Academy experiment successful

First academy class graduates Thursday

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

There is still one more graduation left. The first Big Spring Citizens Police Academy graduation is Thursday evening. Over the past 11 weeks, nine residents have been learning about the police department's inner-workings and the response to the program has been positive. "I think it has gone very well and we are very happy with the comments we have gotten from the members," said Lt. Pam Jordan, CPA coordinator. Both residents and officers who have heard positive comments about the academy are ready for the next one to begin in September. "By word of mouth, I've had several phone calls from people wanting to know how they can sign up for the next academy. Officers who didn't get to help out this time are telling me that they want to teach at the next one," said Jordan. The second academy is tentatively planned to begin the latter part of September. "We are looking at how many we can have the next time around. We are limited in space here at the department and can't hold more than 10 in the classroom. We might move it to our training center at the airpark but no definite plans have been made. We have had to scrape here and there to fund this academy and will have to for the next one. I have put in a budget request so that the funds don't come out of our existing budget. I don't know yet if that will be approved and if so, it won't go into affect until October," Jordan added. Last week, members were asked to give their opinions about the academy through a survey. Jordan said that the next academy will devote more time on how officers are trained in dealing with minority and civil rights issues. In August, Jordan and several other officers will be going to a citizens police academy school to learn more about the class. "We will be discussing and learning about how to recruit members, budgeting and ways to form an alumni association," Jordan said. "Before we began in March, I expected it to go pretty well. But, I am stunned at how much better things have turned out and the response I've gotten. We can always improve and this can go on to be something that will be really beneficial to Big Spring," Jordan commented.

Firefighters work around a minivan involved in a wreck at the intersection of Birdwell and FM 700. Three people were transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center, where two remain in good condition.

Accident victims in good condition

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

An accident at the intersection of FM 700 and Birdwell Tuesday morning sent three people to Scenic Mountain Medical Center. According to reports, Jesse Rovece Hart, 73 of Mansfield, was traveling eastbound on FM 700 and had the green light to proceed through the intersection. Deina Biggs Harvell, 63 of Route 1 Box 664, was westbound on FM 700 and attempting to make a left hand turn onto Birdwell. Hart struck Harvell's Nissan minivan on the right side. Harvell was cited for failure to yield the right-of-way while making a left turn. Hart, Harvell and Hart's passenger, Etta McCarty of Fort Worth, were all transported by ambulance to the hospital. Harvell was treated and released. Hospital records say that Hart and McCarty are listed in good condition.

Unique reunion gears up for another round

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

Tommy Hart, left, and Mack Underwood are working on pulling off the Cannibal Draw Reunion June 11 at La Posada. This year will make 17 reunions for the group.

Do you ever wonder what happened to old friends from your childhood days, pondering what changes have come to your soulmates of the past? You know, the good ol' boys from the old neighborhood. What ever happened to John? To Mary? To Manhattan the Mule? Manhattan the who? Well, if you truly want to know, the place to be is the 17th Annual Cannibal Draw Reunion scheduled for June 11 at La Posada Restaurant. The fun begins with a friendly get together at 5:30, but organizer Mack Underwood says he "needs to know now who plans to attend." The reunion is unique to Big Spring residents, and brings with it a touch of what every modern day citizen seems to seek - nostalgia. It is a designated day for bringing together former and current Big Spring residents to "swap yarns" and "tell tales." These former Big Springers now come from as far away as California and colorful characters claiming Cannibal Draw membership span the state. To be an eligible member of "The Draw," a person must have been born, resided in, or played with the "kids" of "Old East Side" before 1930 - a somewhat ambiguous area that cuts off somewhere near Johnson Street. "We're kind of unusual," says Underwood. "Since everyone who will be there ranges in age from 64 - 99." Widows and widowers of members are eligible and urged to attend. Guests are welcome, he adds. The idea for the gathering came to Underwood in the middle of the night just over 17 years ago. "I woke up in the middle of the night and it came to me," he said. "I got so excited about the idea that I couldn't get back to sleep." Even the name has a truly unusual "flavor." Known as "The Old East Side, Cottonwood Park, and Cannibal Draw," Underwood explains his choice for the reunion's identity. "When we were growing up, all of us kids came from poor families," Underwood explains. "Some were just poorer than others. All of our parents worked and that left us kids free to run and play. We used to run back and forth across the railroad tracks. Well, our parents would worry about us, especially after it rained since there were no viaducts back then and the water stayed in huge pools. In order to make sure we would stay away from the water, our parents made up a story. They told us not to go near the water because cannibals lived there and those cannibals loved to eat kids." Please see REUNION, page 2

Subbaraman ready to spell 'winner' at national bee

ERIC C. WEBB
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Ramnath Subbaraman of Big Spring predicted his throat might get a little dry, but said he didn't think he'd choke under pressure.

SUBBARAMAN

"I just get thirsty when I get nervous," Ramnath said. "I don't look nervous. When I get a hard word, I just spell it so fast. I guess I'm hoping they won't hear a missed letter or something and I can get passed." Ramnath and the other competitors, who were able to shake nervous jitters early on, earned a chance to compete on the national level after winning local and regional bees in 48 states, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands and the District of Columbia. Germany, Mexico and Saudi Arabia are also each sending a champion. Spelling bee action began this morning with veteran pronouncer Alex J. Cameron giving 13-year-old George Basos of Tioga Center, N.Y., the competition's first word. Cameron, an associate professor of English at the University of Dayton, will be making his 14th appearance as pronouncer. Ramnath was scheduled to spell 14th in the competition.

Words from rounds one and two were taken from lists the spellers studied in advance while round three was the first of the grueling "dictionary rounds," in which words are randomly chosen from Webster's Third New International Dictionary and its addenda. Ramnath, who said he has been studying the dictionary and any word lists he can get his hands on, wasn't bothered by the pressure - at first. "The major question people have asked was 'are you nervous?' and I wasn't until everyone asked me that 100 times and told me all the people who would be watching," he said with a laugh. "I'm going to have to do good or I'll never hear the end of it," he said. This year, 10- to 14-year old spellers. Please see BEE, page 2

Stroke ruled out in truckers' death

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Preliminary autopsy results are back on a Nebraska man who was driving an 18-wheeler that plunged down an embankment at the intersection of Interstate 20 and FM 700 last Thursday. "I have the preliminary report back. He did not have a heart attack or stroke. There is no indication of a medical problem. I will be getting the complete report back in a week or two," said Justice of the Peace China Long. Please see STROKE, page 2

Money laundering case goes to jury

Mystery 'cowboy' is focal point

The Associated Press

BROWNSVILLE — A mystery man in cowboy clothes is the focus of a $30 million money laundering case now before a jury.

An issue is whether two bankers for an American Express Co. subsidiary intentionally helped "clean" millions of dollars in tainted money by running it through elaborate international transactions.

The jury deliberated for three hours Tuesday over a 73-page indictment charging Antonio Giraldi and Lourdes Reategui with conspiracy, money laundering, bank fraud and misapplication of bank funds.

In closing arguments Tuesday, prosecutors portrayed Giraldi and Reategui as willing participants in a scheme to launder illegal money.

But defense attorneys said their clients were tricked by Ricardo Aguirre Villagomez, a Mexican gas station manager who funneled millions of dollars through a series of accounts set up by Giraldi and Ms. Reategui.

The government identifies Aguirre, nicknamed "Kenny Rogers" or "The Cowboy" for his western attire and resemblance to the country music singer, as a key money launderer for Juan Garcia Abrego, the reputed head of a drug organization who is wanted in both Mexico and the United States.

"When do you do business with a $30 million guy at a gas station?"

Assistant U.S. Attorney David Novak asked the jury in closing arguments.

"They introduced $30 million in drug money into our system. Money means power," Novak said. "The people who make decisions in our society have the purse strings."

The three-week trial, closely watched by international bankers, focused on how carefully private bankers should scrutinize the legitimacy of their clients' money.

The verdict also may influence whether the government can seize about $19 million in assets that otherwise would pay off loans due to American Express Bank International, a subsidiary of the New York-based financial services giant.

Abrego's gang, based in northeastern Mexico, imports hundreds of tons of cocaine into the United States each year, generating more than $20 billion in sales, according to testimony from U.S. Customs Service agents.

The defense said Aguirre was a "master of lies and deceit" who duped Giraldi and Ms. Reategui into believing that he earned his money from cattle ranches and other businesses.

"Aguirre lied, deceived, manipulated, fooled and tricked almost everyone he met," said Christopher Milner, representing Giraldi.

Reunion

Underwood says over the years, because of that very tall tale, the East Side became known as Cannibal Draw. And every year, on the second Saturday in June, as many members of the old gang that are able, get together to reminisce.

Even those who can't make it to the reunion find themselves caught by the past, pausing for just a moment, to remember.

Rep. Jake Pickle sent his regrets due to previous congressional commitments, but seasoned the note with his sprinkling of the past. He remembered "picnicking and playing baseball next to Mr. Parrish's apple trees" and claimed them to be too much of a temptation to little boys.

Big Spring resident, Tommy Hart, is one of the "guys" who plans his attendance at the event every year. "I go because I get to see people I haven't seen in a while and mostly because I just can't say no," jokes Hart. "It helps, bring back memories."

The memories, bittersweet nostalgia of days gone, by also bring some poignant moments. "We lose five to seven members every year by death," Hart says seriously. "But it's gone on a lot longer now than anyone thought it would in the beginning," adds Underwood.

As for Manhattan the Mule? It's one of those tales certain to be told when the old gang gets together.

Teen awaiting trail in baby's death

The Associated Press

HARLINGEN — A 16-year-old accused of killing her newborn baby girl must stay in a Cameron County juvenile facility in Brownsville for another day, a judge ruled Tuesday.

District Judge Darrell Hester issued the order at a detention hearing after Cameron County Assistant District Attorney Barbara Barrera said Harlingen police still were taking statements from witnesses.

The hearing was held to determine whether the teen-age girl should be released to her parents pending her trial.

Don Froien, 66 of Omaha, was traveling westbound on the interstate when his vehicle left the roadway, went down the embankment and came to rest between the support beams on FM 700.

Witnesses of the accident told DPS officers that there did not appear to be any mechanical failure, no tires blew out and no evasive action was taken by the driver. Froien was not wearing a seat belt. He was transported to Scenic Mountain Medical Center that morning and Long pronounced him dead at 12:11 p.m.

The investigation into the accident continues.

Green tea is good for the esophagus

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Green tea, that beverage of choice for millions of Asians, may help protect regular drinkers against cancer of the esophagus, a study concludes.

Following up on findings that green tea reduced the incidence of esophageal cancer in animals, researchers studied the records of 902 victims of the disease and of 1,552 healthy people in Shanghai. They concluded what worked on mice and rats apparently works on humans, too.

"Chinese men and women who drink green tea have a reduced risk of esophageal cancer of up to 60 percent," said the National Cancer Institute, which reports the study in the June 1 edition of its journal.

"This is the first study to show that association, that protective effect," said Joseph K. McLaughlin, the lead researcher from the institute.

"The finding in humans that we observed in Shanghai confirms the animal findings, so it's not exactly a shot out of the blue," McLaughlin said.

Eighty percent of tea consumed in the United States and other Western countries is black. The other 20 percent is green tea, consumed mainly in Asian countries.

McLaughlin, one of six researchers from NCI and the Shanghai Cancer Institute, said the difference seems to rest with polyphenols — compounds found in green tea. Polyphenols have been shown in animals to lower cholesterol and protect against cancer by halting enzymes that produce cancer-causing substances.

Army among 8 held responsible for superfund cleanup

Brewster jail closed for investigation

ODESSA (AP) — State officials have temporarily closed the Brewster County Jail and moved the prisoners because an investigation revealed that they "pretty much had the run of the jail," a prosecutor says.

All 24 prisoners at the facility in Alpine have been moved to the Fort Stockton Detention Center, District Attorney Alberto Valadez said Tuesday.

An investigation revealed widespread drug use and a situation in which prisoners had unlimited access to jail evidence lockers and other off-limits areas, he said.

