What's the policy?

911 contract opinions vary among officials

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Is there a verbal or written policy between the Howard County Sheriff's Department and the Big Spring Police Department on the proper way to handle 911 calls?

Sheriff A.N. Standard said, "I had a verbal agreement between myself, former police chief Joe Cook and 911 coordinator Carl Dorton that the city should dispatch for the sheriff's office, including 911 calls, between the hours of 4 a.m. and 7 a.m. when (the sheriff's office) does not have a dispatcher on duty."

However, when Dorton was questioned about the verbal agreement, he said, "We don't do verbal agreements. I've never talked to both of them. I don't negotiate in that particular sense because it's between the city and county. I know for a fact that Cook and Standard sat down to discuss this but as far as what was decided, I don't know. There were some limitations talked about, but as far as a written policy, there isn't one. If those involved want me to, I'll sit down and help negotiate all of this to get the bugs out. I would like to see this resolved."

When asked why a new verbal agreement had not been made with Chief Jerry Edwards, if there had been a verbal agreement between Standard and Cook, Standard said, "Dorton knew about it and he's still here."

The interagency agreement between 911, the city and county concerning dispatching and 911 calls states: "The city shall answer and forward all 911 calls to the proper emergency agency, including the Howard County Sheriff's Office. Additionally, the city shall dispatch all calls for the county as provided in subsection B."

Subsection B states, "The hours for which dispatching services shall be provided will be agreed upon by the head of the county emergency agency involved (sheriff's office) and these hours and conditions shall be put into written form for the approval of the city representative (police chief) and appropriate county emergency agency representative."

In other words, the contract states the city shall provide for dispatching services between the city and all

Heat is on in Forsan board race

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

FORSAN — One of the hottest contested elections in the area is the one that will choose two board members for the Forsan Independent School District.

Four candidates will compete for three-year terms. They are Sammy Anderson, Lewis Boeker, Galynn Gamble and Reba Bristow.

Three of the candidates have children enrolled in the FSD. The incumbent, Boeker, and his wife are expecting their first child in September.

All candidates agree parents should be involved in the schools, taking pro-active roles in their children's educational development.

"A parent's role is number one," says Boeker. "If we don't have parental involvement, then we'll just decline. If parents stay uninvolved, we'll just not get anywhere."

Galynn Gamble feels if parents don't take an active role, then they shouldn't complain. "I've been involved in the public schools for six years and I stay very involved in all that my children do. I help in any way I can and I always try to help."

Bristow says she would like to see greater communication flowing from the student through the parents and then on to administration and the board. "Then, we need to take that communication and turn it into positive action," she adds.

Anderson feels many parents are ignored by the current board. "There needs to be a parent committee since the school board is really not listening to what the parents are saying."

"I think we need to be able to discuss what's going on and not be at each other's throats. The way it is, I don't believe we're going anywhere now. Forsan I.S.D. seems to be drifting away from concern for the kids," Anderson concludes.

Boeker, a boardmember, disagrees. "We already have site-based decision making in the form of parent/teacher committees on each campus," he said. "The main problem right now is school finance. We'll have to find ways to cut costs and operate more efficiently."

Bristow feels parents are not being ignored, but instead are not comfortable in approaching the board. "It's not apathy keeping the parents away," she said. "It's more a situation where parents are not sure how to speak to the board or make their concerns known."

"Parents are afraid to say something to the board for fear it will fall back on their children," adds Gamble. "I've tried to get parents to go with me because I think our involvement is extremely important."

All four candidates agree academics should come before athletics and schools should be allowed to discipline a child if necessary.

"Athletics and academics run hand in hand, although academics are number one," said Boeker. "If an athlete doesn't do well in school, then they shouldn't play."

"But I also feel athletics teach leadership, teamwork and discipline which are valuable later in life. As for discipline, it's the parents job first."

Anderson agrees, saying, "Academics last a lifetime. Sports teach some things, but school should be first. If an athlete is caught using alcohol or drugs, then they should be kicked off the team."

"I think the two are meshed together," says Gamble.

Woman's incarceration raises questions of juror's privacy

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Dianna Brandborg is neither a rebellious teen-ager nor a practiced civil rights activist. But when she felt wronged by the judicial system, she stood her ground.

Mrs. Brandborg, a potential juror in a capital murder trial in Denton, refused to answer certain questions that she deemed too personal. A judge promptly sentenced her to three days in jail for contempt of court.

The 48-year-old office manager was stunned — not only that she was sentenced to jail, but that she apparently was fighting a battle few had waged before.

"I think she's a courageous lady. I'm delighted that she's chosen to stand up," said Don Doig, who along with Larry Dodge co-founded the Helmsville, Mont.-based Fully Informed Jury Association, which has a stated goal of ensuring that jurors know their rights and powers.

"This is the first (case). I think we'll see some more, though. It's been part of our reform package for some time that jurors' privacy should be respected," Doig said. "This is just a real-world illustration of what we're talking about."

Attorneys often use questionnaires to gather information on potential jurors called for high-profile cases or when the jury pool is especially large.

Mrs. Brandborg answered all but about a dozen questions. She wrote "not applicable" to those concerning her religious preference, the television shows and books she enjoys, her political affiliation, outside activities and income, among others.

"I had served on jury duty before but I had never seen a questionnaire of 100 questions and so many personal ones. I was appalled," she said.

Attorneys, criminal justice experts and civil rights advocates agree that Mrs. Brandborg's case defines the issue of balancing a juror's privilege to privacy with the defendant's right to a trial by a jury of his peers.

Mrs. Brandborg said she has received many supportive letters and telephone calls.

"This has changed my life more than you know," she said. "I'm going to fight the fight just as long as I can."

Her attorney, Rick Hagen, says he can't understand why the issue has been dormant.

Not just another pretty musician T.R. Ritchie strums in Coahoma Friday

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — He's not just another pretty songwriter. He's been billed as "a rare masterpiece, an inspiration to all songwriters, one of the country's finest, and a natural entertainer." They say "he's superb, writes songs with keen insight, has a wonderful sense of humor and one of the finest practitioners of new folk, modern acoustic music." He is T.R. Ritchie and he's performing in Coahoma Friday night. Ritchie is a nationally recognized touring folk artist who performs his own songs—renditions of his life and others with added humor mixed throughout. He was a finalist in the Kerrville Folk Festival song writing showcase competition.

I lived a typical Normal Rockwell sort of childhood.
I played ball; I went fishing; I explored the flatlands around my little town.
I daydreamed my way through school.
Mostly I kept to myself.
Ritchie's life is reflected in his songs. "Whitebark" is a powerful song of determination. "Those People" is a sharp looking glass revealing middle-class paranoia.

