Reading good for local students

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Big Spring students, on the whole, scored higher than the state average in the reading portion of the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills test.

But, the students, in grades three through 10th who took the TAAS in the spring, scored slightly lower than the state average in mathematics.

Big Spring Independent School District Board of Trustees members were given a report of the 1994 Texas Assessment of Academic Skills tests at a recent meeting.

"Math is an area for concern for us. This is the first time that the 10th graders took this test and although they didn't do as well, you have to remember that some of the material on the TAAS hadn't been taught by test time. The tests were given in October and March and that wasn't enough time for everything to be covered," explained Assistant Superintendent Murray Murphy.

"There was geometry on the test for the 10th graders but we don't offer that course until 11th

Police end standoff peacefully

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A man threatening to kill himself surrendered to police Friday without incident following a six-hour standoff.

The Big Spring Police Department's SORT (Special Operations Response Team) team and negotiators were called to 110 1/2 East 11th Place shortly before 9:30 p.m. after receiving a 911 emergency call from a 32-year-old white male stating he had a gun and was threatening to kill himself, according to reports.

"The on duty patrol supervisor was notified of the call, isolated the problem and established a perimeter. He then contacted the SORT commander. The SORT team is responsible for executing a safe and effective detention of the man with the 9 mm handgun," explained Sgt. Scott Griffin.

Griffin said the 9 mm weapon has a powerful round and those neighbors who could have been in immediate danger were notified of the situation, most of them leaving voluntarily.

The man was taken to Big Spring State Hospital after the six-hour standoff for evaluation.

Officers discovered the man had at one time been an outpatient at the state hospital. Because of this, the mental health crisis intervention officers were called to the scene and "were at our command post to provide us with input and assessment of the man's mental state and well-being," said Griffin.

"This situation would not have been successful without the help and assistance of three entities. The Police Department wants to recognize and thank the mental health officers, AMT workers for being on stand by at the scene and especially the Howard County Sheriff's Department.

"Every police officer that was on duty Friday night was tied up at the scene as well as seven or eight off-duty officers. We contacted the Sheriff's Department to see if they could help us out and they instantly agreed to cover the city for us. The deputies handled all of the police calls for us during the six hour period. That was a real benefit to us and we want to thank them," added Griffin.

New BSSH director of nursing brings wealth of experience

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Leslie Yarbrough, M.S.N., R.N.C., was appointed director of Nursing Services for the Big Spring State Hospital, bringing to the position a wide-array of clinical and administrative experience.

Yarbrough, appointed July 8, sees himself as coming from a programming director's background, working in social work, psychology and with several physicians, saying past experience has allowed him to see what works in the profession and what doesn't.

"From previous experience, I think I can better direct the nursing department from the aspect of how nurses handle patients and the environment they're working in," Yarbrough said.

"I have a special interest in helping nurses be more aware of customer satisfaction. Not just patients, but anyone they may come into contact with."

One aspect of nursing Yarbrough wants to see more of from his nurses is in the area of psycho-social treatment. He said traditionally there is more interest in the biological method of treating patients or treating the illness.

Psycho-social treatment,

I have a special interest in helping nurses be more aware of customer satisfaction. Not just patients, but anyone they may come into contact with.

Leslie Yarbrough

according to Yarbrough, is treatment of the whole person.

Yarbrough said the difference is the biological method of treatment is like someone saying "Catch me a fish and I'll eat it," and the psycho-social method of treatment is like having someone say "Show me how to fish and I'll feed myself."

It's like teaching survival skills, according to Yarbrough.

"Twenty years ago," Yarbrough said, "someone could enter the hospital and spend the rest of their lives here, but because of reform and other programs, we're going to have to learn to identify and treat people quicker, with dwindling resources, while maintaining quality."

Yarbrough said he is committed to the Big Spring community and to the hospital and would like to see the partnership continue to develop. "People have commented that we have one of the finest state hospitals in the country and I would like to maintain that image," he said.

Nurses will play a big role, according to Yarbrough, in health care reform, despite what each political party might propose because nurses are on the front lines and will have to provide guidance for policy makers.

There probably won't be any additional money for new programs, according to Yarbrough, and the goal, now, will be to efficiently use the resources available.

In anticipation of health care reform, some hospitals in larger areas are experiencing layoffs in the nursing field and in a rural area like Big Spring, Yarbrough says that won't be the problem.

"The problem in an area like this is that we're running out of qualified people (in our community) to work in this field," he

Jewel Tubbs in critical condition

By BARBARA MORRISON

Long time area resident Jewel Tubbs remains in very critical condition today at Lubbock Methodist Hospital following a long time battle with cancer.

TUBBS

According to daughter Pat Eubanks, physicians have given Jewel "only a matter of days" to live.

"The outpour of love and thoughtfulness from the community is amazing," said Eubanks. "We want everyone to know how thankful we are and that we are with her in her last days."

Jewel and Horace Tubbs are long-time farmers, ranchers and land developers, and were responsible for development of the area now known as "Tubbs Addition."

"She was the most beautiful woman to ever be born," said a tearful Horace when expressing his gratitude to the community. "I'm going to miss her so much."

"The bottom line is that 97.5 percent passed the TAA'S in order to graduate this year. That is better than the state average. The job is being done by the teachers to see that students are meeting the requirements and learning the elements," continued Murphy.

According to the report, 77 percent of all third grade students in Texas passed the reading portion of the test while 62 percent passed the math section. In fourth grade, 65.5 percent of the students passed reading and 52.6 percent mastered the math skills across the state. In the reading portion for fifth grade, 77 percent passed and 64.6 percent passed in math.

In the Big Spring school district, 76.2 of the third graders passed reading and 53.6 passed math. In fourth grade, 69 percent passed in reading and 51.7 passed in math. In fifth grade, 77.6 percent in reading and 64.6 passed in math.

Here is a list of the top two elementary schools who had the most number of students passing in reading and math:

• Third grade - Kentwood had 92.3 percent pass in reading and Bauer had 86.5 percent. In math, Kentwood had an 84.6 passing average with 75 percent of those at Bauer passing the math skills.

• Fourth grade - Moss Elementary had 100 percent of their students pass reading and Kentwood had 88.2 percent. In the math portion, 84.8 percent of Moss students and 78.8 Kentwood students passed.

Reform will effect all areas of health care, including mental health, and the barriers, according to Yarbrough, who has worked with nurses in Canada and England where there are socialized health programs, will be trying to handle the volumes of patients who have never been able to afford health care as well as the resistance to be encountered from people who feel like they're being deprived of their choice to choose a doctor, a hospital or some particular service.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Third crash victim found

GALVESTON (AP) — The body of a third helicopter crash victim has been found in the Gulf of Mexico.

A shrimp boat found the body of Coast Guard Chief Marine Science Technician Charles R. Blome Jr., 34, floating about nine miles south of the Galveston jetties around noon Friday, according to Coast Guard reports.

Blome is the second person found dead from Wednesday's crash. The body of Richard Gould, 32, of Dickinson, a marine electronics technician, was recovered Wednesday.

Two men remain missing from a Sea Link Inc.-owned helicopter that plunged into the Gulf shortly after 9 a.m. about eight miles southeast of the island.

Former Texas College president passes away

TYLER (AP) — Allen Cannon Hancock, former president of Texas College, was buried Saturday following services on the campus of the college he helped revitalize.

Hancock died Wednesday at a Tyler hospital. The family asked that his age not be divulged. He was about 85. He was a minister and a longtime member of the Mount Moriah C.M.E. Church.

Services were pending Saturday with Brook-Sterling Funeral Home.

Hancock graduated from Texas College in 1932 and in June 1967 became the 11th president of his alma mater. He was widely credited for helping it become accredited.

Memo mixes politics with business

HOUSTON (AP) — A memo sent from Gov. Ann Richards' official state office to her campaign headquarters indicates her Monday trip to San Angelo could be more of a political two-for-one, the Houston Chronicle reported Saturday.

But a spokeswoman for the governor rejected the assertion, saying that the trip to visit sheep and goat farmers is a state visit, pure and simple.

"She's governor," said Cindy Rugeley, a Richards spokeswoman. "Just because it's an election year doesn't mean she's not supposed to represent these people and show she can work for them and get things done."

King of lizards visiting zoo in Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Some of the world's largest living lizards can be found for a while at the Gladys Porter Zoo in Brownsville.

The exhibit of Komodo dragons, the name of the large lizard species, was unveiled Friday at the Gladys Porter Zoo.

The animals, which have big enough appetites to eat an animal the size of a deer, are on loan from the Cincinnati Zoo, where the Komodo's were bred. Two groups of hatchlings were produced, one in 1993 and one in 1991.

Komodos are found in the Indonesian islands of Komodo, Rintja, Padar, and western Flores in the Lesser Sunda Island chains.

About 2,000 Komodos live within the Lesser Sunda Islands. They are highly protected by the Indonesian government and are held in great esteem by Indonesians.

The animals are named Jasmine, Pandora, Ivan and Jasper. They each measure less than 24 inches in length and weigh only a third of a pound.

No stranger to trouble, teen faces death penalty

HOUSTON (AP) — He's 16 and faces the death penalty or life in prison for the shooting death of a sporting goods manager.

He's also no stranger to trouble, and his tale is another indication of the woes facing Harris County authorities.

The suspect in the June 27 slaying of Donnie Jones Jr., 38, has been arrested in Houston eight times before, twice for armed felony assaults, the Houston Chronicle reported Saturday.

Despite the record, the minor has never been to court and has spent a mere four days in juvenile detention, sources told the Chronicle. Because of his age, his name has been withheld from the media by authorities.

Jones' murder has caught considerable attention by crime-jaded locals.

The manager of an Academy sporting goods store was killed as he was holding on to the suspect after a security guard caught the teen shoplifting a $40 pair of athletic shoes.

A native of El Salvador, the teen has a criminal record that began when he was 12 years old, according to records given to the Chronicle by juvenile probation department sources.

Carole Allen, spokeswoman for the Harris County juvenile probation department, said Friday that she could not comment on the specifics of the teen's history since, by law, criminal juvenile histories are confidential.

But Ms. Allen said it would not be unusual for there to be no court appearance nor declaration of delinquency in a case like the one outlined in the records the Chronicle obtained.

"Sometimes the charges are minor, and the cases are just counseled and closed," Allen said. "Sometimes the (district attorney) doesn't want it, because there's not enough evidence."

Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Godwin agreed there did not appear to be anything unusual about this suspect's history, or the fact that he had never been to court.

According to the records and sources:

— The teen most recently was arrested May 25 on a marijuana charge. He was released the next day to his older brother after one day in detention.

— The suspect's criminal record depicts a problem childhood, beginning with the boy's referral to juvenile authorities in an October 1990 criminal trespassing case when he was 12.

Adding on to prisons more expensive than building new ones

AUSTIN (AP) — A state-paid architectural firm that says adding onto prisons would be more costly than building new prisons has made at least $6.8 million from the state in new prison construction, according to records obtained by The Associated Press.

Officials from Texas Comptroller John Sharp's office, which has recommended that the state add new beds to old prisons, on Saturday accused the Texas Department of Criminal Justice of conducting business laden with conflict of interest.

"The taxpayers got mugged again by the prison system," said Greg Hartman, Sharp's communications director. "Anyone would question a company that makes millions to build prisons being hired to study whether we need to build new prisons."

Prison officials defended the hiring of the Dallas-based architectural firm Henningson, Durham & Richardson, Inc., (HDR) to study the prospect of adding on beds to existing prisons.

TDCJ Executive Director Andy Collins said HDR has world-class credentials and was the only firm capable of doing the prison bed analysis under a tight deadline.

"We were asked to do an examination. We did that," Collins said. "My argument is not with Mr. Sharp. I am not going to argue with anybody."

Merle Bachman, executive vice president of HDR, said:

"Anything we have done as a company is appropriate. We do studies all across the country for states that determine whether they need additional beds or to remodel. That's part of the business we do."

Unclaimed money should be claimed for education

The Legislative Budget Board has the option of making at least one good decision this year - using the unclaimed money fund to meet a portion of a funding shortfall for textbooks for the next school year.

About $28 million is needed to fulfill priority needs determined by the State Board of Education in seventh, elementary science, and high school mathematics. A transfer of about $11 million from the unclaimed money fund would make up a portion of the needed $28 million.

There should be no doubt this would be very good use of money that would otherwise end up in the black hole known as the General Fund.

As the current school funding plan goes before the court to determine its constitutionality, we need to come to realization it is time for this uncertainty has to end.

School districts increasingly are finding themselves unable to fully know what budgets will look like because of the uncertainty of state funding.

We all clamor for better funding of public education in this state. All we are doing right now is playing with our children's future.

It is time we decide that is the most important thing and get prepared to put our money where it is needed - heading toward the future in well-educated children.

Staying for the reform cure?

Washington Calling

WASHINGTON — Hard-core reformers fret that President Clinton will cut and run on health care reform.

"We want to make sure the insider gang (at the White House) doesn't try to cut a deal that cuts out universal coverage," says a leader of the group organizing bus caravans into Washington to lobby lawmakers.

Memories of the president's about-face on his economic stimulus package are vivid, especially in the House, where lawmakers went out on a limb to support a BTU energy tax proposal that Clinton dumped when the going got rough in the Senate.

