Former officer arrested for theft

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

A former Big Spring police officer was recently indicted by a 118th District Court grand jury for theft over $750 and under $20,000.

Mike Chesnut, 29 of 2501 Kelly Circle, turned himself in to the Crane County Sheriff's Department on Oct. 19 and was released after posting a $10,000 bond.

Members of the Big Spring Police Association contacted the Texas Rangers to investigate Chesnut's activities while he was treasurer of the association.

"Our investigation found he allegedly diverted money from the association for his personal use at various times in 1993. The amount was roughly $8,000 to $10,000," said Texas Rangers Capt. Gene Powell.

Powell could not comment further on how Chesnut was reportedly able to divert the money. The indictment was a result of a four month long investigation. Chesnut could not be reached for comment.

Local students invade city hall to learn ins and outs of governing

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

The city of Big Spring and City Hall seem to have their usual look on the outside, but took today on a youthful appearance on the inside. "Students In Government."

Seniors from Big Spring High School are running the city today as part of a cooperative effort between the city and BSHS.

City Manager Lanny Lambert said, "Our goal is to develop a closer relationship between student government and our city leaders, which will help develop our leaders of tomorrow."

Cathy Bowermon, BSHS government teacher, said the City Council asked the school to incorporate this program into the school and students then filled out applications for the position they wanted to fill.

Today, 10 seniors will fill the positions of mayor, six city council members, city manager, fire chief, and police chief.

Bowermon said, "We took the applications and broke them down based on the qualifications students listed as having for each position. Our economics/government teachers selected the students they felt would fit the positions."

Filling in for Mayor Tim Blackshear will be Drexell Owusu; council members will be Julie Robles, District 1; Amanda Herrera, District 2; Maria Villarreal, District 3; Josh Peters, District 4; Melissa Brown, District 5; and Jamie Palacios, District 6.

Filling in as three other administrative heads will be City Manager Elvia Yanez, Fire

Our goal is to develop a closer relationship between student government and our city leaders, which will help develop our leaders of tomorrow.

Lanny Lambert

Chief Jeremy Talbott, and Police Chief Billy Shubert.

Bowermon said, "We hope we can do this once a year and maybe more, but we'll have to see how this works the first time. I think it's important that students see how local government runs."

"I also think this program will be a lot easier to do again after it's done the first time. I told the students they would probably learn more doing this than I could teach them in three weeks."

The Students in Government program began this morning with a staff meeting at the Dora Roberts Community Center followed by student staff members meeting with their respective city leaders and council members actually touring their districts.

Students will have lunch at the Community Center with department heads and council members and this afternoon will tour the Waste Water Treatment Plant, Composting Operation, and the Mid-Tex Detention Center before taking a break prior to tonight's City Council meeting, which they will run.

Joint project gives SWCID closed-caption programming

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

At a news conference Monday the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf announced the installation of a cooperative project between Midland television station KWES (Channel 9) and SWCID/Howard College for closed caption programming.

The equipment will be installed in Midland and in Big Spring for the following reasons: first, to use in education; second, to use in job skills training; and third, to use in getting information such as life-threatening announcements such as weather and emergency bulletins, and news reports to the eight percent of the population who are hearing-impaired.

Several people representing KWES-TV 9 and other organizations were introduced and welcomed by Johnnie Lou Avery, SWCID Development board member and host of Big Spring Today.

For the more than 30,000 deaf and hearing-impaired citizens in West Texas, closed-captioning should go on-line around the first of November.

Ron Brasel, associate vice president for SWCID, said,

"With this equipment, we will be able to touch the lives of the deaf and hearing-impaired across the entire Permian Basin, providing them with a visual tool for learning and bringing them local news and information. This service will also benefit the senior population with hearing losses, non-English speaking individuals, and young children learning to read. Most importantly, there is a potential life-saving service as well."

John Foster, general manager for KWES-TV added, "When emergency situations happen, such as severe weather alerts or fires requiring evacuation procedures, the closed captioning equipment will enable deaf and hearing-impaired individuals to receive immediate information and directions for their safety."

According to SWCID and KWES-TV, additional training and educational opportunities will be available to SWCID students as a profession in working for TV stations with closed captioning equipment. The equipment at SWCID will also be available for encoding training tapes, public service announcements, and commercials or other promotional videos.

County goes on-line for vehicle registration

By CARLTON JOHNSON

At Monday's meeting of the Howard County Commissioners' Court, commissioners approved a request by County Tax Assessor/Collector Kathy Sayles for a Registration and Title System Agreement Form.

This means in early February 1995, Howard County will be on-line with Austin for Motor Vehicle Registration.

According to Sayles a five-year contract has already been drawn up and the cost per unit (Howard County has four units) is $10,000.

Sayles added once all of Texas is on-line with Austin, reports and various items will take less time to process and vehicle information would be available to officials in no time at all.

income level. According to Howard County Indigent Health and Welfare Director Irene Dominguez, there are four criteria for qualifying for indigent health assistance from the county.

Those criteria include residency in Howard County, income not exceeding $233 per month for single persons and $300 per month for couples, other resources such as possessions and property, and household composition (who lives in the house).

Dominguez said, "Every six months there is a case review and a lot of people see us as too strict, but these are guidelines set forth by the state and not Howard County."

Clients are referred to the county by the hospital and according to Dominguez they are screened and the approved or denied.

Clients have a right to appeal to commissioners if they don't agree with the decision of the IHC department and then it's up to commissioners to approve or deny paying a bill that has been declared ineligible.

Dominguez said, "The county is responsible for IHC and my office is responsible for presenting cases referred to us and seeing that appeals are heard if necessary, as was the case Monday."

In other business, Sayles presented commissioners with a recap of the 1994 tax roll for Howard County.

The total local value for the county is just over $50.04 million; total personal value, $452.78 million; and total mineral value, $706.2 million for a total value of $1.259 billion.

Total exemptions equal slightly more than $182.3 million for a total taxable value for Howard County of $1.077 billion.

Richards: Bush lacking in business skills

AUSTIN (AP) — Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush says he's a successful businessman with broad experience that makes him ready to be governor.

Democratic Gov. Ann Richards says Bush has lost big money and lacks the skills needed to run a $71-billion state government.

From the opening gun of their only debate to almost daily speeches on the campaign trail, Richards accuses Bush of exaggerating business accomplishments.

Bush accuses Richards of being a career politician who has launched an unsubstantiated attack on his career in an effort to derail his campaign.

