Majors Roy and Mary Dell Tolcher recently took over as the commanding officers of the Big Spring Salvation Army.

Warm welcome given new Salvation Army officers

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The Salvation Army of Big Spring has some new faces. Majors Roy and Mary Dell Tolcher recently took over as the commanding officers after Lts. Albert and Yvette Villafuerte were transferred to Beaumont.

Before moving to Big Spring, the Tolchers were with the Salvation Army in Arlington for three years and have been in West Virginia, Mississippi, Florida, Georgia and Oklahoma as well.

Roy said, "I've grown up in the Salvation Army. My parents were officers and I represent the fifth generation in my family who has been soldiers and officers in the army."

"It is a definite calling. When I was a young girl, I lived down the street from the Salvation Army and my family attended church services there."

Mary Dell Tolcher

have noticed that needs improvement is the emergency shelter. "(It) could use some work. We really need a new one altogether but it's a long range goal and something we would like to see done while we are here," commented Mary Dell. "Another lovely long range goal would be to put all of the services here in one place. That was a master plan that the Villafuertes were working on and we would really like to see that happen," Roy added. Mary Dell says it is important to build on what has already been started such as social work and the church. "It's important to get the building used by the community and neighborhood kids. We have all sorts of activities for the children such as scouting."

"It looks like it's going to be a wonderful place to live. It's smaller than what we are used to but it's nice to be able to get to places in a few minutes. I've always found that if there is a need for the army and we are well loved, we will have a good time," Mary Dell commented.

"On the average, officers stay at one place for three to five years. We hope it's for five plus years," Roy added.

The Tolchers have two children and two grandchildren. Their son, Jonathan, will be in eighth grade this fall. Their daughter and son-in-law, Betty and Robert, live in Houston and have two children.

Roy and Mary Dell met in Atlanta, Ga., while attending the Salvation Army college. Roy's first assignment after graduation was in Florida while Mary Dell went to Gainesville, Fla. Roy was able to transfer back to Atlanta so they could be closer together.

"We were married 27 years ago and our first assignment was in a married couple was in Huntington, W. Va. and we were there one year," Mary Dell explained.

"We have never had such a warm welcome," Roy said. "I have always heard of how friendly people are in West Texas," Mary Dell added, "and the folks here have proved that to be true."

The Tolchers commented that the Villafuertes kept good records and have been able to make a smooth transition as the commanding officers.

Clowning starts July 14 at 4-H Camp

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

STANTON - Several Martin and Glasscock County youth just might be caught "clowning around" in the near future.

July 14 is the date chosen for the annual 4-H Camp staged at the Stanton Community Center. The theme for the camp is "Circus! Circus!" and youth entering grades three through 12 are welcome to participate, according to Kathryn Burch, county extension agent.

Planned activities include a clowning class where "Tommy," a region-famous circus clown, will teach several aspiring "Bozos" how to clown it up. And, Burch asks, "What would a circus be without balloons?" Campers will be taught how to make animals from balloons by twisting and bending the balloons into different shapes.

In addition to the other classes, Leatrice Brown will teach an art session and circus students will learn to make cotton candy. After that "sticky" situation, water balloon play will provide a "cool" conclusion.

A more serious subject will be led by local SCS official Donald Gibbins, who will instruct youth in the effects of erosion on the land.

Campers will be taught how to root plants from cuttings by Debbie Schreuder. In addition to the "growth" experience, the young attendees will decorate pots and make plant sticks "just for fun."

The "Big Top Production" begins Thursday at 9 a.m. and concludes Friday at 9 a.m. Cost for the camp is $15 which will be used to cover craft supplies, supper, breakfast and snacks. Anyone interested in attending may call or stop the the Martin County Extension office, 756-3316.

We want you to meet the "New Kid" on the block.

He's David P. Campbell, M.D., a board certified pediatric surgeon. Dr. Campbell is new to Methodist Children's Hospital, but he's not new to providing specialized pediatric care. With more than 20 years experience as a practicing pediatric surgeon and professor, Dr. Campbell brings to West Texas a new level of expertise in the care of children.

It's fitting that a physician of his caliber be practicing at the region's only free-standing hospital devoted to children - Methodist Children's Hospital. Pride begins with you

There is a movement underfoot in Big Spring. A movement to help this town become proud of itself again.

The Proud Citizen's Committee is going on the offensive. The work this committee can do, with your help, will only help and improve this community.

As Terry Burns, executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, said pride is contagious! All it takes is one person to show they care to spark a fire of pride in this community.

We have much to be proud of here in Big Spring, but we have forgotten what we have and how to have pride.

cause. But, as is always the case, more volunteers are needed to get the movement heading where it needs to be - total community involvement!

It starts with your own home or business, displaying the pride you have in the community in which you reside.

That's a beginning to becoming involved with the effort.

That is what is important, involvement in any form.

Should birth control pills be sold over the counter?

Dr. MALCOLM POTTS

For Scripps Howard News Service

Certain drugs are prescribed by physicians because they are dangerous, addictive or the dose needs to be adjusted to fit the patient or the disease. The pill is not addictive and the same dose is given to the slimmest or the most overweight woman.

Oral contraceptives have been extensively studied for 30 years. Modern, low-dose pills are among the safest drugs in common use.

Unfortunately, in the case of family planning, good news travels slowly, and the consistent finding that women who use the pill for several years greatly reduce their risk of ovarian and uterine cancer later in life is still not widely known.

In part, this dissonance between reality and perception goes back to the introduction of very high-dose contraceptive pills in the 1960s. Women taking those pills received almost as much hormone in one day as is currently dispensed in one month.

The early high-dose pills increased the risk of cardiovascular disease, and there is no doubt that a number of women died from heart attacks, strokes and thrombosis. These risks were greatly multiplied in the case of older women who smoked.

Epidemiological surveys on current low-dose pills demonstrate that cardiovascular risks have been largely eliminated for everyone, except older women who smoke. In the 1980s, the FDA relaxed its guidelines for use of the pill in non-smoking women over 35, and it is only women in this age group who smoke who need be counseled to use some other contraceptive method - or preferably to stop smoking.

When physicians prescribe oral contraceptives, they also take blood pressure readings, perform a Pap smear and examine the breasts and pelvic organs. This is good preventive medicine. Women and men should be encouraged to have regular physical check-ups. But, scientifically, these examinations must be uncoupled from other activities, such as providing oral contraceptives.

The most common problem with the pill is failure to take it properly, and there is a pressing need to improve accurate use. Unfortunately, experience shows that busy health personnel are not always the best instructors. Better directions on packaging or clearer informational inserts are necessary whether or not the pill goes over the counter.

Why not a music video on how to take the pill? Indeed, removing the pill from prescription is likely to make this billion-dollar market more competitive and perhaps lead to a TV advertisement war. This might bring the discussion of contraception - and specifically the contraceptive pill - into the mainstream.

Making the pill available over the counter would place oral contraceptives next to Tylenol in innumerable outlets. One effect might be to help give the pill the image it deserves as a safe, effective drug.

Under the present muddled system of U.S. health care, the availability of the pill over the counter would have two short-term adverse effects. For many American women without health insurance, the only time they get a regular medical check up is when they receive the pill from federally funded family planning clinics run by the state or Planned Parenthood. There are 4 million such women, often from minority groups. Their needs are genuine, but they should be met in their own right and not on the coattails of family planning.

A second short-term problem relates to the high price of oral contraceptives.

In 1968, I quipped that pills should be in vending machines and cigarettes on prescription. A quarter century of experience has turned a sound bite into scientifically valid public policy.

Malcolm Potts, MD, is professor of family planning and population at the University of California, Berkeley.

For Scripps Howard News Service

One argument in favor of over-the-counter sale of birth control pills is that the pill would provide effective birth control for women, especially teenagers, who wish to prevent pregnancy but don't want to see a doctor.

But the availability of condoms, contraceptive foam and the sponge has had little impact on the occurrence of unwanted or unintended pregnancy, or for that matter, on the use of contraception by teenagers.

There is no reason to believe that the pill would be any different. In fact, teenage pregnancy is steadily increasing. Each year, more than 1.2 million teenage girls become pregnant.

Making the pill available over the counter would eliminate the need for an office consultation. This visit may be the entry point for many young women into the health care system and the start of a commitment to a healthier lifestyle that includes regular preventive care.

By requiring a prescription, and by necessity, an outpatient or office encounter, there also exists the opportunity for the physician to discuss health concerns such as tobacco, alcohol and drug use, along with weight control and general nutrition.

For the young woman who has, or will soon, become sexually active, it is also a time to discuss alternative methods of birth control and to have a pelvic examination and Pap smear.

Some people argue that the fear of a pelvic exam has prevented adolescents and teenagers from seeking the pill as their method of contraception. If this is a concern, there is no reason the exam cannot be postponed for three to four cycles without significant harm.

The issue of pregnancy cannot be considered in a vacuum. It seems that many focus solely on the issue of unintended pregnancy while ignoring the risks of sexually transmitted diseases.

Although many people use the teen pregnancy argument to promote over-the-counter sale of oral contraceptives, the truth is that more unwanted pregnancies occur in older women.

These are the women who most likely should not use oral contraception because they smoke, have unrecognized hypertension or other significant medical conditions. It is equally important for the older patient to be screened for sexually transmitted and other infectious diseases, underlying medical illnesses and pelvic neoplasms. I am concerned that patients who are at high risk for complications will take the pill without warning and without knowledge of the hazards.

I think it unlikely that package inserts or appropriate labeling can satisfactorily address the many details that are important for proper use that make the pill a safe and effective contraceptive choice.

Even patients who are appropriately advised on oral contraceptive use are frequently confused as to the proper method of taking the pill and how to respond to side effects, such as mid-month bleeding, missed pills and other occurrences.

Women need advice on when during the menstrual cycle to begin taking the pill and how soon they are protected from pregnancy. Physicians must also advise patients on drug interactions that may lessen the effectiveness of the pill.

A recent Gallup poll reported that approximately 50 percent of women generally feel that the pill is unsafe in that it increases the incidence of cancer. This is a misperception, and one that a physician can change.

Cost is a factor that might very well reduce access to the contraceptive pill if it is available over the counter. Medicaid insurance normally does not pay for OTC medications, but does cover oral contraceptives ordered on prescription. So, for patients receiving Medicaid benefits, there would potentially be a new annual cost of at least $200 to remain on or begin taking the pill.

James W. Gell, MD, is an associate professor at Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit.

That's just what brothers are for Brothers! Can't live with them. But, I don't think I would want to live without the one I got.

He's a little selfish, but hey that's brothers. At least he's honest about it.

What he told me was absolutely nothing was more important than his birthday, especially not my job, so I had better make tracks to Ingleside and see him. And, if I didn't come, he was going to hold my birthday present hostage until I got down there to retrieve it! Nice kid, can't wait to go.

But, I am actually trying to get him to come up here. There is a very good reason for him to come, but he can't seem to find the time.

From the way I understand it, since Reynolds went to 12 hour days, he has four days off in a row! Four days off!!! What to do with that much time off.

So, to my way of thinking, he has plenty of time to make the trip.

Why should he come? For no other reason than to visit the oldest Harley Davidson shop in Texas. And, while he's at it, he can visit his sister.

He's a big Harley fan. Talks about it all the time. Even talks about visiting the shop in Corpus Christi. And I keep telling him to get down here and see this one, its even better.

"Do they sell bikes," he asks. Dumb question, of course they do. Well, if I check it out and see if there is anything there he might like to buy, well then he will see about making the nine-hour trip to Big Spring.

Personally, I think he can come on down and check out the store on his own. You would think he would already have come flying down!

He's even dragged Dad into the Harley shop. Dad, the man who won't touch a motorcycle, actually walked into a shop that sells the things.

Even more amazing, Brother said Dad's eyes starting gleaming as he glommed onto those grand Harleys gleaming in the store.

Can't imagine Dad's eyes gleaming over a motorcycle but stranger things have happened. Hey, I know what I'll do. I'll get a t-shirt from the Harley Shop, wrap his birthday gift in it and send it to him with a catalog or something. No, forget sending it, I'll just hold it hostage until he comes.

Maybe that'll get his rear end in gear. It could happen!

Democrats jury rig the Whitewater hearings

The most glaring defect of the Whitewater hearings scheduled for later this month is that Democrats have carefully tailored them to rule out any serious airing of possible White House pressure on bank investigators.

Independent counsel Robert Fiske did not pretend to lay this matter to rest last week when he pronounced the evidence "insufficient to establish" crimes. Fiske merely declined to try to prove in court that White House and Treasury officials, conferring on an investigation that touched President and Mrs. Clinton, acted with corrupt intent.

But Fiske also pointedly refused to endorse the meetings as proper and said he understood the Treasury's internal ethics inquiry would go forward.

As well it should. In all, the independent counsel examined an astonishing "more than 20" face to face meetings and telephone calls between White House and Treasury officials on the subject of the Resolution Trust Corporation's investigation of Madison Guaranty Savings & Loan.

