LET'S RODEO

Joel Walker and Smiley Ballard participate in the team roping during the slack competition as part of the 61st annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo Tuesday evening. The rodeo officially opens this evening at the Rodeo Bowl. See Sports, page 9 for slack results and page 12 for a schedule of events.

Times change but now it's rodeo time

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Times change but the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo remains the same - still a sight to see.

The event begins today, running through Saturday, marking the 61st year for the annual event at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl.

Susan Lewis, wife of radio veteran Bob Lewis, a.k.a. "Tumbleweed Smith," said that she and her husband have been involved with the rodeo since the mid 1970s and enjoy every aspect of rodeo.

"Rodeo is an affordable family event that is fun for all ages and a good cross-section of the community is represented at the rodeo,"

Lewis said.

The rodeo began in 1933 and has never missed a year. Lewis said, "It's remarkable, considering the fact that it started during the depression years."

"We have an excellent rodeo and we, quite often, get world champions participating here."

The Big Spring rodeo is sanctioned by the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association (PRCA) an is usually held at about the same time as the rodeo in Reno, Nev., so there is a good mix of cowboys participating.

Lewis said, "All of the famous cowboys have come through Big Spring. We have the reputation for having a good rodeo and a fair rodeo. Rodeo is very real and very regulated and part of the attraction, too, has been the rodeo acts that have long since been a part of the rodeo."

Some cowboys will load up their trailers and bring their families to watch them compete.

Lewis said the competition is great because only PRCA member cowboys compete in PRCA events which leads to points at each rodeo. The goal of each cowboy is to reach the National Finals Rodeo in Las Vegas, Nevada.

Lewis said she is proud of the history of the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo which is also famous for having some of the toughest stock in the business. Lewis noted usually you can count on seeing two or three stock entries from the Big Spring rodeo in the National Finals Rodeo in December.

The annual rodeo has even had such famous cowboys as country music superstar George Strait competing in slack night.

And who can forget the most popular feature of all-time, world-famous rodeo clown Quail Dobbs, who has a string of national honors as long as the rodeo itself.

And, of course, the record purse of $14,500, won in 1947 by seven-time world calf roping champion Toots Mansfield in one afternoon, is a definite conversation piece.

Lewis said, "Anyone who hasn't been to the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo should definitely

Counts blasts moves made in TXMHMR

By BARBARA MORRISON

"A major redigestion of the entire system is needed," complained State Rep. David Counts Tuesday at a meeting of the Texas Public Employees Association at La Posada Restaurant.

Assistant Superintendent Edward Moughon, and state Director of Programs and Benefits from TPEA headquarters Joe Nelson.

"Our leadership in Austin is in a real problem," said Counts. "Tax-wise we've ended up concentrating on the funding of education. Due to that intense concentration of trying to get us out of that judicial mess, we've neglected a lot of other things."

Counts seemed to reprimand the system in general, when speaking about MHMR, saying the business of making deals and side deals, capping and closures "were an exercise in experimentation involving human lives."

"This is my personal opinion," said Counts. "But this is where the system fails right now. We need to Over 200 youngsters from around the state recently converged on the Howard College campus for the first annual Lamb Camp hosted by the HC Agriculture Department.

"We had students ranging from ages three to 19 travel to our campus from all over the state to participate," explained Lynn Walling, Howard College AG instructor and director of the camp.

The camp teaches students how to prepare their lambs for the 4-H livestock show circuit next year. Lessons on feeding, basic care, sheering techniques and show competition were given to those in attendance.

Get an earful at BSSH with new phones

By KELLIE JONES

The Big Spring State Hospital has outgrown its 15 year old telephone system and recently upgraded it.

The old PBX (private business exchange) system could handle up to 435 telephones but hospital officials needed more because anywhere from three to five employees were having to share one line.

"The new system can hold up to 575 phones and we have pretty much maxed that out - the need was there. We had really outgrown the old system and we needed new features that it did not offer such as transferring calls within an office, conference calling and voice mail," said Craig Balthrop, director of Information Services.

"The main operator was extremely busy having to handle most of the calls because you couldn't dial direct to everyone's desk. She would answer 10 to 15 calls before she got to you if you were calling the hospital. Also, we had switching problems with the old system. I'd say at least 25 percent of the time, someone would call here and let it ring 50 times and no one would ever answer. That's because the old PBX wasn't connecting and wouldn't ring the phone at the hospital," explained Balthrop.

Balthrop said the new phone system had been in the planning stages for a year before it went on line in May. During the summer of 1992, Southwestern Bell donated all underground cable and facilities to the state of Texas allowing the state hospital to do its own work on the cables.

"We had to make changes in the copper cable to handle the new digital system. We began working on that in November 1993 and it was completed in February of this year. We had a one week training course for all employees to learn how to use the new telephones as well," said Balthrop.

Why the need for training? Balthrop said "Sure everyone knows how to use a phone but each one has different features. They learned about the new system and all the features it had. Once the training was over, everyone was very excited about the new system. The calls are handled better and there is a clearer voice transmission."

One advantage to the new system is now all 20 social workers will have voice mail capabilities. When a family member calls a social worker about a patient, they can leave a message for that person when necessary.

If someone calls the hospital using the old number, it will automatically switch to the operator who can give you the new one. Also, the old numbers are listed as 264-4XXX in the telephone book and the new ones are 268-7XXX so you can just "plug in" the three numbers into the new telephone number and be able to reach the same person.

There are three numbers that will remain unchanged:

- *267-8216 - main operator
- *1-800-375-4357 - Mental Health Hotline
- *1-800-749-5142 - Toll free number for families time camp greatly outnumbered our expectations. I believe this can be attributed to the fact that we had an excellent training staff consisting of instructors in Agricultural Science from all over Texas and 4-H personnel who are heavily involved in livestock judging and show competition," Walling said.

"I received numerous positive comments from all the participants and their families about the organization and operation of the camp," added Walling.

"Howard College provided a valuable service to these young people by conducting this camp. The excellent facilities, staff and instructional setting contributed to a very successful week. Even the food was good," commented Jerry Bearden who is an Ag Science Teacher from Mason.

Walling added that because of the tremendous success of this year's lamb camp, he is sure "it will continue to be a summer project for the college."

As the years pass, some things change, but considering all of the events and festivities that surround the rodeo, $7 for adults, $5 for kids 12 and under and free admission to children under six aren't bad prices.

Just think, in 1934 more than 10,000 people enjoyed the rodeo and they only had to pay a mere 45 cents to get in.

Army: No need to worry about 1962 biological warfare testing

CORPUS CHRISTI — Some local officials are reserving judgment despite Army assurances that no one was harmed by biological warfare tests conducted near Corpus Christi in 1962.

set clients needs first and provide services in an atmosphere those clients feel is acceptable."

Counts was referring to TXMHMR's previous policy, known as "capping," which provided state facilities with a limit on the number of inpatients. The policy's philosophy was once a limit was reached by a state hospital, community-based services would take the overflow.

"Some of this community-based stuff is not going to work. Many of these patients would not have been comfortable, nor would that situation have been acceptable to them," said Counts.

"There are good points to it (community-based services), but we'll pay a price one day for some of the things we're experimenting with. Services are getting diluted to the point where we can't properly supervise our clients when they need it," Counts added.

Counts complimented BSSH superintendent Bob von Rosenberg for his prediction and foresight regarding previous TXMHMR mandates. "Bob saw a long time ago what was coming," said Counts.

"His foresight allowed you all to go through these changes without a lot of trouble. The other hospitals and schools haven't had it so easy. Bob is over at Terrell State Hospital right now cleaning up a horrible mess."

After his remarks, Counts fielded several questions from the audience. In response to a question about benefits, Counts said he viewed a reduction in benefits as a cut in pay, firmly opposing any discount in current state employee benefits.

"You may not get any more benefits, but I'm totally confident you won't lose any," Counts concluded. He added a prediction of no pay raises in the immediate future for any state employee.

In discussing the future of an I-27 highway extension passing through Big Spring, Counts said he can "see the handwriting on the wall."

"I feel there is an 80 percent chance we'll get it," he said. "Economics should prove the highway will probably come this way because of closeness and proximity to Lubbock."

However, Counts verbalized reservations regarding the value of the new highway to the Big Spring community. "What does it mean to have I-27 come through?" he asked. "Will it help or hurt? I wonder if it will accelerate mobility out of your community."

War-era program designed to measure how biological warfare agents would disperse inland when dropped offshore during certain weather patterns.

Instead of using any biological agents, the Army instead dropped fluorescent particles of a compound called zinc-cadmium sulfide along a 30-mile path off the shoreline of Port Aransas.

U.S. Army Lt. Col. Richard A. Jackson said during a briefing Monday that the amounts were too small and spread over too large an area to pose a health risk to the Texas residents who lived along the coast in 1962.

Although cadmium can be toxic alone, it loses its lethal qualities in a compound form, Jackson said.

He described common table salt as a similar example. The components of salt — sodium and chlorine — are toxic if taken individually.

Corpus Christi Mayor Mary Rhodes said she will withhold final judgment until she reads a full report by independent chemists and toxicologists.

"I really want someone who is objective to look at it, because to me, a fluorescent chemical is not the same thing as table salt," Rhodes said.

Nueces County Commissioner Carol Karter agreed, adding: "I know what they told us today. But they certainly didn't ask these people in June of 1962 whether they wanted to participate in something like this."

The Army plans a follow-up assessment based on 1994 health standards.

State and national agencies, including the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission, will review the report, which is due in late July.

In all, 405 pounds of zinc-cadmium sulfide were disseminated over seven days in late June 1962, Jackson said.

Although more than 85 percent of the particles were small enough to be inhaled by local residents, the Army's preliminary assessment showed no health risk, he said.

Jackson said no tests have been performed on residents living in or near the Port Aransas area and he does not know how long the chemical compound would have remained in a person's lungs.

Corpus Christi was among several sites nationally in which the Army conducted the tests.

But chronic exposure to cadmium, even in a compound form, can be potentially harmful, said Vincent Garry, director of the University of Minnesota's environmental medicine and pathology lab.

Police believe rapist has struck yet again

AUSTIN (AP) — Austin police say a man they believe is responsible for a string of sexual assaults at apartment complexes late last year has apparently attacked another victim.

