Truck explosion kills one

Workers watch as emergency crews tend to Abundio Valdez. Valdez was pronounced dead after being rushed to Scenic Mountain Medical Center when a tank truck containing asphalt roofing material exploded at the construction site of the new Wal-Mart Supercenter.

Reason for Wal Mart site explosion unknown

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A Fort Worth man died after an explosion at the Wal-Mart Supercenter construction site.

According to reports, around 11:15 Wednesday morning, Abundio Valdez, 37, was working near a tank truck containing asphalt roofing material when the truck exploded. The material in the truck is a hot, black liquid used as a binder for roofing materials.

Valdez was transported to the emergency room of Scenic Mountain Medical Center. Hospital officials say Valdez was already dead when he arrived in the ER. Justice of the Peace Jack Buchanan pronounced Valdez dead a short time later.

"I have ordered an autopsy to be performed by Dr. Jerry Spencer in Lubbock. It is supposed to take place at 9 a.m. Thursday morning. Valdez apparently suffered from head injuries when the asphalt exploded on him," said Buchanan.

Valdez was employed by A/R Roofing, Inc. out of Fort Worth. The roofing company was a subcontractor for Tribble and Stephens Company out of Houston, general contractor for the site.

"There will be an investigation into this accident. Right now, we do not know why the truck exploded but we will look into it. I am sure the roofing company and OSHA (Occupational Safety and Health Administration) will also want to investigate," said James Stephens, president of Tribble and Stephens.

Beware the heat of June

Climbing temperatures pose health risks

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

As temperatures rise above the century mark in West Texas, so does the chance of getting heat exhaustion or heat stroke.

Unofficially, the temperature has reached as high as 109 degrees this week and it is important for people to stay out of the heat during the peak hours from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. especially children and the elderly.

Heat stroke is a true life threatening emergency that needs to be taken care of by a qualified emergency technician, said Michael Reisman, a nurse practitioner at Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

"If you let heat exhaustion go untreated it can turn into heat stroke. You have the same symptoms but they are more pronounced. However with heat stroke, you are not sweating anymore and your skin is red, dry and hot. Your body temperature could be 105 to 110 degrees and breathing can be quite rapid.

"It is important to get this person inside and undressed then place ice packs on the groin area and armpits. This will help bring down the body temperature before the brain could literally be fried. Also, you should call 911 and have an EMS to the scene," added Reisman.

"The symptoms of heat exhaustion include muscle cramps, nausea, vomiting, slight confusion, body temperature could be normal or slightly elevated, sweating, increase in thirst, coordination is not up to snuff and not going to the bathroom. The body is trying to retain fluid so the urine is concentrated and a person won't urinate as often," explained Reisman.

As the saying goes, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. "If a person is new to the area it may take them up to two weeks to get accustomed to the weather. Even if you are from here, you can still suffer from heat-related injuries.

"Thirst is a poor indicator of heat stroke or exhaustion. You can be dehydrated and not be thirsty. People should drink water all day long even if they don't feel thirsty. Sports drinks like Gatorade should be diluted with water - probably half of each. That is my personal opinion and I really think they work better because the body absorbs it better," Reisman said.

Reisman advises people to avoid the peak hours of sun exposure, wear sunshades, hats with brims, sunscreen with a protection factor of at least 15. Believe me, there is no such thing as a healthy tan. Also, people don't need to take salt tablets.

Even if you work indoors, you should drink water. Be aware that Tylenol and aspirin are not real effective in reducing the body's temperature in heat related injuries."

Reisman adds people should avoid caffeine and alcohol. If you have any further questions, he suggests you contact your primary care physician or provider.

Loan program benefits veterans

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Re-financing a home loan is easier and more beneficial for veterans now.

The Department of Veterans affairs, is stepping up its campaign to inform veterans who have high interest-rate, VA-guaranteed home loans of the cost benefits of refinancing their loans, in an effort to raise awareness of its new loan program.

VA Spokesman Mitchell Skidmore said, "Based on calls we have received from veterans, it seems that many are not aware of the new VA loan program."

The VA has a streamlined program for converting VA-guaranteed loans to new ones at

Allison moves through obstacles for top ranking

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

ALLISON WALLACE

COAHOMA - Allison Wallace didn't let things get in the way. The fact her high school didn't have a formal choir program didn't stop her from competing in the recent University Interscholastic League competition.

And she didn't stop her from receiving prestigious honors either.

Allison, 15, a Coahoma High School sophomore, came away with a top score in the recent UIL Texas State Solo and Ensemble Contest, receiving the prestigious "1" rating for her vocal solo "The Morning."

Allison's mother, Sandy Wallace, assisted her daughter's effort in the pursuit of musical excellence. Sandy is the Coahoma Elementary music teacher, but started taking a group of interested kids from the area junior high school to the competition about four years ago.

"We started a junior high choir when my daughter was there and now those same kids are in high school and still want to go," she explains. "So we just kind of keep going. That same group still goes each year and along the way, we pick up a few extras."

Sandy says the kids must audition in order to go. If she thinks their abilities will allow them to participate, then she "sponsors" them. The students prepare and work hard getting ready for the regional competition several months preceding the event.

As long as the student has a sponsor, the child is allowed to compete, according to UIL regulations. A group of 10 students took their talents to the regional event staged recently in San Angelo. The student musician must receive a rating of "1" to advance to the state level.

There, the competition becomes stronger. The idea is to advance the standard beyond the regional level and for equal abilities to go up against equal abilities.

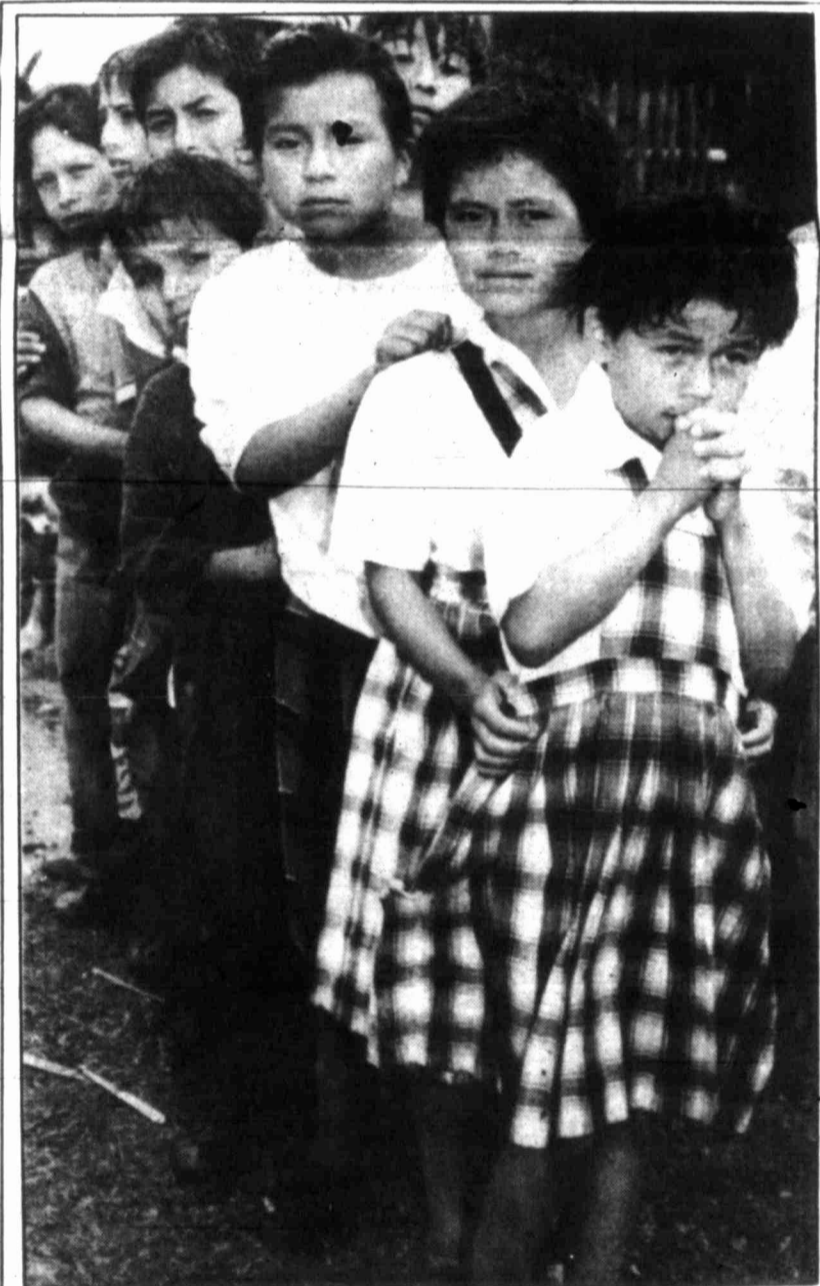

Advancing to the state level from Coahoma were senior Joni Rodriguez with a clarinet solo and a flute quartet made up of sophomores Tammy Coffman, Karen Best, Carol Garcia and Kara Hunsaker.

