STEERS No. 2 IN STATE

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

AUSTIN - To paraphrase former football coach Darryl Royal, the Big Spring Steers "danced with who brought them" in Friday's state Class 4A state baseball championship game.

Unfortunately for the Steers, the dance was cut way too short.

In deciding on a starting pitcher between Todd Parrish and Frankie Martinez, BSHS coach Bobby Doe elected to go with Parrish, although Martinez had the better regular season record.

Game story, page 7A

The reason: Parrish had gone undefeated in his three playoff appearances.

But the Belton Tigers figured out Parrish early, scoring all of their runs in the first two innings en route to a 4-0 win at Disch-Falk Field.

Martinez came on in relief in the third inning and pitched shutout ball the rest of the way, leaving Doe wide open to second-guessing from observers.

After the game, Doe stuck to his guns.

"Todd got us to the playoffs," Doe said. "The only thing you can do is go with the guy who got you this far...Frankie had been playing so well hitting and playing in the outfield that I thought we'd be in better shape that way."

Even given Parrish's early struggles, it is doubtful that Nolan Ryan could have helped the Steers Friday, considering the way Belton pitcher Brock Rumfield performed.

The Tigers' righthander had a sterling performance, limiting the Steers to five hits while striking out six and walking only one.

After giving credit to Rumfield, Doe said Big Spring's bats just never could find a positive groove.

"I thought we came out OK," he said. "Belton just came out hitting the ball well. We just couldn't seem to string some hits together."

Considering the way their season-long quest came to an end, it's understandable that

Big Spring's Mike Sizenbach yells to his teammates after hitting a triple against Belton in the UIL Class 4A Baseball Championship

Friday in Austin. Belton won the 4A title with a 4-0 win over the Steers. At right is Belton's Kyle Tidwell.

Creek project pushed to 1996

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The projected completion date of the Beals Creek flood control project has been moved to late 1996 or early 1997 due to delays at the federal level.

City officials recently met with representatives of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to discuss the project.

"We have to take some of the blame for delays with the Beals Creek project based on our system. We've had to go through several gates to get here, but projects like this come about as a result of renewed interest and congressional funding. This is a tribute to the city's sponsorship which keeps federal funding coming in," said Jerry McCrory, assistant chief of the USACE Planning Division.

He added some delay is due to the amount of damage done to the proposed area by the railroad and also because engineers had to take a look at the site for possible hazardous materials because of the railroad.

Gene Rice, USACE project manager, said "It will take approximately 14 months to construct the channel and that when details with utilities, land and the railroad have been taken care of, we can move."

Acknowledging that the city is ready to move also, City Manager Lanny Lambert said, "Whatever we have to do, we will. Whatever it takes."

City officials were assured there would be no problem with federal funding for the Beals Creek project as long as the city continues to show the interest it has and maintains its support, according to McCrory.

Assistant City Manager Tom Decell said "Our (city) money is in the bank and we're ready to go."

It is estimated the cost to buy out the residents in the area would be around $3.7 million. The projected completion date was moved from mid-1995 to mid to late 1996 or early 1997. According to a June 6 report, the project, following current scheduling, will be physically complete

Fatal fire began in kitchen

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A preliminary investigation into a house fire that claimed one life indicates the blaze started in the kitchen.

"The county fire marshal checked the house and ruled that it was an accidental fire. It originated on the stove and was a grease fire. The lady was found in the kitchen and there wasn't anything we could do to revive her," said Howard County Fire Chief Tommy Sullivan.

Sullivan said the call came into the fire station around 8:25 a.m. Friday and units arrived on the scene about 10 minutes before 9 a.m. "Upon entry by the firefighters, they found Lacy Robinson, 78, lying on the kitchen floor. There has been an autopsy ordered to see if she had a heart attack before the fire broke out or if she died from smoke inhalation," explained Sullivan.

It took three units and 12 firefighters about 15 minutes to extinguish the blaze. The kitchen was completely destroyed and the rest of the home sustained heavy heat and smoke damage.

Former Dallas Cowboys player Robert Newhouse signs the back of a shirt worn by Krista West before the start of the Legends game against the Police All-Stars in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum Saturday evening. The Cowboys Legends played a rematch against the Police Department with the proceeds going to the Julie Wennick Memorial Scholarship.

Cowboys, PD rematch raises funds for Wennick scholarship

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Several former Dallas Cowboys traded the pads for a basketball rematch with the Big Spring Police Department Saturday.

Although the Cowboys' plane was late arriving, fans were ready to meet the former players, with pen and paper, caps, t-shirts, jackets and anything else signable. Cameras were also very present as some fans had their pictures taken with the Cowboys.

Even before the scheduled autograph session began in the foyer of Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, back in the dressing room, Cowboys were signing autographs for a bunch of young fans.

Making the trip to Big Spring, this year, were former players Ron Fellows (replacing Ed "Too Tall" Jones), Harvey Martin, Robert Newhouse, Tony Hill, Billy Joe Dupree and Eugene Lockhart. Last year, the Police Department defeated the Legends 73-72.

This year, benefits from the contest will go towards the Julie Wennick Memorial Scholarship Fund. Wennick, a 1992 graduate of Big Spring High School, died in an automobile accident in May of 1993. Money raised last year was donated to the D-FY-IT anti-drug program.

Aside from the game itself, fans were treated to the raffling off of an autographed Roger Staubach jersey and several footballs which were autographed by the ex-Cowboys making the trip to Big Spring. And one of the biggest highlights of the evening was the auctioning off of an autographed Troy Aikman jersey.

Sgt. Stan Parker said that events like the Police Department playing the Dallas Cowboys Legends may become an annual event if the support and the profit is there.

According to Parker, event organizer, he and several other people involved with the event sit down and decide where the money should be donated. Planning began more than two months ago.

Charlotte Kennemer, mother of Julie Wennik, said that teachers at Big Spring High School came up with the idea to begin a Julie Wennik Scholarship. A $500 scholarship is awarded, in her name, to the student who graduates number 15 in their class (the position Wennik held in 1992).

Kennemer said, "You don't think about things like this when something devastating happens. I think this (the basketball game) is wonderful because it's sometimes hard to solicit funds for a scholarship like this."

Several businesses and individuals helped make the basketball game possible and the Cowboys Legends were, undoubtedly, the main attraction.

Speaking for the Cowboys Legends was former Cowboys wide receiver Tony "Thrill" Hill, who's vision several years ago, after his retirement, put this team together in order to give something back to the community.

Hill is the honorary chairman of the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation in Dallas and has a brother who has diabetes said this is one way to stay involved with charities and the community.

Hill said, "We do, roughly, about 48 to 50 games a year. And several guys play with us including Ed "Too Tall" Jones, Cliff Harris, Michael Downs and a few guys from other football teams."

"Our company is called Legends Sports Promotions and what we do is act as a vehicle for various organizations to raise money. If not charitable organizations, then civic groups or DARE programs. These are some of the organizations that we deal with to try to increase awareness with the police and the public."

The Cowboys Legends, according to Hill, are a poor version of the Harlem Globetrotters. Hill said "We provide kids a chance to see the guys that they've heard of and who grew up with us. And their parents are still living, so we bring a family oriented package to the table with an autograph session."

Where some athletes charge $5,000 or more for an autograph session, Hill said the Legends group gives fans a bunch of players at an autograph session plus they provide entertainment through basketball.

Tech Prep - preparation for the future

By KELLIE JONES Staff Writer

More than 100 teachers from West Texas recently met on the Howard College campus to learn more about Tech Prep.

Tech Prep is a somewhat new approach to teaching and preparing students for the future by using "real world" applications.

School officials are aware the requirements for entry into the work force have changed dramatically in the last decade.

By the next century, more and more employers will require potential employees to have at least a four year degree and/or some type of training provided by technical or community colleges.

Tech Prep is one way to prepare the student for the college learning experience by offering some training and college courses while still in high school.

The workshop was hosted by Howard College and sponsored by the Concho Valley Tech Prep Consortium and the Permian Basin Tech Prep Consortium. It was designed to show teachers and instructors new learning styles and how to adapt to the Tech Prep way of teaching.

"We have five consultants from all across the United States to talk about various subjects and how teachers can use the information for real world applications. They talk about why it is beneficial to learn certain things and teach their students this way."

And the consultants also talk about the importance of linking all of these subjects together like why math is important to learn and how it fits with English, physical science, biology, etc."

said D'Arcy Poulson, Director of the Concho Valley Consortium.

"I showed teachers that math can be fun and how to pass that on to their students. Math is used in the everyday world and it's important for students to realize this," said Linda Jo Bailey, a math coordinator from Okla. who was at the workshop as a consultant.

"I think Tech Prep is very important to the students. The bottom line is what the student learns in school and what they can do with it when they graduate. It is no longer feasible for someone to just sit and listen to lectures," said Alvin Beadles, a consultant from Okla. who talked to teachers about the importance of biology and chemistry.

"I am impressed with the turnout of this workshop. The teachers came out here on their own free time and are not getting paid for this. This shows an interest to retool and learn so they can prepare their students for life beyond high school," added Wayne Zako. Zako is from South Dakota and was another consultant at the workshop.

At least 130 teachers and industrial trainers attended the Tech Prep workshop. People from Big Spring, San Angelo, Midland and other West Texas towns were at the campus for three days.

"This was also beneficial to Howard College. This was good exposure for them because a lot of teachers who are here are here for the first time. When they see this campus, they can tell their students about it and let them know about a junior college to attend so they can move away from home," commented Poulson.

Sept. 30, 1996.

The city has signed a contract to begin purchasing land needed for the channel contract will begin March 1, 1995, bid opening on April 1, 1995, and the contract will be awarded on May 1, 1995.

In October 1992 the voters of Big Spring approved a bond election, by a 3 to 1 margin, raising the city's property tax rate about 3 cents per $100 valuation, for the project. The price tag is about $4.7 million, $1.4 million of which the city is paying.

The Beals Creek project will provide protection against a 10-year flood event to structures along Beals Creek within the city limits of Big Spring.

This diversion channel alternative requires diverting and realigning a channel separate from the existing creek to the north of the Union Pacific Railroad train refueling station. It will extend from a point just south of Channing Street and end at a point 450 feet east of the Owens Street bridge. Utility lines will also have to be relocated as part of the project.

At the upstream limit of the diversion channel, a concrete drop structure will be placed to direct flood waters into the new channel from One Mile Lake. The drop structure would serve only to preserve and not enhance the environmental quality of the wetland area of the lake, according to a USACE report.

Steers are No. 1 in Big Spring's hearts

Ok, Steers, so the State 4A Baseball Championships didn't end the way you wanted - with you named as the state champions. What you need to keep in mind, as you deal with your disappointment, is that you are members of a great team. You are part of history - only the second Big Spring team to make it to the finals of the state championships. You made the state finals twice in three years. You played a brand of baseball that was exciting and enjoyable to watch. You never gave up, a key element of any winning team. As you have made this town proud of you, remember to take pride in yourselves. You have done something few ever get a chance to do - play in the state championships. That is something to be proud of, something to remember. You are champions. You have proved that with your winning attitude, your drive and your determination. Yes, it is disappointing to lose. But, there is next year and with the spirit you have shown, you will be back. Thanks for the great baseball and a great season. You are still No. 1 in Big Spring.

Can't run away from change

DD Turner

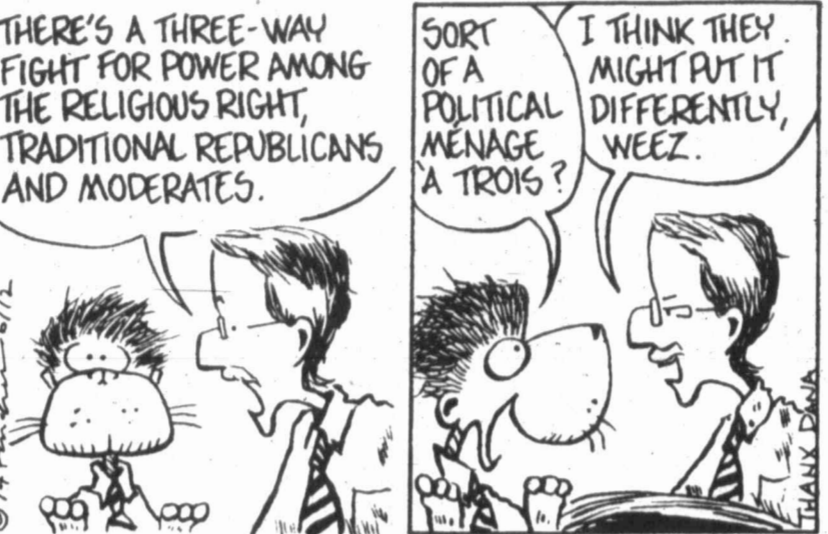

"Run away!" "Run away!" That's what Monty Python's King Arthur said each time danger presented itself. "Run away!" And there are times when running away to a nearby beach, watching the waves roll in and the sun sinking down over the horizon seems to be the thing to do. But, despite the attraction, running away from a problem doesn't do anything but make the problem worse. Facing trouble, problems, fears, admitting mistakes seems to be something America has gotten away from. It seems we just want to run away from everything, or, even worse, try to legislate all our problems away. "Run away!" Fear. It is strange that a little four letter word is such a controlling factor for so many people. Fear of the unknown, fear of change, fear of everything. Fear in the form of "fear of change" is the hardest one to cope with simply because everything changes. There is nothing static in this world. What we have to remember is change will be there. Sometimes it is barely noticeable, other times the change can be overwhelming. In this day, when technology advances itself almost daily, there seems to be two mottoes: "The only constant is change" and "That was then, this is now." Given the speed of change, it is very understandable to fear it, to want it to stop and go back to the way things used to be. It is moving at a rate that is hard to keep up with in terms of morality, beliefs, education, ways of thinking. It often seems that just as you have caught up with the change, it changes again. Result: brain overload. Can we go back again? It's doubtful. As time moves through its rounds, the change has been made, nothing is the same. But, we can make change work for us, not against us. It is a matter of accepting that change is going to happen and has to happen. By accepting that, we can make change good for us. We can't run away from it - it is not going to go away. We need to be constantly evolving and growing, changing to meet the times. While we change, we have to keep in mind what worked, adapt it so it continues to work in our quickly changing world. We have to "adopt, adapt and improve." DD Turner is managing editor of the Herald.

Why is raising children a burden in America?

JOSHUA RUBONGOYA Scripps Howard News Service

My wife Evelyn and I are natives of Africa, but both of our boys were born in the United States. Our hands-on experience of raising children is therefore American in nature. Lately, however, we have been wondering why raising children is so burdensome in America and not so much so in Africa. Here are a few observations. First, raising children in America can be a lonesome enterprise. It is often just Mom and Dad or just Mom alone. After the baby shower, all our friends seemed to disappear despite their expression of joy upon learning that we were expecting - yes, men do "expect" too. After leaving the hospital it is even lonelier. You leave the companionship of the medical doctors and nurses for the fraternity of the television set at home. A friend at work thinks I am whining. I chose to have children, he argues. Now it's my responsibility and no one else's. This argument is logically sound and reasonable within Western cultures of today - albeit some western communities are beginning to question it. Where I come from, children were brought up by the community, the neighborhood, the extended family, the school and church. If my children had been born in Africa, nephews, cousins and in-laws would have been at home to help raise the new member. In fact, anyone old enough to be your parents' age is generally referred to in parental terms. A number of African societies do not have the word "uncle" in their vocabulary because "dad" is an all-encompassing word. As school holidays approach, letters begin streaming in from relatives inviting their nieces and nephews to visit and get to know their counterparts. Indeed, the burden of raising children is distributed so well that it is a delight to be a parent. These responsibilities include both rewards and punishments. I vividly remember my dad spanking a kid who had the habit of crossing the street just about the time we drove by his house. After the spanking was over, the parent arrived at the scene and profusely thanked my dad for "this wonderful public service." Try that in the States, I recently told my father, and both the parents and a distinguished gentleman of the legal profession would make sure the next person you spank will be another prison inmate. As a father raising children in America, however, I have found it a chore, a financial liability, a sacrifice and, if news reports are to be believed, sometimes suicidal to be a parent. If a dad frequently changes diapers and gives evening baths to the kids, this could become grounds for child molestation charges if the marriage approaches an unfortunate end. Shunning these chores, on the other hand, earns the father the label of a chauvinist good-for-nothing - or, as another friend of mine recently said upon learning that I gave my kids evening baths, "She has properly trained you." Two weeks ago I got a reply to a letter I wrote to the company that refunds our day-care tuition: It was addressed to Ms. Rubongoya! Have we as fathers so abdicated our responsibilities so as to be stripped of the joys of parenting, or can fatherhood be retrieved from the heap of social history? We need to reclaim our community values and breathe air into those values that strengthen the family. Why, for instance, should the national family leave proposition even be open to serious debate? But if this story is about to change your mind about having children, think again. There is one intangible reward: The unending love that children give that cannot be found in any other relationship. It is this that makes it all worthwhile. Joshua Rubongoya, a native of Uganda, is assistant professor of political science at Roanoke College in Salem, Va.

