NEW YORK - Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, whose glamour epitomized the administration of John F. Kennedy and whose dignity carried the nation through the shock of his assassination, has died of cancer. She was 64.

The woman who shunned the limelight for decades died Thursday night with a cluster of TV vans, satellite dishes and cameras parked outside her Fifth Avenue apartment building, a testament to the public's enduring fascination with her.

Her children, Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg and John F. Kennedy Jr., were at her side, along with her longtime companion, Maurice Tempelsman, and other family mem-

"Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis was a model of courage and dignity for all Americans and all the world." President Clinton said in a statement. "More than any other woman of her time, she captivated our nation and the world with her intelligence, elegance and grace.

"Even in the face of impossible family and our entire nation with a calm power that somehow reassured all of us who mourned," he said.

Mrs. Onassis disclosed in February that she was suffering from non-Hodgkin's lymphoma, a cancer of the lymph system. As recently as Sunday, she had gone for a walk in Central Park.

After three days of treatment at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center, she returned to her apartment Wednesday evening to die. She shunned medication in her final hours, said her friend and spokeswoman, Nancy Tuckerman.

There was nothing more to do for her," Tuckerman said. Mrs. Onassis had signed a living will requesting that no extraordinary measures be taken.

The cancer had spread to her liver and brain, and she developed pneumonia and was in a coma by Thursday evening, The New York Times reported.

Tuckerman would give no details on funeral arrangements.

As a priest administered last rites Thursday morning, the Kennedy clan gathered around her: Sen. Edward See related stories - 2.6

Kennedy, Sargent and Eunice Shriver, Maria Shriver, Ethel Kennedy, Rep. Joseph Kennedy II and Mrs. Onassis' sister, Lee Radziwill Ross.

About 30 well-wishers held a vigil in the rain early today.

Claire Richter, 42, of New York brought her daughter, Jacqueline, who was named after Mrs. Onassis. "I can't think of a woman who influenced women of my generation as much," she said.

"In times of hope, she captured our hearts. In tragedy, her courage helped salve a nation's grief. She was an image of beauty and romance and leaves an empty place in the world as I have known it," said Lady Bird Johnson, who succeeded Mrs. Onassis as first lady

William Manchester, author of "The Death of a President," and a family friend, recalled that she "served this country in an extraordinary way during that long weekend after President Kennedy's assassination. ... She united us again, in grief." Please see JACKIE, page 2

Latest Wright plan is approved

By STEVE REAGAN Staff writer

Moore Development for Big Spring's board of directors voted Thursday to, in effect, keep the wolf from Wright Fiber's door

Wright Fiber, which has experienced several delays and cost overruns in its attempt to open a textile firm in Big Spring, recently asked the board to sponsor a $400,000 loan application with the Texas Agricultural Finance Authority.

The loan, in concert with up to $400,000 secured from outside investors, will help the fledgling business become a going concern within the next few weeks, company president Herb Wright told the board.

After about an hour of discussing the situation, the board voted 3-1, with board president Jim Purcell dissenting, to sponsor the loan application. In addition, Moore will use money from an escrow account to help Wright Fibers pay off some of its most pressing debts

Moore Development would be potentially liable for about 10 percent of the loan, if it is approved by TAFA. This would bring the agency's total obligation in the Wright Fiber situation to around $840,000, Purcell

What made the board's decision easier was the knowledge that a trio of investors, headed by Dallas oil and gas businessman Frank McGee, were prepared to make an immediate infusion of capital into the business.

In return, the investors will receive 8 percent of company stock for each $100,000 invested, up to a maximum of 32 percent.

After the meeting, board member Scott McLaughlin said he was more confident that the business, which should create about 100 jobs locally, would soon become a going concern.

"It's definitely cause for optimism," he said. "The cheice came down to whether the board was going to encourage the injection of new capital ... and we have done that. The alternative was to scrap all that, take the assets we have, and try to find a new management team."

In dissenting, Purcell said his major objection was that the agency's commitment to the project has grown far above original projections, with no guarantees that this step will be the last.

"I don't know if any us has a good grasp as to what the total expenditures will be of getting this thing started," he said. "I would have liked to known that."

Despite those objections, however, Purcell said he supports the board's

Presidential immunity from suing under debate

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Justice Department lawyers are undecided on whether a president can be sued for something that happened before he took office, but they are preparing a brief just in case, an administration official

The administration official said Thursday the Justice Department had not been asked by the White House or a federal court to prepare the brief, but officials expect the judge in the lawsuit by Paula Jones to eventually seek the department's opinion.

The question of immunity could become the crux of President Clinton's defense against a sexual harassment lawsuit filed by Jones, a former Arkansas employee.

"The Justice Department is not preparing a brief," Anbender said late Thursday.

Texans remember Jackie Onassis

The Associated Press

DALLAS — The death of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis after a long battle with cancer left Texans to reflect on her grace as first lady and her dignity as the widow of a slain president.

Mrs. Onassis died about 10:15 p.m. EDT Thursday in her New York apartment of lymphatic cancer. She was 64.

"In times of hope, she captured our hearts. In tragedy, her courage helped salve a nation's grief. She was an image of beauty and romance and leaves an empty place in the world as I have known it," said Lady Bird Johnson, who became first lady upon the assassination of President John F. Kennedy. "We shared a unique time, and I always thought of her as my friend. I feel a poignant sense of loss, and a larger one for the nation," Mrs. Johnson said in a statement released by her Austin office.

'Jackie Onassis brought great dignity and grace to the White House and was, indeed, a charming and wonderful first lady," said former President Kennedy was killed and Texas Gov. John B. Connally was wounded about 12:30 p.m. Nov. 22, 1963, by what investigators said were three shots fired by a lone sniper from a downtown Dallas warehouse. "She was an important part of both a time of great hope and exhilaration for our nation and an hour of its greatest tragedy," said Nellie Connally, widow of the former gover-

"She will be remembered always for bringing a new sense of grace and elegance to the White House. She will be missed," Mrs. Connally said in a statement issued by her Conover Hunt, a historian with the Dallas County Historical Foundation, said Mrs. Onassis' dignity helped hold a grief-stricken nation together.

"(French President) Charles de Gaulle said after the funeral that she gave the whole world an example of how to behave," said Ms. Hunt, who helped set up the Sixth Floor Museum in the Texas School Book Depository, from which authorities said the fatal shots were fired.

Former House Speaker Jim Wright, then a fairly new U.S. House Democrat from Fort Worth, was part of the Kennedy entourage from the president's Nov. 21 arrival in Fort Worth until the assassination the next day. "I admired Jacqueline Kennedy, of course, as a symbol of grace, charm and intelligence that she always was," said Wright. "She exuded a certain elan, ambience, style and high fashion, and that's what most people think of." Indeed, the dress and hat she wore during the two-day tour of Fort Worth and Dallas has become as much a part of the assassination story as the debate over whether a lone gunman fired the fatal shots.

For some, the Kennedy assassination was all the more ghastly by the presence of Mrs. Kennedy, seated next to her doomed husband.

"Having his wife right there, having his blood right there ... The memories of her in that pink dress of hers," James Pennebank reflected.