While the previous four attacks occurred near MoPac Boulevard, this assault occurred near Interstate 35 about 1 a.m. Monday in southeast Austin, police said.

Johnson said the attacker has a distinct operating method.

The five cases are similar, police said, because the attacks occurred between midnight and 6 a.m., the man got into the mostly ground-level apartments through an unlocked door or window, and he wielded a knife or sharp-edged weapon.

Also, all the victims were young white females who lived alone or with a roommate.

1962 biological tests no harm to Corpus Christi

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Some local officials are reserving judgment despite Army assurances that no one was harmed by biological warfare tests conducted near Corpus Christi in 1962.

Army officials on Monday revealed details about the Cold War-era program designed to measure how biological warfare agents would disperse inland when dropped offshore during certain weather patterns.

Instead of using any biological agents, the Army instead dropped fluorescent particles of a compound called zinc-cadmium sulfide along a 30-mile path off the shoreline of Port Aransas.

U.S. Army Lt. Col. Richard A. Jackson said during a briefing Monday that the amounts were too small and spread over too large an area to pose a health risk to the Texas residents who lived along the coast in 1962.

Although cadmium can be toxic alone, it loses its lethal qualities in a compound form, Jackson said.

Jury returns the same verdict after new trial

GALVESTON (AP) — James Roy Knox was first sentenced to die in 1985 for fatally shooting a Galveston pharmacist during a 1982 robbery.

On Tuesday, jurors again returned the same punishment for the 41-year-old whose original conviction was overturned on appeal because the judge erred in his charge to the jury.

Knox, who prosecutors characterized as a "cold-blooded killer," showed no emotion as the verdict was announced.

On Monday, it took jurors 30 minutes to find Knox guilty of killing 39-year-old Joe Sanchez. But it took the eight-woman, four-man jury, three votes Tuesday to sentence Knox to death by lethal injection, said the jury foreman, who asked that his name not be used.

"We didn't see any socially redeeming values to the man," the foreman said.

Members of Sanchez's family who attended the trial expressed relief at the outcome.

Student pleads guilty to threat to Clinton

LUFKIN, Texas (AP) — A college student pleaded guilty to sending an electronic mail message to President Clinton threatening to "blow your little head off."

Matthew M. Thomas, 19, faces up to five years in prison and a $250,000 fine. A sentencing date has not yet been scheduled.

Thomas admitted Tuesday that he used his former roommate's name and Social Security number to gain access to the Internet at Stephen F. Austin University in April 1993.

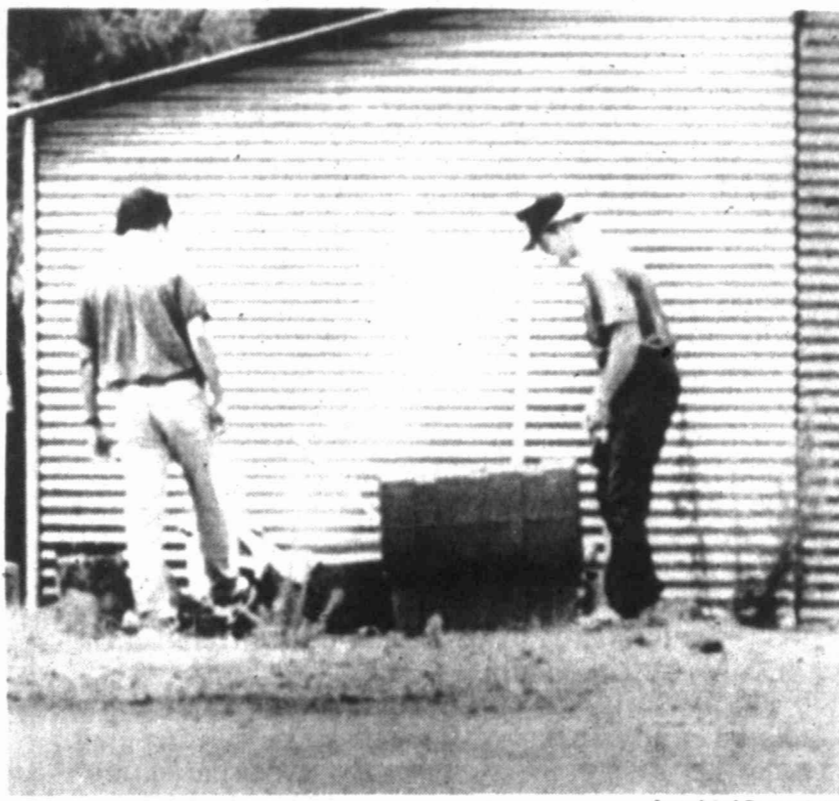

While on the university's system, he sent an electronic message to a Maryland company hired by the White House to receive e-mail transmissions addressed to President Clinton.

Unitarian Universalists to meet in Fort Worth

FORT WORTH (AP) — One pastor describes the Unitarian Universalist Church, which begins its national convention here Thursday, as "the left wing of Protestant denominations."

The Boston-based church, which has about 204,000 members — including 6,000 Texans, actively supports homosexual rights and is the only Protestant group that has approved ordaining gays and lesbians.

The agenda for the six-day event at the Fort Worth-Tarrant County Convention Center includes protests of Texas anti-sodomy laws and a discussion of ways to fight the Christian right. On Monday, a downtown abortion-rights march is scheduled.

BEAUMONT — The FBI says it has already found more than $80,000 hidden on the farm of former Beaumont police lieutenant Michael Siebe and will continue the search for buried money believed to have come from drug sales.

Federal authorities filed a lawsuit Tuesday seeking forfeiture of Siebe's house and farm property at Buna, about 25 miles northeast of Beaumont. Agents continue combing 18 acres of property for hidden cash.

Tuesday, agents found a container of cash in the attic and were counting four garbage bags of cash they found Monday, buried in a 30-gallon drum near a barn, said Ron Kelly, FBI Special Agent in Charge.

A source told the Beaumont Enterprise that agents found $80,400 cash hidden in Siebe's house. Aside from the buried garbage bags of currency and container of cash, agents also found thousands of dollars in a freezer.

Siebe, 43, a former Beaumont police lieutenant who served as commander of the narcotics unit and Special Weapons and Tactics unit, resigned Monday after authorities this past week charged him with money laundering.

Kaslow's father recalls the terror of murder night

The Associated Press

FORT WORTH — He awakened in the "dead of night," Jack Koslow recalls, to the sounds of intruders breaking down a door and running up the stairs.

"They're in the house!" screamed his terrified wife.

He heard the shrill buzz of the home alarm, people shouting and what he thought was a gunshot. "We're here to rob you," someone cried. But they came to kill.

Minutes later, Koslow, his skull fractured and his throat cut, regained consciousness and rushed to his wife, Caren, lying face down in a pool of blood.

"I knew then she was either dead or dying," Koslow said. "I was filled with enormous rage and hatred."

Corsicana officers sued in black man's death in custody

The Associated Press

DALLAS — A $45 million federal lawsuit alleging brutality by Corsicana police officers and faked medical reports has been brought by the mother of black man who died in the custody of white officers last year.

The lawsuit filed Tuesday in U.S. District Court by Estella Washington names as defendants the city of Corsicana and its police department; officers Todd Morris, Jeff Schafer and Darrell Waller; then-police Chief Lewis Palos; Navarro Regional Hospital; and Dr. Rick Herrscher, Thomas' attending physician in the hospital's emergency room.

The suit accuses the officers of depriving Craig Thomas of his civil rights by harassing and brutalizing him. It claims the city and police department did not provide officers with adequate training and supervision and accuses them of tolerating excessive use of force.

The lawsuit also alleges that the hospital and Herrscher faked Thomas' medical report in an effort to cover up the alleged police brutality.

Racial tensions flared in Corsicana beginning June 5, 1993, when the 29-year-old Wortham man died in police custody. His death prompted protests by civil rights groups, who claimed Thomas was beaten to death.

According to the lawsuit, Morris beat Thomas after a routine traffic stop, then "hogtied" him with handcuffs with the help of Schafer and Waller. Officers Morris and Schafer were fired and later reinstated.

Although Thomas' condition was deteriorating and he was having difficulty breathing because of the way he was restrained, the officers took him to the county jail, according to the civil complaint filed by attorney Andrew A. Bergman of Dallas.

After failing to revive him at the jail, Thomas was taken to Navarro Regional Hospital, the lawsuit states. By the time he arrived, "he was already dead," Bergman said.

Nevertheless, the suit says, Herrscher conspired with the officers to cover up police brutality by indicating on Thomas' medical report a death from "a massive drug overdose" taken to conceal evidence in a botched "drug deal."

An initial autopsy showed Thomas died from a combination of drugs, alcohol, injuries suffered during his arrest and hogtying, the manner in which he was restrained.

A second autopsy, performed at the request of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, put more emphasis on the restraint methods as the cause of death.

Chief G.M. Cox and hospital Administrator Harvey Fishero said they had not yet seen a copy of the lawsuit and declined immediate comment Tuesday.

Help literacy jailbirds get out, support NIE

Who's that in the hoosegow on the courthouse lawn? And why are they sitting there? These kind people have allowed themselves to be "arrested" in the name of literacy. "Lockup for Literacy" is a fund raiser for the Newspaper in Education program. The NIE program utilizes the newspaper as a learning tool in all grades. The NIE program serves 196 area teachers, reaching more than 5,000 students each week. The lockup begins today, running through Friday. Be kind to these jailbirds. They have been arrested for the crime of caring about their community and its ability to grow. Be generous in your bail money because in the long run a well educated populous effects us all in the best of ways. Keep in mind, as you decide how much to give, they will be missing the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo and the Rockets and the Knicks. And, we wouldn't want that.

Blame for MASC graduation party problems can't all be put on Pat DeAnda's doorstep

Editor Big Spring Herald Box 1431 Big Spring, Texas 79721

Letters to the Editor

Editor's Note: The following letters are in response to letters from Rudy and Olivia Hernandez and Fernando Martinez concerning the MASC graduation Dance. Mrs. Pat DeAnda has been allowed a longer length than usual but it is equal to the other letters which spoke against her.

