Child support collections climb

By TIM JONES Staff Writer

Collection of child support payments in 10 West Texas counties has increased substantially, following a statewide trend, since the implementation of a new program by Attorney General Dan Morales.

The Attorney General's regional office in Midland, which serves Howard, Glasscock, Martin and seven other counties, reported an increase in child support collection to $2.9 million during the 1993 fiscal

According to Rita Parson, a spokesperson with the AG's office in Austin, the regional office also estab-

BSPD officers' trial continues in federal court By KELLIE JONES her home. Staff Writer

ABILENE - A jury was seated Monday and testimony was scheduled to continue today in a lawsuit filed against two Big Spring police officers in United States District Court in Abilene.

Reports say Dr. Hubert Jean-Louis and his wife, Ethelene Montgomery Jean-Louis, originally filed suit against the city of Big Spring and two officers, James Sawyer and Steve Wright. The city was dropped from the suit on Dec. 18, 1992. The couple is claiming the officers unlawfully arrested Mrs. Jean-Louis and used excessive force. They are seeking a total of $3 million in the civil rights

Defense attorney Terry Rhodes said the incident took place on April 1, 1990. Reports say the two officers were responding to a call from the next door neighbors, who claimed the Jean-Louises would not return a child's ball that was in their back-

During testimony yesterday, it was revealed that the meeting between the officers and the Jean-Louises escalated into a confrontation after Mrs. Jean-Louis unexpectedly took a picture of Sawyer.

Mrs. Jean-Louis said the reason she took the photograph was to show that Sawyer had become angry. She then claims he shook his finger in her face, which Sawyer denies.

At that time, she either pushed his hand away or grabbed Sawyer's finger and he told her she was under arrest, but Mrs. Jean-Louis ran into During testimony, Mrs. Jean-Louis claims Sawyer did not tell her she was under arrest until she tried to contact her attorney by telephone.

Sawyer said he eventually had to wrap her in a "bear hug" and carry her out of the house to the police car, and then handcuff her.

Mrs. Jean-Louis denies this and claims Sawyer forced her face down onto a sofa, placed a knee in her back and applied pressure points to cause pain and compliance.

Mrs. Jean-Louis says she still has to take pain medicine and muscle relaxers and the experience has caused nightmares and depression.

On the witness stand, Dr. Jean-Louis said his wife has gone from being a stable person to being withdrawn and she suffers from high blood pressure and muscle spasms. The defense claims that records show Mrs. Jean-Louis was already taking a number of medications before the incident took place.

A jury of six women is hearing the case before U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings of Lubbock.

The Jean-Louises are seeking $1 million each, plus $1 million in punitive damages.

James Sawyer is now employed at the Big Spring federal prison camp and worked at the police department for about two years.

Steve Wright is still a patrolman at the police department and has been employed there for about six years.

Minority business breakfast scheduled

By KELLIE JONES Staff Writer

Are you a small business owner or perhaps want to start writing your own paychecks but need some direction? Then you might be interested in attending the Big Spring Minority and Small Business Breakfast this Wednesday.

It will be at the El Nopal Cafe, 1703 Gregg Street, from 7:30 to 8:30 a.m. The breakfast is sponsored by the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, Fina Refinery, Howard College Business Development Center and TU Electric.

The breakfast project was started to help small business and minority leaders gather in an informal atmosphere to talk about how to increase sales, how to bid jobs and contracts with major purchasers, to learn how to get that portion of work that is set aside for minority contractors, and to make the right contacts than can further the small or minority business.

For those who cannot attend the meeting Wednesday, there are two more opportunities in April and May. Alberto's Crystal Cafe will be the host

The local organization of the Combined Law Enforcement Associations of Texas (CLEAT) is spearheading a campaign to honor Big Spring police officers who have lost their lives in the line of duty.

CLEAT and the non-profit organization Peace Officers Memorial Foundation Inc. are challenging all law enforcement entities across the state to raise $1.6 million to build a memorial on the state capital grounds in Austin. Officials are asking each agency to raise $2,000 for each of their officers who died while upholding the "Right now, the two organizations have rights to the land that was given to them by the state legislature five years ago, but they could lose that if the $1.6 million is not raised by October 1994," said Sgt. Stan Parker of the Big Spring Police Department. The goal of CLEAT members and the police department is to raise $6,000 so that the three officers who died will have their names added to the memorial. Patrolman Henry Franklin Howie was killed in the line of duty on Aug. 10, 1931. He was fatally wounded after

Council slates two meetings Tuesday

Emma Bogard from the city of Big Spring's personnel office will discuss with the council the current workman's compensation policy during a specially-called workshop at 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Following the workshop will be the 5:30 p.m. regular council meeting at 2000 Air Park Drive West on the McMahon-Wrinkle Air Park.