Pennebank, a Southern Methodist University psychologist, studied the psychological impact of the assassination on Dallas and Texas.

"On one level, I don't think the trauma here was much different from what people elsewhere felt. But the images for native Dallasites were seeing this horrible act occurring in a very familiar part of town, Pennebank said.

"I can't imagine anything worse for a woman or a human being. The fact that she went on and rebuilt her life was her greatest Jegacy," said Ms. Hunt."

"What she did for us as a people is that despite her trauma with this event, she rebuilt her life. ... She did that weekend (funeral) ceremony. and she set an example for everyone around the world as to how we should respond," she said.

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Five Mexican children picked up this week in a South Texas road stop may have been abducted and for sale, officials said.

"We're leaning toward a child-sell-ing operation," Kleberg County Sheriff Adan Munoz said from his Kingsville office Thursday.

However, state child protective officials said an unidentified woman has called to inquire about the children. She hung up when she was questioned.

A 3-month-old boy, a 2-year-old girl, a 3-year-old boy, a 6-year-old boy and a 6-year-old boy have been placed in state custody.

The two older boys are brothers and the girls are sisters, but officials do not know if the infant is related to the other children.

Commander apologizes to female officer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — An Air National Guard commander says he wasn't aware of the contents of a "Hog Log" kept by fighter pilots, but he has apologized to a female officer who claims the journal degraded

"I was aware of the existence of the log but was unaware of and do not condone the nature of this log's contents," Col. Gary R. Walston, commander of the 149th Fighter Group at Kelly Air Force Base, said in a prepared statement Thursday.

The so-called "Hog Log" kept by the 182nd Air National Guard squadron of the 149th Fighter Group contained sexual comments about co-workers and public figures and an

Hutchison releases husband's bond dealings

The Associated Press

AUSTIN - U.S. Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison has released a list of bond transactions involving her husband and called on Democratic opponent, Richard Fisher, to disclose his business dealings.

Fisher said Thursday that's already been done. "Everything has been released," Fisher said.

But the Hutchison campaign said Fisher, an investor, has not been forthcoming with his business ties, specifically overseas investments.

Mrs. Hutchison said voters should know about a senator's financial dealings because senators have information and make decisions that affect national and international markets.

"It may not be required by law. But Richard Fisher has claimed to be a reformer. Anyone committed to reform should show leadership by disclosing," Mrs. Hutchison said.

But Fisher said holdings, including foreign investments, have been disclosed. Fisher added that if he is elected he will liquidate all his securities into Treasury bills and bonds. "I have no conflicts of interest," he

Blood banks downsize due to costs

The Associated Press

DALLAS - Three North Texas blood banks could soon be the latest casualties in a nationwide downsizing prompted by rising costs and increased regulation, industry experts said Thursday.

The decrease in the number of independent blood banks follows a move by the American Red Cross, which collects about half the nation's donations, in cutting back from 50 blood centers to 43 because of similar concerns

Community centers around the country are feeling the same pinch that prompted merger discussions by BloodCare and the Parkland Blood Donor Center, both of Dallas, and the Carter Blood Center in Fort Worth, according to officials.

Food Administration's more rigid quality assurance guidelines and hospitals' pressures to hold down costs are behind a loss of dozens of independent community blood centers around the country.

"Given this double whammy, that has caused pressure for mergers or at least consolidations of services," said Jim MacPherson, executive director of the Council of Community Blood Centers, a trade group based in Washington, D.C. He said the trend, which was 'snowballing" after beginning about four years ago, comes despite blood banks' need to maintain local donor programs and still use shared testing and other services.

"That is a delicate balancing act," MacPherson said. "We are not seeing as many mergers as alliances and partnerships between blood cen-

In three years, the number of independent community blood centers has shrunk from 120 to about 105, he said

The trend is similar to that among hospitals who began sharing some services, the American Association of Blood Banks said.

"This is just good business," said Cynthia Byers, spokeswoman for the Bethesda, Md.-based accreditation association. "Businesses all over the country are addressing ways to economize. Particularly in the blood bank area, everyone is having to deal with rising costs.'

Dwindling donations are also a factor in The American Red Cross' belttightening program that began in 1991 and includes consolidation of

New York blood service regions in Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse into one center.

Felix Perez, a Red Cross spokesman in Washington, said he was not surprised that independent blood banks felt the pressure.

"I am not surprised. Because of the trend of health care, where folks are looking to become more efficient across the board. Blood banking is but one arm of the health care field,' said Perez. "We have to look at reducing costs and enhancing ser-

Data processing to keep track of donations is a big cost factor in what could result in an agreement by midsummer to merge or combine operations, said the head of BloodCare in •Grant Gooch for being named Valedictorian of Sands High School and Katie Keyes for being named Salutatorian.

The 70-year lesson

In 1921, a government bureau was created to handle veterans' affairs. A year later, it was given the responsibility of meeting their health needs. And in the seven decades that have followed, the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has grown to include the largest heath care system in America — the Veterans Health Administration - 100 percent government-owned and 100 percent government-operated.

If you've been wondering what socialized medicine would be like in the United States, we've had it ... for 70 years.

Governmentalized health care got a rocky start in America. As with all government bureaucracies, the temptation for graft and greed was great, and the first program difector, Charles Forbes, received his fill of both. Forbes ended up in Leavenworth, and his compatriot, Charles Cramer, committed suicide.

Unfortunately for the veterans, that was only a foretaste of things to

In 1931, angry vets rioted in Washington. During the Depression, VA hospitals floundered under an ever-increasing patient load, and after WW II, the influx of ex-servicemen pushed the system toward extinction.

"In the clinic," recalls former VA physician Robert K. Moxon, "chaos was endemic."

But did the confusion end with the government's outlay of billions to resurrect the program? Apparently not.

Dr. John T. Lord, testifying about the VA's inefficiency before a Senate committee just last year, described the system as "archaic.

When we look at recent statistics, it's easy to see why.

According to a 1993 study put out by the General Accounting Office, 55 percent of veterans wait up to three hours for routine examinations, 11 percent wait the same length of time for "urgent" examinations, and

If the current VA medical centers can't properly care for a tenth of our veterans with an operating budget of nearly $16 billion per year, how is the government ever going to care for you?

The answer should be too obvious to require elaboration.

No matter how big we want to make government-controlled health care, no matter how much money we're willing to spend, a casual stroll down the shadowy corridors of any VA hospital will reveal what "government medicine" is really like.

A hospital official said the sight of the girls made her understand that what was being done daily to children caught in the fighting in Bosnia is "child abuse to its infinite level"; a pediatrician at the hospital said, "That anybody could do this to child is the ultimate evil."

We thought you'd like an update. "They're much, much better," said Monica Charette, a spokeswoman for the hospital in Waterville. "They are stronger, their nutrition is good, they are getting rehabilitation. Sanela had special shoes made for her — they have prostheses where her toes are missing. The physical therapy is helping her regain her motor skills from where her arm was hit — she is doing well in learning how to do things such as open doors and close windows, keeping her balance and walking in straight lines.

