Oven cleaner sprayed in girl's face

■ Three arrested in the assault

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

An 11-year-old girl is recovering this weekend after being sprayed in the face with oven cleaner by three neighborhood children.

According to reports, officers with the Big Spring Police Department were dispatched to the 1500 block of Mesa in reference to an injured child.

An 11-year-old Hispanic girl told officers she had been attacked while walking home from the store on Friday afternoon.

"Two of the juveniles apparently held the victim down while the third sprayed a can of oven cleaner onto the girl's face. She sustained chemical burns to her face and eyes as well as one of her arms," explained Detective Sgt. Scott Griffin.

The girl was taken by a private vehicle to Scenic Mountain Medical Center for treatment and later released.

Griffin continued, "shortly after arriving at the scene, patrol officers took the three alleged juvenile suspects into custody. A 10-year-old white male, a 12-year-old white female and a 13-year-old white male are currently in custody at the Juvenile Detention Facility."

Detectives are interviewing the suspects to determine a possible motive for the attack and the investigation continues.

FBI swoops in, raids Starr county's election results

RIO GRANDE CITY (AP) — Starr County officials say they have received no explanation for an FBI raid of election records at the courthouse.

"They gave us no whys at all," said County Clerk Omar Garza, the county elections administrator and custodian of county records. "They cleaned out our basement. If there's anything going on that shouldn't be, we want to know about it."

The records that were seized on Thursday will be evidence before a federal grand jury that meets on Aug. 22. But federal authorities refused to comment about the seizure and the ongoing investigation, which was authorized by a subpoena issued from the U.S. Southern District Court in Houston.

"I cannot confirm or deny anything that is headed for a grand jury," Bryan Best, an assistant U.S. attorney based in Houston, said.

As perplexed county officials stood by last week, FBI agents carted out dozens of boxes filled with election records.

Thursday, the FBI grabbed records from the 1992 November general election and the 1994 March Democratic primary election.

Agents Tuesday issued a subpoena for records from the May 1993 city incorporation election and the November 1993 mayoral and board of aldermen election.

City officials released the subpoenaed documents Friday to Jim Darling, attorney for Rio Grande City, who was to deliver the records to the FBI office in McAllen.

Requested by the subpoenas were voter registration cards, absentee ballots and the signatures of voters at polling places, all absentee ballot applications and envelopes used in the elections, and all absentee ballots sent through the U.S. Postal Service.

Results are in ... Citizens want new jail, law enforcement center

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

After years of talking and negotiating, the city of Big Spring and Howard County, with the blessings of the Big Spring Police Department and the Howard County Sheriff's Office, have agreed, at least in principle, to building a 192-bed jail and nothing else.

Howard County Commissioners, during a July 19 special meeting, voted 3-2 in favor of building a jail downtown without a joint law enforcement center. The Big Spring City Council voted 4-3 on July 26 to accept the commissioners' decision.

According to part of the plan voted on by council members earlier this spring, the city would pay for the demolition of the Permian Building and clear the lot for the new jail, and pay about $75,000 a year to house prisoners in the jail if a combined law enforcement center were included.

Mayor Tim Blackshear said, at the July 26 meeting, "I hate to abandon the idea of a com-bin law enforcement center, but I have to agree with Councilman John Paul Anderson."

Anderson said, "There are close to 100 'blue warrants' ready to be served that can't be because there is not enough room for the prisoners."

Councilman Chuck Cawthon said he believes voters in Big Spring and Howard County will vote the right way on the issues of a jail and combined law enforcement center, but the opportunity to have a combined law enforcement center might be dead in view of the council's recent vote.

Cawthon said, "I don't think we'll see a joint law enforcement center in my lifetime."

As commissioners and council members worked their way to deciding on a 192-bed jail, Commissioner Bill Crocker said he feels like the taxpayers' money is better spent on more jail space because the jail space is what's important.

Some of the deciding factors in building an expanded jail may have been the increasing crime rate, Texas' delay in building more state prisons, but commissioners and council members agree the ultimate decision will be that of the voters.

Residents of Big Spring and Howard County expressed their opinions by participating in a straw poll that asked three questions.

Does Howard County need a new jail?

Out of 87 responses, 62 (71 percent) said the county does need a new jail, while 19 (22 percent) respondents said no.

Should there be a joint law enforcement center with a new jail?

School finance still thorny problem

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

The issue of whether or not the latest school finance bill is constitutional may be not resolved until after the November general election.

Speculation is high among all those involved in Senate Bill 7 that the Texas Supreme Court justices will wait until after the governor's race to make a ruling.

State District Judge Scott McCown upheld the bill as constitutional last December but he is ordering the legislature to develop a plan for funding school facilities by Sept. 1, 1995.

"The bill is being challenged because the means by which the money is equalized by taking from the rich districts and redistributed by the state still isn't fair to those involved," explained Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary.

He continued, "he is also telling the lawmakers to go back and put in provisions for facilities. The last Supreme Court said the legislature had a responsibility to add facility funding and they did a little. He's saying to the legislature that they haven't done enough. Please see SCHOOL, page 3A

Jail

Fifty-five (63 percent) of the people responding said yes there should be a joint law enforcement center with a new jail while 27 (31 percent) said no.

How much should be spent on a new facility?

Out of three choices given, eight (9 percent) respondents were in favor of spending about $1.5 million; 10 (11 percent) responses were in favor of spending about $3 million; and 35 (40 percent) respondents were in favor of spending $4.5 million or more to build a new facility.

Another eight (9 percent) respondents said there shouldn't be a jail or a combined law enforcement center and they wouldn't spend anything.

Several participants in this poll wrote their comments down as well:

• Let's be progressive. Use the money wisely and make the facility large enough to make money from other counties' inmates so our taxpayers can be reimbursed.

• The commissioners should realize that the city is a large part of their constituent base.

• We need schools before jails. Jails don't stop crime.

• We're up to 'here' with taxes. I'd vote for housing criminals in tents.

• It is absurd to even consider anything except a joint center.

• We will always need more prisons unless our country starts punishing criminals instead of rewarding them for their crimes.

• When are they going to take to meet the requirements set by the court."

The legislature must come up with a way to equalize the types of facilities all school districts have by the September 1995 deadline. McCown has said if it is not done, state funds to schools will cease.

"The problem we have with the newest bill is the state isn't fully funding it to implement it. This becomes a burden to our taxpayers in Big Spring. They have to pick up a bigger share of public education and this isn't fair to them," added McQueary.

BSISD's 1994-95 budgeted revenue shows local taxpayers picking up the tab for nearly 49 percent of the money needed to operate. The state of Texas is providing only 46 percent and the federal government 5 percent.

"I know back in the 60's and until all of this started with the school finance bills, the state provided up to 80 percent of the revenue for our district and others in Texas. Now they provide about 40 to 45 percent and that needs to be reversed."

He added, "the legislature keeps burdening school districts with mandates but they don't fund them. We shouldn't be burden with non-funded mandates. For example, they recently passed a mandate saying there must be a 22 to one ratio in grades kindergarten through fourth."

"I think that's a good idea for there to be only 22 kids per teacher. They passed the law but didn't provide us with any money to hire new teachers or build extra classrooms. That ended up costing the local taxpayers $750,000."

McQueary says the situation is like a double-edged sword because on the one hand he hopes it is declared constitutional because it does provide some stability.

On the other hand, if the state does not fully fund all that is set out in the bill, McQueary says he would "love to see it declared unconstitutional because of the burden it would place on the local taxpayers."

According to a recent article in the July issue of "Texas Lone Star," property-poor districts say the new law "does not go far enough in providing financial equity among schools... (they) have suffered severe cuts in state aid this year and noted at least a $600-per-student funding gap continues to exist between property-poor and property-wealthy schools."

Attorneys for the state contend Texas has made "tremendous progress in equalizing school district dollars... funding is equalized for 85 percent of Texas schoolchildren," the article states.

Lawyers representing 263 school districts that intervened in the equity case say "the state is violating the suitable provision clause by shifting the primary burden of funding to local schools and not by paying for the mandates it imposes," continues the article.

On the other end of the spectrum, property-rich districts say the bill is unconstitutional because it creates a statewide property tax which is forbidden in the Texas Constitution.

Time now to work together

The people have spoken, at least 87 of them through a Herald survey on whether Howard County needs a new jail, a combined law enforcement center and cost.

Of the 87 that responded, 62 think there is a need for a new jail, 55 believe a combined law enforcement center should be included in the jail package.

As to cost, 35 respondents thought spending $4.5 million or more would be acceptable.

The haggle over a new jail has been ongoing for several years. This year, the first steps toward obtaining a new jail were taken. Recently, the commissioners decided to construction a 192-bed jail without a combined law enforcement center in the downtown area.

One concern expressed by the commissioners in the beginning was the number of beds - too many and Howard County would be stuck with empty beds which it couldn't afford.

While a combined law enforcement center is a relatively new item to the discussion, it is one the merits closer scrutiny than it has been given.

It simply makes sense, in our small community, for law enforcement to work together. A joint law enforcement center wouldn't strip either of its duties, there would still be a need police officers and sheriff's deputies. But other services, such as dispatcher, jailers, could be shared, with both the county and the city paying for the services.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

A combined center would also provide a much needed home for 911, which services not only the police and sheriff but ambulances, firefighters and the myriad others needed to take care of an emergency.

The county needs to rethink their decision for a 192-bed. It is the taxpayers money they are working with - county taxes paid by both city and county residents.

As one respondent put it "I live in the county, but it's time for the county commissioners to combine with the city council and learn to get along with each other."

As our tax base continues to shrink, combining services is the wave of the future on a local level as well as on the state and federal level.

It is long past time to put animosities behind us and move together toward a better Big Spring.

Letters to the Editor

Referendum needed to decide jail issue

Editor:
 In addition to returning the survey, let me add some thoughts concerning the current discussions concerning the jail-law enforcement center in the downtown area. These discussions have been going on far too long and it seems to be the on-going policy to eliminate previous agreements between the entities concerned.
 There has always been animosity between the Sheriff's Department and the Police Department and this has hindered the agreement as to what is needed.

Then, the County Commissioners seem to vacillate between previous suggestions made and accepted by the city, while the city has gone overboard in trying to get a good facility built that will best serve both city and county.

What all concerned need to remember is that our taxes feed the city and county budgets and ultimately it is the best service for the taxpayer that should be the deciding factors.

The 911 service definitely needs better quarters and a centralized dispatching service is certainly in the best interest of efficiency for all concerned.

Perhaps it needs a city-county referendum to determine the outcome rather than have the three different entities all wanting their way. This could include the funding needed to bring the project to a satisfactory conclusion.

Sincerely,

Federal government is the perfect cure for everything - NOT!

Have any of you caught the Whitewater hearings on C-Span?

I managed to catch a little of the House's version of the hearings and came away with bit upset with what I perceived as an attack on Rep. Henry B. Gonzalez, the Democrat from San Antonio.

Henry B. is a rare type of politician, one you can actually believe. You have to remember him. He's the one on C-Span, going on about deregulation of the banking and S&L industry and how it would create problems, to an empty House

Too bad there was no one there to listen or to pay attention to ol' Henry B. He refused to use the traditional methods of bringing his message home - the media - and chose instead to use C-Span. OK, so maybe that's not too bright, especially if you want to be heard.

You seldom hear of him doing anything negative such as taking too many trips at lobbyists' expenses or any of the other little ethical things which seem to catch most of those serving on Capitol Hill. He has simply been doing the job he was elected to do - one of those rare type of politicians.

So what was the one representative going on about lack of RTC oversight of the failed Arkansas S&L which presumably led to the Whitewater problem? Blaming Henry B.? Now, that made me just a little upset, and he doesn't even represent me.

Henry B. is a survivor and he will survive one representative trying to place the blame on him.

Give him credit, he was right about what would happen when the saving and loan industry was deregulated.

Then on to the crime bill marathon session which C-Span thoughtfully broadcast. Here again, I heard something which struck me as rather funny - Howard Metzbaum defending state's rights!

He was talking about federalizing the death penalty and how 15 states have voted repeatedly not to have a death penalty. His valid point was by federalizing the death penalty, the federal government has usurped the citizens' right to decide what they want in their

U.S. Rwandan involvement deepens

WASHINGTON — Deepening U.N. involvement in Rwanda poses the sticky question of what to do with the fanatical Hutu extremists who led the slaughter of tens of thousands of minority Tutsis.

Many of the killers are among those now seeking U.N. protection in neighboring Zaire and in a French-held corner of Rwanda.

Tutsi government wants reconciliation but with justice. That means United States and other countries will have to decide whether to hand over suspects or protect them in refugee camps. Either choice gives impression of taking sides, a perception that proved fatal in Somalia. Bigger danger is that Hutu extremists will form guerrilla force and fight to return to power.

Note: New preoccupation with Rwanda is dimming chances for a U.S. invasion of Haiti. "Where's Haiti?" quips one Pentagon briefer.

Odds are 60-40 that the Federal Reserve Board will raise interest rates — probably by half a percentage point — for the fifth time this year when its Open Market Committee meets Aug. 16.

Fed watchers cite a report showing that the economy grew at a healthy 3.7 percent rate in the second quarter as reason the Fed will act to nip inflation.

Effort to win votes by watering down employer mandates in health reform legislation gets no support from small businesses.

National Federation of Independent Business President Jack Faris says small businesses are just as opposed to a requirement that they pay 50 percent of health insurance premiums as they are to paying 80 percent of health insurance premium.

"If it were 5 percent, it would not be a good idea," says Faris.

Hillary Rodham Clinton trumpets her brand of health care reform around the country but keeps strategy talks with reform liberals in Congress under wraps. She steers clear of Washington reporters, even while holding almost daily sessions with key Democrats in the Capitol or White House.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Republicans chortle over this sentence from a House Democratic summary of budget control legislation: "If the president finds direct spending outlays to be more than 5 percent over the target, she would have to make recommendations to Congress to address the excess spending."