"He laid himself out to be, for all of us to see on television, a successful businessman," Richards said. "And yet we know that, as a consequence of those businesses, all five of them on which he sat on the board lost $371 million."

Looking to mandate playground safety

FORT WORTH (AP) — If one lawmaker has his way, Texas will become only the second state in the nation to mandate minimum standards for playground safety.

State Rep. Keith Oakley, D-Terrell, is drafting legislation that would require Texas' public playgrounds to be built according to specific safety standards. Those standards are to be developed using guidelines established by the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Oakley's actions were prompted by a playground accident in Euless last month in which 6-year-old Jermy Browning suffered massive head injuries. The rotted supports of a wooden climbing wall broke and caused the 350-pound structure to fall on Jermy during lunch recess on Sept. 19.

The first-grader returned to school Oct. 12 after undergoing emergency brain surgery and remaining in critical condition at Cook-Fort Worth Children's Medical Center for days.

If the legislation is passed, Texas would join California as the only states that mandates playground safety.

Hermann Hospital to pay back taxes

HOUSTON (AP) — Hermann Hospital has agreed to pay $1 million in back taxes and penalties for abusing its tax-exempt status during a four-year period ending in 1992, the Internal Revenue Service said.

Earlier this month, hospital officials said a 1992 internal audit revealed that administrators and trustees "had in some cases strayed across the boundary lines for not-for-profit hospitals."

Bush accuses Richards of breaking pledge

IRVING (AP) — As the race for governor moves into its final two weeks, Republican George W. Bush is continuing his criticism of incumbent Ann Richards and is accusing her of breaking a prior campaign pledge.

A barge carrying part of an oil-drilling platform sits wedged under the Interstate 45 causeway leading into Galveston Monday. The oversized load struck the bridge just after 9 p.m., closing the highway lanes leading into Galveston until officials can check for damage.

Oversized payload wedges barge beneath causeway

GALVESTON (AP) — The Interstate 45 causeway between Galveston Island and the mainland was closed overnight after a barge wedged beneath the span, the Coast Guard said.

The accident also halted barge traffic on the Intracoastal Waterway beneath the bridge, said Coast Guard Petty Officer Robert Gullihur.

The barge that struck the two-mile-long causeway was carrying part of an offshore oil production rig that was too high to pass under the bridge, Gullihur said.

Farmer turns loss
into help for needy

LUBBOCK (AP) — Devastating heat struck David Smith's potato crop in Lamb County and left 1 million pounds of misshapen vegetables.

Smith says he could have plowed up the field. Instead, he gave the unmarketable potatoes to the new Breedlove Dehydration Plant.

The South Plains Food Bank is betting that other farmers will similarly deliver leftover produce that could be turned into dried meals for the needy. Officials showed off their high-tech dehydration plant Monday.

"There is no more important work on earth than feeding the hungry," said state Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who reiterated hopes that Breedlove would become a prototype for developing nations.

The dehydration plant, billed as the world's first operation of its type for charity, is expected to dry enough potatoes, carrots and onions to feed 40,000 people a day.

ing part of an offshore oil production rig that was too high to pass under the bridge, Gullihur said.

There were no injuries nor danger of pollution leaking into Galveston Bay in the wake of the 8:15 p.m. accident Monday, Gullihur said. No chemicals were aboard the barge being pushed by the tugboat Avery Bean.

Officials from the Galveston Coast Guard Marine Safety

Office were on the scene early today, Gullihur said.

The Texas Department of Transportation allowed two-way traffic on northbound lanes to resume early today, a spokesman said. However, officials were going to wait until daylight to make a thorough inspection of southbound lanes.

The Intracoastal Waterway was reopened following removal of the barge, the Coast Guard said.

Skimmer armada puts ahead of schedule

HOUSTON (AP) — Oil-recovery crews are ahead of schedule in collecting spilled crude and gasoline from the San Jacinto River and could be finished by Wednesday, the Coast Guard says.

An armada of skimmers worked in tandem with vacuum trucks Monday to clean up the sticky mess caused by ruptured pipelines during last week's floods.

Coast Guard Capt. Richard Ford estimated 200,000 gallons of crude, gasoline and diesel fuel was released into the San Jacinto and downstream into the Houston Ship Channel and the Gulf of Mexico after Thursday's rupture.

Ford said he was confident that at least 95 percent of the oil would be gathered by Wednesday.

Ford credited quick evaporation for eliminating much of the petroleum that had leaked into the waterway.

Skimmers in place since the weekend had retrieved some 4,000 barrels — or about 160,000 gallons — of oil and water. Roughly half of that was oil, Ford said.

Officials allowed one of two ruptured lines belonging to Colonial Pipeline Co. to continue to burn Monday. On the west side of the river, skimmers were collecting pockets of crude oil from a broken Texaco Inc. crude oil line.

However, Ford said skimmers could not be used to clean up oil that had massed in shallow areas. Instead, he said, the Coast Guard began switching to vacuum trucks that could get close to the water's edge. Hoses were dipped into the river to suck out the oil.

The cleanup by Monday had cost about $3.5 million from the federal Oil Pollution Trust Fund, Ford said.

"That does not include the salaries of government officials that have had to be involved in this or the costs associated with government equipment ... nor does it include the extraordinary travel expenses," he added.

Both Texaco and Colonial worked Monday to finish capping their leaking pipelines. The Colonial line, a major conduit for shipping gasoline to the Northeast, was shut Thursday. The Texaco line, carrying crude oil to a refinery in Port Arthur, had been idle at the time of the break but each of the lines leaked oil products that already had been in the line.

Colonial said Monday its gasoline shipments were at 75 percent of capacity, pumping 60.5 million gallons of fuel from east of Houston.

The pipeline leaks, possibly caused by heavy debris carried by the swollen river, resulted in a massive fire last week that sent some 120 people to hospitals for smoke and fume inhalation. The resulting spill sent streaks of black oil as far as 20 miles downstream from the river's mouth.

The river leads into the Houston Ship Channel and empties into Galveston Bay, which contains environmentally sensitive wetlands.

Ron Brinkley of the Texas General Land Office, said no oily birds had been recovered Monday and that while some marshlands were blackened, the damage was believed minimal.

Flooding that began eight days ago with torrential rains claimed 19 lives and left 35 Texas counties designated federal disaster areas.

Ruling deals blow to tribe's casino gambling

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal appeals court has dealt a blow to the Tigua Indian tribe's plans for an El Paso casino.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Monday struck down a lower court's ruling in favor of the tribe.

