SHERMAN FUNERAL ON SATURDAY

VICE-PRESIDENT WILL BE BURIED FROM DUTCH REFORM CHURCH AT UTICA

FLAGS AT HALF MAST

Taft Will Issue Proclamation Closing Government, Consular and Embassy Buildings.

By Associated Press. Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—The President early today took up preparations for honoring the dead vice-president. Copies of the proclamation issued by President McKinley at the death of Vice-President Hobart were looked up in the files and preparations made to issue a similar proclamation which will close the government departments and consular and embassy buildings throughout the world and half mast the flag on public buildings, at army posts and on the navy's ships.

Funeral Saturday Afternoon. By Associated Press. Utica, N. Y., Oct. 31.—Utica with the nation today mourns the death of Vice President James S. Sherman, who died at 9:42 last night of Bright's disease complicated with heart trouble.

The funeral will take place Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Dutch Reform church of which Mr. Sherman was a member. In addition to the public funeral it is possible there will be private services at the Sherman home early Saturday for the benefit of the family exclusively. The wish for such a course has been expressed by some members of the household.

The funeral sermon will be preached by Rev. Dr. Lewis H. Holden, who was Mr. Sherman's pastor. The president, cabinet and many congressmen are expected to attend. Among the telegrams of condolence received by Mrs. Sherman were many from senators and congressmen. Speaker Champ Clark of the House wired:

"You have my heartfelt sympathy in your great sorrow. May God bless you and yours."

James Schoolcraft Sherman, who was elected vice president of the United States in 1908, on the ticket headed by William H. Taft, was born in Utica, N. Y., October 24, 1855. He was the son of Gen. Richard Updike Sherman and Mary Frances Sherman. Gen. Sherman was a prominent citizen of Utica, was active in military affairs and held several important state positions. Mr. Sherman's mother came of an old Vermont family.

Mr. Sherman attended the public schools in Utica and Whitestown Seminary. Afterward he entered Hamilton College, from which he graduated in 1878. When he took up the study of law and was admitted to the bar of New York State in 1880. He had excelled as an orator during his college days and was often called upon to deliver addresses on public occasions. It was as an orator that he finally drifted into politics. He entered the law firm of Cookingham & Gilson, which after a few months became Cookingham & Sherman.

The first political office Mr. Sherman ever held was that of mayor of Utica. He was elected to that office in 1884, when he was but twenty-nine years old, having defeated Lewis H. Shattuck by a majority of 1255 votes, the largest ever given a mayoralty candidate in Utica up to that time. Mr. Sherman was the youngest mayor in the history of the city.

After the expiration of his term of office as mayor Mr. Sherman was elected to Congress and, with the exception of one term, 1890 to 1892 when he was one of the many victims of the Democratic landslide, he served in the House continuously from 1887 to the time when he assumed the office of vice president. He had been re-elected to the 60th Congress from the 27th New York district and resigned his position only a short time before the fourth of March.

During his time in Congress Mr. Sherman served on many important committees. He was a delegate to the Republican National convention of 1892, and chairman of the New York Republican state convention in 1895 and again in 1900. He had an excellent training in the parliamentary practice and was often called upon temporarily to fill the Speaker's chair. He was an important factor in all legislative matters in the lower branch of Congress, and during his last term was chairman of the committee on Indian affairs and a member of the committee on rules and of the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. He was one of the "Big Five" in the House and was considered one of the most influential members. He was ever a staunch supporter of Speaker Cannon.

CLOWN ARRESTED FOR CHICAGO MURDER

Man and Woman Wanted in Connection With Death of Baltimore Woman Caught at Lima, O.

By Associated Press. Chicago, Oct. 31.—Chicago police learned today that Charles Conway, the clown wanted in connection with the murder of Miss Sofia G. Singer of Baltimore has been arrested in Lima, Ohio. A second telegram said the woman known as Mrs. Conway, Beatrice Riall, and several other names, also had been arrested.

Arrested at a Hotel.

By Associated Press. Lima, O., Oct. 31.—The arrests took place at the Cadillac Hotel, where the Conways were stopping. "I admit that I am the man the police are looking for," Conway said, "but I deny I have any knowledge of the crime in which connection they want me."

TURKISH TROOPS IN UTTER ROUT

OTTOMAN FORCES ARE PUT TO FLIGHT BY IRRESISTIBLE ONSLAUGHTER OF BULGARIANS

DEFEAT IS COMPLETE

Bulgars Victors in Most Important Engagement of the War

French Squadron to Syrian Coast. Special to the Times. Paris, Oct. 31.—In view of the dangers threatening foreigners in Turkey, the second division of the French flying squadron has been ordered from Toulon to the Syrian coast. England also has dispatched a battleship to protect lives.

Turks Fled in Disorder. Sofia, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarians have completely routed the main Turkish army under Hasim Pasha. The Turks fled in disorder leaving many killed and wounded on the field.

The battle is regarded as the most important since the war began, continuing three entire days. The fighting line reached from Rile-Borjatz east to the sea. The Ottoman forces retreated twenty miles south of the position which they were driven.

Adrianople Hemmed In. London, Oct. 31.—The Bulgarian army has completely defeated a Turkish force estimated at 200,000 at Lule Burgas after three days' terrible fighting. The Bulgarian cavalry is pursuing the retreating Turks.

The Turkish army retreated toward Celgeha. Adrianople is completely hemmed in by Bulgarians.

Intervention Believed Certain. London, Oct. 31.—Whatever the result of the battle now in progress between the Turks and Bulgarians its conclusion probably will give occasion for intervention of the powers.

It is asserted that the foreign ministers of the powers have reached a tentative agreement in this matter and in any event the entry of Bulgarian troops into Constantinople will not be permitted by the powers. Even Russia is said to be opposed to such a condition.

TRAGEDY BROUGHT END TO GLEEFUL GAME

By Associated Press. Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 21.—The laughs and shouts of a boy's game of "burglar" at the home of J. R. Johnson, a railroad employe, was suddenly hushed today when his son, Clifford, aged fourteen, killed his brother, Pearson, aged twelve. In the game the father's shotgun was appropriated. Make believe burglar Clifford did not know it was loaded. The top of the younger boy's head was blown off by the charge. Clifford Johnson was carried to the police station, but later was turned over to his father.

Four members of the "Balkan Princess" company which played at the Wichita Theatre last night, missed the 6 o'clock Katy train this morning which the rest of the actors took for Oklahoma City, where the opera will be presented tonight. The members who were left included Harry Llewellyn, who had the part of "Henri," Vera Rossmore who was "Sofia" and two members of the male chorus.

The party immediately chartered an automobile and set out in the mud for Ringgold, where they will try to catch the Rock Island train in time to fill their engagement last night. The roads were very heavy from last night's rain and it is not known what luck they had in catching their train.

COLD WEATHER IS ON THE WAY

FREEZING TEMPERATURE FORECAST IN NORTHWEST TEXAS FRIDAY MORNING

GENERAL RAIN FALLS

Precipitation Here Amounted to 1.47 Inches—Some Damage Done to Cotton

By Associated Press. Amarillo, Texas, Oct. 31.—Green leaves coated with snow was the unusual sight furnished in the Panhandle today by the weather. The snow fell last night.

