Rabies creates health emergency

Vaccination for pets a yearly must

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Several wild animals have tested positive for rabies in West Texas and officials are stressing the importance of having pets vaccinated against the disease.

Local veterinarian Debra Hill says she has sent off two animals to be tested for rabies. A skunk in Glasscock County and a bobcat in Reagan County both tested positive.

"A skunk dug into a pen and bit a puppy in Glasscock County. That is not normal behavior for a skunk to break into a pen where there are puppies. Another puppy in the pen wasn't bitten but the owner didn't want to take any chances, so both of them were put to sleep. There was no doubt the skunk was rabid."

Hill added, "if you are even one day past due in getting the shot, your animal's record is considered out of date. It is so important for them to be vaccinated every year."

There has been an increase in rabies across south and west central Texas, prompting Gov. Ann Richards to declare a state health emergency.

According to Texas Department of Health information, there has been an increase in canine rabies in South Texas and gray fox rabies in west central Texas. Big Spring and Howard County could be caught in the middle as those animals migrate.

Zoonosis Control Specialist Jeff Sanders, with the Texas Department of Health in San Angelo, says there is no records of animals testing positive for rabies in Howard County.

"So far, Howard County is battling a thousand but that doesn't mean it's not there. In 1993, there were three rabid skunks and one rabid fox."

"Howard County has a pretty good animal control system by picking up strays and making sure people's pets are vaccinated," Sanders said.

Hill added, "not only is it a state law to vaccinate your dog or cat but if your animal isn't up to date on their rabies vaccination and they bite someone, the animal will be put to sleep and tested for rabies right then."

"If your pet is up to date, then animal control will quarantine them for up to 10 days to see if they have any symptoms but not when the shots aren't current."

Hill says there are two types of rabies - dumb and vicious. Most of the animals who are rabid have the first kind. There are personality changes and the animal staggers.

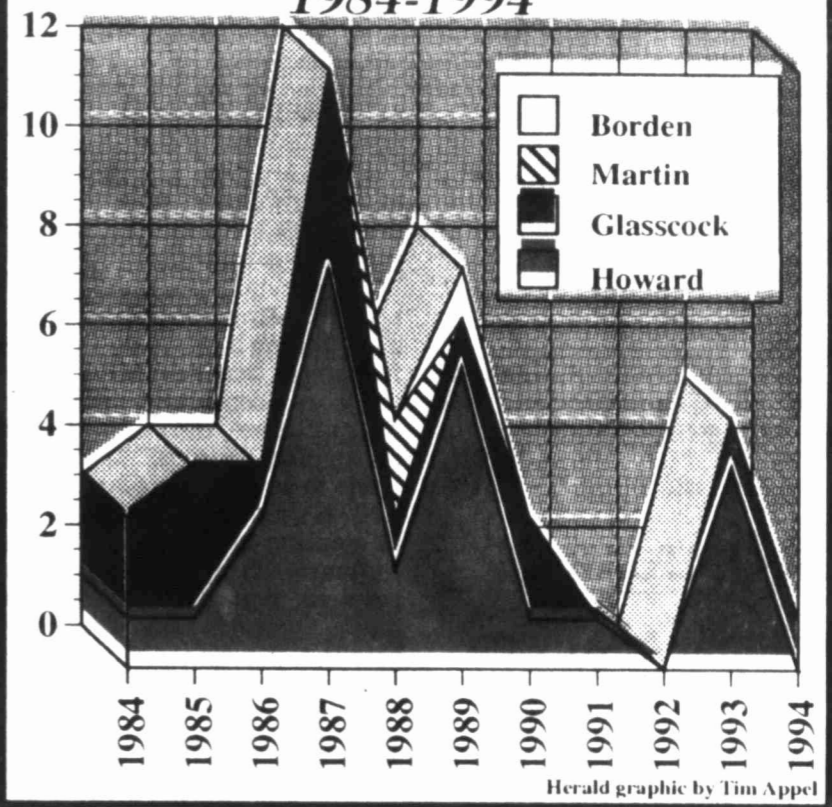

Not all rabid animals foam at the mouth. They foam at the mouth because the muscles in the throat are paralyzed and cannot swallow.

If a person sees a nocturnal animal such as a skunk or possum during the day, there is a strong chance that it is rabid because it indicates a personality change.

"If a skunk is friendly and approaches you, you had better watch out because that is abnormal behavior," Hill commented.

Hill adds once you have your pet vaccinated, it is important to keep the tag and record. The tag from your veterinarian should be put on the animal and the shot records kept in a safe place.

Lightning: Eerily beautiful but dangerous

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Lightning is the second leading cause of thunderstorm related deaths each year behind flash floods, killing an average of 93 people and causing more than 300 injuries.

Resulting from the buildup and discharge of electrical energy between positively and negatively charged areas, the average flash of lightning could light a 100-watt bulb for more than three months.

Lightning is the action of rising and descending air within a thunderstorm separating positive and negative charges.

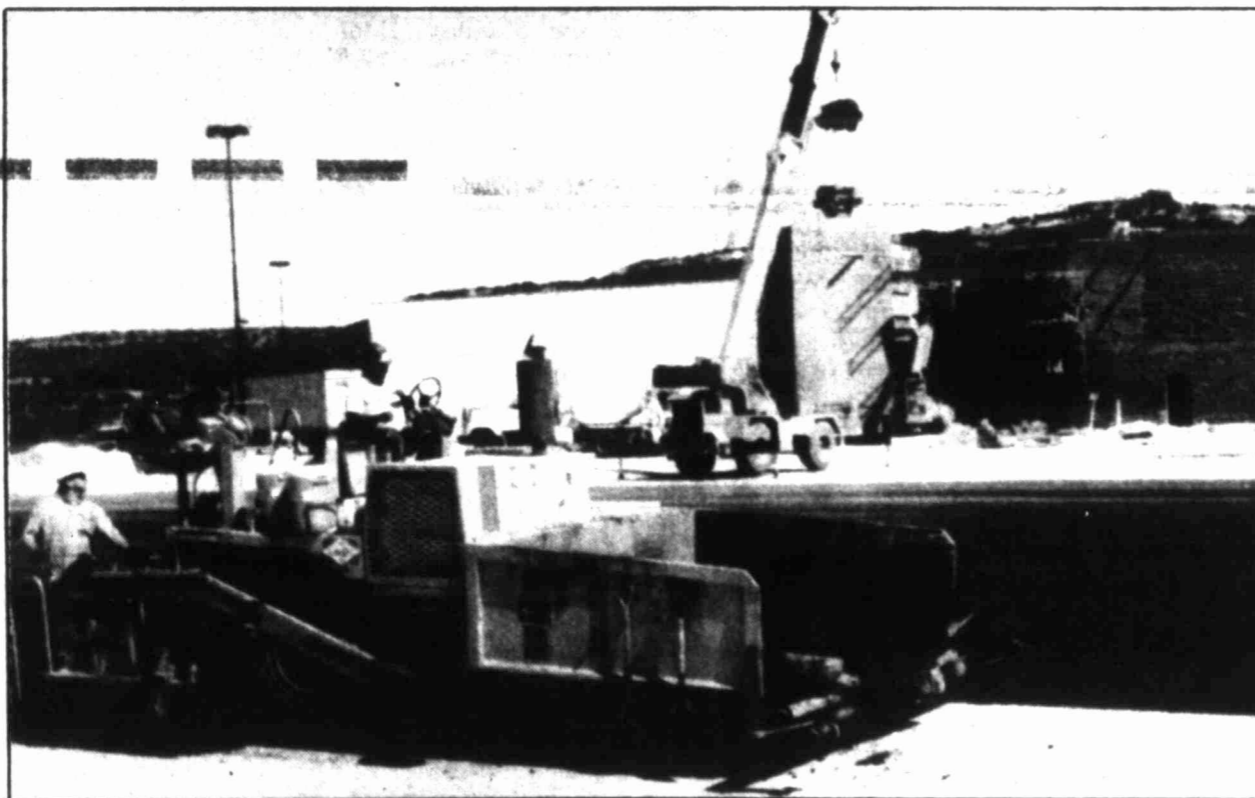

Most lightning, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), occurs within a cloud or between the cloud and ground, and the chance of anyone being hit by lightning is estimated to be about 1 in 600,000.

