Joint charitable effort yields women's shelter

By JANET AUSBURY

Staff Writer

A joint effort between the Salvation Army, Christmas in April and volunteers from TU Electric to build a shelter for abused women and children is planned for completion in

Salvation Army Lt. Albert Villafuerte said an increase in violent crimes against women, resulting in an increase in women and children seeking temporary shelter at the Salvation Army, led to the organization's decision to construct a shelter for that purpose.

The Salvation Army can shelter people for three days and three nights. In many cases, this is not enough time for women to find a safe place for themselves or their children.

A long-term shelter in Midland handles Big Spring cases, but commuting or uprooting the family to move away from jobs, schools and any local support system can be difficult.

The Salvation Army shelter will allow residents to stay for one to six months, depending on the circumstances of each case.

Girl Scout officials say W. Texas Council different

By JANET AUSBURY Staff Writer

Big Spring residents who watched "Eye to Eye with Connie Chung" Thursday night may be worried about how the Girl Scouts distribute money received from cookie sales.

Fellow resident Ray Alexander, who belongs to the Abilene-based board of directors for the West Texas Girl Scout Council, said nobody should worry about where their cookie money is going.

"We don't have that much employment. We don't have fancy offices. I think the report was slanted toward that one council," said Alexander of the Girl Scout segment on Chung's

The segment featured current and former Girl Scout troop leaders in Connecticut who complained that almost no money from cookie sales was going to the troops.

The segment also showed plush offices of the Connecticut council and the national headquarters and mentioned the $70,000 annual salary of the Connecticut council's executive

"It looks like they might be fat-catting it up there, but we're not that fancy," said Alexander. The Abilene office employs seven full-time staff members, "and the executive director doesn't make $70,000 a year, either," he added.

The troops are free to spend their proceeds from cookie sales as they wish, but primarily spend it on badges for the scouts and projects such as field trips. Alexander said the scouts do not have to pay out of pocket for their badges.

He emphasized the West Texas Council is not run extravagantly and money from local cookie sales is used to benefit the girls at either the troop or council level.

He believes local residents should not feel their cookie purchases are money poorly spent. "I feel like they're getting their money's worth," tricts, such as San Angelo, will play club ball next year. Some, such as Lamesa, have no plans to adopt a program at this time. Snyder is planning school-sponsored UIL participation next year.

He estimated he minimum cost of running a club ball program, based on uniform and transportation costs, would be $20,000 to $25,000 per year. A sheet enclosed with the agenda showed costs for UIL participation to be approximately $99,075 per year.

A sheet showing other athletic needs for the school district and their approximate costs was enclosed to help board members decide where athletic funds should spent. Approximately $1,795,800 in other athletic needs, primarily repairs and renovations, are needed.

District 3-4A superintendents, coaches and athletic directors will meet Feb. 1 to discuss UIL realignment. At that time, McQueary will further discuss other districts' participation in club or UIL ball.

Whether Big Spring decides to adopt a scholastic softball program, and whether it is a club or UIL program, will depend in part upon what other districts are doing, he added.

"We saw the need for a while, but for a long time we didn't have the Initial funding for the project was money," said Villafuerte. "Volunteers are hard to find. That's why we're working with Christmas in April." Theresa Hodnett of Christmas in April said the organization was pleased to be approached by the Salvation Army for assistance. "We're excited. We think it's a wonderful project," she said.

Bob Noyes, president of the Christmas in April board, said the joint effort is a first. Noyes' company, Bob's Custom Woodwork, has assisted the Salvation Army in the past.

Gwen Hoggard, executive director of Rape Crisis/Victim Services, said Villafuerte had asked if the organization would be interested in a women's shelter for short-term stays.

She added that having a local alternative to the Midland shelter will ease the pain of relocation for many women and children, as well as provide a nearby safe haven.

Voicing sympathy for county officials whose local jails are crowded with state convicts awaiting transfer to state prisons, Richards on Thursday asked Secretary of State John

Hannah to investigate the situation. "It is imperative that we get to the bottom of this question and, if there being used, then we must move quickly to use them to cut down on extra prison beds might be available. county jail overcrowding," Richards told Hannah in a letter.

"I know what county administrators and sheriffs are going through with the number of state inmates currently housed in their county jails awaiting space in the state prison system," Richards said.