Look for the Senate ethics committee to come up empty handed after a half-hearted pass at finding out who leaked Whitewater-related excerpts from the diaries of Deputy Treasury Secretary Roger Altman and aide Joshua Steiner.

Most everything of the remotest interest appeared in the press long before the first witness was sworn in. The scuttlebutt is that the leaks came from the White House.

Tipper Gore said she and the vice president were startled recently to find all four kids gone from the mansion on a Saturday night. "I won't tell you what happened after that," she chuckled.

School boards press the Supreme Court to overturn a federal appeals court ruling opening way to liability charges against a Texas high school principal for his alleged failure to supervise a football coach who had sex with a 15-year-old student.

Coach Lynn Stroud finally quit Taylor High School under pressure, eventually pleaded guilty to criminal charges stemming from molestation of the girl, known in court papers as "Jane Doe."

Clinton administration is entering a crucial period where it will soon become clear whether the raft of new laws he pushed and signed will work as expected.

On the books or on the way are the crime bill, child protection legislation, parental leave, national service program, NAFTA and voter registration.

Remember how Clinton once blew his top at photographers?

nonstop snapping of First Cat Socks? They learned. Now even when Socks strolls in front of them or drapes himself across the sidewalk in front of the Oval Office, not a shutter clicks.

The Population Reference Bureau predicts the world's population will reach 9 billion by 2025, a 60 percent increase over 5.6 billion now sharing Earth's resources.

Average age today is 28 with one-third under 15 and 10 percent over 60. By 2030, average age will be 35.

Here's the predicted people mix in 2030: Asians, 59 percent (up 1 percent over 1994); Africans, 19 percent (up 7 over 1994); Industrial Nations, 14 percent (down 8); and Latin Americans, 8 percent (no change).

Democratic Reps. Elliot Engel of New York and Chris Shays of Connecticut lead drive for federal safety regulations for youth camps. Plan would require Department of Health and Human Services to collect data on the safety of camps, set up a new panel to set guidelines.

Don't hold your breath. The idea has been bouncing around Washington for 20 years.

QUOTABLE: During the first day of Whitewater hearings in the House, these comments were offered by two burghers of Capitol Hill with very different takes on the importance of it all:

"The question is: Where is the beef? It's kind of a shrinking patty. Some of us think it's a soyburger," Rep. Bruce Vento, D-Minn.

"It's sort of like saying where's the beef when somebody stole the kitchen," Rep. Richard Baker, R-La.

LUBBOCK (AP) — Housing and Urban Development Secretary Henry Cisneros was hit Friday with a fraud and breach-of-contract lawsuit by a former campaign aide who had a much-publicized affair with him.

Linda Medlar, who now lives in Lubbock, claims in her lawsuit that Cisneros has stopped making $4,000 monthly payments that he agreed to verbally in 1990. Cisneros already had paid her close to $200,000, her attorneys said.

Cisneros agreed to make the payments because he "recognized his responsibility for making her name, photograph, and life a public spectacle and for her public humiliation, and for the destruction of her career and her marriage, and agreed that he had a responsibility for the damage done," according to the lawsuit.

KERRVILLE (AP) — A judge has ruled jurors may consider parts of a videotaped confession in which a Tyler resident said he attacked a man because he was a homosexual but that he never intended to kill the victim.

Defense attorneys argued the confession is inadmissible, but state District Judge Joe D. Clayton disagreed Thursday and ruled it was made voluntarily.

Donald Aldrich goes on trial Monday for capital murder in the shooting death of Nicholas West last November near Tyler.

In a three-hour interview with investigators, Aldrich expressed a dislike for homosexuals and said they made easy targets.

DALLAS (AP) — Mayor Steve Bartlett says he will leave office having reduced some of the "animosity, distrust and meanness" that plagued Dallas city politics when he took office.

Bartlett said he has achieved most of his goals, but acknowledged the job was more intense than he expected. The former Republican congressman said less progress had been made on reducing City Council discord than he had hoped.

FORT WORTH (AP) — Actor-comedian Paul Rodriguez has apologized to students at a Fort Worth middle school after his appearance almost fell victim to the "cola wars."

Rodriguez's performance at J.P. Elder Middle School and another school were sponsored by Pepsi Cola after the company overruled a local distributor who canceled the event because the school sold only Coca-Cola.

During a half-hour speech Friday, Rodriguez warned the assembly of more than 1,000 students to resist involvement with the gangs and drugs.

Super collider-less water district drowning

Buena Vista-Bethel Special Utility District general manager Steve Sievers, right, and Don Walker pose in front of a water tower in Maypearl where the district has lost 30 percent of its revenue after the super collider shutdown. Sievers and Walker are looking for ways to pay off debts.

WAXAHACHIE (AP) — Steve Sievers supervises the agency that provides water to many rural Ellis County customers. He's drowning.

Sievers, general manager of the Buena Vista-Bethel Special Utility District, says the district lost 30 percent in revenue as the state bought the water users' land to make way for the super collider. Now, the massive physics project has been canceled, but Sievers still faces expenses and a large debt.

The net result: a $55,000 loss so far this year, with the district operating at a deficit of about $9,000 per month. Sievers estimates that revenues must be $30,000 monthly to break even.

Department of Energy officials have shown polite concern about his predicament, but can offer little more, he said.

"Every entity that we have talked with acknowledges the problem, they understand the problem — it's very simple to see. They don't offer any solutions," said Don Walker, president of the district's board of directors.

The utility district was once prosperous — so much so that it took a $1.78 million loan from the Farmers Home Administration for systemwide improvements that were completed in 1988. Shortly thereafter, the state began buying what ultimately became one-fourth of the district's land.

"It was a disaster at first until we tried to work with the Department of Energy and the state of Texas. Eventually, the collider began buying water off of us for construction," Sievers said. "It never met the point of where it replaced our supply of lost revenue, but it was growing."

The initial loss was $10,000 per month, although the collider project began making up some of the difference. The collider even put in $1.1 million to help the district upgrade its fire protection ability, Sievers said.

Congress canceled the collider in October. Since then, Sievers and the board members have been trying to figure out how to stem the financial hemorrhaging.

Almost $100,000 in reserve funds is gone; $10,994 monthly loan payments are due to the FmHA; even the collider-financed improvements require another employee plus maintenance.

"We're just waiting on some word from somebody on what direction to take on this," Sievers said. "We're trying to meet our obligations. Fortunately, before the collider, we did have some reserve money. That's basically carried us to this point."

"The bottom line is we're going to try to work with them in every way possible," he said. "It is not their fault that the super collider didn't go through."

Wily coyote catches that ... Turkin hen?

HARLINGEN (AP) — Exotic animals such as Turkin hens and angora goats have become favorite meals for coyotes in Cameron County.

Bill Verbout says coyotes kill about 100 of the Turkin hens each year on his 30-acre exotic animal ranch in Le Feria. They've also taken out two fainting goats and two angora goats.

And while Verbout says he's killed a handful of the wily coyotes, he says he's learned to respect them.

"They're about the smartest animal there is," Verbout said, adding that they can scale 6-foot fences and "they can smell a gun."

David Trevio, a trapper for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said he's known of coyotes that will get through fences by digging under traps without setting them off.

But Verbout hopes the predators haven't figured out electricity. His prize emus, all 23 of them, live behind a 6-foot fence, and another electrified one.

A breeding pair of emus costs about $15,000, and could be worth as much as $26,000 by next year if the coyotes don't get them.

Verbout and his partner, Linda Raatz, keep hundreds of exotic animals, including goats, llamas, burros and a whole range of birds from Africa and the United States.

Although coyotes are no threat to larger animals, such as llamas and burros, Verbout said he worries about their young.

Rick Sremek of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, said there are up to four coyotes to every square mile in Cameron County.

Vermont convict offers to die in Robert Drew's place

HOUSTON (AP) — A convicted murderer in Vermont has offered to die next week in place of Texas death row inmate Robert Drew because he believes his claims of innocence.

Doug S. Mason II wrote a letter to Drew's lawyers from his prison cell in Swanton, Vt., offering himself to the executioner instead of Drew, a Vermont native.

"I'm willing to go in his place and give them a show of death, plus I'm spiritually connected more than flesh," wrote Mason, who is serving 15 to 30 years for murder. "Please do not think of this as crazy ..."

Mason said his offer is "serious and sincere THIS IS NO JOKE, for Life and Death is NOTHING TO JOKE ABOUT."

Drew's lawyers faxed it to the news media. It is just one more wrinkle in the case against Drew, whose death warrant was signed with a smiley face.

Drew was convicted in the 1983 stabbing death of 17-year-old Jeffrey Mays. He and Ernest Puralewski hitched a ride with the Alabama teen in exchange for gas money, then stabbed Mays when they arrived in Harris County.

Puralewski got a life sentence in exchange for testifying against Drew, but recanted his story about Drew's role 101 days after Drew was sentenced to death.

But it could not be considered during appeals because Texas law says new evidence must be presented within 30 days of sentencing. That decision outraged Vermont officials who oppose the death penalty.

Drew's case gained national attention when his attorney objected to a "happy face" that retired District Judge Charles Hearn drew on his July 15, 1992, execution order.

Hearn defended the signature by saying it expressed his Christian faith.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals decided that the face, which appeared on documents in the case since 1988, did not violate Drew's constitutional rights. The federal courts agreed.

State District Judge Ruben Guerrero, who set an Aug. 2 death date for Drew, said he has never seen such a preposterous offer as Mason's.

"This was a brutal killing," he said. "You don't trade somebody's life for another. They know that would never happen. They are just trying to get some publicity."

Woman bites back from assault

PHOENIX (AP) — A man who police say had nearly 2 inches of his tongue bitten off by a woman he assaulted was arrested after seeking treatment. Police said Friday Javier Salinas forced his way into a 35-year-old woman's pickup truck as she was leaving work. According to police reports, he began kissing her but she fought back, biting off the piece of Salinas' tongue and spitting it on the truck floor. Police later recovered the tongue. "It's evidence. We'll freeze it," said Sgt. Mike McCullough. Salinas, 23, was arrested Wednesday after he went to a hospital for treatment a day after the assault.

Tourist gets too close to polar bear

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — An Australian tourist who apparently wanted close-up pictures of a polar bear was badly mauled after getting too close. Kathryn Warburton, 29, of Sydney suffered a broken leg and bite wounds after the attack Friday at the Alaska Zoo, police said. Zoo visitor Gary Paul said he saw Warburton climb over a wooden fence and a steel safety railing to get within a couple of feet of the bear's cage. "I saw the bear make his move, and said 'Look out!,' but the bear's paws were already through the bars," Paul said. Zoo director Sammye Seawell blamed Warburton for ignoring the warning signs. "That bear's like lightning — like a bullet," she said. Seawell said she doesn't expect anything to happen to the bear, a male named Binky.

Charges of child abuse dropped

CANTON, Ga. (AP) — Prosecutors have dropped charges against a woman accused of child abuse because she slapped her 9-year-old son in a supermarket. Cherokee County District Attorney Garry T. Moss said Friday it would have been difficult to prove that Lynn Kivi slapped the boy hard enough to cause excessive pain. "Courts of this state recognize the reasonable discipline of a child by his parents," Moss said in court papers dismissing cruelty to children charges that carried a 20-year prison sentence. Moss also noted that no reports of abuse had been filed against Mrs. Kivi before the incident. Mrs. Kivi, 35, was arrested, handcuffed, jailed and released on $22,000 bond after employees at a Winn-Dixie called police on May 23. She admitted slapping her son, Chuck, and said: "He was being rotten."

A firefighter swings open the door to his engine as wildfire makes its way across a hillside Friday above the Lake Chelan near Chelan, Wash.

Wildfire snaking way to resort

CHELAN, Wash. (AP) — A wildfire that has burned more than 70,000 acres crested ridges near this resort town and sent flames snaking down the slopes toward the expensive houses ringing Lake Chelan. The fire was moving slowly downhill and there were no immediate plans to evacuate the town's 3,200 residents, said Al Murphy, a commander for the Wenatchee National Forest. Firefighters were still battling 25 major fires Friday in eight western states and British Columbia that had burned about 150,000 acres, said Charlene Browning of the Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho.

Dozens of smaller fires also were being fought. President Clinton promised to send hundreds of Marines to help firefighters, but they won't arrive until next week. In Montana, a tanker plane helping fight fires crashed Friday near the Flathead Indian Reservation killing two crew members and igniting another blaze that burned out of control. All air tankers in the area were grounded but expected to fly again today. In north-central Washington, Chelan residents said they could see lines of flames moving down Chelan Butte, a peak about a mile from town, and through the Sunnybank housing development about six miles away. Residents were evacuated from homes in Chelan Butte, Sunnybank and Lakeside Park, but no houses had burned by late Friday. No injuries were reported. Many visitors left Chelan earlier in the week or canceled vacation reservations. About 25 miles southwest, another fire ballooned in evening winds, forcing the evacuation of homes and campgrounds in the Icicle River canyon. Officials were not sure how many acres the fire had burned.

Democrats: Our health bill is not like Bill's plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic leaders wanted to make one thing clear as they detailed their health reform bill: "This is not the Clinton bill," said House Majority Whip David Bonior of Michigan. "This is clearly not the Clinton bill," said House Speaker Thomas Foley of Washington. "The bill we're presenting today isn't the president's bill — it isn't the Congress' bill — we believe it's the people's bill," waxed House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt of Missouri. Lest anyone miss the point, even the name is not the same. The House bill is to be known as the Guaranteed Health Insurance Act of 1994 — not, repeat not, Clinton's Health Security Act. From a group of Democrats working closely with the White House on a major piece of social legislation, the disavowal of the president seemed odd strategy. But consider this: Congress got nowhere with President Clinton's 1,342-page Health Security Act. First, many members of Congress were upset to have it handed to them — the result of months of closed-door meetings where they had no say. Then, some Democrats lined up against forcing employers to pay, others against the taxes, others against the coverage of abortion. Republicans instantly hated it. Then came the special interests, who had a field day casting the Clinton bill as gargantuan and grossly bureaucratic in its tangle of regulations. Millions of Americans first paid attention to health reform when they heard about it from the Health Insurance Association of America, out of the mouths of their TV characters Harry and Louise.