"Minela is walking with a brace on one leg. The knee is still locked, but she is making great progress. She had not eaten the right amount of food for so long, and now her nutrition is what it should be again. She's being treated for a stomach ulcer, too. She has turned 9 since she's been here — a 9-year-old child with

Probably the best thing that has happened to the girls is that their mother was found in Sarajevo, and flown to the U.S. "The girls are so much more relaxed now, so much happier," Charette said. "They were released from the hospital on March 10, and they and their parents are now living with a host family here. Their therapy is on an outpatient basis, and they are enrolled in the public schools — Sanela is in kindergarten, Minela is in the 2nd grade."

When we wrote about the girls, we mentioned that because of the war and their injuries, they had fallen behind in their learning. We asked any readers who could come up with children's books in the Serbo-Croatian language, using the Roman alphabet, to send them to the hospital. We knew such books might not be easy to find.

"We received well over 100 boxes of books," Charette said. "The boxes came from all over the U.S., and people wrote from as far away as Japan. The girls were overwhelmed. They were just thrilled."

They are still working to regain their health, and their future is uncertain. But Charette said that their lives have changed dramatically for the better.

"From the way they were when they arrived here to how they are now — it's night and day," she said. "They have so much fun. They're children, and they're having fun. They laugh all the time. You talk with them and you play with them and you hear them laugh.

plead guilty. Ah, but on second thought, I'll just fine you $15 dollars and costs. You are not worth frying. Go, and sin no more.

Nobody else became insolent in the courtroom that night.

Which reminds me of the most sadistic, cruel, mean and funny thing I have ever heard done in a courtroom. An elderly policeman told me the story. He swears it is true.

It happened many years ago, before policemen began living in squad cars, talking into microphones, using computers, and taking themselves too seriously. One night, a paddy wagon brought a big, drunken steelworker into the South Chicago police station. He had been arrested for throwing several of his drinking companions through the window of a neighborhood tavern.

He was of Eastern European origin and apparently had anarchistic tendencies because he bellowed at the room full of cops: "When we haf revolution, we going to take all you rednose Irish bastards and shoot you by

The trial was held, evidence presented, and when it ended, the "judge" said: "I find you not guilty of disorderly conduct. But I find you guilty of high treason. I sentence you to be executed by means of electro-cution as quickly as the sentence can be carried out.' They rushed the dumbfounded man out of the courtroom and to the lockup, where he was asked what he wanted for his last meal. Somebody ran out to an all-night diner and got a hamburger with fries for him. As he ate, the lights in the cells blinked on and off several times.

"What's that?" he yelled. "We are testing the electric chair," he was told.

When he finished his meal, they led him into the squad room, where they had rigged a large chair with wires. A detective had turned his collar around, so he looked like a clergyman. He loudly prayed over the steelworker, who began weeping.

They strapped him into the chair, and atop his head they placed a bowl-like gadget they had taken off a

"Be brave, my son," the clergyman-detective intoned. "You will meet your maker any minute now.' The steelworker began wailing.

At that moment, the door burst open and a cop rushed in, shouting: 'Stop the execution! The governor

Rochester: Home of telefuture

Scripps Howard News Service

Rochester, N.Y., progressive community though it may be, seems an unlikely place to unveil the shape of things to come. But traditional ways of thinking about American telecomtransistor radio because of a deal struck there on Tuesday."

Under an agreement approved by state regulators, Time Warner Inc.'s cable-TV system would begin vying in 1995 with the Rochester Telephone Corporation, now a protected monopoly, for phone customers. Time Warner already has 200,000 area cable users wired up with high-capacity fiber optics. So it could offer homes and businesses telephonic services (e.g., high-speed stock data over the horn) unavailable to Rochester Telephone, which is hamstrung by antiquated copper wiring. Meanwhile, customers who stick with Rochester Telephone will receive estimated rate reductions of $21 million over seven years.

Time Warner wins. The consumer wins. And, with outmoded regulations relaxed, the telephone company wins, too. In return for accepting direct competition, Rochester Telephone gets to create an unregulated subsidiary that would develop a vast package of salable teleservices. The subsidiary also could leap into the cable-TV market when Congress allows such operations by telephone companies.

Given the looming rush of "telcos" into cable, the Rochester paradigm bodes well for the cable industry. In a toe-to-toe slugfest, the cable firms lose like a boxer out of his weight class. In 1990, for example, revenues for the entire cable industry hit $17.8 billion; just one of the seven Baby Bells, BellSouth, made $14.4 billion. This argues powerfully for cable firms to seek "synergies" with phone companies. Telecommunications consultant

Lawrence Gasman of Charlottesville, Va., notes that cable and telephone companies are building similar infrastructures, and predicts that by the year 2004 the industries will compete more equally. This will lower consumer costs and hasten such presumed boons to humankind as "video on demand," allowing one to summon up almost any existing movie, TV episode, etc.

But first, government must reasonably phase out rules crafted in an era when telecommunications ventures fit neatly into boxes. Yesterday is gone. We have interactivated with the future, and it is Rochester.

WASHINGTON President Clinton defended his foreign policy Thursday against suggestions that he improvises it from crisis to crisis, and said, "I continue to look for new solutions.

"If you want to say that this administration has not waved a magic wand and solved all the problems that I was given when I came to office, that's one thing," Clinton said at a White House news conference.

He argued his administration has kept "the safety and security of the American people" in the forefront and has acted "with remarkable consistency" in standing up for U.S. interests where they matter the

He took credit for moves in Russia, and other former Soviet republics to dismantle many of their nuclear weapons and to agree not to export sensitive weapons technology. And he cited the U.S. role in applying pressure on North Korea on behalf of international nuclear inspections.

He claimed "remarkable progress in the Middle East" among his administration's achievements and cited trade openings to Asia and Latin America, and efforts to liberalize world trading rules.

Debate on the Crime Bill takes turn for the personal

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The subject was crime and the talk was personal as Sen. Byron Dorgan recalled the night his mother was killed.

"Etched in my memory forever is a late-night phone call telling me my mother had been killed in a highspeed police chase by a man who ... was sentenced to 10 years in prison, five years suspended," Dorgan, D-N.D., said Thursday. "Of course, he speech his own thoughts after the drunken driver was convicted of manslaughter in his mother's death: "I will probably never in my life overcome the anger that I have at the criminal justice system."

Dorgan spoke in favor of a Senate crime bill provision limiting shares of $3 billion in prison-building funds to states that force convicts to serve at least 85 percent of their sentences.

Drinking water law reshaped

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The Senate reshaped a 20-year-old drinking water law Thursday to give local governments more flexibility in safeguarding their water supplies.

The Environmental Protection Agency lauded the legislation which cleared the Senate 95-3.

"It protects the American public, but at the same time provides states and communities with the flexibility with resources that they need," said Loretta Ucelli, a spokesperson for EPA Administrator Carol Browner.

Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairman of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee and a key sponsor of the bill, rejected suggestions that drinking water safety was being eroded. "These changes better protect public health," he insisted.