Judges usually won't force a potential juror to answer a question they feel uncomfortable about, choosing most times to simply take the person aside privately, Hagen said. "There's been, at least here locally, an assumption that what happened in the courtroom was 'the law,' and it had to be done," Hagen said. "It didn't have to be done. Making a juror answer or not answer is discretionary with any judge." Pat Hazel, a University of Texas law professor who teaches trial advocacy and civil procedure, said most judges will examine whether the objectionable question is "really a relevant matter for the parties to know about." Then, judges often will allow a panelist to discuss their answers confidentially, he said. Hazel said defense attorneys must have the right to examine the panelists' backgrounds. But Mrs. Brandborg is raising interesting questions about treating jurors other agencies, not 911 calls. "This particular call in question was transferred to the county because it was a 911 call and there has never been a written policy between the two agencies on how these should be handled and dispatched," said Dorton. "The county volunteer fire department and ambulance service have provided their own written policies on how the city will dispatch their 911 calls but there is not one from the sheriff's department," he added. Standard accused the Herald of "looking for a loophole" because of bias when asked why there was not a written policy from the sheriff's department when the contract states there should be one. When questioned further about the response time of his deputies and why Fleckenstein went to King's house first instead of directly to the scene, Standard said he did not

Study finds that salvia blocks AIDS

HOUSTON (AP) — Inhibitors that can block transmission of the AIDS virus are contained in human saliva, researchers at the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston confirmed in a study published today.

The report in The New England Journal of Medicine may help explain why so few reported cases of the deadly disease have been linked to trips to the dentist's office.

In July 1990, the issue of AIDS in the dentist's office took on new urgency when the then Centers for Disease Control reported that a Florida dentist with HIV infected six of his patients.

A subsequent study of HIV-infected dentists found that none of 20,000 dental patients tested positive for the disease.

The report gives more credence to studies showing it's unlikely that a healthy person can contract AIDS through dental work, even if heavy bleeding occurs.

Teen seeks hit man after being grounded

HOUSTON (AP) — A 13-year-old girl wanted to avenge being repeatedly grounded by having a hit man kill her father while she was a school dance, Harris County officials say.

The Baytown girl was expected to be charged in juvenile court Thursday with solicitation of murder, said assistant district attorney Elizabeth Godwin.

A juvenile judge ordered Wednesday that the girl, an eighth-grader at Horace Mann Junior School, remain in the custody of county juvenile authorities until her case can be reviewed again May 12.

She was arrested in the school cafeteria Monday and taken to the police station, where she admitted trying to find someone to kill her father, authorities said.

Ms. Godwin said the girl is too young to be certified for trial as an adult and will be processed through the juvenile courts. She cannot be charged with a capital offense because no payment was offered, Ms. Godwin said.

The possible punishment for solicitation of murder ranges from a year's probation to commitment to the Texas Youth Council until age 21.

Parolee convicted in rape of school teacher

HOUSTON (AP) — A convicted rapist has been convicted of capital murder for strangling a school teacher he had attempted to rape.

Jurors deliberated Wednesday for three hours before returning with the guilty verdict against Charles Thacker, 25, of the April 7, 1993, murder of Karen Crawford. They then began hearing evidence on whether he should get the death penalty.

Ms. Crawford, a second-grade teacher at Benford Elementary School in the Klein school district, was getting her mail from the central mail area at Champions Woods Apartments in northwest Houston when she was grabbed from behind, dragged into a restroom and assaulted.

One witness testified to seeing Thacker standing near the mailboxes shortly before the attack.

Fears rampant about easing controls

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — Some anti-pollution activists say they fear a Senate committee is going to try to make it easier for industries to get pollution permits.

U. Gov. Bob Bullock has directed the Senate Natural Resources Committee to propose legislation eliminating any unnecessary costs and delays that may exist under current permitting procedures "while preserving and strengthening citizen involvement in those processes."

But many who attended a Wednesday committee hearing said they suspected streamlining the permit process was a subterfuge for removing public input.

Stuart Henry, an Austin environmental attorney, said that in recent years, "Most of the streamlining has been at the expense of adjacent landowners and property owners who are trying to protect their property rights."

"When anyone talks about streamlining, what in fact occurs is less participation and less opportunity for participation by neighbors," he said.

But Natural Resources Chairman Bill Sims, D-San Angelo, said the committee was keeping an open mind.

"What we're trying to do is ... you people, anyone or organization, tell us how you think it ought to be done and then we are going to try to write legislation that will satisfy that. That's the way it is," Sims said.

Representatives of industry complained that the permitting process took too long because of bureaucratic turf battles and protesters who could derail projects by forcing delays.

"This is sending a pretty bad image to potential investors," said Kenneth Huebner of San Antonio, a representative of Dos Republicas, which is seeking permits to operate a coal mine in Maverick County.

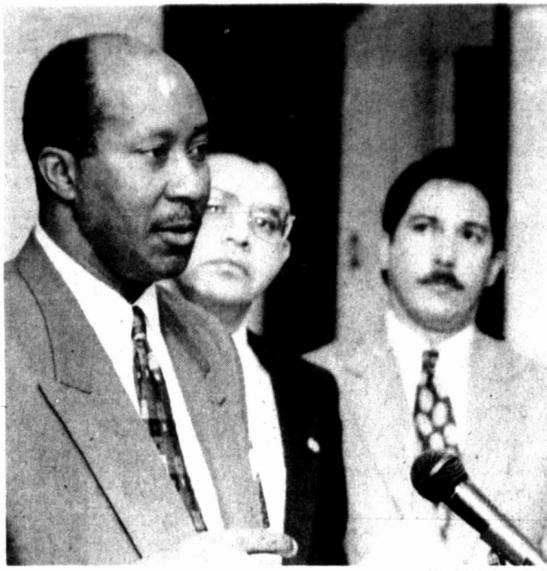

Dos Republicas officials said the project has been in the planning stages for years, but has been put on hold because of questions about whether the mine would destroy habitat of two endangered species — the ocelot and jaguarundi.

Huebner said the delay threatened the project. Under the proposal, the coal would be sold for use in a power plant in Mexico.

But Ken Kramer, leader of the Lone Star chapter of the Sierra Club, said environmental questions about the mine were legitimate.

Kramer said citizens are often at a disadvantage in fighting permits because of the vast resources available to industries.