The investigation was launched by Valadez following an April 25 escape during which an inmate walked out of the jail through an unlocked gate, assaulted his girlfriend in Alpine and returned to the jail undetected.

King Fahd can't be a defendant

HOUSTON (AP) — Since he's a head of state, King Fahd of Saudi Arabia won't be a defendant in a lawsuit alleging members of the royal family enslaved two domestic servants at a Houston hotel, a judge has ruled.

U.S. District Judge Lynn N. Hughes dismissed Fahd from the lawsuit Tuesday after the U.S. State Department said foreign heads of state are immune from such a civil action.

Jerry Payne, the Houston lawyer representing the servants, didn't object to the State Department's intervention.

The State Department didn't challenge the fact that the government of Saudi Arabia is named as a defendant.

65-year-old wins Lotto jackpot

AUSTIN (AP) — Rachel and Luke Morgan of Seymour, who have been married for 47 years, say they don't expect much to change after winning a $16.6 million Texas Lotto jackpot.

"We're just going to live moderately like we've always lived. Only we're going to live just a little better," Luke Morgan said Tuesday.

Mrs. Morgan agreed. "I don't want anything extravagant. Just something comfortable. I'm not going to be something I'm not because this is all I know how to be."

Mrs. Morgan, accompanied by her husband and several family members, picked up the first of 20 annual payments for winning Saturday's game. The checks are worth more than $830,000 each.

Spanish lessons now offered by businesses

DALLAS (AP) — As business between the United States and Mexico develops under the North American Free Trade Agreement, several Texans are heading back to school.

"There's a great deal of interest in Dallas in doing business with Mexico," Ms. Walsh said.

The Associated Press

AMARILLO — The U.S. Army is among eight parties potentially responsible for cleaning up mounds of metal-laden slag at the American Zinc site, according to a Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission report.

Each of the eight groups has used the 320-acre site near Dumas for various reasons. The parties will be asked to sign an order requiring a study to determine whether the site needs a cleanup that could cost more than $20 million, said Robert Moseley, a project engineer with TNRCC.

The commission has not done enough sampling to determine if the waste from former zinc smelting operations at the site is contaminating the nearby South Palo Duro Canyon Creek or is being emitted into the air, Moseley said.

If the federal Superfund program pays for the cleanup, the responsible parties can be charged up to three times the actual costs, Moseley said.

"It's a little incentive for them to go ahead and do it," he said.

The parties have 30 days to respond. Several of the eight companies have changed hands, leaving a question of who is responsible.

"I guess we will have to get together and make a good-faith offer," said Clarence Getman of Dumas, owner of Volcanic Stone Co.

Teen curfew passes its first challenge

The Associated Press

DALLAS — The U.S. Supreme Court has rejected a challenge to the Dallas teen curfew, but a parent who sued claiming the ordinance was unconstitutional said the exercise was not in vain.

"The Dallas curfew was substantially revised," said Betsy Quth, one of the parents who filed the lawsuit. It contended the curfew violated their children's freedom of speech and association and the parents' right to raise their families as they see fit.

"In that sense, I feel we made it a lot more reasonable than it would have been as they originally proposed it," Ms. Quth said.

The Dallas City Council adopted the measure in 1991 and amended it the next year. A federal judge barred the city from enforcing it in 1992, but the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that ruling last November.

On Tuesday, the nation's high court, without comment, let stand a ruling that said the curfew properly is aimed at "protecting juveniles from crimes on the streets."

Joe Cook, director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Texas Northern Region, said the organization plans to continue challenging the curfew and will consider reopening a federal case in Dallas.

The curfew, which includes numerous exceptions, prohibits anyone under 17 from being in public places after 11 p.m. on weeknights and midnight on weekends. It extends to 6 a.m.

Dallas police began enforcing the ordinance May 1. Curfew violators can be given an oral warning, a ride home or up to a $500 fine. They also can be taken into custody.

Dallas police statistics show no one has been arrested, while officers have issued 155 citations, taken home 71 youths and given numerous warnings through Sunday. Four of the citations have been issued to parents or guardians, police said.

"As expected, we already are seeing a great deal of voluntary compliance," Dallas Police Chief Ben Click said in a statement.

Other cities had been waiting for the Supreme Court ruling before deciding whether to implement a curfew as a way to curtail rising crime rates.

Medicaid cost for Texas poor skyrocketing

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — The explosive increase in the cost of providing health care to Texas' poorest people would only get worse if they were cut from Medicaid, officials say.

The Senate Committee on Health and Human Services met Tuesday to look at ways to reduce spending in the Texas Medicaid program.

Medicaid is the federal and state program that provides health care to the poor. The federal government provides 64 percent of the funding; the state provides 36 percent.

From 1990-95, Texas Medicaid spending per year is expected to nearly triple, from $3.3 billion to $9.6 billion.

In 1993, 2.3 million Texans received health care through Medicaid. Of that number, 56 percent, or about 1.3 million, were children.

But reducing the number of those receiving assistance through Medicaid would not reduce the cost of providing health care, said DeeAnn Friedholm, the state's Despite being uninsured, they still would seek medical care, but this time at expensive hospital emergency rooms, she said. The difference in cost is dramatic, and would be picked up through public hospital tax dollars and higher private insurance costs.

Ms. Friedholm also said many doctors refuse to take Medicaid patients.

"It is the major problem that we have in Medicaid," Ms. Friedholm said. "They go to the emergency room of a hospital and then we pay a lot more money."

Public hearings on day care coming to close

The Associated Press

DALLAS — The Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services is close to wrapping up public hearings on proposed new child care standards.

Although comment still will be accepted on a toll-free telephone hotline through July 6, the agency's traveling gatherings conclude Wednesday in Dallas. One was scheduled Tuesday in Lubbock.

Some people fear the new proposals could make licensed care too expensive for some parents. Others argue that without them, children in group care could suffer lifelong effects from a lack of attention and nurturing.

Change proponents point to studies of day care standards that put Texas among the bottom dozen states.

They also note recent research showing that the overall lack of quality in the U.S. child care may be stunting children's intellectual potential.

The current debate centers on a proposal to revise child staff ratios, increase training requirements and forbid spanking.

The department's board approved the plan by a 3-2 vote in March, with a final vote expected in the fall.

One of the opponents was Bill Sheehan, who voted to keep the current state standards.

"I just didn't want to force one child out of licensed child care because their parents couldn't afford to keep them there," said Sheehan, who visited a range of 24 child care centers.

Understanding makes things work easier

Big Spring Citizens Police Academy is a good idea that is working here. Nine citizens will be graduating Thursday from the first academy with a deeper understanding of a police officer's life. And, more people are asking to become a part of the academy both as students and as instructors. This understanding can only benefit everyone. Something has happened over the years, the police officer has ceased to be our friend and has become our enemy. It shouldn't be that way. Officers are there to "serve and protect" but they can only do that if we let them. Yes, there have been abuses which cannot be allowed to continue in any police department. But, as understanding grows between those who choose to work as police officers and the public, these abuses can be eliminated much easier. Understanding. That's the key that makes any project work. And, it is something we all need to display, whether it is for the police or for our fellow human beings.

Over the years, much has been made of the administrative and legal skills of the thousands of Palestinians spread to the four winds in that community's own global diaspora. And so it is: Veritable colonies of creative individuals have made their marks in commerce and government affairs from Beirut to Paris to Houston. Creation of a Palestinian area of self-government in the West Bank town of Jericho and the Gaza Strip would seem to offer an opportunity for some of these talented expatriates to return to help their own people on their own soil. The transition from a rather tricky one for Yasser Arafat and those (in the PLO) around him. History is replete with examples of charismatic leaders who succeeded in inspiring their countrymen through years of hardship but, having done so, could not manage the grind of daily governance. A different kind of leadership ... will have to reveal itself.

Chicago Tribune

To those who clearly remember the optimistic, energizing advent of the Kennedy presidency, those who were among that new generation of Americans challenged to national pride and duty, the death of Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy Onassis was the closing of the final chapter, the end of what more than three decades ago was known as Camelot. When it ended so horribly in Dallas in 1963, the fascination (with her) turned to a deep and abiding admiration for the young, black-veiled widow who carried on with stoic courage. For all of her days afterward — in burden and tribute — she was the symbol of those best of times and worst of times, the like to glory and sorrow and the sense of something precious lost. Her passing was a last recollection that there once was a brief, shining moment.

Los Angeles Times

The media have made much of today's young adults, the so-called Generation X, as "slackers" who are unable to find a niche in society, trapped by a dark vision of the future into a sense of hopelessness, and forced by a changing economy into meaningless, low-paying jobs. In his speech marking the 75th anniversary of UCLA, President Clinton asked the generation ... to reject these labels. "What I have seen today is not a generation of slackers but a generation of seekers, and I am much encouraged." For example, a study ... shows that 61 percent of Americans aged 12 to 17 do some form of unpaid volunteer work, an average of 3.2 hours of it a week.

Hot stuff

Indian reservations are supposed to be theirs. We gave most tribes the cummiest wasteland we had, but it is supposed to be theirs to do with as they choose. It's not.

The Mescalero Apache want to invite nuclear storage on tribal land in New Mexico. They need the income it would produce to become more nearly self-sustaining. But the governor of New Mexico says they can't do it!

It's a shame that the age of the atom dawned with those hideous bomb bursts over Hiroshima and Nagasaki. If we had first been introduced to electricity by way of the electric chair, we'd still be afraid to plug a lamp in a socket.

Like fire, the unharnessed atom is a bad master but a good servant. One in three Americans entering a hospital receives a procedure involving radiation, most of which are potentially lifesaving procedures.

Eighty percent of all new drugs are tested for safety and effectiveness using radioactive materials. Hundreds of products we use daily — smoke detectors, bandages, cosmetics and gauges that make highways and buildings and aircraft safer — are produced using radioactive materials.

Radioactive materials are hot stuff, generating 4 million jobs, $45 billion in taxes and $257 billion in merchandise sales. Now ...

Use of all this radioactive material also produces tons of low-level radioactive waste. Americans want the benefits, but they don't want the waste.

Dr. Conrad Nagle, chairman of Organizations United for Responsible Low-Level Radioactive Waste Solutions, says, "We risk sacrificing all the benefits of nuclear applications in business, industry and medicine if we delay building new disposal facilities."

Here's the situation synopsized. Presently, 109 nuclear energy plants generate 20 percent of our nation's electricity. They "burn" uranium as a fuel.

When the fuel is "burned up" or, more accurately, when it is "spent" and no longer hot enough to be useful, it's still warm enough to be a health hazard, so it has to be stored in some safe place.

A typical nuclear energy plant produces about 20 tons of "spent" fuel each year. It has been safely stored in large, water-filled pools at plant sites for more than 35 years, but this was always intended to be temporary storage.

Beginning in 1998, the United States government has responsibility for moving spent nuclear fuel off plant sites and storing it elsewhere. By that date, 23 plant sites will have run out of storage space; by the year 2010, 73 plants will have exhausted their storage capacity.

If the Mescalero Apache are allowed to store spent fuel in their isolated Yucca Mountain region, it would mean for that tribe 2,800 jobs and $116 million a year in wages. No other nation on Earth is fettering its nuclear industry with strangulation legislation.

Presently, our Department of Energy, under enlightened leadership, is seeking to streamline procedures for the licensing, construction and administration of the nuclear facilities we must have to remain competitive with less paranoid nations.

If American Indian tribes can share in the benefits, however indirectly, let's let them. (c) 1994 Creators Syndicate Inc.

We tried our very best

Bob Greene

"I was a Naval officer in 1941, and the minute FDR proclaimed the U.S. to be in a state of war the whole country came together. The unity was a key word to characterize us, along with a determination to prevail and a pride in being part of a great and worthy effort. It didn't matter where you took part, whether on land or sea, in the air or in the factories and the shipyards at home. Even the ladies knitting caps and mittens for the guys on the North Atlantic convoys were doing their bit. "And when you came home you were warmly received by everyone on the streets of your city, where you never had to look back over your shoulder or hesitate to take your date for a carriage ride in the park. The country was like that for a few years after the war, and then everything started going down. I often feel like a stranger in our country today, and can only hope that some other guys will some day know the kind of country we had."

