Drying out on 3rd Street

City crews help applauded by owners

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Drying out and cleaning up. That is what local business owners are doing this week after a heavy downpour flooded a portion of West Third Street.

Last week, the city of Big Spring received an average of five inches of rain causing Beals Creek to pour out of its banks and flood parts of Third Street west of town and at the Birdwell intersection.

On Thursday, the city had closed down the two areas and put up barricades to keep vehicles from passing through. They also helped businesses such as the Harley Davidson Shop, Chuck's Surplus, Tate Company and Flo-Lite Signs move their furniture and merchandise to a higher and drier location.

"The fire department came out and helped us move our stuff onto cinder blocks and tables. My thanks goes out to them and to Tom Decell and Lanny Lambert. They were all instrumental in getting things done and helping us out," said Howard Walker, owner of the Harley Davidson shop.

Walker's home is behind his shop and sits lower than the business. "We got about three and a half inches in the store and probably 15 to 18 inches in the house. The fire department helped us move our furniture in the house as well," Walker said.

The shop received minimal damage and the employees are busy replacing carpet, flooring and sheetrock. "Fortunately, there was no damage to our parts, accessories, equipment or motorcycles," Walker explained.

Walker, like other business owners on Third Street, had to do most of their work over the telephone because customers could not get into the shops.

Doris Vieregge, who owns Flo-Lite Signs on Third Street, said she lost four full days of work.

"We lost customers because we couldn't get their orders out on time. We are doing twice as much work and working twice as hard to get back to somewhat of a normal situation.

"I know the Corps of Engineers are supposed to get Beals Creek cleaned out and I'm wondering what the hold up is. This is devastating to our businesses on this end of Third Street. We'll just have to grin and bear it and try to get things back to normal," said Vieregge.

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said the Corps of Engineers is in charge of "improving the flow of Beals Creek on the west side of town which means rerouting the channel.

The planning and design process is ongoing as we speak. We anticipate construction to start the latter part of this year," said Decell.

Chuck Cawthon, who owns Chuck's Surplus, added that his business fared well this time around. "In 1986, I had water in my store for 28 days. This time, I didn't have any water and only closed one full day. Everybody was extremely cooperative and helped us to get the merchandise off the floor. I want to praise the city for the way things were handled," added Cawthon.

Harley MDA run kicks off Saturday

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

At first glance, leather jackets, Harley motorcycles and children don't seem to have much in common. But that won't be the case in Big Spring Saturday and Sunday.

May 21 and 22 are the days selected for the Big Spring Harley Owners Group (H.O.G.) MDA Run. The "Run" is an annual event and will begin at 10 a.m. on Saturday. The last bike out is scheduled for 1 p.m. and the last bike in is set for 4 p.m.

The fun begins at the Harley Davidson Shop, 908 W. Third St. Shop owner Harold Walker says the proceeds will go to the Ceta Children's MDA Camp, located to the north of Big Spring, outside Canyon near Amarillo.

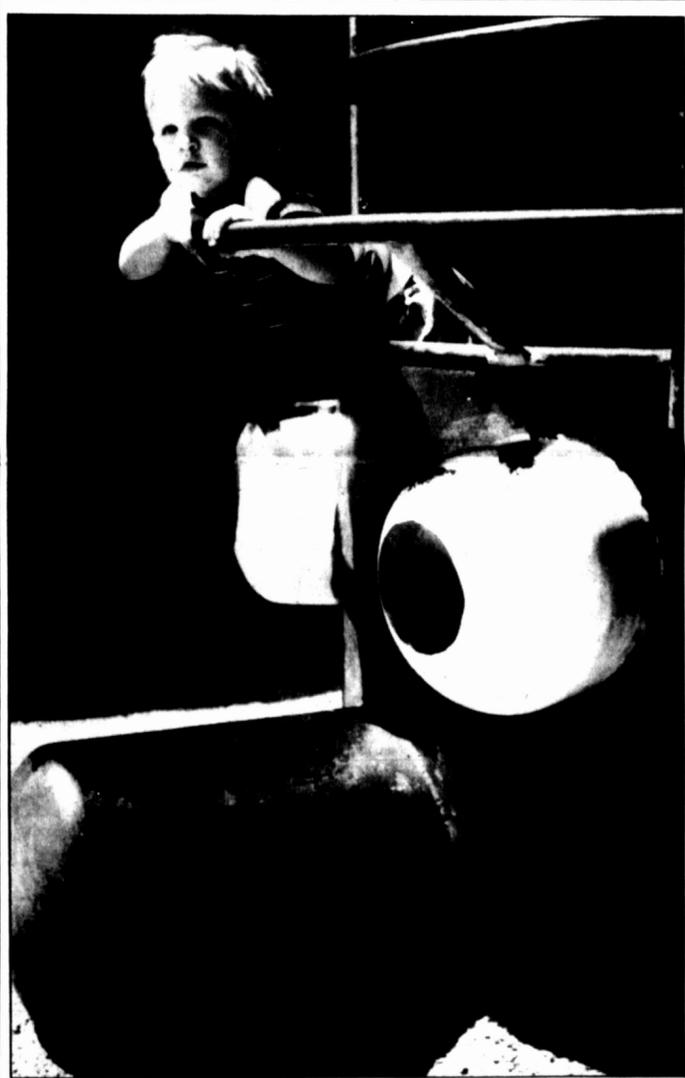

"We like to give the money directly to the camp," Walker explains. "Because that way we know the money is going to benefit the kids and not get all used up in administrative costs."

According to Walker, the money raised from previous years' runs has varied. "We get anywhere from $600 - $1,600," he said. "Last year, we donated our money so that each kid would get a T-shirt who attended the camp. We all drove up there on our motorcycles and had a great time."

Walker says there is something for everyone who attends the run. "We're having a barbecue and a dance with a band after the races," he explained. "The field events offer a little something for the adults and have special activities for the kids."

One of the field events is the "slow race," where riders line up and see who can ride their motorcycles the slowest without putting their foot down. The race's finish is quite unique. "The last one across the fin-

The Howard County Soil and Water Conservation District has named Tommy Wegner Conservation Farmer of the Year.

A life-long resident of Howard County, Wegner was applauded for his achievements at the District's 21st Annual Awards Banquet recently staged at La Posada Restaurant. A plaque was presented in recognition of his efforts.

HCSWCD representative Bernice Cason stated, "Wegner has accomplished numerous conservation practices, including the construction of parallel and basin terraces, terrace maintenance, contour farming and wind stripcropping."

During the banquet, conservation poster contest grand prize winners from area elementary schools were also honored.

"Soil and Water Natural Resources Conservation" was the contest theme. Students in elementary and middle schools presented artwork appropriate to the subject. The entries were then judged on artistic ability and content.

Grand prize winners received trophies and a cash prize. Recipients were: Coahoma - Tracy Crawford; Bauer - Brittany Bryant; College Heights - Sterling King; Kentwood - Heather Wilksp Goliad - Vanessa Viera; Marcy - Lakshmi Mudambi; Moss - Rinnie Carson; Washington - Amy Darling.

Service awards were presented to District Directors Lloyd Underwood and Ray Russell.

Howard County resident Tommy Wegner was recently named Conservation Farmer of the Year by the Howard County Soil and Water Conservation District recently. Wegner stands next to one of his fields that contains windbreaks.

Gutierrez case waiting for lab work

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

District Attorney Rick Hamby and the sheriff's department are waiting for lab results from Lubbock concerning last month's apparent sexual assault and murder of a one year old girl.

Hamby asked for the evidence that was collected to be tested by the DPS lab in Lubbock.

"We haven't gotten anything back as of yet. I'm not sure how long it will be. The Lubbock lab provides service to numerous counties including us and the Panhandle so it takes a while for the results to get back.

