Plunge off embankment kills 1

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A Nebraska man is dead following a one vehicle accident at the intersection of Interstate 20 and FM 700.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, Don Froien, 66 of Omaha, was traveling westbound on the interstate around 10:45 Thursday morning when the 18-wheeler he was driving left the roadway, went down the embankment and slammed into the guardrails underneath I-20 on FM 700. The vehicle came to rest in the northbound lane of FM 700 and the front wheels came off the truck, landing about five yards in front of the cab.

Big Spring resident Flora Byer was returning from a doctor's appointment when she heard the 18-wheeler come down the embankment behind her car.

"I was going north on FM 700 when I heard a loud sound. The truck landed right behind my car. He just barely missed us. I am sorry that man died but I think it is a miracle that we survived."

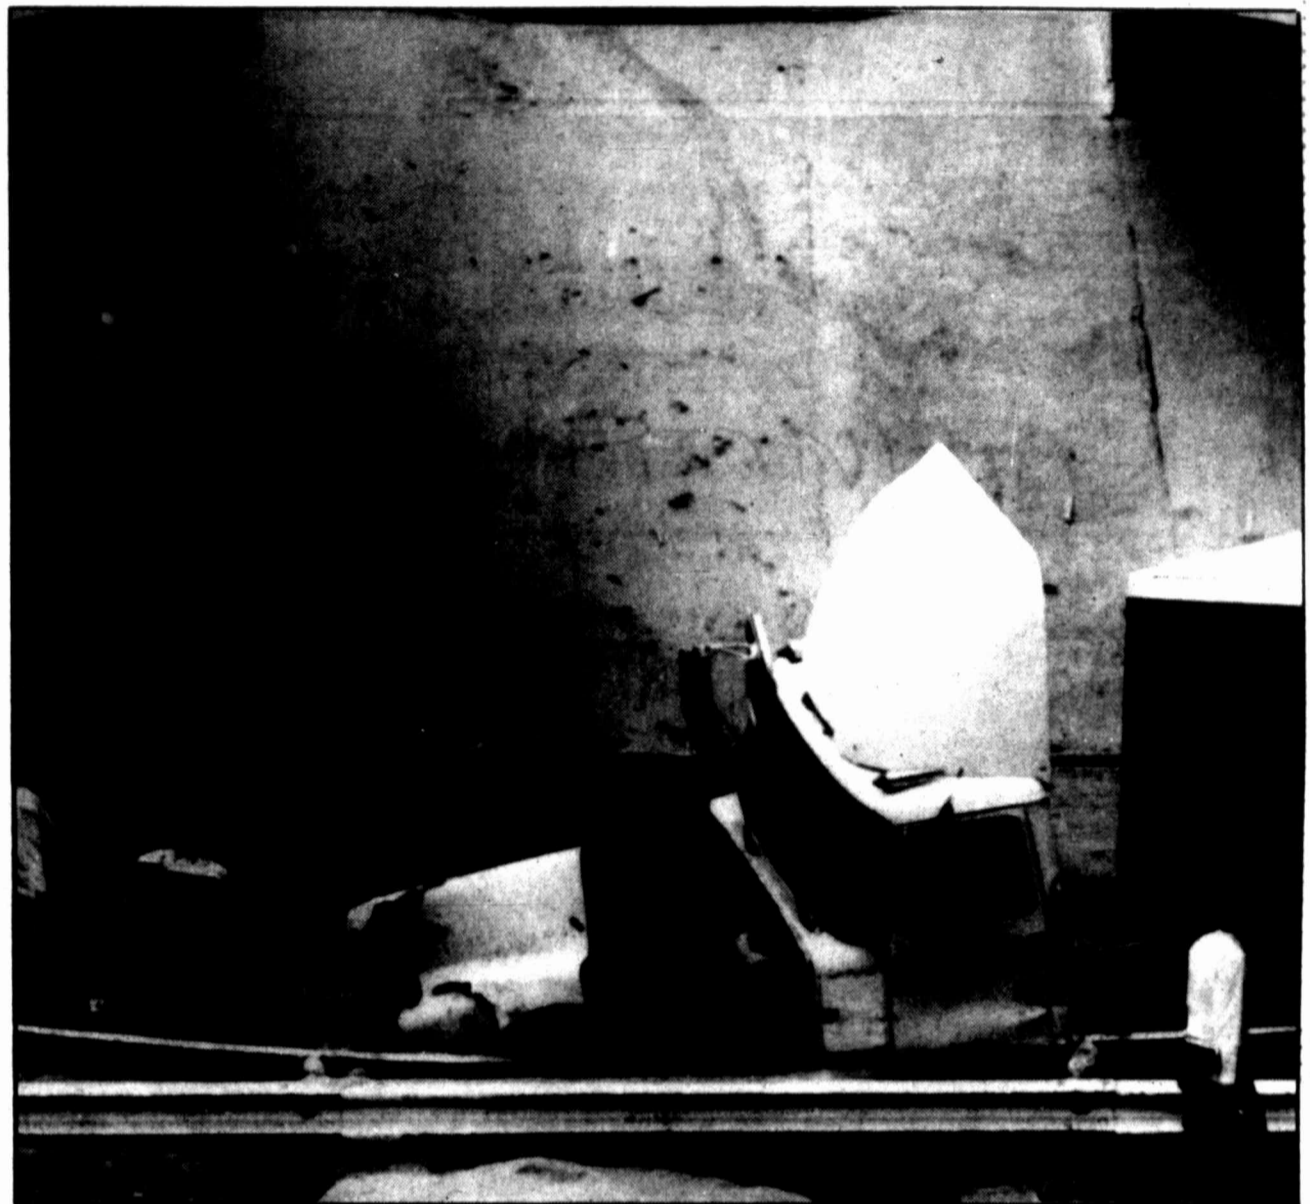

"Another neighbor was also returning from her doctor and heading home. The truck landed between the two of us. She put on her brakes and turned around when she saw the truck coming down the embankment. It was very frightening and I thank God we made it," said Byer.

DPS Sgt. Larry Meadors said "According to witnesses, there was no mechanical failure, no tires blew out and no evasive action by the driver. On the interstate, he took out quite a bit of guardrail before coming down the embankment."

"Mr. Froien was not wearing a seat belt. If he would have been, it would have saved his life. Justice of the Peace China Long pronounced him dead at Scenic Mountain Medical Center at 12:11 p.m. She has ordered an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death," said DPS Cpl. Mike Dawson, who is the investigating officer.

"When Mr. Froien was removed from the vehicle and put in the ambulance, his heart was beating normally. This leads us to believe he did not have a heart attack," said Dawson.

The "Jaws of Life" were called to the scene of the accident but were not used. Officers and emergency crews were able to remove Froien through the passenger side

212 seniors say goodbye to good ol' Big Spring High

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Dorothy Garrett Coliseum was filled with excitement, pride, sadness and relief Thursday night when 212 Big Spring High School seniors accepted their diplomas.

"This is a time of celebration. This is big milestone that we have been striving for the past 12 years. I want to thank all the parents for encouraging and supporting us," said Ryan Hamby, senior class president.

"I want to thank the teachers for having the patience to educate us and to prepare us for the basics of life. Graduates, along with disappointments there has been achievements, with pain comes happiness and with failures, we've seen success," he added.

Salutatorian Viswanath Subbaraman noted "This is the true beginning of our adult lives."

The climb has been difficult, yet we've persevered. We are anxious to leave our sheltered past and go forth into the real world. We need to set goals and work diligently to reach them."

"This is an important night for all of us here. We are taking a big step into the undiscovered country of the future. I would like to leave you with these words from Woodrow Wilson: A life worth living is a life filled with effort," said Valedictorian Evalita Perez.

The ceremony concluded with the school's alma mater, "Dear Ol' Big Spring High."

As the graduates threw up their hats in celebration, the coliseum reverberated with the emotions of the night - joy, sadness, expectation.

Operation Motorcade goes into action tonight

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Starting this evening, the Department of Public Safety will begin its Operation Motorcade for the Memorial Day weekend.

"There will be an extra effort to remain on the roads at all times during the weekend. We will be on the lookout for people who are speeding, not wearing their seat belts, following too close and of course, those who are driving while intoxicated," said DPS Cpl. Mike Dawson.

During this time, DPS will keep track of the number of urban and rural traffic accidents that result in death. Last year at this time, there were 40 fatalities in the state of Texas.

"We will be using all available highway patrol as well as weights and licenses to try and minimize accidents and fatalities," said Dawson.

DPS offers the following tips on how to drive safely during the Memorial Day weekend:

- Don't drive fatigued.
- Don't drive under the influence - avoid using alcohol or drugs when behind the wheel.
- Wear safety belts - this is required by state law and can drastically reduce injuries.

Helping hands turn out in droves for stranded family

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

In a world where bad things seem to happen to good people, somehow, the human spirit still seems to do the unexpected in a time of crisis.

For the Drew Owens family, the story of the "Good Samaritan" must seem pretty special at this moment.

On Monday, Owens and his family were towed into Big Spring by Ricky Mitchum and his father of Mitchum Auto and Wrecker Service. Mitchum said, "they were broke and their car was barely running." The Owens' were towed in from Rattlesnake Gap, about 16 miles south of Big Spring.

According to Mitchum, the Owens' were traveling from Mississippi when they broke down and were ripped off in both Dallas and Abilene enroute to Consequences, N.M.

The Mitchums were quite impressed by the help and support given to the Owens' by the people of Big Spring. "We just want to thank the other people who helped the family (Owens) during this time."

Because the Owens' have four children, they were not able to receive help from the Salvation Army, which does not accept children, but Mitchum said the people of Big Spring really helped.

Radio station KBYG aired the situation. Texas Wrecking donated a carborator to fix the Owens' car, they were able to stay at the Great Western Motel and at Motel 6, at no charge to them.

According to Mitchum, Drew Owens and his family were also impressed with the hospitality they received from the citizens of Big Spring; so much so that they are actually thinking about staying in Big Spring for a while - because of the people.

Mitchum himself has offered to help Owens find a job if he and his family does indeed stick around.

Settles Hotel trade made

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees voted to accept a proposal to allow the city of Big Spring to exchange 11 lots for the Settles Hotel.

All taxing entities involved in the Settles Hotel must approve this decision. The city council approved it Tuesday evening with Howard College and the county to consider it at upcoming meetings.