Those words -- they are from Herbert L. Gutterson of Nantucket Island, Mass. -- were among many that have been sent to us in response to a recent column here about the World War II generation as it leaves this earth -- as its members die. The column spoke of the world that the men and women of the World War II generation are leaving behind. That's what, in their letters, they wanted to speak about. Today we listen. Al P. Dacey, Staten Island, N.Y. -- "The members of my shrinking platoon, the World War II generation, are leaving one by one. We know it's the end of an era. Most of us tried to teach the upcoming generation over the years about so many things, how life should be lived. Unfortunately, we don't teach much anymore. We just say thanks -- we tried our best."

E.J. Shaughnessy, Chicago -- "I was one of those 16 million who took up arms. I was also very lucky to safely come home. By winning the war, we thought we were guaranteeing a peaceful world, but today the war zones are the streets of our own cities. My biggest worry is for my grandchildren and their children. History says the pendulum will swing back the other way, but this time it may be a long way off."

H.J. Gescheidler Jr., Hammond, Ind. -- "My wife and I were married in 1944 while I was in the service. We have four children and six grandchildren, who have made us extremely proud. This past month my wife and I celebrated our 50th wedding anniversary. It seems to me that many marriages today don't last 50 days."

"Whether we want to believe it or not, the sand in the hourglass is slowly but surely running down. Frankly, I get visibly emotional when I hear the national anthem. I can't help but think what a truly great country I see slipping away. I would consider myself lucky if I could be spared a few more years and live to see some of the wrongs being corrected." Debra Heiserman, Lake in the Hills, Ill. -- "I am 28; my husband is 34. A 'favorite evening' for us is to have a couple in their 60s or 70s over to visit. We love to hear how they fought for and won 'their world.' Since we hadn't been born yet, we relive those days of safety, decency, tranquility and peace through their stories. They are the last who can tell us, firsthand, what it was like to live in an honest, truthful, 'help your neighbor' society. I will miss my friends."

Mildred Corbin, Galion, Ohio -- "My husband died two years ago. He flew 67 missions in World War II. I sit and look at all the medals and the faded flag, and I hear and see all that is going on around us in this country today. I still cry for him, and for the country for which he fought. May we know peace."

Mrs. J.E. Collins, Columbus, Ohio -- "As one who worked in one of the war plants, and whose husband fought in Europe, I'm wondering what we did wrong to result in the world we have now."

Robert T. Rasmussen, Dix Hills, N.Y. -- "We took the risk as a way of life. After the war, many of us went on and got an education under the GI Bill. There was a time it seemed most leadership positions in this country were held by men who got some or all of their education under the Bill."

"Our generation is dwindling in number -- at age 68, I'm one of the 'babies' of the lot. I don't know what it will take to salvage this great country. Most of what is wrong stems from drugs and crime by men under age 25. We didn't have time in our young years to even think about such lawlessness. We had an awfully big job on our hands." ### IRS memo taxes understanding

Mike Royko

Knowing that I collect classic examples of bureaucratic jargon, an employee of the Internal Revenue Service has sent me a splendid, authentic document. It is a lengthy memo to all IRS workers, jointly prepared by the IRS commissioner and the head of the National Treasury Employees Union. The memo seems to tell everyone how well the IRS and the union have been working together.

Or as the memo puts it: "Subject: IRS/NTEU Total Quality Organization Partnership Agreement -- Second Edition." And it goes on with such choice phrases as: "In January 1993, IRS and NTEU entered into the TQO Partnership Agreement. Again, the motivation for this joint undertaking was a recognized operational need and desire to significantly improve our mission delivery and a belief that the tenets of TQO would advance this goal. The TQO Partnership Agreement also acknowledges that improvement and re-invention of the magnitude called for in the Business Vision require the energy and support of the entire work force."

Got that? If so, let us go on: "Over the past year, much has transpired. We have ... communicated our Business Vision, announcing our organizational configuration, which will impact on how we do business well into the 21st Century. ... Developed a joint Redeployment Understanding which reconfirms our commitment to Policy Statement P-0-112, acknowledging the contribution that each of you can continue to make to the organization; and initiated an investment strategy to increase resources in front line compliance and customer service activities to assist us in reducing the tax gap and improving the level of compliance to 90 percent by the end of the decade."

Ah, yes, the old Business Vision trick. Later, it says: "Our re-invention efforts have received additional support from the administration in the Vice President's National Performance Review (NPR). As with our TQO Partnership, a key component of the NPR is the involvement of employees and their exclusive representatives in the improvement of our governmental systems. President Clinton further emphasized the criticality of employee participation in government re-invention when he signed Executive Order 12871 on October 1, 1993. ...

"At the center of the partnership established by this Executive Order is the National Partnership Council. ... The primary goal of this council is to foster partnerships within federal government. This includes the development of legislative proposals for the President which are endorsed by all members of the council and which substantively change personnel laws and regulations. These proposals will focus on implementing human resource practices which will provide for and encourage an augmented contributory role of federal employees."

Well, is there anyone who isn't for an augmented contributory role? I hope not. And the excitement mounts, as the memo plows forward: "Building on this Executive Order and our IRS/NTEU TQO Partnership Agreement, this memorandum signals the beginning of the next phase of our cooperative effort. Effective immediately through the bodies identified below, NTEU will have involvement in pre-decisional issues that shape our future. "An IRS/NTEU National TQO Partnership Council will meet at least monthly. It will be co-chaired by the National President of NTEU and the modernization executive."

Pre-decisional issues. I might drop that phrase into a lunchtime chat. Now under a full head of steam, the memo says: "At the local level, districts and service centers, both IRS and NTEU leadership will mirror the national configurations when and where appropriate. The objective is upfront involvement as a full partner in how we go about our business."

Sure. If you can't mirror the national configurations, when and where appropriate, why the heck bother going to work? Then comes this bold vow: "To institutionalize these significant adjustments in our organizational commitment to quality, we are issuing the 2nd Edition of the IRS/NTEU TQO Partnership Agreement. It supersedes the January 11, 1993, Agreement and represents a recognition of the evolving and expanding nature of the partnership, reaffirmation of our commitment to the partnership, and further acknowledgment of the partnership's indispensable value to meeting our business objectives."

I hope this gives you a better understanding of why the tax forms and tax regulations can make you cross-eyed. That's the way these people talk to each other too. (C) 1994 By The Chicago Tribune

Grand jury indicts Rostenkowski

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The 17-count indictment against Rep. Dan Rostenkowski portrays a powerful House chairman who persistently pursued opportunities to reward himself, his friends and political associates at taxpayers' expense.

In obtaining the 49-page indictment from a federal grand jury, prosecutors served notice Tuesday they intended to paint a devastating picture of greed and corruption run amok over 20 years.

The Chicago Democrat, who turned down a possible plea bargain after lengthy negotiations, was accused of using elaborate schemes to plunder the U.S. Treasury of nearly $640,000.

Rostenkowski is expected to be arraigned over the next 10 days, although defense motions could delay trial for months, if not years. In theory, conviction on all the charges could mean a 110-year jail term and $365,000 in fines, but it is impossible

Business as usual - Chicago style

White House Communications Director Mark Gearan, asked today if Rostenkowski's troubles would hurt health reform, said on NBC: "Congressman Rostenkowski is entitled to his day in court. What we need to do now is continue the good work he has started."

But Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., conceded on the same program that he was surprised by the scope of the indictment: "It was shocking and very personally painful. I think it hurt the committee and the Congress. We all were very, very surprised."

House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia echoed Rangel, saying: "I think all of us are pretty staggered by the totality of the indictment that is involved here."

to say what the sentence would really be.

The indictment means that Rostenkowski, one of the most powerful and influential members of the House, automatically loses his chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee.

It removes him as a key player in President Clinton's campaign to win passage of health-care reform legislation this year.

There were reports that Rostenkowski was considering replacing his defense attorney, Robert Bennett. Chicago attorney Dan Webb, mentioned in some reports as a possible replacement, said through a secretary that he had not talked with Rostenkowski and did not represent him.

Neither Rostenkowski nor Bennett had any comment on the indictment. Rostenkowski's spokesman, James Jaffe, left a taped message on his office answering machine that said: "We have no statements to issue, we have no schedule, we have no bananas."

The indictment charged that in return for being placed on Rostenkowski's office payroll, friends or relatives took pictures at his daughter's wedding, mowed lawns, remodeled his home or performed other tasks that directly benefited the congressman.

Poll: Clinton's private life is his own business

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — More than 70 percent of Americans say it is none of their business whether President Clinton has been unfaithful in his marriage, according to a new poll.

The survey released Tuesday also found that 62 percent of those questioned said even if they knew for sure that Clinton had been unfaithful, it would not affect their vote if he ran for re-election.

Thirty-five percent said they would be less likely to vote for the president if they knew he had cheated on Hillary Rodham

Clinton. The other 3 percent weren't sure.

But predicting how marital infidelity actually would affect votes in an election is tricky, cautioned David Krane, vice president of Louis Harris and Associates, which conducted the telephone poll.

"Right now 62 percent say it would make no difference, but if this were a major issue in the campaign, I suspect that number would go lower," he said.

The poll of 1,253 adults, done May 23-26, has a margin of error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Chelsea moving up to higher ground

The Associated Press

CHELSEA, Iowa — Hit so hard by last summer's floods that it had to have its meals delivered by boat for 37 days, this no-stoplight town of 330 people is moving to higher ground.

The City Council voted 3-1 Tuesday to accept an offer of nearly $7 million in federal money to move up to 132 houses to vacant land uphill from the flood plain where Chelsea has been for more than 100 years.

They'll be joining Mayor Rodney Horrigan and seven other Chelsea families whose houses, on the high side of Otter Creek, got through the floods just fine.

The town was washed out four times in 1993 and flooded twice in 1991. Every time the creek and the nearby Iowa River overflows, about 85 percent of the houses are swamped. "This needs to be done. The money is here now and we might as well do something about it," said Todd Banes, one of about 60 people who crammed into the fire station for the meeting.

The existing town has only a few side streets, 132 houses and fewer than 20 businesses, including a lumber yard and a farm equipment store.

Most of the residents are farmers or retirees. Some said moving could end their way of life. "As a council, you should be helping everyone in this town whether they want to move or not," Vivian Trogu said. "You're not for Chelsea. You're for yourself. You're up on the hill. You don't give a damn about us."

Others said they were excited that Chelsea will get a fresh start.

Life molecule existing in space

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — An amino acid has been found for the first time in large galactic clouds, proving that one of the molecules important to the formation of life can exist in deep space, researchers say.

Yanli Miao and Yi-Jehng Kuan of the University of Illinois at Urbana reported Tuesday at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society that they detected glycine in clouds of gas and particles near the center of the Milky Way.

Glycine is an important amino acid, playing a role in the formation of many types of protein.

"This supports the concept that life could occur elsewhere in space," Kuan said, though he emphasized that finding the amino acid in no way proves that life exists elsewhere or that glycine from space played a role in Earth's biology.

Welfare to go electronic by 1999

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Al Gore says millions of low-income Americans will receive their monthly benefits through electronic banking, taking the government out of the business of writing welfare checks and printing food stamps by 1999.

Gore wants to expand a system known as Electronic Benefits Transfer, or EBT, from a handful of local experiments into a national network. Using a single card, the system ultimately could deliver $111 billion a year in benefits ranging from welfare to Social Security and military pensions.

EBT already is being used statewide in Maryland and in several cities around the country to deliver welfare benefits and food stamps through automated teller machines and electronic retail terminals.

The primary users of the national EBT network would be food stamp recipients and Americans who receive other public benefits, but who do not have bank accounts and direct deposit.

Helicopters grounded due to staff misuse

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is clamping down on its use of military helicopters after releasing details of 12 trips by Clinton administration officials aboard flashy "white top" aircraft usually reserved for the president.

Trying to douse bad publicity over perquisites and privileges, the White House issued new rules Tuesday that require all staff members, including senior officials, to get permission before hopping a military flight.