If House-Senate leaders can't find the votes for employer mandates and universal coverage by early August, it will be Clinton's call whether to slug it out with floor votes he's almost certain to lose or allow consideration of a weaker insurance reform plan.

The Pentagon fervently wants to stay out of Haiti, but if the military is ordered to go, it will go in alone and go in big.

Military planners say they learned some hard lessons in Somalia:

— Any U.S. forces sent to Haiti will be free of the restraints of an international coalition.

— The force will be in excess of what is needed. Initial talk is of at least 15,000, led by Army Rangers and Marines and followed by the 18th Airborne Corps.

"We could go in a day," says one official involved.

Look for disciplinary action and shortened careers — but no criminal prosecution — of Air Force personnel blamed for tragic shutdown in Iraq that killed 26.

Military lawyers say Secretary of Defense William Perry came perilously close to prejudicing the case — known in the military as "command influence" — by so strongly criticizing the fighter pilots and air crews involved.

Most surprising statistic in Treasury Department's plan to redesign paper money is the estimate that about 60 percent of the $350 billion in U.S. currency is held overseas.

That means only about $140 billion is circulating in the United States, or about $560 for each man, woman and child.

NEWSMAKER: House Foreign Affairs Committee chairman Rep. Lee Hamilton serves as Capitol Hill spear-carrier/bellwether for administration's Haiti policy.

BACKGROUND: A foreign policy specialist, Hamilton is known for fairness, a keen intellect — and the crewcut he's had since he was a kid. He's a veteran of politically sensitive flare-ups, i.e. House investigation of Iran-Contra and so-called October Surprise.

OUTLOOK: Has become the administration's congressional eyes and ears on Haiti after warning last week invasion talk was getting a cold reception on Capitol Hill.

PERSONAL: Methodist minister's son ... walks with a shamble after blowing out a knee in the 1948 Indiana high school basketball final ... married ... three children ... workaholic with no time for hobbies ... has represented rural southeastern Indiana for 30 years.

A Richard M. Nixon stamp is on the way. A longtime joke was that the Postal Service was leery of a Nixon stamp because too many people would spit on the wrong side.

But it is traditional to issue a postage stamp to honor a president in the year after his death, and a Nixon issue is in the works for 1995.

It took a couple of minutes, but Supreme Court nominee Stephen Breyer finally caught on to what to what Colorado Republican Sen. Hank Brown was driving at with his questions of executive branch immunity: namely Paula Corbin Jones' sexual harassment suit against President Clinton.

Firmly but politely, Breyer said he hadn't really thought about presidential immunity.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., Pyongyang-bound on July 9 when word came of the death of President Kim Il Jung, jumped to Clinton's defense when the president came under Republican attack for sending official condolences to North Korean people.

Republican leader Bob Dole said it was inappropriate to mourn passing of man who started Korean War and that Eisenhower had done no such thing when Stalin died in 1953.

But Levin found out — and shared with any reporter he could find — that Ike had indeed expressed "official condolences" to the Soviets when Uncle Joe passed away.

Free trade of a sinister sort. Not only are Russian gangsters setting up shop in New York, but the American Mob is eyeing Russia as a potentially lucrative market to exploit.

FBI Director Louis Freeh, on his recent tour of the former Soviet Union, let it be known that the U.S. Mafia sees golden opportunities in the wide-open frontier that is Moscow today — where extortion, executions and bribery are SOP.

The Mob reportedly is exploring the establishment of drug-running, numbers, and prostitution ventures, as well as setting up shop in such legitimate businesses as trash hauling and construction.

GOP political insiders credit the high cost of a presidential campaign (at least $20 million in the primaries) and Bill Clinton's lousy poll numbers for an unusually early start in pre-1996 campaign jockeying. Consultants, handlers, pollsters and fund-raisers gripe that they are being forced to pick sides earlier than in previous election cycles.

The Teamsters are trying to organize a union of the bicycle, motorcycle and car couriers who keep the capital's main product — paper — moving.

Among the enticements are minimum wages, vacation and sick days, workmen's compensation and health care coverage. Several hundred courier types have signed up so far, but still short of numbers needed to obtain recognition by National Labor Relations Board.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., stuns legal eagles attending the Breyer hearings by announcing that he "senses" the death penalty may be in "great danger" from the nine-member Supreme Court.

By Specter's count, four justices oppose capital punishment.

Trouble is, the justices named by Specter are dead, retired or about to step down: Thurgood Marshall, who retired in 1991 and died in 1993; William Brennan, who retired in 1990; Lewis Powell, who retired in 1987; and retiring Justice Harry Blackmun.

Unlimited channels and still nothing on

Bruce Springsteen hit the nail on the head with his song from a couple of years back,

"57 Channels and Nothing On."

I have 40 channels with not much on and now there is technology to provide more stations than ever before.

Only problem is there is still nothing on.

I guess what bothered me is the "you can watch a different movie every 30 minutes."

Who would want to? Isn't the couch potato syndrome bad enough already?

But then my problem has never been too much television, it has always been too much reading. Always will be. Actually, I think I was born reading.

My brother could have watched television all day long, if my parents would have let him. Taking away his television for even 30 minutes was punishment enough for him.

What I didn't understand about his television habits was how he indiscriminate in his viewing he was. He watched everything on the three channels available - this was in the pre-cable days.

He's still just as bad. His television never gets a break. It is on all the time he is at home - even when he is sleeping.

What is hard to believe is we actually fought over control of the television. Hard to imagine that now!

The best way to watch television is with a book in hand. I have always found that noise helps me to concentrate better.

Absolute silence, at least to me, was more distracting than noise. On loud sound knocked out my concentration in the world of silent reading.

What I found, for studying or reading, was put the radio or television on, and start. Soon, I noticed I hadn't heard anything going on around me.

Oh well, maybe I am just too discriminating when it comes to television fare or movies so the thought of that many movies doesn't enthrall me.

Bring on Isaac Asimov, Frank Herbert, Agatha Christie, Rex Stout, Martha Grimes, P.D. James, Ray Bradbury, Walt Whitman, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, Piers Anthony, e.e. cummings, A.E. Housman and all the rest.

Give me the words, creating the images, in black ink on white paper, any day, any time.

I would rather let my imagination do the walking through the "Leaves of Grass."

In other words, a day without reading just isn't a day.

In politics, easy come, easy go with the dollars

AUSTIN (AP) — The campaigns of Democratic Gov. Ann Richards and Republican candidate George W. Bush each have raised and spent millions with the election still four months away.

Both candidates filed new campaign finance reports Friday with the Texas Ethics Commission.

Richards reported raising $3.1 million and spending $1.75 million between Feb. 27 and June 30.

During that same four-month period, Bush raised $3.7 million and spent $1.4 million.

Each candidate also appeared to have well-funded bank accounts for the fall campaign battle.

Finance reports filed by Richards since July 1991 show her having raised more than $12 million and spending about $6.7 million.

Bush, who announced his campaign last fall, has reported raising about $7.4 million and spending more than $2.6 million.

Texas GOP gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush meets the people after his speech to the Texas Classroom Teachers Association Friday. After his speech, Bush said he wouldn't make a "political promise" for a teacher pay raise.

Bush charges Richards with misleading public on lottery

AUSTIN (AP) — For months, Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush has charged that Gov. Ann Richards' administration misled Texans into thinking lottery proceeds would be dedicated to schools.

But Friday, Bush said he didn't think that himself when he voted to legalize the lottery in November 1991.

"No. I was slightly confused, but ... not really, not necessarily so," Bush said when asked by news reporters whether he thought lottery profits would be spent only on education when he cast that vote.

Bush, who has made education reform a cornerstone of his campaign against Richards, also said after a speech to the Texas Classroom Teachers Association that:

— He won't make a "political promise" for a teacher pay raise, which the Democratic governor has again vowed to seek from the 1995 Legislature.

"At some point in time, somebody's going to say hey, what is the difference between reality and ... fake political promises?" said Bush, although he said he believes teachers should be paid more.

Richards says she did try for a raise in the last legislative session, as promised, and will do so again. But lawmakers must pass such a measure, she said.

— He stands by his contention that the state has lowered the standard for judging school performance in this election year. His campaign noted that several school districts have said they expect to have fewer schools judged low-performing this year. Statewide results are to be released next month.

"It smacks of politics in an election year," said Bush, who noted that Richards has claimed he doesn't know what he's talking about on the issue.

"Either she is not being open and honest with the voters of Texas, or she's not aware of what's going on," Bush said.

Richards said, "It is really difficult to run a race against someone who doesn't have a clue ... The most important thing is that our kids' performance level is up."

Bush repeatedly has said changes are needed in education, while Richards has said higher student passing rates on a state test and a lower dropout rate show improvements instituted under her administration are working.

On the lottery issue, Bush told a story to the teachers group that he has repeated many times on the campaign trail: When he began campaigning for governor, he said, he got a call from his mother, former first lady Barbara Bush.

"She said, 'Boy, you tell 'em I voted for that lottery because I thought it was going to go only to the schoolchildren of Texas, and the fact that it doesn't makes me madder'n heck,'" Bush said, to applause from the teachers. "That's what I hear everywhere I go in the state of Texas."

Hutchison outraising Fisher who's picking up the fund-raising pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Republican Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison is outraising her Democratic opponent, Richard Fisher, by a better than three-to-one margin, the latest campaign finance reports show.

From April 1 through the end of June, Mrs. Hutchison pulled in $1.4 million in contributions, according to reports due Friday at the Federal Election Commission.

"Both in terms of dollars and the number of contributors, Kay is doing extremely well," said campaign spokesman Nick Voinis. "She's on schedule. Her numbers are very good."

Fisher, a Dallas millionaire who has pumped some $3.7 million of his own funds into his Senate campaigns since last year, reported $386,075 in contributions for the same period.

Campaign manager Robin Rorapaugh said the sluggish pace of fund-raising resulted because until recent weeks Fisher devoted most of his attention to winning the March primary and the April runoff.

"He has spent the majority of his time in the last six months in a fractious primary and runoff introducing himself to people who actually vote, and now we are in the process of (getting) the introductions to people who we hope are going to write checks," she said.

"We will be able to raise dollar for dollar what Kay Bailey Hutchison is raising," Ms. Rorapaugh said. "It just will come later."

Fisher is picking up the pace on fund-raisers, holding one in New York two weeks ago, Marshall on Tuesday, Texarkana on Wednesday and Amarillo on Thursday.

Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros, a former mayor of San Antonio, became Fisher's first big-name attraction, appearing Thursday with Fisher at a San Antonio fund-raiser.

President Clinton will be the second.

He is expected to drop by a joint Fisher-Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee $1,000-a-person reception and dinner Tuesday in Washington.

Ms. Rorapaugh declined to discuss fund-raising goals for the Clinton event or other fund-raisers.

Mrs. Hutchison has some heavy hitters of her own.

Former President Bush was the draw at a May 20th Houston fund-raiser in the senator's honor. Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and former Housing Secretary Jack Kemp — both likely 1996 presidential hopefuls — also have appeared at her fund-raisers.

The Hutchison camp has been seeking to make up for a period of months when its fund-raising machine was idled while she battled criminal ethics charges stemming from her tenure as state treasurer. She was acquitted in February after prosecutors declined to present their case.

Mrs. Hutchison is building her war chest, with some $2.3 million in cash on hand as of the end of June, up from $1.3 million in March. She has estimated she will require $6 million for the fall campaign.

This is a campaign that depends on broad support from a lot of individuals, and that is exactly what Ann Richards has right now.

Chuck McDonald

Each campaign declined to say exactly how much cash they had on hand as of Friday.

In her 1990 election, Richards spent nearly $14.5 million. Her Republican opponent that year, Midland oilman-rancher Clayton Williams, spent more than $21 million, over $8 million of that his own funds.

They each ran against several primary opponents, however, while Richards and Bush this year each had only a single, token opponent on their primary ballots.

Both Richards and Bush issued statements Friday saying their finance reports showed broad support.

"My campaign is building strength and attracting support across Texas," said Bush. He said his campaign has received contributions from 30,767 people since September 1993.

"This is a campaign that depends on broad support from a lot of individuals, and that is exactly what Ann Richards has right now," said spokesman Chuck McDonald. He said Richards received contributions from 31,631 donors since July 1, 1993.

Among other candidates reporting by Friday:

• Comptroller John Sharp, a Democrat, said he raised $175,523 and spent $135,730.

• Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock raised more than $1.6 million and spent $730,428.

• Railroad Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers, a Democrat, raised $353,534 and spent $90,825.

• Republican Supreme Court Justice Nathan Hecht reported raising $386,165. He said his total now tops $1 million.

West End Hazardous Response Unit firefighters Steve Avila and Dave Corbin survey the wreckage of a big-rig truck carrying more than 30 drums of toxic chemicals early Saturday. The truck apparently swerved into a passenger car's path on the eastbound side of the Pomona Freeway, catching the car on its side and bringing it down a 20-foot embankment and through a brick wall into a backyard of a home. Both people in the car died and the driver of the truck is in critical condition.

■ Two killed; truck driver critical

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Hundreds of residents were roused from their beds and evacuated when a tanker carrying toxic chemicals veered off a freeway and crashed into the back of a home early today. Two people were killed.

