ROAD EXPERTS NEEDED.

A practical effort to bring the supply of expert highway engineers to the point where they will be numerous enough to meet the demand for their services is to be made at the American Road Congress, to be held on the Million-Dollar Pier, in Atlantic City, September 30 to October 5. At the present time, with the people of the United States spending more than $200,000,000 a year for the improvement of highways, the demand for expert highway engineers exceeds the supply. There is to be a conference of educational institutions at the American Road Congress, to be directed by the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, and through this conference efforts are to be made to induce the leading universities to establish specific and practical courses for the instruction of highway engineers.

At the present time there are about 52 universities devoting some attention to highway engineering. The instruction in this branch of engineering, however, is, in most cases, merely a part of the general training of engineers, so that there will be a sufficient number of trained men to handle the great problem that has been thrust upon the United States by the widespread agitation for a better system of public highways that will reduce the cost of hauling crops and permit shipments by farmers at all seasons of the year.

Prof. Henry H. Norris of Cornell University is secretary of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, which is composed of officials of the leading educational institutions having engineering departments. Professor Norris has just sent letters to all the institutions which are represented in their society asking them to appoint delegates to represent them at the convention, which will be part of the American Road Congress at Atlantic City. Prof. William T. Magruder, of the Ohio state university, is president of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education, while the vice-presidents are Prof. L. S. Marks of Harvard and Prof. F. W. Sperr of the Michigan College of Mines. They believe that if the universities will supply well-equipped engineers it will be a long step towards doing away with the careless supervision of the construction and maintenance of public roads that has resulted in the loss of a large percent of the money invested in roads.

MUST ANSWER QUESTIONS.

In the future, when a person calls at the general delivery window of any postoffice will have to answer these questions put by the clerk before he gets his mail:

"Are you twenty-one years of age?"

"Have you a permanent home in the city?"

"Are you using a fictitious name?"

"Is this correspondence illegal?"

An order issued to postmasters by Dr. C. P. Grandfield, first assistant postmaster general, reads in part:

"The attention of postmasters at offices having city carrier service is called to paragraph 2, section 712, postal laws and regulations, compliance with which should prevent the improper use of the general delivery by residents. Postmasters at such offices may require all persons supposed to be residents to furnish in writing their names and addresses and statements of their reasons for preferring to be served at the general delivery."

"Minors calling at such offices may be requested to furnish the information indicated above and also the names of their parents, in order that the parents may be notified and have an opportunity to control the delivery of the mail to the extent authorized by section 642, postal laws and regulations."

"Postmasters at offices not having city carrier service may notify the parents of minors in all instances where it appears that the minors are calling at the general delivery for mail under objectionable circumstances."

TIME "VIA WIRELESS."

The new wireless station at Arlington which will be completed in about a month will act as a clock regulator for thousands of jewelers all over the country.

The right time as recorded at the naval observatory will be flashed all along the coast and as far west as the system will reach. The towers are expected to communicate with vessels three thousand miles at sea, but the exact distance they will command over land has not been calculated to's exactness. It is believed that messages will be recorded at least 1,500 miles inland.

Many large jewelry stores have notified the navy department that they intend to install wireless receivers so they can get the right time regularly "via wireless."

TO MODIFY BROOK TROUT.

Uncle Sam is going to try to produce a trout that can live and prosper in the warm water of the sluggish streams of the southern states. An experimental fish station will be established near Washington for that purpose. Congress has provided the money for the work.

The fishing brook trout is to be modified, domesticated and made to furnish more food and less sport for the human family. The experts of the bureau of fisheries hope to succeed in getting a trout that will fill the bill, but they recall the fact that many years ago fifty million Pacific coast salmon were planted in the Mississippi river and perished.

HUNT BIG METEORITE

Huge Mass of Iron Knocked Hole in Earth in Arizona

Such is Belief of Prof. Ellhu Thomson—Movement Started to Find Immense Piece of Ore Believed to Be Worth Millions.