Last week a Maryland newspaper published a picture of three White House aides boarding a presidential helicopter at a golf course, toting their clubs and getting a smart salute from a Marine guard.

The man who ordered up the flight, White House administrator David Watkins, finally relented Tuesday and agreed to reimburse the government $13,129.66. "I'm not admitting I did anything wrong," said Watkins, who lost his job over the incident.

NOTED DOCTOR 'PSYCHS' PEOPLE SLIM & SMOKE-FREE

NEW WEIGHT LOSS-STOP SMOKING METHOD HAILED AS BREAKTHROUGH-SUCCESS RATES TOP 95%

BIG SPRING - Betty Powell was an 'expert' on weight loss. "You name it, and I've tried it," she said. "... diets, shots, pills, Nutrisystems, Jenny Craig, Slim Fast, etc. Oh sure, I'd manage to lose a few pounds, but I always regained them, with a few extra to spare. I'd almost given up hope, when some of my friends told me how they each had not only lost weight but kept it off through a group hypnotherapy session conducted by Dr. Kaloski. Three and a half months after attending the seminar I had lost 43 lbs., reaching my goal weight of 115. It's been a year now and I haven't gained back a single pound! Best of all, I did it without dieting."

Frank Lopez was a 3 pack-a-day, 31 year smoker who had tried "the Patch", nicotine gum, white-knuckle willpower and even other hypnosis programs. "Five wall-climbing days was the longest I ever made it", he said. "Dr. Kaloski helped me quit smoking with absolutely no withdrawal. It's been 2 years and I've never felt better."

These people, and thousands more like them, are now being helped through the highly innovative and often remarkably successful techniques pioneered by Dr. B. E. Kaloski, Holder of Doctorate Degrees in both Counseling Psychology and Clinical Hypnotherapy. Kaloski founded the nation's largest chain of private hypnosis clinics, is a Fellow of the National Board for Hypnotic Anesthetics, past president of the American Board of Hypnotherapy and author of "Psych Yourself Slim" and "The No Nonsense Guide to Smoking Cessation." With over 100,000 patient hours in group and private practice, he is one of the nation's most experienced hypnotherapists.

"Success rates have just skyrocketed with this method," said Kaloski, referring to his Multiphasic Motivational Programming, so revolutionary that it is part of the prestigious American Institute of Hypnotherapy's training program for Doctoral degree students. "All habits are the result of both conscious and subconscious processing. Both are equally vital and important and each must be addressed. MMP is the only program that has been designed to provide dynamic intervention on both levels. Results may at times seem truly miraculous but these techniques are based on sound, proven, time-tested principles."

"Contrary to popular belief, everyone can be hypnotized. A hypnotized person is not asleep; they're just fully relaxed, intensely focused, aware and always in control."

According to Dr. A.M. Krasner, noted author, educator and researcher in hypnosis, Kaloski's made a major breakthrough in weight and smoking control. "By merging hypnosis with other therapeutic techniques, he's created a unique and innovative program that, more than anyone's, produces remarkable results. I highly recommend his method. Willpower means you have to deprive yourself of something you want. With my method, willpower is unnecessary since you can't feel deprived of something you don't want. We redirect a person's priorities so that the desire for the fattening foods or cigarettes is replaced by a stronger desire for a slim, trim figure, vibrant health, longevity and abundant vitality. After our seminar a person eats less because they actually want less. They don't smoke because they actually don't want a cigarette. That's important."

"Second, they concentrate on changing the action but not the attitude... a big mistake. Before the weight can come off and stay off the body, it must come off from between the ears. The same principle applies to smoking. The only way to permanently lose weight or stop smoking is to change one's attitude toward food and cigarettes. That's exactly what this program accomplishes."

"Third, they often find a great void in their life without the food or cigarettes that have been their friends for years. This often causes a relapse. I've solved that problem by programming everyone, while in hypnosis, with three positive replacements to fill that void. Smokers also benefit by not gaining weight after quitting."

"The first hour is the same for everyone. That's when we lay the crucial groundwork for success. After a short break, I conduct the weight loss session, which takes about 30 minutes - sending the smokers off to puff to their heart's content since it'll be the last cigarettes they'll ever have. I then conduct the stop smoking session."

At his seminar, he also shows people how to improve other areas of their life as well, such as exercise motivation, stress, memory & concentration, self-esteem & confidence, financial success, procrastination, alcohol, insomnia, pain relief, depression, fears & phobias, to name a few.

Dr. Bruce E. Kaloski backs his seminars with a lifetime guarantee

"I feel strongly committed to those who take my programs and back them with a lifetime guarantee-free attendance at future seminars." "While my private session fee is $295, I can offer these seminars for just $39.95 for either program or $59.95 for both, thus putting them within the reach of almost everyone. I also offer a discount for groups of 3 or more." Dr. Kaloski will personally conduct his highly acclaimed seminar in Big Spring on Thursday, June 2 at the Best Western Big Spring at Highway 87 & I-20 (exit 177) starting at 7:30 pm. Registration is at the door beginning at 7:00 pm. Cash, Check, MC/VISA are accepted. (915) 267-6361

Coahoma kids jump for heart

Keep low-fat snacks with good keeping qualities handy for car trips or hikes this season. A trail mix made with whole-grain cereal, dry-roasted unsalted nuts or seeds, pretzels, raisins, dried apricots and bananas will keep well in a tote or backpack.

They're back — kiwanos, the space aliens of the fresh-fruit section. Wouldn't you know something this weird would be from Down Under, home to the blue pumpkin and duck-billed platypus?

The name kiwano was trademarked by a grower in New Zealand, where they originate from March through July. California-grown horned melons will show up from July to December.

Kiwanos are colorful — yellow and gold on the outside, emerald green on the inside. Parrot plumage should be so bold.

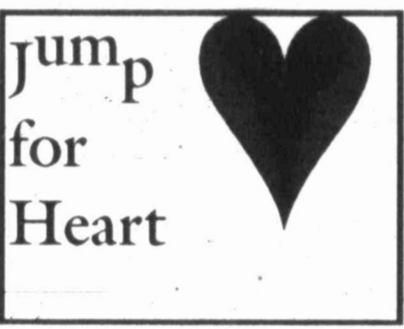

If you want to make individual fruit baskets, this may be just the conversation piece you're looking for. The oval fruits are about the right size to "halve-and-hold" a serving of fruit salad. Slice each kiwano end-to-end horizontally to make two spectacular spiked fruit baskets. For the dressing, use the green kiwano flesh, which is gel-like and filled with edible seeds resembling those of a cucumber.

Coahoma Elementary School students jumped at the chance to jump rope for healthy hearts.

Most area schools participated in the American Heart Association's Jump for Heart program. However, Coahoma Elementary raised the most money—$3,500—of any participating Howard County school this year.

According to AHA board member Diane Linhart, the money raised by Jump for Heart will benefit the AHA's research and education programs to prevent heart disease and related illnesses such as strokes.

The school received a plaque to commend students' efforts in the Jump for Heart program. In addition, student Kendra Brownfield, who raised $102, received a medal for raising the most money of all participating students at the school.

American Heart Association board member Diane Linhart and Coahoma Elementary School teacher Debbie Churchwell show off a plaque given to the school by the AHA. Coahoma Elementary raised $3,500 in the Jump for Heart program—more than any other school in Howard County.

Wheelchairs and glamour Disabled models part of today's advertising

Fashion models Cheryl Endicott, center, and Donna Wilson listen to instructions being given by photographer Laurent Torno for an advertising photo for Venture at the company's facility in O'Fallon, Mo. last month. Endicott is among the growing number of people with disabilities who model for advertisements.

The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS—Fashion model Cheryl Endicott takes one last look in the mirror at her outfit — cream-colored denim shorts and a short-sleeved blue shirt — and smiles to make sure there's no lipstick on her teeth.

Pleased, she maneuvers her wheelchair outside the Venture Stores Inc. studio where a photographer is waiting.

"We're selling shirts today, so you need to sit up tall," the stylist reminds Endicott as the camera clicks away.

Endicott is one of a growing number of people with disabilities who now model in advertisements for companies such as Venture, McDonald's Corp., Nike Inc. and Anheuser-Busch Cos.

"I think I'm pretty. And I think because I'm pretty and in a wheelchair — that makes me marketable," said the 30-year-old St. Louis native who recently signed with the Delcia Agency.

A few years ago, there were no pictures of paraplegics or children

"Because I'm pretty and in a wheelchair — that makes me marketable."

with Down syndrome on the walls of modeling agencies.

Sandra Gordon, a senior vice president of the National Easter Seal Society, the biggest group serving the disabled, recalled her first efforts to get companies to use people with disabilities in their ads.

"I was told it was a disgusting idea, and that it would turn people off," Gordon said. "They actually thought people wouldn't buy a product for fear they'd end up the same way."

Things changed after Congress passed the Americans with Disabilities Act in 1990. In addition to legislating hefty penalties for discrimination and requiring easy access to public buildings, the law required a more accurate census of people with disabilities.

The figure came to 43 million. Companies also learned the disabled have a total income of close to $700 billion.

"They saw it was a huge market," Gordon said.

With no fanfare, Target used a disabled child in a Sunday circular. Spokeswoman Carolyn Brookter said there was no high-level strategy behind the decision.

"It was part of a brainstorming session in advertising, and one of the art directors said, 'We show people of different races and different ages. Why not show someone with a disability?'" Brookter recalled.

Target received hundreds of letters praising the move.

Now dozens of big companies around the country are hiring disabled people to model.

Susie Stufflebam, a 6-year-old with Down syndrome who has appeared in two Venture ads, tells people in her St. Charles neighborhood, "I'm a star."

A fourth-grader from her church asked to take her picture to school for show and tell. "He wanted to tell everybody he knew somebody famous," Susie's mother, Dee Stufflebam, said with a laugh.

William Franklin Graham III, right, welcomes his famous father, the Rev. Billy Graham, during an evangelical crusade in Charleston, W.Va., in April. The younger Graham took to the pulpit just five years ago.

Graham's son steps out of dad's shadow

The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W.Va. — It's a preacher's private prayer: To save souls and speak with the soothing voice of authority like the Rev. Billy Graham, and even strike the unforgettable pose of a young Graham during his tent-revival days.

But William Franklin Graham III is set on spreading the Gospel his own way now, even though some say he will take over his father's evangelical empire one day.

"I've never tried to preach like my father. People say sometimes my mannerisms are like him. Maybe it's genes or his blood," Franklin said.

"I've got my own work and I've never wanted to hang on his coattails. I don't work for him and don't take a paycheck from him. I think that gives us a unique relationship," Franklin said.

"He's so far beyond me," Billy Graham said recently. "I'm just an ordinary country preacher."

Early on, being the quintessential preacher's son drove Franklin to be different. He was a rebel in his youth near Asheville, N.C., given to smoking and drinking.

Franklin has tried to keep some distance from his father even after being born again nearly 20 years ago.

Franklin spends nearly all of his professional time leading Samaritan's Purse and its medical arm, World Medical Mission, based in Boone, N.C.

With a $17 million annual budget, the organizations try to spread the Gospel by helping people in areas ravaged by war and famine.

Franklin, 41, has inched closer to his father, 75, over the years.

He is the only family member on the executive board of the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, a $100 million-a-year enterprise.

And Franklin has begun preaching. He first took to the pulpit just five years ago, and spends about 35 days a year leading evangelical crusades, mostly in small- and medium-sized cities.

Franklin's success from the pulpit has many convinced he might one day replace his father.

"I've had enormous enthusiasm since the first night Franklin began preaching actual crusades," said the Rev. John Wesley White, a well-known Canadian evangelist and close friend of father and son.

"I think the same mantle of blessing rests on Franklin as rested on Billy," White said.

But there are differences.

While his father has filled big-city football stadiums, Franklin couldn't fill a 14,000-seat arena in Charleston recently, even with advance word his father would attend.

Franklin has been criticized within the evangelical community. Samaritan's Purse was suspended temporarily in 1992 from the Evangelical Council for Financial Accountability, a watchdog group founded by Billy Graham.

"The issue was a concern over the possibility of incomplete board oversight of the organization," said council Chairman Tom McCabe. Samaritan's Purse is now in good standing, McCabe said.