Fumes spread in the neighborhood as police rounded up residents within one square mile of the accident shortly after 2 a.m. The tanker was carrying hydrochloric acid and other chemicals. Fumes were dissipating about six hours after the tanker apparently collided with a car on state Highway 60, then careened into a backyard.

Two people in the car died and several California Highway Patrol officers were treated for exposure to fumes, said Ruth O'Brien of the Highway Patrol. The tanker driver was in critical care at a hospital. Numerous other chemicals spilled, including isopropyl alcohol, methanol, acetic acid, sulfuric acid, glycol ether and sodium hydroxide, O'Brien said.

Evacuated residents were taken to hastily organized shelters in Ontario, 35 miles east of downtown Los Angeles.

Ardell Major was one of dozens of mostly elderly residents of the Rancho Ontario Mobile Home Estates to huddle in a city park at dawn listening to news reports on car radios.

"When I came out my door I smelled something real acidic. It made my nose burn," Major said.

Greenspan: Deficit needs curbing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The economy is "experiencing the ideal combination of rising activity, falling unemployment and slowing inflation" but that won't last unless Congress and the president truly curb the budget deficit, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan warns.

Although the worst deficit increases won't occur until after 2010 when the Baby Boom generation starts to retire, the expectation of a rising sea of red ink already has exacted an economic toll, Greenspan told a commission of top government and private leaders.

"Financial markets have a way of bringing future problems into the present," he said. "Long-term interest rates are higher now because markets are anticipating rising deficits in the next century. ... We are already paying for our failure to come fully to grips with our long-term budget problem."

Greenspan was first to testify Friday before the 32-member Bipartisan Commission on Entitlement and Tax Reform, which began meeting last month and aims by December to offer a no-nonsense plan for reining in the deficit.

"Time is no longer on our side. Any presumption that the deficit is benign is clearly false," Greenspan said.

Mother's last act saves son's life

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Caught in currents after accidentally driving into a rain-swollen lake, Victoria Hoffman struggled to keep her head above water while clutching her 7-year-old son.

In a driving rain and growing darkness Thursday night, Mrs. Hoffman screamed for help. Minutes later, she shoved her son toward a rescuer before she was suddenly pulled under water to her death.

"I hollered 'Can you swim?' and she said 'yes,' but that she couldn't because she was holding onto the boy," said Mike Minyon, who helped grab the boy, Gregory, and drag him ashore.

"That was the last I saw her," Mrs. Hoffman's body was discovered about three hours later.

With the thunderstorm apparently hampering her vision, Mrs. Hoffman drove past a "no-outlet" sign about a mile from her Audubon home in suburban Philadelphia and into Crystal Lake, which was an estimated 15 feet deep, said Haddon Township police Detective Joseph Kite. The lake usually is no deeper than 4 feet.

"There was nothing to stop her," Kite said. "The lake had overrun its banks and the curb was covered. She went right over the curb and then the current swept them in."

At least 6 inches of rain fell in the area in the two hours before Mrs. Hoffman drowned, the National Weather Service said.

Mrs. Hoffman, 32, and Gregory were able to get out of the car, but struggled to keep their heads above water while fighting the currents. A neighbor's shouts alerted Minyon, who lives on the lake.

"I ran down to the lake and I saw two heads bobbing in the water," Minyon said. "The mother was screaming for help. They were getting swept away, so I ran with them, telling her to keep hollering so we knew exactly where they were."

Minyon dove in and grabbed a huge branch that was floating by. He shoved it toward Mrs. Hoffman, who then pushed the boy toward the branch and Minyon before slipping under.

Another rescuer, Ralph Angelotti, dove in when he saw Minyon and Gregory and helped drag the boy ashore, with help from the branch.

Angelotti later realized that the branch that helped save their lives had come from a tree he and his son had cut down. His son lives on the lake.

"There was a swamp magnolia that we cut down and my son threw it near the lake about a week before the storm," he said. "And that's what brought us all in."

Gregory was treated for shock at a local hospital and released Friday, police said.

Minyon and Angelotti refused to take credit for the rescue, saying Mrs. Hoffman saved her son.

"She held him up over her head, she wouldn't let him go," Minyon said. "She saved his life (and) disappeared."

Anniversary honored without the crew

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — NASA celebrated the 25th anniversary of Apollo 11's liftoff on Saturday with a countdown replay, with the launch of four model rockets, and without the crew.

Apollo 11 astronauts declined to attend the morning ceremony and sent regrets for a commemorative dinner. (All three attended the 20th anniversary launch ceremony.)

So instead of the first two men to walk on the moon — Neil Armstrong and Buzz Aldrin — and their fellow crewman Michael Collins, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration settled for the last man on the moon and one who lost his chance to walk on the lunar surface because of an accident en route.

"It's their decision. I respect it. But I wish they were here," said Brent Wynn, who helped launch the model rockets.

"After 25 years of constantly being hounded for autographs, they probably want to kick back," Wynn said. He quickly noted: "I brought stuff for them to autograph in case they spontaneously show up."

No marker for Bush here, please

MILTON, Mass. (AP) — Read her lips: No marker. Nina Graves, who lives in the house where former President Bush was born, doesn't want the town to honor him with a granite marker on the sidewalk in front of the home.

"Usually they don't do something like this until the person dies," said Graves, a Republican who said she twice voted for Bush. "I do have a lot of respect for the man, but I wouldn't call myself a big fan."

She said she doesn't want her house to become a tourist magnet. "This is a private home. I'm a private person," she said.

Bush said he understands Graves' concern.

Macy's parade to continue

NEW YORK (AP) — No rain allowed on this parade.

An R.H. Macy & Co. Inc. spokeswoman said Friday that the 70-year-old Thanksgiving Day parade will continue, even after its proposed $4.1 billion merger with Federated Department Stores Inc.

The same goes for the city's biggest July Fourth fireworks show, sponsored by the department store for the past 18 years.

"We have been assured ... that these are an integral part of the Macy's franchise and will be retained," spokeswoman Gloria Kreisman said.

Kreisman wouldn't say how much the parade and fireworks cost the strapped retailer.

"These are gifts to the people of New York and we never tell the price of a gift," she said.

The proposed merger would create the nation's sixth-largest retailer, with 341 stores and combined annual sales of $13.5 billion. Federated owns Bloomingdale's and Abraham & Straus.

Mudslide kills 17
in southern China

HONG KONG (AP) — A mudslide smashed into four villages in southern China, killing 17 people and injuring 51, a news agency reported Saturday. The mud struck the small villages in Yunnan province on Wednesday, burying 42 homes, the China News Service in Hong Kong said. It did not say what caused the mudslide, which occurred in Yuanyang near the border with Vietnam.

The agency said 31 other people were missing and the villages suffered more than $2 million in damage.

Coolant leak forces
reactor's shut down

BELJING (AP) — A coolant leak forced China to shut a reactor at its largest nuclear power station less than two months after the plant became fully operational, an official report said Saturday.

The July 1 leak in the No. 1 unit at the Daya Bay nuclear plant was caused by dust on a conducting coil, the Xinhua News Agency said. It said the dust triggered an electromagnetic field that pierced the coil. Xinhua said the dust was due to substandard cleanliness at the workshop that made wire for the coil.

The Daya Bay plant, in southern China's Guangdong Province, has prompted concern among residents in British-ruled Hong Kong, just 30 miles away. The $4 billion plant became fully operational May 6.

Islamic militants
sentenced to death

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A military court sentenced five Islamic militants to death and 10 to prison terms Saturday for murdering nine people and trying to kill Egypt's top security official.

Unlike in previous trials, when extremists sentenced to die shouted their joy at being chosen for martyrdom, condemned defendants collapsed in their courtroom cage, wailing and screaming.

Two of the 17 extremists on trial were acquitted.

Alleged members of the Jihad, or "holy war," group all were charged in an assassination attempt on Interior Minister Hassan el-Alfy last August in an operation that killed four people but only wounded the minister.

Political purging possible reason behind Kim's delayed funeral

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Amid signs that North Korea's new leader was purging political rivals, the secretive communist state today abruptly postponed the state funeral of its longtime president.

North Korea said Kim Il Sung's funeral was delayed from Sunday to Tuesday because of the enormous crush of mourners wanting to pay respects. A mass rally was set for Wednesday.

Kim, who dominated North Korea for more than four decades, died July 8 at age 82.

The North's announcement came as indications grew that Kim Jong Il, the elder Kim's son and handpicked heir, was moving to eliminate potential rivals.

In official television footage from the North, scenes of Kim Song Ae, the late leader's second wife and the younger Kim's stepmother, were edited out, North Korea watchers said. Also removed from pictures was Kim Pyong Il, Kim Jong Il's half-brother.

Kim Jong Il's stepmother is considered one of his main political rivals.

But Lee Hong-koo, South Korea's vice prime minister and unification minister, told reporters the South believed Kim Jong Il was still in charge. He said drawing out the mourning period appeared to be a bid to further rally public support behind the younger Kim.

South Korean officials met in emergency session today to assess the funeral delay. In Communist countries like the North, arrangements for ceremonial events like funerals often signal changes in the political hierarchy.

If the state funeral had been held as scheduled Sunday, it would have come nine days after the elder Kim's death. Since Korean tradition calls for burial within three to five days, the further delay was considered highly unusual.

No unusual Northern troop movements were reported, and the South's military did not impose a higher state of alert.

But the Defense Ministry said it was carefully monitoring the heavily fortified border.

A dispatch by the North's official Korean Central News Agency said the delay reflected the "ardent feelings and demand of the people" to pay respects at Kim's flower-bedecked casket.

Officials in South Korea suggested the North was seeking to exploit tensions in the South over how to respond to Kim's death.

South Korean police today arrested a Christian minister who headed north, saying he wanted to attend the funeral.

Repatriated refugees
want to be anywhere
but back home in Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The 217 people had just come home in a process that the United States calls "voluntary repatriation" — but they looked like they wanted to be anywhere else.

Dull-eyed, clutching their few possessions, they sat on the floor of a former tourist center in the squalid capital of the country they had risked their lives to flee.

The would-be refugees were the latest to be returned by the U.S. Coast Guard, which is trying to staunch the flow of Haitian boat people by intercepting them and giving them a choice: be taken home or stay at a "safe haven," a tent city at the U.S. base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

That's not much of a choice, said those who came back on Friday. "We cannot see our families, we cannot write to our families. So I decided to come back," said Julien Celestin, 27, a farmer who left the northwest town of Jarabel in late June.

He had been staying at Guantanamo since the Coast Guard picked him up two days later.

The returnees complained about crowded, inhumane conditions at Guantanamo Bay. About 200 more refugees were expected to arrive Monday, said Luis Moreno, the embassy refugee officer.

"The food was no good," said Christnel Virgine, 20, of Miragoane, a town 60 miles east of Port-au-Prince. "It was not food fit for people."

He and his pregnant wife Mireille, 17, decided to return to Haiti because they thought the food was bad for her health.

Several complained of rough treatment at the hands of Marines at the camp, saying they had been shoved to the ground. They said they were forced to stand in line under the hot sun for hours to get food.

"They treated us like animals," said Celestin, sprawled against a post, his arm resting across a plastic bag full of his possessions.

After their ship arrived, the refugees were taken by bus to the former tourist welcome center, where they stood in line beneath a wall bearing the faded red legend "Welcome to Haiti."

There they trudged from one line to another — going through customs, being interviewed by immigration police, receiving $12 from the Haitian Red Cross for transportation home.

The 15 Coast Guard cutters that make the interceptions are in addition to the 16 U.S. Navy ships off Haiti's shores carrying 2,860 Marines and 4,700 sailors. The warships were dispatched as part of President Clinton's attempt to pressure Haiti's military-backed regime into stepping down.

About 16,500 refugees remain at Guantanamo, according to U.S. Embassy spokesman Stanley Schrage.

Overwhelmed camps showing the strain

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — Lines of weary refugees stretch for miles from makeshift camps in Zaire, where hundreds of thousands of Rwandan Hutus have fled as rebel forces make their final push west.

Overwhelmed U.N. officials, trying to stanch the desperate flood, were to meet today with Hutu military leaders to try to work out a cease-fire in Rwanda's three-month civil war.

Relief workers say they already are seeing signs of disease in the camps, where little food, water and shelter is available.

"It's even worse than our worst-case scenario," said Panos Moutzias, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner on Refugees in Goma. "It's the largest exodus in a short period of time. The needs right now are extreme."

Moutzias said the UNHCR would start an airlift operation today to bring in plastic sheeting and water cans.

Relief efforts are made more difficult because the area is volcanic, making it hard to find water, pitch tents and dig trench latrines.

"When we arrived we found nothing to eat, nowhere to stay," said one man. "Everything is crowded. Every square meter is occupied by refugees who arrived before."

With crossing gates into Zaire thrown open, it was impossible to count how many Hutu refugees had arrived since Wednesday.

Italy, Brazil play for the Cup today

Italian superstar may not play due to injury

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Roberto Baggio is soccer's "Mr. October."

Just as baseball's Reggie Jackson would save his best performances for the games that really mattered, Baggio scores goals just when his team appears down and out.

"The team was on the plane home and I pulled them back," Baggio said after his two goals against Nigeria turned a 1-0 deficit round to a 2-1 victory.

Now the striker with the braided pigtail has taken Italy all the way to the World Cup final against Brazil. Thanks to him, Italy could be on the way from disgrace to glory.