"I'll be disappointed if we don't hear something within the next three or four weeks. I do have a preliminary report from the sheriff's office that details the information about the case. The investigation continues and the sheriff's office is doing a great job," said Hamby.

Jesse Gutierrez, 31, remains in the county jail on a $150,000 bond charged with murdering his niece, Daphne Nicole Gutierrez.

Preliminary autopsy results show that the child had been sexually assaulted then strangled to death.

After 35 years, Hawkins says goodbye to chalkboard

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Clarence Hawkins has been a teacher for 35 years and is retiring at the end of this month. He is currently teaching fifth grade at Washington Elementary and has been there since 1977.

Hawkins is from Post and graduated from high school there in 1955. He received his bachelor of arts degree from Southern Nazarene University in Bethany, Okla. and his master's of education from Texas Tech in 1966.

"I worked in Muleshoe for ten years and was getting my master's at Tech and at the same time. I first got my teaching certificate for high school then went back later and got my elementary teaching certificate," said Hawkins.

Locally, Hawkins has taught at both Airport and Marcy Elementary Schools. "I taught six years at Airport and two years in Marcy before moving here."

"Over the years, I've seen a change in the way students are brought up. They don't seem to respect authority nor care about education. It may be because there is a lack of authority and discipline at home.

"I started to retire last year but 35 (years) seemed like the magic number and this year seemed like the right time," Hawkins explained.

"I plan on relaxing for a while and evaluate where to go from here. My wife and I like to travel. We have visited all 50 states, Mexico and Canada so we'll probably do some traveling this summer," Hawkins added.

While in jail, residents find home burglarized

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Two Big Spring residents are being charged with possession of marijuana and while they were in jail, their home was burglarized.

According to reports, the narcotics division of the Big Spring Police Department ran a warrant at 821 West Eighth Street Tuesday evening. "We had received word that the two suspects were growing marijuana in their house. Two of their friends heard they were in jail and went over there to burglarize it," said Sgt. Scott Griffin.

18-year-old Mauricio Hernandez and 17-year-old Fabiola Ochoa, both of 821 West Eighth, were arrested and charged with possession of marijuana over two ounces and under five pounds.

A neighbor called police when they noticed that two other males were entering the home. 18-year-old Jesse Salgado were arrested and charged with burglary of a habitation. The two allegedly broke into the home and stole stereo equipment and a Sega Genesis video game system.

The property was recovered by officers and has been taken into evidence.

Hernandez's bond was set at $5,000 and Ochoa's was set at $7,500 for the drug possession charges. Mier's bond for burglary of a habitation was set at $15,000. He was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and that bond was set at $440. Salgado's bond was set at $15,000.

Martin County tax rolls drop 20 percent

STANTON - The Martin County tax roll has dropped approximately 20 percent, said Delbert Dickenson, Chief Appraiser for the Martin County Appraisal District, in a recent report to the Martin County Commissioners' Court.

According to Dickenson, the county's tax rate is currently 35.61 cents. He pointed out to raise the same amount of money would take a rate of approximately 44.55 cents. The drop in values represents an estimated loss of income in Martin County of $300,000.

In other court action, advertising for Road and Bridge fuel was authorized and the road report was reviewed. The court approved a proposal from the Martin County Historical Commission to place one of the old courthouse domes in the fountain area on the southwest corner of the courthouse. The project will be funded by Historical Commission funds.

Social worker in Gilmer investigation resigns

The Associated Press

DALLAS — A social worker under review for her handling of a child-abuse investigation that she said involved satanic rituals in the East Texas city of Gilmer has resigned.

Foster home developer Debbie Minshew resigned in a letter dated May 6, said Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services spokesman Stewart Davis.

The state agency was investigating Ms. Minshew and another social worker, Ann Goar. Both have drawn criticism after they said they identified satanic ritual abuse by the Kerr family of Gilmer.

Ms. Minshew, a 20-year veteran of the agency, was placed on leave and relieved of duties May 5, the day before she resigned.

Davis wouldn't say why Ms. Minshew quit. Ms. Minshew couldn't be reached for comment by The Associated Press.

David Reilly, the agency's chief of field operations, said officials fear that the two workers might have been overzealous in their pursuit of a satanic cult that was never proven to exist. Reilly said officials feared that the women, in their efforts to foil the cult, may have disregarded agency policies, resisted oversight and made decisions that ultimately harmed the children.

These decisions included placing 10 of the Kerr children with foster parents James and Marie Lappe. The Lappes of Colorado City, committed suicide in November after one of the children, a 7-year-old boy, was beaten into a coma.

In January, a special prosecutor recruited by the social workers helped obtain murder indictments against eight people, including several of the Kerrs and Gilmer police Sgt. James Brown.

Those indictments, stemming from the unsolved 1992 disappearance of Gilmer teen-ager Kelly Wilson, subsequently were dismissed for lack of evidence at the request of the state attorney general's office.

Gilmer, population 5,000, is 140 miles east of Dallas.

Parkland Hospital turns 100 Kennedy taken here when shot

The Associated Press

DALLAS — Dr. Charles Baxter remembers leaving Parkland Memorial Hospital the night of Nov. 22, 1963, the day President Kennedy was shot.

Baxter, who then headed Parkland's emergency room, ran into a woman who was crying. He tried to console her about the assassination.

"The president's dead?" she asked. "My baby just died."

Dr. Ron Anderson, Parkland's president and chief executive officer, uses the story to illustrate how Kennedy's life was only one of thousands that the hospital has touched in its 100-year existence.

"Parkland had to keep working, had to keep functioning. ... I think that that's probably what we should be known for," he said. "We'll keep taking care of the next patient's needs."

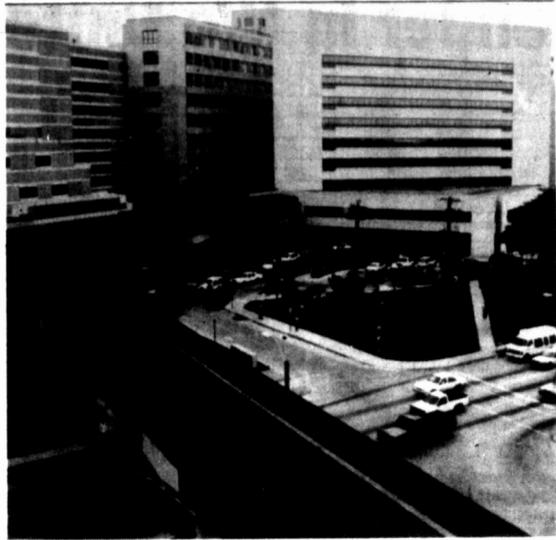

Anderson says he considers the centennial a milestone that marks the hospital's ability to adapt to changing health care challenges. Only 12 percent of the nation's nearly 5,300 community hospitals are 100 years old or older, according to the American Medical Association.

Hospital officials say that as they celebrate Parkland's centennial Thursday, they are looking forward, awaiting a national health care reform plan, attempting to expand preventive medicine and improving care for Dallas County residents.

"We don't try to make (the assassination) our centerpiece," says MacGregor Day, executive vice president and chief operating officer. "It's an important piece of our history."

That history began May 19, 1894, when Parkland opened a group of frame buildings, taking its name from the wooded park land it occupied. The hospital moved to its present location just northwest of downtown Dallas in 1954.

Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas employs 5,500 people and has a 1994 budget of $367 million. The first Parkland hospital opened May 19, 1894. President Kennedy was taken to Parkland Hospital Nov. 22, 1963.

were brought to Parkland for treatment in 1963.