Following heavy rains throughout Northwest Texas and Southwest Oklahoma yesterday afternoon and last night, freezing weather is predicted for tomorrow by a forecast received by the Denver offices this morning. There was a decided drop in temperature this morning.

The rain extended from the Panhandle to Fort Worth on the Denver, being about as heavy all along the line as it was in this city; also, rain fell at all points on the Wichita Valley, Wichita Falls & Southern and Wichita Falls & Northwestern. Reports received indicate that it was general throughout North and West Texas and the State of Oklahoma.

Locally, 1.47 inches fell, beginning with light showers early yesterday and continuing intermittently until early this morning. Heavy showers were falling throughout the night and the earth was thoroughly soaked this morning, with water standing in the gutters and in the low parts of the city. Some yards and basements were flooded, but there was comparatively little damage from that source.

Reports at the railroad offices indicate that it was one of the most general rains of the year, covering thousands of square miles of territory. It comes at a time when it is not needed by either wheat or cotton, and it probably caused some damage to the latter crop. There was already a good season for wheat, but the prospect of that crop will be considerably improved, nevertheless.

The rain brings the total for October to more than four inches, there being over two inches recorded early this month.

NEW ORPHANAGE AS A MEMORIAL

MOVEMENT STARTED TO REPLACE BUILDING IN WHICH BRAVE NUNS DIED

BODIES ARE RECOVERED

Sister Mary Still Alive With Broken Back and Broken Limbs—Cannot Survive

By Associated Press. San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 31.—Three orphans lost their lives in yesterday's fire in St. John's Orphanage besides the five sisters who died trying to save them. The children are:

FRANCIS O'BRIEN, three years old.

GEORGE MOTLOCH, nine years.

GEORGE YORK, twelve years.

The bodies of the O'Brien and York boys have been found and part of another body supposed to have been the Motloch boy has also been recovered. Sister Mary Koska Farrell whose back and limbs were broken in jumping for the life-net, is reported alive at Santa Rosa Hospital today, but is not expected to survive. She was reported dead yesterday, due to the confusion in the identity.

Relief work has been started and a liberal response has been met. Plans are on foot to begin a new orphanage as a memorial to the sisters who lost their lives trying to save their charges.

OCTOBER SET NEW HIGH RECORD

Galveston, Texas, Oct. 31.—Cotton receipts at Galveston during October set a new high mark for any month in the history of the port, with a total of 355,253 bales. The next highest receipts for any one month were recorded in November, 1908, with 720,075 bales. This is 117,210 less than the record set by October of this year.

Tonight fair and colder; Friday fair.

Sixty Women Fined For Wearing Too Long Hat Pins

By Associated Press. St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 31.—For wearing hatpins that protruded too far, sixty women, most of them prominent in society, were tried and fined today in a city court. They preferred to go to jail, saying they would not submit to such legislation. The city authorities face a situation similar to that like the suffragettes situation in England as the women assert that if there are more arrests they will declare a hunger strike in jail.

DISCORD IN REV. NORRIS' CHURCH

FIFTY-SEVEN MEMBERS PUBLICLY WITHDREW FROM MEETING LAST NIGHT

RESIGNATION IS DEMANDED

Members Who Withdrew Claim His Reign as Pastor is Breaking Up Church

By Associated Press. Fort Worth, Texas, Oct. 31.—The discord in the First Baptist church which had its inception in the trial and arrest of its pastor, Rev. J. Frank Norris last winter, reached its climax last night when fifty-seven leading members publicly withdrew. They demand the resignation of Rev. Norris, who is now facing a trial Nov. 25 on a charge of arson.

These members who have withdrawn do not claim their pastor is guilty of the charges of arson, but believe his reign as pastor is breaking up the church.

NOT CANDIDATE FOR A PEDESTAL

Governor Wilson Urges Election of Legislators Who Will Support His Principles

Burlington, N. J., Oct. 31.—Governor Woodrow Wilson admittedly took a long look ahead yesterday and made a vigorous appeal in two counties hitherto Republican to send Democrats to the New Jersey legislature which convenes January 1 next.

While the presidential nominee often touched on national issues, he chiefly directed his energy in three speeches toward overruling the present Republican majority in the state legislature, to insure the choice of a Democratic governor to succeed himself in the event of his election to the presidency and to obtain also a Democratic legislature on joint ballot to send William Hughes to the United States senate.

The governor was enthusiastically received at Cape May Courthouse, Wildwood and Burlington, where he spoke, but he declared he was not seeking the suffrages of the people in his own behalf, but for two instruments—a Democratic legislature and a Democratic United States senator to assist the cause of the Democratic party in the nation.

"I am not standing alone," he said at Wildwood. "I am not the Democratic party. I cannot, as President or as governor, do anything but what great bodies of free men assist me to."

Repeal of Ordinance Permitting Riding of Bicycles on Sidewalks Proposed

The repeal of the ordinance which provides for the licensing of bicycles, by the terms of which bicycle-riding on the sidewalks is permitted, will probably be ordered by the city council at an early date. Mayor Bell is anxious that the ordinance be repealed, and it is felt in many quarters that bicycle-riding on the sidewalks is not exactly an evidence of metropolitanism. While no accidents have resulted from permitting the practice, there are many objections to it, and a repeal ordinance is likely.

ORDINANCES TO BE ENFORCED

CITY LAWS THAT HAVE BEEN DEAD LETTERS ARE TO BE REVIVED

A NEW LEAF TOMORROW

Mayor Gives Notice Fines Will Be Assessed in Every Case Where Guilt is Proven

Mayor Bell gave out the above list of ordinances this morning, saying that beginning tomorrow each would be strictly enforced. Infractions of these ordinances will be punished by fines. The minimum in each case is five dollars and if the pedestrian is caught on the sidewalk, he can try it. Fines are to be assessed in every case where guilt is proven and it will be a case of dig up or stay in jail.

"If a few of the violators of these ordinances are arrested and fined," said the mayor, "they'll be pretty careful not to let it happen again and it will have a good effect on others who are thoughtless that way. You can say that we are going to enforce this to the letter."

Tomorrow the enforcement of these ordinances along new lines will begin.

DEMOCRATS BORROW $40,000

CONTRIBUTIONS AMOUNTING TO $136,688 RECEIVED IN THE LAST SIX DAYS

TOTALS NOW $815,051

Republican War Fund at Last Report Was $744,688—Carnegie Gives More

By Associated Press. Washington, D. C., Oct. 31.—During the last six days the Democratic National committee received contributions amounting to $136,688.72 and borrowed $40,000, according to a supplemental report filed today. During this period the total expenditures were $265,445. Total receipts to date are $815,051.

Contributions amounting to $153,655 were received by Republican headquarters last week. The latest contributions bring the grand total of Republican war fund up to $744,688. The Taft-Club of Yale '75 the president college class gave $8175. Andrew Carnegie added $5000 to his previous gift of $35,000.

Three More Dollars Contributed Here. Three more dollars were contributed to the Wichita county Woodrow Wilson fund since yesterday's report bringing the total up to $317. The contributors were John C. Kay, $2; J. L. Powell, $1.

WOMAN ON TRIAL FOR HUSBAND'S MURDER.