In voice, only Allison advanced to state, "but several others were very close," said Sandy.

While there, Allison did well. Admittedly without much preparation and without a formal school program, she received the coveted top score. But getting her to talk about it is another thing.

Allison is definitely a woman of few words. "I don't want to sound like I'm bragging," she says simply, preferring to acknowledge the efforts of the other competitors.

Loans

 lower interest rates at little or no cost.
 "We are encouraging veterans to refinance their loans and realize substantial savings, while at the same time giving a boost to the economy," stated VA Secretary Jesse Brown.
 The VA's Interest Rate Reduction Refinancing Loan Program allows a veteran with an outstanding VA-guaranteed loan to obtain a new loan at a lower interest rate by using the same entitlement the veteran previously used to buy a home.
 South Central Mortgage (Dallas) Branch Manager Brian Thomas said, "It is easy for veterans to take advantage of the new VA program. It can all be done by mail and usually with no out-of-pocket costs to the veteran."

 The program allows veterans to reduce the interest rate and generally requires no property appraisal or re-qualifying.
 For example, a current VA loan with 10 percent interest rate reduced to 8.5 percent lessens the monthly payment by $98 on a $90,000 loan balance.
 Interested Texas veterans should call 1-800-533-5626 for more information.
 Skidmore said, "We (the VA) have satellite offices all over Texas and veterans should have no trouble getting information on the new program, but lenders for the program must be a VA approved lender."

Singer

 But her efforts should not be ignored. Her selection was a poem put to music by Texas author Ronald Yates. "The judges said it fit her voice," said Sandy. Allison is a soprano, a voice with a range reaching the higher musical notes.
 Allison liked the musical accompaniment. "The piano part was really good," she said quietly. "It's not the words I liked about it so much, it's the music."
 Sandy played the piano while her daughter sang. In UIL music competition, the purpose is not to compete against other musicians, but to obtain a standard, Sandy explained.
 A student, the accompanist and the judge are the only three individuals in the room while the approved UIL musical selection is performed. A singer is not allowed to use sheet music and must perform the piece from memory. At the conclusion, the judge will offer a verbal and written critique and the rating.
 Rating scores are from one to five with one being a "superior" rating, two an "excellent," three, "good" and so forth. Several individuals may achieve a one or no one may achieve it, depending on the quality of the performance said Sandy.

 "It's very subjective," she explains. "The kids receive their score based on expressiveness, dynamics and musicality." A student competing at the state level can't miss any pitches or rhythms and must be technically correct.
 Allison says she became interested in school singing events ever since the sixth grade, when she sang in the honor choir in Midland where she lived before moving to Coahoma. "But I like Coahoma a lot better," she said quickly. "The people here are much nicer."
 However, the lack of a structured program seems to be taking its toll on Allison's enthusiasm. She says she is suffering from burnout, saying it is difficult to enjoy singing when there aren't several students involved. She is unsure if she will compete in the future. "It's not much fun anymore," she said.
 "I'd like to see her continue and work more," said her mother. "She has a natural voice and now she needs to work on her mechanics to strengthen her talents."
 Allison says humbly, "I just don't sing loud enough."

Oops! Greytok owes back taxes

The Associated Press

AUSTIN — A construction company started by Republican land commissioner candidate Marta Greytok is delinquent on state taxes, according to state records.

Documents from the Texas secretary of state's office obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press show Greytok Construction Corp. failed to file a franchise tax report in 1986, causing the company's charter to be revoked.

"The said corporation has failed or refused to revive its right to do business," according to the records.

Mrs. Greytok, a former member of the Public Utility Commission and former chairwoman of the Harris County Appraisal District, said in an interview with the AP Wednesday that she was unaware of any back taxes owed by Greytok Construction.

After being shown the documents from the secretary of state's office, Tipton Ross, the campaign manager for Mrs. Greytok, said the state comptroller's office has indicated Mrs. Greytok's company owes $128,27 in back taxes.

"This is an oversight that she was totally unaware of," Ross said. "Now that she has been made aware of it, she is going to take care of it first thing in the morning."

Texas Democratic Party spokesman Joe Cutbirth blasted Mrs. Greytok.

"I'm shocked that somebody who was the head of a tax appraisal district could owe the state that amount of money for eight years and not feel some responsibility to clear the books," Cutbirth said. "For her to be that irresponsible for that long and then ask the voters of Texas to put her in charge of an office the size of the land office is unbelievable."

Andres Gonzalez, campaign manager for Democratic Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, declined to comment, saying only "This speaks for itself."

Mrs. Greytok's dilemma with back taxes comes less than a week after Republican state comptroller candidate Teresa Doggett said she was unaware of back taxes owed by two companies in which she serves as a top executive.

A youth is held by a "zero tolerance" Dallas police gang unit recently. Gangs and drugs are blamed for Texas' continuing increase in juvenile and violent crime, a Texas state official said. Violent youth offenses rose 175 percent in the five years before 1993.

Violent teens spur curfews

The Associated Press

DALLAS — A steady increase in violent crime among Texas juveniles, fueled by gangs and drugs, has prompted a number of cities to adopt or consider teen curfews, state officials say.

In the four years before 1993, homicides, robberies and other violent youth offenses rose 165 percent, according to the Texas Juvenile Probation Commission.

The Texas Youth Commission said referrals of juveniles for violent acts have increased from 3,072 in 1986 to a projected 8,398 in 1993. Jay Lindgren, deputy executive director, said gangs and drugs are factors in the rise.

"There is no question that they play a significant role. About half of our kids report they are members of a gang or have gang involvement," he said Wednesday. "With some, it has replaced the family."

"One kid told me he knew his life was at risk. They figure that with a gang, they will die with at least a few friends," he said, adding that curfews could help stem such activity.

The state Juvenile Probation Commission said that in the first three months of 1994 — the most recent state figures available — delinquent conduct cases totaled 24,847, compared with 43,988 for the first six months of 1993.

"Gang activity is a big factor," Susan Dow, a spokeswoman for the agency in Austin, said. "In 1987 and 1988 is when we started seeing a jump in juvenile violent crime. That was also about the time that crack cocaine hit the streets. So drugs are also a factor."

Delinquent conduct includes homicide, sexual and aggravated assault, robbery, burglary, theft, motor vehicle theft, weapons violations and drug and other offenses.

Violent crimes — homicide, sexual assault, robbery and aggravated assault — totaled 8,533 last year, an increase from 7,217 in 1992. State records show 6,146 juveniles were involved in violent crimes in 1991, with 5,002 the previous year.

By contrast, only 2,762 were reported in 1985.

Those rising numbers helped spur officials from Panhandle cities like Dimmitt, Floydada and Plainview to Austin, San Antonio, Houston and Dallas to enact ordinances that, generally, prohibit teen-agers from being on the streets unescorted after 11 p.m. or midnight.

Fort Worth had a curfew, but repealed it when Dallas lost a federal court challenge of a similar ordinance. An appeals court overturned that ruling, action that was upheld last month by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Fort Worth City Council expects to revive its curfew as early as next week in the wake of a 321 percent increase in the number of Tarrant County juveniles accused of violent crimes over the past four years.

"The majority of the kids that are violent are gang members," said Assistant District Attorney Kenneth Mullin, head of the juvenile section. "We get drive-by shootings, walk-by robberies for shoes, and robberies for jackets. And we keep seeing more and more of them."

Juvenile authorities in 1989 referred 287 youths younger than 17 to the Tarrant County District Attorney's Office in investigations of violent offenses. By 1993, that number had grown to 1,210.

"Curfews make a difference. Around the state, residents are starting to reclaim their neighborhoods," said Ms. Dow.

In Odessa, where police records show 1,999 juvenile arrests last year, the Mayor's Drug and Crime Task Force is beginning statistical research that could clear the way for a curfew.

Elderly man receives probation in mercy killing

The Associated Press

Ann Haverstick

EL PASO — A 72-year-old man who admitted to the mercy killing of his ailing elderly wife has been sentenced to the lightest sentence possible — five years probation.

When the sentence was read Wednesday, William Knop of Las Cruces, stared at jurors, his hand over his mouth. Asked by state District Judge Lupe Rivera if he had anything to say about the decision, Knop replied: "No, your honor."

Knop had faced a maximum sentence of life in prison. He testified earlier this week that he killed his 81-year-old wife to end her pain and suffering, and that he missed her very much.

"It was a good verdict," said Joe Edd Boaz, Knop's attorney. "The jury was very compassionate. The trial was fair and it was just."

Jurors said Knop, who pleaded guilty in the killing, already has been serving a sentence.

"Yes, the rest of his life," said juror

Knop pleaded guilty Monday to shooting his wife in the back of her head with a .357-caliber Magnum handgun as she sat in a wheelchair at an El Paso rehabilitation hospital. Francis Knop died last Nov. 10.