Phoenix, Ariz.—About the origin of most of the craters of the earth's surface there is little dispute. They are of all sizes. We find them in the Sandwich Islands, with floors from three to four square miles in area. These have reminded Professor Pickering of nothing less than the ring craters on the moon. In Arizona, near Canon Diablo, is a crater-like depression 4,900 feet in diameter and 500 feet deep. The rim can be seen from a great distance, and such rims being called "buttes," this particular rim is known as Coon butte. The irregular contour of the rim is marked by broken rocks, some as large as a house. The outer slopes down to the plain are covered with similar masses, pieces of many tons weight having been broken thousands of feet away from the crater. But there is no lava about the butte, and this would seem summarily to dispose of the idea that Coon butte is the site of a volcano.

Dr. G. K. Gilbert many years ago suggested that the ring-shaped pits on the moon's surface were caused by the impact of giant meteorites, and for some time he held the view that Coon butte must have been formed in a similar manner. This view has of late been revived. Prof. Ellhu Thomson, in a letter to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, reminds us that the masses of iron flung down the outer slopes of the crater are sent to all parts of the world as meteoric iron. Mr. Barringer has spent considerable sums in exploration under the firm conviction that he will find a large amount of meteoric iron below the surface. So far he has been unsuccessful. It is calculated that 600 bore-holes, each costing about $400, will be necessary to make sure of finding the meteoric mass, assuming it to have been 500 feet in diameter.

The mass of the meteorite is estimated to have been at least five million tons. Of this the greater part would be iron, but 8 per cent, would be nickel, and there would be three million ounces of platinum-iridium, worth about twenty million sterling supposing the price to remain as at present, between $7 and $8 per ounce.

Arizona's Natural Beauty.

ounce. But this is not all. Assuming there is one-hundredth of 1 per cent. of diamond in the mass, one might count on the extraction of about 500 tons of diamond. Which may account for prospectors regarding the expenditure of a quarter of a million on bore-holes with some equanimity. Professor Thomson tells us that the Navajo Indians have a tradition that three large bodies fell from the sky, on the site of the crater and killed a large number of their tribe. They still repair to the crater for supplies of the white silica sand which they sprinkle around them at their ghost dances.

BIG FUEL SHIP IS LAUNCHED

U. S. Fuel Vessel Jupiter Is First Electrically Driven Seagoing Vessel.

Vallejo, Cal.—The United States fuel ship Jupiter, the first electrically driven sea-going vessel ever built and the largest ship of any description ever laid down on the Pacific Coast, was launched at the Mare Island Navy Yard. The Jupiter will make about 14 knots an hour. She is 572 feet long by 65 feet beam, draws 27 feet 6 inches, displaces 19,260 tons, and has carrying capacity of 12,500 tons of coal and 375,000 gallons of fuel oil. The keel was laid in October 16 last, and the hull has been built in record time, at a saving of nearly $100,000 over the appropriation of $1,200,000 allowed by Congress.

Power is supplied by a 14,000-horse power electric generator. Coal can be loaded from the Jupiter into a warship at the rate of 100 tons an hour, and duplex pumps will permit her to take in or pump out oil to another vessel at the rate of 120,000 gallons an hour.

Daniel Boone's Trail Still Exists.

The December American Magazine contains an extraordinary article entitled "Bumps of the Mountains," which is the story of a southern mountaineer who through almost unprecedented courage has built a college which he hopes is to go a long way toward remaking his own people. An interesting extract from the article follows, showing how Daniel Boone's trail through the Cumberland Mountains still exists:

"You can go back into the Cumberland country and find the trail where Boone crossed, following the waters, and see that region pretty much as he found it and as he left it, a country with a history arrested unwritten, waiting. The log cabin is the universal form of the home. You can find today the loom, the spinning wheel, the lard kettle, the candle mold, and the squirrel rifle, unchanged in a hundred years. The women there still wear sunbonnets and they still ride behind, horseback, with their lords and masters; still stand waiting at table while their lords and masters eat. Strange Elizabethan phrases of speech still linger. Hot bread still prevails, three meals a day and pork when they can get it. The men do not go west to pick up prairie lands, but toil laboriously with the ax on steep mountainsides to open the land, plow it precariously with single shovel plows or till it laboriously with hoes—men, women and children, with hoes. Farm machinery is unknown.