By Associated Press. Houston, Texas, Oct. 31.—The case of the state against Mrs. Katherine Allen, charged with the murder of her husband, George S. Allen, a wholesale meat dealer, was called for trial in the criminal district court this morning. Her defense is the unwritten law and accident. She alleges her husband was enamored of another woman and that he often subjected her to taunts. She alleges she had a pistol lying on the dresser and after some words each made a grab for it, and in the scuffle it was discharged accidentally and he was killed.

Although there have been published reports of the Katy's plans to build north of Forgan, Oklahoma, nothing was given out regarding such plans while the party was here. It is understood, however, that such an extension is among the plans for 1913, but nothing has been learned as to the next objective point of the road.

HAIL DROVE CREW FROM ENGINE

WINDOWS BROKEN FROM CAB AND ENGINEER AND FIREMAN FORCED TO FLEE

DAMAGE AROUND GOREE

Cotton Beaten Out By Hail and Loss to Farmers Will Be Great

A hail storm that broke out windows in the cars and forced the crew to leave their engine was experienced yesterday afternoon near Goree by the southbound Wichita Valley passenger which left here at 2:15. The hail also did great damage to cotton, laying the fields waste for many miles along the Valley line, according to reports received here today.

The train was in charge of Conductor Courtney, Engineer T. F. Courtney and Fireman Capps, the latter two being forced to leave their cab when the hail broke the cab windows and rained upon them. About two dozen windows in the passenger cars were broken and the experience was a very unpleasant one for all on the train. After a slight delay it proceeded south to Athlete, where some of the damage was repaired.

Cotton, according to Conductor Courtney, was "picked, compressed and shipped" by the hail and the damage from this source will probably reach many thousands of dollars as the plants were blown down and the bolls stripped for a considerable distance on both sides of the track. The storm extended south as far as Munday and is believed to have done some damage in other ways.

Roofs were torn up by the hail and it is feared that livestock has been killed in a number of places.

Cotton Stalks Stripped. By Associated Press. Goree, Texas, Oct. 31.—A wind, rain and hail storm of great violence swept this section last night. Hail, which fell to a depth of about three inches, did heavy damage. All cotton left on stalks was stripped, the estimated loss being 2000 bales. There was no loss of life, but ranchmen fear many cattle have been killed.

The storm came from the west and practically every window on that side of buildings were broken while rain damaged stocks in stores.

A DEFICIT EXISTS IN STATE TREASURY

No Money to Pay State Officials' and Employees When They Received Warrants Today

By Associated Press. Austin, Texas, Oct. 31.—On account of the deficiency in the money revenues, there was no money to pay the state officials and employees today when they received their warrants for the month of October. A number of them who do a banking business were able to get money through the banks on their warrants, but in some instances a slight discount was necessary.

Fort Worth Livestock. Special to the Times. Fort Worth, Texas, Oct. 31.—Cattle receipts 3300. Steers steady $5 and $5.75. Calves receipts 1000, strong to 25 cents higher, $5 and $6.25. Hogs receipts 3000; steady to five cents higher. Tops $7.95. Sheep receipts 222. Ewes, $4.25; lambs $6.50.

NO ILL EFFECTS FROM SPEECH

ROOSEVELT APPARENTLY NONE WORSE FOR EXERTIONS AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN

WILL SPEAK TOMORROW

Colonel Accorded Uprarious Welcome—Showed No Physical Evidence

By Associated Press. Oyster Bay, Oct. 31.—Apparently none the worse for his exertions of last night, Col. Roosevelt was up and at work in his library at an early hour today. It was well past midnight when he reached his home from New York. He said he felt thoroughly refreshed after a night's sleep and well able to go back to Madison Square tomorrow night for a rally in behalf of the State Progressive ticket.

Showing no physical evidence of the shock of his attempted assassination in Milwaukee, Oct. 14, Theodore Roosevelt last night faced for an hour and twenty minutes a Progressive political rally, which gave many thousands of his fellow New Yorkers a chance to accord him an uproarious welcome.

For forty-two minutes after his entrance into crowded Madison Square Garden Col. Roosevelt stood at the edge of the high-perched speaker's platform, unable to make himself heard above the din of cheers, songs and band music. His gestures to the crowd for silence proved only to intensify the noise, and when, after twenty minutes of cheering, Col. Roosevelt determined to begin his speech the immense audience was swung off into another period of cheering by the beginning of the chant: "We want Teddy; we want Teddy."

Col. Roosevelt then refused to sit down or to leave the rail that edged the platform. Senator Dixon and Gov. Johnson urged him to be seated, but he maintained his standing position throughout the entire demonstration, and when opportunity finally came for him to begin his speech he began with a request to the police to maintain order.

The attention and silence that greeted the address by Col. Roosevelt was marked as the demonstration that preceded it. At the first attempts to interrupt with applause the Presidential candidate motioned imperatively with his left hand for silence, and he accompanied this gesture with a shake of the head, which made the crowd realize his desire to be allowed to speak without interruption. The immense garden was crowded to its doors and thousands of persons were turned away.

Gov. Hiram Johnson, Progressive candidate for Vice President and O. S. Straus, candidate for Governor of New York, preceded Col. Roosevelt. The crowd began to fill the hall as soon as the doors were opened at 6 o'clock. Gov. Johnson was still speaking when Col. Roosevelt was brought to the hall at 9:15 p. m. Cheers in the street outside signaled his approach and answering cheers from within the hall brought Gov. Johnson's speech to an end.

As Col. Roosevelt appeared at the back of the platform men and women jumped on chairs, waved handkerchiefs, flags and handkerchiefs and shouted, "Roosevelt," "Teddy," and other terms of recognition. As the demonstration progressed the band broke in at intervals with songs that the crowd sang heartily, to return to the cheering at their conclusion.

In the Window Glass World

From the Pittsburg Glasswork—News and Comment of the Trade.

The Adolphus Busch Glass Co.'s immense bottle tank at St. Louis, Mo. resumed operations on Monday of last week with all the shops in their places and the output up to the usual standard.

The backing Window Glass Co.'s plant, Utica, O., began operations on Tuesday of last week and the Utica Glass Co.'s factory started on Wednesday, giving employment to a large number of shops.

The Rodifer Glass Co.'s plant, Bel Air, O., is operating steadily with two furnaces of 30 pots, one containing tank of five rings and one day tank in commission. The full complement of shops are not employed at present owing to the scarcity of small help.

The Industrial Glass Co., of Cameron, W. Va., has been incorporated to manufacture lantern globes, milk bottles and all kinds of glassware. The incorporators are Jas. A. Frank, J. I. Sprague, C. E. Lancaster, Lloyd Stroupe and D. F. Burton.

The Patterson Window Glass Co.'s plant, Cameron, W. Va., was placed in blast on Thursday of last week with all places filled and excellent prospects for a steady run.

The Crescent Glass Co., Wellsburg, W. Va., are operating their plant steadily with enough orders on the books to keep the shops busy until the holidays.

Workmen are engaged on the construction of a new decorating room at the Marbeth Evans Glass Co.'s plant, Charleroi, Pa., and it is expected that it will be ready for use by the middle of December.

According to western advices the Sheldon-Foster Glass Co., filed a petition in the Grant county, Ind., court last week to have the corporate name changed to the Chicago Heights-Glass Company.

According to rumors current in the Kansas gas belt the Kerr Glass Co., Altoona, Kan., will probably move their plant to Blackwell, Okla.