But the team may have to face the multitasking Brazilians on Sunday without their best weapon.

Baggio limped out of Italy's semifinal victory over Bulgaria — in which he scored both goals in a 2-1 victory — with a hamstring injury that makes him a doubtful starter for Sunday's final in the Rose Bowl.

Italian soccer star Roberto Baggio, right, is helped by team doctor Andres Ferretti to stand up during the fitness test for the player's hamstring injury Saturday. Italy will play Brazil in the World Cup championship today at the Rose Bowl.

"At the moment I can't say if Roberto will play Sunday. It's a decision which could be taken at the last minute," Italian coach Arrigo Sacchi said.

"It does not hurt when I walk, but I can feel it when I flex the muscle," Baggio said. "I hope I can play."

If he doesn't, Italy could be in trouble.

Already without suspended defenders Mauro Tassotti and Alessandro Costacurta, Italy has three other injury headaches.

Franco Baresi, its influential captain and sweeper, has been sidelined since the second game and midfielder Alberigo Evani hasn't played since the opening victory over the Russians.

Now Roberto Donadoni is another doubtful player because of a stiffened leg muscle.

But Baggio's absence against the Brazilians would be a major problem.

"Baggio is one of the greatest players," Sacchi said. "It would be a bad blow for us if he can't play. Others will have to work harder to make up for his absence if he does not recover."

Even if all these players were fit, Italy would face an uphill battle against the confident Brazilians.

They have conceded only three goals in six games and strikers Romario (five goals) and Bebeto (three) have tormented every defense they have faced.

When FIFA, soccer's world governing body, named its all-star World Cup team Friday, four Brazilians — defenders Jorginho, Marcio Santos, midfielder Dunga and striker Romario — were on it.

Brazil has not lost since a 2-0 upset defeat by Bolivia in World Cup qualifying action almost a year ago.

"Brazil is the best prepared team in the Cup," goalkeeper Claudio Taffarel said.

Sweden routs Bulgaria for third place

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Sweden played like it was a championship game. Bulgaria played like it wanted to go home.

The Swedes ended their surprisingly successful World Cup run Saturday with a 4-0 rout of Bulgaria for third place.

Tomas Brolin, named to the tournament all-star team the previous day, showed why with a goal and two sensational assists. Kenneth Andersson, Hakan Mild and Henrik Larsson also scored as Sweden took the bronze medal in its best World Cup showing since it lost in the 1958 final to Brazil.

Bulgaria, which beat 1986 champion Argentina and 1990 winner Germany on its way to the semifinals, looked more like some of the nation's less-successful representatives. The Bulgarians were 0-10-6 in five World Cup appearances before their strong showing here.

But their tournament ended on a decidedly negative note as they seemed disinterested in the bronze-medal match, played before Vice President Al Gore and some 80,000 other fans at the Rose Bowl.

While Sweden displayed a strong offense marked by excellent passing, Bulgaria was lethargic, rarely showing inspired play.

Hristo Stoitchkov, Bulgaria's star striker, was frustrated time and again — by teammates who couldn't get the ball to him and by Swedish goalie Thomas Ravelli, who saved several point-blank shots.

After a Stoitchkov blast late in the game was blocked by Ravelli, the Bulgarian striker flopped face-down on the turf in front of goal and pounded the grass, then brushed past Ravelli when the goalie tried to offer him a hand.

Brolin began the Swedish onslaught in the eighth minute with a header off a great pass by Klas Ingesson. Then came nine minutes that put the Bulgarians away.

Brolin tapped the ball off a free kick to a breaking Mild, and it caught the Bulgarians napping. Mild faked out goalie Borislav Mihaylov in the 30th minute.

Seven minutes later, Brolin's through pass to Henrik Larsson gave him a breakaway and he went around Mihaylov to make it 3-0. Just two minutes later, Ingesson's long pass from the left wing was headed home by Andersson, his fifth goal of the tournament.

Bulgaria's best chance came in the 78th minute, but again it couldn't quite do things correct-

ROTTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — The United States couldn't knock the Netherlands out of the Davis Cup on Saturday. However, heavy hitters Pete Sampras and Jim Courier will have another chance to deliver the knockout blow.

The Dutch stayed alive in the quarterfinals by winning the doubles match. Jacco Eltingh and Paul Haarhuis defeated Richey Reneberg and Jared Palmer in five sets to cut the U.S. lead to 2-1 in the best-of-5 match competition.

The Dutch pair prevailed 2-6, 7-6 (8-6), 6-3, 6-7 (2-7), 6-2 in a 3 1/2-hour marathon on a hard court near the Rotterdam docks.

"I think Jacco and Paul's extra experience playing together was a big factor," said U.S. captain Tom Gullikson.

Switzer sweats at 'rookie' camp

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Barry Switzer was a rookie again.

Five years removed from football, the former Oklahoma coach made his professional debut on Saturday by taking charge at the two-time NFL champion Dallas Cowboys training camp.

On his first day as boss of the Super Bowl champions in place of Jimmy Johnson, Switzer challenged the team to do it again and take him with them.

He did it in typical Switzer-style, emotionally waving his hands around and getting into the face of some of the players.

"I'm excited, it's like I'm a kid again," Switzer said. "I'm pumped up like it was my first day at Oklahoma."

Switzer, known for his pep talks at Oklahoma, gave the Cowboys one of his special motivational speeches.

"I challenged them," Switzer said. "I told them it was their work ethic that separated this team from the rest of the NFL. It was their pride that made them different."

Wide receiver Alvin Harper said no player is motivated any more than Switzer.

"He watched our ring ceremony and said he wanted to be a part of it some day," Harper said. "He said everybody was questioning his coaching ability and he wants to prove them wrong."

"He wants to be part of history when we win three rings in a row."

Among those who has questioned Switzer's ability is Johnson, who departed after one too many disputes with owner Jerry Jones. Switzer has gotten some return shots in at his one-time friend and colleague, who will be taking a hiatus from coaching for a year as an analyst with Fox Television.

Dallas Cowboy coach Barry Switzer gives a speech to players before the team's first practice Saturday in Austin.

least as active as Johnson, on the St. Edward's University practice field bright and early when the kicking specialists took the field.

He stretched his hamstrings like he was a player. The 57-year-old Switzer constantly wiped away the sweat from his face as he refused to wear a hat. "My eyes were burning and clouding up," Switzer said. "It was the Coppertone I guess."

Switzer was apprehensive about his reception in a town that loves the Texas Longhorns, one of the Sooners' biggest rivals.

"I thought we had a great reception," Switzer said.

There was only one untoward moment. A fan spotted Mississippi State coach Jackie Sherrill on the sidelines. Sherrill was disliked in Austin when he coached at Texas

A&M.

"It's bad enough having to put up with Switzer," shouted the fan. "Get out of here, Sherrill. Get off the sidelines."

Cornerback Kevin Smith said Switzer asked the players to be patient with him.

"He asked us to give him a chance," Smith said. "He said he has something to prove and he is going to prove everybody wrong because he is a winner."

Baseball fluffing its pillow, getting ready for a nice, long nap

Strike? Again?

Yep.

With owners too stupid to see the negative impact a strike will have on baseball's image, players too spoiled to relinquish any of their financial gold mines and no commissioner to step in to restore sanity, a baseball strike seems more probable than ever.

It's not the end of the world. Baseball survived the week-long strike in '72, the epic 50-game walkout in '81, the two-day vacation in '85 and the week-long lockout in '90, and it will survive '94's hiatus long enough to reach another work stoppage in a few years.

What can you do?

Not a darn thing. People say, "Let the fans quit going to the games - that'll show 'em." Good idea, but it won't fly. Major League Baseball pulls in nearly 60 million spectators a year. You think you can get 60 million people to give up their yearly trips to the ball park?

The game's for us, but we have no control over it. It's enough to make you run onto the field at The Ballpark in Arlington, snag that grounder headed Will Clark's way and run in circles, playing keep-away with the players and umpires. That would be the only way a fan could have some control over the the beloved game, but that would last only until a security guard's right cross.

Dave Hargrave
Sports Editor

Maybe there won't be a strike. Maybe the owners will see that 1994 is turning into one of the best baseball seasons in years. Maybe the players will back down, knowing some of their brethren have a chance to rewrite the record book.

Maybe monkeys will fly out of our butts, like in the gospel according to Wayne's World.

Some people said the 1994 season would stink, thanks to minimal network television coverage, decreased coverage on ESPN and a confusing, tainted three-division realignment. How wrong they were!

Frank Thomas, Ken Griffey Jr. and Matt Williams all are on pace to hit 60 home runs. Thomas is having an incredible year - he's hitting close to .400 and is a solid Triple Crown candidate. The stage is set for classic playoff stretch drives: Yankees vs. Orioles, Indians vs. White Sox, Braves vs. Expos and Reds vs. Astros.

Despite this, players and owners are prepared to throw away the season. The strike is supposed to occur sometime between mid-August and Labor Day. Can you imagine a strike starting on Labor Day, the traditional starting line for the pennant races' stretch run?

You can imagine it, can't you? Thought you could. Right or wrong, baseball has given fans this image: the players are overpaid brats, the owners are money-grubbing fools and none of them give two cents about the fans.

With another strike, that stereotype becomes less of an image of more of the real picture.

Pro-Am tees off Sunday

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

One of the biggest hits on the summer sports scene returns Sunday at the Big Spring Country Club.

The Summerfest Pro/Am tees off as the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center's largest fund-raising event for the fifth straight year, and if previous years are any indication, about 120 golfers will hit the links for the event. The event has turned into kind of a reunion for regular players, so a strong base of support is readily available.

"We had 30 club professionals and 90 amateurs last year, and we should have that many this time. I can't put too many more on the course and still have them able to play a round," said BSCC pro Lanny Turrentine.

The more golfers the merrier for Big Spring merchants, for the tournament and for the Dora Roberts center.

The center uses the money from the tournament mainly for its scholarship fund - it awards scholarships to physical therapy majors in college, and in return those students spend a certain amount of time working at the center. The cash also makes it easier for the center to offer its services to those that cannot pay. Just because you can't pay doesn't mean you're turned away from the Roberts center.

The center's executive director, John Yater, is quite blunt with his thoughts on the tournament.

"What I get turned on about, about the tournament, is that I get to spend the money when it's made," he said, laughing. "This is our major fund-raising time, so I'd encourage everyone to do what they can to support us. You don't have to be a golfer to help Dora Roberts."

But it helps. This is the sixth year a golf tournament has benefited Dora Roberts - the first year it was an amateur tournament, then it switched to the Pro/Am format.

"It is in all essence a charity event, but I think it's gotten to where it's one of the three or four showcase Pro-Am tournaments in West Texas," Turrentine said. "Our letters and brochures didn't go out until Tuesday, we were a little late getting them out, but already 18 pros have called to make sure they've got their spots reserved, and they haven't even received the information."

The Pro/Am is played Sunday and Monday, July 24-25, under a four-person, low-ball format. Each foursome will have an A, B, and C player plus a club professional. The Pro/Am draws club pros from throughout Texas. Shotgun starts on both days are at 8 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.

The tournament typically raises $10,000 each year for the Roberts Center, which is not affiliated with Abilene's West Texas Rehabilitation Center as some might think. Last year's Pro/Am pulled in $13,000.

Corporate sponsors for the event include Citizens Federal Credit Union, 7-Eleven, Fina, Cain Electric and Price Construction.

Last year's Pro/Am helped the Roberts center pay for new computer equipment, Yater said, and this year's will help as well. But the Pro/Am is a bit more than just a fund-raiser.

"I'm not a golfer, but I have a lot of fun with the fellowship and the socializing that goes on there," Yater said. "Each year the tournament gets a little bit better."

America's Fuzzy Zoeller tees off at the first hole while the gallery watches at Turnberry Golf Club Saturday. Zoeller shot a 64 Saturday to move to 9-under-par for the British Open, which ties him for the lead going into today's final round.

British Open

Zoeller, Faxon tied for lead; Watson one back

TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller has a wish and Brad Faxon was just happy to be there as a trio of Americans topped a jammed leaderboard heading into Sunday's final round of the British Open.

Playing under brilliant sun and in gentle breezes, the players had their way with the Ailsa Course at Turnberry Saturday, the 81 players averaging 69.39 over the par-70 layout.

Zoeller missed the course record by one stroke with a 64 and was tied for the lead with Faxon at 202, along with Nick Price, Jesper Parnevik of Sweden and Ronan Rafferty of Northern Ireland.

"If we have good weather like this tomorrow Sunday," it is going to be a shootout," Price said after a 67. "If it's like this, I'm going to need 65."

Watson, who struggled with his driver and was revisited by his putting problems, was one stroke back after a 69 that put him at 202, along with Nick Price, Jesper Parnevik of Sweden and Ronan Rafferty of Northern Ireland.

"If we have good weather like this tomorrow Sunday," it is going to be a shootout," Price said after a 67. "If it's like this, I'm going to need 65."

Watson agreed. "With weather like this, it will take something in the mid-60s," he said.

Then lowering his voice in a mock whisper, he added: "I wish the wind would blow about 40 mph tomorrow," sounding like a man who did not want to make the number of birdie putts it would take to shoot in the mid-60s.

The weather is supposed to be good.