A massive stroke last September had left her partially paralyzed and unable to speak. Knop said his wife, who didn't respond to therapy, always had worried about being incapacitated in a nursing home.

Juror Pamela Doherty said she was swayed toward a light sentence by the testimony of police detective Alfonso Marquez, who said Knop was a good candidate for probation.

Jurors said they discussed giving Knop 10 years' probation, but they said they never considered a prison sentence. By law, the nine-man, three-woman jury couldn't impose a sentence shorter than five years' probation.

In Monday's testimony, Knop admitted to shooting his wife of 46 years.

Early heat wave spells summer trouble

The Associated Press

The humid Texas heat is already here, an indication that summer could get ugly when it officially arrives in two weeks.

"Too soon to tell, but it's not a good start," National Weather Service meteorologist Matthew Sena said Wednesday.

Air conditioners in South Texas blasted to an energy-consumption record Tuesday. The Edwards Aquifer dropped almost 2 feet because so much water was used in one day. And San Angelo claimed the nation's hottest reading: 107 degrees.

Sena said San Angelo's 107 degrees on Tuesday broke the record high 104, set in 1963. The forecast called for 102 degrees Wednesday.

Normal temperatures for this time in San Angelo are in the low 90s, he said.

"If you don't have to be out in it, don't," Sena warned of the heat. "Drink plenty of fluids, rest often, wear light and loose clothes."

Fourteen Texas cities — most of them in the west and south parts of the state — broke 100 degrees Tuesday.

"We get a lot more customers coming in," said Eshe-Rae Adams, who scoops ice cream for Baskin-Robbins in San Angelo. "Most of the time they say, 'Ooh, feels good in here.'"

Forecasters were predicting possible relief for the northern half of Texas thanks to thunderstorms and a weak cool front Wednesday night.

But that didn't help much in the afternoon, as temperatures were in the 90s and heat indexes were in the 100s all over North Texas.

Coin toss settles mayoral election

CUNNEY (AP) — Mayor Lee Barnes says his luck hasn't been very good lately, but he was lucky enough to win another term in a coin toss to break a tie that had persisted through two elections.

Two earlier elections to select a mayor for the East Texas town of 55 ended in a tie between Barnes and challenger Ethylene King. The first ended 36-36 and the second, held last Saturday, wound up 44-44.

City officials consulted the latest Texas Election Law Book and the Texas Secretary of State's office and learned that state law provides for an election for mayor to be decided by a coin toss after two votes.

City officials and backers of both candidates met Wednesday at city hall for the deciding coin toss. The crowd included a Cherokee County deputy sheriff and a police officer.

First, officials recounted the votes from Saturday's election and determined that it was a tie.

Enchiladas staying on school menu

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The man in charge of school lunches at San Antonio knows that enchiladas are fattening and he knows that new federal requirements call for schools to cut the fat from cafeteria fare.

But John Duffy also knows what would happen if he cut the cheesy tortilla treats from the menu at San Antonio schools.

Students still can enjoy enchiladas so long as they are provided with less fatty meals the rest of the week, Duffy said Wednesday.

The Agriculture Department Wednesday unveiled new rules requiring schools to meet the government's nutritional guidelines for citizens.

Klan leader doesn't have to release records

AUSTIN (AP) — Ku Klux Klan leader Michael Lowe doesn't have to turn over to the state a list of members of the white supremacist group, under a ruling by the Texas Supreme Court.

State officials said they needed the list as part of an investigation into allegations the KKK illegally intimidated black residents of a Vidor housing project.

Without hearing oral arguments in the case, the court stated Wednesday in an unsigned opinion: "The rights to form, discuss and express unpopular views are protected fundamental rights."

The court said the state failed to show a compelling state interest in forcing Lowe to provide the names of members of the Texas Knights of Ku Klux Klan.

Space station supporters try to shore up support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration will fight to keep lawmakers from paring funds from the space station, a key lawmaker says.

White House budget director Leon Panetta pledged Wednesday that the administration would work to ensure Congress doesn't slash the $2.1 billion being sought next year for the space station, said Rep. James Sensenbrenner.

The Wisconsin Republican's comments came after he emerged from a closed-door meeting with Panetta, NASA Administrator Daniel Goldin and five House GOP members who support the project.

A longtime space station advocate, Sensenbrenner's support is now in question because of his profound concerns about the program's future. As ranking Republican on the House space subcommittee, his views about the $30 billion orbiting laboratory carry weight with many on Capitol Hill.

Whitewater account was often overdrawn

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Inside the failing Arkansas S&L owned by the one-time business partner of President Clinton and his wife, Hillary, the Whitewater Development Co. checkbook was routinely overdrawn. Each time the shortfalls were covered afterward — sometimes two weeks later — by transfers from James McDougal's other companies.

An Associated Press examination of the records identifies more than $100,000 in Whitewater checks written on the overdrawn account from 1984 through 1986.

Those overdrafts were covered by 18 deposits totaling $107,856 from other companies controlled by McDougal, the AP review shows.

All of these money transfers occurred inside the failing Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan, which was owned by McDougal and in which Whitewater and the other McDougal firms had their accounts.

These deposits are a key to S&L investigators' allegations that Whitewater was used as part of a scheme in which money was drained from Madison to McDougal companies through a series of revolving bad checks.

Madison failed in 1989 at a cost to taxpayers of $47 million and eventually triggered the investigation of Whitewater and Clinton finances by special counsel Robert Fiske.

The allegations were turned over to Fiske in the form of 10 criminal referrals. Civil investigators file such referrals when they come across information they feel could merit criminal prosecution.

The Clintons were equal partners in Whitewater with McDougal and his former wife, Susan.

In a statement, Clinton attorney David Kendall said the Clintons "were not involved in the operation and management of Whitewater Development Co. and did not keep its records."

When McDougal was felled by a stroke and depression in the late 1980s, Kendall said, Hillary Rodham Clinton "took certain limited but necessary steps to wrap up and wind down the company's affairs properly."

McDougal has denied wrongdoing. His lawyer, Sam Heuer, acknowledged this week that there were overdrafts at Whitewater but dismissed the investigators' allegations. "We're not guilty of any criminal activities," he said.

Money from Whitewater's overdrawn account went to figures as diverse as former Arkansas Sen. J. William Fulbright and a northern Arkansas real estate agent.

In the real estate agent's case, he and his company received $28,000 in Whitewater money, then two months later arranged to buy $35,000 worth of lots from the land venture, the AP's review found.

Only one check identified by AP — for $143.65 — went to the Clintons, an apparent reimbursement for property taxes.

An individual close to the Clintons, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that during the time Mrs. Clinton was involved in Whitewater's operations she discovered and tried to rectify several problems — unpaid real estate and franchise taxes and overdue income tax returns.

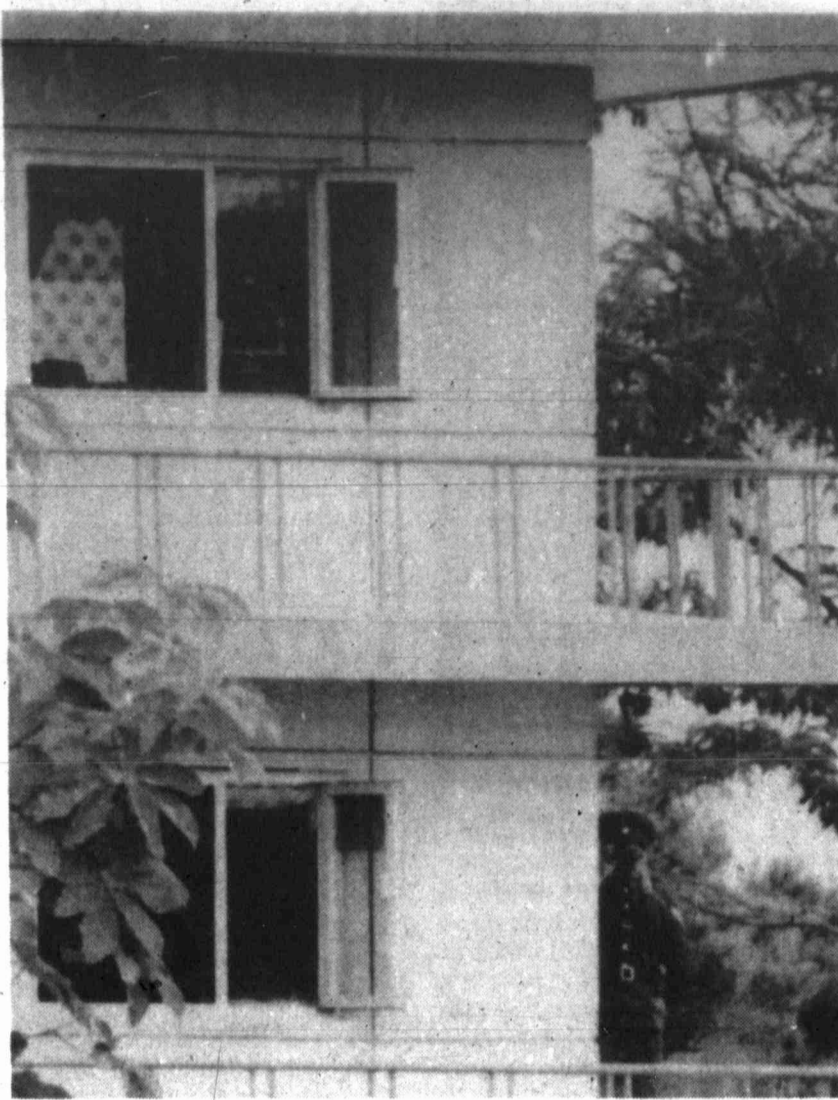

But Mrs. Clinton did not have access to the company's checkbook, which was controlled by McDougal and his wife, according to the Clinton confidant.

Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, a leading Whitewater critic in Congress, speculated McDougal's payments saved Clinton, who was Arkansas governor at the time, from having to put his own money into Whitewater when its accounts were overdrawn.

"You have this picture in which a public official is a significant player being bailed out... from a failed institution," Leach said, noting that some McDougal deposits came from companies directly funded by Madison.

The AP reconstructed most of Whitewater's financial affairs for 1984 through 1986 — a key period in Fiske's investigation — identifying several previously unreported transactions affecting its main checking account at McDougal's S&L.

The computer-assisted effort used records released by Republican congressional investigators, McDougal and the White House over the past year and from sources in Washington, Arkansas and elsewhere who are familiar with the company.

Two North Korean soldiers peer through binoculars to monitor the South Korean area of the Demilitarized Zone between the two Koreas. N. Korea has threatened Japan with war if the country joins in the sanctions planned against N. Korea and its suspected nuclear weapons program.

N. Korea: War if Japan joins in the sanctions

The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — North Korea today threatened Japan with war if the Tokyo government joins in any sanctions over the North's suspected nuclear weapons program.

The Communist state has previously said that sanctions would amount to an act of war, but by targeting Japan with threats it could be seeking to split the pro-sanctions alliance forged by Washington, Seoul and Tokyo.

If Japan joins in sanctions, North Korea "would regard it as a declaration of war and Japan would be unable to evade a deserving punishment for it," the official Korean Central News Agency said in a dispatch monitored in Tokyo.

Japan has said it supports sanctions to punish North Korea over its refusal to prove its nuclear program is peaceful.

But Japanese officials are worried about the reaction of the nearly quarter million North Koreans living in Japan who send millions of dollars to North Korea every year.

And defense officials say major Japanese cities except Tokyo lie within range of the Rodong-1 missiles that North Korea has been test-launching.

Heavy quake takes few lives in Bolivia

The Associated Press

LA PAZ, Bolivia — A powerful earthquake sent panicked Bolivians, Chileans and Brazilians into the streets and was felt as far away as Canada, but there were no reports of casualties or major damage.

The 7.8 magnitude quake Wednesday evening, which caused power outages in parts of Chile and Bolivia, was unusually deep in the earth and centered in a sparsely populated area.

A quake of magnitude 7 is capable of widespread, heavy damage, and a magnitude 8 quake can cause tremendous damage.

But because Wednesday's quake was 400 miles beneath the earth's surface, "there pretty much won't be much damage," said seismologist Jim Mori of the California Institute of Technology, which measured the quake's force.

Mori said the quake, centered about 200 miles northeast of Bolivia's largest city, La Paz, was felt as far away as Toronto. There were also reports of tremors in California and throughout the U.S. midwest, including Iowa, South Dakota, Nebraska, and Minnesota.

Deep quakes send shock waves far into the distance because the rocks at those depths are more elastic, Mori told reporters in Pasadena, Calif.

"The reverberations from the waves will continue for days," he said, but there will be fewer aftershocks than the thousands from more shallow quakes, such as January's 6.7 quake in Northridge, Calif., which killed 61 and caused at least $20 billion in damage.

Tremors were felt Wednesday in southern Peru and northern Argentina, the Chilean government's national Emergency Office said, and in most of the highlands that cover a third of Bolivia, including La Paz.

Hundreds of people fled buildings in La Paz. Reporter Rocia Bernal of Brazil's TV Globo, told Chilean television by telephone from La Paz that parts of the city were out of power.

TV Globo, the largest Brazilian television network, reported a large tremor in southern Brazil but no damage or casualties. There were also reports of damage to some buildings in the capital, Brasilia, and the southern metropolis of Sao Paulo.

Chilean police said thousands of people took to the streets in panic in northern Chile. Power and telephone lines were cut in several cities. The director of the Government Emergency Office, Alberto Maturana, said the quake rocked an area of about 615 square miles.

In Sioux City, Iowa, businessman Pat Gill "felt a steady bump" while working on the 12th floor of a downtown building. "I went out to look at the water cooler. It was spooky to see the water shaking back and forth," he said.

Bruce Prager of the National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo., said: "This is the first time in memory that this has happened, where a quake that far south in South America has been felt up here."

National vaccine plan a little behind schedule

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The government announced an ambitious national vaccine plan today that calls for attacking six childhood diseases, providing personal reminders when it's time for children's shots and developing a series of new and improved vaccines.

But the plan, seven years in the making, is a little behind schedule. Even as the government's National Vaccine Office was writing the 120-page guide, other agencies already were putting it into motion.

People "clearly didn't wait for a plan to come out," acknowledged Dr. Tony Robbins, director of the National Vaccine Office.

"It's really just a framework... I hope what it does is make people who have a role to play in getting immunizations to be as effective as they can be," he said.

The only surprise in the report is the Clinton administration's hope that enough children will be vaccinated by 1996 — just 1½ years after the start of an intensive immunization drive — to virtually eliminate the six childhood diseases in the United States.

One of the diseases, polio, is now thought to be eradicated in the Western Hemisphere. But the others — tetanus, measles, rubella, diphtheria and a type of meningitis caused by haemophilus influenza type B — still strike tens of thousands of children each year.

Control and Prevention, the government spent the last year beginning programs to immunize more children at no charge, educate parents, set up a national registry to notify parents when it's time for a child's shots and set priorities for developing new or improved vaccines.

But Congress passed a law in 1986 requiring development of the plan.

"This plan isn't new, but it's a good plan, a comprehensive plan, that for the first time articulates all the elements," said Deborah Clark of the National Immunization Campaign, a longtime lobby for a better national approach to vaccinations.

Clinton won't negotiate with Haitian military

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Having been burned once, the Clinton administration is ruling out a negotiated political settlement with Haiti's military leaders on grounds they can't be trusted, officials say.

Instead, the administration is pursuing a get-tough strategy that relies almost exclusively on economic sanctions to force the military's surrender.

U.S. officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Wednesday that existing sanctions are expected to be tightened further Friday when the administration plans to bar commercial air traffic to and from Haiti and to prohibit all financial transactions with Haiti.

The administration gave the coup leaders a chance at a negotiated settlement last year, but they reneged on a promise to step down and to allow the return of deposed President Jean-Bertrand Aristide.

The officials said the administration does not want to become involved in new negotiations out of concern that Haiti's leaders will string out the process indefinitely and fail to live up to commitments all over again.

In Haiti, police and armed civilians stopped two cars carrying U.N. observers, smashed their radios and seized a handgun, U.N. officials said Wednesday. It was one of the most serious confrontations involving observers since they arrived in Haiti after the September 1991 coup that ousted Aristide.

Hours before the Tuesday night incident, the army-installed government threatened to arrest Premier Robert Malval, who was appointed by Aristide.

William Gray, President Clinton's special adviser on Haiti, said Wednesday that the fresh displays of resolve by the United States and the international community in general are weakening the base of support of the Haitian regime.

He said he has received information that some pro-military elements are now rethinking their position.

Democrats pressing on with health bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats in the House and Senate are pressing ahead with bills to guarantee that most Americans get health insurance through their jobs. Republicans are standing firm against these employer mandates.

Rep. Sam M. Gibbons, D-Fla., today yields the gavel of the House Ways and Means Committee for the first time as the panel starts work on the universal coverage plan outlined Monday. It would open up Medicare to the poor, uninsured and workers from small firms.

The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, which backed both an employer mandate and price controls on premiums Wednesday, was struggling to wrap up its work tonight and become the first panel in Congress to approve sweeping health reforms.

Espy's travel is under investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department is investigating whether Agriculture Secretary Mike Espy took free travel, lodging and tickets to sporting events from Tyson Foods Inc., a poultry company with close ties to President Clinton.

Espy spokesman Steve Kinsella confirmed late Wednesday that the department was investigating assertions about Espy's conduct made in March in a Wall Street Journal article.