'94 recruits have Chadwick smiling

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

When a good college basketball team has a run of superb seasons, some people start saying the team doesn't rebuild, it reloads.

The Howard College Lady Hawks may be in that situation.

Howard won the Western Junior College Athletic Conference and Region V championships for the second straight season in 1993-94, and it finished sixth at the national tournament in Tyler. Lost from last year's team are graduated sophomores Annette Robinson (who signed with New Mexico State), Angel Spinks (Texas A&M), Becky Barnes (West Texas A&M) and Patrice Conwright (West Virginia), but the summer still brings smiles for Lady Hawk coach Royce Chadwick.

Chadwick has landed eight freshmen for the 1994-95 squad to add to a strong returning group, and Howard still has one roster spot available. Here's a shocker to Lady Hawk fans: The freshman class is so good, Chadwick said he wants to move sophomore Cathy Grice from point guard to shooting guard when the season begins.

That's not set in stone, of course, but just the suggestion raises eyebrows. Grice electrified crowds at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum with her dazzling ballhandling last year, but Chadwick said there's more to being point guard than slick dribbling and no-look passes. Eureka Ray had her shining moments at point guard last season, too, but she'll have competition from an appropriately-named freshman - Joyce Howard of Levelland.

"Joyce Howard is a solid, make-no-mistakes, run-the-team, invisible point guard," Chadwick said. "You'll watch her play for 30 minutes and say, 'Now which one was she?' Whereas Grice plays 10 seconds and everybody says 'Wow, that girl can really go!' So we thought if we gave Cathy the ball in a situation up the floor more, instead of making her bring the ball from coast to coast, that we could maybe open up some more scoring opportunities for her."

Howard scored just 10 points per game for Levelland, but she was an All-State player in Class 4A. Her 125 assists had a lot to do with that, as did her 42 three-pointers.

Other freshman that could be keys on the perimeter are Kyna Cosby, Nakia Black and Te'el Gibbs.

Black, who Chadwick compares to former Howard standout Desiree Wallace, was a state finalist sprinter at Tyler's John Tyler High School and she has a vertical leap of 36 inches. Cosby, a solid three-point shooter, averaged 26.7 points per game as an All-Stater at Class 2A Sundown.

Gibbs did not play last season - the Dickinson product spent a year away from school after graduating. She averaged 18.3 points and 9.1 rebounds two years ago.

Like the perimeter situation, the post play at Howard next season should be strong because of new recruits - and returners.

"If Amber Lacey and Joy Bass come back with the intensity that they left with, they're going to be very, very tough inside," Chadwick said. "Amy Earnst's rehabilitation is coming along tremendously, and I think we're going to be solid in the paint this year."

Earnst will have the largest fan following this fall. The Big Spring graduate averaged 18.3 points and 8.5 rebounds per game last season before a tear of the anterior cruciate ligament in her left knee ended her season. An ACL tear is one of the most-feared injuries among athletes, but Howard trainer Everett Blackburn said Earnst's recovery is ahead of schedule.

"Jim Campbell, the trainer at the high school, and Amy have worked extremely hard to get her to this point, and I would say she's about 80 percent," Blackburn said. "If she continues her active rehabilitation, she will be able to step on the court and start the first day that we start conditioning drills and probably have no problems, as I see it right now. She's worked extremely hard, she's highly motivated and very positive about wanting to start that first day."

The first day of conditioning is Sept. 15, Chadwick said.

Joining Earnst in the paint will be freshmen Vicki Miller (6-foot-2) and Ginger Price (6-1). Miller, from Houston, averaged 13.2 points and 8.6 rebounds her senior year, while Price averaged 12.9 and 10.3 at A&M Consolidated.

Summer Swoboda, 5-10, was a star post player her senior year at Bloomington, averaging 24.9 points and 12.2 rebounds, but she'll be on the perimeter for the Lady Hawks, Chadwick said.

Parrish: Chatty, no; valuable, yes

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Teammates say that Todd Parrish is a vocal, emotional team leader. Others say he's a quiet, intense person.

They're right - all of them. Among friends and teammates, Parrish is talkative and almost hyperactive. Put a stranger in front of him - or a pad and a pencil - and you're liable to get a simple "yes" or "no" by way of answers.

It's not that he's rude - he's not - but he is clearly uncomfortable around the media.

So, presenting Todd Parrish, in not quite his own words:

"He's real quiet - until he gets on the bus," jokes Big Spring coach Bobby Doe.

"Really, Todd's a pretty quiet-type person," Doe added. "But he's emotional on the field. He's pretty much a total player. He's versatile, and he can play anywhere on the field."

Parrish is a three-year starter for the Steers. During his sophomore year, he helped lead the team to the state baseball tournament as a left fielder. He moved over to his current position, center field, his junior year.

Added to the mix this year has been pitching. He has become a solid second starter for Big Spring, compiling an 8-2 record. At the plate, he has batted .355 for the past 10 games and has compiled a .441 on-base percentage.

"He's pretty good at both positions," understates shortstop Ricky Gonzales. "But I think he's better at center field. I guess he just likes that position a little better than pitching. Either way, he's the type of guy who just loves playing baseball."

"It doesn't really matter where I play," Parrish said. "I like to play both."

Few words, remember?

One thing that can't be disputed is Parrish's value to the team, which he demonstrated last weekend in the playoffs against Fort Worth Arlington Heights.

After Heights had blasted the Steers Friday night, Big Spring came back Saturday to take two wins and the series. In Saturday's first game, Parrish had two hits, drove in two runs and scored two runs himself in the Steers' 4-2 win.

Saturday's finale, however, is when he really shined. With a trip to the state quarterfinals on the line, Parrish took the mound and, despite some struggles, kept Arlington Heights off-balance in taking a 5-4 win.

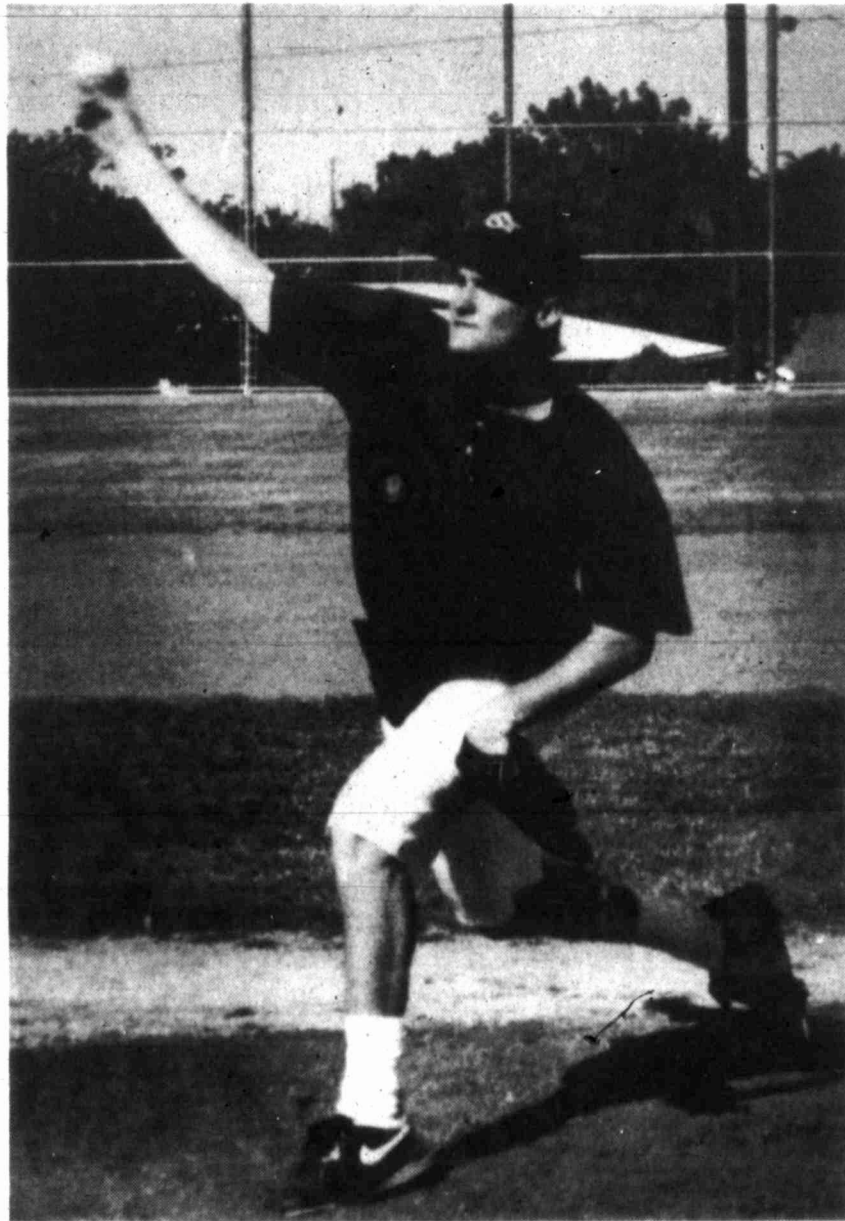

"Basically, he's the guy who's come through for us in the crunch," Doe said. "I think all of us knew he had the ability to be a starter. We knew if we could get him and Frankie (Martinez) and Luis (Bustamante) in the rotation, we'd have a diversity of pitchers."

In the end, all agree that Parrish is a valued team member.

"I'd say he's a good athlete and a real good ballplayer," first baseman Brandon Rodgers said. "We've been playing baseball together since our pee-wee days. I guess playing high school ball has brought us closer together."

"He's a great guy, and one of the craziest ones to be around," Gonzales said. "He's a type of guy who's fun to be around."

Take his word for it.

Big Spring senior Todd Parrish fires a pitch during Tuesday team practice. Parrish, who also does duty in center field, will help lead the Steers into this weekend's playoff series with Fort Worth Brewer in Abilene.

Canucks weave OT magic again

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Vancouver Canucks are fast becoming the overtime kings of the Stanley Cup playoffs.

And Kirk McLean is the main reason why.

"The Rangers had some good opportunities but we had Kirk in net," Vancouver defenseman Dave Babych said after yet another great performance by McLean led the Canucks to a 3-2 overtime victory over New York in the opener of the Stanley Cup finals Tuesday night.

Sensational performances by McLean have become commonplace in this year's playoffs, as have Canucks victories in overtime. This triumph improved their record to 6-1 in such games.

"McLean is the reason why they're here to begin with," Rangers coach Mike Keenan said. "I watched the overtimes in the Calgary series. He has had the best series of a goaltender in the playoffs."

The Canucks didn't look like they were going to get out of the first round after losing three of the first four games to Calgary. But Vancouver won three straight in overtime, largely because of McLean's goaltending.

Tuesday night was no different, as he made 52 saves, the most in a finals game since 1971.

"I thought we played a great game, but McLean made great saves against us," said New York forward Stephane Matteau, who scored two overtime game-winners for the Rangers in the Eastern Conference final against the New Jersey Devils.

"We had a lot of chances to end the game in regulation and certainly a lot of chances in overtime," added Rangers center Mark Messier, "but McLean stood up to it."

"We expect that kind of goal-tending at this time of year. No team gets this far without it."

Was McLean in a "zone," as they say?

"I guess you could call it that," he said. "I'm just going out and doing my job."

"Things have been bouncing right for the team and that comes from hard work. Things happen good on a personal note because of what the team is doing around you. We're a confident team right now."

And well they should be, especially when they take a team into overtime. The Canucks are just the third team in NHL history to win six games in OT during one post-season.

While McLean gave the Canucks a chance to win, Greg Adams gave them their winning goal with 33.1 seconds left in overtime. Adams took a pass from Cliff Ronning and beat Mike Richter from the slot.

Rockets send Utah packing

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — After stunning the Utah Jazz with a 3-point shooting barrage, the Houston Rockets reached the NBA Finals without their killer instinct.

Ahead by 24 points to start the fourth quarter, the Rockets allowed Utah to pull within eight points late in the game before rallying behind Hakeem Olajuwon for a 94-83 victory on Tuesday night.