Fire department did an excellent job

The Big Spring Evening Lions Club would like to thank the Big Spring firefighters for the wonderful job they did on putting out the fire at the Lions Building Saturday, June 4. If it had not been for the professional way they fought the fire, we know that our building would have been destroyed. We did suffer a great deal of damage, but nothing in comparison to what we could have lost. We thank God nobody was injured or worse. The Lions did not feel that the first report was biased or a conflict of interest. We did request another investigation and we did hire a private investigator in order to try and find out where and why the fire started. We wanted to know in order to avoid another fire in the future. Our main concern is to make our building a safe place for our bingo players and our employees. If there is a misunderstanding or if we in any way have offended anyone, we apologize. We would also like to thank all the bingo players that came and helped and offered to help whenever we needed them. We appreciate all the calls we have received and we will be opening again as soon as possible. Danny Wright Big Spring Lions Club

Offer made to servicemen's families

With members of my Army regiment, I am planning to go to Europe next month (July) as a part of the Anniversary of the Normandy Invasion of northern France. I was fortunate that I did not land in Normandy on D-Day. On our tour we are scheduled to visit three American military cemeteries, two in northern France and one in Luxembourg, where Gen. George Patton is buried. If any one has loved ones or friends buried in any of these cemeteries, I would be glad to try to find their graves and take a picture of their headstone. Please contact me at P.O. Box 281, Big Spring, Texas, 79721. Bob Dean Big Spring

Fixing Settles Hotel could create jobs

I have lived in Big Spring since 1958. I was born in Howard County about the time the Settles Hotel was built. My family moved to Lamesa when I was about five years old. I had aunts, uncles, grandmother who lived here. My mother was a Robinson, born and raised here. I remember coming to Big Spring as a child, seeing the Settles Hotel, Crawford Hotel and wondering how anyone could build a building that tall without it falling over. I remember hearing that the Settles was the tallest building between Dallas-Fort Worth and the West Coast. I know the Settles is in bad repair, I also know that if something is not done, it will eventually be torn down. If we will lose this landmark, we will be losing not only a part of our hearts but part of our heritage as well. I hope that our city government can come up with a way to save this part of our history. Could we use part of the Moore Board money for this? Would it not create jobs? R.W. Covington Big Spring

More questions about Cap Rock

I would like to take this opportunity to thank Ms. Luxton for her letter in the April 22 issue of the Big Spring Herald. However, I'm still in the dark on some of the questions that I had asked. 1. Is it wise use of ratepayers' money to buy proxy votes? It seems to me that it is not being a bribe and a poor way to spend members' money.

2. Several times Ms. Luxton mentioned that purchases were made, but "not with ratepayers' monies." Since, as far as I know, the business of Cap Rock Electric is to sell electricity and charge rate to its members to cover the cost of delivering that power, where does this so-called non-ratepayer money come from? If it is borrowed capital, the money to pay it back comes from the ratepayers, or has the cooperative's management come up with a new way to create money out of thin air? 3. Speaking of debt, I understand that Cap Rock has not been able to meet some of its debt requirements. This may or may not be true, and I hope that it is just a rumor and not fact. 4. My question about bonuses was asked in regard to the co-op's management, not all its employees. I agree that good work deserves a reward. That is common practice. However, the size of the bonuses some administrators have received seems to be out of line with what might constitute a "reward." The main reason I bring up bonuses is that if a company has made a good profit, then a bonus is certainly reasonable. However, if a company is in the red and can't make debt payments or pay dividends to its stockholders, then it is not good practice to award bonuses. 5. There were five subsidiaries of Cap Rock and Ms. Luxton mentioned one, New West Resources Inc. (NWR). Are all of these companies wholly-owned by Cap Rock and just what is their business? As a ratepayer, I believe that makes me the same as a stockholder, and as such, that gives me and all other Cap Rock members the right to know how our money is being spent. There may be good reasons for all this, but I don't see how going into debt to create new businesses is going to produce electricity for ratepayers any more efficiently or cheaper. 6. As a businessman, I certainly know that it is a very competitive environment out there. However, as a taxpaying businessman, it seems to me that the co-op has a leg up on me and other private enterprises by being exempt from federal taxes. That's quite an advantage! 7. I appreciate Ms. Luxton's attempt to answer my letter. I have been served by the cooperative for about 41 years. Cap Rock has always done an outstanding job in bringing electricity to our rural homes and facilities. The service people should be commended for their excellent performance in all sorts of weather and other difficult conditions throughout the years. I guess my problem is that I see Cap Rock Electric doing some things that could be a detriment in keeping up the good work and service it has always provided its members. My concern began when I saw that big transmission line going by my place in Borden County to Lubbock. After asking questions of several other members, I cannot find out what is going on. Suddenly, a co-op that was one of the best run electric cooperative in the state is expanding in several different directions, assuming massive debt, and asking for rate increases to stay afloat, or as Ms. Luxton put it, "complete." And speaking of completing, rumor has it that Cap Rock gave some $200,000 or more to the builder of a new development in Midland in order to get the development's business. Of course, I don't suppose that was ratepayers' money, either. If the cooperative's board would be willing to meet with me, my attorney and my accountant, I'm sure we could put some of these questions to rest. I will admit that I have never attended an annual meeting, but I will be attending the next one. I can only hope all other concerned members of the co-op do the same. I would also sincerely hope that some of the rumors and innuendo that have surfaced are not true, and in fact, are just that - gossip and rumor. Sincerely yours, Rich Anderson

Athletes' names found on prostitution list

HOUSTON (AP) — The names of prominent area athletes were found on a list seized from what authorities call a "very sophisticated" prostitution ring, police say.

Officials are not releasing the names, but police spokesman John Leggio said some of those on the so-called "trick list" might be subpoenaed and indicted.

New book details preacher's departure

FORT WORTH (AP) — A new book by the former pastor of the world's largest Southern Baptist congregation details his abrupt departure two years ago and looks into the political and religious power of the "super church."

"Having been quiet for a couple of years, I'd like to tell my side of the story," the Rev. Joel Gregory, former pastor of First Baptist Church of Dallas, said at a news conference Friday.

Gregory said he left First Baptist because of confusion over whether he or the Rev. W.A. Criswell, the church's senior pastor, was the true leader of the 28,000-member congregation. It was the same reason he gave upon his September 1992 departure.

In a written statement, the Rev. O.S. Hawkins, who was named First Baptist pastor after Gregory's resignation, said he had no comment on the book "other than to say we at First Baptist Church are praying for him."

— "Willie Waffle" shirts, which manufacturer John Williamson of Houston said came from then-President George Bush's reference to Clinton "turning the White House into the Waffle House."

— Buttons reading: "Clinton-Gore, gone in four" and "Like the Post Office? You'll love socialized medicine."

Jury awards $10 million in malpractice suit

DENTON (AP) — A woman who suffered brain damage from complications during childbirth was awarded $10 million in a malpractice suit against Denton Regional Medical Center.

A jury Friday found the hospital negligent but cleared the anesthesiologists who worked on Kathy LaCroix.

Mrs. LaCroix suffered irreparable brain damage from oxygen loss in January 1991 during the delivery of her daughter, Lawryn, by Caesarean section.

Her attorneys said the nurse-anesthetist and other medical personnel failed to properly treat her when she began having breathing problems and seizures and went into cardiac arrest.

Social conservatives sweep to GOP power

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH — Evangelical Christians and other social-issue conservatives flexed their muscle at the Republican state convention Saturday, choosing a new chairman and favoring a platform strongly opposed to abortion.

Dallas lawyer Tom Pauken, who said the GOP needed fewer political professionals and more volunteers, became the party's leader after the other two candidates gave up.

Pauken bested U.S. Rep. Joe Barton and Houston businesswoman Dolly Madison McKenna. Barton, a latecomer to the race, had the backing of U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm.

Mrs. McKenna, who is pro-choice on abortion, had warned that the GOP couldn't afford to alienate moderates.

But after preliminary vote counts showed Pauken with more than 52 percent of the delegates, Barton and Mrs. McKenna conceded. Pauken said their actions showed the GOP has the unity and strength to challenge Democrats up and down the ballot.

Agent blaming media for failed raid

The Associated Press

WACO — The undercover agent who infiltrated the Branch Davidian sect before an unsuccessful raid last year has sued two media outlets and an ambulance service.

Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent Robert Rodriguez blames the Waco Tribune-Herald, KWTX-TV and American Medical Transport for causing a confrontation between federal agents and the Branch Davidians in an attempt to make money from the coverage of the conflict.

He is suing for unspecified damages, claiming emotional distress and mental anguish.

Waco attorney James R. Dunnam, who represents Rodriguez, has alleged the media is to blame for alerting Koresh about the raid while Rodriguez was still inside the compound. "Robert Rodriguez is sitting there with David Koresh ... when they were tipped off wondering if he is going to get his head blown off," Dunnam said. "Did he create that situation?"

The lawsuit, filed Thursday in federal court in Waco, is the fourth against the newspaper and TV station in connection with the raid, and the second to name the ambulance service, which federal investigators found tipped KWTX to the raid. Tribune-Herald Editor Bob Lott said the newspaper was not at fault for the failed raid.

"The whole tragedy of Mount Carmel, including that awful Sunday of the raid, is something few of us will ever forget," Lott said. "But this newspaper is in no way at fault."

Building boom spurs related industry

The Associated Press

SWEETWATER — Recent growth in the state's construction industry is giving new life to plants that produce building supplies.

In this West Texas city, the Domtar Gypsum plant is gearing up to begin production of products such as sheetrock after a three-year hiatus. It closed in September 1990, but will reopen as soon as possible — creating 75 jobs, plant officials announced Friday.

"We have made the decision to reopen the facility based on the improved market demand for our product and a justifiable, positive financial return," said Archie Hunter, regional controller for Domtar.

"We said from the beginning that the party had to go back to representing the middle class taxpayers and families and be volunteer led. I think that caught on. People recognize the country's in trouble, and they want to get involved," he said.

Mrs. McKenna urged her supporters "to go home and build the Republican Party and do not give up on your beliefs."

Not everyone was convinced that the GOP is unified.

Mary Bennett, an alternate from Tarrant County who said she is pro-choice on abortion, voiced disappointment that two conservatives — Pauken and Barton — were the leading chairman candidates.

"Neither one of those two people want us in the party," she said.

As many as 70 percent of the convention's 12,000 delegates and alternates were evangelical Christians, abortion opponents and home school advocates who flocked to the party's March 8 precinct conventions.

Besides electing Pauken, the convention chose Susan Weddington of San Antonio as vice chair and swept out many veteran members of the State Republican Executive Committee.

The GOP platform committee endorsed a document opposing abortion except when a mother's life is threatened and calling for "total constitutional rights for the unborn child." Delegates were to finalize the platform late in the day.

Democrats said the party has moved too far to the right to appeal to average Texans.

"The radical right has taken over the Republican Party. They threw numerous moderates off the executive committee, they ousted (past chairman) Fred Meyer. The Democratic Party welcomes those people, moderates and independents," said Joe Cutbirth, the party's communications director.

Pauken, 50, has been unsuccessful in four races for public office. He is a Vietnam veteran who served in the administrations of presidents Richard Nixon and Ronald Reagan and campaigned last year to defeat the so-called "Robin Hood" school finance plan.

Weather helps fight Guadalupe park fire

The Associated Press

PINE SPRINGS — Cooler temperatures and scattered showers Friday lent firefighters a hand with a fire that has scorched thousands of acres at the Guadalupe Mountains National Park, the National Park Service said.

The fire, which was likely caused by a lightning strike Tuesday, had charred about 6,000 acres of brush and woods at the West Texas park as of Friday night, spokesman Rich McCamant said.

Most of the blaze remained uncontained, although fire lines were secured on its northeast side, McCamant said. The parks service is working toward full containment of the fire by Tuesday, he said.

About 320 firefighters from the park service, U.S. Bureau of Land Management, U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs and others were battling the blaze along with the aid of three air tankers and two helicopters.

The fire crews were continuing to direct their efforts toward keeping the blaze out of the heavily wooded McKittrick Canyon and Bowl areas.

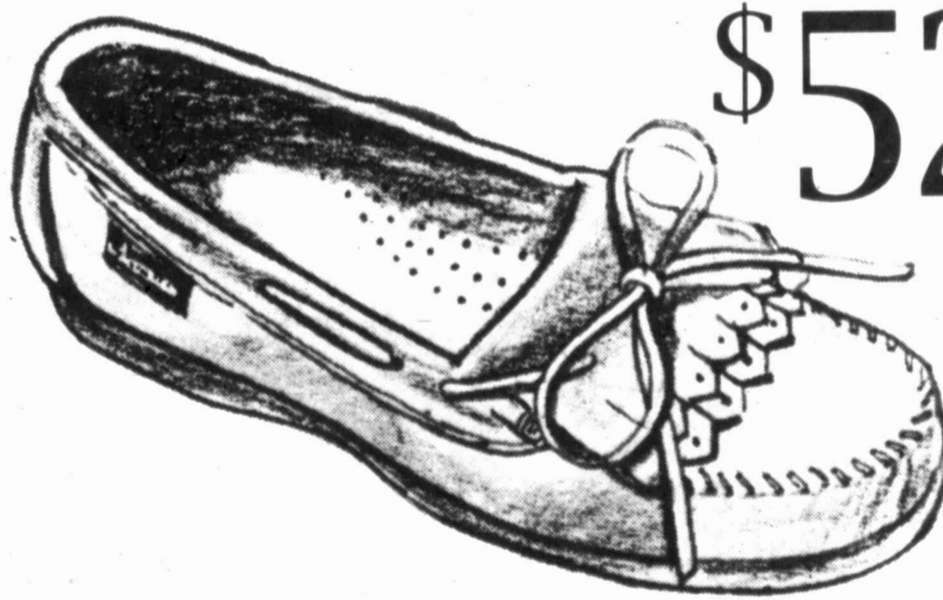

McKittrick Canyon, Dog Canyon — one of the most heavily threatened areas early on — and the park's back country trails remained closed Friday. The visitor center and campground at Pine Springs were open.

Ex-patriot provides lifeline for country

TOKYO (AP) — Shigeru Funaki, a North Korean living in Japan, is part of an overseas lifeline for his native country, supplying badly needed foreign exchange for its feeble economy.

"We send money to relatives back home and to the North Korean government because we want to help improve living conditions there," the trading company chairman says.

The cash flowing to Communist North Korea from Koreans living in Japan, estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars a year, poses an embarrassing dilemma for Tokyo.

Advocates of sanctions against North Korea over its suspected nuclear weapons program say the lifeline must be severed for the punitive measures to be effective.

But it's doubtful Japan can completely cut the cash flow. And if it tries, it risks a backlash from its Korean residents and neighboring North Korea.

On Friday, Foreign Ministry spokesman Terusuke Terada said Tokyo will decide what to do after the U.N. Security Council decides whether to go for sanctions.

Resolve for open markets not faltering

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is taking pains to make clear that its recent conciliatory remarks about Japan do not mean its resolve to open Japanese markets is faltering.

"We are going to open the Japanese market to foreign competitive goods one way or the other," U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor told the House Ways and Means Committee on Friday.

Kantor said the United States would not hesitate to use trade sanctions if the "framework" talks designed to open Japan's markets in priority areas do not produce results.

"The failure of Japan to import manufactured goods at the rate of other industrialized countries has had an adverse effect on the world trading community," he testified.

Rosty's lawyer promises constitutional challenges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Dan Rostenkowski's new lawyer is promising constitutional challenges to wide-ranging federal corruption charges that have hobbled one of the most powerful lawmakers in Congress.

Actions that prosecutors contend are criminal — ranging from hiring practices to gift purchases — were related to Rostenkowski's official duties, attorney Dan Webb said Friday after his client pleaded innocent to a 17-count indictment in U.S. District Court.

FORT CAMPBELL, Ky. (AP) — As military leaders consider whether female soldiers should get more chances to serve in combat, seven women in the 101st Airborne Division say ability — not gender — is what counts in a fight.

"I think women should be allowed in any area of combat," Spec. Tracy Stephens, 26, a clerk from Socorro, N.M., said in an interview Friday. "This is a very hot issue for me."

Car bomb kills five; possible link to drugs

The Associated Press

GUADALAJARA, Mexico — A car packed with powerful explosives blew up outside a luxury hotel Saturday, killing at least five people and wounding 15. Police sources said the bombing may be linked to Guadalajara's drug gangs.

The Camino Real Hotel was evacuated after the early morning explosion, which occurred as 300 guests were winding up a debutante ball for a 15-year-old girl.

Body parts were found up to 300 yards away. Emergency workers picked severed limbs and pieces of skin from tree branches. A spokeswoman for an emergency medical service in Guadalajara said two severed heads were found.

The blast cracked hotel walls, shattered windows up to 20 blocks away and destroyed more than a dozen cars. Blood was smeared on the ballroom walls.

Police said the automobile was packed with what appeared to be plastic explosives and may have been detonated by remote control. They refused to give further details.

Guadalajara, 175 miles northwest of Mexico City in central Mexico, has been the scene of much drug-related violence. The city's Roman Catholic archbishop was killed in the cross fire of a drug-related shootout at the local airport last year.

No one claimed responsibility for Saturday's blast, and the government said it had no suspects. But investigators at the scene, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the girl's family is known to have ties to drug traffickers.

Witnesses told the official Mexican news agency Notimex that four people were seen leaving the car just before the blast. The car, a 1993 Mercury Grand Marquis, was parked across from the hotel's main entrance, which was blown away by the explosion.

Welfare reform called 'all show'

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Clinton's proposal to transform the welfare system would push 400,000 single mothers into a subsidized job or community service by the year 2000, senior administration officials say.

Conservatives say the plan is nothing more than "empty political propaganda," while a liberal advocate worries that it would put low-income children at risk of hunger and homelessness.

The president is expected to send Congress its $9.3 billion blueprint next week, but some lawmakers do not believe there is enough time to pass a welfare reform bill this year.

"This is all show right now. They introduced it before the elections so they can campaign on a welfare plan. That's not real. That's politics. That's games," said Rep. Rick Santorum, R-Pa.