The measure next must be considered by the House

The Senate vote came as people in Milwaukee, Wis., were being warned that residents with weakened immune systems should boil their water because traces of the parasite, cryptosporidium, had been found in the water system. Officials said the general public need not worry, but bottled water sales increased.

The same parasite was blamed for 400,000 people becoming ill in Milwaukee about a year ago. The city has conducted monthly tests for the parasite since then.

The Senate bill would allow local officials and states greater say in setting drinking water standards and would reduce the number of chemicals regulated, focusing on those believed to pose the greatest health

Lawyers undecided on suing a president

WASHINGTON (AP) - Justice Department lawyers are undecided on whether a president can be sued for something that happened before he took office, but they are preparing a legal brief in case it's requested, an administration official says.

The administration official said Thursday the Justice Department had not been asked by the White House or a federal court to prepare the brief, but officials expect the judge in the lawsuit by Paula Jones to eventually seek the department's

The question of immunity could become the crux of President Clinton's defense against a sexual harassment lawsuit filed by Jones, a former Arkansas employee.

The New York Times reported in today's editions that the department was preparing a brief recommending that the suit be dismissed or delayed indefinitely because presidents are entitled to broad immunity from lawsuits while in office.

Medicine could help herpes sufferers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drug company wants to sell the first non-prescription arug for a sexually transmitted disease, saying the medicine would help millions of Americans fight genital herpes while saving

But critics fear allowing the nonprescription sale of acyclovir would endanger patients and increase resistance to the drug. And some opponents say sufferers actually would have less access to the only relief from herpes, because insurance companies don't pay for overthe-counter drugs.

"We are concerned that this could have a negative effect on public health," Dr. Phil Pellet of the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention said Thursday at a hearing by a Food and Drug Administration advisory panel.

Jackie left legacy of grace under fire

The Associated Press

NEW YORK - Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, who charmed the nation with her style and calmed it with her strength first as wife and then as widow of a president, died Thursday. She was 64.

Earlier, a priest administered last rites and relatives gathered around the former first lady as she battled untreatable lymph cancer "with great fortitude.

Her family was with her when she died at 10:15, said her longtime friend, Nancy Tuckerman.

Mrs. Onassis, returned to her Fifth Avenue apartment Wednesday after doctors at New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center said "there was nothing more to do for her," Tuckerman

Her children, Caroline Kennedy Schlossberg and John F. Kennedy Jr. were with her, along with her longcompanion Maurice Tempelsman and other family members. She was 64.

The New York Times reported that Mrs. Onassis' cancer had spread to her brain and liver. Quoting an unidentified health care provider in Friday's edition, the Times said Mrs. Onassis was had been suffering from pneumonia and had refused antibi-into a coma Thursday. When asked about the newspaper's report, Tuckerman would only confirm that Mrs. Onassis had stopped receiving medication.

The former first lady, who only Sunday was photographed strolling in Central Park, entered the hospital Monday. She was suffering from non-Hodgkin's lymphoma.

"The disease has progressed," Tuckerman said earlier Thursday.

As Kennedy relatives filed in and out of her co-op building, Monsignor George Bardes of St. Thomas More Roman Catholic Church heard her confession, gave her communion, tragedy, she carried the grief of her family and our entire nation with a calm power that somehow reassured all of us who mourned. "She is very, very sick and it's very sad," Rep. Joseph Kennedy II, son of the late Robert F. Kennedy, said after visiting his aunt during the day. But he added, "There's a lot of love in her room and in her apartment."

"Jackie was part of our family and part of our hearts for 40 wonderful and unforgettable years, and she will never really leave us. Our love and prayers are with John, and with Caroline and Ed and their three children," Ms. Miller said.

Mrs. Onassis disclosed she was suffering from cancer of the lymph nodes in February. The lymph system is responsible for processing white blood cells, which in turn bolster the body's immune system.

Tuckerman said doctors had given her no specific prognosis: "Everyone is different," Tuckerman said.

"It is just another phase of her illness which she's facing with great

Mrs. Onassis' son dashed across Central Park and into the building Thursday morning to avoid the crowd of photographers, reporters and television cameras camped outside the building.

Her daughter and her husband. Edwin, were there, along with Robert Kennedy, another RFK son.

The Big Spring Art Association is gearing up for its annual art show. Judging of both professional and amateur art work will be May 28 at the West Texas Center for the Arts, located on the Howard College cam-

Entries for the show will be accepted on Friday, May 27, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon. Judging is on Saturday, with the awards ceremony and reception to be held Sunday.

BSAA co-chairwoman Pauline Long explained rules for the show. Artwork that has won awards in a previous BSSA area show is not eligible. All entries must be securely framed and wired without sawtooth hangers.

"We will have both professional and non-professional categories for the show," said Long. " Anyone who has won a state citation, makes a living painting, teaches art, has a college degree in art and/or has been accepted in a juried show will be in the professional category.

The categories that a professional can enter include oil, watercolor, pastel, acrylic, sculpture and graph ics/mixed.

CANTERBURY, England- The Archbishop of Canterbury conducted his first ordination of women priests in a ceremony he said was "tinged with sadness" by lingering dissension within the Church of England.

George Carey welcomed 22 women to the priesthood at Canterbury Cathedral on Sunday, bringing to about 600 the number who have been ordained since March. The church lifted its ban on women priests in 1992.

At the ceremony, Carey expressed regret that some Anglicans still reject the ordination of women. Some have turned to the Roman Catholic Church to protest the change, considered the most momentous since King Henry VIII broke with the Vatican 460 years

NEWPORT, N.H.— The steeple of the South Congregational Church finally has the clock it was built to hold nearly two centuries ago. Three clock faces, each weighing between 130 and 150 pounds, were raised slowly into place on the tower recently. The black faces with gold lettering complete a project first envisioned 170 years ago. Although circles were built into the tower when the church was built, it was not until parishioner Louise Hawkins decided to donate the clock in honor of her mother, Louise Richards Rollins, that the idea became reality.

Three weeks ago, the clock mechanism sans faces was anchored in place in the wooden tower, one flight of rickety stairs below the area for the faces.

A Seth Thomas original, the clock first served the Detroit State Bank in Michigan in 1884.

Mary Jane Club

The Mary Jane Club of Coahoma completed its club year with a Hobo Dinner in the home of Eula Bell .Fowler. Co-hostesses for the event were Janie Phinney, Lee Millikin, and Karen Fowler. Joyce Choate and JoAnne Forrest presented each member with "Food N Fun" recipe books created from the collection of favorites contributed by club members during the year.

At the conclusion of the luncheon a short business meeting was held, at which time Bobbie Nix was elected to serve as president for the coming club year, which will begin with a September brunch.

United

Methodist Women

Sue Born, Jacque Mauch and Madeline Boadle of Big Spring were among more than 11,000 who attended the 1994 Assembly of United Methodist Women in Cincinnati, Ohio, April 28-May 1.

For four days women worshiped, studied, and listened to presentations focused on women and children. United Methodist Women are more than one million strong in 25,000 units across the nation.

In addition to plenary presentations, the women participated in 65 workshops ranging from prayer, spiritual life and social issues to creative grandparenting.

