Bastrop. "But after years of medical and hospital bills, the money is running out. I've spent everything I've got, and we have to pay all the expenses up there."

Despite a recent story in a local weekly newspaper, a fund established for Chad at First National Bank of Bastrop has drawn only about $160.

Chad's grandmother will go to Missouri with him because his parents,

Chad Trench, 11, of Bastrop works at home on his computer while his grandmother Molly Price watches over him. Chad needs a lung transplant to survive and his family is faced with the difficult task of raising the money necessary to send him to Washington University in St. Louis where the transplant is scheduled to take place later this year, assuming a suitable donor is found.

Charlie and Kathy Trench, must stay home with their two younger children. Charlie Trench, a housekeeper at Bastrop High School, has family health insurance but it won't pay for a transplant, Ms. Price said.

Medicaid, the federal and state health care program, "has made a commitment to fund Chad's procedure and care so that's not a problem," Frank said.

Chad's family has a history of lung problems. But Frank said Chad's disease, diagnosed at Denver Children's Hospital in Colorado last year, is a rare combination of emphysema, the destruction of the lung's air sacs, and an inflammation destroying the airways connecting his windpipe to his lungs.

"He's very dramatically deteriorated, and he should have the transplant within a few months," Frank said.

Early lung transplants in the 1960s and 1970s were failures. Few were attempted again until the early 1980s. The operation is still chancy, but the odds of success are improving.

More problematic may be the wait for a suitable donor. Although the United Network for Organ Sharing reported a 7 percent increase in donations in 1993 — the first substantial increase in four years — thousands still die every year waiting for donations.

"We don't know how soon he'd get one; that's true," Frank said.

But with no other options, Chad and his grandmother are pinning their hopes on the transplant.

Besides, Chad, who will turn 12 in October, has plans for the future. He used to want to be a football player, but he changed his mind.

"I want either to be a lawyer or a doctor," he said.

Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent Larry Shiver (right), who was shot and wounded during the Feb. 28, 1993, raid on Mount Carmel, leaves the federal courthouse after testifying during the Branch Davidian trial Monday in San Antonio.

ATF agent recounts hours trapped inside Davidian compound

The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — Lying wounded inside the Branch Davidian compound, federal agent Kenneth King vowed he would not spend the final moments of his life in the home of doomsday prophet David Koresh.

King's salvation was his two-way radio.

"It was sort of my life line," he testified Monday, explaining how he contacted fellow agents during a gun battle to tell them his location.

After suffering six gunshot wounds in a Feb. 28, 1993, raid on the compound, King said, he slid off the roof of the home and found himself in a courtyard, barely able to move because of injuries to his chest, arms and buttocks.

"I didn't want to die there laying on that ground. I was determined that I was not going to die. I was going to make it," said King, who testified he remained in the compound for 2 hours.

Under cross-examination from attorneys for some of the 11 Branch Davidian defendants, King acknowledged no one tried to harm him or even talk to him inside the compound.

"They could have done you in. You had no cover from any other agent, did you?" asked defense lawyer Mike DeGuerin.

King agreed.

The agent testified he heard "ceasefire" shouted inside the compound and said other agents came in and moved him once a lasting ceasefire was arranged.

As he was being rescued, King said, he saw a Branch Davidian with a gun and heard someone say, "Get him out of there. Get him out of there."

DeGuerin described the Branch Davidians' actions as "aiding the agents." That drew a quick objection from prosecutors.

King led a Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms team assigned to climb by ladder to the compound roof and reach Koresh's room.

The agents intended to throw a "flashbang" into the room to "disorient" its occupants, King testified.

On the roof, as his team approached, King said gunfire erupted from the room. Another agent, Todd McKeehan, was shot.

"He was bleeding very heavily. It was running down on the roof. His eyes were open and fixed ... I believed he was dead," King said.

King, himself shot, said he dragged himself across the roof and slid off into the courtyard. King said he never drew his gun and never fired a round.

The agent, examining in court a bullet retrieved from his body, said he believed the shot came from an AK-47 rifle or an M-14.

During cross-examination, King also testified the ATF plan for entering second-story rooms did not include seeking permission to enter or identify the raid officers. Other agents assigned to enter the downstairs front door have said they identified themselves to Koresh.

King said "a real heavy volume of gunfire" broke out as agents reached the roof.

"I'd call it an ambush," he said. "I did not feel I should announce our presence."

Another ATF agent testified about retrieving bodies of slain agents McKeehan and Conway LeBlou from the roof. LeBlou still was clutching a 12-gauge shotgun, and McKeehan was holding an MP-5 gun, agent Gerald Petrilli said.