Bogard said some discussion of workman's compensation issues has become necessary because the city is self-insuring.

"One of the items we'll discuss is if we need to increase the amount of money we put into this fund, and if so, how much," Bogard explained. "Then, we'll look at the different layers of coverage we have structured and see how much of that is really necessary.

Bogard said that no action can be taken, as this is a workshop for discussion and for consideration as to how city officials need to proceed on a comprehensive workman's compensation policy.

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Democratic candidates in the high-profile U.S. Senate race say they are concerned over how a projected light voter turnout will affect results in today's primary elec-

The race to challenge Republican U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, who faced only minor opposition in the GOP primary, generated the most heat but left the candidates in agreement on one thing: low voter interest.

Both former attorney general Jim Mattox and U.S. Rep. Mike Andrews said they were concerned about the projected turnout.

Andrews, who gave up the U.S. House seat he's held for 12 years to run for Senate, said he was surprised by the widespread apathy.

"That's one of the things I misjudged early in this campaign. I realthought because this was a Senate race, there would be much more focus by the press and by the public," Andrews said.

"I don't believe that people haven't been voting because they don't care about their government. I believe voting has been so low because moving our primary from May to March was a mistake," Mattox said. The primary was moved in a bid to give Texas more clout in presidential election years.

The third major candidate in the race is Dallas investor Richard Fisher. As did Mattox and Andrews, Fisher visited several cities looking for

If no candidate gets more than 50 percent of the vote, the top two advance to an April 12 runoff.

Fisher, a former adviser to Ross Perot who's portrayed himself as the political outsider in this race, said he expected to win the nomination. He called Mattox an old-style politician, adding, "I'm convinced if he wins the nomination — and I don't think he will - he'll lose worse than (Bob) The Senate race will top the his occupation as retired. On the Republican side, George W. Bush, 47, eldest son of the former president and managing partner of the Texas Rangers baseball team, expected little trouble against his lone GOP rival, Abilene demolition contractor Ray Hollis

Five Democrats seeking statewide office were unopposed — Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, Attorney General Dan Morales, Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, Comptroller John Sharp and agriculture commissioner candidate

Marvin Gregory, a Sulphur Springs dairy farmer and rancher.

Four Republicans also were unopposed: Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry, lieutenant governor candidate Tex Lezar, comptroller hopeful Teresa Doggett and land commissioner candidate Marta Greytok.

Four Republicans were seeking the nomination to challenge Morales: Tony Garza, Cameron County judge; Pat Lykos, a state district judge in Houston; John Marshall, a state district judge in Dallas, and Don Wittig, a state district judge in Houston.

State Treasurer Martha Whitehead, the former Longview mayor appointed by Richards last year to succeed Mrs. Hutchison, wants to abolish the job by merging it into the comptroller's office, which already collects state taxes.

Neither her Democratic primary opponent, Tyler high school teacher Grady Yarborough, nor the two Republicans, Austin banker David Hartman and Houston high school student Mike Wolfe, agree.

Oft-attacked helium reserve under fire again

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The oft-attacked helium reserve program is once again coming in for congressional opposition.

Since the mid-1980s, the Texasbased reserve has survived attempts by some in Congress to pull the plug on what they deride as an antiquated government program that long ago outlived its usefulness.

Rep. Richard Lehman, D-Calif., is the latest lawmaker seeking to end a program that traces its beginnings to World War I. The chairman of the House energy and mineral resources subcommittee is introducing legislation today that would free government agencies from their obligation to buy helium exclusively from the federal stockpile in the Texas Pan-

His bill also would force the eventual sale of the 32 billion cubic feet of helium — valued at $1 billion or more - stored in an underground dome northwest of Amarillo.

"It's an idea that's outlived its purpose," said Lehman's press secretary, Joe Rosato. "There's absolutely no need for it." Reserve General Manager Dale Bippus said any savings from shutting down the program and terminating its 225 jobs could prove illusory. The General Accounting Office,

Big Spring elementary school students recently competed in a yearly effort to promote bus safety by designing bus safety posters.

Howard Stewart, director of transportation for the school district, said information about the contest was distributed after Bus Safety Week in October. Students had until Feb. 4 to turn in their posters.

School bus drivers judged the posters. All the school winners received a ribbon, and those finishing in the top four places on the district-wide judging received another larger ribbon.