Although the state is embarked on a massive prison-building program, a total of about 29,000 state prisoners now are being held in county jails until space opens up in a state are prison beds available and not keep violent criminals in prison but also wants to know just how many

> "We have been told by (Comptroller John) Sharp, based on a very preliminary study he did, that there may be empty prison beds. If there are, they should be put immediately to use. There is no justification for the beds to be empty if they can be used," said Bill Cryer, the governor's press secretary.

> While not confirming the 6,000 number, a spokesman for Sharp said Thursday that auditors had found a number of problems in accounting for all available space.

"They have a problem because of a lack of computerization. They don't know at any given time on a systemwide basis which prisoners have been dismissed from which units." said comptroller's spokesman Andy

'They don't know how many spaces they may have freed up at this unit or that unit. Maybe they need a short course from Holiday Inn,' Welch said.

Texas Department of Criminal Justice officials said there are some beds within the system not being used, but attributed that to the settlement of the lawsuit against the system brought by inmate David Ruiz.

Officer held in case he investigated

GILMER - When Kelly Wilson vanished, police Sgt. James Brown took the call and led the search, tracking leads, posting fliers and helping set up a billboard with her smiling pic-

Two years later, the investigation led straight back to Brown himself.

The police officer was indicted $^{\circ}$ along with seven other people Jan. 21 on charges of abducting the 17year-old woman, sexually assaulting her and finally stabbing her to death. Investigators said it may have been a ritual slaying.

"One thing we learned from Brown was - rule out nothing," said the young woman's stepfather, Robert

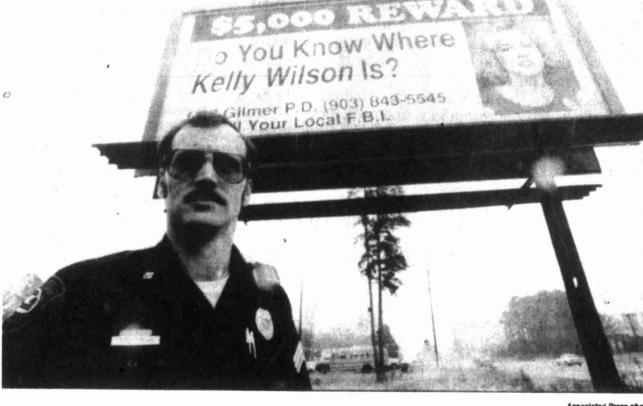

Police said Wilson was kidnapped one rainy night in 1992. Her car and purse were found outside the video store where she worked. Her tires had been slashed.

Brown was on duty when the call came in reporting Wilson missing. He was immediately assigned to the case, Police Chief Al McAllister said.

Wilson's body has not been found, but prosecutors don't expect that to be a problem. A person can be tried for murder in Texas when no body has been found if there's enough evidence to believe the victim was slain. And police in this East Texas community of about 5,000 think they've got that, thanks to a break stemming from the 1993 arrest of eight residents on charges of molesting their own children and foster children in

The children told investigators they were forced to have sex and watch people dressed as devils conduct ceremonies in the woods. One of the 16 youngsters also gave investigators a lead in Wilson's disappearance.

Gilmer police Sgt. James York stands in front of a billboard seeking information about Kelly Wilson in December 1993. York was arraigned Monday along with seven others on charges of kidnapping, sexually assaulting and murdering the 17-year-old.

Two of the adults offered information as well. The most damaging blow came from Connie Martin, 27. She told authorities that she and her co-defendants sexually assaulted and stabbed Wilson.

Brown remained in jail Thursday n $225,000 bail after District Judge F.L. "Tiny" Garrison reduced the bail from $650,000 at an arraignment Thursday. The judge gave Brown a week to attempt to raise the reduced bond and said that at the end of the week he would "reconsider" the bond, leaving open the possibility that it could be reduced again.

Brown tearfully told the judge that he would appear for pretrial hearings and his trial because, "I know I m going to be acquitted.

Special Prosecutor Scott Lyford of Galveston argued against release of Brown, citing the seriousness of the charges, future safety of the community and the circumstances.

"This is not simply a case of a defendant accused of capital murder," Lyford said, noting Brown investigated the victim's disappearance for two years.

San Antonio cabbies strike at airport, hotels

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The City Council's approval of a new ordinance regulating taxis has triggered a strike of taxi service at San Antonio International Airport and at downtown hotels.

The strike went into effect late Thursday as soon as the council adopted the ordinance, which taxi industry representatives termed an economic death knell for them.

Taxi service will continue to all other business areas and to residential areas, said Cruz Chavira, president of the San Antonio Taxi Alliance.