It is safe to predict that all administration officials interrogated publicly about these exchanges will say that only innocent inquiries into the investigation's status occurred, however flagrant the appearances. That is why hearings should allow questioning of, for example, L. Jean Lewis and April Breslaw.

No license found for pilot who crashed

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Federal investigators can find no trace of any license for the pilot of a small plane that crashed in Oklahoma, killing the pilot and a television reporter.

Pilot Maurice "Skip" Stevens, 38, and Oklahoma City station KFOR reporter Kathy Jones, 30, died Tuesday when the plane slammed on its belly into a riverbed. The wreck, about 45 miles northwest of Oklahoma City, was captured on videotape.

Tommy McFall, regional director for the National Transportation Safety Board, said Friday that investigators can find no pilot's license for Stevens or valid medical certification in Federal Aviation Administration files.

Women sue Catholic Diocese, brother

AUSTIN (AP) — Two women have filed a lawsuit against the Catholic Diocese of Austin, claiming a brother sexually assaulted them during counseling sessions at a south Austin church.

Friday's lawsuit was filed in Travis County District Court by Maria Shipe and a woman identified only as "D.H." The civil lawsuit seeks unspecified punitive damages from Brother Timothy Wrinn, who the women say inappropriately touched them during separate meetings in mid-June.

Minnesota couple wins custody of twins

HOUSTON (AP) — The waiting continues for a Minnesota couple who had hoped to be reunited with the twin girls of a Texas man who asked them to raise his daughters after his death from AIDS.

State District Judge John Peavy ordered the twins turned over to Kandi Geary and Lance Rhicard by 4 p.m. Friday afternoon.

But the twins' paternal grandmother, who has had custody of the girls for the last 10 months, defied the court order, failing to bring the girls to the offices of Geary and Rhicard's attorney, Glenn Johnson.

Bonds considered for building hangar

HOUSTON (AP) — Attracted by the possibility of adding 750 jobs to the city's work force, the City Council soon will consider a proposal to issue revenue bonds to build Continental Airlines a multimillion-dollar hangar.

If the airline picks Houston as the site of a new maintenance base, the city would gain hundreds of new jobs and retain 515 more, Houston officials said.

AT A GLANCE

AUSTIN (AP) — Poor and minority students' passing rates on the state academic skills test are improving faster than those of whites in the fourth and eighth grades, according to figures released Friday by education officials.

A bigger percentage of black and Hispanic students still fail the reading, writing and math test than whites. The failure rates for students classified as economically disadvantaged also are higher than those of whites as a whole.

But Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said this spring's results show the gap is narrowing.

Jail funds must come with crime package

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas lawmakers told Attorney General Janet Reno Friday that a national anti-crime package must couple money for jails with funds for the prevention of growing problems, like that of juvenile offenders.

Reno, in Houston Friday, met with leaders from eight Texas cities whose concerns were beamed via live videotape during an electronic town hall-style meeting.

Leaders from Corpus Christi, Austin, San Antonio, Weslaco, Temple, El Paso, Dallas and Houston had a chance to relay thoughts about crime and the national crime package now being hammered out in Congress.

"Basically everybody thinks the solution has to be two parts, that we do need more jails, more money to fund the programs that we have started, but the public is generally concerned with on-the-street crime," said Mary Rhodes, mayor of Corpus Christi.

"We have a lot of people who realize that the solution is not winnable by building more jails, that we basically have to put money into the prevention programs," Rhodes said.

In San Antonio and Houston, where crime rates have been falling, leaders still were concerned with the growing number of youths behind bars.

"We still see a problem with crimes against persons, mostly relating to youth," San Antonio Mayor Nelson Wolff said. Wolff supports prevention programs, particularly with youths, to help keep the crime rate dropping.

He also proposed more boot camp facilities for younger offenders and possibly lowering the age at which a teen-ager can be charged as an adult. In Texas, youths as young as 15 can be tried as adult for more serious offenses.

"That's what we're trying to build on in this bill, in terms of prevention programs that can make sense, but also programs that provide punishment for young offenders, punishment that's fair, that's firm that fits the crime and means what it says," Reno said.

making substantial progress in improvement," he said. "The bad news is we still have a substantial distance to go in terms of where we want to be as a state."

Overall increases ranged from five to 11 percentage points among minority and poor student groups in the two grades. The percentage of the students passing all parts of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills ranged from 27 percent for eighth-grade blacks to 43 percent for Hispanic fourth-graders.

White students' improvement was five percentage points in the fourth grade and three in the eighth grade, for overall passing rates of 65 percent or better. On the 10th-grade Texas Assessment of Academic Skills, which students must pass before graduating, there was less improvement among all groups.

For example, 29 percent of black students passed all sections of the test, the same rate as the year before. The passing rates of Hispanic, white and poor students went up from one to two percentage points overall.

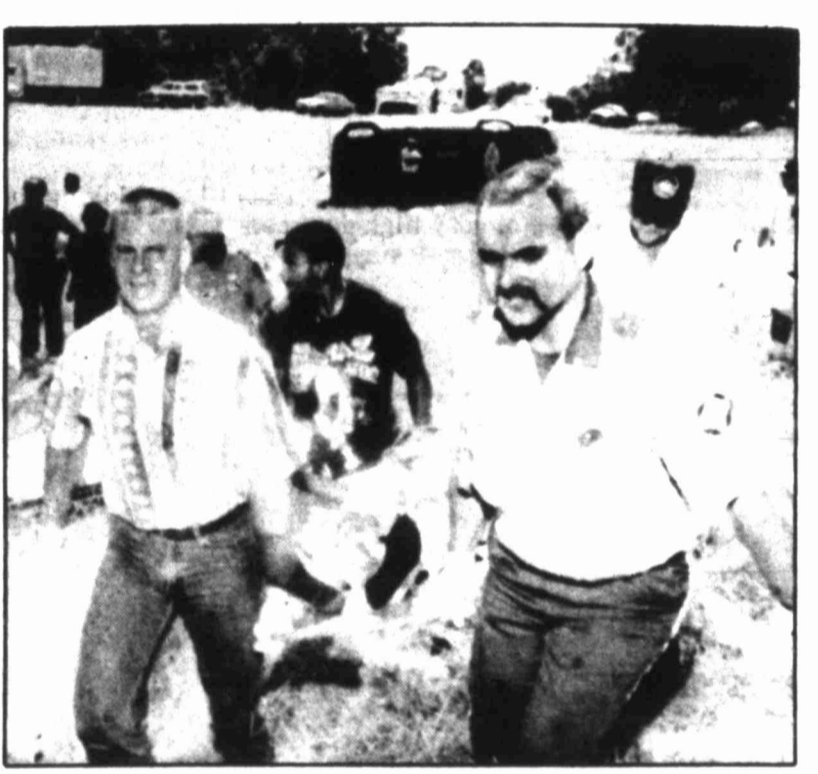

"There are always areas where we need more work," Meno said. He contended that 10th-grade passing rate would be higher if the state hadn't kept more youngsters from dropping out.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Gonzalez dissatisfied
Fiske won't appear

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Banking Committee Chairman Henry B. Gonzalez is displeased that special prosecutor Robert Fiske has declined to appear at congressional hearings on the Whitewater affair.

The San Antonio Democrat issued a news release Friday saying he was "deeply disappointed" that Fiske had decided not to testify at the hearing later this month.

Fiske notified Gonzalez in a letter released Friday that he should be allowed to complete his entire investigation before coming under congressional scrutiny.

"It would be inappropriate and would compromise my ability to function effectively," Fiske wrote Gonzalez.

Gonzalez asked Fiske to reconsider his decision to forgo a July 26 appearance before the committee.

"To the extent your work is completed ... I see no reasons why you should not be required to discuss your findings," Gonzalez said in a letter to Fiske.

Leaders looking to expand economies

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — Western leaders worked today on a statement pledging to work to expand their economies in a session suddenly overshadowed by political uncertainties created by the death of North Korean President Kim Il Sung.

With majestic Mount Vesuvius as a backdrop, the leaders met to wrap up the first stage of the 20th annual economic summit.

Today's session in the ornate Royal Palace opened with a traditional "class photo" of participants — but minus Japan's new prime minister, Tomiichi Maruyama.

Murayama was rushed to a hospital during Friday's summit-opening dinner. Japanese officials said the 70-year-old leader, in office only a week, was suffering from fatigue and dehydration in the sweltering heat of this southern Italian port.

Coast Guard, Navy are pressed as policy falters

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — With U.S. refugee policy in disarray, overloaded Coast Guard and Navy ships will be unable to pick up some Haitians fleeing their military-dominated homeland, the U.S. Embassy said.

American ships have no place to put many of the more than 10,700 boat people who have fled Haiti since Monday, embassy spokesman Stanley Schrage said Friday. The U.S. Coast Guard said the past four days have been the busiest period in its history.

"Clearly the system is overloaded," Schrage said. "We have an obligation to provide safe haven for these people. I can't say when the system cracks."

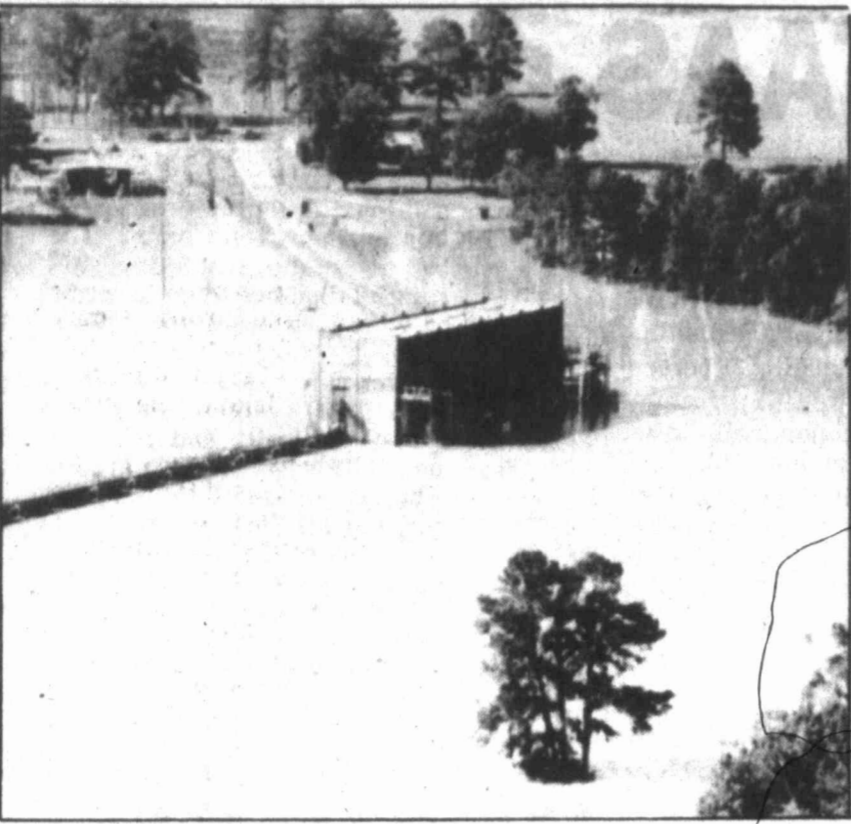

The refugee nightmare began when President Clinton guaranteed boat people hearings at offshore U.S. processing centers. Since that policy took effect June 16, the Coast Guard has plucked more than 18,600 Haitians from ramshackle boats.

Kristine Gebbie quits
as AIDS coordinator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Her clout and competence under attack, Kristine Gebbie is resigning as President Clinton's AIDS coordinator, saying she faced "conflicting expectations of what an AIDS czar could do."

Gebbie said Friday that her successor in one of the hottest spots in national health policy "must have the tools necessary" to win the confidence of people suffering from the deadly disease.

Many AIDS activists contended she clearly had not accomplished that goal.

Flood water from the rampaging Flint River pours over a breach in the Lake Blackshear Dam in Warwick, Ga. Tensions along the flooded area are rising with the water.

Tensions rise with the water along Flint River

ALBANY, Ga. (AP) — Tensions were rising along with floodwaters as the raging Flint River neared its crest today and stubborn residents broke dusk-to-dawn curfews, ignoring police barricades and refusing to leave their homes.

Police with bull horns drove through neighborhoods Friday night to warn of the flooding that already has killed 23 people, including two children trapped in a car that plunged off a bridge and into the river.

But some residents in this southwestern Georgia city wouldn't listen, and stayed to gawk or wait till the last minute to flee.

"It's making me sick," said Sissy Trotter of Albany, whose parents lost their home and four cars this week to floods farther north in Macon. "People want to go around and sightsee. This is a disaster and they should treat it like one."

Rivers also overflowed in the Florida Panhandle, and in southeastern Alabama, one person was killed Friday and two others were reported missing in the floods.

In Albany, volunteers from as far as Valdosta, about 75 miles away, worked Friday night and early today putting sandbags around the civic center.

More than 20,000 of Albany's 80,000 residents fled their homes Thursday and Friday, but the worst flooding was to come today. The Flint River was expected to crest at a record 45 or 46 feet, the National Weather Service said. Flood stage is 20 feet. The levee protecting the city is 38 feet high.