The majority of lightning deaths, according to NOAA, occur when people are caught outdoors and most of those deaths happen in summer months during the afternoon and early evening.

NOAA reports indicate in recent years, people have been killed by lightning while boating, swimming, standing under a tree, fishing, riding on a lawnmower, golfing, riding a bike, talking on the telephone, and even playing soccer.

Oysters clam up as six-month ban is proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Raw, unshucked oysters like the kind served at seafood bars may become harder to find from April through October because of health concerns.

The Food and Drug Administration says it may urge Florida, Louisiana and Texas to impose an annual six-month ban on raw, unshucked oysters harvested off their coasts and require warning labels for the shucked ones.

In a letter this week to the Interstate Shellfish Sanitation Conference, a group of state regulators and industry representatives, the FDA suggested the ban as a way to guard against a form of bacteria that can be deadly to people with liver disease or weakened immune systems.

Oysters from the three Gulf Coast states are marketed throughout the country. Those harvested from April through October, however, may contain vibrio vulnificus bacteria that the government estimates claim 15 lives a year.

Alcoholics with damaged livers are vulnerable. So are people on chemotherapy, as well as those with AIDS, diabetes, liver disease, certain blood disorders or low stomach acid.

If adopted by the conference at its annual meeting next month in Takoma, Wash., the ban would allow for the sale of only shucked oysters from Gulf Coast waters during the warm months. And the containers would have to be labeled warning that the oysters should be eaten fully cooked.

For the ban to be approved, it would have to be formally proposed at the conference with FDA backing, and that hasn't occurred yet.

Brazoria has affordable housing; not so El Paso

WASHINGTON (AP) — Looking for an affordable home? The National Association of Home Builders has some suggestions.

Try the Vineland-Millville-Bridgeton, N.J., area in the Northeast, it says. Or Kokomo, Ind., in the Midwest. Brazoria, Texas, in the South, perhaps. Or Denver in the West. Those markets topped the association's Housing Opportunity Index by region in the first quarter.

But avoid San Francisco, the least affordable market in the nation. And New York in the Northeast, Chicago in the Midwest and El Paso in the South. Those areas were at the bottom of the regional affordability lists.

Brazoria, with 95.3 percent of the homes in reach of a median-income household, and Beaumont, with 90.5 percent, were the most affordable Texas markets, and among the most affordable in the country. El Paso, with only 59.3 percent of its homes affordable to its relatively low-income population, was the least affordable in Texas and among the least affordable in the nation.

The Vineland area of southern New Jersey was found to be the most affordable market in the nation, according to the index released Thursday. The index was based on a 174-market survey covering 330,000 sales of new and previously owned homes.

Generally, the survey found affordability good in most areas of the nation because of relatively low mortgage rates.

While fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages rose to an average 7.56

Lightning also results in hundreds of fires each year as well. During the past decade, more than 15,000 lightning-induced fires have caused several hundred million dollars in damage and the loss of more than two million acres of forest.

Locally, City Fire Marshal Burr Lea Settles said reports of lightning damage to air conditioning units and other small appliances are not uncommon. "Many claims are reported directly to insurance companies and we don't hear about them," Settles said. He also said that 31 cases of lightning related damage have been reported in Big Spring since 1991.

The rapid heating and cooling of air near a lightning channel causes a shock wave resulting in thunder and the air near a lightning strike is heated to 50,000 degrees, which is hotter than the surface of the sun.

How does lightning travel? According to NOAA, a cloud-to-ground lightning strike begins as an invisible channel of electricity charged air moving from cloud to ground. When one channel nears an object on the ground, a powerful surge of electricity from the ground moves up towards the cloud, producing the visible lightning strike.

Several myths about lightning still exist and according to NOAA, people should know the facts.

danger from lightning.

The fact is, lightning often strikes outside of heavy rain and may occur as far as 10 miles away from any rainfall.

"The rubber soles of shoes or rubber tires on a car will protect you from being struck by lightning.

The fact is, rubber-soled shoes and rubber tires provide no protection from lightning. However, the steel frame of a hard-topped vehicle provides increased protection if you're not touching metal. Also, you may be injured if lightning strikes your car, you are much safer inside a vehicle than outside.

"People struck by lightning carry an electrical charge and should not be touched.

The fact is, people struck by lightning carry no electrical charge and should be attended to immediately.

"Heat lightning" occurs after very hot summer days and poses no threat.

The fact is, what is referred to as "heat lightning" is actually lightning from a thunderstorm too far away for thunder to be heard, but caution is advised because the storm may be moving in your direction.

Those who run the greatest risk of being struck by lightning during a storm or developing storm are people who are outdoors, especially under or near tall trees; in or on water; or on or near hilltops. Lightning tends to strike high places.

NOAA gives the following tip on dealing with lightning: To estimate the distance in miles between you and a lightning flash, count the seconds between the lightning and the thunder and divide by five.

Space shuttle stuck in space one more day

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Rain off the Florida coast today kept Columbia and its menagerie of sea creatures and bugs in orbit an extra day and will make shuttle endurance champs out of seven astronauts.

The offshore storms violated NASA flight rules by encroaching within 34 miles of Cape Canaveral, Fla., thwarting plans to touch down at the landing strip there. The crew was told to try again Saturday morning.

percent in the first quarter, from 7.27 percent in the previous three months, they remained well below the double-digit figures experienced during most of the 1980s.

"Although there are many places where affording a home is out of reach for many families, the low mortgage interest rates that we have been enjoying for nearly a year make housing more affordable everywhere," said Tommy Thompson, president of the home builders group.

Regional trends remained steady, with the most affordable markets found primarily in the Midwest and in the South, and the least affordable ones mostly in the West, particularly California, and the Northeast.

The Midwest had 15 areas among the 25 most affordable. Four more were in the South school to serve their country and never completed their high school credits. We would still like to honor those that attended Big Spring High and call Big Spring High their alma mater as well as the homecoming ceremonies.

The annual Hall of Fame is conducted during the annual Big Spring High Homecoming ceremonies and activities which will be Oct. 14 and 15.

Donations needed to defend titles

Help send a Big Spring police officer to the International Law Enforcement Olympics in August. Sgt. You can make the check out to the Big Spring Police Association and mark it specifically for the Police Olympics.

According to the mortgage underwriting standards used for calculating the index, at the prevailing interest rate of 6.91 percent, a family could afford to purchase a home costing 3.6 times its annual income, or $138,240.

The survey found 95.6 percent of the homes sold in Vineland during the first quarter were priced at or below $138,240.

"Vineland-Millville-Bridgeton is an area of relatively low housing prices and relatively high income and that's why it topped the list of most affordable housing markets," Thompson, an Owensboro, Ky., builder, said.

The area, about 40 miles southeast of Philadelphia, replaced Jackson, Mich., at the top of the list.

On the other hand, the median income in San Francisco was $57,600 while the median home price was $280,000, with the typical family affording a home costing $207,360.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Casino investor defends donations

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas developer and casino investor says his $205,000 in donations to Gov. Ann Richards and Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock were made because he's interested in good government and not in expanding gambling in Texas.

In a telephone interview Thursday, Daniel P. Robinowitz told The Dallas Morning News the topic of casinos never came up in private meetings that he said he had with the state's top two elected officials in Austin.