Four agents were killed and 16 wounded in the firefight, which led to a 51-day standoff between Koresh's group and law officers. Six Branch Davidians are believed to have died in the gun battle.

Koresh and about 80 followers died April 19 when fire engulfed the compound.

In another matter, U.S. District Judge Walter Smith heard arguments Monday from defense lawyer Rocket Rosen, who is seeking to suppress testimony from a witness who identified his client, Livingston Fagan, as a gunman inside the compound.

Another agent previously identified Fagan as a shooter.

Smith is expected to rule on the motion before the agent testifies.

The 11 defendants could face life in prison if they are convicted on the federal murder and murder conspiracy charges.

Want to be on a game show? Take a class

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — He lost on "Jeopardy" but won $10,000 with his then-wife on "Headline Chasers." Now John Booher is offering tips to those who feel, deep inside, a game-show contestant screaming to get out.

Booher, 44, an Austin computer consultant, is teaching a 2 1/2-hour session through the University of Texas' informal class program for people with a hankering for prize money and a half-hour of television fame.

His theme as he looked forward to Wednesday's session: "Stop sitting around in front of your television saying, 'I can do it.' Get off your duff and go out there."

That's what he did. Booher was a 1986 winner on the now-defunct "Headline Chasers," in which contestants were given clues to solve missing-letter puzzles involving headlines about news events.

He appeared on "Jeopardy" in 1989, but lost when he couldn't come up with the names of two U.S. presidents who didn't attend college.

"This is a question you never forget for the rest of your life," he said, explaining that it was "one of their famous trick questions" because there are a total of nine presidents to choose from to get the correct answer. He said he was stalled when the names of several presidents occurred to him, and he didn't respond in time.

Still, Booher said, he got a year's supply of fake fingernails and a home version of the game. Plus, he adds, "I looked really good."

Among other plans for his class, Booher said he'll play the class tapes of his appearances — which are in good supply. "I have a tape, and every one of my relatives across the country has a tape."

He will give tips and trivia gleaned from his appearances, along with the telephone number for the "Wheel of Fortune" contestant coordinator.

Wannabe contestants also can expect a good dose of humor for their class fee of $19 to $29, he said. The lower price is for UT students, members of its Ex-Students' Association and people who are 65 and over.

"All my classes I teach, I teach with a sense of humor," he said. Booher also teaches computer software classes.

Among nuggets he shared before the class was that game shows are looking for a cross-section of America, and that it's good to fly to Los Angeles to compete rather than waiting for regional contestant tryouts.

Going to work at school

Students combine real life, learning with HECE program

By DEBBIE LINCECUM
Features Editor

Amanda Kincheloe, 18, is a student at school and on the job.

The local high school senior goes to class only part of each day. Then she goes to work at Golden Corral, where she's a waitress.

"I wait on people, take them tea and pick up their plates," Amanda said. "I'm supposed to talk to them, be friendly. Then I have other duties like rolling silverware and cleaning tables."

This sounds like just a job, but for Amanda, it's also school. She's part of the Home Economics Cooperative Education program at Big Spring High School.

Students in teacher Virginia Martin's class learn about work ethics, dealing with bosses and managing money. They get real-life experience with these issues at various jobs in the local community.

"We try to relate school to life," said Martin, who has Amanda and other students in class during the "zero hour," before school even really starts. "It's hard sometimes for children to think of their future needs."

Through HECE, she said, "they learn the importance of being someone who can be counted on."

Amy Cook, 17, is counted upon to take care of babies. Each afternoon, she works at Sunshine Day Care Center, caring for and playing with children from a few months to 2 years old.

"I love them," she said. "I watch them, feed them, change their diapers. We do projects, like (recently) I gave them a bunch of shaving cream and we played with it on a table."

Jennifer Phifer, 17, has learned that whatever her mood, she needs to be friendly to customers. Her job is sacking groceries at H-E-B.

Jennifer, who is headed to the U.S. Army after high school, has learned how to deal with many difficult situations while working.

"I really like dealing with the public," said Jennifer. "I also like working outside." She doesn't like going in early some days, but knows that's part of the job.

Amy, who likes the babies, doesn't like changing diapers.

"But I haven't really been there long enough to find anything else I don't like," she said. Although she expects to have some children of her own, Amy's career is more likely to involve working with computers.

"I like the people I work with and the customers," said Amanda, who doesn't really enjoy working around dirty plates and silverware. Her future plans include going to college in elementary education.

Through their jobs, the girls said they are getting a chance to see more of what "real life" is like.

Since they get out of school early each day, the girls get to run errands and catch up on homework for classes before going to work.

"So many students, historically, have seen school as putting off life," Martin said. "This is changing that." Amanda agreed.