Firefighters killed when fireproof shelter melted in brushfire's inferno

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Searchers have recovered the last two bodies of 14 crack firefighters who were trapped when wind whipped a modest brushfire into an inferno so hot it melted their fireproof shelters.

In Washington, Interior Department officials said a federal review board will begin a 45-day inquiry into the fire on Storm King Mountain.

"We must find answers to what caused this terrible tragedy," Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt said.

Winds up to 50 mph fanned the 50-acre fire into a devastating 2,000-acre blaze in a matter of hours Wednesday.

"I just see it as somebody made a big mistake by sending them in there," said Nadine Mackey, whose 34-year-old son, Don, died fighting the fire.

Firefighters were aware of a cold front moving through the area and anticipated gusty winds. But they said they didn't expect the bands of fire to rip through dried-out juniper and pinon at 100 feet per minute.

Fourteen elite firefighters were killed by the flames, which moved so fast that just one of the victims had time to unfold and climb inside a fire-retardant metal blanket. Les Rosenkrance of the U.S. Bureau of Land Management said Friday.

Heart failure claims Kim Il Sung

Son cements
his power base
in North Korea

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — With quiet tears and blaring music, North Korea on Saturday marked the death of dictator Kim Il Sung, while his mysterious son apparently cemented his new hold on power in the reclusive, Stalinist state.

Kim's death Friday at age 82 threw the Korean Peninsula into one of its most nervous phases since being divided into the communist north and capitalist south in 1945.

His death came amid preparations for North Korea's first summit with South Korea and the same day that high-level talks began with the United States about improving relations and resolving the dispute over whether North Korea is building nuclear weapons.

The talks, in Geneva, were suspended Saturday and prospects for restarting them were not clear.

Word of Kim's death from a heart attack was withheld by the North's official media for an entire day, suggesting that his son Kim Jong Il had needed time to consolidate his succession bid.

Indications were that he was managing to prevail. Saturday evening, North Korea's radio broadcast a series of statements by top officials pledging loyalty to him.

Even so, South Korea reacted with alarm. It put its military on full alert. But no unusual troop movements were reported, and military officials said the border was tense but quiet.

China, North Korea's only major ally, endorsed Kim Jong Il as successor, but unofficial reports have said Chinese leaders were unenthusiastic about him.

Some media reports in the South speculated that Kim's death could have been engineered by hard-line forces upset with his recent moves toward cooperating with Seoul and the international community, but none offered any proof.

The North stopped short of an actual succession announcement, but made statements suggesting the younger Kim was in control.

"Standing at the head of our revolution is comrade Kim Jong Il, the great successor to the revolutionary cause ... the outstanding leader of our party and people and the supreme commander of our revolutionary army," an official report said.

Kim Il Sung had built a pervasive personality cult around himself, with buildings and squares named after him, and schoolchildren singing his praises. That adulation continued in death.

Witnesses said North Koreans wept openly in the streets of the capital, Pyongyang. Red-and-blue North Korean flags flew at half-staff along the North-South border, and eulogies and mourning music blared from loudspeakers.

O.J. held without bail
while awaiting trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — O.J. Simpson spends his 47th birthday in jail today, facing a double murder trial after a judge found there was enough evidence to link him to the brutal killings of his ex-wife and her friend.

"As you might imagine, it's not going to be very pleasant," lawyer Robert Kardashian said Friday after speaking briefly to his longtime friend before Simpson was led off to jail.

Simpson showed no emotion as Municipal Judge Kathleen Kennedy-Powell ordered him held without bail until a July 22 arraignment in Superior Court. Earlier, he cried while listening to a coroner describe how his ex-wife's throat was slashed to the spine.

Kardashian said Simpson told him he had expected the judge's ruling.

Kennedy-Powell said there was enough evidence to suspect Simpson in the murders. She noted prosecutors only had to show probable cause, not guilt beyond a reasonable doubt, the standard they will be held to at trial.

Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25, were killed June 12 and their bodies were found early the next morning outside Ms. Simpson's Brentwood condominium, about two miles from Simpson's estate.

Columbia's fishy cargo adjusting to life in space

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Some of the aquatic passengers aboard shuttle Columbia were like fish out of water while adjusting to space flight today.

Astronaut Leroy Chiao checked on six Japanese goldfish in the shuttle's bus-sized laboratory and reported that they looked "nice and happy" if not exactly at ease 12 hours into their trip.

"The fish all appear healthy," Chiao reported, but "they're all a little bit restless."

Columbia is crawling with all sorts of aquatic and amphibious life, including fish, newts, jellyfish, frog eggs and sea urchins. There also are some 500 fruit flies, as well as worms, slime mold, roots and mouse bones.

Seven astronauts will spend the next two weeks working with the specimens to help biologists understand how they develop in weightlessness and how cells divide and grow without gravity.

The six Japanese goldfish are subjects of an experiment to study the causes of space motion sickness, a disorienting malady that affects half of all space travelers.

Scientists believe the sickness is a result of the brain receiving different signals from the eyes and gravity-sensing inner ear.

The space fish also will be studied after the voyage to see how they readjust to gravity.

Chiao and astronauts Donald Thomas and Carl Walz also tended experiments today on white blood cells and space-induced calcium loss while their four crewmates got some sleep.

On Friday, about 650 Japanese were at the Kennedy Space Center to watch Columbia astronaut Chiaki Mukai become the first Japanese woman in space.

"We were quite impressed with the beautiful launch," said Noriyuki Sekine, parliamentary vice minister for science and technology in Japan.

Columbia is due back in Florida on July 22.

Mother Lagoon

Sanctuary home to many multi-hued wading birds

ON THE LAGUNA MADRE, Texas (AP) — One more step in the thorny brush and you realize what all the squawking is about.

Suddenly you see hundreds of colonial waterbirds, colorful as Christmas ornaments, perched on the mesquite branches of Green Island.

As baby birds make a low chatter in their nests, parents swoop in with breakfast fished from tidal flats across the lagoon.

"This island was not found by the plume hunters," says Mike Farmer, manager of Texas coastal sanctuaries for the National Audubon Society.

Green Island, the largest wading bird colony in the Laguna Madre, is one of a system of Audubon sanctuaries for waterbirds that nest in colonies along the Texas Gulf Coast.

"They are out here to escape predators like raccoons and coyotes," Farmer says.

Texas is actually getting to be a stronghold for colonial waterbirds.

Mike Farmer

"Texas is actually getting to be a stronghold for colonial waterbirds. We lost a lot of inland colonies, so they have more-less been relegated to these islands out here, which has always been good habitat but it's about the only thing left now."

Thick brush on Green Island protects the young birds from the searing semitropical sun. Many species can nest together on the 40-acre natural island because they can feed in different parts of nearby tidal flats and wetlands.

The colonies on Green Island and other sanctuaries are too fragile to allow public viewing, Farmer says. Signs warn boaters not to trespass on the private property, leased by Audubon through the Texas General Land Office.

In the early 1900s, feather and egg hunters severely reduced colonial waterbird populations. Although such activities have long been prohibited, Farmer still worries about boaters who step ashore and unwittingly disturb the colonies in other ways.

Green Island, protected by the Audubon Society since 1921, supports world's largest colony of reddish egrets and one of the largest colonies of roseate spoonbills in the United States, Farmer says.

Farmer finds dozens of nests with eggs of little blue heron and snowy egrets in trees along a trail to an old watch tower.

From the tower, if you climb slowly, without spooking the colonies into a sea of flight, there's a sweeping view of great blue herons, reddish egrets, great egrets, snowy egrets and other colorful species.

Other Audubon sanctuaries on the Texas Coast include Robert Porter Allen Sanctuary and Matagorda Island, both wintering habitats for endangered whooping cranes.

Endangered brown pelicans stay on sanctuaries on Pelican Island near Corpus Christi and Sundown Island near Port Arthur.

"Audubon's view is they are on the upswing if they continue to be protected," Farmer says of brown pelicans, which once were nearly wiped out by pesticides.

South Bird Island, a 100-acre sanctuary in the Laguna Madre, contains the only known saltwater nesting colony of white pelicans on the Texas Coast.

Many species of colonial nesting birds make use of manmade islands created by spoil, the sediment dredged from the bay bottom to clear the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway for barge traffic.

Even Pelican Island is a spoil island.

After a short boat ride from

They are out there to escape predators like raccoons and coyotes.

Mike Farmer

Green Island, Farmer steps ashore on a small spoil island as seagulls swirl and squawk above. He finds a nest of sooty terns, which he says are the rarest bird in Texas.

Farmer was asked whether creating more spoil islands would improve bird populations. His answer reflects the complexity of life in the Laguna Madre, where birds nest in one area and feed in another.

"The number of birds is not determined by the number of nesting islands," he says.

Oil-eating bacteria tested

FOWLER BEACH, Del. (AP) — Researchers intentionally spilled 540 gallons of oil on a strip of beach along the Delaware Bay to determine how effective nutrients and bacteria can be in breaking down crude oil.

Texas' General Land Office is participating in the $550,000 study.

The beach looks undisturbed. But below the surface is the oil, which can be harmful to humans, plants and animal life. Scientists are hoping the nutrients or bacteria will break down to nothing by the time the study ends in late October.

The process is called bioremediation. Scientists think it works, but they don't know how fast, whether it's cost-effective or whether adding nutrients to the sand works better than adding microorganisms or cultured bacteria.

Bioremediation was tried at the Exxon Valdez oil spill in Alaska and yielded a wealth of data.

"We think it worked. We just didn't prove it statistically" in Alaska, said Albert Venosa, a research microbiologist for the federal Environmental Protection Agency, who is in charge of the project.

"This is the first time an intentional oil spill has been done for bioremediation," said Venosa, who is based at the EPA's Risk Reduction Engineering Laboratory at the University of Cincinnati.

"One of the objectives is to develop some engineering guidelines on how to bioremediate," he said.

Coahoma wins again; Odessa ends NL's run

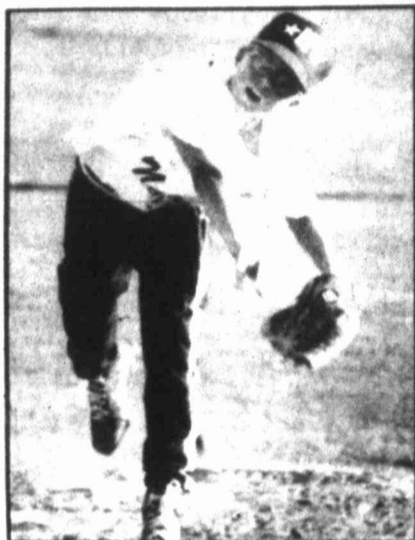

MIDLAND - Teams from Odessa have wiped out all three Big Spring teams, but Coahoma is still standing at the District 3 Little League Tournament at Midland's Bluebird Park.

Coahoma, which beat Odessa North Ector 3-2 Friday (see story on page 9A), turned the trick again with a 4-3 win over Odessa Salinas. The win puts the Coahoma All-Stars in an elimination game Monday at 7 p.m. against Odessa Sherwood, the team that eliminated Big Spring National Saturday night.

Big Spring National had won two tournament games, including an impressive 23-5 Thursday over Greenwood, but Odessa Sherwood pushed the NL out of the tournament Saturday with a 3-1 win. The NL scored in the first on a Colby Ditto double, a Mike Smith single and a Dustin Morgan RBI groundout, but that was the only run the NL stars could score.

Adam Hyatt pitched well for the NL, allowing just two hits and striking out nine. Sherwood scored all three of its runs in the third inning, but just one run was earned.

"The kids played hard, and Adam Hyatt threw one heck of a ball game," said NL coach Jim Clements. "With the talent that's in this tournament, you're looking at the best ball players in West Texas, and it's like I told some people coming into this thing: If we come out of here and ended up .500, winning two and losing two, I'd be absolutely satisfied."

Smith had a big game for the NL, playing well in right field while going 2-for-3 with a single and a triple.

Soccer fans celebrate Italy's 2-1 victory over Spain in a World Cup quarterfinal match Saturday in Naples. Italy advanced to the World Cup semifinals. Brazil beat the Netherlands in Saturday's other quarterfinal match.

Brazil, Italy win in Cup quarters

Brazil sambaed and survived. Italy sputtered and survived.

Two of the three World Cup dynasties seeking a fourth title are in the semifinals — with almost no breathing room. Brazil blew a 2-0 lead, then got a goal off a free kick in the 81st minute by Branco to outlast the Netherlands 3-2. Italy was being outplayed by Spain when it got an immense break — make that a break — that Roberto Baggio converted into the winning goal in a 2-1 decision.

Now it is up to Germany, the other three-time champion, to join Brazil and Italy in Wednesday's semifinals. The Germans play Bulgaria on Sunday at East Rutherford, N.J., with the winner meeting Italy, also at Giants Stadium.

Brazil will play the winner of Sunday's quarterfinal between Romania and Sweden at Stanford, Calif. That semifinal will be at the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, Calif., also the site of the final next Sunday.