Editor:

In response to the letter that appeared in June 15, 1994. "What happened to what was planned?" Mr. and Mrs. Hernandez stated that I made a speech stating that Coahoma was the minority and had to go along with the majority. It was a long speech and since space will not allow me I will only say that the authors of this letter were selective with their words and took them out of context. They have obligated me to refresh their memories. If their memory serves them right they will also remember that at the very first meeting it was brought up by a Coahoma resident that they did not get along with Big Spring. To the parent who asked: "Why did you take their money?" more to the point, why would you want to pay into any function where it was made clear to you from the first meeting that there was friction?

Also, a very important point not mentioned was that the first meeting was Jan. 21 with last date for all monies to be turned in April 29. Apparently, if as the writers claim I was trying to keep Coahoma out, it was obvious that it fell upon deaf ears because I did not meet my objective. Before I respond to the next accusation let me preface it by stating that not ALL THE ADULTS behaved as childishly as this small group of marauders did, nevertheless the attention that they continue to bring to the incident would make it appear as if EVERYBODY was behaving in this manner.

Not on the May 23 nor on the May 27 did I pound my hand "loudly on the table." What I did do on the May 27 was raise my voice and ask: "What is it that you people want?" because you were changing your minds as often as the wind changed directions. You should pat yourselves on the back, as you hold the DISTINCTION of being the ONLY two people ever to be intimidated by ME. Your feelings of intimidation are based on some kind of insecurities that I have no control of. I am sorry that I missed the very short meeting that a few disgruntled parents had with Mr. White. I wanted to ask him some very pointed questions. There is no doubt in my mind that he replied that "no such comment was ever made to Mrs. DeAnda" if it was phrased that I said that he specifically said that he would shut it down.

I had a lengthy conversation with Mr. White after returning a call to him. It was evident that other calls had followed after the first conversation I had with him. Things were set to go until people MADE him look at what we were doing. Of course he had to really clarify with me his position, that is his job. He was very respectful and within his authoritative power. In listening to him, I not only heard what he said I heard what he did not say. Among his varied powers one is shutting down any function that is illegally dispensing alcohol - citing and arresting. Some of the things he doesn't have to do is announce what time, where or when he will show up or what kind of penalty he will assess. I'm surprised that he told you that he would DEFINITELY not come in on our dance. On May 27 what I suggested what that maybe since all the attention was brought on the whole thing it would be best if we did not have any alcoholic beverages. I really felt comfortable since, fool that I am, I really thought that we were going to do it as we all agreed, for the kids, after all it is their night and we want them to have a fun safe night. Do those words ring a bell Mr. and Mrs. Hernandez? What I didn't realize was that Mrs. Hernandez' brain shut down when she heard the words NO and ALCOHOL. Wrong!!!! The marauders descended on me like a family of vultures on a feeding frenzy. Mrs. Hernandez proudly led them in this FEEDING.

Of course the dance was a success as you were doing what you intended to do from the start, PARTY. There were still things that had to be done but the only help that I got was from Mrs. Mendez the treasurer, and Mrs. Marmolejo who kept going back and forth to see that they were not shrugging any parental responsibility for the success of the celebration. You say that things were going well and it was a success? That is because you were not concerned with any other aspect of the celebration but to PARTY. A sign of how, "Not so well" things were going was when the lady we voted to hire to collect the tickets was going around to the tables, picking up tickets a parent rudely informed her that, "I'm not going to give you a damned thing because my daughter is a graduate and this is her party!" I might mention that this parent is a law enforcement officer. Is it a wonder that so many people feel justified in bending laws when we have people in law-enforcement who have the mentality that they are above the law? He is lucky that I didn't let the lady have police officers escort her while they ejected him from the dance as they did others. Mia culpa. Law enforcement is in the same boat that some of us parents have been put in. No doubt they too are viewed as all being the same because of the actions of a few.

It is obvious that Mr./Mrs. Hernandez give out partial information. The dance was stopped at 11:30 p.m., I was escorted to the bandstand by an officer as I made the announcement. I proceeded to the front where people were crowding to get out to check their vehicles. While I was outside the music continued, at some point an officer asked me why the music was still playing, after a short discussion an officer went inside and told them that the dance was over. For further verification you can talk to Mr. Junior Moreno, manager of LA PRIMERA and he will tell you essentially the same thing. The following Tuesday, May 31 we made the headlines: Vandals flatten MASC party, again I stated that I was told to stop the dance because of the vandalism, Mr./Mrs. Hernandez it really happened it wasn't as you put it, "according to her", IT REALLY HAPPENED!

In closing let me leave you with words that Theodore Roosevelt spoke many years ago: "The only people who get talked about are those who are doing something".

I'm glad that you do not consent to vandalism, none of us should. As for this happening at other dances and them not being stopped, I am not aware because I am not a frequent attendee of these functions, therefore I can't comment. I do know that if you had chosen to call the police department they would have gladly told you why. But you didn't ask. I'm confused, what does the MASC function have to do with my election? Are you voters? I hope not as you seem unable to distinguish issues. I find it hard to believe that someone who not once adhered to majority rule would make the statement, "Somebody who does not take into consideration the opinion of other people". Is that not like the pot calling the kettle black?

As for, "We the parents voted to donate it to St. Vincent Paul on behalf of MASC '94". WE THE PARENTS was a small group who met with Mr. White and not the MAJORITY OF PARENTS who participated in the MASC function. If you would sit down and be logical and fair you would remember that at the very first meeting I threw out the idea of maybe this class setting a precedent and being the first class to donate to a charity, at that time I suggested the United Way. Like most things at meetings your heads were nodding in agreement and actually smiling at the beauty of the whole thing. If you had any other suggestion why did you not make them at the meeting? You had your opportunity along with the others. My suggestion did not have to be the one that the majority agreed to. The first time I heard of the donation wanting to be made to St. Vincent De Paul was when George Quintero mentioned it with a minority of the parents present.

Prior to this letter Mrs. Mendez had called me with concerns that had been voiced by Mrs. Irene Dominguez who was the organization secretary. Mrs. Mendez was concerned because after Mrs. Dominguez called her, she hung up on her stating that, "We will see about that!" At that point Mrs. Mendez attempted to call her back to finish explaining at which time she again hung up. Later that evening Mrs. Mendez received another call from an ill-mannered parent concerning the same subject, monies owed to them. This led me to believe that these calls were well choreographed. I told Mrs. Mendez not to worry about it that we would wait until the last statement was in with all bills cleared at which time we would put an ad in the paper telling them that the money could be picked up at her convenience. Realizing that sometimes people with such explosive character can also go to extremes for 2-3 dollars that is owed to them, I felt it would be best not to have too much contact with anyone involved in MASC until receipts have cleared the bank. I felt I needed to do this because some are convinced that maybe someone is going to pocket proceeds. No amount of explaining will change that.

After things are cleared at the bank everyone who wants their money will have the opportunity to pick it up. You TWO are included in this and after you pick it up you can make your donation to your favorite charity (Yeah, right!). In closing let me leave you with words that Theodore Roosevelt spoke many years ago: "The only people who get talked about are those who are doing something".

I might also add that the people who do the talking are cowards who do not have the guts to tell you to your face what they think the are feeling, what they don't realize is that they are being fueled by SO CALL FRIENDS who have an ax to grind with me and they are being used as the vehicle to do it. Think real hard folks. CARPE DIEM!!!!

Respectfully, Pat DeAnda Big Spring

Editor:

Depending on how an individual looks at it, the letter written by Rudy and Olivia Hernandez of Coahoma, shows poor judgment and jumping the gun the wrong way. Concerning about the Graduation Dance being shut down, stop and think about it. It was either that or a lot more vandalism would have happened, who knows, maybe even fights. Seems like Mrs. Pat DeAnda is being blamed for everything. She was only doing what she was told to - deliver a message. Would Rudy and Olivia feel different if one of those cars were their that were vandalized? As far as the alcohol beverage, it was understood that Offer George Quinteras had gotten the TABC because champagne was going to be served to the graduates. It's been a tradition for many years, why bring it up now?

As we can see, which the Hernandez's of Coahoma should see, Mrs. DeAnda can't be in two different places. And too, they should have approached her in person and discussed the matter. This shows poor judgment, lack of education and poor taste on the Hernandez's part. And as for about the election of Mrs. DeAnda, that they wouldn't vote for her, some voters are not needed, especially if the individual don't know the facts. And, besides, the election has nothing to do with the Graduation Dance. We worked behind Mrs. DeAnda and believe us, she's doing her job as well as anyone and to us and everyone who knows, Mrs. DeAnda doesn't need any criticism by anyone. Keep up the good work Mrs. DeAnda and if any more comments should arise, we hope they have the guts to face her. O. Hernandez, M. Palacios, E. Holguin, M.I. Salazar, E.Z. Gonzales, Suelma Delgado, F. Re: Tuesday, May 31, article "Vandals flatten MASC part." As an active participant of the ad hoc committee for this function (treasurer), I called Mrs. DeAnda to ask her why she had called the Herald and given them a story. She informed me that Kellie Jones had phoned her after receiving two phone calls. One gave their name and the other wished to remain anonymous. I think that Ms. Jones made a great mistake in not mentioning this tidbit as everyone thinks that it was a move made by Mrs. DeAnda. As a matter of fact, I think that Ms. Jones should do us all a favor of printing the name of the person who gave their name.

I want everyone to know that I, as well as the secretary of the ad hoc committee, called Mrs. DeAnda to ask her to take the position and start calling the meetings. Mrs. DeAnda told me that she had already been through this once 10 years ago and that back then people wanted to beat her up because they could not have things their way and that she did not want to go through it again. I responded by asking her "surely things have changed in 10 years."

HOW WRONG I was! I now feel very guilty because of the things that have transpired since we started the meetings in January. It was evident from the start that Mrs. DeAnda was going to do things in a very professional manner.

It really started out well and then parent would not speak up in decisions that were voted on but would return at the following meeting and vote against the very decisions that a majority had already voted which led me to believe that people were regrouping and deciding what and when things would be done. On several occasions Mrs. DeAnda tried to put us back on track, but the parents would not have any part of it.

Unfortunately, the parents who behaved themselves as they should have were as much to blame for the undignified behavior for not speaking up. It really got out of hand at the fair barn when it was being decorated. I heard echo's of "we will take the risk and we will not blame Pat if anything goes wrong."