"When it got down to eight, I started having some flashbacks," Olajuwon said. "They were gambling by taking more 3-point shots and the calls were going against us. Everything was against us."

The Rockets closed out the Western Conference title series 4-1 over the Jazz but got a chilling reminder of their ability to blow big leads. They led Phoenix by 20 points with 10 minutes to play in Game 2 of the semifinal series and lost 124-117 in overtime.

It could have happened again, but the Rockets stiffened in time.

"It got a little scary out there in the fourth quarter," said Vernon Maxwell, who bombed the Jazz with four first-quarter 3-pointers, tying an NBA playoff record. "We had to pull it together. It reminded me of Phoenix."

Olajuwon had 22 points, 10 rebounds, seven blocked shots and six assists.

"We came out with a lot of intensity and a lot of confidence because we didn't want the series to go any longer," Olajuwon said. "I'm just happy and thank God to be in this position. This is an opportunity ... a second chance for me. We know whoever we play won't be easy."

It was a team effort for the Rockets, who will meet the winner of the New York-Indiana series beginning June 8 in The Summit.

Robert Horry had his best game of the series, scoring 22 points, and Maxwell finished with 19. Otis Thorpe had 16 rebounds and 11 points.

"We've been through this because of that Phoenix game," guard Kenny Smith said. "I'm sorry we lost that game but I think it was a good experience. Tonight showed what makes us such a quality basketball team."

The Rockets had everything working in sprinting to a 53-35 halftime lead.

"Our team got off to a bad start but really they had a really good start," Utah's Jeff Hornacek said. "This is what you worry about with the Rockets. When they're hitting those 3-pointers, do you let Hakeem Olajuwon go crazy or go after the 3s?"

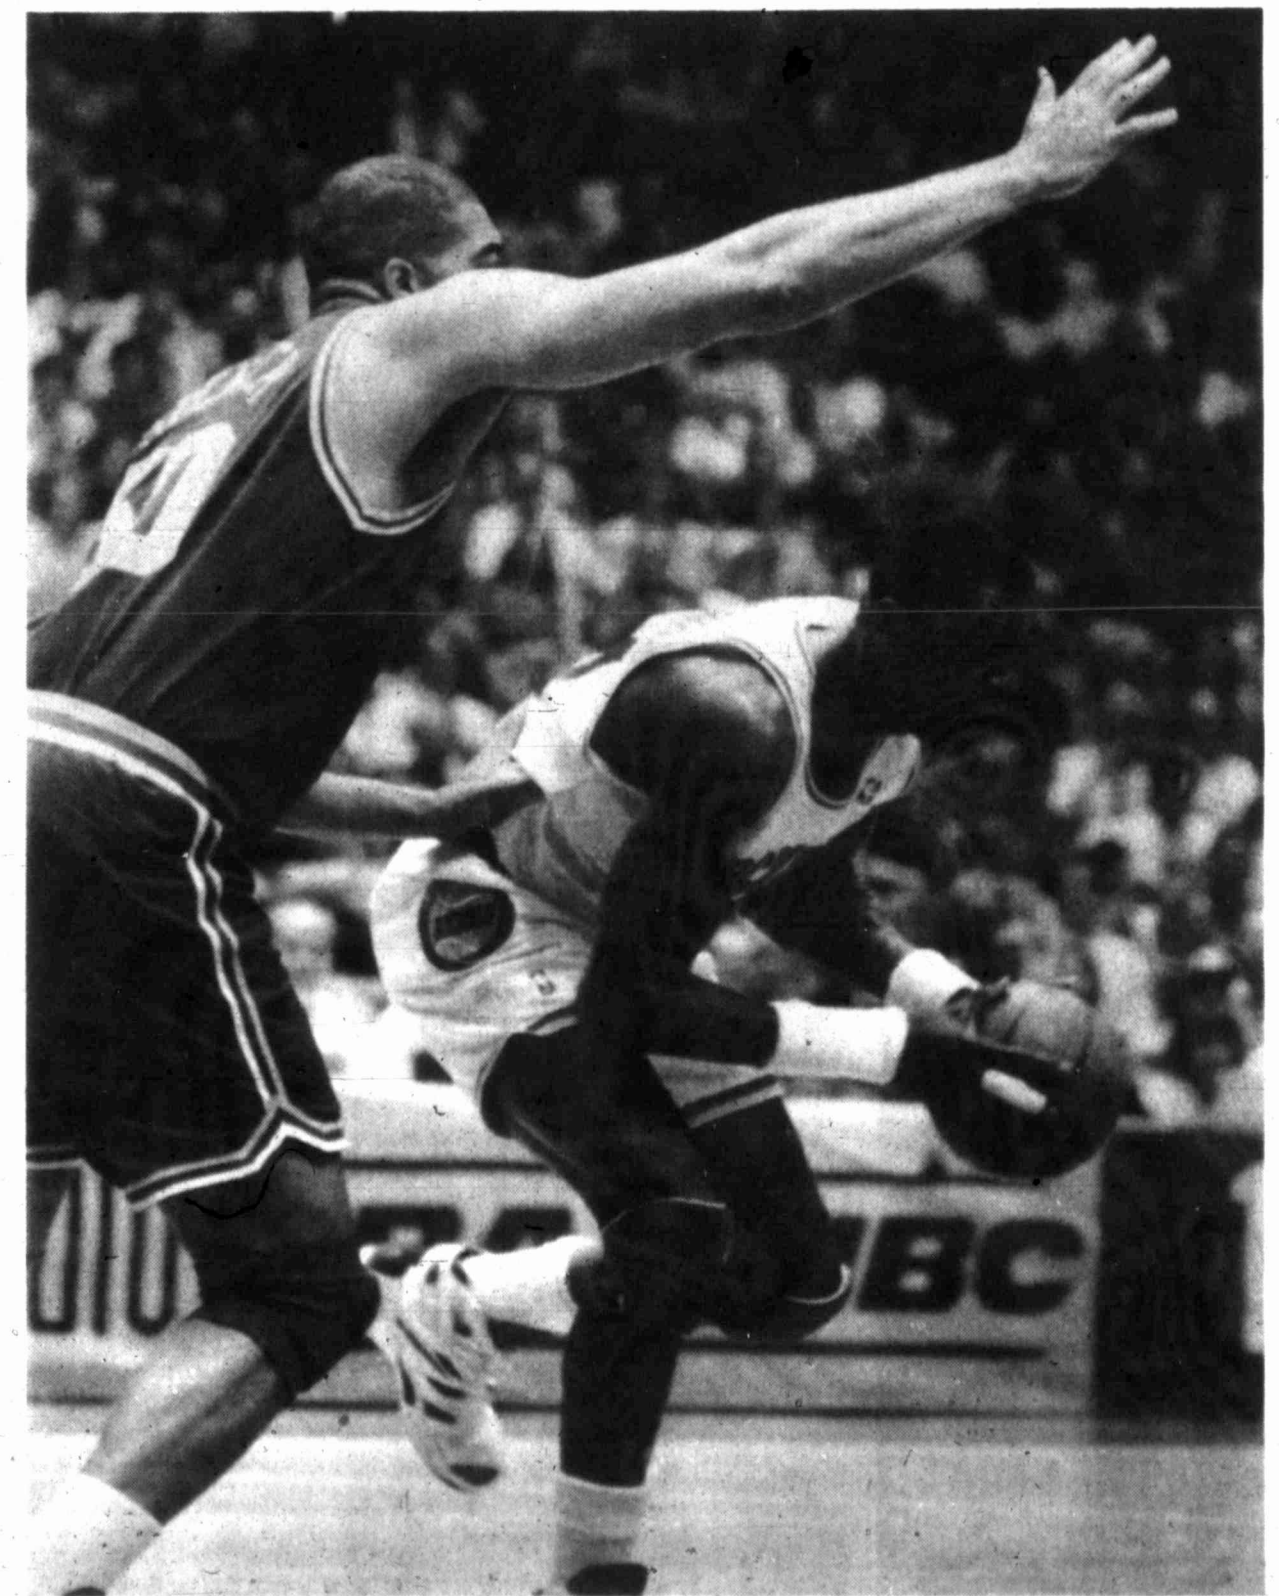

They kept up the pressure in the third quarter, leading 79-53 with 2:40 to go in the period. Then, Utah sprang to life with a 16-0 fourth-quarter charge that proved a little too late.

Karl Malone scored 24 points to lead the Jazz and Hornacek added 21. They were the only scoring threats through most of the game for Utah. Guard John Stockton finished with 13 points.

"Pride made us do it," Malone said. "That kept us going because everybody in the country was watching."

The Rockets are making their third appearance in the NBA Finals. They lost to the Boston Celtics in 1981 and 1986.

The Knicks haven't won a championship since 1973. Until this season, the Pacers hadn't won a single playoff series since joining the league in the 1976 ABA-NBA merger.

Houston's Hakeem Olajuwon (34) dribbles past Utah center Felton Spencer during the first quarter of their NBA Western Conference final Tuesday in Houston.

NY Knicks glad to be back home

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The New York Knicks' long, lost weekend in Indianapolis did more than give the Indiana Pacers two victories and a 2-2 tie in the Eastern Conference finals.

It also gave them the confidence to think they can win tonight at Madison Square Garden, where the Knicks are 8-0 in the playoffs and haven't lost to the Pacers in three years.

"I've always felt when you get into the playoffs, homecourt is not such a big advantage," Indiana coach Larry Brown said Tuesday, the day after his team won the second of two games at home. "You have the best referees. Guys are more familiar with playing on that court. It's not like once a year. And I would think you shouldn't be in a position where you feel you're going to lose. You should feel comfortable there and know you can win."

Brown, however, knows the Knicks are a more poised, confident team at home, making it difficult for the Pacers to get that road victory required for Indiana to reach the NBA Finals for the first time. Game 6 is scheduled for Friday night at Indiana, with a seventh game back in New York on Sunday, if needed.

"They've won some close games at home," the Pacers coach said. "They dictate in a lot of instances how you play. I look at this series, the team that's gotten loose balls and long rebounds and done the hustle things have won all four games. I don't think that should affect you when you go away from home. We have to have a mindset that that's what it's going to take to Jim Courier hits the ball to top-seeded Pete Sampras in their quarterfinal match of the French Open in Paris Tuesday. Courier dashed archrival Sampras' dream of a fourth straight Grand Slam title, outplaying the world's No. 1 player 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4.

Courier stomps Sampras

The Associated Press

PARIS — Pete Sampras must wait another year to renew his frustrating quest for a French Open title. Jim Courier needs to wait only until Friday to continue his drive to regain the title he lost a year ago.

Courier ended a four-match losing streak to Sampras and showed the world No. 1 who is boss on clay with a 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4 quarterfinal victory Tuesday. Ahead is possibly a tougher task — a rematch with Sergi Bruguera, who ended Courier's two-year reign last year.

"I have been playing very well here, great tennis," Bruguera said after a 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 defeat of fourth-seeded Andrei Medvedev.