"This gives us a good experience," she said. "We learn to be more assertive and develop leadership skills."

In their HECE class, students write a newsletter, take surveys and work with computer programs. Among many subjects they study are safety, career options, positive attitude, communication and interviewing.

HECE students can work in child care, clothing, home furnishings, food and nutrition, care of the elderly, institutional management, hospitality or floral design.

The employer is considered a co-teacher, and is responsible for giving the student 25 percent of his or her grade. Martin supervises the students even at work, though, by keeping track of how they are doing.

Show dogs

What makes them different than mutts

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Show dogs can be lovable as well as admirable for their quality of breed, but their lives are very different from the average pet mutt.

A show dog cannot eat the same type of food your pet dog eats. Owners usually feed their show dogs special foods to keep the dog very healthy and at its proper weight.

High-quality food also helps the dog maintain a high-quality coat of fur, which is important when showing dogs.

Grooming is very important for show dogs. They must be brushed and washed regularly to keep up their appearance. This is particularly important for dogs that live in hot, dusty or insect-ridden areas.

Dogs must be brushed and bathed on a regular basis. If the fur is very long or requires a specific shape, it may need to be shaved.

Show dogs may be let out to play during the day, but owners may keep them in at night. It is also very important to keep up with the dog's vaccinations.

Show dogs are exposed to many people, as well as other dogs, for extended periods of time. This makes the dog more likely to catch an illness if it has not had its shots and been kept on a healthy diet.

On the day of a show, the dog's handler may spend hours grooming the animal before it is ready to be shown. However, according to Louise Leone of Colorado, show day can't compare to the constant maintenance required to keep a show dog up to top quality.

Leone's Norfolk terrier, Davey, is a champion show dog. When she is not showing Davey, Leone spends much of her time grooming him, conditioning him for show and practicing handling him in the ring.

Lewis Nunley and her children Craig, Melanie and Amanda, of Del Rio, value their three Australian terriers not only as show dogs but also as pets.

The three dogs, Foster, Misty and Solo, are groomed more than the average dog and are kept on a stricter diet. However, they are allowed and encouraged to run around and play with the children and each other.

"They do best when they're able to play," said Nunley. The terriers are good family dogs as well as show dogs. Each child shows one of the dogs. Nunley joked that each dog has begun to take on the personality of the child who handles it.

Jeannette Conner and her daughter Nicole, of Grand Prairie, constantly groom their cocker spaniel, Kirby. Nicole hopes to make him a champion show dog, but he is also loved as a pet.

Show dogs may look fancier and require more care than the usual pet beagle, but underneath the bows and ribbons they are not so different.

As proven by the occasional calls for clean-up outside the show rings, even a champion can make mistakes, just like any other dog.

duces a substance that fights bacterial infections. And a South American frog oozes a very powerful painkiller.

To get these substances, some scientists skin frogs and boil their skin. But Tyler has developed a method that doesn't hurt frogs. It just relaxes them. It also makes them produce more fluids.

Tyler predicts that medicines from frog skin will soon be popping up in drugstores. Ribbit!

A Dog's Hearing

When someone blows a "silent" dog whistle, you don't hear a thing. But your dog sure does. Dogs can hear certain sounds a lot better than people can.

Your dog's ears look very different from those of humans. But they work the same basic way. A dog's hearing — and yours, too — takes place in a small tube deep inside the ear. Within this tube are nerve cells. They send sound messages to the brain. A dog's nerve cells are more sensitive than yours. They can pick up some sounds when yours can't.

Showing livestock teaches many skills

By MICHAEL KELSEY
County Extension Agent

One look at the calendar will tell anyone how busy Howard County 4-H members are going to be for the next three months.

Stockshow season is definitely upon us. Saturday, we completed our own Howard County Junior Livestock Show which began on Thursday of last week. Next week marks the beginning of the Fort Worth Show with four other major shows soon to follow. It is no wonder that this time of year many questions about showing livestock always arise.

I have been asked several times the purpose of a junior livestock show. Why all the hustle and bustle? What's the big deal with showing an animal? Shouldn't these kids be in school instead of at a show? Why does it cost so much?

These questions are just a few of the many that are asked every year. In fact, our own legislators ask these very questions when reviewing and implementing school attendance and extracurricular activity participation. Also, many of you may remember this topic during the 1992 presidential debates.

Certainly trying to answer every question in this article would be impossible. However, the explanation of the purpose of the shows will provide an answer to several of the above questions. There are probably as many explanations concerning the purpose of the shows as there are exhibitors competing in them. You can easily compile volumes of reasons and rationales by visiting with only a few people.