Cab drivers and other representatives of the taxi industry packed City Council chambers and pleaded with councilmen not to pass the ordi-Chavira said the airport and hotels were targeted because of their visibility and the taxi alliance leadership's belief that their representatives had too much influence in drafting the ordinance.

Governor tells panel to find what's right

HOUSTON (AP) - For Texans searching for a way to combat juvenile crime, Gov. Ann Richards has a rather simple solution — school.

Youths get in trouble "because they're not in school," Richards told the newly created Texas Commission on Children and Youth. Enforce the existing truancy laws, she said Thursday.

"A kid cannot commit a crime if he isn't on the streets," Richards said.

But she also said juvenile crime is just one issue that needs to be addressed by the 18-member commission, which is supposed to develop a proposal to improve and coordi-

HOUSTON (AP) - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission says it is keeping the idled South Texas Project on its "watch list" of troubled nuclear plants. James M. Taylor, NRC executive director for operations, said Thursday the panel's inspection of the twin-reactor nuclear plant has "determined that performance at the South Texas Project has been mixed. with a slowly improving trend."

'South Texas' response to the Diagnostic Evaluation Team inspection (in March and April 1993) addressed short-term program enhancements that are in the process of being implemented and long term improvements that are incorporated in their five-year business plan," Taylor said in a letter to Houston Lighting & Power Co., which manages the plant.

Taylor also noted there have been extensive management changes at the twin-reactor nuclear plant about Bay City.

It also is charged with achieving as the program enhancements, are specific goals related to education, recent and their effectiveness remains to be demonstrated," he

Richards' phone bills again creating a stir

HOUSTON (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards says her office has done nothing wrong in destroying long distance phone records as soon as the bills are paid.

The Houston Chronicle reported Thursday that while other state agencies keep records of phone calls for at least three years, Richards' aides regularly destroy her itemized long-distance records after each monthly bill is paid.

The governor's staff said the action is legal under a law and procedure that outlines how state records may be destroyed.

And Richards, in Houston on Thursday, called the newspaper report "much ado about nothing.

"I think the whole deal was that a reporter thought that we should keep our phone records longer than the archives people required either (for-100 miles southwest of Houston near mer Gov.) Bill Clements or me to do." she said.

We salute!

The Big Spring Herald, each week, recognizes local citizens or groups who have been singled out for special honors or who have helped make a difference in the quality of life in and around our community:

•Winners of the Howard County Livestock Show. A lot of effort goes into raising these animals and each exhibitor is a winner. Grand champions were: Justin Wood, steer; Justin Gamble, capon; Shaun Reid, hogs; and Jacon Key, lambs.

•Garaea City Academic Team for reaching state for the second year. Congratulations and good luck.

•Big Spring Kennel Club for putting on a successful dog show once again.

•Conrad Alexander, have a happy retirement.

Heck, this is Texas son, so make that BIG BIDNESS! And smile when you say it.

Just ask folks that handle Dallas Cowboys licensed merchandise. they'll tell you. The Cowboys are big, getting bigger, and a second consecutive Super Bowl win in Atlanta Sunday could well blow the lid off the pressure cooker.

The only problem, local retailers relate in their sale of Cowboys' merchandise is that there's just one week between the AFC-NFC Championship Games and the Super Bowl.

That's a whole week's less time for all the excitement and hoopla surrounding a Super Bowl to build.

And, it's a whole week's less sales of Cowboys' stuff.

That hasn't deterred anyone, however. Scott Martin at Athletic Supply said Cowboys-related merchandise was selling rapidly Thursday afternoon, and that the store had just received three new Cowboys' Tshirts that morning.

Kay Roberts at Neal's Sporting Goods, another local outlet that traditionally does big business in NFL licensed merchandise, said sales in Super Bowl related items began to soar a couple of days ago.

"We always sell lots of Cowboys stuff, but it's really taken off in the last couple of days," Roberts said. "The only problem was that if you didn't have a pre-order, it was tough to get stuff in.

What's available, you ask?

Well, Roberts says there are four "Super Bowl" shirts on her shelves — "Dueling Helmets," "Dueling Quarterbacks," the "Ticket Shirt" and the "Super Bowl XXVIII" - all featuring both the Cowboys and the

But it's not just the sporting goods retailers who're raking in the profits. From gas stations to grocery stores, you can hardly turn a corner without passing a vendor of Dallas Cowboys

In the process, the Cowboys have officially reclaimed the title "America's Team," where merchandise is concerned

The NFL says the Cowboys are the top sellers nationally of licensed merchandise bearing team names and logos

"The Cowboys started last season in eighth position. Then, as they kept winning, getting more media coverage, publicity, the sales started going up," said NFL spokesman Roger

The Cowboys took the No. 1 spot in March, surpassing the Los Angeles Raiders, who held the sales record for two or three years.