The court ruled that the Tiguas prohibited gaming on their reservation in exchange for federal recognition in 1986.

"We are left with the unmistakable conclusion that Congress — and the tribe — intended for Texas' gaming laws and regulations to operate as surrogate federal law on the tribe's reservation in Texas," the three-judge panel said in the unanimous ruling.

The New Orleans-based appeals court also ordered the dismissal of the suit.

The ruling on an appeal by the state of Texas could have implications for similar gambling efforts in Texas.

The Tiguas filed the lawsuit in 1993 after Gov. Ann Richards refused to agree to a "compact" with the tribe to allow gambling on the reservation.

LEAD PACKAGED CANDY

Sam Sanchez, chief sanitarian for Environmental Health of the San Antonio Metropolitan Health District says candies from Mexico were found to have lead in the packaging. The health district fears the attractively packaged candies will wind up as Halloween trick-or-treat offerings.

Wear a Red Ribbon, show your stance on drug abuse

Education is a key to fighting the war on drugs.

In Big Spring, we have the DARE program, D-FY-IT to help educate our youngsters about the dangers of drugs.

This week is Red Ribbon Week, honoring Drug Enforcement Agent Enrique Camarena who was tortured and killed by a Mexican drug cartel in 1985 during the fight against drug importation.

It is also a time to learn about the dangers of drugs - not only what it does to your mind and body but the murders and other drug-related crimes that plague our society.

Opinions expressed in this column are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

The week is commemorated by the wearing of a Red Ribbon signifying Texas' War on Drugs, promoting a drug-free lifestyle.

Pick a day this week, wear a Red Ribbon and let the city know your stance on drugs and its effects.

And, if you see a child wearing a Red Ribbon, take a moment to congratulate that child for choosing a drug free future.

Looking for a warm fireplace

I am looking for a fireplace to buy. It would be nice if a house came with it. The man calls "the seller" stands in his pretty yard and holds forth. I am called "the borrower." Have been most of my life. The seller tells me about his home's security system, the well, the drainage, the septic tank. He tells me about insurance and low taxes and good neighbors. He tells me he'll leave me one of the butane tanks.

"Does the fireplace work?" I ask. First thing first. The sheet metal square over the fireplace gives me pause.

"Absolutely," he says. "But you know you'll lose most of your heat using an open fireplace."

Men see it as their life's mission to discourage the use of an open fireplace. When a boy baby is born, the first word he gurgles is "Mama." Soon afterwards, he learns a full sentence: "All your heat will go right up the chimney." By the time he can crawl, the male toddler slides on over to the hardware store and buys an ugly insert to plug up the living room fireplace, then spends the rest of his life stopping strangers to brag about how much money he's saving now that you cannot see the actual fire.

Men who think nothing of fuel-guzzling bass boats or sitting motionless for 18 hours in front of a TV watching football lose sleep over the possibility of one scintilla of heat escaping up a chimney.

Providing heat is not the sole function of a fireplace. Women know that, perhaps because home and hearth traditionally has been a woman's domain. Cave man discovered fire; cave women kept him from snuffing it.

A fireplace gives a body something to do during the long winter days. It gives you something to poke at, stare at, spit in and back up to. It is the only known antidote for cabin fever.

Fireplaces are the front porches of wintertime. They provide a focus, a place to gather around to sing or sulk, dream or drink. How can you put a price tag on that?

Christmas stockings look silly hanging over an insert. Imagine stretching out bare on a bear rug with your new lover in front of an insert. Where do you throw the champagne glasses?

You would think the aesthetics obvious. Apparently not. I once threatened divorce over a fireplace insert. Most couples argue about money, or over a neighbor who hangs her bikini under wear on the adjoining picket fence.

I draw the line at fireplace desecration. Not in my house. I know what some of you will think. That a woman usually is not the one who must cut and stack the wood. She is if she's the one who stubbornly insists on keeping an open fireplace.

Once I was a caretaker of a hacienda in the Alabama woods. It was a beautiful place with antique furnishings and fireplaces in every room. The stone fireplace in the living room was so big you could walk right into it. There was no other source of heat, save a small gas heater in the cavernous kitchen.

The winter was cold. Records were broken. Pets became ice sculpture. At one point the water in the toilet bowls froze.

It was the best winter of my entire life. Mine was a four-fireplace family. I've not been so cold or happy since.

Letters to the Editor

Heartfelt thanks for help in research

Editor,

I wrote to you last winter to say that I was planning to visit Big Spring during 1994 to find out more about Winston Harper, a Texan flier who had befriended my family here in England during World War II. As a result of your publishing that letter, a number of people contacted me with information about Winston, in particular concerning his 12 years as a pilot with Cossden Oil. By the time my wife and I arrived in Big Spring at the time of the County Fair I was already well ahead with my researches.

Our stay was a warming, almost overwhelming, experience. So many people extended generous help and hospitality to us that we felt totally at home.

To them, and to your newspaper, go our heartfelt thanks. We are writing in person to all those who showed us true "Texas friendly" kindness, but I would like to make specific mention here of those (in alphabetical order) who gave immeasurable help in the researches:

Mr. Charles Bell (plus pretty well all of his colleagues in Big Spring Rotary!), who opened up so many leads. Mrs. Mamie-Lee Dodds of the Chamber of Commerce, who may not know quite everything, but can usually find someone who does.

Mr. Connie Edwards, the rancher and businessman, who probably needs no introduction to your readers.

Mr. John Fort, who was Winston's copilot at Cossden.

Mrs. Jack Gully.
Mrs. Lou Harper.
Mr. Adrian Randle.

Ms. Angie Way, who was never too busy to answer my damn-fool foreigner's questions and do detailed spadework on my behalf, despite being busy working at the Museum and sorting out the new doll collection.

I regret that there was no opportunity to meet your reporter while we were in town-blame your citizens for entertaining us so well!

A burned tourist boat is pulled out from Chungju Lake in Danyang, South Korea, Tuesday. At least 25 people were killed when it caught fire with more than 130 people aboard Monday. The fire broke out on the rear of the ship as it traveled down a scenic lake in central South Korea. Navy divers found 13 more bodies overnight, 33 people were injured and 70 were rescued by local fishermen.

Death toll rises to 25 from boat fire

DANYANG, South Korea (AP) — The fire that killed at least 25 people aboard a sightseeing boat spread so quickly that many passengers were overcome by toxic gas before they could jump overboard, rescuers said.