Today's society demands success. We are measured by how well and how much we achieve in almost every area. Most of us certainly don't like this fact, but is a fact none the less. To realize this success, preparation in the form of skill development is necessary. After all, "practice makes perfect." The skills required are responsibility, time management, patience, family unity, honesty, money management, teamwork and fair play.

These are just a few of the abilities needed for success. They are also the skills emphasized through the show programs. Caring for an animal develops all of the above mentioned skills to a great degree. A show does not only take place at the fairgrounds. Months of preparation are required before an exhibitor even thinks about entering the show ring. Nutrition requirements including feed and water, health requirements including preventative as well as emergency medication are just two of the very important necessities of exhibiting an animal. Along with these are grooming, selecting, transporting, weighing and protecting. The monitoring and managing of these animal requirements instill the very basic skills that were discussed previously.

The Texas 4-H program through the Texas Agriculture Extension Service is devoted to the development of the skills necessary for success in today's society.

The livestock show is just one of the teaching tools used to cultivate these skills in our young people.

There are many other agriculture and non-agriculture project areas for young people to be involved in. If you are interested in finding out more about 4-H and would like a complete list of projects areas available in your local 4-H club call the Howard County Extension Office at 264-2238.

Winners at Westminster Top Junior Handlers

The Westminster
 The Westminster Kennel Club Show is the top dog show in the country. Next to the Kentucky Derby, it is the oldest sporting event that has been held every year since it started. The first one was held in 1877.

This year it will take place Feb. 14 and 15 in New York City.

Junior showmanship
 At most dog shows, the judges look at the dogs and judge them. The junior showmanship classes are different. The judges look at who is on the other end of the leash. They judge the junior handlers, the kids 10 to 18.

For a junior to win at Westminster is a great honor. It is outstanding even to qualify to be there. In the year before the show, each junior must have won at least eight first-place junior showmanship ribbons at dog shows approved by the American Kennel Club (AKC).

The AKC is the group that sets the standards for dogs and dog shows.

The Mini Page went to the 1993 show to find out more about it for our readers.

Top junior winner
 Stacy Duncan took top junior honors. She has been showing dogs since she was 10. Her father is a professional handler.

The youngest winner
 At age 13, David Loeb of Amissville, Va., was the youngest junior showmanship winner for 1993. He won fourth place. David won with his dog, Goldie, a miniature Doberman pinscher, or "minpin."

Someday David would like to be a professional handler. Pro handlers are paid to take dogs into show rings or other sporting events.

 Stacy Duncan, 17, of Woodinville, Wash., won the Westminster junior showmanship class with an English springer spaniel called "Moo."

When the dogs are being shown, they must run so judges can study their gait, or how they move. In junior showmanship classes, the judge studies the handler, not the dog. It is important that a handler never get between the judge and the dog.

Stacy runs with Moo in the show ring.

Junior Showmanship Ribbons
 The best junior ribbon is rose and green.

David "stacks" his dog, or moves her legs so she will have a more pleasing profile.

Hail happens!
 WHAT YOU NEED: Pancakes for breakfast (I wish!) - an active imagination
 WHAT TO DO: The next time someone makes pancakes (or any other batter or dough), just stick your finger in. When you pull it out, you'll get a layer of batter. If you were to let it dry and stick your finger in again, you'd pick up another layer. Eventually, you'd have a ball of batter as big as a golf ball! That should remind you of things like hailstones.

Behind the Scenes at the Westminster

Bow WOW!
 To be a show dog and get to the Westminster Kennel Club Show is AWESOME.

You can't just pack your crate and go. You have to qualify by winning enough points at other dog shows.

Soon, 2,500 top show dogs will be packed in their crates and taken to New York City's big coliseum called Madison Square Garden.

While what goes on in the show rings is important, it's what happens behind the scenes that draws the crowds.

At most dog shows, the dogs go to the show ring, do their thing and leave. They don't hang around.

Not at Westminster. It is one of the few "benched" shows around.

On the day they are to compete, each breed is assigned special benches set up behind the scenes.

Dogs can leave their area only when they are in the ring.

This gives dog fanciers a close look at the top dogs.

This year more than 148 different breeds will show at the Westminster Kennel Show. Can you identify the ones we've pictured here? What might they be thinking?

Dogs in crates
 Show dogs are trained to be happy and ride for miles and miles in their crates. They must learn to rest as they travel.

Dogs being groomed
 Show dogs must learn to relax while being brushed, bathed and clipped. This can take as long as four hours for some breeds.

Dogs out of crates
 Dogs bring along their exhibitors, who proudly sit close by to answer questions.