Ray Katz, another NFL official, said the NFL makes about $3 billion annually in licensed product sales and the Cowboys "are No. 1.

The NFL said this year is the first time the Cowboys have been top sellers since the Roger Staubach period of the late 1970s, when the Cowboys first were dubbed "America's Team."

Is this guy a healthy choice?

The White House has brought in a new health-care czar. It is his job to pull everything together and get the Clintons' revolutionary plan turned

And I have to admit that the new health plan boss — Harold M. Ickes has perfect credentials for the job.

First of all, he is a lawyer. But of course. Just about everyone involved in rebuilding the nation's medical world is a lawyer. Around the White House, especially the health-care people, if you don't know how to write a writ, you are considered a barbarian.

It is rumored, falsely, I assume, that when a physician tried to sneak into one of the planning meetings, he was taken to the White House basement, put in chains and whipped with his own stethoscope. He was released, they say, only after promising to enroll in law school.

And what does health czar Ickes know about health care? Besides flossing his teeth, apparently not

As a New York Times story that raved about his brilliance said:

'What Mr. Ickes does not bring to his job, he acknowledges, is expertise in health care.'

It quotes him as saying: "I was brought in to help talk strategy and help manage the overall process. I wasn't brought down here to be a health-care expert."

Which makes perfect sense. You put someone in charge of steering a monster-sized reshaping of our nation's health care through Congress, the last thing you want to do is confuse him with details about actual health care. A bed pan is a bed pan. You see one bed pan, you've seen them all. So what else does he have to know about health that make him an ideal choice for the Clinton administration.

He was born into a prominent political family, his father a Cabinet member for Franklin D. Roosevelt. And as one who came of age in the 60s, he has marched to the same social drumbeats as most of the friends of Bill and Hillary. He, like Clinton, was part of the anti-war movement. And he worked in the presidential campaigns of Eugene McCarthy (a loser), Ed Muskie (another loser), Morris Udall

York Mayor David Dinkins, who managed to defy all odds by running so flabby a campaign that he lost an election Beavis and Butt-head could

So Ickes, as a political operative, has never been described as a kingmaker. He appears to have spent most election nights sitting around with a lot of depressing people.

But it isn't whether you win or lose, or even how you play the game. lt's whether you get in a big law firm, make some bucks, and pick up some important friends along the

And Ickes became one of those fortunate people who is a Friend of Hillary and Bill

He ran Clinton's New York primary campaign, which Clinton won. Considering the drabness of the competition, that is not one of the major political triumphs of the 20th century. But it helped Clinton stumble to his destiny as Arkansas' gift to the rest of us.

And now he is in charge of shoving the Clintons' health-care package down our throats. Or from the opposite direction, if you want to think of it that way.

While he doesn't know as much about health care as the nurse on the midnight shift at your local hospital, he realizes how important this

If we moved our meetings to the Country Club, would I have more people attend? I doubt it. If we moved our meeting to the Chamber of Commerce, would more people attend? I doubt it. The ones who attend now will go wherever we meet no matter where it is of who is speaking. Why? Because these people with their families now realize how important diabetes really is. We have a Registered Dietician whom has dealt with diabetics for years and discusses our diets and how diets affect each one of us. We do not have a Diabetic Educator yet, but one will be here in the future to speak about diabetes as well as Doctor who specializes in Diabetes and the system it effects. I challenge everyone who is dia-

'All of a sudden, I'm a kid again'

"What legacy?" Michael Jordan said the other afternoon, that second word pronounced with something close to contempt.

The legacy of your basketball career, I said. A lot of the people who are lukewarm about your attempts to become a major league baseball player say that if you fail, it will diminish the legacy. Right now, these experts say, the last memory the world has of you as an athlete is winning a third straight NBA title out in Phoenix. If the world sees you strike out repeatedly in Sarasota, that all changes.

"So?" Jordan said. "Am I supposed to worry about what people will think if I drop a fly ball? That happens. People drop fly balls, and I'm sure I will. If people want to judge me on that, there's nothing I can do about it."