"I feel like I escaped hell," said Kong Hae-kyong, 38, who survived Monday's fire on the 54-ton Chungju No. 5. "I saw people dying in front of me."

After nearly suffocating from the smoke, she crawled through a broken cabin window and was rescued. The fire broke out on the rear of the ship as it traveled down a scenic lake in central South Korea with 134 people on board. Navy divers found five more bodies today, bringing the death toll to at least 25 people. Thirty-three were injured, many seriously, and 70 were rescued by local fishermen.

As weeping relatives tried to identify the charred remains of victims, divers today searched the murky river for the six people still missing.

Fisherman Hwang Eui-soo, 57, who rescued about 30 people, said toxic gas from burning plastic on the ship apparently caused many people to pass out before they could jump overboard.

It was the second major disaster to hit South Korea in four days.

On Friday, a large section of a major bridge in Seoul collapsed, sending a crowded bus and several cars plunging 15 yards into the Han River. At least 32 people were killed.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Tiger conference urges protection

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — An international conference on tigers urged Asian nations today to take effective measures to save the world's remaining 7,000 tigers from extinction.

"If effective measures to conserve the tiger are not undertaken immediately, this magnificent animal is doomed," the conference said in a statement.

The conference said three sub-species of the tiger have become extinct in the past 50 years and the remaining five are on the brink of dying out.

Representatives of the tiger range countries of Bhutan, Bangladesh, Nepal, India, Burma, Thailand, Cambodia, Laos, Vietnam and Malaysia were joined at the four-day conference by Taiwan and South Korea, whose tiger populations have long vanished but whose citizens still use their parts in traditional medicine.

They also recommended programs to raise public awareness of the plight of tigers and the creation of alternatives to eliminate the use of tiger medicines.

Free heart transplant fugitive sent home

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A fugitive who fled the United States for the Dominican Republic after receiving a free heart transplant was sent home Monday to face murder, drug trafficking and other charges.

Bartolome Moya, 37, was flown to New York from San Juan hours after federal Magistrate Aida Delgado ordered his extradition.

Curfew relaxed after bombing

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Shops reopened today as the government lifted a curfew imposed after a suicide bomber killed the top opposition candidate for president and 51 others.

Still, policemen and soldiers armed with automatic weapons patrolled the streets of the capital and stopped cars at scores of checkpoints throughout the city today.

Israel beefs up security for peace treaty signing

JERUSALEM (AP) — It's a Secret Serviceman's nightmare. On Wednesday and Thursday, President Clinton plans to attend a peace treaty signing in a former minefield, address Israel's parliament and walk the violence-prone alleys of the Old City of Jerusalem.

Clinton's plans have prompted Israeli police to design one of the largest security operations ever, with 6,000 officers assigned for the Jerusalem stretch alone.

A senior police official, speaking on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press that the Secret Service lobbied Clinton unsuccessfully to at least cancel the Old City portion.

"Clinton's visit in Jerusalem and the Old City is very sensitive," said Police Commissioner Assaf Hefetz, noting that its Arab population often demonstrates against Israel.

Traffic in central Jerusalem will be virtually paralyzed during parts of the visit, and workers at Clinton's hotel, the King David, will be body-searched whenever they enter, the official said.

Clinton is coming to witness the festive signing of the Israeli-Jordanian peace treaty Wednesday before 5,000 guests at a desert border crossing just north of the Red Sea. The guests are being advised to stay on the asphalt plaza laid down for the ceremony, because the site was until recently a minefield.

The peace festival coincides with a surge in terrorist attacks by Islamic fundamentalists opposed to Arab-Israeli compromise. An Israeli crackdown in recent days on the Muslim militant group Hamas has sparked fears of more violence.

While there is no evidence of plans for an imminent attack, the treaty signing and Clinton's visit "would certainly be an important and spectacular target" for the fundamentalists, said the security official.

He said about 100 Secret Service agents have been in Israel for the past two days arranging details of Clinton's visit. Several dozen scoured the Knesset, Israel's parliament building, where Clinton will speak Thursday.

Police sources said Israel's security services were concerned their American counterparts may be too eager to shoot.

The Americans were warned there would be armed Israeli agents in civilian dress in Clinton's vicinity and they should not shoot without Israeli authorization. The American response was not known.

Electric tape handcuffs used in serial killings

CAMPBELLTOWN, Australia (AP) — The serial killer who slaughtered seven backpackers bound them with ropes, wire loops and black electric tape "like handcuffs" to control them, police testified today.

Officers appeared in Campbelltown Local Court to describe the restraints and other evidence found near the bodies of the victims — three Germans, two Britons and two Australians.

The defendant, 49-year-old Ivan Milat, again attended the preliminary hearing that will determine if there is enough evidence to warrant a trial for multiple murder and attempted murder.

Milat, who has been in custody since May 23, has denied the charges. A figure-eight of electrical tape shaped "like handcuffs" was found about 60 yards from the remains of German tourists Anja Habschied, 20, and Gabor Neugebauer, 21.

In addition to the loops of tape, Constable Mark Klin said he also found a bundle of ropes and an adjustable leather strap. Neugebauer had been shot at least six times, and stabbed. Habschied had been decapitated, and her head has never been found.

Camping gear, backpacks and other property belonging to several of the backpackers was found at Milat's home or had been given to his relatives for storage, chief prosecutor Ian Lloyd said Monday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Raul Julia, the darkly handsome actor who starred with equal aplomb as Othello on stage and lusty Gomez Addams in the movies "The Addams Family," died Monday of complications from a stroke. He was 54.

The Puerto Rican-born star died at the North Shore University Hospital in Manhasset, on Long Island, where he had been admitted after suffering a stroke last week. He will be given a state funeral in Puerto Rico on Thursday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Robert Lansing, an actor who starred on Broadway and in the TV series "12 O'Clock High," died Sunday of cancer. He was 66.

Lansing's Broadway appearances included "The Little Foxes," "Suddenly Last Summer" and "The Great God Brown."

His best-known television role was as Brig. Gen. Frank Savage in "12 O'Clock High."

Lansing also appeared on episodes of "Star Trek," "Murder, She Wrote" and "Law and Order."

A native of San Diego, he began working on Broadway in the 1950s.

Allegations against Kennedy dismissed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate ethics committee has dismissed allegations of sexual harassment and drug use by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The committee, which never announced it had begun a low-level inquiry, wrote a statement Oct. 13 that it had ended the effort — but did not distribute the announcement at that time. After several inquiries from reporters, the statement was released Monday.