Partisan rancor continues after week of hearings

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first week of Whitewater hearings ended as they began — with partisan rancor — as Republicans finished making one allegation of improper White House meddling and raised another. During testimony by law enforcement witnesses Friday, Republicans accused White House officials of interfering with an investigation into the suicide of Vincent Foster in July 1993. He was deputy White House counsel and handled Whitewater legal matters for the President Clinton. GOP lawmakers also raised allegations that a White House aide was given confidential information about an investigation of the failed Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan. Madison may have suffered losses from an Arkansas land venture, the Whitewater Development Corp., in which President and Mrs. Clinton were investors.

the abuse of power in using television and radio and the print media as kind of a bully pulpit for those who have sought simply to bring down a president," he said at the first Senate Banking Committee hearing on Whitewater. The witnesses before the Senate on Friday were law enforcement and medical experts who concluded that Foster, 49, an old friend of the Clintons, committed suicide for reasons unrelated to Whitewater. D'Amato asserted White House interference in the police investigation of Foster's death, and claimed that Deputy Treasury Secretary Roger C. Altman had "deliberately lied to Congress" about what he told the Clintons. Late Friday, Altman said "Sen. D'Amato's statement today is simply incorrect."

NEWS IN BRIEF

BBC reporter found shot dead in Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — A British Broadcasting Corp. reporter was found shot to death Saturday on the southern edge of Kabul, a day after he was kidnapped by masked gunmen.

Mir Weis Jaleel, 26, was kidnapped on his way back to the Afghan capital after interviewing the country's renegade prime minister, according to Ettore Mo, an Italian journalist traveling with him.

Mo said four gunmen, their faces wrapped in scarves, dragged Jaleel out of his car and shoved him into their vehicle.

Jaleel, an Afghan national, was a reporter for the BBC's Pashto and Persian language services, the two main languages spoken in Afghanistan.

Witnesses who saw the body said Jaleel had been shot at least 20 times in the head and chest.

Plutonium smuggler dealing with Germany

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — A businessman jailed for nuclear smuggling has offered to turn over about two ounces of weapons-grade plutonium if prosecutors treat him leniently, a news magazine reported Saturday.

Adolf Jaekle told the chancellor's office that the plutonium, not enough to make a bomb but enough to poison thousands of people, is hidden in Switzerland. Der Spiegel magazine reported.

During a May 10 search of the 52-year-old Jaekle's home, police discovered six grams — about a fifth of an ounce — of exceptionally pure plutonium-239 that was traced to Russia.

Many Western security officials see nuclear smuggling through Russian mafias as the gravest threat of the post-Cold War era. An atomic bomb can theoretically be made with only about 2 pounds of plutonium.

Asia suffering through killer downpours

TOKYO (AP) — Torrential downpours have inundated Hong Kong, south China, Vietnam and the Philippines, causing deadly floods and landslides.

Further to the north, parts of Korea, Japan and north China are running out of water. Rice crops are withering in parched paddies, and citizens are preparing for water rationing.

A stubborn high pressure system over the Pacific Ocean is responsible for the southern rains and northern drought, said John Park, a meteorologist with Accu-Weather, Inc. in College Park, Pa.

In Hong Kong, a landslide killed five people after 16 inches of rain fell in a 36-hour period. Flooding and small landslides closed streets and forced people to seek refuge in temporary shelters.

U.S. Marines of the Super Stallion Task Force check their equipment on arrival at Entebbe's airport, Uganda, Saturday to provide protection for U.S. Secretary of Defense William Perry who will visit Goma, Zaire. President Bill Clinton has ordered U.S. troops into Rwanda to aid with humanitarian efforts.

It's a no win situation for Rwandan refugees

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — Aid officials agree that the only way to end the refugee crisis in eastern Zaire is to return the survivors to Rwanda.

But in the next breath they warn that this could export the Rwandans' nightmare of pestilence and death back home with them.

For an estimated 1.2 million refugees in disease-ridden refugee camps around this border town, the aid workers' uncertainty suggests there's no clear way out: Die if you do leave, die if you don't.

"We should have learned a lesson here about how dangerous cholera is. We must not repeat this lesson in Rwanda," said Anne-Marie Huby, Goma spokeswoman for the French aid group Doctors Without Borders, which wants intensive medical screening of refugees.

U.S. troops sent to aid of refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two hundred U.S. Army troops have been ordered into Rwanda's capital to help handle international relief flights, but Pentagon officials insist the deployment is not a "slippery slope" involving Americans in that nation's civil strife.

Huby said allowing large numbers of people, many of them passive carriers of cholera, to return to Rwanda without screening will mean fresh outbreaks of it and other deadly diseases.

An estimated 350,000 to 500,000 people were slain during the three months of Rwanda's civil war.

Confident Bosnians threaten force to retake lost territory

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Better armed and more confident than ever, the Bosnian army says it is ready to retake territory by force if a faltering international peace plan fails to give it to them.

But their Bosnian Serb foes showed this week that they are in no mood to back down by renewing their chokehold on Sarajevo, the Bosnian government capital.

And neither side is betting that the plan by the United States, Russia, France, Britain and Germany can end the 27-month-old war. Both have ignored cease-fires designed to allow peace negotiations a chance.

"We have learned that everything that is gained by force is later confirmed by diplomacy," said Gen. Vahid Karavelic, commander of the Bosnian army's 1st Corps in Sarajevo.

A self-declared Bosnian Serb assembly has twice refused to accept the peace plan, which would reduce Serb-held territory from 70 percent of Bosnia to 49 percent. Bosnia's Muslim-led government and Croats would get the rest.

The Muslims and Croats have accepted the plan, but government forces have been on the offensive in recent months throughout central and north-eastern Bosnia.

"Our forces are now capable of defending every part of the territory that is under our control," said Gen. Sakib Mahmuljin, another Bosnian army commander. "This is a new phase in the evolution of the Bosnian army. It allows us to move from defending into liberating."

Perhaps. Western analysts say government forces still lack the heavy weaponry necessary to turn the tide in the war. Even if they got it quickly, they would need time and training to deploy it effectively.

But diplomats now suggest that government forces could hold their own in a long war of attrition.

That wasn't always the case. With an overpowering advantage in heavy artillery, ammunition and equipment, Serb forces dominated the war from its start in April 1992.

But government troops have recently obtained some howitzer cannon and multiple-rocket launchers, along with gunpowder, ammunition and uniforms.

The government has a clear edge in manpower — an estimated 220,000 soldiers, compared to 80,000 to 100,000 for the Serbs — which it has used in recent months to put Serbs on the defensive in some areas for the first time. Armed by the old Yugoslav army, Bosnia's Serbs launched the war in April 1992 after Croats and Muslims voted to secede from Serb-dominated Yugoslavia.

Mortar attack injures 44 in Irish town

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — A mortar shell fired from truck slammed into a shopping street and two others landed on a police station Friday in an attack that injured 44 people in a border town.

Two soldiers in the police station in Newry, 30 miles south of Belfast, were listed as "seriously ill." One civilian and one policeman also were hospitalized.

No one immediately claimed responsibility for the attack, but the Irish Republican Army is the only group in Northern Ireland that has used mortars.

Barrel race photo finish paces rodeo

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Timing is everything, and if you don't believe that old saying, you missed the barrel racing at Saturday's Howard County 4-H Youth Rodeo.

The final night of the rodeo was highlighted by an incredibly tight race in the girls' 16-19 rodeo. Four cowgirls finished within .12 of a second within each other.

Taking top honors was Caryn Standifer, but her ride of 17.70 seconds was just barely good enough to top Shanna Owens of Rankin, who crossed the wire in 17.74 seconds.

But if you thought that was close, talk to Melissa Miller. She finished third in the event, a bare 1/100th of a second behind Owens. Cheyenne Wimberly completed the close foursome with a ride of 17.82 seconds.

While the barrel racing provided the dramatics Saturday, the bull riding provided the theatrics.

Michael Stephenson of Odessa took top honors in the boys 13-15 bull riding, but not before his ride gave him quite a spin. Stephenson's bull exited the chute spinning, and didn't stop until Stephenson had dismounted.

Stephenson obviously knew he had a good ride - after he regained his footing, he took his hat and tossed it high into the sky. His actions proved to be correct, as his score of 87 gave him the overall lead in the event.

Mike Johnson of Wheeler was second Saturday with a score of 79, while Lance Baxter of Roscoe scored a 76.

In boys' 16-19 bull riding, Cory McFadden of Crane took first place Saturday with an 80, while Randy Willingham of Abilene was second with a 73.

McFadden also took home top honors in bareback riding in his age group, scoring a 69 on his ride.

Howard signs Rodgers to letter of intent

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Hearing Howard College coaches talk about recruiting area-athletes is kind of like listening to fishermen talk about the one that got away.

Local athletes who achieve any kind of stardom usually attract the attention of larger colleges. The idea of playing for a large school, plus the lure of leaving home, usually thwarts Howard recruiting efforts.

All that may be changing. First, Howard's women's basketball team signed Big Spring post player Amy Earnst, then the men's basketball squad successfully recruited BSHS guard Wes Hughes.

The latest Big Spring sports star to sign on the dotted line for Howard is Brandon Rodgers, one of the main cogs in the Steers' 1994 state finalist baseball team.

RODGERS

Rodgers, a three-year starter at first base for the Steers, was one of the main catalysts in the Steers' drive to the state baseball tournament, where they lost to Belton in the championship game to end their season with a 27-7 record.

He batted over .400 for the season and played solid defensively. His efforts earned him first team honors on the Class 4A all-state baseball team.

In addition to Howard, four other schools - West Texas A&M, Vernon Regional Junior College, Hill Junior College and New Mexico Junior College - inquired about his services.

In the end, however, Rodgers opted for Brian Roper's Howard College squad, which is fresh off a season that saw them win the Western Junior College Athletic Conference title and a berth in the state junior college tournament.

"(Howard) offered me the best deal," Rodgers said. "I think Howard College is a good school, and they've got a good program - that's another big reason."

Although Rodgers will have a

Players' vow solidarity as baseball strike nears

NEW YORK (AP) - Bobby Bonilla, with a $5.7 million salary this season, stands to lose the most if baseball players strike in two weeks.

Bonilla would lose $31,148 each day of a strike, a total of $1,619,672 if a walkout continues for the final 52 days of the season.

Chicago White Sox pitcher Jack McDowell, who gained a $5.3 million salary in arbitration despite losing his case, is next at $28,692 per day, a total of $1,506,011, followed by Roberto Alomar of Toronto, Roger Clemens of Boston and David Cone of Kansas City, who each would lose $27,322 per day, a total of $1,420,765.

But the star players say they'll strike to defeat a salary cap even though they have the most to lose.

"There's no way the players are cracking," Clemens said.

No players would be paid during a work stoppage, according to lawyers for both the Major League Baseball Players Association and management's Player Relations Committee. For each day of a strike, they would lose 1-183rd of their salary. For players making the $109,000 minimum, that's $596 per day.

"The players are very solid," insisted Will Clark of the Texas Rangers, who would lose $21,858 per day.

Dick Moss, a player agent and the union's general counsel from 1966 to 1977, predicts these negotiations will end like all others for the owners since free agency began.

"They always lose and they always say going into a situation like this, 'We're going to win and we're going to show these guys.' That's not in the nature of the beast," Moss said. "The players always win when they stick together and players are more unified than they've ever been."

In the past two negotiations, commissioners Peter Ueberroth and Fay Vincent took management's salary cap proposals off the table, which angered the hard-line owners. Since forcing Vincent to resign in September 1992, owners have kept the commissioner's office vacant so they wouldn't have the same problem during this negotiation.

"The one person who always acted in the best interest of the game always screwed the owners," Atlanta Braves president Stan Kasten said Friday. "The commissioner can't force

Pro football Hall of Fame inducts five

CANTON, Ohio (AP) - The cold, calculating, stone-faced image Bud Grant cultivated during 18 years as the stoic coach of the Minnesota Vikings was washed away Saturday as he choked back tears during his enshrinement into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

Inducted along with Grant during a frequently emotional ceremony that lasted more than two hours, were Dallas running back Tony Dorsett, San Francisco cornerback Jimmy Johnson, Cleveland running back Leroy Kelly, St. Louis tight end Jackie Smith and Dallas defensive tackle Randy White.

None of the acceptance speeches was more poignant than Grant's. Many in the audience had to wipe away tears as he credited his father with inspiring him to make it in professional sports.

"When I was born, my name was Harry," Grant said. "I was a Junior. Well, you can't have two Harrys in the same house, so my mom nicknamed me Buddy Boy and dad called me Kid. Buddy Boy got shortened. Maybe if I was a boxer, I would have been Kid Grant."

"You can't imagine what an honor this is. If mom was here - she's 93 and couldn't be here - I'd look at the pride in her face. If dad was here, he'd stand up and say, 'The kid made it. He finally made it.'"

During 18 years with the Vikings from 1967 to 1985, Grant went 158-96-5, leading his team to the Super Bowl four times - all losses. But he noted that he left the game on his own, never getting fired from his job.

Tony Dorsett embraces former Dallas coach Tom Landry after Landry introduced Dorsett at his induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame Saturday.

"If you're going to succeed - survive is maybe a better word - you've got to handle losing," he said. "You die every time you lose, but you've got to get over it."

Kelly's induction came 18 years after he was first eligible, perhaps because his accomplishments with the Browns always seemed to pale in comparison with those of his predecessor, Hall of Famer Jim Brown. The seniors committee acted to put Kelly in the Hall this year.