Every time I talk with Jordan about his baseball plans - and we've been talking about it, in one form or another, for almost three months now - I am struck by how much less he seems to care about the possibility of failure than the rest of the world does. Now that his aspirations to play for the Chicago White Sox are public, he cannot turn on the TV or radio, cannot pick up a newspaper, without confronting a fresh evaluation of his chances of being a flop. "I am about to turn 31 years old," he said. "I am not a child. I know what I'm doing. "Every day when I wake up and I get in the car to drive myself to my workouts, I'm happy during the drive. Sometimes I have the radio on, and I can hear the people saying that I don't have a chance. I don't care. I'm in a happy mood that whole drive.

"And when I'm out there throwing and catching and hitting, I can't even tell you how good it makes me feel. All of a sudden I'm a kid again. I'm a little kid, and I don't know if I'm good enough, but I have the will to try to do something. It's a sense of complete freedom. It's a feeling I haven't had in a long time. I'm not going to allow anyone to take that from me just because they want to make fun of what I'm trying.

"I know there are people who have said: 'You retired from the Bulls, so just go away and let us remember what used to be." If those people are tired of hearing my name, then they ought to quit saying it so often. I wish they could understand the feeling I have when I walk out there every day to try to do this."

He said he is keenly aware of where his baseball skills are lacking. "At the end of the session every day, watch tapes of myself batting, and I compare what I see with tapes of other players batting. Really good players - Frank Thomas, Ellis Burks. I sit there and I watch very carefully, to try to understand what they're doing that I ought to do. I look at me and I look at them, and I look at me again and I look at them again, and the next day when I go out there I try to make myself bet-

He knows that if he is invited to spring training, every move he makes will be recorded by cameras sent from all over the world. There will be nothing at all private about this exercise. How nervous does the prospect make him? "Very nervous," he said. "In basketball, every time I got in a tense situation on the court, I would make my mind go back to a similar situation I'd been in before, and that would calm me. I would be able to tell myself: 'You've been here before, and you did all right.

"I won't be able to do that in baseball, because there is no baseball situation where I've been before. So when I'm nervous on the baseball diamond, I suppose for a while I'll put my mind back in basketball situations, and remember what that felt like. Hopefully, before long I'll have some baseball situations to replace them with." He does, indeed, sound like an enthusiastic kid when he talks about all of this. The news of the world goes by so fast, one headline replaced by another, that it is easy for the rest of us to forget that it has been less than six months since the murder of his father. Jordan is looking for something out there.

He is being very careful not to aspire to any goal past making the squad. He has had so many honors, the highest you can get in sports: NBA champion three times, NBA most valuable player three times, all those covers of Sports Illustrated, all those declarations as the greatest basketball player who ever lived. Yet if you talk with him enough, you begin to understand what this is all about, what it is he is trying to get back. All the honors any man could ever want, but there's one that were he to receive it next autumn would signify more to him than all

Counseling with roots in faith

Samaritan Center's local satellite offers helps with many issues

By DEBBIE LINCECUM

Features Editor

Samaritan Counseling Center's Big Spring satellite is poised for growth.

The center, based in Midland, has been operating one day per week in Big Spring for more than a year. With the return of the Rev. Ginger Brittain Jarman, the counseling program expects to accept more clients, adding another day to its schedule if needed.

With support from local churches, both through financial contributions and referrals, Samaritan hopes its network in Big Spring will continue to grow.

"I'm glad to be back," said Jarman, a minister in the Christian Church (Disciples of Christ). "I really didn't have any idea I'd be working in Big Spring again, but it was such a good experience. There is so much support in the community.

Beginning next week, Jarman will see clients each Tuesday at the Big Spring center, located at First Christian Church, 10th and Goliad. She worked for the local satellite immediately after it opened, but reduced her work schedule a few Counseling is offered to children and adults who are coping with a variety of problems, including divorce, grief, depression and abuse, as well as issues associated with aging, parenting and stepparenting, or growing up. Fees are on a sliding scale, based on income.

Pastoral counseling incorporates psychological research with religious principles. Samaritan's mission statement is "to provide pastoral counseling and psychological services which express God's love to hurting people; help people move toward wholeness in spirit, mind and body; and complement the ministry of the religious community.'

Jarman said the counseling never tries to convert a person or change their beliefs.

"It takes into account the whole person, body, mind and spirit," she said. "We believe it takes all of these to be in balance. Pastoral counseling, she said, "brings one's faith resources to bear upon a problem or crisis." Two members of Samaritan's board of directors are Big Spring residents: Nancy Koger and Bob Federman. A local steering committee advises the satellite; local residents interested in learning more about the service are invited to attend its meeting Feb. 15 at noon at First Christian.