The allegations against the Massachusetts Democrat were made by former Kennedy staffer Richard Burke in a 1992 book about the senator.

"The committee interviewed Mr. Burke and others and found no basis for Mr. Burke's allegations," the committee said. "On that basis, the committee in June 1994 unanimously voted to take no further action."

The committee also stated that, contrary to statements by Burke, "the committee did not receive complaints by women who claimed to have been sexually harassed by Sen. Kennedy."

Bankruptcy reform signed into law

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Clinton has signed into law the most sweeping bankruptcy reform in 16 years.

The law gives federal judges power to resolve bankruptcy cases more quickly, particularly when small businesses are involved.

"This is precisely the kind of reform that will restore public faith in the ability of our courts to perform in a timely and cost-effective manner," Clinton said in a written statement issued Monday in conjunction with his signing of the legislation.

More than 90,000 bankruptcy cases were filed last year, nearly three times the number just eight years earlier.

The new law allows more individuals to file for Chapter 13 bankruptcy, which permits them to work out payment plans, rather than Chapter 7, which requires the sale of most of a debtor's property. The debt limit for Chapter 13 was raised by the new law from $450,000 to $1 million.

Republican tilt to Congress is expected

By MIKE FEINSILBER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With two weeks left, little has happened to undercut the prospect of big Republican gains in the November elections. Even GOP control of both House and Senate is an outside possibility for the first time in the experience of most Americans.

Democrats still stress the "volatility" of the electorate to show that they can turn things around; but Peter Hart, a Democratic pollster, says the voters who are most fired up are those eager to punish President Clinton and his party.

Election Outlook

"The groups that are most ready to turn out are Republicans, white fundamentalists and anti-Clinton voters," Hart said. "The groups that are least likely to turn out are pro-Clinton voters, Democrats and African-Americans. When you factor in people who have a great deal of interest or quite a bit versus those who have little or no interest, the margin for the Republicans grows by about 6 percent."

Most forecasts, by partisans and independent analysts alike, suggest that in the end, the House will wind up under Democratic control — as it has been since 1955, before a majority of Americans were born. But many say the Republicans' chances for taking over the Senate are 50-50 or a shade better.

And the election could put Republican governors in charge of the eight biggest states, a demoralizing twist when Clinton seeks re-election.

To control the new Congress, Republicans would have to take over seven Democratic seats in the Senate and 40 in the House. The party of a first-term president has lost 19 House seats on average and generally no Senate seats in midterm elections. Democrats have conceded for months that they will lose 20 to 25 seats.

"If I had to put money on it, I'd say the Democrats will hold on, but in a way that will make governance very difficult, and it's already hard," said Catherine Rudder, executive director of the American Political Science Association.

Republican control of Congress could mean a battle of vetoes between Clinton and Congress or two years of legislative deadlock in which few initiatives to address the nation's problems emerge — about the way the 103rd Congress wound down last month.

Or, if Clinton bends and if both parties are eager to have more than gridlock to present to voters in 1996, Republicans in charge could mean the enactment of a program largely resembling what might pass under an activist Republican president.

Among the possibilities: balanced budget and term limit constitutional amendments sent to the state legislatures; boosts in defense spending and sharp cuts in social spending; a revision to the 1994 crime bill, with more prisons and less preventive spending; a cutoff of welfare payments to teen-age mothers or to babies born to a mother on welfare; and a $500 per child tax credit plus a capital gains tax cut for investors.

Smithsonian Institution Secretary I. Michael Heyman, right, shares a laugh with Pequot Tribal Council Chairman Richard Hayward in Washington after the tribe donated $10 million toward the building of an American Indian museum.

Indian tribe donates $10 million toward building museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Smithsonian Institution will get the largest single cash donation in its history — $10 million — from the Mashantucket Pequot tribe to help build an American Indian museum.

The small Connecticut tribe wants to share the riches from its giant casino and bingo complex, Richard Hayward, chairman of the Pequot Tribal Council, said Monday.

"I guess you could call us wealthy people," Hayward said at a news conference. "We were wealthy before we had money, because we had a love of the land and we had a love of our ancestors and our culture."

The National Museum of the American Indian will help preserve that culture and give Indians hope for the future, Hayward said.

The museum, the Smithsonian's 15th, is scheduled to open in the last vacancy along the National Mall in 2001.

"When I first heard that the last space on the mall in Washington was going to the Native Americans, it just made me feel proud," Hayward said. "I'm sorry it didn't happen a long time ago. The recognition to Native Americans is long overdue."

Museum director W. Richard West Jr. told the tribe, "An entire nation shall be forever in your debt."

The largest previous gift to the Smithsonian was $7 million, donated by the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund in 1992 for a national jazz celebration.

Where have all the missiles gone? DOD says to bookkeeping errors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army can't account for 40 Stinger missiles but insists none are missing.

It's all a problem with bookkeeping, says the Department of Defense.

But Sen. John Glenn says the report on the missiles, prepared by the General Accounting Office, raises questions about U.S. ability to keep sophisticated weapons out of the hands of terrorists.

"It would be disastrous if a crate or truckload of these deadly missiles were to fall into the hands of a terrorist organization," said Glenn, D-Ohio, who chairs the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee. "Yet, because the DOD has not kept good track of these missiles, that is a very realistic scenario."

The report by GAO, Congress' investigative arm, was released today by Glenn.

GAO auditors visited arsenals, looked at inventory, checked paperwork and concluded that 40 of the 6,373 Stingers that were shipped to the Persian Gulf in 1991 "were not returned to the depot, other Army locations or the other services."

"The Army does not know where these missiles are," GAO said.

The report also included anecdotes about lax security that might have let missiles fall into the wrong hands, had a terrorist been in the right place at the right time.

Some missiles were transported around the Persian Gulf region on unguarded trucks driven by third-country nationals, the report said.

To help quickly move troops home after the war, units were allowed to turn in equipment, ammunition and weapons without documentation. And enemy weapons and other unauthorized weapons were deposited in so-called amnesty boxes.

Among the items found in those boxes: Stinger missiles. And an undisclosed number of Stingers were found unguarded on the side of the road, the report said.

The Defense Department responded that "there have been no confirmed thefts or unexplained losses of Category I missiles." And it said it is trying to fix its bad bookkeeping.

"A 100 percent worldwide inventory of the assets by serial number will be accomplished by December 1994," promised James Klugh, Defense Department deputy undersecretary for logistics.