To cut down the time and expense of the permit process, Kramer proposed that the TNRC hold simultaneous hearings on the various permits sought by an applicant.

Rep. Henry Cuellar, center, and Webb County District Attorney Joe Rubio, right, listen as Texas Secretary of State Ron Kirk, left, describes the state's actions to deter fraud in upcoming Webb County elections during the secretary's visiting Wednesday. Kirk visited following a ruling by a trial judge that there was widespread abuse and fraud in a county court race March 8.

Webb Co. voters: 'Keep the faith'

The Associated Press

LAREDO — Texas Secretary of State Ron Kirk has attempted to reassure Webb County voters to keep the faith after "widespread abuse and fraud" was confirmed in mail-in balloting.

"When there is talk of ballot fraud, there is talk of voter intimidation," Kirk said Wednesday. "In my mind, there is little difference between the two."

Incumbent Raul Vasquez defeated challenger Cynthia Zuniga Puig in the March 8 Democratic primary for a county court of law seat, escaping a runoff by less than 20 votes.

Ms. Zuniga contested the election in state district court, alleging massive voter fraud involving mail-in ballots. Visiting District Judge James F. Clawson sided with Ms. Zuniga and ordered a new election for later this month.

"We shouldn't have to do this twice to get it right, and I want to reassure the voters of this county and across the state that this runoff and all elections will be held openly and honestly," Kirk said Wednesday.

"I want the citizens of Webb County to know that your vote really does count and it will be counted just as you cast it."

Kirk told residents to guard against ballot fraud.

"To protect the integrity of your vote and to accomplish that, be sure not to let anyone tell you that they'll take care of your ballot for you, mail it for you or make sure that it's delivered to your house for you," Kirk said.

Kirk recommended that residents make attempts to "vote early in person."

Kirk said he, state Sen. Judith Zaffirini, D-Laredo, and state Rep. Henry Cuellar, D-Laredo, are committed to seeing "that reform is accomplished" when the Legislature convenes in Austin in 1995.

Tourism: Florida's loss is Texas' gain

By The Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — More international visitors have been coming to Texas in recent years, in part because of problems in major tourism spots like Florida and California, the state's tourism director says.

Texas also is poised to attract more international tourists as the North American Free Trade Agreement takes effect, said Dianne Mendoza Freeman, tourism division director of the Texas Department of Commerce.

Since 1988, Texas tourism has grown steadily, said Ms. Mendoza Freeman, speaking Wednesday at an annual "Tourism Week" luncheon in San Antonio.

Travel expenditures now total $22 billion statewide, with $3 billion from international travel, she said. The state's tourism industry accounts for 406,000 jobs, she added.

Report: Schools not in compliance with helping disabled

DENISE GAMINO Austin American-Statesman

AUSTIN — In Copperas Cove, children with disabilities at the Wind Crest Nursing Center have been denied the chance to go to school with nondisabled children, a violation of federal law. A full array of programs, including music and art, is not always available for them, either.

In Port Arthur, children at Gaspard's Nursing Center are educated at their bedside even though a physician has not verified that they need to remain confined, another violation of education laws. Parents who do not speak English are not notified of their rights.

And the Austin Independent School District did not have documents to show that all educational options had been considered for a high school-age resident at the Sierra Health Care Nursing Center, yet another violation.

Those are among the widespread special education violations found in a new statewide survey of services for children and young people living in Texas nursing homes. The 374-page report by the Texas Education Agency was submitted to the state Senate Committee on Health and Human Services on Wednesday, four days after it was due.

Overall, TEA found that 62 percent of the 58 school districts serving young residents of nursing homes are not complying with all federal and state education laws and rules. Requirements include evaluating the educational needs of all children with disabilities, providing all appropriate services and keeping parents fully informed of their rights.

Among the more troubling findings in the report is that none of the school districts that serve the four Texas nursing homes with the most children is in full compliance with federal and state education standards. These homes — in Gladewater, Hondo, Temple and Copperas Cove — serve 177, or 68 percent, of the 261 school-age nursing home residents in the state.

The report, the first survey of educational services provided to children in Texas nursing homes, was mandated by the Senate committee in response to "The Lost Children" series published in December by the Austin American-Statesman. The series exposed extensive inadequacies in services for children in nursing homes.

The new report shows that only 38 percent of the school districts serving residents of nursing homes are in full compliance with federal and state laws on special education. Another 16 percent were found in substantial compliance, 33 percent were in moderate compliance, and 13 percent had extensive problems.

The TEA report on the individual school districts lists which regulations the school districts have violated. It does not include a narrative that explains how the district violated the rules.

The state will give the school districts until May 20 to respond to the survey. Corrective actions must be completed by July 1.

"If a student gets a 38 percent, it would be considered a failing grade," said Libby Doggett, executive director of The Arc of Texas (formerly the Association for Retarded Citizens). "TEA needs to ensure all districts come into full compliance and that students in congregate care facilities are receiving the services they need."

Joyce Dawidczyk, policy analyst for United Cerebral Palsy of Texas, said the report shows that children with disabilities "are being relegated to second-class citizen status."

"All children, regardless of the nature, type or severity of their disabilities, can learn," Dawidczyk said. "When provided with appropriate educational supports in an environment where they can grow and thrive, their learning potential is virtually limitless."

Cannon purchase raises concerns

MEXICO CITY — Mexican legislators are asking the Secretary of Defense to explain the recent purchase of several water cannons, saying they fear they will be used against civilians to suppress possible election-related violence.

"What is the government afraid of? Is it preparing to confront a serious conflict after Aug. 21?" asked Luisa Alvarez Cervantes, a deputy from the opposition Cardenista Front Party. "Who is it trying to control or suppress?"

Mexico elects a new president Aug. 21. There have been threats of violence if the vote does not appear clean.

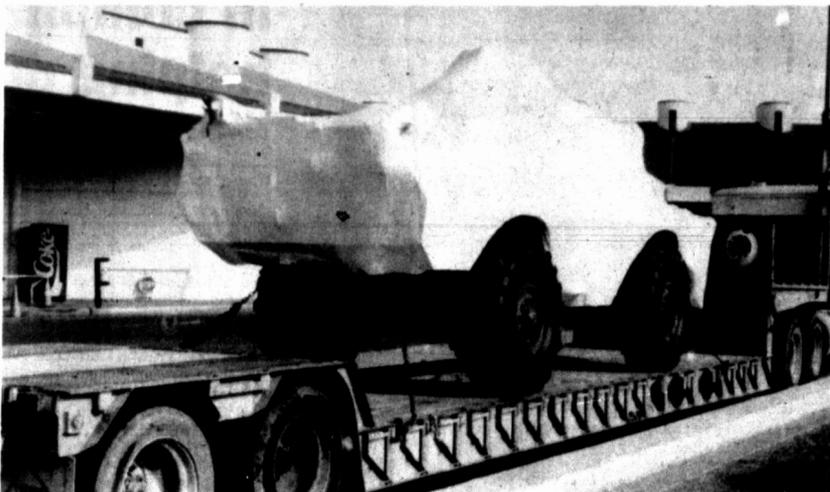

"It has to do with ... hardening of the government, heading toward a repressive solution to political problems that could come from the presidential election in August if the popular will is not respected," echoed Jorge Moscoso of the Democratic Revolutionary Party during Tuesday's session.