The 1960s also brought social change, and Parkland was the first hospital in Dallas to desegregate its wards, cafeterias and employee facilities, Anderson said.

Day describes the 1970s as a dark period. As a publicly funded hospital, Parkland catered to indigent and poor patients. It was running up large debts, lacking a capital expenditures budget and at odds with UT Southwestern.

Hospital board members and doctors determined that "if we're only going to care for the indigent and poor, we'll never be more than mediocre. So we raised our standards," Day said.

Making vast renovations and equipment purchases could raise the hospital's standards and make the facility attractive to paying patients, he said. "This was breakthrough-type stuff for a public-teaching hospital," he said. "That was a major business and medical and patient care standard that we set."

In 1980, voters approved an $80 million bond package to modernize the aging facility. Since then, Day said, just about every square foot of the hospital has been updated.

Today, Parkland continues a 50-year relationship as the teaching hospital for the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center.

The hospital also is one of three in the state designated by the Texas Department of Health as a Level 1 trauma center. That means it can handle the most critical patients in a 19-county North Texas area, said Terry McCormack, administrator of the trauma facility designation program.

Hermann Hospital in Houston and University Medical Center in Lubbock also have the Level 1 designation.

Parents fight AIDs activist's will

Randy Brown, 34, who died Jan. 30, bequeathed much of his $146,000 estate to the Foundation for Human Understanding.

But his parents, Robert and Joan Brown, are challenging the will. They contend their son lacked the mental capacity to draw up the document and that he was unduly influ-

Hole theory cure for 'brown tide'

The Associated Press

CORPUS CHRISTI — Rather than sticking its head in the sand about the "brown tide," a coastal group is considering the idea of digging a hole underneath the sand.

The theory is that an underground waterway through Padre Island would allow better circulation of waters between the Gulf and Laguna Madre, dispersing the destructive algae bloom now growing rampantly in the vast lagoon.

But it's just a theory so far, said Kevin Daniels, executive director of the Gulf Coast Conservation Association, a nonprofit group of sport fishing enthusiasts and conservationists.

Brown tide, composed of microscopic algae, has been a problem since 1989 when it began blooming prolifically in Baffin Bay and spreading north and south in Laguna Madre.

It's clouding the vast, shallow lagoon, weakening seagrasses by blocking sunlight, scientists say. Seagrass beds are essential habitats for fish stocks.

"Right now, we are in a near-emergency situation concerning the brown tide," said Ray Allen, chairman of the Coastal Bend Bays Foundation. "If something isn't done soon to alleviate the brown tide, we may see the loss of the most effective fishing grounds in the state of Texas."

But Allen doubts that a waterway, which would cut through one mile to two miles of land, could be kept free from blockage by sand.

Daniels said his group's executive committee is likely to approve a study at a June meeting.

The study would look at placing a waterway near Baffin Bay in a desolate Padre Island spot known as Yarborough Pass, a former pass now filled with sand.

It would explore the cost, how to move the water and the effect on water quality, Daniels said.

He said the study won't look into cutting an open-air channel because of the expense and environmental questions.

The association will wait for the study results before deciding whether to support the idea, Daniels said.

An underground waterway could decrease the brown tide, but it would be very expensive — if it could be built at all, said Terry Whitley, acting director of the University of Texas Marine Science Institute in Port Aransas.

TEA accused of mismanaging federal funds

The Associated Press

COLLEGE STATION — The Texas Education Agency has so severely mismanaged a $10 million award from the National Science Foundation that the program has been suspended and faces possible termination, college faculty members say.

The criticism came Tuesday from faculty members at Texas A&M and the University of Texas.

John Fackler, an A&M distinguished chemistry professor, said the "Statewide Systematic Initiative in Science and Math Education" program funded by the National Science Foundation has failed so far in Texas because of "ineptness on the part of our state agencies and our governor to address the issues that needed to be addressed."

"It took almost a year and a half to get a director lined up and then the person backed out when put into the position," Fackler said.

University of Texas chemistry faculty member Mary Anne Fox, a member of NSF's governing board, said she told Gov. Ann Richards in a May 9 letter that she was concerned about saving the program.

The faculty member said she first tried to bring the program's troubles to the attention of the governor last summer, but three meetings with the governor's office were "cancelled at the last minute."

She also said in her letter to Gov. Richards that she was informed on May 6 that the "National Science Board approved withdrawal of continuing support" for the Texas program "because of serious problems with management."

Roxanne Evans, deputy press secretary for Gov. Richards' office, said the program hasn't been cancelled yet.

"Our discussion with (NSF official) Luther Williams is that we still have reason to be optimistic about next week's meeting," Evans said. "Our feeling is we'll try to work things out and we're reasonably optimistic we can do so."

Gordon was to get Brown's Ford Explorer and some personal effects, while other family and friends were to inherit property, the attorney said.

A temporary executor has been appointed by the court.

Plans to hire gang leaders delayed

DALLAS (AP) — A plan to hire gang leaders as anti-violence counselors probably won't be enacted in Fort Worth by the city's June 1 deadline because of public outcry against the policy, Mayor Kay Granger said Tuesday.

She said questions raised by the public and the City Council would have to be answered before any youths are hired.

"After the kind of reaction we've seen, no one is saying 'Rush this,'" Ms. Granger said.

The Fort Worth City Council last week voted 8-1 to hire six former gang members and pay them $10,000 a year to counsel followers to stop being violent.

Local, state and national news agencies reported the story, and the city was roundly criticized on call-in radio and television programs.

"With this kind of attention and this kind of backlash, I think they'll hesitate to step forward," Ms. Granger said.

The program wasn't on the agenda at Tuesday night's City Council meeting, but many residents still spoke out against it.

Beals Creek projects needs to be completed

As the rain poured last week, farmers rejoiced with the moisture.

But as the rains continued, Beals Creek began to overflow its banks, flooding Third Street and sections of Birdwell.

Usually, the businesses lining that stretch of the road end up suffering.

This time around, the suffering was somewhat alleviated with the help of city crews.

The fire department, Assistant City Manager Tom Decell and City Manager Lanny Lambert worked together with the business owners along Third Street, helping them move their belongings out of water's harm.

Working together helps to lessen the problem. But, this flooding episode begs the question of what is going on with the Beals Creek improvements? The money for the project was passed in 1992, along with bonds for water line improvements.

According to Decell, the project is in the design stage and construction is expected to begin in the latter part of this year.

Given West Texas' penchant for wildly changing weather, the Beals Creek project needs to be completed.

Public's discontent mirrored in Congress' hawkish attitude

DONALD M. ROTHBERG
 AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — Bomb Bosnia, invade Haiti, gear up for Korean War II. Congress is in a hawkish mood these days, pressing President Clinton to commit U.S. military power in trouble spots around the globe.

The discontent also is reflected in a poll published Tuesday that found the American people unhappy with Clinton's foreign policy.

"We're in a rough patch right now," conceded State Department spokesman Mike McCurry. "A lot of these policies may bear fruit. It's hard to say they are getting smashing results."

"We have the opportunity to do something with minimum resistance if we decide to take military action," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., advocating the use of force to restore Jean-Bertrand Aristide to power in Haiti.

"I think the invasion would be precisely the wrong thing to do," countered Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas.

"A clear consistent foreign policy will only exist with presidential direction," said Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "I think most members of Congress are willing to give bipartisan support to a clear presidential directed foreign policy."

"But if they don't see that then there are many with a great deal of expertise on foreign policy who are going to try and develop their own. That's what's happening now."

"I feel our leadership around the world is being eroded by stop-and-start policies of hesitancy," former President Bush told a Republican fund-raising event in Wisconsin. "In foreign affairs, you have to set a goal, set a course and stick with it," he said.