The meeting was held just prior to the time he gave $105,000 to Richards and $100,000 to Bullock.

The two officials told the newspaper that there were no such private meetings.

Hondo man indicted for attempted fraud

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted a Hondo businessman, two of his firms and an Israeli man on charges of attempting to defraud the U.S. and Israeli governments in connection with the purchase of military items.

The indictments accused Arthur Stewart, 50, Gary Aerospace Corp. and Medina Technology Corp., all of Hondo, and Yechiel "Yale" Bart, 48, of Madison, Conn. of 24 charges.

The 19-page indictment alleges that Stewart is vice president and chief operating officer of Gary Aerospace and the sole shareholder of Medina Technology, described as "a shell company without assets, business or employees."

Stewart was unavailable for comment Thursday, the San Antonio Express-News reported.

A&M cancels $20 million project

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — Texas A&M appeared on the verge today of scrapping construction of a $120 million utility plant, the largest capital project in the university's history.

An estimated $15 million has already been spent in the initial phase of the project, and a Dallas company has already billed as much as $2 million in consultant fees, A&M board chairwoman Mary Nan West said Thursday.

The proposed construction of a cogeneration project, as well as efforts to privatize some operations at the state's second-largest university, has been part of an expansive state and federal investigation since last September.

On Thursday, the parent Texas A&M University System announced that it would be conducting an audit of the project.

Regents were expected today to uphold an administrative decision to stop negotiations to build a cogeneration plant.

Former health club tycoon Richard Louis Minns and his then-wife Mimi pose in this 1975 photo in Houston. Minns was arrested by U.S. Customs officers Tuesday at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport and is charged with six counts of obtaining passports under false identities.

Millionaire fugitive finally in federal custody in Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — They met on the ski slopes and fell in love 17 years ago — a Houston health spa tycoon and a California pre-med student and part-time model.

But their romance soured and he fled the country after hired gunmen attacked her in a 1980 shooting outside a Houston doughnut shop, leaving her paralyzed from the waist down.

Now, Richard Minns is in federal custody in Texas on passport fraud charges, while his ex-girlfriend still is waiting for him to pay a $32 million civil judgment.

Minns, founder of the President & First Lady Health Club chain, is to appear in a Dallas federal court today, several days after he was arrested at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport when his flight to Canada made a scheduled stop and he disembarked.

Federal prosecutors said Thursday they will ask that Minns, now 64, be held without bond until he is tried in Houston.

Although never charged in the shooting of Barbra Piotrowski, now using the name Janni Smith, Minns sold his business interests and left the country more than 12 years ago.

The story of the couple's affair-gone-awry was chronicled in the 1991 book, "Sleeping With the Devil," by former trial lawyer Suzanne Finstad.

State, DOE near settlement

DALLAS (AP) — Texas and the U.S. Department of Energy could be close to a settlement in the dismantling of the super collider, according to a report in today's editions of The Dallas Morning News.

Congressional sources told The News that attorneys for the state and the Energy Department are ready to sign a deal that would resolve Texas' claims concerning the more than $400 million it had invested in the high-energy physics project, the newspaper reports.

Last October, Congress canceled the $11 billion, 53-mile underground atom smasher, which was under construction near Waxahachie south of Dallas.

Sources told the newspaper Gov. Ann Richards and a bipartisan group of the Texas congressional delegation were expected to announce the deal today, which could mean between $100 million and $200 million in cash for the state for the final shutdown of the project.

Part of the deal being discussed would include cash reimbursements of up to $200 million for Texas, which also would get to keep the linear accelerator, all the land and the magnet development laboratory. Texas also would get the buildings, equipment and other facilities at the site and provisions for leasing them back to the federal government.

Sources told the newspaper that the proposed settlement, which still must be approved by the Energy Department and the Texas National Research Laboratory Commission, would give the Energy Department liability for the already completed 14 miles of tunnel. Ownership of the tunnel was a key sticking point in the negotiations.

Commission chairman Shelton Smith, who participated in the negotiations, could not be reached at his Houston office or home for comment Thursday night by The Associated Press. The commission oversees the state's investment in the collider.

Congress already has earmarked more than $735 million to cover the costs of ending the massive project.

Return of Alamo's flag won't be easy

AUSTIN (AP) — A state senator is trying to help Texans remember the Alamo. But it won't be an easy task.

Sen. Carlos Truan, D-Corpus Christi, is laying the groundwork to recover a battle flag seized by Mexican troops at the 1836 Battle of the Alamo.

For years, the government in Mexico has rebuffed American attempts to reclaim the flag.

But Truan hopes improved relations tied to the North American Free Trade Agreement and three Mexican flags seized by Texas troops at the Battle of San Jacinto will produce an exchange.

He is not holding his breath, however.

"My opinion is that they may want to continue to have the Texas flag for historic reasons and national pride," Truan said.

"This is a very sensitive discussion and ought not to be taken as just a casual exchange.

"To them, they have a flag that was captured at the Alamo, where they were victorious. And these three flags we have were taken when they were defeated."

On Thursday, the Texas State Library and Archives Commission voted unanimously to endorse Truan's plan to initiate steps aimed at exchanging the Texas flag, which is on display in Mexico City, for the three flags taken from Mexican troops during the Texas Revolution.

State Archives Commission Director William Gooch says Truan's plan would mark the first time the Mexican government has been offered something in exchange for the flag.

"They have tried this before," Gooch said. "We tried to borrow the flag and Mexico wouldn't relinquish it. But this is the first time I have seen anything where we have in print that there is the possibility of exchanging something they own for something we own."

"The (Texas) flag has importance because it's 150-some-odd years old," Gooch said.

Quote of the Day

"Ever notice that no matter what happens in one day, it exactly fits in the newspaper?" Jerry Seinfeld

Rabies vaccination important

Although Howard County hasn't had any rabies cases this year, it is happening around us.

And, our pets are not immune to rabies without some preventative maintenance. Neither are their human owners.

Since wild animals don't respect city limit signs, the chances of your pet getting rabies increases. The treatment for your pet is death; the treatment for you is a painful series of shots.

In Texas, pet owners are required to vaccinate their pets yearly for rabies.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

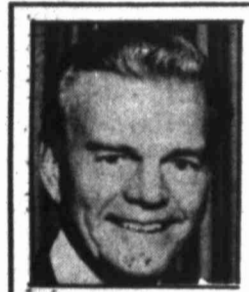

Charles C. Williams DD Turner Publisher Managing Editor

Already this year, rabies epidemics are hitting South and West Central Texas. Gov. Ann Richards has declared a state health emergency in these areas.

It only makes sense to take care not only of yourself, but of the animals you have taken into your home.

Civil rights, criminal wrongs

Paul Harvey, why have you been talking and writing so little about the O.J. Simpson case?

Paul Harvey Columnist

It's a matter of perspective. Mine never has conformed either to the tabloid emphasis on what's sensational or the journalistic judgment of what's socially significant.

Somewhere in between, there is a wider segment of mostly behaving Americans who were once referred to as "the silent majority."

While I concede their -- and my own -- inevitable interest in the Simpson tragedy, I have deliberately backed off from detailing the day-by-day rehash of evidence, malevolence and conjecture.

Each day, there is some revelation of surely more lasting significance to most of us. Of all the observations about the Simpson tragedy I have heard or read, one of them is in a book that was written months before this multiple killing occurred.

Olga Silverstein, family therapist, wrote a book called "The Courage to Raise Good Men" (Viking Press).

She wrote, "The definition of what it means to be a man in our culture is in crisis. Men are expected to be brutal killers in war and on the athletic field and also to be loving husbands and fathers."

This, says Dr. Silverstein, "demands that every man be a split personality."

And that, of course, is a definition of mental illness. Further, when what the world calls success -- mostly measured in money and celebrity -- comes too early and easily, inevitably, those lionized are soon spoiled rotten.