The Acme Glass Co., Olean, N. Y., started their large tank on Monday last giving employment to eight additional shops. Prospects are bright for an excellent season's run.

The American Window Glass Co.'s tank at Kane, Pa., was scheduled to resume operations last Monday.

At the Olean Glass Company's works at Olean, N. Y., everything in the machine bottle department is moving along nicely and all the shops are doing well. The blowing department got started October 18.

The branch plant of the Monongah Glass Co., the old National plant, at Fairmont, W. Va., has been placed in operation. One hundred men have been added to the working force.

The trouble with the small help at the Phoenix Glass Co.'s plant, Monaca, Pa., has been adjusted. Phoenix No. 1 resumed operations on Monday of last week and No. 2 factory entered the ranks of the producers last Monday.

Fire has been started in No. 3 tank at the American Bottle Co.'s plant, Greator, Ill., and it is thought that the factory will resume activities in the very near future.

The Gaynor Glass Works, Salem, V. J., is being operated steadily in all departments with excellent prospects for a good season's run.

Business at the Fostoria Glass Co.'s plant, Mountville, W. Va., is improving and good orders are being booked for nearly all lines of ware made there. The new factory is nearing completion and will likely be placed in commission early next month.

The window plant of the Texas Glass Co., Texarkana, Tex., began operations for the season of 1912-13 on Tuesday of last week with a full complement of men in every department.

The American Ferry Belgain Co. made their first blowing of the season last Monday at DuBois, Pa. All places are reported full and a good quality of glass is being made.

Felix Laroux is in charge as manager.

The Crescent Window Glass Co.'s factory, Weston, W. Va., is now operating in full in all departments. A good start is reported.

She was told the gem might have lodged in the second trap in the cellar, and this was searched but still no trace of the jewel was found.

"The large ring was much heavier than these studs, but it was probably washed out of the trap, because it displayed a much larger surface to the water.

Lloyds Pays $5,000 Insurance on Historic Jewel; Secret Guarded Six Months

New York, Oct. 31.—A secret carefully guarded six months, was disclosed when it became known Mrs. Nellie Grant Sartoris Jones, daughter of Gen. U. S. Grant lost last May an historical emerald ring given to her father by the Emperor of Japan at the time the famous soldier made his tour of the world.

The ring, the intrinsic value of which is placed at $25,000, was dropped down a waste pipe at the Hotel Renaissance, 512 Fifth Avenue, where Mrs. Sartoris was living prior to her marriage last July to Frank H. Jones, a Chicago banker and Assistant Postmaster General in President Cleveland's second administration.

The historical and sentimental value of the gem can only be guessed at, but an authority declared it was certainly worth $100,000.

When Mrs. Sartoris inherited the jewel she insured it with Lloyds of London for $5,000 and the full amount was paid after the company conducted a search such as had never before been made in this city.

It is the boast of Lloyds that it can find lost articles better than any other agency on earth and to that end the company caused the city's sewer running from Fifth to Seventh Avenue on Forty-third Street to be cleaned of every article of residue. The entire sewerage system of the Renaissance was explored.

The ring dropped down a water tank in the bathroom of an apartment on the second floor as the then Mrs. Sartoris was dressing for dinner. She so prized the jewel that she seldom wore it, an dish was shocked and grieved by her loss.

E. W. Nortrup, chief engineer of the Renaissance, was notified of the jewel's disappearance, and with Assistant Manager Watson went to the

Roosevelt Re-Iterates

Principles of Progressives

By Associated Press.
New York, Oct. 31.—Theodore Roosevelt, delivering in Madison Square Garden last night his first address since the one he delivered just after he was shot in Milwaukee on October 14, spoke as follows:

"Friends, perhaps once in a generation, not more often, there comes a chance for the people of a country to play their part wisely and fearlessly in some great battle of the age-long warfare for human rights. To our fathers the chance came in the mighty days of Abraham Lincoln, the man who thought and toiled and suffered for the people with sad, patient and kindly endeavor. To our forefathers the chance came in the troubled years that stretched from the time when the First Continental Congress gathered to the time when Washington was inaugurated as first President of the Republic. To us in our turn the chance has now come to stand for liberty and righteousness as in those days these dead men stood for liberty and righteousness. Our task is not as great as theirs. Yet it is well nigh as important. Our task is to profit by the lessons of the past, and to check in time the evils that grow around us; lest our failure to do so may cause dreadful disaster to the people. We must not permit the brutal selfishness of arrogance and the brutal selfishness of envy each to run unchecked its evil course. If we do so then some day a smoldering hatred will suddenly kindle into a consuming flame, and either we or our children will be called on to face a crisis as grim as any which this republic has ever seen.

"It is our business to show that nine-tenths of wisdom consists in being wise in time. Woe to our nation if we let matters drift, if in our industrial and political life we let an unchecked and utterly selfish individualistic materialism riot to its appointed end. That end would be wide spread disaster, for it would mean that our people would be sundered by those dreadful lines of division which are drawn when the selfish greed of the haves is set over against the selfish greed of the have-nots. There is but one way to prevent such a division and that is to forestall it by the kind of a movement in which we are now engaged.

"Our movement is one of resolute insistence upon the rights and full acknowledgement of the duties of every man and every woman within this great land of ours. We war against the forces of evil, and the weapons we use are the weapons of right. We do not set greed against greed, or hatred against hatred. Our creed is one that bids us be just to all; to feel sympathy for all and to strive for an understanding of the deeds of all. Our purpose is to smite down wrong. But toward those who have done the wrong we feel only the kindest charity that is compatible with causing the wrong to cease. We preach hatred to no man and the spirit in which we work is as far removed from vindictiveness as from weakness. We are resolute to do away with the evil, and we intend to proceed with such wise and cautious sanity as will cause the very minimum of disturbance that is compatible with achieving our purpose.

"Do not forget, friends, that we are not proposing to substitute law for character. We are merely proposing to buttress character by law. We fully recognize that, as has been true in the past, so it is true now, and ever will be true, that the prime factor in each man or woman's success must normally be that man or woman's own character—character, the sum of many qualities, but above all of the qualities of honesty, of courage and of common sense. Nothing will prevail a nation if there is not the right type of character among the average men and women, the plain people, the hard working, decent living, right thinking people who make up the great bulk of our citizenship. I know my countrymen; I know that they are of this type. But it is in civil life as it is in war. In war it is the man behind the gun that counts most, and yet he cannot do his work unless he has the right kind of gun. In civil life, in the every day life of our nation, it is individual character which counts most; and yet the individual character cannot avail, unless in addition thereto there lie ready to hand the social weapons which can be forged only by law and by public opinion operating through and operated upon by law.