He said if they are to be used against the civilian population they should be in the hands of the police, not the army.

"I reject that the government is intending to respond to violence with violence," refuted Juan Jose Rodriguez Prats of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI.

But he supported demands by the opposition for a broader explanation.

The Defense Ministry has said only that the vehicles of "recent acquisition" were to protect vital installations.

Chained to a trailer and draped in white plastic, a Textron Water Cannon crosses the U.S. border into Mexico through Laredo recently. Mexico has quietly purchased 18 such riot-control vehicles, apparently in preparation for any civil unrest after the late summer presidential election.

The March 23 assassination of Luis Donaldo Colosio, the presidential candidate of the ruling Institutional Revolutionary Party, and a peasant Indian uprising that began Jan. 1 in the southern state of Chiapas have left Mexico unsettled.

Dissidents in Chiapas and elsewhere have threatened violence if the August Elections don't appear on the up-and-up.

While the new PRI candidate, Ernesto Zedillo, says the vote will be the cleanest ever, some Mexicans may have to be convinced.

EPA putting controls on gas garden tools

PHOENIX (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency is slapping pollution controls on gas-powered garden tools to clear the air in places like Phoenix, where desert heat and piped-in water make lawn mowing a year-round chore.

The nationwide standards announced Wednesday in Washington are expected to add about $5 to the cost of a mower, leaf blower, weed trimmer or other tool.

But many suburbanites around here refuse to wither at the thought of paying extra to maintain a patch of green.

"To me it's a logical consequence if we're going to go after sources of pollution," said Bert O'Bryan, who'd be willing to pay even $20 or $25 more for his next mower if it would help.

The real works just beginning

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Now that the election is over, the real work begins — on South Africa's, and maybe the world's, biggest party ever.

Next Tuesday's inauguration of the country's first black president will be "simple and dignified" — just Nelson Mandela and about 150,000 of his closest friends, including Britain's Prince Philip, the Chinese president and, probably, Hillary Rodham Clinton.

It's a politico's dream but a nightmare for the National Inauguration Committee. How, for example, does one get the Prince of Orange through rush-hour traffic from the airport to the 8 a.m. official breakfast 40 miles away?

What about security? What if it rains? "It won't," committee spokesman Patrick Evans said firmly as construction workers built a stage and seats Tuesday in the open-air amphitheater where Mandela, the leader of the African National Congress, will be inaugurated.

"The weather never gets bad in South Africa. If it rains, it'll rain in the late afternoon. It won't rain in the morning," predicted Evans.

Communist showing strong in Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Dorottya Kosari rejoiced in 1990 when Communists who ruled Hungary for more than 40 years were drubbed at the polls. But since then, her family's lifestyle and financial security have taken a nose dive.

She'll have a new chance to vote Sunday, and now she wants to put the former Communists back in power. She has company.

Polls indicate that the Socialists, formerly the Communist Party, will get about 30 percent of the vote — nearly double that of any other party — and stand a solid chance of dominating the next government.

Mrs. Kosari, 42, a municipal clerk, and her electrician-husband are far from poor. But their financial struggle illustrates why the Socialists will probably do well.

Mood varies as Israel moves out of Gaza Strip

GAZA CITY, Gaza Strip — Israelis carted out everything portable from the army headquarters in Gaza and emptied the city's central jail today, while hundreds more Palestinian prisoners were freed under the new autonomy accord.

The mood outside the installations, where Israeli troops were still stationed, swung from quiet discussions between soldiers and Palestinians about the impending Israeli withdrawal to rock-throwing by both sides.

The Israel-Palestinian liaison committee met to begin working out a timetable for the transfer of army installations to the Palestinian police, but no immediate handovers were scheduled.

The anticipated end of 27 years of Israeli occupation was moving slower than expected, with PLO chairman Yasser Arafat asking for at least four weeks for the transfer and some details still pending.

Israeli officials said they wanted to withdraw soldiers from the Gaza Strip and the area around the West Bank town of Jericho within 10 days, but would accede to Palestinian requests for more time.

Foreign Minister Shimon Peres said Israel would consider requests for further discussion of the issue of the size of the Jericho autonomy zone and the police presence at borders, but he considered the agreement final.

"What they are asking for is that there will be a possibility to discuss this further. But we have no obligation to give more," Peres said on Israel radio. "What we signed is final."

Palestinian officials said they expected at least 700 prisoners to return to the Gaza Strip today, with some releases from Megiddo prison inside Israel already started.

Ban gains surprising support

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Gaining some surprising converts, House supporters of a ban on 19 types of assault-style weapons say they are close to winning their battle.

"It's going to be neck-and-neck. It's going to make the Kentucky Derby look like an easy contest," the bill's chief sponsor, Rep. Charles Schumer, said this morning.

While both sides said the vote scheduled for today was too close to call, there was some notable changing of positions, including two Texas Democrats and a Pennsylvania Republican who had opposed another ban on such weapons in October 1991. That bill had failed 247-177.

Rep. Ron Coleman, D-Texas, who has never voted against a National Rifle Association position before, said Wednesday that his decision to vote for the ban followed discussions with his local police chief and sheriff.

"Ultimately, I think you have to defer to law enforcement leaders in your community," said Coleman. "When the chief of police and the sheriff both say they support banning these deadly weapons, then I have to stand up and take notice."

Virtually all the major law enforcement organizations support the ban. "If it is a political offense that costs me my job ... then so be it," said Coleman, who got a call from President Clinton urging him to support the bill.

Rep. Michael Andrews, D-Texas, a hunter who is leaving the House after losing a Senate primary fight, said he long believed "gun control laws would hamper legitimate sportsmen far more than criminals." But he said he was "appalled at the rising number of random, violent crimes" and believed no legitimate sportsman requires such weapons.

