SEARCHING PROBE OF MULHALL'S CHARGES

HOUSE MAY JOIN SENATE IN INVESTIGATION OF SENSATIONAL DISCLOSURES

COUNTRY STIRRED

Manufacturers' Association "Lobby Field" Agent Tells Startling Story of Insidious Influence

By Associated Press

Washington, June 30.—A searching investigation by the senate and house ground system, not only by the senate committee, but also by a special committee of the house also, promises to be the first result of the sensational charges by Martin H. Mitchell, who claims to have been the general field lobbyist for the National men named in the published statement allegation that representatives, senators and high officials of the government had been reached or influenced and that the lobby conducted its operations from a room in the capital, paid money to employes there and took an active hand in making up committees and went actively into campaigns to defeat congressmen who opposed legislation the lobby wanted, have thrown congressional circles into an uproar.

Statements From Those Named.

Congressmen named in the Mulhall charges are issuing statements. Some of them denounce the allegations as "malicious lies." Speaker Clark last night issued a statement confirming the charge that the lobby had worked for his defeat. Many congressmen mentioned, however, who feel that they have been brought in without any specific charges against them, declare they will not be satisfied with the senate lobby committee's investigation alone, but will insist on a select committee of the house to sit on the charges. The senate committee, however, intends to lose no time. A subpoena already served on Mulhall is to be followed for others for the men named in the published statement.

To Spread Drag Net.

Chairman Overman believes that when his process servers get through they will have spread a drag net to bring in material for an investigation covering the last ten years' doings at the capitol at least. If there is any doubt of the senate committee's authority Chairman Overman intends to have the senate extend its powers.

President Wilson's Attitude.

Discussing the Mulhall statement today, the president said he believed the tariff lobby had ceased "to embarrass anybody but itself." When the president made his first declaration that a numerous and insidious lobby was operating in Washington he had no idea that such charges as made by Mulhall would be brought out, but he added he was in favor of investigating all charges and had no doubt the senate committee would have a free hand.

The president said the accusations in the Mulhall statement had been called to his attention just before his publication. It was learned today that Senator Overman's attention also had been called to a portion of the charges. Mr. Overman announced the full investigation of the Mulhall charges has been agreed upon by his committee.

Senate Committee to Resume July 3

It was decided no meeting of the committee will be held until July 3. Charges by Chairman Lovett of the Union Pacific, that certain members of the senate had been implicated in an investigation of the Mulhall charges will be taken up first and the Mulhall charges next.

Representative Shirley said today he proposes to ask the house on Wednesday to authorize an investigation of its own, and that he will bring up the question as a matter of the highest privilege, affecting the house membership. Chairman Henry of the rules committee declared that any resolution for investigation of the Mulhall charges referred to his committee, undoubtedly would be acted on immediately. He favors an investigation.

Nature of Disclosures.

The nature and extent of the disclosures that are expected were outlined in an article published over the sworn signature of Mr. Mulhall in the New York World and the Chicago Tribune. The statement reports to be Mr. Mulhall's personal history as the representative from 1903 to 1912 of the National Association of Manufacturers and bribed with names of congressmen whom he alleged were "subversive" or who were punished for their opposition to the legislation favored by the association. Allegations that he helped defeat congressmen who opposed the manufacturers, that his organization had spent thousands of dollars to elect men expected to be sympathetic to their influences; that he had aided in securing favorable members that handled labor, and that his assistants had used great efforts to secure the establishment of a Federal tariff commission in 1908 as a means of delaying tariff revision are contained in the long article under Mulhall's name.

Publication First Information

The facts alleged in the striking story of legislative lobbying and political campaigns were not laid before Chairman Overman prior to their publication. He declared today, however, that the story was so circumstantial in its details that he expected the committee to go to the bottom of the allegations and to uncover any new angle of "insidious lobbying" or "mercenary political campaigning" that might be disclosed.

The Mulhall article named many former and present members of Congress who were alleged to have been active agents in support of legislation desired by the National Association of Manufacturers. It also named employees of Congress who had been retained to secure information and alleged that even the page boys of the House of Representatives were paid to pick up information about proposed legislation.

The writer said he had spent over $200,000 in his lobbying work, that he had conducted State and Congressional campaigns, helped to break up labor unions and had personal knowledge of the extent to which influence exerted by his assistants had swayed legislation.

Anti-Lobby Legislation Probable

The charge of Mulhall that former Representative "Jim" Watson of Indiana, former Representative Littlefield of Maine and several other former members of the House were employed by the National Association of Manufacturers to push its legislative program in Washington will undoubtedly be thoroughly sifted either by the present senate lobby committee or by a committee of the House appointed for that purpose. It is altogether probable that one of the results of the Mulhall confession will be legislation by Congress barring former members and senators from taking up lobby work in Washington, at least for several years after they have quit Congress.

For years the most effective and successful members of the Washington lobby have been former Senators and members, their privilege of admission to the floor of the Senate and House being one of their most valuable assets to those who employed them. It is not improbable there will be a strong demand that the privilege of the floor be withdrawn from former legislators in future. Abuse of the franking privilege is also involved in the Mulhall exposure.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE OVER APPOINTMENTS.

Washington, June 30.—President Wilson made a sudden trip to the capitol just after two o'clock this afternoon. With Secretary Tumulty he whirled off from the White House offices bearing a large sheet of papers. The purpose of his visit was not known then, but when he arrived at the capitol, he immediately began conferences with senators over appointments.

OVER 20,000 VETERANS OF NORTH AND SOUTH SHAKE HANDS AND REJOICE AT GETTYSBURG

By Associated Press

Gettysburg, June 30.—Twenty-five thousand veterans in blue and gray swayed today on the field of Gettysburg. Veterans were up long before sun-up singing war time songs and the tented city echoed with the "rebel yell" and the coarser shout of his Yankee brother.

The regular army men in charge of the camp expected 15,000 veterans to arrive today and were prepared to handle more than 40,000 by tonight.

"I ain't seen a rebel who didn't charge Round Top and take it all by himself," said a lanky Southerner. "No, and I ain't seen a Yank who didn't break up Pickett's charge by himself," said a Pennsylvania.

The only event today was a joint reception by survivors of Gen. Bradford's cavalry and the survivors of Gen. Wheeler's cavalry to citizens of Gettysburg.

SUBMIT PLAN OF DISSOLUTION

U. S. COURT AT ST. PAUL TAKES UP CONSIDERATION OF AGREEMENT IN MERGER CASE

OUTLINE OF THE PLAN

S. P. Shareholders Will be Required to Take Oath When Buying Southern Pacific Stock

By Associated Press

St. Paul, Minn., June 30.—The plan for the dissolution of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific merger which the Attorney General McReynolds with the approval of President Wilson has agreed upon with officials of the railroad, was submitted to the United States court today. The plan proposes that the Union Pacific shall exchange $28,000,000 of its $126,000,000 holdings in the Southern Pacific for the Pennsylvania's entire holdings in the Alabama and Ohio, virtually an equal amount, and that the remaining $88,000,000 shall be sold to the general public through a trust company.