At issue are some of the best weapons in America's arsenal: Stingers and Redeyes, accurate enough and strong enough to knock a flying plane out of the sky, yet small enough to be fired from the shoulder of a single soldier; and Dragons, designed to pierce the armor of a tank.

Every missile has a serial number, but the Army hasn't used the numbers to keep track of the missiles as they've been moved from place to place, GAO said.

In its written reply, the Pentagon said "a lack of serial-number tracking is a significant problem needing correction but it does not mean accountability is lost or that the services do not know how many missiles they have."

motel and died the next day. The man, believed to be his attacker, committed suicide after being wounded during a standoff with police, authorities said Monday.

After reviewing an autopsy, medical examiners concluded that Manuel Vargas Perez was hit in the neck by a police sharpshooter's bullet, then shot himself in the head.

Heim, a veteran of 11 years on the force, was chosen to lead the riderless horse at police funerals because of his size and experience with horses.

"He was the only guy who could handle them," Paula Heim said. "He was a big guy and it took a big guy to keep the horse under control in all the commotion of those funerals."

Maintenance while reactors operating raise concerns with nuclear regulators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Utilities are cutting the number of days that nuclear power plants are out of service by doing more and more routine maintenance while reactors are operating — and that has federal regulators worried.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission raised concerns about utilities' nuclear plant maintenance program in a series of recent letters to the industry and went public with the concerns on Monday.

The agency said the widespread practice of increasingly performing routine maintenance on reactors during operation was a cost-cutting measure to reduce the number of days a plant is out of service.

But the practice also poses safety questions not always fully considered by the utilities, it said.

At times, nuclear plant operators have "not fully considered the risk implication" of taking plant equipment out of service for maintenance while reactors are still producing power, James Taylor, the NRC's executive director for operators, said in an Oct. 19 letter to utility executives.

A copy of the letter was made public Monday.

White supremacist teen pleads guilty to vandalizing synagogue

BOSTON (AP) — A teen-ager accused of founding a white supremacist gang on Monday admitted taking part in hate crimes including painting swastikas on a synagogue and harassing blacks.

Brian Joseph Clayton, 19, pleaded guilty in U.S. District Court to two counts of conspiring to intimidate and violate the civil rights of Jews and blacks.

Federal prosecutors said Clayton was the founder of the New Dawn Hammerskins.

Tennis team preps for 6th regional tourney

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

For six seasons, the Big Spring High School tennis team has qualified for the regional tournament. For the second time in those six years, the group wants to take the next step.

The BSHS netters will be one of 14 teams competing for the right to advance to the state meet in Austin when they compete in the Region I-4A tennis tournament Friday and Saturday in Austin.

The Steers have been a relatively young group this season, with only a few seniors and juniors dotting the lineup. But that inexperience has been anything but harmful, as the team compiled an 88-2 record in matches played during district competition.

With state powerhouse Wichita Falls among the teams waiting in Lubbock, however, the Steers know that the level of competition is about to take a step up.

"We'll see how we stack up against teams like Wichita Falls," BSHS coach Ralph Davis said. "Hopefully, our enthusiasm will bring us up to the level of play that (Wichita Falls) is accustomed to. More of their kids will have more tournament experience, and experience at playing under pressure, than our kids will."

The players also know that Big Spring's barnstorming tour through district might be a bit deceiving.

"It was kind of easy," said boys' first seed Hsiao-Hsuan Li, a freshman. "I thought it would be hard than it was. But it was kind of easy, because the other teams lost a lot of good players."

The Steers do have several veterans from past regional tournaments in the lineup, but they haven't felt the need to pass on much advice.

"Not really," said senior Maria Villarreal, the girls' No. 1 seed. "The freshmen we have are really good. They're match-tough and know what to expect."

"I've just told them to keep their heads up," said junior Colby Wegman. "I told them you can't lose your temper too quick up there, or you'll lose your focus."

Sophomore Brandi Gutierrez, the girls' No. 4 player, was an observer at last year's regional, in which the Steers finished third. She said the team's youth

Undying Odyssey continues

Baseball has never been better, thanks to the Space Mountain Odyssey.

(If you haven't read the sports column in the Herald the past three Tuesdays, here's the latest installment of "Baseball - The Way It Might Have Ended in '94, Had They Cared Enough To Play.")

If you missed it, Pepsi-Cola has the rights to the baseball playoffs, they call them the Space Mountain Odyssey and they play the games at Walt Disney World.

Four teams fought for the right to play in the finals this past week - New York vs. Texas in the American League; Houston vs. San Francisco in the National League. They used to call this part of the season the League Championship Series, but Pepsi's been having money problems since buying the baseball playoffs.

So here goes:

The Minute Maid/Free Willy/Ex-Lax/Nestea/Zima/Gummi Bear American League Universal (Pictures) Series:

New York vs. Texas

In the Yankees' second-round victory over Cleveland, reporters let loose the fact that owner George Steinbrenner, and not Billy Martin's remains, had been managing the Yanks since Steinbrenner fired Bucky Showalter.

Although Pepsi is not bound by Major League Baseball rules, the cola company ruled that persons holding a financial interest in a club could not manage a team. Thus, the Yankees, forced to find a manager on the eve of the best-of-seven series with Texas, beat the Boston Red Sox to the punch and hired former Ranger manager Kevin Kennedy.

The Rangers, led by player-manager Jose Canseco, made life miserable for the Yankees - In Game 1, Canseco shocked the world by bringing home the game-winning run with a squeeze bunt, and the Rangers ruled from that point, taking the series in five games.

Highlights? Well, seeing as how Pepsi instituted a three-hour time limit on games, and the Rangers are notorious for

Season likely over for Dallas lineman

IRVING (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' charge to a third consecutive Super Bowl took a severe jolt Monday when Pro Bowl offensive lineman Erik Williams was injured in a car accident that likely will sideline him until next year.

"He'll have the opportunity to play again but I doubt it'll be this year," Dallas coach Barry Switzer said after visiting Williams in the hospital. "In my opinion he's going to need reconstruction of the right knee. Thank God he's alive."

Williams sustained a damaged right knee in the early-morning accident, as well as a broken rib, torn ligaments in his left thumb and facial lacerations that required plastic surgery.

An afternoon MRI test indicated Williams' knee suffered a torn medial collateral ligament, a torn posterior cruciate ligament, and a torn popliteal muscle. Doctors said a decision regarding knee surgery will be made after a four- to six-week period.