"The city is willing to take full responsibility for this property and I believe we should accept it," said Ronald Plumlee, BSISD assistant superintendent.

The proposal passed by a three-to-two vote, with Don Baker and Dan Wise voting against the decision.

David Weseloh, who is the current owner of the hotel, has no financial means for renovating the property. The city is proposing to trade the hotel for 11 lots without him assuming any back taxes for the new property.

The city is looking into the possibility of developing the hotel into a retirement center or low income housing.

At-A-Glance

The Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees approved the following items during a special meeting Thursday afternoon:

•The board accepted the resignation of board member Viola Barraza. Earlier this month, she informed board president Don Baker of her resignation because she was attending Sul Ross State University in Alpine. During the next board meeting, members will have a name to present to take her place until the next election.

•The board approved a contract between BSISD and Forsan ISD for Forsan to continue to purchase WADA's (Weighted Average Daily Attendance) from Big Spring. The board approved the maximum number of 90 students. The attendance credits earned by the approved transfer students are to be credited to FISD and deducted from BSISD. This is in compliance with the current school finance law to equalize funding.

It's 'roadeo' time again for Norman and Johnke

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Big Spring Independent School District bus driver Beverly Norman is headed to the state roadeo - not roadeo, but roadeo.

Recently, Norman and 58 other bus drivers participated in the regional bus roadeo. Big Spring had two representatives, Norman and Barbara Johnke.

The drivers show off their skills by winding their big yellow buses through obstacle courses and the like. The top three finishers will go onto the state competition that will be held in Odessa June 13 and 14.

Norman finished in fourth place but the third place winner, Letty Coomer from Andrews, cannot attend the state convention because of a scheduling conflict. Norman gets to take her place and represent this region in the state competition.

This will be the third time Norman has qualified to compete at the state convention.

A nation of malcontents

For any immigrant to come to the United States and then demand that our schools teach their children in the language of their homeland ...

Also ... Anybody unhappy in his homeland is likely to be unhappy wherever he goes.

who, convicted, paroled and deported, were back in our country within a week.

The increasing number of criminal aliens brings out the worst in both the justice and immigration bureaucracies.

The fastest growing crime group in the United States is now comprised of gangsters from Asia.

More than 80,000 aliens now occupy state and federal prison cells at your expense.

The Chinese slave trade is a multi-billion-dollar enterprise, specializing in smuggling aliens.

Aliens are 9 percent of our total prison population, with the largest numbers in Texas, California and Florida.

City officials in New York are struggling to tell the United States Immigration and Naturalization Service about possible illegals in custody ...

These states are overwhelmed by the cost, and though federal funds have been promised, the states are having to sue the federal government to get what's been promised them.

When most New Yorkers are now "something else," how can natives expect less than the short end of the stick?

Florida's population of foreign born has tripled in two decades, from 540,000 to 1.7 million, with more arriving every day.

No Washington politician wants even to discuss immigration policy, lest he alienate foreign-born voters, yet I am hearing more and more from responsible, card-carrying, legal, hard-working aliens who are themselves embarrassed by the law-breaking, drug-dealing misconduct of the sneak-ins.

They demand and expect schooling for their children, medical treatment for their families, food stamps and other welfare benefits.

"We came here for the opportunity to work; they come here to see what they can get away with!"

Doubly distressing to lawmen is the fact that in some states criminal aliens -- legal or other -- can serve out their terms and still wind up staying in the country!

Appreciative American immigrants, historically our nation's strength, are now outnumbered by wretched refuse diminishing our strength and draining our resources.

There is an almost limitless range of due process rights available to aliens and their families.

Even when tedious deportation proceedings are pursued, our borders are so undermanned that California counts thousands of felons

Law an asset for client Clinton

"I gotta send a fast letter to the president," Slat's Grobnik said, "and give him the phone number of my wife's nephew, Stanley the lawyer."

Mike Royko

Why would you do that? "It's my patriotic duty."

What does your wife's nephew, Stanley the lawyer, have to do with your patriotism?

"Because I've been reading about the whopper lawyer bills the Clintons are piling up. That Whitewater stink has already cost them over a million."

And that legal meter is running constantly. "Right. But if that ain't enough, now this Paula Jones is suing because she says Clinton introduced himself to her by dropping his pants in a hotel room."

Yes, that's a fine how-do-you-do. "So that means he has to pay a lawyer for that too. And that could run into big bucks because the lawyer gets about $400 or $500 an hour."

It just shows that in these sensitive times, a fellow is better off sending flowers to a young lady.

"Anyways, I read where the legal bills are so big that the Clintons got to run a tab, and by the time he's not president, they could be millions of dollars in hock."

Well, that's life in the fast lane, I suppose.

"Maybe. But it's got me worried. How can he concentrate on being speeding rap? He got Big Louie off the hook for mopery with intent to gawk, and he wangled a cash settlement for Aunt Erma when the neighbor's pit bull bit her on the bottom. The guy is a legal genius."

Maybe so, but Clinton has big-time legal problems, and Stanley the lawyer is more accustomed to neighborhood problems.

"What's so big-time about what this Paula Jones says? She says Clinton drops his pants, but there ain't no witnesses. I already talked to Stanley about that. He says, no problem. All Clinton's got to say is that his shirttail came out, and he just loosened his belt to tuck it in. That could happen to anybody, right?"

I suppose so. But the Whitewater affair is a very complicated, tangled financial web.

"You think that's tangled? When old Bruno died without a will and all eight of his sons and daughters sued each other for possession of his three-flat with the tavern on the first floor, Stanley handled that OK."

As I recall, there was a near-riot in the courtroom and they all went to jail.

"Yeah, but he got them out on bond."

I know your intentions are good, but I seriously doubt that Stanley is up to so big a challenge.

"Then there's something wrong with the legal system if somebody got to spend $500 an hour to get a fair shake."

Yes, that seems a trifle high, but if you want the best, I guess you have to pay.

"Wait a minute, haven't the Clintons been belly-aching about how much doctors charge?"

Yes, I believe that was one of their complaints about the present medical system.

"Well, I been sick a lot of times, but it didn't cost me no million bucks to get back on my feet. So why should it cost millions to hire some lawyers?"

Well, these are complicated legal matters.

"So's a heart transplant complicated. I figure even taking out a gall-bladder is more complicated than this Paula Jones thing. But a gall-bladder don't cost no million bucks."

You may have a point, but the Clintons are apparently willing to pay the top price.

"Uh-huh. But what happens if an ordinary stiff gets accused of something? Can he hire a $500-an-hour lawyer?"

That would be unlikely, unless he happened to be a millionaire.

"So when they get done reforming the medical system, are they going to reform the legal system the same way?"

Since both Clintons are lawyers, I'm sure they know the system as well as anyone.

"Maybe that's the problem."

Hemingway in your den?

If you have a young high school student in your family who wants to grow up to be a writer, here's some terrific news for the boy or girl.

Bob Greene

Actually, if the student in your family is struggling with his or her writing, this is even better news.

Nothing wrong with any of those reports, of course. It's just reassuring to find out that even Ernest Hemingway, as a 17-year-old kid, wrote like a 17-year-old kid.

Ernest Hemingway's old high school has just published a book of Hemingway's high school writing -- stuff he did for the school paper and the yearbook. Hemingway, of course, grew up to win the Nobel Prize for literature, and to be one of the most famous authors in American history.

"His writing as a high school student, of course, is not deathless prose at all," said Michael Reynolds, a professor of English at North Carolina State University who is an internationally known Hemingway scholar. "The high school writing is Ernest Hemingway before he invented himself."

But when he was a teen-ager, his writing was ...

Professor Reynolds, who wrote the introduction for "Hemingway at Oak Park High," said that Hemingway would later become an author "whom America somehow needed. He was kind of a designated hitter. He was the guy who ended up doing the things we wanted to do but wouldn't, or couldn't. It was an invented persona. The person who grew up in Oak Park became the person we know as Ernest Hemingway."

Well, it wasn't much. "My image of Hemingway was always that he was a rough, gruff, sportsman type," said Donald Vogel, a librarian at Oak Park and River Forest High School in Oak Park, Ill., and co-editor of "Hemingway at Oak Park High: The High School Writings of Ernest Hemingway, 1916-17."

So this should all be good news to families of aspiring, if struggling, young writers. "In his own high school, I'm sure there were probably better writers than Hemingway," co-editor Vogel said. "If you didn't know that this stuff had been written by Hemingway, and you were asked whether the writer would become some famous author? Flip a coin."

Vogel had suspected that Hemingway's voice in his high school writing might be much like the voice the world would later find in the pages of "For Whom the Bell Tolls," "A Farewell to Arms" and "The Old Man and the Sea."

Hemingway's lead on a Nov. 3, 1916, Trapeze story about the school's athletic association:

But Hemingway's high school voice in reality sounded like ...

"The Athletic Association will reorganize some time next week. At this first meeting of the old members a resolution to reduce the membership fee from 50 cents to 25 cents will be introduced by Coach Thistlethwaite. The annual membership of the association has averaged about 400 and by this reduction of membership fee Thistlethwaite expects to increase the membership to include every fellow in school."

"He wrote like what he was," Vogel said. "An average high school kid."

Hemingway's lead on a Feb. 2, 1917, Trapeze story about an upcoming track meet:

For all the anthologies of Hemingway's work, for all the biographies and critical essays analyzing his life and his writings, there is something refreshing and encouraging about "Hemingway at Oak Park High." Perhaps it is the implicit

"Oak Park's annual interclass track meet will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday morning in the gym. The meet is open to everyone in school

Horror of a mandate

Scripps Howard News Service

Edgar Allan Poe? An upstart. H.P. Lovecraft? Wet behind the ears. If you want to hear a real horror story, here's one, authored by the federal government:

In 1991, Congress required cities to remove at least 30 percent of organic waste from incoming sewage before treating it. But Anchorage, Alaska, had so little such waste in its sewage inflow that meeting the standard was impossible.

So Anchorage faced the prospect of building a $135 million filtration plant for sewage that, even untreated, often surpassed EPA's criteria. Like phooey, vowed city fathers -- who paid two firms to dump 5,000 pounds of fish viscera into the sewer system. Anchorage then removed enough of these unprime parts to satisfy the feds.