No present shareholder in the Union Pacific, continuing as such, may buy any Southern Pacific stock and each purchaser would be obliged to make affidavit that he was not acting in concert with agreement with anyone else buying Southern Pacific to secure a new control for the Union Pacific.

The plan allows until January 1, 1916 for complete dissolution. The transaction would begin on Nov. 1, 1913, and if not completed by January 1, 1916, the court would direct the disposition of any Southern Pacific stock remaining untraded. The court today was asked, before approving the plan, to allow any party to interpose an objection.

NEW CLOSING LAW BEING OBSERVED

MANY SALOONISTS BEGAN OBSERVANCE OF NEW LAW TODAY, TAKING NO CHANCES

PATRONS ARE SURPRISED

Those Accustomed to Early Morning's Morn'g Rudely Shocked by Closed Doors

Devotees of John Barleycorn who butted their heads against impenetrable doors before six o'clock this morning in their eagerness to relieve the drouth that had existed over Sunday didn't learn for some time why the saloons that had been opening at five a. m. were closed until after six. "What kind of an election are they having today?" is reported to have been the query in the vicinity of more than one saloon between five and six a. m. today.

It wasn't an election that kept the saloon doors closed an hour after the usual time for the opening. It was the new closing law which makes the open hours for saloons from six a. m. until 9:30 p. m.

It is the opinion of most authorities that this law does not go into effect until Tuesday morning, but as there has been some doubt expressed about whether it became effective today or tomorrow, many of the saloon men are taking no chances and begun the observance of the new law this morning. Several Wichita Falls saloons, it is reported, will close tonight at 9:30.

DALLAS SALOONISTS BEGIN OBSERVANCE OF NEW LAW.

Dallas, Texas, June 30.—Dallas saloon men have announced that they will close at 9:30 tonight in observance of the early closing law passed by the last legislature. Austin, Texas, June 30.—The ninety-day closing bill, as passed by the Thirty-third Legislature and approved by the governor, goes into effect at midnight tonight, thereby allowing the saloon keepers to keep open to night, contrary to the general belief. The governor today stated the bill was to go into effect ninety days after the date of adjournment of the legislature, which was 12:30 noon of April 1. This would make the law effective at 12:00 a. m. Tuesday. Controller Lane answered several telegrams to the effect that the law was effective at noon today. He said, however, he believed the legislature to have adjourned on March 31.

LOGGING SOUTH END OF COLORADO TO GULF ROAD

D. E. Thomas, ex-county commissioner of precinct No. 1, whose farm is located four miles east of the city, was in town today and says he has finished threshing his 275-acre wheat crop and that the yield was from 12 to 22 bushels per acre, perhaps an average of 16 bushels per acre for the entire crop. In Mr. Thomas' judgement, the 1913 wheat crop is the best that has been made in this county since 1891. He attributes the success of wheat farmers to early and deep plowing, and also to climatic conditions. There was not an over abundance of rainfall for the 1913 crop, but the atmospheric conditions for wheat farming have been ideal, and for what was lacking in rainfall was made up for in atmospheric conditions.

Distribution of Elk Begins

ON HER NATIVE HEATH

THE long-promised distribution of elk from Jackson's Hole and Yellowstone National Park has begun. Thousands of the animals are now being rounded up by cowboys on the overstocked winter range in Wyoming and Montana, and are being shipped by the railroad to states that have sent in requests for them.

A carload of eighty elk, rounded up on the Yellowstone Park region and shipped from Gardiner, Mont., the northern gateway to the Yellowstone, arrived in Denver the other day on their way to Arizona. These elk will be turned out upon their new range in Arizona. They will be protected from hunters, under state laws, and will be given every opportunity to increase.

In the last few weeks herds of elk have been sent in this way to Pennsylvania, West Virginia, North Dakota, Washington, Oregon and California. Many other states have put in application for elk, and will be provided with shipments as fast as the animals can be rounded up. It was prophesied that, when this plan was adopted, the elk would not stand shipment, but the percentage of loss has been small. Only one of the Arizona consignments died en route. It is necessary to give the elk a rest every day. They are unloaded from the cars and put into convenient corrals, and after a few hours' rest they proceed on their journey. In this way the loss is comparatively small.

Prevent Extinction.

The government was forced to adopt this plan to prevent the elk in the west from going the way of the buffalo to extinction. Most of the elk in the Rocky Mountains had ranged north until they reached the Jackson's Hole region south of Yellowstone Park. Here they congregated in vast herds. The number of elk in this region has been estimated at from 25,000 to 100,000 head, but D. C. Nowlin, former game commissioner of Wyoming, who is now at the head of the work of transportation carried out by the government biological survey, estimates that the smaller number is nearer correct.

Last year congress appropriated a considerable sum for the care and feeding of the Jackson's Hole elk, which were starving in the deep snows. Government employes, aided by ranchmen, carried hay to the elk ranges, where they found conditions appalling, especially in the early spring. Hundreds of calves, as well as older elk, were dying of starvation. The lives of thousands of elk were saved by feeding, but it was soon demonstrated that this measure of relief was only temporary. It would entail a tremendous expense to keep up the work of feeding, so it was determined to distribute the elk among the states that put in applications for herds and that were willing to pay the expenses of transportation and guarantee protection to the animals after arrival.

Many states have taken advantage of this offer. Probably 1,500 elk have been shipped, and this number will be tripled before the shipping season has ended. The herds are rounded up in the deep snows and driven to Gardiner. Ranchmen, state game wardens, forest rangers and Yellowstone Park employes are assisting in the work. It is easy to round up the elk, which become "stalled" in the deep snows. During recent seasons they have become comparatively used to men. They have descended to the valleys and have fed from all the unprotected haystacks of the Wyoming ranchers. It did not take them long to become used to the visits of the men who composed the government rescue parties, and they would follow the hay sleds for miles. Sometimes, where hay could not be carried on horseback, owing to the depth of the snow and the rough character of the range, alfalfa was "packed" to the elk on snow shoes. The animals soon learned the friendly nature of the visits of these snowshoe men. All these things have made it comparatively easy to round up the animals for shipping purposes.

Mostly Yearlings.

"Most of the elk we are shipping," said Robert Downey, who is in charge of the transportation work, "are yearlings, averaging from 300 to 400 pounds in weight. The state which is to receive the elk is required to pay all expenses of capture and shipment. All the elk in the Yellowstone region are fat and in prime condition this year. They look much better than last year, and consequently are in first-class condition for shipping. The railroad journey is hard on them. Once on their new range, they will become used to changed conditions in a short time, and they ought to do well in their new homes."

The scenes in the elk region of Wyoming during the last two years are described as heartrending. The starving elk, driven to the lowlands by the high snows in the mountains, found most of the range fenced in by ranchers. In many cases they broke down fences and demolished the hay stacks of the ranchers. They ate the willows along the streams, and gradually grew weaker and weaker, and finally sank down to die in the snow. Immediately they were rounded upon by magpies and other birds, and their eyes were picked out, in many cases before the elk were dead.