Italy will be in the Meadowlands because Baggio woke up and the Spanish defense went to sleep.

Baggio, the 1993 FIFA player of the year, struggled through the first round, not scoring and rarely doing anything with the ball. He wasn't any better for most of the second-round game with Nigeria, which Italy trailed 1-0.

Then, he suddenly turned his team's fortunes. And his nation's outlook.

Baggio scored in the 89th minute against Nigeria to force overtime, and won it on a penalty-kick in the extra session. That set up Saturday's heroics at Foxboro Stadium.

Somehow, Italy's most dangerous scorer was left unguarded with under three minutes to go in regulation. Giuseppe Signori found Baggio, who dribbled past charging goalkeeper Andoni Zubizarreta and tucked the ball into the corner of the net.

"If he continues this way, the last part of the game will be called the 'Baggio Zone,'" said Italian coach Arrigo Sacchi.

The Spanish gave all they had, dominating much of the second half, outshooting Italy 10-2 in the period. But they made the critical error. Now Spain goes back home and Italy keeps going toward an unprecedented fourth championship.

As does Brazil.

After a scoreless, listless first half, both teams caught fire at Dallas. Brazil's dynamic strikers Romario and Bebeto scored 10 minutes apart.

The Netherlands immediately rallied. Dennis Bergkamp connected two minutes after Bebeto scored, then Aron Winter's header off a corner kick at 76 minutes tied it.

But Branco, a substitute for the suspended Leonardo, sent a perfect free kick from 28 yards into the lower right corner of the net to win it.

"I am by nature an optimist," the veteran said, "and I showed today I deserve to be on the first team."

Big Spring roller speed skater Sarah Fannin has seen the good and the bad.

The bad came after her trip to the Olympic Training Center in

Storms keep rolling in the trophies

The West Texas and Skateland Texas Storms, a locally-based roller speed skating team, competed in the South Central Regional Speed Skating Championships June 24-26. The Central Region includes Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Texas.

In Standard Speed Skating events, Sarah Fannin (see related story), a Runnels eighth-grader, captured the gold in the sophomore ladies' division, while Katrina Gressett, a Big Spring High sophomore, took the silver.

Fannin and Gressett teamed to bring home the bronze in the 2000-meter relay. Other athletes from the Storms that made the finals but did not capture a medal were Paul Raven (Midland), Kelly Gressett (BSHS senior), Jason Metcalf (BSHS junior) and Jason Eads (Midland).

Fannin and Katrina Gressett qualified for the National Speed Skating Championships, which are August 8-12 in Lincoln, Neb.

In the Junior Olympic speed skating events, Stevi Bingham, a Coahoma Elementary fifth-grader, brought home the gold in the

"C" division. Metcalf took a bronze, and Kelly Gressett teamed with James Perez (BSHS junior) to earn a silver medal in the two-person mixed 2000 relay.

Bingham, Metcalf, Kelly Gressett and Perez have qualified for the National Speed Skating Championships that will be in Buffalo, N.Y., in early September.

At a United States Amateur Confederation of Roller Skating banquet in Fort Worth, David Mills, the Storms' coach, was nominated for Coach of the Year.

The Ballpark in Arlington is truly baseball heaven

There are stadiums and there are ballparks.

The Ballpark in Arlington is just what it says.

A name that seemed overly simple turns out to be perfect.

You've seen pictures, you've seen it on television, but the beauty of The Ballpark in Arlington can be fully appreciated only with your own eyes. Besides - it's a lot closer than Boston and Chicago.

Had an obstructed-view ticket for right field - the Home Run Porch, where old-time support posts secure two decks of seats that tower over right field, ala Tiger Stadium in Detroit. Walking to the ballpark from the nearest parking lot, be sure to keep your mind where you're walking while your eyes lock on the home of the Texas Rangers. You won't look away, you won't be thinking about the words "obstructed view" on your tickets - you'll just walk fast.

Get in there. The park, tucked far enough away from Six Flags to give it a certain "Field of Dreams" openness, sucks you in like a magnet. You push through the turnstiles. A lady stops you to help you find your seat; a man points you to a table where you can snag a free plastic Rangers helmet if you apply for a MasterCard. You don't have time for them, free helmet or no.

Dave Hargrave
Sports Editor

Get to the field. That magic scene - the sunny glimpse of the ball field cutting through an entrance - pulls you in like it does at any park, but in this case you're getting just one part of the picture. In most stadiums, stick your head in and you've seen what you're going to see, but at The Ballpark in Arlington, stepping out of the concourse and into the park is just the starting point for the grand tour.

Wear your hiking boots. You've got a lot to see. Take a camera. The Home Run Porch grabs you first. The seats hug the field like there's 5,000 right fielders out there. The name doesn't lie - home runs will land in the Home Run Porch, upper or lower deck.

Take your mitt. OK - you're staring at the Home Run Porch and the sleek JumboTron television screen above it as you gaze over the left-field foul line. Walk to the left about 20 steps and you're standing directly above the visitor's bullpen. Talk to the starting pitcher, let him know the Rangers will light him up - he'll hear you. Look straight down - your head's hanging right over the bullpen catcher's back as he hauls in a fastball.

Guess you could spit on him, but it's not recommended. Walk to your seat, but take your time - plenty of stops along the way. There's a concession stand above the $4 center-field bleachers seats so outfield observers don't go hungry. Another scoreboard hangs over center field above the Rangers' front office area, which has fancy white balconies that give the outfield the look of the mansion.

Beyond the right-center field wall is a sports art museum. Above the Home Run Porch, there's a restaurant, Friday's Sports Bar and Grille. You might pass on the eats - take a cooler of food and drinks if you can, because a $1.75 hot dog is the best you can possibly do at the game.

Take your seat and relax. If you're in the Home Run Porch, keep the mitt ready. Look up and enjoy the facade on the upper deck, an ornate, old-time tribute to old Yankee Stadium and other great yards. Check out the right-field fence and its jagged, unpredictable Fenway Park cubbyholes. Ignore the low-key advertising on the outfield wall - a tacky oversight in a classy ball park.

Soak it in. In the Home Run Porch, you won't miss the two jumbo scoreboards you can't see - watch the game and drool over the park between innings. If a Ranger rips a homer, the theme from "The Natural" seeps into your ears, and you swear Roy Hobbs is in his home run trot.

Heaven, if you believe in that sort of thing, is a tough ticket. Thank goodness Baseball Heaven is easy. Drive east.

Friday started promisingly for the AL stars - AL shortstop Oscar Solis scored in the first when Floyd Gwin left fielder Alfonso Moreno dropped Chris Herrod's two-out fly ball, and AL pitcher Clint Bamert mowed down the opposition in the first two innings.

The 1-0 lead disappeared in the third. Floyd Gwin loaded the bases with no out on a single, double and a walk. Kelly Marrs' RBI grounder tied the game, and after a hit batsman, Tim Robinson walked to force in the go-ahead run. Moreno's two-run single pushed Floyd Gwin's lead to 4-1 before Bamert recorded the third out.

Floyd Gwin upped the edge to 5-1 when Darin Love circled the bases on a double and an error in the fourth. The AL's last gasp came in the bottom of the inning.

Floyd Gwin pitcher Eric Carrillo handcuffed AL hitters in the first three frames, striking out six and allowing just one hit, but Bamert broke the spell with a single to right to lead off the fourth. Chris Herrod hit what looked to be a bloop single to left, but Bamert, thinking the ball might be caught, ran cautiously to second and was forced out. That forceout took the steam out of what could have been a big inning. Daniel Beauchamp and Chris Rodriguez followed with singles to make the score 5-2, but Carrillo worked out of further damage by getting a flyout from Matt Green and a strikeout from Jose Carnero. Carrillo finished with seven strikeouts, and relievers Michael Munoz and Jeff Marrs struck out four as they shut the door on any comeback possibilities, but AL coach Phil Grawunder didn't give all the credit to Floyd Gwin's stingy pitching.

"We just didn't hit the ball," he said.

"I got to coach some kids that are the best, All-Stars, and kids that my team played against all season long, so I really enjoyed that. All the players are getting to know new kids."

Coahoma scores three in the sixth to win Friday pitcher's duel

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

MIDLAND - In a classic pitcher's duel, the Coahoma Little League All-Stars pulled out a 3-2 victory against Odessa North Ector Friday in the elimination bracket of the District 3 Little League Tournament.

Coahoma pitcher Mario Garcia went the distance, striking out seven batters while allowing just one walk. Odessa starting pitcher Mike Forest fanned nine while walking three in 5 1/3 innings. Coach Joe Wright said, "In the middle of the season Mario was a thrower; now he's come into his own. I think that I would have to say tonight was next to Mario's best game."

Coahoma's other Joe Wright, the player who goes by Joe Brice Wright, walked in the first inning to get things going, followed by Stewart Beall's ground-rule double, but Forest got Tyler Archibald to ground out, leaving Wright and Beall stranded.

That was the way the game went until the sixth. Odessa didn't have a baserunner until a Forest single in the bottom of the fourth. Forest advanced to second when Blaine Wright misplayed a ground ball between first and second, allowing Dustin York to reach first, but Garcia struck out J.P. Juranga and got Chad Coleman to hit a pop fly to end the inning.

Going into the sixth, the score was 0-0.

"I was so nervous that I can't tell you what happened," Wright said about the sixth. "I told the kids that if they didn't want to go home, now would be a good time to bring some runs in."

Coahoma began the sixth with a quick out, but Jeremy Green singled with a shot to the short stop and beat the throw to first.

Green advanced to third on an Eric Wigington single. Wigington stole second base, and both he and Green scored on the next play when Russell Grant hit a single that rolled through the first baseman's legs.

After Odessa changed pitchers, Garcia singled and Grant then scored on a single by Wright.

Odessa scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth on a walk followed by a triple and then a single, but Garcia got the final out to nail down the win, which put Coahoma into an elimination game against Odessa Salinas.

MIDLAND - The big towns got the best of the Big Spring American League All-Stars.

Though they were in both ball games, the AL stars were two losses and out at the District 3 Little League Tournament at Bluebird Park. DETROIT (AP) - Juan Gonzalez and Ivan Rodriguez homered, leading Kenny Rogers and the Texas Rangers over the Detroit Tigers 10-4.

Rogers (10-4) pitched three-hit ball for seven innings. He has worked at least seven innings in 10 of his last 11 starts and leads the Rangers with four complete games.

The Rangers, who had 18 hits, jumped on John Doherty (6-7) for three runs on five hits in the first.

Daly says some pros use cocaine

LONDON (AP) - John Daly is finding little support for his claim that some golfers may be using cocaine or other drugs.

"It's a load of rubbish," Scottish player Gordon Brand Jr. said Friday. "A group of us have just been talking about it and don't know anybody who has used it."

Mike Stewart, director of the Scottish Open, added, "John is fully entitled to express his view, but we would stress that we are not aware of any drug-related problem within the European Tour."

Daly made his comments at the Scottish Open in Gleneagles, a warmup event for next week's British Open at Turnberry, Scotland.

"There are certain people on the tour who do the crazy stuff," Daly was quoted as saying in The Sun newspaper. "They're never going to get exposed unless they are found out by the police and put in jail."

Daly called for random drug-testing of golfers to catch offenders.

"I wish we could have drug testing on the Tour," he said. "If we did, I'd probably be one of the cleanest guys out there."

"Drugs, cocaine, some of the other crazy things, if you're going to test everybody, athletes in the NBA, football players for steroids and stuff, test the golfers. Let it come out."

Daly, the 1991 PGA champion, has spent time in rehabilitation clinics to treat his drinking problem.

"I never dabbled in drugs," he was quoted as saying. "I never had any interest."

Later Friday, he toned down his comments slightly, saying, "I don't know of anybody who does drugs on the tour, but I have heard rumors. I don't know it, but I believe it."

Peter Jacobsen, a former member of the U.S. tour's policy board, said, "I've never heard the rumors, but maybe it is time to have drug-testing. Statistics prove there are guys on cocaine in all slices of life."

Roger Maltbie, in his 20th year on the PGA Tour, was on the circuit's policy board during the mid-1980s when the panel adopted a substance-abuse policy that does not require testing. The policy allows the commissioner to "conduct such inquiries and investigations as shall be appropriate," including requiring urine tests and taking statements from witnesses.

The policy, which remains in effect, calls for a minimum fine of $1,000 and at least a two-year suspension for any member of the Tour who uses or sells illegal substances. It also gives the commissioner the power to specify treatment requirements for those found to be in violation.

Maltbie said he would be wary of mandatory testing.

"I think the game itself can weed that out," he said, "because I don't know how you can possibly play this game well under those kind of influences. I don't feel any big need or any big concern for testing to be done."

As for allegations that players might be using drugs, Maltbie said: "I wouldn't even know how to respond to that. I wouldn't know what to look for."

Conaway scores 10 in All-Star game

HALTOM CITY (AP) - Christi Chambers of Whiteface hit a 14-foot baseline jumper with no time left Friday night, leading the North past the South 80-78 in the Texas Girls Coaches Association Class Division I All-Star Game.

