Taylor raring to go

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Carol Taylor is in position and ready to go as the new executive director of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc.

Taylor said Big Spring, by virtue of its sales tax, is in a position that many other communities can't enjoy where economic development is concerned.

"Without the sales tax, economic development would be at a stand-still. I think the smartest thing the city of Big Spring has done (in support of economic development) is support the sales tax," Taylor said.

There are several facets to economic development and Taylor said she is a "get-to-it" type of person who plans to have programs on-line within the next several months.

Taylor said it takes about two years to get a company into a community and she believes in keeping the community informed, but business has to be first.

She said, "I will see that the community is informed about what's going on, but without breaching the confidentiality of a client."

Negativity can be a factor in Man arrested for firing on White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 26-year-old Colorado man sprayed bullets from a Chinese-made assault weapon into the White House on Saturday, but neither President Clinton nor anyone else was injured, the Secret Service said.

The man was taken into custody immediately.

"The president was in no danger whatsoever," said Richard Griffin, assistant Secret Service director for protective operations.

The shooter was identified by the Secret Service as Francisco Martin Duran of Colorado Springs, Colo., who wielded an SKS Chinese semi-automatic rifle, similar to an AK47 assault weapon, said Griffin.

Chief of Staff Leon Panetta said at least eight shots struck the White House, including three that hit the mansion portion where Clinton was watching football upstairs.

Panetta said Clinton would not alter his schedule because of the shooting and would attend a previously planned public dinner Saturday evening and church on Sunday as usual.

"We'll all go to church tomorrow and be thankful that no one was injured," said Panetta, who was in the White House at the time of the shooting.

Briefing reporters in the same room where a bullet remains lodged in the wall, Panetta said

Clinton expressed his appreciation for the citizens and Secret Service agents who captured Duran.

Asked about Clinton's demeanor, Panetta said, "He wasn't shaken at all."

Griffin said there was no indication that Griffin was working with anyone else.

"I would not characterize this as an assassination attempt at all, no way," Griffin said.

He said there was no reason to believe anyone other than the gunman, was involved in the shooting.

Bystanders ran for cover as the gunman fired "20 to 30" shots from just outside the iron White House fence on Pennsylvania Avenue, but then two men tackled the gunman.

Both Griffin and Panetta said a review of White House security would be broadened in light of the shooting. That review was begun after an incident in September when a despondent truck driver died as he crashed a stolen plane into the White House lawn.

Griffin said the Secret Service has long believed that closing off Pennsylvania Avenue to the public "would be an enhancement to security" and that still holds that view.

Panetta said White House officials face competing interests in Southwestern artist coming to Big Spring

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Renowned Southwestern artist Amado Peña will be in Big Spring next weekend for a lecture demonstration, sale and print signing to help raise money for the West Texas Center for the Arts.

Peña is a Mestizo of Indian and Spanish descent and grew up in Laredo. His work depicts his Mestizo background set in the landscape of the southwest. His body of work encompasses original printmaking, monotypes, etching and silkscreen lithography. He creates collages, pastel and prisma color mixed media works and acrylic paintings.

Peña posters are archetypical southwestern imagery with pueblos, canyons and the people of the Southwest.

The weekend's events kick off Nov. 4 with a champagne preview party from 7-11 p.m. Tickets are $25 a person and will give residents a chance to meet Peña and his wife, J.B. You can also view his original works and there will be a silent auction of one of his paintings that he donated to the art center.

A large selection of collector's originals, bronze, lithographs, silk clothing and other artwork will be on display Friday night and dress is casual.

Lotta says: Just say no to drugs

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Students at Bauer Elementary Magnet School were treated to a demonstration by Lotta, the drug sniffing dog and her partner, Cpl. Jimmy Mayes.

The program was part of Red Ribbon Week to talk to kids about the dangers of using drugs and alcohol. Mayes thanked the students and teachers for wearing their red ribbons because it means a lot to law enforcement officers.

The ribbons are a symbol to remember the brutal murder of Drug Enforcement Administration agent Enrique "Kiki" Camarena in 1985 while battling the drug problems in Mexico.

Lotta became a member of the police force last October and has helped officers find numerous drugs including marijuana and crack/cocaine.

The biggest bust made was when Lotta, a German Shepherd, found 5.2 pounds of marijuana that had been hidden in a car's drive shaft.

"Lotta and I are devoted to stopping drugs from coming to Big Spring. We want to put a stop to it. She is trained to sniff pot, cocaine, metham-phetamines and heroin. Lotta has even found a seed from marijuana. She can even smell odors of those drugs that might be on money. She can also find crack, speed and hashish," explained Mayes.

Mayes told the students two of the richest men in world are drug smugglers and stressed the importance of saying no to drugs.

In mid-November, Mayes and Lotta will be dedicated to strictly drug interdiction on the interstate. Drugs and money to buy them are transported along Interstate 20 from El Paso to Dallas.

Clinton, just back at the White House after an overnight flight from the Middle East, was resting in the residence — watching a football game at the time of the shooting, Panetta said.

"He's fine," Panetta said. "He heard the same thing all of us heard, which was the cracks."

Asked about Clinton's demeanor, Panetta said, "He wasn't shaken at all. He had been napping and then had one of the games on."

Hillary Rodham Clinton was in California, and Panetta said Chelsea Clinton was not home.

Reporters on the White House lawn ran for cover when the shots rang out, and Panetta rushed to the press area to see what had happened. At least one bullet pierced a window of the press room and a ridge was visible in a nearby wall. Secret Service agents advised reporters to keep down.

Lee Brooks, 24, of Newark, Ohio, a customer service representative for the CSX Railroad, said he was standing on the sidewalk 10 or 12 feet from the suspect when he pulled out his weapon. "He aimed it at the front steps of the White House and started shooting," Brooks said.

economic development according to Taylor, but it should not become an overriding factor. She said constructive criticism is a good way to look at something in an alternate way.

Taylor said, "When I run into negativity, I have to begin to reason why, try to find the negative agenda and address it."

Taylor added she is glad to be in Big Spring because it's a challenge. She had choices as to where she could go to work in the area of economic development, but the current slate of Moore Board directors and by-laws were a major factor in her choosing to accept the job of selling Big Spring.

"When I got back into economic development, I decided to look for a private board (such as Moore Development), a board with business people sitting on it, and a progressive area (sales tax)," Taylor said.

She pointed out that Big Spring is not the IBM type of area and she tries to do what she calls "focus targeting research" with computers as well as other resources.

Another concept Taylor mentioned as far as economic development in Big Spring is "value added businesses."

She said she understands that cotton is a major industry to this area and by also targeting those "value added businesses" for Big Spring, the industries that are currently working for the area will be further enhanced.

Taylor believes that using the transportation, distribution and other raw resources of Big Spring, business attraction will also be further enhanced.

Another criteria for business attraction, according to Taylor is "What is a unique fit to Big Spring?"

In her experience, Taylor said "partnership" (a word she plans to use quite often) is the key to success as much as anything else.

That partnership includes her board and its committees and the resources of the community in which they serve.

Taylor says the word "use" when talking about people and resources is not quite adequate because the members of the board and its committees and resources are vital elements in the economic development process including business development, expansion and retention.

She said, "I have been very successful in business retention. I like to get people involved, but when it comes right down to it, it has to be me and my staff that makes the call."

Taylor has a philosophy that she believes will fit right in with the current directors. She said, "I will deviate from it time to time, but overall it works and is something I can add to if necessary."

Her philosophy of attracting new business includes the following several points:
•Implement comprehensive existing industry assistance programs.

Contacting plant/office managers frequently to identify problems, and working aggressively to solve them should be top priority. Once a good, supportive relationship has been established, that local CEO or plant/office manager could be Big Spring's best salesperson during prospect visits.

Visiting prospects realize that, if they locate in Big Spring, they won't be forgotten.

•Utilize your business retention and expansion program to glean leads from company CEO's or plant/office managers for your marketing efforts. This is just one reason showing the importance of a good retention and expansion program.

•Learn everything you can about what the competition can offer to ensure that you are being fairly compared to the other locations. Sometimes seemingly good advantages on the surface are not great at all but contain hidden disadvantages. When this occurs, the company should be informed before making a location decision.

•Carefully consider the costs versus the benefits of working on a particular project. In bidding wars between communities, you have to know when to concede. Devote no more effort toward it and allocate those resources toward projects that have a better chance of success.

Aristide returns to home

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — President Jean-Bertrand Aristide made his first trip to his home in three years as U.S. soldiers stood guard outside and army helicopters buzzed overhead.

Aristide, who had been holed up in the National Palace since the U.S. military engineered his Oct. 15 return, flew in a UH-60 Blackhawk helicopter Friday to his modern, multi-story home in a ramshackle neighborhood north of the city.

"He hasn't been in his home for three years," said Aristide spokeswoman Vivien Brates. "I think that he's going to stay for at least the weekend." During Aristide's seven months in power following his 1990 election, the Roman Catholic priest of humble origins lived in his family's walled compound, using the palace only for work. Brates said recently the palace "really isn't his style."

Aristide fled into exile after army leaders ousted him from office in September 1991. Posters and wall murals of the populist priest have sprouted around the capital since the military rulers agreed last month to hand over power.

Despite the U.S. occupation, officials are worried that some Aristide opponents, including paramilitary gunmen loyal to the former military government, may pose a security threat to the president.

Aristide's house was ransacked after the coup. He had been sleeping in the palace while his house was fixed up and a security system installed.

Also Friday, Smarck Michel, Aristide's choice for prime minister, submitted his credentials to Parliament, officially beginning the ratification process.

Michel, a 57-year-old businessman, presented documents attesting that he meets the constitutional requirements for the job, including being Haitian-born, owning property and paying taxes.

But a source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Michel's package of materials was missing a document proving his management of public funds was above reproach. Because offices are closed for the weekend and Monday and Tuesday are Haitian holidays, the lapse was expected to delay parliament's consideration of Michel's candidacy.

Still, the Senate and the Chamber of Deputies are expected to approve Michel's nomination. He will replace caretaker Prime Minister Robert Malval.

Meanwhile, a dozen international police monitors arrived in the southwestern city of Les Cayes, extending their mission to Haiti's third-largest city.

The deployment was the first of nine that will cover all of Haiti's major population centers by Dec. 1, said Paul Browne, deputy director of the International Police Monitoring Force.

Monitors will patrol with Haitian police and watch for human rights violations.

Israel adjusts to 'lifting of the seige'

EDITOR'S NOTE: AP Correspondent Marcus Ellason, a former Associated Press bureau chief in Jerusalem now based in Hong Kong, returned to Israel for the signing of the Jordan-Israel peace treaty. He found the nation he left 18 months ago transformed.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's revolution came into focus for me on the El Al flight from Hong Kong to Tel Aviv, when the pilot casually informed us that we were over Vietnam, heading for a refueling stop in India.

Vietnam, India, China. All these countries until recently were implacably hostile to Israel, their airspace shut to the Israeli national carrier, which never flew east of Jerusalem.

Israel's world used to end at the barbed wire along the Jordan River. Now it circles the globe. The "nation that dwells alone," a biblical phrase that aptly recalls Israel's 46 years of isolation, is now welcome almost everywhere.

lifting of the siege." Oz Almog, a Haifa University sociologist, speaks of "our crumbling ghetto walls."

Now, with a peace treaty with Jordan, a handshake between

Yasser Arafat and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, and the promise of peace with more Arab countries, there is a sense among Israelis of events no less momentous than the fall of the Berlin Wall, or the end of apartheid in South Africa.

Israelis are already taking the earthquake in stride. But for a visitor returning after an 18-month absence, the aftershocks strike hard and often: King Hassan II of Morocco being interviewed on Israeli television; a new bridge going up across the Jordan River to accommodate an expected tourist rush; Algeria ending its boycott of Israeli sports players.

An Israeli delegation headed by a Cabinet minister attended an environmental conference last week in Bahrain, which not only used to bar Israelis but was selective about letting in Jews.

Most stunning of all is the transformation of Arafat from bogeyman to peace partner in just 13 months.

When I left Israel, the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization was still anathema. Now he's a neighbor, ruling the Gaza Strip, an hour's drive from Tel Aviv. He's on Israel TV. He will meet Rabin again in a few days. Israeli officials can call him up whenever they please.

Almog recalls how Menachem Begin, the late Israeli prime minister, used to liken Arafat to Hitler.

"Arafat was Israel's demon — grotesque, immoral, ugly, cruel.

Bosnian army soldiers train on a hill near Sarajevo Saturday. The Bosnian government claimed that it has captured the biggest town yet in its drive through northwest Bosnia.

Bosnian forces capture town from Serbian army

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — The government army claimed today that it has captured the biggest town yet in its drive through northwest Bosnia, and said Serb soldiers burned down nearby villages before abandoning them.

Government forces also attacked Serb positions about 12 miles southwest of Sarajevo today, backing the attack with fire from a howitzer located in a U.N.-patrolled demilitarized zone, U.N. officials said.

In the northwest, U.N. authorities reported that hundreds of Serbs had fled from the town of Kulen Vakuf, but were unable to confirm government claims that it had fallen.

An estimated 10,000 Serbs have fled the area since the mostly Muslim government troops launched an offensive Tuesday that has now gained some 100 square miles. It is the biggest government victory of the 31-month war, and Serb leaders have threatened to retaliate with a major counterattack or renewed bombardment of Sarajevo.

Kulen Vakuf was home to several thousand people before the war. Villages captured earlier in the offensive had no more than a few hundred residents.

The government army said it had hoped to organize some kind of administration and public services in captured villages, but reported that several hamlets had been burned to the ground by retreating Serb soldiers. The U.N. had no confirmation of such destruction.

Near Sarajevo, government troops mounted an offensive through a demilitarized zone on Mount Igman, attacking Serb positions just outside the zone,

Elusive Assad key to peace in the Mideast

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG AP Diplomatic Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — While other Middle East leaders put aside hostilities and take vows of peace, Syrian President Hafez Assad stands aloof. Secretive and enigmatic, he is not a man given to dramatic public gestures.

But Assad's ability to have a dramatic impact on the Mideast peace process is unquestioned.

How much he is willing to do remains a great unanswered question.

"He is one of the cleverest leaders around the world," said former CIA Director Robert Gates, who pointed out that Assad's flirtation with peace has coincided with the collapse of the Soviet Union, Syria's longtime superpower sponsor.

"Assad is an enigma," said Shlomo Gazit, a former Israeli defense official who is a fellow of the U.S. Institute of Peace.

"This man moves very, very slowly, very cautiously. He is extremely suspicious, but once he makes a decision, a major one or a minor one, it is the kind of decision he is going to stick to."

For the past three years, Assad has offered small gestures that kept alive hopes he would end his longstanding hostility toward Israel.

None of the gestures has come close to breaking the deadlock over the Golan Heights, Syrian territory captured by Israel in the 1967 war. For years Syria had used the Golan as a launching point for artillery attacks on settlements in northern Israel.

Israel says it will return the Golan only after Syria makes peace and then only in phases that will ensure Israeli security. Assad has insisted he will discuss peace only after Israel agrees to return all the territory it occupies.

Even as he has made gestures toward peace, Assad has never done enough to earn removal from the U.S. government's list of nations that sponsor international terrorism. His capital of Damascus remains headquarters for a range of terrorist groups. The Hezbollah militia in Lebanon operates in areas controlled by the Syrian Army.

President Clinton's plea in Jordan on Wednesday for Middle East leaders to reject "the forces of terror and extremism" can have little meaning without the concurrence of Assad.

Moments before Israel and Jordan signed a peace treaty Wednesday, Hezbollah rockets and mortar shells were fired into the Israeli-controlled security zone in southern Lebanon.

Can Assad halt the attacks by Hezbollah?

Gazit said Syria can control Hezbollah "if they wanted to." Gates isn't so sure. "The really influential foreign power with Hezbollah is Iran," he said.

"You can only guess on things like that," said William Quandt, a Middle East adviser to Presidents Nixon and Carter. "My guess is the answer is yes. That doesn't mean you control every single one of the bad guys. You make it difficult for them to operate."

Kenneth Katzman, a Middle East expert with Congressional Research Service, said there is evidence that Hezbollah is anticipating a Syrian move against its militia.

He said many Hezbollah militia have left Lebanon and are turning up in Latin America, Sudan, Bosnia and Iran. "Then if at some subsequent point they can bring about a collapse of the peace process they would then be positioned to immediately reconstitute the militia in Lebanon," said Katzman.

Economy doing good? Slow it down

WASHINGTON CALLING

WASHINGTON — Look for the Federal Reserve to raise interest rates for the sixth time this year when its Federal Open Market Committee meets Nov. 15. It's the same old story among nervous investors. If the country is prosperous, can inflation be far behind? Never mind that sales and profits are up, unemployment is down, inflation is well below 3 percent, and prices and wages are being kept down by stiff competition. The Fed would rather be safe than sorry.