"Again, friends, so not forget that we are proposing no new principles. The doctrines we preach reach back to the Golden Rule and the Sermon on the Mount. They reach back to the Commandments delivered at Sinai. All that we are doing is to apply those doctrines in the shape necessary to make them available for meeting the living issues of our own day. We decline to be bound by the empty little cut and dried formulas of bygone philosophies, useful once perhaps, but useless now. Our purpose is to shackle greedy winning as we shackle brutal force and we are not to be diverted from this purpose by the appeal to the dead dogmas of a vanished past. We propose to lift the burdens from the lowly and the weary, from the poor and the oppressed. We propose to stand for the sacred rights of childhood and womanhood. Nay, more, we propose to see that manhood is not crushed out of the men who toll, by excessive hours of labor, by under-payment, by injustice and oppression. When this purpose can only be secured by the collective action of our people through their governmental agencies, we propose so to secure it. We brush aside the arguments of those who seek to bar action by the repetition of some formula about State's rights or about 'the history of liberty' being 'the history of the limitation of governmental power' or about the duty of the courts finally to determine the meaning of the Constitution. We are for human rights, and we intend to work for them in efficient fashion. Where they can be best obtained by the application of the doctrines of States' rights, when we are for the States' rights. Where, in order to obtain them it is necessary to invoke the power of the nation, then we shall invoke to its utmost limits that mighty power. We are for liberty. But we are for the liberty of the oppressed and not for the liberty of the oppressor to oppress the weak and to bind burdens on the shoulders of the heavy-laden. It is idle to ask us not to exercise the power of the Government when only by the power of the Government can we curb the greed that sits in high places, when only by the exercise of the government can we exalt the lowly and give heart to the humble and the down-trodden.

"We care for facts and not for formulas. We care for deeds and not for words. We recognize no sacred right of oppression. We recognize no divine right to work injustice. We stand for the Constitution. We recognize that one of its most useful functions is the protection of property, but we will not consent to make of the Constitution a fetish for the protection of fossilized wrong. We call the attention of those who thus interpret it to the fact that in that great instrument of justice life and liberty are put on a full level with property; indeed are enumerated ahead of it in the order of their importance. We stand for an upright judiciary. But where the judges claim the right to 'make our laws by finally interpreting them, by finally deciding whether or not we have the power to make them, then we claim the right ourselves to exercise that power. We forbid any man, no matter what his official position may be, to usurp the right which is ours; the right which is the people's. We recognize in neither court nor Congress nor President any living right to override the will of the people expressed with due deliberation in orderly fashion and through the forms of law. We Progressives hold that the words of the Declaration of Independence, as given effect by Washington, and as construed and applied by Abraham Lincoln are to be accepted as real and not empty phrases. We believe that in every truth this is a government by the people themselves, that the Constitution is theirs, that the courts are theirs, that all the governmental agents and agencies are theirs. We believe that all true leaders of the people must fearlessly stand for righteousness and honesty, most fearlessly tell the people what justice and honor demand. But we no less strongly insist that it is for the people themselves finally to decide all questions of public policy and to have their decision made effective.

"In the platform formulated by the Progressive party we have set forth clearly and specifically our faith in every vital point at issue before this people. We have declared our position on the trusts and on the tariff, on the machinery for securing genuine popular government; on the method of meeting the needs of the farmer, of the business man and of the man who toils with his hands, in the mine or on the railroad, in the factory or in the shop. There is not a promise we have made which cannot be kept. There is not a promise we have made that will not be kept. Our platform is a covenant with the people of the United States, and if we're given the power we will live up to that covenant in letter and in spirit.

"We know that there are in life injustices which we are powerless to remedy. But we know also that there is much injustice which can be remedied, and this injustice we intend to remedy. We know that the long path leading upward toward the light cannot be traversed at once, or in a day, or in a year. But there are certain steps that can be taken at once. These we intend to take. Then, having taken these first steps, we shall see more clearly how to walk still further with a bolder stride. We do not intend to attempt the impossible; but there is much, very much, that is possible in the way of righting wrong and remedying injustices; and all that is possible we intend to do. We intend to strike down privileges, to equalize opportunity, to wrest justice from the hands that do injustice, to hearten and strengthen men and women for the hard battle of life. We stand shoulder to shoulder in a spirit of real brotherhood. We recognize no differences of class, creed or birthplace. We recognize no sectionalism. Our appeal is made to the Easterner no less than to the Westerner. Our appeal is made to the Southerner no less than to the Northerner. We appeal to the men who wore the gray just as we appeal to the men who wore the blue. We appeal to the sons of the men who followed Lee no less than to the sons of the men who followed Grant; for the memory of the great deeds of both is now part of the common heritage of honor which

NEWS FROM OIL FIELDS

The first well drilled into the sand in the Eeds vicinity, Northwestern Oil company's No. 2, proved a distinct disappointment. The sand was reached yesterday and was dry. This well is on the M. A. Eeds farm, about three hundred feet north of the discovery well, finding the sand at practically the same depth as the Northwestern No. 1, which opened up operations in that section. There are several other wells in the Eeds section which should be completed within the next week and it is possible that some of them will offset the discouragement which the failure of Northwestern No. 2 has brought. The latter found twelve feet of sand at 1400 feet, but no oil.

The Interstate Oil Company has taken over a three-fourths interest in the holdings of the Mutual Oil company, which has a lease and a rig on the Kierst farm between Burk Burnett and the Eeds well. The Interstate is to carry on the drilling of this well and will pay rentals that become due.

Guffey's No. 11 on the Miller tract east of Electra was drilled in yesterday and is a small well, good for probably sixty barrels.

Developers No. 3, at Petrella was shot yesterday after several leads had been put down in the hole without being discharged. All the leads went off making a big shot. The hole has not yet been cleaned out so that the results of the shot are known.

MEETING OF BAPTIST COUNTY ASSOCIATION

Workers in County Association Met at Iowa Park in Interesting Session Tuesday

Special to the Times.
Iowa Park, Oct. 31.—On Tuesday of this week the workers' meeting of the Baptist County Association met with the Baptist church of this place. The meeting opened with a very interesting devotional service conducted by Rev. J. W. Morgan, the oldest pastor in the association. After the opening service the meeting was organized by electing Brother Morgan as chairman of the meeting. Reports of the spiritual condition of the churches of the association made a fine impression.

The most important address of the day was by Dr. J. P. Boone of Wichita Falls on "Systematic Giving," that put the church people of this place to thinking seriously along the church finances and church stewardship.

The ladies' meeting in the afternoon was a very interesting part of the program. After the reading of some splendid papers by Mrs. A. B. Womack of this place and some ladies from Wichita Falls, some officers were elected and the ladies arranged to buy a cow for the orphan's home dairy farm at Dallas.

The Iowa Park ladies sustained their reputation by having some good things to eat at the noon hour.
The last number on the program was a sermon by Rev. W. L. Daniels of Electra, presented in his own forceful style.
Rev. W. H. McKenzie the missionary was present and did much to advance the interest of the association.
Plans were launched for an excursion to Buckner's Orphan's Home at Dallas the 3rd of January, 1913. The Baptist church at this place just rounded out the collection for State mission and denominational education amounting to one hundred and ten dollars.
Every church in the Wichita Association contributed to both of these enterprises.