When Brown abruptly retired in 1966 to pursue an acting career, Kelly stepped in, and Cleveland's offense scarcely missed a beat. He led the NFL in rushing in 1967 and '68 and scored 90 touchdowns in his 10-year career.

Not bad for a product of Morgan State who was chosen in the eighth round of the 1964 draft.

Kelly, like Grant, wept as he thanked his family and friends.

"I never felt I was in the shadow of Jim," he said during a news conference before the ceremony. "It was an honor for me to play with Jim. Jim helped me out a whole lot. He was pretty much responsible for me making the team."

Yankees continue mastery of Indians

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees beat the Cleveland Indians for the 10th consecutive time, winning 6-5 Saturday as Wade Boggs singled home Mike Gallego with the go-ahead run in the sixth inning.

With the score tied 4-4 in the sixth, Gallego and Pat Kelly singled with one out off Larry Casian (1-5). Boggs singled with two outs off Derek Lilliquist and Paul O'Neill hit an RBI double, ending a career-high 0-for-22 slide.

Ausanio (2-0) allowed one hit in 1 2-3 innings, Carlos Baerga's 15th home run of the season in the eighth. Steve Howe got two outs for his 14th save.

Tigers 14, Athletics 2

DETROIT — Chad Kreuter tied a major league record with three sacrifice flies, and Milt Cuyler went 3-for-4 with a homer Saturday to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 14-2 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Kreuter became the ninth player to hit three sacrifice flies in a game, and the first since Toronto's George Bell did it on Aug. 14, 1990 against Chicago.

Cuyler, who had been on the disabled list since May 26, is 9-for-16 with eight runs scored in five games since returning.

Scott Brosius had a single and a home run for the Athletics, who had their five-game winning streak snapped.

Brewers 5, Red Sox 1

BOSTON — Cal Eldred allowed four hits in six innings to outduel Roger Clemens and lead the Milwaukee Brewers to a 5-1 win Saturday over the Boston Red Sox.

John Jaha and Jody Reed homered for the Brewers, who have won seven of their last nine on the road. Jaha led off the fourth with his 11th homer and Reed, who played for Boston in 1988-92, hit a three-run shot in the eighth.

Eldred (10-10) worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the first and allowed his only run in the fifth. Mike Fetters got the final four outs for his 15th save.

Clemens (9-6) 'struggled' throughout his seven innings, allowing two runs and seven hits with five walks. He struck out two, tying his lowest total of the season. He retired the side in order in only one inning.

Clemens had rejoined the Red Sox on Friday night after the birth of his third son, Kacy Austin Clemens, in Houston.

Phillies 5, Braves 2

ATLANTA — Lenny Dykstra hit a two-run triple to highlight a four-run rally in the ninth inning Saturday that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 5-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

The Phillies battered reliever Greg McMichael (5-3) for four straight hits in the eighth to send the Braves to their eighth loss in 13 games. McMichael, who started the ninth protecting a 2-1 lead, has blown nine saves in 29 chances.

Kim Batiste opened the ninth by beating out an infield single, and moved to third on Mike Lieberthal's double. Pinch-hitter Mickey Morandini blooped a single to right, scoring Batiste with the tying run.

Dykstra followed with a liner to right that bounced over David Justice's head for a triple, scoring Lieberthal and Morandini.

Giants 6, Rockies 4

SAN FRANCISCO — Mark Portugal pitched eight effective innings and hit a two-run double, and Darryl Strawberry homered Saturday, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 6-4 victory over the Colorado Rockies.

The win was the Giants' 16th in their last 20 games. San Francisco, which entered the game trailing Los Angeles by one game in the NL West, were 9 games behind the Dodgers on July 7.

Portugal (10-7), who has hit safely in 13 of his 20 starts this season, capped a three-run rally in the fourth inning with his double.

big advantage over out-of-town players — two years of home cooking — he said staying in Big Spring was not a big factor in his decision. "It didn't really matter that much if I stayed home or not," he said. "Just as long as a got to play somewhere."

Regardless, Roper is happy to have Rodgers on the team.

"We signed some guys we thought might move to first base, but not many of them are true first basemen, and that's what Brandon is," Roper said. "He's also a good lefthanded hitter, and that's what we were looking for."

Bobby Doe, who coached

Rodgers at BSHS, said his former first baseman has the tools to be successful at Howard.

"I think he has the ability to play college ball, junior college ball especially," Doe said. Despite his success in high school, Rodgers knows that Roper won't just hand him a starting job.

"He told me that the fall season ... is when everybody will earn their position," Rodgers said. "I'm sure there will be some competition at first base."

"Brandon probably needs to gain some strength," Doe said. "He needs to be able to hit with more power. He's a good hitter, but college first basemen need to be power hitters."

the players to accept anything. All he can do is impose things on the owners. ... We've never collectively bargained a solution. We've always had one shoved down our own throats. This time we won't."

Chicago White Sox chairman Jerry Reinsdorf, viewed by many as the most influential owner, says the union's talk about players' freedom to play in the cities of their choice is a smokescreen. He says the union's chief desire is to preserve the current system, which has helped escalate the average salary from $51,501 in 1976 to $1,188,679 on opening day this year.

"They just raise all kinds of issues so they can avoid the main issue," Reinsdorf said. "Obviously this association has no interest in addressing our problems. One of the obligations of the union is to negotiate the problems of our industry."

Union head Donald Fehr and players insist that there are no problems. Teams had record revenue last season, estimated by the PRC at $1.88 billion, and the 28 clubs collectively made a profit of $50.3 million according to the PRC estimate. But Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, chairman of the ruling executive council that took over following Vincent's departure, says 19 teams are losing money and need change. He says financial doom, forecast by owners repeatedly after an arbitrator forced free agency after the 1976 season, is upon the industry.

"Tomorrow is here. Nobody is sorrier about that than I am," Selig said.

Switzer downplays Dallas opener

AUSTIN (AP) — Barry Switzer seems to be enjoying the perks of life in the NFL.

Perks like losing, for example.

As the coach of college powerhouse Oklahoma for 16 years, Switzer never had the luxury of dismissing the importance of the Sooners' first game. In the world of college football, a season-opening loss often was a season-ending one.

Not so in the NFL, not when your team is the two-time defending Super Bowl champion and the game is merely a tuneup for another run at the championship.

Switzer, only the third head coach in Dallas Cowboys' history, downplays the significance of his NFL coaching debut against Minnesota on Sunday night.

"It will be an exciting time," he said. "It's something I haven't been a part of for a long time and I'm looking forward to it. I don't think there will be a whole lot of pressure because of it just being an exhibition game."

On the other sideline, Warren Moon will make his debut with the Vikings.

The 37-year-old quarterback, traded to Minnesota after 11 years of running-and-shooting for the Houston Oilers, also will be trying to extend his mastery of the Cowboys. In his last 12 meetings, Moon has beaten the Cowboys 10 times.

In other games Sunday, AFC West rivals Denver and the Los Angeles Raiders clash in Barcelona, Spain in the first of four American Bowls, and the Oilers are at Kansas City for the first game on the new grass at Arrowhead Stadium.

Oilers-Chiefs

Pitty Cody Carlson. Finally given the quarterback's job after years of carrying the clipboard for Moon, he'll be upstaged by grass in his first game.

"I think we're all going to like it," Chiefs guard Dave Szott said of the new surface at 22-year-old Arrowhead. "It has to be easier on the body."

The matchup will be the first on grass between the original AFL franchises since Nov. 8, 1970, when the Chiefs won 24-9 at their old Municipal Stadium.

"I'm excited about it," Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer said. "As a player, I much preferred competing on grass. Plus, I just like to be able to go out and smell freshly mowed grass."

Broncos-Raiders

At Montjuic Olympic Stadium, home of the World League's Barcelona Dragons, both head coaches hope to test their 2-point conversion plays many times over.

"We will go for it basically every time in preseason," Denver's Wade Phillips said of the NFL's newest innovation.

Deja vu aside, Alfredsson takes lead into Ping-Welch final round

■ Inkster and Bradley tie for second

CANTON, Mass. (AP) — It was happening again. Helen Alfredsson was throwing away another third-round lead.

Bogey at the 13th hole. Bogey at the 15th. Suddenly, a two-stroke advantage had changed into a three-way tie for the lead in the LPGA Ping-Welch's Championship on Saturday.

Then the Swede who collapsed a week earlier in the U.S. Women's Open caught herself. No more bogeys. No more frustration.

She parred the next two holes, then birdied the 18th to end the day with a one-stroke lead at 8-under-par 208 after shooting 70.

Juli Inkster, the second-round leader, and Annika Sorenstam were tied for second at 209.

Juli Inkster, the second-round leader, and Annika Sorenstam were tied for second at 209. Pat Bradley, the first-round leader, and Gail Graham were at 210. Graham shot 68, Sorenstam 71 and Inkster and Bradley 72.

But while Alfredsson was struggling, none of them made a strong enough run to knock her out of a share of the lead.

A strong run wasn't necessary a week ago in the Open when Alfredsson completely fell apart after taking a six-stroke lead seven holes into the third round. But she was 8-over for the next 11 holes and finished the day in third place, two strokes behind leader Patty Sheehan.

Things didn't get any better Sunday. She shot 6-over 77. When her self-destructive slide had ended, she was tied for ninth and in tears.

She had a brighter look when she walked off the 18th green of the 6,137-yard Blue Hill Country Club course after raming home her fifth birdie of the day, making her the sole leader.

Rookie tied for lead at FedEx St. Jude Classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Rookie Dicky Pride nearly holed out for eagle on No. 17 in taking the lead, only to bogey the final hole and fall back into a tie for the top spot after Saturday's third round of the $1.25 million Federal Express St. Jude Classic.

Pride's approach shot from 185 yards at No. 17 bounced a few feet short of the cup and collided with the pin, which prevented the ball dropping into the hole. His tap-in for birdie left him alone in front at 14-under par.

But he gave that advantage away on the 18th, when he drove into the water and took a bogey to finish a round of 67 that left him at 13-under 200 after 54 holes.

Pride, a two-time All-Southeastern Conference golfer for Alabama, was joined atop the leaderboard by Russ Cochran, another former SEC player from Kentucky, and Gil Morgan. Cochran, a left-hander, shot 65 and Morgan had a 63.

Jay Haas led another threesome at 201 after a 68 on Saturday. Second-round leader Fuzzy Zoeller shot a 70 and Gene Sauers had a 67.

Pride, who qualified for the PGA Tour last fall, has struggled in his first season with ligament damage in his left wrist.

Al Jr. wins battle, but Martin takes IROC title

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Al Unser Jr., getting some late help from new series champion Mark Martin, won the International Race of Champions finale Saturday at Michigan International Speedway.

Unser, an Indy-car star who is currently leading the PPG Cup points race, led only the final four laps of the 50-lap race on Michigan's high-banked, two-mile oval.

Unser's record eighth IROC victory, and third at Michigan, was the culmination of an impressive comeback after he tried a low move on the banking and went all the way from second to ninth near the midway point of the race.

"I got caught making a low move and the low line just wasn't the place to be today," Unser said. "I had to come from the back and I just tried to start picking them off one by one on the outside."

He was back among the top five by lap 34 and stayed with the leaders the rest of the way, finally moving past Martin to take the lead on lap 47.

That's the way it finished, with Martin, satisfied to protect second place from fellow NASCAR Winston Cup stars Rusty Wallace and Dale Earnhardt, finishing 0.347-seconds — about 1 1/2 car-lengths — behind in the race among 12 identically prepared Dodge Avengers.

Mansell grabs pole for Marlboro 500

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — For a guy who finds Michigan International Speedway's high-banked track more than a little daunting, Nigel Mansell seems to have overcome his fears quite nicely.

Mansell, who won the Marlboro 500 last year en route to the PPG IndyCar World

Al Unser Jr., right, leads Mark Martin in the International Race of Champions Saturday at Michigan International Speedway.

Series championship as a rookie, took the pole Saturday for Sunday's race at the two-mile oval with a fast lap of 233.738 mph.

That was fast enough to draw oohs and aahs from the big crowd enjoying the warm, sunny Michigan morning, but not quite quick enough to surpass the all-time auto racing qualifying record of 234.275 set at Michigan last year by teammate Mario Andretti.

"We were flat out pretty well all the way around," Mansell said. "I think the track's gotten a little slower. We were sliding a lot more. But no complaints at this time." The Michigan field will line up three-wide for the start for the first time since 1990 and Mansell will share the front row with Raul Boesel and Michael Andretti, Mario's son and a two-time Michigan winner.

Boesel, from Brazil, had a fast lap of 232.672, while the younger Andretti, coming off a victory two weeks ago in Toronto, lapped the track at 232.543.

No other auto race in history has had five qualifiers over 230 mph.

Boxer good as gold

ST. PETERSBURG, Russia (AP) — It was "Showtime" for the U.S. boxing team at the Goodwill Games.

Benjamin "Showtime" McDowell, a 24-year-old U.S. Army enlistee at Fort Bragg, N.C., broke the Cuban-Russian domination in boxing by winning the only gold medal for the Americans on Saturday.

McDowell, a light heavyweight, scored a surprising 9-7 decision over Cuban Dihosvany Vega.

"This is my biggest international win," said McDowell, the 1994 U.S. champion. "I was the underdog and I like being the underdog."

"Maybe I can realistically think about the Olympics now, but first I want to take a vacation. I don't want to get burned out on boxing." While McDowell saved the U.S. team from a shutout, three Americans lost — two by shutouts.

Flyweight Carlos Navarro of Los Angeles was outpointed by Waldemar Font of Cuba 18-14. Middleweight Shane Swartz of Fort Collins, Colo., was beaten by Olympic gold medalist and world champion Ariel Hernandez of Cuba 8-0. And 6-foot-8 super heavyweight Lance Whitaker of Northridge, Calif., who has boxed for only a year, lost 17-0 to Alexi Lezin of Russia.