But even such macabre creativity is not enough to elude most unfunded mandates. State and local governments spend billions each year complying with 174 federal laws and regulations. Washington habitually operates in the red, but lower governments must raise taxes (or cut services) to cover costs passed along by Beltway utopians. Columbus, Ohio, calculates that fulfilling the Safe Drinking Water Act and other mandates takes $685 away from the average city household.

Washington, not content with bankrupting itself says Ohio Gov. George Voinovich, is now bent on bankrupting everybody else.

Perhaps all this Buckeye umbrage will prompt another Ohioan, John Glenn, who heads the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, to report out a bill by Sen. Dirk Kempthorne, R-Idaho. With beautiful simplicity, the Kempthorne measure would require the federal government to pay the costs of its do-good programs. Just imagine.

About now, a White House push would help unfunded-mandate reform. But Clinton's Office of Management and Budget chief quails that the president hates to interfere with "the legislative branch conducting its business." Funny, we don't remember Clinton being so deferential when Senate Republicans were bottling up his "stimulus" package.

We know where we'd like to deposit 5,000 pounds of fish offal.

Negotiations reopened in aquifer dispute

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Leaders of three underground water conservation districts have agreed to reopen negotiations over disputed claims to the Edwards aquifer.

The Edwards Underground Water District, Medina County Underground Water Conservation District and Uvalde County Underground Water Conservation District signed the agreement Thursday.

According to the three-year pact, the three boards will renew talks on a regional water management plan and formulate proposed legislation to support the plan.

They also have agreed to develop a common strategy for managing pumping from the aquifer — San Antonio's only water source — during droughts.

"This agreement forms a bridge between our districts and makes possible fair, effective and, most importantly, regionwide management of the Edwards aquifer from Uvalde County to Hays County," said Jo Ann S. De Hoyos, chairwoman of the Edwards district.

Prison gang leader sentenced to life

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The leader of the Mexican Mafia says spending his life in prison won't affect him because he'll push ahead with his mission of representing oppressed people.

"I'm nothing but a Mexican and a soldier representing all of the exploited people of the world and my race," Heriberto Huerta said Thursday, just before a federal judge sentenced him to life in prison.

"Even though I may be in the depths of the prison, I will continue to find a way to represent the Mexican people," Huerta said defiantly after addressing the court in a rambling five-minute speech.

U.S. District Judge Ed Prado ordered Huerta to serve three life sentences and four 30-year sentences for his seven convictions on racketeering and drug conspiracy charges. The sentences will run concurrently.

A jury convicted Huerta, 41, and six of his associates, including his wife and mother, after a monthlong trial in February.

School standards better but low

AUSTIN (AP) — Schools this year will be ranked as acceptable by the Texas Education Agency if as many as three out of four students fail a part of the state skills test.

And that standard is even tougher than last year, when the TEA first started to rank schools.

"It says we have a long way to go in improving our public schools," Criss Cloudt, associate commissioner of the Texas Education Agency, said Thursday.

The TEA has revised its accountability rating system for public schools and school districts, which was used for the first time last year.

Tornados rip Central Texas

The Associated Press

LOMETA — The cleanup has begun today in the wake of tornadoes and other severe windstorms that roared across Central Texas.

Despite the severe damage reported in Lometa, Mexia and elsewhere, officials said it could have been worse. No fatalities were reported, but at least 12 people were injured. No damage estimates were immediately available.

"God's been good to us," said Lometa Mayor Chuck Kelly, who was elected to his job May 7. "Of course, the town's pretty well devastated, but it could have been worse."

A tornado struck the town of 600 residents shortly before 5 p.m. Thursday, damaging several buildings and injuring at least six people, officials said.

Fire Chief Bobby Odom, who owns a downtown restaurant, said he sounded the civil defense sirens twice, roughly 20 minutes before the tornado swept through the community, about 77 miles northwest of Austin.

"I think we are damned lucky we didn't have a death," he said. "They had two cardiac arrests, but they were revived," said Lometa volunteer firefighter Rollie Hall.

The wind sucked a Lower Colorado River Authority power line worker from his truck and slammed him into a tree, said John Rathman.

A stranded motorist receives help in Killeen following heavy rains Thursday. The storm triggered tornadoes that caused property damage west of Killeen.

Lampasas County emergency management coordinator.

The worker, David A. Martin, 30, of Lampasas, was in undetermined condition at Scott and White Hospital in Temple on Thursday night, said nursing supervisor Shirley Meadows.

Five tornado victims were admitted Thursday night to Rollins Brooks Community Hospital in Lampasas, 16 miles southeast of Lometa. Nursing supervisor Johnny Chadwick said most injuries were cuts and bruises, and none of the victims appeared to be seriously hurt.

"It looks like every house in town has some damage," Rathman said. "No one escaped."

"We watched a tree come right up out of the ground," said Ray Faubion, a volunteer fireman. "That's when I knew we were right in the middle of it."

Hall said mobile homes were destroyed, a church was unroofed and the Lometa fire station severely damaged.

"It took the firehall right out. We had five vehicles in there. We managed to get all but one out, the rescue vehicle," he said.

Deputy indicted in sexual assault case

The Associated Press

TYLER — A Wood County sheriff's deputy has been charged with sexually assaulting three teen-age boys on at least 18 occasions, officials said.

Mark Gagliardo, 29, turned himself in to his fellow deputies Thursday. He was in the Smith County Jail today on $75,000 bond. He declined to comment on the charges.

Gagliardo, who was indicted last week, specialized in juvenile cases throughout his career, said District Attorney Jack Skeen Jr.

Gagliardo, who has been a juvenile investigator for two years, was reassigned to dispatching duties two weeks ago, Wood County Sheriff Frank White said.

The indictments charge Gagliardo with two counts of aggravated sexual assault of a child and one of sexual assault arising from incidents it said date for incidents accused him of assaults dating between 1984 and 1991.

Two of the boys were younger than age 14, while another was between 14 and 17 when the incidents occurred, Skeen said.

Gagliardo will remain on the job for now, White said.

"He has not been convicted, so this will not affect his job," he said. "He will be dispatching until there is a conviction or the case is disposed of some other way."

Before joining the Wood County Sheriff's Department two years ago, Gagliardo was a police officer in Whitehouse, about 10 miles southeast of Tyler.

While there, Gagliardo was honored as "Officer of the Year" by the Texas War on Drugs.

"His files are full of glowing reports from parents and other individuals," said Whitehouse Police Chief Mike Pratt. "He wanted to make a difference. This is an unfortunate situation and it hits people by surprise. I hate to see something like this come up."

After 13 years, cop killer is put to death

The Associated Press

HUNTSVILLE — A self-described rebellious drug and alcohol user who said he found God in prison was executed early today for fatally shooting a Dallas police officer 13 years ago.

Stephen Nethery, 33, in a brief final statement, asked for prayers for his family and the family of his victim, ending his comments with: "Lord Jesus, receive my spirit, Amen."

Eight minutes after the lethal injection began, he was pronounced dead.

Nethery, of Daisy, Tenn., was executed for the Feb. 23, 1981, shooting death of Dallas police officer John McCarthy.

He became the sixth inmate executed in Texas this year and the 77th in the state since capital punishment resumed in 1982. The total — by far the highest in the nation — accounts for one-third of all executions in the United States since the Supreme Court allowed the death penalty to resume 18 years ago.

The execution took place about three hours after the U.S. Supreme Court, in an 8-1 decision, rejected a late appeal to spare the former construction worker.

Nethery's attorney, Mark Ticer of Dallas, contended the trial jury improperly was not allowed to consider Nethery was drunk and under the influence of marijuana when the fatal shooting occurred.

Nethery was having sex with a woman in his car at White Rock Lake in Dallas when McCarthy and his partner discovered them. The officers suggested the couple put on their clothes and leave.

Nethery responded by pulling out a .32-caliber pistol and opened fire, killing McCarthy. The officer's partner, Phillip Brown, returned shots as Nethery jumped naked into the cold water of the lake and then surrendered.

Brown this week recalled McCarthy as "one of the better people I had the privilege of working with. He was a caring, sensitive individual."

CBS to dig deep to replace defectors

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS says it's prepared to dig deep into its pockets to replace eight TV stations that are defecting to Fox.

"The war is started," Howard Stringer, president of the CBS Broadcast Group, declared in today's New York Times.

On Monday, Rupert Murdoch's Fox Broadcasting Co. announced a $500 million deal to get 12 TV stations to switch from the Big Three networks to Fox. The 12 include CBS stations in Atlanta, Dallas, Detroit and other big cities.

Stringer promised to "open the network's wallet" to replace the defectors.

He said CBS might offer stations higher compensation payments to carry the network, extend contracts with affiliates to five years from the current terms of about a year, or copy Fox and take a financial interest in some stations.

The other markets where CBS will be looking for a new station are Cleveland; Milwaukee; Phoenix; Tampa, Fla.; and Austin, Texas.

'The Stand' helps ABC win sweeps

NEW YORK (AP) — Helped by Stephen King's "The Stand," ABC won its first May sweeps in a decade.

Each episode of the four-night, eight-hour miniseries was seen by 50 million people, according to A.C. Nielsen Co. figures. The nightmarish drama about a global plague outperformed the opposing CBS and NBC shows combined.

The sweeps that ended Wednesday are one of three month-long periods each year whose ratings are used by local stations to set advertising rates. ABC last won the May sweeps in 1984.

For the April 28-to-May 25 period, ABC finished with a 12.6 rating. CBS, which was the No. 1 network of the 1993-94 season and won the February sweeps thanks largely to its Olympics coverage, had an 11.3. NBC had a 10.9, and Fox Broadcasting Co. a 7.6.

One ratings point represents 1 percent of the nation's 94.2 million TV homes.

S. Korea tightening border security

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — President Kim Young-sam today ordered his military to tighten security along the border with North Korea, warning that South Korea's hard-pressed communist rival might pick a fight.

"North Korea is facing an extremely difficult situation that belies our imagination," Kim said during an inspection tour of army, navy and air force units near the border.

"It is a historical lesson that a nation or an individual often acts irrationally in difficult times," he said.

Kim conducted the tour to check the preparedness of the 650,000-member South Korean military before he leaves next week for a week-long trip to Russia and the former Soviet republic of Uzbekistan, officials said.