The New Leaders of the Diplomatic Corps at Washington

Baron Fernhelmüller of Austria, the Retiring Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, and the Baroness' CHALMERS

Madam Jusserand, the American wife of the French Ambassador, New Leader of the Diplomatic Set at Washington

Ambassador Jusserand of France, The New Dean of the Diplomatic Corps

Countess Chambrun (sister-in-law of Alice Roosevelt Longworth) and her husband, the Military Attache of the French Embassy

AN American woman is to have the position of the official "foreign copy" at Washington. In other words, a daughter of the republic is to be the new First Lady of the Diplomatic Corps, which, in social prestige, is perhaps the next best thing to First Lady of the Land.
It seems almost incongruous, doesn't it, that an American woman should take precedence over the women of the household of Uncle Sam's official foreign guests, and in their own select circle too, but it is a fact, nevertheless. It is not in the least unusual for American women to hold the ranking position in diplomatic contingents at other capitals—where the United States is represented by envoys—but it is more than unusual at their own capital.
Of course, such a contradictory state of affairs is about to witness in the city on the Potomac has been made possible only because so many American women have married foreign statesmen—titled and otherwise. Diplomats—European diplomats, at least—whose whole lives, after they reach marrying age, are spent in countries other than their own are naturally very apt to wed aliens, and, be it said to credit of the beauty and charm of American women, that the brides in such international marriages have included more Americans, twice over, than representatives of any other nationality.
But whereas great numbers of fair Yankess have married foreign diplomats—many of the romances being pure love matches with no "dot" worth mentioning—this is the first time in many years, the first time, in fact, since Uncle Sam became a full-fledged world power, that an American woman has the post of honor in diplomatic society at Washington. The present pioneer in this role is Madam Jusserand and she wins first place in the cosmopolitan throng because her husband, the French ambassador, advances to the coveted position of Dean of the Diplomatic Corps, thanks to the retirement of Baron Fernhelmüller, the Austrian Ambassador.

The Dean of the Diplomatic Corps and his wife are the leaders of diplomatic society just as the President and his wife are of official society in general. So exalted is the position in the formal, ceremonial world at the seat of government that some years ago, when a titled Britisher was Dean of the Corps, he raised an awful rumpus because he was not allowed to walk ahead of even the Vice President of the United States on state occasions. He seemed to think that our Vice President was no better than a mere crown prince, but he didn't get his wish anyway. And so it has ever been. Diplomats in general are as sensitive about their "rights" as is the vainest prima donna and usually the Dean has been the most sensitive of the lot, seeing as how he has an especial position to maintain.
In the main these prerogatives that look like empty honors to the "man on the street" are about all there is to the Deanship, save for the social prestige that impresses Society as spelled with a capital S—meaning principally those wealthy people who live in Washington in the winter and think that meeting diplomats is the next best thing to meeting royalty itself and who say to themselves "You know, you never can tell, what may happen when we go abroad, seeing as how we have entertained these people here." But aside from standing on his social pedestal, a Dean has some duties. He is supposed to act as the arbiter of certain sorts of social disputes in his official family circle and he acts as the spokesman of all his colleagues when the Diplomatic Corps as a body wishes to present any protests, complaints or communications to the government. There isn't as much of this last-mentioned sort of thing at Washington as there is at certain other capitals—say Peking, China, and the capitals of those Latin-American countries that are always indulging in the "revolution" habit.

But, to get back to the new Dean and his American better half, it may be mentioned that they have had a rather weary wait for their present place at the top of the Who's Who of the foreign colony, the Jusserands having taken up their residence in Washington just about ten years ago. Indeed, if they had come less than two months earlier than they did they would have been a step higher in the line of succession and might have had the leadership throughout the several years that it has been in the possession of the Austrians.
Talking about the line of succession in this connection may be so much Greek to the reader unless he happens to be familiar with the rather peculiar system that governs promotions to the Diplomatic Deanship. The dean of a college signifies an elected or appointed official and the word dean as usually used is taken to mean the eldest, but neither of these applications hold good in the case of the Dean of the Diplomatic Corps. Here the Deanship is held by the oldest member of the group of envoys, but by the oldest in point of continuous service at the capital concerned—in this case, Washington. In short—the Deanship goes with seniority of service. An envoy may be ninety years of age, we will say, and have served his country as an envoy for, perhaps, sixty years and yet when he went to the White House for a state entertainment he might be compelled to walk behind a youngster of less than half his age if it happened that the said youngster had been stationed at Washington longer than the veteran. Only it must be explained that there is one kink in this plan of progress to the Deanship that is likely to prove mystifying if one does not act as the accredited agent of foreign affairs, ambassadors and ministers, who act as the accredited agents of foreign powers at Washington. According to official etiquette all the ambassadors outrank all the ministers because the ambassadors are supposed to be the personal representatives of their respective sovereigns, whereas the ministers merely represent the government in an impersonal way. And how does this affect the Deanship, proposition? Well, in effect it makes the eleven ambassadors into a close corporation for the control of the Deanship while the twenty-nine ministers are left out in the cold. Since all the ambassadors outrank all the ministers, it necessarily follows that the most recently appointed ambassador could lay claim to the Deanship over a time-tried minister.

There is a general satisfaction in governmental circles over the present envoy into the Deanship—not so much because of any special personal popularity on the part of the new occupant as by the reason of the feeling that France as a great sister republic and by reason of what she did for us at the time of the Revolution is joined to the United States by closer bonds than is any other European nation. And then, too, the French ambassador at Washington, whoever he may be, is called upon to participate prominently in more public ceremonies than any other diplomat by reason of the fact that the two republics are always presenting one another with statues and other testimonials which have need to be dedicated or unveiled with due solemnity.

The present French envoy—the only European ambassador on Uncle Sam's guest list who contents himself with so modest a title as Mr.—was appointed to his present post during the Presidency of Theodore Roosevelt, and the gossip at the time was that he won the place (a rather more responsible one than any he had previously occupied) largely because he was even better known as an author than as a statesman, and the always polite and politic French conceived the idea that it would be a dedicated compliment to send to America a spokesman who had literary tastes in common with our own, then Chief Executive. And the scheme worked even better than anticipated, for not only did Roosevelt and Jusserand find a congenial common meeting ground in literature, but the distinguished Frenchman developed a disclosed a proficiency in tennis that actually won him a place in Roosevelt's famous "tennis cabinet"—the only diplomat who gained admission to that charmed circle.
And, in the end, the laugh was on those good folks, who, not at all in sympathy of Roosevelt's strenuous athletic, actually pitied the "poor little Frenchman," who was driven as they believe, by a sense of duty to go through with this merciless muscle-building program. For, lo and behold, after Roosevelt left the White went right on being strenuous. To be sure, he did not play tennis as persistently but he kept on with the cross country tramps that have won for him a reputation as the greatest pedestrian in official circles at Uncle Sam's headquarters. Go into the country around Washington almost any pleasant afternoon and the chances are you will meet—you will hardly overtake—the French ambassador walking alone or with his American life partner. He is thoroughly democratic in manner as he dresses—there is nothing approaching the "lugs" put on by some of our snobby army officers, who think that they must be followed by an orderly in uniform even when they go out for a horseback ride in their private capacity.