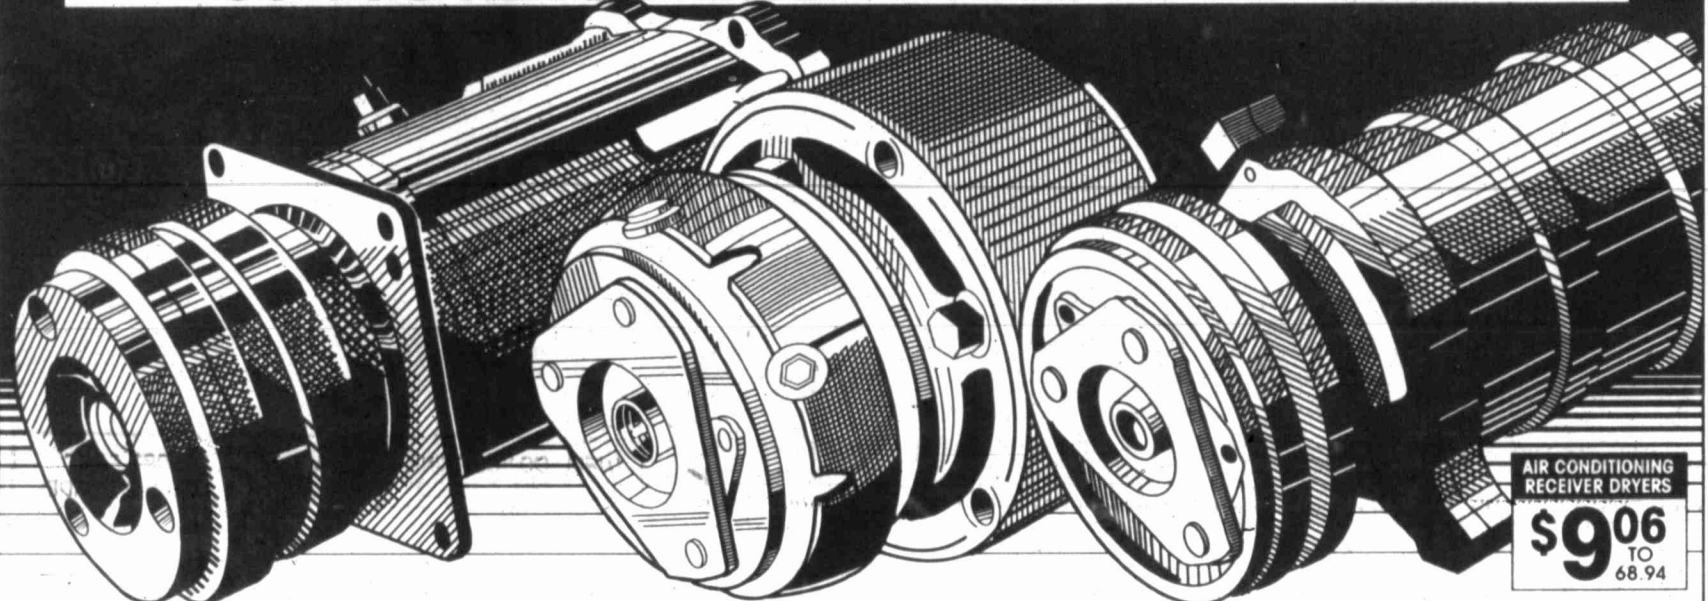

The sixth-seeded Spaniard hasn't lost a set in five matches. Last year, he didn't lose a set until the final, when he needed five sets to beat Courier.

Courier said one of his challenges in preparing for Bruguera is to set aside his delight at beating Sampras, who usurped his No. 1 ranking last year.

"It was a big momentum match for me regardless of what happens the rest of the way," Courier said. "It is definitely one of the more satisfying wins that I have had. ... But I don't want that overexcited because I still have to come back and get busy again Friday."

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 2, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Claim your power and zero in on what makes you happy. The creative process is strong. Listen to your intuition about change. A loved one cares about you and wants you to get closer. Money matters flourish. Tonight: Be careful in an important conversation. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Use your intuition about a friend who may be confused about what is important to you financially. Follow your own advice and seek out information. The more experience you find and consult, the better you will feel. Tonight: Take some time off. **

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have high-voltage energy and might have a difficult time settling in. One-to-one relating is highlighted, and you feel great about a significant other. Tonight: Go where the fun is. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You might be feeling burdened by responsibilities and work. Perhaps you can eliminate red tape. Look at how you can shorten your day-to-day meandering and get more out of life. Tonight: Make a must appearance. ***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Get past a hassle. You might be uptight about where you are headed in a difficult situation. Listen closely to a loved one who cares about you. Get feedback about which way to go with a money matter. Solutions come easily. Tonight: Give family priority. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A partner is being difficult. Don't kid yourself. Focus on your long-term goals. Listen carefully to your intuition about a loved one. Follow your instincts in a key situation. Tonight: Do your budget. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Listen to an associate who has important input about your security and well-being, which should receive your highest priority. You might be working too hard and lack perspective about what is and isn't effective. Tonight: Adjust your plans. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): You feel as if you have too much to do, and you do. Put your best foot forward and you can accomplish a lot. The pace is hectic. Ignore a loved one's tantrum for now. It will get better. Evaluate your routine to reduce stress. Tonight: Work late. ***

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Focus on what is important, where you are headed and what your creative options are. The unexpected occurs quickly. You are well-centered and consequently can gain a unique perspective. Tonight: Don't let a family member rain on your parade. ****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Family affairs take priority. Be positive and you'll be able to solve a problem. Your creativity flows strongly, and you have unusual flexibility. Look to long-term goals. A misunderstanding could come out of the blue. Tonight: Avoid more misunderstanding. ***

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Use discretion dealing with a money matter. Someone might make a mistake or take an ill-advised risk. Your instincts are correct about day-to-day matters. You flourish because of your sense of responsibility. Tonight: Don't let your mind wander. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Others might respond to you in a way that you hadn't expected. A family member has had enough and takes an adamant stand. Consider your long-term goals and desires. Stay focused on what's important. Tonight: Don't overindulge. ***

Dear Abby - Letters...

Nurse angry at parents who threaten shots

DEAR ABBY: I have been a pediatric nurse for 13 years. I love children and most aspects of my job. The hardest part is when I draw blood, start IVs, give injections, or perform other painful procedures on my patients. I work very hard to explain things fully at the child's level of understanding. I'm honest about the pain, and always assure them that it's not because they did anything wrong.

Yesterday I witnessed an incident in the waiting room that is all too typical. A giggling 2-year-old ran down the hall away from her father. He chased after her, picked her up (none too gently) and said in an irritated voice, "If you don't behave, I'll have the doctor give you a shot!" A frightened look came over the little girl's face, and she began to squirm and cry.

Abby, please advise your readers with young children never to use threats of shots as a form of discipline. It causes children to fear every visit to the doctor. It is also unfair to the health-care professionals who try so hard to provide quality care in as positive an atmosphere as possible. — PEDIATRIC NURSE IN SAN FRANCISCO

DEAR NURSE: Thank you for reminding parents never to make a doctor or nurse an "enemy" to be feared. That brings to mind a letter I ran several years ago, which was written by a policeman. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: I am a uniformed police officer with the Indianapolis Police Department, and you would be amazed at the number of people who threaten their children with what a policeman will do to them if they don't behave.

On one occasion, I was having lunch at a snack bar when a young mother pointed her finger at me and loudly told her child, "If you don't eat your vegetables, I'm going to have that policeman arrest you and take you to jail!"

Abby, I am sick and tired of that line. Just the other day, I was at a firehouse when the firemen were showing off a fire truck to a small boy. I asked the boy's mother if perhaps her son would like to see a police car. I was rewarded with a tongue-lashing about how intimidated children were of the police.

She ended her tirade with, "I don't want my son to have anything to do with the police!" I walked away with a lump in my throat. — OFFICER BILL WEBER, INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR OFFICER BILL: Perhaps the young mother had a bad experience with a police officer. However, most people know that the majority of police officers are "good guys." They daily risk life and limb protecting law-abiding citizens.

DEAR ABBY: Being a dedicated reader of your column, I have read many letters about odd names. Here's another one — mine.

I have been "Cool" all my life. I was "Cool" before it was "cool" to be "Cool."

I grew up in a "Cool" family. My father, mother, sister and brother were all "Cool."

I was a "Cool-Smith" for 43 years. Now I am a "Cool-Figure." — IRIS L. COOL, A 65-YEAR-OLD COOL KID, NUEVO, CALIF.

Padres pound Pirates in 13-run second; Astros harpoon Marlins

The Associated Press

The No. 13 and the San Diego Padres seem to be linked this season.

The Padres, who set a club record with 13 straight losses earlier this month, matched a club record by scoring 13 times in the second inning Tuesday night en route to a 15-5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

After two innings, the Pirates were probably hoping the umpires could enact a mercy rule like the one used in some recreational softball league blowouts.

The outburst enabled Andy Benes (3-9) to break a personal four-game losing streak.

Benes, who had lost 17 of his previous 21 decisions, allowed four runs and six hits in 6 2-3 innings. He walked two and struck out 10, increasing his NL-leading total to 83. Bip Roberts hit a three-run homer. Plantier added a three-run triple and Benes had a two-run double in the second.

The Padres have won eight of 10 since snapping their losing streak.

Astros 5, Marlins 3

At Houston, Andujar Cedeño hit a two-run single to break an eighth-inning tie for the Astros.

In the eighth, Luis Gonzalez and Chris Donnels hit two-out singles, and pinch-hitter Kevin Bass walked.

David Veres (2-2) pitched a perfect eighth for the win, and John Hudek worked the ninth for his sixth save.

Giants 6, Braves 3

At San Francisco, Javier Lopez broke a ninth-inning tie with a lead-off homer, his 10th, off Dave Burba (0-4).

Matt Williams homered in the first inning.

Roberto Kelly hit a two-run home, his first since Atlanta acquired him from Cincinnati on Sunday for Deion Sanders.

Mark Wohlers (4-0) pitched 1 1-3 innings, and Greg McMichael got his 10th save.

Rockies 3, Mets 2

At New York, Greg Harris allowed five hits in eight innings to lead the Rockies.

Walt Weiss went 3-for-4 and drove in a run, and ex-Met Howard Johnson went 2-for-4 with an RBI for Colorado.

Harris (3-4) struck out three and allowed one walk before giving way to Bruce Ruffin, who got his fifth save.

Doug Linton (4-2) allowed six hits and three runs in five innings.

Phillies 8, Cubs 7

At Chicago, Jim Eisenreich hit a two-out RBI single in the eighth as the Phillies snapped Chicago's seven-game winning streak at Wrigley Field.

Trailing 7-5 in the eighth, the Phillies rallied for three runs against Jose Bautista and Randy Myers (0-2).

Mariano Duncan hit a two-run double to tie it 7-7 before Eisenreich, 10-for-23 in his last seven games, singled to left.

Larry Andersen (1-1) picked up the win.

Reds 5, Expos 4

At Cincinnati, Reggie Sanders led off the bottom of the 13th inning with his second homer to end a 4-hour, 29-minute game.

Sanders hit a belt-high fastball from Jeff Shaw (2-2) over the wall in center for his ninth homer.

Pete Schourek (3-0) pitched out of a scoring threat in the 12th and retired the side in order in the 13th.

Cardinals 6, Dodgers 0

At Los Angeles, Rick Sutcliffe pitched a solid 7 2-3 innings and Tom Pagnozzi and Bernard Gilkey hit two-run doubles for the Cardinals.

Sutcliffe (2-1), gave up seven hits, walked four and didn't record a strikeout.

The Cardinals used a walk, a single by Mark Whiten, a throwing error by third baseman Tim Lincecum and an RBI groundout by Sutcliffe to score twice in the second off Tom Candiotti (4-2).

Rangers score, but...

New York Ranger Steve Larmer celebrates after he scored the first goal of the Stanley Cup Finals Tuesday in New York. New York wasn't celebrating after the game, though - the Vancouver Canucks beat the Rangers 3-2 in overtime to take a 1 games to none lead in the series.

Yankees gain breathing room; Rangers defeat Milwaukee

The Associated Press

Singles, sure. But home runs? Wade Boggs showed more of his surprising power Tuesday night, homering and driving in two runs as the New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 10-1.

Boggs, known for putting the ball in play, suddenly has popped a bunch of balls out of the park. He has six home runs this season - all of them since May 15 - and is batting .342.

Boggs hit only two home runs last season, his first year with the Yankees. He has 93 homers in a career that started with Boston in 1982.

Only once has Boggs reached double figures in home runs - he hit 24 in 1987, the last time there was so much speculation about lively balls.

Boggs hit a solo home run in the first inning off Alex Fernandez (5-6), and the host Yankees went on to end a two-game losing streak. New York, which has the best record in baseball, has not lost three in a row since the second week of the season.

Luis Polonia had a two-run double in the second inning and the Yankees scored four times in the fourth, one of Boggs' single and two on Danny Tartabull's double.

Scott Kamieniecki (4-0) pitched seven innings, his only blemish a home run by Ron Karkovics in the seventh.