In all, the government has appropriated close to $100,000 for elk protection. The appropriation is generally approved, as it will result in replenishing the depleted elk ranges of many states, and will give the fast-disappearing elk of this country a new lease of life.

QUEER VERDICTS IN FRANCE

Aesthetic Crime Not Punished, but if Work is Clumsy Courts Are Severe.

A French humorous paper has been at pains to compile two parallel columns of verdicts rendered in the courts of France. And very funny reading is highly developed. As a guide to would-be criminals, the list should be invaluable. Do you wish to love? Do so with all lightness of heart. Joseph Frechet did it, and left the court with out a stain on his character, though rather a big one on his knife. But a motor car tire is sacrosanct, as Mme. Maret-Turel discovered to her cost. Stick a knife into that—and who has not felt the temptation at one time or other—and it will mean four months' hard labor. At least, that is what it meant for madam. If your sense of humor is highly developed you have quite a number of ways in which you can give it harmless vent—harmless, that is, for yourself. Take the case of the grocer's apprentice who made a jolly bonfire in his master's shop. It cost the master $10,000, but the apprentice had his fun for nothing. There was the asylum-nurse who put the refractory patient in a bath of boiling water and kept her there till parboiled. We really think that was carrying the joke a little too far, but the jury, no doubt, considered that the bounds of legitimate humor had not been passed, for they brought in a verdict of acquittal. Husband-killing is no murder, as you well know. Only the wife must shoot straight. The jury does not like a botched job. Thus, Mme. Bourdillon, who could do no better with a six-chambered revolver than shoot her husband in one of his big toes, got six months for her bad marksmanship. So did Mme. Sarrafin, and lucky to get off so lightly, for she missed her lover altogether. Again, there was Leon Duvivelle, who tried to bite off his wife's nose. He was condemned to eighteen months for this vulgarity. Another man who had the decency to use a razor for the same genital purpose was, of course, acquitted. And the moral of it all is that if you must commit a crime let it be one which by its finish or its humor will appear to the aesthetic susceptibilities of jury or judge.—Boston Transcript.

FAMILY AVOIDS SERIOUS SICKNESS

By Being Constantly Supplied With

Theford's Black-Draught.

McDuff, Va.—"I suffered for several years," says Mrs. J. B. Whitaker, of this place, "with sick headache, and stomach trouble.

Ten years ago a friend told me to try Theford's Black-Draught, which I did, and I found it to be the best family medicine for young and old.

I keep Black-Draught on hand all the time now, and when my children feel a little bad, they ask me for a dose, and it does them more good than any medicine they ever tried.

We never have a long spell of sickness in our family, since we commenced using Black-Draught."

Theford's Black-Draught is purely vegetable, and has been found to regulate weak stomachs, aid digestion, relieve indigestion, colic, wind, nausea, headache, sick stomach, and similar symptoms.

It has been in constant use for more than 70 years, and has benefited more than a million people.

WOMEN'S LEGISLATION IN CALIFORNIA PASSES

Effect of Suffrage Amendment is Seen in Many New Laws Passed Recently

Sacramento, Cal., June 30—The California legislature that has just adjourned was the first to meet since women got the ballot. It is said to have made a finer record in the way of advanced legislation desired by women than the legislatures of the past twenty-five years put together. Here is a list of its main achievements:

The mothers' pension law, granting aid to needy parents in order to keep their children at home rather than have them committed to institutions.

The health certificate law, requiring a certificate of freedom from venereal diseases of all men before obtaining marriage licenses.

The minimum wage law, creating a commission to investigate the conditions of industry of women and children, with power to invoke a minimum wage in industries paying less than a living wage.

The red light abatement and injunction law, placing the responsibility of disorderly houses upon the owners and lessors rather than upon the inmates, and forbidding such houses.

The joint guardianship law, giving mothers equal rights over their minor children.

The juvenile court law, separating dependent from delinquent children.

The extension of the eight-hour law for women to include workers in apartment houses and nurses in training.

The age of consent law, raising the age from 16 to 21.

The State Training School for Girls, providing a separate institution for girls, with the most approved correctional methods and thorough vocational training.

The teachers' pension law, granting pensions of $500 a year to all teachers who have been in service thirty years.

The net container, specifying that packages shall show the amount of net contents.

The weights and measures law, providing for a complete standard of weights and measures and regular inspection of dealers.

The Roberts bill, forbidding the destruction of any foodstuff fit for human consumption.

The state civil service law, bringing practically all state employees under the merit service.

The creation of a state housing and immigration commission to prepare for the coming of immigrants with the opening of the Panama Canal.

Prison reform. All sentences except for murder are made intermediate; straitjackets and cold showers are prohibited, and arrangements are made for the payment of wages to state's prison convicts and for assistance to discharged prisoners.

The milk inspection law, providing for strict regulation of dairies.

The white slave law, prohibiting traffic in women between counties.

The tuberculosis law, providing for the reporting of all such cases.

Amendment to the liquor laws, forbidding the sale of liquor between 2 a. m. and 6 a. m.

Creation of a commission to investigate the question of old age pensions.

The workman's compensation law, requiring compulsory compensation for injuries, and establishing a system of state industrial insurance.

The water conservation law, establishing a water commission with authority over all water in the state. Conservation is a subject in which the women of California have taken keen interest.

The psychopathic probe law, providing for the parole of persons mentally abnormal but not dangerously insane, under the custody of psychopathic parole officers.

The bill board law, limiting bill boards to ten feet in height and prohibiting spite fences of more than that height.

The bastard law, requiring fathers to help support illegitimate children.

A law providing for the sterilization of inmates of insane asylums and certain convicts.

The creation of mosquito control districts.

The requirement of the wife's signature to legalize the assignment of a man's wages.

The amendment to the child labor law, raising the age of child workers from 12 to 15.

KLEINMAN-DAN
NUPTIALS AT FORT WORTH.

The marriage of Philip Kleinman and Miss Rae Dan was solemnized at the Taylor Street Synagogue in Fort Worth Sunday evening at seven o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Dr. Epstein of New York. Attending the bridal couple were Will Kleinman, as best man, and Miss Bessie Dan as maid of honor. Sam Goldstein, Charles Geronki, Isador Bowald and Julius Dan, and the bridesmaids were Miss Gertrude Fox, Miss Coles, Miss Coplan and Miss Brodsky. The flower girls were Little Misses Sylvia Kleinman, Theresa Kleinman, Cohen, and Ruth Goldsmith.

The orthodox Jewish ring ceremony was employed. For the occasion the church was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and garlands of ribbon, while owing to the heads of the wedding party a large bell canopy was swung. Over 300 guests were present.

Previous to the ceremony a sumptuous wedding dinner was served to the immediate relatives at the home of the bride's parents.

Following the wedding the guests repaired to Arion Hall, where the reception was held, and dancing and music enjoyed.

Mr. Kleinman is among the best known and popular young business men of Wichita Falls. He has resided here something over two years and in that time has built up a friendship with all with whom he has come in contact. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dan of Fort Worth. She has visited in Wichita Falls on several occasions and is a most charming young woman who will be welcomed to the society of the city.