The nearest approach to it is when the new leaders of the Diplomatic Corps, preferring a long straight-way walk, ride far into the country in one of their carriages, and then, dismissing the vehicle, walk home. It may also be interesting to note that the Jusserands are almost the sole members of official society who have not become converts to the motor car.
The new Dean of the Diplomatics, whose full name is nothing short of Jean Adrien Antoine Jules Jusserand, is almost fifty-seven years of age, a native of Lyons, and has been in the diplomatic service of France ever since his majority, although he has been mentioned; he has found time to write a number of valuable and historical works as a "side line," and some of these have dealt in a very complimentary manner with the American nation, although perhaps the writings of a Frenchman are not so well known to the reading public here in America, as are the equally-flattering comments of his fellow-diplomat, Mr. James Bryce, the British ambassador at Washington. The present is the first time that Ambassador Jusserand has had so exalted a diplomatic position for it was only upon being assigned to the United States as envoy that he got into the ambassadorial class. In Denmark, where he served as France's representative before his transfer to the United States, his rank was that of Minister.
The interest in a Dean of the Diplomatic Corps—or, for that matter, in a plain everyday diplomat—is not always equalled by that in his wife, but in the present case public curiosity, and especially feminine curiosity, seems to be keener regarding the ambassador. Madam Jusserand was, prior to her marriage, Elsie Richards, of Paris. Although an American, her entire girlhood was spent at the French capital, where her father had extensive banking interests, and in many of her ideas and ideals, Madam Jusserand is essentially French. During the decade she has spent in Washington the new ranking hostess of the Diplomatic Corps has won no small degree of popularity, and she is afforded special facilities for the increased understanding that will now be incumbent upon her by the spacious quarters of the new French Embassy. This mansion is not owned by the French government—that nation not having as yet arranged to follow the example of some other powers and own its own home at Washington—but it is the next best thing, having been built especially for its present purpose by Mrs. John M. Henderson, the wife of a former U. S. Senator and a noted woman who makes a specialty of building and renting mansions to diplomats at Washington.

There is no especial form or ceremony connected with the accession of an ambassador to the Deanship. He simply advances, automatically, as it were, to that position when the retiring Dean takes his departure from Washington. However, there is formal recognition of the new status in the President's reception at the White House on the first day of the new year. This is the event that formally opens the official social season at the capital and is the occasion on which the new Dean for the first time exercises his new prerogative of heading the foreign officials as they pass in review before the Chief Magistrate. Ambassador Jusserand and his wife have spent the past summer and autumn in France and there have been rumors that they might be transferred to another capital, but now that the Frenchman is Dean of the Corps, his tenure of office here is liable to be indefinite because many nations consider it a decided advantage to have their representative at any leading capital in the position of Dean, and France has always shown herself anxious to be in an advantageous position in the matter of her relations with her one-time ally.

NEW NEWS OF YESTERDAY
Story of One of the Brave Mothers of '61.

How She Nursed Her Wounded Son General Francis Walker, So That He Might Fight to the End of the War.

By E. J. EDWARDS.
The late General Francis Amasa Walker, who died in 1897, when president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was, in his lifetime, regarded as perhaps the greatest writer upon economic topics the United States has ever produced. It is sometimes said of General Walker that the prevailing interest in economic questions which is now so characteristic of the people of the United States was in great measure due to his work. General Walker, too, organized the census-bureau in 1870 and again in 1880 as superintendent of the census, bringing the work of the census bureau up to its present high standard and his far-reaching statistical authority. During the Civil war he gained a good deal of renown as a soldier. He enlisted, when he was not long out of Amherst college, in a Massachusetts regiment, and came out of the struggle a brevet brigadier general.

General Walker's pre-eminent ability as an economist he undoubtedly inherited from his father, Amasa Walker, who was regarded as one of the highest authorities of his time upon financial questions and whose political economy, published after the close of the Civil war, was widely used as a text book. But General Walker's intense patriotism, his disposition to serve his country in any way in which he might be called upon to serve it, even though the emoluments were less than he could receive as a writer and teacher, and a certain rigid disciplinary capacity which he possessed which was not inconsistent with great kindness of heart, he inherited from his mother.

"Frank," the mother said, when she was told that he had responded to Lincoln's call for volunteers, "I don't care whether you are a private or whether you become a captain. I am very proud that I have a son who has become a soldier and who is going to fight in defense of the Union."

At the battle of Spotsylvania Court House General Walker was especially conspicuous for his courage and for the readiness with which he met dangerous emergencies. As well as for the perfect discipline of the soldiers who were under him. He was severely wounded in that battle and when his mother was told of the wounds she simply said: "Well, he got them when his face was toward the enemy—I know that."

When convalescing from his wounds General Walker obtained a furlough and set out to visit his parents at their home at East Brookfield, Mass. His mother saw him coming up the walk and met him at the door. There was kindly expression in her countenance, and at the same time anxiety. General Walker's first thought was that this anxiety was due to her fear lest his wounds should prove very dangerous. What his mother said before she gave him any other words of greeting:

"What! Frank, have you come home?"
"Yes, mother, I have come home for a little while."
"For a little while? Then you are going back again?"
"Yes, mother, as soon as I am able to rejoin the regiment."
"Oh, Frank," cried the mother, joyously, "I am so glad to hear you say that! I was afraid you had resigned. I want you to stay until the war is ended."
And she nursed him carefully and tenderly, brought him back to health, talked to him by the hour about the patriotic duties of a soldier, and saw him return to his regiment, giving him first her blessing.

Soldiers' Pet Armadillo.
While hunting in the Virginia woods near Bailey's crossroads, in Alexandria county, a few nights ago a pack of dogs belonging to John Monroe and a colored man named Mortimer, Virginia ran down and killed an animal believed to be an armadillo. The dogs were after opossums and coons, but getting on the scent of the animal followed it for an hour or more before they landed their quarry. Later it was learned that the armadillo belonged to one of the troops of cavalry at Fort Myer. The men had secured a number of the animals while on duty on the Texas border and had brought them to the fort.

The one that was killed had escaped from the men had several days when they learned that it had been killed. This is possibly the only armadillo hunt that ever took place in the vicinity of Washington.—Washington Star.

The Fashionable Face.
The "delicate oval" which novelists once insisted upon as the ideal facial line for their heroine appears to be gathered among women's lost charms. The "line" of face most in evidence at the present moment is said to be perilously near the type of feminine beauty disrespectful persons call "moon faced."

Very circular countenances do not really predominate. According to phrenologists, the chin of the modern girl is usually well pointed, while her brow has expanded.
Cleburne—the peanut factory here is paying 82 cents per bushel for the coobers and can't get all it needs.

COSTUMES FOR ONE SHOW

Here are the actual figures of what was used in making the costumes for a recent Broadway theatrical production:

Thirty pounds of silver and gold thread for embroidery; 100 pieces of chiffon cloth and velvet orchids; 100,000 gold sequins; 50 masses of black jet beads, 10,000 to a mass; 2,000 yards of ermine fur and trimmings; 2,000 rosebuds of chiffon cloth; 500 yards of mink trimming; 100 yards of gray fox; 400 yards of other furs; 500 yards of beaver; 1 pound of silver; 24 military epaulets; 24 swords; 24 sword belts; 900 yards of feather bones; 500 yards of percaline; 100 yards of drilling; 2,500 hooks and eyes; 720 military buttons; 200 yards of ribbon; 10,000 jewels in assorted colors; 210 yards of chamoisee; 250 yards of crepe de meteor; 265 yards of brilliant crepe; 200 yards of satin brocade; 210 yards of chiffon velvet; 440 yards of duchesse satin; 100 yards of military cloth; 205 yards of chiffon cloth; 40 yards of Chantilly lace; 300 yards of fringe; 24 yards of Irish point lace; 100 yards of silver net; 1,600 yards of silver and gold cord; 70 yards of allover lace; 200 yards of Marabout; 75 yards of silver and gold cloth; 25 yards of black all-over; 20,000 beads; 8,000,000 bugles; 250,000 rhinestones and 300 tassels. It took 450 persons fourteen days to make these costumes.