Coahoma girls win home debut

By DAVE HARGRAVE Sports Editor

COAHOMA - The Coahoma Bulldogettes waited and waited to start the first softball season in school history. After two cancellations, Coahoma debuted Saturday and lost a doubleheader at Midland. Monday was another opener of sorts - the home opener - and the Bulldogettes didn't disappoint. Coahoma (1-2) beat San Angelo Central 7-3 as the Bulldogettes notched a win over a 5A school. All signs were positive for Coahoma the defense was strong for an earlyseason game, the pitching was there and the bats were booming.

First, the pitching. Coahoma's Audra Bingham mowed down Central 1-2-3 in the first two innings and kept control of the game throughout, striking out six and walking none in a complete-game effort. "She was stronger toward the end than I thought she'd be," said Coahoma coach Danny Randolph. "I figured she'd give us four good innings and then tail off, but she just kept on going, so I left her in there. We had other people waiting in the wings, but Audra did a good job."

Next, the defense. Coahoma committed three errors but made some big plays as well, starting with center fielder Julie Hernandez's fine running catch in the right-center field gap to start the second inning. Bingham helped herself in the third, snuffing out a potential Central rally when she scooped a popped bunt attempt before it hit the ground and fired to first base to double off Central's Casey Floyd.

"On defense, we rlayed a lot better than we did Saturday," said Randolph, referring to Coahoma's 9-0 and 13-3 losses in the doubleheader with Midland. "I guess you could say the glove was our friend this time, instead of an enemy.

We're saving the bats for last here, mainly because Central outhit Coahoma 6-5. However, whereas Central did not capitalize on the Bulldogettes' three errors, Coahoma cashed in Central's two secondinning errors for two runs.

Coahoma's Krista Jeffcoat led of the second with a bunt and reached second when Floyd, Central's catcher, threw the ball down the rightfield line. Leslie Rodriguez followed with a grounder to shortstop Heather Boyd, but Boyd threw late to third as she tried to cut down Jeffcoat. Andi Schneider drove home Jeffcoat on a grounder to short, and Stephanie Stone put Coahoma up 2-0 with an RBI single up the middle.

Central scored one in the top of the fourth, but Coahoma built a 6-1 lead with four runs in the fifth.

Hernandez led off Coahoma's rally with a single and moved all the way to third on Tori Elmore's grounder to third. Dolores Garcia grounded to third baseman Angela Wehrle, who got the ball to Floyd in plenty of time to cut down Hernandez at the plate provided Floyd could have held on to the ball, which she didn't.

James Madison takes Lefty to tournament as NCAA field grows

By The Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Fifteen minutes after making the NCAA tournament for the first time in eight years, Lefty Driesell was back to his old wisecracking self.

Driesell's James Madison Dukes came back from a 19-point deficit in Monday night's Colonial Athletic Association championship game, beating Old Dominion 77-76 on a 3pointer at the buzzer by Kent Culuko.

The victory gives them the league's automatic berth in the 64-team NCAA field, a berth that traditionally has translated into a 15th or 16th seed in a regional.

James Madison's seeding shouldn't be any different. The Dukes haven't beaten ranked all year, they're making their first NCAA tournament appearance since 1983, and they're coming off four consecutive firstround losses in the National Invitation Tournament.

That didn't stop Driesell from smiling broadly as he proclaimed maybe it was time for some respect.

"I think we ought to be seeded first with that comeback, you know?" he said. "Yeah, first in the East."

Not likely, but Driesell will take it

Instead, second seeded James Madison (20-9) staged a comeback that left Driesell giddy.

Old Dominion (20-9) was trying to become the first No. 1 seed to win the CAA tournament since 1988.

"I thought we were in pretty good shape, obviously, when we got the lead," coach Oliver Purnell said.

Riding the perimeter shooting of Mike Jones and the strong inside play of Odell Hodge, the Monarchs built a 61-42 lead with 13:05 remaining. But James Madison used a 14-1 run to charge back into contention, and kept chipping away.

"It was almost like watching a bad movie," Purnell said. "It seemed like fate with some of their shots that were going in."

The Dukes tied it 74-74 on a 3pointer by Darren McLinton with 1:37 left, but Hodge put Old Dominion ahead again on a layup with 16 seconds to go.

James Madison's Dennis Leonard missed a baseline jumper with eight seconds left, but teammate Clayton Ritter got the rebound. Ritter's shot was blocked out of bounds by Hodge with 1.1 seconds to go. Purnell called a timeout to make a defensive substitution. Driesell wanted to call a play designed for a tying basket. "But all the guys said, 'Let's go for the win, let's go for three,' " Driesell

His son Chuck, the team's assistant coach, called the play.