Appause ... appause for the top dog!
 How nice "Robert," an English springer spaniel, looked in the ring when he won Best in Show in 1993. Like all show dogs, he has a fancy full name: Ch. Sally's Condon. Only dogs with 15 points can put the Ch. ("for 'Champion'") before their name.

Jawbreakers & Hailstones
 Jawbreakers have brighter colors than hailstones and are sweeter. But they're built pretty much the same way - layer by layer.

Rookie Cookie's Recipe
Dog Biscuits
 Surprise your pooch with a home-baked treat.

You'll need:

- 2 cups whole wheat flour
- 2 cups all-purpose flour
- 3/4 cup cornmeal
- 4 tablespoons vegetable oil
- 2 cups boiling water
- 4 bouillon cubes
- if desired, garlic, crisp bacon strips, bacon drippings or your dog's favorite flavor

What to do:

1. Combine first four ingredients. Mix well.
2. Dissolve bouillon cubes in boiling water.
3. Add bouillon to flour mixture. Mix to make a stiff dough.
4. Roll onto a floured surface. Cut out shapes with cookie cutter or glass.
5. Bake in a preheated, 300-degree oven for 30 minutes.

 For use with issue: Top Junior Handlers

Main idea: This issue is about dog shows. The following is a list of activities to be used with this issue. They are listed in order of difficulty, with the easier pre-reading assignments listed first. Ask the children to do the following:

1. Draw a picture of yourself with your pet or an animal you would like to own.
2. Look through the ads in your newspaper for pet supplies.
3. Design an award to be given to the winner of the junior showmanship class at the Westminster Kennel Show.
4. Where is the Westminster Kennel Show to be held? Find the city on a map. How many states would you travel through to get there from where you live?
5. Discuss the following: What is your favorite dog type? Why? Does your family have a dog? How do you think it would behave in a show ring? What do you think is involved in being a junior handler? What do you think is involved in being a judge at the Westminster Kennel Show?

Teachers: For information on responsible dog ownership, write: Public Education Department, American Kennel Club, 51 Madison Ave., New York, NY 10010.

Cowboys QB says he'll be fine

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Troy Aikman hopes he plays as well in Sunday's Super Bowl as everyone says he did in the NFC Championship game.

He has to take his teammates' word about the day he hit 14 of 18 passes for 177 yards and two touchdowns in a 38-21 victory over the San Francisco 49ers. Someday he'll play the tape.

The Dallas Cowboys quarterback only remembered two things:

1. The pregame introduction.
2. A dropped touchdown pass by Alvin Harper.

"That's it," he said. "The rest is a blank."

When Dallas arrived in Atlanta Monday night for a Super Bowl rematch of their 52-17 victory over Buffalo last year, the main concern was Aikman's head.

Aikman, the MVP of last year's Super Bowl, was added in the third period Sunday when a knee smacked his helmet. He spent the night in a local hospital undergoing observation.

"My mom called me while I was in there (the hospital) and said it was an Abbott and Costello routine," Aikman said. "But I started regaining my senses about 4 a.m. I'm fine now. I don't look fine because I haven't slept in 20 hours."

Aikman said he will take his regular snaps under center when the team resumes practice Wednesday. Doctors said Aikman suffered a mild concussion but should have no problems if he's hit hard by the Bills on Sunday.

"My neck is still a little sore, but I'll be OK by Sunday," Aikman said. "I had a few headaches in the hospital, but they're over those now." Aikman, who also was knocked out for five minutes by the Phoenix Cardinals during his rookie season, said it was the first time a hit caused him to forget a game.

"They say I ran a play after I was hit, but I don't remember it," Aikman said. "It was a draw to Emmitt Smith. That proves I can run that play in my sleep."

Teammates said Aikman walked up to center Mark Stepnoski, who was lost for the season a month ago with a knee injury, and asked him: "Why aren't you in the game?"

"I've been taking some kidding about that," Aikman said.

Aikman said a hit like he received from Dennis Brown is a player's biggest fear.

"It happened to me so fast and sudden I didn't have a chance to fear it," Aikman said. "I was out, but still walking around. It was scary."

By Monday, everything was back to normal for Aikman.

"Things are looking up," he said. "I remember the flight here this afternoon. I got to see some highlights of the game. It looked like we played pretty good."

"I guess I remember the pass to Harper because he dropped it and I thought it was going to be a touchdown. But it was the only play from the game I remember."

Aikman said he wasn't pressing his injury condition to play on Sunday.

Aikman will get to explain his condition over and over again today because its media day at the Super Bowl, the time when more than 2,000 credentialed reporters quiz the players in the Georgia Dome.