"It's hard to predict what will happen tomorrow," Faxon said about the final round. "I don't think anyone can predict the weather around here."

Price, the 1992 PGA champion, looked at the leaderboard and set the stage for Sunday's shootout, which has 19 players within five strokes of the lead. "There is too much experience on that leaderboard," he said. "Fuzzy Zoeller and Tom Watson are both playing great and they both want it."

"But so do I."

It would be a very special victory for both Watson and Zoeller.

For Watson, 44, it would be his record-tying sixth British Open championship, and it would give him his first victory anywhere since 1987.

For the 42-year-old Zoeller, who has not won since 1986, it would give him victories in three of the four major championships, a feat accomplished by only eight other players, including Watson.

"It's every golfer's dream to have all four," said Zoeller, who won the Masters in 1980 and the U.S. Open in 1984.

Unlike Zoeller, Watson and Price, the 32-year-old Faxon never has contended going into the final round of a major championship.

Watson was the clear favorite of the crowd and was carried to the first tee by a long, cheering, shouting whistling ovation punctuated with cries of "Go get 'em, Tom," "Good luck, Tom," and "All the way, man." Only occasionally was an American accent heard among the Scottish burrs that carried the shouts.

Indurain ruling Tour de France

ALBI, France (AP) — Miguel Indurain's lock on the Tour de France looked stronger than ever today as the rider touted as his toughest challenger, Tony Rominger, quit the race.

The weakening Swiss rider, barely able to keep up with the pack, got off his bike about 25 miles from the end of the 13th stage, from Bagneres de Bigorre to Albi.

He had no immediate comment on his withdrawal.

Rominger became the latest victim of the powerful

Spaniard, who has rolled ever further ahead in time trials and mountain climbs as his challengers falter or drop out.

Three-time champion Greg LeMond of the United States was gone by the sixth stage. Britain's Chris Boardman, the prologue winner and early leader, quit before the mountains.

Italian Claudio Chiappucci, in the top six the last four years, failed to start the 12th stage.

Rominger, expected to be Indurain's chief competition after an impressive win in May's Tour of Spain, fell behind by minutes, not seconds, this week and was 7:56 behind Indurain when he quit.

After Rominger dropped out, Frenchman Richard Virenque inherited second place, also at 7:56 behind. Another French cyclist, Armand de Las Cuevas, is third, another six seconds further back.

Virenque claimed France's third consecutive stage win Friday. Last year, France won just once.

Tomjanovich fights to clear name after DWI charges dropped

HOUSTON (AP) — Now that Houston Rockets coach Rudy Tomjanovich has been cleared of a drunken driving charge, he'd like to clear his name in the eyes of the public.

"Some people did not have the patience to let the legal process work and presumed that I was guilty," Tomjanovich said Friday after Harris County prosecutors threw out the charge because of insufficient evidence.

Tomjanovich, 45, was arrested early Wednesday in West University Place, an affluent Houston enclave, after he refused to take a sobriety test. He also declined a breath test at the police station and was jailed for seven hours before being released on $500 bond.

"We reviewed the videotape of the driving and the tape made at the station and based on that, it's the opinion of all involved that the proper disposition of this is that it be dismissed," said prosecutor Lyn McClellan.

District Attorney John B. Holmes Jr. said the videotape fails to substantiate what the officer said in his report. Arresting officer Richard Unger agreed the charges should be dropped after viewing the tape Friday morning, Holmes said.

"Our officer did have probable cause to arrest him, but the evidence does not show beyond a reasonable doubt," West University Police Chief Steve Griffith said.

Tomjanovich, speaking at his attorney's office Friday, maintained he was not drunk. He gave a brief statement and declined to answer questions. "This was a very unfortunate incident and I wouldn't wish it on anybody," Tomjanovich said.

Tomjanovich, whose team won the NBA championship last month, said the biggest disappointment was the public assumption he was guilty. A West University police officer pulled Tomjanovich over around 3 a.m. Wednesday. Griffith said the coach was stopped for speeding and twice crossing a yellow line.

Big Spring softball off to rocket start

The United Girls Softball Association's state tournament began Friday for Divisions I and II, and as usual Big Spring teams were among the frontrunners.

Division I

Big Spring's Division I all-stars are undefeated in the tournament at 4-0.

Friday, Big Spring started the tourney by beating Andrews 13-5. Ashley Lang was the winning pitcher, and she starred at the plate, going 2-for-2 with a home run. Melissa Hale went 2-for-2 with two doubles. Lyndsey Wilks, LaKenya Green and Jessica Moorhead starred defensively.

Big Spring also beat Monahans Friday, 11-2. In that game, Lang was the winning pitcher and went 3-for-3. Wilks was 2-for-3, and Green hit a home run.

In two Saturday games, Big Spring beat Lovington (N.M.) 12-8 and Fort Stockton 11-0.

Tara Shuttlesworth was the winning pitcher against Lovington, and the bulk of the offensive load was carried by Courtney Brock, Erica Stuart and Wilks. Green played a strong game defensively. In the win over Fort Stockton, Lang and Shuttlesworth combined to throw a no-hitter. Lang started, and Shuttlesworth nailed down the final four outs. Lang struck out 11; Shuttlesworth four.

Division II

Big Spring has two teams in Division II - Teal and Purple.

The Teal team is undefeated. Its first win came against Monahans 9-6. In that game, Jancy Crow and Amy Jackson led the offense, and Nicole Yanez was the winning pitcher. Monica Rubio, Lindsey Marino, Crow, Jackson and Yanez were stars on defense.

Saturday, Big Spring Teal beat Andrews 7-1. Jackson was the winning pitcher, and Rubio and Krysha Bearden were the top hitters.

Rubio and Ashley Reed starred on defense.

Saturday night, Big Spring Teal beat Big Spring Purple 13-5. Jackson was the winning pitcher, while Krystal Shuttlesworth took the loss. Yanez tripled for Teal, and Rubio hit an inside-the-park home run, but Teal was hitting from top to bottom in the order.

Crystal Calderon doubled for Purple, and Tracy Padilla hit two singles.

Purple is 0-3. Friday, Lovington (N.M.) beat Purple 16-3, though Purple had good performances defensively from Dallas Allen and Heather Gibbs. Saturday, Monahans beat Purple 16-7. Bridget Cain hit two triples for Purple and had three hits overall. Leslie Patterson hit a double, as did Kaci Aciri.

NFL free agency deadline passes

NEW YORK (AP) — Most free agents in the NFL have taken the money and run. Bart Oates left the money and took the starting job instead.

As the deadline passed Friday for free agents to move from their old teams to new ones, the 36-year-old center, a two-time Pro Bowler, jumped from the New York Giants to the San Francisco 49ers. He took $100,000 a year less from the Niners knowing that he'd start there but be a backup with the Giants.

"If it were a perfect world, I wouldn't be going out there," said Oates, who signed a three-year deal worth $1.8 million with San Francisco, which moved Jesse Sapolu to guard to make room for him.

"It basically boils down to have the opportunity to be a starter out there. I had a great run here (with the Giants). Now I hope to go out there and help them win a Super Bowl."

Oates' move was one of several by veterans as the deadline approached, including two by members of the 49ers' Super Bowl teams — guard Guy McIntyre to Green Bay and full-back Tom Rathman to the Los Angeles Raiders. McIntyre's departure opened up the spot on San Francisco's offensive line that Oates will fill.

But like a lot of veterans who signed late, they were forced to settle for salary cuts. Any free agent who hasn't re-signed with his own team can change teams again after the season starts Sept. 4.

Oates, who made $775,000 with the Giants last year, was a reluctant jumper.

New York had offered him a deal worth about $700,000 a year, but he was scheduled to back up Brian Williams, with whom he shared the center spot last year with no guarantee that he'd even make the team.

"If I were content sitting back and watching a good player like Brian Williams, I would have stayed here," said Oates, who has a law degree to fall back on when he retires. "I just wasn't ready to sit on the bench yet."

Even more dramatic was the cut taken by wide receiver Ricky Sanders, the last of Washington's "Posse," who signed with Atlanta.

Like Oates, whose departure leaves only William Roberts and Erik Howard from the 1986 Giants, the first of New York's two Super Bowl winners, Sanders was a memory of better days on a team that's going with youth. He set a Super Bowl record with 193 receiving yards in the 1988 title game — a mark broken the following year by San Francisco's Jerry Rice — and had 1,000-yard receiving seasons in 1987 and 1988.

But at 31, he was deemed expendable by new Redskins coach Norv Turner, and like a lot of late-signing free agents, had to settle for the minimum salary, $162,500, plus bonuses. That's considerably less than the $2 million over two years he was offered by Atlanta three months ago, before he flunked a physical because of an ailing shoulder.

Among four players cut by the Raiders was Willie Gault, who played on the Bears' Super Bowl winner in 1985. And Gill Byrd, a Pro Bowl cornerback two years ago, announced his retirement in San Diego, victim of a knee injury that sidelined him all last season.

Local hoopsters shine in 6-man all-stars

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Sands' Grant Gooch and Courtney Fryar, Klondike's Channa Cope and Borden County's Melody Harrison played well in this weekend's 6-man basketball all-star games.

Kent Sherrill of Amherst scored 17 points and New Home's Channing Crisler added 19 points and nine rebounds Friday night, leading the West past the East 114-90 in the Texas Six-Man boys' all-star game. Sherrill, the game's most valuable player, keyed a 17-3 West run midway through the first half as they built a 60-35 halftime lead.

Brett Thomas of Lazbuddie added 13 points for the West and Gooch had 11.

The game was played in conjunction with the Texas Six-Man Coaches Association Clinic.

In the girls' game, the West went on a 19-5 run at the start of the third quarter, opening up a 25-point lead that led them to a 93-69 victory Saturday.

Fryar had 18 points and Mindy Magee, who was named MVP, had six assists and six steals to go along with her nine points.

The East was led by Rebecca Christian of Walnut Springs with 11 points and Paige Bishop of Oglesby with 11 rebounds.

Cope scored 9 for the winning West squad, while Harrison added 7.

Stevi

This time, the wings are on her feet.

Stevi just returned from the Junior Olympic Regional Speed Roller Skating competition in Fort Worth. While there, she continued what has become a familiar trend this year — she finished in first place.

Blunt almost to a fault, Stevi's innocent honesty provides a cheerful description of her favorite part of competition speed roller skating. Saying simply, "I like to win," she explains she is very competitive and therefore this rather unusual sport captured her attention.

"I started skating when I was seven," Stevi said. "It was fun then because we had a lot of people. But it's fun now because there's only six people on the team and I get to skate with the big kids. I guess I liked it both ways." Stevi skates for The West Texas and Skateland Texas Storms, a Big Spring team.

Competition speed roller skating involves high speeds and high stress. A skater, wearing only a certified helmet for protective gear, will reach speeds in excess of 30 miles per hour.

To win the Junior Olympic Regional title, Stevi had to skate faster than any other Junior Olympic skater her age in Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and New Mexico.

Skating fast means taking risks. "Sometimes I get so scared," Stevi explains with wide eyes. "I'm afraid I'm going to fall.

When I fall, it hurts so bad, I don't feel like ever getting up."

But, spirit undaunted, Stevi will represent her region at the National Junior Olympic Championships Sept. 3-5 in Buffalo, N.Y.

So, does all this stress get to a 10-year-old who laughs out loud in her sleep? Not at all, says her father, Steve.

"I've always been real competitive in sports — racing go carts and motorcycles. I guess I love any kind of race. I do get concerned she could be hurt, but experience pretty well keeps that in check."

Steve does admit one regret, however. He has only seen his daughter race once this year.

Stevi's enthusiasm is contagious, carrying over to her other typical little-girl loves. She enjoys riding her four-wheeler, jumping on her trampoline, attending vacation Bible school, cheerleading, swimming and playing with her best friend, Christina.

Last week, Stevi and Christina found a stray cat. "It was a real cute cat," said Stevi. "We put up signs all over trying to find the owner. But we didn't really want to."

"She was real disappointed when the owner showed up," adds Steve.

Stevi is over the disappointment and focusing once again on her upcoming national competition.

With the wings on her feet, her upbeat attitude, and her delightful spirit, she'll come out a winner — no matter what.

FISHING

Brady Creek Reservoir is known for producing a number of nice fish quite often. For the Big Spring Bass Club's July points tournament, the numbers were not there, but some nice fish were brought to the scales.

Twenty-nine members and three guests fished the two-day event under warm but pleasant conditions, with most anglers able to bring only one or two fish in.

But someone will always find and catch fish. At this event it was Johnny Mills fishing a plastic worm. He brought in a three-fish limit both days to take first place with 13.86 pounds.

Terry Cunningham landed some nice fish to take second place with 9.52 pounds. Cunningham's stringer included a 4.52-pound bass

Hospice provides alternative care

Stories by Barbara Morrison

In medieval times, there were way stations where pilgrims, travelers, the sick and the dying were given sensitive, tender care and treated as special guests.

From those stations came the word "hospice."

But nowadays, at the word's mere mention, many people imagine dark, stagnant disease and lingering, pitiful bed-ridden patients only a moment's breath away from death.

Such images are only for the ignorant.

In reality, when a true picture of "hospice" is available, what the viewer sees is a unique alternative which offers medical and social care in a friendly, home environment.