Overall, the powerful Cuban boxing team finished with six gold medals and the Russians had five in the 12-division boxing competition.

The U.S. also picked up a gold and silver in wrestling. Townsend Saunders, a 149-pounder from Phoenix, took the gold, rallying to beat Vadim Bogejev of Russia 6-5. World champion Melvin Douglas, a 198-pounder from Mesa, Ariz., got the silver, losing to two-time Olympic gold medalist and five-time world champion Makhurbek Khadartsev of Russia 1-0 in a referee's overtime decision in the final.

In the other wrestling final, Magomed Azizov of Russia pinned Carlos Castillo of Cuba at 4:05 in the 136.5-pound class.

Meanwhile, gymnastics began, with Russia winning the gold medal in women's team competition with 117.375 points, followed by Romania with 116.000, Ukraine with 115.630 and the United States with 115.375.

Russia's Dina Kochetkova had the top score of the competition with 39.15.

UT gaining reputation for academic excellence

AUSTIN (AP) — Call University of Texas sophomore Tre Thomas the model recruit for the 1990s. As a high school senior, he was listed as one of the top five overall athletes in the country and received scholarship offers from all the top football programs.

Equally impressive to recruiters, faced with ever-increasing academic standards for their student athletes, were Thomas' classroom credentials. He scored 1,010 on his Scholastic Assessment Test, 400 points more than the minimum required by the NCAA to accept a Division I scholarship. He also carried a 3.7 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

Thomas, whose mother is a lawyer and whose father is a manager at a food service company, is considered to have the talent to eventually play in the National Football League. The teen-ager from Sugar Land broke into the Longhorns' starting lineup midway through his freshman season before a shoulder injury ended his year.

At 6-foot 1-inch and 202 pounds, he's bigger than most defensive safeties, and he's faster.

Yet playing professional football is not his chief goal.

"It's more important for me to graduate than it is to play in the NFL," Thomas said.

Although it might seem unusual, given the history of athletes' academic performance, Thomas is more of the rule now than the exception on the Texas football team.

According to an analysis by the Austin American-Statesman of the team's high school grades in college-preparatory classes, Texas is one of the best prepared teams, academically, in the country.

Officials believe these strong high school grades combined with the team's equally impressive average on the SAT eventually will translate into higher graduation rates.

An analysis of scholastic information provided by the NCAA showed that UT's graduation rates have ranged from poor to average. When the NCAA first released graduation rates five years ago, reflecting the freshmen who enrolled in 1982-83, the men's athletic department at UT had a 38 percent graduation rate.

The NCAA recently tabulated rates for the class that entered college in 1987-88, finding that the UT men's department had improved its graduation rate to 43 percent. Combined with the women's department's 77 percent, UT had an overall graduation rate of 52 percent for student athletes, which ranked 64th in the country out of the NCAA's 103 major programs.

Yet the 1993 football team's GPA and SAT scores out of high school rival those of traditional academic schools such as Rice, Stanford and Northwestern.

The analysis was done on the freshmen entering in 1990-91, 1991-92, 1992-93 and 1993-94. Two classes were recruited by former football coach David McWilliams, and two were signed by current coach John Mackovic. The GPA was an average of grades in college-preparatory courses in math, natural sciences, social sciences and English.

The data showed: The UT football team has a combined GPA of 3.07, the fifth best in the country behind Stanford (3.5), Rice (3.38), Northwestern (3.23) and Duke (3.08). The average GPA for football players at all Division I-A schools was 2.68. Texas A&M, the Longhorns' rival, had a GPA of 2.81.

The average SAT score on the team was 873, the 17th best in the country.

100 years - And still going strong

Vacation Bible School is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year, with children in Big Spring also taking part in yearly ritual of music, crafts, games, and learning about Jesus. VBS, usually a one-week event, can be found at nearly any church in Big Spring from the end of school up until mid-August.

Clockwise, from top right: Youths at the Salvation Army hold up cards so others can memorize a Bible verse Tuesday evening; Christopher Lilly raises his arm in the air during opening ceremonies at the College Park Church of God; children watch a skit at the start of VBS at St. Paul Lutheran Church; crafts also are a big part of Vacation Bible School as Children at College Park Church of God sort through cloth; Rachelle Emerson uses markers to color a whale at the Salvation Army; and youths at St. Paul Lutheran Church work on papier-mache donkeys.

Middle child has a mind all his own

The middle child. Oh boy! Just when I think I've figured him out, he comes up with something else. Or maybe that's just all kids. My mom used to say something about grandkids being her revenge one day ... hmmm. Anyway, my middle child is a 10-year-old freckle-faced sportster

Barbara Morrison
Staff Writer

who has some very honorable life ambitions.

When asked what he wants to do when he grows up, he very determinedly answers, "I want to go to the Air Force Academy for college." Not so bad.

But then he adds, "That way I can be an astronaut in my spare time when I'm not a professional baseball player." That's my kid.

Baseball is, indeed, his first love. He used to do competition speed roller-skating and set for himself a goal to receive a national placement. He wanted to be one of the country's best.

So, last year, at the Junior Olympic National Championships, he came in third. To do this, though, he had to miss every one of his All-Star baseball games.

We promised him this year, no matter what, he could get to play his games. And he did.

He had a truly unique experience, though, and I one I thoroughly enjoyed - although I did wait to laugh out loud until I was out of his space. For the first time ever in his young little life, he was required to wear an athletic supporter, known across the man's world of sports as simply a "jock strap."

Anyway, Little League rules require all athletes to wear one and I quietly explained this to him after the coaches passed them out prior to a tournament. I told him the rule book said he had to wear it.

"So, then where does Janie Johnson wear hers?" he bluntly came back. I could see the wheels of analysis burning. I ignored his question and eventually we got off into where and how it should be worn.

Come tournament time, he and his other young friend were dressing in the back room for their first game. "Mom," he called. "Can you come back here for a minute?"

There they stood, pulling their shirts down to their scrawny little knees, dressed only in the shirt and their uniform socks. "I'm going to give you one quick look and then you need to tell me if it's on right," he said VERY seriously. His friend nodded his head in silent agreement.

So - FLASH - and that's when I saw it. The "thing" was over his underwear. I quietly explained that either 1) you don't wear underwear with athletic supporters; or 2) they go UNDER their briefs.

"No way!" they both yelled at once. "Besides," added my son. "If that umpire is checking, he ain't seein' nothin' of mine!" They decided to leave the strap the way they had it. They were obeying the rule. "It hurts a little this way," said my son, to his friend. "I guess we're just too much man for it."

Yeah, right, guys. So, we lived through Little League season and even learned a little on the way. My little guy decided he likes baseball more than skating and that's all right with us.

Besides, his first skating coach now refers to him as a "quitter," and I really don't think taking third place at nationals is "quitting." Maybe achieving a goal isn't found in that guy's vocabulary.

I guess we'll stick with Little League.

Wood stoves and favorite old recipes

Tumbleweed Smith Columnist

Doris McLaughlin was born and raised in Latexo, a small place in Houston County just outside Crockett. Her grandmother raised her and Doris wanted to honor her in some way, so she wrote a book called "Cooking on a Wood Stove" and put some of her grandmother's recipes in the book.

"I started out cooking on a wood stove myself," says Doris. "When I was a young teen-ager at home, that's what we had. Actually, it's pretty easy to operate. First you put your wood in the stove and start a fire. You do your cooking on top of the wood stove, of course."

"If you want something to cook fast, you put in another stick of wood. If you want it to cook slower, you move your cooking utensil away from the main heat. We used to say move it to the back of the stove. Then it won't cook so fast."

Doris's stove was in the kitchen of the house. When her grandmother was young, the kitchen was in a separate building away from the house.

Doris called her grandmother Aunt Sally because that's what everybody called her in Latexo. "She was a midwife par excellence and an old-fashioned kind of nurse," says Doris. "She would leave home for two weeks at a time and go help someone who was sick. She was just always Aunt Sally, so that's what I called her."

Aunt Sally cooked with a pinch of this and a pinch of that. She never wrote down any of her recipes. "So you can imagine what a time I had trying to put these recipes down in any kind of form that someone could use," says Doris.

"I remembered how I used to cook on a wood stove and I learned how to do it from my grandmother. So my recipes were actually her recipes. Even today I still follow her recipes."

Doris says her grandmother used to bake delicious sweet potatoes. "They'd be warm on the stove when we came home from school. Her fried chicken was superb and so were her raisin and mince meat pies. She used to make a molasses cake that was wonderful. And it would always sink in the middle. I have tried my best to recreate that and mine will not sink in the middle."

"She could take Irish potatoes and make them about 15 different ways and you would swear you were eating something different every time. She was not a real fancy cook, but it was good, wholesome, down-on-the-farm type cooking. She always raised a garden and she canned, so we always had a lot of good stuff."

"Aunt Sally killed a hog every year, so there was always plenty of ham and pork chops. Her cornbread was outstanding and the rolls she made were light and fluffy."

The kitchen table was the center of activity in the house. It was usually long, with benches along the sides. The table was always covered with an oilcloth. Silverware was kept in a jar or bowl in the middle of the table.

"That table in my grandmother's house really meant something to me," says Doris. "In addition to serving meals on it, the table was also a place where surgery was performed. When my grandmother was about 50 years old, she climbed up on the table and had a hysterectomy. She told everybody if she didn't see them anymore, goodbye."

"They put her out with ether and operated on her by lamp-light and she came out all right. They got all the sheets in the house, scrubbed the walls down and put the sheets on the walls, scrubbed the floor and table with lye soap that she made herself in her washpot, then operated on her."

Cattle need a good manicure like we do

By MICHAEL KELSEY
Howard Co. Extension Agent

Fingernails are a funny thing. Americans spend quite a few dollars buffing and trimming their nails for that just-right look. Ladies take much better care of their nails than men. In fact nail color, shape and length are all part of a complete wardrobe.

Of course, people's taste in nail care differs as much as their idea of perfect government. I saw a lady the other day with diamonds and art designs in her nails.

Most people mange their nails for looks. Let's face the truth, not everyone really needs long, colorful, perfectly shaped nails. While basic nail care is necessary to avoid injuries and so forth, most nail care can be classified as a luxury.

Now I certainly don't want to draw in similarities, however, cattle have nails as well. Hooves to be more precise and only two instead of five on each foot. While nail care in humans falls under the luxury category, hoof care is certainly necessary in good herd health management.

If we stop and think, a calf's hooves are his shoes. They absorb the shock of movement and also serve as protection. (Very familiar to all of us who have been kicked in the chins.) Just like shoes they should be comfortable and allow the animal to move in a non-restrictive manner.

Hooves that grow too long are uncomfortable and cause the weight of the calf to shift to the heel rather than the tip of the hooves. This can cause a weakening of the pasterns and result in a condition known as coon-footed (named for the similarities of raccoon).

Hooves can also dry and crack which is very painful. Most cattle will favor a cracked hoof from a slight limp to immobility depending on the condition of the crack. Foreign objects such as nails, sticks, thorns or other sharp points can also pierce the hoof causing lameness.

Patients' sock hop a blast for all

Does anybody remember a "Sock Hop" and the music of the 60's? That was the theme of a patient dance held July 20 in the ATD atrium. It was complete with root beer floats and fun for everybody.

A T D will be sponsoring a monthly unit picnic and the first one will be for South Psychiatric Services. Patients will be served chili dogs and soft drinks.

Sept. 8-10 volunteers will be attending the Volunteer State Services Council Meeting at the Houston Doubletree. There will be fund-raising sessions, along with representatives from the Brown Foundation, Houston Endowment, Hogg Foundation, Shell Foundation and several more dynamic speakers. BSSH volunteers mark your calendars and make plans to attend this meeting. Call the Community Relations office for more information - 263-7535, or 267-8216 ext. 7535.

As I am typing this column, I can hear the sewing machine in the arts and crafts room, as volunteers begin Christmas preparations for the Christmas in October Luncheon, Oct. 20.

Today, the office is buzzing with activity - the Ackerly group, the Wallaces, and Williams are making decorations, and addressing Christmas appeal letters. Hazel Duggan, Lucille Harrison, Helen Chapman and Tamara Schretlen are making goodies to sell, and Dot Blackwell is designing the cutest "church dolls" I have ever seen.

Grace Long and Betty Lee add their touch by taking care of office jobs while the others do crafty things. Kate Irons and Dotsy Jones couldn't stay but they ran by and grabbed a handful of letters to take home and stuff.

Along with many changes around the BSSH campus, the Superintendent's home has also had some renovations. Robert and Sue von Rosenberg once more, have shared their decorating talents with the hospital, and renovated the home. They have done much of the wallpapering, painting and landscaping themselves, and it is beautiful.

Sue, along with the assistance of Cliffa Slate hosted a group of ladies last week for a tour of the home. Many of them remembered the home from the days of Dr. Harrison, and also remember when it burned. It has come a long way since those days and they have made it a lovely state home.

The American Psychiatric Association has undertaken a campaign to make the public more aware of the facts about mental illnesses. To that end, this column will include some facts, that hopefully will dispel many myths that underlie people's reaction to those suffering from mental illnesses. The information is taken from a Mental Illness Awareness Guide published by American Psychiatric Association.

Anxiety: When used to describe a mental illness, this term refers to an overriding and extremely unpleasant inner emotional tension that has no apparent cause. Anxiety disorders include phobias, panic disorder, obsessive-compulsive disorder and post-traumatic stress disorder.

Depression: People who suffer the mental illness known as major depression have prolonged periods of low self-esteem, feelings of hopelessness and guilt, thoughts about suicide, slow thinking processes, a decrease in purposeful physical activity, sleep, and appetite disturbances, and loss of sex drive.

With diagnosis and treatment, more than 80 per cent of those suffering from depression can return to happy, normal lives.