The heart of the president's plan is a 24-month limit on cash benefits for most adults, nearly all of them women, who are on the rolls of Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

Parents who exhaust their cash benefits and are unable to find a job on their own would be enrolled in a subsidized job or community service job that pays minimum wage. They would be allowed to remain in the work program indefinitely, as long as they were doing everything possible to find jobs in the private sector.

Although the plan is designed to discourage lengthy stays in jobs subsidized by taxpayers, the government could wind up supporting some welfare recipients for years. But anyone who refused the offer of a private-sector job would be kicked out.

According to the administration, the work program would grow to 400,000 participants by the year 2000. If 5 million families are still on welfare by the end of the century, just 8 percent would be enrolled.

Nevertheless, the federal government hasn't overseen such a large work program since CETA, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act that put 750,000 people in public service employment programs at its height in the 1970s.

Robert Rector, a welfare analyst with the conservative Heritage Foundation, called the work plan a farce. "Having 9 percent of the caseload by the year 2000 is ridiculous. ... They're not promoting welfare, they're trying to slow it up."

The president's plan also includes an aggressive strategy to improve child support collections from absent parents, most of them fathers.

"We feel that if we did a better job of collecting child support in this country, and getting parents to take responsibility for their children, we might not have a welfare crisis," said Bruce Reed, one of the three co-chairmen of the president's welfare reform task force.

Sanctions fast forwarding against N. Korea

The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — Accelerating the drive toward sanctions against North Korea, the three principal backers agreed Saturday to seek a series of punitive steps that would gradually increase in severity.

The talks between U.S., South Korean and Japanese officials came amid increasing optimism that China would abstain in any U.N. vote on sanctions, rather than vetoing the measure.

The United States and others intend to seek U.N. sanctions this week.

North Korea made new threats to retaliate for any punitive steps over its nuclear program. A government newspaper's commentary said support of sanctions was "an act of self-destruction" for South Korea.

The commentary, carried by North Korea's official news agency, likened the South to "a rabid dog barking into the sky, without any knowledge of its imminent death."

Despite the harsh rhetoric, the North is also giving some signs it might be willing to compromise. In Beijing, a respected private U.S. analyst who just visited North Korea said he believed the Communist government was willing to freeze crucial parts of its atomic program in return for help acquiring safer, more modern nuclear technology.

Selig Harrison, of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace in Washington, met with North Korean President Kim Il Sung during his weeklong visit to Pyongyang.

In the sanctions talks in Seoul, South Korea President Kim Young-sam met with Peter Tarnoff, U.S. undersecretary of state for political affairs. Japanese Foreign Minister Koji Kakizawa met South Korean Foreign Minister Han Sung-joo and then Kim.

"At this point in time, there is no other way except sanctions in the U.N. Security Council," presidential spokesman Choo Donshik quoted Kim as saying.

The officials said they agreed that any sanctions should come in gradually increasing stages of severity.

The Japanese foreign minister leaves for Beijing on Sunday to add to appeals that China not block the punitive measures.

China is North Korea's only major ally. As a permanent member of the Security Council, it could veto a sanctions resolution. It is also North Korea's main supplier of fuel, and China's cooperation would be crucial for the sanctions to be effective.

Steer Fever grabbed even the casual fan

Dave Hargrave

I'm not going to get caught up in it. The Big Spring baseball team was playing for the state championship Friday afternoon. The Steer flags, usually reserved for Homecoming week of the football season, were flapping in the Gregg Street breeze.

With each Steer playoff victory, I repeated the mantra.

I'm not going to get caught up in it.

Following a team to the state finals is a draining experience for a writer: you know you can't root for the team you're covering, but with each win you get more attached to its momentum, its crazy characters, its frenetic fans.

That was sportswriter Steve Reagan's problem.

Then I heard Cindy, the fastest page maker in the West, say, "Boy, I sure hope they do it." The composing room has a particularly strong concentration of Steer spirit since Sandra, one of the most enjoyable people to work with you'll ever find, was in Austin to see her son, freshman Frankie Green, pinch run for Big Spring.

Cindy was pasting one of my sports pages together, and she said it again.

"Boy, I sure hope they do it."

Without thinking, I said, "I hope so, too."

Nooooo! It's only 10 a.m., and I'm already succumbing to Steer Fever.

I'm not going to get caught up in it.

Leaving the office for home is the best way to clear your head, and that's what I did. Snacking on my peanut-butter-and-apple sandwich (want one?), my clear head started realizing what I already knew. My whole not-caring-about-the-Steers routine was just an act.

The Steers were down 4-0 to Belton. I figured I'd go some place where people would be listening to the Steers while they worked. First person I ran into was the Lemon Chill salesman at the Big Spring Mall, James Bowen.

Bowen, 49, was listening to fifth-inning Steer action on his transistor while a small consumer trickle strolled past his stand. Bowen played third base for the Steers in '61 and '62, but those teams never flirted with a state championship.

"We've had outstanding baseball players in the Big Spring over the years," said Bowen before he began listing a few names, "but this is the best team."

Whattya know? While Bowen is Lemon Chilling, Gerald Cobos walks by us. Cobos played for the '92 Steers, state semifinalists.

"That's my team right there. I wanted to go to Austin, but I couldn't get off work," said Cobos, who works at the Big Spring YMCA, as he stared at Bowen's radio.

No, Cobos, Bowen and I weren't there, but in a way we were, sharing the Steers' moment in the sun. Bowen said he felt like a state championship Friday would have, in some ways, belonged to him and to Big Spring, and he's right. Bowen, Cobos, all the others who have played for Big Spring and all the fans, past and present, should share a piece of the pie.

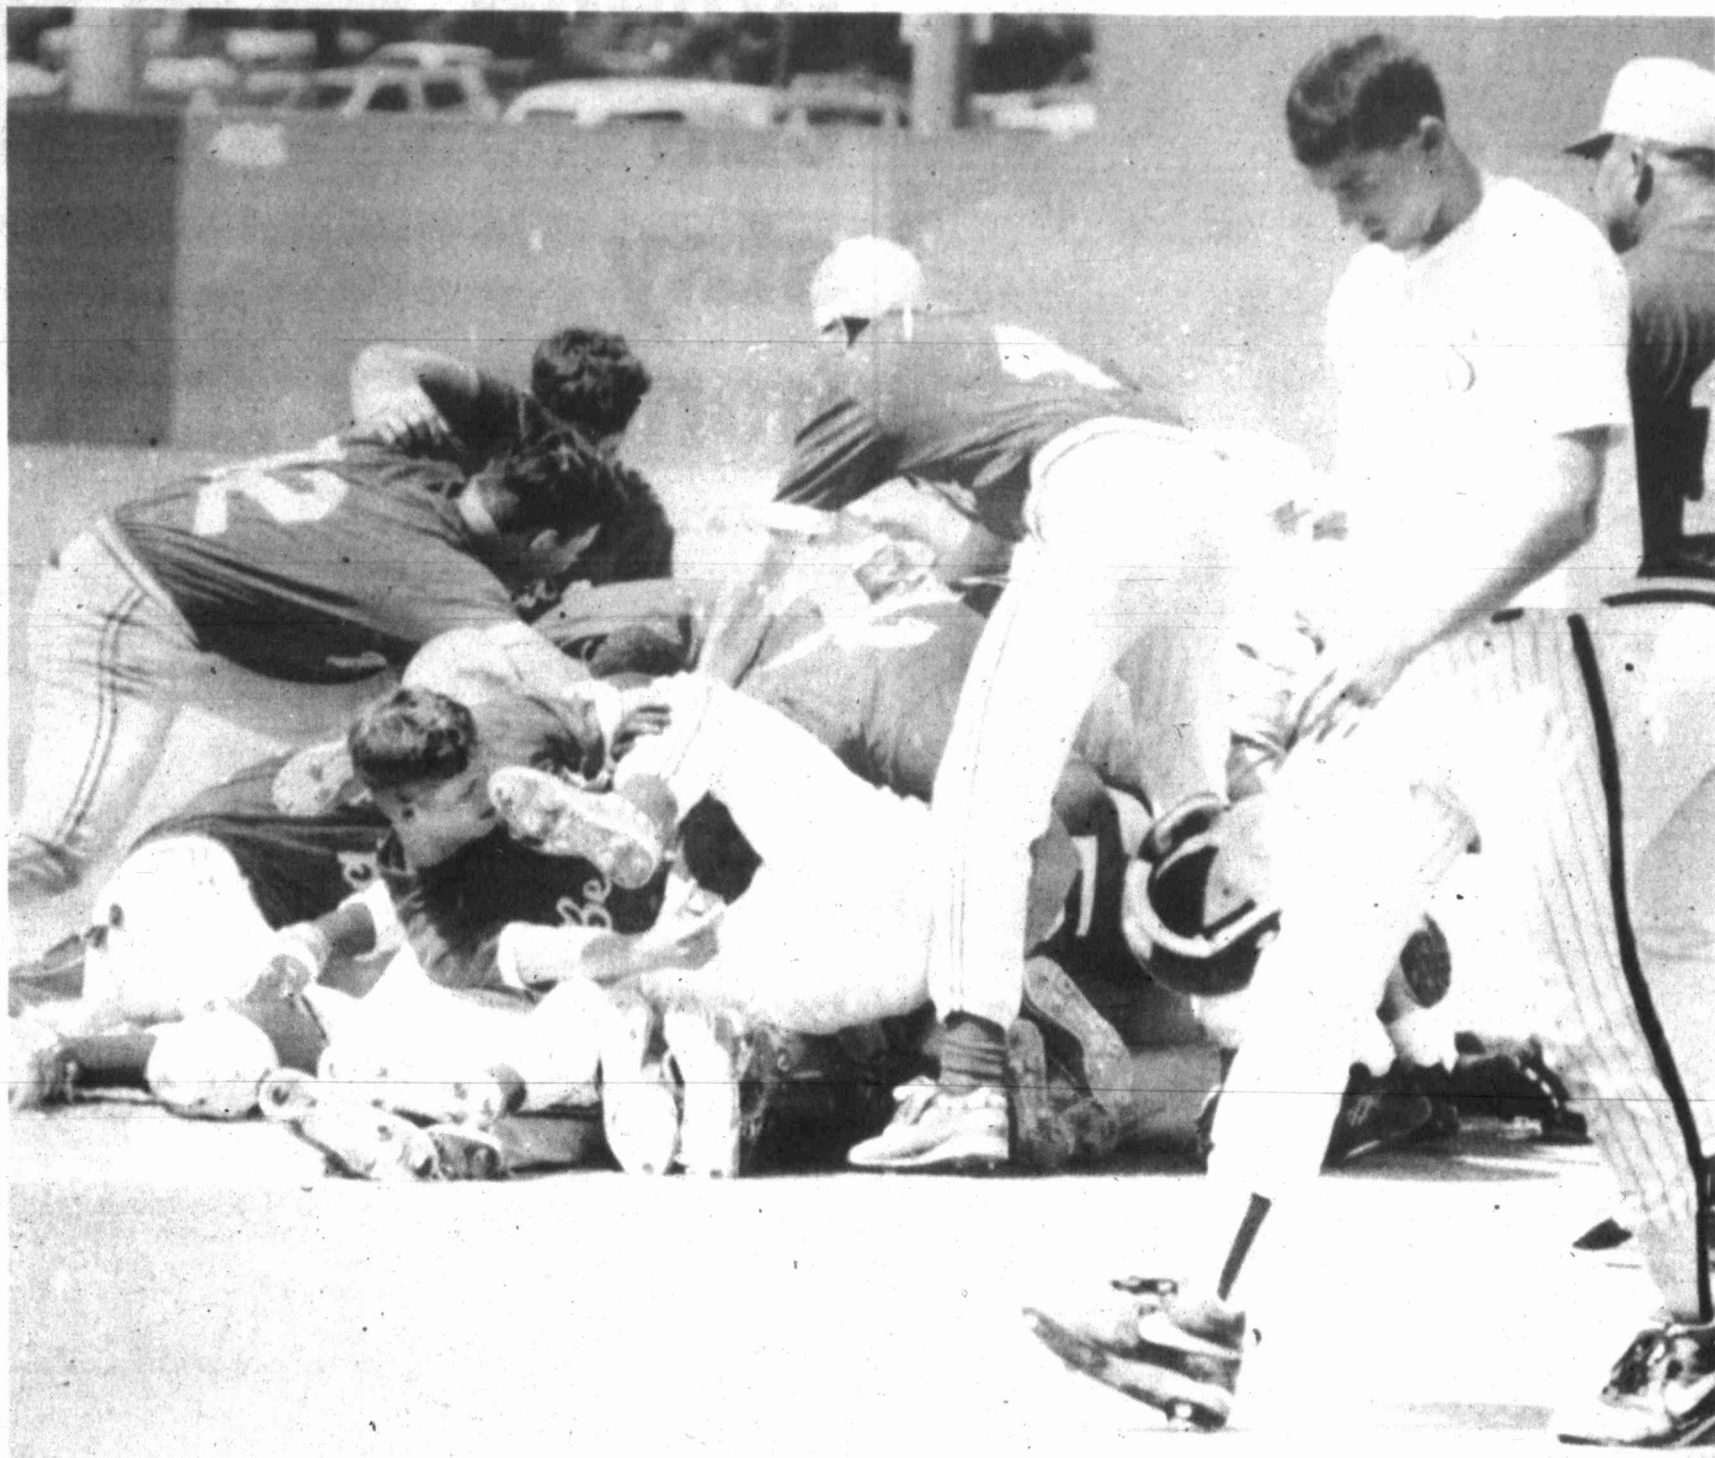

Well, maybe not everyone. After the Mall excursion, I still needed to get a last gasp of Steer Fever. It was fading - the game was in the seventh, still 4-0 - and I picked either the smartest or the dumbest destination possible.

Big Spring High School. I saw someone walk in, so I knew it was open, but as I walked the halls all I saw were a couple of custodians.

As I walked out, though, a sign on the doors leading to the stairs screamed at me.

"SUMMER SCHOOL, Teachers and Students - If you go to Austin, all absences will count against you."

Maybe the administration didn't want to get caught up in it either.

Big Spring's Brien Burchett walks by the celebrating Belton Tigers after the Class 4A state championship game in Austin. Belton beat the Steers 4-0.

Steers stopped short

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

AUSTIN - For one-and-a-half horrible innings, everything went wrong for the Big Spring Steers, and nothing they could do after that could set things right again.

The Steers' hope for the first team-sport state championship in school history crashed against a figurative wall of Belton Tigers, who got the key hits early, then turned things over to pitcher Brock Rumfield.

Rumfield, who pitched three innings in Belton's 9-5 victory over Carthage the day before, went the distance in a superb effort as the Tigers claimed the state Class 4A baseball title with a 4-0 win over the Steers at Disch-Falk Field Friday afternoon.

The Tigers claimed the state crown with a 35-6 record, while the Steers, making their second state tournament appearance in the past three years, ended their season with a 27-8 mark.

Belton did all its damage offensively in its first two at-bats, scorching Big Spring starter Todd Parrish for four runs off five hits.

The Tigers scored once in the first inning when leadoff hitter Jason Regan laced a single to left, then scored on Rumfield's ground-rule double to left-center.

But it was the second inning that really took the air out of Big Spring's tires.

Parrish gave up a walk to Brad Turner, but appeared to be working his way out of trouble by retiring the next two batters.

Number-nine hitter Shayne Drake, however, banged a single to right, which scored Turner for a two-run lead. Regan followed with a double, and both he and Drake scored on Darren Brinkley's single up the middle.

The Tigers then turned matters over to Rumfield, and the rangy right-hander was more than up to the task. He limited the Steers to five hits, and never allowed more than one Big Spring baserunner per inning.

"You can't take anything away from him, he pitched well," BSHS coach Bobby Doe said. "I always thought we could come back on them," Doe added. "But it seemed that every time we hit the ball hard, it went right at somebody."

If there was a bright spot for the Steers, it was in the sterling relief job put in by Frankie Martinez. Martinez came on in the top of the third and shut out Belton the rest of the way on two hits.

"I just thought I could shut them down," Martinez said. "I told myself before the game that if I got a chance to pitch, I'd just come out...and hopefully give us a chance to come back and win the game."

Rumfield, who struck out six while walking only one, said that his team's early run production made his job easier.

"That helped a lot," he said. "That made me more relaxed on the mound. I was able to locate my pitches, and my curve ball was working good, which helped."

Although there was no consoling the Steers afterward, Doe did his best to put the season into perspective.

"The guys played hard all year," he said. "I thought we'd bring a championship back to West Texas. We gave it our best shot, but we just came up a little short."