Rangers 7, Brewers 4

Oddibe McDowell hit a two-run single in the first inning and a sacrifice fly in the third, sending Texas over host Milwaukee.

Busty Greer also had a two-run single in the first for the Rangers off Jaime Navarro (2-5). Dean Palmer had three hits and scored twice for Texas.

Roger Pavlik (1-2) won for the first time in four starts since coming off the disabled list.

Royals 9, Red Sox 7

Mike MacFarlane hit a grand slam and Brian McRae went 5-for-5 as Kansas City won at Fenway Park.

MacFarlane, who made a throwing error and was thrown out at the plate earlier, hit his third career slam in the fourth inning for a 5-2 lead.

Greg Gagne hit a two-run homer for the Royals off Joe Hesketh (3-3) and McRae added an RBI double.

Tom Gordon (5-3) was the winner.

Tigers 7, Orioles 6

Cecil Fielder, Kirk Gibson and win." Although Patrick Ewing increased his production from one point to 25 in Game 4, most came from the perimeter. One of New York's goals tonight is to get him more points from the post position.

"The Pacers make it very difficult to enter the ball," coach Pat Riley said. "I don't care what you run, they are encouraging us to throw nothing but lob passes to Patrick. Then they are able to rotate to the ball. We tried to post him up more, and we were successful at times, but it's just a war of the blocks."

Ewing said backup center Antonio Davis, who is more physical than 7-

Texas Ranger Dean Palmer slides home safely as Milwaukee Brewer catcher Dave Nilsson awaits the late throw in the third inning Tuesday. The Rangers won and have the lead in the American League West.

Junior Felix each homered during a five-run fifth inning as Detroit won at Camden Yards.

Leo Gomez, Harold Baines and Mark McLemore homered for Baltimore.

Mike Moore (5-4) got his 150th career win and Mike Henneman got his seventh save. Mike Oquist (1-1) lost in his first major league start.

Athletics 7, Blue Jays 2

Rickey Henderson and Troy Neel each homered and drove in three runs, leading Ron Darling and Oakland over Toronto.

Darling (4-6) gave up two hits in 7 1-3 innings and struck out eight. Dennis Eckersley got his fifth save as the A's beat the host Blue Jays for the fourth straight time.

Neel hit a two-run homer in the third, his eighth. Henderson hit a three-run homer in the eighth, his second.

Twins 6, Mariners 2

Scott Erickson, activated from the disabled list before the game, pitched six strong innings and Minnesota defeated Seattle.

Erickson (5-4), who had been out because of strained muscles in his side, gave up four hits and struck out four Pacers starter Rik Smits, is mirroring the style of Chicago's Bill Cartwright, who had success containing Ewing in the previous round.

"Davis is fronting me, forcing me out," Ewing said. "I'm trying to stay in front of him and wait for the lob."

After getting hammered in all the "hustle" categories in an 88-68 defeat Saturday, the Knicks outrebounded Indiana 44-35, but committed 26 turnovers on Monday.

"These games are going to be in the 80s," Riley said. "That's just the way it's going to be. We get a lot of credit for being a physical team, but theirs is just as physical. We've just got to be stronger."

To: All whom it may concern, Respondents:

You have been sued. You may employ an attorney. If you or your attorney do not file a written answer with the clerk who issued this citation by 10:00 A.M. on the Monday next following the expiration of 20 days after you were served this citation and petition, a default judgment may be taken against you. The petition of Tamara L. Robinson, Petitioner, was filed in the Court of Howard County, Texas, on the 30th day of March, 1994, and is entitled "In the Interest of Britney Nichole Robinson, A Child." The suit requests to terminate the parent-child relationship. The date and place of birth of the child who is the subject of this suit is March 11, 1994, in Garfield County, Oklahoma.

The Court has authority in this suit to enter any judgment or decree in the child's interest which will be binding upon you, including the termination of the parent-child relationship, the determination of paternity and the appointment of a conservator with authority to consent to the child's adoption.

Issued and given under my hand and seal of said Court of Big Spring, Texas, this 31 day of May, 1994. Clerk of the District Court of Howard County, Texas

To Dye—Or Not To Dye In Your Automatic Washer

(NAPS)—Those bedroom curtains are perfectly good—except for the faded color. They're too large to dye in a pan or in the sink. Is it O. K. to dye them in your automatic washer?

"You bet," say home economists from Whirlpool Corporation, "but with reservations."

Most important, they say, for really good color results and clean-up of the washer after a dyeing cycle, you need hot (130°F or above) water. If you've lowered your water heater setting to save energy, you may need to raise it for dyeing.

Beyond that, Whirlpool home economists suggest:

• Follow dye package instructions exactly for pretreatment, dye quantity and best fabrics for dyeing.

• Clean washer immediately by running it through a complete hot wash cycle at the high water level, using detergent and one cup of chlorine bleach. The washer's plastic parts (such as the agitator in automatic washers) may absorb some of the color, but will not transfer it to subsequent loads.

Did You Know?

Did you know you can use your washing machine to DYE your clothes? That a peculiar rule of law makes one company PAY for the liability of another? That high school girls can WIN a modeling contest? That LUXURY cars are still popular? That older Americans can SAVE MONEY while having fun? Or that calling a 900 number can get you FACTS on wooden floors? Reading this page can help you learn about all that and MORE.

Medical Milestones

Take One Superspirin And Call Me In The Morning

By Roger J. Bulger, M.D.
Dr. Bulger is President of the Association of Academic Health Centers and a past President of the University of Texas Health Science Center at Houston.

(NAPS)—A new kind of "superspirin"—derived from a snake!—could be a lifesaver for many people with heart disease.

When blood clots too easily and blocks the flow of blood in key arteries, heart attacks or strokes can ensue. For people with heart disease, physicians often prescribe traditional drugs such as aspirin or heparin to reduce the tendency to form clots. Recently, advances towards developing a more potent superspirin have been achieved by combining high-tech genetic engineering with an old fashioned search of the animal kingdom.

Clotting is mediated by small round cells called platelets. When a cut or scrape occurs, a sticky protein emerges from the surface of the platelets that can lead to clots. The moderate success of aspirin in preventing clotting set off a search for a "superspirin"—a more effective clot-blocker.

Several pharmaceutical groups are feverishly attempting to develop drugs to block this sticky protein.

Have a blast with UFO game

By BRITT and BRIAN WARNER
Thomson News Service

GAME: Sub-Terrainia
COMPANY: Sega of America
SYSTEM: SegaGenesis
PLAYER LEVEL: Difficult
PLOT SUMMARY: Humans have now had their first glimpse of real UFOs, but unfortunately it was just a brief second before the invaders obliterated a U.S. mining colony on the moon. The only survivors are the helpless miners trapped far below the surface of the moon.

Having to react quickly (before the aliens regroup and take over the world) you are now being sent out in an experimental space ship designed to combat these nasty beasties underground. You are the only hope for all of the innocent, trapped lives beneath the lunar surface.

If the aliens aren't stopped now, they're not going to settle for just conquering the moon, they'll try and take over the world!

Act fast, hero. You've got to save the miners — and the world.

STRUCTURE: Sub-Terrainia is an underground video battle in a most realistic form. In this game, even gravity is your enemy. You must fight off the alien attackers and keep yourself from being pulled into the rocky cave floor by the forces of gravity.

As you progress and get to higher levels, the intensity of gravity also gets higher. So it's very important to master the controls on the first few levels. To help strip the caverns of their metals, the miners used high pressure water hoses.

And as such, some portions of the caves have become totally flooded with water. In these underwater levels, your ship becomes even more difficult to maneuver. You have to fight hard against the water because your ship is very buoyant (because it's filled with air).

While struggling against this and the forces of gravity, you have to be careful that you don't run out of fuel. You have a very limited supply, so conservation is a must. In Sub-Terrainia, you have to use thrusters as much as your trigger finger.

Each level has multiple objectives that you must accomplish before you can travel on to the next level. Most levels have puzzles that you must solve in order to stay alive. You also have to refuel at just the right times so you can stretch your fuel supply throughout each mission.

BRIAN'S COMMENTS: I really had a blast playing Sub-Terrainia! While this game is difficult, it's also extremely fun to play. There wasn't anything I didn't like about this game. The graphics were superb and the sound was excellent.

What more could you ask for in an action game. It's got bad guys, its got puzzles to solve, and most importantly, it's got guns! Buy, rent, or borrow this game. You won't be disappointed!

BRITT'S COMMENTS: Sub-Terrainia is awesome! It's like no other game I've ever played.

The graphics are exceptional, and the sound is amazing, but the absolute best feature is the gravity effect. The gravity is the one feature of this game that sets it apart and way ahead of all other games like it (shooters). This feature takes a little while to master, but it makes the game more realistic, challenging, and a lot more fun.

This is by far the best new release for the Sega Genesis. It's the kind of game that everyone can really enjoy. Excellent game!!

Tips for Park Visits

WILDLIFE MANNERS

Our nation's park system is run by the National Park Service.

The service's job is to "conserve scenery and natural and historic objects and wildlife."

Some parks are set aside to preserve our nation's history.

Other national parks cover large areas and offer many activities, points of interest and chances to see wildlife.

Here are some wildlife manners for national parks, or for anyplace where wildlife lives.

The week of May 22-29 is National Park Week.

Each of the 367 sites will be holding special events. The purpose of this week is to let folks know how valuable these parks can be — especially for wildlife watching!

• Watch from a distance. Don't approach or touch wild animals.

Small animals that don't run away from you could be sick. Bigger animals can gore or butt you and cause serious injury.

• Don't feed the animals, because they can become: - sick from eating human food. - so used to eating human food that they forget how to find food in nature.

- too friendly with humans and even a dangerous nuisance.

• Don't become so busy watching wildlife that you forget to watch the traffic.

• Keep your food out of reach of animals. Keep it in a container like an ice chest.

• Don't litter. Eating or getting tangled in litter can be dangerous to animals.

• Don't pick up baby animals. Their mothers are usually nearby. Don't take them to a park ranger's station. It's almost impossible to get them back with their mothers.

• Don't pick any plants. Animals might depend on them for a place to live or for food to eat.

9. Olympic National Park, Washington

SHADE IN EACH STATE LISTED IN THIS STORY.

Do you like to watch wildlife? Do you appreciate what you see? Parks across the country and groups who want to protect animals have a special program called Watchable Wildlife.

The program offers exhibits, brochures, guided tours and special signs. These tell you where you might spot watchable wildlife. Some of the best places to watch wildlife are our national parks. Here are only a few of the animals and the parks where they might be seen.

Can you find the state on the map? Can you name the wildlife you might be watching?

Next week, get set for summer reading with a special summer reading chart. Meet author R.L. Stine.

YOU CAN

Dear Beakman, How are rubber bands made?

Michael Craig Freehold, New Jersey

Beakman or Jax, P.O. Box 30177, Kansas City, MO 64112. Send your question & address.

experiment #1

Make Your Own Rubber Band

WHAT YOU NEED: Dandelions or milkweeds

WHAT TO DO: Break the leaves and roots of the plants until a white milky sap oozes out. Coat your first finger with this and let it dry in the sun. Add more layers of sap, letting each one dry. Gently roll the dried sap down off your finger.

Dear Michael, Rubber bands are one of those things that are all over the place, even though we don't think about them much. So first, congratulations for thinking freely. Rubber bands are made by extrusion (x-TRU-shun), which is a fancy way of saying they're squirted out of a special machine. You Can use another method, a warm summer day and some weeds to make your own rubber band!

Beakman Place

SO WHAT: The sap in the plants is a lot like latex, the tree sap from which rubber is made. If you stretch your little rubber band gently, you'll feel its stretchiness — we call that tensile cohesion (TEN-sul co-HE-shun). Rubber is stretchy because it's made out of molecules shaped like long springy strings. When you pull out and then let go, the molecules pull back into their original shape. Your rubber band is not very strong, because we cheated on getting real latex and used weeds instead of rubber trees.

Lots of Loops

1 - A hollow tube of rubber is squirted out of a special nozzle called a die. It's sort of like toothpaste coming out of the tube, only it comes out hollow like a hose.

2 - The hose is sliced into rubber bands.