It did and as most of you would guess Pat got blamed! I never heard so many "ladies" use so much foul language in all my life! The names they used for Mrs. DeAnda are certainly not repeatable. One of her vehicles got hit also and no one took that into consideration. People kept complaining about the fact that they had lost an hour and a half of dancing instead of thanking God for nobody being hurt. To think that some of these people led the whole crowd in a prayer asking for only the best to come from this celebration.

I think that we should have gotten together when it was announced that the dance was over and prayed that we rapped it up without incident. Such was not the case and I am ashamed. I want to let everyone know that this was brought on by the whole group. We brought the attention on ourselves and any smart opportunists saw the chance to shine the negative light on what was supposed to be a joyous occasion.

I would caution people on decorum. When you vote on things the majority rules, you don't come back at the next meeting to undo what you did at the last meeting. The most dangerous people at any meeting are the people who attend one or two meetings and all of a sudden become very vocal on issues that were discussed when they were not there.

You do not have to be brilliant to know that they are speaking only from the point of view that the bearer of gossip fed them. Their argument is already prejudice. When an issue comes up and you disagree, let people know how you feel at the meeting and give points that may sway decisions, don't leave a meeting and get together with a little group and decide that at the next meeting you will do everything within your will to undo what has already been voted on.

More importantly, if you understand the process don't let the trouble making minority overrule your decision through pure childish will. This is what happened our case. Also, I will suggest that for future MASC celebrations, each city should hold their own dance. The dance and champagne fountain has been a tradition for Big Spring for many years.

When Mrs. Dominguez called me asking if they could join us, I asked her how many Coahoma graduates there were, she said around 15 that wanted to be part of the dance. I commented that was a big group and asked her if they would rather have their own dance. Mrs. Dominguez responded by saying that they wanted to join Big Spring so they wouldn't have to spend so much themselves. We were used and we let them do it. That is our fault.

Lastly and very important, I want to publicly thank Mrs. DeAnda. I've know of her for a long time but this is the first time that I have had the pleasure of working with her and as a Mexican American female, I can truly say that she is someone that we can be proud of.

Her composure is a reflection of what she wants the rest of the world to know of what we are. There were times when I wondered why she didn't punch someone's lights out and she would simply explain the consequences of actions of that nature. The most outstanding thing about her was that when she explained to me it was not so much what people thought of her but what they thought of all of us by her actions. She is truly concerned about everyone and I have come to believe that our world would be a better place to live in if we followed some of her examples.

Unpretentious and unflappable are words that describe her. I want to thank her for educating me in the ways of meetings. I really learned a lot from her and never once did she criticize anyone. I know that she was disappointed in our lack of decorum but she simply explained that was another reason why we were so far behind. Every Mexican American has someone to lead them with the professionalism and integrity that she showed all of us and most of all I hope that person will have the luxury of not having to try to lead a mob as she had.

She did what she had to do and she represented us well. Many people really need to get to know her and not rely on the gossip mill. If you make the effort, I think you will be pleasantly surprised. I can't believe that I am the only one that she made allowance for! She is a teacher in the true sense. She imparts with others what she has learned. We all need to do this.

I was there and hysterics was the divine guide in all this mess and it wasn't Pat's fault.

I would like to challenge all those parents whose main purpose has been to keep the MASC incident in the eyes of the public to give the impression that this is normal behavior which is not true, to attend a city council meeting to see and learn how things are discussed and voted on in an orderly fashion without disregard to majority rule.

In closing, it is embarrassing that the only time we make the front page is when we are fighting with each other. In our conversations someone will always say that "they don't like us," I will have to say that we should not worry about them not liking us and worry about "us not liking us."

Will the embargo work in Haiti?

Grumbings heard in business community

The Associated Press

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The U.S.-led embargo has hamstrung Haiti's economy as intended. What's less clear is when, if ever, economic pain will compel the ruling generals to step aside.

People throughout this Caribbean nation of 6 million are suffering. Spare parts, medicines, powdered milk, disposable diapers, machinery and other imports are in short supply.

"I used to buy and sell cars. No more," sighed a middle-aged clerk at a rental car office. "Prices have gone up three times, and even if I could buy one and fix it up, who would I sell it to?"

"The rich only buy new cars. No one else has any money. The embargo is making me poorer."

What is available — gasoline, for example, smuggled over the border from the Dominican Republic — often is too expensive for most people to afford. The generals are reported to profit from smuggling.

The U.S. Embassy sees grumbling among the business community, and reportedly within the armed forces, as signs the embargo is having an impact.

"You start with dissensions. You start with divisions within an elite group ... and you chip away," embassy spokesman Stanley Schragger told reporters Tuesday.

"Sooner or later, it has to implode from within," he said. "The question is how long that will take."

Sanctions were first imposed after Haiti's military deposed democratically elected President

Jean-Bertrand Aristide in a 1991 coup. At U.S. urging, the United Nations imposed a total trade embargo May 21.

On Friday, the stakes get higher, when a ban on commercial flights declared by President Clinton takes effect. Clinton also ordered a halt to most financial transactions with Haiti.

Most regional airlines say they will join U.S. carriers in stopping flights on Friday. Air France planned to continue several flights a week from neighboring Caribbean islands.

The next step? Clinton has publicly refused to rule out an invasion. But many Haitians pray that won't be necessary.

"We hope the stricter embargo leads to a good result," said Rene Belance, 79, a retired lecturer in French literature at Brown University.

His fellow passengers waited patiently at the crowded American Airlines counter at the airport. Many were schoolchildren with small backpacks, headed to see relatives in New York and Miami during summer vacation.

There was little overt sense of dread in this city of 1 million, even if bodies, sometimes those of Aristide supporters, still turn up with dismaying frequency, and many Haitians still flee in leaky boats, often trying to reach Miami, 700 miles away.

Patrice Bellevue, 7, is greeted by his mother Carmen upon arriving at Montreal's Mirabel airport Tuesday aboard Air Canada's last flight out of Haiti. Tuesday's flight carried 450 passengers relieved to have escaped the tensions that have become commonplace in Haiti. Canada and the U.S. are ending all commercial flights out of Haiti as part of the sanctions imposed on the island nation.

Koreas finally to talk

The Associated Press

SEOUL, South Korea — In an apparent attempt to defuse nuclear tensions, North Korea today accepted a South Korean proposal to meet next week to prepare for the first-ever summit between the nations' presidents.

The North said it would send officials to the border village of Panmunjon next Tuesday for the talks, but South Korean officials expressed skepticism. Past summit proposals have failed to materialize.

The summit, if held, will focus on suspicions that the Communist North is developing nuclear weapons, South Korean Foreign Minister Han Sung-joo said.

North Korea has refused to accept full inspections of its nuclear facilities as required by the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. The secretive, hard-line state says its nuclear program is only for peaceful purposes.

In a telephone message today, North Korea agreed to send a three-member delegation to Panmunjon, said officials from the Unification Board, which deals with inter-Korean issues.

North Korean President Kim Il Sung last week told former President Carter — who visited both Koreas in an attempt to reduce tensions — that he was willing to meet South Korean counterpart Kim Young-sam, who "gladly" accepted.

South Korea on Monday had suggested officials from the two countries meet next Tuesday to prepare.

Han called the North's message "encouraging" because for the first time it did not revise South Korea's offer with a different place or date.

According to news reports, North Korea has said it hopes to hold the summit in its capital Aug. 15, which both Koreas celebrate as the anniversary of liberation in 1945 from 35 years of Japanese domination.

Board agrees to fire officer who kicked King

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A police officer who kicked Rodney King, should be fired because he used unreasonable force, a disciplinary board said.

The three-member Board of Rights panel deliberated three hours Tuesday before ruling that Officer Theodore Briseno had violated department policy.

The panel sent its recommendation to Chief Willie Williams, who will decide whether to fire or reinstate Briseno. The officer was suspended without pay shortly after the beating on March 3, 1991.

Briseno would not comment after the ruling, but he laughed when asked if it surprised him. He said he did not know whether he would sue the department.

Briseno has said he kicked King to keep him on the ground so he could be handcuffed and arrested.

Briseno was one of four white officers who were videotaped beating King, a black motorist. Their acquittals in state court ignited the 1992 Los Angeles riots.

Two of the officers, Stacey Koon and Laurence Powell, were convicted of violating King's civil rights and are serving 30-months prison sentences. Briseno was acquitted of all charges. The fourth officer, Timothy Wind, was acquitted of all charges and fired.

Dallas lawyer says marriage was phoney

DALLAS (AP) — A lawyer charged with bigamy didn't think he was breaking the law because his second marriage was performed by an Elvis lookalike, prosecutors said.

Brian Loncar was married in a Las Vegas wedding chapel May 22 while still married to his first wife, Mary, according to Tuesday's indictment. The marriage was annulled three weeks later.

"He said they got married by some guy that looked like Elvis Presley — that it was a phony deal," assistant District Attorney Norman Kinne said. "Well, not necessarily. Not in Las Vegas."

Brian and Mary Loncar are in the process of divorcing. Mrs. Loncar filed the complaint against her husband, but later asked that the case not be pursued. Prosecutors recommended that a grand jury indict Loncar anyway.

Loncar, a personal injury lawyer known in Dallas for his television ads, faces up to 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine if convicted.

"This is a violation that I think goes more to society in general and not to the individual," Kinne said. "The law says, 'Thou shalt not be married to two people at the same time.'"

Nebraska governor teaches a lesson

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — A New Jersey teacher who told her class that the only people living in Nebraska are the governor, his wife and a pet pig stands corrected.

The pig died.

In a surprise telephone call Tuesday, Nebraska Gov. Ben Nelson also told Karen Levine that his state actually has 1.6 million people and was birthplace to Johnny Carson and the late Henry Fonda.

Mrs. Levine's seventh-grade social studies class in Parsippany, N.J., erupted into laughter when the call came.

"Is this Mrs. Levine?" Nelson asked over a speaker phone. "This is Ben Nelson and I'm governor of Nebraska."

"You've got to be kidding," Mrs. Levine said.

LOS ANGELES — Was O.J. Simpson insane?

Simpson's lawyer has refused to rule out an insanity defense, even though the football hero has insisted that he didn't murder his ex-wife and her friend.

Legal experts said Tuesday that if Simpson pleads innocent by reason of insanity, a jury would have to be persuaded that he was mentally ill and that his illness robbed him of the ability to distinguish between right and

Tempers flare over health care reform

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Tempers flared in the House Ways and Means Committee and former chairman Dan Rostenkowski warned of a possible impasse as lawmakers from both parties vied over who could offer the most generous health benefits.