Gliders landing in Big Spring

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

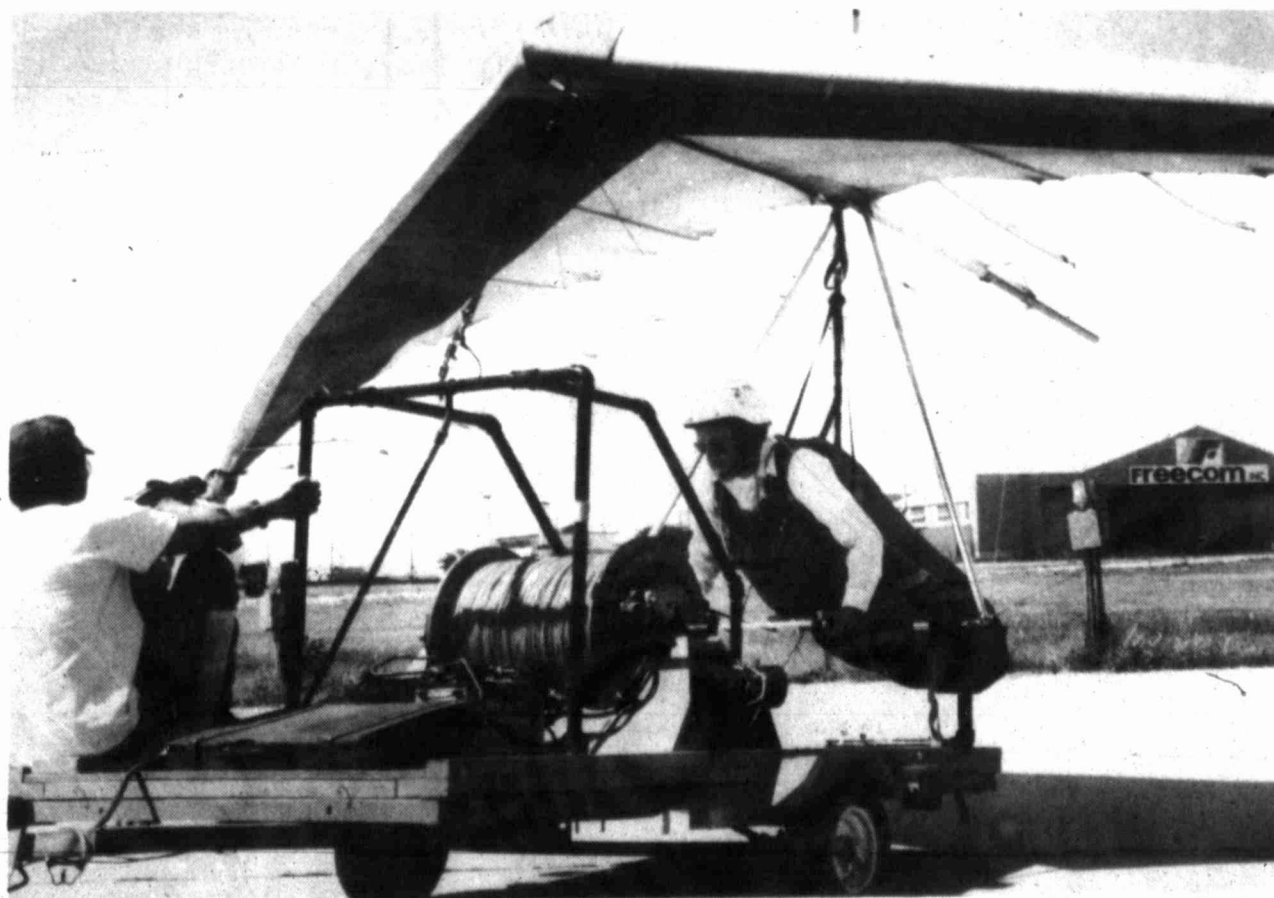

Big Spring's annual hang gliding competition is back in town, and this time it's an affair of national proportions.

Oh, the event has drawn gliders from all over the country since its start in 1990, but for the first time the event is one of just four competitions that count in the national point standings for hang glider pilots.

They're coming here to have fun, as always, but a bit more is at stake than past summers.

The Big Spring Professional Fire Fighters Association is sponsoring the Big Spring Hang Glider Competition '94. To hear Mitch Gill, secretary/treasurer of the union, describe the sport just makes hang gliding sound that more-scary-for-average-feet-on-the-ground folks.

"Some of what they do is they fly triangles, like from here to Lamesa, then to Stanton, then back to Big Spring," Gill said.

Hang glider pilot Mike Spradley gets ready to take to the air at last summer's Big Spring Cross Country Championship and Fun Fly-In at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark. This year's national competition in Big Spring starts Thursday.

"And what they have to do is, they have to take a picture of the runway at the airport, or take a picture of the wind sock there, to prove they've been there."

Taking a picture while hang gliding? Some people are still working on that gum-chewing-while-walking thing.

The event has grown each year, Gill said, because Big Spring is a great spot for the sport.

"The thing that a lot of people here complain about, the wind, well, they love it, and they keep coming back," Gill said.

The pilots and the crews should be arriving in Big Spring today, Gill said. Tuesday and Wednesday will be practice before the competition begins, both for the competitors and for the firefighters who will be towing them. To take off, the pilots are towed by a truck - sort of like a child runs to get a kite flying.

The pilots will be taking off at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark, near the old Department of Public Safety hangar, which is next to Freecom. Gill said the only in-air action spectators will enjoy are the takeoffs and the landings, but that's not the only thing to see.

"While the pilots are out flying, the ground crews love to hang around and talk to you," Gill said. "If you're interested in hang gliding, or want to know more about it, they'll let you touch their equipment and check it out. If you're interested in learning about it, that would definitely be the time and place."

Dream dies, memory remains

If nothing else, my six or so years as a sports-writer has taught me that almost nothing in the world hurts as much as losing an important game.

Steve Reagan

One of Dan Jenkins' characters in "Semi Tough" had it right when he said you could take your wars, plagues and natural disasters, but nothing hurts worse than losing the state championship game.

I'm not even going to try to write one of those "the sun will come out tomorrow" pieces. Oh, life will go on, and nobody died, but you couldn't tell that to the Big Spring Steers or the 1,000 or so fans cheering them on in the state baseball championship game Friday in Austin.

There's no sugar-coating things: This one hurt, folks. It hurt badly. As a journalist, I pride myself in my impartiality, or at least a good imitation of it, but all that went out the window as I walked by the Steers' dugout after their loss to Belton.

You ever heard the expression, "There wasn't a dry eye in the house?" Well, that didn't even begin to describe the scene.

Guys I had spent a good portion of the last few months getting to know were crying, and there wasn't one blessed thing I could do to make them feel better.

Mike Smith, the infamous "Lumpy" who had goaded me into shaving my beard when the Steers qualified for the tournament, was as white as a sheet.

Brandon Hamblin, the team's catcher and one who personifies the word intense, looked my way and seemed to want to say something, but words didn't come.

The scene was repeated right down the line. Young men who had been celebrating their semifinal win over Brenham at the same spot 24 hours earlier now looked like they were on their way to a funeral.

As bad as I felt for them, I also felt the same for the whole town of Big Spring. I am a native son, and I'd be lying if I said I wasn't pulling for the team to win a state championship for the home folks.

It had never been done, at least in team sports. Only one other time, with the 1953 football team, had Big Spring ever reached the finals.

The Steers came close, so painfully, achingly close.

But Belton, to their credit, was the better team Friday. The Tigers got the hits when they needed them, and got a brilliant pitching performance from Brock Rumfield to boot.

As Big Spring coach Bobby Doe likes to say, that's baseball. Sometimes you get it done, and sometimes you don't. Belton did, and its team is rightfully celebrating.

All this should make me feel better. Maybe later. Right now, I feel much like a lot of other folks in Big Spring who followed this team and got to know these guys.

It just doesn't seem fair. Before the game, I talked to a woman who said she felt the Steers would win because "nobody wants it more than those boys."

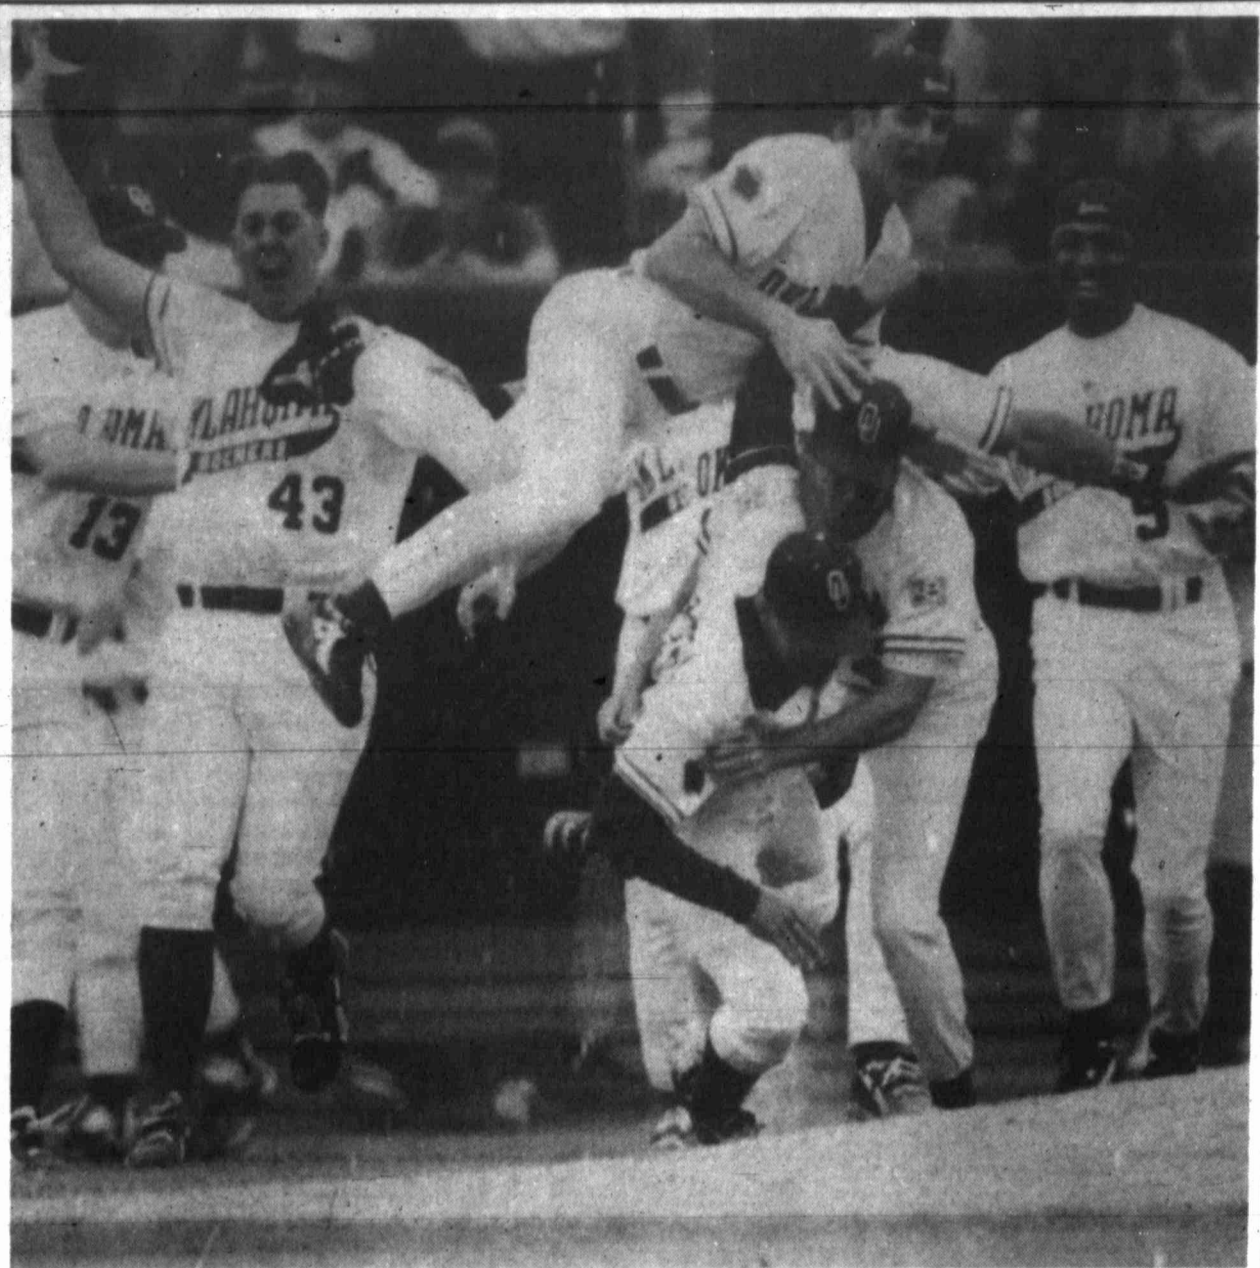

That much was true. I'm willing to wager that all the teams at the state tournament wanted to win the championship, but no one wanted it any more than the Steers.

And that was why the tears were flowing.

But if fans want to remember something from this season, don't recall that wake. Instead, pick any one of an almost countless list of memories from the season.

There's hundreds of schools in Class 4A, and only two made the finals. The Steers' season was way too successful to be blackened by one heartbreaking loss.

Maybe the team can take some comfort from that fact. Maybe the fans can as well. Maybe later.

NBA Finals

Knicks can stay home

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich's coaching strategy was half correct in Game 2 of the NBA Finals against New York.

Unfortunately, the other half cost the Rockets the game and home-court advantage in the best-of-seven series.

In the tense closing minutes, Tomjanovich used a lineup that didn't include Mario Elie and Carl Herrera, believing the group he had on the floor could capture the lead and hold it in the tense final minutes.

The Rockets got the lead, but they couldn't hold it and the Knicks took a 91-83 victory, sending the series to Madison Square Garden for Game 3 on Sunday tied at 1-1.

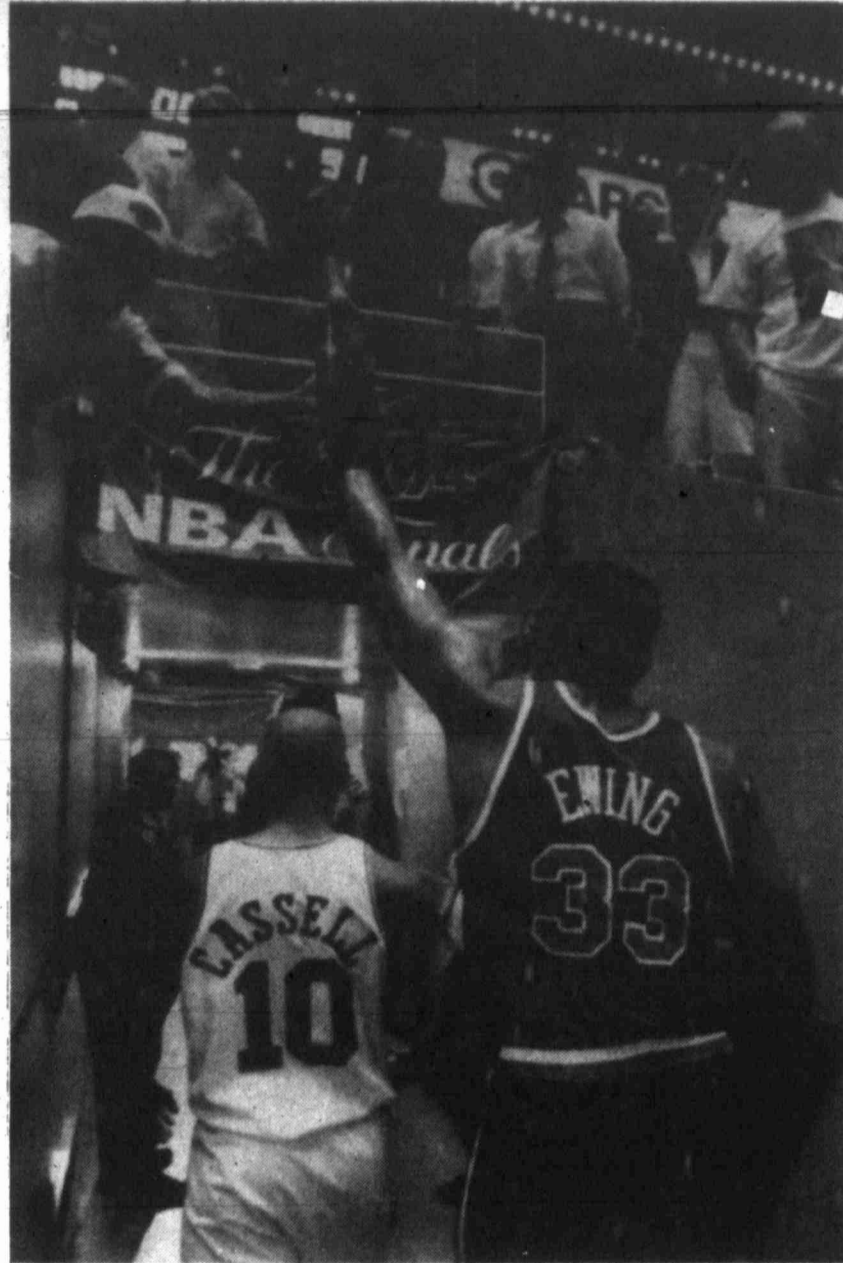

After the Rockets took a 79-76 lead with 6:22 to go, Tomjanovich stayed with starter Vernon Maxwell for his defense.

"It's rare that he's (Elie) not in there, but in a defensive struggle like that was, I thought Max was on track. So we got the lead and stuck with him," Tomjanovich said Saturday.

Herrera, a key player in the Rockets' Game 1 victory, also remained on the bench in the final minutes.

"My gut feeling was the guys in there could make a run, and that was right. We got the lead, but then we stopped executing," Tomjanovich said. "They got the lead and with four minutes to go I didn't want to bring in a guy cold."

Elie said the Rockets let their defensive guard down.

The New York Knicks' Patrick Ewing (33) slaps a fan's hand as he and Sam Cassell (10) of the Houston Rockets walk off the court after Game 2 of the NBA Finals Friday. New York won 91-83 to even the series at 1-1, and the next three games will be in New York.

"Being on the sidelines, you can see things that we need to do and that you think you can do or you would do," Elie said. "The main thing was defense. We let them dictate what they wanted to do. We should have pressured them. I know Max was playing well but ..."