Ritter, on the baseline, inbounded the ball to Culuko, who had worked his way off a screen and was free on the right wing. Culuko's shot hit nothing but net.

Darius Johnson's 3-pointer with 31 seconds to play put Loyola ahead for good as the Greyhounds claimed their first-ever berth in the NCAA tournament.

Loyola (17-12) had never even won a MAAC tournament game before this year. The title continued a remarkable turnaround under firstyear coach Skip Prosser. Loyola was 2-25 last season.

Manhattan (19-10) was seeking its second straight NCAA bid.

Pepperdine 56, San Diego 53 Dana Jones scored 17 points to rally Pepperdine to a win in the West Coast Conference tournament and advance to the NCAA tournament for the third time in four seasons.

Pepperdine (19-10) held San Diego scoreless during the final 3:15 of the game after overcoming an eightpoint halftime deficit.

Brooks Barnhard and Chris Grant led San Diego (18-11) with 11 points. Barnhard also had 13 rebounds for the Toreros, who have lost the past eight and 13 of their last 14 games against Pepperdine.

In many ways, the computer and the many relatives of its silicon-chip brethren have infiltrated our daily lives. Yet, almost the day we buy the newest technology, the machine is obsolete, with far-superior power available at a cheaper cost.

Therefore, I have been asked to write this column to provide the latest information I have received on the computer and game-machine front. I will (hopefully, with the help of software distributors) be reviewing the latest in software, including entertainment, educational, utilities and more, while also writing about interesting computer industry tidbits of local interest.

Virtual reality—the long-awaited cyberworld where users donning full body suits and helmets enter another dimension via their computer, is not quite here. Yet.

But the latest shareware program from Gold Medallion Software could be one of the closest alternatives to VR to occupy hard drive space. In fact, shareware users will find a great number of similarities between "Doom-Knee Deep in the Dead" to the popular classic "Wolfenstein 3-D."

In "Doom," you are a marine sent to the Martian moon of Phobos, where a military experiment at the Union Aerospace Corporation has gone awry . Your buddies have been wiped out; it's just you, walking through the darkened corridors, battling mutant humans, battle demons and other nightmarish crea-

To aid you in your quest, you start with a simple handgun, but you can add to your arsenal with handy little items like shotguns and rocket launchers.

The game, though it can be found on bulletin boards around the country, can be purchased at Midland's Software Etc. for $8. The files are quite large, so you can spend the $15 on phone bills and possibly have bad files, or just go out and buy the two 3.5-inch high-density disks.

Installation is extremely userfriendly, with the only needed instructions being on the little label on the disks itself. Decompressing the files took some time on a 386SX-16 computer but no time at all on a 486DX-33.

Once started, the user is faced with the "Wolfenstein"-like four levels of difficulty, from "I'm too young to die" to "Ultra-violent."

Finally you are thrown into the game itself, armed with only the handgun and the nerve to mingle with these bad boys. Like "Wolfenstein," the screen shows the POV (point-of-view) of the main character, with the drawn weapon in front of your eyes.

With your weapon and savvy, you must get to the exit to advance to the next level. Shooting the creatures that try to stop you is, well, not a pretty sight, so some parents may object to the violent nature of the game. But graphically-speaking, there is far worse on the television networks during prime-time.

And speaking of graphics, the graphics of "Doom" far surpass those of "Wolfenstein." Detail in the walls, floor and ceiling are as near as realistic as can be without being digitized. So much detail has gone into the creation of "Doom" that your character actually "bounces" as he takes a step. And watch the mountainous background as you pass by a window.

Where "Wolfenstein" deals on a two-dimensional level, "Doom allows you to ascend and descend stairs and use lifts, adding a greater amount of realism to the game.

Much like "Wolfenstein," there are nine levels you must get through. These levels are in the form of different buildings, like the nuclear plant or the toxin refinery. And at the end of each level, you are given the percentage of kills, items taken and secret rooms like "Wolfenstein."

This fully-functional program is shareware (a try-before-you-buy concept) and registration payment will get you two more episodes, "The Shores of Hell" and "Inferne," in addition to the manuals and support.