The women in the Cincinnati Civic Center were joined by thousands of others at downlink sites across the nation on April 30. Keynote speaker, Dr. Carolyn Johnson, Lafavette, Indiana, national president, shared her vision for the organization's

Girl Scouts

The Big Spring Girl Scout Service Unit met to discuss the monthly agenda

Susan Daniel reported on the Brownie Try-It event and campout at Camp Boothe Oaks, and Pat Cypert discussed the activities of the Leader Lawn Chair Weekend also at Camp Boothe Oaks. Karen Bearden announced that the bicycle safety workshop organized and conducted by her Junior troop was very successful, and Donna Dugger suggested the replacement of several pieces of camping equipment.

Each troop leader completed a self-evaluation form and a year-end evaluation form concerning the Service Unit activities and events. Lorinda also discussed the Big Spring Girl Scout Day Camp and the possibility of the Service Unit sponsoring a track meet for the troops in Area IV. Information concerning the A-Z Summer Bus Trip and the G.I.R.L. magazine subscriptions were distributed.

Colonial Daughters

The National Society Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century met at La Posada April 30 with Helen Dauson Cobean as hostess. Members came from all over Texas. Officers were elected for the coming year

President, Vera Morrow, Rotan, Tex., 1st Vice Pres., Virginia Clark, Snyder: 2nd Vice Pres., Helen Cubean, Big Spring; Chaplain, Ann Hurt, Fort Stockton; Rec. Secretary, Becky Thomas, Odessa; Corres. Sec. Worth.

The program was presented by Bucky Thomas of Odessa from the Fax File Book on "Moonshining."

Hyperion Club

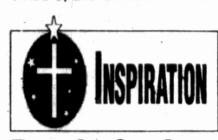

Outgoing president Mrs. Karla Wester, recently hosted a salad luncheon in her home to end the '93-'94 club year. Mrs. Evelyn Elrod was an honored guest and conducted the ceremony to install new club officers. Installed as officers were Mrs. Teresa Welch, president; Mrs. Vicky Stanley, vice president; Mrs. Kathey Kremseky, secretary; Mrs. Sue Haugh, treasurer; Mrs. Carolyn Freeman, historian; Mrs. Shirley Johnson, reporter; Mrs. Thelma Carlile, parliamentarian.

The club year ended as gifts were presented to Karla Wester and her outgoing officers. The next meeting will be in September at the Hyperion Council Luncheon.

Kennel Club

Big Spring Kennel Club and Concho Kennel Club will host summer dog shows July 9-10 at San Angelo Coliseum. The conformation and obedience events will be officiated by 11 AKC-licensed judges.

Entries for the shows close June 22. Premium lists with entry blanks are available at Big Spring veterinarians' offices or from Carole Owen, BSKC secretary, 915/263-3404.

Don't feel picked on by preacher

By DAVID ROBERTS First Baptist Church-Garden City

A letter was written to Dear Abby not long ago. "Fed up in the Break Room" was tired of others being nosy about what she brought for lunch. She was tired of this person who was "obsessed" with her food. She had even considered skipping lunch in order to avoid the offending party. She was hoping that the rude coworker party would read her complaint in Dear Abby and stop this irritating habit.

Well, on March 28, there were letters from "Sorry in St. Paul," "Jean in Bethlehem, Pa.," "Ticked off in Tucson," "Vance in San Diego," and a letter from nowhere signed "Fed up and Shut Up." All these people thought the letter was written about them! They admitted they were just trying to just make conversation, learn new recipes, and just be nice.

However, after reading the letter and getting their feelings hurt, they all vowed to stop. "Fed up and Shut Up" promised, "I will never mention food again." "Ticked off in Tucson" said, "Hell will freeze over before I compliment anybody at work about their cooking again.

I am sure the original complaint was about only one person in one city, but obviously there were a lot of people feeling guilty.

Have you ever listened to a sermon and thought the preacher was talking to you? He mentions an illustration that could be about anyone, but it happens to be your story. The shoe fits, so you wear it, begrudgingly, out the door.

Imagine what it is like for the poor preacher standing at the back door, greeting everyone as they leave. Half the folks who shake his hand are mad because they all think he just preached a message for them alone. They all think that he was picking on them.

In most cases, that is never the intent of the preacher at all. It is a bad practice to preach to just one person. Singling out the sins of just one saint makes a sloppy sermon.

Contrary to popular thought, preachers don't pick on people. Most of the time, they are just preaching the Word of God as lead by the Spirit of God.

So why do toes get stepped on? Ask the Holy Spirit. He is the great interpreter of the sermon. He is the one that takes the Word of God and the comments from the Man of God and pricks your heart.

The Holy Spirit does the convicting, the preacher just relays the message. It's as Rev. R.R. Banks of Big Spring, who just recently went home to be with the Lord, used to say: "I'm just the amplifier for the Spirit."

So, what do you do next time the sermon makes you mad? How are you going to react when it seems the preacher has been reading your mail? A few suggestions include:

1) Pay attention. Obviously the Lord thought you needed to hear what is being said because He guided the preacher's words and allowed the Holy Spirit to direct them straight to your heart.

2) Remember that your preacher isn't perfect. During a sermon, his toes get stepped on as much as anyone else's (maybe that's why he is shifting back and forth on his feet).

3) Take notes. Go home and read the passage again and again. You'll find that the words troubling you are not from a man, but from God him-

4) Thank the Lord for the messenger who is willing to be used as an amplifier."

MIDLAND - You had to be there. Thursday's bi-district baseball game between Marfa and Coahoma showered spectators with all the off-the-wall happenings they could want - plus a few they probably didn't want. In the confusion of counting 17 errors, some fans might have missed that zero on the Angels Stadium scoreboard.

You know - that zero in the hit column for Marfa.

Coahoma's ace pitcher, junior Brandon McGuire, threw a sixinning no-hitter in the Bulldogs' 12-2 win, but calling this one a masterpiece would be calling the mustard stain on your shirt art. Coahoma committed six errors behind McGuire, which was cut short an inning by the 10-run rule, and McGuire suffered through early control problems.

But who cares about being neat? The 'Dogs just wanted to erase past playoff problems.

This is the fourth season for the Coahoma baseball program, and for the fourth time the 'Dogs (11-6) reached the playoffs. Thursday, however, Coahoma scored the first playoff run in its history. Del.eon, Eastland and Presidio shut out Coahoma in past playoff games, but as soon as Marfa had to field the ball that scoreless streak was destined to die. The Shorthorns (6-9) were short on defense; committing an egregious 11 errors.

McGuire, who has notched seven of Coahoma's wins, walked five and struck out 11 while throwing his second high-school no-no. He no-hit Odessa High's junior varsity last season.

"I felt really good," said McGuire, a right-hander. "At first, I was catching my foot or something, and I walked about 20 batters in a row. I got out of it pretty much - none of the guys I walked scored in that first inning. But I was throwing the ball hard all day long, I felt like, especially there at the end."