They are so accustomed to deference from friends and fans that any rejection is more than they can handle.

Our society stresses that winning is everything. We overvalue the qualities we call "masculine," leaving men with but one allowable emotion: anger.

Dr. Silverstein -- and remember that her observations were written before this year's blood bath in Los Angeles -- concludes, "A man taught to be a winner at all costs in terms of sports, money, career and sexual conquest cannot tolerate losing."

It is as though her extraordinary insight allowed Dr. Silverstein to foresee what presently appears to be the rage of rejection that terrible night on Brentwood's Bundy Drive.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) at its recent convention heard from its now leader, William Gibson, that his organization will shift its emphasis from civil rights to criminal wrongs -- addressing primarily the issues of crime and drugs and education.

The agenda proposed for his organization might be an appropriate one for our nation. If the crashing crescendo of recent violence shakes us awake and realigns our priorities, it was not for naught.

Letters to the Editor

Thoughtful friends helped save home

To the Editor: Last Thursday, the one thing I never thought would happen to me happened. I received a call telling me there was a fire on my property. In route by way of Interstate 20, I could see the amount of smoke coming from the fire. I felt sure there would be no hope of anything being left by the time I got there.

Because we have within our communities of Big Spring, Sand Springs and Coahoma both men and women willing to give of themselves and their time to volunteer as firemen, I found there was hope of having a home left after all.

I would like to say thank you so very much for the efforts you all made to save my home. Thanks to each of your families that it takes you away from. I know the long hours it took to insure the fires were our was time taken from them. Whatever the reason each of you have found to volunteer, I'm glad you have.

Also, I would like to say thanks to Trip Trucking for the truck loads of water used to put out the fire. People helping people make me proud to be a part of this community.

Acceptance of unwed motherhood aggravating problem?

It wasn't too many years ago that having a child out of wedlock was deemed a disgrace. Young women mysteriously disappeared -- "She's visiting Aunt Hattie in Ohio" -- rather than endure the embarrassment of a pregnancy in their home towns.

Those days are gone forever. So many young mothers have never been married that neighbors think nothing of it. At last report, two-thirds of black children, more than 38 percent of Hispanic children and nearly 22 percent of white children were born to unmarried mothers.

A new Census Bureau survey shows that children are almost as likely to be living with a never-married parent as with a divorced parent. In 1993, about 27 percent of children under 18 lived with only one parent, up from 12 percent in 1970.

It's not that marriage is going out of style. The number of married persons increased from 95 million to 114.5 million between 1970 and 1993. It's just that unwed motherhood has become so common that in some communities it's considered the conventional lifestyle.

Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., an early lamenter of illegitimacy, warns that 50 percent of children will be born out of wedlock by the turn of the century if the trend continues.

Unwed motherhood has public policy implications because many of these women are poor, unemployed and supported by the taxpayers under the federal Aid to Families with Dependent Children program. In some cases, women become pregnant again while on welfare, thereby qualifying for more money when the child is born.

Are we aggravating the problem through bland acceptance of unwed motherhood? Or are we foolish enough to think that having children without marriage or money is as easy as falling off a rock?

Clinton appointees ready for hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) -- With Whitewater hearings looming, high-level Clinton appointees prepared for the glare of the national spotlight and the White House fired off a letter to Congress complaining of leaks.

White House Counsel Lloyd Cutler said, "I'm confident we're going to get a fair hearing," but administration spokeswoman Dee Dee Myers said Republicans may try to turn next week's events into a political spectacle.

"If the past is prologue, I'm not sure that" a fair hearing is "going to happen," Myers said.

Republicans countered that they will evenhanded -- but won't hesitate to ask difficult questions.

At the hearings, "you will see some very decent people who may have stepped over the line to protect the presidency," Rep. Jim Leach, ranking Republican on the House Banking Committee, said in an interview.

Cutler -- who is likely to be one of the early witnesses when the House Banking Committee opens hearings Tuesday -- sent a letter to Capitol Hill asking that a requested ethics investigation of Whitewater leaks be expanded.

There had been Whitewater leaks earlier in the week, prompting a request for an ethics inquiry. In the latest instance, complained the White House, Newsweek magazine had information from a Whitewater deposition given by senior presidential adviser George Stephanopoulos.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Democrats prepare for reform showdown

WASHINGTON (AP) -- Saying they had "listened to America," Democratic leaders are pledging major changes in President Clinton's unpopular plan for health reform as Congress points toward a summer showdown on legislation to provide insurance for all.

"Our plans will be less bureaucratic, more voluntary and will be phased in over a longer period of time," Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said following a meeting Thursday evening with the president, Hillary Rodham Clinton and top White House aides.

Said House Speaker Thomas Foley: "We believe we are proposing legislation that can receive majority support in the House and Senate." Votes are expected in August.

None of the participants provided detailed specifics of the changes that are still in the drafting stage.

O.J. media offensive could backfire on him

LOS ANGELES (AP) -- O.J. Simpson was headed back to court to take another step closer to trial, while some legal observers wondered if his two-day media blitz represented a step back.

Several lawyers said Simpson's media offensive -- which included setting up a toll-free tip line and offering a $500,000 reward for information leading to the "real killer" -- could backfire.

But other lawyers said it was a shrewd move that could swing public opinion back to Simpson's side.

Today's arraignment, which is required when a defendant is ordered to stand trial, designates a judge for the trial and sets a date for the first pretrial hearing.

WORLD

NEWS IN BRIEF

Nuclear talks could resume soon

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) -- The United States and North Korea will resume talks aimed at ending a 16-month nuclear standoff on the Korean peninsula on Aug. 5, the North announced today.

The agreement on the Geneva talks, which were suspended after the death of North Korean President Kim Il Sung, was reached after discussions at the United Nations.

In another sign of easing tensions, South Korea announced today it will lift an order that put its 650,000-member military on high alert because of Kim's death.

Defense Ministry officials cited the absence of unusual troop movements in the North. South Korea had ordered the alert because it feared instability in the North after Kim's death.

Peace plan worthless with Serbs involvement

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) -- Hedging by Bosnia's Serbs on a take-it-or-leave-it peace plan has made the deal invalid and should result in international reprisals, the Bosnian president said in another blow to efforts to end the country's 27-month-old war.

President Alija Izetbegovic was careful to avoid outright withdrawal of his government's acceptance of the plan Thursday. But he said that was possible if the world community failed to implement threatened new sanctions against the Serbs.

Bosnia's Muslim government voted Monday to accept the plan.

Despair hits refugees very hard in Zaire

GOMA, Zaire (AP) -- Bodies lie everywhere. Deadly cholera and other diseases run rampant. Food is scarce and water polluted.

The steadily deteriorating conditions in the sprawling camps that sprung up here have driven many of the more than 1 million Rwandan refugees into despairing passivity and pushed others to the edge.

"What do you mean I must make sure to boil the water?" Dafrose Kabutumwa asked incredulously of a reporter Thursday. "Can't you see we're all going to die here anyway?"

Weakened by exhaustion, malnutrition and terror, the refugees are dying from cholera at a rate too fast to count, relief workers say. Others fall victim to dysentery, dehydration and starvation.

At a mass gravesite, a traffic jam built up as trucks loaded with bodies waited their turn to dump corpses.

"It's been like this all afternoon. There are at least 40 (bodies) in each truck," said a French soldier at the scene.

In Muniigi, one of the several refugee camps around Goma, there was one cholera case on Tuesday. By Thursday, 250 people were dead.

"We had maybe 10 cases reported yesterday, dozens overnight, today hundreds, and it will continue," Isabelle Pardieu of Doctors Without Borders said.

The humanitarian agency said its doctors reported 800 dead before they stopped counting the bodies on a five-mile stretch of road from Goma to the Muniigi camp.