"Doom" is one of the best shareware programs on the market in the entertainment field and can easily compete against any commercial program in terms of excitement and graphics. If your system meets all the program requirements, "Doom"

They are listed in order of difficulty, with the easier pre-reader assignments listed first. Ask the children to do the following

1. The theme of this year's NIE Week is Celebrate Diversity. While we are all alike from A to Z, we have our differences, too. Under each category of the way we are alike, there are differences. Using this issue as a guide, write down one word that describes you. For example, what is your favorite activity? When is your birthday, etc. After filling in the blanks from A to Z, exchange the information about you with a partner. Talk about how you are different and how you are alike.

Look through your newspaper for words that would also describe you. Paste them on a sheet of paper and exchange and talk them over with a partner. 3. Get another copy of this issue. Cut apart the A to Z blocks. Mix them up, then have a race with a friend to see who can find the most matching blocks.

4. Create a Newspaper in Education Week poster Pretend that you are a newspaper reporter. Make a list of the questions that you might ask someone who is different from you. What would you like to find out?

WHAT YOU NEED: Paper towel - grown-up helper - car or truck (which is why you need a grown-up)

Wait until the next time someone gets home from a drive. The longer the drive, the better for your research. Make sure your grown-up driver parks the car so that the front end is slightly uphill. After the motor is turned off, put the paper towel on the ground underneath the exhaust pipe. CAUTION: Do not louch any part of the car, it's very hot! Don't get burned. FS from Beakman. Dear Christine, A long, long time ago, way back in the 1970s, an artist named Joni Mitchell wrote a song about seeing lines drawn across the desert sky by jet planes. She said, "It was the hexagram of the heavens. They were the strings of my guitar." I think you're asking about the same thing - lines across the sky, hanging there in time. Those lines in the sky are not smoke. They are long artificial clouds made out of condensing water vapor. The water came from moisture in the jet fuel as well as whatever moisture was in the air that the jet engine sucked in.

WHAT IS GOING ON: In a half hour or so, you'll probably see water spots on the paper towel. If the pipe is cool, ask your grown-up helper to stick the towel inside the tailpipe. It will come

SO WHAT: Besides making muffler repair shops very happy, this also demonstrates that there is just a bit of water in gasoline. The same is true for jet fuel.

take A closer Look

The next time you see guitar strings in the sky, find the plane. You'll see there is a space between the plane and the start of the long white lines. Something very important is going on in that space. Water vapor in the exhaust is cooling and turning back into water.

Water vapor is invisible, so when it comes out of the jet engine, we can't see it.

But last week we learned that way up in the sky it's very cold because the air is so thin. Cold air cannot hold as much water vapor as hot air. So the water vapor condenses back into a mist of water - an artificial cloud.

Air getting colder and water vapor condensing is why there are drops of water on the outside of a glass of iced soda pop.

Coahoma (1-2) beat San Angelo Central 7-3 as the Bulldogettes notched a win over a 5A school. All signs were positive for Coahoma the defense was strong for an earlyseason game, the pitching was there and the bats were booming.

First, the pitching. Coahoma's Audra Bingham mowed down Central 1-2-3 in the first two innings and kept control of the game throughout, striking out six and walking none in a complete-game effort. "She was stronger toward the end than I thought she'd be," said Coahoma coach Danny Randolph. "I figured she'd give us four good innings and then tail off, but she just kept on going, so I left her in there. We had other people waiting in the wings, but Audra did a good job."

Next, the defense. Coahoma committed three errors but made some big plays as well, starting with center fielder Julie Hernandez's fine running catch in the right-center field gap to start the second inning. Bingham helped herself in the third, snuffing out a potential Central rally when she scooped a popped bunt attempt before it hit the ground and fired to first base to double off Central's Casey Floyd.

"On defense, we rlayed a lot better than we did Saturday," said Randolph, referring to Coahoma's 9-0 and 13-3 losses in the doubleheader with Midland. "I guess you could say the glove was our friend this time, instead of an enemy."

We're saving the bats for last here, mainly because Central outhit Coahoma 6-5. However, whereas Central did not capitalize on the Bulldogettes' three errors, Coahoma cashed in Central's two secondinning errors for two runs.

Coahoma's Krista Jeffcoat led off the second with a bunt and reached second when Floyd, Central's catcher, threw the ball down the rightfield line. Leslie Rodriguez followed with a grounder to shortstop Heather Boyd, but Boyd threw late to third as she tried to cut down Jeffcoat. Andi Schneider drove home Jeffcoat on a grounder to short, and Stephanie Stone put Coahoma up 2-0 with an RBI single up the middle.

Central scored one in the top of the fourth, but Coahoma built a 6-1 lead with four runs in the fifth.