Tension along the 155-mile Korean border, the world's most heavily armed, is already high because of a long-running dispute over the reclusive North's nuclear program. Nearly 2 million troops on both sides remain on special alert.

Don't execute

Sister Anne Davis of Seattle holds up a sign during a prayer session Thursday, a few hours before the scheduled execution of triple-murderer Charles Campbell, who is at the Washington State Penitentiary in Walla Walla, Wash., where he has been on death row for 12 years.

'The sound of silence'

Neighbors endure alarm's ringing

The Associated Press

RANDALLSTOWN, Md. — Suddenly, there was silence, 'eautiful silence.

After suffering the pulsing wail of a vacationing neighbor's burglar alarm for six days straight, people around here finally got a good night's sleep.

On Thursday evening, a Baltimore County police officer climbed a ladder, pried open an aluminum cover under the eaves of a townhouse and yanked free a wire to the malfunctioning alarm. The entire process took about 90 seconds.

"Thank God! Hallelujah! Hallelujah! Hallelujah!" next-door neighbor Joan Sheppard shouted from her porch.

Dozens of other neighbors cheered.

"It feels great," Diana Johnson said.

Police Maj. Kevin Sanzenbacher said the man whose alarm touched off the tumult will probably wish he hadn't tried to save a few bucks by installing the device himself. Under a county ordinance, all burglar alarms are supposed to cut off automatically after 20 minutes.

And Sanzenbacher suggested the man could face criminal charges when he gets back from his vacation in Indonesia. "Disturbing the peace would be an option we're going to look at," the officer said.

Earlier in the week, Baltimore County authorities said they couldn't do anything to shut off the alarm because that would require illegally breaking into the home.

And Baltimore Gas & Electric

refused to shut the power off to the home because of concern the utility would be liable for any damage that might cause to, say, fish in an aquarium or food in the refrigerator.

Mrs. Sheppard, who had been barely able to sleep and had lost her appetite since the alarm went off Saturday morning, went to court Thursday seeking an order allowing police to enter the property. No judge would sign the order.

Finally, Ernestine Cosby, a friend and former employee of the vacationing homeowner, got in touch with the man and gave police permission to switch off the alarm.

As neighborhood residents waited outside for the alarm to be turned off, five TV stations broadcast live from the scene. One rock station broadcast its entire evening programming from the neighborhood.

Benefits seen from crumbling insurance antitrust

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The federal antitrust exemption that has lessened competition in the insurance industry since World War II is starting to crumble, and consumer advocates say the public should benefit.

The American Insurance Association, representing major carriers, agreed Thursday to support a senior lawmaker's effort to significantly narrow the industry's exemption under the McCarran-Ferguson Act of 1945.

The exemption applies only to the insurance industry, and to all types, from property and casualty to health and life insurance.

Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, announced the association's endorsement of his efforts

Thursday and vowed to push the measure through his panel next month.

"It represents the first breach in the wall of strident opposition from an industry that, understandably, has tried to protect its unique antitrust status among all other industries in America," he said.

The compromise comes after nearly two years of behind-the-scenes negotiations among consumer groups, insurance companies and congressional aides.

It would allow the industry to continue to share historical loss data, use common policy forms and pool huge risks, such as airports, energy facilities and skyscrapers.

But it would ban after two years a practice in which companies try to jointly project future cost and loss rates.

Consumer groups, noting that insurance represents individuals' single largest expense after food and shelter, have battled the exemption for years.

Mary Griffin, insurance counsel for Consumers Union, said the agreement should result in "heavy-duty pricing battles to get consumers' business, maybe better service and a broader range of products."

"Maybe they'll do better claim servicing. Maybe you'll be able to get through more quickly. Maybe they'll be a little more responsive," she said.

Meanwhile Thursday, repeal of McCarran-Ferguson received a big boost in the Senate. As part of its deliberations on health care reform, the Labor and Human Resources Committee voted 10-7 to repeal the antitrust exemption for health insurance.

Kid's bad day ends with family's death

The Associated Press

UNION, Ky. — A high school honors student handed over a gun to an assistant principal. "I've had a bad day," the teen-ager said.

Back home lay the bodies of his parents and two sisters.

Clay Shroud, a 17-year-old who neighbors said built pipebombs at home and dressed entirely in black, was jailed on murder charges Thursday and placed under a suicide watch.

Walter Harvey Shroud, 43; his wife, Becky, 44; and their daughters, Kristen, 14, and Lauren, 12, were found shot to death on or near their beds in the Shrouds' home in this well-to-do Cincinnati suburb.

A neighbor and classmate, Dave Suarez, said Shroud had been depressed after a girlfriend rejected him, had boasted of taking drugs and began having problems with his parents.

Shroud hadn't given a hint of trouble until last week, when he bought a stun gun to school, said Randy Cooper, principal at Ryle High School. School officials assigned him 50 hours of community service.

His parents punished him by forbidding him to drive his pickup truck or listen to heavy metal or alternative rock music, Cooper said.

"He figured he was the one getting all the blame for everything," Suarez told The Cincinnati Enquirer. "He was just tired of it. He was tired of being depressed."

Shroud apparently went from room to room in his house and shot his family shortly after 5 a.m., said Boone County police Sgt. Jack Banks. He then drove to the home of a friend, whom he forced into the car at gunpoint, Banks said.

Kennel Club's summer goes to the dogs

By JANET AUSBURY
Features Editor

Summer's going to the dogs, and Big Spring Kennel Club members couldn't be happier.

The BSKC and Concho Kennel Club will host their summer dog shows July 9 and 10 at San Angelo Coliseum. The conformation and obedience events will be officiated by 11 AKC-licensed judges.

The CKC show will be Saturday and the BSKC show will be Sunday, the opposite of the show last winter in Big Spring.

About 1,200 dogs from across the U.S. are expected. Carole Owen, BSKC secretary, said the event tends to draw more entries than the winter show hosted in Big Spring by the clubs.

"It's about a couple of hundred dogs bigger," she said. "It's a better time of year. There have been times when we've had the winter show and there have been ice storms."

Many of the same dog owners who were at the winter show will be at the summer show, said Owen, but the dogs may not be the same. Since last winter, many dogs have completed their championships. Others that were puppies at the time will now be old enough to compete in regular shows.

Entries for the shows close June 22. Premium lists with entry blanks are available at Big Spring veterinarians' offices or from Carole Owen, BSKC secretary, 263-3404.

An AKC all-breed match will take place Saturday evening. Area owners of AKC-registered breeds may enter their dogs if they wish.

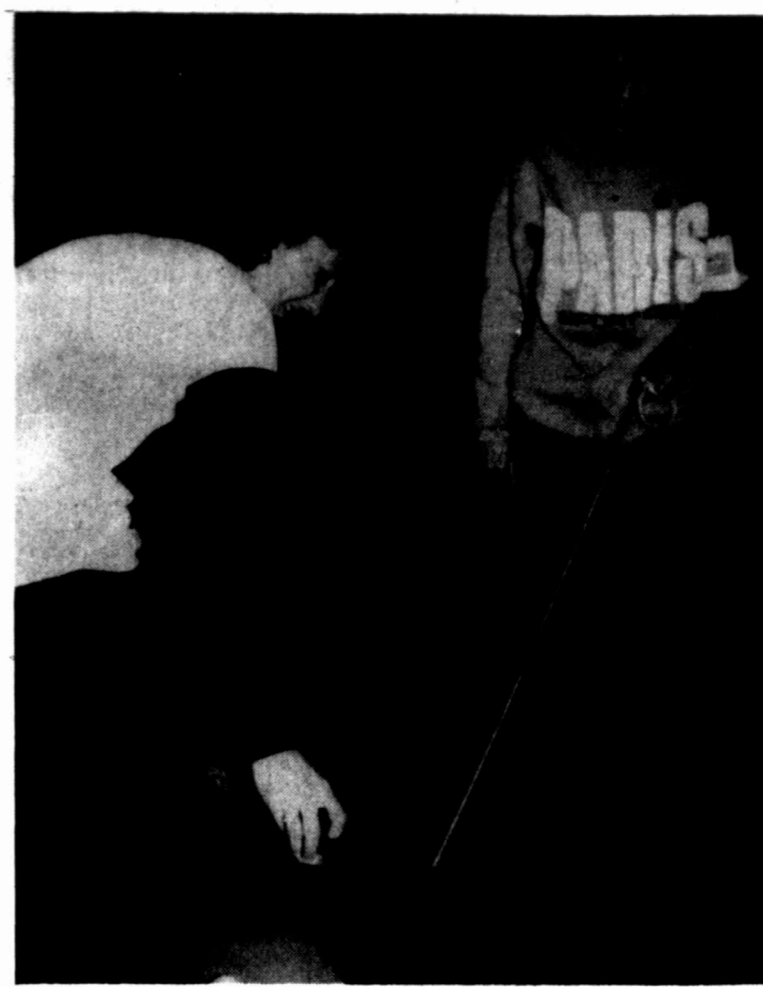

"A match is a more informal, low-key competition than a championship show. It's a good place for new exhibitors and young dogs to get ring experience," said Owen.

Puppies as young as three months may be exhibited in the match; in regular shows, the minimum age is six months. For match information, call Mary Sue Gill, (915) 949-5362.

The popular Concho Kennel Club Barbecue will be Saturday afternoon, July 9. Tickets are $5.50 before July 6 and may be purchased from Concho Kennel Club, Attention: Barbecue, PO Box 2369, San Angelo, Texas 76902.

The barbecue gives attendees a place to eat and socialize while they are in town for the dog show, explained Owen.

Other upcoming dog shows in West Texas will be June 25 and 26 at Abilene's Taylor County Expo Center. For information, contact Valerie Johnson, Abilene Kennel Club Show Chairman, 277 David Fort Road, Argyle, Texas 76226; or Nehla Underwood, West Texas Kennel Club Show Chairman, HC 75, Box 735, Andrews, Texas 79714.

In this file photo from last winter's dog show, two animal aficionados wander the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum to see the many breeds on display. This summer's dog shows will be in San Angelo.

Library's workshops give gift of literacy

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Imagine going through life not knowing how to read or write. Being functionally illiterate is a problem that faces 44 percent of the residents in Howard County every day.

Employees at the Howard County Library are making strides to reduce that statistic. "We felt a strong need to develop a literacy program because 44 percent of the residents cannot read above the fourth grade level. These are statistics provided by the state not by a survey that we have done," explained Rose Von Hassell, director of the literacy program.