If short-term interest rates go up half a percentage point, as expected, rates on car loans, home equity loans and adjustable rate mortgages could be higher next year, cooling down economic growth.

Regardless of whether Republicans gain formal control of the House and Senate, they are sure to pick up enough seats to create a "working majority" with conservative Democrats on most issues. Republicans need a net gain of seven seats to control the Senate; they should pick up at least six. They need a net gain of 40 seats to control the House. They should pick up at least 30.

White House pollster Stan Greenberg predicts Clinton will end the year with a job approval rating of 50 percent — up from the low 30s just a few months ago. It's at 49 percent now after his string of foreign policy successes. But Greenberg won't discuss Clinton's low ratings when voters are asked if they trust the president. A lack of confidence and respect in the president continues to plague Democratic candidates.

A new poll by Republican pollster Richard Wirthlin reveals that 55 percent of Americans believe 1995 will be an economic downer despite signs that business is booming. Reason: many Americans continue to worry about their own jobs in light of continuing layoffs by big companies.

NEWSMAKERS: Endangered Democrats. Senators Dianne Feinstein of California, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Harris Wofford of Pennsylvania, Jim Sasser of Tennessee and Charles Robb of Virginia.

At least 35 incumbent representatives, including Speaker Tom Foley of Washington, Frank McCloskey of Indiana, Sander Levin and Dale Kildee of Michigan, Mike Kriedler of Washington, Sam Gejdenson of Connecticut, Pat Williams of Montana, and Marjorie Margolis-Mezvinsky of Pennsylvania, who cast the deciding vote for Clinton's economic plan.

NEWSMAKERS II: Endangered Republicans. Sen. Conrad Burns of Montana. Rep. Gary Franks of Connecticut, the GOP's only black member of Congress, and a half dozen, mostly freshmen incumbents.

Ollie's bandwagon. Look for Oliver North to win the U.S. Senate race in Virginia. Polls show he's beginning to pull away from incumbent Democrat Chuck Robb. It's still doubtful he'll get 50 percent of the vote, but in a three-way race he doesn't have to. Note: Things could change in the unlikely event Marshall Coleman, Republican running as independent, gets out of the race and endorses Robb.

Federal auditors have found that millions of American retirees are wasting money on supplemental health insurance policies that duplicate coverage they already have through former employers.

The wasteful spending is estimated to involve about $1.8 billion a year among 3 million senior citizens. Another 500,000 Medicare beneficiaries waste about $190 million a year on supplemental coverage through commercial plans when their income is low enough to qualify them for free Medicaid coverage, auditors say.

Former Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander claims his call for a part-time Congress is striking a chord with angry voters. "Cut their pay and send them home," says Alexander, who would cut lawmakers' pay in half and allow them to have outside jobs in their districts as a way to have a citizen legislature. The GOP presidential hopeful says three in four Americans like the idea.

Don't hold your breath.

Would-be lawyer who refuses to take the California bar association oath asks the Supreme Court to let him swear allegiance only to God and not the "civil religion" that has replaced "the Founding Fathers' quest for Christian virtue."

James Kevin Craig passed the California bar in 1988 and says his duty is to practice biblical law to defend those who are attacked by the laws of man. Forget it, said the California Supreme Court.

What president? Democratic congressman Paul McHale of Pennsylvania issues a "declaration of independence" from President Clinton and the Democratic agenda. Standing before a Liberty Bell shrine in Allentown, Pa., McHale lists 15 issues on which he differs with Clinton and Democratic leadership.

Legislators more the problems than the heads

"Am I stepping into the Twilight Zone?" This has to be one of the strangest election years I have ever run across. The last gubernatorial race had to be one of the down and dirtiest, this year's is like taking a trip with Rod Serling. First we have Ollie North, of Iran-Contra fame, about to be elected to the very institution he lied to! It boggles my mind that citizens in a country clamoring for law and order are going to elect a convicted felon to Congress.

If elected, those voters won't have to worry about the integrity of ol' Ollie North; they already know he is corrupt!

Even through Iran-Contra is old news, it still amazes me the number of people who saw and still see this man as a hero. After all, he did subvert the very institutions - wishy-washy on Nicaragua or not - that we elected to represent us. North, then, was not an elected official. He worked for the National Security Council and made a mockery of the military uniform he wore.

And, maybe even worse, is the congressman who are currently under indictment who are in all likelihood going to be re-elected to the institution they took advantage of, such as Dan Rostenkowski of Chicago. But, as Chicagoans will be glad to tell you, that's politics Chicago-Style.

Then there is the little matter of the lobbying bill that was filibustered out of existence by the Republicans on Capitol Hill.

This little bill, in all probability the product of an election year, would have imposed new, stricter, reporting requirements on paid professional lobbyists, enacted a virtual ban on gifts to members of Congress from lobbyists and non-lobbyists alike.

But, it didn't pass. Not because the voters weren't there; it never got that far. It didn't pass because of Republican filibustering. But, hey, the bill probably wouldn't have even gotten that far if it wasn't an election year.

Now, this is in a year when there is so much screaming about gridlock, lack of representation of the grassroots by those up there on Capitol Hill, about all the Democrats are not doing to promote progress, reduce the budget, be tough on crime and so on and so on and so on.

Lobbyists are a problem on Capitol Hill, we all know it. We also know that, down among the grassroots, we simply cannot afford that congressman of ours. And, about all they want from us anyway is our vote.

Then there is our gubernatorial race here in the great state of Texas. And, what a tame one it has been, all things considered.

About the only complaining about personal attacks so far has been from George W. Bush Jr. when Ann Richards questions his ability to run a business.

Give me a break. One thing voters do like to know is if the person they are voting for can handle money. That's not personal, especially when he is touting himself as a businessman.

It is interesting to hear Junior talk about welfare and reforming it in Texas. Sure, welfare needs reforming, but that has to start at the federal level. And, the feds just are not allowing that right now, having stopped several other states' attempts to reform welfare.

Texas is known for being stingy when it comes to welfare benefits. This state pays the lowest possible amount. If it has gone up, it isn't because the Texas Legislature wanted it too, it's because those on Capitol Hill in Washington D.C. saw fit to change the law, which was signed by ... then-President George Bush.

Now, has Ann made mistakes? Could they cost her the election? Sure. But, the mistakes she's made aren't the ones Bush is going on about.

School finance has been the biggest stumbling block for not only the governor but for the Texas Legislature who can't seem to figure out what the Texas Supreme Court wants it to do.

Where is the Lotto Texas money is going? Another good question. If you look at all this political rhetoric objectively - which is hard to do in partisan politics, especially this year - you will find that its the Legislatures that are more the problems than the heads.

Clinton has proposed and Congress has disposed and usually in a way that no longer resembles anything that was put before them.

Same goes for Richards. She proposes, or more accurately Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock sets the agenda, and then the Texas Legislature runs with it from there until they come up with something for her to sign.

By that time, it is a no-win situation - to veto or pass an unpopular law.

And, it will be the same for Bush, who would be facing the same people in the Texas Capitol, if he manages to get to the Governor's Mansion.

Half the problems facing our country are due to no one being willing to work together, to forget party politics long enough to solve anything.

All politicians can talk about halting the gridlock all they want, but until Congress decides to unstick itself, gridlock will continue ad nauseum!

And, let's not forget who truly makes the legislation that we all end up paying for - the Legislatures both federal and state.

The Republicans are not the party for change they want you to think they are this time around! Neither are the Democrats.

Because, while the names or the leading party may change, it will still be politics as usual in either Austin or Washington D.C.

WASHINGTON more than a week after a clear opportunity to take control, with hanging on the success of the Democratic incumbent.

The GOP needs seven seats to win from Democratic by-state analysis. At contests such as virtual gain at least four would nudge the President Clinton the right.

Beyond that, however, the look was murky. The final full week. An extraordinary number of races were undecided, with unknown winners. Democrats had the turnout dynamic appears likely to win.

"Seven is a big number, but we have a very good chance of winning seven or more," Republican House Speaker Dan Rostenkowski said in an interview. "The close ones go either way, but the majority will be with us," he said.

th

GOP eyes Senate control as Demos hope for best

WASHINGTON (AP) — Little more than a week before Election Day, Republicans have a clear opportunity to seize Senate control, with the balance hanging on the survival skills of Democratic incumbents in several tossup races.

The GOP needs a net gain of seven seats to wrest the majority from Democrats, and a state-by-state analysis of the 35 Senate contests suggests Republicans are virtually certain to gain at least four. That in itself would nudge the Senate, and President Clinton's agenda, to the right.

Beyond that, however, the outlook was murky heading into the final full week of campaigning. An extraordinarily high number of races were considered tossups, and a major unknown was whether Democrats had time to reverse a turnout dynamic that at present appears likely to benefit Republicans.

"Seven is a big number but we have a very good shot at winning seven or more in the Senate," Republican National Committee Chairman Haley Barbour said in an interview. "If all of the close ones go one way, we will either fall just short or gain the majority by a few seats."

A 50-50 split after the Nov. 8 elections is hardly out of the question, either. "Old Al might be spending a good deal of time with us," Senate GOP leader

Bob Dole joked recently, a reference to Vice President Al Gore's tie-breaking role, as president of the Senate.

Of the 35 Senate races, 22 are for seats now held by Democrats; 13 by Republicans. Democrats currently have a 56-44 edge, and have held the majority since 1987.

Most ripe for Republicans are seats now held by Democrats in Maine, Ohio, Tennessee and Arizona. In each case the GOP challengers who are ahead are also distinctly more conservative than the Democrats they would succeed.

From there, the GOP, to control the Senate, would need to gain three more Democratic seats, and perhaps more if it loses any of its seats.

Much of the competition is in the nine races with no incumbents running. But the final partisan breakdown hinges on close races featuring some of the Senate's better-known Democrats: Budget Committee Chairman James Sasser of Tennessee, 1991 upset winner Harris Wofford of Pennsylvania, and Virginia's Charles S. Robb.

Two other prominent Democrats appeared to move off the danger list in recent days: Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts and Dianne Feinstein of California.

Heading into this weekend, Republicans were leading in every race for a seat now held by the GOP, but a few of those races were tight.

One, for the seat of retiring Sen. David Durenberger in Minnesota, was considered a tossup, pitting conservative Republican Rep. Rod Grams against liberal state lawmaker Ann Wynn.

And Democrats moved within striking distance of two GOP incumbents, Sens. Slade Gorton of Washington and James Jeffords of Vermont, although both were still favored.

"If we get the movement in the final 10 days that we had in the past 10 days, this is going to end up being a normal midterm election, and that means losing three or four in the Senate and 20 to 25 in the House," said Tony Coelho, the former California congressman who is a senior White House political adviser.

The likely GOP Senate pickups in Maine, Ohio, Tennessee and Arizona are four of the six Democratic seats in which no incumbent is running. The others are in Oklahoma and Michigan, where Republicans are slightly ahead and dead even, respectively, entering the final full week of campaigning.

Still, even if perfect in these contests, Republicans would have to topple at least one and, if they lose a seat or two now in their hands, perhaps as many as three Democratic incumbents to capture the majority.

Officials continue to follow leads in search of victims of carjacking

UNION, S.C. (AP) — Questioning family members and following up unending phone tips three days after a pair of young brothers vanished, investigators indicated the case was far from solved.

"We are not ruling out anything," Union County Sheriff Howard Wells said Friday, a day of frantic but fruitless searches for evidence in the disappearance of 3-year-old Michael Smith and 14-month-old Alex Smith. Their mother reported they were taken from her by a carjacker.

"We do not have a car. We do not have the children. We do not have a suspect," the sheriff said. "We have information coming in from friends, relatives, psychics, general crackpots. And we've got to go through all of it." The boys' mother, Susan Smith, 23, said a man with a gun jumped into her car at a traffic light Tuesday night and forced her out after a few miles, driving away with her sons still in their safety seats.

She was questioned earlier in the week and her husband, David Smith, from whom she filed for divorce last month, was questioned again Friday.

Wells said authorities were trying to isolate a motive. "We haven't had a ransom demand," he said, and no one seemed "mad at the family."

The Greenville News reported today that Mrs. Smith did not pass a lie-detector test given to her Thursday. The newspaper said it could not determine what questions she had failed.

Wells told the newspaper that details of Mrs. Smith's story have differed at times.

"We have had questions about her story. That's why we talked to her more than one time," he said. He refused to discuss polygraph tests.

On Friday, two dragnets on opposite sides of this rural town yielded little.

'Good Time Charlie' Wilson does things his way

LUFKIN (AP) — He liked Reagan, supported Nixon, befriended Ford, embraced Clinton and once, emboldened by strong drink, stole LBJ's Secret Service car.

He took a Playboy cover girl to Jimmy Carter's White House and flew with former a Miss World to Afghanistan in the midst of civil war.

He addresses a feminist congressional colleague as "Baby-cakes."

Since 1960, he's been in one scrape after another, including the House bank scandal and more than a few hassles over political pork.

Now he's again asking voters in his mostly rural East Texas congressional district for two more years.

Such is life for U.S. Rep. Charlie Wilson, 61, a liberal, but hawkish Democrat with a renowned soft spot for expensive whiskey, exotic travel and attractive women.

It may be a charmed life at that. In a year when Ted Kennedy is on the ropes, House Speaker Tom Foley might lose and Texas neighbor Jack Brooks has a serious opponent, Wilson is one Democratic incumbent not listed by Washington insiders as vulnerable.

Resplendent in white dinner jacket at his 60th birthday party, he proposed a toast to the Kennedy Center crowd last year that speaks volumes:

"To friends, to life. ... To money, to power. ... To passion, to black lace. ... To Texas, of course, ... and to all of you."

It is little wonder they call him Good Time Charlie.

It's midweek, and chunks of Charlie Wilson's district are under siege from the heavens. Hardest hit is the small town of Liberty, which is awash in floodwaters.

Federal assistance is on the way, he assures local reporters in the den of his secluded bachelor retreat.

"Lots of heroics on the ground," he reports after a quick tour of the stricken areas. "I don't take any credit for it, but I sure do admire it."

He also is charitable in describing his Republican opponent, Donna Peterson, a West Point graduate making her third run.

"She's got a lot of talent," said Wilson, an 11-term veteran, "and I think she's going to find her niche some day. But it's not going to be in elective politics in East Texas."

Peterson, 34, focused her two previous campaigns on Wilson himself and lost by 12 percentage points. This year, she is attacking the national Democratic agenda and stressing her conservative credentials, but the campaign has a much lower profile.

She opposes Clinton health care reform and the recently passed crime bill. So did Wilson, who voted against the crime bill largely because of the ban on assault weapons.

For his part, Wilson admires Ms. Peterson's "spunk."

The Wilson mystique sometimes overshadows a voting record that friends insist is "amazingly progressive."

His votes lean toward women's groups, civil rights and social reform. On the environment, he supported expansion of the Big Thicket National Preserve, but he also is a friend to the timber industry that prevails in his Piney Woods district.

Lufkin lumber magnate George Henderson Jr., a late-comer to the Wilson camp, says he initially didn't vote for Wilson because he was too liberal.

"I don't know whether Charlie got more conservative or I got more tolerant," he smiled. "Whatever charisma is, Charlie's got it. You can't get mad at him."

Retired schoolteacher and Democratic activist Ella Austin calls Wilson a "dynamic and dedicated" public servant and declared:

"He's not a phony. It may not be what you want to hear, but he's going to give you a true, candid opinion on the issues. He's been very effective and productive in working for the people in his district."

That district, which lies north of Houston, hugs the Louisiana border and encompasses all of 17 counties and parts of two others.

"It is obviously unique or I wouldn't keep electing me," Wilson joked.

"It's a dirty fingernails, work-with-your-hands kind of place," he said. "People always become a little less Democrat the better off economically they become."

Unlike many candidates, Wilson refuses to distance himself from Bill Clinton. "I personally like him and I'm not going to say I don't," Wilson said.

Liberal columnist Molly Ivins, Wilson's friend since his state legislative days, quoted Congresswoman Pat Schroeder recently as saying Wilson has the opposite of hypocrisy.

"Charlie has 'lowpocrisy,'" said Schroeder, D-Colo., coining a word. "I think he pretends to be worse than he actually is."

Wilson sees himself as a "hybrid," a socially conscious hawk who says of his rigid pro-military stance: "All the social programs don't mean a damn if we can't defend this country."

More than any other person, he is credited with arming and supporting the rebels who drove the Soviet invaders out of Afghanistan. He then became the first outsider to receive the CIA's "Honored Colleague Award."