AP News Analysis

Sen. Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., said he believes that "if there is any place in the world where we have a national interest it's Haiti because of the problem of illegal aliens."

As a result, he said, "I'm one of probably a handful of Republicans that don't think we ought to rule that option (military force) out."

"I think Congress is moving into the vacuum here created by the weakest foreign policy in my memory," he said. "I can't find a single area of the world where I think this administration is doing a good job, not one."

A new Washington Post-ABC News poll said that 40 percent of Americans approve of Clinton's handling of foreign policy and 53 percent disapprove. Asked whether Clinton has a clear foreign policy, only 13 percent said yes, while 37 percent said no and half had no opinion.

The Senate was so divided on the question of whether to defy the U.N. ban on arms sales to the Bosnian Muslims that it approved two resolutions — one calling on the administration to act unilaterally, the other saying the United States ought to go to the United Nations and seek the support of other countries.

Shortly after that vote, it was learned that one country had taken unilateral action to ship arms to the Bosnian Muslims: Iran.

McConnell was a strong supporter of lifting the arms embargo and conceded that "the only people who are helping them at the moment are the Iranians."

"Politics makes strange bedfellows."

Mass surrender in the United States

RENSELAER, Ind. — On the Midwestern highways leading from Illinois to the rural fields of Indiana, you see the billboards and signs. They're come-ons of the most obvious sort — invitations to gamble.

The invitations are sanctioned by the state governments. That's not unusual these days — governments all over the United States are in the business of teasing their citizens into gambling, and the tease has been going on for so long that it has become part of the backdrop of American life. Your elected officials hope that you are a gambler — or that if you're not, that you will become one. They want your money.

The state lotteries are the most common form of government-backed gambling, but casinos — either land-based or on water — are catching up fast. Casino-type gambling exists or has been proposed in 36 of the 50 states. The reason is elementary. As journalists Rob Karwath and George Papajohn noted recently: "Politicians, afraid of raising such everyday taxes as those on real estate and income, (have) embraced gambling as a seemingly painless way to fuel their municipal and state budgets. As a result, governments throughout the U.S. are becoming ever more reliant on taxes and fees from gambling."

Bob Greene

True. Gambling, as a way of bringing in money, without question is effective. But in the rush to raise cash by endorsing and sponsoring gambling operations, whether in lotteries or casinos, state governments have trained themselves to close their eyes to two unpleasant realities:

1. It is wrong for a government to lure its citizens into gambling their money.

2. It is yet another sign that we, as a nation, are surrendering — not just in this way, but in many important ways.

Politicians and gambling corporations and some gamblers will dispute that first observation — they will say there's nothing wrong with government being in the gambling business. But of course there is something wrong with it, which is why for centuries most states and cities stayed away from being gambling entrepreneurs. Many people will gamble when given the chance, yes; that does not mean the government should be the bookie. A government that goes into the gambling business cannot claim to be a healthy government.

Which brings us to the second observation. Because so many state and local governments are not healthy — because so many state and local governments are desperate for money — they have embraced gambling as a form of surrender. If taxes based on income, on property, on manufacturing production have been exhausted or increased past the level the citizenry finds reasonable, then weary governments — weary cities, weary states — raise their arms and say: We give up.

And the surrender only begins with gambling. In Fort Worth, Texas, last week, members of the City Council were considering putting six street gang leaders on the municipal payroll. The stated reason is to combat violence.

City and police officials in Fort Worth seem a little nervous about the project, but according to reports they are verging on going ahead with it. Gang-related shootings in the city, as in so many U.S. cities, have become a severe problem. So why not hire gang members, and ask them to persuade other gang members to change their ways? Maybe it will work, maybe it won't. But it sounds like paying protection money. It sounds like giving up. It sounds like saying: "The government can't stop criminality using methods that have worked in the past, so it's time to give money to the criminals." It sounds like surrender.

As does the current proposal to redesign U.S. paper currency. The U.S. Treasury and Bureau of Engraving are considering making paper money look dramatically different from what it traditionally has. The reason: to stop counterfeiters in the drug trade. Plans are to change the look of $100 bills first — the bills favored by drug dealers.

The government can't stop the drug traffic; the government can't arrest the drug criminals. Might as well change the money that we all use. Maybe that will work.

Might as well surrender.

Maybe those gang leaders who are about to go on the government payroll in Texas will end up spending some of their leisure time gambling in government-run casinos somewhere, using the new paper currency that will be printed to combat crime. Some people would find that ironic. But it's not irony. It's merely surrender.

Who cares about their safety?

Editor:
 Is the safety of our young children a consistent or convenient concern?

"A swimming pool ordinance was approved by the Big Spring City Council, Tuesday," reported Tim Jones, Big Spring Herald, April 27, 1994.

"Laws now require apartments and motel/hotels to fence pools," City Attorney Mike Thomas III stated. "This is a nuisance that the city has a right to abate," he stated.

"Legally speaking, unless the homeowner has made every effort to remedy the situation, they could be held liable," said Mayor Tim Blackshear.

In another child safety concern matter, the council was implored, on behalf of the children attending Moss Elementary School, to ask Abilene State School "That a halfway house for developmentally disabled not be built in the 3300 block of Fordham near Moss Elementary School," Jones also reported.

It appears that the school district, which I recall hearing the prior week comment softly, "We don't like it," and the council members hearing the Mayor saying, "If you fight this in court, you'll probably lose the case," seemed without a deep-seated and honest concern for the safety of the children attending Moss Elementary School, as that safety relates to the near presence of developmentally disabled adult persons.

I do not believe that the school district and the city council made every reasonable effort to avoid jeopardizing the safety of the children. Who will be held liable if an incident does occur involving a child attending Moss Elementary School and a resident of a Fordham street halfway house? The State? The School District? The city council? All of them and/or the parents?

Every parent of children attending Moss Elementary School should have been provided the opportunity of input. Why weren't they?

Perhaps the council was willingly influenced by City Attorney Thomas' comment, "Legal fees would likely be $50,000 and then likely unsuccessful." Not a single council member asked if there was a precedent indicating one or more successes.

The parents of children attending Moss Elementary School now know the collective value of the safety for all such children. In the eyes of others, it has been quantified. The city council, something less than $50,000. The school district, even less.

I believe the school district and the city council should have joined forces, communicated with and for the involvement of all the parents and then taken every avenue of opportunity to have averted Abilene State School from building a home for developmentally disabled adult persons near Moss Elementary School.

Know your history

Editor:
 I agree with Karen L. Crandall on the subject, of getting rid of firearms, she does know what she is talking about. But if the people would take the time to read their history, they would see what she is talking about.

For, example in France there is a law that all weapons, no matter what kind, cannons or b-b guns they have to be registered with the government and when the Nazi's marched into France, they went to the hall of records at each town and got the names, and went and got them. If you didn't give them up, you were taken and killed.

On the rest of what she says, I agree with, it is time for the whole country that should wake up, from the top to the bottom. Big time to small time, the whole system has broken down. They should wake up and take a look at what is going on.

So like the women says, it is time for people to have a say, and start taking control of what is really their birth right, after all people did die to make this a free country.

So let all of us give this some very deep thought, um-h.

Same dreams as the 'abled'

Editor:
 On May 13, 1994, a concerned citizen wrote a letter to the editor addressing concerns about the construction of the halfway house being built by Abilene State School on Fordam street near Moss Elementary School. Why do the citizens of Big Spring think that our children's safety is being jeopardized by this halfway house? It is true that this home will house developmentally disabled adults. It is also true that the residents of this home may act differently than you or I. The way they speak, walk, laugh, sing, or even look may be outside the realm of what we call normal. But why does this make them a danger to our children?

