The Balkan Princess, Wichita Theater. Wednesday Oct. 30

All the top notes in opera are not confined within the four walls of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York nor the Auditorium in Chicago. Miss Julia Gifford made it emphatically clear that tunes in light opera may sail as high as anything belonging to its more dignified and classical sister in the world of music. And it is said Miss Gifford will liberate a few exceedingly lofty trills at the Wichita Theatre on October 30th.

She will appear in the title role of "The Balkan Princess," the gaily caparisoned musical comedy in which as the Princess Stephanie of Balaria, she right royally reigned the realm of song for a season extending over six months in New York at the Herald Square and Casino theatres, setting a new high-water mark for attractions of this class in the Metropolitan.

But it has not been any one particular element that has enabled "The Balkan Princess" to repeat in New York the sweeping success it recorded at the Gaiety in London, where it ran for one entire year. It has a plot, clean, clear and logical. A romantic story of sufficient dramatic strength to stand on its own feet as a novel, which has been widely published in serial form. It is a skilful play, believable and charming. Nor is the score confined to soaring arias for the prima donna. There are many novel and diversified numbers. One song which does not call for a principal is swung by eight chorus girls and a like number of chorus men. It is called "Arms and the Man" and is one of the prettiest things ever seen in opera. And the piece is endowed with a spirit of comedy that moves with zest. Several reviewers have ation, and we will all of us agree that the law ought also to regulate what organized labor can do with its organization. But that is another story. At present there is no legal right to organize.—Fall River, Sept. 26.

Minimum Wage.
It is very likely, I take it for granted, that if a minimum wage were established by law the great majority of employers would take occasion to bring their wage scale as nearly as might be down to the level of that minimum, and it would be very awkward for the workingman to resist that process successful, because it would be dangerous to strike against the authority of the federal government.—Buffalo, Labor Day.

Workmen's Compensation.
Workmen are marshalled in great numbers for the performance of a multitude of particular tasks under a common discipline. They generally use dangerous and powerful machinery, over whose repair and renewal they have no control. New rules must be devised with regard to their obligations and their rights, their responsibilities to their employers and their responsibilities to one another. New rules must be devised for their protection, for their compensation when injured, for their support when disabled.

We call these questions of employers' liability, questions of workmen's compensation, but those terms do not suggest quite the whole matter. There is something very new and very big and very complex about these new relations of capital and labor. A new economic society has sprung up, and we must effect a new set of adjustments. We must not pit power against weakness. The employer is generally in our day, as I have said, not an individual, but a powerful group of individuals, and yet the workingman is still, under our existing law, an individual when dealing with his employer. In case of accident, for example, or of loss of life or of illness, as well as in every contractual relationship. We must have a workingman's compensation act, which will not put upon him the burden of fighting powerful composite employers to obtain his rights, but which will give him his rights without suit, directly, and without contest by automatic operation of law, as if of a law of insurance.—Message to New Jersey Legislature in 1911.

Julia Gifford, noted English prima donna, who will be seen here in her original role of The Balkan Princess, Wichita Theatre, Wednesday, Oct. 30.

referred to it as possessing sufficient comedy to supply three or four musical successes. There are many graceful dances, some that move with untamed vim. One of the best reviews ever written of "The Balkan Princess" referred to it as a "Musical Prisoner of Zenda." The comic and subject immediately suggest the most picturesque costumes and scenic environment and the management has invested it unsparingly. The second act, in the Bohemian restaurant, opens with a smash and a whirl with the chorus, with stage full of action and spontaneous gaiety, a riot of color, which is at the same time harmonious and unusually artistic. Here is introduced much of the merry jest, the lilting song and the graceful dance that has made this opera famous on two continents.

Heading the cast is Julia Gifford, a big London favorite and who is said to possess a bird-like voice. In one of her numbers she sings a note known to musicians as "high E" which is two notes higher than most of our grand opera stars can sing. Harry Lewellyn, the English comedian, will be seen in his original part, that of Henri, the waiter. Wm. Meyer will also be seen in his original part of Capt. Radomir. The baritone role will be sung by N. E. Dano, late of the grand opera at Covent Garden, London. The company is unusually large and travels in a special train consisting of three 60 feet baggage cars, two coaches and a dining car. The advance sale of seats opens Monday at Foosehag & Lynch Drug Store.