Big Spring hosts Loboes; Coahoma takes on Forsan

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

County basketball fans have a choice tonight between an important district matchup or a traditional rivalry.

The Big Spring Steers and Lady Steers are at home tonight against District 3-4A rival Monahans, while the other two Howard County teams, Coahoma and Forsan, will square off against each other tonight in Forsan Gym.

The Lady Steers start things off at 6 p.m., with the Steers' game following at 7:30 p.m. The Coahoma-Forsan girls' contest begins at 6:30, with the boys' game beginning at 8.

LADY STEERS (16-5, 7-0) VS. MONAHANS (4-17, 2-5)

The shock has worn off from the loss of team captain Amy Earnst, who is sidelined for the rest of the season with torn knee ligaments, and the main task awaiting the Lady Steers is to maintain the level of intensity they showed Friday against Fort Stockton.

"I think that's the way we'll continue to play," Taylor said, referring to Big Spring's 81-50 shellacking of Fort Stockton. "The kids want to step it up. They want to win it for (Earnst) and they want to win it for themselves. She's the reason we're playing with the intensity we have."

Taylor did make a few changes to his lineup, calling up Molly Smith from the junior varsity and plugging 5-foot-9 junior Sarah Bristow into Earnst's spot.

Bristow scored 22 points in her starting debut Friday, and she and fellow post Kerry Gregg still give Big Spring a potent inside duo. But Taylor would like to see continued production from the Lady Steers' perimeter players, who contributed half of the team's point total Friday night.

"I had wanted them to shoot the ball all year, but in all honesty, we haven't had to shoot that much outside," he said.

STEERS (7-15, 4-1) VS. MONAHANS (8-11, 2-3)

The resurgent Steers face an interesting test tonight against the taller Loboes. Earlier in the season, a taller team was death on the Steers, but that was before they embarked on their current four-game winning streak.

"I think we can continue to get better," coach Gary Tipton said. "We still have room for improvement ... but I definitely think we're playing our best basketball of the year right now."

Tipton said the recent insertion of Tyron Banks at the point guard position has helped solidify the team.

With Banks distributing the ball, Tipton said the Steers have a better chance of attaining their goal of having three or four players hit double figures in scoring. Five players hit double digits in the Steers' 91-67 win Friday over Fort Stockton.

"We've got to win the battle of the boards tonight," Tipton said. "If we do that, we've got a good chance of winning the ball game. We've got to play a great defensive ball game."

BULLDOGETTES (12-11, 2-4) VS. QUEENS (13-8, 3-1)

The Coahoma-Forsan girls' game should be an interesting matchup. Although it is a non-district game, and therefore relatively meaningless, the long-time rivals will still be out to put together good performances.

Forsan coach Johnny Schafer admits the game means nothing as far as district standings go, but wants his girls to give a good accounting of themselves.

The game comes at the midway point in the district race for both teams, and Schafer said he was satisfied with the Queens' performance so far.

BULLDOGS (18-5, 5-0) VS. BUFFALOES (11-10, 3-1)

Forsan boys' coach Terry McDonald echoes Schafer's sentiments, saying that he wants his team to perform well, even though the game has no relevance to the district races of either team.

"It's not a district game, and we've got a few more important things on our minds," he said. "We're going to go in and do some of the things we've been working on."

The mid-district break gave McDonald a good opportunity to evaluate his team's performance to date.

"I think we're playing real well right now," he said. "I feel we're on a roll. The kids are excited about playing, and they're enjoying where we're at right now."

Buffalo seeking some r-e-s-p-e-c-t

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Marv Levy knew the question would come up right away. Sure enough it did.

What makes this year different from the last three?

At first, Levy said he couldn't give an answer "that wouldn't be groping." Later, though, he found one that seemed pretty solid.

"It takes time (for players) to develop," Levy said, adding that his players, 28 of whom have played in the last three Super Bowls, had matured.

The first example Levy pointed to was All-Pro defensive end Bruce Smith.

"Take a guy as great as Bruce Smith, who, when he first came to the team ... was sort of self-indulgent and didn't condition himself a lot," Levy said.

Smith, the first overall pick in the 1985 draft, dominated as a college player and believed his tremendous talent would be all he needed to do the same at the pro level.

When he found out that wouldn't happen, Levy said Smith took the necessary steps to excel.

"He, over a period of years, has had a tremendous turnaround,"

Levy said. "He plays the run as well as the pass. He's one of the best conditioned guys on our team. And he has great self-discipline."

Smith said he learned by watching the example of other players "who are supposed to be the best, guys like Howie Long and Neil Smith. You see their work habits, you see their dedication and you see that you have to have that stuff."