McGuire walked three batters in the first inning. high school baseball, an official scorer is an oxymoron - kind of like McGUIRE jumbo shrimp." Marfa coach James Finley said his scorebook had the Shorthorns with one hit - an infield hit by Andre Jennings in the second inning. On that play, however, Coahoma first baseman Brandon Shifflett pulled his foot off the bag while reaching for shortstop Mike McMillan's throw. If Shifflett stayed on the bag, Jennings would have been out.

Marfa took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first, but Coahoma scored two in the second, the first on Kelby Bailey's RBI double - the sharpest hit of the game. Bailey scored on pitcher Felipe Garcia's throwing error. Two Coahoma errors helped Marfa tie the game at 2 in the second, but Coahoma reclaimed the lead in the fourth. With one out, Rocky King, who went 3-for-4, singled to left field and scored on Freddy Olivas's single.

Coahoma coach Doc Rowell said the Bulldogs' win in a practice game Tuesday helped get the team poised for a playoff win.

"Beating Kermit Tuesday helped our kids mentally," Rowell said.
"We went over to Midland Lee and beat Kermit 6-5. Hit the ball well, had nine hits, and they knew then that they could play with some pretty good people because Kermit had scored 48 runs in their three previous games.

"We're going to ride that horse as far as it will go. If he's on, we're in good shape; if he's off, we're in trouble. But he's what we've lived with, and we'll live and die with him. And he knows it."

Coach Doc Rowell on Brandon McGuire

"I'm just ecstatic that we got over the hump, finally," McGuire said. "Before the game, I've been in two of these already, and I knew that there was some kind of feeling about everything. I felt really good about this one. Everybody had a lot of confidence coming in after we beat Kermit."

The sloppiness of the game didn't bother Rowell too much. A win is a win, especially at playoff time.

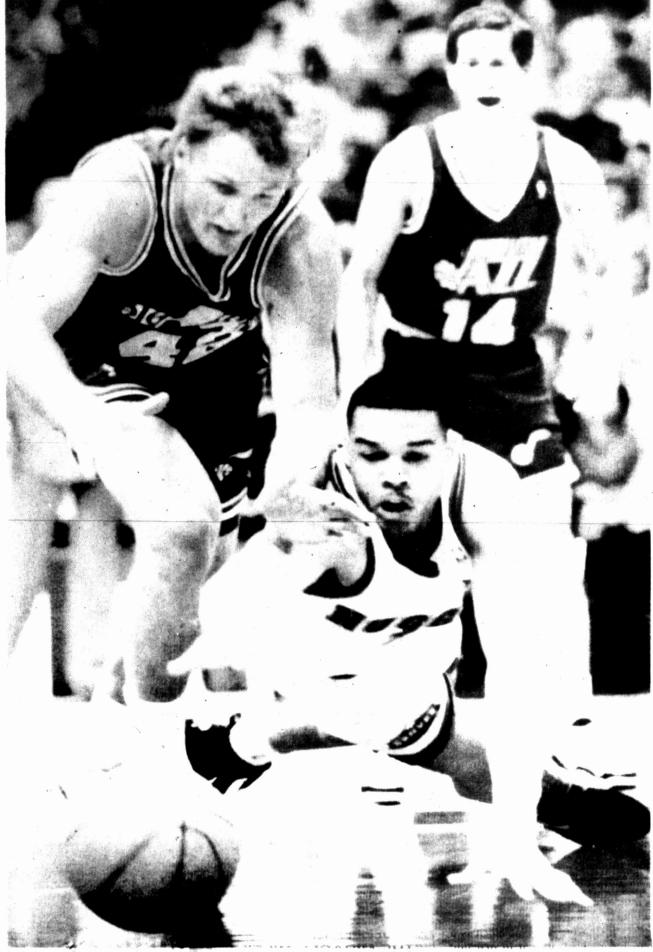

"Any time you've got like 17 errors in a game, it's going to be sloppy, but we hit the ball when we had to, and the thing was, we put it in play and the other team has got to make the play. And in our class, not many schools have been playing baseball that long, so if you can make people make the play, you've got a chance of getting baserun-

Coahoma blew the game open with a four-run fifth. Amazingly, the Bulldogs' outburst did not include a hit. Marfa committed three errors in the inning and walked two batters.

The Bulldogs will play Lockney in the area round of the playoffs at a time and date to be determined. It will be a one-game playoff, and the Bulldogs will be playing their trump card - McGuire - again.

"We're going to ride that horse as far as it will go," Rowell said. "If he's on, we're in good shape; if he's off, we're in trouble. But he's what we've lived with, and we'll live and die with him. And he

Capriati is latest victim of parental pressure

The next time a parent pushes his or her child to take up a sport, I hope they pause for a moment and think about Jennifer Capriati.

By now, the plight of Capriati is well known. The former wunderkind of tennis, who turned pro before her 14th birthday and was the darling of the tennis world for the past few years, was busted earlier this week for possession of marijuana.

Now, instead of being the sweetheart of the tennis world, Capriati has become just another teenager who's run afoul of the law, complete with mug shot and fingerprinting. Obviously, the major question at hand is: what happened? How could someone who had so much success - and seemed to have so much fun doing it - come to this pass?

I'm no psychoanalyst, but I firmly believe that Capriati was the latest victim of a disturbing trend: A tendency by some parents to push their children too far, too fast toward a career in sports.

It's happened before, and the end results are seldom pretty. Remember Todd Marinovich? He's the young man who was groomed from birth by his father to be a professional football player. His fast track to the stars was sidetracked by a suspension at USC for skipping classes and an arrest on a cocaine charge. He played briefly for the Los Angeles Raiders and, at last word, was attempting to hook up with the Canadian Football League.

Remember Andrea Jaeger? She too became a tennis professional at an early age, enjoyed success for a few years, then dropped out of sight. There's more, but the point is Who's to blame for these and other tragedies? I vote for parents.

I'm not saying that Capriati's parents don't love her, or that Marinovich's dad is a mindless ogre. But they pushed their children, either by accident or design, toward a career in sports, with little or no regard to the child's wants.

Children, in general, are almost always too happy to submit to their parents' wishes. So Jennifer practiced her lobs and Todd perfected his passes, with little or no thought as to whether that is what they really wanted to do.

But bills always come due.

Marinovich began rebelling against his dad's grand design in college, and Capriati shocked the tennis world recently when she announced she was taking a sabbatical from the sport to concentrate on her senior year in high school.

Burnout. It's an ugly word, and even uglier when applied to teenagers, but it applies here. Rob a child of his or her childhood, even with the best of intentions, and rebellion will follow sooner or later.

Was Capriati's marijuana bust an unconscious rebellion against her parents? Was Marinovich's failure to realize all of his father's dreams a form of revenge?

I'll be hanged if I know. We're wading in waters too murky for me to decipher.

But I do know this: Parents should encourage or even give a little nudge to their children if they express a desire to enter one field or another. They should never be driven.

Sports is supposed to be fun. Ask Capriati how much fun she's having now.

Game 7; Nuggets win

PHOENIX — It was nothing new for Kevin Johnson to lead the Phoenix Suns in scoring or assists. That his supporting cast was more effective this time was critical.