Grace Long, a member of the steering committee and past board member of Samaritan, said the group will be seeking support from more churches in the near future.

We need their financial involvement as well as their interest in what we're doing," she said. "The board is committed to keeping the satellite going.

The steering committee plans to increase publicity about Samaritan through church bulletin inserts and other means

"We want more churches to join in our partnership," Jarman said. "We've had an excellent base of support in Big Spring, and we want to see the center grow to serve the

Bible class

Haven't you often wondered about some of these questions? Is there a God? Does God care about me? Am I good enough to please God? Are evil thoughts sins? Does God answer prayer? What is faith? Is there a life after death? Am I going to heaven?

There's a great renewal of interest in religion today. People are asking questions about it. A special bible class is being offered to study the basic teachings of Christianity by pastor Carroll Kohl of St. Paul Lutheran Church, 810 Scurry, Class begins Feb. 2 at 7:30 p.m. (park on Greg: St. side). Church Man reviews service, music, supper

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH - The Church Man may believe that the meek shall inherit the earth, but he's not a meek man himself.

The Church Man goes from church to synagogue, from mosque to meetinghouse, turning his trained ecclesiastical and critical eye on the sermon, the choir, the architecture, even the potluck supper.

And for the past year and a half, he has taken his observations on the air, for Pittsburgh's WQED-FM. On the music at Mount Ararat Baptist Church: "Alas, the organ is a muddy old Hammond, which should, I believe, be retired to a friendly cocktail lounge.'

On the minister at the Covenant Church of Pittsburgh: "He promised to cast his sermon in four points, but ended up after 75 minutes discussing only three. The first claimed nearly an hour. Two and three were unrelated.'

On the choir at Pine Creek Presbyterian Church: "When the choir sings, she and one other matriarch are it. ... Once - oops! - she hit the keys during a silence. Such bloopers only add charm in a family

Late rally lets Howard Wranglers use 2nd-half

By STEVE REAGAN

Sportswriter

After about 35 minutes of yet another dogfight, the Howard College Lady Hawks decided they had had enough of this nip-and-tuck business.

The Lady Hawks, leading Odessa College by a point with 5:28 to go, scored on six consecutive trips down the floor to gain control of the game, then cruised the rest of the way in for a 72-62 win over the Lady Wranglers Thursday night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Despite going 0-for-5 from the free throw line, and not shooting a free throw in the second half, the Lady Hawks were able to overcome a determined, if undermanned, Odessa team. Howard's record improved to 24-1 overall and 4-1 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference standings.

Odessa, which dropped its fifth straight game, fell to 13-9 overall and 0-4 in the WJCAC standings.

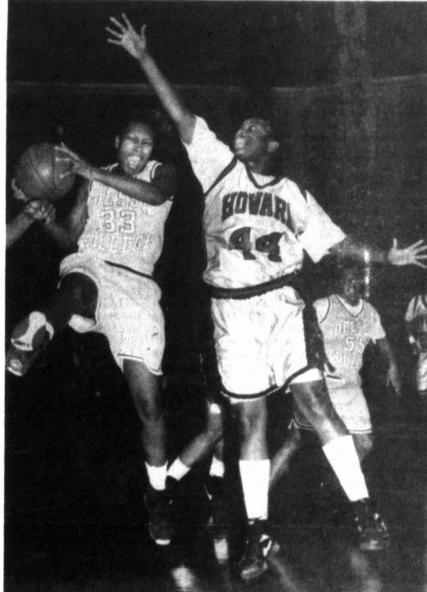

The Lady Hawks' inside game, which has been struggling of late, came alive in the late stages of the game. Sophomore post Angel Spinks led all scorers with 21 points, while fellow post player Annette Robinson added 18 points. Becky Barnes was the other Lady Hawk in double figures, scoring 11 points.

After tight struggles in three of their first four conference games, Spinks said the Lady Hawks finally got fed up with the situation.

"I guess we just got tired of playing all these close games," she said. "We decided to start playing the way we were playing 20 games ago.