Smith said he had to perform at a high level this year because he had to justify the new, $13 million contract he signed at the start of the season. "A few years ago, I probably wouldn't have felt that way."

Rather than causing Buffalo to unravel, Jim Kelly said the adversity of three successively worse Super Bowl defeats has fortified the Bills.

"There's so much character on this team and a willingness and desire to go out and prove people wrong," he said. "These are the same players we've always had, but we're able to do anything we put our minds to."

His Bills, Levy said, "are the most resilient, tough-minded bunch of individuals that I've ever been associated with in athletics. Or any other endeavor, for that matter."

Tonya Harding skates on as case mounts against her

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Tonya Harding basked in the applause of shoppers while skating at a mall Monday amid reports authorities have enough evidence to arrest her in the attack on rival Nancy Kerrigan.

Authorities refused to comment on The Oregonian newspaper's report that investigators have enough evidence to charge Harding in the plot, but don't want to act until they feel more sure of getting a conviction.

Four men, including Harding's ex-husband and bodyguard, have been charged with conspiracy in the Jan. 6 attack. Kerrigan was clubbed on the knee and forced to withdraw from the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Detroit.

No new witnesses were scheduled to testify Monday before the grand jury, said Norm Frink, deputy Multnomah County district attorney. And no new warrants were issued in the case, said Douglas Bray, a clerk for Donald Londer, presiding judge in Multnomah County Circuit Court.

Authorities in Detroit were waiting for the investigation in Oregon to conclude before issuing charges in the assault on Kerrigan, said Doug Baker, Wayne County assistant prosecutor.

The grand jury has until Feb. 3 to issue its report.

Meanwhile, Harding had the skating rink to herself at the Clackamas Town Center shopping mall. She hit the ice at 9 a.m. PST and skated for nearly an hour, finishing with a program set to "When You Fall in Love." The routine included several triple jumps. Harding did not fall.

Shoppers who stopped to watch gave Harding loud applause, while reporters and photographers kept vigil. A knot of supporters stood by the rink, wearing pink buttons saying, "We Believe in Tonya."

The four charged with conspiring to assault Kerrigan are Harding's ex-husband, Jeff Gillooly; her former bodyguard, Shawn Eckardt; the alleged hit man, Shane Minoaka Stant; and the alleged getaway driver, Derrick Smith.

The Oregonian quoted unidentified sources as saying prosecutors are trying to obtain more hard evidence to solidify the case against Harding, Eckardt, Stant and Smith reportedly have implicated her.

Eckardt has told authorities Harding took part in cooking up an alibi, called Kerrigan's practice rink to find out when she would be there, and berated Eckardt for taking too long to carry out the assault, The Oregonian said.

An affidavit filed in support of Gillooly's arrest said investigators have telephone records of calls from Harding's home to the Tony Kent Arena, where Kerrigan practices in Massachusetts. Authorities aren't saying whether Harding made the call.

The affidavit is confusing on the issue of Harding's participation in developing an alibi. At one point, it says Eckardt told investigators he and Gillooly discussed how they would account for money and phone calls in the case. In a summary of the case, it appears to include Harding in the discussion, but without naming a source.

Eckardt's record of grandiose claims about exploits in the world of counter-terrorism has raised questions about his credibility.

Howard College sweeps Frank Phillips

BORGER — The Howard College men's and women's basketball teams traveled to Frank Phillips College Monday, and both squads came up winners.

Howard's men beat Frank Phillips 93-79. Howard (15-6, 4-0 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference) led 42-40 at halftime and pulled away in the second half.

Charles Poe led Howard with 23 points, and guard Tavares White stepped up to pour in a season-high 22. White hit four 3-pointers, three in the second half.

Alife Gillum scored 19 for Frank Phillips.

The Lady Hawks (23-1, 3-1 in the WJAC) had a tougher time than the men, escaping Borger with a 68-66 win.

Howard trailed 30-29 at halftime but regrouped in the second half to take a 15-point lead. That's when Frank Phillips did some regrouping of its own and put together a rally that came up just short.

Howard's three second-year players scored in double figures — Angel Spinks 16, Becky Barnes 13 and Annette Robinson 12.

Frank Phillips' Jeanne Bailey led all scorers with 19.