The young couple left Monday morning for a month's visit to New York and Boston.

Attending the wedding from this city were: Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Art, Mr. and Mrs. J. Cohen, Will Kleinman, Paul Green, Harry Rajner and Walter Garner.

LARGE ATTENDANCE FOR TONIGHT'S DANCE AND BANQUET

About 150 reservations have been made for tonight's dance and banquet at Lake Wichita, when the Nobles of this city and a number from neighboring towns will gather at that resort for a pleasant session. Practically every Shriner in this city, most of them with their ladies, will attend the affair and plans have been made for an elaborate affair.

The car will leave town at eight o'clock and the banquet will start promptly at nine. After the banquet dancing will be enjoyed until a late hour.

BOTH GAINED.
Man and Wife Fatten on Grape-Nuts.

The notion that meat is necessary for real strength and the foundation of solid flesh is no longer as prevalent as formerly.

Excelsior meat eaters are usually sluggish a part of the time because they are not able to fully digest their food, and the undigested portion is changed into what is practically a kind of poison that acts upon the blood and nerves, thus getting all through the system.

"I was a heavy meat eater," writes an Illinois man, "and up to two years ago, was in very poor health. I suffered with indigestion so that I only weighed 95 pounds.

Then I heard about Grape-Nuts food and decided to try it. My wife laughed at me first, but when I had gained 25 pounds and felt so fine, she thought she would eat Grape-Nuts, too. Now she is fat and well and has gained 40 pounds. We never have indigestion any more and seldom feel the desire for meat.

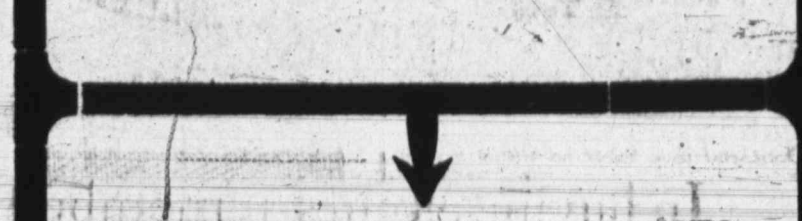

"A neighbor of ours, 68 years old, was troubled with indigestion for years and was a heavy meat eater. Now, since he has been eating Grape-Nuts regularly, he says he is well and never has indigestion.

"I could name a lot of persons who have rid themselves of indigestion by changing from a heavy diet to Grape-Nuts. There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read the "Little Book," "The Road to Wellville," in packages.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true and full of human interest.

Wichita Falls, Texas, June 30, 1913

Tomorrow is July 1st. Watch out for bill collectors.

The glorious privilege and personal right of getting soured after 9:30 p. m. will be abridged tonight. The new closing law goes into effect tomorrow.

These nice rains may be doing some injury to the fine crops of wheat and oats that are in the shock and ready to be threshed, but this small injury is largely overbalanced by the great benefit they are to the other growing crops.

Wichita Falls is growing in population and wealth as never before. This is due largely to the fact that her citizens are all city builders and boosters, and when that is true almost any city can grow and prosper.

Republican Leader Mann went after President Wilson and Attorney General McReynolds pretty lively in an address before the House of Representatives. He seemed to think that money and political influence had something to do with the California white slave and fuel company cases being postponed which caused the resignation of United States Attorney Mr. McNab. We don't believe it, but if the Attorney General did show a little favor to his fellow worker it is nothing more than what the majority of folks would have done. So far as President Wilson is concerned he cannot be justly censured in the matter. However, he did right to accept the resignation of McNab. If a fellow wants to quit his job why let him quit. That is good doctrine most any where you apply it.—Abilene Reporter.

The trouble with McNab was that he knew that his official head was to come off sooner or later, and he was watching for an opportunity to catch his superior officer napping, and it came. Attorney General McReynolds, however much he might have been open to censure for his negligence to business, did the proper thing in advising the President to accept McNab's resignation on the spot, and appoint some one to prosecute the case in the court house and not through the newspapers. McNab wanted notoriety, and he got it, but he lost his job a little sooner than he anticipated. Doubtless he had worked himself up to that point where he thought President Woodrow Wilson would not dare accept his resignation under the circumstances, but there is where he deceived himself. We now have a President who is not afraid to do anything that he thinks ought to be done and that will result to the good of the government. McNab simply made the mistake of not studying the President's disposition a little closer.

All Are Blind Who Can't See Needs of Fellow Men

By HELEN KELLER, Famous Blind and Deaf Girl

NO one of us can do anything alone. We are BOUND TOGETHER. I do not like this world as it is. I am trying to make it a little more as I would like to have it. Perhaps you are thinking how blind I have been. You have your eyes, and you behold the sun, and yet you are MORE BLIND THAN I AM. It was the hands of others that made this miracle in me. Without my teacher I should be nothing. WE LIVE BY AND FOR EACH OTHER.

WE ARE ALL BLIND AND DEAF UNTIL OUR EYES ARE OPEN TO OUR FELLOW MEN. IF WE HAD A PENETRATING VISION WE WOULD NOT ENDURE WHAT WE SEE IN THE WORLD TODAY. THE LANDS, THE LIFE, THE MACHINERY BELONG TO THE FEW. ALL THE WORK THEY DO GAINS FOR THE WORKERS A MERE LIVELIHOOD. STRANGE THAT WE DO NOT SEE IT, AND WHEN WE DO WE ACCEPT THE CONDITION IN BLIND CONTENT.

The rich are willing to do everything for the poor except give them their rights. They say the workers are not thrifty enough. If the worker is not thrifty enough and does not save it is because the greatest part of what he produces GOES TO SOME ONE ELSE who does the saving.

Newspaper Reflects the Reader

By Dr. TALCOTT WILLIAMS, Director School of Journalism, Columbia University

THE newspaper is a human agency. Like all human agencies, it HAS ITS LIMITATIONS. It has its relations and affairs that limit it, just as men have relations and affairs that limit them. It is part of the great web of social life, and that is why it is valuable.

Every day of the year every newspaper prints news, opinions and appeals of which many men related to it in the business world disapprove.

IT IS THE READERS THAT COUNT, AND, AFTER ALL, A NEWSPAPER IS WHAT ITS READERS MAKE IT. IT IS THE KIND OF NEWSPAPER IT IS BECAUSE THAT IS THE KIND THE PEOPLE WHO BUY IT LIKE.

The newspaper account is FAR more accurate than the average word that passes from mouth to mouth among men. In the main, the newspaper is far more truthful than the community it represents, and as for righteousness the newspaper is BETTER THAN THE AVERAGE OF ITS COMMUNITY.

Intermittent showers have been falling in Wichita Falls a divinity since Saturday night and the total rainfall for June has been increased by about half an inch since Friday. The rain is causing wheat farmers some uneasiness as it is feared the shocked grain will sprout if the wet weather does not cease, but whatever damage is done in this way will be more than offset by the benefits to corn and cotton.