For the past 10 years, the library has provided a workshop for volunteers to learn how to teach adults to read. The next workshop will be held June 7 and library officials are looking for tutors.

"The library sponsors the program. The county and West Texas Library System provides us funds to have this program. We also have donations from local residents to help us out," said Von Hassell.

The New Readers Press provides the materials for the tutors and students. "We have two students waiting right now. We would rather have more tutors than students. This way, when a student does come forward, we have a tutor trained and we can call them up to get started."

Von Hassell says that most of the students are referrals from those who have already gone through the program. "Students recommend others and this really helps. Sometimes, the tutors find their own students to teach."

The program proceeds at the student's pace, and it may take as long as two and a half years to complete the program. Tutors have four books to go through to teach students to read above the sixth-grade level.

Once students are finished, they are encouraged to go to Howard College and get their GED.

The last two books of the program teach the students life skills. It shows them how to read a map, phone book, menu, newspaper and cookbook, explained Von Hassell.

"I think the reason the illiteracy rate is so high is because people move around a lot and get behind in their school work so they drop out. Many graduate from high school and can't read.

"They are very smart. They have to be able to use their brain to get through life without knowing how to read," added Von Hassell.

If you are interested in volunteering for the tutor training workshop, contact Rose Von Hassell at the Howard County Library. The telephone number is 264-2260. The workshop will be held June 7 at 6 p.m. and will last about two hours.

Bloodless surgery helps Jehovah's Witnesses

By The Associated Press

CARROLLTON, Texas — To refuse a blood transfusion even in the face of death may seem a parallel to suicide. To Jehovah's Witnesses, it is an affirmation of their faith.

Jehovah's Witnesses hold a deep religious conviction that blood is a sacred substance and should not be donated or transfused during surgery or other medical procedures.

That doctrine has posed a problem for many Witnesses who have been unable to find physicians willing to treat them in accordance to their beliefs.

But as the medical profession becomes better informed on blood transfusions, including the risks involved with blood transmitted diseases, a method of surgery targeting the unique needs of Jehovah's Witnesses is becoming more common.

Known as "bloodless surgery," the procedure has become the basis of about 20 programs in the United States that aim to provide health care to Jehovah's Witnesses without forcing them to compromise their beliefs.

In bloodless surgery, there is no administration or transfusion of blood or blood products to the patient.

"This was designed to offer a program to people who have religious reasons not to accept blood transfusions," said Dr. H. Jane Chihal, chief of staff at Trinity Medical Center in the Dallas suburb of Carrollton.

"The Jehovah's Witnesses are not against medical care at all. It's just this particular issue sometimes prevents them from getting the quality medical care that we try to offer to all of our patients," Chihal said.

Trinity began its bloodless surgery program in September after hospital executives were approached by a committee of Dallas-Fort Worth Jehovah's Witnesses. About 20,000 Witnesses live in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

The program outlines specific guidelines by which Witnesses are treated at the hospital. When a Witness comes in for treatment, they sign an agreement that no blood or blood products will be administered under any circumstances.

A nurse liaison then is on call 24 hours a day to find a doctor who will treat a Jehovah's Witness under the guidelines.

"Individuals might think this means that Jehovah's Witnesses are anti-medicine, but Jehovah's Witnesses have a very high regard for life," said Jared Hardie, who represents Jehovah's Witnesses on a hospital liaison committee. "We are not desirous of being martyrs of our faith; we very actively seek the best medical treatment."

While some individual doctors have been practicing bloodless medicine since the early '80s, it wasn't until 1987 when a hospital developed an entire program dedicated to the issue.

The Center for Bloodless Medicine and Surgery at Our Lady of the Resurrection Medical Center in Chicago has been a leader for bloodless surgery programs in the United States.

"There are 22 programs in the United States and about 10 to 15 hospitals are in the process of setting up centers," said Jan Castro Graziani, coordinator of the Chicago center. "Many have had to travel so far for treatment, our goal is to have at least one in each state."

Three Texas hospitals have bloodless surgery programs: Trinity, Doctors Hospital in Garland, and Metropolitan Hospital in San Antonio, Hardie said.

Dr. Eric Kaplan examines Jean Thomas, a Jehovah's Witness, at his Carrollton, Texas, office in March. Thomas, 74, of North Pole, Alaska, had bowel surgery under the bloodless surgery guidelines at the Trinity Medical Center in Carrollton. Jehovah's Witnesses hold a deep religious conviction that blood is a sacred substance and should not be donated or transfused during surgery or other medical procedures.

Religious schools not exempt from cheating

By TERRY MATTINGLY
Scripps Howard News Service

Millions of students on campuses across the nation are preparing for final exams.

Many are planning to cheat. Most students, teachers and administrators are planning to look the other way.

In survey after survey, 60 percent or more of college students say they have cheated. This appears to be just as true on religious campuses as on those that are secular.

"My hunch is that most Christian colleges have been taken over by what most people call 'compassion.'"

For most people, that means that no one needs to suffer when they do anything wrong," said theologian Stanley Hauerwas, who teaches ethics at the Divinity School at Duke University. "Obviously, cheating is a big problem on Christian campuses. This tells us that most of these campuses are not really Christian communities."

If that statement isn't strong enough, try this one. Hauerwas has in recent years been challenging college audiences with this proposition: "Cheating is a more serious crime than murder for those engaged in the activities of learning and teaching."

A student's role is similar to that of an apprentice who learns from a master, he noted, during lectures earlier this semester. Tests and papers require students to demonstrate the skills they are supposed to have learned. Cheating short-circuits this process. Cheating teaches that there are no rights and no wrongs, which kills learning.

Churches supporting environmental efforts
The Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. — Leaders of Christian churches in Connecticut are urging their congregations to become more aggressive in supporting environmental efforts.
In a pastoral letter sent Tuesday to 2,400 Catholic and Protestant churches in the state, the religious leaders from 14 denominations termed environmental concerns a moral issue. They said they are concerned "that the environmental crisis is not yet viewed with the urgency it warrants."
The letter, issued by the Christian Conference of Connecticut, asked each congregation to organize an environmental mission group and announced plans to convene a statewide training conference on the environment next spring.
"Our mission for the environment will be conducted in dialogue with those who work in our economic and governmental institutions," the letter said. "As Christian citizens we have a responsibility to suggest concrete actions and specific programs to the secular society."
RANTOUL, Ill. — Zelma Neal was inspired when she turned to Daniel 9: Six $100 bills were tucked in the Bible.
Neal found the money during a Sunday school class at First United Methodist Church.
"I squealed. At first I thought it was play money. ... But then it dawned, that's real money!" she said.
"I've read the verses," Neal said Tuesday. "I don't see why anyone would place the money there because of what the verses say."
The money will be used to renovate the church.
"We see it as a gift from God," she said.

McCOMB, Miss. — Dedication services were held for the new sanctuary building at Springhill Freewill Baptist Church, one of two black churches torched by three white teen-agers last year.
Black and white citizens in southwest Mississippi contributed to a rebuilding fund for the church, and many also gave their time and talents in the construction of the new building dedicated Sunday.
The three teens who admitted to vandalizing and burning Springhill Freewill Baptist and Rocky Point Missionary Baptist Church in April 1993 are serving prison sentences.
"It's time to forgive those young men; that's the Christian thing to do," said Frank Martin, co-chairman of the fund-raising effort for Springhill.

IT HAS BEEN TRANSLATED INTO 195 DIFFERENT LANGUAGES AND MILLIONS OF COPIES ARE SOLD EACH YEAR. IN A SINGLE YEAR, ENOUGH COPIES ARE DISTRIBUTED TO AVERAGE 47 FOR EVERY MINUTE OF EVERY HOUR, NIGHT AND DAY. WITH SO MANY EDITIONS AND SO MANY PRINTINGS OF THIS GREAT BOOK, OVER THE YEARS, SMALL MISTAKES THAT THERE HAVE BEEN OCCASIONAL ERRORS MADE IN ITS PRINTING! HERE ARE A FEW:

THE BREECHES BIBLE: IN 1540 AN EDITION OF THE BIBLE SAID ADAM AND EVE "SEWED FIG LEAVES TOGETHER AND MADE THEMSELVES BREECHES."

THE VINEGAR BIBLE: IN 1717, AN EDITION HAD THE 20TH CHAPTER OF LUKE HEADED AS "THE PARABLE OF THE VINEGAR" INSTEAD OF "VINEYARD."

THE WICKED BIBLE: IN 1631, A PRINTER WAS FINED 300 POUNDS BECAUSE HE LEFT OUT "NOT" IN ONE OF THE TEN COMMANDMENTS SO THAT IT APPEARED IN EXODUS 20:14 "THOU SHALT COMMIT ADULTERY."

THE PRINTERS BIBLE: IN 1702 THE 19TH PSALM, VERSE 161, READ "PRINTERS HAVE PERSECUTED ME WITHOUT CAUSE" INSTEAD OF "PRINCES."

NOTWITHSTANDING THE ERRORS, THE BIBLE, IN THE THOUSANDS OF EDITIONS PUBLISHED AND THE MANY MILLIONS OF COPIES THAT HAVE BEEN DISTRIBUTED, CONTINUES TO BRING TO HUMANITY THE SPIRITUAL AND MORAL VALUES SO NEEDED BY THE WORLD AT LARGE!

New faces to dot Hawks' '94 lineup

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Most of the Hawks on the Howard College men's basketball team flew south after the 1993-94 season and aren't coming back. The coach held the door for many of the players as they left. Of the talented freshman class that led Howard to a third-place finish in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference, only shooting guard Kavossy Franklin and point guard Tony Brown will be playing for Howard this fall. Howard coach

Tommy Collins, who took the job in April 1993, could spend all day listing reasons for the mass exodus, but it all boils down to attitude. "That was my choice," said Collins, whose April arrival gave him a late start in recruiting last spring. "Any time you come in really late, like we did, you kind of gather. You don't really select, like you want to in recruiting, and many times you get a lot of people that have baggage, if they are capable of playing at this level. And you also get some people that might not be able to play at this level. So when you have those problems, the best thing you can do is eliminate them." Charles Poe, who is slated to play at Anderson (S.C.) College next season, will be missed the most. Franklin returns as the WJCAC's leading scorer, but Poe, the 6-foot-4 swingman from Milwaukee, was the WJCAC's leading rebounder. Despite returning just two players, the '94-'95 Hawks will be a more experienced team than last year's squad thanks to the arrival of some sophomore transfers. An added attraction will be the Hawks' West Texas flavor, spiced up by the signing of Big Spring star guard Wes Hughes. Hughes, 6-1, has already turned some heads at workouts. "He's working really hard on ball-handling," said Howard student assistant Bobby Brasel. "He was such a good shooter at Big Spring that that's what they asked him to do, and rightfully so. Here, he'll have to handle the ball more; we'll need him to bring the ball up the court. But now that he's concentrating on one sport, he should improve tremendously. You can already see the improvement."