But Kinsella refused comment on reports in today's New York Times that investigators also were looking into a trip Espy took to Arkansas in May 1993 as a guest of Tyson, and other possible gifts.

At issue is whether Espy violated a prohibition in a 1907 meat inspection statute against taking gifts. Violation is punished by a mandatory year in prison.

Clinton considering easing Serb sanctions

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The Clinton administration is considering an easing of sanctions against Serbia if the Muslim-led government in Bosnia rejects a plan for ending the war in the former Yugoslav republic, a senior U.S. official said today.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher is discussing that option with West European foreign ministers at a NATO meeting here. It already has the approval of France, which has threatened to withdraw its peacekeepers if there is no negotiated settlement.

Spurred by a ceasefire agreement between Muslims and Serbs the administration is preparing with European allies and Russia a "reasonable solution" to the bloody dispute in Bosnia.

The map, which should be ready within weeks, contains territorial and other concessions to the Muslims. As a result, it probably will get their approval, said the senior U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

NATO taking up Russian request

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — The

NATO allies are taking up a Russian demand for a special relationship with the alliance, formed initially to confront Moscow's military threat to Western Europe. Secretary of State Warren Christopher says the role should reflect Russia's "unique capabilities."

Others are reluctant to meet Russia's demand for a say in NATO's European security plans, officials said before today's one-day meeting of alliance foreign ministers.

Even so, Russia is sure to be asked on Friday to sign a Partnership for Peace accord. Twenty former communist states, from Albania to Uzbekistan, have signed up and been assigned liaison offices at headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Brussels, Belgium.

Christopher said NATO needs to have a dialogue with Russia on areas outside the partnership that reflects Russia's size and "important contributions" it can make to European security.

The Houston Rockets' Hakeem Olajuwon, left, goes for two points over the New York Knicks' Patrick Ewing during the first quarter of Game 1 of the NBA Finals Wednesday. Houston won to take a 1 games to none lead in the series.

Rockets lift off with Game 1 win

The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston was lured into a low-scoring game of attrition in the second half by the New York Knicks, who usually thrive on that situation.

That the Rockets won anyway had them feeling lucky, like someone who just ducked one of those Nolan Ryan fastballs that used to fly around these parts.

"This is the worst we've played in awhile," guard Kenny Smith said after Houston escaped with an 85-78 victory in the opener of the NBA Finals on Wednesday night. "We were fortunate to get away with a win. Carl Herrera looked like he was the only one that had been playing all along."

While the Rockets complained of rustiness after an eight-day layoff, the one player who looked sharp was Herrera, the reserve center-forward from Venezuela who last played on May 17. Herrera, averaging 2.8 points in the playoffs, finished with 10 on 5-for-6 shooting, helping Houston build a first-half lead it never lost.

The Rockets won despite scoring only 31 points in the second half, just one more than the worst performance for any half in Finals history. They did it by playing the Knicks' style almost as well as the Knicks do — holding New York to 32 points in the second half.

Those 63 points by both teams were a whopping 10 less than the previous second-half scoring low in the Finals. Seattle and Washington combined for 73 in 1979.

Houston has a reputation for relying on Hakeem Olajuwon and the 3-pointer, but the Rockets used their underrated defense to stay ahead of the Knicks throughout the second half, although New York closed a 12-point deficit to three in the fourth period.

SportsExtra, page 8

Olajuwon did his part in the first half, scoring 19 points on 9-for-13 shooting. But in the second half, he had just nine more points and missed eight of nine shots from the field.

Because New York matched Houston's four 3-pointers and because the Rockets made just 26 percent of their shots in the second half, it would be logical to assume that the Knicks could win down the stretch, a strategy that proved victorious earlier in the playoffs.

But by making just 24 percent — 12-for-50 — in the second half, New York just didn't have the offense to make a successful run.

"We had a chance to win the game if we just make the shots," Knicks coach Pat Riley said. "But that's a universal disease of ours. We let it slip away at the free-throw line and from the perimeter."

Especially from the perimeter, where John Starks was 3-for-18,

Derek Harper 3-for-10 and Hubert Davis 1-for-6. Center Patrick Ewing, despite his 23 points, also was forced outside for most of his shots and missed 16 of 26.

The Rockets had last played on May 31 against Utah in the Western Conference finals, and they admitted the layoff was a bother.

"There's nothing like a game situation," said guard Vernon Maxwell, just 4-for-16 for the Rockets. "In the next game Friday, I'm sure I'll do a lot better."

Houston coach Rudy Tomjanovich said the layoff "definitely affected us. We had great looks at the basket that we didn't take advantage of. Defense carried us."

The Rockets, ahead 54-46 after shooting 53 percent in the first half, had a 77-65 lead with 8:53 left that New York trimmed to 79-76 with 2:13 remaining. But a free throw by Olajuwon and a dunk by Otis Thorpe, who had 16 rebounds, built the lead to 82-76 with 1:02 left.

A jumper by Hubert Davis cut the Houston lead to 82-78, and when Robert Horry missed a 3-pointer with 38 seconds left, New York had a chance.

Ewing, hoping to lift the Knicks to victory the way he did in the clincher against Indiana with a rebound dunk with 26 seconds remaining, missed a 3-pointer with 27 seconds to play. Houston finished the scoring with a free throw by Maxwell with 21 seconds left and two by Sam Cassell with 7.4 seconds remaining.

about the salary cap plan.

"The issue in Don's eyes should not be one of the symbols," Ravitch said today. "It should be, 'What's his proposal?' All this war talk I guess makes good reading but it doesn't help the game. What would be constructive is for him to make a proposal."

The owners' three-day meeting concludes today with a report from expansion committee head John Harrington of the Boston Red Sox. Harrington said no votes or major announcements are expected.

Wednesday's other main business was the election of Gene Budig to succeed Bobby Brown as AL president on Aug. 1. Budig has been chancellor of the University of Kansas for 13 years and a director of the Kansas City Royals.

"At age 55, it's time to do something new and different," he said. "I love this game. It's a real honor to be associated with it."

Budig said he's in favor of the designated hitter and will make preventing on-field fights a top priority.

But the main concern is over labor strife, which could lead to baseball's eighth work stoppage since 1972. Players, who have said they believe caps would decrease their salaries, are considering whether to strike during the second half of the season. Many believe a strike deadline will be set July 11, when the executive board meets in Pittsburgh.

"If there's a strike, I essentially have to go with the union," said Ken Griffey Jr. of the Seattle Mariners, who already has 23 homers this season. "I'd be upset like everybody, but there's nothing that can be done."

In the past, squabbling among owners has fractured their bargaining position. That's why the voting change was made Wednesday.

"I think it is a strong statement of unity," San Francisco Giants owner Peter Magowan said.

Clubs voted in January to increase the amount of revenue they share among themselves, but made that change contingent on the players agreeing to a salary cap. Small-market clubs say they need the changes to compete with large-market clubs, who have much larger broadcast revenue.

Fehr is worried clubs unilaterally will impose a salary cap after the season unless the union goes on strike to force an agreement.

Steers took different path to 1992 finals

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

No one was shocked when the Big Spring Steers made the state baseball tournament this year — pleasantly surprised, maybe, but not shocked.

But when the Steers made their first state tournament appearance in 1992, "shocked" didn't adequately express people's emotions.

Stunned might do the trick. Sheer disbelief would do fine as well.

As the Steers opened their baseball season that year, they had a 32-year-old, first-year head coach and a team loaded with talented but untested sophomores.

The experts took one look at that team and decided it would be lucky to finish in the top four of its district.

Instead, it finished in the top four of the state.

Early in the season, though, the team looked as mediocre as its preseason predictions with a 5-7 record entering district play. What distressed first year head coach Bobby Doe the most was that, at that juncture, the Steers had only scored five runs in their previous seven games.

But things changed in a hurry.

With senior leaders Abel Hilario and Gerald Cobos, along with the bevy of sophomores, the Steers opened district play by upsetting preseason favorite Andrews 4-3, and they were never far from the district lead after that.

The bleakest part of the season came when Big Spring fell to Lake View April 28 to fall to third place with three district games remaining, but district leaders Pecos and Andrews lost their remaining games, allowing Big Spring and Sweetwater to end up tied for the district lead at the end of the season. After losing an extra game with Sweetwater, the Steers entered the playoffs with an unassuming 12-13-1 record.

Doe surveyed his pitching-thin staff and decided the best chance of success would be to have one-game playoffs with opponents, instead of the traditional best-of-three series.