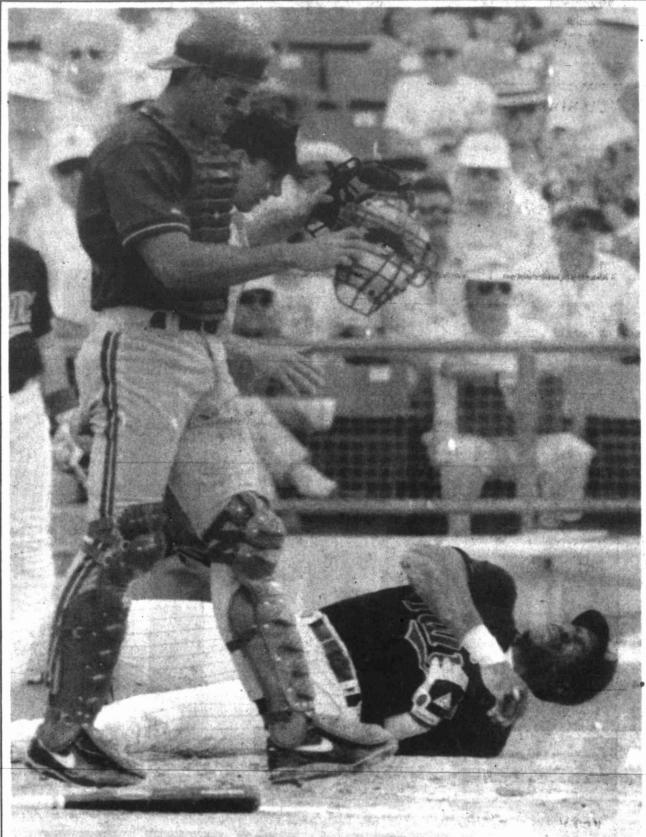

Hernandez led off Coahoma's rally with a single and moved all the way to third on Tori Elmore's grounder to third. Dolores Garcia grounded to third baseman Angela Wehrle, who got the ball to Floyd in plenty of time to cut down Hernandez at the plate provided Floyd could have held on to the ball, which she didn't.

Coahoma jumped on that break and pushed three more runs across, two on Jeffcoat's double to left-cen-

Central moved within 6-3 with two runs in the sixth but was denied the chance for a bigger rally when Bingham struck out Stephanie Kiser and caught Jessica Cruz's line drive

Coahoma had planned to play its season opener Friday at home against Westbrook, but Randolph said the game was postponed because Westbrook had several players out of town.

James Madison takes Lefty to tournament as NCAA field grows NBA Standings

By The Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Fifteen minutes after making the NCAA tournament for the first time in eight years, Lefty Driesell was back to his old wise-

Driesell's James Madison Dukes came back from a 19-point deficit in Monday night's Colonial Athletic Association championship game, beating Old Dominion 77-76 on a 3pointer at the buzzer by Kent Culuko.

The victory gives them the league's automatic berth in the 64-team NCAA field, a berth that traditionally has translated into a 15th or 16th seed in a regional.

James Madison's seeding shouldn't be any different. The Dukes haven't beaten ranked all year, they're making their first NCAA tournament appearance since 1983, and they're coming off four consecutive firstround losses in the National Invitation Tournament.

That didn't stop Driesell from smiling broadly as he proclaimed maybe it was time for some respect.

"I think we ought to be seeded first with that comeback, you know?" he said. "Yeah, first in the East." Not likely, but Driesell will take it

- Pepperdine, which beat San Diego 56-53 in the West Coast Conference.

In Top 25 games Monday night, No. 9 Massachusetts beat Duquesne 69-52 in the semifinals of the Atlantic 10 tournament and No. 12 Temple beat George-Washington 54-34 in the other semifinal. Also, No. 24 Penn beat Columbia 89-69. The Dukes' victory broke a string of disappointments that has followed Driesell since he was forced out of his Maryland coaching job after the cocaine-induced death of Len Bias in Old Dominion (20-9) was trying to become the first No. 1 seed to win the CAA tournament since 1988.

"I thought we were in pretty good shape, obviously, when we got the lead," coach Oliver Purnell said.

Riding the perimeter shooting of Mike Jones and the strong inside play of Odell Hodge, the Monarchs built a 61-42 lead with 13:05 remaining. But James Madison used a 14-1 run to charge back into contention, and kept chipping away.

"It was almost like watching a bad movie," Purnell said. "It seemed like fate with some of their shots that were going in.'

The Dukes tied it 74-74 on a 3pointer by Darren McLinton with 1:37 left, but Hodge put Old Dominion ahead again on a layup with 16 seconds to go.