The action slowed to a crawl Tuesday as key committees on both sides of the Capitol wrestled with what should be in the benefit packages.

In Ways and Means, the politicians made pleas for hearing aids for children, more mammograms for middle-aged women and chiropractic care for everybody.

"This is the dangerous section of the bill," lamented Rep. Sam M. Gibbons, D-Fla., the acting chairman.

More battles lay ahead today in both Ways and Means and the House Education and Labor Committee, which were facing possible showdowns over whether abortion should be covered in a national health plan.

Rep. Fred Grandy, R-Iowa, said Tuesday it was "repugnant" that some members were willing to pay for abortion, but not ante up $100 million over five years to provide hearing aids for all children who need them.

Rostenkowski, D-Ill., forced to relinquish the gavel last month after he was named in a 17-count corruption indictment, lectured his colleagues that if they strayed from Gibbons's pay-as-you-go course, "we're going to be here a long time and we're going to disappoint a lot of people in that I don't think we're going to get a health bill."

wrong.

If jurors agree, Simpson would be sent to a mental institution for treatment, with a chance to be released later with no criminal record if doctors deem him cured.

"It would give Mr. Simpson the opportunity of getting back into the community and getting on with his life," said Peter Arenella, a law professor at University of California, Los Angeles.

Simpson, 46, pleaded innocent Monday to first-degree murder charges in the knife slayings of Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25. Prosecutors have not yet decided whether to seek the death penalty.

Simpson's attorney, Robert Shapiro, has said Simpson was at his home two miles away at the time of the killings. But he also said he would consider an insanity plea.

"Every possible defense has to be considered by a trial lawyer, and I certainly would reserve all possibilities," Shapiro said Monday.

District Attorney Gil Garcetti has said he would not be surprised by an insanity defense.

Smoke billows from the United Chemical Technologies Inc. building in Bristol, Pa., Tuesday after an explosion injured at least 39 people, forced evacuations and closed a busy highway. No cause for the explosion has been given.

Plant explosion injures 39

The Associated Press

BRISTOL, Pa. — Fire crews were guarding against flareups early today at a chemical plant where an explosion injured 39 people and closed one of the nation's busiest highways for several hours.

Tuesday's blast at United Chemical Technologies Inc. in suburban Philadelphia started a fire that burned for three hours and gutted the building, Bucks County police dispatcher David Neil said.

Hundreds of people evacuated from within a 1½-mile radius were allowed to return after about seven hours. The Environmental Protection Agency found no air contamination.

The fire later reignited at the plant, but was controlled within an hour.

The cause of the explosion was not immediately known. Authorities said the chemicals styrene and trichlorosilane were being mixed at the time.

LOS ANGELES — Nicole Simpson's neck was slashed down to her spine and Ronald Goldman's ear was nearly cut off, according to a source in the coroner's office who said the killer showed "no mercy."

Goldman was probably attacked first, from behind, because lacerations move from the right side of his body to his back, the unidentified source told

Goldman had a deep cut on the back of his head, slash wounds on his neck and more than 20 other knife wounds, indicating a fierce struggle, the source said.

O.J. Simpson has pleaded innocent to murdering his ex-wife and her friend. He was expected to appear in Municipal Court today when his lawyer, Robert Shapiro, seeks access to all evidence investigators have gathered.

On a wing and a prayer

Self-confessed 'weenie' goes hang gliding—and likes it

Everybody knows the hang gliders are in town today for an international competition.

Janet Aurbury

Perhaps you've even seen them tooling around the sky with their multicolored wings.

Ever wonder what it's like up there, with nothing between you and the ground but a whole big bunch of air?

I hate to fly — you should know that right off the bat. I was on an airplane this year for the first time in five years, and it wouldn't bother me terribly to wait at least another five years for my next trip.

So initially, when the gliders offered me a chance to go up in the air with a tandem instructor ("It'll make a great story," they promised), I was dubious.

But I had always wanted to try gliding, so I agreed.

Monday evening turned out to be my big opportunity. I was sitting at home, peacefully eating Cheetos and drinking a beer, when one of the staff writers called.

"Your fly boys called," she said, laughing. They had some results from the day's competition, but more importantly, it was time to come out and do the glide thing.

Was my husband worried about this daring effort I was about to undertake? (Get it? "Undertake"? Har har.)

Nah. "Don't eat so many Cheetos," he warned me. "You'll get sick." Then he went upstairs to take a nap as I prepared to head out to the airport.

Always good to know your loved ones worry about you. (Just kidding, honey, I know you didn't want to come scrape me off the runway with a spatula.)

When I got to the airport, my tandem instructor, Curt Graham of Hobbs, N.M., was swooping and circling in the sky, having a grand old time.

"He better not do that when I'm up there," I thought. "I'm a weenie who wants a nice, smooth ride." And indeed, he wouldn't do daredevil things with a novice by his side. Several gliders had assured me Curt is one of the best instructors you can find.

He landed and prepared to take me up. I had to put on a padded harness type of thing (a cocoon, I like to call it) and a helmet. Then I was hooked up to the glider as Curt explained how to steer the contraption and how to simply hold on.

You hang for quite a while as the safety checks are performed and everybody gets all the necessary glider and harness parts into place. It can be a little uncomfortable, especially with your feet crammed into the cocoon.

But that was secondary—my main thought at the time was that soon, I'd be floating around like a bird. And I wasn't even frightened. (Must have been that beer I had.)

Curt and I were towed onto the runway and the truck picked up speed. I gritted my teeth and prepared for what I thought would be the most unpleasant part of gliding—the ascent. I hate airplane takeoffs and thought this would be even worse.

It wasn't. Why, it was downright cool. One moment you're on the back of a truck and the next you are hundreds of feet in the air. It's really quite magical.

We went higher, higher still — 500 feet, Curt said, then 1,000 — and as my ears popped and I looked down, I had one brief moment of really intense fear.

There's nothing keeping you up there in the air but air itself, I thought. Not the towline. Nothing.

And ain't it great!

Finally Curt told me to pull the string that would disengage the towline, and we were free to fly.

He offered me the chance to steer the glider. Not today, I told him. I was content to be a passenger and let him guide us around.

We hit a few mildly bumpy spots and I became curious about how gliders handle turbulence. The answer boils down to "very carefully." Steering with and then steering out of it is the trick.

Sudden spots of rough air (updrafts, Curt called them, and by gosh you could feel the warmer air rushing up at you) were a little scary, as were sudden turns or lurches. But for the most part, it was incredibly peaceful.

Ever look out an airplane window and see everything below you look so tiny, like little toys? It's even stranger from a glider. The flight was so smooth, it was hard to believe we were a thousand-some feet up.

It seemed more as if I were standing on a chair looking down at little toy hang gliders, trucks and buildings perhaps six feet below me.

I spent a lot of time looking down because a haze of moisture covered most of the view from afar. On a clear day you can see 100 miles away, the gliders have told me. Not that anything 100 miles away looks a whole lot different.

Finally it was time to land. We circled into the descent so smoothly, it was a shock to see the buildings and gliders suddenly grow larger beneath us. We removed our feet from the cocoons in preparation.

Soon we would be on the ground and we would take running steps. I was afraid I'd trip and sprain my ankle, tip the whole glider over onto us, be bitten on the ankle by a rabid prairie dog, or some other such scenario of disaster.

(Hey, I'm a writer, I'm paid to come up with creative stuff.)

It couldn't have been smoother. No prairie dogs. No tripping. The toughest part was just getting out of the harness once we were on the ground.

After the flight, I was rewarded with a high five and a cold beer. I earned it. I was proud of myself. Me, a self-described aviation weenie, had just spent about 12 minutes up in the air with one other person and a big wing to guide me.

I'd recommend it to anyone. And I'd do it again. I don't know that I'll be laying out $5,000 in equipment to become a pilot, but I'll bum another ride if the opportunity presents itself.

Just wait till the folks back home hear about this. And they thought nothing interesting ever happened in Big Spring.

Parish converts to Catholic faith

The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — The Rev. Allan Hawkins spent 34 years as an Episcopal priest, but he knew he needed to find an alternative to the faith that he felt was straying from its roots.

The hard part, Hawkins said, would be to leave behind the congregation he had led for 14 years. So he didn't.

"My feeling as a pastor is that if I think something is right, then I can't just say, 'Well, bye, folks. I'm going to go do it.' I have a responsibility to the people God gave me to lead," Hawkins said.

"A shepherd is somebody who leads the flock. Shepherds do not say goodbye. They try and take their flock with them."

In Hawkins' case, he took the entire flock with him. Earlier this month, he and his congregation of 200 parishioners were received into the Catholic Church.

Hawkins, 60, will be ordained as a Catholic priest June 29.

His temporary loss of status at St. Mary the Virgin Catholic Church doesn't seem to bother the easygoing, English-born priest. His ordination will conclude a process that began many years ago, when he and his congregation became examining alternatives to the Anglican Church.

St. Mary is the first Episcopal church in Texas to convert to Catholicism and the only in the nation to take along its buildings and properties, Episcopal Church officials say.

Because of the congregation's near unanimity, it was allowed to retain its property. The Rev. Samuel Edwards, executive director of the conservative Episcopal Synod of America in Fort Worth, said property titles for most Episcopal churches are held in trust for the diocese, not the congregations.

Hawkins stresses that the switch cannot be attributed to individual issues, such as the ordination of women or the approval of same-sex marriages. He calls those "symptoms of the problem."

The problem, he said, is that recent denials of Scripture and tradition have led to a questioning of where authority lies in the Anglican Church. Traditional Episcopalians contend the church is making unilateral decisions based on secular trends rather than biblical authority.

Additionally, his parish sought to unify with Rome, a movement that had started and then stalled among Episcopalians.

While some Episcopal churches have more evangelical, fundamentalist views, St. Mary the Virgin always was closely aligned with Catholicism, he said.

Episcopal diocese officials said they were sorry, but supportive of the parish's decision.

"It really is something we did together. I clearly had a vision as to what ought to happen, but they shared that vision."

Rev. Allan Hawkins
Pastor

"It was an amicable kind of a separation. They talked about this for a long time," Bishop Co-Adjutor Jack Iker said.

The switch will make St. Mary the sixth "Anglican Use" Roman Catholic parish in the country.