Chris Stansell, a 6-6 power forward from Kermit, is another West Texas attraction. The freshman averaged 17 points and 13 boards his senior year. Three Texas players will bolster the perimeter. Rod Jones, from Lancaster, scored 12 points per game while dishing out a team-high 94 assists his senior year. Shawndrick Young, a 6-4 swingman from Willis, was second team All-State in Class 4A after averaging 24 points, 12 rebounds, three blocks and two steals per game.

Wayne Edwards, a 6-1 shooting guard from Friendswood, hit 78 three-pointers last season for Clear Brook High School in Houston while averaging 14 points per game. Other Howard recruits include Charles Koonce, a 6-7 power forward from Dothan, Ala. He'll be a sophomore after a debut season at Northwestern Louisiana that saw him average 10 points and seven rebounds per game. Joining Koonce down low will be 6-8 Marcus Crawford and 6-7 Ronnie Degray. Crawford is trans-

Caminiti has field day as Astros rally

By The Associated Press

ATLANTA — Ken Caminiti hit three doubles and scored the go-ahead run in a four-run eighth inning Thursday night as the Houston Astros beat the Atlanta Braves 8-5.

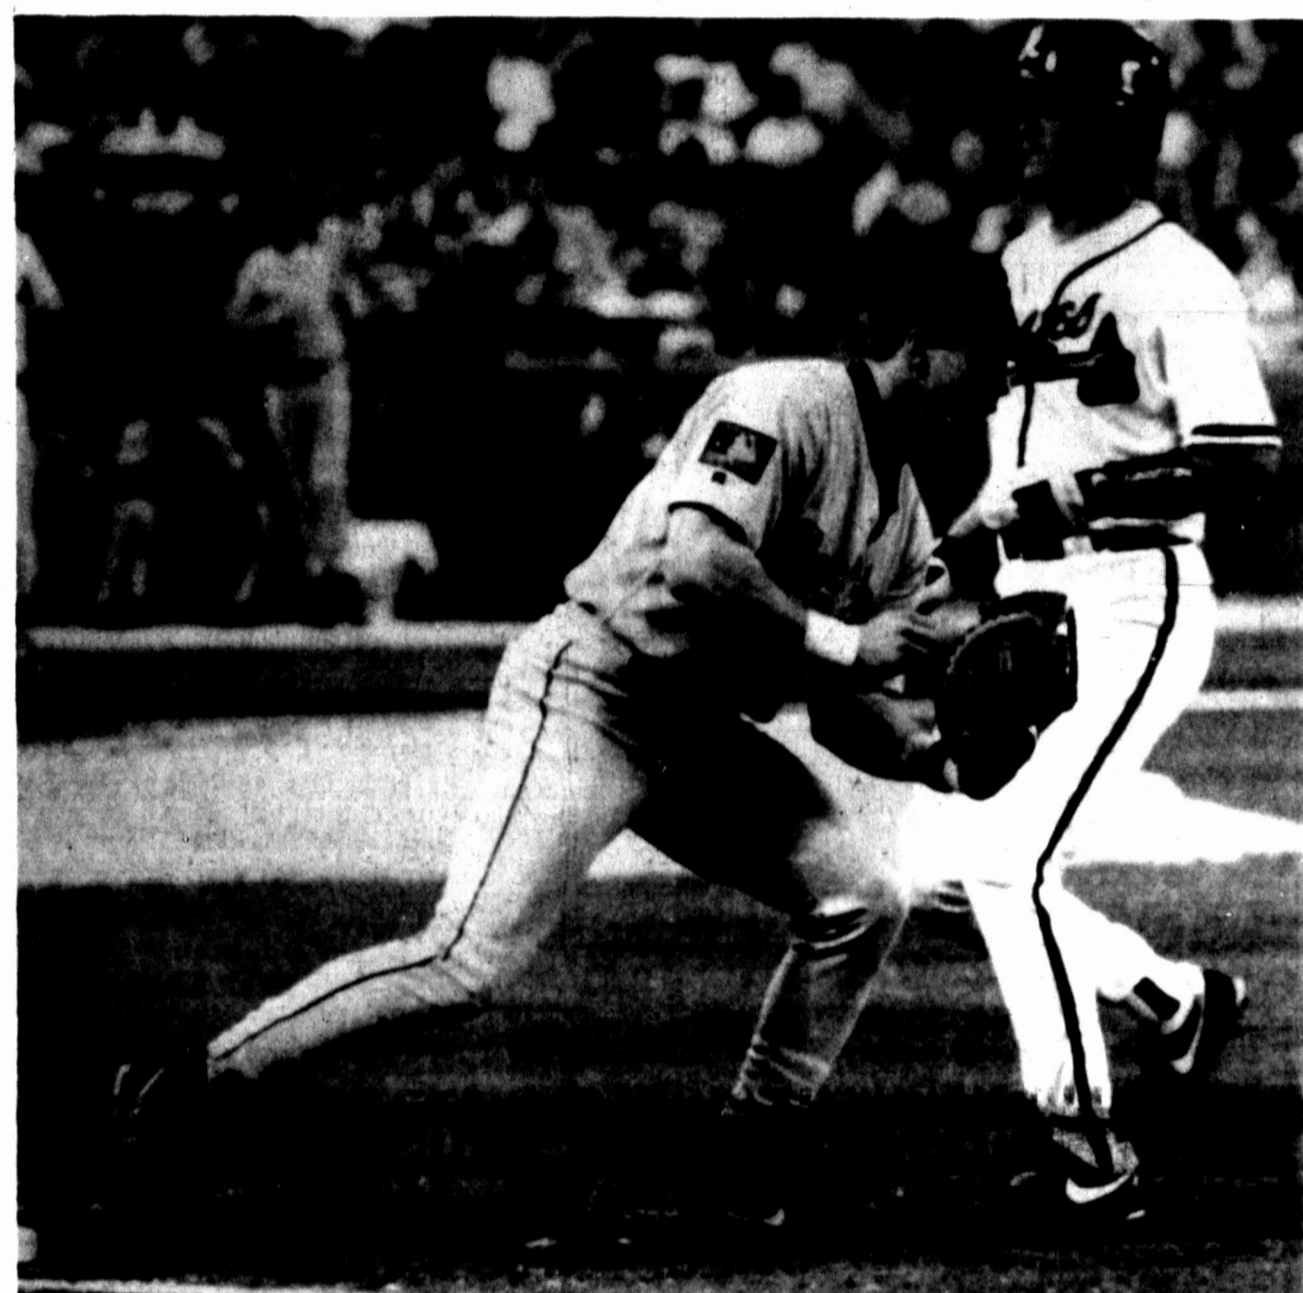

Caminiti, who extended his hitting streak to 12 games, scored in a three-run fourth inning after his first double, then doubled in a run in the fifth.

Caminiti got his third on a drive off the centerfield fence in the eighth, the first of four straight hits off Mike Stanton (1-1). Kevin Bass singled off Stanton's glove as Caminiti took third, and Tony Eusebio's single gave Houston a 5-4 lead.

Andujar Cedeno followed with an RBI single that chased Stanton. Steve Finley and Craig Biggio hit run-scoring singles with two outs off Milt Hill.

Greg Swindell (5-1) allowed four runs and seven hits in seven innings, beating Atlanta for the first time after three losses. Doug Jones allowed an RBI single to Jeff Blauser in the eighth.

Mitch Williams, who entered with a 7.71 ERA, allowed a leadoff single in the ninth to David Justice, then walked Dave Gallagher on four pitches. Rookie John Hudek walked Mark Lemke after getting ahead 1-2, then stranded the bases for his fourth save.

Atlanta's Jeff Blauser is doubled off first base as Houston first baseman Jeff Bagwell takes the throw during first inning action in Atlanta Thursday night.

Justice's sixth homer had tied the score in the seventh following a 2-hour, 8-minute rain delay in the fifth. Steve Avery, who had won his previous four starts, allowed four runs and six hits in 4 1-3 innings with five walks and two strikeouts. Atlanta took a 3-0 lead in the sec-

Ewing tears up Pacers again; Knicks lead 2-0

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The New York Knicks are outplaying and outshooting the Indiana Pacers.

After the Knicks beat the Pacers 89-78 Thursday night to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-7 Eastern Conference finals, Indiana coach Larry Brown said New York's extra effort was as crucial as Patrick Ewing's 32 points and 13 rebounds.

"If you look at all the hustle plays, I think the Knicks came out ahead on every one of them," Brown said. "That's why they've been so successful this year and the last couple of years — they get every loose ball and they get every long rebound and they make every effort play. And we haven't done that."

Rik Smits and Vern Fleming agreed with their coach. "We're going to have to be more aggressive, dive for loose balls and make the hustle plays like New York did tonight," Smits said.

"They came up with a bunch of second shots and all the loose balls," Fleming said.

The Knicks outrebounded the Pacers 47-35 and had 11 steals compared to seven for Indiana.

"I thought we started to get the loose balls and hit the boards harder (in the second half)," New York guard Greg Anthony said. "It was a tremendous effort for us."

shots, including four baskets and 10 points during an 18-2 run that broke the game open in the second half. New York trailed by five when Ewing hit a jumper with 3:19 left in the third quarter. When Ewing capped the spurt with another jumper, it gave the Knicks an 11-point lead with 7:46 remaining in the game.

The Pacers never got closer than seven points the rest of the way.

"Patrick was just not going to let us lose," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "He's as committed as any superstar I've ever been around. He's adamant that the ball is going to go through him."

That's a pretty impressive tribute considering that Riley coached Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Magic Johnson to four NBA championships with the Los Angeles Lakers. Still, Ewing wasn't completely satisfied with his performance.