Cindy Haynes, community relations liaison for Hospice of the Southwest, explains the non-profit organization is based in West Texas and intends to open an alternative delivery site in Big Spring in August.

"We've had nurses serving the area for quite some time, but now we'll have an office there, too."

Haynes says patients choose hospice after they have exhausted medical treatment, are tired of searching for the cure and are finally in a state of acceptance.

According to Haynes, the organization accepts Medicare and Medicaid as well as private insurance for service reimbursement, but never charges the patient. Hospice accepts monetary donations and actively engages in fundraising and volunteer recruitment to help meet expenses not covered by insurance.

Haynes explains with the recent addition of Pecos County, Hospice of the Southwest now serves 15 counties covering a geographic area of 40,000 square miles. "From the Big Spring location," Haynes says, "Our care team will serve the counties of Howard, Martin, Dawson, Borden, Glasscock, and Mitchell."

And, Haynes adds, the need is there.

The hospice concept concentrates efforts on people with "life-limiting" illnesses and their families, helping them cope with both the disease and death.

Haynes explains life-limiting illnesses can be either terminal or chronic and include conditions such as cancer, emphysema, Alzheimer's disease, Parkinson's disease, AIDS and heart failure.

"In other words," she adds, "the phrase 'life-limiting' encompasses anyone who has a disease that, if it follows its natural course, will limit that person's life. The illness doesn't necessarily terminate their life, but will seriously limit it."

"For the most part," Haynes explains, "our patients are tired of the poking and all the testing of aggressive medical care. They want to enjoy the days they have left in a pain-controlled environment in the atmosphere of their own home."

Hospice philosophy is to view death as much a natural part of life as birth. It is the organization's statement that "with proper care, the last period of someone's life can be a time of peace and growth."

Mary Kay Stephens, a registered nurse, has worked for the organization for two years. Stephens says, "Our philosophy at Hospice is not necessarily to add days to a person's life, but to add life to their days."

Stephens knows what she is talking about. She is a recovering cancer patient.

Hospice gives special attention to the treatment of physical symptoms and focuses on the relief of pain. "Many of our patients would simply die if they had to spend the duration of their illness in the hospital," says Stephens.

"Their time is so much happier and I think, even extended, because they are cared for at home in the atmosphere of caring and love provided by their loved ones."

Hospice also focuses on the psychological and emotional distress of patients and family members, offering support services in the area of counseling and social work and even has a chaplain.

"We try and help the whole picture," explains Haynes. "We use a principle called case management which focuses on all the needs of the patient, not just the medical aspect."

Case management team members includes volunteers and professionals who support the hospice concept and have a strong sensitivity to the feelings and needs of others.

Team members include licensed physicians, nurses, social workers, clergy members, and representatives of other professions as they are needed. In addition, volunteers are accepted "in any form, offering any service," Haynes says.

Volunteers are needed to make home visits or assist in the office setting. Haynes says even children may donate time or services.

"We've had plumbers help us out when a patient was having problems and electricians donate air conditioning to a family that didn't have any," says Haynes.

Many times, paid staff also volunteer their time. "They get caught up," adds Haynes. "We have a baby in Midland who's captured the hearts of everyone in the office."

"The baby was found not breathing and had to be resuscitated and now she's not expected to live a long time. Everyone in the office brought clothes and toys for the other members of the baby's family because, with the medical situation, money was short."

Haynes also remembers the family of a 3-month-old hospice patient. "They lived in a trailer with no front door and no air

Hospice of the Southwest

Hospice helps cancer patient keep his face toward the sun

If you keep your face to the sunshine, you cannot see the shadows.

So goes Coahoma resident Robert Honeycutt's philosophy of life.

He believes in love of God and love of family. He loves his Coahoma farm located in the Salem Community and finds solace in his home. He lives a peaceful existence and is grateful for his blessings.

Honeycutt, though simplistic in his beliefs and somewhat frail in appearance, is perhaps the strongest man his family has ever known.

And he remains strong, even in his daily battle against cancer - the disease which first introduced him to Hospice.

Mary Kay Stephens, a registered nurse for Hospice of the Southwest, sees Honeycutt on a sometimes daily basis. She cares for him, changes his dressings, travels to doctors visits with him and nags at him.

"The doctors can't tell you why he's still alive," she says. "But I think it's his faith and his ability to stay at home during his illness." Honeycutt was given only six months to live over two years ago.

His quiet demeanor, as he sits dressed in his work overalls, gives the impression he sees defining moments in life, and when faced with choices, he chooses going on over giving up. To him, success is his ability to love his family and he sees it as a journey, not a destination.

Honeycutt is diagnosed with cancer in at least five different body locations she knows of. "But he doesn't let that stop him," she adds. "He still plows his fields and hauls his trash. It's on those days his pain gets a little worse, a pain I like to call self-induced pain, but he won't complain."

Recently, Stephens explains, Honeycutt, who is "somewhere in his 70s," ran out of gas on his tractor and was forced to walk more than a mile in the West Texas heat. "I think it's his faith and his love of family that keeps him going," she says. In his spare time he drives to Houston and Oklahoma visiting family.

"He's done everything the way he's wanted to and that's important to him," explains Stephens. "He's done it every day of his life that way and he's still doing things that way."

His wife, Geneva, agrees, but adds her gratitude for hospice care. "Sometimes at night he's in a lot of pain. Oh, he won't tell me, so I just lay there with tears running down my face. But I don't let him see that. If it gets too bad, I just call Mary Kay."

Daughter Nadine McHugh adds her thanks for the support. "They don't only help with the physical, they also help spiritually and emotionally as well. They have a neat chaplain and my folks just love to hear him pray."

Praying is something the Honeycutts do frequently.

Both Geneva and Nadine say Honeycutt's current concern isn't for his own health. "He's more worried about my brother who has a serious lung disease," says Nadine. Without a lung transplant, doctors have given the son less than a year to live.

And, he has one other concern. "I have to clean up

My husband - I think I'll keep him

Cleanliness is next to godliness. My husband believes this to be true.

Barbara Morrison
Staff Writer

I have honestly come to the conclusion my life's choice of a mate truly believes he should be treated as a god and it is my job to keep the house clean. Period, plain and simple. It's part of the routine.

Every morning I get up, walk out to the living room, and find an empty drink container - be it a can or a cup - on the end table next to the overstuffed recliner he bought "us" for Valentine's Day. The empty item is positioned exactly one inch from his adult pacifier - the remote control for the television set.

His throne, his remote, his drink container.

It's funny, but he often misses the remote long before he notices one of our children is not home. Go figure...

Now, don't get me wrong. It's not that he doesn't pass by the trash can or the kitchen sink several times an evening after finishing his drink. It's just that the thought truly never occurs to him to pick it up. (I often wonder how he thinks the items disappear so magically in the morning.)

We also play games at my house. An all time favorite is what I have dubbed "Ring Around the Hamper."

I'm not sure if it is a mind game or not, I'm still pondering that one. But what happens is, every evening when my loving companion undresses, he places his dirty laundry in a designated spot on the floor. The next morning, I pick the clothes up and put them in the hamper.

Now, it is when I get real aggravated that the game becomes its finest.

My move. I move the hamper to the spot on the floor he seems to have selected for his manly washables.

His move. Usually, this means he must search out the entire bedroom and choose a new floor space for his clothes.

Rule. Never does it mean he places the clothes in the hamper.

So, during a week of both of us being stubborn as mules, you might find us both actively involved in the game - me moving the hamper all around the room and him moving his clothes.

He always wins the game because I always give in and eventually pick the darned stuff up. At the conclusion, after his desired result has been achieved, you can find him sitting quietly in "our" chair with a decided smirk and a knowing look of victorious, manly pride, sipping his cold drink. That's my guy.

But, you know, it's that same guy who was right there with me when the doctor told me I had a large tumor that needed to be removed. He held my hand and quietly reassured me everything would be all right.

It's that same guy who spotlessly cleaned, dusted and vacuumed when he found out my parents were coming in to town. He stayed with me, helped me and let me lean on him without one single mutter of complaint. Yes, he even did the laundry.

He's always been there for me and he's always been there for our kids. He lets us know he loves us.

I think I'll keep him.

Patients have say with forum

Patient Council Forum meetings are now meeting each Monday at 7 p.m. in the Activity Therapies Department multi-purpose room. This council offers the opportunity for patients to have a voice in the management of the facility. All patients are invited.

As we are joining forces to survive the heat wave and get through this hot summer, leisure activities are offered in the late evenings, when it is a little cooler. Bike riding around the grounds is offered at 8 p.m. and craft projects are offered (inside where it is cool) daily from 4-4:45 p.m. and Saturday 1-2 p.m. Therapeutic arts and crafts classes are preparing entries for the County Fair, and all patients interested are invited to join in the activities.

Special thanks for community contributors in the last few weeks—Coca-Cola Company brought the patriotic show with cokes, and the Big Coke Blimp, Midland Community Theatre for tickets for patients to attend special performances, and new fashion items from the Look.

Congratulations to Leslie Yarbrough, R.N., on his recent appointment as Director of Nursing Services for BSSH. Leslie brings a wide array of clinical and administrative experience to the position. He has served the hospital in social services and nursing, and is committed to quality improvement.

Employees receiving awards for June were: Southwest Psychiatric Services—Roger Mize, Northwest Psychiatric Services—Shelly Everett, Activity Therapies, Melissa Adams and Adolescent Services, Wanda Allen. Thanks for a good job.

Volunteers are making plans for the 36th Annual Volunteer Services State Council Meeting, Sept. 8-10 in Houston. BSSH volunteers are invited to attend and are asked to call the Community Relations office for information and reservations.

Chalet volunteers met July 13 at the Community Relations office. The Chalet will be offering a half price sale on all clothing item through Aug. 1. Stop by for bargains or leave your donations Monday-Friday 1 to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Chalet, 313 Runnels. The Chalet volunteers work hard, run a successful business—and have a lot of fun. If you are interested in any of the above—call 263-0528 and ask about joining them.

Insurance meetings were held for all employees July 14 and 15. New insurance coverage will begin Sept. 1, according to Employees Retirement System of Texas. These meetings were scheduled; to inform employees of changes in the new coverage.

Seventeen Texans, including lawmakers, mental health and mental retardation professionals and advocates, have been appointed to serve on an Equity of Access Task Force for TXMHMR. Robert von Rosenberg, superintendent of Big Spring State Hospital, is included in the group, appointed by TXMHMR Chairman, Ann Utley.

The panel has been assigned to address the issue of equal access to mental health and mental retardation services throughout Texas.

ANNIVERSARIES

Long

MR. AND MRS. VIRGIL LONG, THEN AND NOW

Virgil E. and Jeanette Long will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary on Aug. 3, 1994. The American Legion hosted a fish fry for the couple, family and friends on Saturday, July 16.

Kandis and Wesley Wright and Sandra Ward will host a reception on Aug. 6, 1994, at the couple's home in Bentonville, Ark. Friends and family are welcome.

Virgil married the former Jeanette McCormick in Big Spring on Aug. 3, 1944, while he was stationed at the Big Spring Bombardier School. The couple resided the majority of their life in Big Spring, where he was employed by Medical Arts Clinic and then Wal-Mart. Jeanette worked at Howard County Tax Office and then owned and operated Jeanette's Beauty Salon. Upon their retirement, the couple moved to Bentonville, Ark., where both daughters live.

The Longs have three children: Sandra Ward, Kandis Wright and Ronnie Long, deceased; six grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Old buildings should be fixed or flattened

All those old buildings. What an ugly sight. Some cities have managed to demolish or upgrade the crumbling structures in their downtown areas. Others just leave them up, broken windows, decaying roofs, hanging pieces of wood and all. Some downtowns in Texas cities, especially those with a recent fire, look like a war zone.

The answer seems to be in occupying the old things. If they stay vacant, they simply rot away. If they're occupied, people who enjoy a challenge fix them up, put in a business of some kind and keep them in a presentable manner.

If a building is historic, find some way to preserve it. It's not, tear it down. If a business moves out of a building, that business should be responsible for either making sure the building has a new tenant or demolishing the structure.

Most of the old downtown catlemen's hotels have been imploded and replaced with modern buildings, many of them apartments or hotels. There are still a few left standing in cities where residents and local governments try to decide just what to do.

Most of the old downtown hotels had only a few years of prosperity. The ones left standing are monuments to devastated fortunes and spoiled dreams.

In some cities, the emotional attachments to the downtown hotel are strong. People say "It's a landmark," or "It's our only skyscraper" (fifteen stories tall). From time to time, some forward thinking individual from out of town comes in, makes a deal for the old building, the newspaper carries stories about plans to renovate the structure and people get their hopes up. After a year or so, the person has lost interest, or discovered the cost of bringing the building up to modern standards.

The vacant buildings somehow create a woeful atmosphere. They are reminders of the days before shopping malls, when downtowns were vibrant with activity and parking places were difficult to find. Offices and stores, restaurants and specialty shops once thrived downtown.

When we go there today and see the empty streets and buildings, the natural tendency is to think "I remember when this place was really something."

Seeing the decaying downtown is hardest, perhaps, on people who grew up here, moved away and come back years later. "What has happened?" they ask.

Most of a city's significant history is downtown. The court house. The churches. The banks. The heartbeat of any city is best measured downtown. The Eiffel Tower is downtown. So is the Empire State Building. Tourists love to go downtown. It's important to keep the downtown area alive.