My daughter attends Moss Elementary and is developmentally disabled. She looks, speaks, and walks differently than the other children, but this does not make her a danger to anyone. The city of Big Spring is being prejudiced that our children do not need to be taught. When is this town going to give people with disabilities a chance to become a productive part of society? If you would get to know these disabled people, you would find out how ABLED they really are.

The citizens of this town want our city to grow, but how is it to grow when you keep trying to run people off before you get to know them? My family has decided that we cannot live in a city that has no desire to get to know us because our daughter is different. If you keep running people off because they do not fit a certain mold, this will soon be a ghost town.

We did not ask to be parents of a disabled child, but when it happened, our lives changed along with our hopes and dreams. Please give our daughter, the residents of the halfway house and other persons with disabilities a chance to live out their hopes and dreams. You may even find out their hopes and dreams are not much different than yours.

Donations make the difference

Editor:
 Greetings from the heart!

As we all start thinking about the Memorial Day weekend, I would like to thank the citizens of Reagan County that have been past memorial donors to the American Heart Association. Memorial donations make an important difference in the life or death fight against heart and blood vessel disease.

Unfortunately heart disease is still the leading cause of death in Reagan County, but progress is being made as we continue to fund research and public education. Please feel good about the significant difference you will make when you make your next donation to the American Heart Association.

If you would like to honor a loved one this Memorial Day by making a donation to the American Heart Association, please feel free to call our regional office in Midland (520-7041), or mail your donation with the name and address where you would like the acknowledgement card sent, to: American Heart Association, 3525 Andrews Hwy., Ste. 111, Midland, Texas 79703.

Again, thank you for helping the hearts of many, and have a safe and happy Memorial Day weekend.

Parts of freeway open after quake

SANTA CLARITA, Calif. (AP) — A section of the Golden State Freeway, California's major north-south highway, is open again, four months after being shattered by the Los Angeles earthquake.

The first vehicles rolled onto southbound lanes of Interstate 5's Gavin Canyon Bridge, 25 miles northwest of downtown Los Angeles, on Tuesday afternoon. Northbound lanes were expected to reopen today.

The 6.7-magnitude quake Jan. 17 closed a road that carried 140,000 vehicles per day, adding an extra hour each way for many commuters and cutting off a main route used by trucks.

The contractor, E.L. Yeager Construction Co., beat the completion deadline by 33 days. It was paid $19.75 million, plus a bonus of nearly $5 million for finishing early.

Among those invited to the reopening was Dave Farley, who was on the bridge when the quake hit. His pickup skidded to a stop 30 feet from where a section of the bridge fell away.

"It felt like a big wind and I just went sideways," he said. "I was airborne, actually."

Clergy want station to change billboard

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — Local preachers have seen a sign, and they don't like it.

The Greater Fall River Council of Churches wants Providence, R.I., rock station WHJY-FM to remove a billboard declaring its signal has "more power than God."

"We'd like them to take down the billboard, or to change it — the sooner the better," the Rev. John Mueller, president of the council and pastor of the Union United Methodist Church, said Tuesday.

Bill Weston, WHJY program director, said the billboard along Interstate 195 is informing listeners that the station's transmitter has been fixed and is back up to 50,000 watts.

"Our intention was to attract attention. It was not to blaspheme or commit sacrilege," Weston said.

He said the station plans to keep the billboard up through the end of the month, and added that the dozen or so complaints he receives each day come from people outside WHJY's target audience of people 18 to 39.

The complainers "know Tony Bennett but don't know Led Zeppelin," he said.

Empress makes first speech since collapsing

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's Empress Michiko made her first public speech today since she collapsed last fall in an apparent nervous breakdown.

Appearing at a meeting of Japan Red Cross representatives, Michiko read a brief address supporting Red Cross efforts around the world.

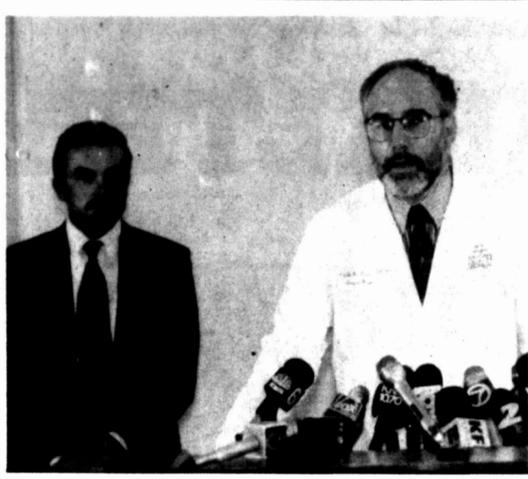

It was the first time she had spoken in public since collapsing last Oct. 20, said an Imperial Household Agency official, adding that she had been able to speak privately since the beginning of May.

The frail empress collapsed while preparing for her 59th birthday celebrations because of mental distress, officials said last year. The previous day she had issued a statement saying she was saddened by unflattering stories about her in gossip-oriented magazines.

She began appearing in public again eight days later but did not speak.

Sexually active teens regret getting started

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Most sexually active teen-agers in a national poll say they lost their virginity too soon, but not because of pressure from their friends or dates.

Fifty-four percent of those who have had sex said they should have waited, the Roper poll found. The sexually active teens gave, on average, 17 as the "best age" to begin sexual intercourse, two years older than the average age they said they began.

Most said they started not because of pressure from friends (4 percent) or from the partner (6 percent) but because they wanted to (78 percent). Nine in 10 of all the teens in the poll denied they feel pressure from friends or dates to have sex, and 83 percent said they feel no pressure from TV or movies.

"Rolinda," a nationally syndicated talk show, commissioned the poll for a program today with help from the Sexuality Information and Education Council of the United States, a New York-based interest group.

Telephone interviews with 503 students in grades nine through 12 were conducted last month by Roper Starch Worldwide. Results have a margin of sampling error of less than 5 percentage points.

Forty-one percent said they engaged in sex with penetration, and almost three-quarters of them said they did it in the homes of their parents or their partners' parents.

Eight in 10 of the sexually active said they use condoms all or most of the time, but the bad news for AIDS prevention is that 21 percent reported four or more partners and only 57 percent always use a condom.

The share of those who said they had intercourse, 36 percent, is much lower than the 54 percent in a 1990 survey by the Centers for Disease Control.

House eyes space station cuts

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — As House appropriators cast an eye on NASA's budget, looking for possible cuts, the space agency's administrator is mounting a staunch defense of the space station.

The orbiting laboratory, which accounts for one-seventh of NASA's budget, offers a juicy target to lawmakers searching for ways to trim spending. Having squeaked through the House last year by a one-vote margin, the space station is particularly vulnerable this year.

Testifying Tuesday on Capitol Hill, NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin used the largely friendly forum to defend the $30 billion space station against congressional criticism.

Since the space station's brush with death last year, he noted, NASA has redesigned the station, selected a new prime contractor, signed a partnership with Russia and restructured the project's internal chain of command.

Goldin cautioned against cuts, saying any funding slowdown would swell the final price tag.

"If we cut the annual funding for the space station, the only thing that we could do is slip it out in time. Then when you slip the program out in time you then raise the cost," he told the House appropriations subcommittee that allocates NASA funds.

The panel has $72.9 billion to divvy up next year between the space agency and the other agencies that fall under its umbrella, including the Department of Housing and Urban Development and the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Subcommittee Chairman Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, noted that the $72.9 billion is almost $400 million less than the Clinton administration is seeking for the various agencies next year. The administration wants $14.2 billion for NASA, of which $2.1 billion would be for the space station.

Waxman: Days of secrets over

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A congressman accused the tobacco industry Tuesday of intimidation in his investigation into whether the industry conspired against Americans' health.