The only good news for the Cowboys following their 28-21 victory over the Arizona Cardinals was the status of Troy Aikman, who suffered a concussion in the first quarter.

"I'll play on Sunday against Cincinnati," said Aikman, who underwent an MRI that was negative. "This is one of

Braves' hurler happy to have third straight Cy Young Award

NEW YORK (AP) — Greg Maddux makes no apologies for winning a record third straight Cy Young Award in a strike-shortened season.

He's just sorry he didn't have a chance to do more. "It was very frustrating, not just because of the way I was pitching," Maddux said Monday. "I came to Atlanta for less money, but I came for an opportunity to play in the World Series and win it. One of the few goals I did set a few years ago was to get a World Series ring."

The Atlanta ace was a unanimous choice for this Cy Young. He became the first player ever to win a major postseason award three straight times.

"You always set goals. To win the Cy Young, or win three of them, was never really a goal," he said from his home in Las Vegas. "It's always something you try to attain, but you try to make goals that are a little more attainable."

Maddux was 16-6 with a 1.56 ERA, the third-lowest in the majors in 75 years, before the season ended Aug. 12 because of the players' strike. His ERA was more than 2½ runs below the league average, the biggest differential in major league history.

Still, not all 28 original voters for the NL Cy Young wrote Maddux's name.

Kit Stier of the Gannett Suburban Newspapers in New York submitted a blank ballot to protest this year's postseason awards. His vote, however, was thrown out and he was replaced on the panel by another member of the Baseball Writers Association of America. The BBWAA said blank ballots were considered incomplete and did not count.

"I can certainly see those complaints," Maddux said. "I'm just happy the writers decided to vote on it anyway."

"It's like a rain-shortened game. It doesn't sour it for me personally," he said. "I'm glad I won."

Maddux's contract gives him an extra $750,000 for winning this award. Braves general manager John Schuerholz recently balked at the idea of individual awards being presented in a season that ended because of the strike.

Schuerholz, though, said he was not upset at paying the bonus money.

Kidd sued again

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Multimillion-dollar basketball rookie Jason Kidd has been hit with his third lawsuit of the year, this one from the other driver in Kidd's hit-and-run accident.

Donald J. Peck of San Ramon, Calif., blames the Dallas Mavericks' first-round pick for the May 22 collision on Interstate 80 and asks the courts to make an example of Kidd.

Peck's lawyer filed the lawsuit Friday in Alameda County Superior Court. It seeks an unspecified amount for Peck's medical expenses and in punitive damages.

Kidd's lawyer, Henry Cruz, did not immediately return calls for comment late Monday.

No one was seriously injured when Kidd's sport utility vehicle sideswiped Peck's car at Emeryville.

won't be that big a factor.
"I think we've got a lot of younger talent, but I think the key will be experience, and we don't have a lot of that," she said. "I think we can do good if the younger ones learn to focus in on their play. You've got to keep your attitude up, because no matter how far down you get, you can always come back."

To give his team much-needed experience against top-quality competition, Davis put the Steers through an extremely tough pre-district schedule. He hopes those games help prepare the squad for what lies ahead.

"It was probably the toughest schedule you could put together for a 4A team," Davis said. "We've gone through a war ... They got a taste of what the tough teams were like. Hopefully, that taste of tough competition will linger."

"just to get the feel for it," she said. Britton said Carnero has a legitimate shot to qualify for the state meet - something Franklin and since graduated Evy Perez did last season - but Carnero may not share that same confidence.
"Last year helps, but I'm still a little nervous," she said. "I can probably make regional, and maybe state, but I'm not really sure. I really haven't been running as hard as I could have been."
"She can definitely make it to regionals if she just thinks about her running," said sophomore teammate Tonya Phifer.

The top two teams and top five individuals will qualify for the regional meet, which is Nov. 5 in Lubbock. Franklin, Rios and Carnero could all qualify for the regionals, but that still wouldn't get the teams qualified. "It's a team sport - I've told them they can't rely on Joe to win, or Robert to win," Britton said. "They have to rely on each other. There should be no pressure - if there's pressure, it's the pressure they put on themselves to excel. They shouldn't feel any outside pressures.

"Yeah, the boys are the defending district champs, but I haven't said anything about that. I haven't used that. They know they are the district champions; I don't have to tell them."
The girls' race starts at 10 a.m. at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark, at the site of the old air force base golf course. The boys' race is at 10:30, followed by a boys/girls junior varsity race.

the minor ones (concussion) that I've had."
Aikman, who has had four concussions with the Cowboys and six overall going back to his high school days in Oklahoma, will play behind a patchwork offensive line. Rookie Larry Allen will replace Williams at right tackle. It's a position Allen has never played. He started at left tackle earlier in the season.
Also nursing injuries on the offensive line are left tackle Mark Tuinei, center Mark Stepanoski, and Nate Newton. They are expected to play.
Tight end Jay Novacek will likely miss the game against the Bengals because of a possibly torn abdominal muscle, giving Aikman two less veterans in the offensive line.

"I'm playing, I don't care if we have five high school guys out there," said Aikman.
Coleman Bell will be activated from the practice squad to take Novacek's place if needed.
Williams, 6-foot-6 and 325 pounds, was spared further injury because of the air bag in his Mercedes.
"It was a sad morning for all of us," said scouting director Larry Lacey. "We're fortunate the injury wasn't worse."
Cowboys running back Emmitt Smith arrived at the scene of the accident on the North Dallas Tollway shortly after it occurred about 3 a.m.
"He was still in the car when I got there," Smith said. "I helped get him out of the car. I was very shaky."

"I was just praying he was going to be OK. He's one of my best friends. He told me, 'I'm all right. I'm all right.'"
Williams, 26, was to spend the night at Parkland Memorial Hospital and doctors would decide Tuesday when he could go home.
"I have no firm answer when Erik will be able to play again," said Dallas trainer Kevin O'Neill. "There is no break in his leg."

and 7 were played in the Astrodome.
However, after the first four games had gone extra innings (and still lasted less than three hours with the time-saving rules in effect), Walt Disney World had become quite attached to the Astros and Giants.

Strawberry didn't show for Game 6. Throughout the games, reporters and television announcers (the move away from Walt Disney World ended the announcing careers of Foghorn Leghorn and Huckleberry Hound, by the way) tried to locate Strawberry but failed.