En route to Afghanistan, he was questioned whether the girlfriend he had in tow was necessary to the mission.

"Absolutely," he snapped. A year later, he tried to cut appropriations for the military fleet that had taken him to the war, but also had attempted to bump the former Miss World.

Women always have been major players in the Good Time Charlie Show, and his staff in Washington is known as "Charlie's Angels." His sometimes off-color remarks about them would have been political suicide for many of his colleagues.

So would some of his actions. After a night of fun, he emerged from the Driskill Hotel in downtown Austin to find his car blocked by a Secret Service agent's car. So he jumped in the agent's car and sped away, making sure to leave no fingerprints when he abandoned it.

He once drove another car into a flag pole, explaining the accident was an "excess of patriotism." He was investigated for drug use in 1983, but no charges were filed, and he was fined in the same year for leaving the scene of an auto collision on Washington's Key Bridge.

"When I chose the lifestyle I did," he said at his birthday party last year, "I never dreamed I'd live to be 60."

Churches offer 'moral' haunts

DALLAS (AP) — Forget Dracula and Frankenstein. Abortion, suicide and Satanism are the attractions of three area "haunting houses" sponsored by churches trying to scare teens away from modern-day evils.

The houses offer morality plays that focus on life choices leading to either salvation or damnation.

Visitors to "Hell House," at Trinity Church in Cedar Hill, witness a satanic high priest sacrificing a teen-age girl and drinking her blood, after snickering that trick-or-treating is just one way of luring children to evil.

In another scene, a girl dies after a botched abortion and is condemned to everlasting fire for killing her unborn child.

"Living Hell: A Glimpse of Eternity" in Burleson includes an abortion scene that simulates the operation with a bowl of spaghetti and a clear hose connected to a vacuum. Grim reapers guide teens from scene to scene, all ending in death.

"It's disturbing, it's shocking and it really makes them think," said Stan Denman, interim youth minister at Burleson Baptist Temple, which runs "Living Hell."

"We're looking to really make kids aware of the evils of society — what is dragging our society down," Denman said.

"This is not really for church people," said Tim Ferguson, youth pastor at Trinity Church. "We like church people to bring unsaved people."

Most of the houses require children under 13 to be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, founder of the Moral Majority, appears to have started the idea of alternative haunted houses in 1972, when the youth division of his Lynchburg, Va., Thomas Road Baptist Church put on the first "Scaremare." The idea spread.

But not all approve of the houses as a technique for teaching morality.

Dr. J. Douglas Crowder, a forensic psychiatrist at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical School and lay minister in the Church of Christ, called the concept "heavy duty."

The focus on satanism as a serious risk for teens, he said, is overblown given all the real problems they face. And, he said, "even traditional Halloween activities provide an opportunity to talk to children about good and evil."

Some visitors think the experience is too graphic, particularly for youths.

How to have a safe, happy Halloween

Watch for little spooks and goblins

AUSTIN (AP) — Lots of people head out on Halloween night looking for a good scare. But thousands find real ones, like traffic accidents or children harmed by unsafe costumes.

This year, The Texas Insurance Advisory Association and the Texas Automobile Insurance Service Office have offered several safety tips for Halloween.

The groups say motorists should be extremely careful and remember that excited youngsters trick-or-treating often will bolt into the street in their pursuit of candy.

They urge drivers to go slowly through residential areas, and to honk their horns when driving on dimly lit streets to let children know the cars are there.

Other Halloween tips offered by the groups:

— Make sure costumes and shoes fit properly. Tight or oversized clothing can cause children to trip or fall.

— Makeup is safer than masks, which can obstruct vision.

— Costumes should be non-flammable. They should also be easily seen, with bright colors or reflective tape.

— Lawns should be free of debris and porch lights should be turned on to keep youngsters from falling.

— Parents taking children trick-or-treating should be careful to allow them only to cross the streets at crosswalks.

— Trick-or-treat early, before it gets too dark.

— Don't allow children to eat any treats before they get home. Carefully inspect all their candy before allowing them to eat it.

— People living in apartment complexes should arrange with the complex manager to post a list of which apartments welcome trick-or-treaters.

Bullock hedges bet on election

FORT WORTH (AP) — Democratic Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock said he believes Gov. Ann Richards will be re-elected Nov. 8.

But ever the pragmatist, Bullock complimented her Republican challenger, George W. Bush, as someone "with a real future in Texas politics."

Bullock, who is recuperating from heart surgery he underwent in September, also praised some of Bush's campaign promises as "progressive" and "workable."

In an interview with the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that was published Saturday, Bullock said Richards was faring better in her re-election campaign than polls indicate.

The latest Texas Poll, conducted in late October, showed Bush and Richards virtually even.

But he lamented the tone of the campaign. He said Bush is getting "a bum rap" on questions about whether construction costs for The Ballpark in Arlington, home of the Rangers baseball team, should be tax-exempt.

When he was comptroller, Bullock said he studied the tax status of the stadium and ruled that it was exempt. "At that time I had a tax policy committee. They studied that issue."

Texas Governor Ann Richards addresses a rally after a NAACP march for political and economic justice Saturday in Houston.

The tax issue surfaced recently after the state comptroller's office said it was examining conflicting legal language on the status of The Ballpark, which is owned by the city of Arlington and leased to the Rangers, of which Bush is managing partner.

Chuck McDonald, a spokesman for Richards, said that her campaign did not raise the tax issue and "whether or not it's legal, that's totally a comptroller deal."

Bullock, who also faces re-election, has enjoyed substantial leads in recent polls against Republican H.J. "Tex" Lezar. The lieutenant governor said he'll learn from his doctor Wednesday whether he can return to the campaign trail.

Concerning the governor's race, Bullock said Richards is making a strong showing in the final days of the campaign.

Bullock acknowledged, however, that he might be working with Bush during the next four years.

Missing baby returned

FORT WORTH (AP) — A 4-month-old baby snatched from her crib nearly a week ago was reunited with her mother Friday, thanks to an alert social worker.

Yesenia Romero was taken from her home the night of Oct. 21 by a woman whom relatives had warned the baby's mother not to trust.

But Yesenia appeared healthy and happy Friday afternoon when she was reunited with her mother, Gabriela Sanchez, 21, at a Fort Worth medical clinic.

The smiling and tearful Ms. Sanchez doesn't speak English, but a translator said, "She thanks God that everything turned out alright."

Yesenia was recovered when a pregnant woman holding the baby arrived for her usual checkup at a Fort Worth clinic, police Lt. Pat Knebllick said.

Ms. Knebllick said a medical social worker called police after she recognized the baby as Yesenia.

"When I saw the baby, I immediately knew who the child was," said Cynthia Briones.

The pregnant woman, who wasn't arrested and wasn't a suspect in the kidnapping, told police that the woman suspected of taking the baby was staying at her house. But the woman was gone when it was time for her checkup, so she took the baby with her.

The woman who police believe took the baby was being questioned and was in police custody, police said. She was identified as Leticia Garcia.

Jury: 12-year-old must lose ponytail

AUSTIN (AP) — A jury ruled against a 12-year-old boy Saturday in his long-running fight to wear a ponytail to school.

But Zachariah Toungate, his family and attorney say the jurors were confused over a key question before the panel, and that may be cause for another trial.

"I feel better now than I ever have," said Zach's mother, September Toungate.

She said after the Bastrop County jury returned its decision, most of the jurors told her they planned to attend school board meetings "to tell them that what they're doing is not right."

Zach, who has gained national fame in his four-year battle with the Bastrop Independent School District, said he plans to keep fighting.

"They're discriminating," he said. "Girls can wear their hair long, but boys can't."

Bastrop is a small town about 35 miles east of Austin.

Following a five-day trial, the jury deliberated more than seven hours and delivered its decision at 12:15 a.m.

The panel was given a list of 12 questions to answer.

The first question asked if Zach's side proved that the school district's hair-length rule is based on a person's sex.

The jury answered 'No.' That was critical to Zach's case because he claimed the rule was discriminatory because it applied only to boys.

Charles Beall, the attorney representing Zach, said he spoke with jurors later, who thought the question asked them why the rule was put into effect, not whether it applied to only boys.

"I'll take the fall on that one. I should have realized that was open to interpretation," Beall said.

He said he may ask visiting state District Judge Norman Lanford of Houston to rule in favor of Zach despite the jury's decision, and then for another trial.

Journal says weather experts too quick on ozone alert calls

DALLAS (AP) — State meteorologists are too quick to predict smoggy days and cry ozone alert, according to a report by Texas Journal.

New information about daily smog levels from May to October shows that meteorologists have a dreadful record predicting when ozone levels will exceed federal standards.

Ozone is a gas that can build up when sunlight combines with automobile exhaust fumes. The excess ozone creates pollutants found in smog when it combines with auto exhaust and factory smoke.

The Texas Journal, a weekly publication of The Wall Street Journal, reported last week that 80 advisories have been issued so far this year in the state. Of those, only 12 have resulted in actual ozone-alert levels.

There were also six days when ozone surpassed federal standards, but no ozone warnings were issued.

The alerts — used in Austin, Corpus Christi, Dallas-Fort Worth, San Antonio and the Tyler-Longview area — are voluntary programs designed to cut air pollution.

When meteorologists predict that low-lying ozone is likely to occur and create smoggy days, they issue the alerts, which call for citizens to avoid driving alone and filling up their gas tanks, among other things.

But questions about the effectiveness of the alerts have caused two of the state's smoggiest areas, Houston and El Paso, to postpone the program.

The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission issues the alerts. It blames the National Weather Service for not forecasting unexpected winds that sometimes bring pollution from other areas and make ozone predictions impossible.

The TNRC issues advisories when it predicts low-lying ozone levels will rise to more than 100 parts per billion.

Bryan Lameth, the TNRC's top air-pollution meteorologist, said he hopes the agency can improve its predictions, although he says it will never be perfect.

Under the federal Clean Air Act of 1990, cities that don't meet certain air-quality standards could eventually be punished with the loss of millions of dollars in federal transportation funds.

Because of high ozone levels, the Dallas-Fort Worth area already has been designated a "nonattainment" area by the Environmental Protection Agency.

In an effort to clean up its air, Dallas launched the first ozone-alert program in the spring of 1993. Since then, the other four cities involved in the program decided to issue the warnings because the EPA labeled them as "borderline" cities. Borderline cities have accumulated enough incidents of excess ozone levels to be placed under scrutiny, and with more offenses they could be downgraded to nonattainment cities.

Boothies: Assassin lived in Granbury

DALLAS (AP) — With a renewed energy sparked by calls for the exhumation of the body buried in John Wilkes Booth's grave, the Boothies are on the march again in Granbury.

The Boothies, as they call themselves in the Brazos River city 60 miles west of Dallas, do not believe that Union troops shot and killed Booth after he assassinated President Abraham Lincoln in 1865. Instead, they contend he escaped and came to Granbury in 1870 as saloon keeper John St. Helen.

Last week, descendants of the famous actor and two historians petitioned a Maryland court last week to exhume the body buried in Booth's grave in Baltimore and identify it once and for all.

"Katy bar the door if they find out it's not him," said Jo Ann Miller, a leader of the escape theorists. "It would pretty much rewrite history. Oliver Stone would come to Granbury and shoot a movie."

An actress and playwright, Ms. Miller wrote a play to preserve the St. Helen story. It ran at the 100-year-old Granbury Opera House in 1986 and again in 1992.

While mainstream historians say a Union soldier shot and killed Booth at a Virginia farm 12 days after Lincoln was killed, "escape-theory" historians contend that some people who identified Booth's body at the farm and at his autopsy later signed affidavits that they really didn't believe it was him. Some of Booth's family members also claimed that he lived on after 1865.

Ms. Miller's play is based primarily on those affidavits, other historical inconsistencies and oral histories delivered by people who knew St. Helen in Texas.

Local lore has it that St. Helen came to Granbury and ran the Lady Gay saloon on the town square. He also advised a fledgling theater group and introduced townspeople to a board game called backgammon.

As the story goes, St. Helen became gravely ill in 1871 and, thinking he was about to die, confessed to some that he really was John Wilkes Booth. He told them that a hidden .44-caliber derringer, stashed behind some loose boards in his rooming house, was the pistol that killed Lincoln.

Today, a Granbury family possesses the derringer, said Mary Kate Durham, whose family has lived in Hood County since 1859.

"Since I was very young, I've always known the story of that gun," Ms. Durham is quoted as saying in Saturday's editions of The Dallas Morning News. "Why would anyone on his deathbed say he was Mr. Booth if he wasn't really?"

Traditional historians contend the pistol was found in Ford's Theater the night of the assassination.

The Boothies aren't sure where St. Helen went after departing from Granbury in 1871.

In 1903, a man calling himself David George committed suicide by drinking arsenic in an Enid, Okla., hotel room. Before he died, he gave a deathbed confession saying he was John Wilkes Booth.

Congressman has nanny troubles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Add Texas Congressman Henry Bonilla to the list of officials with nanny trouble.

Less than two weeks from Election Day, the San Antonio Republican Friday was fending off trouble after reports surfaced that he employed an undocumented British worker as a nanny for almost seven years.

That was a day after California Senate hopeful Michael Huffington, who is seeking to oust Sen. Dianne Feinstein in what has become the most expensive Senate contest ever, acknowledged employing an illegal immigrant from Mexico for five years.

Last week, Huffington endorsed Proposition 187, which would deny most government services to illegal aliens and require school, hospital and social workers to turn them in.

In Texas, Bonilla has been a strong supporter of beefing up the Border Patrol to combat the flow of illegal aliens into the United States.

In a Feb. 18 letter published in the San Antonio Express-News, Bonilla wrote: "Illegal immigrants are a tremendous drain on our society. They use our hospitals, our schools and our social services without paying the taxes to support them."

The Justice Department in April ended without prosecution a 10-month investigation of Bonilla's employment of the nanny. The probe was first reported Friday by The Houston Post.

Bonilla vigorously denied any wrongdoing in employing the woman from 1986 through early 1993. But he acknowledged not paying back taxes on the nanny's wages until early 1993. He refused to divulge how much he paid, saying it was a private matter.

"It's been something that we have been working on with the INS since early 1988 to comply with every rule and regulation and we did," he said in an interview.

The nanny, Paula Vouden, entered the United States on a six-month visitor visa that didn't entitle her to work.

Witness arrested at trial

FORT WORTH (AP) — The chief defense witness for a man accused of killing a police officer was arrested on four Harris County perjury warrants as he left the courtroom.

The jury didn't see Friday's arrest.

Dallas forensic scientist John Castle was arrested after his two hours of testimony in the trial of Eugene Standerford, who is accused of killing a Fort Worth police officer in an alcohol-related wreck.

The judge barred jurors, who are being sequestered, from hearing anything about the perjury allegations. Tarrant County bailiffs ushered Castle, 46, into an empty courtroom and arrested him, officials said.

A Harris County grand jury indicted Castle on Monday on four counts of aggravated perjury in connection with his defense testimony during a capital murder trial in October 1993, a Harris County assistant district attorney said.

BSHS runner wins 4-4A title

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Big Spring's Joe Franklin won his second consecutive district cross country championship Saturday, but only one of the titles belongs to him.

He gave Saturday's District 4-4A championship to his late grandfather.

Franklin, a senior, has had few setbacks as a runner, but he was hit hard three weeks ago when his grandfather, George Cole, died. Franklin's grandfather had lived in Big Spring with Joe, Joe's mother and Joe's grandmother.

"To me, this year is different because I didn't run for myself. I dedicated this to my grandfather," Franklin said. "I've stayed with my grandparents since I was 6 years old. I ran for him - that's all I wanted to do. Yeah, I wanted to win, but that wasn't as important. I wanted to have a good effort and go for the record, and do it for him."

Franklin didn't set any records Saturday, but he won with ease, conquering the three-mile course at McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark in 15 minutes and 42.49 seconds. Franklin toyed with Lake View's Jeremy Bartz, running with Bartz until he was ready to leave him behind. Bartz finished second, more than 10 seconds back.

"That's the best race I've ever coached," said Big Spring coach Randy Britton. "It was beautiful - he was so patient. Did you see that Lake View kid take off like that, so fast? Well, Joe just let him go and then left him behind. The Lake View kid tried to put on another surge, but he couldn't. Joe's such a smart runner - he's very good at doing what you need to do."

"I knew he'd wear out - they all took off way too fast," said Franklin, who passed Bartz on two occasions, the last just after the 2-mile mark. "I knew that when I passed him, I could maintain the lead. When I passed him the first time, I could tell he was dead."

Next is the Lubbock Regional Saturday, and should Franklin finish in the top 10 there, he'll qualify for the state meet. Franklin finished 40th at the state meet last season.