"The tobacco industry may not like it but their days of secrets ... are over," declared Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif. "The tobacco industry is engaging in a pattern of trying to intimidate people ... which will not be permitted to keep us from doing our work."

He said he will resist Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. attempts to examine the confidential records of his congressional investigation, and that he expects its chief executive to testify before Congress on Friday.

At issue are internal documents showing Brown & Williamson executives knew 30 years ago that smoking was dangerous and nicotine was addictive, and that they developed but shelved a safer cigarette.

Among the documents, given to the news media, is a July 1963 memo from company attorney Addison Yeaman that says: "We are, then, in the business of selling nicotine, an addictive drug." He added that cigarettes ease stress and prevent weight gain but also "cause or predispose" smokers to lung cancer, contribute to heart disease and "may well be truly causative in emphysema, etc., etc."

Big Spring Woman's Club donates to DRC

By JANET AUSBURY
Features Editor

Big Spring Woman's Club has joined the list of contributors to the renovation of the Dora Roberts Community Center.

Monday night's club meeting took place at the newly renovated center. Center board member Beverly McMahon was on hand to receive a $2,000 donation from the club.

"This is great," said McMahon as she praised the group's fundraising efforts. "It's just wonderful that you are able to do this."

McMahon gave the club a tour of the center and offered a brief history of the renovation efforts. Some furnishings, such as draperies and end tables, have not arrived yet but have already been paid for.

Other features include office space that may eventually be used for a full-time person to run the center. The Chamber of Commerce currently handles booking of the center. The office space could possibly be made available to a non-profit organization, said McMahon.

Club members marveled not only at the restored center but at the scenery surrounding it. "I didn't realize Big Spring had such a pretty view," said one member as she stared through large windows at Comanche Trail Lake and South Mountain.

Donna Tune, past president of Big Spring Woman's Club, said the contribution came from a certificate of deposit that the club had for several years.

"We just decided this would be a good project to contribute to, since the renovations were going on," she explained. Much of Big Spring Woman's Club's purpose is to contribute services and funds to community projects.

The club is currently attempting to narrow down a list of possible service projects. The service projects are part of the club's membership in the General Federated Women's Clubs and Texas Federated Women's Clubs.

Beverly McMahon, Dora Roberts Community Center board member, receives Big Spring Woman's Club's $2,000 donation to the center from club treasurer Cindy Kountz. The donation was presented to McMahon during Monday's club meeting at the center.

PAM KIGGANS' SPAGHETTI SAUCE
1 pound ground beef
1/2 pound ground pork (optional)
1 can solid pack tomatoes
1 can tomato soup
1 can tomato paste
1 can tomato sauce
1/2 pkg. Lawry's spaghetti sauce mix
1/2 pkg. onion soup mix
1 can sliced mushrooms
Brown meat. Drain fat. Add all other ingredients. Simmer 8 hours.

STACI CHIETTY'S LASAGNA
1 to 1 1/2 pound hamburger meat
1 to 2 pkg. spaghetti sauce mix
1 can whole tomatoes
1 carton cottage cheese
Mozzarella cheese
Parmesan cheese
1 pkg. (16 ounces) lasagna noodles

Brown ground beef; drain well. Prepare sauce mix according to package. Add tomatoes and meat. Simmer.

Fix lasagna according to package. Rinse in cool water when done.

Layer in a large baking pan in the following order:

1/3 noodles
1/3 sauce
1/2 cottage cheese
1/2 mozzarella cheese

End with sauce. Top with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes; cover with foil.

SUSAN DANIEL'S MANICOTTI
1 1/2 to 2 pounds ground beef, browned and drained
1 pound mozzarella cheese, shredded
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 slice bread, cubed
1/2 cup milk
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon sage
1/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1/2 teaspoon black pepper
1 large jar spaghetti sauce
1 box manicotti noodles

In a large skillet, brown and drain meat. Add cheese, egg, bread, milk, oregano, sage, salt and pepper, stir well and let simmer until noodles are ready.

In salted boiling water, add noodles and cook until soft but not limp. Drain noodles and run cold water over them. Stuff each noodle carefully with the meat mixture and place in 9 by 13 inch baking dish.

Cover all the stuffed noodles with spaghetti sauce. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes or until brown. Serve with a tossed salad and bread. Toast. Serves six to eight people.

Common foods help cancer

Six common foods are reported to help patients with cancer, heart disease and other ailments. Celery can reduce systolic blood pressure and cholesterol. Broccoli reduces growth of breast cancer. Grapefruit cuts blood fat. Flaxseed prevents tumors. Garlic reduces cholesterol. And soybeans prevent cirrhosis. — From Drug Topics, April 11, 1994.

Condoms reduce the risk of acquiring HIV by only 69 percent, according to a recent analysis. That's probably because they aren't completely impermeable to HIV, and because people don't always use them consistently and correctly. Condoms are much better at preventing pregnancy — in fact, nearly 90 percent effective, research indicates. — From RN Magazine, May 1994.

A number of nutrients are under clinical study for their role in preventing and treating disease. These include beta carotene for lung cancer, niacin for recurrent heart attacks, vitamin A for measles, magnesium and fish oil for hypertension, calcium for hypertension and osteoporosis, pyridoxine for depression, and antioxidants for reducing damage from heart attacks. From Drug Topics, April 11, 1994.

Children need to eat often, but not constantly. Three meals and 2-3 snacks a day should be sufficient. If the doctor says your child needs more calories, add margarine, mayonnaise, gravies and grated cheese to foods. For snacks, use peanut butter, cheese, pudding, bananas or dried fruit. It's easier to add calories to the food than to make the child eat more food. — From Patient Care, March 15, 1994.

Sun-care companies are gearing their efforts to meet the rising needs of consumers worried about the damaging effects of the sun. New specialty products include sport formulas that stay on despite perspiration; high-protection formulations for the sensitive skin of children; and chemical-free products for use as part of a daily skin-maintenance program with UVA and UVB sun protection. — From Drug Topics, March 21, 1994.

The more than 10,000 facilities in the U.S. that perform or interpret mammograms will soon have to meet upgraded federal standards or risk being put out of business. A new FDA regulation aimed at preventing botched and delayed diagnoses of breast cancer requires each facility to establish a quality assurance program, employ certified or licensed personnel, monitor mammography units to ensure proper radiation levels, and undergo annual on-site inspections. — From RN Magazine, April 1994.

Failure to thrive, or inadequate weight gain, occurs in nearly 10 percent of children. This complex ailment has both medical and psychosocial roots. It is not an emotional disorder nor is it limited to low-income families. The serious consequences of failure to thrive can be prevented if a physician is consulted and proper steps are taken as soon as the rate of weight gain begins to fall off. — From Patient Care, March 15, 1994.

A typical elderly patient takes 4-5 different medications a day and 13 different drugs a year. This is known as polypharmacy. While it may be unavoidable in some older patients with multiple illnesses, the risk of adverse drug reactions increases with the number of drugs.

A child has a greater percentage of body water than an adult and a smaller circulating blood volume. So even small amounts of fluid loss — through dehydration, for instance — can compromise a child's circulation. This condition can quickly lead to hypovolemic shock, tissue hypoxia and, if untreated, cardiac arrest. From RN Magazine, May 1994.

Presidency may be hazardous to health

By DON KIRKMAN
Scripps Howard News Service

The death of Richard Nixon marked the seventh time that a chief executive of the United States has died because of a stroke.

It also confirmed the widely held belief that the presidency is one of the most stressful occupations in the world, a "killing job," says Dr. Shri Mishra, a neurologist at the Veterans Affairs outpatient clinic in Los Angeles.