Matt Bullard, with only 28 playoff minutes prior to Game 2, was on the floor 14 minutes Friday night. Elie and Herrera each played seven minutes. Bullard was 1-of-7 from the field.

"I've worked on being more physical," Bullard said. "I'm big enough to be in there against players like Anthony Mason."

Maxwell finished with 20 points, but Kenny Smith was only 1-for-6 and had 2 points Friday.

Tomjanovich expects Smith to recover from the sub-par performance.

"In the playoffs, you're under the microscope and every time you have a sub game, people say, 'Oh my God this guy's down,'" he said. "But you don't overreact. Good players bounce back. He's done it before."

Smith, who grew up in New York City, will get his chance for redemption when he returns there Sunday.

Former boxing champ will leave jail if he wins at judicial hearing

By The Associated Press

INDIANAPOLIS — Mike Tyson had plenty of fight left when he confronted his sentencing judge two years ago.

"I didn't rape anyone," the former heavyweight champion said. "I didn't hurt anyone — no black eyes, no broken ribs. When I'm in the ring, I break their ribs. I break their jaws. To me, that's hurting someone."

But 26 months behind bars for the rape of a teen-age beauty contestant has left Tyson changed by prison education and personal reflection, his friends and lawyers say.

So on Monday, Tyson will return to the courtroom where a jury convicted him in February 1992 and plead with the same judge for a reduced sentence.

If Marion Superior Court Judge

Patricia J. Gifford remains as skeptical as when she sent him away for six years, Tyson could remain behind bars for another 11 months.

Tyson is scheduled for release next May, but he could be freed almost immediately if his sentence is reduced.

Tyson, whose appeal was rejected by Indiana courts and the U.S. Supreme Court, doesn't expect to win this time, either.

"Hey, I don't hold my breath for this," he said last month.

Tyson will be taken from his cell at the Indiana Youth Center to appear at the hearing and may make a personal plea.

His appeals lawyers, Alan Dershowitz and James Voyles, have built an argument that rests on Tyson's educational accomplishments.

Tyson has struggled to complete a high school equivalency course, but he's tackling some tough subjects, including history, modern fiction, economics and philosophy.

Tyson might have shaved six months off his sentence by earning his equivalency degree. But he failed the test in March and won't retake the exam until later this month, after the judge has ruled.

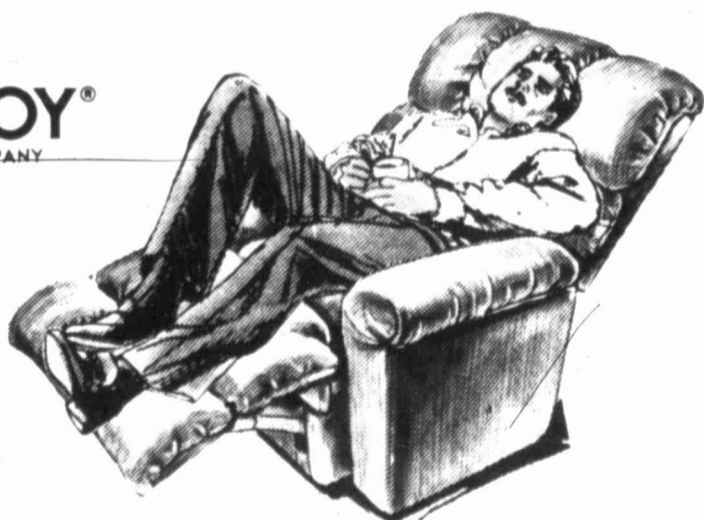

His behind-bars education career got off to a rocky start. Tyson started taking courses but quit, remaining a drop-out for more than a year before re-enrolling last September.

Tabasco Cat takes Belmont

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Tabasco Cat, who won his first race at Belmont without much fanfare, got a lot of attention with his second victory at the track in Saturday's Belmont Stakes.

The Preakness winner stalked Kentucky Derby winner Go for Gin for much of the 1 1/2 miles and then put him away in the stretch to become the ninth 3-year-old to accomplish the Preakness-Belmont double. Tabasco Cat finished sixth in the Derby.

Tabasco Cat, ridden by Pat Day, took the lead approaching the eighth pole and won by two lengths over Go for Gin, who was 3 1/2 lengths in front of Strodes Creek. Completing the order of finish were Signal Tap, Amathos and Ulises.

The winner, who gained notoriety when he ran over trainer D. Wayne Lukas' son Jeff on Dec. 15 causing serious injuries, completed the distance in 2:26 2/5. It was the fifth fastest running in the 126-year history of the race.

The winner paid $8.80, $3.80 and $2.40. Go for Gin, ridden by Chris McCarron, returned $3 and $2.20, while Strodes Creek, ridden by Jerry Bailey, paid $2.20.

Tabasco Cat, left, with jockey Pat Day aboard, wins the 126th running of the Belmont Stakes. Strodes Creek, center, finished third, behind rail-running Go for Gin.

Tabasco Cat raced at Belmont in the fourth start of his career on Sept. 19 and won a one-mile allowance on a muddy track by a neck over Amathos. That victory certainly went unnoticed nationally, and maybe even locally, but a crowd of 42,695 and a national television audience watched his impressive win on a lightning fast track Saturday.

Tabasco Cat didn't arrive at Belmont Park from Baltimore, the site of the Preakness, until Wednesday. He spent part of his mornings cavorting in a sand pit near his barn.

Tabasco Cat, however, was not in a playful mood before the start of the Belmont and had to be pushed into the gate by four assistant starters. Once the gate opened, the Kentucky-bred chestnut colt did everything the patient Day asked him to.

Go for Gin shot out of the gate along the rail and was followed by Tabasco Cat and Ulises. Those three led the field into the clubhouse turn and it was on the turn that McCarron and Go for Gin forced Tabasco Cat and Ulises extremely wide.

The three held their positions entering the backstretch. Right behind them was Strodes Creek. They ran that way until the half-mile pole when Strodes Creek moved into third.

At the top of the stretch, it appeared that maybe Go for Gin could become the fourth wire-to-wire winner of the Belmont since 1976. At that point of the race, Go for Gin was 1 1/2 lengths ahead of Tabasco Cat.

But Tabasco Cat would not let Go for Gin get away, passing him on the outside with 3-16ths mile remaining.

"We did it," shouted Lukas. "We did it. We got him." "Yeah. We got him," Day said. "He fought back again," McCarron said of Go for Gin, who also had surrendered the lead in the Preakness to Tabasco Cat. "He tried to come back but he wasn't able to do it."

Briefs

Rodgers named to All-State Team

Big Spring first baseman Brandon Rodgers was named to the All-State baseball team, as provided by the Bryan-College Station Eagle Saturday.

RODGERS

Rodgers, a senior, adds to his list of achievements. This summer he is playing for Team Texoma, a select team of Texas and Oklahoma players that will be playing in the Netherlands.

Also, Big Spring's Frankie Martinez was named as an outfielder for the UIL All-Tournament Team.

Both teams are listed on page 10 in SportsExtra.

American League hosts Parents' Day

Today is Parents' Day at the American Little League.

The event starts at 2 p.m. and will include food and softball. Each family is asked to bring chips, soft drinks or cookies to share. There will be elections for the 1995 Board of Directors.

For more information, call Jane Holland at 267-5391.

Baseball clinic slated for Steer Park

The annual Big Spring Baseball Clinic begins Monday at Steer Park.

The clinic, run by Big Spring coaches Bobby Doe and Wes Overton, will be held in two sessions. The first, for players ages 6-10, will be held from 8 a.m.-noon Monday through Friday. The second, for players ages 11-14, will be held June 20-24, also from 8 a.m.-noon.

Cost of the clinic, which includes a T-shirt, is $35. For more information, call Doe at 263-8813 or 263-4810, Overton at 267-6901 or BSHS trainer Jim Campbell at 263-0485.

Rodeo tickets now available

Tickets for the upcoming Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo are on sale at the following businesses: Big Spring Hardware, Chamber of Commerce, Citizens Credit Union, Driver Insurance, Don's IGA, First National Bank, State National Bank and Ward's Boot & Saddle.

These advance tickets will be available through June 21. Adult tickets cost $5; tickets for ages 6-12 cost $3.

Box seat packages are also available. A group can purchase six tickets and folding seats for each performance for $170. For more information, call Dr. Rip Patterson at 267-2435.

The rodeo starts June 22 and continues through June 25.

Howard Hawks host hoops camp

The Howard College Boys Basketball Camp will be Monday through Thursday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The camp is open to boys ages 6 and up and costs $95 for day campers and $195 for overnight campers. A $25 registration fee is required prior to the start of the camp.

For more information, contact HC assistant coach Tony Ryndak at 264-5044.

Astros tryout camp comes to Big Spring

The Houston Astros will conduct a tryout camp at Howard College's Jack Barber Field. High school underclassmen are encouraged to attend. Registration for the camp will begin at 8 a.m. June 20, and the tryouts will begin at 8:30.

The camp, under the direction of Astros' scout Ralph Bratton, will be limited to those players between the ages of 16-22.

American Legion players are required to have a letter from their coach or post commander granting permission to attend the camp.

Players must furnish their own uniforms, gloves and shoes. No dressing areas will be available. Players should arrive in uniform and ready to begin the tryout.

For information on this event, call Bratton at 1-512-858-5347.

Indio's Classic comes to Stanton

The Indio's third-annual June softball classic will be played June 24-26 in Stanton.

First- through fourth-place teams get team trophies, and first- and second-place teams get individual T-shirts. There will be 10 All-Tournament players, one Most Valuable Player and one Golden Glove.

For more information, call Fred at 756-2326 or Pablo at 263-3210.

Girls' hoop camp set for Howard

The Howard College Girls Basketball Camp will be happening twice this summer: June 27-30 and July 11-14. The camp will be at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The camp will be open to both day and overnight campers. Cost for overnight campers is $190, while day camp cost is $95. A $25 deposit is required a week before camp begins.

For more information, contact Howard women's coach Royce Chadwick at 264-5043.

Rodeo contestants can sign up Monday

All local entries for the Big Spring Rodeo, which starts June 22, need to register at the offices of Driver Insurance Agency.

The final registration session is Monday, 9-11 a.m.

Little League

City League tournament continues Monday

The City Little League Tournament takes a day off today after an exciting first week of action.

Here are scores from Friday's games:

- Championship Bracket
 CL Reds 10, IL Longhorns 3
 AL Stars 14, IL Rebels 8
- Elimination Bracket
 CL Rockies 9, IL Panthers 8
 NL Yankees 9, NL Cardinals 7

The marquee game Monday will be a championship bracket showdown between the two undefeated teams remaining - the CL Reds and the AL Stars. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

Four elimination games were played Saturday night: AL Braves vs. CL Rockies; AL Astros vs. AL Colts; NL Rangers vs. AL Cardinals; and CL Ponies vs. NL Yankees.

Coahoma Junior League 13-year-olds

Coahoma 10, Hawks 6
 Delvin White, Blake Nichols and T.J. Green poured on the offense to help Coahoma win in a junior league game Tuesday.

All three went 3-for-4 on the day. White drove in four runs, Nichols three and Green two. Green, who struck out 10 Hawk batters, was the winning pitcher.

Cade Park made two strong plays at second base for the winners. Rocky Zarraga drew three walks, had one hit and drove in a run for the Hawks.

Big Spring UGSA Softball Division III

Energizers 22, Sweet Poison 6
 The Energizers improved to 6-1 with a big win over Sweet Poison Monday.

Jessica Canales, Honey Belew and Amanda Alvarez shared the pitching duties for the winners. Belew homered, doubled and drove home two runs for the Energizers. Julie Garza smashed two triples. Trisha Trevino, Gina Valdez and Alvarez doubled.

On defense, Valdez, the shortstop, turned an unassisted double play.

Mandy Salgado singled twice for Sweet Poison.

Division II Blue Diamonds 14, Enforcers 13

Trista Casey and Stepheny Nix each hit a Grand Slam May 31 to lead the Blue Diamonds to a win. Hedy Wigington and Ellen Honeyman played well offensively for the winners, while Casey, Nix, Wigington and Shelly Chaney were stars on defense.

Division I

Big Spring hosted a nine-team Division I tournament June 4 at the Roy Anderson Complex.

A team from Odessa, Appel, came in first, and Big Spring's Baby Ruths for second. Big Spring's Red Hot Chili Peppers were third.

Wild Things, another team from Big Spring, won the consolation bracket. The sportsmanship award went to Queen Bees, a team from Andrews.

Here's the list for the All-Tournament Team:

- Odessa Appel - Lauren Stahl (MVP), Katy Lemons, Bridget Grey
- Big Spring Baby Ruths - Cortney Brock, Ashley Lang
- Big Spring Red Hot Chili Peppers - Tara Shuttlesworth
- C-City Blue Jays - Terry Pharris
- Andrews Queen Bees - Pam McKluskey
- Coahoma Girl Friends - K.K. Keller
- Big Spring Rockets - Melissa Hale
- Big Spring Wild Things - Lindsey Wilks
- Coahoma Lil' Angels - Ruby Garcia

Mansell takes pole

By The Associated Press

DETROIT — Nigel Mansell was first in rumors and first on the track Saturday in qualifying for the Detroit Grand Prix.

Mansell, who spent the morning fending off rumors that he will return to Formula One racing, broke his own track record in final qualifying for today's Indy-car race on the 2.1-mile, 14-turn course around Belle Isle Park.

Mansell pushed his Lola Ford-

Cosworth XB around the course at an average speed of 108.649 mph, easily shattering his mark of 106.627 mph last year.

The next three fastest cars were from the powerful Penske racing team which has dominated the PPG IndyCar World Series this season.

Al Unser Jr., seeking his fourth straight win, will start next to Mansell on the front row.

Paul Tracy and Emerson Fittipaldi, the leader after Friday's provisional qualifying, will share the second row.

'World Series Baseball' world-class

By BRITT and BRIAN WARNER
Thomson News Service

GAME: World Series Baseball Company: Sega of America System: Sega Genesis Player Level: Moderate

You're nervous. This is going to be your first big-league game. You blew them away in the minors and astounded fans and players alike with your ultra-fast knuckle ball. The manager of the major league team called you up on day and said, "Hey, Richard, how's about you pitchin' for us this Saturday?" You accepted, and you're in with the big boys of baseball.

The rest of the team has left the locker room and is awaiting the national anthem. You grab your well-oiled glove, slide it onto your hand, and click-walk out of the locker room. As you start out, you hear the announcer say "... Kevin Mitchell playing left field. Finally, pitching for the Reds tonight, No. 26, fresh from the minors, Richard Oxford!" As you sprint onto the field, the glare of the lights and the roar of the crowd fills you with excitement and anticipation. Now you remember the reason why you still play this game after all these years.

You reach the mound and prepare yourself. This promises to be the best game of your life.

STRUCTURE: World Series Baseball is the latest and most realistic baseball game yet. It features all 28 major league teams (with the new division alignment).

For every pitch, the pitcher must choose the type of pitch to throw (i.e., knuckle ball, curve ball, fast ball), the speed of the pitch, and where he wants the ball to cross the plate.

To make the players' batting states even more realistic, W.S. Baseball uses the Baseball Analysis and Reporting System (BARS).

This system divides the strike zone into nine separate boxes and measures each batter's accuracy at hitting the ball in each box.

This way you can determine a batter's chance to hit every different pitch thrown to him. The pros use this exact same system to determine batting tendencies.

Play clay fun for kids, parents

The Associated Press

Preparing and making shapes with homemade play clay is a great way to encourage manual dexterity for children as well as to get them involved in the kitchen.

In addition, it is a fun activity that Mom and Dad often enjoy. Following are two recipes for play clay. One contains a small amount of vegetable oil, which keeps it soft so that this clay can be used again and again. The other recipe is perfect for making objects that will harden if allowed to stand at room temperature.

For young children, let them dump the ingredients into the pot as you make the clay and then you do the cooking. Give them beans, pieces of plastic drinking straws and toothpicks they can use to apply onto the clay.

These are just a few ideas on some ways to use this versatile stuff. Use your imagination!

Soft Play Clay
1 cup water
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup salt
2 tablespoons powdered alum
1 tablespoon cooking oil
Food coloring, if desired
Combine all ingredients in the top of a double boiler. (You can add the food coloring as you go along as you are cooking or knead it into the clay after you have made the clay.) Stirring constantly, heat the mixture over simmering water until it begins to pull away from the side of the pan. Store the clay in a container with a tight-fitting cover in a cool, dry place. Makes about 1 pound reusable clay.

Planned Parenthood: 20 years of service to Big Spring

For two decades now, Planned Parenthood of West Texas has provided reproductive health services to Big Spring and the surrounding area.

The 20-year landmark was celebrated this week with an open house Wednesday afternoon at the PPWT office at 618 Gregg Street.

Staff from the Big Spring clinic and the administrative office in Odessa provided tours of the clinic and explained the functions and services PPWT provides.

The Big Spring clinic originally opened on Johnson Street. About five years ago, the staff moved into the current Gregg Street location.

The front office is home to a locked cabinet containing patient records, as well as a lab area and cabinet containing supplies of birth control pills and other medicines supplied by PPWT.

The clinic also has a library area with pamphlets and information on birth control, sexually transmitted diseases, abstinence, rape prevention and other topics. Two exam rooms are nearby.

The staff of the Big Spring clinic has always been small, about two to three people. Debbie Lincecum Jensen manages the clinic with the assistance of part-time bilingual secretary Dorothy Viasana.