Forsan's Jenny Conaway, who fouled out late in the contest, scored 10 points.

The Division I game pitted the state's top players from Class A, 2A and 3A. In the Division II All-Star Game between 5A and 4A All-Stars, the South won, 75-65.

The winning play came after the North got the ball underneath its own basket with less than a second left. The play was designed to go to Cathy DeSalvo, who finished with 17 points, but the Bishop Lynch guard was covered.

Elesha Walker, who hopes to walk on at Texas Tech, set up that shot with two of the game's most important defensive plays.

She took a charge setting a screen on the South's leading scorer, Waco LaVega's Katrina Price. Price, a Stephen F. Austin signee who finished with 28 points, fouled out with 2:18 remaining.

Walker then sank a free throw to give her team a 76-74 lead. But Bloomington's Summer Swoboda led the South back with two straight baskets to put the South ahead, 78-76. Chambers, who finished with 13 points, tied the game with two free throws before hitting the game-winner.

The North's Buffy Ferguson, a forward from Jayton headed to Midwestern State, was named most valuable player after scoring most of her 17 points in the first half.

The big school game, a 75-65 victory by the South, proved sloppy but exciting as the North rallied from a 15-point deficit to close within one point with four minutes remaining.

The Division II MVP was Carey Owens of Corpus Christi King.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Grissom replaces Dykstra for NL

NEW YORK (AP) — Marquis Grissom of the Montreal Expos was selected to replace starting outfielder Lenny Dykstra of the Philadelphia Phillies on the 1994 National League All-Star team.

Grissom, who will make his second All-Star appearance, is hitting .283 in 80 games with six homers, 30 RBIs and 29 stolen bases.

Olympic Festival continues

ST. LOUIS (AP) — In the U.S. Olympic Festival's women's gymnastics, teammates from Colorado Springs, Colo., wound up finishing 1-2.

The gold medal went to Doni Thompson, who scored 9.85 on the floor exercise and the uneven bars on her way to a total of 39.125. Her teammate with the Colorado Aerials, Kristy Powell, scored 38.775 for the silver medal.

In weightlifting, Chad Ikei, competing in the 119-pound class, set records with a clean-and-jerk of 281 pounds and a total lift of 507 pounds. The previous marks were 275 1/2 and 501 1/2, set in the national championships in April.

The North ice hockey team got two goals from two players to beat the West 5-4 and advance to the gold medal game.

Top seed cruises at Swiss Open

GSTAAD, Switzerland (AP) — Top-seeded Sergi Bruguera of Spain continued his straight-set sweep at the $485,000 Swiss Open tennis tournament with an easy 6-3, 6-0 quarterfinal victory over compatriot Emilio Sanchez.

Yevgeni Kafelnikov of Russia ousted third-seeded Thomas Muster of Austria 7-6 (11-9), 3-6, 7-6 (7-4).

France's Guy Forget defeated countryman Arnaud Boetsch 6-3, 7-6 (7-3).

Andrea Gaudenzi of Italy beat qualifier Marcelo Rios of Chile, 6-4, 3-6.

Bruguera faces Gaudenzi in the semifinals, and Kafelnikov will meet Forget.

Upsets rule at Swedish Open

BASTAD, Sweden (AP) — Top-seeded Andrei Chesnokov of Russia and third-seeded

Tomas Carbonell of Spain both fell victim to lower-ranked opposition in the quarterfinal round of the $313,750 Swedish Open tennis tournament at Bastad.

Sixth-seeded Austrian Horst Skoff is the highest surviving seed in the tournament after he ousted Chesnokov. Skoff will meet German Bernd Karbacher in the semifinals.

Unseeded Frenchman Jean-Philippe Fleurian upset Carbonell to set up a semifinal meeting against Richard Fromberg of Australia. In the other quarterfinal Karbacher beat Argentinian Daniel Orsanic.

Stevens becomes NHL's highest-paid defenseman

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Devils will match an offer from St. Louis for All-Star Scott Stevens, making him the highest-paid defenseman in the NHL, Devils general manager Lou Lamoriello said.

Lamoriello said Stevens was aware of the deal and the contract had not yet been signed, but it would be "in the very near future."

The Devils had until Monday to match the St. Louis offer.

National League in underdog situation

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There was a time when the National League used to win the All-Star game.

The NL ruled during the 1960s, when Willie Mays, Hank Aaron and Roberto Clemente were in the outfield. It romped during the 1970s, when Pete Rose, Joe Morgan and Mike Schmidt were in the infield. It rolled into the 1980s, when Steve Carlton, Mario Soto and Bruce Sutter pitched.

Those days, Ken Griffey Sr. and Bobby Bonds still were stars. Seems like a long time ago, huh?

These days there's no doubt: the American League — once the Junior Circuit but now Junior's Circuit — is as dominant as the NL ever was.

"I find there to be a vast difference between the talent in the two leagues," said Andre Dawson, in his second year with Boston after 17 years in the NL.

"I just feel the guys over here in this league are bigger and stronger and you see more emphasis on weight training," he said. "I think guys over here, the big guys, more or less look at themselves as power hitters and do what they need to keep themselves that way."

And, it shows up in the All-Star game.

The AL has won six straight, its longest winning streak ever, and has done it by out-homering the NL 8-3 during that span.

Ken Griffey Jr. and Cal Ripken Jr. have led the way, while Dawson and Will Clark — now both in the AL — are among the few to connect for the NL.

No surprise that it's been no contest the past three years in the home-run derby, held the day before the All-Star game.

Griffey, Juan Gonzalez, Cecil Fielder and Albert Belle combined to beat Barry Bonds, Bobby Bonilla, Mike Piazza and David Justice 21-12 last summer, with Griffey becoming the first player ever to hit the B&O Warehouse beyond right field at Camden Yards in Baltimore.

The NL won 19 of 20 All-Star games from 1963 to 1982. In that period, the NL out-homered its counterparts 34-15, although Rose running over Ray Fosse in 1970 best symbolized the NL's mastery.

At that time, the AL had a lot of big, slow sluggers, guys like Harmon Killebrew, Boog Powell and Frank Howard. The NL, meanwhile, already had adapted its game to artificial turf and seemed to have all the fast and flashy stars.

Publicly, the NL used to say those All-Star results meant nothing, that the game was just an exhibition. Privately, the NL believed its annual wins proved it was a better league.

That all has changed, with the AL stars getting better and younger. Last year at Baltimore, the AL brought nine everyday players who were 25 or under; the NL had only two.

"I think it's definitely shifting on the younger player level," said Kansas City pitcher David Cone, an All-Star in both leagues.

"You think of great young players in the National League, you think of Mike Piazza," he said. "But over there, there are half a dozen guys you can name — Ken Griffey, Albert Belle, Kenny Lofton. There seems to be a tremendous influx of young superstars in the American League right now."

Winston Cup nears season midpoint

There are the usual contenders and pretenders in the Winston Cup points race at the halfway point of the season. You have the guys you figured to see near the top who realistically have a chance to win the points title, Ernie Irvan, Dale Earnhardt, and Rusty Wallace.

Then you have a couple of guys who provide window dressing, or just a tease: Mark Martin, Ken Schrader, and Morgan Shepherd.

So it's time to make a clear distinction between the haves and have nots. Let's give 'em a grade at midterm.

—The As:
Irvan, Earnhardt, and Wallace are in a class by themselves. Between them, the three drivers have 35 top 10 finishes and 11 wins in the 15 races. Enough said.

—The Bs:
OK, Mark Martin is only nine points behind Wallace. But, really, you need a win to get an A in this class. Martin looks good out there, but it's hard to get away from the feeling that he is merely gathering points and playing it safe.

Schrader is 16 points behind Martin in fourth. No wins for him, either. Shepherd gets a B on the basis of eight top 10 finishes.

—The Cs
Michael Waltrip? Yes, Michael Waltrip. The biggest improvement from last year among drivers. He is eighth in the points standings with six top 10 finishes.

—The Ds
Kyle Petty, Jimmy Spencer, and Terry Labonte. Too bad these guys rate so low. They are three of the more engaging talkers on the circuit. They are three marquee guys you would like to see take off in the next few months. Maybe Spencer's win at Daytona will jump start his season.

—The Fs
For sentimental value, it's hard to put Harry Gant in this group. But the Bandit's Last Ride has been a disappointment. He is 28th in the points standings. Gant has four top 10 finishes, so perhaps there is hope.

Bill Elliott fails the class. For all the resources the Bud team has, standing 17th is an embarrassment. The engines are terrible for the Junior Johnson teams (Elliott and Spencer), so much so that they had to borrow an engine for Elliott to qualify at Michigan.

Cubs cool off sizzling Astros at Wrigley Field

CHICAGO (AP) — Sammy Sosa drove in three runs and Anthony Young won for the first time in eight starts as the Chicago Cubs defeated the Houston Astros 7-3 Saturday.

Young (4-6) gave up one run and three hits in five innings. He left early because of a strained right elbow.

Chuck Crim relieved to start the sixth and Jeff Bagwell led off with his 27th home run. Two outs later, Luis Gonzalez hit a solo homer.

Brian Williams (5-5) gave up six runs on seven hits and four walks in three innings. He also allowed a run to score with a throwing error.

In the first, Jose Hernandez walked, Mark Grace singled and Sosa hit a sacrifice fly.

Mark Parent singled to lead off the second and later scored on Hernandez's bloop single for a 2-0 lead. Grace walked to load the bases and Sosa followed with a two-run single. Derrick May added an RBI single for a 5-0 lead.

With runners at first and third and two outs in the third, Williams made a wild pickoff throw to first, enabling a run to score.

Gonzalez doubled to lead off the fifth, the first hit off Young, and scored on Scott Servais' single.

Hernandez, who earlier had an RBI single in the second, tripled home a run in the eighth.

Fannin

Spring-based West Texas and Skateland Texas Storms team, didn't make that meet and lost her chance to qualify for the world team.

The good came at the end of June. Unexpectedly, at least in her eyes, Fannin was named Junior Olympic female Speed Skater of the Year in the South Central region June 28 at a United States Amateur Confederation of Roller Skating banquet in Fort Worth. Fannin's bronze medal at the Junior Olympic Nationals last year, along with her numerous placements at other events, made her the coaches' choice for the award in a region that includes Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico and Texas.

"I was like 'Wow, I don't believe it,' when I found out, cause I didn't expect it," said Fannin, 14. "A coach told me that he had nominated me, but I didn't think I'd actually get it." Fannin surprised herself, and she could skate her way to more surprises at her current rate. The Rannels eighth-grader took the gold in the sophomore ladies' division at the South Central Regional two weekends ago, and she teamed with Big Spring's Katrina Gressett to earn a bronze in the 2000-meter relay. Fannin and Gressett qualified for the National Speed Skating Championships, which are August 8-12 in Lincoln, Neb. As for the setback of not going to the bank-track nationals, an indoor event, Fannin said she's put that in the past.

"I got over it. We just couldn't afford it. I'll get over it, go to the nationals next year and do my best."

Doing her best has been the key for Fannin, who has extended that concept to the classroom. Once a poor student, Fannin said her extracurricular activities - she said she plays tennis, runs track and wants to start cheerleading - have helped her see how important effort is. "I've come up a bunch in school, just since last year," Fannin said. "I used to get 60s and 70s all the time, but now I'm getting A's and B's in almost everything - I guess I get a C every now and then. I finally found out that I had to do it, so I might as well do it as hard as I can."

Fannin said she practice four hours a day four days per week with the Storms, and during her free time she skates all over town. Fannin just moved to the sophomore girls' age group, so she has plenty of time to pull in more awards in that division. The Speed Skater of the Year award, however, will be hard to top.

"It means a lot, it makes me a lot more confident," she said. "It must mean that maybe some people like to watch me skate, and at meets some people might be looking at me."

Tour de France

Belgian rider keeps lead

FUTUROSCOPE, France (AP) — Johan Museeuw of Belgium, gaining bonus seconds in intermediate sprints, regained the lead in the Tour de France after Saturday's seventh stage.

Jan Svorada of Slovakia won the stage, a 162-mile leg from Rennes to the Futuroscope theme park outside Poitiers.

With five riders within five seconds in the overall standings, there was a lot of jockeying throughout the stage trying to win bonus seconds in sprints and at the finish. In a bonus sprint, six seconds are awarded to the winner, four for second place and two for third.

Museeuw gained 10 seconds along the way and moved past Briton Sean Yates of the U.S.-based Motorola team by six seconds.

Eros Poli of Italy tried to make a long breakaway and built an early advantage of 18 minutes. But he tired and the pack caught him with 18 miles to go and it came down to a mass finish.

Lance Armstrong of the United States, the world champion, was in eighth place.

Sunday's stage is from Poitiers to Treilissac, 135 miles.

Can these...

Story by Janet Ausbury • Photos by Tim Appel

Stress. We all experience it. The question is, what do we do about it?

First, it may be important to understand the nature of stress. Writers such as Dr. Archibald Hart, author of "Adrenalin and Stress," and Susan Seliger, author of "Stop Killing Yourself," identify stress not in terms of what outside events happen to us, but how we react to them.