BSHS gets good news, bad news at District 4-4A meet

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

If you're a Big Spring cross country fan, how are you supposed to feel?

Big Spring's Joe Franklin won his second consecutive district championship (see related story above), and Marisol Carnero also qualified for the Lubbock Regional in the girls' race. Each of the Big Spring boys ran season-best times.

That's the good news. The bad news? Big Spring's boys didn't come close to defending their team district championship, and Robert Rios, who has starred for BSHS all season, missed the Lubbock Regional by 4.3 seconds.

"I feel bad - I can't believe I didn't make it," said Rios, a junior who finished sixth with a time of 16 minutes, 11.78 seconds. Only the top five individuals qualify for Saturday's Lubbock Regional. "I don't know what happened, I just couldn't run. I just couldn't run. I should have been going to the regional."

"I feel sorry for Robert - he's really worked hard," said Big Spring coach Randy Britton. "What can you tell him? I'm sorry, Robert. That's when coaching is not fun. He ran a great race, his best time of the year - he did what he was asked to do. What else can you ask for?"

The sentiment was the same for the BSHS boys, who turned in personal bests but finished a distant 19 points behind runner-up Andrews. The top two teams reach the regional. Lake View (50 points) won the district title, followed by Andrews (52), Big Spring (77), Monahans (76) and Pecos (110). Big Spring's finishers were Franklin (first, 15:42.49), Rios, Randy Farr (19th, 17:19.28), Ismael Rodriguez (21st, 17:56.15) and Tim Rigdon (24th - 18:26.95).

Big Spring's highlight in the girls' race was Carnero, a freshman who finished fourth in the two-mile race to become Britton said, just the second BSHS freshman girl to individually qualify for the regional since Britton took over the program in the late 1970s. The other was Mimi Regalado.

Carnero's time was 13:23.44, well behind Andrews' Nadia Lujan, who won the race in 12:08.30. Carnero wasn't completely pleased with her time, she said, but she was more than pleased with the result.

"It was scary at first, but once I got the hang of it, and I saw I could stay near the peo-

BSHS tennis team falls in 1-4A finals

LUBBOCK - The Big Spring High School tennis team was stopped one step short of the state finals, but it was able to achieve the goal it set for itself way back when the season began.

Big Spring, the two-time undefeated District 4-4A champions, received the second seed in the Region 1-4A tournament in Lubbock, and it rode that seed all the way to a regional final match with perennial state power Wichita Falls.

Wichita Falls beat Big Spring 11-0, but Big Spring's goal all season had been to get that chance to play Wichita Falls.

"This being considered a rebuilding year for us, our goal was to reach the regional finals, and we did that," said Big Spring coach Ralph Davis. "Since we made it that far, we are one of the eight best teams in state. As close as some of the matches were against Wichita Falls, I think we can all be tickled to death about the future of our tennis program."

With the second seed, Big Spring received a first-round bye, and it started play Friday afternoon by blasting Levelland 12-0.

Big Spring played third-seeded Hereford Saturday morning in the semifinals and had no trouble, winning 10-1.

"Everyone played well in that Hereford match," Davis said. "We just couldn't pull out those close, three-set matches against Wichita Falls. With all the three-set matches we had, it was kind of misleading that they beat us 10-0, and some of the other coaches were saying the same thing - that 10-0 didn't really show that the match was closer than that. I think we're just a year or so away from making a run at them."

Full results will be in Monday's Herald.

Big Spring boys win swim meet

PECOS - The Big Spring High School swim team had a profitable day Saturday at a three-team meet in Pecos.

Big Spring boys defeated Andrews 71-26 and Pecos 53-43.

"The Pecos meet was really close - Pecos has a lot of strong kids, and we have a lot of strong kids," said Big Spring coach Harlan Smith. "We were able to beat them with our strength and our depth, and I hope we can continue that."

The girls had a rougher time. Pecos beat Big Spring 71-20, and Andrews beat Big Spring 55-38.

"We had just five girls - a lot were sick last week," Smith said. "The five that did go showed real improvement in their times."

Full results will be in Monday's Herald.

Steers bury Loboes, 36-12

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

Too many times for Big Spring, the Steers have fumbled away their chances of winning.

Friday was just the opposite - Big Spring scooped up two fumbles, three interceptions, a muffed punt and likely a playoff berth in a 36-12 win over Monahans at Memorial Stadium.

Big Spring (5-4, 3-1 in District 4-4A) didn't gain as many total yards as Monahans (3-6, 2-2), but the Steers played mistake-free football while pouncing all over the Loboes' errors. With the win, Big Spring needs only to beat Andrews Friday - in fact, the Steers can lose by less than 10 points and still make the playoffs (see related story). "We've been on the other end of that before," said Big Spring coach Dwight Butler. "We've lost two ball games this year on fumbles at the 1-yard line - we lost at Estacado and then we lost here against Lake View. We know exactly how it feels."

Big Spring is on the verge of knowing how it feels to be in the playoffs for the first time since 1989. The Steers completely dominated the game, so much so that it's nearly impossible to believe Monahans gained 285

Big Spring quarterback Bucky Crenshaw (16) pitches the ball and avoids the sack from Monahans' Hector Hernandez (77) Friday. Big Spring won 36-12.

Steers aren't in playoffs yet, but they're darn close

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

The Steers are this close to the playoffs.

Big Spring (5-4, 3-1 in District 4-4A) beat Monahans 36-12 Friday at Memorial Stadium and made its playoff picture about as rosy as it can get without actually clinching a spot.

Thanks to Lake View's 25-7 win over Andrews, here's the situation:

Lake View (8-1, 4-0) has clinched the district title, Big Spring is in sole possession of second place and Monahans (3-6, 2-2) is tied for third with Andrews (2-7, 2-2). If Big Spring wins at Andrews Friday, the Steers are in the playoffs for the first time since 1989, but wait! The news is even better than that for Steer fans.

Under 4-4A's point-differential tiebreaker, which offers a maximum of 14 points per game, Big Spring will reach the playoffs even if it loses at Andrews, as long as it loses by less than 10 points, and as long as Monahans beats Pecos.

How's that?

Using the tiebreaking process between Monahans, Andrews and Big Spring, Monahans sits at minus-8. The Loboes beat Andrews 14-8 for a plus-6 but lost 36-12 to Big Spring for a minus-14. Add the two, and you've got minus-8.

Monahans is dead. Andrews is at a minus-6 going into the Big Spring game because of its six-point loss to Monahans. Big Spring is at a plus-14. If Andrews beats Big Spring by 10 points, both teams would sit at plus-4 in the tiebreaker and Andrews would get 4-4A's runner-up playoff spot because it beat the Steers in head-to-head play. As long as the Steers win, or lose by less than 10 points, they go to the playoffs and Andrews stays home.

KEEP IN MIND - if the Steers win at Andrews, none of this tiebreaking gobbledy-goo is necessary.

Should the Steers reach the playoffs, their bi-district opponent will likely be El Paso Parkland (7-2, 2-0), which leads the four-team District 3-4A.

New baseball league formed

NEW YORK (AP) - The American and National leagues may get some competition for the first time in 80 years. Organizers of the new United League called a news conference for Tuesday to announce plans for the first new circuit since the Federal League in 1914-15.

Agent Dick Moss, the former general counsel of the Major League Baseball Players Association, has been organizing the league as an alternative to the existing major leagues, which have been shut down by a players' strike since Aug. 12.

A Continental League was planned in the late 1950s after the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants moved to California and left an NL void in New York, but those plans were dropped after the NL expanded.

Jim Ned starts slow but passes Coahoma

Speed gives Indians edge in 6-2A contest

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

COAHOMA - Once they rediscovered how to hold on to the ball, the Jim Ned Indians also rediscovered the joys of winning.

The Indians, who suffered numerous turnovers in losing their first three District 6-2A games, followed the same script in the first half of their game with Coahoma Friday night, losing four fumbles en route to a 20-12 first-half deficit.

In the second half, however, Jim Ned held on to the ball and let their superior speed do the rest, cruising to a 33-22 win over the Bulldogs.

The loss didn't obliterate Coahoma's playoff chances, although the Bulldogs don't quite hold their destiny in their hands, either. Coahoma (6-3, 2-2 in district) must defeat Stanton in the season finale next week, then have Winters defeat Wall to earn its first playoff spot in 22 years.

That the Bulldogs are still in the playoff hunt was a matter of great relief to Coahoma coach Eddie McHugh.

"Hey, we're still in it," McHugh said. "That's the great thing about it. (Jim Ned's) not in it. They can't make the playoffs. They had nothing to lose tonight, so our kids have nothing to hang their heads about."

For only the second time this season, Coahoma's defense, the team's pride and joy, took a beating. Jim Ned (6-3, 1-3) plowed through the Bulldogs for 394 total yards of offense, 384 of that coming on the ground.

The Indians ran both outside and inside against Coahoma. The outside presence was provided by tailback Chris Kraatz, who carried the ball 16 times for 123 yards and two touchdowns, while fullback Larry Trevino carried the load inside, gaining 149 yards on 22 carries and scoring two touchdowns as well.

For the first half, however, the Indians were their own worst enemy, losing four fumbles - all in their own territory.

The first Coahoma touchdown came after the Bulldogs recovered a fumble at the Jim Ned 38. Nine plays later, quarterback Brandon McGuire ran around right end for 12 yards and the score, giving Coahoma a 7-6 lead.

After the Indians regained the lead at 12-7, they again set Coahoma in prime scoring territory, losing the ball on their own 27. Jim Ned's defense pushed the Bulldogs back 11

Wall proves too much for Forsan

By SHAWN LEAPARD
Herald Correspondent

FORSAN - The Wall Hawks eased past Forsan 39-10 to set up a District 6-2A championship game against Winters next week.

Wall Coach Mickey Dodd was relieved to get a victory after suffering a district loss to Coahoma two weeks ago. "We had to take care of business tonight," said Dodd. "Tonight helped us in accomplishing our goal of becoming district champions."

Daniel Herrera led the 6-3 (3-1 in district) Hawks in the first half with 59 yards on the ground and two touchdowns of 4 and 13 yards. Herrera was able to produce only one yard in the second half but did contribute a 61-yard touchdown reception to begin the third quarter.

Forsan coach Jan East, whose Buffaloes dropped to 1-8 (0-4), commented on the game saying: "We gave up three easy touchdowns in the second half that changed the outcome of the game. We wouldn't have been in bad shape if we could have stopped two screens and not thrown the interception."

Wall's Craig Box intercepted a Jason Leptz pass and raced 52 yards for a touchdown at the end of the third quarter, giving the Hawks a comfortable 25-point lead. Box later threw a screen pass to Basillio Garcia, who ran for a 64-yard touchdown to seal the victory for Wall.

Before Box's interception, the Buffaloes were able to move the ball but landed in the end zone once with a 4-yard touchdown run by Jacoby Hopper in the second quarter.

Forsan's Jeremy Etheredge attempted a 42-yard field goal after a long third-quarter Buffalo drive, but the ball was ple in front of me, that helped me a lot," Carnero said. "I was really looking for the freshman record, so I was really disappointed I didn't get that, but I'm glad I'm going to the regional. It surprised me a little, because like I said before, I haven't been working as hard as I could have been, but I've got a whole bunch of confidence now, in myself and in my teammates."

Following Carnero across the line for Big Spring were Kelly Hinojos (13th, 14:10.37), Tonya Phifer (14th, 14:11.35), Maria Hinojos (18th, 14:51.68), Connie Martinez (20th, 15:23.77), Amber Phelps (21st, 15:38.66) and Dawn Shober (22nd, 15:42.93). Just three girls' teams had enough runners to place in the team standings, and Lake View nipped Andrews 32-34 as San Angelo took home both titles. Big Spring scored 64 points.

At the Lubbock Regional, the top three teams and the top 10 individuals qualify for the state meet.

About Carnero, Britton said: "Her and Mimi - hey, she's in high cotton achieving that. She wasn't all that happy with her time, but 13:23 is a pretty good time on this course.... She ran extremely well, and it's really great when a freshman can do this. It makes time to understand at the district meet that they can make it to the next level. And it's like I told her before the meet - you can't make it to state if you don't make it to the regional. She's got a chance to make state, but even if she runs well and misses state by a few points, that will give her incentive for next year."

Auburn deserves a shot at the national championship

Give the Auburn Tigers a break. This is a team that beat the No. 1 ranked Florida at Florida a t Florida t h a t stands to win 22 straight games should it go undefeated for the second straight season. This is a team that plays in one of the toughest football conferences in the country.

Yet some people think Auburn shouldn't be in the running for college football's mythical national championship.

Some little thing about probation. OK, OK - you're right. Probation isn't a little thing. Auburn cheated, and it needs to pay the price. But hasn't it paid enough?

Think about it. In most cases, teams get put on probation at least a year or two after the cheating happened. The coach resigns under pressure, and what's left is a ton of players and a new coach that had nothing to do with the infractions.

Yet they are the ones that pay the price.

Last season, Auburn shocked the college football world by going 11-0 under first-year coach Terry Bowden. Maybe you missed it - after all, the Tigers were barred from television appearances, which cost the university an armored-truck's worth of cash. Auburn's scholarships were cut, and the team was banned from postseason play - including the Southeastern Conference championship game.

This season is the same, except Auburn can appear on the tube. The SEC is tougher this season, though - Auburn, Florida and Alabama are all in the top 10, with one loss between them (Auburn 36, Florida 33). Auburn has one obstacle to clear - 'Bama - but should it roll over the Tide, how can anyone say Auburn cannot be the best team in the country? Just because the Tigers are on probation, is everyone supposed to ignore them? The coaches' poll seems to think so. Auburn is ineligible for those rankings, which just adds to the price the Tigers have paid.

"Come on, you bleeding heart," you might be saying. "They cheated, and they shouldn't be eligible. So what if the kids on the team had nothing to do with the cheating. They shouldn't have gone to that school if they thought it might go on probation."

Wrong! Some of the players may have had no idea - who knows? - and a lot of them, the upperclassmen, probably didn't know until they signed on the dotted line. Why does a high school player pick a particular college in the first place?

Often it's because he's dreamed of playing at that college since he could walk. You think the threat of probation is going to kill that dream?

Auburn's players should be able to look back 20 years from now and say "We were No. 1 in the nation," or "We were No. 2 in the nation," or wherever the Associated Press poll ranks them in the final poll.

They've earned that much. For once, the AP college football poll is doing something right.

Sands lunches on Loop; Wellman stops Grady

By JOHN MOSELEY Herald Correspondent

ACKERLY — No contest...period.

Sands' Mustangs took no prisoners in rolling to a 48-0 win over Loop's Longhorns Friday.

In fact, game programs should have carried a disclaimer of some kind, warning that this one shouldn't be witnessed by the women and young children.

The Mustangs chalked up points quickly enough to have closed this one at halftime on the 45-point rule. One can only surmise that Mustang boss Billy Barnett wanted to make sure his freshmen and sophomores got a little playing time, and that the crowd on hand stayed around to see Amy Nichols and Cory Maxwell win SHS' Football Sweetheart and Hero accolades.

As a result, the Ponies wasted their chance at scoring a touchdown late in the first half and were forced to run two offensive plays in the second half before bringing down the final curtain.

With 42 seconds remaining in the first half, the Mustangs simply handed the ball to freshman Jerrod Beall, who picked up 7 yards outside left guard, then let the remaining time elapse.

Sands had needed only four plays on their first possession to get on the scoreboard, Dallas Hopper blistering the Loop defense for 31 yards at the 6:17 mark. Danny Ybarra's kick made it 8-0.

Two minutes later, Steven Gillespie made it 14-0 with a 15-yard run, capping a 36-yard drive set up by Hopper's interception.

The Mustangs made it an early Halloween for Loop, picking off two more Longhorn passes, each of them leading to scores — Dustin Gaskins' interception with 1:41 left in the first half set up a 39-yard scoring romp by Bill Barnes, and a Steven Cantu theft on Loop's final play of the third period set the stage for the clincher, Maxwell's 22-yard touchdown toss to Jason Henderson.

Sands' passing game was picture perfect — Maxwell going 4-for-4 for 114 yards and touchdowns of 56, 17 and 22 yards. Cantu was credited for the Mustangs' only other pass, a 38-yard halfback option to Delynn Reed with 30 seconds left in the Third quarter: S - Henderson 22 pass from Maxwell, 8:40.

The Mustangs, now 7-2 on the year, will close out the regular season Friday, traveling to Patricia where they'll face Klondike. A win would give Sands no worse than a tie for first place in six-man District 5. Sands, Grady and Wellman all lead District 5 with 3-1 records going into the final week.