Delusions: Fixed, false thought. Ideas, without basis in reality which the patient is convinced are real.

Hallucinations: Fixed, false sensory perceptions. Auditory hallucinations, which are nonexistent voices or sounds, are the most common. Other hallucinations involve the sense of touch and sight. Those of smell and taste are rare.

Book explores settling of ancient America

Books at Howard County Library:

"The Great Journey - The Peopling Of Ancient America" by Brian M. Fagan.

Betty Condray
Columnist

Familiar as we are with air travel and instant communications, we may find it hard to imagine what it would be like to encounter a wholly new continent peopled by an unknown race. But that was the experience of the Spanish conquistadors in the New World nearly 500 years ago.

"The Great Journey" is an account of the longest and most demanding trek in history - the peopling of ancient America. Mr. Fagan marshalls his evidence like a master of detective fiction. Piece by piece he fits together the jigsaw of clues, from frozen mammoths in Siberia to painted caves in Brazil, from sunken land bridges, genetics, and the evolution of teeth to the replication of ancient flint-knapping and bison butchery techniques.

Throughout, the controversial questions posed by modern archaeology are kept in the forefront. Did the first settlers arrive 100,000, 50,000 or 15,000 years ago? Was their crossing via the Bering Strait or over the broad expanse of the Pacific? This magnificently readable book gives the most authoritative and up-to-date account of the first Americans yet produced.

"How To Locate Jobs and Land Interviews, Second Edition" by Albert French. Typically, fewer than 20 percent of the available jobs in any city are ever advertised. And most of these jobs are entry-level or high turnover positions.

This book provides you with the key to unlocking the door to the hidden market place where 80 percent of the jobs are found and presents a simple but proven process of landing interviews.

It is a "nuts and bolts" guide that gently and humanely leads the reader through the sometimes overwhelming process of getting a job. It teaches the reader how to turn an intimidating situation into a wonderful adventure...bristling with possibilities and new, exciting opportunities.

"Resumes For Re-Entry-A Handbook For Women" by C. Edward Good. A resume is your calling card to open doors. If written, produced and distributed properly, it should open doors of potential employers and lead to job interviews and offers.

Women re-entering the work force face numerous challenges in writing resumes that best represent their interests, skills and abilities. Here's the first resume book especially designed for women re-entering today's job market.

It clearly describes how to evaluate the strengths of your "nonemployment" experience and include them as positives on your resumes; how to compose different, effective cover letters; how to format your resume graphically and how to avoid common mistakes many women make when re-entering the job market.

"The Love Of Your Heart

(Low Cholesterol) Cookbook- Revised Second Edition" by Carole Kruppa. It's easy, with these 250-plus tempting recipes, to switch to - and maintain - a heart-healthy eating style.

To help you plan nourishing, healthful meals for your family, nutritional data and diabetic exchanges are given for each recipe. It's never been easier or more fun to maintain today's standards for good nutrition and still eat with gusto!

"Speaker's & Toastmaster's Handbook" by Herbert V. Prochnow. A famous speaker once said, "When I stand up to give a speech, my mind usually sits down." Another added, "It's not the 250 people, it's the 500 eyes that get to me."

As one of the most respected speakers in the world of business, Mr. Prochnow has gathered together an incredible collection of highly entertaining and unique material that can help turn even the most humble presentation into a rousing, memorable event.

Here are over 500 humorous stories, 100 stories and comments from unusual lives, 292 humorous definitions, and numerous quips.

Pay a visit to Pioneer Village

The small agricultural town of Minden is home to what many consider Nebraska's number one tourist attraction—Pioneer Village. Located on the historic Oregon Trail, the village attracts over 100,000 visitors each year.

Jean Warren
Columnist

Pioneer Village began as a result of Harold Warp's efforts in 1948 to save the country schoolhouse he attended as a boy and has grown into a mini-Smithsonian. Wanting to create a monument to his pioneer parents, Warp began relocation of vintage buildings and arranging them on a circle walk in Minden.

From this beginning, Pioneer Village has grown to 28 buildings located on 20 acres. There is a log cabin, built in 1869, that was used both as a dwelling and a community fort for protection against the Indians whose sacred hunting grounds the settlers had invaded. At one time, three families lived in the tiny house.

The sod house is an authentic replica of the "little soddy on the plains." The Lutheran Church, built in 1844, was the first church in Minden. It contains the original pews, pulpit, and organ, and reflects the area's Scandinavian and German Heritage.

Wanting to show man's industrial progress through the years, Warp collected over 50,000 items—appliances, glassware, machines, toys. One building, dedicated to a chronological history of transportation, begins with an ox cart, moves to covered wagons, stagecoaches, surreys, and automobiles, and ends with flying machines.

Warp's biography reads like a Horatio Alger novel. Born in 1903, he was the 12th child of poor Norwegian homesteaders. His father, John Nelson, emigrated to the United States from Warp, Norway. In Nebraska, he became known as John Nelson Warp, to distinguish him from seven other Nelsons in the neighborhood. He died when his youngest son was only three.

His wife, Helga, continued to line on the homestead with her children. Living conditions were primitive, with few luxuries. Then Helga, too, died—and young Harold Warp became an orphan at the age of eleven.

Warp stayed with an older brother and his family and managed to finish high school in Minden.

Pioneer Village, possibly Nebraska's number one tourist site, has grown into a "mini-Smithsonian" after its start in 1948. Above is the village church.

It's your guess when it comes to markets

We can all look back and say "If only I had done ——. This statement will hold true in regard to the recent happenings in the financial markets. When uncertainty develops in the investment world, unusual things happen. The month of July has had a high uncertainty factor. After making numerous telephone calls all I can say is, proceed at your own risk.

The gurus in New York are trying to hedge their bets. So here is some of the most prevalent predictions on where our economy is going.

Interest rates will probably stay at their present levels for the latter part of 1994. Then in 1995 you will probably see a drop in the long term rates to possibly as low as 6.5 percent.

One thing that is confusing the interest rate picture is the Federal Reserve Bank is raising the short term federal fund rate. This is the rate that banks charge each other for overnight loans. The big time investors are concerned because the "Fed" may be seeing inflationary pressures that the majority of the economists cannot see.

Therefore, the current run up in interest rates is created more from anxiety than from reality.

Corporate profits are still strong. The big corporations continue to drive for greater efficiencies. In some cases they are selling off some of their divisions and reducing debt. Yet, the job market seems to be improving because there has been fewer applications for unemployment compensation.

The gurus are predicting that the equities market (common stocks) will continue to be weak for the rest of this year. They are expecting the Dow Jones industrial averages to bottom out somewhere in the 3,300 to 3,400 range. Then in 1995 they are expecting a strong rise in equities where the Dow may reach the area of 4,000 and/or better.

All experts seem to be "bullish" in regard to energy. It seems that a shortage may be developing in oil. From what I understand, the refineries are processing more crude than what they are able to buy. Under these conditions there should be a nice increase in the price of crude oil. This will cause an increase in oil companies profits.

The price of oil company common stocks should go up if this is in fact true. Then you can expect to see more exploring and development of our oil fields. This could be good news for Howard County and surrounding areas.

PRIME POEM

"The Enchanted Land"
Once long ago in the desert,
a family was lost on the road.
The baby was sick and lay dying,
In the desert of New Mexico.
In the primitive land of the desert
with no place to stay or to go,
The baby would have to be buried
In a grave by the side of the road.
In a lonely grave by the way side,
way out in New Mexico.
The wild flowers would grow
all around her,
The wind, would mourn for her soul.
But the moon shone down on the desert,
In the land of enchantment that night.
The baby was better next morning.
In the dawn of the bright morning light.
In the miraculous land of enchantment,
In that primitive land long ago,
There was no grave left by the way side
In the desert of New Mexico.
The enchanted land still haunts me,
even tho I was too young to know,
The desert keeps calling me back to the land,
way out in New Mexico.

"The Old Rugged Windmill"
An old rugged Windmill,
Hidden there in my dreams,
Sometime I'd go there
In the late summer eve.

An old dipper hanging
There by the old well,
A drink of cool water,
And rest for a spell.

As I lay in the meadow
I could hear the wind moan,
By the old rugged windmill,
Not far from our home.

Deep shadows falling,
In the meadow so green,
The coyote a prowling
In the late summer eve.

I think of green pastures,
and the meadows so green,
And the old rugged windmill,
Hidden there in my dreams,

Weights improve elderly's walking ability

BOSTON (AP) — Even for the very, very old, it appears it's never too late to benefit from getting in shape.

A study found that frail people in their late 80s and 90s get around more quickly, climb stairs better and sometimes even throw away their walkers after a few weeks of lifting weights to strengthen their legs.

"People have an unduly negative attitude about what can be done with those at the end of their lives. We need to be more optimistic," said the study's director, Dr. Maria A. Fiatarone of the U.S. Department of Agriculture Human Nutrition Research Center at Tufts University in Boston.

The work is a much larger follow-up to a groundbreaking study four years ago by the same team. That report showed that working out strengthens aging muscles. This one found that extra strength improves people's lives.

The new study suggests one reason the elderly grow chair-bound is that their muscles are weak from lack of exercise.

Dr. Evan Hadley, associate director for geriatrics at the National Institute on Aging, recommended that nursing homes start up exercise programs similar to the well-supervised routine used by the Tufts group.

"If done the way this was, this could benefit substantial numbers of older people," he said.

The earlier study was conducted on just 10 people, and some experts were skeptical,

VA WANTS VETERANS TO REFINANCE LOANS

The Department of Veterans Affairs is stepping up its campaign to inform veterans with high-interest rate. VA guaranteed home loans of the cost benefits of refinancing their loans.

"We are encouraging veterans to refinance their loans and realize substantial savings, at the same time giving a boost to the economy," said VA Secretary Jesse Brown. The VA has a streamlined program for converting VA guaranteed loans to new ones at lower interest rates at little or no cost. VA's Interest Rate Reduction Refinancing Loan program allows a veteran with an outstanding VA-guaranteed loan to obtain a new loan at a lower interest rate by using the same entitlement the veteran previously used to buy the home.

The program allows veterans to reduce the rate and generally requires no property appraisal or re-qualifying. For example, the effect of reducing a current VA loan with a 10 percent interest rate to 8.5% is to reduce the monthly payment by '96 on a '90,000 loan balance. "It is easy for the veterans to take advantage of the new VA program," said Brian Thomas, Branch Manager of South Central Mortgage. "It can all be done by mail and usually with no out-of-pocket costs to the veteran."

Veterans interested in information about refinancing their home loans can call Mitchell Skidmore, toll free (800) 533-5626.

People nearing retirement feel anxious about future

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two-thirds of Americans nearing retirement age anticipate serious problems trying to live comfortably on their retirement incomes, a survey shows. "People age 45 to 59 approach their futures with anxiety," according to the summary of the survey entitled, "Concerns of Adults in Their Pre-Retirement Years."

"Few feel well prepared financially for the transitions ahead — retiring from a job, putting a child through college, helping to support a parent," it explained.

And, the survey found, "Virtually no one this age thinks government can be relied upon to help with the challenges ahead."

The survey was conducted for the American Association of Retired Persons by Princeton Survey Research Associates. It involved 1,223 adults aged 45 to 59 polled between last Nov. 11 and Dec. 5 and had a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

The survey found that 39 percent of the respondents either had nothing saved or did not expect to have saved enough to meet even basic living expenses in retirement. Twenty-two percent believed they would have just enough to meet basic living expenses.

Only 11 percent believed that their savings would permit them to "live very comfortably" after retiring. An additional 24 percent said they expected to be able to meet expenses "with a little left over for extras."

Forty-six percent of workers aged 45 to 59 say they plan to retire before age 65, the survey showed. Twenty-eight percent plan to retire before the age of 70, 5 percent plan a later retirement and 15 percent say they will never retire.

Sixty-nine percent of workers aged 45 to 59 have begun to save for their retirement, although few believe that their current course of saving and investment will lead to very comfortable lifestyles. And 31 percent are relying on Social Security for most of their living expenses.

But another survey, by the Gallup Organization, found only 30 percent of the 2,002 adults polled in February and March expected Social Security benefits to be available throughout their retirement.

Alzheimer's: Disease of the century

By WANDA DENSON
Prime Writer

Alzheimer's disease is the fourth leading cause of death in the United States. The Alzheimer's Association reports that one in 10 individuals over age 65, and some individuals in their 40s and 50s, are victims of AD.

AD has been called the disease of the century, affecting some four million Americans. It is a progressive, degenerative disease that attacks the brain, resulting in impaired memory and thinking, and behavior changes.

Onset is usually gradual, marked by diminishing mental capacity. Recent memory is the first cognitive area affected by the disease. "In the early stages, patients remember their address and phone number but can't recall what they had for breakfast that morning," says Murry Raskind, M.D., advisor to the Alzheimer's Association.

The disease tends to progress to long-term memory loss and inability to express oneself clearly in conversation. Eventually, the patient forgets how to perform simple tasks such as eating and dressing, says Dr. Raskind.

Most AD victims become unable to care for themselves and require 24-hour supervision. The course of the disease averages 8-years from the time of onset, although it has lasted as long as 25-years.

The exact cause of AD is unknown and there is no known cure. However, researchers are encouraged by results of recent studies and promising therapies now under investigation.

Latest studies indicate that an absent gene may cause disintegration of brain nerve cells, thus leading to the development of AD. Scientists at Duke University say, if this is the case, medication designed to mimic action of the missing gene might prevent the development of AD in persons lacking the gene.

Tacrine (Cognex) is the first drug approved to treat AD.

Chapters offer referrals to services such as respite care, home health aides, day care programs, and facilities that accept AD patients. For more information, contact your local chapter of the Alzheimer's Association or call toll-free, 1-800-272-3900.