"I thought I played a pretty good game," he said. "But I was disappointed I didn't get as many rebounds as I wanted and I had too many turnovers (six)."

Derek Harper, who has struggled in the playoffs, broke out of his slump with an excellent, all-around game. The Knicks guard had 18 points, eight assists and six rebounds while committing only one turnover in 36 minutes.

Charles Oakley added 17 points for the Knicks, who overcame a second-quarter cold spell during which they missed 15 of 16 shots.

Reggie Miller led Indiana with 23 points, and Smits had 22. No other Pacer scored in double figures.

They may be teammates, but Emmo, Little Al each out to win

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Emerson Fittipaldi and Al Unser Jr. are willing to carry this buddy-buddy thing only so far.

Teamwork is fine. Cooperation, great. But on race day, watch out.

The last time Fittipaldi raced Unser to the checkered flag at Indianapolis, neither backed off as they headed side by side into the third turn on the 199th lap.

As the rivals did a 200 mph tango, Unser spun off Emmo's right wheel into the wall and Fittipaldi breezed home to the victory.

Flash forward five years: Fittipaldi is the defending champion and Little Al is the newest stud in the Marlboro Team Penske stable. Unser is starting Sunday's Indianapolis 500 from the pole position, on the inside of the front row. Emmo has the outside, with Raul Boesel as a buffer in between. Paul Tracy, the third Penske driver, is on the inside of the ninth row.

Nine rookies and three other former winners are scattered through the 33-car lineup.

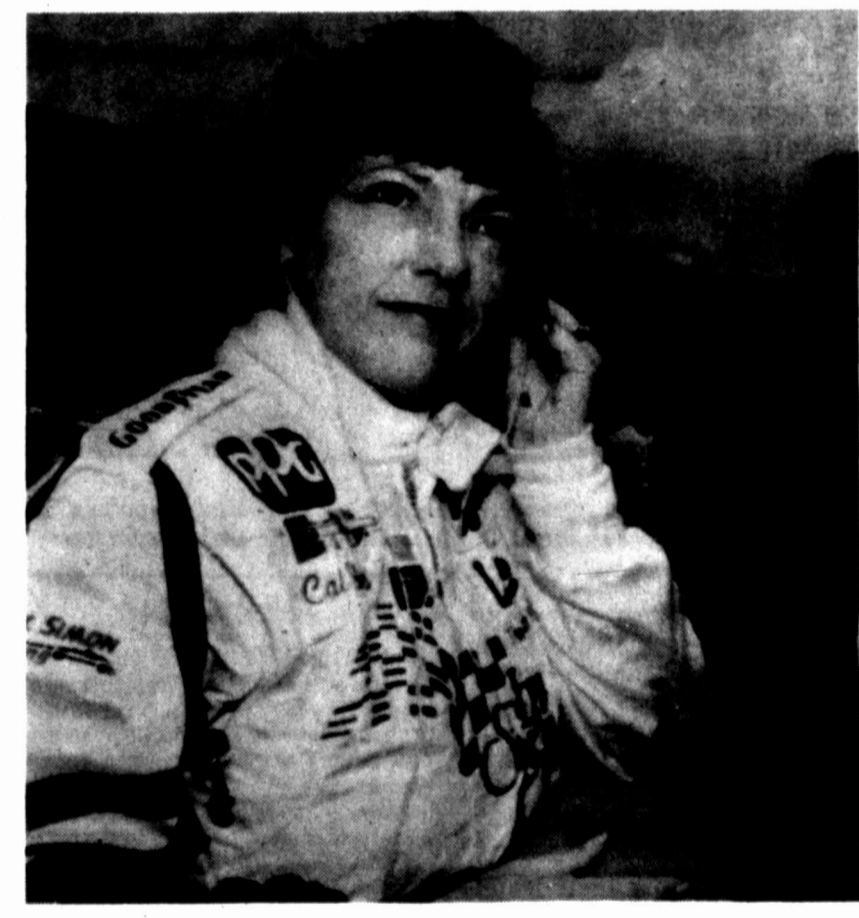

It will be every driver for himself. "If we repeat the '89 situation, I think it's going to be the same. I'm not going to give up and he's not going to give up," Fittipaldi said Thursday after the final practice before the race.

"For sure, being teammates, we try to help each other. We are going to exchange information ... but when the race starts and the green goes on we are competing against each other, like any other competitor.

"And the last few laps will be tough, the same way," he said.

No argument there from Little Al, who went on to win in 1992.

"In 1989, I came within a lap of doing it. It wasn't my mistake, it wasn't my crew's mistake, it wasn't a mistake of any kind of preparation. It was just one of those things. It was a racing deal, and that was it," Unser said.

Indy car driver Lyn St. James gets ready for the final practice day at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway Thursday.

"The most important thing come Sunday is that my car starts up out on the front straightaway. And if it starts up, we're going to treat it just like any other race and try to be the first one in the corner."

Unser said the teamwork has been very good.

"There's been a lot of times that Emerson and Paul both have helped my car go quicker. There's been a lot of times that my car has helped them go quicker," he said. "We share up until the green flag falls. And when the green flag falls, then we're out there racing each other."

"My main competition is Emerson. I think he's everybody's main competition. He's the one who has been running very consistently fast the whole month."

The field averaged 223.270 mph in qualifications, just short of the record 223.479 set in 1992, when Unser started 12th and won the race for the first time.

In Thursday's final practice, Mario Andretti had the top speed at 223.708 mph.

"The car is good and the team is ready," said Andretti, who is making his 29th Indy start and plans to retire at the end of the season.

Scott Brayton was next at 222.905, followed by Fittipaldi at 222.872, Mansell at 222.552, Eddie Cheever at 221.315 and Robby Gordon at 220.897.

Rain halts first round

By The Associated Press

FORT WORTH — All things considered, John Cook's ready to toss in his soggy golf towel and get the heck out of town.

Just divvy up the Colonial's $1.4 million purse and he'll gladly hit the trail.

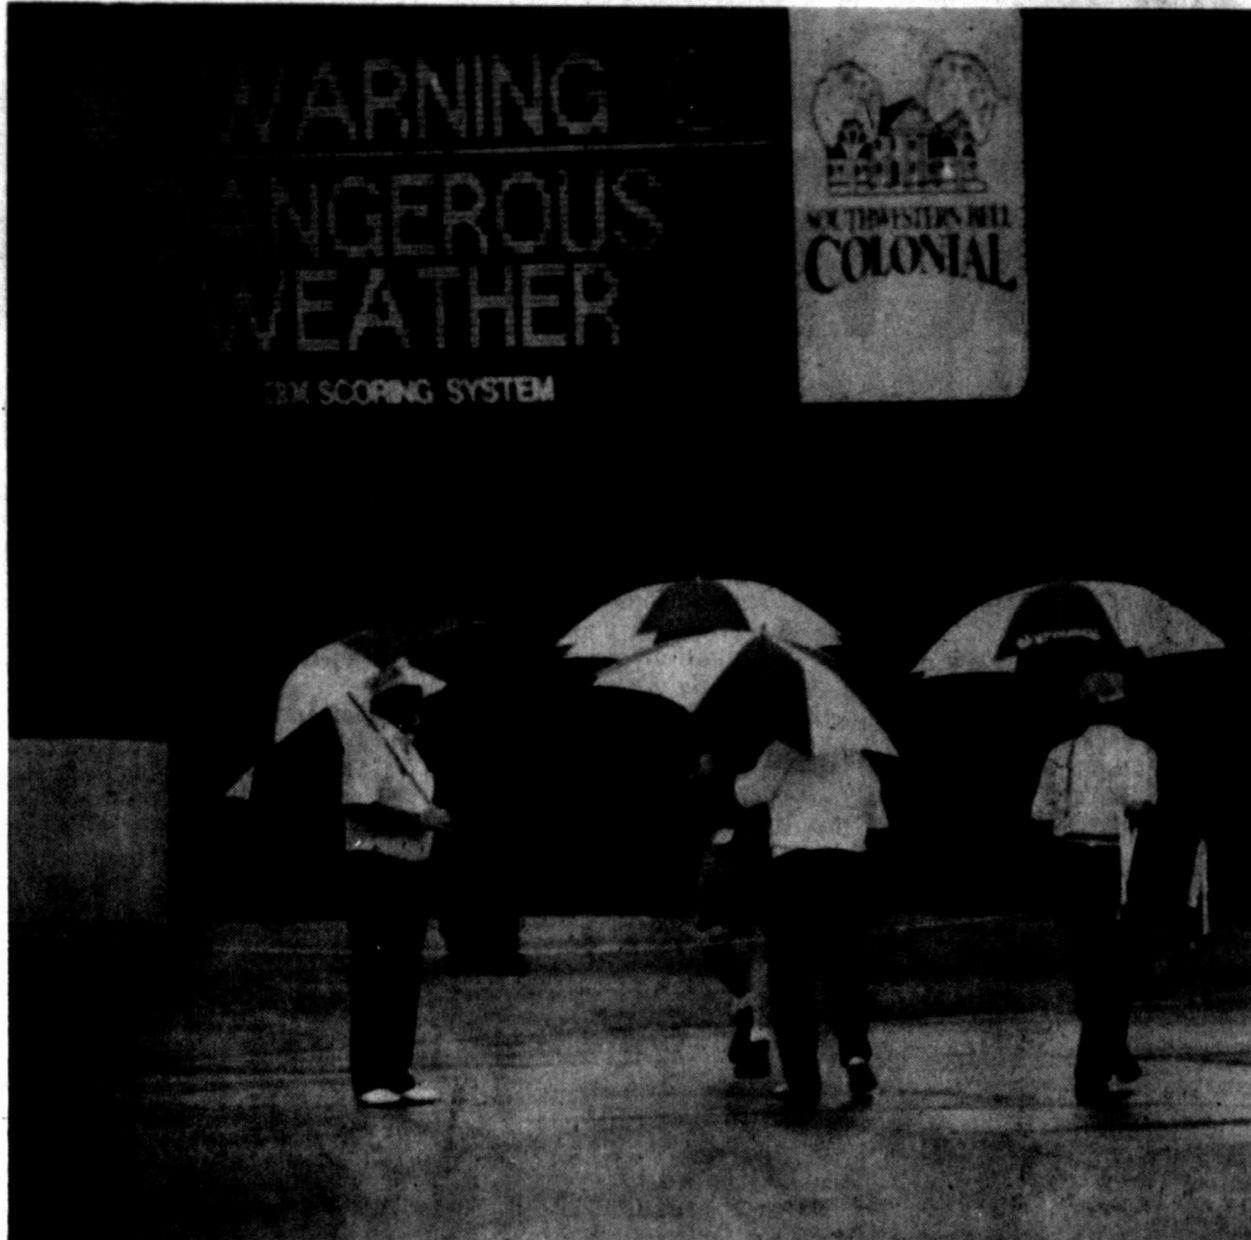

"I like that," Cook quipped Thursday after thundershowers cut short the first round of the 48th Colonial golf tournament with him leading through 13 holes at five under par.