Wellman 63 Grady 40

WELLMAN - The Grady Wildcats had their chance to wrap up the six-man District 5 title Friday, but they ran into an equally tough group of Wildcats from Wellman.

Wellman (6-2-1, 3-1 in District 5) beat Grady 63-40 to create a three-way tie for first place. Grady (7-2, 3-1), ranked sixth in the state, plays at home against Dawson Friday. Wellman plays Loop, and Sands - the other team tied for first - plays at Klondike.

Should the teams finish the season tied for first, which seems quite possible, a coin flip would be used to decide which two of the three would make the playoffs.

"We shouldn't have had to worry about a coin flip, but we had an off night, and Wellman had a great night," said Grady coach Roger Smith.

Smith got more bad news when Matt Hale was injured. Hale was taken to Lubbock, where X-rays were taken on his spine. Smith said Hale could have a stress fracture in his lower spine - Hale has been released from the hospital and is moving freely. Smith expected to know more about Hale's condition Thursday, but Hale is likely out for the year.

At Wellman Friday, Sean Rowden rushed for 350 yards and scored six touchdowns. Grady jumped to a 6-0 lead when Timmy Garza hit Vance McMorries with a 7-yard touchdown pass, but Wellman scored the next 28 points to take control.

WESTBROOK - The Hermleigh Cardinals took a step closer to the playoffs and stepped on Westbrook Friday.

Hermleigh (7-2, 3-1 in District 6) scored 28 points in the first quarter to take control. The rally started with a 54-yard touchdown pass from Chris Roemisch to Joey Sanchez. Hermleigh gained 321 total yards against Westbrook (1-7-1, 1-3). Westbrook's score came in the second quarter on Richard White's 11-yard touchdown run.

Rangers clinch; Winters blanks Stanton

COLORADO CITY - The Greenwood Rangers (7-1, 4-0 in District 8-3A) clinched a playoff spot Friday night in Wolf Stadium against the Colorado City Wolves with a 49-7 win.

Greenwood opened the game with 22 first-quarter points. Wolf quarterback Jason Castillo threw an interception on the Wolves' second possession to set up Greenwood's second score. C-City's Travis Lynch spent the rest of the quarter punting.

Greenwood's first two touchdowns came on runs of 8 and 11 yards from Richard Martin. The Wolves got a break to begin the second quarter by recovering a fumble at their own 30-yard line.

On the next play, Castillo threw to Frank Espinoza for 70 yards and a touchdown. Greenwood scored 20 more points before halftime on two Josh Jones touchdown runs and a touchdown pass to Indavong Phonasa.

On Greenwood's first possession of the second half, C-City's Clint Sims recovered a fumble. In all, the Wolves recovered five fumbles, but C-City converted just one into points.

The Wolves fell to 0-9, 0-4 on the year, and they play at Reagan County at 7:30 p.m.

Winters 35 Stanton 0

WINTERS - Stanton saw its playoff possibilities go down the drain Friday against state-ranked Winters.

Winters (9-0, 4-0 in District 6-2A) smashed Stanton (6-3, 2-2), limiting the Buffs to just 35 yards total offense.

With the loss, the best Stanton could do in 6-2A is tie for second with Wall, and Wall would get the runner-up playoff spot by virtue of its 35-20 victory over Stanton Oct. 21.

Winters got two touchdown runs from Mark Deike - both 8-yards. Winters led 14-0 at halftime.

Tech smokes Texas; SMU stuns A&M

LUBBOCK (AP) — The biggest crowd at Jones Stadium this season enjoyed a 33-9 Red Raider victory Saturday — the biggest point margin Tech has managed over Texas since 1928.

Tech freshman Zebbie Lethridge threw three touchdowns as the Red Raiders stunned the 19th-ranked Longhorns. Tech (4-4, 3-2 Southwest Conference) jumped to a 21-0 lead before Texas (5-3, 2-2) put up a field goal.

The Longhorns' sights on the SWC race were dimmed by a rushing game that sputtered and a defense that couldn't stop Tech freshman Byron Hanspard, who rushed 28 times for 111 yards.

The Longhorns had been averaging 28.7 points per game this season. But they suffered eight tackles for losses and could muster only 213 yards of offense, compared with Tech's 316 yards of offense.

No. 7 Texas A&M 21 SMU 21

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Kyle Bryant missed a 67-yard field goal attempt with 1 second to play and No. 7 Texas A&M had its 26-game Southwest Conference winning streak snapped by a 21-21 tie with SMU on Saturday.

Bryant's desperation kick attempt came just 27 seconds after SMU's Ben Crosland was wide right with a 43-yard field goal attempt.

Texas A&M (7-0-1, 4-0-1 SWC) had to rally just to tie the game after SMU (1-7-1, 0-4-1) built a 14-0 halftime lead.

TCU 27 Rice 25

FORT WORTH (AP) — On a day when practically everyone else was joining the Cotton Bowl race, Texas Christian knocked off front-runner Rice and took its place among Southwest Conference title contenders.

The Horned Frogs used four touchdown passes from Max Knake, 221 yards rushing by Andre Davis and tight defense deep in their own territory to hold off the Owls Saturday.

As a result, the SWC race has dissolved into a pack of five teams with two losses and no clear leader. Rice (3-4, 2-2 SWC) was in the best shape among the seven teams in contention until Saturday's defeat.

TCU (5-3, 2-2) finds itself an outsider for Cotton Bowl, but that's better than being 0-2 in league play as the Horned Frogs were two weeks ago.

Baylor 52 Houston 13

WACO (AP) — Brandell Jackson scored twice and Baylor intercepted three passes and blocked a punt Saturday as the Bears rolled to a 52-13 homecoming Southwest Conference victory over the Houston Cougars.

Baylor, which had lost in back-to-back weeks to Texas

A&M and Texas Tech, upped its overall record to 6-3 and 3-2 in the league. Houston, which upset Baylor 24-3 last year, dropped to 1-7 and 1-3.

Baylor has won all four of its home games.

The Bears, favored by 26 points, rolled to a 24-6 halftime lead, turning two Cougar mistakes into touchdowns to delight the turnout of 35,174 fans in Floyd Casey Stadium.

Top 25

- No. 1 Penn St 63
- No. 21 Ohio State 14

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Penn State did all it could to hold onto its No. 1 ranking Saturday, trouncing No. 21 Ohio State 63-14 — the Buckeyes' worst loss in 48 years.

Penn State, which already knew No. 3 Nebraska had beaten No. 2 Colorado 24-7, led 35-0 at halftime. Ki-Jana Carter, who grew up 10 minutes from the Ohio State campus, ran for four touchdowns and left in the third quarter with the score 49-7.

Carter finished with 137 yards on 19 carries. Kerry Collins, the nation's top-rated passer, engineered five long drives and completed 19 of 23 for 265 yards and two touchdowns.

The Nittany Lions (7-0, 4-0 Big Ten) sent Ohio State to its most lopsided loss since a 58-6 defeat in 1946. Only a touchdown in the final three minutes helped the Buckeyes avoid their worst loss since an 86-0 beating by Michigan in 1902.

Ohio State (6-3, 3-2) fell two games behind Penn State in the Big Ten conference race.

No. 5 Florida 52 Georgia 14

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Fifth-ranked Florida, driven by an opportunistic defense that scored three touchdowns, rebounded from its first loss of the season with a 52-14 rout of Georgia Saturday night.

The defense, criticized for giving up the winning touchdown in the final minute of a 36-33 loss to Auburn that cost the Gators the No. 1 ranking two weeks ago, redeemed itself by scoring twice on interception returns and also running back a fumble for a TD.

The rain-drenched victory moved Florida (6-1, 5-1) a step closer to its goal of reaching the Southeastern Conference championship game for the third straight season.

The defense matched the Gators' powerful offense touchdown for touchdown for three quarters. Two of the scores came in the final 95 seconds of the first half, leaving Georgia's Eric Zeier with little alternative but to throw every down to try to get the Bulldogs (5-4, 3-4) back into the game.

Zeier moved into fourth place on the Division I-A career passing list, completing 29-of-45 for 261 yards, but was intercepted a career-high four times before leaving the game early in the fourth quarter.

SMU's Bryan Harmon (34) gets by the tackle of Texas A&M's Larry Walker (32) for a 13-yard run in the second quarter Saturday. The two teams played to a 7-7 tie, which was just one of the many surprises that happened in the Southwest Conference and the Top 25.

Lead pack crowded in Tour Championship

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bill Glasson needed only a hard-fought round of 71 to retain a one-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $3 million Tour Championship.

But his erratic effort — four bogeys and as many birdies — over the Olympic Club course opened the door to a host of potential challengers for Sunday's final 18 holes of the season-ending event.

Chief among his challengers are veterans Fuzzy Zoeller and Mark McCumber, one stroke off Glasson's 8-under-par 205 total for 54 holes.

And Greg Norman, bolstered by a hole-in-one, insisted his 210 total is not too far back to catch up.

"I knew I had to shoot in the mid-60's to get back in it. I did that," said Norman, who shot a 66. "Now, if I can shoot in the mid-60's again tomorrow, I have a chance to win it all."

McCumber, however, took a different view.

"If you're going into the last round and you're worried about Greg Norman being five shots back, you're in a lot of trouble," McCumber, a two-time winner this year, said after a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole closed out his 69.

The easy-going Zoeller, a runner-up four times this season, declined to make any predictions after strolling to a bogey-free 66.

U.S. Open champion Ernie Els of South Africa, Steve Lowery and career non-winner Brad Bryant finished three rounds at 207. Bryant moved up with a 67, while Els and Lowery each lost a shot to par with 72s.

The group at 208 included Corey Pavin, John Huston and Jeff Maggert. Huston closed up with a 66, while Maggert and Pavin each shot 70.

Norman called his ace with a 7-iron on a 137-yard hole, "a pivotal shot."

"It got me back in the golf tournament. After taking all that time off (due to illness), it's been hard to get back into it mentally."

While he is still well back, Norman's 54-hole total virtually assured him of the Vardon Trophy, which goes to the player with the low scoring average for the year.

Norman, who let that coveted award slip through his fingers on a scheduling mistake last year, came into the final official event of the season with a lead of more than one-half stroke a round over Nick Price.

"I think this put the icing on the cake," Norman said. "I think I have to shoot 95 tomorrow to lose it."

But Price, already assured of the PGA Player of the Year award on the strength of his British Open and PGA titles, remained in control in the money-winning race.

He shot 67 and was at 212. Only Norman and Tom Lehman can beat him and Norman must finish first or second to have a chance. With $540,000 going to the winner of this event, Price leads Norman $1,442,927 to $1,258,907.

After making birdie on the first hole, Glasson went into a slide, dropping three shots to par on a five-hole stretch beginning on No. 3.

But he birdied the next three par-3s, Nos. 8, 13 and 15, and again held a two-shot lead. It dwindled to one when he three-putted 16 for a bogey-6 that opened the door to a last-round challenge.

total yards to Big Spring's 206. Five Monahans turnovers will do that, though.

The floodgates opened when Monahans' Randy Moore let a punt slip through his hands. Big Spring's Marc Baker fell on the ball to give the Steers first-and-goal at the Monahans 10, and on fourth-and-1, sophomore Robert Valencia plunged in the end zone.

The Steers didn't need turnover help in their next possession. Quentin Dickson, the Steers' leading rusher who was questionable for Friday's game with a sprained left knee, entered the game and helped put the Steers in scoring position with runs of 9 and 5 yards. On a third-and-6, Big Spring quarterback Bucky Crenshaw kept the ball and slithered to the end zone for a score.

On the Steers' next score, they didn't even need to have the ball. Valencia sacked Moore, Monahans' quarterback, and jarred the ball loose. Big Spring senior linebacker Leslie Adkins picked up the ball in full stride and ran 73 yards for a touchdown.

The game was easily billed as Monahans size vs. Big Spring speed, but Monahans' huge offensive linemen couldn't jumpstart the Loboes' running game. The Loboes led the district in rushing going into the game, but their only touchdown of the game came on a 73-yard pass from Moore to Casey Stevenson that made the score 22-6 at the half.

Moore connected with Stevenson again on an 8-yard

The Loboes regained possession at that score, but the Loboes once again proved to be their own worst enemy. Moore took another hit and fumbled again, and this time Big Spring's Chris Ochoa fell on it.

Three plays later, Dickson scored on a 3-yard run, and the game was over. Dickson led all rushers with 66 yards on 15 carries, and he added to the margin of victory with a 4-yard touchdown run late in the game.

Big Spring's Tony Rodriguez ended Monahans' final two possessions with interceptions. The 5-foot-9, 170-pound senior cornerback split end intercepted three passes on the night — the first time he's done that since eighth grade, he said.

New year, new coach, same old expectations.

A four-time coach of the year may be gone, and four starters may have hit the trail as well, but for the Howard College Lady Hawks, expectations are just as high as ever.

The Lady Hawks will begin a season they hope ends with a third straight trip to the national junior college women's basketball tournament Tuesday when they travel to Snyder to take on Western Texas College.

Things, as they say, will be different for Howard.

Former head coach Royce Chadwick will now prowls the sidelines for Stephen F. Austin University, and four starters from 1993, including all-conference performers Angel Spinks and Annette Robinson, have taken their skills elsewhere.

But if one thinks those losses have the Lady Hawks in a doom-and-gloom mood, think again. Terry Gray, who assisted Chadwick for the past two seasons, has taken over the program, and Howard returns six players from last year's 33-4 team.

The lone returning starter among the group is point guard Cathy Grice. The 5-foot-6 Los Angeles native averaged almost 10 points and 9.0 assists a game for the Lady Hawks last year.

Grice had a baby during the offseason, and that's slowed her conditioning work some, but Gray believes his point guard will be in top shape soon.

"She's starting to come around now," Gray said. "She's getting her quickness back, and we expect her to pick up where she left off last season."

The other returnees, though not starters, saw plenty of playing time last season.

Eureka Ray, a 5-4 guard from Dickinson, capped off a strong second half of the season by being named to the all-tournament team at the national finals. Joining her in the backcourt will be Tiffany Johnson, a 5-9 sophomore from Wharton who will be counted on to give the Lady Hawks an outside shooting presence.

The bulk of Howard's returning depth, however, will be inside.

A trio of six-footers give Howard plenty of height in the frontcourt. Joy Bass (6-0, Austin) and Amber Lacey (6-1, Berkeley, Calif.) will see the lion's share of starting time, with Susan Orsak (6-1, Alvin) expected to see plenty of playing time as well.

"The key to this team will be down low," Lacey said. "We don't have it like last year, when we had Angel, who could pop out and hit the three-pointer. The main key will be getting the ball down to the low post. That's where our power is."

Hawks flash firepower from three-point land

By DAVE HARGRAVE
Sports Editor

The '94-95 Howard College men's basketball team thinks it's better than it was last year, but every team thinks that way.

The Hawks lost a ton of players off last year's team, but hey! - every junior college team has to deal with that.

So what's unique about the Hawks this season - a season that starts Tuesday?

Perhaps nothing - and that's a good thing.

Last season, Howard had more than its share of uniqueness - of the bad kind. The Hawks had just one returning player last season, and rookie coach Tommy Collins dismissed him for off-court problems before the season began.

By season's end, player departures had left Howard with just eight players, all freshmen. Collins didn't take the job until April 1993, and that late start caused problems.

"Any time you come in really late, like we did, you kind of gather," Collins said. "You don't really select, like you want to in recruiting, and many times you get a lot of people that have baggage, if they are capable of playing at this level. And you also get some people that might not be able to play at this level. So when you have those problems, the best thing you can do is eliminate them."

The uniqueness continued during the summer as six of those eight freshmen - including the Western Junior College Athletic Conference's rebounding leader last season, Charles Poe - left or were dismissed from Howard. The Hawks will be an astonishingly young team again. Still, the youth didn't kill Howard last season - the Hawks finished third in the WJAC and finished 19-11 after a first-round loss in the Region V Tournament - and it likely won't drag down Howard this year.

After all, one of Howard's returners is all-conference, all-region shooting guard Kavosy Franklin. Franklin (6-foot-2, 175 pounds), from Houston, led the WJAC in scoring, averaging 19 points per game, and he is perhaps the conference's premier defensive player. The other returner, Tony Brown, will be the Hawks' point guard. Brown (5-9, 170, Oxford, OH), another defensive standout, scored 6.8 points per game last season and led the team in free-throw percentage (76.1), assists (136) and steals (70).

Franklin and Brown give Collins what he didn't have last season - players that have had a year under Collins' system.

"Those two are great. You never have to worry about being disappointed with their effort on the court," Collins said. "They have a lot of pressure on them, and it's two-fold. First, they're really the only sophomores, and second, they also have the pressure of keeping up with their academics and securing a scholarship for themselves. And I think it shows - they're a little tense right now, and they're not playing as well as they are going to play. But they're battle-tested."