Some of the assault weapons that could be banned sit on a table as Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., talks to reporters on Capitol Hill Wednesday. With Schumer are, from left, Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., Attorney General Janet Reno and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz. The house is set to vote on the ban today.

"Anyone that needs a 20-round clip of high-velocity ammunition to fell a duck or kill a deer needs to look into taking up golf," Andrews said.

Rep. Thomas Ridge, R-Pa., leaving the House to run for governor, said his support for the ban follows previous statements that he would do so if it were "part of an overall crime package that dealt with prison reform, sentence reform, juvenile justice and the like."

Schumer, who recently estimated the bill needed 15 to 20 more votes to pass, said Wednesday afternoon that proponents were "five down and closing."

"We're very, very close," Schumer said today on NBC. He urged supporters to call their congressional offices and acknowledged, "We're not getting as many calls as the other side, even though more people are for it."

Ban opponent Rep. Duncan Hunter, R-Calif., said he was not aware of vote counts by his side, but had trusted Schumer's earlier estimates.

Suns savor sweep

By The Associated Press

The Phoenix Suns and New York Knicks went after first-round sweeps on the same night. Thanks to Charles Barkley, only the Suns got what they wanted.

Barkley, who had never before scored more than 47 points in a regular season or playoff game, had 56 Wednesday as Phoenix completed a three-game sweep of Golden State by outscoring the Warriors 140-133.

The Knicks took a 2-0 lead against New Jersey, but Chris Morris' two free throws with 1.5 seconds left in overtime gave the Nets a 93-92 victory and kept them alive in the best-of-5 series.

Barkley, whose back problems this season led him to say he will not play next season, took advantage of Warriors coach Don Nelson's decision not to double-team him by scoring 27 points in the first quarter.

"Obviously, I was making a lot of shots," he said. "They kind of forced the issue by not doubling me. I hope it's not the last time I see single coverage. I kind of like it."

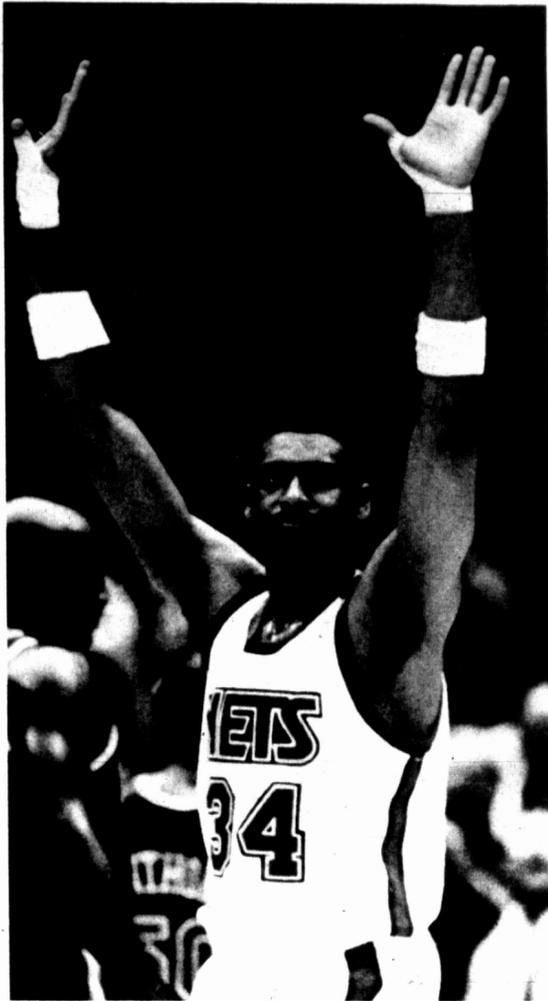

Barkley's 38 first-half points set an NBA playoff record. He finished the game hitting 23-of-31 shots and grabbing 14 rebounds. His total tied for the third-best in playoff history behind Michael Jordan's 63 in 1986 and Elgin Baylor's 61 in 1962.

"Nobody thought he was going to make all his shots," Nelson said. "He had one of the most spectacular games I ever witnessed, as a player and as a coach."

Despite Barkley's heroics, Phoenix didn't take control of the game until the fourth quarter. Trailing 107-106 entering the final period, Phoenix built its lead to 125-117 with 7:35 to play when Barkley converted a three-point play and notched his 50th point.

Golden State closed to 131-129 with 2:07 left on a basket by Latrell Sprewell, who had 27 points, but the Warriors got no closer. The Suns missed just three of their 19 shots in the final period.

The Suns will play the winner of the Houston-Portland series, which resumes Friday night in Portland. Elsewhere in the West, San Antonio

New Jersey led by 16 points late in the third quarter, then had to survive a nine-point fourth quarter to beat New York in overtime.

Morris stepped to the free-throw line with 1.5 seconds left and the Nets trailing 92-91. New York had the lead thanks to a basket with 20 seconds left by Patrick Ewing, who had 27 points and 15 rebounds.

"The first shot was a definite must make," Morris said of the tying free throw. "I took a deep breath, relaxed and it felt good when it left my hand. Then they called timeout to try to cool me. I didn't want to go into a second overtime because anything could happen. I went to the line, took another deep breath, relaxed and the ball caught the rim and went in."

Steers studying playoff options

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Please excuse the Big Spring Steers if they feel in a bit of shock lately. Being the district front-runners one day and scrambling for a playoff spot the next can do that to a team.

The Steers find themselves in this unenviable position thanks to Tuesday night's 8-5 loss to Sweetwater, which knocked Big Spring out of sole possession of first place and put a large, dark cloud over their playoff chances.

The playoffs are by no means an impossibility for Big Spring, but they're not the lead-pipe cinch they were a day or two ago. Simply put, the Steers' destiny is not entirely in their hands.

Sweetwater has ended its season and is assured of no less than a tie for first place. With one game remaining, Big Spring and San Angelo Lake View are a half-game back in the District 3-4A standings.

Going into Friday's season-ender with Monahans, Big Spring's playoff chances can be summed up like this:

1. If Big Spring and Lake View win, those two teams and Sweetwater would be tied for first, and a three-way coin flip will decide the district's two playoff teams.

2. If Big Spring wins and Lake View loses, Sweetwater and Big Spring would end the season tied for first, with Sweetwater getting the top district seed because of its two wins over the Steers.

3. If Big Spring loses and Lake View wins, the Steers are out of the playoffs.

4. If both Big Spring and Lake View lose, the two teams will end up tied for second, forcing a playoff game for the second district seed.