Cholera most commonly spreads through water contaminated by excrement. The U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees said it needs governments to help build 60,000 latrines and provide clean water to try to get the epidemic under control.

In the meantime, some despairing refugees are beginning to crack under the stress.

Old enemies tread path to peace

SOUTH SHUNEH, Jordan (AP) -- For many Jordanians, the Israelis standing on the roof of the Dead Sea Spa hotel here appeared to be dancing. Few knew their swaying movements were part of Jewish prayers.

A Jordanian army officer helped an elderly Israeli journalist into a helicopter, a small act but an example of direct contact that would have been unthinkable only a week ago.

Everything has changed now.

The historic visit Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres paid to the kingdom on Wednesday, and King Hussein's upcoming summit with Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin in Washington have changed yesterday's enemies to today's friends.

Negotiators wound up a week of peace talks Thursday by discussing a proposed free-trade zone and agreeing on a plan to develop a desert valley along their border. The plan is expected to be presented at Monday's summit.

Few Jordanians had ever dealt with Israelis until this week's dramatic events, which set Jordan and the Jewish state on a solid course toward peace after 46 years of conflict.

Munchak calls it quits

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Guard Mike Munchak, who earned nine Pro Bowl selections and anchored the Houston Oilers line for 12 seasons, announced Thursday that chronic knee problems have forced his retirement.

Munchak, 34, will remain with the Oilers as assistant to football operations, working with the offensive line on a day-to-day basis.

"What I'll miss the most is the camaraderie of the offensive line," Munchak said. "When you walk away from football, you never have that again. Offensive linemen have to stick together."

"So, I'll remember those times when we weren't winning but we were still busting our butts trying to win."

The Oilers will retire Munchak's No. 63 jersey on Nov. 6 during halftime of the Oilers game in the Astrodome against Pittsburgh. Munchak is the fourth Oiler to have his jersey retired following Elvin Bethea (65), Earl Campbell (34) and Jim Norton (43).

Munchak was the Oilers' No. 1 draft choice out of Penn State in 1982. The Oilers didn't make the playoffs until 1987, when they started a string of seven straight appearances.

The first playoff victory against Seattle in 1987 is especially memorable for Munchak. "I remember winning the game in overtime and the place was sold out," Munchak said.

Houston guard Mike Munchak answers a question during a news conference announcing his retirement Thursday in San Antonio.

"I walked off the field with Bruce (Matthews) and Dean (Steinkuhler) and after five years, we felt like we were finally on to something."

He was so respected that last season he suited up and played in 13 games without practicing during the week.

Over his career, Munchak endured nine knee surgeries, most on his left knee. He also had arthroscopic elbow surgery in 1989 and suffered a neck strain at the end of the 1992 season.

Despite the injuries, Munchak managed to play in 159 games, fifth on the club's all-time list.

College: New AD in 2 weeks

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Howard College will most likely have a new athletic director within two weeks, said a college administrator Wednesday.

Former athletic director/women's basketball coach Royce Chadwick left the school June 16 to take the women's basketball coaching job at Stephen F. Austin in Nacogdoches. Five days later, Howard administrators chose Terry Gray, formerly Chadwick's assistant, for the head coaching job, but they have taken their time choosing an athletic director.

"I believe within two weeks we'll have someone selected," said Terry Hansen, Howard's vice president of administrative systems, who along with college president Cheryl Sparks and her administrative cabinet is leading the search for an athletic director. "There have been no interviews at this point, but we are talking about it. Ever since Royce left, we've been talking between the administration and the coaches, not about the position but just making sure we've had all the bases covered between now and the time when we do fill the position."

Hansen said the athletic director will be hired within the college's athletic department, so likely candidates include Gray, men's basketball coach Tommy Collins, baseball coach Brian Roper and rodeo coach Mike Yeater. No one in the department has said they don't want the job, Hansen said, but no one is beating down his door, either.

"The athletic director position is one that requires a lot of time - there's a lot of overhead with it," Hansen said. "It's a lot of added responsibility on the coach, and they probably all have enough to keep them busy already. Really, it's just going to take a really special person."

Tagliabue paints rosy picture for NFL season

NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue is convinced that once the 1994 season begins, all the griping about the salary cap will stop.

"By opening day, the cohesion and continuity of teams will be striking and the carping will end," said Tagliabue, who two months ago felt it necessary to order club executives to stop their public complaining about the $34.6 million cap, in use for the first time this season.

The season that begins Sept. 4 will be the NFL's 75th. And Tagliabue, as he does every year, predicted it would be "our best yet."

He predicted, for example, the end of the 9-6 field-goal contest of the kind that predominated early last season. And he suggested that once teams become used to free agency and the salary cap, there will be less movement.

"We don't want to be a league that started barnstorming around the country with George Halas and Red Grange, then ended up after 75 or 80 years with another type of barnstorming," Tagliabue said Thursday in a national conference call.

The NFL instituted a number of changes in the offseason in an effort to increase scoring - particularly touchdowns. The most dramatic was the 2-point conversion.

But Tagliabue said that he believes the more subtle changes - such as a crack-down on illegal chucking on receivers, a deeper alignment for the offensive line and more stringent enforcement of rushing the passer rules - will have an even more dramatic effect.

As for the salary cap, he said most coaches are satisfied with the system.

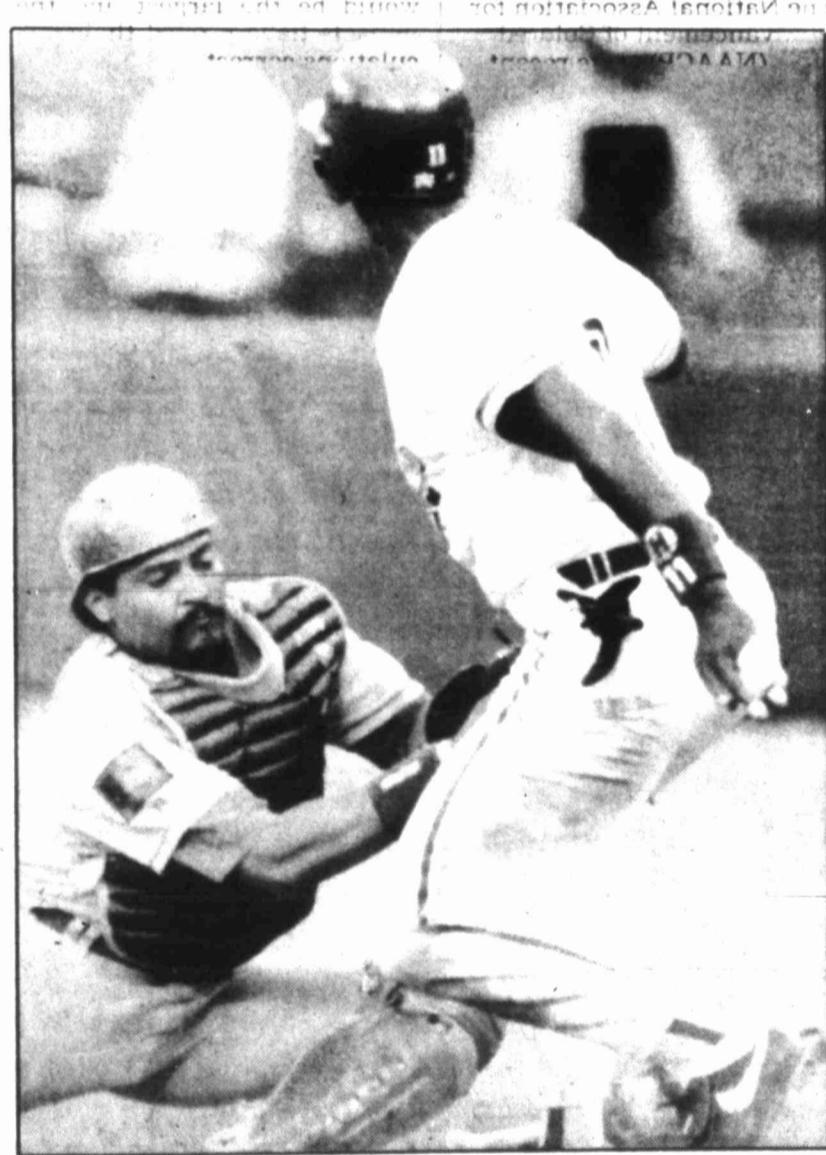

Perhaps, but not entirely. "I'd love for Jerry Jones to be able to spend all the money he'd like to on players," Barry Switzer, the new Dallas coach, said Thursday.