Franklin and Brown, however, are the only battle-tested players on the roster. So far, Collins and his co-captains have treated the departure of the please see HAWKS, page 16A has been post-oriented, and we'll still try to get the ball inside as much as possible," Gray said. "With players like Amber and Joy, it seems like the smart thing to do."

Gray added that he was pleased with his sophomores' approach to off-season work.

"The sophomores have come back and done exactly what experienced sophomores do - take a leadership role on and off the court," he said. "You hope the sophomores will come back grown up and ready to lead the rest of the team, and this group has certainly done that."

"I think leadership is all a part of being a sophomore," Johnson said. "It's a role I asked to take and a role bestowed upon me."

Added to the six returnees will be a group of talented, if somewhat green, freshmen.

Of most interest to local fans is Amy Earnst, a 6-0 post player who was two-time District 4-4A most valuable player for Big Spring High School. Earnst's progress has been slowed somewhat by a knee injury suffered last season, but Gray expects her to make a sizable contribution this year.

"Amy's probably the most improved Lady Hawk in the freshman class," Gray said. "She's done a good job of rehabilitating her knee and is learning what it takes to play at the college level. We look for her to get better and better as the season goes on."

Gray also is high on two other recruits - Kyna Cosby (5-8, Sundown) and Summer Swoboda (5-9, Bloomington), last year's Class 2A player of the year. "Kyna (pronounced Kee-na) is a very good shooter who's very quick and aggressive. She'll see plenty of playing time this year," Gray said. "Summer is the player everyone thought she'd be. She's a very physical player and very good fundamentally."

Swoboda has gone from being a big fish in a small pond to being a small fish in a big pond, so to speak. And she likes that just fine. "It's a totally different game," she said. "In high school, I had to try to concentrate on all five positions. Here, all I have to take care of is my position. It's a lot more fun that way."

Joyce Howard, a 5-5 point guard from Levelland, has also drawn rave reviews from Gray.

"She's probably the biggest surprise," he said. "She'll share time with Cathy at the point."

She does a real good job and plays under control, like she's a sophomore."

Other recruits are: Nakia Black (5-11, Tyler); Stacey Erickson (5-9, Cypress); Vicki Miller (6-2, Houston).

Johnson has been impressed with what she's seen from the freshmen so far.

"I'd rate them a 10," she said. "They've struggled at some points, but they're picking things up just like we did last year. I think we've got a great group of freshmen."

The biggest question, at least among Lady Hawk fans, is just how far this team can go. Despite the departure of Chadwick, Spinks, Robinson and others, there is little doubt among team members as to this group's potential.

"I think we have a good time together," Swoboda said. "I think we have a good chance this year. I don't know what the conference will be like, but I think we'll be legit."

"We're capable of doing the things we did last year," Johnson said. "This is a team that can take it all. I really feel like we have every piece of the puzzle, everything we need to win a national championship."

other six freshmen of last year's team as an advantage, but will they be able to say the same things in the heat of the WJCAC schedule?

The untested? Well, why not start with Big Spring's Wes Hughes?

Hughes (6-1, 170) led Big Spring High School in scoring last season and set a school record for three-pointers made. Collins has yet to decide whether he will travel with nine or 10 players, but he said Hughes will be one of the top nine.

Collins said: "He's really struggling defensively, but we feel like his intensity has increased to the point that now, even though he loses his position and isn't always where you want him to be, his intensity makes up for some of it, and he's learning. And he's no exception - we have a lot of guys struggling defensively. Wes is getting his time, and he'll continue to get his time."

Collins typically talks about defense before offense, but let it be known that Hughes joins a deep group of sharpshooters that Collins said will spread out opposing defense so far that "they'll need walkie-talkies to talk to each other." The three-point guns in Howard's arsenal include Franklin, Brown, Hughes, Wayne Edwards, Lawrence Burleson and Rod Jones.

Jones (5-10, 165, Lancaster) is a point guard who will give Brown the rest he didn't receive last season. With Jones and Brown available at point, Franklin's days of filling in at point, as he did often last season, should be finished, and that will let him concentrate on scoring. Burleson (6-5, 195, Marlin) is Howard's swing man - a small forward who can nail the trey or slam inside - and he is a sophomore transfer. Edwards (6-0, 160, Houston) was referred to by Collins as the best shooter on the team, but he may be redshirted.

In fact, of the 12 players on Howard's roster, three may be redshirted - Edward, Lonnie Bradley and Jermel Bradley.

Like last season, the Hawks look short in the paint, but short doesn't mean small with this year's group. Kevin Howell (6-8, 250, Baton Rouge, La.) is the Hawks' tall man - "It's a $10 cab ride going around that rear end of his, and he just starting to learn that," Collins said. Another big body that needs to push his weight around is Shad Lowery (6-4, 230, Tupelo, Miss.). The other post players to watch are Ronnie DeGray (6-8, 195, Leesville, La.) and Chris Stansel (6-6, 195, Kermit). Stansel averaged 17 points and 13 rebounds last season for the Kermit Yellowjackets.

FRIGHT NIGHT

Big Spring style

This is the weekend that children of all ages get to dress up in outlandish costumes and have a ball. Though traditional trick-or-treating is slowing fading out of vogue, the revelry has been replaced in the form of horror houses, fall festivals and private parties.

Responsibility: The longest four-letter word

Responsibility. It's probably one of the longest four-letter words I know.

all in how you look at it. You see, I am a horrible parent if you compare me to modern day experts on child rearing. I do not GIVE my kids an allowance. Instead, I OFFER it to them. I know, I know, they deserve it - especially when they tell me I'm not fat. They mean well, they really do. But sometimes they get the wording wrong. When they mean to say, "Gee, Mom you look great," what they actually say is "I know people fatter than you, Mom," and they lose their effect (and for sure the allowance). But, either way, the allowance is not free and there are several weeks when they actually go penniless. Poor little paupers. You see, I teach my children in order to receive, they must give. In order to earn money, they must accomplish a chore. And, then I leave it up to them. The choice is theirs. They really hate it when they ask for money and I really love it when I get to say back at them, "Sorry, honey, you chose to be broke." Ha! It's a mother's revenge. I'm really not as horrible as I sound. But nothing in this world is free except love, and sometimes even that has a price. I chose to have children. That was my choice. And with that choice came responsibility. If I choose to teach them not to work for anything they receive or that money has no value, I am afraid for what they might become. I have several visions and none of them are pretty. If I teach my children they do not have to make their beds, vacuum or dust, then I teach them it is okay to live in a dirty atmosphere. How long will it take once that begins for their minds and souls to become dirty as well? If I teach them to take anything they want without having to pay any kind of price for it, then how long will it be before they feel the world owes them the same? I remember when my oldest son was about five years old. We had been shopping that day and when we got home I unloaded all the groceries.

Have you ever noticed that the amount of groceries never seems as large as it should when compared to the bill? Anyway, after putting everything up that day, I noticed my little darling playing with a water grenade (a cutesy water balloon which is decorated in army colors so the manufacturer may charge poor unsuspecting mothers an exorbitant price). It was all right for him to be playing with it. What wasn't all right is that we didn't own any. I decided to do the motherly thing. "Where did you get that balloon?" I asked in my sternest mother voice. "I found it," he answered, suddenly discovering an intense interest in the pattern of the floor tile. "Did you find it in a package in the store?" I continued, firm in my investigation. "Yes," he said, bewildered. I'm sure I convinced him I was all knowing, the omniscient one. "You stole the balloon," I said. "And, now we're going to take it back to the store and you will tell the lady there what you did." We did go back to the store and we did tell the lady. She was great. She filled him with a fear I am sure he still holds in his heart. Responsibility. Maybe my kids will learn to spell one day.

Halloween candy rules upset parents

By AMANDA CROWELL
Thomson News Service

CHARLESTON, W.Va. - Move over candy corn. State education officials are hoping to replace Halloween's sugar rush with a nice, healthy snack.

But to some parents, the move is another case of bureaucracy run amok.

"I think its one of the stupidest, most communist things I've ever seen in my life," said Sherry Miller, whose 10-year-old son attends Kenna Elementary School in Jackson County.

"I have no problem with nutritional requirements for lunches," she added. "I know that's the only nutritional meal some kids get all day. I just think they stepped over the line."

Miller received a copy of a letter sent by the principal of her son's school to a parent who is coordinating classroom parties. The letter spelled out state nutritional guidelines for foods provided to students and noted that the rules apply to parties.

It's not clear how many parents have received such letters because enforcement of the rules is being left up to individual schools.

Miller's letter says that based on recent standards set by the state Department of Education, foods sent in for classroom parties must contain less than 39 percent sugar by weight and less than 8 grams of fat per ounce.

Hamburger's humble origins finally revealed

Athens is the third county seat of Henderson County. The previous ones were Buffalo and Centerville. Athens used to be called Alfred, named for the city's first postmaster, Alfred Mallard.

"There was a lady named Dulcette Averitt and she is credited with naming Athens," says Gayle Davis. "She named it after Athens, Greece, thinking one day Athens would be the cultural center of Henderson County."

One historical group in Athens says the city was named for Athens, Ala., where the Averitt family originated. Athens claims to be the home of the hamburger. "In 1904 at the St. Louis World's Fair, a gentlemen by the name of Fletcher Davis originated the hamburger," says Gayle. "In the late 1800's he had a cafe on the downtown square in Athens which served a sandwich consisting of ground meat, a thick slice of Bermuda onion and a mustard mixture that he put between two homemade buns."

"The citizens of Athens were so impressed with his sandwich they decided to send him to the World's Fair in St. Louis. It was there Fletcher Davis introduced his sandwich to the world and it became known as the hamburger." Athens celebrates the hamburger annually by staging the Uncle Fletcher Davis Memorial World Hamburger Cook-Off. During the first cook-off in 1984, a historical marker was unveiled on the site of Fletcher's cafe.

The event is divided into different categories. "There's one for backyard chefs, which are considered amateurs," says Gayle. "Then we have one for professional restaurateurs." The event, staged in the Spring, attracts a number of star athletes and well-known Texas personalities.

Athens is famous for another food item, the black-eyed pea. Henderson County produces tons of them every year in its sandy soil. The vegetable is on most menus in east Texas. Gayle says in 1971, Athens residents were trying to come up with some type of county-wide celebration.

"They looked around at what was most obvious and decided to have a black-eyed pea jamboree. There was a cannery here at the time which canned specifically black-eyed peas, so they helped get it started. It's been going strong ever since."

The cannery helped advertise the July event by sending cans of black-eyed peas to newsrooms across the country. The cannery's public relations department had been sending them to reporters in late December every year to remind them of the Texas tradition of eating black-eyed peas on New Year's day for good luck.

During the festival, a Miss Black-Eyed Pea is crowned and there are contests to determine who can shell the most peas within a given time, or who can pop the peas out of the shell the most distance. Judges from all over the country go to Athens to judge food prepared from what are called RECIPES.

Both the Black-Eyed Pea Jamboree and the Hamburger Cook-Off take a back seat to another event in Athens. The Texas Fiddler's Contest and Reunion, held the last Friday in May, is more than 50 years old and attracts people from all over the U.S. and beyond.

Henderson County historian Jana Shumate says during the 1960's Henderson County had more millionaires per capita than anywhere else in the USA. John Wayne, Willie Nelson and Waylon Jennings all had ranches on farms in Henderson County. Two of the county's more famous wealthy men were Sid Richardson and Clint Murchison.

Stock show season coming up quickly

Tomorrow is Halloween with all of its spooks and goblins.

Michael Kelsey
Extension Agent

Thanks-giving is just around the corner with turkey and dressing. I have even seen and heard of Christmas specials in surrounding stores.

Most folks have already planned for these holidays with travel arrangements and holiday menus. With all this pre-planning in mind, it makes me feel a little better about running ragged preparing for the major stock show season.

Now in all reality and fairness, preparing for the major stock show season is a never-ending job. It seems that the show isn't even over before we begin looking for next year's livestock projects. Purchasing the livestock is just the beginning. Facilities, feed, water not to mention hauling, grooming, and weighing are just a few of the arrangements and activities that have to be taken seriously.

This time of year is no exception to the rush. The major shows are beginning to mail out their catalogs and information. Cards and summary sheets have to be ordered. Hotel arrangements are being made along with plans to eat at a favorite restaurant. Plans for filling out cards and sheets are being made with a deadline of Dec. 10 for all major shows.

We have received several inquiries about the dates of the major stock shows. With seven major shows in Texas during the early spring months, it's easy to see why folks want to plan their schedules now.

Hang on folks, here we go!

- Odessa - Dec. 28 to 31.
 - Howard Co. Junior Livestock Show - Jan. 19 to 21.
 - Fort Worth - Jan. 30 to Feb. 4.
 - El Paso - Feb. 3 to 7.
 - San Antonio - Feb. 13 to 18.
 - Houston - Feb. 23 to March 4.
 - San Angelo - March 8 to 11.
- All 4-H members planning to attend any of these stock shows need to contact the Extension Office if you haven't already. We will have an entry week from Nov. 28 to Dec. 2 for you to come by the office and fill out the appropriate entry cards for each stock show.

Time to honor our veterans

The traditional Veterans Day ceremony will be at the Big Spring VA Medical Center 11 a.m. Nov. 11. Wagner Carr, former attorney general of Texas, will be guest speaker.

Local students are participating in an essay contest, "Speaking Out for America." Contest winners will be recognized at the ceremony. Prior to the ceremony, a flag ceremony and wreath laying will be held at the Vietnam Memorial at 10 a.m.

Pat Atkins
VA Medical Center

I encourage everyone to take some time this Veterans Day to join us at the Big Spring VA Medical Center, visit the Vietnam Memorial and honor the men and women who have dedicated their lives and those who still service this country.

Take a moment to say, "Thanks."

Women Veterans Recognition Week is Nov. 6-12. This observance is considered a complement to the traditional Veterans Day ceremony. We commend the significant contributions and sacrifices of women in the Armed Forces throughout U.S. history.

A special recognition day for women veterans will be held at the medical center on Nov. 29. The medical center's Women's Wellness Clinic invites women veterans to consider our clinic as their health care clinic.

We provide primary care to meet your health care needs. And we do this in an environment of concern and respect. If you have concerns or questions, we want to hear from you. Please call Phyllis Fuhs, chief of nursing service, at 915-264-4830. She is our Women's Veterans Coordinator.

Vaccination of high-risk persons is the most cost-effective method for reducing the frequency of complications of flu. On Oct. 21, approximately 264 Abilene-area veterans received their flu shots when Chief of Staff Darryl H. Powell, two staff nurses and one administrative staff member traveled to Abilene to ensure veterans residing in that area had the opportunity to receive the vaccine.

Taylor County Veterans Service Officer Dan Garica and his staff assisted in the coordination of this beneficial project. Flu vaccinations are available to veterans at the medical center Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Physical therapists and physical therapist assistants at the VA have celebrated October as National Physical Therapy Month.

The theme for the celebration, "Posture Yourself for Good Health," emphasizes the positive effect posture can have on overall health.

Vision Makers joins Chamber

By BARBARA MORRISON
Staff Writer

The world of conglomerates and corporations claim the days of the "Mom and Pop" organization belong to the past.

And, while at initial glance, it seems the business community is becoming one long chain, closer examination discovers a new type of link - that of the locally-owned, yet highly-diversified company.

Vision Makers, owned by Beverly and Roy Don Beauchamp, is an example of just such a company. "It is our struggle to stay competitive," Beverly said. In order to do that, we must diversify and offer extended and highly personal service.

Beverly feels it is a bonus to be locally-owned. "Both Roy Don and myself were born and raised in the Big Spring area so we know about the people here.

Our customers feel secure in the fact we are going to be here for them. It's a challenge we're up to."

The Beauchamps' company specializes in leisure living products. "This means we offer a whole variety of products for sale as well as service," Beverly explained. "We install pools, service them, sell hot tubs, service them, do yard care, sell large screen televisions and satellite systems."

Diversification and keeping up with change is especially evident in the area of communications. This month, the Beauchamps are introducing a new, smaller satellite system known as the RCA DSS digital system which is expected to revolutionize the industry.

"The smaller system offers more programming choices, an improved picture, clearer sound and all at a smaller price than the larger systems,"

Beverly said.

The new system provides the ability to receive a diverse array of over 150 channels of programming, claims superior laser disc quality video reception and crisp CD quality sound while including a system for flexibility and security.

"We're proud of our community and we show it by making our business here," Beverly said. "We're continually adding new products and always listen to suggestions from our customers."

So, with the pendulum often swinging in favor of the conglomerates, Vision Makers is only one of several companies offering a refreshing local alternative. "This month marks the one-year anniversary of our Gregg Street location," Beverly said. "In honor of that, we're joining the Chamber of Commerce. It's really exciting."