Naturally, the Steers are not keen on options 3 and 4, and aren't particularly looking forward to option 1, either. Coach Bobby Doe makes no secret of his hopes that Pecos downs Lake View Saturday, ending the possibility of a coin flip.

But for the here and now, the Steers know they have to take care of business, and that means dispatching district cellar-dweller Monahans, which comes into Steer Park with an 1-10 league mark. Game time is 4:30 p.m. Friday.

The Lobos, who give every indication of a team that is playing out a disappointing season, would seem to be the perfect tonic for the Steers' Sweetwater hangover.

But Monahans' coach Mickey Owens said his team will not just be playing out the string Friday.

"We can still make a difference in the way this thing ends up," Owens said. "We're going to try to end the season on a positive note. There's no way we're going to go over there and just give up. The kids are going to play hard."

The Lobos have suffered from youth and, well, bad timing this season. Monahans opened its district schedule with four straight losses, all by one run. "That kind of busted our confidence," Owens said. "It went from bad to worse."

But they did do the Steers an inadvertent favor, handing Lake View one of its three district losses.

Monahans has had some bright spots this year. Senior catcher Stacey Wall is the team's leading hitter, batting at an impressive .390 clip, while shortstop Mark Valenzuela is batting .380. "But after that, it drops off considerably," Owens said.

Nowhere is the Lobos' reliance on youth more evident than on the mound, where Owens must rely on a sophomore starter, Ryan Valenzuela, and a freshman reliever, Jeremy Ornales.

Despite the Lobos' struggles, it is doubtful that the Steers will overlook Monahans. After all, Big Spring is fighting for a playoff spot. Plus, the team is still stinging from Tuesday's loss.

"We should recover (from the loss) pretty good," pitcher Frankie Martinez said. "We should come out pretty fired up ... It just wasn't our day (Tuesday). Well, it wasn't my day, really."

Canucks push Stars into corner

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Pavel Bure scored two goals and Kirk McLean stopped 39 shots for his second shutout of the playoffs Wednesday night as Vancouver beat Dallas 3-0 and seized a 2-0 lead in a Western Conference semifinal series.

The victory before a boating sellout crowd of 16,914 fans in Reunion Arena sends the Canucks back home for the next three games of the best-of-7 series, the first of which will be Friday night.

McLean, who was 0-2 against the Stars in the regular season, made 16 saves in the first period as Vancouver spoiled three power plays. He kicked out four straight shots during one bombardment.

Bure, who has six goals in his last nine playoff games, scored his second goal with only 21 seconds to play in the second period. He picked up a loose puck, taked out Derian Hatcher and wristed a forehand past goalie Andy Moog.

Vancouver victimized Moog twice in the first period to take a 2-0 lead.

Cliff Roming scored an unassisted goal when he faked a slap shot to get defenseman Doug Zmolek to hit the ice, then skated around him and beat Moog with a 10-foot wrist shot on the stick side.

Bure scored his fifth goal of the playoffs by taking advantage of a confusing scramble in front of the Stars net as he poked in a rebound on Moog's glove side.

Moog sat on the bench while Darcy Wakaluk was in goal for four straight victories over the St. Louis Blues. Wakaluk had an off night in the Stars' 6-4 loss to the Canucks on Monday night.

Moog was 3-1 against Vancouver in the regular season and had a 59-41 career playoff record before his start against the Canucks.

For the second straight game, the Canucks shut down high-scoring Dallas center Mike Modano without a goal.

Many people have asked why someone would want to run for a place on the City Council. The picture above is reason enough.

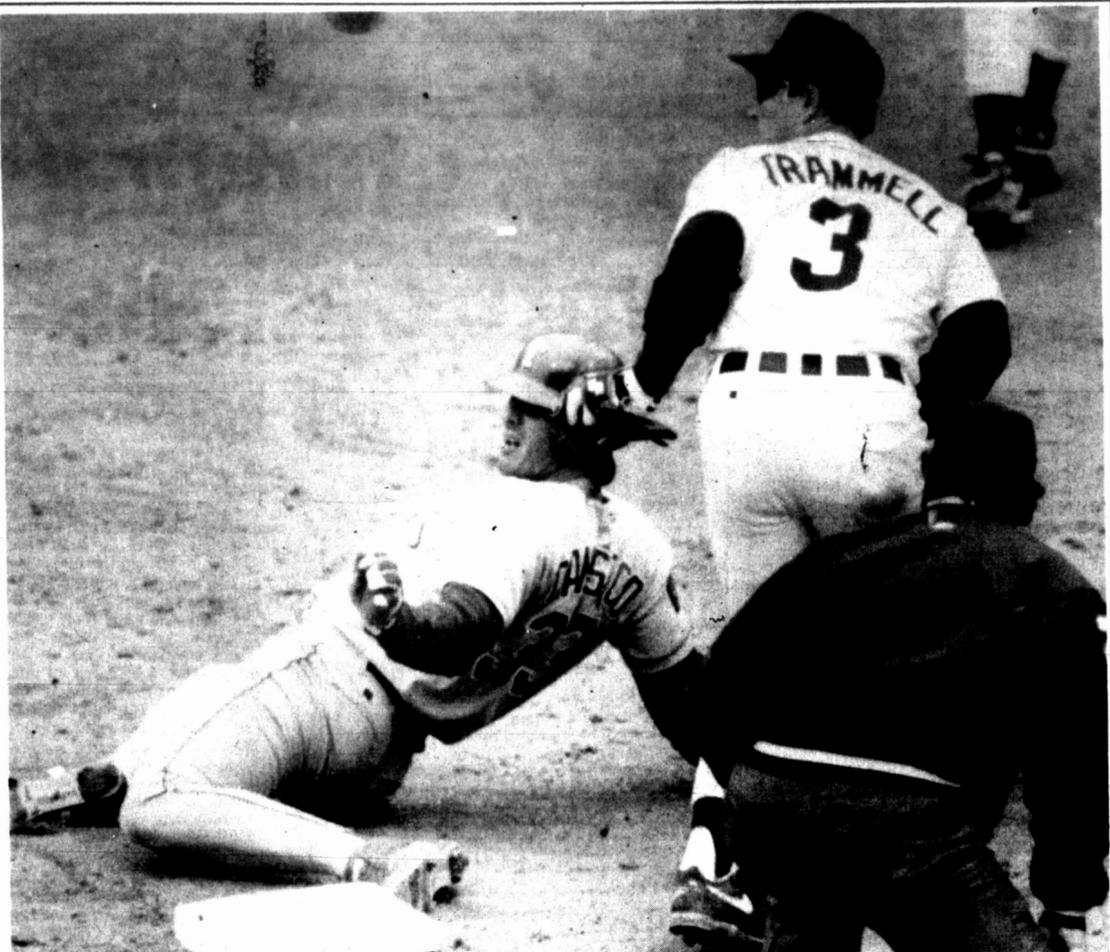

On May 7, the voters have the opportunity to influence the type of city government that will prepare Big Spring for the 21st. century. With your help, John Paul Anderson has the energy and dedication to provide positive representation for District 6 and for all of Big Spring.