Dallas is one of those teams that could be hurt by the system. While the team that won two straight Super Bowls under Jimmy Johnson has retained most of its starters - linebacker Ken Norton was the most notable loss - it doesn't have the depth it's had over the last two seasons, meaning an injury to any number of starters could hurt.

Tagliabue noted that different teams have had to approach free agency in different ways. He compared older, traditionally successful teams like the Giants, who lost players because they couldn't match salaries under the cap to teams like New England.

Random thoughts while dialing O.J.'s 1-800 number:
News item the first: Hulk Hogan admits to using steroids.
Catch

more than likely he will have to miss a few games for his indiscretion.
This of course is nothing new to the game of baseball. The day after Abner Doubleday supposedly invented the sport, someone probably cheated at it.
There have been serious cheaters, like the infamous "Black Sox" of Chicago who were expelled from the sport for accepting bribe money, and there have been lesser sinners, such as Belle.

It really is a neat game, once you study its history.
This has been a strange year in baseball. First, there were juiced baseballs, now juiced bats - all being handled by players who have probably been juiced at one time or another.
I don't know where this train of thought is going, but it sounds interesting.

News item the third: Don King indicted for filing false insurance claim.
Another shocker.

Boxing promoter King, he of the gravity-defying hair, attracts controversy like John Wayne Bobbitt attracts butcher knives. He beat out a tax-evasion charge a few years back, but it seems like he's heading back to court.
"I believe in the American system of justice," King said. "I will be cleared."
The kicker is, he probably will.

News item the last: Various sources report Michael Jackson weds Lisa Marie Presley.
I know this has nothing to do with sports, but at least it knocked O.J. off the front cover of the National Enquirer.
That's worth something, don't you think?

while I faint.
The Hulkster? On steroids?
You mean that body of his, those rippling muscles, are not 100 percent natural?
Someone call the FBI - or better yet, the Texas Rangers.
No, not the baseball team.
This can't be. Hulk Hogan, who stands second only to Oliver North as champion of truth, liberty and the American Way, could not do something dastardly like willingly ingest illegal substances.
Next thing you know, they'll be claiming that pro wrestling is fake.
News item the second: Albert Belle suspended for using a corked bat.
Now, for the non-baseball fans out there who are wondering just what all the fuss is about, Belle is accused of filling the middle of his bat with cork, making it lighter and able to hit baseballs further as a result.
This is, however, contrary to the rules of baseball. This sacrosanct sport takes a dim view toward cheating, not to mention labor negotiations or profit sharing.
So Albert has been ordered to cool his heels for 10 games. He is currently playing while he appeals his punishment, but

Astros club Pirates; Jays do likewise to Rangers

HOUSTON (AP) — The way Pete Harnisch was pitching, he didn't need much in the way of runs from the Houston Astros.

But the hits were indeed there, and the combination worked for a 13-6 victory Thursday night over Pittsburgh.
 Harnisch (7-4) won his fifth consecutive game as he went seven innings, striking out four and scattering five hits. After starting off 2-4 this year, he's unbeaten since coming off the disabled list due to a shoulder injury in June.

"He had good stuff. He moves the ball in and out real well. Of course, he had quite a few runs early that gave him a lot of breathing room. That makes a pitcher's job easier," Pirates third baseman Jeff King said.
 Astros manager Terry Collins agreed.
 "He's been throwing great. He got a little tired after the seventh so we got him out of there. The last thing we need is a recurrence of his shoulder problems," Collins said.
 "As the game went along, his slider got better. But what he does is make good pitches with the fastball. He moves it around and then when they're looking for the fastball, he comes in with the breaking ball.

Blue Jays 9, Rangers 3

TORONTO — As he gets older, Paul Molitor seems to be getting better.

Molitor, one month shy of 38, is hitting .345 with 11 homers, 62 RBIs and 18 stolen bases without being caught.

Toronto Blue Jays manager Cito Gaston said Molitor's experience has helped him become a more complete player.

"He's got great instincts along with great talent. He knows how to play this game. He's a low maintenance kind of guy who plays hard," Gaston said Thursday night after Molitor homered twice, drove in four runs and scored four more to lead Toronto to its fifth straight win, 9-3 over the Texas Rangers.

"I'm not really, a home run hitter. I just try to find a good swing, maintain it and be consistent," said Molitor, who hit a two-run shot to center in the seventh inning to make it 7-3.

Cool cars cruise through town

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Let's go cruising now, everybody's goin' cruising now, how about cruising along at the Sonic?

The 1950's were a period of time filled with car hops, drive-ins, bobby socks and cool cars. A local car club is trying to recapture that nostalgia by hosting a car cruise on the first Saturday evening of every month.

The Big Spring Rod and Custom Car Club began the cruises in March as an incentive to get more members to join their club. Club member Sheila Burcham says people can see a variety of old cars at the cruises. "We began these cruises to get more members because we just had about three and as a promotion for our annual car show that was held in March."

"You can see anything from a 1927 T-Bucket, '57 Chevys, Mustangs, '32 and '34 Fords to even a ZZ Top type car. We had about 45 to 50 cars at our last cruise. The city let us closed off the side street to park our cars because we had such a good turnout," she explained.

The next car cruise is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 6 with the last one of the year on Sept. 3. "We've had such a good turnout so we will continue this next year," said Burcham.

"We chose to hold the cruises at Sonic because it's more like what it used to be with the car hops and it helps bring back some of the nostalgia."

Another advantage of holding it at a drive-in is that people do not have to get out to see the cars; they can just "cruise" around the parking lot and look around.

The last cruise in September will be in conjunction with the Rod Run Sept. 3 and 4. The cruise is open to anyone who wants to attend. The Early Car Club of Big Spring will provide meat for a barbecue.

"We will also have games and we are selling raffle tickets for a go-cart to be given away at the Sonic during the last cruise," Burcham said.

The car club currently has 30 members and is seeking other residents who love cars. Burcham says anyone can join the club as long as they have an interest in cars, but they do not have to have an old car in order to join.

For more information about the Big Spring Rod and Custom Car Club or the cruises, please call Sheila or Mike Burcham at 263-1035.

Cool cars like these are part of the cruises sponsored by the Big Spring Rod and Custom Club. You don't have to have a classic car to watch or participate...but if you do, so much the better!

DUCKS JUST GOTTA HAVE FUN

A duck lounging in the spray of the fountain at the Freedom Park pond in Odessa takes a drink from one of the jets of water July 19. The high temperature for the day approached 100 degrees and is expected to remain around the century mark for the next few days.

Plastics firm develops kosher food packaging

HOUSTON (AP) — For those worried about modern packaging contaminating kosher food because of the animal fat additives contained in plastics, there's a new product.

Houston-based Solvay Polymers Inc. say they have developed a new process using vegetable-based additives to eliminate the possibility of contamination.

"We're making this information available to others in the industry because it's not right or fair to take advantage of people and make them buy from us for religious or philosophical reasons," said Mike Killough, a Solvay Polymers spokesman.