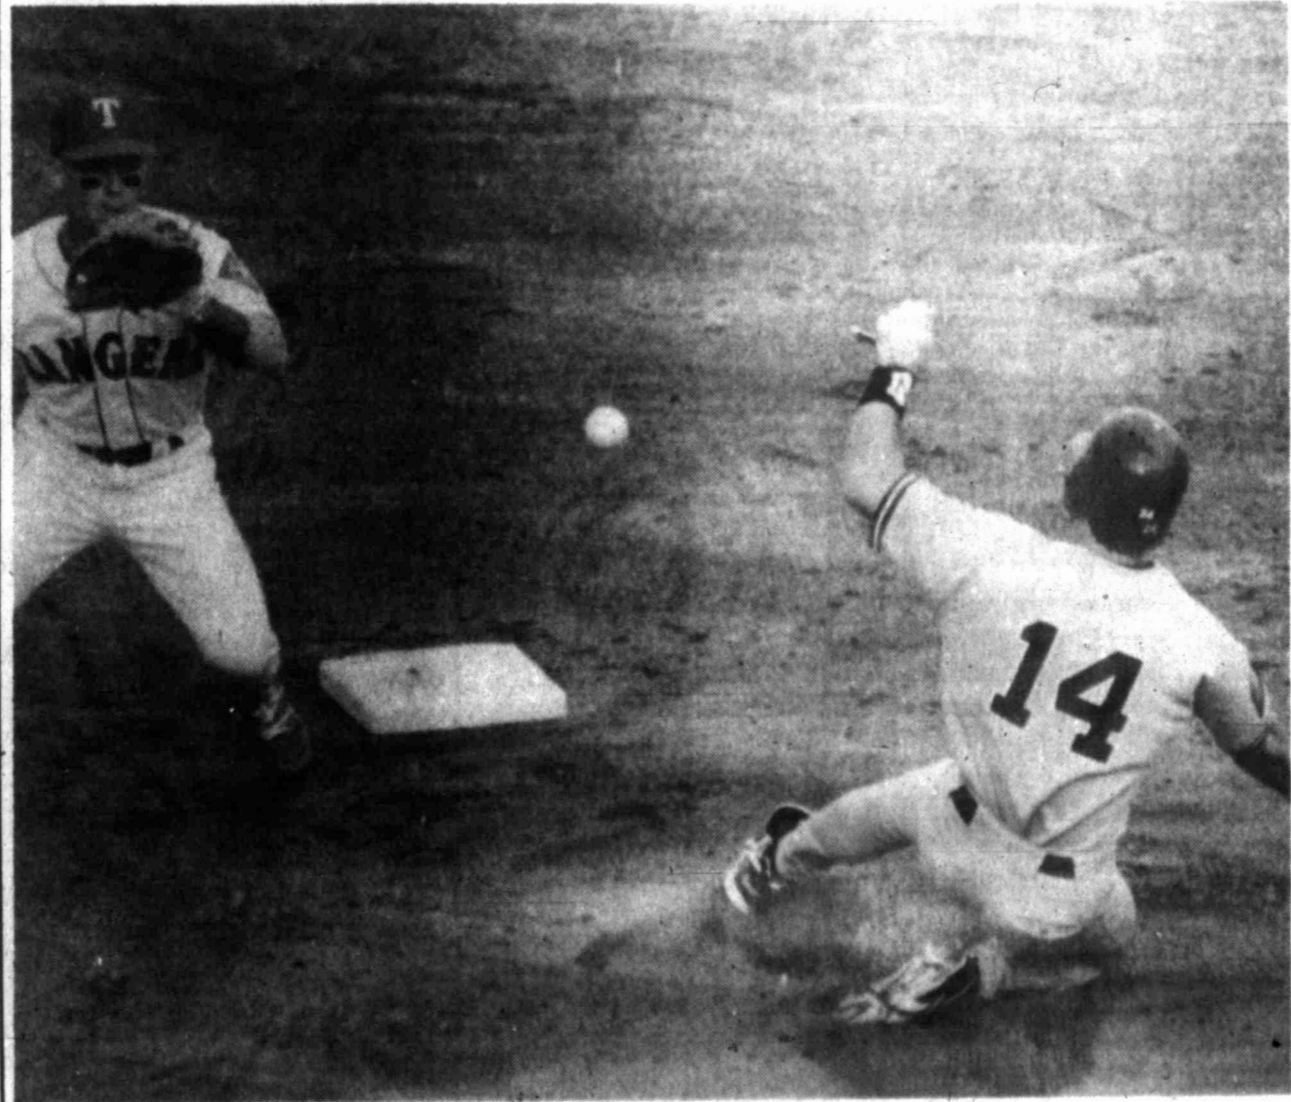

The strategy worked to perfection. Big Spring edged state power Frenship 1-0, walloped Burkburnett 11-1, then cut down the potential tying run at the plate in the bottom of the seventh inning to defeat Lamesa 6-5 for the Region I championship.

The Steers' Cinderella season came to an abrupt end at the state semifinals, as they dropped an 8-4 decision to Robstown in Austin. But that defeat failed to dampen the joy obtained by the team's improbable success.

"I'll look back on this season and say it was the most enjoyable time I've had in the sport," Doe said at the time.

Taking second

New York Yankee runner Pat Kelly (14) advances to second base ahead of the throw from first to Texas Ranger second baseman Jeff Frye during the second inning in Arlington Wednesday. Kelly made it safely to second after the Rangers caught Kelly leading off too far from first, but the Rangers won to improve to .500, good enough to lead the American League Western Division. For more on the Rangers, see page 6.

Record and near-record catches showed up at Lake O.H. Ivie last week, and at Lake J.B. Thomas black bass in the larger ranges were reported.

Rex and Tracy Ross, Temple, took a 40-lb. yellow catfish off their line, a new record for this species at Lake Ivie. Jeff Buxkemper, Talpa, reeled in a 9.2 lb. black bass, second only to one 9 ounces heavier by Church Fouch, Fort Stockton, two weeks ago.

Included in black bass catches at Lake Thomas were: Jay Ross, Lubbock, 6 3/4 - lbs.; Pat Reed, Big Spring, 5 1/2-lbs.; Tommy Hind, Brownfield 5 3/4-lbs. Ricky Watson, Snyder, caught 10 and 10 3/4-lb. blue catfish using model A Bomber. Bass were striking best off rocky and brushy points; white bass occasionally took 10-oz. Roadrunner jigs.

Water was 72 degrees surface at Lake Ivie, clear except for murky up river and upper creek channels. Black bass continued to strike vigorously with top-water lures best early and late along shorelines; also dark-colored plastic worms worked well. Small-mouth bass were being taken along rocky ledges and off points in 20-30 of water, preferring worms, jigs and minnows.

Lake Spence results included:

PAINT CREEK MARINA - Donnie, John and Chris Brian, Odessa, caught six striper totalling 13 3/4-lbs.; Paul Lane, San Angelo, trolled for a 19 1/2-lb. striper; Brannon Rickerson, Odessa, used an artificial purple worm to catch a 4-lb black bass; Bennie Massen, Midland, set the pace with a 21 3/4 -lb striper while trolling; Randy Offield, Midland, totalled 16 1/2-lbs. of striper on spinner bait; Gery Etchison, Midland, reeled in a 7-lb., 15-oz. black bass; Allen Wilson, San Angelo, caught a 17 1/2-lb striper; Elsie Thomas, Robert Lee, used a chartreuse Sassy Shad to catch an 8 1/4-lb. striper; K.J. and Jimmy Pitt, Lubbock, trolled to bring in 10 striper; Chris and Ann Brian, Midland, baited with minnows for six striper aggregating 15 lbs.; Jerry Jones and James Junnigan, Midland, trolled and caught 10 striper.

Rangers win, move to .500

The Associated Press

ARLINGTON — All Texas manager Kevin Kennedy had to do to hold down New York's potent trio of Wade Boggs, Don Mattingly and Paul O'Neill was keep sending left-handers to the mound.

It worked as Yankees manager Buck Showalter kept his big guns on the bench and four Texas lefties combined for a 6-5 victory Wednesday night that put the AL West-leading Rangers at .500 for the first time this season.

"That's the fun of managing," Kennedy said. "It's a chess game. It's being ready for situations. That's what managing is."

The battle was less satisfying for Showalter, who saw his team outlast Texas 12-6 but leave the bases loaded in the seventh and score only once when it had the bases loaded and none out in the ninth.

"We liked the matchups that we had," said Showalter, whose team lost for the seventh time in 10 games. "I can pull the trigger anytime but we got 12 hits and five walks. We just didn't get it done defensively."