Anything can be stressful to the body, regardless of whether we perceive it as good or bad. The results are the same, as described by the authors: adrenalin is released, blood pressure and heart rate go up, body temperature goes down, and other physical changes kick into gear, preparing us for the "fight or flight" instinct. Trouble arises when either the body is constantly put into the fight- or-flight gear, keeping adrenalin levels too high, and when the stressed-out person can't do anything about their stress, throwing the body into conflict because it can't act on its high gear.

Major health problems may result, including what Hart calls "hurry sickness." In its worst form, stress on the body may result in heart attacks or strokes.

Severe adrenalin fatigue, in which the adrenal glands become enlarged and "give out" because of overwork, is a less common but still serious result of inability to deal appropriately with stress. This disorder results in severe fatigue that may last for months, with the slightest exercise or mental stress provoking serious panic attacks.

More common results of prolonged stress are anxiety attacks, stomach and intestinal disorders including ulcers and irritable bowel syndrome, shakiness, chest pain, headaches, muscle aches and difficulty sleeping.

People suffering these symptoms may visit a variety of doctors, convinced they have a serious illness. That's the insidious thing about stress; it can make us incredibly sick without us even realizing our bodies are responding to it.

This is your brain on stress

We may actually be most creative when we are not pressured and feeling stress.

So much for the time-honored college notion that the best term papers are written the night before they're due!

The cycle runs like this: 1) At low arousal, we are not very effective in action tasks but very good at thinking creatively.

2) As arousal increases, we become more effective in action and less effective in creative thinking.

3) As arousal becomes very high, efficiency in both action and thinking drops off again. This is probably the "panic" stage.

(Based on information from Dr. Archibald D. Hart's "Adrenalin and Stress")

Our usual mode of coping with stress is to treat the symptoms. We take painkillers for the headaches and muscle pains, and if we have progressed to more serious reactions such as migraines or anxiety attacks, doctors may prescribe anti-anxiety medicines, tranquilizers or strong painkillers.

Meanwhile, the stress goes on, we continue to be affected by it, but by masking the symptoms, we can ignore what it is doing to us. And we won't even think about how all those adrenalin bursts and mental aggravations will affect us in the long run.

Does it have to be this way? Must we go on either submitting to stress or trying to hide our reactions to it with medicines? Not necessarily.

The answer to dealing with stress may lie as close as the Howard County Library. Several self-help books on stress and its effects on health are available, including the books by Seliger and Hart. Others include "Curing Fatigue" by David S. Bell, M.D. and "You Mean I Don't Have to Feel this Way?" by Colette Dowling.

Seliger not only offers advice on dealing with stress but also offers lots of practical reminders about eating right, getting enough sleep, watching one's posture and all that other good stuff Mom tried to drill into us (that in retrospect, we REALLY should've listened to).

Several exercises to relieve muscle tension are described, including "I-hate-to-exercise" mini-workouts and stretches that can be done while standing at the copy machine, talking on the phone, or even watching TV.

Hart's book includes breathing and stretching techniques for relaxation and even a way to practice hand warming, a biofeedback technique sometimes taught to migraine sufferers. According to Hart, cold hands, especially if one hand is always colder than the other, indicate a body under stress. Hand warming brings blood back into the cold hands and away from tensed muscles preparing for fight or flight.

Some people might be tempted to dismiss these kinds of books as psychobabble, but scientific and medical evidence is there, and much of what is in the books is practical advice. It takes more commitment than just swallowing a pill, but the results may be more helpful in the long run.

For those who are too fatigued or busy to even stop by the library, here's some more of that practical advice: try walking around the block or listening to some peaceful music. Walking helps work off adrenalin as well as extra calories, and peaceful music helps clear one's mind. (Resist the urge to have chips and a beer while kicking back to the music, however.)

It's never too late to start changing the way we react to stress. Lounging in a warm bath reading a book that teaches us how to recognize stress, make it work for us and not fall victim to it is a healing start.

It may reduce the need for doctors' bills and pills later—two stresses we can all do without.

...help more than these?

Top left: These self-help books on stress and fatigue are available at the Howard County Library and may be a better alternative than relying on medications. Bottom left: Every single medical condition these pills treat can be, and probably was, caused by stress.

Vacation? Restful? Don't make me laugh

Vacation. An eight-letter word Webster's dictionary describes as a "period of rest away from work, study, etc."

Barbara Morrison
Staff Writer

Wait a minute - did it say work? Get real. We all know vacations take a ton of work to get ready for, and we all need at least an extra day to rest and recover from vacation once we have returned before we go back to our beloved place of employment.

And I guess, as far as vacations go, mine was no different.

I took a total of seven days off to take a four-day trip to Arizona.

My parents live there and I was really excited. My two boys weren't thrilled about going because they had been invited to a Fourth of July party at one of their friends' houses.

They were sure this was to be the bash of the century and, in their eyes, my taking them to see grandparents was almost bordering on child neglect and abuse.

We arrived safely in Arizona after an 11-hour drive, ready to pack the next two days to their fullest. (My husband drove the whole way and loves these trips almost as much as the boys.)

One of the planned agenda items was a trip to Mexico to go shopping with my kid sister and her family. My kid sister is even bossier than I am and if Cindy sets her mind to something, we ALL obey (even Mom and Dad).

Anyway, to set the stage for the great Mexican Shopping Adventure, you have to realize my sister also has a sentimental streak in her. Not only does she LOVE to shop, she also loves family.

To her, family consists of anyone ever related in any way or even just a close friend. So, Cindy planned for this to be a FAMILY trip. No one, even remotely connected, was to be excluded.

Thus, the entourage, convoy, or whatever you want to call us, consisted of four able-bodied adults (even though two were verbally against the trip from the start - they were married to the sisters), one absent-minded grandmother, four wild things under the age of five, an

Mis even bossier than I am, and if Cindy sets her mind to something, we ALL obey (even Mom and Dad).

8-year old bargainer (my daughter), two prepubescent boys with an attitude (my sons), and a 13-year-old teenage boy who wore his overall jeans sagging somewhere near his knees and had his hat on backwards. While the teenager wasn't blood-related, Cindy had him justified somehow.

Anyway, the trip was VERY long and we all came back with hot, tired feet, carrying sleeping children for more than half the walk - something my husband is still reminding me of, that and the chocolate cookies they got all over the back of his new van.

We spent a lot of money and a lot of time. My daughter got the hang of bargaining right from the start.

She watched a short time while I would buy candy from the young children or drop money in their cups. She asked me why, and I was able to give her the classic mother's lesson in charity.

Somewhere, though she also picked up a lesson in business. When she finally found the ceramic pig bank of her dreams, I offered to try to get it for her, positive I could negotiate a price better than she could. She told me no, she knew what to do.

"Besides, Mom," she asked, "Don't you give in quicker to kids?" She had a point.

So, I stood back and watched. She was, indeed, a veteran. She looked up at the man and asked him how much the piggy bank cost.

"Five dollars," he replied. "Cheaper than K-Mart."

"Would you take four?" she asked.

"Sure," he replied and started to wrap up the pig.

"Then, I'll give you three," she said as she handed him two one-dollar bills.

She walked out with the pig and we all walked out in awe. I guess it'll be one of those family memories we'll still reminisce about years from now.

Rearrange priorities to find quality time

By MICHAEL KELSEY
Howard Co. Extension Agent

There are just not enough hours in a day! If only I had more time, I could have done a better job! I didn't have time to study for my history test; babysit my little sister, and finish all my household chores the same weekend of my grandparents anniversary party.

How many times have we heard or even used excuses like these? Are they legitimate reasons or irresponsible alibis?

Time management is a skill that few people can effectively master. Not one agenda or schedule of events is ever planned with a crisis but they all seem to include one. The popular saying of "We don't plan to fill, we simply fail to plan" is true in every sense of the word.

Seminars and workshops of all kinds can be attended to learn the basics of effective time management. Experts have spent many years studying the fundamentals and complexities of learning to manage our time. They have developed models, plans, flow charts, diagrams and other teaching tools to lead people to the land of "free time."

But why all the hustle and bustle? What's the big deal about time management? Most employees with high stress careers will rate time management as one of the most important skills in their job.

Being able to get the job done and still have time for family and personal development is a tricky and often impossible task. Optimum production at the work place and family togetherness often clash with scary results.

Is it so hard to do an outstanding job at work and still have quality time to spend with your family or by yourself? Yes, according to many people. Even after learning excellent time management skills, they still don't have enough time for everything.

Recently, I saw an article that addressed this problem in our society. Taken from Stephen Covey's book entitled "First Things First," the article suggests that the answer to an effective balance lies not with the clock but with the compass. Simply, one cannot achieve balance by doing things more efficiently, but by focusing on doing the important things.

Covey states: "Traditional time management suggests that by doing things more efficiently you'll eventually gain control of your life, and that increased control will bring the peace and fulfillment you're looking for."

Whether you agree or disagree with the above statement is your opinion. However, it is easily proven that workers who first do the things most important to themselves are far more happy in the work place than those who are constantly doing things more important to others.

Time management is not simple to learn nor is it easy to maintain. However, once we realize that time management in relation to job satisfaction does not depend on when (clock) but rather where (compass), we will then lessen the stress of the work and home environment. It is a simple question of priorities.

Two states, one city: Texarkana

In Texarkana, you can have your picture made while standing in two states. People who live there call it Texarkana, USA. To them, it doesn't matter whether they reside in Arkansas or Texas.

Texarkana, Texas is dry. Texarkana, Arkansas is wet and enjoys a monopoly on liquor sales. Texans can vote their conscience and still buy their booze.

Texarkana's state line post office sits on two states. Half the building is in Texas, the other half in Arkansas. Pink granite from Texas was used for the base of the building. Limestone from Arkansas was used for the walls. There is a zip code for Texarkana, Texas and one for Texarkana, Arkansas.

Texarkana was named by a surveyor who thought he was near the junction of three states (Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana) and nailed a crude sign on a tree. The sign carried the work Tex-Ark-Ana.

The two Texarkanas are sometimes called the "twin cities." In fact, a Texarkana radio station has KWTN as call letters. The motto of Texarkana is "Twice As Nice."

Population of the city is 46,000. The figure includes 31,000 Texans and 23,000 Arkansas residents. I'm not sure what you call people who live in Arkansas: Arkansawyers? Arkansans? I should have asked.

Joplin has a mural in his honor painted on the side of a building. The Perot theater, which presents a world class schedule of plays, dance and music, was funded in part by Ross.

A house in town, owned by the museum, is called the Ace of Clubs. If you look down on the house from above, it is in the shape of the Ace of Clubs playing card. Legend says the original owner of the house, James Draughon, built it with funds he won in a poker game. His winning card was the Ace of Clubs.

An old federal building has been restored to house the Texarkana Regional Arts Center, where performances, lectures, films and workshops take place.

The high opportunity factor in Texarkana is evidence by three brothers who have launched a charter bus enterprise known as Texarkana Shuttle. They started out with 2 small buses last year and have already begun to use full size buses. They take passengers to Dallas sporting events or to casinos in Shreveport and Bossier City.

Texarkana is one of those places that will surprise you.

This just drives me crazy. Have I been wrong for 70 years? — Hazel E.

Lately, of course, there has been a lot of debate about whether man includes woman, but if you've been brooding over this for 70 years, it doesn't apply. On the other hand, if you prefer to speak of dogs as woman's best friend, no one is likely to stop you.

SIR: My newspaper told me of a lady who "wore a hat that complimented her outfit." Perhaps you should explain the difference between "compliment" and "complement." — Sue L.

A: Good idea. As you clearly know, to compliment means to express esteem or admiration, while to complement means to complete, as in the case of a hat that complements an outfit. People seldom compliment outfits that haven't been complemented one way or another.

SIR: Can you give vim without vigor? — Pat S.

A: That depends on what you mean. If you're asking whether you can be full of one without the other, no. They're synonymous, or practically so. But if you're asking whether you can use one word without using the other, the answer is yes. In short, you can't have vim without vigor, but you can have "vim" without "vigor."

VA patients enjoy rodeo, clowns

CANCER SUPPORT GROUP TO MEET AT VAMC

Beginning July 5, the Cancer Support Group began meeting the first Tuesday of each month in Room 213 at the Big Spring VA Medical Center, 300 Veterans Blvd. The group will meet from noon until 1 p.m. and again that same evening from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. The group is designed to help patients, their families, and friends to better understand and live with cancer. The meetings provide the opportunity for individuals to share common experiences, problems, and solutions in a supportive atmosphere.

PATIENTS ENJOY RODEO STARS

When it comes to fun and excitement, "older kids" enjoy the rodeo as much as the "younger kids." There was no exception when several of the rodeo stars visited the patients and staff at the medical center on Friday, June 24.

Entertainment and autographs were provided by clowns and bull riders Quail Dobbs, Rick Chapman, and Jimmy Anderson.

Providing enjoyment to all were trick and Roman riders Vickie Tyer, Vicki Taylor, and Linda Scholtz.