Clarence Hartfield, Ervin Paul, Beverly Beauchamp, Rena Blagrove and Roy Don Beauchamp prepare to cut a ribbon to celebrate Vision Makers joining the Chamber of Commerce. Not pictured but present at the ceremony: Delia Barraza, Debby Valverde, Joann Hyer.

Taylor set to go as new Moore board exec

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Carol Taylor is in position and ready to go as the new executive director of Moore Development for Big Spring Inc.

Taylor said Big Spring, by virtue of its sales tax, is in a position that many other communities can't enjoy where economic development is concerned.

"Without the sales tax, economic development would be at a stand-still. I think the smartest thing the city of Big Spring has done (in support of economic development) is support the sales tax," Taylor said.

There are several facets to economic development and Taylor said she is a "get to it" type of person who plans to have programs on-line within the next several months.

Taylor said it takes about two years to get a company into a community and she believes in keeping the community informed, but business has to be first.

She said, "I will see that the community is informed about what's going on, but without breaching the confidentiality of a client."

Negativity can be a factor in economic development according to Taylor, but it should not become an overriding factor. She said constructive criticism is a good way to look at something in an alternate way.

Taylor said, "When I run into negativity, I have to begin to reason why, try to find the negative agenda and address it."

Taylor added she is glad to be in Big Spring because it's a challenge. She had choices as to where she could go to work in the area of economic development, but the current slate of Moore Board directors and by-laws were a major factor in her choosing to accept the job of selling Big Spring.

"When I got back into economic development, I decided to look for a private board (such as Moore Development), a board with business people sitting on it, and a progressive area (sales tax)," Taylor said.

She pointed out that Big Spring is not the IBM type of area and she tries to do what she calls "focus targeting research" with computers as well as other resources.

Another concept Taylor mentioned as far as economic development in Big Spring is "value added businesses."

She said she understands that cotton is a major industry to this area and by also targeting those "value added businesses" for Big Spring, the industries that are currently working for the area will be further enhanced.

Taylor believes that using the transportation, distribution and other raw resources of Big Spring, business attraction will also be further enhanced.

Another criteria for business attraction, according to Taylor is "What is a unique fit to Big Spring?"

In her experience, Taylor said "partnership" (a word she plans to use quite often) is the key to Please see TAYLOR, page 13B

Crews work hard getting Little Caesars ready for its opening today. The specialty of the house will be the 'pizza, pizza' but sandwiches and salads are also available.

'Pizza, pizza,' Little Caesars opens today

By CARLTON JOHNSON

"Pizza, Pizza" is the slogan in the television commercials, but now Big Spring residents can see their pizza and eat it too. Little Caesars Pizza opens today at the corner of 22nd and Gregg streets.

This will be the fifth Little Caesars franchise (two in Midland and two in Odessa) for owners Eric and Rick Carr, who

Low price, high quality hallmark of Dollar General

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Dollar General Store officially opened its doors Saturday to provide Howard County residents with both low prices and high quality items.

"We offer health and beauty aids, both our own brand and major brands from medicines to shampoos to feminine items. We have household products, pots, pans, coffee pots, detergents, clothes, sheets, sewing notions and mini blinds.

"We saw a need for this type of store in Big Spring because there was only Wal-Mart. Our prices are competitive with theirs. Some of our higher priced items include stereo units and antique quilts and we even have $1 items such as Rave hair spray. We keep the prices at even dollar amounts so people keep the dollar image in mind," Store Director Bryan Blount explained.

Other items the store offers include men's, women's, children's and toddler's clothing and shoes along with a selection of baby items such as bibs and pacifiers.

There are selections of toys, electronics, telephones, candy, moved to Midland from San Antonio to get into the business after a friend in Victoria told them about the opportunity.

Eric Carr said, "Our niche is very narrow - value-oriented family meals."

Carr said he and his brother have been planning to locate in Big Spring for about a year now.

He added the Big Spring location will employ about 30 to 35 people (all local) and will be open from 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Carr said he and his brother enjoy the business that was founded in Detroit, Mi., by Michael Illitch in 1959.

Little Caesars is the largest carry-out chain in the U.S. and the second largest pizza company and is located in all 50 states and several foreign countries.

Carr said the specialty at Little Caesars will be Pizza, Pizza - two pizza for a specific price - but sandwiches and salads will also be included on the menu.

He said, "We use very high-quality ingredients and make our dough fresh daily. People think we use imitation cheese because our pizzas are so cheap, but we use 100 percent real cheese."

The Big Spring store will be a carry-out operation. Little Caesars does not deliver, but customers will call in their order and pick it up, usually in about 15 minutes.

food and juices. Paper products, lamps, rugs, bath and kitchen items, mattress pads, purses, belts, books, sweat and jogging suits, automotive products, pictures, frames, and placemats are also available.

The sheet sets are affordable at $8 for twin, $12 for full, $17 for queen and $20 for king and all sets include the top and bottom sheet as well as pillowcases. They even have waterbed products and sheets.

Fruit-of-the-Loom sweats are $5 each and come in a variety of colors like black, pink and navy.

Blount added, "we offer lower prices to compete with Wal-Mart. We are getting back to the basics at Dollar General by emphasizing customer satisfaction and service and even carry-out if needed. So many of the bigger chains are getting away from customer service but not here. We keep our prices as low as possible."

Dollar General, 611 North Lamesa Highway, is open Monday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and on Sundays from noon until 5 p.m. It is located in the old Don's Fiesta IGA grocery store building.

State changes rules on I-27 corridor study

A major battle has been occurring on the I-27 study for quite some time. The scope of the contest escalated when the people on I-35 started saying that it should not be done at all, but all the money should be spent on I-35 instead.

All of the heat generated caused the study to be modified and it was not going to actually select a route, but would provide information on all three proposed I-27 routes. Now, we are informed that the new plan is to select THREE EXISTING CORRIDORS coming south from Lubbock, and the most feasible route in each.

Phase one of this amended plan would take these three selected routes and perform cost/benefit analysis on each of them to determine if a full control of access freeway is feasible on any of the routes. If one of the existing roadways is deemed feasible for a full control access freeway, projects to Prepare plants for cold snaps

The first really cool snap of the season that came through our area earlier last week accompanied by rainfall reminded us that fall is finally here and relief from one of the hottest and driest summers on record may be over, at last.

It also reminds us that some things need to be attended to around our gardens and landscapes to prepare us for the winter months coming up.

One of the main points I want to remind gardeners of at this time of year is DON'T do any pruning of shrubs and trees at this time of year.

I realize things may be getting a little overgrown looking right now, but any pruning now may only result in stimulating your plants to put on new growth around cuts and set them up for severe winter injury when our first freeze comes.

Plants need to be hardening off now and getting ready for that period of dormancy most of them experience in winter months. Wait now until well after your plants have gone into any dormancy for any necessary major pruning.

If your plants suffered any storm damage resulting in broken limbs, etc., of course you little choice in making corrective pruning measures, but hold off pruning now unless such is the case.

Some weather information we get some calls on I want to share with you is the average high and low temps. for November and December in our area. These have ranged from 66 for a high to 39 as a low.

Our first freeze "normally" falls around Nov. 15, plus or minus a few days. The average rainfall for this period 1.69 in. with an average of 21 clear to partly cloudy days. An average 10 mph wind out of the South usually occurs.

A lot of bulbs can now begin to be planted for spring blooms. Be SURE your tulip bulbs have been exposed to your refrigerator vegetable box for at least four to six weeks before you plant them. Otherwise, you will be disappointed in the flowers they produce next spring. Set bulbs in a loose, well-drained soil in a sunny site, planted right-side up with its root side down.

Stop feeding roses in November. Excessive feeding at this time of year will result in excessive foliage growth that can be severely damaged or killed by freeze.

Be sure and start mulching roses now so the soil will remain moist longer, reducing chances of cold damaging the roots. Fortunately November has started out benefiting from our late October rainfall, but make sure your lawns are soaked on a regular basis this month to help prevent cold damage.

STRIPPER WELLS

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Fewer stripper oil wells were plugged and abandoned in Oklahoma last year than in the previous year, according to a survey from the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission.

While Oklahoma's declined slowed and the national decline increased, Texas actually had more stripper wells operating in 1993 than in 1992.

The commission said its survey showed 1,356 stripper wells were abandoned last year in Oklahoma compared to 1,501 in 1992.

BUSINESS HIGHLIGHTS

Prudential charged with securities fraud

NEW YORK (AP) — Federal prosecutors charged Prudential Securities with securities fraud, accusing the brokerage firm of misleading investors about risky limited partnerships it sold them in the 1980s.

But the brokerage managed to avert a criminal indictment. In return for Prudential's continued cooperation, the government said on Thursday it would not prosecute Prudential for at least three years.

Still, Prudential admitted criminal wrongdoing and agreed to deposit an additional $330 million into a special fund created to reimburse investors.

Investigations near end

WASHINGTON (AP) — At least two dozen investigations of wrongdoing in the municipal bond market are underway and charges could be brought in some of the cases by early next year, the Securities and Exchange Commission said.

Gary N. Sundik, the SEC's associate director of enforcement, described on Thursday a wide-ranging investigation examining whether sizeable political contributions played a role in how Wall Street firms win contracts for municipal bond underwriting and other financial advisory services.

Denver airport debacle investigated

DENVER (AP) — Ten independent investigations are looking into allegations of shoddy construction, influence peddling, misled bond dealers and mis-handled government funds at the new Denver International Airport.

Big Spring Specialty Clinic

Big Spring Specialty Clinic sees growth

The Big Spring Specialty Clinic, located at 616 Gregg Street opened in 1989 as a satellite office of Odessa Regional Hospital which opened in 1975, and its patient load has steadily increased over the years as the clinic's reputation has grown.

Specialties offered by the clinic include an ear, nose, and throat specialist, an OB/GYN, neurology and audiology.

The clinic serves clients on Medicare and Medicaid as well as private pay and insured clients. Many physicians do not serve Medicaid clients, but BSSC offers services to everyone.

According to Melinda McCann RNCC, because the clinic is a satellite of ORH, the hospital provides the clinic with all of the necessary supplies and support staff it needs. The clinic's philosophy is to provide area residents quality health care, the latest technology, and individualized service.

The initial mission of ORH providing quality care for women and their children today has evolved into a comprehensive service community hospital meeting the needs of the entire family.

With over 150 staff physicians encompassing all medical specialties, families will enjoy a diversified range of outstanding medical staff in an exceptional facility.

ORH is also a selected provider for many managed care plans.

On Oct. 11 a merger between two of the nation's health care companies, National Medical Enterprises, based in Santa Monica, Calif., and Dallas-based American Medical Holdings, Inc. was announced, a move that will more than double the number of NME's acute care hospitals and strengthen one of the nation's largest hospital companies.

One of AMI's holdings includes AMI Odessa Regional Hospital, but according to Steve Burke, a spokesman for ORH, things will stay pretty much the same for ORH and the Big Spring Specialty Clinic.

"The merger is definitely a reflection of the anticipated changes in health care should there be any type of future health care reform," Burke said.

He added that it's much better when people attempt to deal with their own problems, like health care, rather than wait for someone else to do it.

The merger is between NME and AMI is valued at more than $3.3 billion, including the assumption of $1.3 billion of AMI debt, and upon completion of NME's acquisition of AMI, the new company will have 84 acute care hospitals in 13 states and four foreign countries.

Taco Villa provides good food, support for school children

On June 6, 1968, the first Taco Villa opened at 501 E. 8th Street in Odessa, Texas, as a fast food style restaurant serving high quality Mexican food, and met with immediate acceptance and success.

The first building was a white spanish-style unit with archway windows much like the one in Big Spring. The original company logo still used in Big Spring is the little man on the donkey used in conjunction with the slogan, The Hunger Stop.

Under the direction of founder Bobby Cox, the company expanded to Amarillo, Lubbock, Big Spring and several other cities in Texas and New Mexico.

Local manager Joe Ossorio said, "The Taco Villa philosophy has not changed a great deal since the beginning. We still believe quality is far more important than quantity. That quality coupled with generous serving portions is the basis for our Bigger and Better slogan."

The first purchaser of a Taco Villa franchise was Don Williams of Plainview, who brought Taco Villa operations in Lubbock and Big Spring in 1989.

In 1986, a division of the W.R. Grace Company purchased all of the Taco Villa chain with the exception of those owned by Williams. The Grace Company operated the stores until 1992 when they sold to Taco Bell.

Taco Bell closed all of the Taco Villa stores causing a temporary hardship in areas like Lamesa where 25 people were left without employment.

Williams recently reopened the Lamesa Taco Villa saying, "The response in Lamesa has been great. There's no doubt they missed Taco Villa and are glad it's back. We are grateful to the people of Lamesa for their warm welcome and look forward to being a vital part of the community."

He added, "In most areas, Taco Bell is definitely our major competition. Given PepsiCo's large cash reserves and other major holdings such as Pizza Hut, Kentucky Fried Chicken and Frito-Lay, we sometimes feel like the folks at the Alamo must have when they faced Santa Anna. Actually we have some advantage though. We're closer to our operation and the people that count, our customers and employees."

Williams believes fast food Mexican restaurants have basically been divided by philosophical differences which have been translated into operational changes.

He said, "At Taco Villa, we believe our customers want good food, served fast and hot, in a clean environment at a price they can afford. And that's what we do."

"In addition, we strive to give our customers the very best value available. Scrimpy portions may make a little more profit now but it doesn't pay. As a native Texan, I feel people ought to get something bigger here. That's why we serve a product with more in it."

In talking about philosophical differences, Williams said, "I think John Martin, CEO of Taco Bell, defined it clearly in the popular book Re-engineering the Corporation. He is quoted on page 178, 'Today, our meet and beans are cooked outside the restaurant at central commissaries; all we need is hot water to reheat the ingredients for serving. We also K-Minus the preparation of our corn shells and cheese, as well as the dicing and chopping of lettuce, tomatoes, onions and olives.' I think this quote pinpoints the difference."

Williams added, "You know, my mom made every meal fresh over a gas stove and it was good. Somehow, I can't believe that boiling meat and dehydrated beans in a bag could possibly be as good. She sure knew not to freeze leftovers. It's too much live TV dinners in aluminum foil. Folks prefer the real thing."

TACO VILLA

Food is not the only thing on the minds of Williams and Ossorio.

Both men have expressed Taco Villa's support of the local school system and the youth of the area.

According to Ossorio, one of the most important things we can do is keep our kids in school and excited about education. One way Taco Villa helps is by offering incentives such as certificates and prizes for elementary students who maintain perfect attendance for a six week period.

He said, "The objective is not just to give away a bicycle and create some publicity but to encourage attendance. A child has to be in school to learn. If we can encourage students with incentives then everyone wins."

Ossorio also said that plans are being made to revive the Taco Villa Taco Tournament.

He said, "The one held a couple of years ago with the help of KBST radio and other local merchants was extremely successful. Almost $1,900 was raised for the band and football team. It's an event that's fun for the kids and everyone involved."

5 Reasons To Choose Taco Villa

1. Taco Villa cooks Texas grown, choice beef fresh in our kitchen every day. (Our meat is not cooked in a commissary, dumped into a plastic bag, shipped to Texas, boiled in the bag and served like regular meat. 'Cause Texans know the difference.)
 2. Taco Villa cooks pinto beans, grown in West Texas, fresh every morning. (Our beans are not dehydrated, stuck in a bag and reconstituted locally. Texans know their beans.)
 3. Taco Villa serves generous portions. They're bigger and better. (The proof is in the test. Is it less expensive if it's smaller. You can't fool a Texan when it comes to size and value.)
 4. Taco Villa's flavor is Texas born. Taco Villa's taste proves it. (You can fool some of the people, but Texans know real flavor.)
 5. Taco Villa was born in Odessa and our earnings stay in Texas. (We don't send a dime or more of every dollar to Irvine, California. California?)
- Texans know the difference. Of course, you don't have to be born in Texas to be a Texan. Being Texan is a state of mind. Only you know for sure.

Alcala's Tae Kwon Do, care for inner, outer self

At Alcala's Tae Kwon Do Studio the primary focus is to teach self-defense, physical fitness and self-confidence.

The business, 80 percent feet and 20 percent hands, was founded in Sweetwater in 1978 by fifth degree Master Instructor Stephen Alcala under the instruction of Grand Master Dr. Dong Ja Yang, ninth degree black belt.

Alcala's studio has grown over the years with strong classes of children and teens competing in state, nationals, and adult nationals competitions.