"You cannot believe, and surely cannot understand, these things without seeing them—cannot believe that this backward country is in America as you know it. But, having seen them, you understand why these side-tracked 'highlanders' log for more children to school. There are no schools, because there are no roads; no roads, because there are no taxes; no taxes, because there is no money; and, coming round again in a circle, no possible interchange of commodities, because there are no roads. There lies the wilderness of the old 'crossing' place of the Alleghenies as Boone saw it and left it."

It is proposed in Germany to indicate the character and purpose of all pipes in industrial plants by a distinctive color.

LIVED ON RAW EGGS

Mr. Richard's Experience With Different Diets. Peaches and Buttermilk for Three Years.

Cecilton, Md.—Mr. George Richards, of this place, during the past 12 years, has probably tried more different diets than the average person would ever use in a lifetime.

What he has to say about his experiments, must therefore be highly interesting to anyone suffering from indigestion or stomach troubles of any kind. He says: "For more than 12 years, I suffered with stomach troubles, and paid hundreds of dollars for doctor bills and medicines. I was also operated on for piles.

I lived on dried peaches and buttermilk for nearly three years. The only thing that would not give me pain was raw eggs. I was a physical wreck. I could not sleep, and was as near crazy as a man could well be. I must say that after taking two 25-cent packages of Theodor's Black-Draught, it did me more good than all I ever spent for other medicines. I have been working daily on the farm ever since, and I am as hard as iron. This purely vegetable remedy has been in successful use for more than 70 years. Try it. 'But be sure that it's 'Theodor's.'"

In judging a bank, always remember that it is Capital, Surplus and Undivided Profits that give security to the depositor, because that money is what stands between you as a depositor and any possible shrinkage in the securities held by the bank.

Says Women Practice Absurd Economies.

In the December Woman's Home Companion, a writer of a Christmas talk to girls entitled, "What Can We Afford?" says:

"Men tell us that girls and women practice absurd economies. I think we do. The majority of us have not yet learned to spend and buy; but perhaps that is only natural as yet. We have not spent and bought long enough to be very wise about it. I do not pretend to offer any strong defense. Foolish accounts, absurd expenditures! Dear me, yes. Here is a girl poorly nourished because she thinks she 'cannot afford' to spend money on the proper kind of food, and who 'cannot afford' the time for sufficient sleep and exercise, who nevertheless spends money on willow plumes, cheap jewelry, and perishable fineries with which to deck, mind you, this same body on which she has been practicing all kinds of harmful economies.

"Or even if one goes among the so-called brainier type, one is apt to find quite as absurd expenditures and economies, quite as poor judgment. Here is a girl—the type of poor student—who denies the body its proper nourishment and exercise and sleep, so as to deck the mind with what she conceives to be valuable intellectual furnishings; the girl who values an ephemeral college honor above health, an sacrifice for a bit of applause some of the really big values of life.

"One might go on indefinitely citing the different types of foolish and extravagant expenditures and foolish or extravagant economies. The girls who practice these economies have each one of them when one goes to the root of the matter, failed to take real values into account, that is all."

Location Near Charlie.

A location was made last week by the Riverside Oil Company of Dallas, Texas, on the A. H. Bevering land about 2 miles east and 1 mile north of the town of Charlie on what is known as Section 5. This is a new company organized for the purpose of making a thorough test for oil in that section and is backed by men who are thoroughly reliable for any venture they may undertake. The derrick lumber was hauled out Wednesday and the machinery is expected to arrive in the next few days. A rotary rig will be used and the drilling will be in charge of J. G. Wofford an old time Petrolia driller who has the confidence of the entire citizenship of Petrolia who know him.