Nurse practitioner Brenda Gariepy is in the clinic on Mondays to provide exams and Pap smears for patients. A nurse practitioner, explained Jensen, is a registered nurse who has had additional schooling in women's health care.

Throughout the rest of the week, Jensen performs blood and urine tests, counsels patients, dispenses birth control and other medications, and oversees the operations of the clinic.

Most lab work is done in house by Jensen or Gariepy, but Pap smears and tests for sexually transmitted diseases are sent to other labs for analysis.

Volunteer workers are welcome and needed to help with filing and answering the phones during busy Mondays.

At the end of this month, the clinic will start offering exams two days a week. This is to more effectively serve an increasing number of patients, said Jensen.

Increased exams means less waiting by patients—both for the exam and for their birth control. "In most cases, you get your birth control method that same day," she said.

Later this year, the clinic plans to offer mid-life services for women, including hormone therapy. Clients are already routinely screened for anemia, diabetes, high blood pressure, urinary tract infections and other problems that can affect women of all ages.

PPWT isn't just for women only, Jensen stressed. Vasectomies are available for low-income male patients, and the clinic regularly sells condoms to several men. "Condoms are $3.50 a dozen—a better price than at the stores," she said.

The clinic also treats men who are the partners of female patients with sexually transmitted diseases.

All fees are based on a sliding scale determined by the patient's income. About 86 percent of the Big Spring patients are at or below the poverty level and pay little or nothing.

Confidentiality is another facet of PPWT that is important to its staff. "Anyone who comes here can be assured no one will know they're using our services," said Jensen.

Signs throughout the office repeat the message that no information given to clinic staff during counseling or exams will be repeated elsewhere.

And Jensen hears a lot of information. "What I spend most of my time doing is talking to people, figuring out what their problem areas are, how we can help them or if others can help them," she explained.

Nation marks 50th anniversary of GI Bill

By PAT ATKINS
VA Medical Center

On June 22, 1944, President Franklin Roosevelt signed the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, better known as the "GI Bill of Rights."

During the past five decades, this legislation, originally intended to ease the transition of World War II veterans into civilian life, has proven to be one of the nation's wisest and most productive investments.

Members of the American Legion proposed the main features of the bill that both houses passed unanimously.

Half of the eligible World War

II veterans—nearly 8 million—used the new training programs and comprised half of the nation's college enrollment in the peak year 1947.

In 1939, approximately 160,000 Americans graduated from four-year colleges. In 1950 nearly 500,000 graduated. At the end of the war, home building was at a standstill. Between 1945 and 1950, more than 5 million homes were built.

The current education program, the Montgomery GI Bill, extended the benefits to reservists. Since 1944, more than 20 million veterans and dependents have participated in education programs and 14 million home loans have been guaranteed.

The nation has benefited from the $67 billion investment that GI Bill programs have made so far. The education expenditures are paid back to the Treasury in income taxes many times in the lifetime of a veteran.

The GI Bill greatly advanced the ideal of universal education and home ownership in the United States.

Man's best friend: A poodle named Justin

Joe Cooper is a traveling salesman and spends a good amount of time on the road. His companion is a black poodle named Justin A. Dog. Justin and Joe have been together for four years.

Tumbleweed Smith

Joe was on his way to Bastrop and decided to spend the night in Burnet at the Sundowner Motel, a place he had frequented on previous occasions.

The motel wall full, so Joe got back in his car and drove to Georgetown and checked into a motel there. When he got ready to get Justin and retire for the night, he discovered that Justin was gone. By now it was 10:30 p.m.

Joe drove back to Burnet, figuring that since they had spent the night at the Sundowner before, Justin thought he was home and decided to get out of the car for the night.

Joe rang the night bell at the Sundowner and asked the lady who came out if she had seen a little black poodle dog. She said she had, and had tried to get it to come to her, but it wouldn't. She said the dog ran out onto a busy highway and she was afraid a car may have hit it.

Joe scoured the neighborhood, trying to call up Justin, but had no luck. He returned to Georgetown to spend the rest of the night there. At 5 a.m. he got up and returned to Burnet. He inquired about Justin at every convenience store he found open. He went to the feed store, the police station and finally the newspaper.

He designed a display ad and a classified ad, stating that Justin had no street smarts, he was a humanized dog and Joe missed him something terrible. It was a sad ad. The paper came out on Thursdays and this was Saturday. Joe bought two weeks' worth of ads.

The people at the newspaper got interested in Joe's predicament. He was introduced to a lady who writes feature stories. She told Joe that if the dog ever turned up, he would turn up at her friend's house. Her friend was a poodle groomer. She called her friend, but the dog hadn't been seen.

Joe spent some anxious days worrying about Justin. On Friday he checked with his home office. The secretary told his she had been spending most of her time answering the phone about Justin. He had indeed been found in Burnet.

It seems that Justin spent the night in front of a video store just across the street from the Sundowner. The owner found Justin the next morning, knew he was a pet and waited until someone called for the dog. When on one did, he called the poodle grooming lady and she called the veterinarian, who called Joe's office.

Joe said, "If you have to lose your dog, make sure it's in a small town. Those people in Burnet were real helpful. Justin was right proud to see me but not half as glad as I was to see him."

4-H District Council to elect new officers

By MICHAEL KELSEY
Howard County Extension Agent

A unique leadership opportunity for senior 4-H members is taking place this week.

The annual District VI Council Retreat will be in Snyder at Western Texas College. Senior 4-H members from around the district will gather to elect officers and participate in challenging leadership workshops and seminars.

The election of council officers is an important event every year at District Council Retreat. 4-H members campaign for their chosen office by passing out flyers, buttons, posters, cards and other campaign materials.

They present several speeches discussing their qualifications and plans for the coming year in 4-H. Elections are held with each county in the district having two votes from their selected voting delegates. District VI includes all counties from Howard to El Paso to Val Verde (Del Rio).

Leadership development is another important aspect of the Council Retreat. Guest speakers include leaders in national business and industry.

Several sessions will be a lecture style presentation, however, most will be hands-on type activities. Public speaking, goal setting, time and money management, and other leadership qualities will be stressed in each seminar.

Dustin Gaskins, and active member of the Howard County Senior 4-H club, is campaigning for office this year. Dustin has been very involved in 4-H for several years.

He has presented a state-winning method demonstration, prepared a state-winning record book and represents Howard County and Texas at National 4-H Congress. Dustin's project area focuses around conservation of natural resources but is not limited to that area only.

Bigger may not be better for churches

The Associated Press

Earlier this century, Southern Baptists took over the South with their ability to start new congregations in rural areas too small for other denominations to bother with.

All it took was a few people and a lay preacher and you had a church.

But in the past 40 years, the denomination took a deliberate turn to larger churches. The smaller churches were closed and merged and big churches with seminary-trained pastors became the trend.

What they have found is bigger is not necessarily better, according to a new study in the latest issue of the Review of Religious Research. Increasing the size of congregations has brought with it a flood of mid-size congregations whose members give less in time and money than members of smaller congregations.

Now at the top of the hill of Protestant denominations in terms of size, there is the beginning of a movement back to the "house churches" that first gave the Southern Baptist Convention its strength.

"It's really only been in the last generation that we've created these large churches and our smaller churches became mid-sized churches," said the Rev. David Palmer, associate director of the convention's New Church Extension Division. "We made a fatal connection. We sold the idea to be a real church you had to have a full-time preacher."

In the Review of Religious Research, sociologist Roger Finke of Purdue University traces the subtle but dramatic transformation of the Southern Baptist Convention from a group of small, fiercely independent churches to a denomination even larger than its mainline counterparts in average church size and increasingly run by professionally trained clergy.

The average size of a Southern Baptist church increased by only 30 members, from 85 to 115 during the first 75 years of the convention's history from 1845 to 1920, Finke said. During the past 70 years, congregation size has more than tripled to nearly 400 members.

Compared to other Protestant churches, the changes have been particularly striking, Finke said. For example, up until 1950, Southern Baptists averaged 255 members per church, less than the average of 277 members per church of Protestant denominations with over one million members. By 1990, the other denominations had increased their church size to only 297, while the Southern Baptists increased to 396 members per church.

To run these larger churches, congregations became less dependent on local preachers who would have another job in town to support themselves, and increasingly turned to seminary trained clergy. Finke said it took nearly a century up until 1950 for Southern Baptist seminaries to furnish their first 10,000 graduates. Since 1950, convention seminaries have produced more than 60,000 graduates.

But at the same time churches have been getting larger, what researchers have found is what early Southern Baptists knew all along: There is strength in small numbers.

In small groups, members are more accountable to one another and are able to maintain a high set of religious standards. Supportive social networks, fervent testimonials and a sense of belonging are but a few of the advantages of small religious groups, according to Finke.

The figures bear out a high level of commitment in small churches. Churches with less than 100 members have the highest rate of Sunday School enrollment, with some 86 percent of congregants in churches with less than 50 members participating. In contrast, less than half the members in mid-sized churches are enrolled in Sunday School.

Finke also said the total contribution by member size also is higher among small churches, with an average contribution of $374 per member in churches of less than 50 members in 1990. Churches of 200 to 300 members reported an average contribution of $235. The numbers rose again to $435 for churches of more than 3,000 members, but Finke said that may be due in part to the ability of some superchurches to organize small groups within the larger congregation.

The changes have not gone unnoticed within the 15 million-member denomination.

"We're seeing an infant movement right now to start house churches," small churches that meet in homes or public buildings that do not require a full-time pastor, Palmer said.

The movement is not only to reinvigorate the denomination, which grew less than 1 percent last year, but to help protect the spiritual integrity of the churches, according to Palmer.

In California, Jonathan Campbell, a "church planter strategist" based in Riverside, helps nurture communities of as few as three to as many as 20 people who meet in homes and apartment complexes. Recently, he said, a baptism was held in the swimming pool of one complex.

The communities are led by people from white-collar executives to adults without a high school education who find meaningful spiritual relationships gathering in small groups for prayer, Bible study and worship.

Campbell says the movement follows a New Testament model of small communities of believers that goes back to Jesus and his disciples.

"There's a sense of really being a family," he said. "It's not in just a legalistic sense by any means. It's just a true sense of caring for one another."

Clinic

"That's how we differ from other health care providers. We provide pre- and post-exam counseling. When we give out medications, we explain and demonstrate how to use them."

Counseling is PPWT's main weapon against HIV transmission as well. Jane Hellinghausen, director of community affairs for PPWT, said the organization used to provide HIV testing until 1991, when the state took funding away from family planning services and put the money into HIV testing and counseling services.

PPWT now does not have the funding to duplicate the services provided by other health clinics that test for HIV. However, part of PPWT's counseling is to determine the patient's risk of having or contracting HIV, and to refer patients to facilities that perform HIV testing.

The Big Spring clinic is open Monday-Friday, 8 a.m.-12:30 p.m. and 1:30-5 p.m. For information or to make an appointment call 263-8351.

Americans don't talk no bad English-do we?

Lydel Sims

I see or hear these deplorable Americanisms. All this is a result of the very poor education system we have suffered for 30 or more years. We must get back to basics. — B.R.

A: Wow, what an indictment. I almost hate to mention that "fun" has been used as an adjective (as in fun-loving) for more than 200 years and as a verb for a century before then. Verbs are constantly used as nouns, and have been since long before you and I were born.

Surely our education system has had enough problems in the last 30 or more years without blaming it for perfectly normal aspects of the language on both sides of the Atlantic. Ain't we Americans got no good points at all?

SIR: Are synonyms to be treated as identical and always interchangeable? — Donald T.

A: Not on your life. Synonyms are words having the same or nearly the same meaning. That "nearly" covers an awful lot of ground, as your letter suggested when you said "passion" and "zeal" are listed as synonyms. They are, too, but you could get into big trouble if you assumed that those two meant the same, couldn't you?

SIR: A writer asked you if all pens are ink pens, and your response mentioned pippens and bullpens. My dictionary defines pen as an instrument for writing or drawing with ink. You owe the author of the query an apology. — Steve B.

A: I'm fascinated that your dictionary offers only one definition of "pen." Mine has 20 lines of definitions, from swans and pippens to submarine docks. Should I really apologize for taking the writer's question at face value?

PUZZLED QUERY of the Week, from Pat S.

"After a movie the other night, a man sitting behind us announced in a loud voice to anyone who was interested (and not many were): 'It's like a soap opera turned inside out!' Huh? Huh?"

(Send questions, comments, and good and bad examples to Lydel Sims, Watch Your Language, 366 S. Highland, Apt. 410, Memphis, Tenn. 38111. If you quote a book, please give author, title and page number. Sorry, but questions can be answered only through this column.)

Anything's possible in world of dreams

By CHRISTINA FERCHALK

Last night I dreamed I could fly.

I do that from time to time. Flying dreams are at the top of my hit parade. This dream was so realistic I woke up convinced that mankind must have, at one time, possessed the ability to fly.

Prehistoric people probably did it all the time, but eventually they became intelligent enough to realize what they were doing was impossible, so they stopped doing it. The secret was forever lost.

Later in the day, I gave my theory some more thought and decided, "Well, that was stupid!"

I've been told that flying dreams are my libido's way of screaming at me to lighten up and cut myself some slack. Personally I think that's a bunch of hooey. I dream I can fly because it gives me pleasure. Maybe some of our dreams have deep, dark undertones, but some we create simply for our own entertainment.

I've come to believe our dreams mean whatever we want them to mean. Once in a while, we produce one with no redeeming value whatsoever except that it gives us a hoot.

Were you ever in the middle of a boring dream and suddenly became aware that you were dreaming? If you have any imagination at all, these dreams can be a lot of fun. You can do absolutely anything you like, and you don't have to tell it in confession, because technically it wasn't willful thought.

The last time I had one of those dreams, the first thing I did in the dream was to take off all my clothes. I looked at my body, didn't like what I saw, so I changed it. I lifted this, tucked that and rounded it all off until I looked spectacular.

Then I ran out to my backyard, and rolled naked in the grass. It was broad daylight and all the neighbors were looking and pointing. I just laughed and told them to go ahead and call a cop. It was only a dream — what did I care?

The next day, however, I had to convince myself that it was, in fact, only a dream and I wouldn't never actually do such a thing no matter how much sherry I'd had to drink.

Occasionally we have romantic dreams about someone who is not our spouse, intended or significant other. These dreams can be very upsetting, especially when the person in your dream is someone you find, in real life, to be positively revolting. The following day you take an extra hot, extra long shower and you still can't scrub away the memory.

After a romantic dream it is important to keep in mind that you have nothing to feel guilty about. Dreams come to us unbidden, at least consciously. It is equally important to keep in mind that you talk about these dreams to no one; not a living soul.

Even the most trusted of friends could get tanked at a party some night and spill the beans to your dream partner. Should this occur you would have to change jobs, sell your house, and move to another solar system, because there is no way on God's green earth you could ever face that person again!

In dreams you can run naked through the streets, fly like a bird, pig out on hot fudge sundae, discover a hidden room in the back of your closet, speak with deceased loved ones, and travel anywhere your heart desires.

It's your call, since it's all in your head anyway. So why not go for it.

Bartling-King

Susan Bartling and Jimmy King, both of Big Spring, exchanged wedding vows 2 p.m. June 11, 1994, at Faith Lutheran Church, Austin, with Rev. Dean Busboom officiating.

She is the daughter of Larry and Charlene Bartling, Harker Heights.

He is the son of Charles and Carol Wright, Sand Springs.

The couple stood before two vases of spring flowers on both sides of the altar. There were also floor baskets of spring flower arrangements.

Loretta Bolstad played the pipe organ. Ron and Marian Carlson were the vocalists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown by Bonnie which featured a scalloped lace illusion sweetheart neckline beaded in pearls with long sleeves. The white prima satin bodice was accented with clear sequins and seed pearls. The gown also had Schiffl embroidery moved with a bowed semi-cathedral length train adorned with satin appliques. The fingertip veil had flowers and pearls.

The bride carried a bouquet of cascading white roses, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Annette Fielden, Sulphur Springs. Bridesmaids were Nancy Dinauer, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Teri Schwartz, Harker Heights, sister of the bride and Angela Teixeira, Ft. Worth.

Flower girls were Erin and Sarah Schwartz, nieces of the bride, Harker Heights.

Best man was Pat Robinson, cousin of the groom, Big Spring. Groomsman were Gene Tobin, Terry King, both of Big Spring and Steven Bartling, brother of the bride, Harker Heights.

MRS. JIMMY KING

Ushers were Kevin Spradling and Bryan Spradling, cousins of the bride, both of Austin.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church fellowship hall.

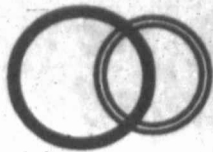

The bride's table was covered with a white linen tablecloth and skirt with accents of mauve bows and featured a three-tiered white cake adorned with sprays of pastel colored roses.

The groom's table was also covered with a white linen cloth and skirt. It had a Western theme and featured a chocolate cake with a cowboy motif.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Killeen High School in Killeen and a 1992 graduate of Texas Tech University. She is employed as a fourth-grade teacher at Bauer Elementary in Big Spring.

The groom is a 1987 graduate of Coahoma High School. He is employed by The Carpet Center, Big Spring.

After a wedding trip to Las Vegas, Nev., the couple will make their home in Big Spring.

Clark

MR. AND MRS. DAN CLARK, THEN AND NOW

Dan and Evelyn Clark, both of Big Spring, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary on June 12 at the Days Inn Patio Room. The children and grandchildren served as hosts.