With the Rangers on the verge of clinching their first World Series trip, Texas Gov. Ann Richards sued Pepsi for the right to play Game 5 at The Ballpark in Arlington. Pepsi settled out-of-court for half the oil wells in Texas, and the Rangers won the pennant in front of a packed house in Arlington.

Pepsi agreed to let the series move to San Francisco and Houston, but only on the condition that all remaining playoff games would start before 5:30 p.m. Eastern time. That way, the boys and girls at Walt Disney World that had become reacquainted with baseball would be able to watch the games before they went to bed.

In the top of the ninth with two out, the Astros led 5-2, but the Giants had the bases loaded, Bonds at the plate and Williams on deck. Astros manager Terry Collins did the unthinkable, intentionally walking Bonds and Williams to get to journeyman Dave Martinez, who had replaced Strawberry.

The Long John Silver's/Coca-Cola/Wausau Insurance/Proctor & Gamble/Joe Camel National League Rolaids Rumble:

Richards agreed.
In Game 5, the Giants looked set for the series by hitting a whopping seven homers - three by Barry Bonds, two by Matt Williams and two by Darryl Strawberry.

Astro relief ace John Hudek validated the strategy with a strikeout of Martinez, and Doug Drabek shut out the Giants for the third time in Game 7 as Strawberry watched from a drug rehabilitation center.

San Francisco vs. Houston
This set was a seven-game thriller that caused quite a stir - on and off the field.

Gov. Richards' lawsuit affected the NL as well - Game 5 was moved to San Francisco's Candlestick Park, and Games 6

At last, the dream of Texas baseball fans comes true - the Rangers and Astros will play in the World Series.
Well, at least in what used to be called the World Series.

OCT. 26, 1994

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Others seem volatile. Maintain a sense of humor. Stay upbeat and consider what's possible. They are inspired you are in your conversations with a partner, the better the results will be. Trust your judgment and go for bottom lines. Tonight: Settle in. ****

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Partners act up and you might need to rethink a situation. Opportunities to get ahead are positive. You feel quite sure of yourself and you maintain a sense of humor. Others are upbeat and happy. Let your creative juices flow. Tonight: Be a little naughty. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Unexpected news could cause you stress. Others mean well but get confused by a conversation. Stay clear in your choices. Know what you want and where you're heading. Pay close attention to what another is sharing. Tonight: Hang in with friends. **

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Zero in on what's important. A carefree approach succeeds. Communications are active. The unexpected occurs. The situation surrounding you changes considerably. Listen to what is going on. Tonight: God communications are the nature of the game. *****

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): One to one relating is highlighted. You will be successful if you don't get your personal finances mixed in a business deal. You see how to maximize an offer, but curb your generosity. Your sense of humor plays a major role. Tonight: Be snuggly. *****

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Listen to what another's saying. Though what is going on may shock you, establish better rapport with this person. Focus on long-term goals. Work to broaden your horizons. Demonstrate your ability to flex. Tonight: Accept an invitation. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You might be jinxing yourself by being overly sensitive. Loosen up about priorities. Examine your judgments. Are they coming from your own insecurities? Listen to a co-worker who has your interests in mind. Focus on efficiency. Tonight: Burn the midnight oil. ***

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Don't get upset if a friend disappoints you. Use any such incident to let your creativity flow. Open up to change. Romance flourishes, thanks to your upbeat attitude and humor. Examine what is happening. All this could change quickly. Tonight: Change your sheets. *****

IF OCT. 26 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: The unexpected marks this year. Your ability to adjust plays a significant role in your success. Open up to change and better communications. An opportunity comes to you through travel, education or contact with someone from another country. Learning how to detach will maximize your energy, and is this year's wild card. If you are single, you meet others easily, though it may be difficult to settle down. If you are attached, an important trip or vacation could be postponed, but more exciting events will come your way. You flourish together once you get past a communication issue. CANCER understand you. THE ASTERISKS (*) SHOW THE KIND OF DAY YOU'LL HAVE: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult.

Nondrinker wants booze-free home

DEAR ABBY: I prefer that my home be alcohol- and smoke-free; therefore, I do not serve alcohol or make cigarettes available for guests.

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

When I go to the homes of friends who drink, it doesn't bother me because it's "their" home.

My problem is that some of my guests, knowing that I never serve alcohol, bring their own bottles when they come to my home.

Am I being "off the wall" by preferring that they abide by my rules when they are in my home? I do not want any of my guests leaving this house with a "snoot full." If they were involved in an automobile accident, I would feel responsible.

STUMPED IN NEW JERSEY
DEAR STUMPED: You are not being "off the wall." It's your right to set the rules for drinking and smoking in your own home.

I congratulate you on your sensible attitude concerning guests who may drink more than they can handle.

DEAR ABBY: I am a married woman, age 35, who is still contemplating having a baby, even though my biological clock is winding down.

However, my biggest fear is the possibility of having a painful delivery.

I know that women vary greatly in their childbirth experiences, some of them having 20 to 30 hours of hard labor, while others barely make it to the hospital.

My question: Do doctors let you choose from the beginning to have a cesarean and not make you wait until you have gone through hours of agony before using it as a last resort?
— CURIOUS

DEAR CURIOUS: You are apparently considering cesarean section surgery in order to avoid the pain of childbirth. I suggest that you discuss this with your obstetrician.

For what it's worth, I have yet to hear a new mother say, as her newborn child is placed in her arms, "It wasn't worth it."

DEAR ABBY: In a magazine I read recently, a woman gave a great suggestion for sending get-well cards to hospital patients. In the upper left-hand corner of the envelope, instead of writing your own address, write the patient's home address. Then, if the patient has already checked out of the hospital, the card will be forwarded to the patient's home.

Pretty nifty, I'd say. — MRS. ESPOSITO, BROOKLYN, N.Y.

DEAR MRS. ESPOSITO: Not only "nifty" — highly intelligent. Thanks for a helpful suggestion.

DEAR ABBY: Who said, "Buy old masters. They fetch a better price than old mistresses?" — D.J.S., CHICKASHA, OKLA.

DEAR D.J.S.: Lord Beaverbrook, who was born William Maxwell Aitken in 1879 in the small town of Maple, Ontario. As a young man, he moved to London, England, where he acquired a fortune in the newspaper business and became a political power. His London newspaper, The Daily Express, was one of the most lively and widely read daily papers in the world. He died at the age of 87, bequeathing his collection of old masters to the Lord Beaverbrook Art Gallery in Fredericton, New Brunswick, Canada — but no mention was made of what happened to his "old mistresses."

What teens need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)