Life and times of Little Mister

By MARY RANDLE
Prime Writer

I first saw Little Mister about dusk 11 years ago. Small and bedraggled, I was sure he would be run over before nightfall. I drove by, then turned around, opened the door and called him, he came and jumped into the car.

On the way home I tried to think of something to explain his presence to Adrian. I decided it would be best to confess that the little dog hadn't really followed me home.

When Adrian saw him, he didn't say a word; just picked him up and went in the house. The next day we checked his tags, no one was at that address, we had a new dog.

We named him "Little Mister" because Adrian thought he looked like Henry Gibson, an actor, in a fur suit. He was well mannered, could sit up, but I didn't know what to do with his Benji-type coat.

Adrian had a new wood stove in his room, and in taking out the ashes, somehow the fence caught fire, not a lot, a little hole at the bottom. Just enough for Mister to leave and go to his old home. Adrian came to the office to tell me he was gone; I said maybe he just didn't care for us.

During lunch I looked out the kitchen window. Adrian was checking the fence, then he was walking toward the house, grinning, with Mister right behind. I guess he did like us.

He turned out to be the most stubborn dog I have ever known, and the most faithful. When I had surgery, he slept at the foot of my bed, and would growl if in his opinion, someone came too close.

When he sat on his haunches, his back feet came forward. Adrian said it was because that breed came from Tibet where they had lots of mountains, so he sat that way in order not to fall down the mountain.

If he didn't want to go outside, he would growl all the way to the door. Actually it sounded as if he were swearing.

His sight and smell had never been good, and then he gradually lost most of his hearing. Adrian thought I was angry when I yelled at him, but I just wanted him to know I was there.

He had asthma attacks over the years, so we changed his food, added a little more medicine, and that was all right too.

Does this sound almost like one of us getting older? I think so, he went through almost all of the aging problems humans do, sight, hearing, locomotion, illnesses, and yet he still enjoyed life and his treats as much as ever.

Last week, he really didn't seem well, our bet was out of town, but we watched him carefully and decided we must take him the next day to a Vet.

He slept in Adrian's room, Adrian came in and told me that Mister had died during the night. He was buried in his favorite Christmas hooked rug I had made. I'm sure a lot of people wondered why that holiday rug was out all year.

We still wait for him to bark for a treat, and the other pets seem to miss him. To his dying day he never liked cats, but BJ seems to miss him as much as anyone.

Goodbye, old friend.

We take much for granted

Perhaps it is just human nature to take for granted those things we use and see every day.

Myrtle Griffith
Columnist

Suppose one or more of those things were suddenly removed, would we notice? You bet we would! The old adage is quite true; "You never miss the water until the well runs dry."

Just for fun let us explore electrical power. Chances are that anyone pushing a button or throwing a switch never gives it a thought.

Those of us who are older can well remember when our homes did not have electric power. The younger generation can not feature a World without it, and it is doubtful that they ever even think of it at all unless there is a temporary outage.

So, let us look at an ordinary all electric home just outside the city limits. I asked the home maker which appliance she would miss most. After giving it some thought she replied, "The well pump, I guess, because I could get no water without, and without water that would be a total disaster, wouldn't it?"

This particular home, as mentioned, depends entirely on electric power for everything. So, we made a list of all the things we could think of that used power. Water well pump, hot water heater, refrigerator, air and central heat, washer, dryer, range, dishwasher, garbage disposal, dishwasher, mixer, salad maker, roaster, toaster, can opener, carving knife, blender, skillet, slow cooker, refrigerator, freezer, radio, TV, clocks, garage door opener, house lights, yard light, water softener, vacuum cleaner, sewing machine, curling iron, hair dryer, tooth brush, typewriter, telephone, steam iron, fans (ceiling fireplace and free standing ones), water bed heater, calculator, glue gun. These were all inside.

Out in the shop were numerous gadgets such as saws, drills, screw drivers soldering irons. Count them and you will see this amounts to a lot of power driven articles. By checking the list you can easily see the many things you could not do without the magic of electricity. If it were to fail permanently, wouldn't that create panic?

And this is only about a home, going into commercial use would be impossibly lengthy and too vast to imagine. Think about it for a moment, you couldn't drive your car and would have to walk as not many have horses to ride. Even your gasoline is pumped by electrical power.

I'm sure there are any number of things in many homes which are not listed here. Let's just appreciate and enjoy our culture.

Can scientists be Christians?

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think a person can be a scientist and still be a Christian? I want to be a scientist some day when I grow up, but I also want to follow Jesus. - L.M.

Billy Graham
Columnist

DEAR L.M.: Yes, it certainly is possible for a person to be a scientist and also a follower of Jesus Christ. In fact, some of the strongest Christians I have ever met have been people who were scientists or were trained in the sciences.

One reason is because science -- properly understood -- actually points us to faith in God. No honest scientist, for example, can investigate the wonders of our universe without realizing how intricate and marvelous it is, and asking himself or herself where it all came from. Did it all happen by chance? Or was there a Designer?

Logic points to a Designer -- to God. As the Bible says, "For since the creation of the world God's invisible qualities -- his eternal power and divine nature -- have been clearly seen, being understood from what has been made (Romans

1:20). The Psalmist declared,

"The heavens declare the glory of God; the skies proclaim the work of his hands" (Psalm 19:1). Remember too that science has its limits, and we need to turn to God's revelation of Himself in the Bible to discover the depths of His love in Jesus Christ.

I am thankful for your faith in Christ; always make it your goal to serve Him. Then commit your future to Him, and ask Him to guide you to the career He has for you. And if He leads you to become a scientist, let your study of God's universe bring you closer to Christ. Never forget that through Christ "all things were created ... He is before all

SIR: More and more I hear or read expressions like "I would have liked to have gone." I maintain it should be either "I would have liked to go" or "I would like to have gone." Surely I am not the only one who is being driven crazy by this cumbersome construction. - Charlene H.

Thanks. - Charles L.

A: Since the pills are plural, the verb should be "are." But hold on. If you're talking informally, you may choose to use "there's." It's all right, in that case, to use "there's" with a plural noun. Whether or not you need all those pills is your own problem.

SIR: It bothers me when I see the English language butchered and abused. I am enclosing an example from my newspaper: "Not to worry." My grammar-school teacher told me a sentence has to have both a subject and a verb to be a sentence. That is, all but exclamations such as "oh boy."

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) - Church pastors in Cobb County, which recently lost a 2-year court fight to display a copy of the Ten Commandments in the courthouse, plan mass distribution

The Rev. Nelson Price, pastor of the 9,500-member Roswell Street Baptist Church in Marietta, said he will distribute the gold-embossed copies of the Ten Commandments as part of "an organized response" to the May 31 Supreme Court ruling. He said local businesses are paying for printing the posters.

September credit should be seen by TU customers

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

With summer comes increased temperatures and higher utility bills.

But TU Electric customers will be receiving credit on their September bills stemming from proposed refunds filed with the Public Utility Commission by TU Electric related to its recent rate case that would result in customer credits.

TU Electric District Manager John Toone said, "This has been a long time in coming."

Pending approval by the PUC, customers should begin to notice the credit, with interest, beginning Aug. 25, which is the first day of the September billing cycle.

Toone said three things are being adjusted with this credit; the rate difference between what TU Electric asked for what it actually received, add back due to fuel adjustment, and state franchise taxes.

"The refund should have a mitigating effect on what are, generally, the highest monthly bills of the year," Toone said. "September bills reflect the heavy air conditioning use that occurs during August and early September when Texas weather is usually the hottest."

The refund represents the difference between the 15.3 percent increase TU Electric put into effect under bond in August 1993 and the approved 9 percent increase that went into effect in May.

According to Toone, the Texas Public Utility Regulatory Act allows a utility to place its requested rates into effect, under bond and subject to refund, 185 days after the filing date if PUC had not taken action. TU Electric's rate increase request was filed in January of 1993.

Including the 9.985 percent interest through August, the total refund is just over $237.5 million. TU Electric's 2.3 million customers will receive their pro-rated share of this refund based upon their kilowatt-hour use for September bills.

The refund will be partially offset by a fuel surcharge that will also be applied to September bills. The fuel surcharge, which is unrelated to TU Electric's rate case, is to recover higher than expected fuel costs through June of 1993.

Toone said, "We have to estimate what we think fuel will cost for a future period and this is the first time we've underestimated."

The higher costs were caused primarily by increases in natural gas prices on the spot market of more than 30 percent since mid-1992, when the company's present fuel factors were last calculated.

When the PUC approved the surcharge in December of 1993, it directed the company to apply it to customer bills at the same time as the refund. The total fuel surcharge, including an average 3.57 percent interest, is just under $147.5 million.

For a residential customer using 1,000 kilowatts per hour, a bonded rate refund of $27 will be offset by a fuel surcharge of $14, resulting in a net credit of $13. According to TU Electric, for the average residential use for

Data Based Foundations computed into quick expansion of business

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

There is a new computer store in Big Spring offering custom designed computers for personal or business use.

Data Based Foundations officially opened in April and has already expanded its staff because of a great response.

"We offer computer consultations, custom programs, Novell and Lantastic network environments and we can turn mainframe computers into a PC (personal computer) environment," said owner Larry Marshall.

The company also sells, services and repairs computers along with providing training for a variety of programs. Classes are at the store and Howard College.

"We can custom design and build a computer that is better than what you can get at a discount store. Often a person buys one at the store and later realizes it isn't what they wanted and they can't expand it. I've heard horror stories of people that went to expand or upgrade and discovered they couldn't."

Marshall continued, "we look at what the person or business needs and what they might need in the future. We talk to the individual customer about their needs and show them they don't have to spend a lot of money to get what they want for present and future use."

The company is able to purchase the equipment needed to build a computer at discount prices and pass the savings on to the customer. They can also make custom programs for an individual or business.

"I've created programs for the Big Spring Correctional Larry Marshall works with the computers in the recently opened Data Base Foundations. The store opened in April and business has been good enough for Marshall to expand his operation already.

Center, invoice and account programs, motel and convention itinerary programs and one for a local nursing home," Marshall added.

A computer for an individual's home that includes a hard drive, color monitor, keyboard and ability to expand would cost around $1,400. The printer would be an extra expense and if a person wanted to add CD-ROM, it would be an easy process.

DBF offers leasing for corporate customers and individuals who have a good credit history.

"The lease is flexible to meet the needs of the people in the community. Also, I'm getting used to the market in Big Spring to see what their needs are. I can order software and computer accessories and have them here in about 48 hours," Marshall said.

Since the store opened in April, Marshall has hired a person to handle the maintenance portion of the business and a purchasing agent who pours over catalogs to find the best price for whatever the customer needs. His wife is the office manager.

"I'm also working with the Texas Rehabilitation Commission in training a quadriplegic to handle all of the graphic design work for me. Marshall added, "I offer a higher quality machine at a reasonable rate, I can't always compete with prices but my computers are expandable where others aren't. I also provide local support and service.

I offer customers a choice so they don't have to go to Midland, Odessa, San Angelo or Lubbock and can shop here for their computer needs."

Data Based Foundations is located at 307 Union Street and the phone number is 263-5107 or 1-800-624-1572. They are open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Friday but closed for lunch from noon until 1 p.m. They are also open on Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Nigerian strike ups oil prices

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices rose Thursday as the market remained transfixed by developments in Nigeria.

September delivery contracts for light sweet crude oil finished 31 cents per barrel higher on Thursday at $19.77 per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

The market was helped higher by news that more than a third of Shell's output from Nigeria had been affected by the oil worker strike. Shell is Nigeria's biggest oil operator, pumping about 950,000 barrels per day — half the country's output.

Also, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, on a mission from the White House, said he sees little hope for compromise and fears civil war in Nigeria. Jackson met with Nigeria's military ruler and his main opponent.

Shell announced on Wednesday that the strike was delaying scheduled shipments by four to five days.

Prices for refined products were mixed. Unleaded gasoline for August delivery fell 0.40 cent to 57.51 cents per gallon and home heating oil settled at 50.69 cents, up 0.30 cent.

Natural gas for September delivery rose 1.8 cents to $1.861 per 1,000 cubic feet.

In London, North Sea Brent Blend crude rose 29 cents to finish at $18.18 per barrel.

Jack and Vickie Perry cut the ribbon during a grand opening for Lone Star Aviation at the Big Spring Airpark Saturday afternoon. Other employees of the company are Vickie Fryar, Paul Armstrong, Tom Porterfield and Ricky Hefley.

Lone Star Aviation: Taking care of high flyers

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Lone Star Aviation celebrated its grand opening July 23 at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark with burgers, door prizes and a free dynamic propeller balance to one lucky flying enthusiast.

Owner Jack Perry actually moved into the airpark on March 1, but has not had time for a grand opening until now.

Lone Star Aviation will provide maintenance for general aviation aircraft as well as annual inspections, major and minor repairs, and will sell Angas fuel.

The aviation company is actually two companies in one also using the name Lone Star Propeller, which will overhaul and repair McCauley, Hartzell, and Beech propellers.

Perry said, "People don't think about propellers having moving parts inside." Lone Star is a certified FAA repair station.

Perry had a small shop in Midland, but decided to move it to Big Spring where he has lived for the last 10 years. He said, "This is home and we (family) wanted to stay here. My kids grew up here."

Flying is not a cheap hobby according to Perry, but there are some aviation enthusiasts in Big Spring.

"There are about 45 or so planes based in Big Spring and we provide maintenance for them. Planes go through annual inspections that are considerably more detailed than those performed on cars," Perry said, "and those inspections can last for hours at a time."

Seminar teaches competitiveness with national discount stores

Experts estimate that by the year 2000, 60 percent of all small businesses in existence today will be out of business!

Why? Because they don't have the information they need to survive the 90's! Will your business be one of them? Are you worried about what is going to happen to your business when the "Big Guy" opens its doors? We want to help our members, so we have brought in the best program available on this subject. Kent Burnes (no relation, different spelling) will play hard ball on how to survive the 90's, Mega Discounters, Factory Outlets, etc. He'll talk about what your most successful competitors know that you don't.