Local celebrity, Jody Nix, also entertained the group with his musical prowess.

QUESTIONS OFTEN ASKED

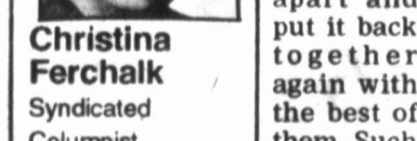

Q - I am submitting an application to the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) for a headstone to mark my father's grave in our family plot. Do I need to include any documents regarding his service in the Army?

A - Any official document that verifies your father's honorable service in the armed forces should be submitted along with the application to assist in processing. Please send only copies of documents. Department of Defense Form 214, Certificate of Release or Discharge from Active Duty, is the document most commonly used and accepted for this purpose.

Mechanical challenges often fun

As a general rule, women panic at the thought of messing with a car engine.

Naturally, there are exceptions to this rule. There are women out there who can take a car's engine apart and put it back together again with the best of them. Such women are few and far between. If you should come across one it would be in your best interest to become her best buddy and lifelong pal. Cook for her, hem her slacks, do her laundry, baby-sit her rug-rat. Do whatever it takes to get on her good side, because these women are invaluable.

I had such a friend in my youth. When I'd jump in my 1960 snow white Chevy Impala convertible, I'd make sure my buddy Gwenny was ridin' shotgun. Gwenny was a lot of fun and one heck of a mechanic. There wasn't a car motor ever built that intimidated her.

Eventually Gwenny got married and moved away. That was over a quarter of a century ago and I still miss that girl.

I never found another female friend who knows any more about car motors than I do, and I don't know diddly. I tried to educate myself about vehicle maintenance and repair. I really did, but for some reason I couldn't retain the information.

For instance, I know that motor oil is filled, checked, and drained in three different places, but be darned if I can remember where those places are.

Ordinarily I enjoy a mechanical challenge. If my hand mixer won't work I get a bang out of taking it apart with my handy dandy screwdriver assortment. (I love screwdrivers. With the exception of duct tape, screwdrivers are the most versatile piece of equipment ever invented.)

Just today a friend and I helped a neighbor jump start her car. No men were involved. We were successful ... sort of. The car never started but we connected the cables correctly and nobody got hurt.

New lines fulfillment of Cap Rock's vision

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

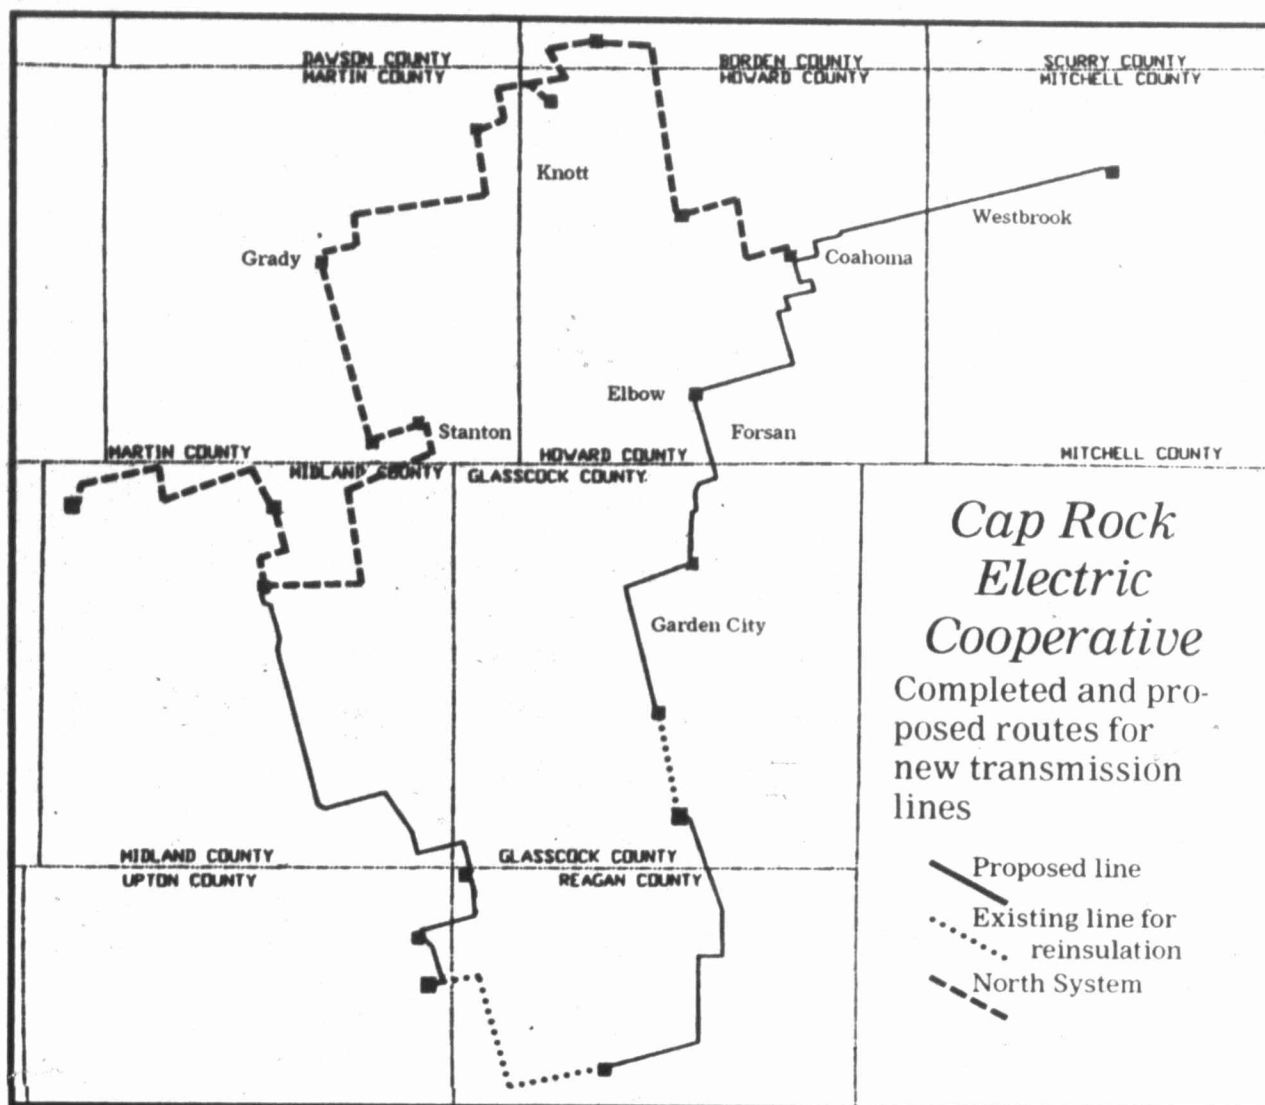

Cap Rock vice president and chief operation officer Ulen North believes the company's proposed new electric transmission system is the fulfillment of a vision.

"When I came to work for Cap Rock in 1969," North said, "there was a map on my wall that showed a proposed transmission system for the future. It was this system. Utilities have very long-range planning cycles and this is just the finalization of dreaming and planning that began over 20 years ago."

Pointing out the number of meters served by Cap Rock has tripled during the last 20 years, North said the expansion of the new system is right on time and will carry the utility several decades into the future.

Though much of the growth has come from adding oil wells and irrigation wells, many of the meters have come from residential connections and Cap Rock had reached a point, according to North, where it was necessary to expand its system in order to compete for residential business. Not only does residential business add to the bottom line, but it is a customer sector that adds stability to the utility's load since residential power use does not tend to vary as widely as industrial use, he added.

North pointed out Cap Rock competes with TU Electric in 65 percent of its territory and said, "It's like being in a retail business against Wal-Mart and having to buy all of your goods wholesale from Wal-Mart. It's tough, but we're doing it by being more efficient."

The transmission loop, a common configuration in the utility industry, greatly increases reliability for customers because power lost on one side of the loop can be quickly restored via the other side. North said the 138,000 volt system will have only one short section of line near Coahoma that will have only one source for power.

The system, when completed, will serve some 12,000 customers in Andrews, Howard, Dawson, Boren, Fisher, Ector, Glasscock, Irion, Martin, Midland, Mitchell, Nolan, Reagan, Scurry, Sterling, Tom Green and Upton counties.

According to Cap Rock Administrative Assistant Jimmy Chandler a large portion of the customers on the system are oil companies, estimating that about 6,000 of Cap Rock's 7,106 commercial accounts are oil wells.

Chandler said, "Oil wells account for about 65 percent of Cap Rock revenue," noting that the system runs right through giant Sprayberry Field and sev-

Construction waiting on PUC approval

By CARLTON JOHNSON

Cap Rock Electric is awaiting state certification of the second phase of a new West Texas electric transmission system scheduled for construction later this summer.

According to Cap Rock officials, this new system will bring lower-priced electricity and increased reliability to electric consumers.

The Stanton-based company said the $32.8 million, two-phase project is also expected to add about 400 construction jobs to the local economy for a period of six months.

On Monday, a hearing examiner for the Texas Public Utility Commission (TPUC) will listen to testimony in Austin concerning whether the line should receive a Certificate of Convenience and Necessity, required for construction. PUC staff have recommended approval of the certificate.

Upon completion, the new transmission system will consist of a giant 232-mile loop covering much of the Permian Basin, with two interchanges at either end to receive power from Amarillo-based Southwestern Public Service Co. The southern interchange,

Important cotton programs coming

The heat is still tough on most cotton crops across the county. Some reports of heavy losses occurring from last week's heat wave and accompanying high winds continue to come in. Continued dry weather has further damaged other crops. Some farmers cautiously comment that their crops are holding on pretty well but a rain is felt imminent for a successful crop to occur this year.

Don Richardson
County Agent

Howard County still leads the area in boll weevil counts from a 21 county area, according to the Plains Cotton Growers Inc. 1994 Texas High Plains Boll Weevil Diapause Control Program. Last week's report from that office indicated local traps were averaging 34.49 weevils per trap for a total of 1960 weevils. Only Motley County had a higher per trap count than Howard, but the total count was higher locally.

Two very important cotton producer meetings are coming up next week to assist local growers with common interest problems.

One concerns the Workers Protection Standard, a newly passed act that requires employees of farmers to acquaint employees of the facts relating to this act. To assist local producers with this situation, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service's offices in Howard and Martin counties have arranged a special program for such employees on Tuesday, July 12, 1994, at 9:00 a.m. in the Knott Community Fire Station.

Dr. Doug Stevenson, Extension Entomologist from College Station, will conduct this program in the Spanish language. In addition to the WPS information, which meets requirements of notification for employers, a special session on training employees in cotton insect scouting will be provided. Extension agent in Entomology for Martin and Midland counties, Doug Paxton, and Don Richardson and Michael Kelsey, local extension agents, will be on hand to assist with the program.

On Wednesday beginning at 10 a.m. in the Dora Roberts Fair Building in Big Spring, a special cotton insect up-date program will be sponsored once again by the Texas Agricultural Extension county offices in Martin and Howard counties.

Dr. Charles Allen, Extension entomologist in Fort Stockton, will be on hand to give us this program. A special update on the boll weevil situation will be discussed. Producers attending this meeting will have an opportunity to obtain two hours credits in CEU's in Pest Management.

Holland Cottonseed Company will host this meeting with refreshments. A meeting of the Howard County Cotton Growers Association will also be at this time on Wednesday.

Cool businesses boom as temperatures rise

AUSTIN (AP) — While many Texans sweltered on another 100-degree day Wednesday, some folks thought the heat wave was pretty cool.

Business was booming from ceiling fan stores to tanning salons, where customers wanted that sunbaked look without the sweat.

"People don't want to bake out there in 100-degree weather. They'd rather work on their tan inside," said Daniel Gentry, a salesman at Austin's Tan Club.

"I'd never last an hour in the heat we've had lately. At the tanning salon, you're in an air-conditioned room. It's nothing like being in the sun," said tanner Laura Childers.

The National Weather Service said triple-digit temperatures could be expected around Texas for several days. In Austin, where the high hit 102 on Tuesday, unseasonably high temperatures of 100 to 103 were forecast into the July Fourth weekend.

Mike Clark, warehouse manager for Texas Ceiling Fans in Austin, said folks who couldn't find a cool breeze outside are anxious to create one indoors.

"Everybody wants a ceiling fan, and it's really doing us a good business," he said.

The story was the same at other cool businesses.

"It's totally nuts here. Customers are desperate; they'll do anything for ice," said Suzy Barbee, owner of a business called Flash Cube Ice, which has been swamped with calls from restaurants and clubs for emergency ice deliveries. Shopping malls saw extra crowds searching for some chilled air.

"People are getting out of the heat and enjoying our air conditioning," said John DiCiccio, general manager of Austin's Barton Creek Square mall.

Two old favorites also were popular — ice cream and swimming holes.

"We're loving this. It's great for business," said Tim Kelly, operations manager for Amy's Ice Cream stores.