On Saturday, vote for the kind of leadership that will make the future bright for our city and our families.

Texas baserunner Jose Canseco (33) is tagged out by Detroit shortstop Alan Trammell (3) at second base on an attempted steal during the fifth inning of their game Wednesday afternoon in Detroit. Second base umpire Mark Johnson watches the play. Detroit defeated the Rangers, 14-7.

Fishing

The late April chilly, overcast weather put a brake on fishing results and halted the warm up of water in area lakes.

Nevertheless, there was fair activity at Lake Ivie, an open bass tournament at Lake Spence, and a sudden halt to red hot crappie results at Lake Thomas. Water temperatures dropped from one to two degrees.

At Lake Spence, where water dipped to 65 degrees, the Coke County Bass Club held its first open bass tournament out of Wildcat Marina with 69 fishing and 32 reporting their bass. Twenty-five prizes were awarded. David Miller, Odessa, had the largest bass at 5.61 lbs., while first place over-all for three fish went to Terry Jones 9.84, Miller followed with 9.41, and David Jackson with 8.63.

Lake Thomas, which had seen some great crappie and black bass fishing, went on hold when water dipped a couple of degrees. Campers, who have been numerous, pretty much stayed home. However, Becka Flynn, who has taken over the Lake Thomas Lodge concession, was enjoying increasing popularity.

Lake Ivie water was 64 degrees surface and 58.1 bottom, but black bass results continued good to excellent, mostly in 3 to 12 feet of water and using spinners, worms, and cranks along shorelines. Small-mouth bass appeared to prefer worms and crank baits, along rocky points in 5-02 feet of water.

Crappie results dropped sharply as the fish moved to deeper 24-40 ft. of water in the main body. Best fishing was along the mouths of creeks and along brushy points.

Channel catfish were being taken both on rod and reel and trotline both in the main body and up-river, a few up to 8 lbs. Yellow catfishing was slow, but white bss 12 to 1-1/2 lbs. were taking bait from rollers along Onion Draw, Turkey Bend and the Concho River.

Had not a late April cold snap turned off the sprinklers, no telling what the margin of increase would have been for deliveries by Colorado River Municipal Water District.

As it was the 1,556,944,900 gallons to all customers was up 141 million gallons of 9.98 per cent over April 1993.

Holy Bull could be divine on Derby Day

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Jimmy Croll trained Rachel Carpenter's horses for 37 years before she died last August, and she had one superstition.

"She wouldn't come to a stakes race. She felt it was bad luck," Croll said.

So, even if she had lived, she wouldn't have come to THE stakes race, the Kentucky Derby, to watch Holy Bull on Saturday.

"She wouldn't be here," said the 74-year-old Croll, to whom Carpenter bequeathed the likely Derby favorite. "She followed her horses close, but she had that phobia about them. No way she would have changed her mind."

Carpenter, whose horses raced under the colors of Pelican Stable, died early on the morning of Aug. 14. Later that day, Holy Bull made his first career start, winning a maiden race at Monmouth Park in New Jersey.

"Of course, he won that afternoon," Croll said, "and I felt very bad about it. I wanted to call her and tell her how well the horse did."

"Maybe she'll be looking down on him now."

Entries were scheduled for today,

"Anybody who stays close to Holy Bull can win the Derby, and the Bull can't be rated. The only time he was off the pace was a disaster for him."

Nick Zito
Go For Gin's trainer

and a field of 15 was expected. Track oddsmaker Mike Battaglia made Holy Bull the 8-5 early favorite in his pre-draw line, with Brocco, 1993 Breeders' Cup Juvenile champion, second at 3-1.

Holy Bull won all four of his starts as a 2-year-old, including a driving victory over 2-year-old champion Dehere in the mud at Belmont Park last Sept. 18. He started his 3-year-old campaign by winning the Huteson at Gulfstream Park in January.

The only loss of his career came the next month when he got behind horses on an off track in the Fountain of Youth at Gulfstream and, in the excitement, developed a breathing problem called a flipped palate. He folded in the stretch and finished last in a six-horse field.

In his next start, the Florida Derby on March 12, he was on the winning track again, and he made his final tuneup a 3-length victory over Valiant Nature in the 1 1/2-mile Blue Grass at Keeneland on April 16. Five of Holy Bull's victories have been wire-to-wire, and many rivals expect him to try to take the lead immediately in the Derby, too.

"Anybody who stays close to Holy Bull can win the Derby, and the Bull can't be rated," said Nick Zito, who trains Go For Gin. "The only time he was off the pace was a disaster for him."

Croll doesn't necessarily agree, and neither do some of his fellow trainers.

"The Derby is always different," Croll said. "Everybody tries to get up close, and the first quarter is pretty grinding. I imagine somebody will be up there with us. Maybe that horse Ulises. But we don't have to be on the lead."

Asked if he expected trouble, like Holy Bull had in the Fountain of Youth, if he can't get to the lead, Croll said: "The horse on the lead will be the one in trouble. He'll have to outrun the Bull."

Ron McAnally, the Hall of Famer who trains Valiant Nature, said he didn't think Holy Bull needed to be on the lead "because he rates so kindly" on the lead. With Mike Smith riding, the first half-mile of Holy Bull's front-running victory in the Blue Grass was run in a comfortable 47.4-5 seconds.

Holy Bull will be Croll's third Derby horse. Royal and Regal finished eighth in 1973, and Bet Twice was second in 1987.

Croll, named to the National Racing Hall of Fame on Wednesday, is better known for his sprinters and turf horses. Among his best-known horses were Housebuster, the champion sprinter of 1990 and 1991, and Parka, the Eclipse winner on grass in 1965.

In fact, when Croll bred Holy Bull in Ocala, Fla., he never expected a dirt runner who could go the classic Derby distance of 1 1/2 miles.

Holy Bull's sire, Great Above, was a sprinter, and his dam, Sharon Brown, had foaled two grass winners. Ta Wee, an outstanding sprinter also named to the Hall of Fame on Wednesday, is Holy Bull's paternal granddam.