By The Associated Press

"One person is not going to do it," Johnson said Thursday night after his 28 points, 13 assists and fiery leadership helped the Suns stay alive in the playoffs with a 103-89 win over Houston.

"For us to win, we need contributions from a lot of guys," Johnson continued. "Chuck (Charles Barkley) can carry us on a given night, I may be able to carry us on a given night, maybe the two of us can carry us on a lot of nights, but if we want to beat a good team. we need contributions from a lot of guys.

Game 7 will be Saturday in Houston

Phoenix kept the Rockets from becoming the first team since the 1969 Los Angeles Lakers to lose their first two games at home and then win a best-of-7 series. The Suns got two comeback wins in Houston, then Houston won two.

Johnson scored 10 points in the fifth game, a 109-86 Houston runaway Tuesday.

This time, the Suns were the aggressors, forcing the Rockets to shoot 41 percent. They also passed better and got more movement on offense, a goal set out by coach Paul Westphal.

"They did a good job," Houston's Mario Elie said.

A.C. Green and Joe Kleine had their best playoff games on the same Green hit two of three 3-pointers and his other seven shots, scoring 22 points to beat his previous best by Kleine, who had never scored more than 12 playoff points, got 15 in 27 minutes and had one block in a strong defensive effort against Hakeem Olajuwon. Oliver Miller, who started at center, had four of the Suns eight blocks and also helped hold Olajuwon to 23 points.

rebounds, and Green pulled down 10, allowing the Suns to outrebound Houston 46-43.

Olajuwon had 12 rebounds, and Elie added 15 points. Only one other Houston player, Robert Horry with 13, scored in double figures.

They took us out of our game. Olajuwon said. "We were frustrated, and we made some bad decisions.' "I don't think our intensity level was as high it should have been, coach Rudy Tomjanovich said. Johnson came down with a defensive rebound on the decisive play of the night, pushed the ball upcourt and delivered it to Green, whose layup opened an 88-70 lead with The basket capped a 12-4 run after Houston cut a 15-point deficit to 76-66 on Chris Jent's jumper as the third quarter ended.

Green turned sharpshooter to spark the Suns to a 15-point lead in the third quarter, which began with Phoenix ahead 50-47.

Olajuwon made the first basket, but Green then hit an 18-footer, two 3-pointers and a layup during a 16-3 surge that boosted the Suns to a 66-52 edge with 6:15 left. Phoenix led 69-54 after Danny Ainge hit a technical free throw, but the Rockets' 12-7 run ending with Jent's basket kept it interesting.

Vernon Maxwell, ejected after protesting a foul called on Elie with 4:14 left in the game, had a prediction: "We're at home, we're loose, and we're going to win.'

Nuggets 94, Jazz 91

DENVER — The Denver Nuggets became the second team in NBA history to come back from a 3-0 deficit and force a seventh game, beating the Utah Jazz 94-91 Thursday night to even their Western Conference semifinal at 3-3.

It was Denver's sixth straight victory in a do-or-die situation. The Barkley had 18 points and 15 Nuggets trailed Seattle 2-0 in the first round before winning three straight, and they've won three consecutive close ones against the Jazz

> Dikembe Mutombo and Bryant Stith each sank two tree throws in the final 30 seconds for Denver, and Utah's Jeff Hornacek missed a wideopen 3-point attempt at the buzzer.

Game 7 is scheduled for Saturday at Salt Lake City, and the Nuggets will be bidding to become the first team in NBA history to win a playoff series after falling behind 3-0.

The only other team to tie a series 3-3 after trailing 3-0 was the 1951 New York Knicks, who eventually lost Game 7 of that series to the Rochester Royals.

Pacers 98, Hawks 79

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana, a team that had never won a playoff series in its first 17 NBA seasons, made it to the Eastern Conference finals by beating Atlanta 98-79 Thursday

The victory, keyed by Indiana's 34-16 advantage in the third quarter, gave the Pacers the best-of-7 series, 4-2. Rik Smits scored 27 points and all five Indiana starters finished in double figures.

The Pacers had won only four NBA playoff games until this season. They had never advanced past the opening round since entering the league in 1976, but now will play either the Chicago Bulls or New York Knicks in the conference finals.

"I want New York. I get to visit my old friend," said Reggie Miller, referring to his rivalry with Knicks guard John Starks.

"They're supposed to be the team that can win it all and come through the East. We played well against them last year (in a 3-1 opening round loss), and with a couple of calls going the other way it could have gone five games. Anything can happen in the playoffs.

Mariners walk past Rangers

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Jay Buhner Haircut Night had an appropriate ending.

On a night when the Seattle Mariners offered free general admission tickets to anyone with a Buhner-style 'buzz' cut, the outfielder trotted home with the winning run in the ninth inning on Mike Blowers' bases-loaded walk.

"This is the grunge capital of the world," Buhner said after the Mariners rallied with two runs in the ninth to beat the Texas Rangers 5-4 on Thursday night. "Maybe they were just looking for an excuse to get a free buzz cut.'

The Mariners provided free barber services outside the Kingdome for those who needed a trim to shorten their hair down to the quarter-inch length that Buhner wears. More than 400 took advantage of the offer, and another 86 showed up at the stadium with hair already short enough to qualify for free tickets.

Though Buhner went 0-for-3, he drove in a run on a fielder's choice in the third and scored the winning run after drawing his second walk.

"I was really pleased with my walks," Buhner said. "You don't always have to swing the bat to help your team.

Although Blowers walked on a 3-2 pitch, he didn't take a single swing during his final at-bat against Matt Whiteside.

"Once I got to 2-0, I felt I was really in command of the situation," Blowers said. "He had no place to put me and then I committed to not swinging until I had two strikes. Then the last pitch was up and in. I didn't think it was that close.

Seattle rallied from a 4-3 deficit on four walks and Rich Amaral's single. "We really had to grind out this win," Buhner said. "It was a tough night, but we were ready to do whatever it took. If walks will win it,

It was the first time this season that Seattle had won when trailing after eight innings, and the first time Texas blew a lead after eight innings.

"Rich stroked the ball really nice and then Blowers really worked for his walk," Seattle manager Lou Piniella said. "It was a big comeback win for us.

Cris Carpenter (2-1) retired the first two in the ninth, then wlaked Ken Griffey Jr. and Buhner. He was replaced by Whiteside, who gave up Amaral's game-tying RBI single. Edgar Martinez was intentionally walked to load the bases before Blowers walked.

Texas relievers have blown eight. of their last 16 save opportunities.

"Our guys have to get tough and make pitches," Texas manager Kevin Kennedy said. "Champions have to pitch in those situations, like Goose Gossage did tonight."

Gossage (1-0) got the victory with 2 1-3 innings of shutout relief.

'My job is to hold the game in check and give us a chance to come back," Gossage said. "Fortunately, we came back.

Gossage, fourth on the all-time saves list with 309, has taken on the role of long reliever as well as setup man since joining the Mariners at the end of spring training after he was released by Oakland.

"We felt he could still pitch and he's proven us right," Piniella said. "He's also a stabilizing influence for the young pitchers in our bullpen."