Cities with declining populations have to take a realistic look at their situation. City leaders need to realize that there are still people in town who love their city and are willing to work to improve it. A certain readjustment is necessary for a city to thrive and prosper. That requires a new way of thinking.

Think of the city as a vacant lot. When a new owner comes in, he cleans it up and gets rid of the weeds and the old worn out structures on the property. He saves the good ones and puts them to use.

Let's get our local government folks to play like new lot owners.

4-Hers will witness Congress in action

By MICHAEL KELSEY
Howard Co. Extension Agent

Ever notice how people react when Congress is brought up? Even the mention of the word will cause eyes to roll and hearts to sink. I heard one fellow say, "Congress ain't worth a flip 'cause it's fulla politicians!"

I suppose many opinions are held about this important, law-making group of people. (Probably about as many opinions as there are people!)

The legislative branch of our government has always been of key interest to the American people. As the lawmaking branch, their actions affect our rights, privileges and plans for the future. Members of Congress have long played spotlight roles in the development of American history. Some of these roles have been positive recognition, while some would like to be forgotten.

Have you ever thought of being a Congressman? Most of us, at one time or other, have dreamed, pondered or wondered what the life of a Congressman would be like. Debating key issues, meeting with world-famous political leaders and planning trillion-dollar budgets seem like a lot of fun. However, that's not all here is to it.

This week three Howard County 4-H members are going to find out exactly what being a Congressman is all about. Dustin Gaskins, Kirstie Moates and Justin Wood will spend two days as Texas Congressman at the state capital in Austin.

State 4-H Congress, held every other year, is planned for this week with several hundred 4-H members attending. These 4-Hers will have the opportunity to meet and visit with Congressmen about issues that concern them.

Then they will sit in a Congressman's chair and listen to debate from lobbyists and issue supporters before taking a vote. Of course, all lobbyists are 4-H members also and the issues voted on are Texas 4-H rules and bylaws.

These young people are the "cream of the crop." They have chosen to better themselves as humans and leaders by attending a power-packed program. There is little time for fun at 4-H Congress. The opportunity to meet key people in our society should never be turned down.

'Pill', 'fresh' can be good or bad

SIR: When I was a little girl, my mother often referred to me as a pill and said I was being fresh. She used these words when I was bad, but I never understood. I am 23 now and I still do not understand. Isn't a pill medicine, and isn't being fresh a good thing? By the way, my mother loves me anyway. — Lauren A.

A: Of course she does, and did. But words have many meanings, and you must look for the appropriate ones. Fresh, for instance, can also mean bold and saucy, which many little girls are likely to be on occasion with no real harm done. Little boys, too, for that matter. And a pill, among other things, is an ill-natured person. You might well have been bold, saucy, and even ill-natured from time to time without actually being bad. Forget it.

SIR: Which is correct, "She is taller than I" or "She is taller than me"? — Lorena G.

A: Either. If you consider "than" a conjunction, which most people do, "than I" — with an understood "am" following it — is correct. If you consider "than" a preposition, which it can be, "than me" is perfectly all right. (I know some readers will insist that "than" can't be a preposition. They're wrong.)

SIR: I read recently of a son who was the "spit and image" of his father. Could the writer have been confusing the term with "spittin' polish"? — Dorothy W.

A: No, no. You're confused too. "Spit and image" or "Spittin' image," which goes back hundreds of years, means something spit out of the mouth; "Spit and polish" originated in the days of England's Victorian navy, which was known as the Spit and Polish Navy because sailors had to spit on their buttons and polish them till they shone. Either way, it all called for a heap of exasperation.

GREAT RELIEF of the Week, reported by Donna W.: "My newspaper told me about a shark that had been 'caught and transported without severe trauma to an aquarium.' Thank goodness the aquarium didn't suffer any trauma!"

Encounter in grocery turns egg-ravating

I was grocery shopping. A woman in the store asked, "Where are the eggs, honey?" I took her to the eggs. She was an older woman in her mid-70s. "How much are the large eggs?" she asked. I told her the sign said, "57 cents a dozen." She pulled out a carton and asked if I could find the expiration date. It was the 17th. Too soon.

The expiration date was the same on the next carton, and the next, and the next. After I had checked the date on (I swear!) every single carton of large eggs in the bin, it was ascertained that they all expired on the 17th. At one minute after midnight on the 18th all those eggs would go belly-up and stinky.

We then began checking the eggs for cracks. If an egg stuck to its cardboard nest it meant it was cracked on the bottom. That carton wouldn't do. Heaven forbid we should get an egg that's cracked on the bottom.

Finally we found a carton that was certifiably crack-free. Then each of those eggs had to be inspected on an individual basis. She'd take one, roll it in her palm, grasp it between two fingers and at arms length, hold it up to the light. "Does this one look a little small to you, honey?"

After giving it a thorough evaluation, I told her it looked like a standard large egg to me, but this was not my field of expertise. I was under the impression that egg grading is regulated by the federal government. There are times when we simply must place some trust in the powers-that-be.

"Looks puny to me," she whispered. "And when I want an egg, I want an EGG. You know what I mean, honey?" I had no idea what she meant. I had a life to get on with.

"That's why," she said, "I only buy the jumbo eggs. How much are the jumbos? Check the expiration date on those cartons..."

I have conceived children in less time then it took this woman to decide on a carton of eggs, but I hung in there.

I stayed with her until she had a carton of jumbos that met her specifications. Not once did I show impatience. Not once did I glance at my watch. When she checked out I carried her bags. I helped her into the car.

She thanked me for my trouble. I told her she was more than welcome. I didn't tell her that she'd never again see me in a grocery store ... not if I saw her first.

It's my parents fault. They raised me right ... I may never forgive them!

Faith can resolve family problems

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Why do you think there are so many problems in families today? Do you think there are more problems today than in previous generations? Is there any answer? — Mrs. H.R.

DEAR MRS. H.R.: The destruction of family life is truly one of the most alarming trends in our society. This has happened from time to time in other societies — but the collapse of the family has always resulted in the collapse of society. We are in danger of that today.

Undoubtedly, there are many reasons why families are in trouble in our society. Some of them have to do with other trends, such as the ease of divorce and the general collapse of moral standards. Some reasons are economic, such as fathers or mothers who ignore their families because they are preoccupied with their work.

The basic reason, however, is that we have lost sight of God's plan for our lives and of His will for our families. God gave the family to us, and when we ignore His design we inevitably pay the consequences for our selfishness and our preoccupation with other things. Like the ancient Israelites of the prophet Hosea's day, we will "sow the wind and reap the whirlwind" (Hosea 8:7). Our greatest need is to realize our need of God and turn to Christ for forgiveness and help.

No matter what may be happening to other families, make sure of your own commitment to Christ and to the family God has given you. Don't take your standards from the world, but give priority to your family and your marriage, and seek to build your lives together on the foundation of Christ.

Commence beaming Digital technology expands viewing capabilities

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

In time viewers will have access to a new movie every 30 minutes.

David Pappajohn

Technology has once again made it possible for television viewers, movie goers and entertainment buffs in general to have unlimited choices when it comes to video and how we see it.

In December of 1993, a satellite, DBS-1 was launched aboard an Ariane rocket from French Guiana, South America, with the purpose of providing North America with a new entertainment technology - Direct Satellite Systems (DSS).

A second satellite, DBS-2 is scheduled to be launched sometime this summer and according to David Pappajohn, owner of Circuit Electronics in Big Spring, people want more choices and this technology will give them just that.

Circuit Electronics is the only local authorized dealer licensed to sell and install the RCA brand Direct Satellite system with the DirecTV program service which should be available on a large scale this fall.

Currently, DSS technology is being tested in markets around the country and later this year, consumers across the country will have access to a wide array of programming choices and selections delivered in near laser-disc quality pictures and CD-quality audio sound.

DSS, with the aid of an 18-inch satellite dish, digital satellite receiver and remote control, will allow any home in America access to more than 150 channels between programmers USSB and DirecTV.

Because the satellite dish is much smaller than what you normally see (due to the power of the two satellites that will be orbiting 23,200 miles above the equator) the price for the DSS is much lower, $699 plus installation.

The subscription prices for using USSB or DirecTV will range from about $7.95 per month to $34.95 per month.

Programming on the satellites will include such names as HBO, Showtime, CNN, ESPN and an on-screen menu will guide subscribers through the program selections and system operations, and allow customers to establish spending limits and exercise parental control through Programming Rating Limit Passwords.

A unique feature of DSS, according to Pappajohn, is you don't have to purchase a basic package before you are allowed access to premium channels. The customer will be able to create his/her own package.

The transmitter for the DSS will be no larger than a standard VCR and programming will be handled several ways: customized packaging; a la carte; and direct-ticket pay per view.

While the DSS satellite dish will attach to the side of a house or any exterior location and only requires a clear view of the southern sky and though most satellite systems don't offer local programming, Pappajohn said this system will allow the view access to local programming if a normal antenna is plugged into the receiver.

While the new technology is here, it is still not available to everyone yet and Pappajohn said, "People should be wary of fly-by-night companies and also be careful of where they spend their money."

Pappajohn said he thinks DSS will have fewer problems than other forms of broadcast entertainment and that normal weather conditions should not effect the systems, but adds, nothing is perfect and very adverse weather will make any system susceptible to problems.

"In time," Pappajohn said, "viewers will have access to a new movie every 30 minutes."

David Pappajohn, owner of Circuit Electronics, kneels next to an 18-inch Direct Satellite Systems (DSS) dish. The new dish, which will soon be available to the public, will deliver video and audio signals nearly equivalent to that of laser disc technology.

Worst over in cattle country?

OLNEY, Texas (AP) — Cattle producers are still reading mixed signals from a market that has crashed farther and faster this spring than ever before.

"People are kind of leery of the market. They're not buying many calves," said John Haggart, buyer for Donnell Ag Products.

However, about a $7 one-week increase in what slaughter cattle were selling for in the Texas Panhandle and other signs indicate that the worst is over in stocker country.

Haggart told the Wichita Falls Times Record News in Thursday's editions that by this time of year, Donnell's five Texas retail outlets normally are starting to sell medicine and other supplies used to process calves and get them ready for fall and winter grazing.

But Donnell's business is slow this year, especially at the Hereford store in the heart of Panhandle cattle-feeding country, said Haggart. That's where the market crash was most keenly felt.

Donnell, based in Graham, has stores in Wichita Falls, Bowie, Abilene, Marlin and Hereford.

Earlier this year, slaughter cattle plunged from a high in the mid-$70s to $60 per hundred pounds in Texas and $58.50 in the Midwest. The bulk of the loss came in May and June, sending gloom throughout the cattle industry.

But August live cattle futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange have traded up the limit of $1.50 three times in the past week — on Friday, Monday and Tuesday.

The contract closed Thursday up 32 cents, at $69.17 — around a $6 jump in one week. That's recovery from a low of $61.65 on June 28.

In the Texas Panhandle, slaughter cattle were trading $6 to $7 more than the levels of a week ago, from around $60.50 to $61 closer to $68.

"I don't think too many people thought that would happen," Randy Fuller, a broker at Dean Witter Reynolds in Wichita Falls, said.

"The packers, it appears, got pretty low on beef supplies, so they were very, very aggressively bidding on Monday, which was a record one-day sale on cattle coming out of feedyards."

Fuller predicted continued wide swings as the market finds equilibrium.

Retailers and packers, "looking at the fundamentals of the market, had the market about $5 lower than it should have been," said Dr. Ernest Davis, a livestock marketing specialist at Texas A&M University in College Station.

Competition provides many more choices in cable packages

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Competition is everywhere! You have long distance telephone carriers, fast-food chains, bottled water, superstores that sell everything from pencils to powerdrills, and the cable industry is no different.

While local cable systems don't offer 200 plus channels, there are services that make traditional cable just as attractive as other forms of broadcast entertainment according to Larson Lloyd, general manager of Big Spring Cable.

"We offer a technical staff, customer service staff as well as service for after hours trouble calls," Lloyd said, "and when you think of all of the services available for $21 a month, economically, it's hard to beat cable."

Big Spring Cable's current rates are $11.44 a month for basic cable which includes 18 channels; $21.53 a month for extended basic cable, a popular package; and for premium packages like Showtime and The Movie Channel, customers pay $11.96 a month for both. Home Box Office (HBO) for Big Spring residents is $10.92 a month and The Disney Channel is $8.32 a month.

Big Spring Cable also carries WFAA and KERA out of Dallas. Lloyd said, "Big Spring Cable has been around since 1961 and our service requirements are watched closely, and other cable services (alternatives) may be regulated, but are not under the same rules we are.

"Customers may be taking a technological risk with different forms of equipment (if service is not available for that equipment). We can deliver local radar in the home as well as local stations and we try to offer better choices with more diversified packages."

Packages are fast becoming very popular in the cable industry. Other systems in the area like Odessa's Post Newsweek Cable offers a basic 12-channel cable package for $6.19 per month. Extended basic service (30 additional channels) cost $15.66 per month or $21.66 per month for the entire basic package. Premium channels stack up pretty evenly with Big Spring's, but Post Newsweek offers a variation of their premium channels such as HBO

Warehouse harbinger of good NAFTA tidings

McALLEN, Texas (AP) —

Politicians say the opening of a Mexican-financed warehouse on the U.S. side of the border signals that the North American Free Trade Agreement is already bearing fruit.