Under the Anglican Use provision approved by the Vatican in 1980, Episcopal churches can become Catholic but continue to incorporate some of their traditions, such as the prayer book, and allow exceptions, such as married priests.

Recently, traditional Episcopalians have been concerned that the church is following contemporary trends on moral issues without any broad-based consultation, said Mark Lowery, assistant professor of theology at the University of Dallas.

"It's precisely these changes which have prompted many Anglican priests, and in this case even a whole parish, to unify with Rome," Lowery said.

A series of pastors had led the 34-year-old Arlington parish before Hawkins arrived in 1980. "I felt when I came that if I did nothing else, just staying here would help the parish," Hawkins said. "If you stay in a place long enough, they may not agree with you, or they may, but they trust you."

That trust was a part of what led to the series of meetings in 1991 in which the congregation sought to break free of the Episcopal Church.

Karen Breaux and her 4-year-old son joined her husband, Mitchell, in the Catholic faith when they converted.

"If the church had voted against it, the majority would have ruled," she said. "It was a big change for me. Once I did, it felt good."

Hawkins' wife and two young children also converted.

Giles Hawkins, 27, said he always felt more comfortable with Catholicism, but stayed with the parish out of loyalty to his father.

"Always, he has been a remarkable leader for me to follow personally. But I did not make my decision simply because he was my father. While that did play into it, I also have studied the theological issues involved in this," Hawkins said.

The pastor agrees that he merely guided the parishioners. "It really is something we did together," he said. "I clearly had a vision as to what ought to happen, but they shared that vision."

Catholic church releases new catechism

The Associated Press

Muslims can be saved. Paying low wages and cheating on taxes are sins. Artificial insemination is morally unacceptable.

This is not your old style Roman Catholic catechism.

More than 400 years after its last catechism defended the faith against Protestant reformers, the Catholic Church has released a new English-language catechism that seeks to restore doctrinal order and establish a religious ethic for the Third Millennium.

The Vatican won the first culture clash with the 59 million member church in the United States. Debates over gender-neutral language delayed the English catechism more than 18 months, and church officials eventually overruled American translators to consistently use "men" or "men" instead of "men and women" or "the human race" to refer to humanity.

The Rev. Allan Hawkins poses at The Church of Saint Mary the Virgin in Arlington, Texas, on Friday, June 17. Rev. Hawkins and his congregation recently turned to Catholicism from Episcopalian. Rev. Hawkins, married and the father of two grown children, will be ordained as a Catholic priest on June 29.

Dinosaurs newest stamp craze

Prehistoric dinosaurs are the subject of a new series of stamps issued by the Caribbean island groups of the Turks & Caicos and St. Vincent.

Other new stamp sets include Wild West, pioneers of flight, countries of the world

The Associated Press

The great wave of interest for dinosaurs and other prehistoric animals continues in the stamp world. Spurred by movies and television, the dinosaur deluge delights young and old.

The latest stamp issuance dedicated by the prehistorics (with names too difficult to spell and pronounce), comes from two Caribbean island groups — the Turks & Caicos and St. Vincent.

The Turks & Caicos set consists of eight stamps and two souvenir sheets. The values of the stamps range from 8 cents to $1.25. The designs feature such well-known dinosaurs as Pteranodon, Triceratops and Stegosaurus. One $2 sheet portrays Triceratops, while the other souvenir sheet depicts the Dilophosaurus.

St. Vincent's come in a series of four sheetlets of 12 different horizontal 75-cent stamps. Four souvenir sheets, each denominated at $6, illustrates various dinosaurs with a focus on Tyrannosaurus Rex.

The dinosaur stamps for both island groups are available from the Inter-Governmental Philatelic Corp., 460 W. 34th St., New York, N.Y. 10001

Wild, Wild West

Watch for a most unusual and colorful set of U.S. stamps entitled "Legends of the West." It consists of 20 stamps featuring such notables as Buffalo Bill, Annie Oakley, Chief Joseph, Jim Beckwith, Bat Masterson, Wyatt Earp, Wild Bill Hickock and others familiar to people all over the world.

The new set will introduce the new "Classic Collection" series which will offer a comprehensive thematic collection of subjects connected to a single topic, says the U.S. Postal Service. The stamp subjects are enhanced by a brief description on the back of each sheet.

Moon Landing Hailed

The Federated States of Micronesia, a former U.S. Trust Territory in the Pacific, marks the 25th anniversary of the first manned landing on the moon with a set of eight stamps dedicated to "Pioneers of Flight." This is the third set by Micronesia saluting the flying heroes of the world.

The 29-cent stamps honor U.S. astronauts Neil Armstrong, Edwin E. Aldrin and Michael Collins — the crew of Apollo 11; German-American space Wernher von Braun; T. Claude Ryan; Waldo Waterman (aircraft designer); Great Britain's Frank Whittle, who is credited with creating the turbojet engine, and French-born American Octave Chanute, whose glider experiments greatly influenced the Wright brothers.

The Pioneers of Flight series will be issued annually by Micronesia.

The set of eight stamps mint can be obtained for $9.95, first-day covers for $12.95, and both for $19.95 from the Aviation Collectors Society, P.O. Box 480655, Los Angeles, Calif. 90048. The society also is offering a pack of 100 different worldwide aviation stamps for $9.95.

Navigator Honored

A joint issuance by Ireland, Iceland and the Faroe Islands is their contribution to the 1994 Europa series. The stamps are dedicated to the discoveries of St. Brendan, the Navigator.

Issued simultaneously by the three countries, the stamp designs were based on woodcuts illustrating the voyages of St. Brendan. The Irish denominations are 12 p and 44 p.

The Europa stamps are available at your local stamp dealer.

Catalog Prices Up

Volume II of the 1995 Scott Standard Postage Stamp Catalog (countries of the world A-C) is now available to collectors. Publisher Scott Morrissey comments that there are more than 10,000 upward value changes in the book with nearly half reported for China (both the People's Republic and Taiwan).

The Eastern European countries of Albania, Bulgaria and Czechoslovakia also show many increases. The strong upward trend for many countries should cheer stamp collectors who have been disappointed in recent years with the evaluation of their collections.

Volume II is available for $33 (same as Volume I) from your local dealer or directly from Scott Publishing Co., Box 828, Sidney, Ohio, 45365.

A photograph captures the fun and joy of everyday life — especially when it comes to children at play. Often, "family fun" photos show a child engaged in some activity, sometimes playing with friends and sometimes playing with toys.

But many parents probably do not have a suitable, unobstructed, head-and-shoulder shot of their child — one that, in the event of a parent's worst nightmare, could be given to authorities if the child is reported missing.

The U.S. Department of Justice, reports that more than 1 million children run away or are reported missing or abducted each year.

According to Ernie Allen, president of the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC), "a proper photograph is the most important tool in helping to find a missing child. Fingerprints can help identify, but can rarely assist in locating a child."

The encouraging news, Allen says, is that "one in eight missing children featured in a NCMEC photo distribution program have been found because of a photograph."

In support of NCMEC, Polaroid Corp. has developed a passport-style booklet called KidCare ID, in which parents enter the child's full-color picture (which should be updated every six months), physical description, medical information, date of birth, etc.

Howard picks new coach

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Howard College administrators will recommend its assistant women's basketball coach, Terry Gray, fill the head coaching job. Pending approval Monday from the HC Board of Trustees, Gray, 30, will replace Royce Chadwick, 36, who relinquished his positions as head coach and athletic director Thursday when he took the women's head coaching job at Stephen F. Austin in Nacogdoches.

Terry Hansen, Howard's vice president of administrative systems, said: "Our plan right now is to recommend Terry Gray to our board as the woman's head coach on Monday."

The Monday meeting will be at 12:30 p.m. Gray interviewed for the job Tuesday afternoon with Howard administrators, who spent most of this morning in conference.

"We felt like for the continuity of the program, and from the discussions we had and the recommendations we had received from various people, that this would be the best course of action," Hansen said.

Gray has been Howard's assistant the past two years, both of which saw the Lady Hawks reach the national junior college championship tournament.

Ironically, Gray agreed soon after the Lady Hawks' season ended to take the head girls' coaching job at Wharton High School, a position he had in 1990 when he led the 4A Lady Tigers to their first district and bi-district titles.

Those plans have obviously changed. Gray said he was slightly surprised HC administrators made their decision so quickly.

"I was a little surprised, because I knew this was a big decision for the administration and for the college in general," Gray said. "Fortunately, they felt they had a good situation here, and fortunately they felt like I could do the job."

As for the Wharton job, Gray said: "I have to call them and visit with their administration to let them know about my situation. We'll just tell them how much we appreciated what they've done for us."

The Howard announcement has left Wharton officials, who hired Gray's wife, Jan, as well, feeling understandably confused.

"We're sure getting mixed signals from someone," Wharton ISD Superintendent Gary Grogan said. "The last word we heard was that (Gray) was moving down here this weekend, and that the word was go ... This certainly leaves us in a bind."

Grogan added that Wharton school officials would have to talk to Gray before beginning the search for a new girls' basketball coach.

Super Steffi packs bags after defeat

Women's top seed sinks in first round of Wimbledon

By The Associated Press

WIMBLEDON, England — The consequences of Steffi Graf's first-round ouster by Lori McNeil could scarcely be more dramatic.

Either Martina Navratilova, in her farewell appearance at 37, somehow wins her 10th Wimbledon crown or the Graf-Navratilova lock on the title ends after 12 years.

Suddenly, the bookmakers' new favorite is second-seeded Arantxa Sanchez Vicario. The baseline-hugging Spaniard has twice won the clay-court French Open — including this year — but has never done better on Wimbledon's grass than two quarterfinal losses.

Jana Novotna, who almost beat Graf in last year's final before succumbing to nerves, is now the second choice. And McNeil surged from a 100-1 outsider to a 7-1 third choice after her shocking 7-5, 7-6 (7-5) of five-time champion Graf amid Tuesday's wind and rain.

McNeil's best Wimbledon, in 10 previous tries, was in 1986, when she lost to Hana Mandlikova in the quarterfinals. Her best Grand Slam was a semifinal loss in the 1987 U.S. Open.

The rain which twice interrupted the Graf-McNeil match forced postponement of several matches, clogging today's schedule.