"This is a guaranteed cool place. We're always 68 degrees, so people know they can come and cool off," added Benjamin Lyons, assistant manager of Barton Springs Pool.

Not everyone could take advantage of such a guarantee.

In Odessa, mall carrier Larry Marruffo said he cools off while walking his 5- to 10-mile route by asking his customers if he can use their water hose.

"They're really usually very nice about it," Marruffo said. "I think they're sympathetic to us."

Mike Lewis, a valet parking attendant at Houston's Galleria, has to stand in a covered tent for five-hour shifts, waiting for cars to pull into the lot. No fan. No air conditioning. Just something cool to drink.

"You throw out some water on the ground, you'll see steam coming up," he said.

"I'm sweating now, but in August, I'll be like a swimming pool," he said.

Canola: the Cinderella crop

Increased demand for canola has spiked prices and motivated buyers and sellers to dodge regulatory laws. A look at the sought-after seed.

Canada began growing rapeseed commercially during World War II, when it was discovered to be an effective marine lubricant. The edible variety was developed during the 1950s; its name is an acronym for CANada Oil Low Acid.

Canola is a member of the Brassica family, which includes mustard, broccoli and radishes.

U.S. farmers produced 126,225 tons of canola, a 46 percent increase over 1992, on 187,000 acres. Industry experts estimate that canola acreage could reach 3 to 5 million by 1995.

Canada produced 5.9 million tons of canola in 1993 on 10.3 million acres. It was second only to wheat in acreage in value.

It is an edible variety of the rapeseed. Its flowers produce a string bean-like pod containing about 30 small seeds. Oil extraction is about 40 percent.

It is lower in saturated fat than all other vegetable oils, roughly 6 percent compared to 13 percent for corn oil. Canola also is high in monosaturated fat, which helps the body eliminate fatty deposits.

Businesses showed their patriotism July 4; get involved in cleaning the city

And the rockets red glare, the bombs bursting in air...

What an inspiring time watching the fireworks from the amphitheater and listening to patriotic music from a community choir that got together just for the occasion. And the evening was comfortable and our firefighters did a super job of watching over and controlling the fire danger.

The ROTARY CLUB lined Gregg Street with flags, and CENTURY 21 and COLDWELL BANKER put them out over a wide portion of the residential area. And of course the HIGHLAND SOUTH parade was just terrific. It was the Fourth of July at its best! Congratulations to TAMMY WATT, CAROLYN CAWTHON, and DAVE WRINKLE on a fine production.

But the fireworks are just a spectacular reminder of what the holiday means. To me a much stronger reminder was found at the God & Country Concert at First Baptist Church. They, too, did a wonderful job with choir and orchestra and kept a lump in my throat for over an hour.

These were quiet men and women, and most gave little more than "name, rank and serial number," but the references to where they had served spoke volumes. ERNIE BOYD, from Coahoma, spoke for the group, and said that they were proud to have had the chance to serve; were thankful for victory, but most of all were grateful to God that they had been allowed to be alive to come home at the end.

We owe these people and those who served with them and before them so much. We owe them our freedom.

But now we hear a new call to arms. In a letter to the editor recently, POLLY ST. CLAIR called us to duty once more, this time for our community instead of our nation. This time the casualties are not measured in lives, but in lost pride, and lost jobs and in lost economic opportunities.

She pointed out that Big Spring has the potential of being the most beautiful and prosperous town in West Texas.

But it needs a facelift. There are things that the City, County, Chamber and other entities can do and are doing, but it is not the solution to the problem. We need our veterans to answer the call once more. But more than that, we need a new generation to answer the call to duty.

Joining the battle is simple. Just take steps to clean up and beautify your home and place of business. And don't fuss because something nearby hasn't been taken care of by "them" whoever "they" may be. Expand your boundaries a little. Pride is contagious!

Just take an action and call us to let us know that you have done it, and you will be enlisted in the corps. If enough people quietly do their part, the problem will be solved, and will stay solved, as community pride in the results will keep it that way.

BILLIE McLAUGHLIN was one of the first to answer the call as she responded to Polly's letter in another letter to the editor. But it takes more than words. The "Proud Citizen's Committee" is going on the offensive, and the Chamber has signed up for a hitch, as an organization, and via a bunch of individuals pledges. The Washington Blvd. people have signed on as a group, and MERIDIAN OIL has signed on to be the point people out their way.

How about you? Will you do your duty?

Cap Rock President and CEO David Pruitt said, "We are building the system to improve reliability and to provide for future growth. But we are also building it to bring cheaper electricity into the market."

According to a PUC report, SPS power rates are among the lowest in the state. Cap Rock is An 88-mile section of the 232-mile loop, the northern part, was finished in February of this year.

The Certificate of Convenience and Necessity Cap Rock is seeking from the PUC would be for the southern half of the loop.

Engineering Manager Mark Sullivan said, "We are hoping to obtain certification soon, so that we can let contracts and be through with the southern portion of the system by February 1, 1995.

According to North, contractors are already lined up and each will be assigned a portion of the project based on their capability. "There will be more than 400 workers engaged in the project once we get underway, and they will be spending dollars throughout West Texas," he said.

currently buying most of its power from TU Electric.

Wholesale electricity bought from SPS and distributed by Cap Rock Electric, according to Pruitt, in the short term may result in only slightly lower, or simply stabilize rates for Cap Rock customers because most of the cost difference will be applied to the cost of building the transmission system.

The long term outlook, however, is much better because the new system is predicted to reduce increases in the projected cost of electricity by 50 percent by the year 2013.

Pruitt said, "Based on historical pricing patterns, we looked ahead 20 years to see what we could expect to be paying TU Electric versus what we would be paying SPS, and we showed a 50 percent reduction in the rate of increase with SPS."

The new transmission system will also allow Cap Rock to buy power from other sources as well. "We can go shopping for power at the lowest price," Pruitt said.

Incumbent directors re-elected

Two incumbent directors of Cap Rock Electric were re-elected to their posts on the board at the co-operative's annual membership meeting July 7.

Rusty Jones, board chairman from the Midland area, and Jerry Swindell, director from the co-op's Hunt-Collin Division in the Celeste area, were elected by acclamation.

The meeting agenda included a showing of a video featuring Texas' 1993 Co-operator of the Year, Cap Rock board Secretary-Treasurer Alfred Schwartz, and Texas Rural Heroes for 1993, Cap Rock Service Linemen James Mashburn and Donnie Thompson. Schwartz was honored by the Texas Agricultural Cooperative Council, while the linemen received their award for heroism from the Texas Farm Bureau.

David Pruitt, Cap Rock's president/CEO, termed the meeting "a huge success."

Pruitt said over 50 percent of the co-operative membership was represented either in person at the meeting or by proxy. Pruitt said "We feel the incumbent board members being elected without opposition illustrates approval of the current direction and operation of the company. We feel it is a vote of confidence."

The cooperative has been conducting district director nominating meetings for the past several years. These meetings offer opportunity for more participation by the membership than did the committee-nomination process used in the past.

The 55th annual meeting was attended by approximately 1,800 customers of Cap Rock and guests.

Ferrell's Chimney & Air Duct Cleaning

Ferrell's Chimney and Air Duct Cleaning is a locally owned and operated company serving the West Texas area for seven years. Owners Rodney and Toni Ferrell are life long residents of Big Spring. If you suffer from allergies or other respiratory problems, or have dust problems in your home or office, we can help you by cleaning your air duct system of all pollen, mold, mold spores, animal dander, bacteria, and other indoor pollutants. The cleanliness of your air duct system is not something many people think about; however, we have removed as much as 30 pounds of dirt and debris from just one air duct system.

Ferrell's is also offering for sale the "Allergy Filter". This is an electrostatic air filter that gives a peak arrestance (filtration) of 94.7% as opposed to approximately 13% with the ordinary disposable filters. The Allergy Filter carries a lifetime warranty and a 90 day money-back guarantee. Ferrell's manager, Barry Dunnam, recommends cleaning the system in conjunction with installing the Allergy Filter. "We have installed filters without cleaning the duct work but I would be very hesitant to clean the ducts and not install our filter. We live in a "dust bowl" and without this increased filtration the duct work could soon be contaminated again. We truly have an amazing process and filtration system specifically designed to help rid your home of dust and respiratory contaminants."

We also offer a filter service in which we will service your Allergy Filter for your home or office at a very low monthly fee.

The duct cleaning, as offered by Ferrell's, is a unique process insuring 100% of your duct system is not only cleaned, but sanitized and, if needed, sealed (or refinished). Utilizing a high volume vacuum in conjunction with brushes and high pressure air, the duct work is cleaned. The system is then purged with a solution called oxine which kills all bacteria, fungus, molds and other organisms that plague sufferers of respiratory problems.

Everyone seems to know sailor in 'Life' magazine WWII picture

DEAR READERS: An update on that now-famous picture that appeared in Life magazine. It showed an unidentified sailor impulsively kissing a nurse in Times Square on V-J Day, marking the end of our war with Japan. Joseph G. Chrenko of Palm Desert, Calif., sent a clipping of that picture taken from an out-of-print publication titled "Memories."

The following caption appeared beside it: "August 14, 1945: When nurse Edith Shain, 27, heard on the radio at New York's Doctors' Hospital that World War II was over, she jumped on the subway to Times Square. No sooner had she gotten there than 'someone grabbed me and kissed me. He held me for a long, long time. It was a lovely kiss,' she remembers. 'I really enjoyed it. The sailor was bubbling over, he was so happy.'"

Edith Shain (now Cullens) has three grown sons. She's retired and lives in California, and says she's still in touch with Alfred Eisenstaedt, the photographer who made her briefly famous. (He is now 95 and still at Life magazine.) "He's a darling man," she says. "That photo has enriched my life. I got to come back to New York; I got to be a celebrity for a few minutes. I think it's fantastic."

I have been deluged with letters from readers who claim either to be the sailor in that picture, or know who he was. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You asked if anybody knew the name of the sailor who was photographed on V-J Day kissing a nurse in her white uniform and cap. The photographer was Alfred Eisenstaedt. The sailor was Bill Swicegood. His cousin, Beatrice Shipp Nunn, was a friend of mine in Lafayette, Ga. She told me about this many years ago, and showed me the copy of Life magazine in which it appeared. — ELIZABETH O'NEAL DWINDELL

DEAR ABBY: I was told that the sailor pictured in Life magazine on V-J Day in 1945 was Walker Irving of Portland, Maine. He telephoned his mother to tell her that his picture had been taken in Times Square, and it would soon appear in Life magazine. — A NEIGHBOR OF THE IRVINGS

DEAR ABBY: In response to the letter concerning the sailor kissing the nurse on V-J Day: I was that sailor!

I was stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yard. While celebrating V-J Day in Times Square, I noticed a photographer headed my way. I knew that in order to be photographed, I had to do something dramatic, so I grabbed a nurse, bent her over and kissed her. The photographer said, "This is going to be a great picture, which will be published!" He took our names, and we departed, going our separate ways.

Years later, after it was published in Life, I wrote to Alfred Eisenstaedt, telling him I knew the identity of the sailor. I received a letter in return saying that others had made the same claim. — THEODORE NICHOLAS PHAKOS

DEAR ABBY: The name of the sailor kissing the nurse is George Medinosa. His home was Providence, R.I. I don't have the source of this information, but I wrote his name down in a book I have kept all these years. — PAUL DOUGLAS, PLANTATION, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: The unknown kisser in that famous Life magazine picture was Seaman James Medlin of the U.S.S. Enterprise. I was dating him at the time.

Jimmy is now deceased, but he has a son living in Dallas. I hope this is helpful. — HELEN RUSSELL, BALCH SPRINGS, TEXAS

EXECUTIVE SALES

Are you a sincere person? Are you a hard worker & a willing learner? Are you enthusiastic, aggressive, ambitious & goal-oriented? ARE YOU ABLE TO TRAVEL OVERNIGHT 3-4 nights per week? Would you like to earn a minimum of $30,000 to $35,000 per year?

If you answer "yes" to these questions, you may be the person we're looking for and we may have the opportunity you're seeking. We're a 54-yr-old company with a unique business service. The service we sell helps the civic-minded business person make friends & new customers. If selected, you'll participate in intensive 30-day training program. You'll call on business owners & executives in cities of 4,000-20,000 population offering them a business service. Nationwide, 35% of our customers are banks, auto dealers, funeral homes, & insurance agencies. The responses & results the business people realize from buying our service are so great that a very high percentage of our accounts renew year after year.

Our employees operate on commission basis with a draw against commission & most of your expenses are paid while you are training. Excellent company benefits include incentive programs, achievement awards & free life insurance. We also offer hospital & major medical w/retirement. Average commission for fiscal year 1992-93 earned was $41,881.28. Our representatives are employees, not independent contractors.

Business background advertising specialty sales or direct sales experience would be very helpful, but not necessary. As part of our work involves calling on ministers, a strong church background is helpful, but not necessary. This is creative one-call close selling. If you're the type of person who would not sacrifice values for personal gain but are motivated by the potential for high earnings and the satisfaction that comes from doing something worthwhile for your fellow man we invite you to call.