Odessa had just closed the gap on a jumper by Truest Bradley with 6 minutes left when Howard decided enough was enough. Barnes scored from the baseline to key a 13-4 run that gave the Lady Hawks a 70-60 lead - not to mention some rare' breathing room – with 1:55 left in the Odessa (21-1, 5-0 in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference) showed why it's ranked second in the nation, beating Howard College 91-68 in a standoff for the WJCAC lead at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Howard forced 20 Odessa turnovers, but Odessa more than compensated, creating 30 Howard turnovers with its vaunted full-court pressure. The Wranglers began to slowly pull away when they put together an eight-point run to go up 50-41. Brian Hamer started the rally with a 4-footer, then Larry Johnson put back his own miss on the next trip down.

Admission makes Harding's future cloudy

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Tonya Harding's emotional admission that she failed to tell authorities when she found out about the conspiracy to attack rival skater Nancy Kerrigan is at the center of a new investigation that could knock her off the Olympic

The U.S. Figure Skating Association named a five-person panel Thursday to recommend whether Harding violated standards of fairness, ethics or sportsmanship in the organization's code of conduct.

"The United States Olympic Committee is deeply concerned with statements made today by Tonya Harding relative to her stated knowledge of the attack on Nancy Kerrigan," USOC executive director Harvey W. Schiller said.

A source told The Associated Press that Harding's statement could hurt her with Olympic officials.
"It could solidify a lot of thought," the source said. The panel has hired a Portland lawyer, John Bennett, to gather evidence and will meet for the first time on Tuesday, hoping to have a recommendation for the USFSA within 10 days to two weeks, said William Hybl, the former chairman of the U.S. Olympic Committee named to head the group. 'This is really a sports organiza-tion endeavoring to provide due process to an athlete, but still enforcing the rules of the association in terms of its code of conduct, the highest standards of ethical behavior and good sportsmanship," Hybl said from Colorado Springs, Colo.

The USFSA has said it still intends to put Harding on the roster for the Winter Olympics, which begin Feb. 12 in Lillehammer, Norway. However, the USOC can make substitutions right up to Feb. 21, when skaters draw their turns to compete. Multnomah County Deputy District Attorney Norm Frink said he wasn't going to be rushed by the approach of the Olympics. "We're on our own timetable," he said. "We're going to do a thorough and complete job."

While her ex-husband was closeted with investigators inside FBI headquarters working on a plea bargain, Harding stood before a throng of television cameras at an athletic club and admitted that her earlier claims that she "totally believed" in his returned home from nationals. "When I returned home Monday, January 10th, 1994, I was exhausted but still focused on the national championships. Within the next few days, I learned that some persons that were close to me may have been involved in the assault. My first reaction was one of disbelief, and the disbelief was followed by shock and fear. I have since reported this information to the authorities." Harding said she was sorry and ashamed that people close to her had attacked Kerrigan, adding that she hoped to remain Kerrigan's Olympic Kerrigan left her practice rink on East Dennis, Mass., without a word about Harding's apology, but coach Mary Scotvold suggested Harding should quit the Olympic team. "This has never happened before in figure skating. There's just no precedent that I can even relate this to." Scotvold said. "I would probably say she would do herself some good to withdraw." Harding's ex-husband, Jeff Gillooly, has been charged along with bodyguard Shawn Eckardt and two other men with conspiring to assault Kerrigan at the national figure skating championships in Detroit. Shane Minoaka Stant is accused of clubbing Kerrigan on the knee with a metal baton Jan. 6 at a practice rink and his uncle, Derrick Smith, is accused of driving the getaway car.

Gillooly spent 11 hours with investigators in the second day of voluntary questioning. His lawyer, Ron Hoevet, refused to say whether a plea bargain had been negotiated. NBC news cited unnamed sources saying Gillooly would plead guilty early next week to a reduced charge, provided he passes a lie-detector

Eckardt has reportedly told authorities that Harding took part in planning and covering up the plot, and even berated him for not accomplishing it sooner.

Harding said her lawyers have told her that her silence after learning about who was responsible for the attack on Kerrigan wasn't a crime. University of Oregon criminal law professor Wayne Westling said that's probably true in relation to a charge of hindering prosecution, but may not be on a charge of conspiracy. If the goal of the conspiracy to attack Kerrigan was to help Harding win a medal at the Winter Olympics next month and cash in on endorsements, then she could be considered an accomplice, he said.

And on De dogged by 52-17. "I thir ey came in to play last said Cowboys running back mmitt Smith, the NFL's most valuable player. "This year, they'll probably execute a whole lot better than they did last year."

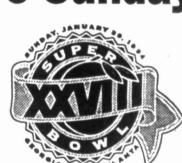

They have no choice, or else the viewing world will be switching channels at halftime and not coming back. If the Bills fall behind 28-10 this time, who is going to expect a miracle comeback?