This company has about four thousand acres under lease surrounding the well. The general manager, W. M. Stephenson is well known in the oil circles, and has written many interesting articles on the oil industry. Oil was found at a depth of 187 feet about 3 miles east of this location, on the John Dowler farm in 1905 but the oil was not in sufficient quantities at this depth to make the developing profitable.—Petrolia Round-Up.

More disappointing news comes from the Eeds farm. L. P. Hivick's offset, a short distance to the south from the original well, was dry yesterday afternoon in the Eeds sand. Following so closely on the heels of the Clint Wood dry hole, the Hivick failure makes things look somewhat discouraging, indicating as it does that the sand does not extend any distance to the southward. The Guffey-Wood well, to the southeast several hundred yards, is 25 feet from the sand this morning, with a fishing job.

The Five Rivers hole on the Campbell lease has been given up as dry at 1928 feet. Work of pulling the casing was started today.

THE 'GOOSE GIRL' WAS QUITE PLEASING

Play of Surpassing Interest and Presented by a Capable Company

"The Goose Girl," a dramatization of Harold McGrath's novel of that name, was presented to a large audience at the Wichita Theatre last night and proved quite pleasing. The play itself is one of surpassing interest and there was a good company to present it. The theme of the play is interwoven with good comedy and enough action to keep things stirring. There was a real good scrap in the third act, and several dramatic situations that were very interesting.

Victor Southerland as Arthur Carmichael acted in a way that found much favor, especially when he laughed, which was pretty often. Robert Ellis as Delirich and James Lewis as Grubach were also excellent, although the latter's undoubted Irishness showed through the veneer of the German part he played. J. M. Leaverton as Wallenstein and Charles Lynch as Hoffmeyer filled their roles most creditably. Miss Ackerman, in the title role and Miss Verton as the princess were pleasing in their parts. Miss Verton's work requiring much more histrionic effort than that of the goose girl. With few exceptions the company was an excellent one and the production very pleasing.

Ffberg Happenings.

What might have been a serious accident occurred in front of the school house Saturday, Nov. 9. G. H. Gebhart had left a team hitched to a wagon standing in front of the school house and went to his mail box. The carrier had failed to deliver a package at the box and stopped his horse beside the wagon and began to turn around to go back to the box, when the team became frightened and started down the road. Fortunately the carrier escaped unhurt as Mr. Gebhart caught the horse and kept him from running while his own team ran to Mr. McKinley's who stopped them. That Saturday must have been a good day for runaways as some drummers also had a narrow escape from one on the same day a short way from the first one. They were thrown from the buggy but were not seriously injured.

The Ladies Aid Society of Frisberg met at Mrs. Andries last Thursday and spent the day quilting.

Master Merrill Lancaster had a painful accident to his left eye last week. A weed seed penetrated the eye-ball almost to the inner part just below the sight. Dr. Walker extracted the seed and his treatment has been so skillful that the eye at this writing bids fair to fully recover without serious injury to the sight.

ORDINARY GAS GRATES and GAS LOGS ARE A FARCE

If you fix them to get heat you have to put up with fumes and moisture. If you fix them to avoid fumes you have to do with very little heat. When you figure that you pay from $15.00 to $25.00 for one of these useless ornaments it makes the Economy Fireplace Furnace Patented Jan. 31, 1911.