"Our organization has stopped much of the gambling that formerly went on here to quite an extent among the boys," said Skvirsky, in speaking of the association. "The gambling habit with newsboys probably starts from seeing older boys who hang around the streets play games of chance. "Mr. Sier, a councillor of the association and a former president of the Chicago Newsboys' association, put before a meeting of our association an ingenious plan for a newsboys' police squad. We adopted his idea and divided Main street, the newsboys' principal source of revenue, into wards, each policed by newsboys. Center Fielder Pulls Down Line Drive With Bare Hand—Matthews Pitches Good Game

Special to the Times

Texarkana, Texas, June 30.—Wichita Falls fell before the Twin City bunch Sunday afternoon in one of the prettiest games of the season; score 2 to 1. Pate was on the mound for the locals and the lad was given faultless support at all stages of the game. O'Neal of the locals robbed Wichita Falls of two extra base hits by a long run and a one-hand stab of hard-hit balls. Brown, center fielder of Wichita Falls, robbed Sorrey of what looked like a three-bagger by catching a line drive in his bare hand. With the exception of two innings, when men reached third, Pate was never in danger. Milam, center fielder for the locals, chopped off a runner at home on a perfect peg from a deep field. Matthews pitched a good game for the visitors and was given ragged support in one inning. The score:

Denvers of Fort Worth Victorious Over Locals Second Time This Season

In a clean, snappy game the Denvers of Fort Worth Sunday afternoon, for the second time this season defeated the Wichita Falls Clerks. ### FIRE MARSHAL ASKS FOR SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

Calls Attention to Dangers From Fire if Fireworks are Not Prohibited

For the protection of life, the saving of property and the prevention of fire, it is my duty as Fire Marshal to remind you and ask your aid for a safe and sane observance of the Fourth of July. Decorations ought not to be allowed on electric wires, fixtures or globes; keep your premises clean and free from rubbish; at all times, help me as Fire Marshal and our volunteer fire boys to keep down fires by eliminating the cause. Statistics show that Texas has been more fortunate than other states insofar as injury to both property and life in Fourth of July celebrations is concerned, but that circumstance can not be accepted as a guarantee that our good luck will continue indefinitely. Therefore, it behooves us as citizens and the business men in particular to use due caution at all times and place to maintain this good record. There is an ordinance in regard to the use of fireworks in the fire limits of the city, and I believe the officers will see that the law is rigidly obeyed. Yours very truly, J. C. WARD, Fire Marshal.

THEY are one of the white man's burdens

They have all come under the yoke, at one time or another—either his sons, brothers, or husbands. No luck is immune, unless it be such lucky creatures as orphans and old bachelors. The masculine mind rebels and inveighs again it with surprising unanimity and great forcefulness. But woman will wear what Dame Fashion and the dressmaker create, and the laws of the universe are not lightly to be set at naught, as was discovered, all in good time, by young Mr. and Mrs. Hayward.

They had been married a little over a year, and had fared extremely well, considering. Naturally, there had been differences of opinion, slight quarrels due to the instinctive independence and intolerance of youth, but nothing of any serious import. Withal, the fates had been kind and conditions favorable. Their worldly circumstances were, to say the least, perfectly satisfactory; in fact, the very circumstances of the average bride-to-be, who expatiates to her friends in such words as these: "Of course, you know, we won't go out at all, and we've taken the tiniest flat, etc." Little humbugs, whose airs of sham poverty give to their hearers complete assurance of at least five thousand a year. But it digress.

In Mr. Hayward, even the most careful mother-in-law could have found very little at which to cavil. To all outward appearances, he was the sociable husband par excellence. Also, he was undoubtedly generous. But beneath this shining exterior was concealed a grave fault, as yet unknown to his wife. Let it be breathed softly—he did not like to "hook her dresses up the back," in the parlance of the day. As a matter of fact, in the opinion of an expert, the operation is more easily performed from the top

HOOKS AND EYES

By Henry M. Hoyt, Jr.

October had come and gone, in its story of golden earth and sky; with almost all of Mrs. Hayward's dress allowance for the following month. The riches of her trousseau had quite given out, and, besides, there were so many fascinating things in the modistes' shops. In spite of her financial condition, she had set her eyes and her heart upon a certain light-blue creation in the establishment of one whose windows bore the cryptic legend, "Lucille, Robes et Manteaux." Whether the garment in question was a "robe" or a "manteau" I should be hard pressed to tell you, but suffice it to say that it was a dream of something over something else, and "princesse," whatever that may chance to be. Princesses gowns and Steve had always adored her in light blue. Therefore, she had gone so far as to have it tried on, and had found that it fitted beautifully—as though it were predestined for her, she thought.

"Just a very few alterations," purred the siren voice of Lucille. "Madam has such a girlish figure."

Would he buy it for her? It was worth trying, at any rate. But, of course, she must lead him up to it gently, and contrive matters so that the suggestion would seem to come from him. Still pondering upon ways and means of beguilement, so absorbed that she hardly saw the crowds through which she passed, she returned home.

Now, Mr. Hayward usually lunched downtown, but on that particular day he had to see a man on business in the hotel district, and expecting to be detained for several hours, had told his office-boy that he would not be back until three o'clock. When the business was settled he found that it was only a little after twelve, so he decided to surprise his wife by dropping in on her. It was only a short time after her arrival that she heard his key in the outside door, and ran to meet him.

"Anything the matter, Stevie?" she asked as he kissed her.

"Nothing, dear, except that I've come to take pot-luck with you," he answered.

"What luck would be nearer to the truth?"

"The both laughed, and their lunch passed off as hilariously as a picnic. Afterward she walked a short way downtown with him, and, behold, a few minutes found them both gazing into a window which bore the cryptic legend, "Lucille, Robes et Manteaux."

"Isn't it beautiful!" breathed Mrs. Hayward.

"Which?" asked the uninitiate male.

"The blue one on the left. I think it's perfectly lovely."

This should have been enough, Mr. Hayward was about to tell his wife to ### buy the gown by all means, if she

He had trouble with the twelfth hook, and gave it a tug to bring it into place. Just as he succeeded, the five hooks above came undone simultaneously. When he turned to discipline the first of these, the robe became general, and he bit back an exclamation. He could be seen to work to rally his forces, and virtuously sought his own inclination to let the eyes go, and fasten the hooks in the lace on the back of the dress. Two more and the job would be finished. But there was trouble still in store. One of these hooks had been bent fat, and in attempting to remedy this he ran it under his thumb nail and swore.

"What makes you take so long, and why are you swearing so?" asked Mrs. Hayward, and which would make her very little real difference. Now, this is hardly the most tactful way to address a long-suffering man, who has been struggling with a refractory gown for several minutes. But the memory of the modiste's wince doled raked, and she did not stop to think. It was a match to the magazine of her husband's temper. He drew a long breath and replied with unnecessary heat:

"I take a long time because of the idiotic construction of woman's dresses. Why a dress should be made so that nobody but a contortionist could fasten it is beyond my powers of reason. If you had a lady's maid, and were an absolutely helpless woman, dependent on her to dress you entirely, this one thing would make very little real difference. But in your case, it is sheer fear of the dressmaker and a blind reverence for foolish convention. There must be some other way to do it. How about all these women who live alone in flats? Do they have to call in the elevator-boy every day to assist in their toilet?"