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FOR WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 26, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Expect vital changes today as you take a more creative approach to a family issue. Tempers might flare, and you could feel pushed to the maximum. Be aware of what you are asking from others, and use a subtle approach. Tonight: Hang around with a friend. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Communications are active today. Plans could fall apart, leaving you disappointed. Be prepared to see an alternative point of view. Creative thinking will make the difference in how things turn out. Tonight: Settle down at home. ***

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Handle a financial matter early in the day. A partner disappoints you; be patient. Don't underestimate your creativity or potential. Communications later in the day prove to be more satisfying. Tonight: Don't be controlling. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Stay in tune with your needs. Opportunities for understandings are available if you give enough space to another. Don't push a partner into a corner. Be ready to accept a different point of view. Use caution around money. Tonight: It will cost. ***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): What seems like a stressful issue today proves to be a blessing in disguise. Partners are acting a little difficult, as they all want to have things their own way. For once, defer. Tonight: Smile and everything turns out OK. ***

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be ready to take a risk and switch gears. Let go of a rigid point of view and be more creative with your energy. Listen to your instincts concerning a co-worker later in the day. Tonight: Chill out. ***

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): News about family or home disturbs you. Do not push another today, as tempers could flare easily. Look to the long term with a key friendship. Tonight: Have fun and let go. ***

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Act more responsibly about a troublesome situation. Put yourself in another's shoes. Your options abound, and you will feel better once you get a new perspective. Tonight: Have dinner with a boss or co-worker. ***

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Something you hear concerning your finances or well-being seems scary, but you don't have the whole story yet. The more you talk things out with another, the clearer the solution will be. Tonight: Brainstorm with a buddy. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be aware of the tension that is building around a friendship. You could be reacting emotionally and not thinking out your response. Try to connect on a deeper level. Talks about money need to be postponed. Tonight: Listen but don't take a stance. ***

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Work today seems especially stressful and as a result your nerves are fried. Treat yourself to a leisurely stroll or some other relaxing time off this afternoon. Tonight: Be out and about with your friends. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You might be misjudging a situation. Don't take another's negative response personally. Events are such that the situation could change quickly. Look for positive results. Tonight: Exercise to work through stress. ***

IF JANUARY 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You will need much energy to handle all that will happen this dynamic year. Partnerships and relationships will be active, presenting you with many choices. Unexpected jolts to your daily routine might test your temper, but you will be able to handle them. Watch a tendency to give too much or too little in a relationship. You will gain in stature professionally; just be careful how far you push yourself. Take a long vacation to reduce stress. LEO adores you.

THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Organ donors never too old to give

DEAR ABBY: "Puzzled in North Hollywood" wrote to say that when she told her husband that she wanted to donate her organs in the event of an accidental death, he said, "Who would want 53-year-old kidneys, eyes, etc.?"

Thank you, Abby, for encouraging her to donate her organs anyway. I am the recipient of a 53-year-old woman's liver — after having waited well over a year to receive a suitable organ. I have gone from a certain, imminent death to a full and productive life. It has been eight months since my transplant, and I am in perfect health.

I will be forever grateful to that 53-year-old woman and her family who didn't think her organs were too old. I am signing my name, but because of the policy of confidentiality of the national transplant organization, please do not disclose my name or location. — GRATEFUL ORGAN RECIPIENT

DEAR GRATEFUL: Thank you for reaffirming that no one is too old to be a donor.

Readers, I repeat: The expense of donating is NOT borne by the donor's family or estate.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have fought over this for years, and we can't seem to find a solution that will satisfy both of us. I like to have the house warm in the winter — about 72 degrees. My husband says it's much too hot for him — so he turns the heat down to about 68 to 70.

Abby, my face is cold and I do not like to wear three sweaters and heavy socks in the house, which I have to do in order to be comfortable after he starts fooling with the thermostat.

He shuts the heat off at night and it goes down to 52 degrees. Then he jumps up in the morning and turns it up to 70. (It takes about an hour for the temperature to reach 70 — and when it does, he turns it down to 60, or 65 if it's really cold outside.)

I can't stand to be cold. Meanwhile, my husband starts to sweat at the drop of a hat. I turn the heat up and he turns it down. It's the only thing we ever fight about. We've been married 52 years. — FIGHTING IN OREGON

DEAR FIGHTING: Have you considered portable room heaters? If not, please do. It may save your marriage. Since you prefer to be toasty warm, wear woolen socks and sweaters in deference to your husband, who prefers a cooler house. (It's easier for you to bundle up than it is for him to find comfort in an overheated room.) Meanwhile, if this is the only thing you ever fight about, count your blessings.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to "Sue in Minnesota." She wrote an upbeat letter about finding love while using a wheelchair.

My husband and I just celebrated our fifth wedding anniversary. We are both strong-willed and independent. We are also a two-wheelchair family. Both my husband and I had been previously married to able-bodied individuals who were not able to handle the unique challenges of life "on the roll."

Hats off and good luck to "Sue in Minnesota." May she find the happiness in her relationship that we have found in ours. — HOWARD AND MELISSA, ROY, UTAH

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