Among the men, second-seeded Michael Stich and fifth-seeded Jim Courier were to play first-round matches, while top-seeded Pete Sampras and No. 3 Stefan Edberg were scheduled to play second-round matches.

McNeil, getting no day off to bask in the glow of the biggest victory of her career, was to face 113th-ranked Yone Kamio of Japan.

The rodeo officially begins tonight at 8:30 p.m. For a rodeo schedule, see page 12.

Sidewinders pointed toward national finals in San Diego

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

The Big Spring YMCA Sidewinders have conquered Texas. Now they'll see how they do on a national stage.

The Sidewinders gymnastics group, fresh off its championship at the state YMCA meet here a few weeks ago, make a return trip to the national meet, which begins Tuesday, in San Diego, Calif.

The group finished ninth in team competition at the national Y meet last year, and Sidewinders coach Russ McEwen has reason to believe his troupe will finish even better this time around.

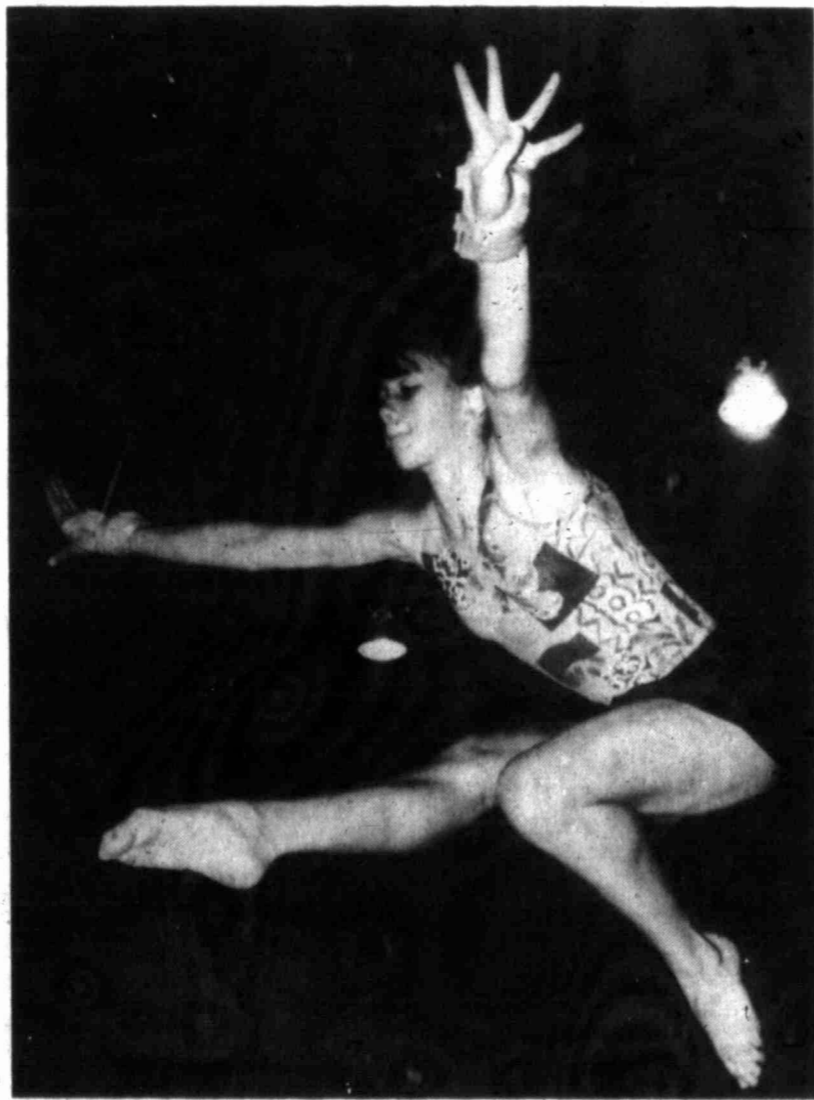

"This year, three girls are going for their second time, and they're much better than they were last year," McEwen said. "Overall, I'd say the team has the potential of doing better than last year."

Making their second trip to nationals will be Casey McKim, Stephanie Stewart and Kristen Myers. Joining them will be Hayley Whiteside, Kaitlyn McCarthy, Emily Mouton and Jana Duncan.

Action begins Tuesday with preliminaries. All-around finals are Wednesday, with event finals concluding the meet on Thursday.

The team has a bit more of an overall veteran flavor this year. Gone is Karen Neighbors, a three-time national meet performer. But McKim, Stewart and Myers are back for a second try, and McEwen is hoping their past experience will be helpful in getting the four rookies prepared.

"We still hope to get in the top 10, and if the girls hit their routines, the potential is there to be in the top five," he said. "But it's a situation where we absolutely have to hit our routines. If we do that, we'll be OK."

Aside from the team goal, each girl has her own expectations, and none are higher than Stewart.

"This year, I'm going to try to win," said Stewart, who was 11th in all-around competition last year. "Last year was real scary, but it was fun. It was a good learning experience, let's put it that way. This year, it should be more fun, instead of being scary."

McKim, who at 14 is the elder statesperson of the group, also is expecting a better result than last year.

"I've gotten better, a lot better than last year," the Odessa native said. "I want to make the top 10, maybe even the top three."

She admits her first time at nationals was intimidating, but added the experience should help her this time around.

Howard College cowboy basks in glow of national roping title

By STEVE REAGAN

Winning national championships doesn't happen every day, but John Folmer still wasn't too surprised when he won team roping during their first go-round, and that got them thinking about winning the whole thing. First, though, they had to get through the three rounds OK, which is not as easy as it sounds in the delicate demanding sport of team roping.

"It's really not as difficult as it looks, but everything has got to happen right," John said. "And a lot of guys can't do it. I don't think it was so much a surprise (we won) as it was a goal. It's something I always wanted to do, and something I worked

"I was just thrilled for both of

John Folmer teams with ex-Howard cowboy Tye Maben to win national college championship in team roping

them," said Howard College rodeo coach Mike Yeater. "It was quite a run (in Bozeman) for the twins — each of them won a go-round."

Folmer and Maben roped their steer in a time of 5.8 seconds during their first go-round, and that got them thinking about winning the whole thing. First, though, they had to get through the three rounds OK, which is not as easy as it sounds in the delicate demanding sport of team roping.

"It's really not as difficult as it looks, but everything has got to happen right," John said. "And a lot of guys can't do it. I don't think it was so much a surprise (we won) as it was a goal. It's something I always wanted to do, and something I worked hard for, but it wasn't really a surprise."

During the final go-round, Folmer and Maben's top competitors began falling short on their runs, decreasing the pressure on the duo.

"All we had to do was a picture-perfect roping," Folmer said. "There wasn't a lot of pressure; we just had to do it right — and we still roped it in 7.3 (seconds)."

"I had damn butterflies running through me like crazy," he said. "After we roped, we had to wait for one more team to run. After that, it felt pretty good."

Folmer will compete in this week's Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo and other events this summer, before attending Sul Ross University in the fall along with his brother.

Timberwolves will keep howling in Minnesota, NBA owners say

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Now that it's certain that the Minnesota Timberwolves will be staying, the team's owners are seeking to distance themselves from Top Rank of Louisiana, the group that wanted to move the team to New Orleans.

Owners Marvin Wolfenson and Harvey Ratner filed a lawsuit Tuesday claiming that the Timberwolves' sale fell through because Top Rank didn't turn over information that the NBA had requested.

The suit was filed after the NBA Board of Governors, meeting in New York, voted to reject the sale. The board followed the recommendation of the league's relocation committee, which last week said that Top Rank's $152.5 million offer was inadequately financed.

The board vote, 25-1 with one abstention, ensures that the Timberwolves will remain in Minneapolis for at least one more season, but NBA commissioner David Stern said it probably will be much longer.

In their 25-page suit filed in U.S. District Court in Minneapolis, the team owners argued that Top Rank's failure to turn over information constituted a breach of the July 5 purchase agreement. Judge James Rosenbaum was asked to nullify the purchase agreement immediately.

The action is in response to a lawsuit filed last week by the NBA accusing the Timberwolves of failing to provide information about Top Rank's financing.

New York coach sits on the brink of NBA history

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Pat Riley looked puzzled when told that if his New York Knicks win tonight he'd be only the second person to coach two different teams to NBA titles.

"What was that stat again?" he asked.

He was informed that only he and Alex Hannum would have that distinction. He explained the lack of others by saying, jokingly, "Not fired enough, I guess."

Riley doesn't take any of this milestone talk seriously. A driven man, he was too busy preparing his players for tonight's Game 7 of the NBA Finals against the Houston Rockets.

He's concerned with avoiding a loss that would make him only the second coach to lose four finals. The first three with Los Angeles. Fred Schaus lost four with the Lakers in the '60s, all to Boston.

That's a milestone he certainly doesn't want to hear about.

"The seventh game is the final chapter," Riley said. "I just hope it is the last chapter and that we can write the last paragraph in a very favorable manner."

Riley, fashionably dressed with slicked-back black hair, first made his coaching mark as the conductor of Showtime in Los Angeles, starring Magic Johnson. The Lakers ran, passed behind their backs and won four championships under him. They also lost three finals.

Now he orchestrates Slowtime in New York with a team that prefers a halfcourt offense and hard-hitting defense.

"I basically coach the same way I did in LA, but my philosophy with the Knicks sort of evolved," Riley said. "I came in here with a running philosophy."

Nigeria wins; Spain ties Germany

By The Associated Press

No fear. Fun. The World Cup party is on and Nigeria is having a ball. The Super Eagles made a stunning debut in the world soccer championship Tuesday, routing Bulgaria 3-0.

Can it ever! Led by striker Rashidi Yekini, who got the opening goal and set up another, the Super Eagles dominated the more experienced Bulgarians.

Daniel Amokachi scored off a brilliant run late in the first half, and Emmanuel Amunike added a third goal on a diving header in the 55th minute. Peter Rufat also made several sensational saves in Nigeria's goal.

Argentina didn't lack confidence, either, in its 1994 debut. With rising star Gabriel Batistuta scoring three times and supposedly faded legend Diego Maradona connecting on a superb individual effort, the Argentines romped past Greece 4-0.

In the other game Tuesday, defending champion Germany rallied to tie Spain 1-1.