He finished this Philippic, and fastened the last hook with a jerk to give greater emphasis to his words. His wife, free at last, turned and walked down the hall into the living room. Still in a heat, he returned to his little dressing-room, tied his tie with a vicious tug, jammed his arms into the sleeves of his dinner-coat, and followed her, leaving the cuffs and buttons on the floor.

She was sitting at the table with her head held high, and she smiled right through him as he entered. Neither spoke, and the noiseless waitress removed the scones placed in an atmosphere ominously quiet. How pretty Jenny looked when she was angry, thought Steve, as he sat vainly trying to catch her eye across the table. Maybe he had been a brute, and—

hind their newspapers, the hilarity

of the young ones grated on his straining nerves, and even the chairs and tables seemed to leer cynically at each other, as though to say, "Here he is again, after a short and disastrous attempt to 'break away.' We knew he'd come back to us; they all do." The importunities of a bore, who insisted on talking about the political outlook, drove him out into the night again, where at least he could be alone. He glanced at his watch, and found it was only half-past nine. It seemed an age since he had left her. Oh, what was the use; he might as well go home, anyway.

This decision was a grave mistake, because if he had stayed out a couple of hours longer, he would have carried all before him in his contrition of spirit, and a reconciliation would have been inevitable. As it was, he returned to an atmosphere which was, to all outward appearances, unchanged, and he could not guess what had been going on just after he left. Silence brooded over the flat.

Just before bedtime he made another attempt to soften her, but she retorted so stingingly that he became angry again. The evening wore to its close in mutual bitterness and silent reprimand.

She did not come to breakfast next morning, pleading a headache. That was all she would say to him, though he spoke to her several times.

Behold him, then, a picture of despair, glowering into his matrimonial eggs, the newspaper unheeded at his elbow. The room seemed so dull without her. The coffee was as mud. How like nectar it always tasted when she was smiling at him over the top of the urn! He couldn't stand it, that was all. He was going to kiss her good-by, no matter how much she repulsed him.

Coat and hat in hand, he tiptoed down the hall, but alas! the bedroom door was locked, and a muffled "Go away!" was the only response to his gentle tap. He went, and slammed the hall door unnecessarily hard, as though to take revenge upon all such contrivances in general.

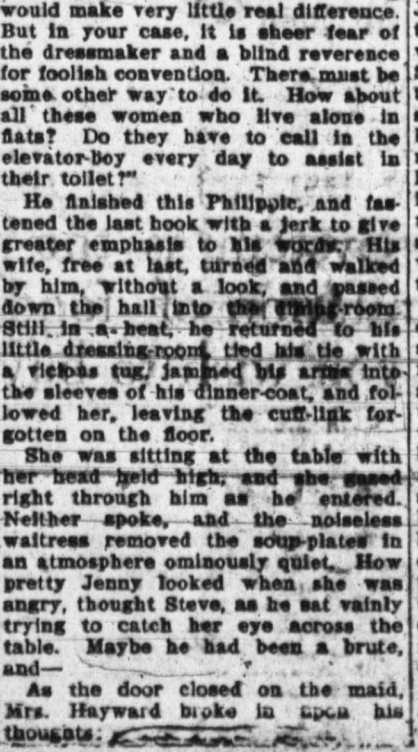

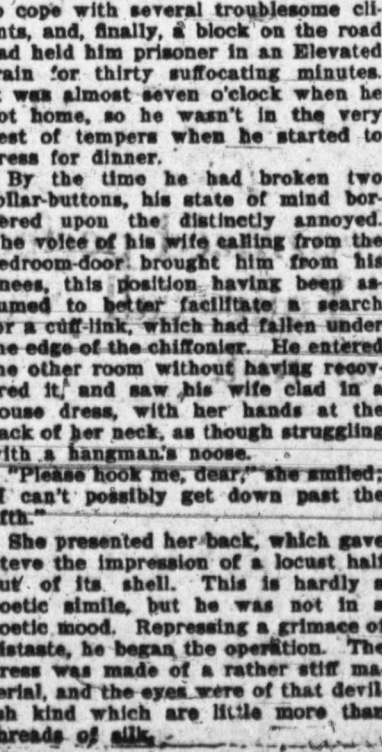

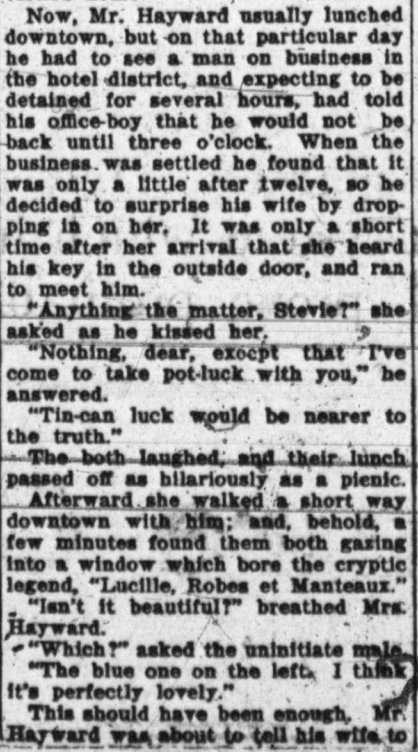

During the morning Mrs. Hayward thought it all out. She had possibly been in the wrong as usual in such an occasion, yes, of course she had. No wonder a man hated to have to bother over such annoying things as a woman's dress. Then his knock on that bolted door had sounded pathetic. Why hadn't she opened it, instead of sending him away in such heartless fashion? Poor Steve, he did work hard.

After lunch she went out with the light of purpose in her blue eyes. Down at the office, Mr. Hayward was also thinking. Work forgotten, he sat looking up at a little photograph in a gilt frame which hung

Skirts are Wrapped Instead of Slashed, in Summer Styles

New York, June 27.—The chic popular but now waning vogue of the slash and the prevailing tube like appearance of the female figure have been food for amusement and comment for some months. But now a fresh theme engages the public mind: The new wrapped over skirts are so constructed that their staying qualities are entirely dependent on girths or spring fasteners and air fashion decrees that only the sheerest and scantiest of undergarments be worn. In many cases "knickers" doing duty for "intimate" outfit, think of the predicament of the woman who finds herself at a street corner on a windy day! Should the fastening immediately loose its moorings the charge of midday and the public may be assigned. These wrapped over skirts are not only in vogue for evening, but for afternoon wear also they are highly approved. The overlapping material is held down only half way.