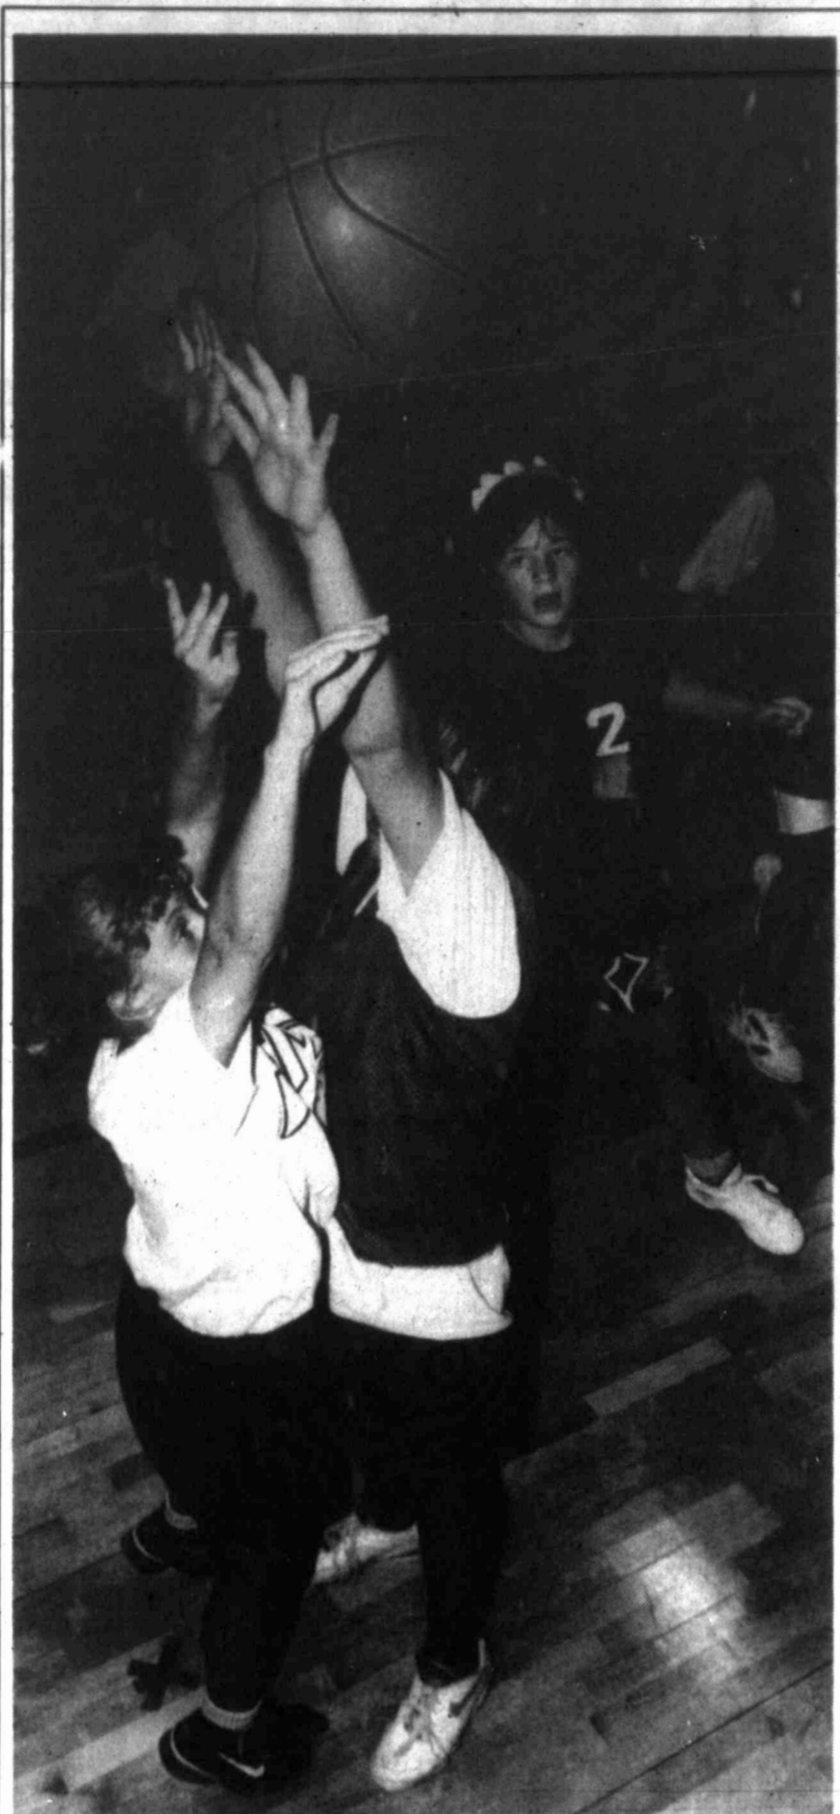

Texas withstood all the threats behind veterans Bruce Hurst and Rick Honeycutt, plus help from rookies Dan Smith and Darren Oliver.

Smith (1-0), who left the bases loaded in the seventh, wound up with his first big-league win and Oliver, who got out of the ninth-inning jam, earned his first career save.

The Rangers, who have led the West with a losing record since May 30, had seven previous tries at breaking even and lost them all.

They evened their record at 28-28 by winning five of their last six and eight of 10.

"It's great, but we obviously want to take off from here," Kennedy said.

City Little League Tournament

AL Braves win wild one over NL Cards

DAVE HARGRAVE

Matt Green, pitcher for the American League Braves, was struggling to survive in the second inning Wednesday. By the sixth inning, however, his catcher was kissing his feet.

In one of eight games played in the City Little League tournament Wednesday, the Braves survived a seven-run inning by the National League Cardinals and won 18-13 at the NL field. The Braves play the International League Longhorns, a top seed, tonight at 8 p.m. at the IL field.

Why was catcher Dusty Sumpter kissing Green's feet after retired the Cards in order in the fifth inning? "During the fourth inning, I told him that if he started getting batters out, if he started throwing strikes, I'd kiss his feet," Sumpter said. "He did, so I did."

Sumpter's deal with his pitcher resulted from Green's miserable second inning. The Braves, the No. 4 seed out of the AL, led 3-0 over the second-seeded Cardinals, but Green proceeded to walk five batters and hit another as the Cards scored seven runs without a hit. Two Brave errors didn't help matters.

The Braves scored three in the top of the third to move within one at 7-6, and they took a 10-8 lead with a four-run fourth. The Braves scored in all six innings, and Green led the way, going 3-for-4 with two doubles, a triple, an RBI and three runs scored.

Green didn't find himself in major trouble again until the sixth, when the Cards scored five runs, but by that time the Braves had a 10-run advantage.

John Purcell was the top hitter for the Cards, going 2-for-5 with two singles and two RBIs.

Scores from the other seven games Wednesday were:

- IL Longhorns 14, NL Lions 11
 - AL Astros 13, AL Cardinals 3
 - CL Reds 5, IL Royals 1
 - IL Rebels 12, IL Indians 9
 - NL Rangers 9, AL Colts 3
 - CL Ponies 12, IL Panthers 3
 - AL Stars 8, CL Astros 6
- Play continues tonight in the championship bracket with four 8 p.m. games. Elimination bracket games start at 5:45 p.m.

Stanley Cup Finals

New York one win from ending curse

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Vancouver Canucks face an awesome task: beating the New York Rangers three straight times in the Stanley Cup finals.

The Rangers' task may be even more burdensome: beating their own ghosts of the past.

"It's been more than 50 years since the team has won the Stanley Cup, but from a player's point of view you can't think about that," Rangers forward Esa Tikkanen said. "We have to play our game and try to win before we think about anything else."

So far, the Rangers have been successful in keeping their "focus," as they call it.

With a 3-1 lead in the best-of-7 series, the Rangers are one victory away from winning their first Cup since 1940. Like it or not, they have been constantly reminded by fans and media of that bitter, frustrating streak.

Tonight, in Game 5 at Madison Square Garden, they can put the so-called "curse" to rest.

"It's going to be something we'll have to deal with going into the next game," Rangers coach Mike Keenan said of the long-suffering fans who will be at a boiling point of emotion. "The place will be a madhouse."

To Canucks general manager-coach Pat Quinn, that may not be such a bad thing for his team.

"We have to try to channel it, we have to try to feed off it," Quinn said of the crowd's energy. "That's one of the parts of the equation that athletes have to deal with in some rinks."

"We've gone into some buildings like that. I know that it might be a negative to their hockey team. All of a sudden, they're smelling 50-some-odd years disappear, the old hex. So maybe that might tighten them up a bit."

The last time the Rangers were in the finals was 1979, when they were beaten by a superior Montreal team.

This time, the situations are reversed.

It's the Rangers who are the favorites, following a season in which they finished first overall in the standings and beat the New York Islanders, Washington Capitals and New Jersey Devils en route to the finals.

It isn't Austin, but Little League's OK

It isn't Austin, but it could be worse.

Monday marked the start of the City Little League tournament, and since Herald sportswriter Steve Reagan has followed the Big Spring Steers all the way from pre-district to Austin, the duty of covering this week's Little League action fell on me.

Little League. Sure, I can handle it, and I'll like it, I kept telling myself.

Like a mother tells her son to eat broccoli.

Oh, the Little League tournament seemed promising, and I wanted to find out more about the largest Little League tournament my young eyes have seen, but when I imagined Reagan phoning in his hotel reservations, I wanted to pull the receiver out of his hand.

"No, ma'am, that's Hargrave!" I'd say to the reservation lady as I steal the phone. "H-A-R-G-R-A-V-E. Oh, that guy that was just talking? Reagan? Oh, he's not going anywhere. Now, can you get me a room near the pool?"