The offering at the Wichita Theatre on October 30th of "The Balkan Princess" will no doubt prove to be one of the real musical treats of the season. "The Balkan Princess" is an English importation, having had one year's run at the Prince of Wales and Gaiety Theatres in London prior to its New York production. The presenting company numbers about seventy-five, and aside from its musical charm, "The Balkan Princess" is said to be gaily caparisoned and to contain sufficient comedy for half a dozen ordinary musical shows. There is only one company presenting the piece, therefore most of the original members will be seen here, including Julia Gifford, Harry Lewellyn, Adelaide Harland, Wallace Beery, Vera Rossmore, N. E. Dano, Dorothy Ellis, Harry Lyons, Wm. Meyer, Geo. Poulney, Fred Harnden and Lew Birch. The Balkanese chorus is said to include some stunning beauties, notwithstanding that they were selected principally for their voices.

Governor Wilson on Labor

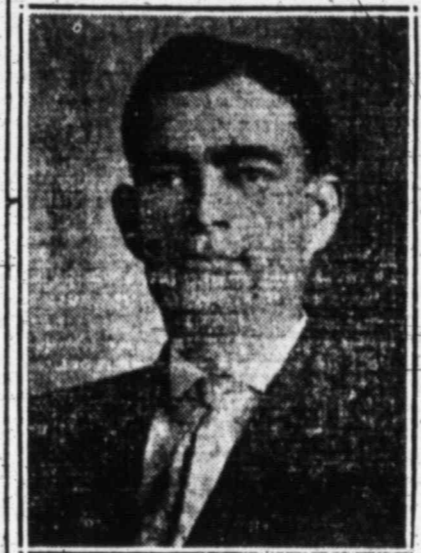

While we are followers of Jefferson, there is one principle of Jefferson's which can no longer obtain in the practical politics of America. You know it was Jefferson who said that the best government is that which does as little governing as possible. * * * But that time is passed. America is not now and cannot in the future be a place for unrestricted individual enterprise. It is true that we have come upon an age of great co-operative industry. It is true that we must act absolutely upon that principle.

The treatment of labor by the great corporations is not what it was in Jefferson's time. Who in this great audience knows his employer? When bodies of men employ bodies of men it ceases to be a private relationship. So that when a court—a court in my own state—held that workmen could not peacefully dissuade other workmen from taking employment and based the decision upon the analogy of domestic servants they simply showed that their minds and understandings were lingering in an age which had passed away two or three generations ago. This dealing of great bodies of men with other bodies of men is a matter of public scrutiny and should be a matter of public regulation.—Scranton, Sept. 23.

Right to Organize.
You don't have to defend all the things organized labor has done. Organized labor has been unwise in some things, but the point is this—that the right of organization on the part of labor is not recognized even by the laws of the United States. * * * If capital can organize, then it should to every standard of justice that I have ever heard of that anybody else who has a legitimate object may organize. And there ought to be an absolute equality in regard to that right.
Of course the law must regulate what capital can do with its organiza-

WE NEED MORE RAILROADS IN TEXAS

Denison, Texas, Oct. 24.—M. B. Davis, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of this city, in a recent address on the subject of factory location said: "In order to secure factories and manufacturing plants a city must first have transportation facilities, adequate labor and raw material. The most important of course, is the raw material, but even with this, a factory will not prosper unless it has a ready market for its output. It is absolutely necessary that facilities be close at hand to afford a wide distribution of manufactured products and in no other way except with steam or interurban lines can this advantage be secured. You can search the whole country over and you will not find one prosperous manufacturing center that is not located on several railroad lines or large waterways. We need more railroads in Texas and until such a time as we secure them, manufacturing will continue to follow agriculture and stock raising."

DRUNK ON TRACK HE THREW HAT AT TRAIN.

Lucy, La., Oct. 22.—Crazed by drink, Bernard Lee, a discharged brick operator at Edgard station, walked down the railroad tracks to a point within half a mile of the station during the night, when he encountered a west bound freight train. The engineer blew the whistle, but Lee did not hear the warning and picking up a large rock threw it at the headlight of the approaching engine, smashing the reflector and extinguishing the light.

The engineer had applied the brakes, but the momentum was such that the locomotive struck the unfortunate man, knocking him down. He was cut over the eyes, scratched about the body and his clothes torn to shreds. He was picked up unconscious by the train crew and brought to Edgard station, where Mr. Guidry, the agent, gave him needed attention until a doctor could be secured. Later when Lee recovered consciousness, he was sent to Marshall, Texas, to the Texas & Pacific hospital. Lee hails from Cleburne, Texas and is about 30 years of age.