The summer girl, whether debutante or full blown rose, knows the value of dress as a contribution to her summer happiness, and, shall I say it? to her conquests. The various accessories, no small part in enhancing her dainty charm. Her ruffles, collars, belts and fans are more important than her gowns—they are the piece de resistance of her wardrobe. It really is remarkable what smart summer costumes some women can acquire by picking up remnants here and there. Materials are now much reduced and may be obtained at about half the previous cost. Odds and ends of ribbon and lace may be had in the same way and fashioned into chapeaux, baguettes, "tulle" and "fingering," make most fascinating trimmings.

But of first importance to many women is the costume for morning and early afternoon wear. The frock of the second illustration is charming for this purpose. It was developed in that exquisite material silk tulle, of mustard shade with white dots. Batine lace of similar shade was used for collar and cuffs. A girle of tan and purple silk is brought well over the left hip, where end hangs free. The waist is made in kimono style and the skirt on the prevailing closely fitted lines, with back laid in inverted pleat. For short trips out of town and for all practical purposes this frock is most attractive.

Those who spend the summer by the sea may appreciate a word about the bathing suit. It is impossible to improve on black satin as material for this suit. Preferably, it is severely plain, with deep yoke skirt and slash on either side the hem, showing underneath deep pleats of the same material. Collar and cuffs of dotted fourth brighten the suit effectively. A ruffled cap of this material is a pleasing addition. With the smart bathing suit silk stockings, of course leaving the remainder free. To be sure, drapery is used to conceal this fact, but this may frequently prove inefficient. Conservative woman, however, contends with none of fashion's freak manifestations. She recognizes discretion as the better part of valor, and rounds the breezy corner to mind while still fashioning her costume. To this end she chooses for her street suit a model on the lines of our first illustration. The costume was developed in two tones of eponge, the blue jacket contrasting effectively with the white skirt. Collar and cuffs are of white satin brocade, and the girle, appearing between the cutaway lines of the jacket, was made of Bulgarian silk with blue for its predominating shade. The jacket has the fashionable one-piece back, with slightly rounded lower edge. The one-piece skirt is caught into stylishly draped folds at front and sides, the front fullness lying in graceful curves, approximating the lower folds to the hem of the skirt on the opposite side. For travel or wear in city or country the costume is equally charming. The white fabric of the skirt, although liable to soil easily, may be easily rubbed and nor ironing is required.

Color, a consideration of the summer frock, constitutes a most fascinating study. On the principle of "first somebody told it," it has long been the custom to adopt theories of dress, add to them the authority invested in tradition, and offer the whole as correct formulae on no account to be questioned. In this way red has become known as impossible for a summer color, yet in the warmest countries of the south, where sun and sand and dust vie with another in distressing the inhabitants, vivid colors are the rule—red, blue, yellow and purple. Our custom has been to add a little color in parasol, girle or hat to our otherwise pure white outfit. The custom of adding color still prevails, but we are no longer satisfied with little color—it must run riot, and this season it does. The gay parasol, gayer than ever before, is being carried. Coats of purple, red or yellow, frocks of mustard, light gray and royal blue, predominant in cotton novelties, volles, crepes and batiste strike notes of gay originality in the design that are irresistible. Potted roses, green leaves and sprays are strewn over the surface, and the border is a galaxy of the vivid tints of the old time garden, yet the intimation of warmth of tones, is no more evident than is that of a rose bordered pathway on a quaintly fashioned terrace.

It is not the sports coat alone that has adopted the bright color tones. Those of silk, pongee, cotton and linen are most fashionable and pleasing. Girdles, belts, collars and cuffs carry out the same intimation and are by no means unimportant factors of the summer wardrobe.

MANY LARGE FARMS IN WICHITA COUNTY

Average Farm Contains 314 Acres with Average of 168 Acres Improved Land

The average farm in Wichita County contains 314 acres and in each case the average number of acres of improved land is 168 acres. The Farmers' Union is strongly advocating the reduction of the size of the farms of this state, and its president, Hon. Peter Radford, has previously called attention to the number of large farms in Wichita County. Federal census records show that this county has 801 farms that contain more than 100 acres. Mr. Radford claims that if cheap money were available more tenant farmers would become home owners and the owners of these large tracts could be induced to place their property on the market in small tracts.

We now have 1,933 farms in this county and 574 of them are operated by tenants.

NEWCASTLE CHICKEN HOUSE BLOWN UP WITH DYNAMITE
Newcastle Register.

Late Saturday night, between the hours of twelve and one o'clock, some trenchers and cowardly individuals placed a quantity of dynamite on the chicken house of W. B. Stover, a well known miner of this city, and blew the house and its contents into atoms. The explosion was terrific in its force, at least a half box of dynamite being used. Notwithstanding the severe shock Mr. Stover was not awakened (he sleeps very sound) and the next morning when he went into the yard he viewed the ruins and returning to the house asked Mrs. Stover who tore the chicken house down. About thirty-five chickens were killed—in fact all that were in the house, and the structure itself was demolished, scarcely a piece a foot square being intact. Mr. Stover says if he has an enemy in the world he does not know it, and he has no idea who would take such a cowardly method of revenging themselves upon him even though they did dislike him.

A Christian Endeavor Society was organized yesterday afternoon at Iowa Park, five automobile loads of Wichitans, representing the societies of the First Presbyterian and Christian churches, going up to start the new organization safely on its way. Dr. J. L. McKee, pastor of the First Presbyterian, and Rev. J. E. Walters, pastor of the Christian church, were in the party, which returned last night. The Iowa Park society was started off with a large membership.

CHANGES SOON IN MATRIMONIAL STATUS

New Laws Governing Relations Between Husband and Wife Effective Tuesday

If you are about to get married for financial reasons—which, of course, you are not—better pull off the happy event today if you are "the man."

If you are the bride-to-be and have lots of money and the groom nothing but a dress suit and a winning way, well, take a tip and wait until after today.

For should you get married before that, time the property you own all by yourself now will be half that of your husband, to do and dispose of as he pleases. But tomorrow you may be married and the property is all yours, and hubby will have to come and eat out of your hand and say "please" when he wants some money.

Can't Blow Wife's Coin.

For on that day the new law called the "property rights of married women" goes into effect. It may work an awful hardship on lots of married women, for it'll give 'em justice.

"And justice is just what lots of men are not looking for," Mrs. Horvath Ward of Houston, who got the bill past a lot of stubborn lawmakers, told those same lawmakers in Austin, Texas, the husband and wife shall have control of their separate property, and the other can not spend it or "set 'em up to the boys with it."

The husband can not sell the property the wife owned when he married her unless she signs the papers. He can not collect her income without her consent. He can not collect her wages until she says so. All these things are possible now under the new law in chivalrous Texas. And they are common things. Just think if you can't remember some woman who has had her little fortune squandered by her worthless husband.

Old Law Was "Fierce."

"Her fault," you say? "No, it was not under the present law, but she may have been her fault in marrying him, but once married the property and earnings of the wife were the absolute property of the husband. He could sue her employer if she worked and force him to pay her, but she couldn't have to collect her wages in court without her husband's aid."