The victory snapped the Mariners' three-game losing streak and prevented Texas from reaching .500 for the first time this season.

Texas starter Kevin Brown left holding a one-run lead after seven innings. He allowed three runs and eight hits with two walks and five

Dean Palmer hit his third homer in six games to give the Rangers a 1-O lead in the second and Texas added three runs in the third on Jeff Frye's two-run double and a wild pitch by Seattle starter Greg

Hibbard lasted only only 2 2-3 innings, allowing four runs and six

The Mariners got a run back in the third on Buhner's forceout, and two more in the fifth on Reggie Jefferson's two-run single.

After giving teammate Jay Buhner, bottom, a trim, Ken Griffey Jr. of the Seattle Mariners jokes with fans and photographers Thursday. The Mariners beat the Rangers 5-4 on Jay Buhner Day - all fans with "buzz" haircuts like Buhner were given free admission to the game in Seattle.

Seles seeks $10 million in knife-attack lawsuit

By The Associated Press

BOCA RATON, Fla. Monica n

Seles is striking back at her assailant demanding at least $10 million from the German SELES

Tennis Federation for losses caused by the knife attack on her in Hamburg last year

Seles disclosed for the first time Thursday that she is appealing the sentence of Gunther Parche, who was released on probation without serving time in jail for stabbing her in the back on court last April 30.

The Cologne attorney for the formerly top-ranked women's tennis player also approached the federation as a first step toward filing a lawsuit against it as organizer of the Citizen Cup tournament.

Wilhelm Danelzik, in a letter released by Seles' agent at the International Management Group, cites a number of examples of inadequate security at the Hamburg tournament. He said "it can not be doubted that insufficient security measures," made it possible for the attack to be committed. Seles hasn't played since Danelzik added that "this year's Citizen Cup tournament clearly has shown that sufficient security measures to avoid an attack on players sitting on the bearches during breaks would not only be possible but reasonable.

Astros push Padres to defeat

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — The San Diego Padres are looking everywhere for a boost to their morale — even to their sixth-place finish in 1987.

The Padres lost a franchise record-tying 11th straight game on Thursday night as Andujar Cedeno went 3-for-4 and scored the goahead run in the sixth inning, leading Houston to a 9-5 victory.

Even with 11 straight losses, Tony Gwynn remembers another bad Padres team.

"I was sitting here before the game thinking about our 1987 club," Gwynn said. "We started 12-42 that year. We're 10-30, so we got to lose at least 12 more to be that

San Diego set its club record losing streak from June 17-25, 1969. It lost 10 in a row Aug. 28-Sept. 6, 1974.

Elsewhere in the NL it was Cincinnati 3, Atlanta 0 and Los Angeles 8, Colorado 2.

The Padres didn't go quietly. Houston took a 4-0 lead after two innings and Darryl Kile held them to three hits over five innings before the Padres rallied for four runs in the sixth. "We've been down 4-0 for two days in a row and we've battled back and tied the game, but as soon as that happened we let the other team come back," Gwynn said.

"Experienced clubs don't let teams do that. Hopefully, it was a lesson for our young guys. When you

Cedeno doubled to start the sixth inning off reliever Jose Martinez (0-2), He went to third on a single by pinch-hitter Chris Donnels and scored when Martinez's wild pitch.

Donnels went to second on the wild pitch and scored on Craig Biggio's single, spoiling San Diego's four-run comeback in the top half of the sixth.

Kile held San Diego to three hits over five innings before the Padres rallied. Tom Edens (3-1), who faced two batters in the sixth, got the vic-

Kile walked a career record-tying six batters, continuing to struggle with his control.

"I'm not letting myself throw the ball the way I'm capable," Kile said. Cedeno homered and so did the next batter, pinch-hitter Kevin Bass, in the eighth inning. Luis Gonzalez hit an RBI single to make it 9-5.

Bip Roberts walked, Gwynn singled and Kile loaded the bases by hitting Phil Plantier with a pitch to start the Padres' big inning. Tim Hyers and Archi Cianfrocco hit consecutive run-scoring singles.

Kile walked Ricky Gutierrez, scoring Plantier, and Edens gave up a sacrifice fly to pinch-hitter Billy Bean for the tying run.

"We're losing, so there's no way I can be satisfied," Gwynn said. Steve Finley singled to score Mouton for the early advantage

Today is Friday, May 20, the 140th day of 1994. There are 225 days left in the year. Today's Highlight in History:

On May 20, 1927, Charles Lindbergh took off from Roosevelt Field on Long Island, N.Y., aboard the Spirit of St. Louis on his historic solo flight to France.

On this date:

In 1506, Christopher Columbus died in poverty in Spain. In 1830, the first railroad timetable was published, in the Baltimore American newspaper. In 1861, North Carolina voted to secede from the Union.

In 1861, the capital of the Confederacy was moved from Montgomery, Ala., to Richmond, Va. In 1894, 100 years ago, American journalist Adela Rogers St. Johns was born in Los Angeles. In 1932, Amelia Earhart took off from Newfoundland for Ireland to become the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic.

In 1942, Glenn Miller and His Orchestra recorded "(I've Got a Gal in) Kalamazoo" at Victor Studios in Hollywood.

In 1961, a white mob attacked a busload of "Freedom Riders" in Montgomery, Ala., prompting the federal government to send in U.S. marshals to restore order.

In 1969, 25 years ago, U.S. and South Vietnamese forces captured Apbia Mountain, referred to as Hamburger Hill by the Americans, following one of the bloodiest battles of the Vietnam War

MOUNT PLEASANT — Northeast Texas Community College's baseball program has come under investigation for possible violations of National Junior College Athletic Association bylaws.

Wayne Baker, NJCAA assistant executive director, said the association is examining whether the baseball program is complying with rules concerning recruitment and other issues

Bill Griffin, No. 2 on the all-time victory list in the history of junior college baseball, started the Northeast Texas' program two years ago after guiding Howard College in Big Spring to the national championship in 1991.

Griffin, who has 1,111 victories. has coached for 35 years.

A large number of unsolicited letters and telephone calls concerning the program prompted the probe, Baker said.

"We feel that due to the large volume that we've received from various sources, it compels us to investigate," he said. "Anytime that someone is willing to sign their name or tell us who they are in terms of discussing allegations of that nature, have occurred.

then I think you have to take them seriously.

He declined to identify who provided the tips, or whether they came from inside the baseball program. Griffin did not immediately

But Mike Bruner, president of Northeast Texas CC, said he was unable to respond because he had not been notified of any charges.

"We are anxious for any investigation deemed necessary by NJCAA to take place. We will open our records for full investigation and will cooperate to the fullest extent," Bruner said

Unnamed sources told the Mount Pleasant Daily Tribune that the "Adopt-An-Eagle" program could be the basis for the investigation. Under that program, community members 'adopt" a player, inviting them for meals and making them feel wel-

Northeast Texas is part of Region XIV, which includes 20 east and

Baker said he and Jim Campbell of Kilgore College, who is the region's director, intend to visit the campus within the next few weeks to determine whether any violations