Seem very cheap in comparison. THE ECONOMY CIRCULATES HOT AIR LIKE A FURNACE HAS A LARGE RADIATING SURFACE PROVIDES A CHEERFUL GRATE FIRE IS ABSOLUTELY ODORLESS—NO SWEAT Because of the great amount of radiating surface and air circulation it Heats 3 to 5 Rooms It has no Imitators

The Economy Fireplace Heater

The gas flame first heats the fuel bed till it is incandescent. It glows like a hard coal fire and of itself is a powerful heating element. This fuel chamber is fully enclosed with mica doors like a hard coal base burner. The hot products and poisonous fumes from gas burning cannot come into the room. They pass up to the top then into the loop, down to bottom and up again and out, as shown in the picture. This not only heats a lot of surface very hot, but it retains the heat till the best parts are radiated.

Every Economy Furnace sale means another satisfied customer and friend of the Wichita Hardware Company who are selling this wonderful modern room warmer. Those who have not yet decided to order one of these furnaces should do so now, as we can obtain only a limited amount and the factory is several weeks behind on orders that are pouring from the different parts of the country.

These Furnaces are made in two sizes only, and at present our stock of the large size is almost exhausted but we are expecting another shipment within a few days and would be pleased to have your order now that we may have it installed before the real cold weather sets in.

Captain Bill Spurns Payment.
(New York American)

Captain Bill McDonald of the Texas Rangers who has served as body-guard to President-elect Wilson since Colonel Roosevelt was shot, started for home last night.

When he went to pay his farewell visit to Chairman McCombs, at domestic national headquarters, Mr. McDonald after expressing his gratitude for the ranger's protection, of the President-elect, rather hesitatingly asked: "Well, Captain, what do you owe me?"

"Nothing," snapped the Captain.

"But we have paid you to expense and inconvenience, and we must pay you something," Mr. McDonald urged.

"At least, let us pay your car fare and dining car bills from and to your Texas home. How much were they?"

"Oh, cut it out; I have money to spare," and the Captain thrust his other hand into a side pocket, and drew forth a huge roll of yellow bank notes.

In doing so, he unintentionally revealed a pearl-handled .44 calibre revolver, which hung from a belt. When onlookers admired it, he said: "Oh, that is just a dress up gun. I wouldn't wear that in Texas. If I had the boys, I would kid the life out of me."

"The only occasion on which I thought I might have to use this gun was when Governor Wilson told me I ran about the auto car the other night. I thought the Governor had been held up."

"And, do you know what the Governor said, Chairman? He kept saying, 'Captain Bill, are you hurt?' The Governor never thought of himself. He was alarmed only about me. Well, that's Wilson through and through. Always looking out for spare," and the Captain thrust his other

"You say you don't use your pearl-handled gun down Texas way?" suggested a questioner.

"Oh, no. There are no bad men in Texas now. There are more bad men right here in this city. If you don't believe it read the story of the Becker case."

Chairman McCombs went back to his desk in consultation with Col. E. M. House of Austin, Texas, who brought Captain Bill East to look out for Governor Wilson.

"I find that the car fare, berths and meals from and to your home cost about $192. Won't you let me pay you at least that amount?" pleaded Mr. McCombs again.

"Oh, yes, take it, Captain," urged Colonel House.

"Well, if you say so, we will take it and blow it in on a dinner," finally agreed Captain Bill with reluctance. "But I don't want anything for caring for Mr. Wilson. He has taught me more than I ever knew. I owe him everything. He owes me nothing. I predict he will be one of the greatest presidents we ever had."

quoth the ranger, as he unwillingly accepted the bills handed him by Mr. McCombs.

Secretaries Helping Communities.
Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 19.—For the benefit of several of the communities throughout the state they are building and improving their highways the Commercial Secretaries and Business Men's Association has secured from the post master general at Washington information regarding the establishment of rural routes. The first requirement of the Federal Government is that the community desiring a rural route shall first have good roads.

A petition for rural delivery must be made on the forms furnished by the department. These are supplied on application to the fourth assistant postmaster general (division of rural mails). Request for two or more routes should not be included in one petition, a separate petition for each route being required. A petition for a route 2 1/2 miles or more in length giving six times a week service must be signed by at least ten heads of families and for a shorter route by a proportionate number.