James Madison's Dennis Leonard missed a baseline jumper with eight seconds left, but teammate Clayton Ritter got the rebound. Ritter's shot was blocked out of bounds by Hodge with 1.1 seconds to go.

Purnell called a timeout to make a defensive substitution. Driesell wanted to call a play

designed for a tying basket. "But all the guys said, 'Let's go for the win, let's go for three," Driesell

His son Chuck, the team's assistant coach, called the play.

Ritter, on the baseline, inbounded the ball to Culuko, who had worked his way off a screen and was free on the right wing. Culuko's shot hit nothing but net.

1. The theme of this year's NIE Week is Celebrate Diversity. While we are all about you with a partner. Talk about how you are different and how you are alike

Look through your newspaper for words that would also describe you. Paste them on a sheet of paper and exchange and talk them over with a partner.

In many ways, the computer and the many relatives of its silicon-chip brethren have infiltrated our daily lives. Yet, almost the day we buy the newest technology, the machine is obsolete, with far-superior power available at a cheaper cost.

Therefore, I have been asked to write this column to provide the latest information I have received on the computer and game-machine front. I will (hopefully, with the help of software distributors) be reviewing the latest in software, including entertainment, educational, utilities and more, while also writing about interesting computer industry tidbits of local interest.

Virtual reality—the long-awaited cyberworld where users donning full body suits and helmets enter another dimension via their computer, is not quite here. Yet.

But the latest shareware program from Gold Medallion Software could be one of the closest alternatives to VR to occupy hard drive space. In fact, shareware users will find a great number of similarities between "Doom-Knee Deep in the Dead" to the popular classic "Wolfenstein 3-D."

In "Doom," you are a marine sent to the Martian moon of Phobos, where a military experiment at the Union Aerospace Corporation has gone awry . Your buddies have been wiped out; it's just you, walking through the darkened corridors, battling mutant humans, battle demons and other nightmarish crea-

To aid you in your quest, you start with a simple handgun, but you can add to your arsenal with handy little items like shotguns and rocket launchers.

The game, though it can be found on bulletin boards around the country, can be purchased at Midland's Software Etc. for $8. The files are quite large, so you can spend the $15 on phone bills and possibly have bad files, or just go out and buy the two 3.5-inch high-density disks.

Installation is extremely userfriendly, with the only needed instructions being on the little label on the disks itself. Decompressing the files took some time on a 386SX-16 computer but no time at all on a 486DX-33.

Once started, the user is faced with the "Wolfenstein"-like four levels of difficulty, from "I'm too young to die" to "Ultra-violent."

Finally you are thrown into the game itself, armed with only the handgun and the nerve to mingle with these bad boys. Like "Wolfenstein," the screen shows the POV (point-of-view) of the main character, with the drawn weapon in front of your eyes.

With your weapon and savvy, you must get to the exit to advance to the next level. Shooting the creatures that try to stop you is, well, not a pretty sight, so some parents may object to the violent nature of the game. But graphically-speaking, there is far worse on the television networks during prime-time.

And speaking of graphics, the graphics of "Doom" far surpass those of "Wolfenstein." Detail in the walls, floor and ceiling are as near as realistic as can be without being digitized. So much detail has gone into the creation of "Doom" that your character actually "bounces" as he takes a step. And watch the mountainous background as you pass by a window.

Where "Wolfenstein" deals on a two-dimensional level, "Doom allows you to ascend and descend stairs and use lifts, adding a greater amount of realism to the game.

Much like "Wolfenstein," there are nine levels you must get through. These levels are in the form of different buildings, like the nuclear plant or the toxin refinery. And at the end of each level, you are given the percentage of kills, items taken and secret rooms like "Wolfenstein." This fully-functional program is shareware (a try-before-you-buy concept) and registration payment will get you two more episodes, "The Shores of Hell" and "Inferno," in addition to the manuals and support. "Doom" is one of the best shareware programs on the market in the entertainment field and can easily compete against any commercial program in terms of excitement and graphics. If your system meets all the program requirements, "Doom" is a must.

System requirements: PC compat ble 386 or greater, 4MB RAM, VGA, 5MB free hard drive space, mouse, Sound Blaster sound card and IPX network support.

A friend of mine currently living in Dallas has informed me that 386 and 386 motherboard prices have been plummeting like a rock in recent weeks. So if you happen to have an older system and would like to upgrade, now would be a good time to do so at an inexpensive

WHAT YOU NEED: Paper towel - grown-up helper - car or truck (which is why you need a grown-up)

Wait until the next time someone gets home from a drive. The longer the drive, the better for your research. Make sure your grown-up driver parks the car so that the front end is slightly uphill. After the motor is turned off, put the paper towel on the ground underneath the exhaust pipe. CAUTION: Do not touch any part of the car, it's very hot! Don't get burned.