Tonight, the United States plays Colombia at the Rose Bowl, while the afternoon game had Romania against Switzerland at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Nigeria forward Rashidi Yekini celebrates after scoring the first goal of the match against Bulgaria during World Cup action Tuesday in Dallas. Nigeria won 3-0.

Carlesimo could be Blazers' new coach

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — P.J. Carlesimo, who transformed Seton Hall from a doormat to a Big East basketball power, could be headed to the NBA.

Carlesimo is talking to the Portland Trail Blazers about taking over as coach of the NBA club, a close familiar with the negotiations told The Associated Press.

Although the source said some "fairly serious things" needed to be worked out before an agreement could be reached, at least two newspapers — The Oregonian and the Daily Record of Morristown, N.J. — reported today that Carlesimo had been offered the job.

Carlesimo has avoided comment on persistent reports that he has been approached by the Trail Blazers. But the source said there had been more than one contact, including in-person talks during the recent NBA rookie camp in Chicago.

Brad Greenberg, the Blazers' vice president for player personnel, has consistently refused to name any prospective candidates throughout the search.

Carlesimo would receive $1.5 million per year in a five-year deal with the Blazers, according to several published and broadcast reports.

Drug-free society well beyond our reach

DEAR ABBY: May I commend you for your open-minded and courageous response to those who have expressed doubts about the war on drugs. Millions of Americans now recognize that drug prohibition is responsible for many, perhaps most, of our drug problems. It is time for the government to respond to the appeals of Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders, former Secretary of State George Shultz, Mayor Kurt Schmoke of Baltimore, and others who recommend that we re-evaluate our current drug policies.

Our choices are not limited to either fighting a war on drugs or legalizing them. There is, in fact, a spectrum of options. We can learn much from Europe and Australia, where governments have turned their backs on the "war on drugs." They began by accepting the obvious: That it is both futile and dangerous to try to create a drug-free society. Focus instead, they insist, on reducing the dangers associated with drug use if people continue to use them.

To stop the spread of AIDS, we must make sure that junkies have access to clean needles; make it easy for addicts to obtain methadone; give heroin maintenance programs a chance to work; decriminalize marijuana; stop spending billions on incarcerating drug users and drug dealers. We know we can reduce drug abuse more effectively by spending that money on education, pre- and post-natal care, and job training programs.

We must not forget that drug users are citizens in most cases, and human beings as well. We can reduce drug abuse in

America without creating a climate of fear, hatred and intolerance. — ETHAN NADELMAN, ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POLITICS AND PUBLIC AFFAIRS, PRINCETON UNIVERSITY

DEAR ABBY: This problem concerns my 13-year-old daughter. It started last year when we had some new neighbors move in on our block. Their 12-year-old daughter, Shelly (not her real name) wants desperately to be friends with my daughter Susan (also not her real name). Shelly is extremely immature, and it is obvious to me that the girls have nothing in common.

Susan does not want to hurt Shelly's feelings, but she finds Shelly increasingly annoying. Shelly has called our home as early as 6:30 a.m. to ask if she can get a ride home after school.

Abby, I have spoken with Shelly's mother and tried to be as kind as possible without saying that Susan wants nothing to do with Shelly. Any help you can give me will be greatly appreciated. — SUSAN'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: This is one of those problems that may not be easy to solve. I know of no kind or gentle way to tell a friendless child (or anyone) that you want nothing to do with him or her. However, your daughter must tell Shelly that she is not to telephone her at 6:30 a.m. It is also up to your daughter to explain to Shelly that she needs a little more space, "and please, don't call me...I'll call you."

White Sox nip Rangers in 10th

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO — An all-too common scene for the Texas Rangers turned into a potential slump-breaking victory for the Chicago White Sox.

Tim Raines forced extra innings with a ninth-inning homer and Ozzie Guillen singled in the winning run in the 10th as the White Sox beat the Rangers 5-4 on Tuesday night for their fourth victory in 16 games.

"We've had way, way, way too many ninth innings like the one you saw tonight," Rangers manager Kevin Kennedy said. "I can count a dozen or 15 times we've given up a home run in the ninth inning to tie or beat us."

"You have to be mentally tough with what we're going through. I'm not going to let the team cave in."

Raines connected off Jay

Howell with one out.

"This was one of our biggest wins up to this point," Raines said. "I didn't think I had it. ... I've hit a lot of balls I thought would go and they didn't."

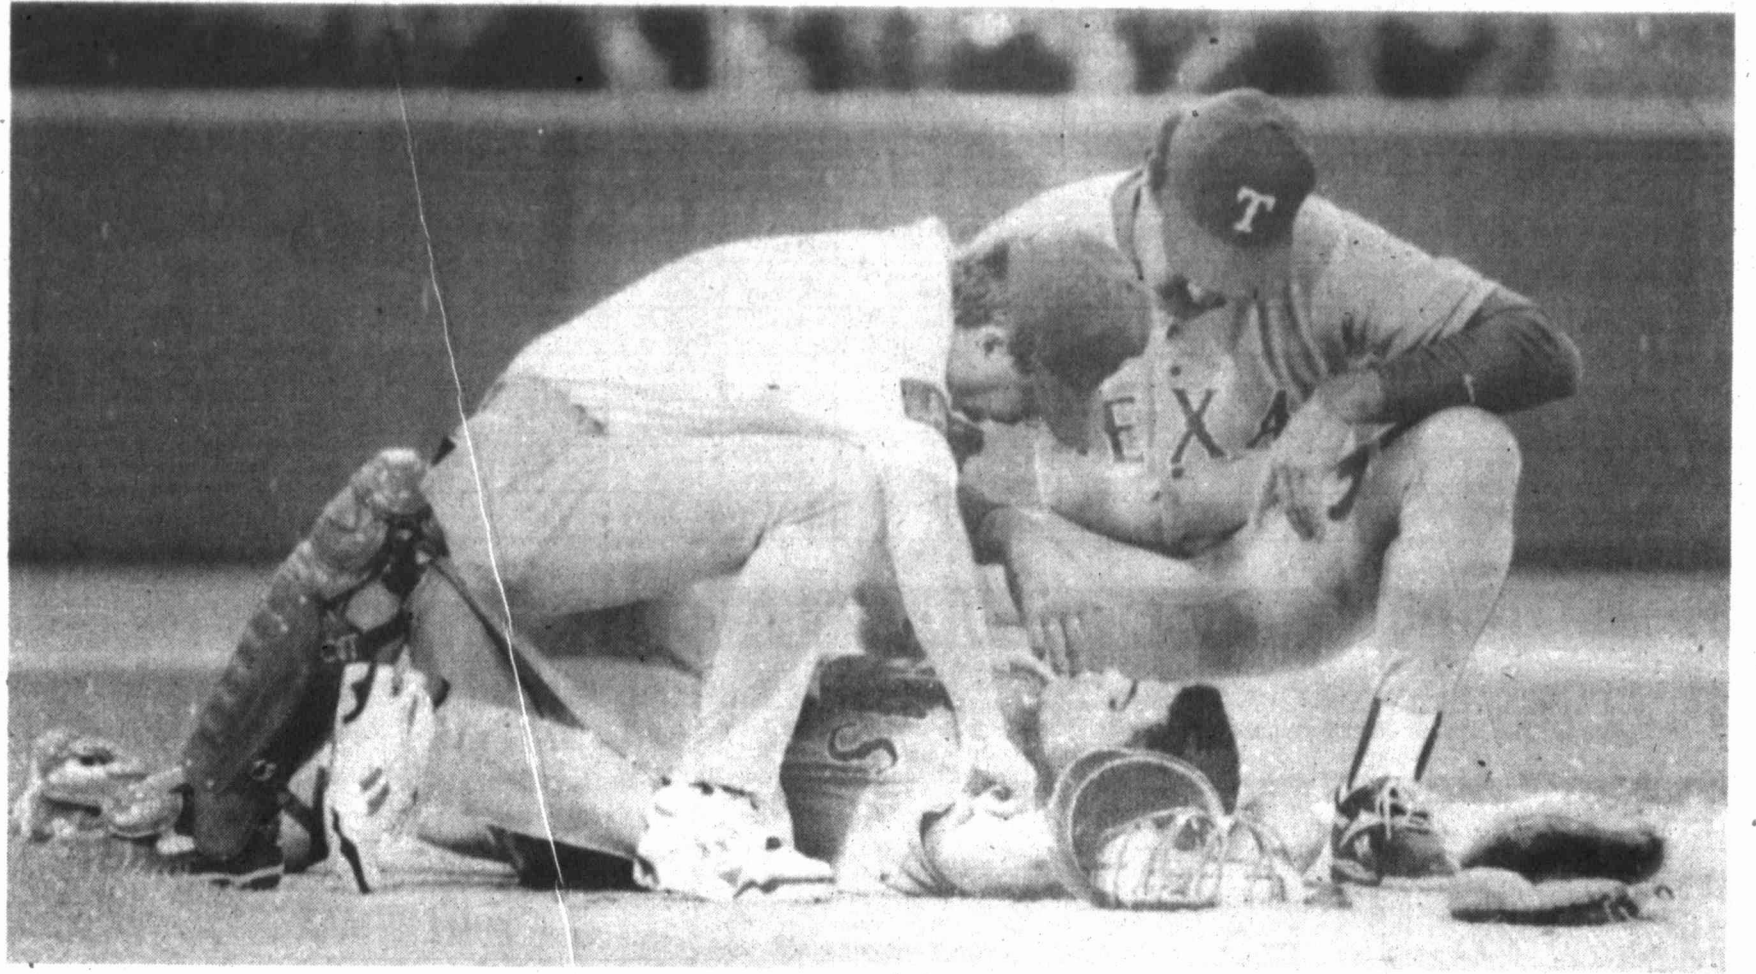

His eighth homer was the only hit Howell allowed in 2 1-3 innings.

"Howell had gotten people out that you didn't want to beat us," Kennedy said. "You wouldn't think it would be Raines."

With one out in the 10th, Darrin Jackson and Lance Johnson singled off Kris Carpenter (2-4). After Ron Karkovice flied out, Rick Honeycutt relieved and gave up Guillen's sharp single to center.

"Honeycutt is good going against left-handers," Guillen said. "I just wanted to see the ball real good. I didn't want to try to pull the ball. I hit it in the right spot."

Paul Assenmacher (1-2) pitched the 10th for the victory.