Buffalo actually led 7-0 in last year's game, at the Rose Bowl. Thurman Thomas' 2-yard run capped a short drive following a blocked punt.

"Being behind is never a big deal for us, especially in the first quarter," tight end Jay Novacek Novacek made sure they weren't behind for long. James Washington's interception gave Dallas the ball at the Bills' 47 and, six plays later, Novacek broke free over the middle for a 23-yard TD reception.

On the next play, Jim Kelly fumbled on a sack by Charles Haley, Jimmie Jones recovered and fell into the end zone. That was the first of the Cowboys' three quick 14-point strikes.

Buffalo again scored first in the second quarter on Steve Christie's 21-yard field goal. Dallas got the next 17 points as Michael Irvin caught two TD passes and Lin Elliott made a 20-yard field goal. Irvin's scores were 18 seconds apart, the second set up by Thurman Thomas's fumble.

"It was a dream come true to score one touchdown in a Super Bowl," Irvin said. "To get two and I knew I was going to score on both of them when Troy called the play - is something you don't dare to dream.

The nightmare continued after Buffalo got within 31-17 on Don Beebe's 40-yard TD reception from Frank Reich, who replaced the injured Kelly in the second period. Troy Aikman hit Alvin Harper for a 45-yard TD, Smit' scored on a 10-yard run and Ken Norton on a 9-yard fumble return.

Had Beebe not caught Leon Lett from behind and knocked the ball loose as Lett headed into the end zone with another fumble return, the Cowboys would have set a Super Bowl record for points. Not that they needed it.

The Bills had more first downs, as many completions, nearly as many passing yards and half as many penalties. They also had nine turnovers, and another Super Bowl flop.

This one was humiliating. No wonder they want everyone to for-

Howard kept the deficit in single digits and moved within six, 62-56, with 9 minutes remaining on a Charles Poe basket down low. Odessa had an answer again, this time with a little high-low magic from the Davises.

First, guard Bobby Davis passed from the perimeter to Dwayne Davis, who slammed home two points. On the Wranglers' next possession, Dwayne moved to the high post and found Bobby on a backdoor cut for another easy deuce. Odessa led 66-56 with 8:10 to go.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JANUARY 29, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your optimistic side emerges today. Take some time off to rest, however, as you might exceed your limits by doing much more than is necessary. Once you re-cycle, your creativity will return full force. Tonight: Chill out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Fun and games surround you as a partner wants to get to know you better. Let your childlike side out. A lot of what is happening is intense and will turn out to be important to you. Tonight: Take action.*

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Enjoy a quiet day at home. Consider cleaning your home or tackling a project that you've had on the back burner. Invite others over for a dinner or get-together. Tonight: Be a social ani-

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Your playful side comes out and leads to a chat that could heat up a relationship. Be willing to show your vulnerability. You might need to talk through some recent fears. Tonight: The LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It is time to get a lingering matter settled. Your options for a creative solution abound. Some family details need attention. Expect positive changes. Tonight: Treat a loved one. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Your magnetism is high, and your playful side emerges. You stand every chance of getting what you desire. Refuse to be intimidated. Tonight: Whatever makes you happy.* LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get some rest to help clear out recent financial confusion. A loved one will give you the necessary support. Perhaps you are not approaching the problem correctly. Tonight: Go over your finances. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your playful side is a hit with friends. Be willing to share your feelings with another. You will begin to see things differently. Prepare to be more assertive about important matters.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You must take a responsible stand with a loved one. Listen to your instincts. Verify any news you hear. You are about to make a big difference in a situation. Tonight: Out and CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Start visualizing a current situation differently. A friend opens a new door. Be ready for some quick changes. Your positive side comes out and presents exciting opportunities.

Tonight: Take a drive.* AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Inviting another to a public event increases the closeness between the two of you. Be positive about your insights, where you are going and what you need. Tonight: Make time for a PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Positive actions taken today will benefit you in the long run. Opportunities for understanding come easily as you manifest a new side, a new way, a different thought process. Be prepared to risk. Tonight: Say yes to a partner.*

IF JAN. 29 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The year ahead could be an important one for you emotionally. Partners will flock to your corner to help build your image. Do not hesitate to ask for the support you need. Community standing and career will be your strong suits, with one-to-one relating adding to your growth and development. Look to an important business partnership. If single, a bond might occur in your emotional life as well. VIRGO adores you