But that's all gone away with today. The only thing a wife can not do is to dispose of her separate real estate without the consent of the husband. But he can't dispose of it, either, without her consent. But she doesn't have to ask about her money, jewelry, stocks or bonds, household effects or clothing. Formerly the very clothes a woman wore belonged to the husband. He could sell them—she couldn't. Thanks, Texas is improving.

That New Divorce Law.

Married folk, here is another law that affects you. If the yoke is chafing you and you want a divorce, you must have been a resident of this state for one year, and of the county six months or you can not get one. No more "fly by the night" divorces in Texas. So, if you came here to get a divorce, hurry and do it before tomorrow.

And the old hoax about "cruelty" isn't going to be the same that will get you from a man's side after tomorrow. If you get a divorce on that popular plea you can't marry any other man for one year. But the law will allow you to marry the "cruel wretch" back any time after you get a divorce—but no other man is eligible.

One More Link.

And now, husbands, to completely forge your chain a little tighter, here is one for you. If you want to desert your wife, tarry not. Do it before tomorrow, for on that day a law becomes effective by which you may be put in jail for one year or fined $500 for seeking your trip and leaving. Wife desertion is made a misdemeanor.

That is all the last legislature did to married folks at its last session.

"No Sleeps"

To Mrs. Harry Bragg in the death of her little son, Harry, Jr.

"He sleeps!" Thy darling sweetly sleeps.
No pain contracts that lovely brow;
That placid face, that smile so sweet,
Ah! naught, disturbs his slumbers now.
No pangs convulse that little frame,
Arouse him not to suffer again.

"He sleeps!" Weep dotting mother, weep.
Or else thy stricken heart would break;
"He wept!" at Lazarus' tomb did weep.
Nor doth from us this solace take:
Then weep sad mother, weep thy fill,
But oh, rebel not 'gainst His will.

"He sleeps!" Question not His power,
Or right (whom all our blessings lend)
To choose the rarest, sweetest flower,
To deck his royal diadem.
He lends thee all; would'st thou forbide
One little bud unmarred by sin?

"He sleeps!" But then 'tis afeet to know,
That while that form is mouldering now
Thy Harry's spirit's hovering o'er
And makes each shadow on thy brow;
His nightly vigils he doth keep,
O'er thee, fond mother, whilst thou sleepest.

"He sleeps!" And now within the tomb
That precious casket they have lain
Seek not the jewel in that gloom,
Bright angels came—the gem to claim,
And would'st thou that bright gem reclaim
Believe on Him our sins have slain.

"He sleeps!" But time with healing wings
Will cure the wound his sleep hath made,
Perhaps thou'll laugh and gaily sing,
Yet on thy heart that scar 'll remain,
In dreams thou'll clasp him to thy breast,
Thy soul will fill with sweet unrest.

"He sleeps!" For long we too must sleep!
But when the darts of death is hurled,
And trembles in the air for thee,
Oh! may'st thy sleep be sweet as his;
May every pang that e'er thy heart
Be lost in hope meeting him.

A FRIEND.

THIRTY TWO DEATHS TO ONE SANTA FE ENGINE

No. 2233 to be Sent to Junk Pile After Unusual Record of Fatal Accidents

Guthrie, Ok., June 30.—With a record of thirty-two deaths to its credit, the Santa Fe switch engine No. 2233, following a service of twenty-eight years in service as a switch engine has been sent to Topeka, where it may be rebuilt, but in all probability it will go to the junk pile instead.

For a number of years No. 2233 has been considered a "Jonah" or hoodoo by the employees of the Santa Fe, for the old engine is known all along the line from Topeka to Guthrie and has seen service as a switch engine in the three towns named and also in Arkansas City, Newton and other Santa Fe towns in Kansas and Oklahoma. Because of the old engine's reputation as a man-killer, it has been difficult to get men who would consent to take the engine on the road. All engineers and firemen fought shy of such assignments, and even when it was as a tender to another, not being permitted to make the trip under its own steam.

No. 2233 is an old Hinkley engine. It began service on the Santa Fe when that system was but a small proportion of its great size today, being first installed out of Chicago. Santa Fe firemen believe it has been over practically every foot of the entire system. Engines, used now by the Santa Fe, must be of forty-ton size, while the Hinkley is but thirty-five, and it was for this reason, the company declares, that it was condemned recently and ordered to Topeka. The firemen themselves understand, however, that the fact that the Hinkley is considered a hoodoo had much weight in bringing about the condemnation proceedings.

The old engine has been in Guthrie, working in the local yards, for eight years. During that time a number of persons have been killed by it at street crossings and the crew in charge was always fearful of the outcome whenever the engine was in use. The highest execution record made by the Hinkley was in Wichita, a number of years ago, when the boiler exploded and killed four men. At another time, in Wichita, four others were killed at one time by No. 2233 and a week later a child was killed at a crossing.

The last men in charge of the old engine in the Guthrie yards were Engineer Hinds and Fireman Clarence Williams.

Building applications since the fire and quake in 1906 in Frisco reached the $400,000,000 mark with the granting of permit No. 50,000 for a $500 cottage. No. 1 was issued while the fire was still burning.

S. D. Smyres of McPherson, Kan., had to take a hog to town to butcher in a hurry. So he loaded piggy in the back seat of the family motor car and drove him a joy ride to the executioner's knife.

At Capitol avenue, near Ohio street, the animal made a break, and immediately afterward things began to happen. In fact, things happened on Capitol avenue all the way north to Twentieth street, which is quite a distance. The two young women thought it was quite a distance, at least, and they never expect to drive through that thoroughfare in quite so dramatic a fashion again.

When the horse found that one of the reins had parted he knew at once that the other was of no service, for he was a wise horse. He started to run, and made up his mind at the very beginning to pay no attention to speed laws or interference of other kinds. Pedestrians ran out and tried to seize the bridle, but he paid no attention to them. Persons in other rigs tried to overtake him, but he left them far behind. Automobileists took up the chase, but the horse made the machines look as though they were standing still. A colored man ran into the middle of the street and tried to "flag" him with a blanket. The horse clamped his teeth on the bit, laid back his ears and tried his best to run right square over the colored man. The colored man had to side step like a matador.

Finally, when the horse had passed Nineteenth street, a young man ran out, seizing the situation as he ran. He saw that to tackle the front end of the runaway would be like plunging single-handed against a flying wedge; so he stood alongside and, as the rear end of the buggy passed, he seized the top and vaulted into the vehicle. After that he climbed over the seat, over the dashboard, over the shafts and onto the horse's back. With so much accomplished the remainder was easy. All he had to do was to reach over and catch hold of the reins on the ends of the bits and then jerk a few times.

The young man disappeared immediately after the excitement was over and his name was not learned.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Miss Grace Mookford and Miss Edith Timmerman, 9987 North Illinois street, were tampered outdoors by the delightful weather the other afternoon for what they planned to be a very restful and graceful drive over the boulevards. They were in a runabout and the horses they were driving was a spirited animal.

This exchange of service brings about business, and the more exchanges the better the business. We are playing our part in this great game to the very best of our ability. We have the best plant of its kind in the state, our employees are all faithful and efficient, and we are here to serve those who may need any service we can give.