"I thought the person leading when it was called would be declared the winner," he joked. "Full purse. Official win."

Yes, indeed, Cook likes that.

But alas, it was not to be. PGA officials ruled that play would resume at 9 a.m. today and perhaps continue until nightfall, weather permitting.

The forecast: "More of the same," sighed Duke Butler, the PGA Tour's tournament director. But he said the plan is to somehow complete 54 holes by Saturday for a fourth and final round Sunday.

Actually, the start of the first round was delayed briefly by the soggy Colonial Country Club course, and the wet greens proved vulnerable targets once play began.

Cook, starting on the back side, shot a 4-under 31 and dipped five under with a birdie at his 11th hole.

"Next thing I knew we were eating salsa in the locker room," he laughed.

Confident Rockets ready for game three

By The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Hakeem Olajuwon feels the Houston Rockets have the Utah Jazz on the ropes in the Western Conference finals and that's where he intends for them to stay.

"Now, the pressure is on them," said the NBA MVP who led the Rockets to wins in the opening two games of the best-of-7 series. Tonight's Game 3 will be played in the Delta Center. "This is the first time they have the opportunity to play here. We have to keep the pressure on to see how they will respond."

In scoring 72 points to lead the Rockets to 100-88 and 104-99 victories in Houston, Olajuwon celebrated being named MVP with his teammates.

"The chemistry is there, the timing is there, and we are playing together again as a team and winning," he said.

For Utah guard John Stockton, finding a way to beat the Rockets means cooling off Olajuwon in the two games in Salt Lake City.

"We have to figure out something," he said. "As a team, we have to make him feel uncomfortable. (But) if anybody knows how, he wouldn't be the MVP. He's exactly what you see ... the MVP."

Utah coach Jerry Sloan found ways to contain two other dominant big men — San Antonio's David Robinson and Denver's Dikembe Mutombo — in the first and second rounds. But he admits Olajuwon has been unassailable, though Sloan has tried everything — double-teams, even triple-teams — to slow him down.

"I thought our guys were guarding him pretty well, but he makes a shot going across the lane — leaning and falling down, but makes it," he lamented. "That's what great players do."

Daly hangs up coach's whistle

By The Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Chuck Daly had no regrets walking away from coaching the New Jersey Nets without turning them into an NBA champion.

For Daly, all the tell-tale signs of doing something a little too long were there. The seven-month NBA grind was getting to him, losing was as bitter as ever and on top of it all, after almost four decades in coaching, there was an opportunity to start a broadcasting career.

"I'm going to miss it because it's an addictive thing to be a coach," Daly said Thursday after resigning as Nets coach with a year still left on his original three-year, $4 million contract.

"(Pat) Riley coined the term lifer and I've definitely been a lifer," Daly said. "It's not going to be easy process to leave, but I think it's a process necessary for me."

Daly, who will be 64 in July, said neither his health nor any conflicts with the Nets' front office or players led to his resignation.

Daly, who led the Detroit Pistons to consecutive titles in 1989 and 1990 and posted a .598 winning percentage in 12 NBA seasons, signed a new two-year contract with the Nets to do infomercials and possibly pre-game shows. He also said he has signed a four-year contract with TBS to be an analyst on the superstation's new game of the week on Thursday night.

Nets general manager Willis Reed said Daly's top two assistants, Brendan Suhr and Paul Silas, would be considered as his replacement. Reed said he hoped to have a new coach by the end of June.

Daly said he would not make a recommendation and was not asked for one.

New Jersey Nets coach Chuck Daly talks to reporters Thursday after announcing his resignation. Daly has coached basketball at different levels for more than 35 years.

ferring from Gilroy (Calif.) Junior College, where he averaged nine points, 11 boards and six blocks while shooting 63 percent from the field. Degray, a freshman, averaged 17 points and 12 rebounds in his senior year at Leesville, La.

Howard is still after another post player and another point guard. Two names high on Howard's list are Eric Joshua, a 6-2 point out of Gary, Ind., and Chris Paddock, a 6-11 post from Abilene who was a red-shirt at the University of Colorado last season.

Collins said he's quite happy with Howard's recruiting, but as important as the new players will be to the team, much depends on Franklin and Brown. They are the first second-year players in Collins's young tenure at Howard, and they'll be counted on heavily.

"We'll have some sophomores, because there will be some transfers, but the main thing is that we'll have two guys that have been here before, so we'll have instant leadership," Collins said. "Last year, we had instant leadership, but it was in a negative direction."

Public Notice

On March 23, 1994, GTE and Contel ("The Companies") filed applications with the Public Utility Commission of Texas ("PUC") to restructure the Companies' Switched Transport rate category and reduce the Carrier Common Line (CCL) charge of its Switched Access Service. The tariff sheets in GTE and Contel's applications, if approved, will bring the Companies' state access tariffs into structural parity with their interstate tariffs for the Local Transport rate category, which became effective on December 30, 1993.

GTE and Contel propose to implement the new tariffs on a revenue neutral basis. The Local Transport category of GTE and Contel's Switched Access Service is primarily for interexchange carriers.

Persons who wish to intervene should file a motion for intervention with the PUC by June 17, 1994 with reference to Docket No. 12866 (GTE) and/or 12865 (Contel). Requests for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757, or call the Public Utility Commission Public Information Office at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227 or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deal.

Nancy comes home, T-Wolves take off, playoffs heating up

Random thoughts while riding the storm out:

News item: Nancy Kerrigan skated at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit Wednesday night, the first time she has visited the place since getting clubbed on the leg by Tonya Harding's cohorts last year.

There's no truth to the rumor that Detroit officials held Bat Night to commemorate the occasion.

The next time you wonder why sports fans are becoming so cynical, consider the Minnesota Timberwolves.

The T-Wolves, in their five years of existence, never came close to becoming a competitive club. Despite that, the team drew over 97 percent of capacity during their tenure in Minneapolis.

So what's the reward for all that fan loyalty? The team announced this week that it's moving to New Orleans. The reason? A failed investment on the part of team owners left them financially strapped, so they unloaded the team to supposedly get some walking-around money.

I'm no great Minnesota backer, but this, quite frankly, stinks. Pro teams make a big to-do about how they wouldn't be anything without their fans, then when a so-so team enjoys great fan support, it thanks them by horsing up the wagons and heading out of town.

I know owners are entitled to make money, but don't the fans count for something?

Apparently not.

Here's a semi-interesting bit of news concerning the state baseball playoffs.

In the Class 4A Region I playoffs, two districts have hogged the spotlight so far. District 3-4A, represented by the Steers and Sweetwater, and District 8-4A, represented by Fort Worth Arlington Heights and Fort Worth Brewer, are the only two leagues still with representatives playing in this region.

What that has to do with anything is open to debate, but at least it could make for some very interesting matchups next week.

For instance, if the Steers beat Arlington Heights, and Sweetwater downs Brewer, 3-4A's two teams would meet for the fourth time this year.

Big Spring downed Sweetwater in a pre-district meeting, but the Mustangs came back and took both games from the Steers during the league schedule to win the district's top seed in the playoffs.

If those two teams were to meet next week, with a trip to the state baseball tournament at stake, it could be a car wreck. The first district game between the two featured three player ejections, while the fighting moved to the stands the second time the teams met.

Who knows what would happen if the Steers and Mustangs meet again, with so much at stake?

The next time you think it can't get worse, try to imagine Darryl Strawberry as your career counselor.

Things could be worse.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Rooster raises Cain without raising his head

DEAR ABBY: While rummaging through some old papers, I found a Dear Abby column about crowing roosters that I clipped, intending to respond. Here it is, finally. The writer claimed that if a rooster can't raise his head and stretch his neck, he cannot crow. On our small island, we kept roosters and chickens in the back yard of our parsonage. Because of other fowl in the neighborhood, crowing was no problem. After my husband died, my son and I moved to an apartment with two chickens and a rooster. In our more closed environment, the rooster became a problem, so at dusk, we put the rooster in a box and placed it in the closet. Promptly at 3 a.m., the rooster crowed! Naively thinking, as your reader did, that a rooster needs to raise his head and stretch his neck in order to crow, we modified the box so the rooster could not stretch his neck. You guessed it! The next morning, the rooster crowed at 3 a.m. in the very low cardboard box in a dark closet. We finally gave the rooster away, and we still do not know what can keep a rooster from crowing. Abby, does anybody really know? -- AUWINA S. WEED, KEY WEST, FLA.

one too, so she ordered the identical desk. I was quite annoyed, but I didn't say anything. A few days later, the subject of the desk came up, and I calmly told her I was rather upset because she had ordered a desk exactly like mine! She became defensive and told me that I was being childish, since we live in different towns and have a different circle of friends. Abby, please don't tell me that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. -- MIFFED IN YPSILANTI, MICH. DEAR MIFFED: Why are you "miffed"? Your sister lives in a different town -- and even if she lived in the same town, why should her having a desk like yours minimize your pleasure in owning a handsome desk? I am reminded of a letter I received from a woman who came to church on Easter Sunday and encountered not one, but two women wearing hats exactly like hers! One woman's nose was completely out of joint; she gasped and marched out of the church without looking left or right. The other women broke up laughing. DEAR ABBY: Your rules for visiting patients in a hospital were indeed timely. Our minister discussed it in his Sunday sermon, and among other comments, she said: "When you go into a patient's room, never sit down. Stand, and when you find yourself shifting from one foot to another --leave!" -- HAL WALLIS, DALLAS Good advice for everyone -- teens to seniors -- is in "The Anger in All of Us and How to Deal With It." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Anger Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447.