He'll give you the seven keys that will make or break your business, and tell you how to generate more sales, starting today. He'll evaluate our community and base his comments on our specific situation, not generic national trends. It is literally the Economic Survival

Workshop, and any merchants that don't take advantage of it will be really missing the boat. It is booked for Sept. 7-8-9 in the East Room at Howard College and we are beginning to take reservations now. It will be in three parts.

The first will be the National Discounters Workshop at 6:30 p.m. Wednesday Sept. 7, and will deal with the big buys, here as well as in Midland, Odessa, and Lubbock.

The second will be a Follow Up Workshop at 6:30 p.m. Sept. 8, and will relate the results of his study of the community, visits with community leaders, and business walk-throughs, and will deal with what he has learned to help our retailers.

Finally, on a first come, first served basis, Burnes will set up In-Store Consultations Thursday and Friday during the day. In these he will come in and give you an individual analysis, telling you what you need to hear, good or bad.

If you are a chamber member, each of these sessions will be only $25, or you can do all three for $65. For non-members, they will be $35 each or the package for $100. That is a really cheap price for something that might just save your business.

I want to point out that this is

Those who voluntarily come forward will find the IRS available to help them complete their returns and make arrangements to pay any tax due."

Operation Fresh Start will be in Midland Friday, Aug. 5, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at 1004 N. Big Spring, Suite 201 and Saturday, Aug. 6, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Be sure to bring any relevant tax records including W-2 forms.

At&T to carry in-state toll calls for SW Bell

DALLAS (AP) — AT&T announced Tuesday it will compete with Southwestern Bell Corp. on in-state toll calls between nearby Texas cities.

The shorter-distance calls typically have been handled by local telephone companies since AT&T's divestiture in 1984. The local phone company automatically carries toll calls in Texas unless customers dial their long-distance company's five-digit code.

The company said customers could save 6 to 48 percent by using AT&T service instead.

Volunteers one of a the main reason behind AJRA's success

This past week's AJRA Junior Rodeo was again a success for our county's 4H members and leaders.

Don Richardson
County Agent

This was the 49th Annual rodeo for our community and it always amazes me even after over 15 years as a county Extension Agent here in Howard County how everyone pitches in and gets this rodeo accomplished with so few problems as it does each year.

The rodeo is completely handled by volunteers. The rodeo, itself, is the major fund raiser for the county's 4H program. Proceeds from this rodeo enable our 4H members to participate in many activities throughout the year.

It helps finance our 4Hers to competition at the State 4H Roundup, 4H Congress and various other leadership activities.

The rodeo begins almost as soon as the previous one is completed. A special rodeo committee is appointed by our 4H adult leaders who develops a special organizational chart assigning various individuals special committee heads.

These heads then appoint various others to these committees who in turn seek out other help as needed. Over 100 volunteers become involved in the show each year as a result.

Much of the success of this event goes to the individuals who take charge of the many areas that must be taken care of to pull the rodeo off.

Howard County is blessed with a lot of rodeo talented individuals who lend these talents to our rodeo. These talents become invaluable when dealing with much of the rodeo events such as dealing with stock contractors, rodeo secretaries and programs, sorting of roping stock, handling of performers, setting up for the show, and countless other activities.

A whole different set of talents and personalities are needed for handling concessions, publicity, ticket sales, program ads, cleanup duties, awards, arena preparations, organization of work forces, etc.

Our show this year was dedicated to Jack Buchanan for all the many years of service he has done for our rodeo. Jack was and is a mainstay in our community and we appreciate all he and his family have done for us. Congratulations again, Jack, and thanks.

The whole point is that an event like our junior rodeo just does not happen. It takes a lot of work, planning and preparations on the part of a lot of folks to see that it gets accomplished.

I can not begin to thank all the people who helped make this rodeo successful and I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings by leaving anyone out but some folks need some special recognition.

Thanks to Skipper Driver for helping take care of the stock contractor business with Tommy Owens and his crew out of Rankin and handling the sorting of all the roping stock. He had a lot of help with this such as Mike Yeator and Ron Bruton.

The north end of the rodeo with its bucking chutes is handled by Wendal Walker. Toby Green, Don Brewer, Kelly Gaskins and Walker team up and get the barrel racing, pole bending and goat events set up. Talk about accuracy in measuring. They found the old markers buried in the same spots as last year when they remeasured this year!

Terry Jenkins made so many contacts in lining up judges and other folks it amazes me just how many rodeo type folks he knew to call upon. This is no small item as so many of the people who are qualified for such duties also rodeo themselves and are so often involved in rodeos this time of year it becomes a real chore to secure such individuals...and especially to do so as volunteers!

Bill Jenkins, Robert Crenshaw, Dusty Johnston, Lonnie Wright, Driver and Yeator and a big crew were on hand to see that the roping end of the arena was in good shape for the show.

Cindy Middleton did a bang up job on getting our program ad sales campaign in shape and thanks to Debbie Sheppard and Cindy for all TV and radio coverage they arranged plus other publicity for our rodeo. Judy Johnston was responsible to securing awards and donors for the high-point winners this year. Nita Wright and Lana Brewer took over the concession stand jobs like the pros they are and lined up all the help and countless details involved in that. Linda Tabor handled the Queen's contest for the show this year.

Congratulations to our Queen, Shaundra Walker, for the outstanding job she did it selling the most tickets for our show this year and winning the honor of rodeo queen. The other contestants were Dondi Brewer, Crystal Stockton and Tonya Tabor.

Gary Tabor and Richard Sanders has the job of handling ticket sales at the East and West Gates of the grounds and that is no easy task (Everyone expects to get in free!). Thanks to Bob Nichols for arranging for the feed for the rodeo stock. When hay supplies are in short supply, Bob always seems to find some somewhere!

Balancing the books and handling the finances is the monumental job for Kelly Gaskins. In charge of timing all the events is Jim Purcell who lines up his crew for this. Efima Jenkins communicates between the judges stands and the timers to help us keep records of these events.

There are many, many more volunteers that helped and we thank each and everyone of them for this donation of time and talents in support of our 4H program. We appreciate all of you so very much.

TU

September bills of 1,700 kwh, a rate refund of $45 combined with a fuel surcharge of $24 provides a net credit of $21.

A fuel surcharge or fuel refund is applied whenever the amount an electric utility pays for fuel is significantly above or below the amount included in the company's rates. This "true-up" process has resulted in 10 fuel refunds to customers since 1986, but this is TU Electric's first fuel surcharge.

Under PUC rules, TU Electric is required to file a fuel surcharge in February and August of each year if the accrued fuel cost balance reflects a sizable under-recovery of fuel costs.

Fuel costs above the amount included in rates have continued, making it necessary for TU Electric to file another fuel surcharge on Aug. 5. Including interest, this surcharge will recover $93 million in under-collected fuel costs.

TU Electric is proposing this surcharge be recovered over a six-month period, beginning in January 1995, which would result in an estimated charge of only $2.50 on a monthly residential bill of 1,000 kwh.

An additional adjustment that will be made on September bills is related to a state franchise tax that was over-refunded to TU Electric customers last year.

TU Electric was required to refund an estimated reduction in its 1993 tax liability an an interim refund factor until the effect of new tax legislation could be permanently included in rates.

The actual reduction in TU Electric's state franchise tax, combined with the kilowatt-hour sales to which it was applied, was $465,548 less than the amount refunded. The difference will be recovered on September bills as a "cost of service surcharge."

Attendance policy changes as school year begins

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

School is just around the corner and everyone is gearing up for the first class to start on Aug. 15. There are always changes that take place every school year and the 1994-95 one is no exception.

The Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees recently adopted a new policy to increase attendance at all campuses. The district lost approximately $150,000 of funding last year from the state due to the low attendance rate. For the past several years, students could be absent for any reason such as skipping school or going on a family vacation and not be penalized.

"Principals, teachers and administrators formed an attendance committee to discuss the problem. My teachers kept saying they couldn't teach empty desks and there needed to be a tougher attendance policy," said Big Spring High School Principal Kent Bowermon.

About seven years ago, the state legislature did away with unexcused and excused absences. The attendance laws were liberalized so that a student, at first, could miss five days a semester for any reason. "Then, they expanded them again and said a student could be absent 15 days a year. They went back and changed it again to say a student could miss 10 percent of the year which turns out to be 18.3 days," added Bowermon.

The legislature has come back and now says a district can once again establish excused and unexcused absences. "We have come full circle just like we always do in education," added Assistant Principal Roland Atkins.

"For example, if a child got the chicken pox his senior year in high school and missed 11 days was treated the same as someone who decided to just skip school for 11 days. It was not fair to those students who tried hard, had funerals to attend or a doctor's appointment," commented Bowermon.

The new absentee policy that has been adopted and will be in the student manual at the high school explains what is considered an excused or unexcused absence. Juniors and seniors also have the option of being exempt from semester finals if they meet a certain criteria.

Excused absences include:

- Religious or holy days under education code 21.035(F)
- Medical or dental appointments with approved documentation
- School-sanctioned extracurricular activities not to exceed 10 days
- Family emergencies or unforeseen or unavoidable instances requiring immediate attention (to be determined by the administration)
- Participation in a substance-abuse rehabilitation program
- Required appearance in court or in legal proceedings
- Absences related to being a migrant student
- Absences due to being a runaway under family code 51.03(3)
- Approved college visitations for seniors (one day only that must be approved five school days prior to going). Seniors over the number of allowed absences will not be granted a college day
- Personal illness
- Unexcused absences:
  - Truancy

- Suspension
- Car trouble
- Family vacations or trips

Each student is allowed to accumulate six days per semester without any verification of illness other than a note from the parent or guardian. On the seventh day, the student must have a doctor's note or verification from the school nurse about the illness or the absentee will be classified as unexcused.

A "Saturday school" will be offered to all students who have absences that cause them to fall below the required 80 days of attendance in a semester. Bowermon says the Saturday school will be offered four times during November and December and again in April and May.

"There were 126 kids that were absent more than 14 days in the spring semester alone and these were not for any UIL or other school activities," commented Bowermon.

Atkins added, "it is important for kids to come to school not just because of the money for the district but especially because education is so important. It's hard to learn something if you aren't in class. They need to be in school."

"We aren't saying a child should come to school if they are really sick but too many times they want to just sleep in or skip school. It helps society if a child comes to school and gets an education."

Bowermon said, "if we can train the students to come to school, it will in turn train them to come to work. They will be more productive in society and a better worker if they get into the habit now."

Avoid scams by telling con men to scram

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you concerning the grandmother who was entering all kinds of contests and lotteries she received through the mail or telephone.

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

I used to work in a bank and recall seeing my fellow co-workers save many customers thousands of dollars by talking them out of sending money to scam artists. All of these customers were over 65.

I remember a 70-year-old woman coming to my window to withdraw $2,000 from her savings account. She told me she was sending it to another city by Federal Express and it HAD to go out today. She did not know that her daughter had telephoned to let us know that her mother had received a telephone call from someone saying she had won a brand-new Cadillac, but she had to send $2,000 to have it sent to her! She was told if she didn't send the money immediately, she would lose the Cadillac.

I immediately got hold of the bank manager. He invited her into his office and spent nearly an hour convincing her that the contest was phony. She didn't send the money.

Abby, those crooks zero in on the elderly. It's usually a widow who is on a small fixed income whom they can take for $2,000 or $3,000. When this happens, the people who lose the money never report it because they feel so foolish.

Please tell your readers that if they are asked to send money to receive a prize, it's a contest they should avoid. -- EX-BANKER

DEAR EX-BANKER: Thank you for giving me the opportunity to remind my readers to beware of any contest that requires the contestants to send money in order to be eligible for a prize.

Money is NEVER a prerequisite to enter a legitimate contest.

DEAR ABBY: A couple of years ago, my husband had an affair with a divorced woman from our church. (I'll call her Betty.) Betty had my husband's child. The affair ended, and I forgave my husband because we have three children of our own. It was agreed that my husband would have nothing to do with Betty's child, who was not given his name. Betty asked for no child support.

My problem is that we all attend the same church, and Betty flaunts her (and my husband's) child to everyone. This is a small town, and everybody knows everybody else's business. I find myself hating my husband and Betty, and wishing she had aborted the child. Our children are asking questions and it is killing me. I've tried to discuss my feelings with my pastor. He says, "The Christian way is to forgive."

I am losing my spirituality because my beloved church has become a painful agony for me. My husband refuses to attend another church. Besides, it's the only one of its kind for miles around. Betty is also a longstanding member, and would never leave. (Her ex-husband was a well-respected pastor.)

If I left my husband, he would surely fight me for my children, and I couldn't bear that. What would you do, Abby? -- FALLING FROM GRACE

DEAR FALLING: I would insist that my husband go with me to another church -- even though it would require a longer drive. If he STILL refused to go with me, I would take my children to another church without him.

For Abby's favorite family recipes, send a long, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet No. 1, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

This also hurts the taxpayers when the average daily attendance (ADA) goes down. The real goal is to get them to school. The kids can't get an education if they aren't here. There is a direct correlation between low test scores and poor attendance in school."

Assistant Principal Craig Fischer added, "this administration plans to work diligently and persistently in improving attendance at our school. Your child cannot learn if they are not here for our teachers to teach. It's as simple as that.

WITH TSTC BEHIND ME...

My first two years in a 2+2 cooperative degree program can add up to a 4 year degree.

With all of my high-tech, hands-on experience, I can get a job after I graduate in 2 years. But it's nice to know that at Texas State Technical College I can choose my own career path. TSTC gives me the option to transfer my selected credits to a 4 year college. With courses ranging from Manufacturing Engineering Technology to Emergency Medical Technology, TSTC has provided me with the skills to excel in the job market and the opportunity to use those skills in continuing my education. It just makes sense.