When a petition for rural mail service is filed and accepted it is referred for investigation by a post office inspector who visits the locality and rides over the proposed route, preparing a sketch map showing the general condition of the country and people.

His report is transmitted to the fourth assistant postmaster general (division of rural mails), and such action taken as the facts and circumstances warrant.

Persons desiring the benefits of service for a rural delivery route are required to furnish at their own expense for the reception of mail to be delivered or collected by the carrier. More than one family but not more than five families may use the same box, provided written notice of such agreement be filed with the postmaster at the initial post office. Each box must be erected by the roadside so that the carrier can easily have access to it without dismounting from his vehicle.

RELICS OF COLONIAL THANKSGIVING DINNERS

THANKSGIVING DAY! And in the halls and hotels and the boarding houses and mansions of America there is supposed to be a Thanksgiving dinner with turkey and cranberry sauce! People too poor to buy these luxuries of the rich can usually get them "in a basket" from some charity organization or go in a body and be fed by various associations which make it a point to see that epicurean patriotism is kept alive and nourished on this annual feast day.

And always there must be turkey! Army officers and soldiers of fortune have often told of the utter failure of the Thanksgiving dinner, served way off somewhere in exile, because the piece de resistance was substituted for by a chicken a bit of roast beef or a duck.

For turkey is synonymous with America. It and the Indians were both here before the white man. Historians, not above embellishing dry fact with a slight touch of folklore, insist that wild turkey was served at the very first Thanksgiving dinner in this country.

Whether it was roasted, boiled or baked, the chroniclers fail to relate. Certainly it was not stuffed withysters, nor redolent of chestnuts, nor flanked by the great quivering mounds of crimson transience which accompany it today of such a holiday. But it was turkey and was, from the very first—almost from the very first, that is—so identified with the day that some benighted citizens of unenlightened origin really think the day merely an excuse for the bird.

However, turkey became a feature of this historic meal so long ago that the reason is lost in oblivion. One is inclined to the opinion that necessity governed choice. Probably turkey was the only fowl running around loose.

At the original Thanksgiving Day the Mayflower folk did not even have turkey. Amidst a cargo of rare old furniture and rhum—that was to enrich and give social prestige to later generations they obtained and gave verbal thanks that they had been saved from the peril of the sea and permitted to find a home in the new land. Thanksgiving Day then was a fast day. Giving up every sort of occupation and spending the time in Bible reading and prayer, the Colonists regarded it as an annual occasion of much solemnity.

Not until thirteen years following the settling of Massachusetts did Thanksgiving Day receive official state cognizance, although it was generally observed by church going and after a few years of stern fasting—a better dinner than was served on week days. By degrees, the feature of the great Day became the dinner that always accompanied it. And thanks to the substantial manner in which things were fashioned in those times and so that propensity of the New Englander to save everything that wouldn't spoil, a very clear idea of the table arrangements and costumes of the guests can be had.

At the National Museum at Washington, D. C., there are several cases filled with clothing, details, cutlery, dishes and glassware which graced Thanksgiving feasts way back in Colonial days. On little tags attached to various articles are names of the great families of early New England, of New York and of Maryland and Virginia. The descendants of the pioneers have come to realize that the nomadic lives led now do not admit of proper caring for such precious relics and have entrusted them to the care of the Government.

In one exhibition case a table, set at an angle of forty-five degrees, shows the sort of chinaware and cut-glass used at a long gone Thanksgiving Day dinner by members of the Copp family. Nobody could mistake the purpose of the great blue china dish that ornaments the center of the table. In it the turkey was placed and served entirely as the French water expresses it.

No side dishes, with little dabs of this and that, marred the idea of plenty. The vegetable dishes all came upon the table and from them portions were placed in the saucers and plates shown with the service. First a soup tureen, of varicolored china ornamented by a griffin's head, was brought in. This and the long-handled pewter soup spoon are shown at the Museum. The soup plates held enough for three such helpings as will be fashionable this Thanksgiving Day.