"He is a freak," Croll said. "When I bred him, I was looking for a grass horse or a sprinter, and this is what happened."

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope. FOR FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1994. ARIES (March 21-April 19): You have dynamic energy and you get a lot done. COMMUNICATIONS about professional matters are on target. Listen to your instincts. Another understands much more than you thought. Negotiations about finances prove successful. Tonight: Just be you. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Try to become more sensitive to available options. A partner offers you a lot. Take some time to brainstorm and think. Consider breaking a pattern. Unexpected news comes your way. Tonight: Curl up with a good book. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are zeroing in on some important details. A partnership is critical to your financial security. Be careful of dealings involving work and a friendship. You might push a significant other too hard. Tonight: Hang out with friends. CANCER (June 21-July 22): You are in a position to take the lead. Be sensitive to an associate who is behaving unusually. News from a friend has you excited. Keep channels of communications open despite a flare-up. Tonight: Make a must appearance. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your creative efforts pay off. Listen more carefully to your inner voice in dealing with a friend who understands much and wants to be close to you. Be more sensitive to another's point of view. Tonight: Make merry. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): It is important for you to study a financial and emotional partnership. You might be pushing yourself too hard. Your sensitivity to another is critical. Try to be more positive. A loved one cares and demonstrates it. Tonight: Be with the one you love. LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): It is important to defer to another. You might not see eye-to-eye, but another's point of view does count. You get the job done efficiently today because of a partnership. Tonight: Accept an invitation. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): It is important for you to get some exercise. Pace yourself. Good news comes from a partnership. You have an opportunity to travel or approach a situation differently. Make sure you clear your desk before leaving today. Tonight: Get physical. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are happy as a cat. You can really let loose. Finances improve because of a recent project. Do not feel frustrated because of another's energy. Opportunities for closeness come easily. You see another in a new light. Be positive. Tonight: On the prowl. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Tension on the home front may be high. Ease up. Consider alternatives and different approaches. Do not be difficult with a loved one. Prepare to launch into action. Tonight: Home is where the heart is. AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be careful how much you say. Your intuition is right on about a family member. You're about to feel more vital and upbeat than you have in a long time. Clear your desk, and return calls. Tonight: Visit a favorite haunt. PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Watch spending. You tend to go overboard and, although you think it is a good cause, it may not be. Feel free to ask help from a friend, who responds in a big way. A friendship takes a new direction. Tonight: Balance the checkbook before you go out. IF MAY 6, 1994 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: It could be a very interesting year for you. Be clear about the role that another person plays in your life. You might need frequent timeouts to reduce stress and gain perspective. The more clearly you see things, the happier you will be. Emotional connections will surround you, and partnerships will be critical to your well-being. Do not make snap decisions. If you are single, a friend could become a lot more. If you are attached, your relationship will become even deeper, and friendships will grow. ARIES reads you cool. Dear Abby - Letters... Nightmare relatives visit couple's dream home. DEAR ABBY: Last summer, we sold our home and built a new one across town. As soon as it was furnished, we invited my brother and his wife over to see it. It was just before Christmas, so we had our 9-foot tree decorated; we also had outdoor lights, and various holiday decorations throughout the house. We invited them for 4 o'clock; they arrived an hour late - walked in the front door, through the living room, and out the back door without a single comment about our house, pool or Christmas decorations. After an embarrassing one-hour conversation - mostly about their children and grandchildren - they stood up, said goodbye and drove off. Abby, this is the same couple whose only comment on seeing our first brand-new car was, "Where's your license plate?" Abby, we would like to know how to deal with these people, since we must see them on a weekly basis. - HURT AND CONFUSED DEAR HURT: Some people cannot bring themselves to compliment anyone; even a grudging "How nice" would ring hollow. It's obvious that your brother and sister-in-law are not as delighted with your prosperity as you are. Expect nothing, and you won't be disappointed. DEAR ABBY: My husband (I'll call him Mac) and I have been married for two years; it's my first marriage and Mac's third. Mac has an 8-year-old son from a previous marriage who visits him on a regular basis. When his son is with us, it is very clear that his son comes first. # Rangers, Tigers: A match made in heaven

The next time the Rangers and the Tigers do battle at Tiger Stadium, be there.

Ask for the weekend off. Call in sick. Save your pennies and buy a plane ticket.

Just be there.

Of course, be sure you have plenty of time on your hands.

Wednesday's game, a regionally televised 14-7 Detroit victory (yes, this is baseball we're talking about), lasted forever, but the concept of forever is what draws many fans to the sport.

No clock. No stalling. No ties.

Jose Canseco blasted one into the upper deck. Cecil Fielder hit the left-field roof. Juan Gonzales laced a rope that may have gone farther than Fielder's blast if the upper deck in left-center field hadn't been in the way.

Lou Whitaker hit two blasts.

Dave Hargrave

Travis Fryman hit one. Those folks complaining about juiced baseballs just haven't seen a good slugfest in a while.

On the other hand, the Rangers' announcing crew may have seen too many slugfests. In fact, Greg Lucas and Norm Hitzges may have been slugged in the head more than we know.

This isn't a bad announcing team, if you can wade through the statistical saturations that Hitzges repeatedly pours on you ("Juan Gonzales is hitting .423 with 12 home runs on Tuesdays before 5 p.m. in months with an 'R' in them!"). However, these clowns were smoking something Wednesday.

Before the game, Hitzges said the pitching situation was looking good for the Rangers. Huh?

He explained that Bruce Hurst would soon join the team. Soon, Jack Armstrong was going to be throwing again. Some other guy was coming off an injury, too, but you'll forgive someone for forgetting a Ranger pitcher's name, won't you?

After Hitzges' rose-colored report, Lucas turned to the camera and said, "Wouldn't that be something? Ranger manager Kevin Kennedy could have an excess of starting pitching!"

Right. And Danny DeVito has an excess of hair.

The Texas Rangers have a lot of things - booming bats, new uniforms, a cool ball park - but not since the Washington Senators moved to Dallas-Fort Worth for the 1972 season have the Rangers possessed a surplus of starters.

Amazingly, while the Tigers were scoring six runs in the third inning yesterday, Lucas and Hitzges were still talking about the improved pitching staff around the corner.

Well, let's just say this. The Tigers will be at The Ballpark in Arlington July 1 for a doubleheader.

With this classic battle of stellar pitching staffs, you can drive over to the park and not worry about a hotel room after the second game ends.

You'll be at the park well into the next morning. Dave Hargrave is the sports editor of the Herald.