CHANCE FOR PHILATELISTS

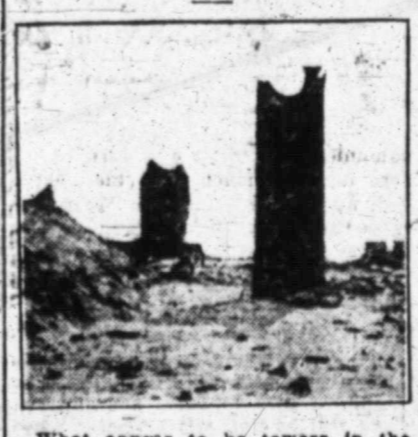

It is announced that the little principality of Lichtenstein, situated between Switzerland and Vorarlberg, in the Tyrol, is to issue its own stamps in effect it will do away with, or at least modify the existing convention by which the principality's postal service was in the hands of the Austro-Hungarian authorities. The new stamps will bear the effigy of the reigning prince, Prince John of Lichtenstein.

Lichtenstein, with the exception of San Marino and Monaco, is the smallest independent state in Europe. It is twelve miles in length, and its area is 48.8 square miles. Its population is something like 10,000, and it is said, contains more men than women. The capital is Vaduz, with a population of 1,100. There is a diet of twelve members, elected indirectly. The ruling prince has a court at Vienna, and the final court of appeal is at Innsbruck. There is no public debt. From the last returns the expenditure for the year showed about $85 less than the receipts. There is a customs union with Austria, for which Austria pays $500,000 a year. There is now no compulsory military service within the principality.

IS ATTACKED BY VAMPIRES

From the village of Moresnet on the Belgium-Prussian frontier comes a strange story of human vampires. A schoolmaster who was returning one evening staggered some time later into the doctor's house with his throat bleeding and in an exhausted condition. He said that as he was walking along in a lonely place an automobile stopped near him and three men sprang out and flung a cloak over him and carried him into the bar. He felt his throat cut and lips sucking blood while the car dashed on into the night. He became unconscious and came to himself in a ditch just over the border. He crawled back to the nearest house, which proved to be the doctor's. The doctor said that the appearance of the wound tended to corroborate the story.

WELLS UNEARTHED BY SEA

What appear to be towers in the illustration are in reality brick wells which have been unearthed by the sea. They are at Plage St. Gabriel, near Boulogne, France, where a hotel and bathing station have been destroyed by the encroaching of the sea.

PIN IN THROAT SEVEN YEARS

Seven years ago, while a Cedina, Ohio, woman was dressing one of her children, she swallowed one of a set of baby beauty pins, set with a pearl. The pin was unhooked and lodged in her throat. Physicians were unable, however, to extract it. During a severe coughing spell the other night she coughed up the pin, and other than suffering a slight irritation of the throat she is none the worse.

MIDGET IN INDIANA TOWN

In Columbus, Ind., lives a little girl of ten years of age, who is only 29 inches tall. She weighs but twenty-eight pounds and at birth her weight was ten pounds. She has a waist measurement of twenty-three inches. Her mother's waist measurement is only twenty-one inches. The child has never been sick a day, has a good appetite, and plays like other children.
Johnson county farmers however are awaking to the value of peanuts as a profitable crop.

ROOSEVELT RE-ITERATES PROGRESSIVE PRINCIPLES

"We firmly believe that the American people feel hostility to no man who has honestly won success. We firmly believe that the American people ask only justice, justice each for himself and justice each for all others. They are against wickedness in rich man and poor man alike. They are against lawless and murderous violence exactly as they are against the sordid materialism which seeks wealth by trickery and cheating, whether on a large or a small scale. They wish to deal honestly and in good faith with all men. They recognize that the prime national need is for honesty, honesty in public life and in private life, honesty in business and in politics, honesty in the broadest and deepest significance of the word. We Progressives are trying to represent what we know to be the highest ideals and the deepest and most intimate convictions of the plain men and women, of the good men and women, who work for the good and within the home.

"Our people work hard and faithfully. They do not wish to shirk their work. They must feel pride in the work for the work's sake. But there must be bread for the work. There must be a time for play when the men and women are young. When they grow old there must be the certainty of rest under conditions free from the haunting terror of utter poverty. We believe that no life is worth anything unless it is a life of labor and effort and endeavor. We believe in the joy that comes with work; for he who labors best is really happiest. We must shape conditions so that no one can own the spirit of the man who loves his task and gives the best there is in him to that task; and it matters not whether this man reaps and sows and wrests his livelihood from the rugged reluctance of the soil, or whether with hand or brain he plays his part in the tremendous industrial activities of our great cities. We are striving to meet the needs of all these men and to meet them in such fashion that all alike shall feel bound together in the bond of a common brotherhood, where each works hard for himself and for those dearest to him, and yet feels that he must also think of his brother's rights because he is in very truth that brother's keeper.

"Seven months ago in this city, almost at the beginning of the present campaign, I spoke as follows:

"The leader for the time being, whoever he may be, is but an instrument, to be used until broken and then to be cast aside; and if he is worth his salt he will care no more when he is broken than a soldier cares when he is sent where his life is forfeit in order that the victory may be won. In the long fight for righteousness the watchword for all of us is spend and be spent. It is of little matter whether any one man fails or succeeds; but the cause shall not fail, nor it is the cause of mankind. We here in America, hold in our hands the hope of the world, the fate of the coming years; and shame and disgrace will be ours if in our eyes the light of high resolve is dimmed, if we trail in the dust the hopes of men."

"Friends, what I said then I say now. Surely there never was a greater opportunity than ours. Surely there never was a fight better worth making than this. I believe we shall win, but win or lose I am glad beyond measure that I am one of the many who in this fight have stood ready to spend and be spent, pledged to fight while life lasts the great fight for righteousness and for brotherhood and for the welfare of mankind."

"THE BALKAN PRINCESS" PLEASING PRODUCTION

"The Balkan Princess" was presented to a large house at the Wichita Theatre last night and proved a very acceptable offering. There was much good music and dancing and a quantity of clever comedy, the whole going to make a very satisfying production.

There was quite a large covey of girls in the play and while they wore the long skirts which have lately been the rule in musical comedies, the skirts did not seem to hamper their movement to any extent that was noticeable from the eleventh row; quite far from such, in fact. One was able to observe that the difference between long skirts and short ones is that the girls usually wear tights with the latter. There were times when the writer experienced a tendency to hide behind the comforting back of the seat in front of him, but he manfully resisted. Outside of the display of under-pinning, however, there was little to shock his delicate and retiring tastes.

The part of Princess Stephanie was taken with much charm by Miss Julia Gilford who had a very musical voice which "I Like You All," and "Wonderful World" displayed to good advantage. Wallace Beery as Max Helt, Tom Van as Blatz and Harry Lewellyn as Henri, furnished a deal of good comedy and were the life of the show.

Miss Mossmore as Sofia acted well and sang well.

It was a quite pleasing production, one of the best in its line that has visited Wichita Falls in a long time.

An Englishman claims that his country is easily ahead of the United States in such matters as government (national and local), manufacturers of steel, clothing of all kinds, mail service, parcel post, honesty in business, safety of travelers, elections and methods of the courts of justice.