In a recent study, Mishra reviewed the health records and historical reports of the 41 presidents from George Washington to Bill Clinton. Strokes have been the most common cause of death for presidents while in the general population, they are the third leading cause, after heart attacks and cancer.

Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and Warren Harding were killed by strokes while in office. Woodrow Wilson suffered several while in office, then succumbed to a stroke after he left the White House.

Other stroke victims were diabetic Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams (who died on the floor of the House of Representatives), Dwight Eisenhower (who also had numerous heart attacks) and Nixon.

Until Nixon's death, no president had suffered a stroke in 34 years, Mishra noted. That's probably because recent presidents are more health conscious than their predecessors. They control their high blood pressure, don't smoke, don't drink excessive amounts of alcohol and watch their diets.

A powerful anti-cancer drug has halted the progressive, widespread damage caused by multiple sclerosis during tests at the Scripps Research Institute in La Jolla, Calif.

The drug is Cladribine, a therapy previously used to successfully combat several types of leukemia.

During the past three years, Cladribine halted — but did not cure — the disease's destructive downward course. Multiple sclerosis victims suffer increasing paralysis, tremors, spasticity, muscle weakness and impaired thinking and reasoning.

Though physicians don't know for sure what causes MS, they think the body's white blood cells attack the myelin sheath that insulates nerves.

Cladribine's effectiveness was confirmed by a double-blind medical study in which 24 MS victims received the drug and 24 others were given salt water injections. Cladribine's positive impact was so marked that the study was discontinued at the end of one year and those that were getting saline injections were switched to the drug.

"There is no question that Cladribine favorably influences the clinical course of chronic progressive multiple sclerosis," said Dr. Ernest Beutler, chairman of Scripps' Department of Molecular and Experimental Medicine and one of the drug's developers.

A nationwide test to confirm Cladribine's effect is being organized, Beutler said.

Bustamante meets challenges

BSHS senior handles variety of roles on baseball team

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

He plays perhaps the most challenging position defensively. He bats in perhaps the most challenging spot in the lineup.

And when he pitches, challenges are usually all over the place. No doubt about it, Luis Bustamante must enjoy pressure — either that, or he has a masochistic streak that can be seen from earth orbit.

It is an understatement to say that Bustamante, a senior on the Big Spring High School baseball team, is a key member of the squad. How key? Consider these points:

- 1.) He plays third base — the infamous "hot corner" — where line drives and wicked, bad-hop grounders are a fact of life.
 - 2.) He's the team's leadoff batter, responsible for jump-starting the offense and being a general pain in the neck to opposing pitchers.
 - 3.) He's the main relief pitcher for the Steers, meaning he usually takes the mound when the team is in trouble, and the bases are loaded with opponents.
 - 4.) To top it all off, as a senior, he's called upon to handle a leadership role on the team.
- Having that kind of responsibility could shatter some folks' confidence, but Bustamante has thrived in his multiple roles. BSHS coach Bobby Doe is understandably grateful.
- "He can probably play any position in the field, and do it adequately," Doe said. "He's a great third baseman — as good as any we've ever had — and that's hard on him because I know he wants to pitch more, but he does it. And as a lead-off hitter, he's gotten on base quite a lot, and he's scored plenty of runs this season."

Bustamante's emergence as the team's handy man is part of a gradual transformation that has occurred throughout his high school career.

He first made the varsity as a freshman, when he was called up during the playoffs. His sophomore year saw him used primarily as a starting pitcher, and he was a short-stop/relief pitcher his junior season.

Moving over to third base, Bustamante said, has been no problem.

"It doesn't bother me," he said. "It's just like playing any other position. You've still got to get the ball and throw it to first."

Ditto making the switch to leadoff hitter.

"I did it one day and did OK, so I've been doing it since," Bustamante said. "You've got to be selective, and make the pitcher

When: Game 1 — 7 p.m. Friday.

Game 2 — 1 p.m. Saturday.

Game 3 (if needed) — 30 minutes after conclusion of Game 2.

How to get to Chapparral Stadium: U.S. 87 north to Lubbock. Loop 289 west to 19th Street. Right on 19th Street to LQU (about two blocks).

"I kind of lost a lot of my control since they haven't used me as much as last year," he said. "But here lately, I've been hitting my spots, so it's coming back to me."

Just as valuable as his on-field skills, Doe said, is his leadership qualities.

"He's probably more of a quiet leader," Doe said. "He's not real vocal. He just does his job and goes on about his work."

Playing college ball is definitely in Bustamante's plans, but his first priority is helping the Steers in the upcoming state baseball playoffs, which start this weekend against Borger.

"We're planning on going back to the state tournament," he said. "For a lot of us, this is our last go at it, so we really don't want to let down. We've got more people on the team who can contribute, and more leaders. Everybody's pulled together really well this year."

Rockets shoot down Suns

By The Associated Press

The Denver Nuggets stayed alive in a heart-stopper.

The Atlanta Hawks stayed alive with some breathing room.

The Phoenix Suns needed to be checked for a pulse.

In three distinctly different Game 5s on Tuesday night, three teams came away with 3-2 leads.

Two of the teams — Utah and Indiana — missed chances to close out their series. Houston, meanwhile, continued its comeback from a 2-0 deficit.

The Nuggets beat the Jazz 109-101 in double overtime, the Hawks beat the Pacers 88-76 and the Rockets crushed the Suns 109-86.

Denver's victory was the most exciting.

Both teams had chances to win before it reached double overtime. John Stockton barely missed an off-balance 10-footer from the corner at the end of regulation, and Robert Pack clanged a 3-point attempt at the end of the first overtime.

That sent it into a second extra period, and Denver ran off the first seven points to silence the crowd at the Delta Center. Brian Williams scored the first two points on a dunk off a pass from Pack.

It was Denver's fifth straight victory in a win-or-go home situation. The Nuggets trailed Seattle 2-0 in their opening round of the playoffs, then won the next three.

They trailed Utah 3-0 in this series before winning two straight. Bryant Stith and Mahmoud Abdul-Rauf scored 22 points each for Denver. Pack and Williams added 19 apiece.

Karl Malone had 22 points for Utah, but the Jazz couldn't find another offensive weapon after he fouled out midway through the first overtime.

Game 6 is Thursday at Denver.

Rockets 109, Suns 86

At Houston, it was over shortly after it started.

The Rockets had a pair of early 9-0 spurts, the second of which gave them a 27-13 lead in the first quarter. They opened the second period with a 10-1 run en route to a 58-37 halftime lead.

Hakeem Olajuwon and Otis Thorpe each scored 20 points and Kenny Smith had 16 for Houston. Charles Barkley had 30 for Phoenix, but Kevin Johnson was held to 10 points after scoring 38 in both Game 3 and Game 4.

Game 6 is Thursday at Phoenix, and a victory by Houston would make the Rockets only the second team in NBA history to win a best-of-7 series after losing the first two games at home.

Hawks 88, Pacers 76

At Atlanta, the Hawks shut down the Pacers with the kind of intense defensive effort they were missing in Games 3 and 4.

The Pacers shot only 35 percent from the field and were scoreless in the final 2:39 as they failed to get the ball into Reggie Miller's hands. Haywoode Workman ended up 0-for-8 from the field and Byron Scott was 2-for-11.

Atlanta's Mookie Blaylock turned in his second triple-double of the series with 14 points, 13 assists and 10 rebounds. He also had four steals and a blocked shot.

Mavs' first coach signs on for second tour of duty in Dallas

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — Dick Motta, once again the head coach of the Dallas Mavericks, insists that, at 62, the NBA game hasn't passed him by.

"I wouldn't attempt something like this if I weren't fully confident I could do it with every fiber of my being," Motta said Tuesday after owner Don Carter introduced him at a news conference as the new coach.