He was born in Bell County, and she was born in Coahoma as Evelyn Wilson. The couple met at the Coahoma Church of Christ. They were married on June 14, 1944, in the home of C. E. Higginbotham, minister of the Church of Christ, who officiated.

The couple raised six children, Kaye and Glen Holley, Snyder; Sherriah and Kenneth Crittendon, Tuscola; Susan and David Crawford, Corpus Christi; Sylvia and Jim Mooney, Pearland; Patricia and Josh Klassen, Iraan and Paul and Gayle Clark, Sacramento, Calif.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark also have 16 grandchildren and one great-grandchild. They have lived in Dallas-Fort Worth area, Denmark and Big Spring during their marriage.

Mr. Clark is a minister of Westbrook Church of Christ and is currently involved in mission work in Liberia, West Africa. Mrs. Clark is a homemaker and seamstress.

The couple is affiliated with the Church of Christ. They enjoy sewing, their grandchildren, cutting gem stones (facets), and teaching children's Bible classes.

The couple had this comment to say about their years of marriage: "Dan has often been asked, 'Would you do it again?' The reply is yes! Our marriage has lasted 50 years. Six married children-no divorces!"

Bill Heinrich, head of the breeding program for the Boise, Idaho-based Peregrines Fund, holds one of the four aplomado falcon chicks flown to the Cameron County Airport on Thursday.

Rare bird rebounds

The Associated Press

BAYVIEW — An ambitious program in South Texas could send the aplomado falcon — one of the rarest birds in the United States — on the same flight to abundance as the peregrine falcon, an expert says.

"I'm confident that within the next few years we'll see nesting pairs, and within five to 10 years it will be on the road to recovery through much of its range," said Bill Heinrich, manager of the Peregrine Fund Inc.'s falcon release program.

Four captive-bred aplomado falcon chicks were given new homes in the wild Thursday at Laguna Atascosa National Wildlife Refuge, the latest step to reintroduce the raptors into a habitat in which their numbers once soared.

No breeding pairs of aplomado falcons have been seen in the United States since 1941. Biologists blamed their near-extinction on shrinking habitats and pesticides, which contaminated the food chain.

The aplomado program is patterned after the dramatic recovery of the peregrine falcon. The government has proposed to scratch some subspecies of the peregrine falcon from its endangered species list.

The falcon chicks are bred and raised in captivity at the World Center for Birds of Prey in Boise, Idaho.

Idaho, then slowly reintroduced into the wild.

Heinrich said the aplomado has the same chance of gaining a viable population as the peregrine falcon.

"I'm really encouraged. I don't think there's any question at this point," he said. "It won't be on the same scale because these birds don't seem to be as cosmopolitan as the peregrine falcon."

Peregrine falcons can migrate from the arctic tundra of North America to the far reaches of Chile and Argentina. Aplomados are generally expected to stay within Mexico, Arizona, Texas and New Mexico.

"This aplomado is one of the best pieces of news going on right now with endangered species," said Steve Thompson, manager of the Laguna Atascosa refuge.

Officials praised local cotton and grain farmers for voluntarily reducing the use of some pesticides so the aplomado falcons will have a better chance for survival.

"Without the cooperation from the agriculture community we wouldn't even be able to do this," Heinrich said.

Heinrich placed the 4-month-old aplomado chicks in protective cages, where they will stay for a few weeks to become accustomed to their new surroundings on the 40,000-acre refuge.

Jones-Willems

Kimberly Jones, Big Spring, and Kurtis Willems, Andrews, were united in marriage on June 11, 1994, at Trinity Baptist Church with Bro. Randy Cotton, pastor, officiating.

She is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Jones and the late A.C. Jones.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Willems.

The couple stood before an altar of brass columns with votive candle holders arranged with greenery and a unity candle and stand decorated with flowers and greenery.

Lila Adkins played the organ. Chuck and Amy Carrigan were the vocalists.

Given in marriage by nephew Chase Davis, the bride wore a semi-cathedral length sheath gown in shantique white by Eton. The gown had a V-neck, iridescent beaded and pearl bodice, long Juliet sleeves and covered buttons trailing down the back leading to a detachable train trimmed with lace appliques and iridescent beads. The headpiece included pearl drops, pearls and clear beads. It was fingertip length with a bouffant back.

The bride carried a bouquet of cascading gardenias with white roses and Dan Orbiom orchids.

Matron of honor was Karen Sneed, sister of the bride, Big Spring.

Bridesmaids were Laura White, Fort Worth; Melanie Kercher, cousin of the bride, Euless and Cyndi Daughtery, cousin of the bride, Abilene.

Flowergirl was Randi Davis, niece of the bride. Best man was Russ Ortega, Andrews.

Groomsman were Zandy Willems, brother of the groom,

MRS. KURTIS WILLEMS

Escandido, Calif.; Ken Reese and Uriel Jimenez, both of Andrews.

Ushers were Dale Sneed, brother-in-law of the bride, Big Spring, and Jackie Williams, Andrews.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall.

The bride's table featured a four-tiered cake, which had a square bottom with three additional round tiers, with white icing and decorated with white flowers.

The bottom of the cake was decorated with fresh flowers as well as around the punch bowl. The table also had crystal candle holders and bride's bouquet.

The groom's table had a silver coffee service set, a chocolate cream cake and vegetable tray.

The bride is a graduate of Big Spring High School, Howard College and University of Texas—Permian Basin, Odessa, with a bachelor of business.

The groom is a graduate of Andrews High School and attended the University of Texas—El Paso. He is currently employed by GPM.

After a wedding trip to Ixtapa, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Andrews.

FOR SUNDAY, JUNE 12, 1994: ARIES (March 21-April 19): You tend to be whimsical today. Confusion with communications, health and energy might fray your nerves. Creating a positive dialogue wards off tension between you and another. Your creativity surges. Tonight: Let go, have fun and be a little wild. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Slow down now and work more effectively. Money matters could get drastically out of hand. Be clear as to which way you are going. Opportunities for discussion provide new solutions. Domestic matters are up for grabs. Tonight: Stay close to the house. ***

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Change your direction. A loving conversation confuses you. Allow your creativity to surge despite frustrations. A loved one cares about you despite the mixed-up vibes. Listen to your intuition. Tonight: Keep a lid on your energy. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Soft communications surround you. You feel indulged by another. Be careful not to be overly sensitive in a talk. Opportunities for growth, creativity and affection surround you. Watch your budget; expenses are higher than anticipated. Tonight: Watch spending. ***

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The day improves as it gets older. Again, be careful with money. There is a tendency to go overboard. Creativity is strong. A family member lets you know in no uncertain terms of a profound interest in you. Tonight: Be happy-go-lucky. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are feeling feisty. Your ruler, Mercury, goes retrograde today - which could make you jumpy. Communications put you on overload no matter what you choose. Tonight: Keep your own counsel. **

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Relate to others in a friendly, upbeat manner. Do not allow yourself to be negative. Feel free to indulge yourself. Focus on friendship, expanded financial opportunities and having a good time. Tonight: Go wild. *****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Too much goes on too fast, and you overheat. Gain a perspective on others' priorities. Do not mince words. Remain content, and look to positive changes. Tonight: Put your best foot forward. ***

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): One-to-one relating is most satisfactory. You come out feeling good about your direction. Good communications surround you and give you perspective in a friendship. You handle a situation more positively. Tonight: Take a drive. ****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): One-to-one relating is highlighted. Take action now. Allow your creativity to flow and honor changes around you. You could feel overwhelmed. Be more loving in how you deal with another. Tonight: Make merry. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get a second wind. Stay clear in your choices and needs. Grab an opportunity to reassess a relationship. You see events in a new light. Work through a problem. You relish the company of friends. Welcome an invitation. Tonight: Receive positive feelings. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Make the most of the early hours. Another is well-disposed to you. Take time for a family get-together. A misunderstanding comes out of nothing. Tonight: Talk to a loved one at a distance. ***

IF JUNE 12, 1994 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: Do not shy away from opportunities in the year ahead.

It could be a challenging year with a major transformation. Finances will be greatly enhanced by your ability to manage your talent.

You'll also have extraordinary drive and will be able to get past situations that would baffle others.

If you are single, you'll meet people through your day-to-day life, and your popularity will soar in the winter.

If you are attached, your relationship will flourish if you are willing to make clear how much you care; small tokens of affection really will count. LEO brings out the best in you.

Spice 'up' your language

DEAR ABBY: Some time ago, you published an item on the word "up" — how frequently it is used, and how comical it sometimes sounds. Will you please publish it again? — MRS. F.M. DRUMMER, KNOXVILLE, TENN.

Abigail Van Buren: MRS. DRUMMER: Your letter was a real "upper." Many thanks. Here's the piece:
WHAT'S UP
 "We've got a two-letter word we use constantly that may have more meanings than any other. The word is UP."
 "It is easy to understand UP, meaning toward the sky or toward the top of a list. But when we waken, why do we wake UP? At a meeting, why does a topic come UP? And why are participants said to speak UP? Why are officers UP for election? And why is it UP to the secretary to write UP a report?"
 "The little word is really not needed, but we use it anyway. We brighten UP a room, light UP a cigar, polish UP the silver, lock UP the house and fix UP the old car."
 "At other times, it has special meanings. People stir UP trouble, line UP for tickets, work UP an appetite, think UP excuses and get tied UP in traffic."
 "To be dressed is one thing, but to be dressed UP is special. It may be confusing, but a drain must be opened UP because it is stopped UP.

 "In order to be UP on the proper use of UP, look UP the word in the dictionary. In one desk-sized dictionary, UP takes UP half a column; and the listed definitions add UP to about 40.
 "If you are UP to it, you might try building UP a list of the many ways in which UP is used. It may take UP a lot of your time, but if you don't give UP, you may wind UP with a thousand." — FRANK S. ENDICOTT

DEAR ABBY: I just turned 13. I was at my grandparents' house with my two sisters, Molly and Maggie. My grandpa said that he would pay 3 cents for each dandelion weed we pulled. I pulled 350 weeds in one hour. That's $10.50. Right? Molly pulled 305 weeds. That's $9.15. I don't know how many weeds Maggie pulled.

Abby, I was taught to trust my elders, but when it was time to pay us, Grandpa offered each of us only $6. After Molly accepted the offer, he dropped it to $5.

I wasn't going to take $5 because I thought Grandpa was unfair to change the deal after the work was done. What do you think? — TRUST GONE WRONG IN MINNESOTA

DEAR TRUST: Shame on Grandpa. Children are raised to believe that adults can do no wrong — especially grandparents. You were right to show your disappointment when Grandpa didn't live up to his end of the bargain. He set a poor example for his grandchildren.

Mesquite makes masterpieces

By ANGIE WAY
 Heritage Museum Curator

Think of mesquite trees as big weeds? An exhibit at the Heritage Museum in Big Spring in June and July might change your thinking. Artist Charlie Boren has taken the knobby wood and created sculptures of wildlife and unique animal and human characters.

The artist selects native Texas wood, much of it collected as driftwood from the lake side around Buchanan Dam near his home in Burleson. The shape and condition of each piece suggests the form that will emerge with Boren's sculpting.

He has carved professionally for 25 years with a love of working with wood that came from a childhood of watching relatives whittling on the back porch. He has studied with sculptors in the United States and Europe.

Charlie Boren is one of only a few professional sculptors in the United States who work with large, rough pieces of wood. In 1993 he was awarded the Distinguished Design Award by the Texas Forestry Association.

Twenty-nine of Boren's works will be displayed in the Heritage Museum's Hall of Horns through July. Featured are several works, in mesquite, of birds and other wildlife. The sculptures of Charles Boren are on display at the Heritage Museum now through July.

The Heritage Museum is open

Tuesday through Friday, 9 a.m.-5 p.m., and Saturday 10 a.m.-5 p.m. For more information, please call 267-8255.

On June 13, 1949 traveling through the Llano Estacado of West Texas, Captain Randolph Marcy wrote of the flora of the area, "we passed a great deal of the small mesquite and numberless plants of the jointed cactus today. The stalks of the latter is, when dried, a hard wood, and makes good fuel."

The Great Plains of the United States had been labeled at various times as the Great American Desert. Walter Prescott Webb's "The Great Plains" recounts the experience of Stephen F. Austin in 1822 when he traveled in a Plains area of South Texas as the "poorest I ever saw in my life, it is generally nothing but sand, entirely void of timber, covered with scrubby thorn bushes and prickly pear."

To the north, Horace Greeley made a similar observation of the Great Plains, describing it as having "no spring, no brook, for a distance of thirty to sixty miles (with) rivers which have each had fifty to a hundred mile of its course gradually parched up by force of sun and wind."

The western half of Texas is part of the Great Plains which continues northward to Canada. However, not everyone took so dim a view of our terrain. Early ranchers like C. C. Slaughter found the area near here to be very fit for raising livestock. In Thaddeus W. Box's paper on "Range Deterioration in West Texas" he supports the opinion that the early rancher found excellent grazing, "many of the early ranches in West Texas continuously stocked ranges in excess of fifty head per sections that is, one animal to fifteen acres."

Box continues to write that deterioration of the range was such that by 1967 only one-third of that number could be supported by a section of range land.

Why the change? Many historians consider the Native Americans to be good role models in caring for the land. Some maintain that Indians on the Great Plains had regular burn-offs of large tracts of land. This removed small bushes and trees and allowed fresh grass growth.

Whether these burn-offs occurred naturally from lightning or were man made, the land of the prairies was sufficient to support millions of head of buffalo.

Overstocking is blamed as a major cause for the deterioration of the Plains grassland. But how do the numbers of cattle brought to West Texas in the 1870's compare to the number of buffalo which grazed here only a few decades earlier?

Nation's oil rig count up by 10

HOUSTON (AP) — The number of working oil and gas rigs nationwide increased by 10 last week to 752, Baker Hughes Inc. said Friday.

A year ago, the total was 711. Of the rigs running this week, 410 were exploring for natural gas, 326 for oil and 16 were listed as miscellaneous.

Houston-based Baker Hughes has kept track of the count since 1940. The count peaked at 4,500 in December of 1981 during the oil boom. Last summer, it dropped to a record low of 596. The previous low was 663 in the summer of 1986.

The rig count represents the number of rigs actively exploring for oil and natural gas.

Of the major oil- and gas-producing states, Kansas and Pennsylvania led gains with four more rigs a piece. Wyoming added another three and New Mexico and Colorado each gained one.

Oklahoma lost three rigs. Texas, Ohio and Louisiana each dropped by one.

Michigan, California and North Dakota remained unchanged.

Shareholders block Kmart stock plan

TROY, Mich. (AP) — Kmart Corp. was blocked by shareholders from moving ahead with a plan to issue a new class of common stock for each of its four specialty store businesses.

The vote Friday was a major setback to the management of the large retailer, which has been struggling to find ways to better compete with its rivals Wal-Mart Stores Inc. and Sears, Roebuck and Co.

FAA cancels its automation program

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration canceled parts of its troubled advanced automation program and said it was reviewing another portion in a move aimed at saving "hundreds of millions of dollars."

Conceived in the early 1980s as an advanced national system for directing aviation operations, the Advanced Automation System has been plagued by delays and cost overruns.

FAA Administrator David R. Hinson said Friday his agency cannot continue a "business as usual" approach to this program, with total costs projected at $6.9 billion by the time it is completed early in the next century.

Domestic car sales slowed slightly in May

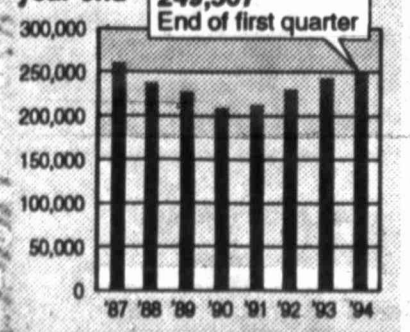

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic sales of cars and light trucks slowed slightly in May, but still they grew, as automakers benefited from continuing consumer confidence and an aging auto fleet on the nation's highways.

Reports released Friday showed total sales by foreign and domestic manufacturers were up about 3 percent from a year ago, with trucks accounting for nearly all the growth.

Wall Street's cautious hiring

Reluctant to repeat the large-scale layoffs that followed the 1987 stock market crash, brokerage firms have shown caution in rebuilding their work forces these past four years. That cautiousness intensified after this year's market plunge.

Successfully growing tomatoes

By far, the most popular garden vegetable grown by local gardeners is the tomato.

Don Richardson

Technically, the tomato is classified as a fruit, but it is hardly ever referred to as such. It is generally regarded by most gardeners and consumers, alike, as a thoroughly delicious, nutritious vegetable. No one seems greatly concerned about the argument anyway.

Tomatoes, popular as they are, actually are not as easy to grow, as many new gardeners usually find out. West Texas is a challenge to most experienced gardeners and new residents and first time gardeners can get most frustrated!

Our intense summer heat, poor water quality (city residents and even some rural areas), insects, fluctuating temperatures, erratic rainfall, varying soil qualities plus a whole range of other problems help to create the frustration.

Earlier I discussed recommended varieties of tomatoes for our area. This can help prevent some of the problems experienced by the novice gardener.

The big and beautiful "beefsteak" types look great in the ads and some growers have been successful in producing them here. The average gardener experiences disappointment, however. The large type fruiting varieties can not take our heat. All tomatoes suffer from poor bloom set when temperatures get much over 90 degrees Fahrenheit, but varieties with smaller fruit such as Improved Porter, Early Girl, Celebrity and Jackpot have consistently performed well in our area by local growers.

A problem common to West Texas growers, and appearing to be more severe than usual this year, is "curly-top."

Most varieties are susceptible to this insect carried virus. The beet leafhopper is the insect responsible for this disease and, unfortunately, it can not be effectively controlled.