And vegetables. "I hope this is a demonstration for the rest of the world of how we here on the border are bringing people together," U.S. Rep. Kika de la Garza, D-Mission, said Monday at the ribbon-cutting of the 352,000-square-foot McAllen Produce Terminal Market.

The $20 million project targets U.S. and Mexican exporters of fruits, vegetables and other perishables, which will move across Mexican and Canadian borders tariff-free under the NAFTA.

On Jan. 1, the treaty began a 15-year phase-out of trade and investment barriers among the three North American nations.

"The installation that gathers us today is a living example that the free-trade agreement is here with us, bearing fruit," said Manuel Cavazos Lerma, governor of Tamaulipas, Mexico.

Welcomed by a mariachi band and sweating under near 100 degree temperatures, politicians hailed the project as an example that NAFTA-inspired investments work on both sides of the border.

"I'd like them to come back," De la Garza said. "Let this not be the last time we work on a project."

The produce market already has signs up for importers and exporters of mangos, limes, grains, seeds, onions, cantaloupes, pineapples, squash, watermelons, tomatoes, peppers, sugar cane, oranges, roses and even cactus products.

Sally Cadena, general manager of the market owners association at the 352,000-square-foot complex, said more than 85 percent of the 210 warehouses already have been sold.

She said 35 businesses are already open for business on the 40-acre site, which is only 3 miles from the international bridge linking Hidalgo to Reynosa, Mexico.

Perspectives* to provide economic data and analysis in support of our bid for the interstate extension.

This is particularly needed since Midland-Odessa are using RAY PERRYMAN to provide this material for them. However, "Texas Perspectives" is the group that has the contract to provide this type material for the Texas Department of Transportation (TxDOT), and we feel will have great credibility.

Transportation Chairman JIM BILL LITTLE and I attended another meeting in San Angelo with ANNE WYNNE, who is one of the three highway commissioners, and BILL BURNETT, who is executive director of TxDOT. They said the contract to actually do the study has been cut back from $3 million to $11/2 million, and is expected to charge the contractor with merely selecting the route, removing the need to conduct the environmental impact study. It is to be released in August, and they said phase two would begin in early 1996.

This means a route decision can be expected in late 1995. They were very positive on our chances.

The new buzzword is "intermodal". The study will be looking at more than just highway, and will be taking in other modes of transportation that the highway can interface with. Mid-Odd and Abilene have an edge with airports with commercial service, but we believe that freight and the movement of goods is much more important than the transportation of people.

Big Spring has the largest rail yard between Fort Worth and El Paso, and as the Mexican rail system is much more advanced than their highway system, we could easily develop a container facility that could very much enhance the inter modal aspects of our bid.

Another important aspect is the fact that truckers will tend to take the shortest route over big, fancy highways because of the high cost of fuel, tires, and operating expenses per mile.

This strongly suggests that were another route selected, they would continue to utilize 87 because of cost factors. It also makes this one of the strongest reasons to make the route coincide with 87, and we are trying to document this loyalty.

Mid-Odd has received endorsement from the State of Chihuahua, Mexico, which they feel strongly enhances their case. We feel a highway headed over to an area with little industry doesn't achieve much except compete with traffic already being efficiently handled through the border of El Paso.

We have endorsement and are working with the state of Coahuila, Mexico. This highway would be in a direct line with most of the industrial base of Mexico and would serve as a relief point for the gridlock now present at Laredo.

In addition, it would serve as a convenient alternative via San Antonio to traffic coming from Laredo.

Mid-Odd has more money and is making a very big splash on this issue, but we feel they have to try and overcome a much weaker position. The logic and the numbers are on our side, and we are doing our best to make sure that the solid reason behind our route is not overlooked by those making the final decision.

It will probably entail raising a little more money to counteract the Mid-Odd effort in the near future, but we really feel we are very well positioned to be selected in this process.

Terry Burns is executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce.

Other pesticides wanted for grub control

Last week's notice in the Big Spring Herald requesting homeowners to refrain from the use of Diazinon, a popular insecticide for home use, prompted a deluge of calls to our office.

Don Richardson
County agent

This is the season for outbreaks of Grubworms, one of the biggest threats to home lawns in our area. Diazinon has been one of the more popular pesticides to treat this insect. Suspected runoff from lawn watering and recent rains is suspected to be the source of Diazinon found in the city waste water treatment facilities. This pesticide is felt to be responsible for the killing of microorganisms that break down solids and other matter in the wastewater treatment program. A lack of these organisms slows down or even stops effective treatment of wastewater.

Dr. Charles Allen, extension Entomologist for our district, was here presenting a boll weevil and other cotton insect management program for cotton producers this week so I took the liberty to call upon his suggestions for alternative uses of Diazinon. He helped me put together today's article so I want to thank him for sharing this information.

During the summer time, homeowners want the lawn looking nice. July turf care is important to the grass looking nice the rest of the year. White grub control is most effective and beneficial when applications are timed for mid to late July. That is the time when the grubs are small and close to the surface. Small grubs are the easiest stage to kill. Insecticides must be thoroughly watered in to be effective.

Several insecticides can be used for white grub control. One of these insecticides, Diazinon, as mentioned earlier, has been reportedly found in the Big Spring wastewater treatment plant.

The Diazinon is affecting the survival of the microorganisms which are important in the breakdown process at the plant, as explained above. City officials are requesting that insecticides other than Diazinon be used for white grub control.

Other insecticides can be used quite effectively in treatment of white grubs. Ofanol has been very effective in Extension Service trials. Dursban is less effective for grubs but a good choice when tick or flea control along with grub control is needed. Merit is a new and effective white grub control material, as well, which is now available to home owners.

The Texas Agricultural Extension Service strives to develop educational programs in the county to meet the expressed needs of people. These educational programs are planned through local inputs by community leaders and implemented by Program Area Committees.

Howard County is presently completing the 1995-99 Long Range Extension Program Handbook. One of the issues identified by the Study Group assigned to help develop this new Long Range Program was concerned with proper uses of pesticides and fertilizers.

This issue felt that there is a need for a better workable knowledge of the public and producers on uses, safety, controls and regulations of pesticides and fertilizers.

Dr. Allen's visit to Howard County earlier this week allowed local cotton producers to obtain two hours credits toward certification of their Private Applicator's licenses from the Texas Department of Agriculture. The agricultural producers must obtain these licenses to purchase, apply and/or supervise employees who use restricted use pesticides. Agricultural producers must obtain 15 hours of such credits within a three year period of time to maintain these licenses.

Earlier in the week employees of agricultural producers had the opportunity to attend a special training program, in the Spanish language, for their benefit under the newly passed Workers' Protection Standards of Texas. Much of this training had to do with safe use, storage and disposal of pesticides.

Agricultural producers are working to overcome the image they have been perceived of as being flagrant, non-responsible abusers of pesticides, responsible for harming the environment and threatening our health. In fact, most agricultural producers are conscientious users of pesticides and are very concerned about the environment and all our health. Their livelihood depends upon it. These training programs I have discussed are always well attended and response is good to the information they receive.

Most pesticides for home use are non-restricted, or can be purchased on a "one-time-one-purpose" use basis. Homeowners are not required to attend such training programs on safe, effective uses of pesticides. As brought out in the Study Group Meeting, misuse of garden and landscape pesticides has resulted in damage to owners' and neighbors' landscapes, pets, etc. Education of such a public in the proper use, storage and disposal of pesticides is an important concern.

Cattle

"If I was a stocker operator right now, I'd want to get my cattle bought before this thing recovers some more," said Davis.

He said slaughter cattle prices have come back so much so fast because feedlots "finally got current" — sold enough heavier cattle to packers to free up space and create a little demand.

And retailers' specials are increasing consumer demand for beef, he said.

An oversupply of beef and other meats will keep downward pressure on cattle prices toward the end of the century, according to experts, although Davis said he sees $70 slaughter cattle again by this fall, if not sooner.

"I think we'll be looking at a lower price level for the next two to three years. We're just in that cycle. But we've bottomed out," said cattle raiser Bob Bachman, who has a 1,700-cow operation headquartered at South Bend, in southern Young County.

HOROSCOPE

FOR SUNDAY, JULY 17, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Negotiations are successful. You gain a better sense of identity and you create more positive vibrations in your life. Make plenty of time for discussion and for handling personal matters. Follow your instincts with a parent. Tonight: Whoopee! *****

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Others are in the mood for companionship. Enjoy yourself and make the most of good communications. A friendship plays a significant role in your day. Tonight: Say yes, yes, yes. *****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Relax. A partner needs your nurturing and loving approach. Discuss long-term desires. Consider a change in your day-to-day routine. Tonight: Make magic with a loved one. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Listen carefully to another, to whom you make all the difference. Romance kindles for those who are ready. If you are attached, a child or someone close plays a significant role. Tonight: Be with your loved ones. *****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Family matters need some settling. A talk about what you need and what you expect opens the door to a better relationship. Let the good feelings flow, remain secure and create more positive vibrations. Sit at a favorite pastime. Tonight: Be a love. ***

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You become quite talkative. You enchant another with your conversation, your desires and your personality. Follow your intuition. Let creativity flow, and remain optimistic. An older friend gives you important information. Tonight: Chat up a storm. *****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be careful with spending. You might want to discuss a situation or handle it in a new way. Prepare to take action, and be aware of your limitations. Tonight: Review your financial situation. ***

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Count on big changes. Go with creative urges. A loved one does not mean to hinder, and provides information. Be open while discussing goals. Tonight: Have an important talk with a neighbor. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Get news, settle down and consider your options. Do not deceive yourself about your potential and where you are going. Another makes an offer that is nearly too good to be true. Take some time off alone to think and relax. Tonight: Vanish again. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Zero in on what's important to you. Hang out with friends. You discover how much you care about a friend who seems upset. Be open to this person. Tonight: Go for what you want. *****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Your intuitions is right on. Deal with family and authority figures. Connect in more significant ways with those you care about. Trust yourself. Make a must appearance; it might have hidden significance. Tonight: Drop in on a parent. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Evaluate where you are coming from and what's important to you. Be clear in your discussions about long-term goals and desires. You are more centered and are able to get past a rigid point of view. A friend makes you happy. Tonight: Go with a vision. *****

IF YOUR BIRTHDAY IS JULY 17, 1994: Creativity will practically ooze from your pores in the year ahead. Be aware of what you want, and be willing to zero in on it. Work will flourish in the winter and spring. Relationships will thrive through the holiday season. Be careful of your flirtatious ways, which could get you into a lot of trouble. If you are single, your status could change because of your ability to charm and magnetize others. If you are attached, an addition is likely. SCORPIO reads you cold.

Friendship with family goes to dogs

DEAR ABBY: Our son, daughter-in-law and grandson accepted our invitation for a Memorial Day cook-out/pool party. They live about a 45-minute drive from our home.

O u r daughter-in-law agreed somewhat reluctantly to leave their dog home, knowing that my wife and I are not "pet people."

Memorial Day morning, our daughter-in-law telephoned to say that she was sorry, but she just couldn't leave their dog alone all day. Then she gave me a "love me - love my dog" ultimatum, indicating that the dog was a member of their family. She expected me to cave in and say, "Well, all right ... bring the dog."

Instead, I said, "I'm sorry you're not coming, but I understand your feelings. Perhaps another time."

She said, "Well, goodbye," and then she hung up.

Abby, neither she nor my son has communicated with us since. Was I wrong? Or was she? — IN THE DOGHOUSE

DEAR NAMELESS: Who was right and who was wrong is unimportant. You had the right to ban pets from your home, and she had the right to decline your invitation because she couldn't bring the dog. The important issue here is maintaining a friendly relationship with your son and his wife. I urge you to break the silence now, before it escalates into a permanent breach.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are invited to a wedding. The invitation says "black tie." The groom is a friend of the family, and I am not in the wedding party. I understand they sent 300 invitations.

The tuxedo I have owned for 20 years no longer fits me, and I don't feel like buying a new one. Wouldn't it be all right if I wore a black suit with a white shirt and black bow tie? Sign me ... GOOD ENOUGH

DEAR GOOD ENOUGH: Absolutely! Most people will be so preoccupied with the way THEY look, they won't even notice what YOU'RE wearing.

DEAR ABBY: My name is Daniel and I am 11 years old. I am traveling north in August, and I will be staying for six days. I am sure I am going to get homesick, so I am not looking forward to the trip. You are usually able to answer people's questions, so hopefully, you can answer mine.

What happens if I get bored on the bus and want to go home? Do I go and tell the bus driver to turn around? Or do I sit there and get more and more upset worrying about getting homesick? — DANIEL IN CAMDEN, N.J.

DEAR DANIEL: Your problem is one that everyone has had from time to time — worrying about something that may never happen.

Don't let yourself think about getting lonesome. Take a book to read, a puzzle, or a game that one person can play ... something to keep your mind occupied during the bus ride.

Please write back after the trip and tell me if I was right or wrong. Good luck, Daniel.

DEAR READERS: "A conference is a gathering of important people who singly can do nothing, but together can decide that nothing can be done." — FRED ALLEN

For everything you need to know about wedding planning, order "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