"I work out every day. I see with young eyes. I know that I have the energy. That's not a problem. I think the building blocks are definitely in place and it can't go much lower. Three of the four teams that I've had have been at the bottom, and it's fun to watch them develop."

Motta succeeds Quinn Buckner, who was fired on May 3 after a 13-69 record in his only season.

In a record 22 seasons as an NBA head coach, Motta won 856 regular-season games, losing 863. He has lost more games than any NBA coach and is fourth on the career victory list. He led the Washington Bullets to the NBA title in 1978.

His record in seven seasons with the Mavericks was 267-307.

Carter also elevated scouting director Keith Grant to director of player personnel. Grant will assume duties previously held by Rick Sund, whom Carter fired last month as vice president and director of basketball operations.

Motta mended his relationship with Carter after abruptly leaving the team in 1987. Carter brought him aboard as an unpaid consultant last season, and after firing Buckner, Carter asked Motta and Grant to compile a list of possible successors.

As he worked on the list, aware that Carter had given him the OK to put his own name on the list, his competitive juices began flowing again, Motta said.

"I looked at the team and got excited about some of the talent, disappointed at some of the development, and it had to play in my mind, 'What if ... what if?'"

"I wanted to coach again. I felt revitalized. My interest came back. I've been doing this for 40 years, and the instincts are still there," Motta said.

In Motta's first season, he took a ragtag assortment of castoffs from

The Mavericks then improved their record each season for the next four years, going from 28-54 to 43-39 in 1983-84.

The Mavericks were 55-27 in Motta's last season, 1986-87, winning the Midwest Division for the first time.

Motta walked away without explanation in '87, but now says he wishes he hadn't left.

"If I had a crystal ball, if I'd known things would happen like they did, I'd never have left."

Motta said he took the job with no illusions.

"I know what needs to be done and I'm confident this is the right decision," he said. "I looked at this team, and I wanted to coach. There aren't many people who get a second chance to do something they probably should have done better the first time."

NBA career on a better note. He came back into the league in 1990 with Sacramento, but never could get the Kings on track. After a 25-57 record his first season, Motta was fired on Christmas Eve 1991 after a 7-18 start.

John MacLeod succeeded Motta in Dallas in 1987 and led the Mavericks to a 53-29 record. Dallas advanced to the Western Conference finals for the first time, losing to the Lakers in seven games after ousting Houston and Denver.

The Mavericks have nosedived since. Dallas had the NBA's worst record the last two seasons, with a combined 24 victories.

The Mavericks have the best chance for the No. 1 pick in Sunday's draft lottery and can pick no worse than fourth, and they also have the No. 19 pick, acquired from Golden State.

He said those two picks, added to Jamal Mashburn and Jimmy Jackson, the No. 1 picks from the last two seasons, and Roy Tarpley — expected to rejoin the club next season after banishment for drug usage — should make for an exciting nucleus, Motta said.

"I didn't have a bad experience with Tarpley. I had him his rookie year ... and he's great. He's a player," Motta said.

"If you're going to hide your head in the sand and say he hasn't had problems, you're not being realistic. But Tarpley and I never had any problems. He followed the rules, wasn't late to practices. He played a lot on a team that won 55 games."

Making playoffs not enough for Coahoma

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

For the Coahoma Bulldogs, making the state baseball playoffs is getting to be old hat. It's time, they have decided, to start winning in the postseason.

For the fourth season in a row, the Bulldogs have qualified for the state baseball tournament. They will try to get their first playoff win Thursday when they play the Marfa Shorthorns at 7 p.m. Thursday at Angels Stadium in Midland.

The Bulldogs (10-6), who won their second straight District 6-2A championship, will send ace pitcher Brandon McGuire (6-1) to the mound against the Shorthorns, who claimed the runner-up spot of District 1-2A with a 6-8-1 record.

Coahoma coach Doc Rowell admits to knowing next to nothing about the Shorthorns, other than saying they are a young team with only a few seniors sprinkled throughout the lineup.

Marfa Athletic Director Glenn Reyes, who serves as an unofficial pitching coach for head coach James Finley, said his team is indeed youthful, with only three seniors and two juniors in the lineup.

Youth is something Rowell can identify with, as the Bulldogs are a bit on the young side themselves. But he still likes this year's team's chances to break the playoff drought.

"I think we're better in the sense that we're playing better defense than last year," Rowell said. "We're not hitting the ball like we did last year, but with the pitching we've got, and with the defense doing a good job, we've got a better chance of making what runs we score stand up."

The Shorthorns also will depend on pitching and defense to stay in the game, Reyes said.

A starting pitcher for Thursday has not been named, but Reyes said Finley has senior right-hander Felipe Garcia, sophomore Orlando Alvarez and freshman Eric Garcia to choose from.

The game will also mark a first of sorts for the Bulldogs, playing under the lights at Angels Stadium.

"I don't know how that'll effect us," Rowell said. "I don't think it will effect us too much, but it will be different. We need to work out under the lights to get used to it and not use it as a reason not to perform."

"No excuses" would seem to be the Bulldogs' mantra as they enter the playoffs. It is time, Rowell said, for the team to finally claim a play-off win.

"We feel like we need to get that first play-off win under our belts," he said. "It's been kind of a stigma to us ... but we're getting to the point where we need to win more (in the playoffs)."

Unser retirement pushes Indy toward end of an era

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — The end of an era just inched a bit closer.

With Al Unser's retirement on Tuesday, Mario Andretti became the only driver still active among a group that dominated Indy racing for more than three decades.

"I think you just want to be respected as a race car driver. That's my life," said Unser, a four-time Indianapolis 500 winner and father of Al Unser Jr., the pole-position starter for the May 29 race.

Few drivers have won more than Unser, or have lasted as long.

A.J. Foyt, the first four-time Indy winner, retired at age 58 one year ago, tearfully deciding not to try for his 36th consecutive Indy 500 start in order to devote full time to his team as an owner. Andretti, 54, who plans to retire at the end of the season, is in the lineup for the 29th time.

Rick Mears, the youngest of the bunch at 42, retired 17 months ago after four victories at Indianapolis. Bobby Unser, Al's older brother, retired at age 47 after his third Indy victory in 1981.

Johnny Rutherford, 56, a three-time winner, and Gordon Johncock, 57, a two-time champion, have driven in 24 Indy races apiece. They haven't officially retired, but nobody's beating down their doors with offers for rides.

"I'm very proud of my dad's decision," Little Al said. "I know it was very hard for him to make it."

Including Andretti's appearance this year, Indy's Magnificent Seven will bow out with a combined 175 starts. They have finished among the top three 44 times and have won the world's most famous race 21 of the past 33 years. Their careers spanned a technological revolution that made race cars safer and surgical breakthroughs that kept them going longer than previous generations.

"The way I came up was through the hard ranks of dirt track racing through jalopies and sprint cars and midgets and all that, which doesn't usually happen today," said Unser, who will turn 55 on race day.

Unser's finest performance may have been in 1987, when he came to the speedway without an assignment but was given a Penske back-up car after Danny Ongais was injured in practice. Unser started 20th, worked his way to the front, took the lead on the 183rd lap and stayed in front for his fourth Indy triumph.

With his retirement, will anyone ever win the Indy 500 five times?

"You're damn right. My son," he said. "Records are made to be broken."

Without lead we couldn't drive cars, ride buses or send products by truck. About 80 percent of the lead consumed in the U.S. goes into lead-acid storage batteries essential to vehicles, because batteries provide uninterrupted power.

The electro-chemical properties of lead and its oxides provide starting power for engines and electrical continuity for the lights, electric windows and other power accessories.