Animal-fat additives commonly used in plastics manufacturing can leach out of food containers and contaminate kosher products for Jews and halal dishes for Muslims.

The process has been overseen by Rabbi Jonah Gewirtz, chairman of Certified Shipping Packaging Transport Inc.

That Silver Spring, Md.-based group certifies food packaging and handling materials comply with religious, philosophical and health-related standards of Jews, Muslims, Seventh-Day Adventists and vegetarian groups.

Under kosher and halal dietary laws, meat consumed in meals must be from animals slaughtered in a ritual process. Kosher requirements also prohibit mixing meat and milk products at the same meal and ban consumption of pork or pork derivatives.

Scientists create virtual reality tour of ruined Dresden church

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, N.C. (AP) — As workers in Dresden, Germany, lay the first stones to rebuild a Baroque church destroyed in World War II, computer scientists here are creating a 3-D version of what the finished project will look like.

Using a virtual reality headset, viewers can see the blue doors of the church open to a view of the ornate ivory-and-gold altar and the organ that Johann Sebastian Bach played in 1736.

Light coming through the Protestant church's clear windows illuminates paintings of the Apostles in the inner dome, which virtual tourists can observe more closely by pushing a button to "fly" up there.

IBM Germany hired the scientists at Research Triangle Institute to help create the virtual reality model in order to generate money to rebuild the actual Frauenkirche, or Church of Our Lady, said Robert Haak, special projects manager for IBM Germany. The rebuilding is expected to cost about $150 million.

Some critics have questioned the wisdom of spending such a large amount of money on the ruined church, which lies in the economically strapped former East Germany.

Yet Haak says most Dresden residents support the project. All but 10 percent of the money comes from private donations.

"One could think it's more important to build apartments," Haak said in a telephone interview from his office in Stuttgart, Germany. "But the people of Dresden want this."

The Foundation to Rebuild the Frauenkirche, a private group made up mainly of Dresden residents, has been working since the late 1980s to generate support for the reconstruction.

IBM Germany offered its help in 1989, providing money, equipment and consultants, and workers last year began clearing rubble from the site. They expect to complete the project by 2006, the 800th anniversary of the city of Dresden, Haak said.

The original church, on the Elbe River, took about 16 years to build and was completed in 1742.

The church survived the Allied bombing that destroyed much of Dresden in February 1945, but toppled in the firestorm that immediately followed.

"It was a very elegant city," said Gerhard Weinberg, a professor specializing in World War II history at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Weinberg said rebuilding the Dresden church has political and social significance for eastern Germany.

"It's the general sense of rebuilding religious life in a society in which religious life was tolerated but discouraged by the Communist regime for decades," he said.

The virtual reality model of the church met rave reviews in March, when it was unveiled at a computer trade show in Hanover, Germany. One person donned a special helmet and maneuvered a hand-held control to navigate the tour. For the demonstrations, the images then were projected onto a small theater screen viewed by people wearing 3-D glasses.

The scientists plan to set up a similar demonstration pavilion in Dresden in September, Haak said.

The church's interior is one of the most complex virtual worlds ever constructed, said Dale Rowe, director of RTI's Center for Digital Systems.

Moyers claims media ignores religion

NEW YORK (AP) — Television journalist Bill Moyers says "something is happening in America" that reflects increasing religious concern, but it is mainly ignored by the media.

He says the absence of religion on TV is particularly disturbing, since television has become "our all encompassing environment" shaping modern culture.

"Just about every other human endeavor is the subject of continuing coverage by the media even to the point of saturation," Moyers said. "Economics, politics and government, business, foreign policy, sports, sex, cooking, consumer interests, physical fitness, movies and entertainment, war, crime, even wrestling."

He said religion receives significant coverage only when scandals or violence are involved. But there is "no room in the inn" for religion as a "crucial force in American life," he said. "So most Americans remain religiously illiterate."

Moyers, a seminary-trained former CBS-TV news analyst and now producer-interviewer for television public service programs, addressed a Religious Newswriters Association dinner April 29 marking the 60th anniversary of Religion News Service.

RNS, founded by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in 1934 and lately owned by the United Methodist Reporter, recently was acquired by Newhouse News Service and will move its headquarters from New York to Washington.

INSPIRATION

Christians under construction

By ELWIN COLLOM
First Baptist Church, Coahoma

The Southern Baptist Convention was in Orlando this past June. I know it was a dirty job, but someone had to do it, so I volunteered to take my family as messengers from our church.

Of course, all they were interested in was Walt Disney World, MGM, Universal Studios, Sea World, etc., while all I was concerned about was doing my duty as a messenger.

(Although I did graciously volunteer to take them to those other places after the convention was over so my wife wouldn't have to drive in that awful traffic. Aren't I a jewel?)

On June 12 we loaded up our mini-van and headed for Florida. Whenever one begins a journey of this nature, there is one thing that is assured; there will be construction on the highway.

Florida is no exception. It seemed that at every major exit, city or intersection, there was always an endless line of orange fluorescent cones narrowing two lanes into one, followed by the typical road construction crew of 10 men watching one do all the work.

In all honesty though, keeping up our nation's highways is an endless task. The interstate highways are always under construction.

The same is true of the Christian. The Christian is always under spiritual construction at the hands of the Holy Spirit under the watchful eye of the Heavenly Father.

Paul wrote to the Philippians about this spiritual construction in verse 1:6 of that epistle: "For I am confident of this very thing, that He who began a good work in you will perfect it until the day of Christ Jesus" (NASB).

The King James Version used the phrase "will perform it until the day of Jesus Christ." The increasingly popular NIV uses the phrase, "will carry it on to completion until the day of Christ Jesus."

When we put all of those together, what we see is that God is always at work in the believer. Christians aren't perfect, they are just forgiven, and as such they are on their way to perfection.

In the Bible, perfection means completion. That is, it means that something is "whole" more than it means that something is "without flaw." That doesn't make Christians any innately "better" than anyone else, because it is God who began the work, it is also God who continues the work.

That work begins on the day the believer confesses Jesus Christ as a personal Lord and Savior. It will continue until Christ returns, drawing a close to this age as we know it. For some that work is slow, for others it is fast. How close we are to completion is determined by how submissive and obedient we are to the Lord.

Today's prayer: "Lord, I'm sorry I'm not always what I should be. Forgive me. I thank You for not giving up on me. I also thank You for continually working in my life, making me into the person You want me to be.

Facts About The BIBLE BY JOHN ZEHTI

MEAT AND MILK NOT TO BE EATEN AT THE SAME MEAL!

THREE TIMES THE BIBLE SPECIFICALLY STATES "THOU SHALT NOT SEETHE (BOIL) A KID IN HIS MOTHER'S MILK." (EXODUS 23:19, EXODUS 34:26, DEUT. 14:21). THIS WAS GOD'S LAW LAID DOWN TO ISRAEL BY MOSES AND, TO THIS DAY, THE ORTHODOX HAVE NO MEAT AND MILK AT THE SAME MEAL. MANY PEOPLE THINK THIS WAS A DIETARY LAW—THAT MILK AND MEAT TOGETHER WOULDN'T DIGEST WELL, ESPECIALLY IN THE HOT DESERT CLIMATE—WHICH IS NONSENSE! MILK AND MEAT, BOTH HIGH PROTEIN FOODS, DIGEST AS EASILY TOGETHER AS THEY DO APART—HOT WEATHER OR COLD... BUT THERE WAS A GOOD REASON, IN MOSES' EYES, FOR THIS LAW—VERY UNDERSTANDABLE WHEN WE EXAMINE A CUSTOM OF THE IDOL WORSHIPPERS WITH WHOM THE ISRAELITES CAME INTO CONTACT IN THEIR DAILY LIVING....