But I didn't do that. I showed remarkable restraint. I'm proud of myself.

Give me a cookie. Austin is where I'd rather be, but somebody's got to hold the fort. It didn't bother me that much until Monday night, as I was driving to the opening game of the tournament. Suddenly, this fear gripped

Dave Hargrave

A phobia of ugly baseball.

I remember my Little League days. Pitchers would throw no-hitters but lose 12-9. Players would drop bunts and circle the bases while the fielders chucked the ball all over the diamond, and after the fiasco the public address announcer graciously lauds the "home run."

I didn't want to go through it again, and thankfully, I didn't have to. I've seen three games so far, and each one has been a close, clean contest. Well, Wednesday's night game, where the American League Braves beat the National League Cardinals 18-13, was a bit sloppy, but it kept you entertained.

I've been a sportswriter for three years, but I had never covered a Little League game until this week. Oh, I had taken plenty of pictures at Little League games, but actually writing a game story?

Never been there, and never expected to be.

Funny how the most pleasant surprises usually come when you do something you've never done before.

Astros, Bagwell blast Montreal

The Associated Press

MONTREAL — Three weeks in the minors was time well spent for Brian Williams.

Williams won his third straight decision since returning from Triple-A and produced at the plate Wednesday night in Houston's 9-2 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Jeff Bagwell hit two home runs and Williams went 2-for-4 and drove in the deciding runs as the Astros snapped Montreal's six-game winning streak and avoided a three-game sweep.

After starting the season 0-2, not getting out of the fourth inning in either start, Williams was demoted to Triple-A Tuscon May 7. He was 2-0 in three starts there, allowing just five earned runs in 20 1-3 innings. He was recalled May 27 and has been sharp ever since.

"I think there was a jolt there," said the right-hander, who replaced the injured Pete Harnisch in the rotation. "But the main thing was I worked on what was wrong. I was throwing the ball up in the zone a lot before. I went down there with the same attitude as I would have up here."

Williams (3-2) went a season-high eight innings Wednesday night and tied a career high with six strikeouts. He allowed two earned runs and walked two.

He was a career .136 hitter before this season, but broke a 2-2 tie in the sixth with a two-out, two-run single to left on an 0-2 pitch from Jeff Fassero.

Astros manager Terry Collins said the demotion wasn't designed to shake Williams up, but to allow him to work out some kinks.

Jose Carnero, left, of the American League Braves beats out an infield hit in the first inning of Wednesday's early game at the National League field. The first baseman is the NL Cardinals' Chris Villis (14). The Braves, the No. 4 seed out of the AL, won 18-13 over the second-seeded Cardinals. All top seeds - the IL Longhorns, the CL Reds, the NL Rangers and the AL Stars - won their first-round games Wednesday and will be playing tonight in the championship bracket.

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Settle down and make the most out of the caring aspects around you. Good communications surround you. Now is the time to clear up a situation involving a family member. Be direct about your choices and directions. Tonight: Settle down. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your talkative side emerges. Do not let another intimidate you. You know what's going on, and what's important to you. Creative options abound. You are more together than you have been in a long time. Tonight: Chat up a storm. *****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Move along. Be clear about a financial change. You have the wherewithal to make money and to handle a situation clearly. Be aware of your limits and your directions. You can get to the bottom of a problem. Tonight: Don't overindulge. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You have charm to spare right now and can move a situation forward. Listen carefully to your intuition, and be clear about your directions. You might need to make a choice. Tonight: Be your sparkling self. *****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You are mysterious, knowing certain things intuitively, sensing which way to go. Honor what's happening, and be ready to make a positive change. Talk through a problem. Aim for greater happiness. Tonight: Vanish. **

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Zero in on what's important to you. Do not mince words. Be clear about your choices. Another cares and needs extra time to discuss feelings. Communications are fulfilling. Tonight: Hang out. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your image is important right now. Greater clarity about how others view you helps you move in new directions. You might want to accept a business proposition. Welcome the opportunity for money and security. Tonight: Make a must appearance. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Create solutions instead of problems. Be positive. Important news comes your way. You face an exciting change.

Listen more carefully to a family member who cares a lot about you. Tonight: Understand the positive way another approaches life. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Follow your instincts when dealing with a key partner. Don't let another make light of what's happening. Be positive about your potential. Make time for a new suitor or your partner. Financial negotiations succeed. Tonight: Enjoy. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Others might have a lot to say; read between the lines. Focus on greater understanding and happiness. Success seems a stone's throw away and can be, with a positive approach. Indulge another. A meeting is important. Tonight: Say yes. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Finish up details involving work and plan-making. Solve problems and remain optimistic. A boss is impressed by your command of your field and your ability to project to the public. A loved one has a secret to share. Tonight: Be a nurturer. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You love every moment of this day. Discuss what you want for the future from a loved one and be ready to talk about your present relationship. Creativity is high, and your ingenuity allows you to attain certain goals. Tonight: Make this a great night. *****

IF JUNE 10, 1994 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: It could be an exceptional year financially and professionally. Make the most of the golden opportunities that come your way. You'll gain a new sense of what's appropriate and what your long-term goals are. Prepare to make choices differently.

Listen to your instincts about romance and caring. If you are single, you'll meet people naturally through work. If you are attached, be more nurturing and indulgent with a loved one. CANCER brings out the best in you.

Today is Thursday, June 9, the 160th day of 1994. There are 205 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:
Forty years ago, on June 9, 1954, a dramatic confrontation took place during the Senate-Army hearings as Army counsel Joseph N. Welch assailed Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy for his denunciation of a member of Welch's law firm, Frederick G. Fisher. Said Welch: "Have you no sense of decency, sir? At long last, have you left no sense of decency?"

On this date:
In A.D. 68, the Roman Emperor Nero committed suicide.
In 1860, the first dime novel — "Malaeska, The Indian Wife of the White Hunter" — was published.
In 1870, author Charles Dickens died in Godshill, England.
In 1940, Norway surrendered to the Nazis during World War II.
In 1953, about 100 people died when a tornado struck Worcester, Mass.
In 1969, the U.S. Senate confirmed Warren Burger to be the new chief justice of the United States, succeeding Earl Warren.
In 1973, Secretariat became horse racing's first Triple Crown winner in 25 years by winning the Belmont Stakes.
In 1978, leaders of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints struck down a 148-year-old policy of excluding black men from the Mormon priesthood.
In 1980, comedian Richard Pryor suffered almost fatal burns at his San Fernando Valley, Calif., home when a mixture of free-base cocaine exploded.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Etiquette surpassed by family deaths

DEAR ABBY: I know I will never see this in print, but I have to get it out of my system. I taught all of my children to write thank-you notes as soon as they were able to print, and I was always very prompt with my own. However, I have buried two children. One was 20 and the other was 21, and you and a hundred etiquette experts will never convince me that I should have sent thank-you notes to everyone who sent flowers.

For months, I didn't even feel like getting out of bed in the morning, and there were days when I didn't know night from day. Sometimes now, more than 20 years later, I am still not sure.

Abby, there is absolutely nothing you can say that will make me believe that all those people who sent flowers and cards expected a thank-you note. — STILL GRIEVING

DEAR STILL GRIEVING: You have experienced every parent's worst nightmare twice, which is more than the human spirit should be expected to endure. Every parent who has buried a child of any age will sympathize with you.

However, those who sent flowers and cards deserve some kind of acknowledgment. Family members and close friends usually volunteer to handle the task of getting out the thank-you notes: Printed expressions of gratitude for all occasions are available in stationery shops — and there are printers who specialize in personalized thank-you cards. Of course, a handwritten note is better, but failing to acknowledge expressions of sympathy at all is worse.

DEAR ABBY: A few more words on the subject of iguanas:

Because of my allergy to dog and cat dander, we had to be content with reptiles as pets. Lizza, who grew to be 4 feet long, was a popular "show and tell" feature at school. He also did entertaining things at home, such as trying to fight with his own image in a mirror.

Turned loose, he was excellent at sending guests home on time! Some all but climbed up on the chandelier.

We had to give Lizza to the Houston Zoo. He spent his last years in the company of his own kind, in a beautiful little jungle. When we visited, he nodded at us. We are convinced that he knew us. — LOUISE WYROSTEK, HEBRON, KY.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for six months, and my in-laws insist that I call them "Ann" and "Roger."

I was raised to respect my elders by calling them "Mr." and "Mrs." and I don't feel comfortable calling them by their first names. They have asked me not to call them "Mom" and "Dad."

Please advise me in your column, which they read religiously. — JULIE

DEAR JULIE: Respect their wishes. Call them Ann and Roger.

DEAR READERS: Thought for today: The best safety device for an automobile is a rearview mirror with a cop in it.

To receive a collection of Abby's most memorable — and most frequently requested — poems and essays, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's "Keepers," P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