Once a plant is infected there is nothing that can be done to cure the disease. Infected plants show the following symptoms: a general lightening of color, curling of the leaves, particularly the top, newer growth, swollen purplish colored veins on the underside of the leaves with the older, lower leaves becoming stiff and leathery. People with sensitive touches can often actually feel a higher temperature difference between infected plants and healthy ones. Younger plants appear to be more susceptible to this disease than older ones.

Some tips to help prevent this disease include controlling weeds in the area of the garden, pulling up infected plants and disposing of them away from healthy plants, planting young plants in cages and covering them with a "floating row cover," a relatively new product on the market of a small web-like, lightweight material that allows sufficient sunlight to penetrate through but keeps insects as small as the beet leaf hopper out.

Some additional tips to pass along to local growers for more success with tomatoes include side dressing plants with ammonium sulfate, ammonium nitrate or bloodmeal as they begin to set fruit. Watch for hornworms, fruit worms and pinworms and consider one of the Bt products for their control.

Spider mites are becoming a problem with the hotter and drier conditions. Malathion is pretty successful as it contains some miticidal action. Keep at least four inches of a good mulch such as straw or hay, wood chips, grass clippings or cottonseed hulls to conserve moisture and control weeds.

With increasing dry and hot weather blossom end-rot will be expected. This is not actually a disease but a physiological problem related to fluctuations in soil moisture. Maintaining an even supply of moisture for the growing crops will help prevent this problem. Cucumbers, peppers, egg plant, cantaloupes and watermelons are also susceptible to this problem.

Touch of the unique is what Country Mercantile offers

By KELLIE JONES Staff Writer

There is a new kid on the block at the Big Spring Mall. Country Mercantile is a gift shop that opened on Wednesday, June 1 next to Beall's Department Store.

The store promises to offer residents unique gift ideas that cannot be found anywhere else, resembling an old country store right out of the old west. The storefront is painted an antique red with an eye pleasing display of some of the items for sale.

When you walk inside, the store is separated into several different nooks that has gifts for the home, kitchen and bath.

"There is something here for everyone. We have things to hang on the wall and neat gifts for men and children as well," said owner Laurie Nagle.

Nagle and her husband James own Country Mercantile in Big Spring for a year, we decided to open a store here. We really like this town and want to stay in West Texas," commented Nagle.

One part of the store offers products and gifts with a Texas and Americana theme. All the items are made in Texas including flavored pecans from Odessa.

"This is the place for people on the go, especially women, who enjoy country or southwest things who don't have the time, talent or patience to make it themselves. It's easy - you can just walk in and pick something out to put somewhere in your home that makes it unique," Nagle said.

Candles of all sorts are placed throughout the store. There are votive, tapers and even heart-shaped ones with a variety of scents. "We have apple candles that smell like cinnamon and Dell's Cafe has a new owner. Cathy Paige bought the restaurant May 1 and has kept pretty much things the way they are. However, one thing Paige did change is now they serve tea made from reverse osmosis water.

CATHY PAIGE, is the new owner of Dell's Cafe

"We have kept the same employees, same service and menu that was here before. I heard about this, was interested and went for it. My parents got me interested in it," said Paige.

The tables in the cafe are decorated with red and white checked cloths and there is even a bar where people can sit on stools and drink coffee in the morning.

Among the items on the menu are hamburgers, french fries, sandwiches, burritos, taco salad, chef salad, chili dogs and hot dogs. Breakfast is also served with such things like eggs, sausage, biscuits with gravy and pancakes.

Dell's Cafe is open Monday through Saturday from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m. They serve breakfast and lunch and offer daily lunch specials as well. The cafe is at 1608 E. Fourth St.

Merit raises out for now as business rebounds

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Your company is doing better and you think that might translate into a fat raise in your weekly paycheck. Think again.

Big businesses are rebounding, but they're not planning double-digit merit raises for their employees this year, says a survey that found merit pay budgets at their lowest point in more than a decade.

"A lot of people still remember merit budgets from the early '80s — 10 percent budgets," said Susan Rowland of the Towers Perrin management consulting firm in New York. "They have been steadily declining ever since."

Towers Perrin's survey of nearly 1,600 businesses with annual sales ranging from under $100 million to over $100 billion found the average budget provides for merit pay increases of 3.8 percent.

"I don't consider this stingy. I think it is realistic, given the state of the economy," Rowland said.

She said 10 percent merit raises were common when the increase in the Consumer Price Index was over 10 percent. The CPI, which measures changes in the cost of living by looking at prices of goods and services, is projected to rise 2.9 percent this year, Rowland said.

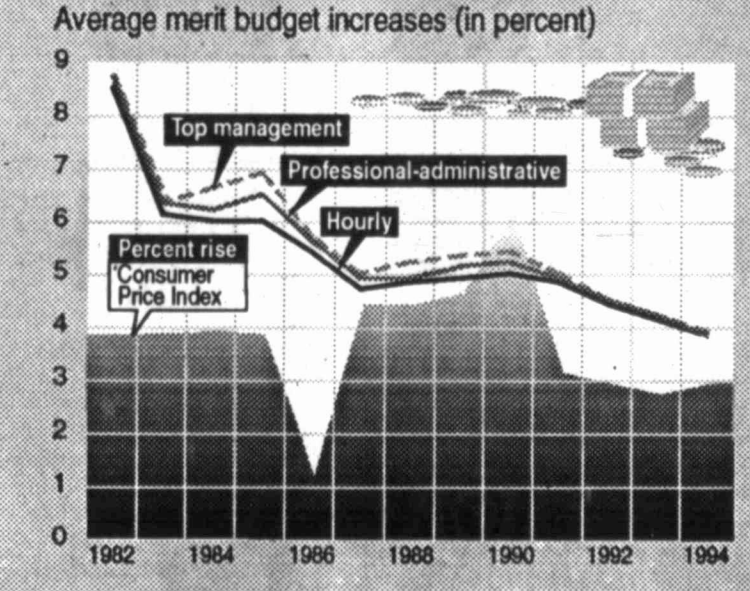

The declining use of traditional merit pay also reflects movement toward other ways to reward employees for their performance, she said.

"Providing employees with a one-time payment instead of a base salary increase, and thus controlling increases in fixed costs, is becoming more prevalent," Rowland said.

"Merit pay, the old pay for performance, didn't really work.

Oil drilling sample library hitting rock bottom

Library home to drilling samples from around 1919

MIKE RUPE Amarillo Globe-News

AMARILLO, Texas — An Amarillo library will close its doors this summer and sell off the volumes it has accumulated over a half-century.

The move has nothing to do with illiteracy or indifference on the part of readers.

The volumes stacked to the ceiling and blocking aisles in the dusty, dark confines of the Amarillo Sample Cut & Library contain samples of rock collected from oil and gas wells drilled in Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas and New Mexico.

The rock samples, some dating as far back as 1919, were forced to the surface by drilling mud, collected, cleaned and cataloged by drilling depth.

Oil and gas drilling companies once maintained the samples of their own cuttings. Sometime before World War II, however, the Panhandle Oil Scouts Association began collecting samples from area drillers and operated a cutting service. The service allowed other drillers to "check out" samples to examine rock formations in particular fields.

Jean Dwight operated the service for the scout's association until selling the Amarillo business to his brother, Leo Dwight, in 1944. Leo later married Lucille Dwight, who continued to manage the service after he retired for health reasons.

The Dwights moved into the service's current home at 2611 E. 10th Avenue in 1954.

Alicia Cameron, the current owner and operator of Amarillo Sample Cut & Library, said a dearth of drilling has doomed the library.

"There's not enough demand to make it profitable to keep open," she said. "You have to remember, we've lost 500,000 jobs in this industry."

Ms. Cameron said business slumped when oil and gas prices plunged in 1986. Drilling picked up again briefly when prices spiked after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait in 1990.

"The day Desert Storm was over, the phone stopped ringing because the price of oil plunged," she said.

Area oil field "scouts" met at the library in the mid-1950s for a weekly "scout check" but moved on to other meeting places. Many of the oil companies that sent representative to the library pulled up stakes and moved their corporate offices to cities like Dallas, Houston and Denver, continuing to conduct business, as needed, by telephone.

The Amarillo Sample Cut and Library is trying to locate companies that now own or operate the 25,000 to 30,000 wells from which it has samples, a task Cameron said has been made difficult by the spate of mergers in the oil and gas industry.

"You have to understand, this industry is as ingrown as a toenail," she said. "You have to have a program to understand who took over what when." Please see ROCKS, page 7B

Yes, Big Spring is growing

Terry Burns

Our sincere thanks to all of those who gave material time and effort to make the Health Fair a success! You did the community a real service. I've already commended BETH BOONE and her intrepid crew for a fine job of putting it on, but I don't think you can overdo praise for a job well done.

I did have a couple of merchants say the event cut into their Mothers Day sales instead of helping get people out. That certainly wasn't our intention, so if that was the case, we'd like to hear from you to help us with planning for next year. Let us know what you think.

I just wrote a letter in response to an individual that is working with a potential new business. He wanted me to "demonstrate that Big Spring is growing." That was easy, and I think maybe it bears repeating.

We have over 700 new jobs, being added to our economy over the coming year, and that number stands a good chance of going over 1,000. (This does not count the more than 1,000 construction jobs in the area for the next one to two years building these facilities.) This is going to be a tremendous boost to our economy.

In addition, we are strongly increasing our area retail promotion, increasing our tourism and visitor solicitation efforts that will result in a number of new retired families. We are working hard to develop a "Mexican Trade Corridor" through Del Rio, and feel we are very well positioned for some growth as a result of this effort. The cumulative effect of all of these efforts should be very good, indeed.

The new jobs already committed and being added to the economy include:

•Expansion of Western Container (approximately 50 jobs).

•The location of Plastic Flamecoat (25 jobs).

•Wright Fibers is experiencing start up difficulties, but under some type of financing and/or management configuration is expected to reach 100 employees.

•The Walmart Supercenter is expected to add more than 150 new jobs.

•The new prison unit will be over 100 new jobs.

•The new Econolodge added over 25 jobs.

•Shannon Medical Clinic is adding around 25 new jobs.

•Nolan's Bakery is expected to reach 50-60 new jobs.

•A&M Composites with a dozen jobs.

•The Hospice of the Southwest is expanding over here with around 50 jobs.

•This also does not count small businesses, and a number of fast food stores (six of them) which together represent over 150 jobs.

There has been a continual growth in sales tax over the past three years, as well as steady growth in employment for the same period. (The employment rate has stayed in the 4-6 percent range, but the number in the work force itself has increased steadily). Building permits are over $12 million so far this year compared to about $785,000 last year at this time, and real estate sales are up by over $1 million compared to last year.

The economy in Big Spring is alive and well! It is not experiencing a boom by any means, but rather steady, sustainable growth.

We have a lot to offer a potential new business. YOU are our eyes and ears to find about potential new jobs. If you have a lead, call our friends over at Moore Development, or call us and we'll see that the appropriate people make the contacts.

Remember, there is no such thing as "keeping things the way they are." Communities can't stand still. They are either growing or dying, a little at a time. We're going in the right direction!

Terry Burns is the executive vice president for the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

apple. There are some that look and smell like peaches.

"I wanted a store that was real comfortable. We will be getting some wooden benches to place around our (pot belly) stove to resemble the stores you see in the movies where the men sit around and play checkers. I didn't want it to look too fancy so that people were afraid to come in and touch things. I want men to feel comfortable coming in here as well," Nagle added.

If you are looking for something unique for Father's Day, Country Mercantile probably has it. If your father likes chocolate, you might want to pick up a set of tools, golf clubs or guns that are made of the confection - bite size, of course.

If you like reminiscing about the good ole days, then perhaps an old advertisement would be just the thing. "We have a lot of nostalgia signs to hang on the wall. Some of them have been used to make note pad or coaster holders."

The store also has lots of items made out of tin like night lights or rolling pin holders. There are aprons, cook books, watermelon items, blue splatterware, apple and teacher gift items, cactus and other southwest decorations, flower pots that you can bake bread or muffins in, lace dollies, cards, candy, magnets, pigs, cows, chickens, pottery, welcome mats, area rugs, baskets, towels, potpourri, rabbits and even rear view mirror decorations.

"We have whisk, fireplace and kitchen brooms that are made by a man in Alpine! He was recently highlighted on the Texas Country Reporter show and we decided to offer his products in the store. He may come up here for a demonstration on how he makes his brooms.

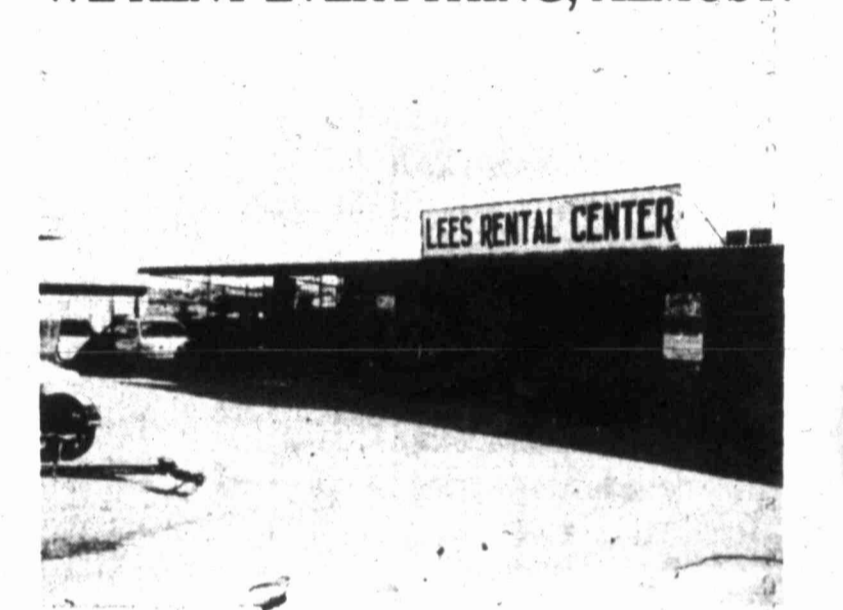

"The most expensive items we have are our clocks that run only about $42 or so. We have one that resembles an old soda shop. There are also ones with a Coca-Cola theme or one that looks like an old stove. These are really unique," Nagle added.

Store hours for the Country Mercantile are Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Sundays from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The Nagles' employ four part time workers to help with the store.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Meeting local business people with Features on what they provide for you,
the Consumer. So when you are looking,
LOOK HERE FIRST!

"Family Owned and Operated"
WE RENT EVERYTHING, ALMOST!

Have you been to Lee's Rental Center & Self Storage lately? We invite all of you to come by so you can see our "for the better" changes and growth.

Let us mention one important change first. Lanny Pierce, Lee's son, and his family have moved back to Big Spring to work with the organization. Guess you could say, you now have the "older seasoned" along with the "younger, fresh, and energetic" here to assist you for your rental needs. Our goal is to assist you, our valued customers, as efficiently and courteously as possible, and all of our crew makes us very proud of the good jobs they do.

New equipment? You bet!! New and larger trenchers, concrete saws and equipment, magnetic sweeper, pressure washers, OSHA approved scaffolds, concrete breakers, carpet cleaning and installation equipment, lawn and garden machines, air compressor, generators, ground compaction equipment, and much, much more!

If you rent equipment, it means you don't have to spend the money to purchase these tools, nor have to have the room to store them for long periods of time, nor keep them serviced through the years. This can be a real savings to the customer.

How many times do you find yourself looking for a tool or item, and you can't remember where it is stored, or maybe loaned out to your friend or neighbor? Renting solves these problems.

You, our customers, assist us by letting us know what equipment is needed. No new equipment can be considered unless it is known there is a need for it. Thanks for your keeping us posted about your needs.

Speaking of ideas, through the years many customers have shared their ideas of how they have solved certain problems, and these can be passed onto other customers when they have similar situations. This network of customer ideas is usually very helpful.

Another growth in progress is our planned expansion to have a special room for party goods. The foundation is in place, so the room will be a reality soon. This will group our party supplies, like punchbowls, coffee urns, champagne fountains, glasses, cups and plates, tables, chairs, etc. all together. We also have baby beds, high chairs, roll-away beds when company comes to see you.

Lee's Rental continues to serve Big Spring and all the neighboring communities as your 5-Star U-Haul dealer for over 19 years now. We have available trucks, trailers, boxes, and many other moving supplies. Please do call us at 263-6925 to make your U-Haul reservations. We can give you personal assistance here locally. Your personal needs are always considered. The sooner you call us for your U-Haul reservations, the better we can serve you.

The Self Storage units are easy access with wide enough drive space between units to make loading simpler. The hilltop location gives you peace of mind of no high waters seeping into your storage.

Ms. Cameron said she thinks that some day the domestic oil and gas industry will become vital again, making the cuttings held by the library more valuable.

"The only way to replace these samples is to go back and drill the hole again," she said. "When I'm asked how much they're worth, I have to tell you they're priceless."

Ms. Cameron said she hopes to disperse as many samples as possible back to oil and gas operators before closing her doors on June 30.
"This is really vital to me," she said. "I'm really committed to doing my best to see that the industry isn't shortchanged and doesn't shortchange itself."
Wayne Hughes, executive vice president of the Panhandle Producers and Royalty Owners Association, said modern technologies have made core samples less important in exploration.

"It's sad for us to see it (the library) go because it's like throwing away family histories," he said.

Ms. Cameron is not sure what she'll do with any samples she has left when the business closes, she said.
"I hope it doesn't all wind up going to my house."