NEVER A DAY WENT BY THAT SOME HEATHEN FAMILY DIDN'T TURN UP AT THE TEMPLE WITH THIS DELECTABLE DISH, CONVINCED THEIR GODS WOULD ENJOY IT AND SO SMILE DOWN ON THEM WITH FAVOR! IS IT ANY WONDER, THEN, THAT MOSES ORDERED HIS PEOPLE TO HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH THIS DISH AT ANY TIME—EVER! THE IDEA THAT SOME ISRAELITE MIGHT OFFER TO GOD THE SAME THING THAT WAS GIVEN TO A STONE (IDOL WAS UNTHINKABLE! YE SHALL NOT DO AS THE HEATHEN DO, WAS THE ORDER OF THE DAY SO THAT ISRAEL MIGHT CONTINUE... "A PECULIAR (SPECIAL) PEOPLE... ABOVE ALL THE NATIONS THAT ARE UPON THE EARTH" (DEUT. 14:2)

MOSES CONSTANTLY ADMONISHED HIS PEOPLE TO STAY PURE IN GOD'S EYES—TO HAVE NOTHING TO DO WITH HEATHEN IDOLATERS. THE YOUNG MEN WERE FORBIDDEN TO "GO WITH THE DAUGHTERS OF BAAL," WHICH MANY OF THEM DID! MOSES COULD FORSEE THE DANGER OF HIS YOUNG NATION DISAPPEARING FROM EARTH, NOT BY WAR, BUT BY THE SIMPLE PROCESS OF INTER-MARRIAGE—SO HE ORDERED ISRAEL TO AVOID ALL CUSTOMS OF THEIR HEATHEN NEIGHBORS TO FORESTALL ANY OF THEIR WAYS CREEPING INTO THE LIVES OF HIS PEOPLE. JUST AS ISRAELITES BROUGHT SACRIFICES TO GOD'S ALTAR, SO DID THE HEATHEN TO THEIR IDOLS—A POPULAR OFFERING WAS A TASTY DISH OF BOILED YOUNG KID OR LAMB IN ITS MOTHER'S MILK (OR ANY MILK FOR THAT MATTER). THE MEAT JUICE AND THE MILK SOILED INTO A SAVORY SAUCE SO DELICIOUS THAT THE PRIESTS AND TEMPLE PROSTITUTES COULD HARDLY WAIT TO GRAB AND EAT IT BEFORE THE DONOR, WHO HAD BROUGHT IT, LEFT THE TEMPLE!

TAKE TIME OUT FOR YOURSELF READ THE BIG SPRING HERALD

Golf, faith mix in new book

As those who play the game with any regularity can attest, golf can be frustrating.

The beauty of a 250-yard drive down the middle of the fairway is no more meaningful in terms of strokes than a 6-inch putt. In a sport such as tennis, a bad game or even a bad set can be shaken off; but just one bad hole in five hours of play leaves an indelible mark on a golfer's score card. So there is little mystery why many golfers turn to a bar for their "19th hole."

But for the Rev. John Freeman, the joys and sorrows of chasing a little white ball through fairway and stream have been a source of theological reflection as well as occasional frustration.

When it comes down to it, the Atlanta-based United Methodist minister said in a recent interview, there are striking parallels between golf and Christianity.

"To me, it's a paradoxical game, and Christianity to me is paradoxical," Freeman said. "Golf is like Christianity: It's simple, but it's hard. It's delightful, but it's maddening."

In a new book, "Tee-ology: Golf's Lesson for Christians and Other Seekers," Freeman offers 18 meditations on the relationship between golf and faith. Each chapter in the book, published by the Intentional Growth Center in Lake Junaluska, N.C., begins with a biblical passage, and then uses a golfing analogy to shed new light on the verse.

For example, in a chapter titled "No Sandbagging," Freeman talks about the golfers' temptation to cheat — moving the ball with their feet to give themselves a better lie, or not counting every stroke — when discussing Paul's warning in Romans: "Should we continue in sin in order that grace may abound? By no means."

Defeating the human tendency to rationalize cheating in small ways is when the victory over sin begins, Freeman writes.

"Is there a better place to practice this type of straight shooting than on the golf course?"

In another chapter expounding on the Gospel of Mark's telling of a poor widow contributing two small copper coins — a religious gift deemed larger than any other because she contributed "all she had to live on" — Freeman relates the biblical account to golf by pointing out that a short putt to save par is just as important as the long drive that sets up a hole.

"Long or short, a stroke is a stroke. They all count the same, in faith or in golf," he says.

In the interview, Freeman said he realizes that some people may consider it somewhat frivolous to make comparisons between faith and golf.

But Freeman, an assistant professor of practical theology at Emory University's Candler School of Theology in Atlanta, said one could consider that Jesus in the Gospels speaks in "the common language of everyday experience."

Jesus communicates the great truths of the faith through parables that deal with ordinary activities such as fishing and farming.

California church celebrates freedom with Desmond Tutu

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Archbishop Desmond Tutu returned to a church here that was active in the anti-apartheid movement to celebrate the historic elections in South Africa.

"We are free, all of us. Blacks and whites together," Tutu told the 2,500 parishioners jammed into the pews of All Saints Episcopal Church earlier this month.

When the Nobel Peace Prize laureate last visited the church in 1990, he expressed the hope that someday blacks in South Africa would know the freedoms that had been won by blacks in the United States.

Many of the All Saints parishioners had supported boycotts to end white minority rule.

"When I was here last, we were talking of the hope of something happening," Tutu, 62, said from the pulpit. "And now, a miracle ... unfolding before our very eyes."

"You supported the call of sanctions against a government that was unjust," Tutu said.

Tutu, the archbishop of Cape Town and Anglican primate of Southern Africa, spoke midway through an 18-day trip of the United States.

Parents, plan ahead to preserve family's past

DEAR ABBY: In a world where many marriages no longer last a lifetime and divorce is common, a few words of advice may help prevent much heartache for those we love the most.
 Parents who have remarried and have adult children would be doing their children a kindness if:
 1. They have written plans for their funeral, and have made provisions for its costs.
 2. They have discussed in advance the passing on of heirlooms, pictures, etc. Parents might want to consider having copies made of family photos for all the children. It is wise to go through the household and make written instructions stating who should have what.

 3. Parents took the time to write a family and/or personal history for their children and grandchildren.
 Copies of all of the above should be given to the current spouse, the children and a lawyer. This will protect both the spouse and the children.
 Abby, we don't like to think about death or look at the negative possibilities that can result from it, but thinking ahead can prevent untold difficulties. I know! My father lies in an unmarked grave because his fourth (and last) wife refused to pay for the $6,000 funeral that she had arranged. My father's children and his sister were asked to leave the memorial service early, so "the family" could be alone with the deceased.

 By the way, until that time, our relationship with my father and all of his wives was fairly civil. After the funeral, his last wife purchased a new Cadillac, sold his house, and took everything to another state, leaving no forwarding address. — LIVE AND LEARN
DEAR LIVE AND LEARN: Your letter provides one of the strongest arguments in favor of prenuptial agreements that I have ever seen. It is a wake-up call for anyone who has been previously married and is contemplating remarriage. Before tying the knot, see a lawyer.

Faith eases child's pain

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Death was near for the 11-year old boy, but his parents worried the sick child had no sense of what that meant.
 With his mother in the room, a doctor undertook a wide-ranging talk with the boy, touching on the Big Bang Theory and the David and Goliath story.
 The child asked the doctor if she prayed. The boy said that every night, he recited a prayer: "Now I lay me down to sleep, I pray the Lord my soul to keep, If I should die before I wake..."
 As the boy recited the prayer, he listened intently, said Dr. Diane Komp, a pediatric oncologist and professor at the Yale University School of Medicine in New Haven, Conn. He lived the next day — his last — without pain, she said.
 "I think when he listened to himself talking that was more important than what anyone could say to him," said Komp.