After that came the dinner proper. Around the plates were arranged individual jelly dishes, with tops and little glass feet. Celery was placed in a huge round glass vase and ornamented the center of the table. The massive cut glass and china, general salt cellars would fill a modern germ crank with horror, but the Colonists thought them very effective.

Wine glasses were used in the early States of Maryland and Virginia, whose settlers were most cavaliers of England. It must be remembered, in the Copp collection these wine glasses have remarkably thick, stubby stems. Some meant for cordials of home make are slender and dainty in the body but supported by a stand not likely to be knocked over.

The squashes, hominy and parsnips, sweet and white potatoes, the roast pig and the various braided fruits, preserves and pickles, were all placed on the table as one course. There was no makeshift possible in such times. A dinner service had to be extensive and complete. Far more pieces of china were used at such a dinner than today—it was in the silverware that the shrinkage is perceptible.

Drinking glasses were either very thick and round with clumsy stands or straight and unornamented in any way. And in the early days most of the knives and forks, spoons and cream pitchers and sugar bowls were of pewter.

After the soup course and the roast plig—the luscious, home-cured ham was almost forgotten—the turkey was brought in by a grinning servant or by one of the family. Gray coats were placed beside the noble bird and the master of the house did the carving.

In the National Museum are specimens of the sort of horn handled curved blades knives and strong-pronged forks with which he did it. Everybody got a taste of white meat and everybody ate until eating became an effort. The more times one was "helped" the more popular one became with one's hostess. And afterwards there were tranquil talks, a prayer, if a minister happened to be present, and then the trip homeward.

When visiting on Thanksgiving Day first came into vogue most people went horse-back. And it is to this period that the majority of the quaint costumes shown at the museum in the Colonial collection belong. Maidens fair, who attended these dinners when railroads were not and ironway cars undreamed of—rode on a pillow plied behind the saddle, of a male relative or a fiancé.

Over at the Museum there is a very gay festive red-woolen opera tape back where the waist is joined by covered buttons. A typical Robespierre collar finishes the neck and dark back cuffs complete the sleeves. Frills of yellowed, real lace are in the case beside the coat. These latter ones adorned the neck and sleeves. With it was worn the pale yellow satin waist coat whose binding of heavily lined embroidered silver and gold tissue is a work of art and a marvel of patient stitching.

In pathetic contrast to these visions of plenty and elegance is the scene conjured up by the sight of George Washington's camp outfit! The entire collection of pewter pans, dishes, knives, forks and spoons can be put into the trunklike affair that was really a forerunner to the automobile lunch hamper. During the four years of the Revolution the Father of his Country was not always near a farm house or so situated that he might spend holidays with friends or even under a roof. That dreary winter at Valley Forge was one of dire privation. And from this little camp outfit Washington ate one of his Thanksgiving dinners.

Gradually the turkey has come to have but an unimportant part on the menu of the very rich and the very poor. A few thin uncooked slices are served to the multi-millionaire and a few thinly cut bits to the children of the pauper. But the great inheritance continues to enthrall like children over the golden-brown, steaming hot, fragrance of the Thanksgiving bird.

"Then you pour it out, let it cool and pound it, and then you put in it a thing that bores holes in it. Then you screw it together, and paint it, and put steam in it, and it goes splendidly, and they take it to a drafting room and make a blue-print of it."

NOT OFTEN It's seldom that you have a chance to buy genuine Michigan Sweet Cider, Boiled Cider and Apple Cider Jelly. We have received direct from the orchards of Michigan a shipment of these goods, and they are "as fine as silk." Cider Jelly is entirely different than anything else in this line and Southern Michigan and Northern Ohio is the only section we know of where it is produced. There is nothing as good to serve with meats. If you know what it is, we've said enough. If you don't, you have overlooked a bet. You will want some boiled cider for your Holiday cookery. Order the sweet cider while it's fresh.