Son Stephen Alcala is an assistant instructor with a 3rd degree black belt and has travel all over the U.S. competing in Tae Know Do. He is a boxing trainer and also a kickboxer and wants to compete in the Olympics someday.

He said, "I know what it takes to be a champion; determination, devotion, training and fitness, and I can give people first hand training from the experience and knowledge I have."

According to Alcala, the advantage their business offers customers is that customers can learn what they want to learn.

He said, "We shoe modern day self-defense as well as step-by-step techniques. We give our customers the opportunity to excel as far as they wish to go."

"Our philosophy is to be honest and let people judge for themselves as to whether or not my teaching techniques are worthwhile. I show people what they want me to show them, then what is required and a little more so they can understand."

Classes began in Big Spring two months ago and people are encouraged to stop in to take a look for themselves and receive a free one week trial lesson.

Hospice celebrates 10 years of caring Howard College puts new motto into action

Hospice of the Southwest Inc., celebrated its 10th anniversary of caring for West Texans with a life-limiting illness, in August, with the opening of its Big Spring office at 3210 E. 11th Place.

From this new office a team of volunteers and professionals comprised of a physician, a nurse, a chaplain, a social worker, patient volunteers and other consultants take care of patients in their home or nursing home.

Hospice of the Southwest, Inc., a non-profit organization which provides services to people with a life-limiting illness, started in 1984 as an all-volunteer organization by the Junior League of Odessa and now serves 19 counties in West Texas, a geographic area of over 40,000 square miles.

Since 1992, 137 patients and their families have received quality care through physical, emotional and spiritual support from this organization. Hospice currently serves 32 patients in Howard County.

By utilizing the services of local businesses, the Hospice care team enables patients to carry on an alert, pain-free life and manage other symptoms so that their last months are spent with dignity and quality of life at their home or nursing home.

The hospice concept is unique in the world of health care and critical to communities facing aging populations. Costs are covered by Medicare, Medicaid, private insurance and community support through fundraising, memorials, donations and grants. Families are never billed for hospice care.

Volunteers are the base of a hospice program. They provide the foundation and continue to be the hallmark of hospice care serving on hospice boards, providing care to patients and families, raising funds, educating others in the community and administering hospice programs. A training class for Hospice of the Southwest, Inc., volunteers will begin in Big Spring on Nov. 1.

For more information call 263-4673.

Howard College recently adopted a new motto "Education...for learning, for earning, for life!" and their primary focus is to provide dynamic centers of learning, to provide service to the taxing district and designated service areas and to promote and support economic development.

On Nov. 17, 1945, voters established the college district and classes began September 1946. Dr. P.W. Malone is a charter member on the board.

This fall's enrollment for all campuses is 2,359 and includes Big Spring, San Angelo, SWCID, Lamesa, Kerrville, Fredericksburg, Snyder and the Federal Correction Institute.

The college offers academic transfer programs, vocational/technical programs, continuing education classes, adult basic education classes and special services. The Harold Davis Fitness Center is also an attraction opened to the community.

There are courses offered in accounting, agriculture, arts, automotive body repair and technology, biology, business, chemistry, child care, commu-

Beltone - helping to take care of your ears

For millions of people suffering from a hearing loss - especially those who won't admit they can't hear - casual conversations can often lead to hurt feelings and misunderstandings.

More than 26 million people in the U.S. and Canada suffer from hearing loss. And, contrary to the commonly known myths, hearing loss is not restricted to the elderly. For most people, hearing begins deteriorating around age 30 and gets progressively worse with each passing decade.

Exposure to noises like gun shots or factory machinery, injury, and aging are the most common causes of hearing loss. High cholesterol diets, otosclerosis (hardening of middle ear bones), tumors, strokes, other illnesses, and some prescription medications can also contribute to hearing loss.

Josh Villaseñor, manager of the Big Spring Beltone office, said, "Beltone now offers many makes and models of hearing aids including a new "Hidden Hearing Aid," - the Beltone Invisa which is almost completely hidden in the ear canal."

He adds that it has no volume control, and with it, one does not have the common problems with wind noise or with hearing aid whistling on the telephone.

Diagnosis of hearing loss is critical. The type and cause of hearing loss will determine the best way to treat the problem. Hearing instrument specialists and audiologists are licensed to test for hearing loss and to fit hearing aids. In some instances, an otologist or otolaryngologist (ear, nose and throat doctor) can perform surgery on the ear or prescribe medications.

Only a good attitude, perseverance and close, regular contact with their hearing instrument specialist can insure the best probability of success. For Beltone wearers, these service appointments are Free for the life of their hearing instruments.

For a free hearing evaluation or a demonstration of the new "Hidden Hearing Aid," call Beltone in Big Spring at 263-6181.

Beltone is located at 106 W. Marcy Dr., across from the new Wal-Mart Supercenter.

Better hearing Incredibly just got smaller

Beltone has developed an amazing new hearing aid called Invisa (pronounced In-VEE-za). Now all the joy of better hearing comes in the tiniest aid Beltone makes.

We call Invisa our "hidden hearing aid" because its incredibly small size allows it to hide deeply, yet comfortably inside your ear canal. Out of sight and out of mind.

Of course, the Invisa hearing aid is not appropriate for everyone. The benefits of hearing aids vary by type and degree of hearing loss, noise environment, accuracy of hearing evaluation and proper fit. That's why we feel that a personal evaluation is necessary to determine if the Invisa is right for you.

Johansen's there for your gardening needs

It began 47 years ago when Johnnie Johansen founded Johansen Landscape & Nursery, but Carl and Terri Johansen now own and manage the business that they say is customer oriented.

Terri Johansen said, "We are focused on helping Big Spring grow and be a 'diamond shining in West Texas.' We do this by exemplifying the 'best job we can do' philosophy."

Besides being a retail nursery, Johansen's is also involved in landscaping, lawn irrigation, grooming blooming plants, and they only offer plants, trees, shrubs, grass and flowers that will grow in this area.

Over the years, Johansen's has grown right along with Big Spring. Johansen said, "We have gone from one small greenhouse to growing in eight greenhouses. We produce over 50,000 blooming plants a year, including a large spring crop, a fall crop, and more than 3,000 poinsettias for Christmas."

She also said, "We are here to serve our customer's needs. We provide only top quality. The blooming plant we grow are the best and we also pride ourselves on having the most knowledge of anyone around about plants and all aspects of landscaping so we can answer our customer's questions so they can have the best results for their efforts." Johansen's also offers workshops on various aspects of plants, landscaping, and the care of trees, shrubs and lawns.

success as much as anything else.

That partnership includes her board and its committees and the resources of the community in which they serve.

Taylor says the word "use" when talking about people and resources is not quite adequate because the members of the board and its committees and resources are vital elements in the economic development process including business development, expansion and retention.

She said, "I have been very successful in business retention. I like to get people involved, but when it comes right down to it, it has to be me and my staff that makes the call."

Taylor has a philosophy that she believes will fit right in with the current directors. She said, "I will deviate from it time to time, but overall it works and is something I can add to if necessary."

Her philosophy of attracting new business includes the following several points:

- Implement comprehensive existing industry assistance programs.
- Contacting plant/office managers frequently to identify problems, and working aggressively to solve them should be top priority.

Once a good, supportive relationship has been established, that local CEO or plant/office manager could be Big Spring's best salesperson during prospect visits.

Visiting prospects realize that, if they locate in Big Spring, they won't be forgotten.

•Utilize your business retention and expansion program to glean leads from company CEO's or plant/office managers for your marketing efforts. This is just one reason showing the importance of a good retention and expansion program.

•Learn everything you can about what the competition can offer to ensure that you are being fairly compared to the other locations. Sometimes seemingly good advantages on the surface are not great at all but contain hidden disadvantages. When this occurs, the company should be informed before making a location decision.

•Carefully consider the costs versus the benefits of working on a particular project. In bidding wars between communities, you have to know when to concede. Devote no more effort toward it and allocate those resources toward projects that have a better chance of success.

Burns

accomplish this task will be prioritized in Phase two.

If none of the routes are deemed currently feasible for freeway status, then the three selected routes will be analyzed to determine what projects are needed along with their associated costs. Based on the costs/benefits associated with the needed improvements, a single route will be recommended as a preferred route and its projects prioritized based on these costs.

Clear as mud, right? The important things to note are, first, there is still no mention of interstate highway. Both state and federal officials have always maintained that there would be no more interstate highway, and the best we could expect would be "controlled access." However, that would mean it would qualify for 65 miles per hour speed limit.

The second thing to note is the word EXISTING HIGHWAY. At the present time, the route carrying the heaviest traffic is Highway 87.

If anybody qualifies under these guidelines, it should be us. The other two routes depend on building new road in order to make the route work, not utilizing existing highway. This seems to rule that out.

Quite frankly, it is doubtful that any of the three routes currently carry enough traffic to qualify. The chamber executives from the affected communities met at a regional meeting, and the consensus of opinion was that for the next few years we have the political muscle in West Texas to do the needed upgrading of all three roads if no new roads or connections are to be built. But we cannot guarantee that muscle will last beyond the next two to four years, so the time is ripe for doing what we can.

Under these circumstances, it would also seem to make sense to present a united front and work to cause the needed improvements in all three areas. This is under discussion now. I'll keep you informed as this develops.

Cold

This is especially true if temperatures are predicted to go below the mid-20's, but do NOT water plants when temperatures are below freezing as more damage can occur than problems that might be solved by doing so.

Take time to look over your landscapes and gardens and determine what changes need to be made by spring.

Remember what varieties of vegetables that did not perform well for you this past season and check into using more adaptable ones for our climate next year.

Now is a great time to add new trees to your landscapes, but just because they do not have leaves on them this winter does not mean that they are not doing anything underground! Make sure newly planted trees and shrubs and those planted within the past two years are well-watered this winter and not suffer drought stress.

Remember that a good root system is established first by a tree or shrub before it does much top growth development. It normally takes about two years for young trees to become well established in our area, so do not neglect them during this period of time.

LOCAL BUYER'S BROKER AN AGENT OF CHANGE

The real estate industry has been forced to focus on the impact of consumerism by responding with Agency Disclosure and Information forms, Property Condition Addenda to the contract forms, Mediation Agreements...all in response to the growing awareness that the real estate buyer is an important player in the sales transaction. Traditional real estate agents work for the seller as listing agents or as subagents. Ellen Phillips Real Estate brings a whole new concept to Big Spring residents who are looking to buy a home and who want equal representation in the transaction. Big Spring's first "Exclusive Buyer Agency" real estate company takes no listings and as such has no inventory it is compelled to quickly move. Buyer clients are shown properties they want, not the agent's own personal listing inventory or the listing broker's "in-house" inventory. Buyers clients are "qualified" before they leave the office by a sophisticated computer software application which can tell buyers the price range for which they will be able to get a loan, all at the touch of a finger. Phillips can then access the MLS computer and download several properties without the buyer ever having to leave the office! After previewing the properties which the buyers select, offers to purchase are written by another sophisticated computer application which automatically computes the math portions of the contract form and then prints the entire contract and appropriate addenda with a laser jet printer. "I always knew that when I opened an office of my own, it would be fully equipped with the most modern computer technology and the finest software available and I have spared no expense to provide my clients the best service available." The initial buyer counseling session and the financial qualification portion lasts one to two hours. These and many other services are offered to the buyer at no extra charge. "The buyer brings the funds to the closing table! Why should buyers be denied equal representation in a real estate deal? Buyers want, and are demanding, the same access to representation that sellers have always enjoyed." Phillips will aggressively negotiate a better price and terms for her clients than are offered by traditional agents who, by law, work for the seller as an Agent or Subagent, and are thus motivated to get the best possible price for the seller! "With the opportunity to hire a Broker to represent their interests, why should buyers let the seller's agents do their negotiating?" The exclusive buyer agency is sweeping all across the country...call Ellen Phillips Real Estate when you need to buy! Middle child is family's magic link

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have three daughters, 14, 11 and 8 years old. The eldest is the kind of daughter every parent prays for.

like her older sister. She has an outgoing personality and is pretty as a picture, with hair that looks like spun gold.

But our middle child is very plain, and it's obvious that she will never be as pretty as either of her sisters.

Many years ago, long before I was even married, you published a piece about the middle child. I remembered it because I was a middle child, with not much going for me.

I hope you can find it. It comforted me and made me feel that I was special. — A MOTHER

NOW TO MY MIDDLE CHILD

My darling, I had presupposed in my dreams Your hair would be a brightly polished crown.

Like sunlight spun to gold on mountain streams, Yet soft, beneath my hands, as an old woman's.

Sometimes I fancied you with raven hair, But when you came, above the nursing gown

There were no tresses black or flaxen-fair Your pixie face was fringed with tufts of brown.

You are our middle love, my brown-haired child. Not first or last, encircled in my arms.

But child of many moods, like a bracelet styled Enchantingly of most delightful charms.

And so, my darling, never, You are less loved; you are our magic link.

Quality medical care Malone and Hogan's focus

Malone and Hogan Clinic and Lubbock Methodist Hospital System say their primary business focus is to provide the highest level of quality medical care to the people of Big Spring and the surrounding area.

This past year, the clinic has been involved in one of the most exciting changes yet during its last 56 years—a promising new alliance with Lubbock Methodist Hospital System.

"Malone and Hogan Clinic has had a long tradition of providing dependable, responsible health care. Our new relationship is another positive step in the evolution of the clinic which ensures that it will continue to provide the high quality of services that this community has learned to depend on," says Dr. Robert Hayes.

The clinic provides treatment in 11 medical specialties with some of the finest physicians in West Texas and offers an array of treatment capabilities and services not usually found in a multi-specialty clinic of its size.

Other services provided by the clinic include:

•Patient coordinator - is the person who one can turn to when your own physician may be fully booked. Their job is to guarantee an appointment for everyone somewhere in the clinic.

•Physical therapy - personnel use ultrasound, electrical stimulation, heat and machines to achieve improvement.

•Pharmacy - convenient prescription service is offered by Leonard's Clinic Pharmacy and free city delivery is available.

•Cardiac Rehab Center - 12 week exercise program designed for patients recovering from recent heart attacks, cardiac surgery, angina or angioplasty.

•EKG Department - not only does the department do EKG's but heart stress testing, monitoring the heart's activity over a 24 hour period and pulmonary function with measures air volume of the lungs.

•Texas Surgery - the center hosts a wide variety of physicians and dentists doing outpatient surgery.

•West Texas Dialysis Center - an eight station outpatient hemodialysis center providing dialysis services to patients with severe kidney disease or endstage renal disease.

A stable force for the last half century, the clinic provides primary care, specialty care and referral services for Big Spring as well as Howard County and the surrounding areas.

The clinic has physicians who specialize in cardiology and internal medicine, family practice, OB/GYN, general and vascular surgery, internal medicine, orthopedics, pediatrics, urology, allergies, facial and plastic surgery, otolaryngology and psychology.

Several new services have been added this year including a cardiac diagnostic lab and lithotripsy, a non-surgical treatment for kidney stones. In addition, the hospital system is funding the current construction of the clinic for a permanent cardiac catheterization lab which will aid in the detection and treatment of heart and vascular disease.

Recruitment efforts have also been viable as two new physicians have joined the team. Dr. Deborah R. Hajovsky, specializing in obstetrics and gynecology, provides comprehensive medical care for women including prenatal, delivery and postpartum care.

She also provides complete gynecologic care including family planning, same day surgery, laparoscopic surgery and colposcopy.

Dr. Pilar Bescos is a family practice physician. She provides total health care for the individual and the family ranging from newborns to the geriatric population. Recruitment for additional physicians is currently underway.

In addition, the Lubbock Methodist affiliation is good news for the entire community and will benefit from ties to the largest hospital system in the state with an established reputation for premier health care.

Some history of the clinic: in 1938, Dr. P.W. Malone and Dr. John E. Hogan purchased the Bivings and Barcus Hospital in Big Spring. They expanded it from nine to fifteen beds in 1940 and added two physician specialists in 1942.

Significant population growth in the area resulted in a major expansion in 1945, boosting patient capacity to 75 beds and adding new surgical suites.

In 1951, the doctors established the Malone and Hogan Hospital Foundation which took over operation of the hospital. In 1961, there was a complete organizational separation of the hospital and clinic.

The clinic had grown to 14 physicians by this time. This necessitated an expansion to include additional office space and treatment rooms. Growth continued to out pace available facilities so in 1963 plans were increased for a three story, 28,000 square foot clinic building capable of housing 20 physicians. This proved inadequate to meet the growth over the next 10 years and in 1975, the present 59,000 square foot structure was erected.

Today, the clinic sees over 60,000 patients annually. The three story facility has 70 patient rooms and the alliance with Lubbock Methodist makes the clinic one of the most sophisticated facilities of its kind in the southwest.