A long, long time ago, way back in the 1970s, an artist named Joni Mitchell wrote a song about seeing lines drawn across the desert sky by jet planes. She said, "It was the hexagram of the heavens. They were the strings of my guitar." I think you're asking about the same thing - lines across the sky, hanging there in time. Those lines in the sky are not smoke. They are long artificial clouds made out of condensing water vapor The water came from moisture in the jet fuel as well as whatever moisture was in the air that the jet engine sucked in.

WHAT IS GOING ON:

In a half hour or so, you'll probably see water spots on the paper towel. If the pipe is cool, ask your grown-up helper to stick the towel inside the tailpipe. It will come out quite wet.

SO WHAT:

Besides making muffler repair shops very happy, this also demonstrates that there is just a bit of water in gasoline. The same is true for jet fuel.

take A closer Look

The next time you see guitar strings in the sky, find the plane. You'll see there is a space between the plane and the start of the long white lines. Something very important is going on in that space. Water vapor in the exhaust is cooling and turning

Water vapor is invisible, so when it comes out of the jet engine, we can't see it.

But last week we learned that way up in the sky it's very cold because the air is so thin. Cold air cannot hold as much water vapor as hot air. So the water vapor condenses back into a mist of water

Air getting colder and water vapor condensing is why there are drops of water on the outside of a glass of iced soda pop.

m Beakman: Empirical (em-PIR-eh-cul) means to be doing. The sam from direct observation. It's great as a kind of joke excuse for getting caught doing something you're not supposed to be doing. The saying. "I'm doing empirical research."

Dear Abby - Letters...

Secondhand smoke bothers nonsmoking wife

DEAR ABBY: At the top of my Christmas wish list last year was my desire to give my husband the nicotine patch. He refused me

When we were first married more than 40 years ago, I didn't mind his smoking, but now at we are in our 70s, I have res problems as well as eye problems, and the smoke is very irritating. He refuses to believe that secondhand smoke is injurious to others. Our grandchildren don't want to be near him; his sister and her husband refuse to stay here overnight or go on trips with us.

I enjoy taking walks in the crisp Maine air, only to be assaulted with a wall of smoke when I come home. I'm really a home person, but lately I try to be out of the house as much as possible.

We rarely watch television together, as I leave the room when he lights up. I miss the closeness we once had.

Not only did he refuse the nicotine patch, he didn't get me a Christmas gift again this year — not even a card. But somehow he always finds the extra money for cigarettes.

We both read Dear Abby faithfully, and I thought if you published this, he might recognize himself and it might also help to open the eyes of other smokers. — SMOKED OUT IN MAINE

DEAR SMOKED OUT: Here's your letter; I hope it helps. When will people realize that smoking is addictive? I have been playing on that one string ever since I started writing this column in 1956, and I have literally begged youngsters not to start smoking - it's too hard to quit. And secondhand smoke is not only irritating, it's damaging to others.

DEAR ABBY: Recently in your column, there was a letter from a woman about not donating clothing items to charity if they are stained, torn or out of style.

She meant well; however, I hope that people don't just throw away the used clothing. I recycle clothing by buying thrift shop clothes and using the buttons, ribbons, lace and rts for art projects or for rating other clothes. An applique can easily hide a stain or tear, and long pants with holes in the knees can be made into shorts. Fabric alone can be used in a variety of ways, and our landfills don't need any unnecessary

I'll bet your readers would agree and, perhaps, come up with many other ideas about recycling used clothes. Many of those "stains" come out when properly washed. you know. -JANET IN BOYNTON BEACH.

DEAR JANET: Your point is well-taken. One person's trash can be another person's

DEAR ABBY: Being an extensive traveler, I have my own amusing story about customs officials. Returning to the U.S.A., I noticed that each fourth tourist was being searched. I was relieved as I was not to be - but lo, the lady in front of me said, "I have been flying for 18 hours straight. If you open this suitcase, one of us is going to be terribly embarrassed!" He motioned her past, and I dumped everything from all my bags for inspection. Upon leaving the area, I spotted her at a restaurant table and quipped, "For once, how fortunate to be female!" With that, she opened the case, where two complete 24piece settings of sterling flatware lay. She said, "Like I said, if he had opened that suitcase, one of us would have been terribly embarrassed."
